MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

General Quarterly Meeting Held at New Carlisle.

BYE-LAW REINDEED.

The Bye Law Relating to St. Louis Road was Annulled.

Minutes of a General Quarterly
Session of the Municipal Council of the County of Bonaventure, held at the Town Hall, New Carlisle, on Wednesday evening, the 13th day of September, A. D.
1905, at 7 p. m.

PRESENT:

Francis Dion, Esq., Warden,
Mayor of St. Charles de Caplan.
Narcisse Richard, Esq., Mayor of Matapedia.
Robt Noble, Esq., Mayor of Restigouche.
Pierre Landry, Esq., Mayor of Nouvelle and Shoolbred.
Nicolas Arseneau, Esq., Mayor
of St. Omer.
N. J. Martin, Esq., Mayor of Carleton.
Joseph Guite, Esq., Mayor of Maria.
Narcisse Cyr, Esq., Mayor of Musellyville.
Wm L. Kempfer, Esq., Mayor
of New Carlisle.
Wm Jas McRae, Esq., Mayor of Hope.
Pierre Dereche, Esq., Mayor of Port Daniel East.
Francis X. Chapados, Esq.,
Mayor of Anse aux Gascons.
Forming a quorum under the Presidency of His Worship, the Warden.

Moved by Mr. McRae, seconded by Mr. Kempfer, that the minutes of last meeting be read and approved. Passed.

The Council then proceeded to the question of the erection of the Parish of St. Laurent de Matapedia into a Parish Municipality for all Municipal purposes.

Whereupon it was moved by Mr. Richard, seconded by Mr.
Francis X. Chapados, that seeing the matters and things relating to the erection of the Parish Municipality of St. Laurent de Mata-pedia are in order and accordidg to law, that the said Parish Municipality be now erected into a Local Municipality for all Municipal purposes under the name of the Parish Municipality of St. Laurent de Matapedia, with the same boundaries and descriptions as canonically and civilly erected, under articles 32 and 41 of the Municipal Code of the Province of Quebec.

Moved in amendment by Mr.
Noble, seconded by Mr. Kempfer, that the above resolutions of Mr.
Richard be rejected as unjust.

Ayer's

Impure blood always shows somewhere. If the skin, then boils, pimples, rashes. If the nerves, then neuralgia, nervousness, depression. If the stomach, then dyspepsia,
biliousness, loss of appetite.
Your doctor knows the remedy, used for 60 years.

Returning from the Cuban war, I was a perfect wreck. My blood was hot, and my health was gone. But a few bottles of Ayer's

ANOTHER DROWNED.

Young Man, Aged 22, Goes Down with Sailboat During a Gale.

Dalhousie, Sept. 26.—Citizens of Dalhousie have been saddened
again by a drowning accident which happened this afternoon.
Willie Carr, aged 22, the hope of an old father and mother and highly respected, was drowned
during a heavy gale of wind while endeavoring to reach a steamer
that was passing to bring the pilot ashore according to engagement.
Carr was in his own sail boat and sank before help could reach him.
The body has not yet been recovered.

FIRE NARROWLY AVERTED

Night Watchman at I. C. R.
Paint Shop Extinguished
A Dangerous blaze

What might have been a serious
fire was discovered and extinguished in the I. C. R. paint shop
Saturday night.

Some oily waste, which had been thrown in with other waste, caught fire, probably by spontaneous combustion. The flames caught on a post nearby, and a pair of overalls belonging to a workman were destroyed. The flames were extinguished by the watchman before any other damage was done. In the vicinity of the fire were large quantities of oil and other combustible material, and had they become ignited the fire
would have been a serious one.
—Transcript.

The amendment being put to vote was lost, and the main motion was declared carried.

Moved by Mr. W. Jas McRae, seconded by Mr. Kempfer that all meetings of this council held in future, whether general or special,
will be held at 10 a. m., and all former resolutions to this effect are hereby cancelled and annulled.

Passed.
Moved by Mr. Arseneau, seconded by Mr. Martin, that seeing the wish of Mr. Joseph Guite, Mayor of Maria, to retire as one of the County Delegates, owing to ill health.

Passed.
Moved by Mr. Landry, seconded
by Mr. Richard that the Bye-Law passed by this Council in the year 1883, relating to the maintenance of the road dividing the Township of Carleton and Nouvelle and Shoolbred, and now known as the St. Louis Road, be hereby rescinded and annulled, and that the said road will in future be a local road under the charge, maintenance and keep of the Municipality of St.
Omer, through which the said road crosses, and that the part or continuation of such road running through the said Township of Nouvelle and Shoolbred be at the charge, keep and maintenance of the said Township of Nouvelle and Shoolbred, which is also declared a local road.

Passed.
Moved by Mr. Martin, seconded by Mr. Landry, that hereafter the Municipality of Carleton, will not be obliged to contribute towards the keep and maintenance of the said St. Louis Road. Passed.

Moved by Mr. Kempfer, that this meeting do now adjourn.

(Sgd.)

Francis Dion, L. P. LeBel,
Warden. Sec'y-Treas.

ANGLO-JAP TREATY.

Provides for Hard and Fast
Alliance Between Contracting Parties

London, Sept. 27.—The text of the new agreement between Great Britain and Japan which was signed by Lord Lansdowne, the British foreign Secretary, and Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister to Great Britain, on August 12,
was issued by the foreign office late last evening. The momentous document is a brief one, comprising less than 800 words, including eight articles and a preamble.

Accompanying the agreement is a letter from Lord Lansdowne to the British ambassadors at St.
Petersburg and Paris, for transmission to the Russian and French governments respectively, in which the foreign secretary courteously reviews the agreement and carefully points out that the new defensive alliance is not intended as a menace but rather as a guarantee of peace and prosperity in the far east in which all countries
may part icpate.

The main features of the new agreement have already been re-casted in the Associated Press dispatches from London and Paris.
The pithy articles of the official text, however, bring out forcefully
the tremendous importance to both countries of this alliance, which practically makes Great Britain
Japan and Japan Great Britain for the purpose of defence "in the regions of East Asia and India."

This inclusion of India specifically as a point at which any aggression by a foreign power will call for the assistance of Japan finds much favor with the press of London, the morning papers, in long laudatory articles welcoming the new and more extensive alliance of the two insular kingdoms west and east as giving immediate relief from the dangerous thundercloud which for so many years has hung over the Indian frontier.

Baron Hayashi who was interviewed by the Associated Press
after the publication of the agreement said.

"The new treaty forms an effective safeguard against the renewal of disturbances in the far east. This is its object. We cannot say that a permanent peace
has been secured—that is too much to be sure of, but we can say that tranquility has been assured for a long time to come.
This applies not only to Great Britain and Japan but also to all powers having political or commercial interests in that part of the world; in fact to all who have been

MAKING PROGRESS.

Central Telephone Co. Has Crew of Men Working.

NEW POLES.

Dalhousie not yet Connected
Will be Finished About
Nov. 1.

The Central Telephone Company are hard at work making the necessary improvements to give Restigouche up-to-date telephone system. At the present time a large crew of men are engaged in placing forty foot poles along Water Street, on which a cable will be stretched.

This work necessitates many breaks and crosses in present service wires but the company is doing everything in its power to keep up communications and we think that the subscribers will put up with a little present inconvenience in order that the improved service may be installed, when all will reap the benefit.

There has been a slight delay in making connection with Dalhousie
but it is expected that instruments will be working in the course of a week.

WEDDING BELLS

DOW PRINCE

A very pretty wedding took place on the 26th at St. James Church of England, Port Daniel West, of Miss Hazel Prince to Mr. Mickle James
Dow. Rev J. McIntyre Bradshaw officiating. The bride was given away by her father Mr. John Prince. The bridesmaid was Miss Margaret Dow sister of the groom and Mr. Edward Dow acted as best man.
A reception was held at the home of the brides parents.

The Arch-Enemy of the Age

Not war, more deadly than ever this modern butchery—but Catarrh which leads to consumption and annually kills more than famine and war combined. The doctors now successfully fight catarrh with a remedy that never fails—"Catarrh-ozone," it's death to every type of catarrh. It destroys every root and branch of the disease so thoroughly that a relapse need never be feared.

It troubled with colds, nasal or throat catarrh, or subject to bronchitis or asthma use Catarrh-ozone and you'll be cured forever.

CORRECTION

In our edition of last week we reported that at the trial of Hammond Assels and Stuart at New Carlisle, four medical men had examined Assels and that they had stated that he was of unsound mind.

The three who started this were Drs.
Lefriere, Enright & DeWolfe. In our last edition we started by error that Dr. Enright had held a contrary opinion, which was not exactly correct.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

Graphic Description of a Trip to the Old World.

(Written Especially for Events by Mr. Geo. D. Bain.)

Rimouski, the place where passengers embark on the steamers of the Allan Line for Liverpool, is not possessed of much natural beauty, if we except the Laurentian chain of mountains, which rise in bold relief against the waters of the noble St. Lawrence. On arriving at the railway station on the morning of the 22nd of July, it was not long until the passengers bound for beyond the sea, were ushered on board the branch line of railway to the wharf, and from there transferred by tender to the big steamer, which was lying out in the stream. It was the Virginian, the 12,000-ton steamer, constructed on the Turbine principle, that was to convey the passengers and the immense quantity of His Majesty's mail, which filled three freight cars across the deep waters of the Atlantic. Once alongside the big vessel it was not long until everything was ready for the departure. The immense steamer was soon plunging her way down the river, and the little town of Rimouski fast fading from view. Towards evening Fame Point, where there is a Marconi Wireless Station, was passed, and here communication was had with the shore, the passengers being furnished with the latest Russo-Japanese war news and other important events. The next day, Sunday, the steamer was threading her way through the Straits of Belle Isle, and the coast dark, dreary and desolate, was quite visible on each side. No moving thing, except icebergs, of which a great many were in sight, was visible in any direction. These were of all shapes and dimensions, some resembling old castles, with towers majestically rising towards the blue sky, others simply great masses of ice with deep ravines running from their summit to the water, while others looked like churches, with spires running into the clouds. Once through the Straits the land rapidly faded from view and nothing but sea and sky was visible until we arrived at Moville at noon on the following Friday. The passage from land to land, about 1,700 miles, was made in four and one half days. After discharging the mails and a few passengers at Moville, the steamer proceeded to Liverpool, which place was reached early Saturday morning. Quite a delay was experienced here in examining and transferring baggage, but there was an end to it at last, as well as the hand shaking and salutations, and the passengers, many of whom had become warm friends, separated, in many cases never to meet again.

There is nothing of special interest in Liverpool, it is a large smoky and gloomy city, and the traveller, bent on sight-seeing, naturally pushes on towards London, 202 miles distant, and this great city, the metropolis of the world, is extending its limits in all directions, and the numerous suburban towns so easily reached are rapidly being made the abode of persons who have to spend their days within the bustling and noisy city. Teddington, one of these towns situated on the Thames, about fifteen miles from London, is a place of more than ordinary interest, as it is here that Hampton Court Palace is located. This great royal dwelling, the home of Henry VIII, and his six wives, is now open to the public and can be visited daily free of cost. The grounds are very spacious and the gardens magnificent. Flowers of every kind are found here in the greatest profusion, and displayed in the most artistic manner. Cardinal Wolsey who had a sumptuous mansion in London called York Palace, and who kept a retinue of 800 servants was the builder of Hampton Court, although it was said some rooms were afterwards built by the reigning King, among these being the Great Hall, constructed by Henry VIII. This magnificent Hall was commenced in 1530 and finished 5 years later. It was used by the King chiefly for grand functions of state, banquets and receptions of Ambassadors, and many a time he sat there in state, or took part in masquerades or dances with Jane Seymour and Catherine Howard. It was also used for plays, the last representation being given during the reign of Charles the 2nd, on January 24th, 1637. For richness of decoration and elaborate workmanship, the roof of this hall is said to be the most thorough. For good looking, clear and bright, the ceiling work in England. In this hall are to be found eight pieces of the finest Tapestries at Hampton Court. They illustrate episodes in the life of Abraham, and adorn the walls of the hall. They are said to have been executed by Bernard Van Orley, a Flemish painter, and are mentioned in an Inventory taken in 1558 of all Henry VIII's effects. They were at that time valued at £3,260 or £10 ($49,600) per yard. For richness and splendour it is said they cannot be matched in Europe.

This is only one of the apartments in Hampton Court that I have ventured to describe, and there are many others. On some future occasion, perhaps, with your permission, I may make a further contribution.

JUMPED FROM TRAIN.

Accident in Moncton Yard on Saturday.

In the run-off which occurred Saturday evening in the west end of the I. C. R. yard, and by which number six, the St. John freight was derailed, Brakemen Bovard and Cormier had a narrow escape and were forced to jump from the top of two high box-cars to save their lives, the cars on which they were standing being overturned and smashed up.

The cause of the run-off is not known and the accident occurred about six o'clock. No. 6, the St. John freight was entering the yard and started in on a siding to allow No. 1 express to pass out; the locomotive and two cars passed over the points in safety, the third car a C. P. R. box, jumped the rails. It was followed by three other cars, including two flats loaded with heavy lumber.

Brakeman Claude Bovard was standing on the top of the car which first left the rails. With great presence of mind, he leaped to the car ahead, and it was fortunate he did so, as the car on which he had a moment before been standing, turned over on its side. Brakeman Cormier was standing on the second car; he jumped to the ground, a distance of several feet, alighting uninjured.

The train ran one hundred yards after the cars left the rails. The track and roadbed was considerably damaged and out-going western train had to take a round-about route by the sidings. The line was clear at seven o'clock yesterday morning, but a gang of men worked all day making repairs to the roadbed. The train was in charge of Con. Wellner and Driver Bradshaw.—Transcript.

I. C. R. MATTERS

Mr. Emmerson says Boards of Trade Cause Deficit

Ottawa, Sept. 24.—Hon. H. R. Emmerson, minister of railways, accompanied by Deputy Minister Butler, have arrived in this city after a thorough inspection of the I. C. R. The object of the month's inspection, they say, was to see what could be done to bring the expenditures more in keeping with the revenue. The minister said he found the road bed and equipment in good shape. He believes that political interference is not the cause of the deficit, as some alleged. One drawback was that the boards of trade along the line of railroad endeavored to direct and control the running of the road. Much more mischief had arisen from this than from any alleged political interference. Mr. Emmerson said he believed the road could be operated without an annual loss, but would not go into details on the matter. Deputy Minister Butler is preparing a report on the subject which will be laid before the cabinet along with Mr. Emmerson's recommendations.

"I would say here," said the minister, "that if the passenger and freight rates on the I. C. R. were as high as on the Grand Trunk or the Canadian Pacific in eastern Canada, there would be no deficit in the operation of the road. I cannot give my assurances as to their being no deficit for the current year, but when the reforms which we contemplate are instituted and established the whole aspect of the financial position of the I. C. R. will have been changed."

Mr. Emmerson pointed out that in the item of coal alone $100,000 a year could be saved through a better system of handling it. The expenses in connection with the management were being closely analyzed, also the despatching of trains being looked after. From the minister's remarks it is gathered that the deficits will disappear by increasing the revenue and decreasing the expenditure. Emmerson starts tomorrow on tour of inspection of canals.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from two drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Toot Your Little Tooter.

If you toot your little tooter and then lay aside your horn,

In tenish it days there's not a soul

will know that you were here;

The man who toots his horn is the man who plows all day,

And the man who keeps a humping is the man who makes it pay.

The man who advertises with a short

and sudden jerk

Is the man who hames the editor

because it didn't work;

The man who gets the business has a long and steady pull.

And keeps his local paper from day to day quite full.

He plans his advertising in a thoughtful sort of way,

And keeps forever at it until he makes

it pay;

He has faith in all the future, can withstand a sudden shock.

And, like the man of Scripture, plants

his business on a rock.

If he can't write good copy, he employs a man who can.

And the other fellow in his line is classed as "also ran."

You can't fool people always—they've been a long time born.

And most folks know the man is slow

who tooteth not his horn.

JAPAN AND GREAT BRITAIN.

The terms are published of the treaty agreed upon some time ago between Great Britain and Japan. That there was such a treaty has been known for some weeks, as was also the main principle on which it was based; but publication appears to have been delayed because of the feeling that it was best to allow Japan and Russia to settle up their affairs first. Now that they have done so further concealment of the terms of the treaty is not necessary. Great Britain has entered into an alliance with Japan, which is held to be quite favorable to the former. By it, however, Great Britain practically confesses her inability to longer hold India herself—or, perhaps, it would be more correct to say that she admits the fear that it will be no longer possible for her to do so. She calls Japan to her aid, with the result that Japan's influence in the East is increased and she is now, practically, the nation of greatest importance in that portion of the world. By her own forces and relationship with China she will head that country, by this new arrangement with Great Britain her absolute control of Korea is secured, and she becomes what might almost be called the resident partner of Great Britain in India. Many Englishmen will fear and many will dislike the partnership. The star of Japan is surely in the ascendant. With the control of Korea she adds eleven millions of people to her population, and she secures absolute control of a field in which she has already many large interests. Now she will gain a great foothold in India. There is apparently some anxiety as to the spirit in which Germany will regard the new arrangement, and upon that there may be much speculation. But no one can tell accurately, for no one knows what is the mind of the Kaiser. For the time at least Russia must accept the new arrangement with the best face possible, as the war with Japan has left her in such a position that she can do nothing more actively now than to make remonstrances.—Globe.

In spite of awful distress from famine and the shadow of impending revolution, the autocracy of Russia seems determined to spend many millions of dollars on a new fleet.—Ex.

A notice has been posted in conspicuous places in the town and also appears in this issue of Events offering a reward for information that will lead to the conviction of the person or persons tampering with and breaking are lamps in the town. At the corner of Duke and O'Leary streets, at the west end of town, an arc lamp was fired at with a rifle and the lamp made useless, and besides this a short circuit might have been the outcome and the transformed burned out. On Andrew street near the residence of J. S. Benedict an arc lamp was stoned and the outer glass broken. On Ramsay street the suspending rope of an arc lamp was deliberately cut and the lamp smashed by the fall to the street. These lamps cost $25.00 each and a few months behind bars would be light enough punishment for miscreants indulging in such destructive practices.

The Mikado has an income of $3,000,000 a year, while Togo worries along on three thousand. The excuse is that the Mikado is a son of heaven while Togo is, so to speak, a son of a gun.—Ex.

OBITUARY

The comforting offices of the church were recited by Rev. H. How, B. A., Rector of St. Luke's, on Friday last at the residence of John Dawson, Esq., whose wife Elizabeth Fanny, aged 72, had passed away on the previous Tuesday. Since her arrival, some fifteen months ago, Mrs. Dawson has made many friends in the land of her adoption. Her quiet manner and warm heart assured a cordial welcome in her hospitable home. She has been a sufferer for a considerable number of years. It was hoped that the milder climate of Annapolis might restore her former vigor. Her long sickness was patiently borne. Kind hands gladly ministered to her every want. The floral tributes, both many in number and beautiful in design, completely covered the casket. The pall bearers were Judge Owen, Dr. Saunders, Messrs T. M. Buckler and G. E. Corbitt. Mr. Dawson especially desires to thank all who have shown their kindly sympathy with him both in his own former visitation, and now in this equally unexpected trial. The many tokens of good will and sympathy readily make him and his whole family realize that their lot is cast in a community where practical christianity is abundantly manifest. Mrs. Dawson's death was the first break in the family, consisting of four daughters and five sons—Annapolis Royal Spectator Sept 15th

Physically Exhausted

Lacking in courage—out of joint with everything—scarcely on speaking terms with even fair health. Such low spirits are pitiable. Your brain is fagged, vitality so exhausted your constitution is well nigh ruined. What you need is Ferrozone, that great invigorator and nutritive tonic. It's making flesh and blood, by infusing iron and oxygen into the system that Ferrozone helps; it repairs weak spots, instills new life into worn-out organs—makes you feel like new. Ferrozone lifts age from the old and imparts resilience and buoyancy to the depressed. B. manly, ruddy-colored, cast aside weakness and enter the happy life that comes from using Ferrozone. Fifty cents buys a box in any drug store.

The marriage of Mr. John H. Brown of Amherst, who has formerly been in the employ of Mr. C. F. Clare, Jeweller of this town, to Miss Violet Floyd, of Antigonish, took place at Antigonish on the 6th. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were the recipients of a number of costly presents, which shows the high esteem in which they are held. They are now visiting the Halifax Exhibition and other cities. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside in Amherst. Their many Campbellton friends all join in wishing them a long and happy life.

—C'n Tribune.

We believe this to be incorrect. Mr. Brown was in Amherst on date named above and the Antigonish Casket a paper published at Antigonish had no account of the marriage at that place.

James McDonald, of Barnaby River came to town yesterday to "put the law on a man named Thomas Goggin, also of Barnaby River, and the machinery of the law was soon in motion.

Goggin was charged with stealing $30 from McDonald's house last week, and at 12 o'clock yesterday papers were issued for his arrest. Policeman Foley started in search of the accused and just two hours later had him in the grip of nippers at Nelson.

Goggin admitted taking the money. He was brought to Chatham and this morning Judge Connors sent him up for trial.

The man is 21 years old and has served four years in the penitentiary for placing an obstruction on the I. C. R. track in front of the Maritime express.—Chatham Commercial.

One of the Islands opposite Morrisey Rock was the scene of a merry picnic on Saturday the 23rd when a party from Campbellton together with friends from Tide Head gathered for a outing expedition. The party consisted of Mrs. E. Shirely, Clifford Skirley, Miss Annie Van Horne, John Van Horne, Miss Girdwood and Miss Stout from Campbellton; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Downs, Miss Lena Downs, Miss Bartley and Mr. Connors from Tide Head. The party assembled at Mr. Downs, and thence proceeded by canoes to the Island, where a fire was built, and a beautiful lunch, provided by the ladies of the party. This was duly attended to, after some mirth-provoking accidents had occurred in the preparation. After this the party became as busy as squirrels, gathering nuts. An untimely rain broke up the party, and they were obliged to return to Mr. Downs, and thence the Campbellton folks returned by train, each uttering expressions of pleasure at the enjoyable day that had been spent.

THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK MOLMES...

BY A. CONAN DOYLE

"If you were to search all England," said he, "I don't suppose you could find a household more self-contained or freer from outside influences. Whole weeks would pass and not one of them go past the garden gate. The professor was buried in his work and existed for nothing else. Young Smith knew nobody in the neighborhood and lived very much as his employer did. The two women had nothing to take them from the house. Mortimer, the gardener, who wheels the bath chair, is an army pensioner, an old Crimean man of excellent character. He does not live in the house. There is a three roomed cottage at the other end of the garden. Those are the only people that you would find within the grounds of Yoxley Old Place. At the same time the gate of the garden is a hundred yards from the main London to Chatham road. It opens with a latch, and there is nothing to prevent any one from walking in."

"Now I will give you the evidence of Susan Tarleton, who is the only person who can say anything positive about the matter. It was in the forenoon, between 11 and 12. She was engaged at the moment in hanging some curtains in the upstairs front bedroom. Professor Conan was still in bed, for when the weather is bad he seldom rises before midday. The housekeeper was busy with some work in the back of the house. Willoughby Smith had been in his bedroom, which he uses as a sitting room, but the maid heard him at that moment pass along the passage and descend to the study immediately below her. She did not see him, but she says that she could not be mistaken in his quick, firm tread. She did not hear the study door close, but a minute or so later there was a dreadful cry in the room below. It was a wild, hoarse scream, so strange and unusual that it might have come either from a man or a woman. At the same instant there was a heavy thud which shook the old house, and then all was silence. The maid stood petrified for a moment, and then, recovering her courage, she ran downstairs. The study door was shut, and she opened it. Inside young Mr. Willoughby Smith was stretched upon the floor. At first she could see no injury, but as she tried to raise him she saw that blood was pouring from the underside of his neck. It was pierced by very small but very deep wound, which had divided the carotid artery. The instrument with which the injury had been inflicted lay upon the carpet beside him. It was one of those small sealing wax knives to be found on old fashioned writing tables, with an ivory handle and a stiff blade. It was part of the fittings of the professor's own desk."

"At first the maid thought that young Smith was already dead, but on pouring some water from the carafe over his forehead he opened his eyes for an instant. The professor, he murmured, 'it was she.' The maid prepared to swear that those were the exact words. He tried desperately to say something else, but he held his right hand up in the air. Then he fell back dead."

"In the meantime the housekeeper had also arrived upon the scene, but she was just too late to catch the young man's dying words. Leaving Susan with the body, she hurried to the professor's room. He was sitting up in bed horribly agitated, for he had heard enough to convince him that something terrible had occurred. Mrs. Marker is prepared to swear that the professor was still in his night clothes, and, indeed, it was impossible for him to dress without the help of Mortimer, whose orders were to come at 12 o'clock. The professor declares that he heard the distant cry, but that he knows nothing more. He can give no explanation of the young man's last words. The professor—it was she!—but imagines that they were the outcome of delirium. He believes that Willoughby

"nature of a distinct impression, but the grass was sodden down and some one had undoubtedly passed. It could only have been the murderer, since neither the gardener nor any one else had been there that morning and the rain had only begun to drizzle. 'One moment,' said Holmes, 'where does this path lead to?' 'To the road.' 'How long is it?' 'A hundred yards or so.' 'At the point where the path passes through the gate you could surely pick up the tracks?' 'Unfortunately the path was tiled at that point.' 'Well, on the road itself?' 'No, it has all trodden into mire.' 'Tut tut! Well, then, these tracks upon the grass, were they coming or going?' 'It was impossible to say. There was never any outline.' 'A large foot or a small?' 'You could not distinguish.' Holmes gave an ejaculation of impatience. 'It has been pouring rain and blowing a hurricane ever since,' said he. 'It will be harder to read now than that pumpest. Well, well, it can't be helped. What did you do, Hopkins, after you had made certain that you had made certain of nothing?' 'I think I made certain of a good deal, Mr. Holmes. I knew that some one had entered the house cautiously from without. I next examined the corridor. It is lined with coconut matting and had taken no impression of any kind. This brought me into the study itself. It is a scantily furnished room. The main article is a large writing table with a fixed bureau. This bureau consists of a double column of drawers, with a central small cupboard between them. The drawers were open, the cupboard locked. The drawers, it seems, were always open, and nothing of value was kept in them. There were some papers of importance in the cupboard, but there were no signs that this had been tampered with, and the professor assures me that nothing was missing. It is certain that no robbery has been committed."

"I come now to the body of the young man. It was found near the bureau, and just to the left of it, as marked upon that chart. The stab was on the right side of the neck and from behind forward, so that it is almost impossible that it could have been self-inflicted."

by Smith had not an enemy in the world, and can give no reason for the murder. His first action was to send Mortimer, the gardener, for the local police. A little later the chief constable sent for me. Nothing was moved before I got there, and strict orders were given that no one should walk upon the paths leading to the house. It was a splendid chance of putting your theories into practice, Mr. Sherlock Holmes. There was really nothing wanting."

"Except Mr. Sherlock Holmes," said my companion, with a somewhat bitter smile. "Well, let us hear about it. What sort of a job did you make of it?" "I must ask you first, Mr. Holmes, to glance at this rough plan, which will give you a general idea of the position of the professor's study and the various points of the case. It will help you in following my investigation."

He unfolded the rough chart, which I here reproduce, and he laid it across Holmes' knee. I rose and, standing behind Holmes, studied it over his shoulder.

"It is very rough, of course, and it only deals with the points which seem to me to be essential. All the rest you will see later for yourself. Now, first of all, presuming that the assassin entered the house, how did he or she come in? Undoubtedly by the garden path and the back door, from which there is direct access to the study. Any other way would have been exceedingly complicated. The escape must have also been made along that line, for of the two other exits from the room one was blocked by Susan as she ran downstairs and the other leads straight to the professor's bedroom. I therefore directed my attention at once to the garden path, which was saturated with recent rain and would certainly show any footmarks."

"My examination showed me that I was dealing with a cautious and expert criminal. No footmarks were to be found on the path. There could be no question, however, that some one had passed along the grass border which lines the path and that he had done so in order to avoid leaving a track. I could not find anything in the Hopkins' plan of Yoxley Old Place.

"You will perceive," he said, "that the clips are lined with tiny bands of cork to soften the pressure upon the nose. One of these is discolored and worn to some slight extent, but the other is new. Evidently one has fallen off and been replaced. I should judge that the older of them has not been there more than a few months. They exactly correspond, so I gather that the lady went back to the same establishment for the second."

"By George, it's marvelous!" cried Hopkins, in an ecstasy of admiration. "To think that I had all that evidence in my hand and never knew it! I had intended, however, to go the round of the London opticians."

"Of course you would. Meanwhile, have you anything more to tell us about the case?" "Nothing, Mr. Holmes. I think that you know as much as I do now—probably more. We have heard of none of them. We have heard of none. What beats me is the utter want of all object in the crime. Not a ghost of a motive can I see."

"If it is not asking too much, Mr. Holmes, there's a train from Charing Cross to Chatham at 6 in the morning, and we should be at Yoxley Old Place between 8 and 9."

"Unless he fell upon the knife," said Holmes. "Exactly. The idea crossed my mind. But we found the knife some feet away from the body, so that seems impossible. Then, of course, there are the man's own dying words. And, finally, there was this very important piece of evidence which was found, asped in the dead man's right hand."

From his pocket Stanley Hopkins drew a small paper packet. He unfolded it and disclosed a golden pin-needle, with two broken ends of black silk cord dangling from the end of it. "Willoughby Smith had excellent sight," he added. "There can be no question that this was snatched from the face or the person of the assassin."

Sherlock Holmes took the glasses into his hand and examined them with the utmost attention and interest. He held them on his nose, endeavored to read through them, went to the window and stared up the street with them, looked at them most intently in the full light of the lamp and finally with a chuckle, seated himself at the table and wrote a few lines upon a sheet of paper, which he tossed across to Stanley Hopkins.

"That's the best I can do for you," said he. "It may prove to be of some use."

The astonished detective read the note aloud. It ran as follows: "Wanted, a woman of good address, attired like a lady. She has a remarkably fine nose, with eyes which are set close upon either side of it. She has a puckered forehead, a peering expression and probably rounded shoulders. There are indications that she has had recourse to an optician at least twice during the last few months. As her glasses are of remarkable strength and as opticians are not very numerous, there should be no difficulty in tracing her."

Holmes smiled at the astonishment of Hopkins, which must have been reflected upon my features. "Surely my deductions are simplicity itself," said he. "It would be difficult to name any articles which afford a finer field for inference than a pair of glasses, especially so remarkable a pair as these. That they belong to a woman I infer from their delicacy and also of course from the last words of the dying man. As to her being a person of refinement and well dressed, they are, you perceive, handsomely mounted in solid gold, and it is inconceivable that any one who wore such glasses could be anything but a person of means. We will find that the clips are too wide for your nose, showing that the lady's nose was very broad at the base. This sort of nose is usually a short and coarse one, but there is a sufficient number of exceptions to prevent me from being dogmatic or from insisting upon this point in my description. My own face is a narrow one, and yet I find that I cannot get my eyes into the center of the frame of these glasses. Therefore the lady's eyes are set very near the sides of the nose. You will perceive, Watson, that the glasses are coarse and unattractive. A lady whose vision has been so extremely contracted all her life is sure to have the physical characteristics of such such spectacles as these, the forehead, the eyelids and the shoulders."

"Yes," I said, "I can follow each of your arguments. I confess, however, that I am unable to understand how you arrive at the double visit to the optician."

Holmes took the glasses in his hand. "You will perceive," he said, "that the clips are lined with tiny bands of cork to soften the pressure upon the nose. One of these is discolored and worn to some slight extent, but the other is new. Evidently one has fallen off and been replaced. I should judge that the older of them has not been there more than a few months. They exactly correspond, so I gather that the lady went back to the same establishment for the second."

"By George, it's marvelous!" cried Hopkins, in an ecstasy of admiration. "To think that I had all that evidence in my hand and never knew it! I had intended, however, to go the round of the London opticians."

"Of course you would. Meanwhile, have you anything more to tell us about the case?" "Nothing, Mr. Holmes. I think that you know as much as I do now—probably more. We have heard of none of them. We have heard of none. What beats me is the utter want of all object in the crime. Not a ghost of a motive can I see."

"If it is not asking too much, Mr. Holmes, there's a train from Charing Cross to Chatham at 6 in the morning, and we should be at Yoxley Old Place between 8 and 9."

"Then we shall take it. Your case has certainly some features of great interest, and I shall be delighted to look into it. Well, it's nearly 1, and we had best get a few hours' sleep. I dare say you can manage all right on the sofa in front of the fire. I'll light my spirit lamp and give you a cup of coffee before we start."

The gale had blown itself out next day, but it was a bitter morning when we started upon our journey. We saw the cold winter sun rise over the dreary marshes of the Thames and the long, fallen reaches of the river, which I shall ever associate with our pursuit of the Andaman Islander in the earlier days of our career. After a long and weary journey we alighted at a small station, some miles from Chatham. While a horse was being put into a trap at the local inn we snatched a hurried breakfast, and so we were all ready for the journey we had at last arrived at Yoxley Old Place. A constable met us at the garden gate.

"Well, Wilson, any news?" "No, sir—nothing." "No reports of any stranger seen?"

"No, sir. Down at the station they are certain that no stranger either came or went yesterday."

"Have you had inquiries made at inns and lodgings?" "Yes, sir. There is no one that we cannot account for."

"Well, it's only a reasonable walk to Chatham. Any one might stay there or take a train without being observed. This is the garden path of which I spoke, Mr. Holmes. I'll pledge my word there was no mark on the soft bed."

"On which side were the marks on the grass?" "This side, sir—this narrow margin of grass between the path and the flower bed. I can't see the traces now, but they were clear to me then."

"Yes, yes; some one has passed along," said Holmes, stooping over the grass border. "Our lady must have picked her steps carefully, must she not, since on the one side she would leave a track on the path and on the other an even clearer one on the soft bed?"

"Yes, sir; she must have been a cool hand."

"I saw an intent look pass over Holmes' face."

"You say that she must have come back this way?" "Yes, sir; there is no other."

"On this strip of grass?" "Certainly, Mr. Holmes."

"Hum! It was a very remarkable performance—very remarkable. Well, I think we have exhausted the path. Let us go farther. This garden door is usually kept open, I suppose. Then this visitor had nothing to do but to walk in. The idea of murder was not in her mind or would have provided herself with some sort of weapon instead of having to pick this knife off the writing table. She advanced along this corridor, leaving no traces upon the coconut matting. Then she found herself in this study. How long was she there? We have no means of judging."

"Not more than a few minutes, sir. I forgot to tell you that Mrs. Marker, the housekeeper, had been in there tidying not very long before—about a quarter of an hour, she says."

"Well, that gives us a limit. Our lady enters this room, and what does she do? She goes over to the writing table. What for? Not for anything in the drawers. If there had been anything worth her taking it would surely have been locked up. No, it was for something in that wooden bureau. Hello! What is that scratch upon the face of the bureau? Is it a scratch, Watson? Why did you not tell me of this, Hopkins?"

"The mark which he was examining began upon the brasswork on the right hand side of the keyhole and extended for about four inches, where it had scratched the varnish from the surface. 'I noticed it, Mr. Holmes, but you'll always find scratches round a keyhole.'"

"It is recent, quite recent. See how the brass shines where it is cut. An old scratch would be the same color as the surface. Look at it through my lens. There's the varnish, too. Is the scratch on each side of a furrow. Is Mrs. Marker there?"

A sad faced elderly woman came in to the room.

"Did you dust this bureau yesterday morning?" "Yes, sir."

"Did you notice this scratch?" "An sure you did not, for a duster would have swept away these shreds of varnish. Who has the key of this bureau?"

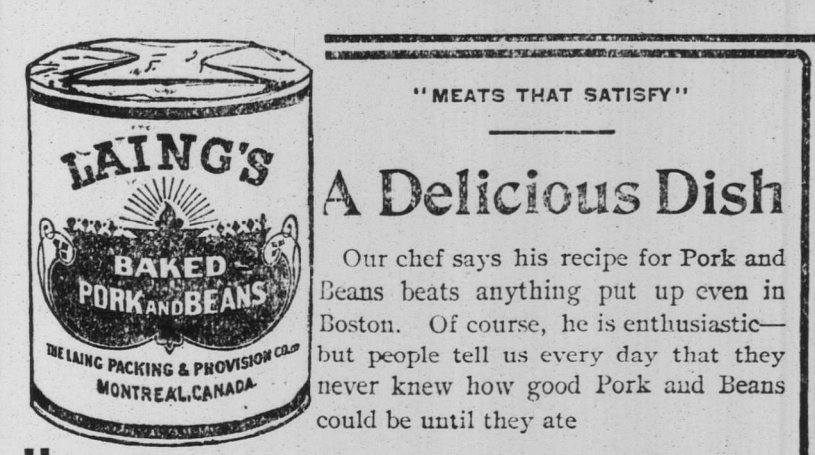

"The professor keeps it on his watch chain."

"Is it a simple key?" "No, sir; it is a 'Club's key.'"

"Very good. Mrs. Marker, you can go. Now we are making a little progress. Our lady enters the room, advances to the bureau and either opens it or tries to do so. While she is thus engaged young Willoughby Smith enters the room. In her hurry to withdraw the key she makes this scratch upon the door. He seizes her, and she, snatching up the nearest object, which happens to be this knife, strikes at him in order to make him let go his hold. The blow is a fatal one. He falls, and she escapes, either with or without the object for which she has come. Is Susan, the maid, there? Could any one have got away through that door after the time that you heard the cry, Susan?"

"No, sir; it is impossible. Before I got down the stair I'd have seen any one in the passage. Besides, the door never opened or I would have heard it."

TRIBUTE TO I. C. R.

Visitor writes on magnificent Scenery and Comfortable Travelling in N. B.

By way of introduction to a story of salmon fishing in Northern New Brunswick and on the other side of the Quebec border, and of the number of Americans who visit this province annually to spend a vacation along the banks of the Restigouche, Miramichi, Nepisiguit and their tributaries, a writer in the sporting pages of the (New Jersey) Evening News paints a pretty picture of Campbellton and pays a notable tribute of the Intercolonial Railway.

Three weeks he writes after Alton B. Parker had been nominated for the Presidency by the Democratic national convention at St. Louis, in July 1904, I stepped off the Ocean Limited at the little town of Campbellton, in Northern New Brunswick, Canada.

The 5,000 or so inhabitants of Campbellton were still asleep, for it was but two hours after dawn. The place was a picture in the purple of the morning. It nestled between mountains on either side of the Bay Chaleur to which Jacques Cartier gave the name hundreds of years ago and which rolled away to the sea, leaving the feet of Campbellton, while the lordly river Restigouche stretched its proud length in the opposite direction.

The little cottages of the fishermen and farmers on the opposite shore of the bay looked like so many spook houses in their deep quietness. Presently the breeze wafted across the water, the music

WORKING WOMEN

Their Hard Struggle Made Easier—Interesting Statements by a Young Lady in Quebec and One in Beauport, Que.

All women work; some in their homes, some in church, and some in the whirl of society. And in store, mills and shops tens of thousands are on the never-ceasing treadmill, earning their daily bread.

All are subject to the same physical laws; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbance, and the nature of their duties, in many cases, quickly drifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, ovarian troubles, ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, leucorrhoea or perhaps irregularity or suppression of "monthly periods," causing back-ache, nervousness, irritability and lassitude.

Women who stand on their feet all day are more susceptible to these troubles than others.

They especially require an invigorating, sustaining medicine which will strengthen the female organism and enable them to bear easily the fatigues of the day, to sleep well at night, and to rise refreshed and cheerful.

How distressing to see a woman struggling to earn a livelihood or perform her household duties when her back and head are aching, she is so tired she can hardly drag about or stand up, and every movement causes pain, the origin of which is due to some derangement of the female organism.

Mlle. Alma Robitaille of 78 rue St. Francois, Quebec, Que., writes:

"Overwork and long hours at the office, together with a neglected cold, brought on a

of the bell tolling in a Franciscan monastery on a hillside, no doubt calling the monks to an early mass. It is only when you get far from the noises of a great city with its eternal buzz and frequent clanging, that you find surroundings like this. The forests about you are primeval.

The Ocean Limited stopped there long enough to allow the locomotive to have its tank filled with water. While it was blowing and snorting a Jerseyman and two New Yorkers came hustling up the platform laden with fishing tackle and boarded a car.

The Ocean Limited is the high sounding name of the crack train on the Intercolonial Railroad, owned by the Canadian Government and operated by it between Montreal and Halifax—from almost the centre of the continent to the Atlantic sea board. The Intercolonial skirts the southern shore of the majestic St. Lawrence for miles and miles. It then makes a semi-circle through the peninsula of Gaspe, down through the Matapedia Valley; one of the most famous fishing grounds in the world, and where, at this time of year, the sportsman in his glory, for salmon and trout literally run to the hook in the streams of the beautiful valley. The American, who is a stranger to Canada, will find any misgivings about uncomfortable modes of travel on the other side of the forty-ninth parallel dissipated when he boards the Ocean Limited. He will encounter every comfort on this train that he did not possess going to Montreal from an American city.

The climax of his surprise will be reached when, after eating in the dining car—a course dinner that seems remarkably fresh, the porter will hand him a bill—seventy-five cents. As we seem to have a tacit agreement in our part of the world that ten per cent is an all sufficient gratuity, the porter will be amply satisfied with a tip of a dime.

The writer then goes on to tell of the resorts of the gamey salmon and of the yearly influx of sportsmen to the New Brunswick and Quebec fishing grounds.

In machine shops too the metal has given every satisfaction. Mr. S. A. Peters, Mechanical Superintendent of the R. F. and M. Co. here, says the metal has given every satisfaction.

Mr. Peters recommends the metal for heavy or light running machinery and cited instances where when other metals had worn only four months, "Excelsior Babbit" had worn for a year and still in good working order.

In several local establishments the metal has been used on running machinery and has given every satisfaction. In the Cotton Mill and in the Barrel Factory its wearing qualities are favorably commented upon, as well as by Rhodes and Curry, of Amherst.

NEW BABBIT METAL

Its Durable and Wearing Qualities are Attracting Attention.

Moncton may, in the near future, become the location of a large industry, that of manufacturing the metal invented by Mr. Joseph Stratton, the well-known J. C. K. baggagemaster.

The metal, which is attracting the attention of many large corporations is daily demonstrating its wearing qualities and is proving to be a splendid success. The invention is attracting the attention of several large upper Province capitalists, and already Mr. Stratton has had many excellent offers for the formation of a company to manufacture the product. Inducements have been held out to him to secure his patent and enter a company, and local capitalists are also interesting themselves in the matter. The result may be that a company will be formed in this city, a plant established and the metal manufactured.

The metal, which was invented by Mr. Stratton, has proven a success in every particular, especially so in wearing and saving qualities.

Its durability has been particularly proven in connection with railway journal bearings. An ordinary brass "bush" as the journal bearing is called, wears for about 15,000 miles and then the "end-wear" renders it unfit for further use until refilled. The process of refilling, besides being a highly expensive and difficult procedure, has been very unsatisfactory with the metals formerly used. Mr. Stratton's "Excelsior Babbit" has, however, shown great durability. An old "bush" refilled with his metal, travelled 90,000 miles, six times as far as the old "bush," and was then pronounced by the car inspectors to be in condition for several months more travelling. This was on a heavy I. C. R. car and the C. P. R. and the G. T. R. have submitted equally as satisfactory reports.

In machine shops too the metal has given every satisfaction. Mr. S. A. Peters, Mechanical Superintendent of the R. F. and M. Co. here, says the metal has given every satisfaction.

Mr. Peters recommends the metal for heavy or light running machinery and cited instances where when other metals had worn only four months, "Excelsior Babbit" had worn for a year and still in good working order.

FOR THE BOYS AND GIRLS.

Pharos and the Circle of Young Canada are household words among the boys, girls and young people in thousands of homes throughout Canada and the British Empire. School teachers and parents are also constant readers of the Book Club chats, nature notes, items of interest to boys, and countless letters written by the members of the Circle. The information given is interesting, while the efforts of the young correspondents in preparing their letters are helpful and inspiring. This page of The Weekly Globe and Canada Farmer is not only entertaining, but highly beneficial, to its readers. It broadens their outlook, widens their sympathies and increases their knowledge. To get the young people in our homes to identify themselves with an effort of this kind proves a strong incentive in promoting their education and in developing their characters.

A CARIBOU HUNTING STORY.

Animal was Killed by Electricity.

Sydney Post: Mr. I. C. Strang, a New York sportsman, was a passenger to North Sydney last week by the steamer Bruce from Newfoundland, where he had been spending twelve weeks camping and fishing at the head of Deer Lake, one of the famous waterways in the interior, about one hundred and twenty-five miles from Port-aux-Basques. Mr. Strang had in his possession a magnificent caribou head of twenty-four points, which must have belonged at one time to a veritable monarch of the forest. As this is the close season of the year for shooting these animals, and a twenty-four point set of antlers not being the easiest article to smuggle aboard ship, a story was apparently behind the curtain. When asked regarding his prize, Mr. Strang gave the following:

"We had been camping, myself and guide, at the head of Deer Lake, directly in the path the caribou trod in their yearly migrations from north to south, and each night dozens of these animals, and sometimes a herd of a hundred or more, would enter the narrow strip of water at the head of the lake and swim across to the other side. One could almost imagine they were tame and turned loose in some park so little did they fear molestation. On the night of the 30th of August, and all through that day, a most terrific storm of thunder and lightning, accompanied by wind of hurricane force, raged over the interior section of the country, which we were occupying, uprooting the largest trees and throwing them about in all directions. The guide and myself were sitting at the lee of our shelter on the outside, when suddenly there was a crash in the bushes to the left of us, and a magnificent stag caribou bounded into the clearing not twenty feet from where we sat. With head high in the air and nostrils dilated, it was evident he scent d danger. Another peal of thunder rent the air, followed by a flash of lurid lightning. In the centre of the shaft stood the deer apparently petrified by his surroundings. After the storm cleared up next morning we found the caribou dead in the spot where we had seen him on the previous evening. Wrapped tightly around the upper prongs of his antlers were a piece of telegraph wire about ten feet long. The wire had acted as a conductor and the animal was electrocuted.

Dropped All Others "I dropped all liniments but Nerviline because I found Nerviline the quickest to relieve pain," writes E. S. Benton of St. John's. "If my children are crampy or sick, Nerviline cures them. If a case of cramps or stomach ache turns up, Nerviline is ever ready. We use Nerviline for neuralgia, rheumatism and all kinds of aches and pains; it's as good as any doctor." The great Canadian remedy for the past fifty years has been Polson's Nerviline—nothing better made."

ANGLO JAPANESE TREATY

interested in maintaining the status quo.

"I repeat that the treaty is a sure guarantee of peace, for that is its aim and object. It should be clearly recognized by all that it is not meant as a menace to any one. That it has no aggressive intent, its only object being to secure the peace of the world so far as the Far East is concerned. The treaty is so clearly worded that no further comment is needed, and I am convinced that it will form, as was intended, a most powerful factor for peace. I hope that the people of both countries will realize this and will keep to the spirit of the treaty for a very long time to come."

Sir Charles Dilke, in speaking to the Associated Press took the position that the new treaty makes no change in the pre-existing status quo; but said it was an inevitable consequence of the new conditions in the Far East and that it was certainly a stronger guarantee of the maintenance of peace than the previous alliance. He argued that Russia was never really a menace to the Indian frontier, but merely played on the susceptibilities of Great Britain, with regard to Persia.

Sir Charles did not believe that Russia would ever risk a quarrel with India. "In reality," said he, "the countries most affected are France and Germany, because to both the new treaty secures possessions which they might have found it impossible to defend. To France this arrangement is entirely satisfactory. With Germany the case may be different, because it deals a blow at the aspirations which Germany is supposed to entertain with regard to the province of Shantung, and because Germany's present privileged position in Shantung may become non-existent by reason of the treaty. Germany, therefore, may have some slight feeling of irritation because of the limitation thus imposed. It is only in this respect that the treaty is likely to give rise to any permanent unpleasantness. In other respects it makes for peace."

While there is some criticism of the treaty in the radical newspapers, it is only half-hearted, and as a whole, London, which had been anxiously awaiting the breaking of official silence with regard to the document, heaves a sigh of relief and greets with satisfaction the positive assurance of the future assistance of a powerful Oriental ally in all matters pertaining to Far Eastern policies.

THREE JURORS CURED

With Cholera Morbus with one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightown, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some sauce meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me. In the fix I was in, I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one twenty-five cent bottle cured the three of us." For sale by All Druggists.

COAL MINE.

Rich Find of Coal at Redbank, North. Co.

NOW WORKING.

Products of Mine Proclaimed First Class—Daniel Eaton's Find.

The village of Redbank is considerably excited over the discovery of coal by the Gille and Fraser properties. These properties are situated in the rear of Mr D. Eaton's mill.

Recently Mr Eaton in tramping through the woods discovered croppings of coal and reported his find.

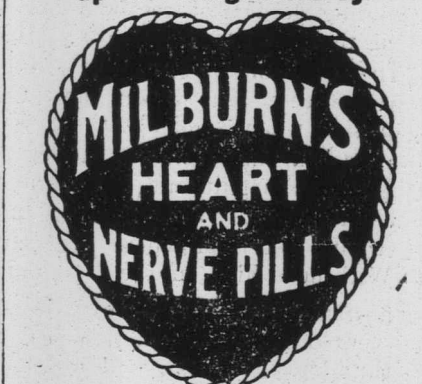

A number of men are now employed digging and have unearthed a fine seam of good coal.

None of this has yet been brought to town but it is reported by Redbank people to be the genuine article of a good grade and is in large quantities. Mr Eaton will no doubt organize a company to develop the property.—Advertiser.
