The admission fee to be charged at the Western Fair this year still stands unsettled

The decision was arrived at meeting of the board this morning however, to have the president of the board, J. H. Saunders, appoint a committee from among the members of the board to meet and consult with the city council regarding the question, and report back a recommendation to the board. Various members of the board, in the midst of the discussion on the subject, expressed the opinion that the board could not possibly operate successfully on the basis of a 250 admission fee throughout the entire period of the Fair unless the city council was prepared to lend its support by way of a substantial grant to help out with a deficit in the board's funds at the conclusion of the exhibition. This stand was firmly reiterated by practically the entire

James Wheaton thought it best to James Wheaton thought it best to have it termed "moral support to the extent of guaranteeing a grant" to cover the board's deficit as the result of the 25-cent admission, always supposing, of course, that there would be a deficit.

The expression of opinion on this point was then given by the members who voted unanimously in favor o such a step being taken. President Saunders expressed the board's vie of the whole question, in remarking that "if the city council would guar-antee the board a grant of $5,000 in case of a deficit, that the board was prepared and willing to take a chance and run this year's Fair on a straight 25-cent admission fee.

Ontario Cities, With Ottawa at Top.

London has an average per capita income assessment of $85 and ranks third among the cities of Ontario, according to the assessment commissioner. Toronto has an average as according to the assessment commissioner. Toronto has an average assessment of $137, and Ottawa has a mark of $113. The lowest figure on the list is Woodstock with $18.

The reason that Ottawa is so high is the large number of government employees there and the same thing applies to Toronto. SAYS DOUGLASS

DUTY OF PARENTS

Ald. Douglass, chairman of the finance committee, while in favor of an annual physical examination of all school children, as suggested by the city medical officer, Dr. W. S. Downham, considers that the expense involved is out of proportion to the good that would be achieved.

"The number of children," he states, "who are in actual need of this service is but a very small proportion of all children. Then, too, if a medical officer for the school board were appointed, there would always be the difficulty met with wherever It is put into practice that his statements about a child are tested out by the family physician before the parents will accept it.

"This means that the work is being duplicated. What is really needed is an education for all parents hat their boys and girls need to be very carefully watched all through their growing period, and that they should have if not a yearly examina-tion, then at least an examination every three or four years. Victoria Hospital, which is the city hospital, Corbierre Has Not Been Heard of Since November Last.

Hospital, which is the city nospital, has capable suggeons and physicians, who are paid to make diagnoses and give treatment in the free clinics, and parents might well make more use of this civic service.

The work could not be any more efficiently done by a man appointed to the school board. A healthy child is the greatest asset that any city or country can have, and no one knows that better than a medical man. At the same time, I believe that the expense of a medical officer to give his whole time to the children in the seldom better than the program staged today by the committee of M's for the weekly Kiwanis meeting. Commencing with a band, the committee arranged its share of the spe-cial summer meeting like a continuous vaudeville performance something doing every minute and a surprise every time the clock ticked.

They had the assistance of Charlie Wheeler of the Wheeler brothers, appearing at Loew's, in an impersonation of Walter C. Kimball, secretary for Senator Lafollette, which resulted in a rousing demonstration of Canadianism. The pseudo secretary assailed Canada as a land of nine month's winter and three month's cold and the Kiwanis following this. They had the assistance of Charlie cold, and the Kiwanis, following this mock charge, led by Albert Murphy, made it plain that whatever the cl mate, Canada was still 'beloved,

More serious object behind the committee's efforts was the raising of funds for a special outing for the patients at Westminster Hospital, Energetic Swimmer Loses Part and in addition to providing one of the best programs of the season, they themselves contributed a check for $40 for this object. Kiwanian McDonaid, local manager of Dowlers, asked to speak on the business he represented, disguised a brief sttaement on the progress of the clothing industry in Canada, in an exceptionally humorous and witty address.

The fun started with the soup, when the committee's band gave several numbers in the mode of the McClary's bazoo band. John McHale was the central figure in the next episode, a mock altercation with the waiter, which resulted in the rapid appearance of the head waiter, a headlong flight of both participants from the dining-room, loud booming and banging from the rear premises of the Tecumseh House, and the hurried summoning of doctors and unof the Tecumseh House, and the hur-ried summoning of doctors and undertaker. BOARD OF EDUCATION BACKS INVESTIGATION

Whole Matter Brought Up in Report of General

CITIZENS INQUIRE

Advocate Employing Lady Bookkeeper For Secretary Tanner's Office.

Dr. Brittain survey for the city educational department, advocated by Trustee Dr. A. J. Grant, at the month ist evening, will be made at an early date. Survey work, by a special committee, has already been made in the executive offices of the board, and Dr. Grant's motion towards an investigaon by the Municipal Research Bur eau and Dr. Brittain made some headway last night.

The whole matter was first brought up near the conclusion of the session in the report of the general survey and accounting committee which was appointed some weeks ago. Trustee pinion of medical experts are divided on Dr. Glover's discovery. Roy Cairneross, who had accepted the chairmanship of the committee, gave wo recommendations from the comnittee meeting of Tuesday. Recommendation was first made by the committee for a lady bookkeeper or Secretary Tanner's office in order give that official aid which he has been asking for some time. The survey and accounting committee had checked over conditions in Mr. Tanenecked over conditions in Mr. Tan-ner's office and advocated further assistance for him. The recommenda-tion made little progress until Dr. Grant suggested that temporary as-sistance only be granted until the general survey question was acceded This proposal was greeted more

MARIE STODDART BRIGHTENS BILL

Vaudeville Star, Touring Marcus Loew's Circuit, Pleases Large Audience.

GRIPPING STORY

Marie Stoddart, in the midst of a short tour of the Marcus Loew circuit, brightened vastly the bill of entertainment for London treatregoers last evening. Fresh from Broadway shows, Miss Stoddart's little act was a big hit with patrons of Loew's, and she was given a spontaneous welcome from a house that was a quick, yet thorough judge of values. Prominent in "The Dancing Girl of 1923" and "The Sensations of 1923," Miss Stoddart has been in vaudeville for only four weeks. In August she opens with "The Passing Show" in New York City. A rather fascinating personality, a dual stage Miss Stoddart's act was the sensation also of the evening. Rather novel and thrilling were the Cause Of Resentment.

In the memorandum accompanying the original British invitation to Italy, Belgium and Japan to attend an inter-allied conference, the British government proposed that in the event of a German default the matter might be referred to the League of Nations or the Hague arbitration tribunal, thus lifting it out of the hands of the reparation commission. It was this prospect that caused so much resentment in France and gave M. Polncare a weapon with which to attack Premier Herriot.

The British prime minister's statement shows that the idea of reference to the league or The Hague has been dropped, and in its stead an endeavor was heling made to secure American.

A "Human Fly" was killed in New York as easily by falling from the McLarty block a from the Woolworth tower. The police should bar such performances. They do not do a parcicle of good to anybody. They do not add thing to human enlightenment. They may inspire small boys to emulate these foolish feats, with disastrous results. They create a morbid public taste similar to that of the crowds that gape at and half hope to see the beast snap its jaws.

CHAPTER 6—THE MORNING AFTER-1919 TO 1923.

Wars come to an end, but war expenses go on. They seem to grow like a prairie fire. They are just as hard to stop. In our last article we included our figures to the end of the fiscal year March 31, 1918. In this one

Canada, as elsewhere, by the great, long-suffering public, The vice of a sales tax, of a customs tariff, and all taxes we will concern ourselves with the records of the Dominion government during the following five fiscal years 1919 to 1923, inclusive.

We saw how 98.7 per cent of the great war expenses of Canada had been orrowed. How the public debt had increased to $1,863,000,000 gross, or have added more to the wealth of the world than $1,191,000,000 net. The net debt figure is arrived at by subtracting the o-called capital assets of the government from the gross debt. The war closed on November 11, 1918. Everyone expected expenditure Canada in this respect is given in the following figures, showing the total

This is what all the allied governments except England did. Demobilizais slow, and very expensive.

Nearly three billions of dollars were spent by the national governmen of Canada from 1918 to 1923 inclusive. That is equal to over $1,600,000 a day for the 1,825 days. With that vast sum the people of Canada could have purchased at face value all the capital stock of all the banks in Canada eight times over. Yes, they could have bought up at market value and paid cash for the greatest private railroad system in the world, the C. P. R., and still have had money enough left over to buy at fair market value every share of stock of every one of the sixteen banks in Canada today. But a sudden demobilization was apparently not emphasized.

WAR IS A LINGERING ILLNESS.

Let us look into these figures a little more. The war fever from the financial standpoint had not run its course when the war closed. Financially war is a long, lingering and expensive illness. In 1919, out of the total expenditure of $697,000,000, war and demobilization expenses took $446,-19,000; charges on the public debt took another $80,185,000; pensions cost $18,282,000; militia and military defence took another $3,253,000. These are merely the obvious war expenses. There are many others which are not included in ne figures above, that are not so obvious. The greatest war casualty of all has not been mentioned. I refer to the forced purchase by the governmissus, this is dandy beef, raised out amidst a ment of the Grand Trunk and the Canadian National railways. This will be discussed at greater length in a subsequent article. Here I mention only the leficit which the Canadian government has assumed as a direct result of the war-a financial war casualty. Still the deficit must be paid by the shake a fist beneath your jaw, and threaten to people of Canada, and as such it must be reckoned with. Direct taxes consist of income tax and excess profits taxes. We include in our figures also the rather small amounts contributed by banks, trust ompanies and insurance companies. Indirect taxes, on the other hand, are those commonly known as con-

have been considered equitable, fair and just by all students of finance and economics. In the main they cannot be shifted. They are paid by the ndividual or the corporation able to pay them.

Indirect taxes, on the other hand, while easier to collect than direct taxes, can be shifted. They are so arranged that the individual or corpora tion receiving the tax statement can hand that over to another individual to the man who puts his head in a lion's mouth- pay. Human nature is not anxious to pay a bill if that bill can be passed over to another. The principle, so far as taxation is concerned, is always "let George" pay it. That is why indirect taxes are in the final analysis paid by the ultimate consumer. They are called consumption taxes, because the consumer does pay them, and probably also because they consume one's money so rapidly. Few nations prefer by choice to travel the hard road. Indirect taxes are the easiest to levy and collect. That is why they are

The high cost of living, and the high taxes, have made a distinct impression on the population of Canada. It is true that 3,740,000 people entered Canada from 1901 to 1923. But for the years from 1915 on, the record shows that 419,000 people entered the country from the United States while 05,000 people left the country, returning to the United States. If we wish to include the year 1923, we find that 117,000 people entered the United clusively in The Advertiser. REDUCE COST OF LIVING IS PROBLEM.

But Canada's greatest financial problem now is how to revise her financial system so as to reduce cost of living and lighten the burdens now resting upon all her business.

For every $24 which Canada has raised in direct taxes from her people for the five fiscal years 1918 to 1923, inclusive, she has raised $76 by indirect taxes. Canada has raised more than three times as much by the indirect axation method as by the direct. She has followed the policy which allows he very large share of the taxes to be shifted until they are finally paid in

The vice of a sales tax, of a customs tariff, and all taxes upon business nd production, is that they tend to defeat their own purposes, because the more you tax, the more difficult it becomes to do business. A tax on business and production is like killing the goose while she is laying the eggs. The thing to tax is the eggs after they are laid. These can be reached by lirect taxes, such as property tax, income tax, and inheritance tax.

If the present system of Canadian taxation continues, not only will the verage man-the soldier-have fought the war in Europe, but he will pay to be cut down immediately. But "everyone" was wrong. Dominion Stores and Conboy Carriage Company Are Heavy Losers.

43 CARS DESTROYED

Canadian Press Despatch Toronto, July 10.-The Conboy Building on the Don road in this city, a short distance south of Queen street, jointly occupied by the Conboy Carriage Company and the Dominion Stores, Limited, was completely destroyed by fire this evening, entailing a total loss to building and contents of both firms estimated over $500,000. Members of both firms were only able to give rough estimates as to the loss tonight.

Only the four walls of the structure remain standing, with the framework of several automobiles suspended from steel girders on what remains of the third floor. There were 43 auto-mobiles in the building, most of which were reduced to ashes. Several were brand new cars, but the bulk of the cars belonged to people who were having new tops put on or receiving equippage such as was specialized in by the Conboy firm.

Isn't It a Shame That We Let Ourselves Be So Poverty-Stricken in Vocabulary When a World of Dictionaries Is Entirely Free?

Do you ever think about supplying your children with a large and inexhaustible vocabulary with which to carry on the business of life?

No? Yet I assure you that a mouthful of words is just as valuable an and over again without any reference whatever to their suitability. Which is as absurd as if we went to market in a point-lace evening gown or used a hundredth-horsepower engine to do one flea-power never have enough words to go around and so we overwork the ew we have and say "Sure" to everything with which we agree, and that gown is "Swell," and we went to a "swell" dinner, and that So-and-So had "swell" funeral, and we sure had a "swell" time in Europe last summer. And that the Himalaya Mountains are "wonderful," and that they make a "wonderful" nut sundae at the corner drug store. And that the baby has "cute" little ways, and that Niagara Falls is just too "cute" for

And the men and women who haven't enough words in their tongues to rover the ordinary decencies of conversation are not in the least ashamed of it and do not try to supply their deficiencies. yet they would be mortified to death if they didn't have a change of shirts, or enough spoons to set the table, or if they had to wear their working clothes to a ball.

Yet, obtuse as we are to the nature and quality of the words we use ourselves, we are keenly sensitive to the value of the words that others use in speaking to us, and there is no surer passport to our good graces than to have just the right things said to us in just the right words. To call a fat woman "fat," for instance, is to make a deadly enemy for life, but she purrs under your hand if you speak of her as "stately." Similarly, a living skeleton resents being described as "scrawny." but she beams upon the one who knows enough to say she is "willowy.

beams upon the one who knows enough to say she is "willowy."

To tell an author that the book or play upon which he has lawished his soul is "sweet" makes him want to murder you on or "tragic," or "vealistic," or a "little mosterpiece." No girl wants to be called "pretty" when she considers herself "spirituelle," or "vanish," or "dashing," and no young nam would ever forgive the one who called him "nuce," for there is invariably some adjective for which our vanity pants as the hart pants for the water book applied to us.

Furthermore, the possession of a large and flexible vocabulary helps to enable us to maintain cordial relations with our fellow creatures. The wordless are reduced to the extremity of blurting out impolitic truths be cause they have no smoke screen of phrases behind which to conceal their some happy term that will not belittle his judgment or offend his auditor, some happy term that will not belittle his judgment or offend his auditor, away beaming with grafification. A plentiful supply of words is a letter of credit in both busiand social circles. The man who is halting in speech, who stutters and stumbles, and who cannot present any sort of business proposition in a clear, concise and convincing way, seldom gets very far in the commercial world. It is the good talker who sells himself and is a go-getter.

And it is the interesting conversationalists, the people "whose words are like slaves spreading a carpet of glory before us," as Kipling puts it, whom we ask to dinner and of whose society we can never get enough. Not the poor, dumb, ones who are tongue-tied because they have no words to describe the things they have done and seen.

All of this being true, is it not a shame that we let our children go out into the world handicapped for a vocabulary, povertystricken in speech, when there are thousands upon thousands of words, each with a little meaning of its own, that may be had without money and without price? DOROTHY DIX.

By your words and the skill with which you use them you are judged. They are the hall-mark of culture or the lack of it.

Every one knows this, and yet with the whole dictionary free for the taking, most of us are so poverty-stricken that we have only two or three hundred words, which we use over and over again without any reference whatever to their searched. They did not remain in one place, but travelled across country until they regained the Mackenzie River, down which they slowly went, leaving it often to hunt game along the small streams that entered it, but shays returning to it again. Sometimes they chanced upon other wolves, usually in pairs; but there was no friendliness of intercourse displayed on either side, no gladness at meeting, no desire to return to pack formation. Several times they encountered solitary wolves. These were always males, and they were pressingly insistent on joining with One-Eve and his mate. This he repented, and when she stood shoulder to shoulder with him, bristling and showing her teeth, the aspiring solitary ones would back off, turn tail, and continue on their lonely way. One moonlight night, running through the quiet forest, One-Eye suddenly halted. His muzzle went up, his tail stiffened, and his nostrils dilated as he scented the air. One foot also he held up, after the manner of a dog. He was not satisfied, and he continued to smell the air, striving to under stand the message borne upon it to him. One care-is spind had satisfied his mate, and Then One-Eye, creeping and crawling, every sense on the alert, every hair radiating infinite suspicion, joined her. They stood side by side, watching and listening and smelling.

To their ears came the sounds of dogs wrangling and scuffling, the guttural cries of men, the sharper voices of scolding women and once

LOVE IN THE WILD.
The young leader snarled terribly, The young leader snarled terribly, but his snarl broke midmost into a tickling cough. Bleeding and coughling, already stricken, he sprang at the elder and fought while life faded from him, his legs going weak beneath him, the light of day dulling on his eyes, his blows and springs falling shorter and shorter.

And all the while the she-wolf sat on her haunches and smiled. She was made glad in vague ways by the battle, for this was the love making of the Wild, the sex tragedy of the natural world that was tragedy only to those that died. To those that survived it was not tragedy, but realization and achievement.

When the young leader lay in the snow and moved no more, One-Eye stalked over to the she-wolf. His carriage was one of mingled triumph and caution. He was plainly expectant of a rebuff, and he was just as plainly surprised when her teeth did not flash out at him in anger. For the first time she met him with a kindly manner. She sniffed noses with him, and even condescended to leap about and frisk and play with him in quite puppish fashion. And he, for all his gray but his snarl broke midmost into a growth of young spruce. Billy Hughes, formerly of Hamilton, trainer for Queen's football team and head trainer of the Olympic team, in which he tells in an amusing manner how he knocked out the middle-weight champion of Australia. Here is the tale of the 118-pound athlete:

"Just pulling into the Mersey and the boys and myself are feeling a lot better. We had quite an entertainment for the orphans of sailors and they had me boxing again. Never thought I'd start again. I boxed some light fellow three rounds and then a big guy named Saunders, 185 pounds, wanted to box and the gang wanted me to box him. Seeing that no one else would take him on, I consented. We were to box five rounds and the big bruiser started in to give me a lacing and he sure went after me. However, after the first round I started to get my fighting blood up and I went after him, finally stopping him in the third.

MEN! — IF YOU WANT EASY MONEY! A Startling Announcement Awaits You

ORTH Offers Saturday 136 SUITS Hobberlin-Tailored

C.O.D. Suits, Travellers' Models, Sample Models, Uncalled-For Suits at less than half regular prices.

We want to explain that our Mr. Orth went direct to Hobberlin's Tailoring House, and fought hard with the executive to allow these usual annual give-away suits to be sold in London instead of in the Hobberlin store at Toronto. We further say that this was an achieve= ment indeed for this store, as the House of Hobberlin have 1,200 agents from east to west in Canada. And for your store in London to get these, it means only one thing, that is, we must be the biggest agents in Canada. And thanks, men, to your previous Hobberlin orders, "we are." Now, these suits are an accumulation-from Nova Scotia to British Columbia agents-garments returned to Hobberlin as uncalled for suits, travellers' finest hand-tailored models (36 in number) and express company's C. O. D. garments-all to be offered at three ridiculously low prices:

56 SUITS UP TO $40 $19.75

These include Blue Indigo Serges; Light-weight Tweeds, Genuine English Mohair Summer Suits; Sizes 34 to 44.

36 SUITS UP TO $75 $37.50

These are Toronto exhibition models-also the finest grades of all-in traveller models. Sizes 34 to 44.

44 SUITS UP TO $50.00, $26.75

These include fine Blue Serges and Blue and Grey Cheviots-hair lines-Scotch Tweeds and extra fine fancy Worsteds. Sizes 34 to 44.

If you like money you'll buy a suit Saturday or Mon= day-because we allow you to keep over half the value in dollars. Yes, men, buy two suits-if you're wise.

Every suit guaranteed to give satisfaction, or come get your money. Alterations extra-and at cost to us.

Extra sales force at 8:30 Saturday. Be here first. No reserve—and you'll be sorry if you miss this offer, because the other fellow is going to take it up.

Jones, Easton, McCallum—Yesterday's trading was on a liberal scale most of the time, but the trend of the market was irregular, due to the fact that profi-taking was on a fairly liberal scale. Here and there the demand was good, but, as a rule, buyers were waiting for concessions. We have had, a strong and rising market for a month, the public interest has been entirely eliminated, or, at all events, largely reduced. Any setback which may occur will, of course, not interfere with the definite trend of the market.

The high spot of the next week in Port Stanley will be the big annual picnic of the retail grocers of London to be held on Wednesday, with such features as band music. Special sports, baseball, a mammoth baby show, run in conjunction with the $500 Northern Life investment bond competition, a night carnival, beach movies and a big distribution of free groceries.

The reputation of the grocers as summer entertainers is not something recently acquired. For years they have been famous for knowing how to celebrate. This year they promise a picnic with entertainment features far surpassing any other in

The Silk Answer To "What's Next?"

Crepeback Satin For

Fall Here, $3.29 Yard

One of fashion's demands for next season is Crepeback Satin, because satin can express the daytime dress and the evening draped gown-

supple, pliable and adaptable, it falls with natural grace into long drapes which produce the much desired irregular hem lines, into the height-giving panels, in princess molding, and in the circular swirl

Also its acceptance into our Silk Department is an assurance of un-nuestioned quality, even at this moderate price. Black, navy, congo brown, titian (the new light tan) and whirlpool blue. All pure silk and 38 inches, wide $3.29 yard

Here is summer needlework that is light enough to hold comfortably in warmer weather, small enough to be tucked into the arm of a wicker porch chair or carried about in a car, simple enough in design for unambitious summer afternoons, interesting, but not too distracting sewing to divert one's attentions from listening to the radio, or the reading of the season's best seller, or veranda conversation.

Art Needlework For the

There are Children's Dresses in dainty designs, stamped on organdy, splash voile and dotted Swiss organdy in pink, maize, lavender, sky and Nile green. A SALE OF PATTERN HATS Featuring a Reduction of One-Third

You will appreciate this opportunity to secure so early in the season a Pattern Hat at these end-of-the-season prices. They bear the names of such well-known designers as Gainsborough, Cavendish, Gage, Society and Fisk.

They charm by their variety as well as by their fashion-rightness. The new large hats are here—in such summertime materials as mohair, georgette, maline and faille. They are trimmed with French flowers, with variegated coin dots, tied ostrich, bead embroideries and angora. The prices range from $5.95 to $13.17, with numerous intermediate
