

OLD HOME WEEK ATTRACTS THOUSANDS TO LONDON

BIG CROWDS ARE NOW HERE
OLD BOYS ARE POURING IN REUNION TO BE BEST EVER

Railways Bring in Immense Crowds Saturday and Sunday, and All London Turns Out to Welcome—Down Town a City Beautiful by Night and Everybody on the Street.

The great reunion is a certain success. All doubts as to the attendance were dissipated on Saturday when it was demonstrated beyond question that the largest crowds London has ever seen was in the city.

Every train entered the city loaded to capacity. It was impossible for the railroad men to run the regular trains on schedule time owing to the immense loads carried.

On Saturday night it was impossible to go along the streets rapidly. The sidewalks were crowded to the limit, and visitors had to make the very best of it and get along the best way possible.

The great throngs were greatly increased by the arrivals of Sunday. The regular trains were crowded as on Saturday, and the specials from the different cities were also well crowded.

It was immense, and from every side came congratulations on the most successful beginning of the Old Boys' reunion of 1908.

Royally Welcomed. Large crowds met the incoming visitors and gave them a royal welcome.

President E. J. MacRobert, Secretary B. C. McCann and Chairman Dr. Harry Abbott, of the reception committee, were on hand to meet the returning Old Boys.

With them were all the prominent citizens of the city, and the visitors are not likely to forget the heartiness of their welcome home.

On arriving the visitors were soon taken in charge of by friends and were lost in the great number of the city.

A City Beautiful. Saturday evening was spent quietly.

Buffalo and Hamilton Old Boys
In Extra Coaches on the Express

Large Delegations From Both Cities—List of Those on the Trains.

Among the first Old Boys' associations to arrive in London were the Hamilton and Buffalo visitors, who reached here shortly after 7 o'clock on Saturday evening on No. 5.

Several extra coaches had to be placed on that train to accommodate the visitors, and slow time was made, owing to the great load.

The Ambitious City sent about 300 Old Boys, while Buffalo sent close to 100. All were happy as "kids" at the prospect of coming home, and looked forward to the coming week, with the keenest expectation.

Each member was resplendent with badges and hats and all made themselves felt on the way down. The Hamilton boys were accompanied by the Ninety-First Highlanders' band. The Buffalo boys did not bring a band.

The train was crowded to capacity.

Greeks Pummelled Some Fresh Youths

Three young men who attempted to put things "to the bad" in a Richmond street cafe last evening at about six o'clock were ejected and badly "mauled" by the Greek proprietors. It is said that the young fellows attempted to drink out of the catsup bottles, and when remonstrated with they became very noisy and abusive. They were then ordered out and when they refused three large Greeks proceeded to put them out.

A lively fight resulted, in which the Greeks took the medals. Richmond street was mopped with fine clothes, but as there was no policeman in the vicinity at the time no arrests were made. When the officer arrived he informed the Greeks that the police did all the ejecting in this city. One young fellow's face received very bad treatment.

Visiting Old Boys May Enter Free

The Old Boys' sports and games begin this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Queen's Park, and all visiting Old Boys are invited to attend. No admission will be charged visiting Old Boys who take part in the processions. The general admission to others will be twenty-five cents.

The crowning of the Queen of the Mardi Gras—one of the most brilliant spectacles of the reunion will be held at 8:15 p.m. in front of the Queen's Park stand. General admission to this function will be twenty-five cents; reserved seats fifty cents.

NEW COMPANIES. Toronto, Aug. 1.—The incorporation of the Locomotive Engineers' Company, Limited, St. Thomas, with power to erect lodgerooms, etc., and with $60,000 capital, is announced today. Other companies' notice of incorporation of which appears in the Ontario Gazette this week are as follows: Westmonte, Brantford, $200,000, and the Lambton Pressed Brick Company, London, $50,000.

PICKPOCKET
STOLE WATCH

Mr. Charles McGuire Relieved of Jewelry in City Hall on Saturday.

The first case of pocket-picking was reported on Saturday afternoon when Mr. C. W. McGuire, manager of the Queen City Oil Company and chairman of the Mardi Gras committee, was "touched" for his gold watch and fob. Absolutely no clue is given of the thief.

"I have no idea just when the watch was stolen," said Mr. McGuire to The Advertiser. "I was in several buildings

Saturday afternoon, and did not feel any movement in my pocket. I went to look at the time, when I found my watch was stolen. It was a hunting case watch with my initials engraved on the back case in very large letters, practically covering the whole of the back of the case. To it was attached a watch fob, one that I got at the recent Shriners' meeting in St. Paul. I can't tell where it was stolen."

It was reported that another man had his watch stolen, but that the thief had returned it through another person, but this could not be corroborated.

FIERCE BUSH FIRES IN B. C.
RENDER 6,000 HOMELESS

Flames Reach the Edge of Fernie and Business District Has a Narrow Escape From Destruction—Toronto Sends $5,000 to the Sufferers.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Fernie, B. C., Aug. 2.—Six thousand people were rendered homeless by the fierce bush fires which raged around the towns of Fernie, Michel and Morisset for many hours today. The bush fires reached the edge of Fernie at an early hour in the morning, and although the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company hurried their splendid fire equipment to the scene as soon as possible they were powerless to check the flames, and a few hours later had to send some of the apparatus to the neighboring towns of Michel and Morisset. The miners turned out in force and the mines were temporarily abandoned while the workers endeavored to save their homes.

Business Section Menaced.

A high wind blew the fire into the outlying districts, and but for the fact that the buildings were well scattered at the fire in Fernie, B. C.

tered the business district would have been burned. It is at present impossible to estimate the loss, but it will run into many thousands. As far as can be learned at the present time no lives were lost, although a number of persons were burned.

Toronto Helps.

The mayor of Fernie has telegraphed to Mayor Oliver, of Toronto, asking him to try and send $5,000 to help the homeless. This is the second time that Fernie has been visited by a disastrous fire, as a large part of the town was wiped out in 1900 by the bush fires which swept through the district.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—The board of control was hastily assembled by Mayor Oliver today, and it was decided to vote $5,000 to the relief of the sufferers at the fire in Fernie, B. C.

CROWD ESTIMATED AT 7,000
AND MONDAY WILL DOUBLE IT

Secretary B. C. McCann Speaks Confidently of Great Success for the Reunion—Visitors Are Here From All Over Dominion, the United States and Other Foreign Countries.

"I estimate that there are at least 7,000 visitors in the city tonight," said Secretary B. C. McCann to The Advertiser last night. "The crowd is going to be a very large one, as I predicted. Monday morning will see the number increased twice over, and more. This reunion will be a magnificent success."

The other members of the executive are jubilant at the prospects and are entering into the details of the arrangements with a will.

The register has been largely signed already, and it affords a great geographical study.

Every province in Canada, from British Columbia to Nova Scotia, is represented by London Old Boys. Nearly every state in the American union is represented, from Maine to California, and from the Thumb of Michigan to Florida.

In addition there are several other foreign countries represented. Among them are India, Mexico, China, Costa Rica, besides one from London, Eng. This covers the whole North American continent and parts of other continents.

Among the states represented by former Old Boys are Florida, Minnesota, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Georgia, New Jersey, Kansas, Colorado, Texas, Indiana, Arizona, Maryland, North Dakota, Oregon, Oklahoma, Ohio, Michigan, Washington, California, New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, Kentucky, Connecticut and the district of Columbia.

London's representative from the faraway kingdom of China is Mr. Jas. S. Montgomery.

Dr. Jas. W. Waters has come the longest distance to the reunion, coming from Ujjain, India.

There are three representatives from Costa Rica, where many Londoners have done exceedingly well. A list of the large cities represented would fill volumes, but some of the largest include London, Eng., New York, Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Canton, China, Washington, D. C., Portland, Oregon, Cleveland, Cincinnati, San Francisco, Montreal, Winnipeg, Toronto and others.

Londoners can be found almost anywhere.

Many Well-Known Ex-Londoners on the Train.

ALL ARE GLAD TO BE BACK

In the Old Town Again—Mrs. Fred Goldsmith a Passenger—Other Visitors.

Approximately three hundred London Old Boys and Girls landed in London on the C. P. R. special train from Detroit and Windsor at 6 o'clock last evening. The special was met by fully five hundred people, and a moment after the train steamed in the customary handshaking between old friends was in progress.

The special left Windsor at 2:35 yesterday afternoon, and was made up of twelve coaches, each one of which was well filled.

The majority of the London Old Boys and Girls on the train were from Detroit and Windsor, but among those noted were also former Londoners from far-away, sunny Atlanta, Ga., and other southern points.

One of the oldest—if not the oldest—"Old Boy" on the special, was Mr. W. H. Knight, of Detroit, who assisted in opening the Grand Trunk car shops in London over 35 years ago. Mr. Knight is doing well in Detroit, but still retains his love for the Forest City, which he left about 25 years ago.

Dr. "Ben" Bryant, of Detroit, a former principal of Princess avenue school, was also a home-comer.

A Real Old Boy's Wife.

One of the best-known personalities met en route was Mrs. Fred Goldsmith, wife of the former great pitcher, Fred Goldsmith, whose reputation as a baseball player in the days of the old International League, was worldwide, and who enjoyed the reputation of having been the first baseball player to pitch a curve ball.

Mrs. Goldsmith was accompanied by her daughter Helen, who resides with her father and mother at 229 Smith avenue, Detroit.

Mrs. Goldsmith anticipated the question on the reporter's lips as she mentioned her name, and with a smile she said:

"Yes, I am the wife of the famous 'Goldie,' the ballplayer."

Mrs. Goldsmith stated that her husband was now a traveller for a prominent Philadelphia firm, and was at present in New York city, where he was being lionized by his old-time baseball friends.

"You can't tell Fred that the present-day ballplayer can play the game like the old-timers," said Mrs. Goldsmith, "but my sons—I have five—cannot believe that the baseball stars of other days would have a look-in with the Youngs, the Mathewsons and the rest of the present-day stars."

"Yes, I would very much have liked to have Mr. Goldsmith take the trip to London, but business prevented. He looks to be about 25 now, though, so he cannot very well be termed a bona fide London Old Boy," she concluded, with a smile.

A London Newsboy.

"I was never happier in my life than at the present moment, when being hauled to dear old London as fast as steam can carry me," stated Mr. Isaac Dent, who also stated proudly that he began life as a newsboy in London, selling The Advertiser.

Mr. Dent formerly lived on Talbot street, near King.

Mrs. Samuel Moore, of Forest avenue, Detroit, was one of the happiest London Old Girls on the special.

"I lived for forty years on Centre street, West London," said she, "and I tell you that I am mighty glad to be journeying over the rails towards my old home."

A most popular little traveller was Miss Edna Patterson, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Patterson, of Detroit. Miss Edna is just 5 years old, and she will represent "Miss Detroit" in the Old Boys' processions.

Mrs. (Dr.) Baker, of Detroit, wife of Dr. W. R. Baker, candidate for coroner of Detroit, and a former well-known resident of this city, was another passenger. Dr. Baker was formerly the Detroit city health officer.

Included in the list of London Old Boys on the train were a number of railroad men, contractors and Detroit business men, and this crowd of happy ex-Londoners threw aside business cares as soon as they boarded the train.

Old Boys' President. Mr. George Moore, president of the Detroit Old Boys' Association, was of the party, and it kept him busy protecting himself from practical jokes on the part of the other members.

MAKING ROOM FOR MAN'S HEART

A Remarkable Operation—Surgeons Cut Away Some of Patient's Ribs.

London, Aug. 1.—A very remarkable operation has just been performed at one of the large general hospitals in London which if ultimately successful will open up yet another field for the daring skill of the twentieth century surgeon. This operation was suggested for the relief of pain due to heart disease and was devised according to the following argument:

The pain was associated with that form of the disease which leads to enormous enlargement of the heart and may produce the condition known as "bullock heart."

It was supposed that the attacks of pain were due to the efforts of the enlarged heart to beat in the confined space allotted to it in the chest. It was argued that if the imprisoned heart could have greater freedom of action its beat would be more effective and the pains would probably cease, but it required some daring to suggest and carry out an operation for this purpose.

The situation was fully explained to the patient and the risks of the operation pointed out, and he willingly gave his consent to undergo it. In spite of the condition of his heart he took the anaesthetic well, and stood the strain and shock of the operation better than might have been expected.

The surgeon removed four and a half inches of the fifth rib and five and a half inches of the sixth rib on the left side, so as to give the enlarged heart greater freedom of action, and the result so far has been excellent. The patient is well satisfied with the results; he has obtained relief from pain and his hitherto restless nights have given place to quiet and uninterrupted sleep.

SHARE IN BIG FORTUNE DEPENDS ON LETTER "E"

School Teacher Claimant to Share in a $200,000 Estate.

New York, Aug. 1.—Upon the presence or absence of the letter "E" in a family name depends a good sized share of a $200,000 fortune for Miss Sarah Bozarth, a school teacher of Mountclair, N. J. She is going to France soon to try to prove that her ancestors spelled their name Bozarth, and if she can she will get some of the money.

Josiah Bozarth was a wealthy wine merchant of Bordeaux. He died several years ago, leaving a son, Josiah, in this country, who was the father of the present school teacher. But when the son began his career here he dropped the "E" out of his name and was known as Bozarth. The son died while about to sail for France, with documents proving his relationship. Now Miss Bozarth is to take up the task.

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering. The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham made thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. J. M. Tweedale, 12 Napanee Street, Toronto, Canada, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was a great sufferer from female troubles, had those dreadful bearing down pains, and during my monthly periods I suffered so I had to go to bed. I doctored for a long time but the doctor's treatment failed to help me. My husband saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and got a bottle for me. I commenced its use and soon felt better. I kept on taking it until I was well and an entirely different woman. I also found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made childbirth much easier for me. I would recommend your Vegetable Compound to every woman who is afflicted with female troubles."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Tweedale, it will do for other suffering women.

JOHN MITCHELL GETS NEW PLACE

Late Leader of Miners Moves to New York—In Another Line of Business.

New York, Aug. 1.—Secretary Ralph M. Estley, of the National Civic Federation, announces that John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, will hereafter devote his entire time to the interests of the trade agreement department of the federation.

As a member of the executive council of the federation, Mitchell has been chairman of the trade agreement committee, but far more aggressive work than hitherto has been possible because of his position.

In making the offer to Mitchell to assume charge of the work, Seth Low, president of the federation, wrote to Mitchell: "It is our belief that through this department you will find an opportunity still to use in the interest of industrial peace and advancement the wide experience and great influence you have gained in your long service of the United Mine Workers of America."

"It goes without saying that in this industrial age, industrial questions, including the relations of employer and employee, are among the most vital and pressing questions of the day. You will be able, no doubt, to command the co-operation in the work of your department, not only of the representatives of organized labor, but also of that great body of employers of labor who recognize and sympathize with the aspirations and aims of organized labor, and from this standpoint of advantage we think you may be able to render enduring service to the country in a field not second in influence to any other."

Mitchell accepted the offer, replying: "I desire to thank you for the opportunity thus opened to me to develop, so far as lies in my power, a relationship between employers and workmen which will conduce to their mutual interest, at the same time protecting the public welfare by the promotion of industrial peace."

"The trade agreement is not a speculative, untried theory; on the contrary, it is the recognized and established method through which wages and conditions of employment are regulated between workmen and employers in many of the most important industries of this and other countries. The collective bargain is a recognition of the interdependence of labor and capital; it gives to workmen an interest in the successful conduct of business and guarantees to employers and employees alike long periods of industrial peace, an assurance that cannot be given through any other agency."

"The maintenance and extension of this system of regulating conditions of employment and industry should meet with the approbation of all forces in society solicitous for industrial peace on a basis equitable alike to the workmen and to their employers."

Mr. Mitchell will make his headquarters in the offices of the National Civic Federation, 281 Fourth avenue.

AFTER FIFTY YEARS

Salem Methodists Will Soon Worship in Fine New Church.

Dorwent, Aug. 1.—Fifty-three years ago this summer a few struggling pioneers went to the bush, under the leadership of Rev. Dr. Savage, and cut the timber for the erection of the Salem Methodist Church. The old frame building was a credit to the people who made heroic sacrifices to provide a place of worship for the benefit of the community and the glory of God.

For some time, however, it was felt that a church building more in keeping with the progressive character of the community and better adapted to the needs of the children of the neighborhood, was an absolute necessity. Early in January a subscription list was started and enough money secured to enable the trustees to present to the community a building practically free from debt.

Under the direction of Rev. A. K. Birks, L. E. chairman of the Ladies Aid district, the cornerstone of the new building was laid by a former pastor, Rev. H. R. Moyer, of St. Thomas. The city of London was represented by Rev. A. K. Birks, G. W. Dewey, J. Kennedy and A. G. Harris, while the architect, Mr. H. Pocock, fittingly represented the layman of the city. From Lambeth came Revs. A. C. Tiffin and G. Jewett. Rev. John Howard, of Dorchester, represented the east. Rev. John Currie, of Belmont, and Rev. G. I. Burns presented the good wishes of the Presbyterian and Baptist people.

After lunch, provided by the ladies of the congregation, on the beautiful lawn of Mr. Chas. Beattie, opposite the church, a choice programme of music and addresses was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The singing of the choir and the hymns rendered by Miss McBride and Rev. G. W. Dewey, of London, added much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The cornerstone, which was well and truly laid, was the gift of Miss O. Latimer, of Toronto, while the magnificent silver trowel, suitably engraved, was presented to Rev. Mr. Moyer on behalf of the trustee board, by Miss Daisy Thompson, of Dorwent. The very large attendance showed the goodwill of the people of the community, and the treasury was enriched to the extent of $120.

The immense increase of Germany's economy, now shown in the last 28 years is strikingly illustrated by the increase of coal consumption in that time. In 1879 it aggregated 52,204,000 tons, and by 1895 it rose to 105,877,000 tons.

The measures and weights which were in vogue in the reign of Kang Hi, early in the present dynasty, are again to be put in force in China with slight modifications.

SLIGHT SENSATION AT PORT STANLEY

Tug Scotia Rendered Helpless—Had Timely Assistance—Strange Visitors.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Port Stanley, Aug. 1.—The fish tug Scotia met with an accident here today on her return from the nets. The shaft connecting the propeller with the engine broke and she was rendered helpless. She also received some slight damage to her lever, which controls the engine. Luckily the tug was quite near the harbor, and the lake very calm, or the danger would have been greater. The tug Belle, on her return trip, assisted the crippled Scotia into the harbor, much to the relief of the crew. The mishap caused quite a little excitement on the beaches, the cottagers thinking something very serious had happened. The Scotia, however, made a most successful haul, obtaining about 1,500 pounds of fish, mostly herring.

Strange Visitors. A large flock of great blue herons passed over Orchard Beach the other night. Their flight was witnessed by some of the scientifically inclined members of the beach with eagerness, as the birds are not very common.

Miss Etta Parry, Miss Harrison, Miss Brock, Miss Scott, Miss Stoe-man, Miss Taylor, Miss Drew, Miss Steere, and Miss Moore, all of London, returned home today after having spent the last two weeks on New Orchard Beach.

Mr. George Nicholson, of Toronto, is spending a few days with his family on New Orchard Beach. Miss Ruth Graham has returned to her home in London after spending two weeks with Mrs. Darch at Brookside, Orchard Beach.

Will Welcome Old Boys. The steam barge Juno arrived here today towing the Sligo with a large cargo of stone for the breakwater.

Several of the cottagers are leaving the Port to attend the Old Boys' celebration this week.

The Nancy has returned after an extended trip up the lakes.

The herring flies are again making their appearance, and numbers of them having congregated on Orchard Beach and Erie Rest.

Work on the barge Antelope, which has been under transformation into a derrick, is now complete.

CREPE PULLERS PREY ON MOURNING

Pose as Agents and Get Pay for Flowers That Are Never Sent.

New York, Aug. 2.—An organized band of human vultures, men and women, who prey on mourners, has been operating in Brooklyn, swindling grieving households on fraudulent orders for floral funeral pieces.

The "crepe pullers," as these swindlers are called, have entered hundreds of houses of mourning. Nearly all the reputable florists of Brooklyn have organized in an attempt to get some of these gentry behind prison bars. Their organization is to be known as the Retail Florists' Association of Brooklyn.

Lew Michel, manager for Mr. Mallon, has been active in looking up the doings of the "crepe pullers." He explained yesterday to a reporter how they work. "These crooks are called 'crepe-pullers' because they are pulling at the doorbells of a house of mourning before the undertaker who tied on the crepe has fairly shut the front door behind him. They watch the papers for death notices.

"A large number, perhaps a majority of the 'crepe pullers,' are women. I know of one case where a 15-year-old girl turned the trick as slick as any oldtimer could. The women who rush in with black elbows and red noses and do that sorrowful head wagging business over the corpse of 'their best friend,' though they hadn't seen much of him lately, poor fellow, pretend to be in business as florists. They bring the subject of flowers up after they have gained the widow's confidence.

"The woman 'crepe puller' comes in and introduces herself as a friend of the deceased, and cries and tells the family of the dead woman's many good qualities, and finally says, 'She always said that when she died she wanted the flowers all bought from me. Good-bless her! She was the dearest friend I had, and I'm sure you will want beautiful flowers.' She says she takes orders for some well known florist.

"And they get away with it. The mourners don't complain to the police because they shrink from the publicity.

"Next the 'crepe puller' gets out her book of designs, and takes an order about three times as big as the family would have given to a regular florist. She receives a $5 or $10 deposit. Sometimes the 'crepe puller' gets away with the price of all the flowers.

"They worked so systematically and with so few failures that they must have a good organization. Sometimes they buy some cheap wreaths and send them. Then a complaint comes into the florist whose name may have been used.

"From what I have learned they have the greatest success with poor persons, who are often inclined to spend freely on flowers for their dead. Pitiable distress is caused in such cases."

Secretary Phillips said that the Florists' Association hoped to bring some of the men and women "crepe pullers" to justice.

BALDWIN'S AIRSHIP TO SAIL MONDAY

Big Balloon Has a Capacity of Nearly 20,000 Cubic Feet.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Rushing the work of inflating his dirigible balloon for the preliminary tests at Fort Meyer, Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin expects to make his first ascension in his new airship on Monday, during the calm which he figures will follow the storm now coming up the coast in the direction of Washington.

The flight Baldwin will make Monday, if weather conditions are favorable, will be the first in his improved machine. The motor was tried out at Hammondsport, N. Y., but before the dirigible can be sent aloft a proper balance of the suspended frame must be secured. This will be done Sunday after the inflation of the bag is completed. Baldwin is also trying out his planes, with which he will control the upward and downward movements of the ship.

In all of his 2,000 ascensions Baldwin has used hydrogen gas, generated under his own supervision. He brought his own hydrogen plant to Fort Meyer. The balloon has a capacity of nearly 20,000 cubic feet.

The gas bag is weighted down with a hundred or more sand bags, by means of which the inflation is thoroughly controlled for avoiding unevenness. It would take but two hours to inflate Capt. Baldwin's balloon with coal gas, but with hydrogen gas, which has greater buoyancy, it takes from 36 to 45 hours.

"THE WEARING OF THE GREEN"

May Not Be a Hanging Matter Now, but the Lords Bar the Irish Costume.

London, Aug. 2.—"The Wearing of the Green" is no longer a hanging matter, but the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, Sir Henry Stephenson, has forbidden the Irish national costume, at any rate in the House of Lords. Mr. Hazleton, the member of North Galway, was the cause of the prohibition.

He had taken a friend, who was wearing the Irish costume, to tea on the terrace of the House of Commons. There the costume gave no offence and attracted no notice. Indeed, why should it? asks Mr. Hazleton. His description of it is "a most inconspicuous kilt of saffron color, plain down the front, with a saffron shawl over the shoulder, a silver gilt waist belt and silver buttons inscribed with an Irish motto."

And yet when he took his friend to the strangers' gallery in the House of Lords, Mr. Hazleton was touched on the arm by an attendant, who said: "Black Rod instructs me to say, sir, that he does not think your friend's dress is a proper one to wear in the House."

Mr. Hazleton has written to Black Rod, and has received a reply which he does not consider satisfactory. So he has written again. Next session the vote for the salary of Black Rod will come before the House of Commons. If he does not bend before that will be Mr. Hazleton's opportunity.

What makes matters worse is that the Scotch kilt has never been subjected to any such discrimination. Only a few weeks ago a dozen officers of the Cameron Highlanders, clad in all their glory of kilt, sporran and shawl, sat unquestioned in the distinguished strangers' gallery of the Commons to see Winston Churchill take his seat on the bench. However, a son of Lord Ashbourne, ex-lord, chancellor of Ireland, wears the Irish kilt constantly, and as the son of a peer has the right to take his position on the steps of the throne in that dress.

DIES OF ELEPHANTIASIS

Disease Increased the Woman's weight From 165 to 510 Pounds.

Pittsburg, Aug. 1.—After suffering for 19 years with elephantiasis, Mrs. Anna E. Lynch died yesterday at her home on the state road near McKeesport. At her death she weighed 510 pounds.

Elephantiasis, a disease of the lymphatic system, causes the body to become greatly enlarged. Mrs. Lynch weighed 165 pounds. Her left limb measured 86 inches around the calf and the right leg 65 inches. Finally the whole body became affected and the physicians claimed the disease killed her when it reached the heart.

Mrs. Lynch was 60 years old and formerly was an ardent worker of the First Reformed Church of McKeesport. During the past several years she listened to sermons by the aid of a telephone.

AUTO RACING NOT WORTH THE CANDLE

The Feeling that Gains Ground in France—Bad Luck With Tires.

Paris, Aug. 1.—No accurate account was kept of the number of tires used up in the Grand Prix automobile race at Dieppe, but a careful estimate places it at 900, and as 48 cars started this gives an average of 13 to a car. The record is held by a French car, which changed tires 21 times. Another changed tires 19 times, and a third 15. This bad luck with their tires has been a great consolation to the French in their defeat, as the winning car was fortunate enough to make three consecutive rounds without having to fit on a new tire.

The French papers are urging the manufacturers to wipe out their defeat on the first possible occasion, at the race on the Ardennes circuit or the Tannus, but the feeling is growing that the automobile racing game is not worth the candle. The Marquis de la Roche, writes to La Presse, which in reply to that paper's statement that France has lost its early advantages, and found masters who have taken her inventions and will grow rich by this protest.

"I protest energetically against this judgment, for I cannot agree that the fact of having had the luck to make several turns of the circuit with some kilometres advantage, due perhaps to the skill of a better trained driver or to some unfortunate disaster to the tires of rivals, establishes a supremacy for a whole nation," he says. "Far from me be the thought of wishing to lessen in any way the brilliant success of the victors, from the point of view of sport; but I repeat I cannot too strongly protest against the tendency to confound sport with industry, and I cannot admit the conclusions reached by La Presse, which seems to represent our industry as diminished all round by a failure which is only a sporting affair."

WOODED AND WEDDED INSIDE TWO HOURS

Minister Appears Auspiciously—Couple Are Now on Their Honeymoon.

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—Meeting at 4 o'clock, wooed and won within fifteen minutes, and married at 5:35, is the record for rapid-fire matchmaking set by Charles MacGregor and Estelle Myers Snack, in Philadelphia. Before they changed to form an acquaintance at the Broad street station at 4 o'clock, the young couple had never seen each other. Within fifteen minutes they had become convinced that it was a sure case of love at first sight. The rest of the hour and twenty minutes was given up to arranging the details essential to the marriage. MacGregor is a wealthy real estate dealer of Baltimore. Miss Snack lives in the same city. The groom is 30, the bride 22.

Miss Snack had been spending her vacation in Atlantic City. She was returning home via Philadelphia. As she stood in the waiting-room of the Broad street station she dropped her purse. A few feet away stood MacGregor, on his way to Atlantic City to begin spending his vacation. He noticed the fallen purse and sprang forward and picked it up. His eyes met the girl's for a moment. Both blushed. MacGregor found himself strangely unable to go away.

Opening Words.

A conversation was begun with the "Thank you" of the girl. When they discovered that their homes were in the same city the way was easy. Each was very much interested in the other. At 4:10 the conversation turned to a discussion of marriage. At 4:14 it had taken on such an aspect that MacGregor was able to propose without changing the subject. One minute later he had been accepted.

The difficulty then was to arrange the marriage. As MacGregor pondered upon the difficulty he was aroused by a heavy slap on the back. When he looked around he almost shouted with joy. Before him, hand outstretched and smiling, was Rev. David T. Neely, pastor of the Asquith Street Presbyterian Church in Baltimore, his own church. Now there could be no hitch.

Getting a License.

When the circumstances were explained the minister agreed to perform the ceremony. It was after hours for the license bureau, so Clerk Goebel, of the marriage license bureau, was reached on the phone. Goebel said that he had blanks at his house, so the trio jumped into a taxicab, motored to the clerk's house and obtained the license.

John J. Robinson, an intimate friend of the groom, was the next to receive a "phone call. He gave ready assent to a proposition that the ceremony be performed in his house. Again the taxicab was called into requisition, and the party, this time with Goebel along as a witness, went to Robinson's residence, 17 Sanders avenue. There were no further obstacles, and the ceremony was performed.

As the minister spoke the first words of the service the time stood exactly 6:35. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bride and groom left for Atlantic City to spend their honeymoon.

"We did it quickly, but well," said MacGregor before he left the city. "It was a sure case of love at first sight."

"We shall be happy," was all the bride would say. Both looked happy.

GATHERING 180 VESSELS

Jap Fleet Will Be Maneuvering When U. S. Warships Arrive.

Washington, Aug. 1.—In the coming maneuvers in the Japanese fleet no less than 180 vessels will be engaged, according to reports received from Toronto.

No particular significance is attached by the navy officials to the fact that this huge fleet will be assembled in Japanese waters just at the time that the American battleship fleet, under Rear Admiral Sperry will arrive there on its cruise around the world.

IN TRANCE FIFTY-ONE DAYS

Is in Better Condition Now Than Before Her Long Sleep.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 1.—After lying for 51 days in a trance, her life despaired of by physicians, Miss Nellie Shaul, aged 24, of Columbia, Herkimer County, is now on the road to recovery and in better health than before her seizure.

The young woman went into a cataleptic state May 28, her jaws becoming set and preventing the administration of nourishment and medicine except through the nose. Preceding her long trance, Miss Shaul had been in poor health for some time, and she could not remember her name. She is now able to talk rationally, and is far stronger than ever before in her life. Physicians regard her recovery as one of the most remarkable on record.

It's easy to live on love—between meals.

LONDON, MONDAY, AUG. 3.

THE HOMING.

Far-called, the sons and daughters of the Forest City are flocking hither, drawn by bonds which years and distance cannot sever.

The "homing" brings a special happiness to many a household, where the returning ones are welcomed by kith and kin. There are others for whom the city has now no such precious ties, but to whom it is still home in the deepest sense of the word. The spot which merits that name, and which has a peculiar hold on the affections of the average man and woman, is that where boyhood and girlhood—the happiest hours of life—were spent. Other interests which grow up with change of place and scene and the passage of time, cannot drive this sentiment out of the heart.

It is creditable to human nature, and the inspiration of the Old Boys' movement, which had its origin in this city and has since spread over the continent. Each familiar face or object brings a flood of recollections, and the homecomers revel in the pleasures of memory, which are an important item in the happiness of mankind.

If calculations could be made it would probably be found that the absentee children of the Forest City are a more numerous body than the resident population. This is the experience of many other communities in this migratory age, but in London's case it is not a sign of retrogression and decay—far from it! Although thousands of her children have scattered far and wide, she has continued to grow and expand, and is today more thriving than at any period in her history. The evidences of new life will meet the Old Boys at every turn. To those who have been years absent the changes in sections of the city will be startling, and the effacement of old landmarks may inspire feelings of regret.

To the Old Boys and the Old Girls who have shown their filial devotion by journeying from far and near, the Forest City offers a paternal embrace. Her hearth has been swept and her fires lighted, and may there be joy and seemly revelry.

UNCLAIMED BALANCES.

A parliamentary paper recently issued at Ottawa, dealing with the unclaimed balances and unpaid drafts and bills of exchange in the chartered banks of Canada, is of peculiar interest. It shows that there are in this country, as in others, people who are careless about small things, and unkindly of the trouble they cause. A balance in the bank of a few cents causes as much bookkeeping as thousands of dollars, and when it is remembered that many of these small balances have been left for scores of years, an idea will be gained of the labor they have entailed. Some of them date back to the first half of the last century. For instance, the Bank of Montreal has held for 78 years $5 05 for a Montrealer who must have long since have passed away. Some 25 years ago two Hamiltonians left 1 cent each in their respective accounts in the Bank of Hamilton, and ever since the clerks, in making up balance sheets, have been obliged to repeat these trifles, and clerks for years to come are likely to continue the work.

But these unclaimed balances are by no means all trifles. Six years ago a remittance in drafts amounting to $1,200 was sent from Scotland to the Bank of Nova Scotia for a lady of Kingston, Jamaica, to whose credit it is still lying, and it would seem, is likely to lie. Another lady, who when last heard of resided in Michigan, might at any time since 1892 have drawn something like $2,000 from the Bank of Hamilton. But the fact that she cannot be traced is taken to mean that she is either dead, or if living, does not consider the sum mentioned worth troubling herself about. A similar amount has lain for years in the Bank of British North America to the credit of a clergyman, who certainly should be able to do good work with the money.

To publish all these unclaimed balances, year after year, necessitates the compiling and printing of a blue-book of some 700 closely-printed pages. The custom of publishing it has long prevailed, and while the idea is a good one, the suggestion has been offered that were the smaller items omitted, and only those of, say, $25, and upwards included, the book would be reduced to a much smaller and more handy size, and there would be far better chance of the object sought being attained. The suggestion has force, for to make known to the world year after year that, for instance, a balance of 3 cents lies in one of the banks to the credit of John Smith, really seems farcical. To say nothing of the trouble the banks are put to in carrying these trifles, their omission would save considerable labor on the part of the departmental clerks at the capital, and means a reduction in the printing bill.

AGRARIAN QUESTIONS IN RUSSIA.

Prof. Milgoukov, leader of the Constitutional Democratic party in the third Russian Duma, has been interviewed regarding the present struggle now in progress in his country. To perfectly understand the situation in Russia, it must be known that 72 per cent of the people over the age of 9 years cannot read or write, and only about 10 per cent read newspapers. It will therefore be seen that real popular government is inconceivable, as to make the Duma strictly representative 72 per cent of its members would have to be illiterate.

As yet the Duma is without a programme. The agrarian question, which Prof. Milgoukov regards as the most important of all to be considered, has been postponed. It was on account of this problem that the first two Dumas were dissolved, but with land-owners in the majority in the present Duma, there can be no question of reforms. The land-owners meet the demand for an increase of land by saying, "increase the culture." It is of no use for the Social Democrats to answer that the peasant cannot increase his culture until his material condition is improved. The ever-ready reply is that the peasant will always remain a beggar in Russia, that he will always want more land as long as the land belongs to the village commune.

The agrarian policy of the Government is to change at once from communal to individual ownership of land, believing that by making the peasant private owners, a check would be put to the agrarian troubles. Prof. Milgoukov, however, holds the view that the peasant cannot be changed into a land-owner overnight, that to attempt to do so would be to stir up new outbreaks. The Government's policy, he regards as revolutionary, and is confident that it would intensify the clash between the rich and the poor in the villages. During the interval between the first and second Dumas, the Government hastily passed a law concerning the agrarian question, but as yet it is not generally known among the peasants. The peasant representatives must vote against the Government's policy; otherwise they could not face the communities that sent them to the Duma. The priests in the Duma, threatened by the synod with dismissal if in the event of their opposing the Government measure, fear to speak out openly, but Prof. Milgoukov believes that when it comes to a vote they will cast their lot with the Social Democrats.

The result thus far has been to disillusionize some social groups who expected much, and to cause others to begin to expect something. As to the people generally, Prof. Milgoukov believes they are still interested in the Duma.

KING EDWARD MOST POPULAR.

[Richard Croker.]
Look here, who would be elected King of the world tomorrow if there was an election for every shadow on the globe? Roosevelt? Hughes? Not for a minute. But who? King Edward! There's the most popular man in Christendom. And why? Just because he's the sort of man I say ought to lead a nation—a big man, a broad man, a man who knows the whole game, and not a part of it, an all-around gentleman, who enjoys a fair game and understands the poor tipster in the two-bob ring as well as the rich man somewhere else doing the same thing.

No, sir; there's more freedom, actual freedom here in Ireland today than there is in New York. And men like Roosevelt and Hughes are the cause of it.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN AS A SPEAKER

[London Telegraph.]
No modern parliamentary exercised so much influence as did Mr. Chamberlain upon the art of public speaking. Before his time the ponderous models were still imitated. Fox, indeed, in his wonderful debating mood, could expound pernicious principles by the hour, without any failure of form. He might be sophisticated, but he was lucid. Even in mid-career his style, so far from being verbose and turbid—like the oratory of other men in sudden spate—was sometimes like a sparkling shower bath of short sentences. But that turn was a matter of temperament, and in its nature imitable. Pitt, with talent as unapproachable, but with an ordered intellectual mood that might be copied, pursued his shining and formidable march. Mr. Bright, in his way, despite the beauty of his oratory, was best in expressing those first principles with which the ordinary routine of the House of Commons and the usual exigencies of electoral campaigns are very little concerned. Mr. Gladstone was distinctly of the old school in the unrestrained amplitude of all his verbal methods. Mr. Chamberlain delivered the nation from a plague of obscurity. There was never a sentence of his which required to be read twice. There was no wastage of words. Again, he had the same command over the intractable matter out of which bad speeches are made. The most important element in a good address is perhaps the order in which the various heads of the argument are taken. Mr. Chamberlain's power as a phrase-maker could comprehend each point as it came, and grasp the whole argument in its entirety. Above all, perhaps, was Mr. Chamberlain's power as a phrase-maker. His words were battles, because of his exact mastery of plain English. No one approached him in his ability to reduce an idea to its simplest forms, and to pack it into the fewest and most forcible words. We have dwelt upon these inspiring recollections because the more Mr. Chamberlain's vitalizing energy and directness in all his political proceedings is imitated by the leaders of all parties, the better will it be for the nation.

HER INGRATITUDE.

[Argonaut.]
She sketched and painted up and down the river.
I rowed the boat—
Where willows dip and deepening shadows quiver.
And lilacs float.
Cliff, cottage, sail, and bridge and sea-sands yellow
Her studies were—
And, oh, I thought myself a lucky fellow,
Adrift—with her!

Long hours, with oars at rest, I sat and waited.
She painted on.
With now and then a smile-absorbed, elated—
Till, daylight gone,
She'd raise her eyes reluctantly, and murmur,
It's time to go!
And I—I'd only plant my feet the firmer,
And start to row.

Last night we met. Of art she prattled sweetly.
Of what she'd done
In way of summer work, accomplished neatly.
Of praises won;
But when I shyly dared my art to mention
As oarsman true,
She vaguely smiled, and said, with inattention,
"Oh! was it you?"

THE GIFT TO THE PRINCESS.

[Toronto Star.]

The Princess of Wales gets out of it all an $800 mink coat with gold buttons. And the worst thing that feminine jealousy can wish her is that she should have to wear it in this weather.

WAS ILL-ADVISED.

[Pittsburgh Dispatch.]
The decision in the Marathon race at London leaves little ground for the charge of unfairness toward Americans on the part of the judges. Doran, the Italian, who reached the tape first, was protested on the ground that he was helped forward by the spectators. A similar protest was made against Hayes, the American, who reached the tape second. The judges gave the race to Hayes, which at this distance is not so surprising as believing the protest to have been well founded in the one case and ill founded in the other.

This certainly adds weight to the suggestion that the claim of "unfairness" raised on behalf of the Americans in other contests may have been overdone. There was a prima facie reason for believing in the matter of Liverpool navies' shoes; but the disposition to kick over rulings is not a pleasant one, and has no tendency to maintain the standard of good conduct in athletic contests.

THE BABY—HIS DAY.

[S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.]
Bring out the baby, Mabel; wash his face and comb his hair.
You must love the little rascal, you must show him tender care.
For the ones who seem the fashions have just issued the decree
That the baby's not the nuisance he has been supposed to be.

Bring out the baby, Mabel; hug him fondly to your breast.
Have your picture taken with him; let him often be caressed;
Show that you no longer deem him an unwelcome thing or worse—
Make him cease to think of you as only one who loves him is the nurse.

Bring out the baby, Mabel; turn from other fads a while.
He's become the latest fashion; you, of course, must be in style;
You must learn to soothe and pet him when he's ill or has a pain,
You must show affection for him, though 'twill be an awful strain.

Bring out the baby, Mabel; hold him fondly on your lap;
Whisper words of love to gladden the astonished little chap;
It is fashion's latest order, therefore bravely take him up
From the hole behind the ice box, where he wallows with the pup.

DUBIOUS COMPLIMENT.

[Punch.]
Lady of Uncertain Age—Ah, major, we've none of us as young as you were. Major (absent-mindedly, but vaguely aware that a gallant answer is indicated) My dear lady, I'm sure you don't look it.

PAST EXPERIENCE.

[Montreal Herald.]
Lord Cromer sees approaching "the deadly crisis of a European war." This is the particular delusion of the biggest men. The Duke of Wellington had it bad; Lord Palmerston also, and after them all who wanted to be in the fashion or who sought the infection. There was a panic in England around 1850, because France was going to invade, and before anybody could get a hearing to the contrary, England and France were off together to the Crimean war, which could have been avoided, and ought to have been. And that was the only European war for a century for England.

COOKERY.

[Harper's Weekly.]
The sun has set, the vast imperial sky fills up with stars—I'm sure I don't know why.
Unless they prophesy, these gloomy stars, internal broil, or lack of them, and wars. Oh, everything now wears a dismal look. For we've been given warning by the cook.

Beware, beware, my family said, take care;
She's fooling thee, this airy, fairy fair. But I had faith, and in her Irish eyes saw crisp delight and succulent surprise. For man's digestion must be, after all, his most important interest since the fall.

THE PATIENT PRODUCER.

[Washington Star.]
"They say your son-in-law does not appreciate the value of money."
"Yes, he does," answered Mr. Cumrox, "but I don't believe he thinks I do."

300 DETROIT OLD BOYS

Shortly before reaching Chatham the following telegram was handed Mr. Moore:

"Chatham, Ont., Aug. 3.
"Geo. Moore, President Detroit Old Boys, en route to London:
"Chatham mayor and aldermen sends greetings to Detroit Old Boys and will feel honored if your officers will get off at Chatham station for a few minutes and take light lunch and cigars. Train will stop five minutes.
J. C. PETERS."

Unfortunately — for the success of the joke — but few of Chatham's generally wide-awake citizens were aware that a special was being run through that town yesterday afternoon, and in consequence it took but a glance to assure Mr. Moore that he was being hoaxed when the train pulled up at the Chatham station.

Outside of a few railroad men and a number of boys the station platform was deserted.

Another Joke.

At Chatham some of the other members of the party wired the London police to be on the lookout for two well-known crooks, namely George Moore and J. W. Burris (editor of the North Woodward Gazette, Detroit). Again the practical joke proved successful for the London police knew both of the gentlemen mentioned perfectly, and the nearest they came to being arrested was when they were taken in tow by a party of London friends upon their arrival.

The List.

The list of names on the special comprised the following:

THOUSANDS ARE NOW HERE

and will register at a more opportune time.

Still Pouring In.

On Sunday the throng of visitors continued to pour in. The regular trains, as stated above, were crowded, and the specials brought in many more.

The day was spent quietly. It was a real home-coming day. Every home in the city has someone who had come from afar, and as a result, every house was the centre of a happy crowd.

At the Churches.

In the afternoon, the First Methodist Church was the centre of an immense throng, and it was safe to say that thousands were unable to get inside.

Others turned to the parks. Victoria Park was crowded; Queen's Park had a large crowd. Many hundreds went to Springfield in carriages and automobiles. Many walked.

All seemed eager to visit the spots made dear to them by some prank of boyhood or because of some dramatic situation in his or her life.

Many roamed the streets. To the residents of the many citizens of the east and west, London is a veritable woods, and a walk up and down her shady streets is as refreshing as a walk in the prettiest of parks.

"I miss the trees so much," said a western visitor, "and a walk down the streets of the old town does me more good than medicine. It is so refreshing."

The Churches Crowded.
In spite of the hot weather the churches were crowded, and the congregations were treated to excellent sermons by visiting Old Boy ministers.

Still among the Old Boys, there were many who were missed. The organization in many of the cities is not perfect and, as a result, there is not the same united spirit as of old.

However, the attendance from the Old Boy centres is just as great, and the enthusiasm for the old home just as potent. Nevertheless there are many of the old-timers missing, and their absence causes not a little regret.

They could not all come, but the fact that so many of the Old Boys and Girls still have a deep love for their home is a matter of great congratulation to the home guard.

The reunion of 1908 is a splendid one, and few there will be that will eclipse it.

Beware the Pickpockets.

The police had little to do. The energetic department is keeping a close watch for pickpockets, and, as a result, little of that work has been done. However, the utmost vigilance must be kept, as the light-fingered gentry are in town and are watching every opportunity to lift a purse. Detectives Nickle, Eggleton and Rider are watchful, and there never was an Old Boy reunion that this trio did not find a few well-known crooks. They will get most of them.

So it must be stated that the 1908 reunion is a great success.

London is proud of its returning Old Boys and especially of the Old Girls. May they all have a great time and return to their homes happy and contented, after enjoying the many pleasures of the greatest reunion in the Old Boy movement.

DIED WHILE VISITING.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 1.—Patrick Hanifan, of Bradford, Penn., who was visiting his son-in-law, Mr. J. P. Conway, 511 Adelaide street west, died suddenly yesterday afternoon. He had been slightly ill for a few days.

Hanifan was for many years manager of the Stevenson House at St. Catharines.

Still among the Old Boys, there were many who were missed. The organization in many of the cities is not

WAGON WHEEL CRUSHED HIS KNEES

Hugh Winslow, a driver for the Cook Shoe Company, met with a serious accident while on his round Saturday evening.

When he returned to the wagon after delivering a parcel he placed his foot on the hub. The horse suddenly started forward, whirling him around the wheel several times. The heavy wagon passed over his knees crushing them badly. He was removed to his home, where the injuries were dressed.

It is not known how serious the young man is injured as yet, but he will be confined to his home for some time.

NIAGARA EXCURSION

Young Liberal Club of Woodstock Plan Annual Outing.

The Young Liberal Club of Woodstock are an organization that never do things by halves. On Wednesday they are running their annual excursion to Niagara Falls, the train going through from London, so that Londoners can take advantage of the cheap rate.

Mr. G. G. Mahon, who is looking after the excursion, has every arrangement completed for a large crowd, and assures all who go that they will have the outing of their lives. A large number should go from here. The tickets are good for two days.

FOUND HANGING.

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 1.—John Nicholson, aged 77 years, was found hanging to a tree at his home at Sunbury, some seven miles from here. It is thought the hot weather added to physical troubles had caused him to take his life.

SCOTT'S OPINION
OF LORD BYRONOver $3,000 Paid for a Bunch Former's Letters—a Specimen men Epistle.

London, Aug. 2.—The sum of $15,880 was paid for rare old books, manuscripts and autograph letters at Sotheby's rooms the other day, the highest price being $3,050, which was paid for a collection of Sir Walter Scott's letters to the Marchioness of Abercorn.

The letters number 95 and are bound in a volume. They cover the period from 1806 to 1826. To the marchioness, whose estate his father managed, Scott wrote some of his most charming and confidential epistles. An interesting letter contains the novelist's opinion of Lord Byron. He says:

"You ask me, my dear Lady Abercorn, how I like Lord Byron's poem, and I answer very much. There is more original strength and force of thinking in it, as well as command of language and versification, than in almost any modern poem of the same length that I have happened to meet with."

"It is really a wonderful poem, the more powerful because it arrests the attention without the aid of the narrative, and without the least apparent wish to conciliate the favor of the reader, but rather an affectation to the contrary. I say an affectation to the contrary, because I should be sorry to think that a young man of Lord Byron's powers should really and unaffectedly entertain and encourage a contempt for all sublimity of thought and enjoyment. This tinge of discontent, or perhaps we may almost say misanthropy, is the only objection I have to Lord Byron's very powerful and original work. By the way, there is a report that Child Harold is to be married to an heiress of our northern clime."

Only $130 was paid for an original holograph draft of a love letter by Robert Burns, while Tennyson's family album, containing the first draft of the poet's lyric to his wife, brought $120, and George Washington's letter-book during the campaigns 1775-76, containing a lot of unpublished material, sold for $205. For a very beautiful old manuscript of the late fifteenth century, richly illuminated and with exquisitely painted miniatures, $1,350 was given.

Among the books were several early works of great rarity. Captain John Smith's "The Generall Historie of Virginia, New England and the Summer Isles," 1624, brought $2,025, while a first edition of Milton's "Comus," 1637, fetched $1,585, and two unique copies of Hakluyt, went for $1,250. Notable also was a volume of seventeenth century English plays, including Shakespeare's "Richard III.," which changed hands for $530.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Toronto Couple Clung to an Upset
Boat Entire Night.

St. Catharines, Aug. 2.—A thrilling experience was that of Mr. and Mrs. Gaspin, residents of Toronto, who spent Friday night battling with waves and wind on Lake Ontario.

In the afternoon they left Jordan Beach in a two-masted 30-foot sail boat with the intention of cruising to Port Dalhousie. Before the destination was reached, however, a violent wind suddenly arose, and it was impossible to make the harbor. The boat continued before the wind down the lake in an easterly direction and the occupants had recourse to the anchor, which, however, snapped from the chain, and the boat was practically left to the mercy of the waves and winds.

Eventually it turned topsy turvy, out the man and woman, although drenched to the skin, hung on to the overturned boat, which tossed about all night.

In the early morning the boat was washed ashore near McCallan's Grove, and with much difficulty the man and woman made their way to the summer house.

William Wilson, of Merriton, with his wife, did everything for the shipwrecked ones, giving them nourishment and warm clothes. Today Mr. and Mrs. Gaspin did not appear to have suffered any serious results.

A GREAT CLOUDBURST.

Aussa, Cal., Aug. 1.—Fifteen feet of water is sweeping down the big fork of the San Gabriel River carrying trees and driftwood with it, as the result of a cloudburst in San Gabriel canyon. All stages have been tied up and communication with the camps is cut off. A rescue party has been formed and will start for the mouth of the canyon to offer assistance if it is needed.

Luck consists of having what some other fellow wants.

Diarrhea

There is no need of anyone suffering long with this disease, for to effect a quick cure it is only necessary to take a few doses of

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy

In fact, in most cases one dose is sufficient. It never fails and can be relied upon in the most severe and dangerous cases. It is equally valuable for children and is the means of saving the lives of many children each year.

In the world's history no medicine has ever met with greater success.

SULTAN'S OATH
ON THE KORANWill Maintain the Constitution
—Subjects Wish Him
Long Life.

Constantinople, Aug. 2.—The Sultan, in the presence of the Sheikh ul-Islam, took oath on the Koran today to maintain the constitution.

The popular demonstrations because of the granting of a constitution, which continued yesterday, are now ceasing, and the people are looking to the Sultan to make good his promises. The newspapers print a story, which was not verified, to the effect that after the greater part of the crowd dispersed Sunday midnight, the Sultan, in response to insistent demands from those remaining near the Yildiz Kiosk, came to a window of the palace, whereupon the spokesman of the crowd declared that they had been waiting to meet him face to face for 32 years, but had been prevented by perfidious courtiers. He concluded:

"Thank God, our wish is now gratified. Long live the Sultan!"

His Majesty is reported to have replied:

"Inasmuch as since my accession I have labored for the salvation and prosperity of the Fatherland, God is now my witness that my greatest object is the prosperity and satisfaction of my subjects, who are no other than my own children."

Parties are rapidly forming. The Young Turks, flushed with victory, are beginning to be aggressive, and are incurring the opposition of the more moderate sections.

TWO AUTOISTS
CUT IN PIECESCar Crashed Through Gates in Front of Train—No Chance to Escape.

Philadelphia, Aug. 2.—Charles Humphries, chief clerk in the bureau of police in this city, and Harry B. Bromley, of a well known family of manufacturers, were run down, and killed by a train while crossing the tracks of the Reading Railroad at Nicetown station in the northern section of the city early this morning.

The men, who were in an automobile, were running at a rapid rate, and crashed through the gates at the crossing and both men were buried under it and horribly crushed. Portions of their mangled bodies were scattered along the tracks for 100 yards, and except for the contents of their pockets, identification would have been almost impossible. The machine, which was owned by Bromley, is a complete wreck.

GLAD TO QUIT IT

Mrs. Roosevelt Pleased that Reign at Washington is Ended.

Washington, Aug. 2.—It is doubtful if the wife of any president ever left the White House with as little regret as Mrs. Roosevelt will leave it. Her duties have not been either unpleasant or irksome, and she has had keen pleasure in her "first lady" position. She has come to her "first lady" position with a like feeling. She is, too, essentially a domestic woman; her home life, her society of her husband and her children have always been very dear to her, and since she became the mistress of the White House she has had to make many sacrifices in this direction; nor has she been able to indulge her literary taste.

But there are many things, which, when she turns her back upon Washington, Mrs. Roosevelt will leave with regret, not the least of which is the rare and beautiful collection of orchids that the gardener of the public grounds, knowing her penchant for these floral curiosities, has collected and grown for her enjoyment. This collection has been enriched by specimens from all over the world, notably from the Philippines, where they grow in great beauty and profusion. Among the varieties that have been sent from there by the army and naval officers who have Mrs. Roosevelt's aid in mind, are several of the Phalaenopsis, that named for the poet Schiller, who discovered it, being the best known and most popular. Its common name is Schiller's moth orchid, which is exquisite in shape and color, a clear, deep pink, with mottled leaves of light and dark green. Mrs. Roosevelt will, of course, take specimens of as many orchids as she can accommodate in her garden at Oyster Bay, but there are but few such ideal places for their growth and development as the spot Mr. Brown has chosen near the monument.

Ex-Senator Chandler, of New Hampshire, who has been in public life for almost 50 years, has kept a series of diaries covering the entire period, and has set down much of the secret political history of the country.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., recently bought out the entire seating capacity of the New Amsterdam Theatre at the usual prices and sold them at a premium. Her transaction netted $6,000 for the Nassau Hospital.

"THE EMPEROR
OF THE MOSLEMS"New Name Which the Sultan of Turkey Will Assume at an Early Date.

Berlin, Aug. 2.—The Berliner Zeitung today publishes a dispatch from Constantinople saying that the Sultan of Turkey is preparing to declare himself Emperor of the Moslems, abrogating the title of Sultan.

Reactionaries Busy.

Constantinople, July 31.—The release of 950 ordinary criminals from the central prison, on orders from the palace, is regarded as showing that the ministry is not yet free from palace interference, and indicates that the reactionaries are at work on the organization of the "Black Band" with a view to provoking disorders and casting the responsibility on the people to the disparagement of the Constantinian regime.

A deputation of Young Turks and journalists waited on the Grand Vizier and protested against the release of the prisoners.

Said Pasha replied that he would consider the matter. It is reported that Kiamil Pasha resigned in consequence of the action of the ministry and it is believed that he will ultimately appoint Said Pasha grand vizier.

Valand military commander-in-chief of Adrianople has been dismissed by the Young Turks.

FIGHT BITTERLY
FOR EXISTENCEAttempts Made to Suppress the General Federation of Labor in France.

Paris, Aug. 2.—It is learned that the rioting at Vigneux precipitated rather a serious situation, owing to the decision of the Government to arrest the leaders of the General Federation of Labor and possibly suppress the entire organization in the interests of public order. The reports in the press agree that at Vigneux the agitators deliberately incited their men to provoke bloodshed, and that the troops patiently submitted for hours to insults and stoning before they fired.

The conservative papers united in demanding the suppression of the labor organization as one which is demoralizing the country and terrorizing the people.

The organization is expected to fight bitterly for its existence.

During the night the city was placarded with inflammatory accounts of what is called the Government's crime and calling for an extension and prolongation of the strike.

NEW YORK, AUG. 1.—The Herald says that objecting to Rudyard Kipling's militant gospel, Teja Singh, M.A., LL.D., will lecture before the Columbia University Summer School and take exception to the praise lavished on the "Bard of Empire" by Professor MacMechan, who is a Canadian from Nova Scotia. Mr. Singh reached New York on July 5 from England, where for the last two years he has been a Cambridge student. He is registered a graduate student at the Teachers' Training College, where he procured a scholarship before leaving England.

His appearance as a lecturer is due to his objection to Professor MacMechan's eulogy of Rudyard Kipling's recent article on India in the Nineteenth Century.

Prof. MacMechan is an English-Canadian from Nova Scotia, imported by Columbia University for the summer session's advanced English course. He has lived many years in English-Indian garrison towns. When he contented to lecture on the education of the Indian, he was the subject of a letter from Teja Singh, with long, uncut hair, rolled in to a miniature Eiffel Tower under a white silk turban, a soft silken beard, and wearing a silver bangle on the left wrist he recognized a Sikh. The Sikhs are pure Hindus, the intellectual revolutionists of India. They are deeply religious, worship one God, and since the fifteenth century have been opposed to class distinction. They are naturally despised by the British Moslems, who regard them as weak and effeminate.

Prof. MacMechan's praise of Kipling was too much for Teja Singh.

"Mr. Kipling in 'The White Man's Burden' has done much to misrepresent India to the western world," said Teja Singh. "Intellectual India, which is thoroughly in touch with Carlyle, Ruskin, Mill, Tennyson and Tolstol, cannot tolerate Kipling. He may understand the English-Indian mind, but he knows nothing of the native. The highest Indian intellect recognizes Kipling's genius and that some of his stories and poems show sympathy, but it is the sympathy of the conqueror, the superior race, and it is that spirit of superiority which permeates all his writings on India and which the natives resent." When a reporter said Teja Singh was loath to be interviewed.

"My position is extremely delicate," he said. "Anything I may say, good or bad, will be circulated in India to my disadvantage. I will be a marked man, and on my return my education in the superior race, and it is that spirit of superiority which permeates all his writings on India and which the natives resent." When a reporter said Teja Singh was loath to be interviewed.

Mr. Singh brought from India four young men who are preparing to teach in the training school he will open in India. One young man is studying textile engineering in Manchester, another educational methods in Edinburgh, a third is in London waiting for a degree in electrical engineering, while the fourth is studying chemistry at Cornell University."

The Arncliffe Puzzle

By GORDON HOLMES, Author "A Mysterious Disappearance."

Lester knew then that he had not been mistaken when he saw death in the unfortunate woman's face.

"Take the ladies away at once," he whispered to Bradshaw.

Mrs. Angier was only too anxious to quit the room, and butler Phyllis needed no entreating, but Edith put a tender arm round Mrs. Warren and drew her to an armchair.

"Oh, how could you have done it?" she whispered tearfully. "How could you? Yet I am so sorry for you, Mrs. Warren."

"You are a good girl, Edith," said the dying woman with a wan smile. "Don't be too hard on my boy."

"They shall not do anything to him," promised Edith. "He shall go to the colonies and make a fresh start. I am sure he will become a good man for your sake."

Lester, oblivious to all other considerations, was listening to Mrs. Warren's heart with his aethoscope, and endeavoring to slip some life into her icy hands while she, conscious of the futility of resistance, submitted passively.

"Brandy and hot-water bottles, quick!" he cried to Edith, with full faith in her share of self-control. "And you had better have a bed prepared with hot blankets."

Mrs. Warren lifted a weak, restraining hand. "Please do not torture me any more, Dr. Lester," she pleaded. "You must see that it is only a matter of minutes. If you want to do me a real kindness, let me speak my last words to my son."

Lester, indeed, knew that she was right, but it is hardly natural that a doctor should think he has achieved a triumph if he keeps some poor wretch gasping in agony for a few hours longer than nature has seemingly ordained. Now, however, he walked over to Hobson and his prisoner.

"Take those off!" he said curtly, pointing to the handcuffs.

The detective hesitated a moment, but even his calloused heart was touched, and he dropped the fetters from Warren's wrists.

"You are on your honor," he whispered, and the unfortunate young man—even in the agony of the moment—was grateful for the words as well as for the action.

Warren laid his head on his mother's lap as might a frightened child, and she tried to caress it with a pained hand.

"Be a good boy in future, dear. Always be a good boy, whatever happens," she whispered.

"I will. But, mother! Oh, mother!"

"Always a good boy."

And so he sobbed his protests and promises, until presently Lester led the poor, headstrong victim of heredity and of a calculated vengeance gently away; for Mrs. Warren had gone where God would judge between her and Lord Arncliffe.

Next morning when Inspector Hobson was about to convey Harry Warren to the jail at Alnwick, Edith called a great council.

"Now, I want you all to help," she began, with true feminine directness. "What is to be done about Harry Warren? He must not be punished any more."

The man from Scotland Yard was in authority now, and he did not shrink his task.

"I am afraid it cannot be avoided, Miss Holt," he said. "Regarding the murder of Lord Arncliffe, he will have to stand his trial as an accessory after the fact. I don't think, in view of Mrs. Warren's statement and the papers she left, that the police will charge him with anything more, and in case of a mother and son, he will get off with next to nothing. Of course, there are the three other charges—the robbing of Lord Arncliffe, and the attacks on Mr. Angier and Dr. Lester. However, if those are dropped, I do not suppose the public prosecutor will take them up."

"Well, Dr. Lester is not going to take any proceedings, and I am sure Mr. Angier will not."

"Why, my dear," said the old lawyer mildly, "the young rascal hit me a very severe blow on the head, and the place is exceedingly tender. Still, if you wish it—"

"I am sure," interrupted Mrs. Angier, who had not slept all night, "I do not want to see the rascal in a prison, but my dear husband might have been killed, and I really feel that Warren deserves some little punishment. Fifteen or twenty years' penal servitude."

"I think, Mrs. Angier," interposed Edith with a slight accession of the marquis manner, "you owe me some reparation for the manner in which you behaved toward me. Certainly, no one who disfigures me now in this manner can again become or remain my friend."

"Oh, very well," sighed the lawyer's wife, "but don't blame me if we are all murdered in our beds."

"Very well, miss," said Hobson. "You need not have any further anxiety in the matter. What is wanted is a little influence, and, considering what an old friend Mr. Angier is of the treasury solicitor, I do not think influence will be lacking in this matter can again become or remain my friend."

MODERN THEATRE FOR THE INSANE

Work Started in Washington, D.C.—Will Seat 1,000 Patients and Visitors.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Work has been commenced on a new assembly hall at the Government Hospital for the Insane, the building being designed to provide a modern playhouse where theatrical productions and other entertainments are to be held, as well as proper quarters for assembly for religious worship. The contract for the structure was recently awarded to Pavarini & Wynne, of this city, who bid was approximately $25,000, and they have caused the preliminary steps in the construction of the hall to be taken within the past few days.

The time within which the building is to be completed and transferred to the Government comprises ten months. The assembly hall will be situated at a point central to the institution as a whole, being in proximity to the extensions buildings erected several years ago.

In type of construction it will conform closely to the other structures, which are of brick, with tile roofs and limestone trimmings.

The hall will be located on a site almost directly opposite the female nurses' home, one of the new buildings, the two being separated by considerable stretches of lawn and roadways. The contractors have found it necessary in their initial work to remove a number of fine maple trees that have shaded the portion of the hospital grounds for a long time. They have removed a section of the fence that incloses the group of buildings known as the detached buildings.

The erection of an assembly hall of this type has been urged by Dr. William A. White, the superintendent of the hospital, since 1905, when he submitted his first estimate to congress for the erection of the building. The following year congress granted an appropriation of $75,000 for the work, but when plans had been prepared and bids examined thereon it was found that the lowest bid far exceeded the amount of the appropriation. Another appeal was made to congress, which body last year increased the appropriation by $25,000, and bids were again called for, with the result stated above.

A great deal of thought has been exercised in the production of the plans for the new building, and the intention is that a model playhouse will be the outcome. The plans have been prepared by the Sunderland Brothers, of this city, who received the award in a competition between fifteen architects from this and other cities.

The assembly hall will be surrounded by a broad terrace, the ascent of which will afford direct entrance to the building. There are three entrances provided in the front, so as to allow the patients to enter by the central door, while the visitors will be admitted through the two side doors, from which places stairways will lead to the balcony.

The auditorium, where the patients will be seated, will have a seating capacity of 700, while the balcony, where visitors will be accommodated, will contain about 300 people. By this method the visitors and the patients will be kept entirely separate while the building is being erected. The floor will also at times be used for dances, when the floor will be cleared and the chairs placed underneath the stage. There will be a basement, lobby and dressing rooms, in a basement, which can be served refreshments and edibles that might follow an entertainment in the hall.

Special consideration has been given to the matter of fire protection in this structure, which will be a fire-proof building, reinforced concrete being used for columns, balconies, stage and roof construction in this effort. With the assembly room on the first floor of the building, as it is planned, the second floor will be utilized in the construction of the hall to limit the danger from fire are automatic sprinklers, automatic skylight, asbestos and water curtains. With this equipment on and about the stage, which will be separated from the auditorium by a brick wall, there will be little chance for flames to gain any headway.

The new hall will supplant the present chapel and assembly hall, in the old section of the hospital, on the fourth floor of the former administration building, which has been in use almost since the opening of the institution in 1854. The amusement features at the hospital are extensive and varied in the course of the season, with dances, holiday entertainments, plays and concerts. Weekly affairs of this character will bring the new hall into frequent service.

THE CABINET AT WORK

Government Business Keeps the Premier and His Colleagues Busy.

Ottawa, July 31.—All the cabinet ministers, with the exception of Sir Richard Cartwright, who is still in Kingston, have returned to the city and this afternoon a council meeting was held, at which a beginning was made upon the long list of public matters now awaiting Government action. The orders in council passed today were, however, for the most part connected merely with the routine of departmental administration. The appointment of new railway commissioners will not be made for a week or so. Cabinet meetings will be held daily for the next fortnight, after which Sir Wilfrid Laurier will probably go to Arthursville for a short rest.

An Overworked Telephone Means Loss of Business

MR. BUSINESS MAN

You Can't make One Delivery Wagon do the Work of Two

Adequate Telephone Service Demands More Lines When One Line is Overloaded

Satisfactory telephone service cannot be expected if you have more business than your present telephone facilities will handle. You may not have thought of it, many customers do not, but a telephone line has its limitations.

When trade outgrows the capacity of one delivery wagon, a retail merchant puts on a second. A jobber puts on two trucks when one is incapable of delivering his sales. A railroad expands to two or more tracks as the volume of traffic increases.

The same rule governs the use of the telephone. If you have but one line and keep it busy with outgoing calls, no one can call you. Nor can every one talk to you who may want to do so if there are more calls for you than one line will serve.

A recent actual experience will, perhaps, best illustrate the proposition:—A prominent business man, (No. 1), called up a business house and the man, (No. 2), to whom he wished to speak was out. Word was left asking that No. 2 call up No. 1 as soon as he (No. 2) came in. No. 2 made faithful effort to do this, calling for No. 1 five different times, and each time the line was "busy." When No. 1 was told later of this vain effort to reach him on a matter of importance to himself, he exclaimed, "We have a telephone. Why can't we be called?" It took a representative of the telephone company some time to convince him that the trouble was due to an overload of business on his one line. He was finally convinced, however, and now two lines give him adequate service.

If it is important for your customers to reach you by telephone, it is important for you to supply the necessary facilities.

PATENT WAR AGAINST BRITAIN

Germany and United States May Engage in It—The Kaiser's New Yacht.

Berlin, Aug. 2.—A German-American anti-English patent alliance will apparently be the outcome of the hardships which Germany and America claim are inflicted upon them by the new English patent law, which goes into force on August 23. This law compels the exploitation in England of patents taken out in England; in other words, a patented article in England must be manufactured in that country.

The German Industrial Union, which recently presented a petition to the imperial chancery asking that diplomatic measures be taken to secure a modification of the law, has received inquiries from an influential American firm asking whether German manufacturers are prepared to join forces with their American colleagues in a retaliatory patent campaign against England.

The German Industrial Union is not averse to this suggestion, since it is realized that a war of reprisals waged by Germany against England, and which chance of being effective, because the number of German patents registered in England far exceeds the number of English patents registered here. The relentless cancelling of unexploited English patents in Germany, and American simultaneously would, it is felt, prove a more adequate weapon against the English law.

The Kaiser's new yacht, which is to be built in a German shipyard, will be a replica of the American yacht the interior fittings will be of the simplest description, as the Emperor rarely entertains upon his racing yacht.

To the two step a place of special honor was accorded at the first international congress of dancing teachers, which was opened here this week. Six hundred dancing teachers from all countries were in attendance, including five from the United States. An American dancing master gave an opening lesson to the congress by initiating a large international class into the mysteries of the two-step to the strains of "Hiawatha." The teachers took up this dance enthusiastically and all declared it likely to oust older favorites in Europe.

One of the aims of the congress was to facilitate the international standardization of leading dances so that all dancers would feel at home in all ball rooms, since only one method will prevail.

GATOR SCARE FOR BATHERS.

New London, Conn., July 31.—No more stunning bathing costumes are in evidence along the Niantic River, and are not likely to be until a young alligator has been fished out of the depths of this popular stream, dead or alive. At Golden Spur, one of the city's recreation parks, a pair of gators were placed on exhibition in a cage this week, and one of them, plunging for a swim, made his escape to the river while the park keeper was napping. Messengers were dispatched to the various camps shore notifying bathers to keep their eyes peeled for the reptile. At last accounts the alligator was still enjoying his liberty.

CUPID STRETCHES HANDS ACROSS SEA

International Romance Worked Out in India, Europe and America.

Philadelphia, July 31.—An international romance in which India, Europe and America are involved has its culmination tonight in the marriage of Marie A. Albrecht, a young and pretty musician, to Alfred Fieldbrane, the son of a well-known Presbyterian minister in the east. Two years ago neither of the contracting parties knew each other. One was a native of Dantzig, Prussia, and the other of India. But the blind god who rules lovers' destinies, or else "a spirit of foreordination," as the pair laughingly remarked last night, was the means of bringing them together.

The groom is the eldest son of Rev. Isaac Fieldbrane, a prominent Presbyterian minister of Allahabad, India. He came to this country with his brother a little less than two years ago. The elder brother, following in the footsteps of his father, is active in religious work and became affiliated with the Y. M. C. A. movement in Springfield, Mass., where he is a student. While visiting his younger brother in this city last fall, he met Miss Albrecht, who had come to America and curiously enough had picked out the same boarding place.

Love Again.

An intimacy sprang up between the two, which by the time Alfred had decided to go to Massachusetts, developed into love on his part, Miss Albrecht, however, would not give him "yes," for an answer, and her duties as a companion to an elderly lady requiring her to go abroad for several months she sailed for the continent, without becoming engaged to him.

Then ensued a correspondence which kept up without a break for nine months and to which almost every prominent musical Europe contributed its postmark. At every stop Miss Albrecht received a letter and finally won over by his assiduous wooing, she sailed for America once more with time to be met by her affianced husband.

Alfred's brother, who is an expert photographer in the employ of C. H. Overton, a prominent Philadelphia artist, prevailed upon Mr. Overton to allow his brother to be married for several months in his house. Arrangements were accordingly made to have Rev. J. B. Laird, of the Presbyterian Church, of Frankfort, tie the nuptial knot, and after a reception to their friends the young couple started on a tour of the west on their honeymoon, and will settle in Chicago for the winter.

Miss Albrecht is a highly educated woman, speaking five languages besides being an excellent singer, and teacher of vocal music. Mr. Fieldbrane comes of pure East Indian blood and is a member of the highest caste. His family have been Christianized for four generations.

MARQUETTE CARS IDLE.

Detroit, Aug. 1.—There are at present 4,000 idle freight cars on the side tracks and in the terminals of the Pere Marquette system in Michigan. In addition, some freight cars are out of use in the Ludington, Wisconsin service. The total idle equipment means an investment of more than $2,000,000 which is earning no revenue. A big fall business is looked for, however.

The cornerstone of St. Miller Sunday school building, Kensington, was laid yesterday by John Knox.

WIRE-TAPPERS IN NEW GAME

Stuck a $15,000 Victim—Hotel Man Induced to Bet on a Cinch.

New York, Aug. 2.—Frederick Gondolf, is a prisoner at police headquarters, charged with separating Frederick Holmagen, proprietor of the St. Charles Hotel in Scranton, Pa., from $15,000 by means of a fake prize-fight which followed stories of wealth to be made on timber lands in Tennessee.

The police are on the trail of a man, known to them as "Deafy" Morris, and other members of a gang, who are declared to have conceived a new scheme to rob the unwary. This same gang, it is said, formerly operated the wire-tapping game, but since that scheme has been so thoroughly exposed, they have resorted to men of muscles, who are willing to obey orders to earn their livelihood.

Holzagen is one of the solid business men of his home city. He is a man who is looked up to and whose opinion on financial questions is sought. Just how the swindlers got information concerning his bank account and his desire for investments which looked good, and also his love for sport, has not been brought out.

Hunted the Victim.

A week or two ago a man who registered as "Charles Weber, New York," began to make himself agreeable to the guests and proprietor of the Scranton hotel. He said he represented wholesale houses in New York and he always asked for the best hotel furnished.

When he had ingratiated himself in the good opinion of Landlord Holzagen, he began to talk of a rare chance to make money in Tennessee timber lands. He told the hotel keeper of a New York friend named Lane who was interested in the property, and persuaded Mr. Holzagen to come to this city to see Lane. Lane was most businesslike. He talked about millions as most men talk about dollars.

"Most of our backers are out of the city on their yachts or are travelling abroad," Lane told the hotel keeper. "However," he added, "old man Cuddey and his son are at Bridgeport, and we can go there to see him."

Holzagen and his new friends were in Bridgeport next day, where they met "Cuddey," a be-whiskered old chap and his son, Cuddey, as he insisted on being called, was more interested in sporting events than investments. He said the Tennessee Timber Company could wait, but that he had brought along a young prize-fighter from the west who could lick his weight in wild cats. He said his man would fight a Boston chap named Collins in a private house in the Back Bay section that night.

Bet His $15,000.

"Better come and see the fun," he suggested to Holzagen. "Come on," persuaded Lane. "Collins will win that fight. It's a cinch. Cuddey and his son, it's a cinch. $120,000 on the match. Make a bet on Collins and you can't lose."

So Holzagen drew a check for $5,000 and cashed it in Bridgeport. He gave the money to Lane to bet for him and then journeyed to Boston.

A footman in livery opened the door of the house where the fight was to take place, and the hotel keeper was ushered into a large rear room. Collins was whipped and Holzagen lost his $5,000 to the old man and his son, who said they had won $120,000 on the bout. Collins told the hotel keeper he was knocked out by a

In Honor of Four Presidents

New York, August 1.—Cy Young, the only major league baseball player who has voted for four presidents and scored a no-hit shut-out in honor of each, is, at the age of forty-one, the athletic wonder of the twentieth century.

"Baseball has seen many phenomena," said his manager, the veteran Jim McQuire, "but there is no pitcher at present, or has there been in the past, to match Young's record. It may take one hundred years before there is another Young; there may never be another like him."

Nineteen Years.

Now in his nineteenth year of continued service in the best baseball set, Young today is a better, as sure and more resourceful pitcher than he was in his first two seasons of activity. But from the first day he left his farm in Tuscarawas county, O., to join Pat Tebeau's Cleveland team Young has been an unequalled success.

In all the eighteen years he has been before the public he has never suffered a disastrous season. He was the mainstay of Pat Tebeau's pitching staff when the Spiders, who were composed of such aggressive players as Burkett, McKean, McKean, Childs and Wallace, were one of the most dreaded baseball combinations in the country. Subsequently he went to St. Louis when Owner Robson transferred his franchise from Cleveland to the Mound City.

Between the Eel and Gallagher

In discussing the recent Blue Ribbon meet in Detroit Cook, of the Detroit Free Press, says:

While you are talking of pacers and fawning Baron Grattan and deploring the appearance of Blacklock, do not overlook Gallagher, one of the great pacers that ever scored for the west. Generally referred to as the old fellow—but he is only 9 and absolutely sound—Gallagher showed them a thing or two when on Thursday he equaled his record.

Just a little mismanagement or he surely would have won the race, one of the greatest in the annals of the turf.

After Gallagher had won the second heat in 2:03 1-2, the mistake was made with him. Blacklock got away in the third heat and Gallagher stepped to the quarter in 30 seconds, the half in 1:00 1-4, and the three quarters in 1:31. That was enough to kill any horse, even Minor Heir when on his good behavior. Gallagher stuck to it and did his best in the last quarter, but the early exertion told on him, and the Baron Grattan, coming from behind with a fine brush, beat him a neck.

Cost the Race.

Gallagher silenced the Blacklock party most effectively by his exhibition and cost himself the race. Otherwise it is believed he would have beaten Baron Grattan.

The Eel has wrested the Canadian championship from Gallagher, but he is not the sort of a horse the Royal Raidydyk gelding is. In the fall of 1903 Gallagher burst into fame by winning at Dover N. H., in 2:09 1-4. He was named in a splendid race in 1904 and won. That year John M. was his rival and their meetings were sensational. Sold for export he was brought back in the fall of 1906 and now is owned by Arthur Brown, of Lexington, who thinks he can beat any pacer in the world.

CURRENT SPORTING GOSSIP

BY SOUTHPAW

WHO WAS the London sportsman who said that W. O. B. stood for "Welcome Old Boys' Association"? With the bowlers going and the Old Boys coming London can be correctly said to have been in the running coming and going.

THE CANADIAN BETTOR at the recent Blue Ribbon meet who remarked that The Eel was a slippery thing evidently had in mind the ease with which his roll of bank notes found a resting-place in the bookmaker's teaze.

SMALL WONDER that London dealers ran out of Irish flags last week. Didn't Gallagher, heavily backed by Canadian coin, come home on the bit at the Blue Ribbon meeting.

BETWEEN ROOTING for the Detroit Tigers and welcoming the Old Boys, London citizens find their time fully occupied. These are pleasant tasks, though, and everybody wears a smile like a headlight.

THE DETROIT FANS don't exactly relish the idea of Ty Cobb laying out even for a day to get married, just at this particular time, when his mean games, and games mean pennants. Dan Cupid, however, will not be denied, fans or no fans.

LONDON FANS WILL REGRET to hear that Fred Goldsmith ("Goldie"), once the greatest slab artist of them all, did not accompany his family to London on the C. P. R. special yesterday. Goldsmith is now a traveller out of Philadelphia.

TIME WAS WHEN GOLDIE had everything in the baseball firmament beaten to a frazzle, and more, and so great was London confidence in his prowess as a pitcher that when he pitched a lost game—as the best of them will at times—the opinion was offered that "Goldie must have been sick."

SOMETHING HAS GONE WRONG in Tin Can Alley. The Clarence Street Lions haven't won a game of baseball for a whole day or two. Neither have we received word of the doings of the Terrible Cubs, nor yet the Teddy Bears. Probably the players are busy celebrating Old Boys' week.

ONE OF THE YOUNG "London Old Boys" to arrive yesterday from across the line was Billy Brock, the clever basketball player. Bill was chewing gum and smiling as of yore. "They can't tell me that little old London isn't the best on the map," said he, "for I know better."

HAMILTON HADNT exactly arrived at the Old Boy stars yet, but then it sometimes has little celebrations peculiarly Hamiltonian, as witness the home-coming of Bobby Kerr. Between Bobby and "Bobs" Hamilton is being kept wildly enthusiastic.

TWO BATTLES are scheduled for this morning in the East End League, and prospective spectators are asked to remember that the organization is not a charitable institution. At a recent east end session something like $4 was collected out of a total of over 1,400 people.

TWO GOOD GAMES
AT SPRINGBANKSt. John's Defeat the Greys
And Blues Take Crescents
Into Camp.

Before a good crowd on Saturday, the St. Johns won from the Greys by a score of 9 to 4. The game was very good. George, of the St. Johns, played a strong game. Dinsmore pitched for a while, and was hit pretty hard, and Clark, who succeeded him, did not fare much better. Daniels finished the game in the box. Brodison was strong at all times.

The score: R. Greys 0 0 2 2 0 0—2
St. Johns 3 0 2 0 2 0—9
Batteries—St. Johns, Brodison and Gillies; Greys, Dinsmore, Clark, Daniels and Moisse and Daniels.

The Second Game.

In the second game the Blues won from the Crescents by a score of 13 to 3. The game was not as slow as the scoring indicates. Fast plays were made on both sides, the Blues working in three double plays. Richardson pitched a strong game for the winners, and he was ably supported by McKenna. "Finney" Rockwood tickled the spectators by his acting of the part of Hughes Jennings on the coaching line. Nicholls played like Ty Cobb, both at bat and in the field. Clark and Pirie also showed up well. Costello, the Blues' new third baseman, was all to the good. For the Crescents, Lee, of first, and Beech played well. Lee went into the box for the Crescents, and was hit hard, and Maker, who succeeded him, did well.

The score: R. Blues 2 3 4 4 0 0 0 0—13
Crescents 0 1 0 2 0 0 0 0—3
Batteries—Blues, Richardson and McKenna; Crescents, Langley, Baker, and Stinson and Beech. Umpire—Corcoran.

SHORTSTOP BUSH
WONDERFUL PLAYER

Indianapolis, August 1.—Is Shortstop Owen Bush, of the Indianapolis team worth $10,000 to a major league club? That is a question propounded by a St. Louis writer, who is of the opinion that he is. The St. Louis National league club is told to go down in its pockets and pay the cool ten thousand for the youngster, it being said that the Indianapolis club asks that much for him.

Bush probably will be a member of a major league club next year, and the club offering the highest price will get him. The management of the Indianapolis club will not stand in the way of any player who has a chance to better his condition.

With the exception of the $11,000 paid by the New York Giants for Pitcher Marquard never has as much as $10,000 been paid for a minor league player, but there have been few sensations in the minor leagues the equal of the Indianapolis speed marvel.

If it were known that Bush could play the same game in one of the big leagues that he has played in the American Association, he would be dirt cheap at the sum named. He would be cheap at any price.

GOOD AND POOR
IN EAST ENDSeveral Kinds of Baseball
Dished Up on Saturday at Queen's Park.

The first game at the Queen's Park Saturday afternoon was not quite up to the usual standard of the league. The Stars shut the Anchors out, although they secured eight runs, five of which were brought home in the sixth inning.

In that awful sixth the runs were made on one hit, three errors, two players hit by a pitched ball, a wild pitch, a passed ball, a sacrifice hit and the catcher dropped the third strike. Clark pitched a good game, but his support was bad. Hughes put up an exceptional game, allowing but two hits during the seven innings.

Hosie played a star game on second base, having four strokes to his credit in the put out column and three in the assist. Clucker Dunn was again allowed to play, and it is thought that he will go through the season as far as the executive is concerned.

The following was the box score:

Rambler's Win.

The second game, in which the Ramblers defeated the Somervilles 8 to 3, was much better than the first one. By clever hitting in the third inning the victors won the game. They slugged out seven hits and scattered home with six runs. There was but one error out of a number of difficult chances.

Donohue played a fine game at short, having three put outs and six assists. A. Fitzmaurice, the willow, batted beautifully. He made a single, a two-bagger and a three base hit, of which he robbed himself by not touching the first bag. The umpire was on the job and caught him. He was called out.

Although Cochrane was given some bad chances, he managed to stack up thirteen put outs on the first base.

Heathfield pitched a splendid game until the eighth inning, allowing but three hits in the previous seven innings.

KEENE SHOWS
SPLENDID COLTHilarious, One of His Stable, Takes Rich Stake Race
at Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 1.—James R. Keene today added another stake to his already long list when his grand colt, Hilarious, easily won the United States Hotel stakes, six furlongs, with $8,250, to the winner. H. P. Whitney's Bobbin was second, with Mr. Keene's other entry, Selectman, third. Hilarious is now supposed to be the best 3-year-old in the Saratoga stable.

His victory today was most impressive, although he was receiving weight from Edward. The latter jumped off in front and took a lead of a length and a half, with Bobbin next and Hilarious third, close up. This order remained unchanged to the stretch, where the fast pace began to tell on Edward and Bobbin, and then Hilarious, coming to the outside, moved up with a rush and won by two lengths.

Bobbin was a length and a half before Selectman, with Edward fourth a head away. Edward was slightly interfered with at the furlong pole by Bobbin, but it is doubtful if the interference had any effect on the result.

TWO EXCELLENT GAMES

The C. P. C. team made a strong bid for victory in the sixth inning of the second game, but the Stars had too much of a lead to overcome.

The Royals had little trouble in taking the first contest, scoring five runs in the second inning and adding five more runs during the remainder of the game.

The scores:
First game—R. H. E.

BETTER FOR BELMONT

Proposal to Make Continuation School—Raise the Grade.

Belmont, Aug. 1.—A mass meeting of the ratepayers of Belmont school section was held on Friday evening, when James Campbell in the chair, and Mr. Allen Barr secretary pro tem.

Mr. W. Atkins, Inspector of Elgin County, addressed the meeting on the feasibility of the formation of a continuation school, placing Belmont school in Grade A, and carrying on high school work. He spoke strongly of the efficiency of Miss McKenzie as principal of Belmont public school.

After J. S. Cousins, C. O. Luton, W. H. Odell, John Daves and Rev. R. H. Liverance, B. D., had spoken, the decision of the meeting was 24 to 12, in favor of a continuation school. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Atkins for the lucid manner in which he set forth the advisability of the change.

Old Boys Register in Big Crowds Visitors From Many Places Present

List of Those Who Have Thus Far Placed Signatures on City Hall Books.

The city hall arcade presented a busy scene last evening, and the clerks who are taking the names of the visiting Old Boys were kept jumping until the books were closed at 10 o'clock.

At that time Secretary McCann stated to The Advertiser that the number of Old Boys in the city was far larger than at any previous reunion on the first day.

This looks well, and every train that comes in to the city bears its Old Boys and Girls, who are coming to attend the celebration.

At the city hall it was rumored that several hundred from Cleveland and other American cities, who were coming by water, were delayed at Port Stanley and other ports owing to the law which does not allow the trains to run on Sunday.

At Port Stanley The Advertiser man was informed that no visitors were there.

Thousands of the Old Boys who have arrived have not as yet registered, and will not do so until today, when they come down for the procession.

HAIR SLAUGHTER
KILLED BY NEGLIGENCE.

Hair must have nourishment or die. If it does not have proper nourishment it will lose its vitality, grow weak, and become as easy prey to the ravages of the vicious and destructive germs of dandruff.

Parisian Sage is a hair nourisher; it is the result of sincere study and experiment by one of the world's leading scientists.

It should be used regularly as a hair dressing by everyone with healthy hair, because it never fails to prevent dandruff, falling hair, or any scalp disease.

But Parisian Sage is not only a preventive it is a certain cure for dandruff; it stops itching of the scalp instantly; it makes hair grow thick and luxuriant. It is especially in demand by ladies, because it makes the hair beautiful, soft and fluffy. W. T. Strong, the druggist, sells it under a positive guarantee to do all that is claimed for it, or money back, 50 cents for a large bottle.

Big Band Concert in the Armories

The grand band concert in the armories Saturday night given by the Seventh Regiment Band and the Ninety-First Highlanders band from Hamilton was a splendid success.

The attendance was not as large as the merits of the concert deserved, but the hot weather alone was to blame for the small crowd.

The bulk of the work fell on the Highlanders, and the musicians under the leadership of Bandmaster Stares fully sustained the band's reputation as one of the best concert organizations in Canada.

The programme was a varied one, and embraced music of different schools, but was all rendered in the same capable manner. It pleased the audience immensely, and the most generous applause was given the band.

Miss Stares, the winsome daughter of the bandmaster, was the vocalist of the occasion, and added to her already long list of triumphs. She possesses a voice of excellent quality and range, and sings with real musical interpretation. Her singing was a real treat.

The Seventh band did what fell to its lot splendidly, and Bandmaster Slater was highly complimented on the good work of his musicians.

A Special Old Boys' Sunday Service

A special Old Boys' musical service was given last evening in the Dundas Centre Methodist Church, by a choir organized from the old-time singers.

When the idea of a 1908 celebration took definite form the organist of the Dundas Centre Church began the movement to have the special Old Boys' Sunday musical service.

Accordingly many old-time singers were located and were requested to assist in making the affair a success.

They responded readily, with the result that one of the best programmes ever given in a local church was carried out last evening.

The choir gallery did not have accommodation for the immense choir and the swell of voices was beautiful. An Old Boys' quartette composed of Messrs. Harry Lewis, Wm. Skinner, G. H. Zwicker, and Dr. Zeigler, rendered many numbers in splendid voice. Mr. J. Farnell Morris presided at the organ.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. F. H. Sanderson, D.D., of Marion, Iowa. He is a former Londoner.

"BOBS" CANCELS TORONTO TRIP

Great Preparations at the Queen City for Reception Go for Naught.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—General regret was expressed in Toronto at the inability of Lord Roberts to visit this city. Many business places had been decorated in his honor and great preparations were being made for his reception. Tonight the order for the parade of the city troops was cancelled by General Cotton, and the entire programme will be given up.

Mayor Oliver telegraphed the city's regrets tonight to Earl Roberts at Montreal. It is hardly likely the news of his illness will reach outlying portions of the province in time to prevent a large influx of people here to-morrow.

BOSTON AGAIN DEFEATS DETROIT

Detroit, Aug. 2.—Boston took another fall out of Detroit today, defeating the champions 8 to 4.

JOHN S. BARNARD

of whom one was Calvin, the father of Mrs. Westlake. Calvin married Elizabeth Schram, by whom he had four sons and nine daughters. The only surviving children are Burleigh Burch, of Westminster, and Calvin Burch, near Elaine, Mich.

After the war, the Burch family disposed of its holdings, which are now the site of the state capital at Albany. They moved to Canada and settled where Woodstock is now located. Later they came to Middlesex, and took up 600 acres of land in Westminster Township, which was then an almost unbroken forest. Squire Burch still lives on the old homestead. Mrs. Westlake was twice married, her first husband being Mr. Ayers, at one time warden of the county. She was married again in 1874 to Capt. Francis Westlake, of this city, who died a number of years ago. She leaves no children. She had reached the great age of 88 years.

DENIES FARM HAND'S STORY
Solmskey's Charges Flatly Contradicted by Mr. Percy Seabrook

Mr Percy Seabrook, of Komoka, who is one of the most prominent and respected farmers of Lobo Township, gives a point-blank denial to the story, told by a farmhand named Solmskey, who claims to have been the victim of unmerited ill-usage while in Mr Seabrook's employ.

It is true that Mr. Seabrook struck Solmskey, but he says it was because of abusive language used in the presence of ladies. Solmskey was well-fed and otherwise well-treated, and was not overworked. His story does not seem to be true.

The reason the Gourlay piano is not so susceptible to weather changes as other makes of instruments is owing to the adoption of the non-varying endwood pine block or wrestling plank system, this improvement being based on the well-known fact that wood cannot swell or shrink lengthwise of its grain. The Gourlay piano is so constructed that it will last for years and that it will retain its tone quality however hard the service may be required.

Toronto Visitors.
On the train also were many Tosociation was not well organized, so a number of the Toronto Old Boys arranged with the Buffalo association to come with them. Every train brought in a large number of them and it was impossible to get their names.

Among the Toronto boys who made the trip were Mr. and Mrs. A. G. El-

The Buffalo boys are out for a time, and have already begun to make the city feel their presence. They are quartered at the Dominion House and are meeting their friends.

The Buffalo degree, a very interesting secret degree, will be conferred upon all old friends who will call on the Buffalo boys at the hotel. It is a daisy degree and well worth taking.
It is a continuous performance.

There were few incidents of note on the trip up. Every one of the passengers was in the best of humor and seemed delighted at the splendid programme that the home guard had prepared for them.

"Land
o' Cakes"

"Land o' Cakes" is a name
frequently given to Scotland where meal cakes form an important article of diet. The phrase was made famous by Robert Burns in 1789, in his poem On Captain Grose's Paragrinations Through Scotland, which commences with the following lines:

"Hear, 'Land-o'-Cakes an'
brither Scots,
Frae Maidenkirik to Johnny Groat's."

It might truly be said that London is a "Land of Biscuits," for in no other city is such a number of delicious Tea Biscuits made.

The reliable and absolutely pure "Purity" leads all the baking powders and is in great favor by the housewives of the city. Get a supply for the OLD

Vocalists of Other Days Appear To Be Improving
With Age.

The old-time choir, composed of the best singers of the church, of the city yesterday joined with the members of their congregations in extending a warm welcome to the visiting Old Boys, and many kind words were expressed in the different pulpits.

Every church in the city was well filled, and many of the pews were occupied by Old Boys who had not been to church in London for many a day.
Many old-time friends who had not seen each other for years met in the churches, and there was a genuine and hearty welcome in the hand-clasps which followed.

St. Andrew's Church was crowded in the morning, when Rev. A. Meldrum, B. D., of Cleveland, preached an excellent sermon, from Luke, ix, 47:
"He steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem."

"In the very centre of every great life," said Rev. Mr. Meldrum, "there is some great purpose, which sways all who come within its power. It is the purpose of a man that determines his influence. As a man thinketh, so he is.
Many men are engrossed with the objective, and to them one motive is years ago, rendered an excellent programme at the First Methodist Church yesterday afternoon. The edifice was crowded to the doors and many were unable to obtain admission.

The music was beautiful, and the old singers proved that they are not by any means out of the running, but instead that they improve with time.
Mr. A. D. Jordan played the opening voluntarie. The choir was conducted by Mr. St. John Hyttenrauch in a very able manner.

It was originally intended that Mr.
Eph. Plummer, of New York, should accompany the choir, but as he was unable to attend the reunion, Mr. Wm.
Ellis presided at the organ for the remainder of the recital.

The postlude was played by Dr. F.
Glynn Ellis.

The services were conducted by Rev. W. L. Rutledge, the pastor of the First Methodist Church.

Rev. G. B. Sage, of St. George's Episcopal Church, gave a short welcoming address, in which he recalled
many prominent persons of past days.
He spoke of the old buildings and the churches with those prominent in the past. The late Dean Innes, Rev.
Father Tierman and others, were commented on.

Rev. A. B. Meldrum, D. D., a Presbyterian divine from Cleveland, also addressed the congregation. Although he was not a London Old Boy he was a Canadian, having been born in Huron County. His witty remarks brought forth much applause and laughter. The same old Grand Trunk station is still here, he said, and reminds one more than anything else of the happy days many years ago. The same old spikes are there inches above the same old boards. He thought that it was the proper spirit to have the clergymen of all denominations assemble, as it weeds a spirit of unity among them.

Rev. E. B. Lancelotti, of the Dundas Centre Methodist Church, was also present.

The Programme.
The programme given by the veteran choristers was as follows:
Hymn—Before Jehovah's Awful
Throne
Anthem—We Praise Thee, O God.
Patriotic hymn.
Anthem—Glorious Is Thy Name.
Hymn—Lead, Kindly Light.
Home, Sweet Home.
God Save the King.
Benediction was then given by Rev.
Mr. Rutledge, after which the post-lude was played by Dr. Ellis.

Those Who Took Part.
Those who took part in the old-time choir were: Mrs. John Jones,
Mrs. Olmstead, Mrs. McCormack, Mrs.

McCombs, Mrs. Geo. Hooper, Mrs. Jas.

gan lived on Trafalgar street, and wore a red vest which he proudly told enquirers signified blood.

Oh for the days, when there was a king on Gallows Green, the hanging of a neighbor's dog on Trafalgar street, near Adelaide, giving the place its name.

All have long since passed away.
Not a trace of the old Conroy homestead is to be met with. Henry Faunt, who lived on Nelson street, and was the watchman at Queen's Park, formerly Salter's Grove, has gone to his reward. So has old Phil Conroy, so has Dan McNeill, so has Hugh Rose, and his ever lovable, estimable wife; so has old Henry Winnett, father of the present generation of Winnett's known as boiler-makers to most Londoners.

The Old Boys notice the change.
They sigh for the good old days. They remember old Mickey Ryan, who once lived on Ottawa avenue, now South street.

But one or two families remain in the whole south end as finger posts.
The Johnstons, once the most prominent family on William street south, have been broken. Some are living in the city, some have crossed the great divide, some are in foreign lands.
It's all in the course of events. Time works wonders. Improvements are noticeable to some eyes in the sites of the London rolling mills and the McClary Manufacturing Company. To other eyes things look different. It's all in the way you look at it.

held on the lawn of St. Mary's Church
