North Simcoe Liberals Choose E. Stewart, of Collingwood.

asincerity of the Dominion Government Shown.

Plausible Theory That the Elections Will Take Place Early in May.

DATE OF THE GENERAL ELEC-

On the interesting problem of the date of the coming elections the Quebec Chronicle gives out the following statement: "Speculation is rife over the exact date of the election. But our Montreal correspondent, who moves in many intimate political circles, and is in a way to get reliable intelligence, wires us that by the end of May the agony will be over. It is his opinion that election day will be Wednesday, the 15th day of May. The lists will be all printed early in April, and then the Cabinet will decide the momentous question, which means appeal to the country."

NORTH SIMCOE LIBERALS. STAYNER, Ont., Feb. 27.—The Liberal convention of North Simcoe was held in Stewart's hall here this afternoon to nominate a candidate for the coming election. The attendance was large and much enthusiasm manifested. Mr. J. Dickenson, of Barrie, was appointed chairman, and Mr. Alex. Brownley secretary. Eighteen nominations were made, but all withdrew from the field except Mr. E. Stewart, of Collingwood, and Dr. McAllister, of Nottawasaga. When the ballot was cast Mr. Stewart was found to be the winner by about a dozen votes. The choice was made unanimous. Mr. Stewart then resigned the office of president of the association, and Dr. McCall, of Stayner, was appointed president, Mr. J. Bell, of New Lowell, taking his former position as first vice-

PATRONS IN COUNCIL. TORONTO, Feb. 27.-The members of the Patron executive board, on reassembling today, took up the question of formulating a plan of action for the coming Dominion elections. Many schemes were submitted, but nothing definite will be done in the matter until tomorrow, when the Patron representatives from Quebec and Manitoba will be here. The finances of the order during the campaign will be one of the subjects discussed. The report of the auditors, who completed their work last week, says that although during the past year a Provincial election was conducted, the amount paid to the grand officers for hotel, traveling and diem expenses exceeded that of the previous year by only $250. The entire amount paid to the grand officers was $1,330, or less than $260 for each of the Liberal candidate for North Bruce, at Paisley on March 5, and at Wiarton on March 6. Most encouraging accounts of Liberal prospects come from the Lambtons. In the west Mr. Lister is morally certain of election, and in the east the Liberals are united and confident. The Young Liberal Club of Harriston and Minto has completed organization. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, O. L. Schmidt, B.A. first vice-president, A. G. Campbell; second vice-president, W. D. McLellan; secretary, R. F. Dale; treasurer, J. Mc-Murchie, B.A.

At the North York Liberal nomina-tion Mr. Davis, M.P.P., said that he was a manufacturer, and he wanted to see the manufacturers in a position to do fairly well, but he did not want to see them put in a position to do well at the expense of the farmers. He reminded the convention of the manner in which the Dominion Government had interviewed the manufacturers in secret and the farmers in public. The Government, he said, were no more sincere in the desire which they had professed for tariff reform than they were in 1891 for reciprocity with the United States.

THIRTY-NINE MEN KILLED!

By a Terrific Explosion of Gas in a Coal

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 27.-A terrific explosion of gas occurred in the Whiteash mine of the Santa Fe Railway Company three miles from Cerillos this morning at 11 o'clock, causing the death of at least 39 miners.

The first intimation of the disaster was a muffled roar and clouds of smoke and dust rolling from the mouth of the Nearly 300 men are employed in the mine, but only 50 were at work when the explosion occurred. Only eleven of them escaped alive, and some of them

Twenty-nine dead have been taken from the mine, and it is doubtful if the remaining dozen are alive.

Up to 4 o'clock those on the inside could be heard trying to work their way out from the caved-in mine, but as nothing has been heard since then the imprisoned men in all probability have succumbed to the deadly gas.

PROBABLY LOST WITH ALL

HANDS. GLOUCESTER, Mass., Feb. 27.-The schooner Samuel V. Colby sailed from Fortune Bay for this port a number of days before the gale of the 8th inst., and was about due here at the time of the storm. Every other vessel out in that storm has been heard of in some way, but no tidings have been received from the Colby. It is thought she is certainly lost with all on board. The crew is as follows: John Vibert, master, about 52 years old, of this city; John McLean, mate, 48 years old; George Hamilton, cook, about 50 years old; Peter McLean, 27 years old, brother of

GOVERNOR OF CAPE COLONY. CAPETOWN, Feb. 27.-The Right Hon. Sir Hercules Robinson has been appointed Governor and commanderin chief of Cape Colony, to succeed Sir H. B. Loch.

NORWAY'S CABINET CRISIS. CHRISTIANIA, Feb. 27 .- The political crisis is still unsettled. King Oscar held a consultation today. He requested the Conservative Ministers to withdraw their resignations, but they refused to do so. He then asked Sverdrup, leader of the Moderate Left, to form a Cabinet, and received another refusal.

100,000 MINERS AFFECTED. LONDON, Feb. 27.-The negotiations for a revision of the sliding scale in the south of Wales mines have failed, and the owners will notify the men that contracts will be terminated at the end of March, when the scale will expire. unless revised. About 100,000 miners are affected. The decision of the owners will cause much bitterness and excite-

of the Catholic missions have received news of an attack by natives on the Tanquag mission station, in the Thannes province of Tonquin. The missionary Verbier was killed. Father Soubeyre escaped and carried the news to the nearest military station. A NEW MOVE.

A cable from Paris to the New York Herald says: "The diplomatic world is talking a good deal just now about a new move, the object of which is believed to bring about a renewal of the old alliance of the three emper-ors—those of Germany, Austria and Russia—to take the place of the Triple Alliance, which will be allowed to die of its own accord by expiration, and without being formally dissolved."

A FRIGHTFUL STORY. LONDON, Feb. 27.—The Telegraph has a two column dispetch from a reporter who was sent by it to investigate the Armenian outrages. It is dated Moosh, Jan. 23, and was sent by the Russian telegraph line from Kars.

The dispatch records the attempts on the part of the Turks to destroy the proofs of the outrages, and especially to obliterate the tell-tale pit dug behind the residence of Vialliage, chief of Djellyegoozan, in which hundreds of mutilated bodies were piled, heads, arms, hand, legs and trunks mingling in one festering mass. Barrels of petroleum that were originally intended to be used in burning villages were poured into the pit and set on fire.

The flames failed to consume the mass, and a hill stream was then dammed and diverted from its course, but even this failed to wash away the horrid evidence. Now the remains are being removed piecemeal.

The details of this massacre, in which after promising imperial protection, the Turks escorted the Armenians a distance from the camp before slaying them, are sickening and most fiendish. The Bulgarian atrocities are mild in comparison with these savage horrors, which are amply confirmed by numerous independent eye-witnesses

The fugitives were pursued and butchered. Some, however, escaped, and went to Moosh to testify before the commission appionted to investigate the outrages. They were seized and imprisoned on various pretexts. Spies and policemen stalked the highways and pounced upon the Armenian who was suspected of an intention to testify.

A NEW DEPARTURE

Announced by the Ontario Minister of Agriculture.

The Process of Fruit-Spraying To Be Practically Illustrated and Taught-An Off Day in the House.

(Special to the "Advertiser.") TORONTO, Feb. 27.—In the estimates of the Province which will be brought down today there is contained a rather important announcement by the Minister of Agriculture. He proposes to establish a species of traveling fruitspraying expedition somewhat on the line of the well-known traveling dairy. By sending out three expeditions the Province will be fairly well covered, and farmers whose fruits are suffering from the ravages of the fungi will have an opportunity of seeing how s prepared and applied.

Hon. Mr. Dryden took down to the Ontario Agricultural College today a party of some 75, most of whom are members of the Legislature. The Opposition and the Patrons are well represented, all of the Patron members having turned out, while, of course, a large number of Government supporters accompanied the party. They spent the day in inspection of the college, more especially the dairy and poultry depart-

THE SESSION. (Special to the "Advertiser.")

PARLIAMENT HOUSE, TORONTO, Feb. 27.—There was practically no session of the House today. Hon. Mr. Dryden took some 60 members, including all the Patrons, off to Guelph to visit the Ontario Agricultural College, and the bare quorum which assembled—thirteen in all—in the House met mainly to receive the estimates, which it was expected would be laid on the table. These, however, were not ready, and the House adjourned, the clerk recording that the estimates had been presented, so as to allow of their being distributed as soon as received. They could not be got up in time today, how-ever, and will be presented the first thing tomorrow. This is the sum total of all done here today.

The estimates, it is understoood, will be rather smaller than they were last year. For civil government a sum very slightly in excess of last year's will be asked. The estimates for the administration of justice will be slightly larger, and so will be those for edu-cation, the maintenance of public institutions, for agriculture, and hospitals and charities, the excess being a few thousand dollars. For public works and colonization roads a less sum will be asked, bringing the total to a smaller figure. In addition to this evidence of care, the public accounts show that the expenditures of the past years have, as usual, been kept well within the mark. The visit to Guelph was very success ful, an unusually large number going and all enjoying themselves. The Patrons examined the buildings and operations with great care, and when the speaking took place Mr. Haycock spoke in high terms of the way in which useless ornamentation has been avoided and practical usefulness being sought. The difference between the Guelph and the Dominion experimental farms, he said, must be due to the fact that Ontario has a practical farmer at the head of the department, the Dominion a practical lawyer. Mr. Haycock is particularly well pleased with the poultry department, of which he is well qualified to speak, for he is a poultry breeder of great experience. Mr. Jarvis, the head of the department, he said, has done wonders, and has got together a remarkably fine collection.

Mr. Archibald Currie, member for West Simcoe, has been appointed Pat-

McLaughlin's Aerated Water Factory at Toronto Demolished.

Property Damaged.

Over $10,000 Damage and No Insurance-Should Have Been Inspected and Insured in the Steam Boiler and Plate Glass Insurance Company of London.

About 6:30 o'clock on Monday evening the east end of the city of Toronto was shaken for several blocks round the vicinity of Queen and Sherbourne steets by the concussion of a terrific explosion, accompanied by a loud report as of a discharge of heavy artillery. The scene of the catastrophe was John J. McLaughlin's mineral and aerated water factory, 153-155 Sherbourne street, Toronto, almost opposite Shuter street, and those who fir rrived on the scene were astonished to see the whole front of the substantial double-fronted two-storey brick and stone building fall outwards, and, with the roof and a por-tion of the walls, scatter in an indes-cribable wreck of debris across the entire roadway, while the remainder of the structure collapsed on either side, until scarcely one stone was left upon Scarcely comprehending what had really happened, the neighbors for blocks around came flocking to the scene, and in a few moments they noticed smoke begin to rise from the ruins, followed by small tongues of flame, which quickly gained in strength and volume. Reels from Lombard and Berkley streets and from Wilton avenue were quickly on the spot and playing on the fire.

DESTRUCTION TO PROPERTY. The destruction to property was by no means confined to the demolished factory. Every house round suffered more or less, those immediately opposite coming off worst. Dr. Jerrold Ball's house, on the corner of Shuter street, got the full benefit of the shock, and every window in front of the building was blown in bodily, frames and all. Mrs. Ball and a lady friend were sitting in the drawing-room, and notwithstanding the fact that the shutters were closed, glass was hurled across the room, striking them both, and inflicting some slight cuts and scratches. A heavy marble slab on a heater in a back room was moved eight or ten inches out of its place by the concussion, and other furniture was disarranged throughout the house. In addition to the shattered windows in front scarcely a pane escaped on the north and south sides, and even the back windows suffered. The other houses immediately below Dr. Ball's, viz., 176, 174 and 172, occupied by Mr. Solomon Myers, Solomon Lorie and Rev. George Webster respectively, also suffered severely, very few windows escaping destruction. Hon. G. W. Allan's mansion, "Moss Park," was also caught in the sweep, and shows cracked and broken windows. Even Dr. Do little's house, 180, on the north corne of Shuter, has several demolished paner to mark the visitation. On the east side of Sherbourne, north and south of the destroyed factory, the houses suf fered, though to a less extent, the only one badly damaged being that immediately to the north, which was jarred and wrenched by the concussion. To the south, 145, 147, 149 and 151 all felt and dishes shaken from their shelves. CAUSE OF EXPLOSION.

For a long time the cause of the explosion was a mystery, as both Messrs. Spink and Lindsay declared everything was all right when they left, but when the firemen managed to get into the basement, which was partially left clear by the timbers above holding up the debris, they found the boiler was smashed to atoms, leaving no possible doubt that, from some cause still to be explained, the boiler had burst and shattered the premises. Two or three slight explosions occurred during the progress of the fire, but these were probably from chemicals used in manufac

the shock, a few windows being broken

The losses will be heavy, as the fire insurance policies do not cover damage from such a cause. McLaughlin's loss is at least $10,000, as nothing is saved except his household furniture, stored in the building. Dr. Ball loses about $100, and the others named above will lose from $10 to $75 each.

Mr. McLaughlin is in Florida for his health, but his father, who lives in Oshawa, came to look after the busi-

Closing Session of the Association at Toronto.

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—The Association of Young Methodists of Ontario closed its session this evening, and as a Provincial organization has ceased to exist, having been split into as many branches as there are conferences in Ontario.

There were no officers elected accordingly, except for branch associations, as they will be termed.

At the morning session the association adopted the recommendation by the business committee, reaffirming the stand taken by the Methodist Church councils on the question of the liquor traffic; appointing a committee to wait on the Government to urge a reduction in the number of licenses issued, and a better administration of the license law. The tobacco habit was also condemned. At the evening session a number of papers of much merit were

TEXAS ROBBERS

Hold Up a Train and Plunder the Express Safe.

Fifteen in the Gang-Believed to Mave Secured a Large Sum.

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 28. - Fifteen thoroughly armed men held up the Houston and Texas Central Express at the Missouri, Kausas and Texas crossing last evening. The engineer and fireman were made to leave the engine, and the robbers out loose the express and baggage cars, placed men on the engine, pulled the throttle wide open, and ran them several miles, leaving the body of the train on the track. They compelled the express messenger to open the safe and the robbers plundered it. They took a large number of packages. The robbers then scattered to the timbers of White Rock Creek Bottoms. Railroad and express officials and employes declare that the rebbers tound no money, but the belief is general that a large sum was secured. Notices have been sent to all towns to be on the look out, and large numbers of men have been placed on all roads to and from Dallas and the White Rock Creek Bottoms with the hope of intercepting the robbers. The police, railroad and express authorities have no idea as to the identity of the bandits, but they are believed to be a new gang organized since the annihilation of the Dalton and Cook gangs. The police late last night arrested Joe Mills at a variety theater as one of the su pected robbers. About $219 in gold was found upon his person.

Great Record. NEW YORK, Feb. 28 -Gen. Booth bade farewell last night to the members of the Salvation Army at a meeting in Carnegie Hall. Every seat in the house was occupied. The boxes were filled with friends of the army who are interested in its work. Field and staff officers sat on the stage. Commander Ballington Booth, who opened the meeting, read the general's address to the troops. In the order it was announced that the general had been in America about four months. In that time he traveled 18,453 miles, spending 1,847 hours on the cars, 369 of which were consumed in traveling y night. He has written 216 letters and 11 articles on his work, and spent 429 hours in army business. Forty-seven short and 293 long addresses have been made by him to audiences numbering 437,500 persons. While the general has been in America 2,200 have joined the army.

Gen. Booth, when he spoke for himself, said in the course of his address that the Mohammedan missioners were more successful than the Christian teachers. They have captured the tribes of Africa, while the Christian missionaries have failed. Gen. Booth said he intended to return to

MISS WILLARD TO LIVE ABROAD. The Temperance Agitator's Health Requires It.

BOSTON, Feb. 27.-Another American woman whose name is famous the world over is about to follow the example of the once queen of the American stage, Mary Anderson, and take up her residence permanently in Europe. This is Miss Frances Willard, queen among the temperance women of the world. So far no formal statement has been made on the subject, either by her or in her behalf, but the fact has been known for some little time in her close circle of friends, and it has leaked out sufficiently at the White Ribbon and Council of Women Conventions held in Washington during the past two weeks. Miss Willard's determination was due entirely to the fact that she is no longer able to stand the rigors of the American climate, while the results of her sojourn in the country places of England last year, under the watchful care of Lady Henry Somerset, were most beneficial. Not only this, but since the death of her saintly mother at Evanston, Ill., in August, 1892, that suburb and the Willard home, "Rest Cottage," seem in a measure to have lost its charm for her, and arrangements have been made by which those of Miss Willard's household still occupying the cottage and engaged in temperance work will be assigned to other fields and the place closed. Miss Willard sails with Lady Somerset early in CHICAGO, Feb. 27.-Officials of the Women's Christian Temperance Union are inclined to be extremely reticent concerning Miss Willard's intention of taking up her permanent residence in England. One of them, however, admitted Miss Willard's views on the subject have been communicated to the officers some time since. It is understood that she will not resign the presidency of any of the organizations she has been instrumental in bringing into existence, and the probabilities are that each annual meeting will re-elect her, no matter whether her residence be in Chicago or St. Petersburg. There will needs be, however, an American supervisory head for the National American Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the affairs of which are gradually growing to enormous dimensions.

MIDDLESEX.

On Friday evening a large number of friends and relatives gathered at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Best, 121 Front street, Strathroy, to celebrate their silver wedding. At 6 p.m. a very sumptuous dinner was provided and about 60 did justice to the good things set before them. The room and tables were decorated with natural flowers, which made it beautiful to behold. At 8 p.m. Mr. J. Ferguson took the chair and introduced an excellent programme, which consisted of music by the Haldane String Band, violin solo by Miss Wilson, and numerous other selections on the cornet, auto-harp and violin; speeches by the groom, Drs. Henderson and Routledge; vocal music by Mrs. G. T. Carley. Misses Banghart and Hodgkison, and Messrs. Taylor, Banghart, Hodgkinson and Best. The presents were very numerous and costly, consisting of a silver tea service, biscuit jar, pickle cruet, fruit spoons and a large number of other smaller articles. The assembly broke up about 12, after having a very pleasant evening, by wishing the host and hostess long life and happiness, and by singing "For Jake is a Jolly Good Fellow."

Chief Roe's Very Interesting Annual Report.

Insurance Involved—Buildings Destroyed -Losses - Street Watering - The market Must Be Kept Clean-Injured at a Fire.

The regular meeting of the fire and light committee was held last night, and a large amount of business was transacted in a very short time. For the first time since the Dundas Center Methodist Church fire, Chief Roe, who was then seriously injured, was able to attend, and his appearance was a source of pleasure to the committee. He brought with him the 22nd annual report of the fire department, which, as usual, is full of interesting statistics. Market and street watering questions were also thrashed out, and the committee adjourned until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when the three fire halls will be inspected. The members present were: Ald. Powell (chairman), Skinner, Ardill, Garratt, Weld, Pritchard, Mayor Little, Secretary Bell, Inspector Bell, Market Clerk Wilson, Chief Roe and Engineer Graydon.

THE FIRE CHIEF'S REPORT. In his 22nd annual review, Chief Roe stated in part: "Since my last annual report only one change has taken place in the membership of the department, caused by the departure from the city of Wm. Smith, and the appointment of Alex. Borland to the vacancy. The distribution of the manual force, horses and apparatus is the same as given in my report for 1893: Chief foreman of department, two drivers and six men at No. 1 station; foreman, driver and three men at No. 2 station; foreman, driver and two men at No. 3 station. There 25c YARD are 6,250 feet of 2 1-2 inch hose in stock; 5,100 feet of this are good, and 1,150 feet are second class, and could not be depended upon, some of it having been in service since 1885 or 1886. To keep the hose stock as it should be 500 feet are needed this year. An approximate estimate of the VALUE OF THE EQUIPMENT of the department, including horses, harness, wagons and sleighs, hose, etc., and the fire alarm system, but exclusive of buildings and land, is $16,000; exclusive of the amount charged against the department for hydrant service, $8,775. The cost of maintenance for 1894 was $13,953.99, which is $446 less than the estimated expenditure for the year.

"I would here renew the recommendawires as fast as circumstances permitted, and in a short time expect to have the whole system finished on the lines laid down. In view of the demands of the fire underwriters that additional equipments and apparatus be procured, I would recommend that a chemical engine be got in preference to a salvage corps outfit: that six threegallon extinguishers be procured to carry on the wagons and truck, and that instead of appointing fifteen call men to the present force, that ANOTHER FIRE STATION be put into service in the north end of the city. This, I think, would give sufficent protection to all parts of London. At present the north end is not protected as it should be.

"We received 155 alarms of all kinds during the year. Of these 108 were for fires from which damage resulted; 28 were for chimney fires, in which no insurance or damage is calculated; 7 were false alarms, and 8 were test runs. Compared with 1893 this shows a decrease of 15 alarms, 1 fire, 18 chimney blazes, 4 false alarms and an increase of 5 test runs. The department attended 120 and worked at 80 of these

"The distance traveled in attending these fires was as follows: No. 1 station, 163 1-2 miles; No. 2 station, 206 1-2 miles; No. 3 station, 195 1-2 miles. An approximate estimate of the amount of water used is 493,000 gallons. The number of buildings destroyed was 8, all frame structures. The causes of the above fires, as nearly as could be ascertained, were as follows:

CAUSES AND INSURANCE. "Careless use of matches, 15; lamps exploded and upset, 15; hot ashes, 3; unknown, 18; incendiary, 17; lighting, 6; gas setting fire to draperles, 11; false alarms and tests, 15; dirty and defective chimneys and smokestacks, 36; overheated stoves, ovens, grates and oil and tar kettles, 19.

"The insurance involved was: On buildings, $155,330; on contents, $274,440; total, $429,770. Loss on buildings, $7,-756 77; on contents, $14,210 19; total, $21,966 96. This is an increase of insurance over 1893 of $54,595, and a decrease in losses of $20,686 48. An approximate etimate of the values of buildings is $294,770, and of the contents, $412,540; total, $707,310. The average loss for the 108 fires was almost $233, a decrease of $73 compared with last year." In conclusion Chief Roe thanked the committee and mayor of 1894 for their courtesy and kindness, and also the chief of police and the force for assistance. Among the supplies needed were 500 feet of hose and 19 uniforms and caps, 1 new hook and ladder truck, 1 chemical engine and a number of minor

Ald. Pritchard called attention to the basement of the market house, which was sometimes very unclean.

This brought up the question whether or not the market house tenants were supposed to keep clean a certain space in front of their stalls. The only reference in the bylaws to this reads: "The market clerk shall see that the market house and place are kept clean." This

Ald. Garratt favored calling for tenders for the entire area. Ald. Powell spoke of the owners of corner lots, who would have to pay for a double frontage. He thought it would be very unfair.

"They get the benefit of the watering," said Mayor Little, "and why shouldn't they pay for it?" "And those people owning corner lots Ald. Pritchard moved the adoption of the engineer's plan. Carried. "Now," said Ald. Ardill, "we will be getting into a lawsuit if we water streets against the will of the ratepayers.'

"As to the mode of assessment for the watering, we had better leave the question over until the area is adopted," rejoined Mayor Little.

The monthly account for the fire department amounted to $960. The three substitute firemen were allowed $1 50 per day. Their services will be dispensed with today, as Firemen Gleason, Riddle and McDonald are able to resume duty.
Mr. W. H. Ferguson, on behalf of the Retail Grocers' Association, appeared before the committee and complained of the severe loss grocers were subjected to on account of persons peddling fruit around the city. He wanted a higher license fee levied upon them. The solicitor will be consulted as to what power the committee has in the matter. The license year begins on March 1, but in the meantime all applicants for licenses will have to wait, pending the report of the solicitor. Michael Tierney asked to be re-munerated for injuries sustained while assisting the firemen at the Queen's Avenue Church fire. He had stepped on a nail and had not recovered from his injuries. ## DIED FROM POISONING.

Mrs. Charles Barrett Drank Chloride of Zinc.

She Supposed It To Be Cough Medicine-Suffered for Five Days-Inquest To Be Held.

Mrs. Charles Barrett, who with her husband and five little children resided at the corner of Colborne and Oxford streets, was alive and in good health on Thursday last. Today she will be buried in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The circumstances of the case are very sad. On Thursday evening last, when Mrs. Barrett and her family retired, she was suffering from a severe cold, accompanied by a cough. She could not sleep on this account, and during the night she arose and went to another room for some cough medicine. By mistake Mrs. Barrett secured a vial containing chloride of zinc. She drank a large portion of the contents, and soon discovered that

A TERRIBLE MISTAKE had been made. She had taken poison. The pain which Mrs. Barrett suffered was excruciating, but she succeeded in alarming her husband. Dr. Mitchell was summoned, but he soon saw that the woman could not recover from the deadly dose, although she might surreference to improvements required. Since that report was submitted, we have continued altering and raising our wires as fast as circumstances. was of no avail, and she died on Tues-WAS SOMEWHAT DESPONDENT.

The Barrett homestead on the north-west corner of Colborne and Oxford streets was visited last evening. Mrs. Beasley, wife of Thomas Beasley, 812 Maitland street, and a sister of Mrs. Barrett, was seen. Mrs. Beasley said the unfortunate woman had been slightly despondent for a few days, but she ridiculed the idea that the deceased came to her death other than by accident. The Barretts and the Beasleys came from England only two years ago and settled in London. Both families are highly respected. Mr. Barrett is a stationary engineer, but as situations in that line are rather scarce he was ever willing to turn his hand to anything and earn an honest living for himself, wife and five little children. The chloride of zinc he kept in the house for soldering purposes. The untimely oss of his wife, who was only 32 years of age, is a severe shock to Mr. Barrett, and owing to his short residence in this city he has few personal friends to sympathize with him. AN INQUEST WILL BE HELD.

Dr. Flock, the coroner, was notified of Mrs. Barrett's death, and on making inquiries into the circumstances he deemed an inquest advisable. Accordingly P. C. Nelson Smith was ordered to summon the jury, and the following comprise it: J. H. Wilson (foreman), Charles Barfitt, Thomas Whittaker, Moses Cox, James A. Thomas, William Spence, Albert Temple, George Lampey, Thomas Brown, James Grant, George Beattie, James Dunn, Thomas Brenton, Wm. Johnston, Thomas Trebilcock and Edward German. The jury assembled at Stephenson's undertaking rooms, where the body was taken from the hospital, viewed the remains and adjourned until Friday afternoon at 3:30, when the inquest will be resumed at the police station.

NEWS OF FRANK LENZ. Gen. Wagner, of Persia, Writes of the Lost Cyclist. PITTSBURG, Feb. 27.-Mrs. Mary G.

Lenz, mother of Frank G. Lenz, the Pittsburg wheelman, who has now been missing nine months, has received a letter from Tabriz, Persia. It is written by Gen. Waldo Wagner, of the Persian army, who writes at the request of the Crown Prince of Persia, relating to her son Frank. A photograph, supposed to be the last one taken by Lenz, is sent with the letter. It shows the Pittsburg boy on his wheel in the gardens of the royal palace at Tabriz, giving his famous exhibition before the nobility. The picture is the one made for and presented to the Crown Prince by Frank. His royal highness offers his sympathy to Mrs. Lenz and all Pittsburg friends of the missing boy, and through Gen. Wagner expresses hope that he may yet be found alive.

Mrs. Lenz has also received a letter from Outing, in which they say they have completed arrangements with Sachtlaben, the St. Louis wheelman, to go into Persia to search for the missing boy. He will start early in March. Sachtlaben went around the world several years ago, but rode over most of the route on the railroad. He wheeled through that region in which Lenz has been lost, and is familiar with the country.

CANADA'S AREA.

Something Also of Her Mineral and Other Resources.

Sir William Dawson, our chief authority on the geology of this country, in a recent lecture in Montreal on the rich natural resources of the Dominion, said:

Roughly speaking, Canada includes the northern half of North America. Canada extends east and west over 3,400 miles and has an area of 3,000,000 square miles. Its center is very near the line of the Red River and while the greater part of the agricultural land lies west of this and the bulk of the population to the east of it, the western half must in future assume greater importance. While at present most of the people are settled around the southern margin, there are large areas in the north, aggregating nearly a million square miles, which are not only not inhabited, except by hunters, but are practically unexplored. Canada may be divided into six natural divisions: The Maritime Provinces, the Province of Ontario and Quebec, the great plateau between the great lakes and the Rocky Mountains; British Columbia, the great North and Newfoundland.

We find in the maritime district a large coal area. Then in the western plateau another series of extensive coal deposits are found, besides those of British Columbia, where every variety is found from brown coal, which is little more than hardened peat, to the finest kind of anthracite. It is estimated that the total area of coal land in Canada is about 97,000 square miles. The total annual output does not exceed 4,000,000 tons, an amount which the little island of Cape Breton could supply for an indefinite period. Newfoundland has also its areas of coal which are of a special value with reference to the future command of the navigation of the North

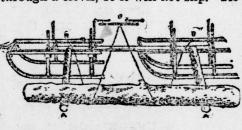

The next subject of the course refers to agricultural products. The results of the researches carried on at the Experimental Farm at Ottawa show that compared with the land under cultivation our agricultural resources are yet in infancy. The remarkable development which in a few years certain departments of agriculture have shown indicate what can be done. In 1893 Canada exported 134,000,000 pounds of cheese, besides $7,500,000 worth of cattle. We need not fear should our staple of wheat fall off. It should be borne in mind that the cultivation of wheat rapidly exhausts the soil, while dairy products merely deplete the land of very little of its phosphates which are easily replaced.

The fifth deals with the forests, which are, under present management, in a critical condition. Canada still has more timber than any other country in the world, but for that reason we ought of the Stomach. Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Hladder, Nervous Diseases, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Constipation, Costiveness. Indigestion, Billousness Fever, Inflammation of the Bowels Piles and all derangements of the Internal Viscera, PERFECT DIGESTION will be accomplished by taking RADWAY'S PILLS. By so doing easily replaced. to be careful not to give away too much or waste it at home. The time has come for scientific forestry, and proper attention to these matters might enable us to supply the world for centuries, besides leaving us abundance for ourselves. Our present export of $26,000,000 worth. and much more, might be obtained from the natural increase of our forests. We have still 1,000,000,000 acres of forest land in the North outside the boundaries of the Provinces.

Of our native animals we have taken little thought, except how to kill and destroy them. The bison in the West and the eider duck in the East furnish lamentable examples of this wasteful destruction. But we have still abundance of fur-bearing animals which, should they be properly cared for, will continue to supply the world for years to come. The last subject to be dealt with is the fisheries. Ours are the most extensive in the world, yielding annually more than $20,000,000. It is well that the Government is waking up to their improvement. We should, however, have our shore fisheries to ourselves, and it is quite as criminal for foreign poachers to make inroads on these preserves as it would be on our cultivated fields. To round out our fishing resources and enable us properly to protect them, Newfoundland should join us and France should be removed from her shores and from those little islands which by their smuggling proclivities are demoralizing the people of the Lower St. Lawrence. To complete the Dominion we should induce our generous neighbors to the south to hand over to us their not very profitable territory of Alaska, with its dependent islands, which their benevolent regard of the fur seal makes so costly to them. We could protect the seals less expensively and more effectively and sell them the fur cheaper than they can produce it themselves.

-The question to what extent the pneumatic tire, so familiar on bicycles, will be adopted on the wheels of other vehicles is one of considerable interest. Since, even on the smooth wood and asphalt pavements of London, the rider knows at once whether his hansom has elastic or rigid tires, the contrast must be still more marked on macadamized roads or streets paved with granite or cobblestones.

STILL THEY COME!

Converts to the Liberal policy of a tariff for revenue only, with free raw materials for manufacturers, are appearing on every hand. At a recent meeting in East Peterboro, Mr. John Brown, ex-reeve of Belmont, said he Policy in 1878, but in the hands of the present Government it had become a mockery of the promises 'made in its name. After a careful study of the policy of the Liberal party he believed it was the best for the country, and he would give it his hearty support and do his best to secure the return of Mr. Lang, the Liberal candidate. At the same meeting Mr. Charles O'Rielly, one of the most prominent farmers and Conservative workers of Asphodel, also expressed himself in sympathy with the Liberal policy, He had supported the N. P. in 1878, but he felt that it had outlived its usefulness, and he would support the Liberal policy and its candidate in the riding.

THE ELECTION IN GREATER LONDON.

Next to an election for the Imperial House of Commons, no contest possesses greater interest to the average Englishman than the voting for members of the London County Council, which takes place on Saturday next. The constituency, in point of population, is about as large as the Dominion, though the territory embraced is comparatively limited. Voting begins at 8 a.m., and continues till 8 p.m. The candidates are divided into two ranks-the "Progressives," almost entirely composed of Liberals, and the "Moderates," almost wholly Conservative in their views. Hitherto, beginning with the Council of which Lord Rosebery was the first chairman, the Council has been "Progressive," but the "Moderates" are this year making a dead-set to get a major ity. They are backed by two influential classes in the community. London, under the law passed a few years ago, is a united community, many reforms for the benefit of the masses have been undertaken, and many more are in contemplation. But the "Moderates," largely interested by sectional self-interest, desire to retard the movement. They have expressed a desire to disunite London-to break the county up into books needed in their special studies? The twelve or fifteen large municipalitiesand hope by this means to retain many class privileges. They have the support of the music hall managers, whose places where the resorts of questionable characters, and which have been suppressed by the "Progressive" majority now in power in the great metropolis. The outcome of the struggle is waited for with some anxiety. In Scotland the Parish Council elections do not take place till Tuesday, April 2.

THE BRITISH PREMIER'S AIM. Lord Rosebery, the British Liberal leader, writing to a correspondent in the United States, says he is very desirous of furthering the most cordial relations among the Anglo-Saxon race in all parts of the world. A union of the English-speaking people of the earth would, he feels assured, do more for the advancement of peace and universal brotherhood than anything else. Without a doubt the British Premier voices the sentiments of many millions of the members of the English-speaking race in all parts of the world. It was not too much to expect, in this age of progress, that such a reunion, in some tangible form, will one day take place. We can all work to promote it by avoiding every unnecessary friction and by removing as many obstacles to trade as possible. Commerce is the great cementer of com-

LONDON'S NEW FREE LIBRARY. Now that the question of the free library is fairly before the public, there are a few things in regard to it which ought to receive the consideration of every intelligent citizen. The walls of the new building have begun to rise on the strong and sure foundation prepared for it at the corner of Queen's avenue and Wellington street. We are told by those to whom the work has been committed that, when completed, it will be in every way adapted to the kind of work that will be carried on within, and will be an edifice of which the people of London shall have reason to feel proud. Books are also needed. A reading public will not continue to patronize a library, no matter how admirable the structure may be, if it is poorly furnished with reading matter. The selection of books is important, and in the hands of a judicious committee can be satisfactorily carried out. What are the most necessary and most beneficial works for a public library, and where to obtain the best library editions at the lowest prices, can be learned in a very short time from price lists and catalogues, and from those who are engaged in this particular line of educational work in other

A good board of management is another requisite. There can be little doubt that the new library will be estimated very largely by the men who from year to year constitute the members of the board. It may be regarded as more than fortunate that there happens to be on the board for this year some of the most influential, intelligent, and cultured men of the city. The present year will be in a sense the most important in the history of the library. The work to be done during the year will cave a deep impression on this new civic i stitution. This may be regarded as the year of its majority, when it shall be sent forth to do its best for the improvement of the community. The work accomplished thus far has been of a preparatory nature, but before 1895 shall be rung out, the library will be in full swing. It augurs well for the future of the new institution that it has so able a board of managers to complete the work of preparation and to make all other arrangements for its adequate and efficient equipment.

Another important matter is the appointment of a permanent librarian. The board has already taken action in this regard, and has had before it a very large number of applications for the position. That so many as 82 citizens should be desirous of serving the community in this most responsible position for the salary offered-less than $12 a week-shows how comparatively few are the opportunities to make a living in the present condition of had been a supporter of the National the country. The library board appointed a special committee to scrutinize the various applications, and to weed out those that were proved to have special qualifications for this position. This committee, it is understood, will report at a special meeting of the board to be held tomorrow (Friday) night, when a choice is likely to be made. It is to be hoped that it will be a wise one. If the new library will be estimated very largely by the men who from time to time are elected to sit on its managing board, it is safe to say that it will be estimated particularly by the man who is appointed librarian. If any blunder should be committed here at the very outset, it may take some time to rectify it, There can be little room for doubt that the institution will continue to rise or fall in the eyes of the intelligent public according to the kind of man who is placed at the head of it. If he is a man with recognized ability and fitness for the office, he will do not, he will do much to bring it down.

much to raise the institution up; if he is It is somewhat amusing to listen to the many opinions expressed by citizens in regard to the qualifications of a librarian. There are some who think that he should be a man who knows everybody and who is known by everybody. Well, this may be a qualification, and it may not. There is a familiarity with people which is altogether out of place in one who stands at the head of an institution of this kind. It does not take very long for a capable librarian to make the acquaintance of those who frequent the library nor for them to make his acquaintance. Many think that the librarian should be a man with a knowledge of the book business. That knowledge doubtless aids a librarian in his work of assisting the book committee of the library board. Some people believe that the one duty of a librarian is to give out and receive back books. But should his duty end there? May he not be useful to citizens as an aid to their selection of the of the most presperous of our Canadian public libraries that people are getting more and more out of the way of dealing with books assuch, and are dealing more with subjects instead. During the past few years he has found the chief part of his work in directing readers as far as possible to the various sources of information on the subjects of their reading. Who was the gentleman that headed the influential deputation that appeared before the Premier the other day in Toronto in reference to the copyright question? It was Mr. R. T. Lancefield, the cultured librarian of the Hamilton public library. Mr. Lancefield is pre-eminently a literary man, and was appointed to the position he holds on the ground of his scholarly attainments, combined with his thorough knowledge of the book business.

In regard to other qualifications we may say that a qualified librarian should be a man of irreproachable character, a man of gentlemanly demeanor, a man of broad sympathies, one who will not make himself in anywise obnoxious to any class of the reading public by manifesting anything like a spirit of partiality in any direction, but one who by discretion and courtesy shall gain the respect and confidence of readers of every grade of social standing, of every political party and of every recognized Christian creed.

Can a librarian, possessing these various qualifications, be obtained for the salary ofered by the Free Library Board ? If so, the citizens will be fortunate indeed.

THE NEXT SENATE OF THE UNIT-

ED STATES IN DOUBT. In three States of the American Union there is serious doubt whether a senator can be elected to take his seat in the new Senate on March 1. In each case the trouble is due to a deadlock between rival candidates; and, in each case, too, failure to elect will deprive the Republicans of a vote. The new Senate, if all the seats be occupied, will consist of 43 Republicans, 39 Democrats and 6 Populists. As has been pointed out frequently, this will not give the Republicans an absolute majority over all comers, but will arm them with a plurality which anti-Populist Democrats are very willing they should employ to pro vent the Populists from using their balance of power with effect. But what if three of the meager 43 fail to reach Washington? Then the composition of the Senate will stand, 40 Republicans, 39 Democrats (with another Democrat in the chair) and 6 Populists. This would make it exceedingly difficult for either of the old parties to override the Populists, especially on the vital tariff and currency questions. Utah is expected to contribute two more Republican senators to the House in time for the December session; but that would not mend matters, for then the Republicans would only have 42 in a House of 90four short in a majority. It is no won-der, then, that the Republican leaders are keeping anxious eyes fixed in Oregon, Idaho and Delaware, where the deadlocks exist.

A BEAUTIFUL TALE OF THREE WOMEN WITH HATS.

Three ladies walked down the center aisle in the National Theater Monday night. They wore hats; hats of a florid style of architecture and covered with luxuriant vegetation. Strong men shuddered and grew pale with anxiety as to where those hats would eventually locate themselves, and as the ladies slowly moved to the front the feelings of the audience verged upon the stormy and tumultuous. At last they were seated well down toward the orchestra, and at least 100 persons-those directly in the line of sight-turned wan and ghastly with despair. In a moment, however, nimble fingers were at work, and before the watchers could gulp down their first wild anguish the disappeared, and three sleek, shapely and inoffensive heads appeared in place of them. So the fashion has reached Washington. We have among us, then, the ploneers of the propaganda of mercy, consideration and gentleness. A new standard of morality has been erected. Women are showing their thoughtless sisters how to be kind as well as beautiful, gentle as well as fair, how to bless as well as to adorn the world. Here is a fashion which recognizes humanity a manifestation of female loveliness that makes allowance for the comfort of others. It is a new philosophy, a gospel of sweetness and light, a dispensation of true ecstasy. Why cannot the superior set make common cause in this? Why, if they must have their hats wherewith to paralyze the vestibule and fin the aisles with pageantry as they come and gowhy can they not at least follow the divine example we have chronicled and uncover when they take their seats?-Washington Post.

A DINNER PILL-Many persons suffer excruciating agony after partaking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions, and convert the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia.

I was persuaded to try the pills, and obtained relief from the first. fore I had taken one 25 cent box I felt better than I had for years, and have had not the slightest symptoms of the complaint since. Lady Dixie Considers Football a Good Game for Women to Play,

FUUTBALL.

A WOMAN'S IDEA OF THE GAME. Lady Florence Dixie is president of the British Ladies' Football Club, and evidently is of opinion that the club has some reason for its existence. In the Pall Mall Gazette Lady Dixie says: "There is no reason why football should not be played by women, and played well, too, provided they dress rationally and regulate to limbo the straight-jacket attire in which fashion delights to clothe them. For, for women to attempt any kind of free movement in fashion's dress means the making of themselves ridiculous, even as men would so make themselves did they play cricket or football arrayed in skirts and their attendant flummeries. I cannot concaive a game more calculated to improve the physique of women than that of football. I refer of course to the association game, which to my mind is the only legitimate representation of this most excellent sport, for I have never been able to see any justification for the word football as applied to the Rugby method of play, which would be better represented by the appellation of "harumscarum scrummage." # THE HYAMS TRACEDY

Recalled by a Preliminary Examination,

Witness-Forever Talking About Insurance."

TORONTO, Feb. 29.-The preliminary examination of Harry P. Hyams and Dallas T. Hyams, charged with the murder of W. C. Wells on Jan. 26, 1893, was commenced in the police court this morning. Mr. Johnston cross-examined the witness Aylesworth. The elevator, he said, ran all right; but sometimes the weight caught in the box; there were gates on all the floors to the shaft, but he did not know if there was one in the basement or no; the framework of the elevator and its connections were not first-class; the box in which the weight ran had no bottom before the accident; he heard of the weight catching; it was spoken of by several in the building. "Did the Hyams ever say in your presence that the elevator was not safe, and everybody should be very careful of it?" "Yes," answered Mr. Aylesworth.

"Who said it?" "H. P. Hyame said the elevator was not to be used until it was repaired. "After it was repaired," asked the magistrate, "would it run all right?" "No, it would catch sometimes." Mr. Curry asked who paid the premium on the $30,000 policy? "I saw the $500 bill given by Harry Hyams to Wells to go and pay the premium, and saw the change returned by Wells. Mr. Johnson again took Aylesworth in hand, and was told by him that Hyams owed Wells $1,200, and the latter was dunning him for it because it was past due. Mrs. Aylesworth, a small delicate looking woman, was next called by the crown. She is a sister of Willie Wells, the dead boy, and of Mrs. Harry P. Hyams. She had known the Hyams six years. Her husband, her brother and sister loaned $3,000 to the Hyams for the purpose, it was understood, to buy a farm; a policy was placed on her brother's life, payable to her sister Martha, but she did not hear the prisoners speak of it. "They were forever talking about insurance. They were great for it," she said. She heard the prisoners speak of the $30,600 policy; they were always praising insurance up as such a fine

Being pressed to say what the Hyams did about it, she said she could not remember. "It was all done so quickly." "Who was going to pay the premium?" "A Mr. Hyams had the money, but I don't know who was going to pay the premium." Continuing, Mrs. Aylesworth described Harry Hyams' arrival at her house after her brother was killed. She did not hear at first the extent of the disaster, but she was suspicious, and finally in answer to her questions prisoner said his neck was broken. He explained the blood on his hands by saying that he had moved the weight off Willie's head. The previous day Harry had called and given husband a commission to attend to efore coming down next morning, and added, "By the way, tell Willie to be sure and be down in good time tomorrow." Witness was not at home the day the $30,000 policy was paid to her sister. Witness was not cross-examined by the defense. The last witness was Samuel Grandidge, who depesed to loaning prisoners $200 in August, 1892, and being unable to collect it when due. This witness was called for the purpose of showing the straitened financial condition of the accused about the time of the tragedy.

In cross-examination he deposed to having loaned the Hyams $1,300 previously, and collected it all right, and he further said he had always found them straightforward in their dealings.

The case will be continued tomorrow

Cut in Railway Rates.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 27.—Eastbound freight rates are again badly cut. Grain rates are being lowered from 5 to 8 cents below the tariff, and provision rates from 7 to 10 cents. The situation is worse now than for years, and shippers are practically dictating their own terms, HALIPAX, N. S., Feb. 27.—Fire started just after 10 o'clock this morning in the large shed at the outer end of the Deepwater wharf. It contained merchandise the steamer Indian having discharged quantities of goods last night for points west. The flames ran quickly along the elevator flue and communicated with the elevator, which was soon a mass of flames. The Sarmatian and other houses on the opposite side of Water street caught fire and in a short time fully a dozen houses were ablaze. The total loss will be over half a million dollars, nearly the whole of which will be sustained by the Dominion Government, on which there is no insurance. The big immigration and other sheds are gone.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 27.-The loss by today's fire will reach about $1,000,-000. Of this amount the Dominion Government will lose fully half. The grain elevator and shute, which were completely destroyed, cost, with appurtenances, over $250,000. The immigrant and freight sheds are all gone, the immense warves are burned right down to the water's are to the water's edge, and the railway tracks, offices and a dozen cars consumed. In the shed were goods, the cargoes of the Indrani and Corean, and the remainder of several other cargoes. the remainder of several other cargoes. Great efforts were made to save this, but they were unavailing. Nothing whatever could be removed. About 200 tons of these goods were for city merchants, whose losses will be very heavy, probably $250,000 in the aggregate, but different firms will lose from gate, but different firms will lose from $300 to $1,000 individually. Then there are 200 tons more destined for New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, probably $200,000 worth. The latter goods, it is believed, will be insured, the policies covering transit of goods till they arrive at their destination, but there is arrive at their destination, but there is no insurance on the stocks of the Hali-fax merchants. Neither was there any insurance on fourteen cars of coal, eight cars of potatoes and one care of beef consumed.

The Canada Atlantic Railway lost $16,000 in cars burned; in addition to this there were large quantities of goods there awaiting shipment to Newfound-land, and these were all lost. The Armour Beef Company, of Chicago, lost four cars. The Government disinfecting apparatus, which cost $15,-000, was also burned. On Water street the wooden buildings from 150 to 385 were more or less damaged; most of them insured. It was the liveliest fire that has occurred in Halifax for many years, and several firemen were badly hurt. When the fire reached the grain elevator there was a terrific explosion, nearly ruining the building. This was believed to be caused by the explosion of dust. It was this that injured several men. Nine cars of produce destined for the West Indies were entirely destroyed. A large number of firemen were cut off and barely escaped with their lives.

For a $1,000,000 fire, insurance companies had a marvelous escape. The docks in the vicinity of the fire are two or three feet deep in floating debris.
CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Four girls were injured, one of them seriously, property valued at $265,000 was destroyed, and six lines of street cars were tied up for over three hours by a fire which originated on the top floor of the Charles Kaestner building this morning. The girls hurt were employes of the Lancaster caramel factory, situated several houses away from the Kaestner building, and never at any time in danger from the flames. Somebody shouted "Fire!" and a panic was the result. The loss on the building will amount to $15,000. Besides this the entire stock of the wire department of the company, which was in the Kaestner building adjacest, was destroyed. Others in the the Kaestner building who suffered were the Charles Kaestner Company, milling and engineering machinery; Worthington Pump Company, Andrews & Johnson, sheet iron workers, and Friedlander, Brady & Co., knit goods. The aggregate loss of these firms were $250,000; fully insured. BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 27.—St. Anne's Church, in Roxbury, was burned this morning. Loss, $20,000.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Almost the entire business portion of Bath Reach was wiped out by fire early today, and smoking ruins are all that remain of two handsome blocks of stores, boarding houses and summer hotels. The inmates crowded into the streets in scanty attire. Eighteen three-story buildings, comprising two entire blocks, were totally consumed. Total loss, $107,-

PLEASE DON'T FORGET

Ladies, that we are still in the shoe business, and right up to date in all our styles. It was last year that we added this department. We then thought our lady customers would just as soon buy their footwear supplies, as well as those of their children, from us. We had the room to spare in our big establishment, and felt that by adding this department we would not be increasing expenses, but by doing so and selling at close prices we would make our store more popular with the purchasing public. We leave it to our patrons to say whether or not we give good value. We are not afraid of their verdict. The shoes we handle are from the leading American and Canadian makers. It does not pay to handle the kind that causes dissatisfaction. We have built up our splendid and ever-increasing business on the principle that the best is the cheapest; in fact, we do permit inferior classes of goods to enter our stores, therefore they cannot go out. We have opened up a large quantity of our

DRESS DISCUSSED

By the National Council of Women

From the Time When Eve Plucked the

First Fig Leaf Down Till To-Day. WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.-The National Council of Women had the largest attendance at the morning session today since the triennial began. This was natural, for the topic for dismount in the minds of many women-"Dress." From avery cussion dealt with that which is para-From every standpoint it was considered, and the audience seemed to take particular delight in the statement of one speaker that the dress worn by men was comfortable, but certainly not beautiful.

The discussion was based on the report of the committee on dress prepared by Frances E. Russell, if St. Paul, Minn., and read by Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, of Philadelphia. In presenting the subject to the audience, Mrs. Sewall, the presiding officer, said that from the time Eve picked the first fig leaf to the present, dress had been the most interesting and perplexing question for women. She also remarked on the large audience that had been drawn so easily by the announcement of the subject. Rev. Ida C. Hutton, attired in a clerical costume that suggested her ministry, spoke on the ethics of dress. She was exceedingly eloquent and forceful. and when she concluded the applause was so pronounced that President Sewall was led to remark that times had certainly changed when a woman who talked on dress reform could be applauded as loudly as an opera singer. The body and all that pertained to it, she said, must be used as an avenue for the education of the inner self. Its desires and passions must not destroy, but they must be subjugated. Nothing could be a power over the body but that it will have its influence on the spiritual part of the individual. Women in the past, she said had dressed for the admiration of men and had not clothed themselves for health and enjoyment.

Three things were necessary for the proper dress reform: They were econproper dress reform: They were economy, comfort and beauty. The men, said the speaker, had comfort, but not beauty. Dress should adapt itself. Women could not climb the Alps in a drawing-room gown. The ethics of dress in the future was that in which the minimum of thought should be disthe minimum of thought, should be displayed and the maximum of comfort, of beauty and of personality.

Mrs. Martha Strickland, a lawyer, of Detroit, spoke without notes on "Dress as an Art."

deen, wife of the Governor-General of Canada, who is president of the Inter-national Council of Women, was the national Council of Women, was the principal attraction at tonight's session. In her honor the boxes were draped with the British colors, and around each electric light globe the Stars and Stripes crossed the Union Jack. Mrs. Caroline E. White, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Mary F. Lovell, of Bryn Mawr, Page read papers against vivisection. Pa., read papers against vivisection.
At this point Mrs. May Wright Sewall presented the Countess of Aberdeen in a pleasant little speech. As Lady Aberdeen came forward, the audience rose and gave her a handkerchief salute, and when the applause which followed this had subsided, the distinguished visitor made some remarks expressing her thanks for the greeting.

The rest of the evening's programme was on the subject of moral reform.
The speakers were Mrs. C. Edholm and Rev. Ida C. Hultin, both of Illinois.

Steamship Companies Call Upon Rail-roads to Boycott the Line-The Alleged Reasons.

New York, Feb. 27.—The local managers of the Trans-Atlantic Steamship Companies have sent a somewhat remarkable communication to the Trunk Line Association. In effect they call upon the railroads to boycott the G. T. R. Company of Canada, and the Chicago and G. T. R. on immigration passenger business destined from New York to the west.

If the trunk lines refuse to do this the steamship companies, although they do not so state in their letter, intend to break off relations with the railroad association and no longer allow immigrant passengers to be routed by the clearing house as has h done for several years. The ground of the steamship companies is that the G. T. R. by paying commission of $6 apiece on all prepaid passengers routed via Montreal, while the trunk line railroads allow only $1 30, is diverting business away from New York to Canadian ports and hence the lines pulling into New York are losing their legitimate share of trade.

The steamship lines represented in the letter sent to Trunk Line Commissioner Farmer are: The North German Lloyd, the Hamburg-American, the White Star, the Cunard, the International Navigation Company, the Compagnie Generale Trans-Atlantique, the Netherland - American Steam Navigation Company, the Fabre Line, the Thingvalla Line and the Anchor

drewsome Renes.

The photographed hand of a friend set under glass as a paper weight maker rather an interesting souvenir. But the Prince of Wales has appropriated to this purpose the grisly token of a mummied hand of one of the daughters of the Phar aohs. Let us hope a fashion so royally stituted may not find followers in this age of the worship of grewsome realism, or we shall see the lover sighing like a furnace over some genuine relic of this kind, bequeathed to him by his departed fair; and the widower cherishing among the papers upon his desk a touch that in life was less welcome there. None of these suggestions compare, however, with the actual experience we had in visiting in London a few months ago the house of a gentleman who had spent many years of his life in exploring many lands, and had lined his halls with curios of travel. Upon a shield of maroon velvet was a group of odd specimens, among them a carved wooden knife and fork and a human thigh bone. "That," said our friend, with perfect seriousness, "is all that is left of a capital fellow I knew-a missionary in one of the South Sea Islands, who would trust to the conversion of the natives, and remained among them. After I came away they ate him with that very knife and fork. The things were sent to me by a rescuing party, who unfortunately arrived too late.

-New York Herald. Sample of Modern Gallantry.

This incident illustrates the sort of gallantry that is most prevalent in this degenerate age: As a Knox County man and his wife were passing the schoolhouse, a flying snowball hit the wife of his bosom in the neck. He was enraged, and justly, and turning to the schoolboys shaking his fist in anger, he cried: "It's lucky for you, you rascals, that you didn't hit me!"-Bangor News.

Does This Settle It? The theory that the stature of the present day man is smaller than that of his ancestors has no foundation in fact, according to a French scientist.

Buffalo Barley Market.

Buffalo N. Y.. Feb. 27.—Barley—The barley supply was further reduced today by a 10,000 bu shipment eastward for consumption. The "job lots" re all cleared up now, and the market, therefore, is in stronger shape than at any time this year. Canada is very scarce and the inquiry good. Maltsters took hold today, and sales of 25,000 bu No. 2 Milwaukee were made at 59$c to 60c, and of 20,000 bu in lots at outside quotations. Maltsters at last realized that values of barley had got up and they had to follow. Now holders of barley have jegged along and put prices up 2c above figures quoted here: No. 1 western, 63c; No. 2 western. 61c; sample, 59c; No. 1 Canada, 63c; No. 2, 63c; No. 3 extra, 60c to 63c; Chevalier, 63c to 64c. There is good inquiry for Canada lots at prices 1c to 1c below the figures given above, but holders of desirable lots make no concessions, and talk of further advances.

Three Links of Watch Chain Found Onthe Track

Where Young Hewson Met His Terrible End.

Sensational Evidence Looked For-The Crossing Theory Dispelled - Medical Men Say That Hewson Was Despondent,

No light has as yet been thrown upon the circumstances surrounding the death of Robert Hewson, who was so horribly mangled on the C. P. R. on Monday night. Recent events, however, point more strongly towards suicide the more they are considered. Part of the missing watch chain has been found and some sensational evidence in connection with the dead man's life promises to be unfolded in the witness box at the inquest to be held at the police station to night. The theory that Hewson was struck by No. 3 at Adelaide street, and carried to where he market circumstances. His body was free from injuries which would have been the natural result of being struck and carried 100 yards and then thrown. When a man is struck by a train his hat always flys off where

THE FIRST SHOCK is experienced. Hewson's hat was found four feet west of the body.

"I have seen three men struck," said a railroad man, who has lost both hands on the road, "and in every instance the hat was picked up near where the man was first hit."

The main line track is at least ten feet to the north of the south track where Hewson was run over. The train went west on the main line and the engine returned, tender foremost, on the south track. After the engine passed over the man, Fred Toll, who was on the pilot, saw both arms of the injured man describe a half circle in the air and drop at his sides. Those who favor the murder theory have their deductions on the following suppositions: The place where the accident occurred is well known to be infested at night by dangerous tramps who travel on the bumpers and hang around the East End yard begging, borrowing by force and stealing. This is also the case AT THE G. T. R. YARDS in the East End, where trainmen in making up trains at night dare not go in among the cars on the sidings alone for fear of being injured by these night hawks.

Hewson had no reason to be where he was when found unless he went there of his own accord or was decoyed. Then the strongest point made was that of the missing watch and money. Recent events throw light upon part of this matter at least. As three links of the dead man's watch chain have beer found on the scene the watch was probably in Hewson's pocket when he met his death. If the chain was shattered it is quite possible that the watch was jerked out and afterwards picked up. If this deduction is correct the only thing remaining to be accounted for is

Hewson's money-if he had any! No one has yet been found by the police or has come forward to say that THEY SAW DECEASED

after he lett Tulett's house on Monday night. It remained for Sergt. Stevenson, a short course man in the barracks, to find the portions of his watch chain. Yesterday afternoon he was poking around the little ash heaps that mark the spots where portions of the dead man's body was found. Something bright caught his eye, and stooping down, he picked up a pearl button. such as would belong to an undergarment.

small gold links. This was an important discovery, indeed. He carried the button and the links to the barracks. The chain was a present from Hewson's comrades when leaving the barracks, and the links were recognized as those which joined together the larger strands of the chain. The button and the links were handed over to the detectives today, and Sergt. Stevenson will be a witness at the inquest. The links show signs of having received a heavy wrench and are badly distorted. The links were shown to Mr. A. E. Cooper, at Morphy's jewelry store, but the latter was UNABLE TO RECOGNIZE the portion. It was here that the chain was purchased.

Another poke brought to the surface three

Today the suicide theorists are in the ascendancy. "I don't believe that Bob committed suicide," said a sergeant in the non-commissioned officers' mess at Wolseley Barracks this morning. "Anyhow he had not the courage to turn his face up to such an awful death."

"Would you be surprised to hear that Hewson had a wife and child?" asked a young non-com. of Quartermaster Sergeant Kennedy. "I don't believe it," the latter replied.

"Well, the police are prepared to show that he made overtures to a certain woman in this city to adopt his child," continued the first speaker. And the police who were standing by did not deny what had been said. This is the sensational evidence that is expected tonight.

Companions of Hewson admit, and since the affair they recall to mind, that lately he had not been himself. Especially is this so since he was nearly asphyxicted by coal gas. He was grave where he formerly was jolly and high spirited, and two medical men state that lately he has been despondent.

These developments give footing to the theory of suicide. How it will be borne out at the inquest remains to be seen.

The fact that her guest was his sister tied her tongue, even with her own husband.

"It is not for very long," she said every morning to herself, and went through the day's work as well as she could. At night she would often creep away, leaving the brother and sister together, and mount to the attic (which Bella had insisted should be made into a nursery, "because there one can't hear the little wretch crying"), to sit with the child in her lap—the ugly, elfish, troublesome child, doomed to disease and weakness from its cradle—and wonder with an agony of pity how it would fight through life, or whether, after all, God's mercy might not be best shown by taking it back again out of a world where nobody wanted it, and into which it had never asked to be born. A great mystery, which none can

She and Bella were always friendly, even affectionate, in a sort of way; but nevertheless she often felt weary, so weary: like a person who had to speak all day long in a foreign tongue. At least, such was the moral effect of her sister's companionship. The two women might have been brought up in two hemispheres. Their views of life were so altogether different that they could not understand one another's language at all. Still, this must be borne; and it was borne. Things might have been a great deal worse. Only when she heard her husband's restless call for her all over the house, and noticed a nervous irritation in him whenever he was left long alone with his sister. Silence began to wish for some sign of their suspense being over. Evidently both husband and mother had discarded the runaway wife, either on her own account or that of the brother with whom she had taken refuge.

"We row in the same boat now, Rody, Bella said one morning, when the seventh day's post had gone by. "I don't care; do you? Clearly you will have to adopt as aifs and strays both me and the child. I'll call it after you, 'Roderica,' or perhaps

"No, not Silence," he answered, hastily. one Silence in the world for me," taking lovingly his wife's hand. "Advise with her, Bella; she will be sure to suggest the wisest and best thing.'

But when the sister-in-law talked things over, which they had full opportunity of doing, for a deep fall of Christmas snow shut them in, and made Blackhall impregnable even to more courageous and less luxurious folk than Mr. Alexander Thomson, they came to no satisfactory conc usions. Though strong on the question of her wrongs, and her corresponding rights, Mrs. Thomson seemed to have a very feeble idea of her duties. To any course which involved the slightest trouble, or exertion, or self-denial, she always offered innumerable mild but insurmountable objections.

"It's all very fine to tell me that if I cut my husband adrift, and refuse to live with him, I can't except him to maintain me, and must maintain myself; how can I maintain myself? It isn't genteel for woman to work, and it isn't pleasant, either. You talk of independance and all that, and the comfort my child will be to me; but I don't like children; and I'm sure, Silence, I shall not enjoy being poor. You know"—she glanced round the old-fashioned room, and helped herself with an air of exemplary condescension to the best dish of that meal which had been considered dinner, but which she aiways called lunch—"you, my dear, who have always been accustomed to that sort of thing, may find it quite easy, but I should

"No." said Silence, absently. She was thinking, notof herself, but of her husband -of his long, hard-working days spent at the mill, amid surroundings not to pleasant and with the perpetual whir of machinery in his ears, and to sensitive organizations incessant noise is of itself a torment almost indescribable, though unexplainable to those who do not understaid t is. He did, and felt it too, yet he never complained. Even now, as Silence watched him come up the brae, with somewhat legging steps, she knew he would enter with a cheerful face, and when ne had "put off the mechanic, and put on the gentleman," as he said, laughing one day to Bella, be his own tender self to both of them. For the common notion that a man may justifiably vent all his business worries on his womankind at home did not seem as yet to have occurred to Roderick Jardine. Whatever v zel him out-of-doors in-doors he was always the kind, pleasant master and husband—always, under all circumstances, the gentleman.

"Yes, I like my work," he answered, when his sister inquired about it, which she rarely did, evidently considering it a topic which had better be ignored. "And I like working. Once, Bell, I was a great idler, and she has cured me of that. If I had ten thousand a year even, I could never be idle

Sitting down beside his wife, he leaned his head against her—a tired head it was—and laid on hers one of his brown hands, not such handsome hands as they used to be when they did nothing. She clasped it fondly, though she said not a word, she, too, was not given to complaining. Besides, hard as things were, both for him and for her, to see him thus, doing cheerfully what he did not like (through all his tender fictions she knew he could not like the mill very much), fighting with hardships, submitting to poverty, and proudly conquering any false shame about either, taking up his daily burden and carrying it without a murmur or reproach—she felt—yes, admidst all her pain, she felt something as the mediaval woman must have done—the noble ladies who buckled on their good knights' armor and sent them forth to battle, to live or die as God willed, but never to be conquered, never ceasing to fight, like true knights, to their last breath.

But Bella could not understand this sort of thing at all. She shrugged her shoulders and raised her brows.

"It's an odd taste, Rody, but you always were so odd. To be out at work all day, and come home tired and dirty, hungry and come home tired and dirty, hungry and cold, and then say you 'like' it!—I wouldn't be you for the world nor Silence either, shut up in this lonely place all the year round. No wonder mamma would not come to Blackhall; it would never have suited her at all." and Bella laughed at the bare idea. "But I ought not to find fault with the poor old house, for I may have to come down to it after all. No telehave to come down to it after all. No telegram or letter?" Nothing.

"Well, don't look so grave about it. Plainly they have all cut me, let me fall back upon you. Will you take me in, Rody I'll sell my jewels—I brought a lot with me you know—and pay you for my keeping. When it's gone you can turn me out to starve, only it wouldn't be creditable to either Thomsons or Jardines if Mrs. Alexander Thomson and her baby had to

"What nonsense you talk!" said Roderick turning away and changing the conversation

But that night when the household was all gone to bed, and they three sat over the fire, listening to the wind howling and the sleet pattering against the panes, he re-sumed the subject, and, somewhat to Silence's surprise, began very tenderly, but with unmistakable decision, to arrange what his sister would do. His arrangement it was-not his wife's-as he plainly said, thereby taking from her the weight of a difficult and painful thing. "I will not promise to keep you always, Bella, for I think husband and wife are better left alone together; but we shall not turn you out, my poor girl, whatever comes," said he, laying a brotherly hand on Bella's shoulder. "The little we have—you see how little it is—you shall share till something can be arranged between you and your husband. Then with what you have of your own-my mother will surely pay it over to you-we will find you a home close by us, in the manse, perhaps, where I heard to-day there are two vacant rooms."

"What! to be shut up in a miserable country lodging, with only baby and nurse! Dreadful!"

"Not quite so bad as your other alternative-starving. And, Bella, we must look things in the face. If you have no marriage settlement, and my mother keeps her money in her own hands during her lifetime, and both she and your husband cast you off, you have only your brother to fall back on. I am not rich now, you know that: but you know also that, rich or poor, I should never let my sister starve."

"No, a thousand times no!" cried Silence. taking her hand-for Belia, seeing this was no joking matter, had suddenly taken fright and, as usua!, burst into tears. "It may not come to that; but if it does, believe me, poverty is not so bad as it seems. You shall never want for love. You will live close beside us; our home will be open to you; and the chi.d-the children" (in a timid whisper) "shall grow up together. Oh, we shall be very happy, never fear." (To be Continued.)

PORK PRODUCTION. The question of economical feeding in pork production is one that interests all farmers, and much information on that line is being imparted from the different experiment stations. A recent bulletin of the Utah station gives results from the use of bran feed in four different combinations-bran and wheat, bran and peas, bran and corn, and bran and barley. The grain was ground and mixed with clean water, and fed in such quantities as would be eaten up clean, and in each of the pens was kept a box containing salt and ashes on the ratio of a pint of salt to a peck of ashes. The period occupied by the feeding was a little over five months, and in that time the gain of the sets in order of the feed named was: 333, 528, 303 and 269 pounds, weighing at the start 106, 111, 112 and 114 pounds respectively, and at the close 439, 639, 415 and 381 pounds respectively;

the average gain per pig per day was

.69, 1.09, .63 and .56 pounds. It will be noticed that the pigs fed with the pea mixture made a much greater gain in the whole than either of the other lots, being 200 pounds heavier than those fed on wheat, 224 than those fed on corn, and 258 than those fed on barley. The amount of feed varied, however, on the different lots as follows: 1,344.44, 1,919.42, 1,378.68 and 1,243.70; the amount required for one pound of grain of less weight was 4.02, 3.63, 4.55 and 4.62 pounds respectively at a cost of 2.51, 3.18, 2.84 and 3.00 cents respectively, being reckoned upon the basis of wheat, 45 cents per bushel, or 75 cents per cwt., ground; peas, $1 25 per cwt.; corn, 75 cents per cwt., ground, and barley, 80 cents per cwt., ground. It was noticed that notwithstanding the greater gain from feeding the peas, the cost of the pork was also greater. It was determined that the feeding value of the grains as compared would be for 100 pounds of wheat, 88 pounds of peas. 118 pounds of corn, and 121 pounds of

It appeared that peas made a rapid growth, and were superior to either of the other grains; the others follow in their order, wheat, corn and barley last. On the basis of this experiment, taking wheat as a standard of value measure, peas would be worth 13 per cent more, and corn 15 per cent, and barley 17 per cent less respectively than wheat for feeding to pigs.

EGGS IN WINTER.

Ella Rockwell, writing on this subject in the Country Gentleman, says that she has had no difficulty in obtaining from her flock of 25 hens from eight to twelve eggs a day thus far through the entire winter. She says the only secret is to feed and water regularly and keep in a moderately warm house, and further describes her methods as follows:

The hens have a warm breakfast every morning. Now, don't shake your heads and say you would not bother with that, for really it is no bother at When we sit down to breakfast the tea-kettle is filled with water, and by the time I am ready for it it is boiling hot. It is poured into a large pail with a spoonful of cayenne pepper (this only every other morning), then the pail is filled with ground feed, bran, cornmeal and oats, until it is as stiff as it can be stirred. We have a long V-saped trough (an old sheep trough), and into this the mess is turned. At night a feed of mixed whole grain is given-corn, oats and wheat-and it is fed early enough so the hens can scratch it out of the chaff and cut straw which covers the floor. They have a pailful of warm water every day, and all the table scraps that can be spared. All the meat scraps are given them, and the offal from our frequent hogkillings. Pounded crockery they eagerly devour; also egg shells, of which they always have all there are, and have never eaten an egg that I know of. Ashes for a dust bath and to scratch and pick over, as they delight to do for bits of charcoal, are provided, and that

The house is nothing fancy, but has two windows on the south, and is lined with building paper throughout. I have not told you yet what breed my hens are, and I do not think I can. They are all kinds, mixed, and, by the way. I have heard that that kind were good layers)-some Langshans, a few motherly old Brahmas that I am keeping on year after year to mother my little turkeys; some Plymouth Rocks, and a sprinkling of Brown Leghorns. A motley crowd, indeed, but they "shell out" the eggs, and that is the main thing. ABOUT WAGON WHEELS.

A writer in the Rural New Yorker says: "There is no gain in power by enlarging the size of wagon wheels. The only advantage of the large wheel over a smaller one is that the excess of leverage will be a help in lifting the load on the wheel over inequalities on a road. On a perfect and an equally smooth surface a small wheel will carry as much load as a large one with the same power. The is obviously some difference in far a small wheel ap-parently due to the line of the load by the horse, as the line of draft is upward to some extent. But as far as the horse is concerned, there is obviously no gain to it, as the exertion of lifting must neutralize some of the force exerted, and thus, in fact, the work done by the animal is not lessened to any appreciable extent. The easiest draft is due to the line of traction being perpendicular to the line of the shoulder of the horse. by which the pressure on the shoulder

COWS CLOSELY STABLED. I may be pardoned if I take the space is made the most direct. Neglect of this is the cause of the galling of the shoulto say that I never was so well satisfied with the close stabling of cows, and no exercise, as the present winter, the most severe in Ohio for 30 years. While other dairies near me have in the past three weeks of zero and 14 degrees below weather, shown a great shrinkage of milk, my cows have not dropped off five pounds in total amount, in any day, nor has there been any increase of food in the time, and the happiness and content seen in the stable make me contented that I am on the right side of the question. The other day at an institute a noted Jersey breeder and cream pro-ducer, who in the past has insisted upon exercise and spring water at the brook as two essentials of good winter dairy-ing, confessed that the present winter he had tried the plan of not turning out, and the result was that the cows had actually eaten less—he weighs all food given more milk, and were in a better condition at mid-winter than he was wont to have his cows, and he was going to out more windows in his stables, let in more sunshine, and use his good feed in the future to make more milk, and less of it to warm all out doors, spring water and "grow hair," as Aug. Shultz, of Lake Mills, once expressed it.

—John Gould, of Ohio.

KINDNESS BEGETETH KINDNESS. A woman correspondent writes: I've read of several modes of treatment to make a cow "give down" her milk, and maybe my way won't hurt anyone, not even the offending cow. The first cow I owned (in 1883) had the notion that it was not necessary for her to "give down" her milk every time I went to milk her. I was as green as a gourd in cow knowledge (coming here from the city) so I asked the hired man if he knew of anything to make her "give

His answer came from the top of the lean-to: "I dunno. Try giving her sunthin' to eat."

So I ran and got a pumpkin, it being the handiest, and it acted like magic. The cow forgot her trouble and gave a full mess, but I had to take my lady a feed of something every time, or no pay. The way was plain, and for years I humored her, for she was a good cow, but very nervous. I may say, but not egotistically, that when no one had handled her but myself I did not need to feed at milking time. My husband used to say, "Just pat her a little."
Of course, every one said it was in the bringing up, but when some heifers, not from that cow, had the same habit I was puzzled, so let them go dry from three to five months in summer, as butter was low and pasture short. But this winter, when a 6-year-old cow, that had been fresh only four months, com-menced to hold up her milk I concluded to try giving her a little "sunthin" " for her stomach's sake, with the same results, viz.: a full flow of milk. So you may be sure I shall practice feeding at milking time in place of tying her foot back, or making a sore teat.

SUGAR BOUNTY CARRIED.

Passed Through the United States Senate With Ease.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. - Atter a short, sharp and decisive debate in the Senate on the sugar bounty question, the measure was adopted. The proposed bounty aggregates $5,200,000, as stated in the amendments adopted, but Mr. Mitchell gave it as his belief that it would reach $8,000,000. Numerous efforts were made to load the measure down with free silver amendments and other propositions, without avail.

In the course of the debate Mr. Gorman warned the Senate that this bounty proposition would add to existing deficiencies, which, he said, would reach $60,000,000 for the present year. The final votes on the bounty proposition showed the friends of the amendment very strong, and they carried the amendment easily.

-The services in St. James' Church, South London, which are being held daily this week by the Rev. Mr. Howett, are most interesting and instructive. The Bible readings at 4 p.m. are especially for Christians. The evening sermons are evangelistic in their nature. The truths are pressed home with very great earnestness and are connected so closely as to lead those who hear one to wish to attend the next in order. For instance, Monday evening the subject was "Sin"; on Tuesday it was "Repentance, Its Nature and Effects," and the duty of repenting and giving the heart to God was urged with earnestness and strong pleading. Many were appar-ently affected. These services will be continued daily at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Mr. Richardson, however, stuck to his post and soon brought the train to a stop. Another engine was sent from Niagara Falls.

Wednesday's St. Thomas Times There was a large attendance last night at the musical festival in the Salvation Army Barracks conducted by a musical troupe from London, consisting of Adjutant Smeaton, Lieut. Griffith, Cadet Clark, and Privates Woodgate, Little and Miss Hammond. Besides instru-mental numbers several vocal solos duets and choruses were given with evident satisfaction to the audience. Mr. Little is a talented musician, late of Chicago, recently converted, and is now don. After the festival a salvation service was held, at which there was one conversion. Since Capt. Wakefield and his wife took charge of the corps not quite two weeks ago there have beer thirteen conversions. The troupe left for Dutton this morning.

The attendance at the musical skating concert in Westminster Rink last evening was exceeding small, doubtless owing to the soft weather. Although many came without skates expecting to see no skating, the ice was in remarkably fine condition The Musical Society Band, under the efficient leadership of Mr. Fred L. The intention is to give concerts during the summer, and the members are determined to make this band the best in London. This no doubt they will do, as among the members are some of the most efficient musicians in the city. All who appreciate good music will no doubt aid the members in their endeav-
