"We are only little ones, but we know Zam-Buk eased our pain and cured our sores. Perhaps it would cure you, too, if you tried it?"

Isn't this sound advice from "babes and sucklings"? Take it! The speakers are the children of Mrs. E. Webster, of Seignours St., Montreal, and the mother adds weight to their appeal. She says: "My little girl contracted scap disease at school. Bad gatherings formed all over her head, and not only caused the child acute pain but made her very ill. The sores discharged, and occurring on the scalp we feared she would lose all her hair. She was in a pitiable plight when we tried Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is "something different" in the way of balms. It contains powerful healing herb-essences, which, as soon as applied to skin diseases, kill off the germs and end the painful smarting. Other essences contained in Zam-Buk so stimulate the cells that new healthy tissue is speedily formed. Eczema, itch, ulcers, cold sores, abscesses, festering sores, blood poisoning, chronic wounds, cold cracks, etc., are healed and cured in this way. Use it for all skin injuries and diseases. It is also of great service for piles. All druggists and stores at 50 cents box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

A MYSTERIOUS QUEST.

CHAPTER XLV.
WHAT HE READ.

"But a thunderbolt awaited me. Just as renewed peace was settling over me, and I began to realize the sweetness of hope, Montelli burst into the room and showed me by word and look that something had gone seriously wrong. Confused and alarmed, I awaited his explanation, and you can imagine my horror and surprise when Annetta approached and whispered in my ear: 'A mistake has been made; this is not the right man!'

'Not the right man! And I had almost exchanged with you looks of appreciation and love. Shocked, if not frightened, I was conscious of but one thought, and that was to be rid of your presence.

My heart had been stirred and my conscience awakened, but fear made me forget all this, and I promised to see you the next day, if only you would leave me then. You went, and, with you, whatever girl-ship had remained in me. Henceforth, I was a woman.

'I dismissed you, but not with an intentional falsehood. I really hoped to see you again, and, if left to myself, would doubtless have done so. But, after you had gone, Montelli and the Portuguese came in and soon made me see that, if we still hoped to succeed in the undertaking we had formed, I must escape the consequence of our egregious mistake, by a sudden and immediate flight. And though I experienced a moment of rebellion, and almost refused to have anything more to do with the plot, I soon found I lacked both the courage and the wit to contend with these two subtle and dangerous adventurers. I became again a tool in their hands, and, after hearing an explanation of how they had just discovered the fact that there were two Hamilton Degraws, and that the artist whom they had attempted to inveigle was not the gentleman with millions at his disposal, they informed me that, so far from being discouraged by the first failure, they had formed another plot by which the right man was to be reached. Whereupon, I told them about Miss Aspinwall's unexpected visit to me, and they agreed that I should make an effort to bring myself into her notice, as the plan they had formed necessitated my being introduced in some highly respectable way into the society frequented by the Cleveland millionaire. This advice I was not loth to follow, for ambition was by no means dead within me. So, after a couple of weeks spent in a Westchester town, I made a bold move toward Great Barrington, where, as Montelli had managed to inform me, Miss Aspinwall had now taken up her abode.

Montelli, meanwhile, had found enough to do in New York. Though, as I have before declared, I knew nothing then of the cruel acts he was engaged in. I have reason to think now that he wrote the note and poisoned the bouquets that destroyed the factory girl he found at that time attracting the notice of Mr. Degraw. He had by this time caused himself to be engaged as that gentleman's valet, and so had ample opportunity to follow his master's movements and interfere in his plans. He also must have misled the young girl at Miss Hadden's school into thinking she had a lover in Mr. Degraw, for that gentleman certainly never wrote her the letter she received. But, as I say, I was in happy ignorance of this, and though soon after my interview with Miss Aspinwall at the station, I came to know that danger had followed the steps of various girls who bore my name, I shut my eyes to the suspicions now ripe in my heart, and, happy in my own innocence, went on in the way into which I had been forced.

'The life in Great Barrington you know; Hilary you know. You can imagine the welcome which her pity gave me, and afterward, the sweet atmosphere created around me by her affection. Unworthy as I felt of it, I nevertheless accepted it with a full heart. It was so spontaneous and so trustful, and raised me into an atmosphere of luxury for which I always pined. I began to be happy. But deeper experiences awaited me. You came; and I gave up my heart and soul to your influence, and was so quick in learning the story of love, that I came near forgetting my more worldly hopes, and only had them recalled to me by the sudden introduction of Mr. Degraw. This was at a critical moment in our lives, you remember, and you can imagine my sensations when I perceived, from the first look he gave me, that I had but to smile upon him with half the fervor I smiled upon you to charm the millions from his coffers, and make myself, in fact, what I had been so long in fancy—the rich and influential 'Miss Rogers,' with something beside her heart to give to the man she loved.

'For, dearest, doubt me not in this, I charge you. To give you that wealth was then my uppermost thought. No idea of coquetry was in my mind, nor did his glance, ardent though it was, arouse in me any suspicion that his personal feelings had been touched. I only saw that he liked me and that my hope of acquiring his wealth was good and likely to reach fruition. I determined to make myself as agreeable as I could to him, even if I must seem to sacrifice my love for you to my interest in the newcomer.

'But, alas! I did not reckon upon the passions of men or the watchful eye of the wicked Montelli. Mr. Degraw's affection became engaged, and his valet saw it, and warned me in the interview we had at the picnic, that if I allowed my manifest partiality for you to show itself, he would make that partiality fatal. Indeed, he went so far as to say that I must go on smiling upon the millionaire or see you perish; for this man, who had already shortened one poor life, was not going to let another stand in his way, when he saw the success of his schemes threatened, as he judged, by a woman's silly passion. And I was convinced that these were no mere threats on his part, and became greatly frightened, and took those secret measures to warn you, which I am sure you have not yet forgotten.

ALL READY FOR THE CLEANING

GILLETTE'S LYE

MADE IN CANADA

Montelli added his efforts to mine. His purpose was to alarm you, and thus force you to leave the town, or at least cease all rivalry with his master. That he was a man of devices you must have perceived by the address with which he assumed the part of a detective, when he found himself forced into a position that demanded explanation.

'But he, as well as I, calculated too little upon the resistance which abid's in all noble natures. You would not leave the town, and you would preserve your attitude of a lover, and though Mr. Degraw did not seem to be much affected by your rivalry, I knew that Montelli had conceived the deepest hatred for you, and that he only awaited an opportunity in order to destroy you.

'The announcement made by his master of a particular desire to see me on a certain morning, taken with the fact that a lawyer had already been summoned to accompany him on this interview, brought matters to a climax. The wretch attempted your life, and though I knew nothing of it at the time, nor of the jeopardy in which it placed him with the police, I did know that he desired to have some talk with me, for I had heard from my window, where I invariably sat between the hours of eleven and twelve, the short and peculiar bird which had been made a signal between us.

'It was a hateful call to me, but I dared not slight it. As in anticipation of his purpose, I had already opened a window in the hall below, I had only to descend to the lower hall to meet him. But when I stepped from my room, I became aware, possibly by some occult influence, that I was not alone in the hall; that my actions were observed, and that my future steps would be watched, if not followed.

Lord Haldane Visits Germany

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-day. The Foreign Office authorizes the following statement respecting the visit to Berlin of Lord Haldane, the Secretary of War. Lord Haldane is the President of the Royal Commission on University Education and has gone to Berlin to investigate scientific education in German Universities, but as he is well known to many leading people in Germany he will doubtless have some general conversations on the political situation and the relation between the two countries.

Death of Edward O'Leary, of Renewes.

AN APPRECIATION.

A message was received in town yesterday announcing the sad news that Mr. Edward O'Leary, Sub-Collector and Wreck Commissioner, died at one o'clock. In the death of Mr. O'Leary Renewes loses one of its oldest and best citizens, he was born there in 1834. Edward O'Leary was a splendid type of the fisherman planter, a shrewd, keen, observant man, progressive in his ideas and practical in everything relating to the fisheries of the country. One of his strongest characteristics was his hospitality, to spend a few hours with "Skipper Ned" and enjoy his fund of humorous and droll sayings was a treat, and an index of the fine types that the old times produced; he was immense on a good election story or the tale of a wreck, especially if there was a funny side to it. He was richly endowed with the humorous characteristics of his Celtic forefathers, yet the serious side of life was never overlooked. In his religious life he was an earnest, practical Catholic, and in his dealings with his fellowman his word was his bond. The death of his wife and daughter within the past few years cast a shadow over the evening of his life, and although he was bright and cheerful, yet to the writer he often expressed in feeling language his sense of loss and respect to the memory of his life partner and child. He leaves one son, Arthur, and two daughters, Miss Mary O'Leary and Mrs. John Morry, of Fermeuse. He will be buried on Sunday in the quiet little cemetery at Renewes by the side of those who in life he loved so well.—R.I.P.—Com.

The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle, and sold at all first-class Drug Stores.

Bank Staff Held Up by Robbers.

The Royal Bank branch at Main street and Seventh avenue Vancouver, B.C., was robbed of its cash by two robbers shortly before high noon on Friday. Manager A. A. Stevens and the members of his staff were backed into the vault and locked there while the robbers helped themselves to everything in sight. The sum taken will probably be high up in the thousands. One of the clerks made a show of fight. He was knocked senseless by a blow with a revolver. The robbers are believed to have left the place by the rear door. They walked out quietly and mingled with people on the street. The corner where the bank stands was thronged. As soon as the clerks were released there was great excitement, but no trace of the robbers was found.—Ex.

At Barmouth police court, England, Morris Williams, an ex-soldier, with ten years' service in the Welsh Regiment, three years in the South Wales Borderers, and who saw three years' service in the South African war, for which he possessed two medals with six fighting bars, was sentenced to three weeks' imprisonment for breaking into his mother's house at Arthor, near Barmouth, and stealing a sum of 5s. 6d. from under a pillow in his mother's bedroom.

Five thousand dollars has recently been refused for a rickety old chair in South Africa which is declared by experts to be worth three times that sum. The explanation is that the old chair originally belonged to Louis XVI. of France, and was later bought by the British Government and sent with other articles of furniture for the use of Napoleon at St. Helena. But the ship changed her course and, at any rate, was wrecked off the Cape of Good Hope; and the chair was saved from the disaster.

Robert Meyerhoff, a hotel proprietor at Atlantic City, invited 14 guests to a dinner given in celebration of his 78th birthday anniversary, and at the end of the meal presented each of them with a new $100 bill. Meyerhoff announced that he will continue the practice at each of his birthday anniversaries, but gave no hint as to whom he will invite to the next dinner.

The "Bomb" Explodes.

The Daily News in a leader to-day truthfully says that the Telegram's article yesterday in connection with the Gaultois second hand cable was a bomb. Certainly it was, and one that has created some damage for its explosive force has been felt in the ranks of the Government and has incidentally given our suave morning contemporary a bit of a jolt also. He admits that the cable is second hand (just as we stated), that it was bought from a cable company, who sold it as of a value less than one seventh of a new cable, and this cable is to be installed on a new service. This, however, will not satisfy the taxpayers who have to foot the bill. Would the News say how long the cable has been in use? Did the Editor see the cable? If he did not we might inform him that others who profess to know, say that it is the "dummiest" thing in cables—even second hand ones—that they have ever seen. The "pickers" are now coming forward in a new role the purchasers of "second hand" goods, and this second hand cable is a sample of the first "bargains" they make. However, the whole party will soon be political "cast offs" themselves.

Rev. Dr. Rogers Lecture.

The lecture delivered last night in the M. C. L. I. rooms was attended by a large, deeply interested and very appreciative audience of ladies and gentlemen and proved to be, as we predicted yesterday, a literary treat. The Rev. lecturer was introduced by the President, Mr. Geo. Peters, in a few eloquent and happily chosen words and the subject which received such able treatment was "The New Socialism." The theme was handled in a very practical and original manner, showing that Dr. Rogers had given deep study to it. He quoted exhaustively from the writings of the devotees of the cult of former days in Germany, France and Italy and also from modern adherents in the same countries. The lecturer was a master piece of his class. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. A. W. Martin, seconded by Mr. I. C. Morris and carried unanimously.

Inquiring for Kamford.

Mr. Tasker Cook to-day had a telegram from Capt. Ponson of the S. S. Malmstad, now at Louisbourg, asking if he had any news of the S. S. Kamford, which to-day is two weeks out from Sydney to this port. Mr. Cook wired back that there is no word of her. Capt. Ponson was formerly in command of the ship and he is naturally interested in her. The opinion of some nautical men is that she struck a heavy pan of ice, was stove, and went down with her crew of 14 hands.

The King's Bridge Fire.

In connection with the report of some young men of finding burning material by the side of Mr. John Hayse's house, King's Bridge, yesterday, we find that the affair was the result of an accident in the residence. The servant did some sewing in her room by candle light, fell asleep and the candle fired the bed clothing. She fortunately awoke in time to quench the burning bed covering and threw some partly burned clothing out through the window. This the men found and caused them to suspect incendiarism. Mr. Hayse knew nothing of the matter until the police, who were apprised, came to his house and informed him.

Railway News.

The 8.45 train took out Rev. J. Ashley, Capt. Carroll, Messrs. Kennedy, D. Munn, Mr. Gosses and two sisters of Mercy and 40 others. The express went out at 6 last evening. The west bound express left Ben-ton at 8.25 a.m. and arrived at Bishop's Falls at noon. The incoming express is at Port aux Basques waiting the arrival of the cable. A train arrived from Broad Cove this morning. The Placentia and Bonavista branches are now open. The local arrived from Carbonear at 12.45 bringing 20 passengers including P. P. Connors, J. Mitchell, Capt. Tucker, Miss Gould, Mrs. Downey and W. Miller.

The Police Court.

To-day a drunk was discharged. A female resident of Quidi Vidi Road summoned a man of the same place for assaulting her on the 7th inst., while the complainant was looking for payment of a debt from him. He was fined $1 or 3 days. Several civil cases were heard in the Central District Court.

Wedding Bells.

The wedding of Mr. Maurice Fitzgerald and Miss Nellie Flynn was solemnized at St. Patrick's Church by Rev. Fr. McDermott, last Wednesday. The celebration was kept up at the groom's home Springdale St. The bride is a native of St. Mary's.

Coastal Boats.

REID BOATS.
The Home arrived at Placentia at 4.15 p.m. yesterday and sailed to-day for the west. The Invermore arrived at Grand Bank at 8.10 p.m. yesterday going west. The Glencoe is due at Port aux Basques from Louisbourg. She left Port aux Basques at 7.30 p.m. Wednesday and was supposed to have arrived at Louisbourg last night, and to have left again early this morning. It is likely that she is delayed by ice.

Marine News.

The Durango leaves Halifax for this port this afternoon. The Florizel left New York for this port direct at 4 p.m. yesterday and is due here Sunday. After discharging she will be made ready for the seal-fishery. The Rosalind leaves Halifax tomorrow for this port.

Only One Colder Jan.

Toronto, Feb. 1.—Since the observatory was established in Toronto in 1840 there has been only one colder January than this month, 1857, when the mean temperature was 12.8 degrees above zero. Last month it was 13.3, just one degree higher. Since 1840 only three Februaries have been colder than this January.

Death of Monsignor Walsh

Rt. Rev. Monsignor Walsh, of Briggs, died at one o'clock to-day. The news came as a shock to his many friends in the city. They knew he was in poor health the past month, but as he has been more or less an invalid the past ten years, they were not expecting to hear this sudden departure. Deceased who was one of the oldest and most prominent clergymen in the Harbor Grace Diocese and was a friend and adviser to all its clergymen. His Lordship Bishop March held him in the highest esteem and visited him regularly the past few years, spending several days in his company. The Monsignor's death will be a great loss to the diocese. When his health became impaired some years ago the Bishop divided the work of the parish with Dr. Whelan, since then the Monsignor was able to lead a more retired life necessitated by his delicate state of health. He was born in Carbonear, and was a nephew of the late Rev. Fr. Duffy. He was educated in Ireland and was a profound theologian and highly accomplished musician. He was a pleasing conversationalist and his company was enjoyed by all who called to see him at his hospitable Presbytery. Rt. Rev. Mons. Veitch was his life long friend, and it is a remarkable fact that they received their title from Rome at the same time. We extend our sympathy to the relatives of the deceased, including Mrs. Thomas Kavanagh, of this city, who is a niece of the deceased.

Bandits Suicide.

Rather Than be Captured by the Police.
Orleans, France, Feb. 1.—The police to-night surprised four men in the act of stealing goods from the railway depot. The thieves ran when they saw the police and attempted to board an outgoing train, pursued by the gendarmes and station officials. The police fired at the thieves, and the latter returned the fire. A regular fusillade followed. The sub-station master fell at the first fire, and then a police officer was shot. The train was still moving slowly when the police surrounded one of the bandits, who blew out his brains. A second member of the gang, who was cornered, was about to commit suicide also when he was brought down by a bullet in the leg and captured. A third bandit also killed himself, while the only remaining one escaped to the open fields. In reply to questions, the wounded bandit said: "My name is Oscar Wilde. I was born in Montreal, Canada, December 27, 1881. I am the son of Francis Harry Wilson and am a bronze decorator."

Two of the dead bandits are Frenchmen and the one who shot himself was recognized as being badly wanted by the police, as he was recognized as a murderer and a thief. A second member of the gang, who was cornered, was about to commit suicide also when he was brought down by a bullet in the leg and captured. A third bandit also killed himself, while the only remaining one escaped to the open fields. In reply to questions, the wounded bandit said: "My name is Oscar Wilde. I was born in Montreal, Canada, December 27, 1881. I am the son of Francis Harry Wilson and am a bronze decorator."

PRISONERS BY TRAIN.—Sergeant Cox and Constable Sheppard arrived from Spaniard's Bay by last night's train, bringing J. Barrett and son who are held for Barratry in the case of the schooner Annie C. Raymond, lost at Wolf Island, Labrador, last summer. They were taken to the Penitentiary to await their trial.

Jury Out 13 Hours.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 1.—The jury in the case of Allison M. MacFarland, on trial for the murder of his wife, by cyanide of potassium poisoning, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree shortly before midnight, after 13 hours consideration. The conviction of MacFarland was mainly on circumstantial evidence. His wife met death on the night of October 14 last, when MacFarland was absent from home by taking cyanide of potassium, which the State alleged MacFarland had deliberately substituted for headache medicine which Mrs. MacFarland was in the habit of taking. MacFarland's declaration that he had told his wife about the cyanide and that if she took it by mistake it was her own carelessness, which greatly offset by more than seventy letters which passed between MacFarland and his former stenographer in Philadelphia, Florence Bromley, in order to marry, who the State alleged that MacFarland planned to get rid of his wife.

Doctoring Under Difficulties.

Writing of the work of the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen in "Canada," Mr. A. W. Wakefield says: Except for the mission staff there is no doctor in the northern peninsula of Newfoundland, or along the whole coast of Labrador from the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Cape Cheldy. Instead of debating whether to call in Dr. Brown from the next street or Dr. Smith who lives two streets away from you, you had to travel from Land's End to John o' Groats and back again to Carlisle, or from Halifax to Montreal, before you could reach a doctor! And then not in a railway train or motor car, but in a sledge drawn by dogs over the ice and snow, or in a small, rickety boat, along the wildest and roughest coast in the whole world.

C. L. MARCH CO., Ltd.

A Pleasing Presentation.

The rooms of the M. C. L. last evening was the scene of a very pleasing function. It seems that about 45 years ago the late Hon. Stephen Rendell, in conjunction with some other gentlemen, instituted what is now known as the M. C. L., which has continued right down through these years without intermission. Last night, Mr. R. G. Rendell, through the venerable Capt. Diamond, presented the Institute with a large portrait of his late father—which was on motion of Mr. S. Woods, seconded by Mr. S. Tucker, accepted by President Peters, and hung just above the chair in the Institute Rooms. Mr. Tucker and Mr. Woods paid well merited tributes of admiration for the deceased gentleman, who was the first President of the Institute, and to his son for so kindly remembering the connection in such a tangible manner. Mr. J. W. Nichols promised the Institute a portrait of the second President, Mr. Henry, while it is likely that a picture of the third, the Hon. H. J. B. Woods will be forthcoming in due season. Votes of thanks to Mr. R. G. Rendell were passed and ordered to be recorded in the minutes.

Legion of Frontiersmen.

In the course of his address to the ladies of the C. C. C. last night, Dr. Wakefield referred to the Legion of Frontiersmen, an organization which has been formed in the Old Country, and branches of which will be established throughout the British Empire. It is a force which will be of great service in the event of the outbreak of war, and the need for which was much in evidence during the Boer campaign. The doctor has already started it in the northern parts of the Colony and has 50 stalwart men enrolled. A meeting of the four city brigades will soon be called to introduce the scheme, and he hopes to get 20 picked men from each.

Notes From Sound Island.

The weather has been very tempestuous this past few days, with snow flurries and heavy gales.
Mr. George Whiteley (Job's agent) arrived at Sound Island from Mussel Harbor, P. B., Jan. 10th, and reports herring very plentiful at present. He has been at Mussel Harbor for quite a while now buying all the herring that was available. The schr. Louisa was loaded by him at Mussel Hr., and carried her full cargo of 1,100 barrels, partly frozen and salted. The schr. Campanula is now there with six hundred barrels of frozen on board. It is reported there are no herring around vicinity the past week. Campanula leaves for home as soon as weather permits. The amount spent by Mr. Whiteley was $2,000. We feel sure this has been a great help to the people of Mussel Hr., who were employed, that otherwise would have been without employment during the winter months; but thanks to Mr.

Geo. Whiteley and Job Bros. they earned fairly good wages.

Mr. George Whiteley also held an entertainment at Mussel Hr. Arm, which proved a great success.

Mr. Stanley W. Brazil, telegraph operator, leaves Sound Island on the s.s. Home, Feb. 2nd, 1912. He proceeds to Torrenceville, Fortune Bay, where he will take charge of the telegraph office (repeating station) for Fortune Bay branch.

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Women's clubs are stated gatherings where maids, wives and widows meet to discuss the fall of Rome and the rise in the price of wheat. The program of the average club embraces a wide range of study, beginning with the dawn of creation and winding up with a discussion on some serious and weighty topic, such as the versatility of the wire dress form or the mental status of the new preacher's wife. The conversation at a woman's club is very free and unrestrained especially when some woman springs a new gown which makes the rest of the members look like a social function in the antebellum period. The conversation becomes more animated after she has left, however. These clubs settle a great many vexatious problems relating to husbands and the hreed help, the consensus of opinion being that one is as much of

FOOT BADLY FROZEN

After Escaping From Burning Home. Doctor Advised Amputation.

Mrs. Joe Marks, of Cameron, Ont., narrowly escaped losing her foot. She tells the story this way.
"I had my foot so badly frozen after escaping from a fire which destroyed our home that the doctor in attendance advised immediate amputation. Before consenting to the operation I was induced to try Douglas's Egyptian Liniment, and it produced a most remarkable result.
"After four or five applications the frozen flesh dropped off, and the foot began to show signs of improvement. It advanced wonderfully under the treatment, and was soon completely healed.
"Egyptian Liniment certainly saved me from being horribly crippled."
Probably none of your family will ever get frozen so badly, but a nipped ear or nose or toe is a common and painful enough experience. Egyptian Liniment takes out every bit of the pain, soreness and swelling, and quickly restores the injured part.

CHURCHILL OUTLINES HOME RULE BILL.

Special Evening Telegram.

BELFAST, Feb. 8. Winston Churchill arrived this morning with his wife, and was given a somewhat mixed reception. A number of Unionists, who had gathered at the station, greeted him with groans, but these were drowned by the hearty cheers of Liberals and Nationalists. There were no disturbances, and the large force of police on duty at the station had a very easy task to perform. Arrangements for preserving the peace had been made on a most elaborate scale. Detachments of police were posted everywhere, and the troops were held in readiness in their quarters. Matters looked ugly for a moment when Mr. and Mrs. Churchill started for the meeting place. A great crowd, which had gathered outside the hotel, appeared inclined to rush the First Lord's motor car, and tried to block its passage, but a militia of escorting motor cars, packed with detectives, succeeded in working their way through the growing throng, and the car moved safely away. Churchill and Redmond reached the Marquee safely, their journey being marked by nothing more serious than groans and hisses. Sixty thousand people were gathered in the tent. A steady shower of bath poured through the canvas roof, making the floor an incipient marsh. Churchill immediately got on good terms with his audience, promising them that the Government intended to pass a Home Rule Bill which would be harmonious with Imperial interests; smooth the path of the British Empire, liberate new forces for its service, and forever do away with the accursed machinery by which hatred had been manufactured in the past. The Government's Home Rule Bill, he said, would fit into a general scheme of Parliamentary devolution, leading ultimately to the federation of the Empire. That was the only way to free the Commons from the present congestion. Look at our great rivals, the United States of America and Germany. Both of these Powers conduct their business through separate Parliaments. Churchill contended that the settlement of the long quarrel between the British Government and the Irish people would be a boon to the Empire beyond compare, as the Irish throughout the world were a power for good or ill, and in the past had mostly worked counter to British interests. Without closely particularizing the terms of the Bill, he said that the Irish Parliament, including the Senate, would fairly represent the minority as well as the majority of the people of Ireland. The Crown would be in a position to refuse assent to any unjust law, and the Imperial Parliament would be able to repeal any such law. Religious freedom would be secured, and the Privy Council would be able to declare void any law which goes beyond the limits of Home

To the Medical Fraternity.

Special to Evening Telegram.

SALVAGE, Yesterday.
To the medical fraternity: It will be a serious breach of medical etiquette and highly derogatory to the honor, dignity and independence of our whole profession, for any member of the fraternity to offer his services to Salvage or Salvage Bay. There is no vacancy in fact I am in the district, able and willing to render medical and surgical services as formerly for reasonable remuneration. I asked the people to increase my modest annual fee of three dollars, including medicines, per family, to four dollars, including medicines. Some refused, hence the irrational cry for another doctor.

DR. MACDONALD.

C.C.C. Cups and Medals.

PRESENTED LAST NIGHT.

To witness the presentation of the cups and medals won during the summer of 1911, a large gathering of spectators were present at the Armoury of the Catholic Cadet Corps last night. There were present amongst them Hon. John Harris, Prof. C. Hutton, Rev. Fr. Sheehan (Chaplain of the Corps), Rev. Bro. Kennedy and Dr. Wakefield.

The full Battalion of the Corps mustered out in full kit headed by the Band, Major Donnelly being in charge. Five handsome cups were on the table for presentation with a beautiful array of medals, and at 8 p.m. sharp the proceedings began. Lieut. Col. Conroy with his good lady was there and the first presentation was the medals given for winning the Inter-Brigade Football for the season. Mrs. Conroy kindly placed the medals on the breasts of the lads of the team. The winners of events in the camp sports next received their trophies. Serg. W. Hart now handed over the beautiful football cup to Lieut. Col. Conroy for the Corps, making a very nice speech in doing so, praising the sturdy team who took the cup and hoping for further victories in future. Serg. G. Knight then stepped forward and in a very clever speech presented the Corps through the Lieut. Col. the three best trophies of the year, viz., the Mount Cashel relay cup, the P. F. Collins cup for the St. C. C. Sports, and the massive Coronation Cup presented him last week by Lady Williams for the C. C. C. Athletic team which won out in the Coronation Sports. Mr. Knight paid a due meed of praise to his friends in the Athletic team, asked for future co-operation and constant practice so that the Corps would be able to hold its present excellent place when future competitions occur.

Lieut. Col. Conroy made an eloquent reply on behalf of the Corps. He praised the earnestness with which the lads of the Corps entered into the athletic competitions, their zeal and strenuous endeavours, and hoped that all would strive for future successes by earnest preparation and practice, entering in a manly spirit and according to opponents that fair play for which the lads of the Corps were always noted. Some other very wholesome advice was tendered and a remainder was given the lads of the "At Home" on Monday next.

Dr. Wakefield who was present also addressed the lads, complimenting them on their successes, and told of an organization he was forming known as the Legion of Frontiersmen. He hoped to see the Cadets represented in this. Afterwards the Corps went through physical and other exercises, with Battalion marching and in columns of Companies, and the general salute was given while the band rendered God Save the King, bringing this interesting function to a close.

The Cadets now possess in their Armoury 22 handsome cups including the Earl Grey and the Coronation Trophy. The Telegram congratulates the Cadets on their success.

As a Cure for Whooping Cough

A medicine that will cure whooping cough can certainly be relied upon to overcome all ordinary coughs and colds. This is about the severest test, and one to which Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has frequently been put with the most satisfactory results.

Mrs. John Chesney, Inverkip, Ont., writes:—"We have used a dozen bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my little girl of whooping cough when the doctor had given her up, and since then we always keep it in the house as a treatment for coughs and colds. It is the best medicine we ever used."

In spite of imitations and substitutes the sales of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep right on increasing, and this is, we believe, the most substantial evidence that can be offered as to the reliability of this well-known medicine as a cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough and kindred ailments; 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

John Redmond's Appeal.

Special to Evening Telegram.

BELFAST, To-day.

Churchill's incursion into Ulster which threatened at one time to cause sanguinary rioting and serious loss of life, ended without even a broken head. The first Lord of the Admiralty and Redmond spoke from the same platform on the Home Rule Bill. Churchill outlined the intention of the Government in respect of self Government in Ireland and declared no greater boon could come to the Empire than a settlement of a long and bitter quarrel between the British Government and the Irish people. Redmond appealed to Ulster "in the name of Ireland and the British Empire and justice and good will," to lend its aid in settling the Irish question wisely, well and forever. Churchill's speech delivered before an audience from which every effort had been made to bar all hostile elements, aroused tremendous enthusiasm but at one point a group of suffragettes attempted to create a disturbance and several of them were ejected. The night passed quietly. The Nationalists burned effigies of Lord Londonderry and Sir Edward Carson, Unionist leaders. In response to continued and enthusiastic cheers of their supporters, Londonderry and Carson appeared on the steps of the Ulster Club. Sir Edward in a brief speech said he was proud of Belfast's behaviour and "we fight every inch against Home Rule." Troops will be kept in Belfast over Saturday as a precautionary measure.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, Feb. 9, '12.

During the winter months many people seem to need something extra in the way of heat forming foods to enable them to withstand the cold, and so prevent coughs and chills. Mathieu's Syrup is an ideal food-medicine in these not rare cases. It contains cod liver oil in good quantity, but so disguised as to lose all the characteristic nauseating taste of the raw oil; and to this is added tar, an efficient antiseptic. It has done many people good service this winter. Price 50c. a bottle.

Somewhat in the same class is Glaxo—an infant's food prepared on scientific principles, consisting of pure milk with extra fat, and so prepared as to be ready for instant use on simple dilution with hot water. It makes babies fat, and many children have thriven on Glaxo, to whom ordinary prepared foods were useless. Price 40c., 80c. and $2 a tin.

Wealth of the Rothschilds.

The wealth of the Rothschilds is a fascinating theme for speculation, but accuracy is difficult to arrive at. The fortunes of the house, as is well known, were founded by the Rothschild who was the first in England to obtain the news of the battle of Waterloo and profit by it on the Stock Exchange. The recent death in Paris of Baron Gustave recalls the first occasion on which some idea could be obtained as to the wealth of the firm. The brothers are partners, and the bank has branches in London, Berlin, Paris, Frankfurt and Vienna. The French branch was founded by Baron James, who had four sons. Of these only one, Edmond, outlived him. When his first son, Solomon, died in 1864 he left a widow and a daughter, Helen. When Helen married Baron van Zuylen de Nyevelt her share of her father's fortune, which she brought with her as a dowry, was about $70,000,000. Baron Solomon's fortune was double this amount, and his three brothers and his sister, who married Baron Nathaniel of London, had equal amounts. Thus the total fortune of the five in 1864 was nearly $800,000,000. As the four branches of the family are equally rich, its aggregate wealth at that time must have been $4,800,000,000, and that was more than forty-five years ago.

Leaped From the Statute of Liberty.

New York, Feb. 2.—A man slowly ascended the upraised arm of giant Statue of Liberty out in the harbor this afternoon made tortuous way to the outside of the great hand, then sprang out into the air and shot toward earth. Pedestrians in Battery Park across the bay, gazed at the whirling figure spell bound, then gaped with relief when a parachute opened and the figure settled lightly on the ground at the statue's base. The man was Frederick Law, a stepple jack. He had obtained a Government permit to make the leap.

Sometimes I get tired of my writing, and think, with some heart-rendering groans, of those who make business of fighting, and gather in bushels of bones. Sometimes I grow tired of the botches sent out WEARINESS to my readers as rhymes and think of the Mahmouts and Gotches who wallow in diamonds and dimes. Sometimes I grow tired of the bustle, of breaking cheap words from their stems, and wish I was old Pastor Russell with whiskers all studded with gems. Sometimes I get tired of the million disfigurements marring my face, and wish I was lovely like Lillian, a vision of beauty and grace. My worries—I simply can't sink 'em, they float like the leaves on the rills! I wish I was Liddy E. Pinkham, dispensing my back action pills! I wish I was J. Rockefeller, with seventeen kinds of a roll, when I push myself down to the cellar and look at what's left of the coal. But, happiness soon reappearing, I put all my gloom on the shelf, and go around whooping and cheering, and saying: "I'm glad I'm myself!"

Woolen Factory.

The new Woolen Factory on Alexander Street, which has been open since the early part of January, is now running full time in the making of men's underwear and colored jerseys. There are so far 25 hands employed—men and girls. Mr. McCabe, the Manager, has great confidence in the gradual development of the industry. When the underwear branch is well established the Manager will take up the making of blankets and later on will set up the machinery necessary for the manufacture of tweeds. The company is obliged to import most of the wool required to carry on their work. They will be only too glad to buy wool raised in this country. They buy all that is sent along. The quality of most of it compares very favourably with what is imported. The machinery at the factory is said to be the most up to date, and Mr. McCabe is an experienced man in all that relates to the business. He expects to be able to increase the number of his employes about 100 per cent next year when he goes into the making of blankets and tweeds.

How do you read poetry?
A modernish essayist recently asked his excellent sons if they were content with the natives of Ionia, and around Trafalgar Square at their knees in sackcloth, choose the ordeal of public reading. I fancy that statement is strong, and yet I certainly agree with the underlying belief that people nowadays care to read. Again I ask, "How often do you read poetry?"

I don't mean how often glance over one of the little poems, but take perhaps a minute to read, but how often sit down and read poetry as you read a novel or a newspaper an hour or a time?

What difference does it make, say, whether you do or not?

My friend, the essayist has readily heard you say that, for he is ready with his anger. You read poetry, he says, because imaginative poetry is the highest wisdom. In a word, there is to compare with it."

He makes these remarks in the of a little book telling the of business man how, despite, the winds of business and social can still keep on feeding his instead of letting it die of star

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

How often do you read any poetry?
A modern English essayist has recently announced his conviction that "many excellent persons if they were confronted with the alternatives of reading in a Paradise Lost, and going around Trafalgar Square at noonday on their knees in sackcloth, would choose the ordeal of public ridicule."

I fancy that statement is a trifle strong, and yet I certainly agree with the underlying belief that very few people nowadays care to read poetry. Again I ask, "How often do YOU read poetry?"

I don't mean how often do you glance over one of the little magazine poems, that take perhaps a half minute to read, but how often do you sit down and read poetry as you would read a novel or a newspaper half an hour or an hour at a time?

What difference does it make, you say, whether you do or not?
My friend, the essayist has undoubtedly heard you say that, for he is all ready with his answer. You should read poetry, he says, because "imaginative poetry is the highest form of wisdom. In a word, there is nothing to compare with it."

He makes these remarks in the course of a little book telling the ordinary business man how, despite the demands of business and social life, he can still keep on feeding his mind, instead of letting it die of starvation.

He wants the business man to save six or seven hours a week for this purpose, and one of the ways in which this time is to be employed is in reading poetry.

This man is one of the foremost men of letters, and one of the most brilliant men in England. Nor is he just a dreamer. On the contrary, he is a man of affairs, a very busy man, and he knows how to talk to other busy men.

He is also a man with definite ideas. He doesn't just say "read poetry" and let it go at that. Here is his more definite outline for the willing-to-be poetry reader.

"If poetry is what is called a sealed book to you, begin by reading Hazlitt's essay on the nature of poetry in general. It is difficult to imagine the mental state of the man who, after reading this essay, is not urgently desirous of reading some poetry before his next meal."

After you have read this, he further advises that you begin your course of poetry by reading "an infinitely finer English novel than anything written by George Eliot or even Jane Austen. Its title is 'Auroro Leigh' and its author 'E. B. Browning.'"

I also have a suggestion for the person who is pleased with this notion, and wants to begin disciplining and improving his mind by reading poetry. And that is to read Tennyson's "Idylls of the King," "The Princess" and "The Lady of Shalott." I am sure the veriest tyro at poetry reading couldn't fail to enjoy these. And I am sure they would be a stepping stone to further appreciation of poetry.

The Teachers' Pension.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Since reading the proposed Teachers' Pension Scheme we have bawled our thinking tacks down close to the bunkin head, and with all sail spread that will draw upon a wind, we find that owing to some very subtle undercurrents we are unable to fetch within miles of the point. Favourable conclusion. It appears to us that the scheme was engendered by a few of the wiser foxes whose object was to try to have the present Pension Fund, which has been sliced off the miserable pittances (speaking generally) of the poor overworked and underpaid teachers of the country, distributed as prize monies, as are said to be distributed by the lords of the admiralty, namely, those in positions commanding high salaries get all, and those less favoured get what is left.

Section 2 of the scheme reads thus: "That the rate of pensions be two-thirds of average salary during last ten years of service." What does that mean? Does it mean that the retiring teacher shall receive as a pension two-thirds of the average salary of the whole body of teachers during that time? Or does it mean the average salary received by himself individually? We fear it means the latter. If so, it is, to put it mildly, a very unfair way of benefiting a few at the expense of the many.

During the past twenty years all teachers, irrespective of grade or class, have been paying premiums founded on uniformity or rather on a uniform basis. Such being the case, it is only natural to expect that all should share alike in the drawing of pensions. If the premiums paid were in proportion to salaries received, we could understand why there should be some irregularity in the value of pensions. But for teachers to pay a uniform premium, and then draw pensions in proportion to their salaries is funny indeed. In fact, 'tis more than funny—'tis cute.

Again, from another point of view the adopting of average salary clause would make matters bear a little hard on the pensioner. For example:—Suppose a teacher has charge of a large school commanding a fairly large salary, say for twenty years when he becomes incapacitated as far as the successful discharge of his duties to that school is concerned, and feels like retiring to a smaller school commanding a smaller salary where he could manage to give satisfaction to all concerned. If he retired to the smaller school and held it ten years, he would be entitled to only two-thirds of the average salary received while teaching that school. This probably would not be much more than half he would have received if he could have held on to his former school. On the other hand, if he held on to the former school that school would suffer, but he would be benefited by securing a much larger pension. Under these circumstances, which should suffer?

Hopeing to see this matter thoroughly thrashed out. We remain,
Yours very respectfully,
ABCDENARIAN.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of known composition. No counterfeiter is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

Father Vaughan Household Notes.

Denounces Present Day Society.

New York, Feb. 1.—Father Bernard Vaughan, the noted English Jesuit priest and orator, told an audience that crowded Carnegie Hall last night: that the greatest danger threatening society to-day are a lax system of divorce and marriage, creditless nurseries, and a system of education which drives Christ from the rank of headmaster to a place on the back seat, and instead of drilling an army is only arming a mob. "Only by restoring Christian principles in all things," he said, "can society be saved from approaching the low level of Pagan Rome in the muddest stage of its muddy golden age."

Father Vaughan declared that present day society, "while not yet at the cemetery, is heading rapidly toward it." He instanced as one of the causes of the decadence of the age the careless system of divorce which, if not improved, he said, would be ruinous to the country. Socialism in its various phases he also assailed.
