RISK)

overywhere

THE TRUE WITNESS AND CATHOLIC CHRONICLE IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY THE TRUE WITNESS P. & P. CO., Limited.

Bubson Street, Montreal, Camada. P. O. Box 1138.

BUBSON TION PRIOR—City of Montreal (delivered), $1.50; other parts of ganada, $1.00; United States, $1.00; Nowloundland, $1.00; Greet Britain, Ireland and France, $1.50; Belgium, Italy, Germany and Australia, $2.00. Terms, payable in for the cause of Ireland, we desire advance. All Communications should be addressed to the Managing Director, "True Wir-suss" P. & F. Co., Limited, P. O. Box 1138.

EPISCOPAL APPROBATION.

"If the English-speaking Catholics of Montreal and of this Province consulted their best interests, they would soon make of the "True Witness" one of the most prosperous and spowerful Catholic papers in this country. I heartily bless those who encourage this excellent work.

"†PAUL, Archbishop of Montreal."

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

> Lessons of Our Mail Bag.

A FRENCH PRIEST.—Gentlemen -Please find enclosed one dollar, and send for one year your excellent paper, the "True Witness," to

Your devoted,

AN ENGLISH CATHOLIC .- The Editor "True Witness," Montreal. Dear Sir,—Please send me a sample copy of your paper with rate of subscription per annum. R M

AN IRISH CATHOLIC .- The Edit-"True Witness," city. Dear Sir, -Please discontinue sending the "True Witness," as we do not wish to subscribe for it for another year,

Yours truly,

and oblige.

We leave our readers to form their own conclusions.

A SAD LESSON.—In the daily af- ther-she may still have them for fairs of life, in a large city especially, we meet with countless lesbody's darling," the pride of some sons that are calculated to make us fond heart, the innocent, hopeful, reflect upon the dangers and the But, at times, we come in contact with some particularly striking example, and the impression it makes is not easily effaced. The other evening we witnessed a scene, enacted upon one of the leading thorough-between nine and ten of the evening. A young girl possibly not more than twenty years of age, came staggering along in a fearful state care, no encouragement, no protecintoxication. She was laughed scoffed at by the thoughtless, intoxication. heartless crowds of young men who loitered along the sidewalk. In her zig-zag course she stumbled, fell, got up again, and finally launched into a drug store, to there again col-lapse. That she had no friends a-round was evident. There was no policeman within call, and when the joyous being that saw life dawn by which we are surrounded. full of promise and happiness. Did times, we come in contact such thoughts enter the minds of those who took her away? We hope so; but it is not likely. Did anyone in that great throng think such thoughts while the sad scepe was been enacted on the public street? Possibly; but not one had either the courage or the charity to extend It was Saturday night, and half protecting hand to the one that tion for others in like difficulties. The lesson came to us as a terrible warning. Here is an immense city, thronged with churches, homes of euucation, houses of refuge, asy-lums for the weak, the wavering, the fallen, filled with thousands of good people, with thousands of citizens, such individually virtuous, kind and generous; yet, in the great street where the lights are like day and the passers-by are like ants going to and fro around the ant-hill, we do not find one man to stand beween a young victim of misfortune and the almost inevitable fate that and the almost inevitable fate that her own rashness invited. There is a something sadly wanting somewhere in society; there is a screw loose, as the saying goes, and it is high time that it should be located, and remedied. There are associations for the detection and punishment of crime; but where is the association for the prevention thereof? It is not when the harm has been done that zeal should be demanded, but rather should it he exercised in preserving innocence and rendering impossible the latal county.

gone past, no reflecting person The men who kept the flame of Irish patriotism burning in our midst, in the days of the Land League, and during subsequent agitations, have either passed from the scene, or are still the few who continue the good work in our midst. The younger generation, with greater advantages than were ever enjoyed by those of the past, cannot be said to exercise a proportionate influence nor to possess a like spirit. Twenty, fifteen, even ten years ago the Irish cause was not as popular as it is to-day; yet we can vividly recall the various associations, such as the Young Irishmen's L. and B. Association, and others, gathering together funds that were counted not by dollars, but by hundreds of dollars, and placing them at the disposal of the chosen leaders in Ireland's constitutional struggle. There may be several reasons assigned for this apparent weakening that the last few years have brought. But we think that the real cause has been a spirit of indifference engendered by that very confidence which the men of the older generation created. Accustomed to see these men take the initiative on all occasions of national moment, the younger men have grown used to the part of calmly looking on, or applauding; but unfortunately confining their participation to such passing expressions of approbation. An occasion is at hand when a change can well be effected; when the embers may be fanned into a fresh

ment in favor of greater enthusiasm to call attention to a few facts that we deem of sufficient importance to be mentioned. That the old-time enthusiasm of the truly patriotic stamp, is not as great amongst the younger men as it was in the years and intense fire. The approaching visit of Hon. Edward Blake, M.P., and Mr. John Dillon, M.P., — both members of the Irish Parliamentary Party in the Imperial House of Commons-will afford an opportunity for all to participate actively in the mighty struggle now going on in Ireland. And when these gentlemen shall have returned to the scene of battle, beyond the Atlantic, we will still have the United Irish League, a branch of which Montreal ses, to keep up the enthusiasm and to perpetuate the work.

If we glance at the state of affairs in the Imperial domain at this mo ment we cannot fail to perceive that the opponents of Irish Home Rule have been actually driven to their last trench. When, in this dawning century, it became necessary for Mr Balfour's Government to course to coercion; when the records of Ireland's courts prove the country to be more peaceful, more lawabiding, and more crimeless any other section of the Empire the inhabitants of the city seemed to be abroad on the streets. St. Law-rence street was brilliantly lighted and densely thronged—the hour was when we find Mr. Wyndham obliged to us are at stake; but "the cold- fusing, in a whole session, one day to discuss Irish affairs, and at the same moment taking up subjects af-fecting Ugandu; when we behold the Irish Party, in a body, leaving the House of Commons, and making it impossible for legislation to be carimpossible for legislation to be carried on by a Government backed up we find the King of England so dis-heartened about the condition of Ireland and so discouraged with and and so discouraged with the perpetuation of unjust rule in that land, that he has actually to inter-fere and to demand that his consti-tutional advisers take his advice and tere and to demand mat his device and put a stop to this absurd discrimnation against a long-suffering race; when all these signs are upon the horizon, it is evident that we are on the verge of some great political upheaval and that the result cannot but prove beneficial to Ireland and ensure the ultimate and early triumph of her cause. The decisive hour is coming and this is the moment when all lovers of the old land, (il true descendants of the "Ancient Race" should ravive their patriotic fervor, and join hand in hand to sessist in the mighty struggle now going on and over which, visible to the naked sys hovers the Genius of Liberty. This is a time, and this an

"HOME RULER'S" LETTER. hour when that prophetic appeal of Elsewhere we publish a lengthy and at the same time a very timely letter signed "Home Ruler." While we desire to emphatically express our etue Cuituess

agreement with the writer in all that he advances by way of argu-"Come noble Celts, come take your stand; The League, the League will save the land,
The Land of aith, the Land of

The Land of Erin's Ancient Race."

A CALUMNY EXPLODED .- "The Advance," a local paper published at Macleod, Alberta, N.W.T., has an editorial of strunge significance. That organ says that, in the course of a political speech made at Macleod, by Mr. Fowler, of New Brunswick, that gentleman "averred that these reverend gentlemen (the Catholic parish priests of Quebec) included in the lists sent in the names of people who had long left the country perpetrated similar frauds to an extent that gave the Province of Quebec additional representation in Parliament at the expense of the other provinces." Then after commenting upon the silence of certain political leaders present, the writer adds: are loath to believe and do not believe that anybody of Christian clergymen could be so depraved as to deserve what is thus publicly charged against them. On the other hand consider by whom the charges were made and what are we to believe?" We make reply; believe as you do, that the whole affair is false from start to finish. nothing to do with the political aspect of the question, but we say emphatically that, be they Liberals or be they Conservatives, be they Catholics or be they Protestants, whoso ever set forth seriously such an argument must be stupid blockheads and men absolutely devoid- of any knowledge concerning the very fundamental basis of our representation according to the British North Amcrica Act. Were the population of Quebec to increase by a million, or were it to decrease by as many, neither case would it affect the Parl'amentary representation of this province. According to the Act of Confederation Quebec must have a fixed and unchangeable representa-tion. This province has been granted sixty-five members in the of Commons. That number cannot be increased, nor can it be diminished. The representation of all the other provinces is based upon that, and they revolve around it as do the planets of a constellation around a fixed polar star. If the population of another province increases, its re-presentation will be augmented, but always in the proportion that sixtyfive bears to the population of Quebec. Therefore, the priests of Quebec, if it were their desire to increase the Parliamentary representation of this province, would be defeating their own purpose by pre-

Mgr. Duhamel Celebrates His

tending to have a greater population than does really exist.

The Catholic population of Ottawa celebrated in a worthy manner the 28th anniversary of the Episcopal consecration of His Grace Archbishop Duhamel. On Tuesday of last week at 8.30 o'clock pontifical High Mass was celebrated in the Basilica. The attendance was large. The distinguished prelate was celebrant at High Mass. The deacon was Rev. Father Pare, curate of Buckingham Rev. Father Lavergae, curate of St. Anne's parish, Ottawa, was sub-dec con. Mgr. Routhier was assistant priest. The deacons of honor were Rev. Canons Plantin and Campeau Archbishop Duhamel was the recipient of a number of congratulatory a conference of the as-the was held, at which up presided.

To Papal Delegate, was blined with the priests to the Archbishop the of the day.

THE CATHOLIC SAILORS'

Last Wednesday evening at the Catholic Sailors' Club was what many of those present called it "St. Anthony's Evening." The was under the auspices of St. Anthony's Court, Catholic Order of Foresters. So many attended that the hall was crowded, and a large number were disappointed, hecause there was no room for them. The following clergymen were present liev. A. A. Gagnier, S.J., liev G. C. Mc-Fenna, Rev. Facer Kavanagn, S J., Rev. Father McShane and Rev. Father Shea.

MR. A. F. O'CONNELL.

Chief Ranger A. F. O'Conneil, who occupied the chair, made a capital speech. He thanked the audience for their presence. He was glad to see that the hall was crowded last season the concert given by ist. Athony's Court attracted the largest audience of the year; and this season the concert has kept up the record so far as he was able to Jidge from the appearance of the ball Refer ring to the remarks recently r ade by the president of the Club, Mr. P. B. McNamee, regarding the law inder which five dollars was deducted from the wages of any scaman who had the misfortune of being arrested for being absent 'rom n's ship without leave, the money to go man who arrested him, he said that owing to its being abused, the law should be changed without delay There were other grievances also from which seamen suffered; these ought to be redressed. The sailors should organize like the men of other occupations. If they did they would soon receive justice. The miners' strike which had just terminated showed the power of organization to vindicate the rights and dignity of labor. (Aptfause).

Twenty-Bighth Anniversary.

Twenty-Bighth Anniversary. J. Slattery, M. P. Mullarky, A Hamilton, Brodden, Parnell, J. Mc Shane, J. E. Murray, Mr. and Miss Laing, J. Jackson, W. Harding, A. Jones, and the Orrheus Quartette; Seamen: Gco. Chrimes, Wm. Musker, Corinthian: J. Rictus, Montcaim; Hugh Boyle, Pomeranian; James Ha ley, Lake Simcoe; J. Cochrane, Alexandrian; Miss Oxton was the accom

singing of "God Save Ireland."

Next Wednesday's concert will b under the auspices of the Imperial Army and Navy Veterans.

Conversion of England

The reunion of the Guild of Ran-som, London, Eng., taking place at this period of the year was held in Westminster Hull on St., Edward's Vestminster Hall on St. Edward s Day, when a numerous company were resent from 6.80 to 10.80 p.m. The programme consisted of a concert and an address by Father Chase, armerly Anglican rector of Al-laints', Laymouth. Father Chase, in the course of r most interesting lecture, said he felt considerable diffidence in appearing before a Catholic dudience, for as a convert, he felt that many of those present, clergy and laity, knew much more than he did about the prospect of the conversion of England. might ask themselves on looking on this great country how it was possible that all its people would ever again become Catholic. Humanly speaking, it seemed impossible, and he was not going to tell them he thought it likely the English people would reconcile themselves to the Catholic Church. But there hope that amidst all the divisions of increasing sects and the multiplying of parties in the Church of England-there was hope that, amidst all these divisions and the breaking up of the various systems of religion, that the Church of the Living God would stand out as the on form and system of religion, as the one single united and strong society in which men could find the worship of God.

They were all certain the Church of God world be the same amidst all these changes, and their hopes were that men of good-will would cling to Church with an earnest desire and longing for its unity when nothing was left of the sects, established or disestablished, that were around them. But they must not suppose that simply because the English people were getting a better idea of the externals of Catholic worship, be-cause they found the people more colerant, because they assimilated Catholic doctrine with their own religion, that thereby England was being quickly converted. In this process going on there was no doubt a great deal to encourage them, but much that was going on was not a movement hurrying the English people to the Catholic Church; it arose from the disintegrating of all authority outside the Catholic Church. He very much questioned whether people adopting under such circumstances the practices of the Catholic Church, and accepting much of her doctrines, came any nearer the Church. Some of those persons would say they had all her doctrines, and Protestant clergymen had come to him and told him they believed all he believed, yet they remained where they were, and he, by the grace of God, was where he was. It was difficult to see how people who would accept no authority in religion could get any nearer the Church. although they might accept many of her doctrines, and even declare they had got them all.

What they, as Catholics, earnestly prayed for was that these people might receive the grace to accept these doctrines, not because they had found them out through one source or another but because they were put forward simply and solely on the authority of the Church of God. When these people said they believed the doctrines of the Catholic Church, but world submit to no authority at all, he could not see how they nearer the Church. To be Catholic they must accept these doctrines on the authority of the Catholic Church (applause).

Ordination at the Cathedral,

At the Cathedral of St. James. Montreal, the following have ordained by Archbishop Langevin of St. Boniface

Minor Orders-Harrisburg diocese W. P. O'Callaghan; New Orleans, W. J. Heffernan.

Houle; St. Hyacinthe, A. P. Tru-deau; Springfield, J. A. Brochu, P deau; Springfield, J. A. Brochu, P. E. Casey, J. J. Roberts; Manches-ter, L. J. Brodeur, J. J. McNam-ara, D. J. Cotter, L. T. Laliberte; Burlington Burlington, E. D. Hickey; Providence, T. H. Tiernan; London, J. P. Dunns; St. Boniface, A. M. Ferland and C. Poirier; Ottawa, M. J. Guilbault; Sioux City, H. J. Dries; Chat-ham, R. Hawkes; Montercy and Los Angelos, A. I. Eling.

The sad, discouraged Christian who tels his shortcomings and the degen-racy of the times in which he lives of overwhelmingly as to take away is peace and joy needs to get out nto God's pure air on some errand time

becat

ghost was am a when fanned

dwelli

mence

such s ready stories

The Native Minstrelsy of Ireland.

By "CRUX."

T was originally my intention to drift away, at the point now reached, from the work so fully quoted in the first and second articles of this series; but, having been requested, for special reasons, to continue on that admirable essay for, at least, a few more paragraphs. Consequently, any interruption, we will proceed with this review of Irish literature in its poetic or bardic branch. Ossian's poems and Mangan's translations from the Irish, may be regarded as fair specimens of the old and later poets of Ireland. And as far as the flatter are concerned, it may be well said of Mangan, what was orce remarked of a celebrated French translator, that it is doubtful whether the dead or the living are most obliged to him. Ossian is stamped with the freshness of na tional infancy-the latter translations with the allegory of national prostration and trembling hope. And both are pregnant with the history of their respective periods. In the latter voice and pen are stiffed; and muffled wail of a trampled ration sounds like a death-kuell upon the ear. We see the Penal Laws in full operation, and the native population stricken to the earth, but still living in the hope of a better day. We see the national religion banned and a price set upon the head of its priesthood. We become acquainted with the intrigues and struggles to get these priests educated in distant lands by the Garonne and Guadalqui vir, and we see them concealed on their return in the fastnesses of the mountains, and the caverns of the rugged shore. Yet amid all these adverse circumstances, Ireland Gid not manifest an indifference to the spirit of song in this day of her dolor, nor a want of taste for its cultivation. Still was she, as in the olden time, the mother of patriot bards; and though a price was set on the minstrel's head as well as upon the priest's, every valley resounded with the praises of ancient heroes—elegies for the martyred brave—dark curses for the native traitor and the ruthless stranger proud invocations of the Genius of Liberty-and passionate aspirations for the glory and independence of

And thus we perceive the existence of a native minstrelsy in Ireland, from the landing of the Milesians almost to our own time, in one unbroken wreath of song. We have sketches of more than two hundred Irish writers, principally poets from the days of Amergin, the chief bard of the Milesian colony, down to the beginning of the nineteenth century. Their poems are, in many instances still extant, from the hymns of St. Columb to the lamentation of Mc-Liag, the biographer, and family bard of Brian Boru; and still down ward to the dreamy allegory of the proscribed poets of the Penal Days. The stores of native minstrelsy which Ireland possesses, both in the memory of her people and the cabinet of the antiquarian, are astonishing, when we consider the characteristics of her history, and the condition of her people, for the last seven cer Rome had fost her ballads long before she reached the zenith her power. Macaulay remarks that, in spite of the invention of nting, the old ballads of England and Spain narrowly escaped the withering blight or years and the Scott was but just in time to save the precious relics of the minstrelsy of the Border. In truth, he adds the only people who, through their whole passage from simplicity to the highest civilization, never for a moment ceased to love and admire their own ballads, were the Greeks. But we think Ireland equal to Greece in this respect, as far as the comparison can be instituted. Since the pagan days when Bride was the Queen of Song, her bards have been ever scrupulously venerated; and their productions cherished with a traditional love which Greece never surpassed; and her people have been as true to this ballad-worship in the days of her distress as in those her glory. The influence of the old bards on popular tastes and habits is still observable. Not many years ago the rustic schoolmaster was elected by a species of poetic tourna-

The rage for street ballads is another trace of their influence. But this is the only point of resemblance between the present and the past. The street ballad of to-day will not bear comparison with the racy, vigorous minstrelsy of old. Nothing but the deathless love of song in the Irish could have saved the precious relics of her bardic muse from the of time, the torch of wari and the still more destructive influence of foreign conquest. Seldom has the successful invader, spared either the life or literature of the fallen land. The Caliph Omar burned to ashes the magnificent library of Alexandria when he captured that city. The Persians burned the books of the Egyptians, and the Romans of the Jews the philosophers, and the Christians. Jews in turn destroyed the books of the Christians and the pagans, and the Christians again, the books of the pagans and the Jews. The Turks destroyed the grand librar'es of Constantinople; the Spaniards the painted histories of Mexico; and such also was the fate of the national records, and literature of Ireland which fell into the hands of the English conquerors. Its ruin was inevitable, but the relics are numerous and beautiful, reminding us of the porticoes and stately columns which shine through the ashes of Pompeii.

Since the reign of Elizabeth Ireland produced twenty-six poets in the Gaelic language. Some of these were of a high order, and of distinguished attainments. The lives of the bards would form no inconsiderable portion of Irish history, from the influence which they exercised in the direction of its events, and in stimulating the spirit of resistence. The strains of O'Guine, the bard of Shane O'Neil, often flung the stirrup less lancer of Ulster like a rock upon the armies of Elizabeth and gathered round the national standard the hesitating chiefs of the North. Angus O'Daly's war song of the Wicklow clans prompted the O'Byrnes to many a fierce raid, from their mountain fastnesses, against the clan London of the Pale, carrying destruction across the English Border, under the chieftainship of the famous Feagh MacHugh. The martial muse of O'Mulcowry, the ward of Briefny and laureate of Ireland, summoned Clan Connaught to the battle field against the invader, and helped to inspire that determined and protracted struggle which ended only with the death of Bryan O'Rourke But there is one serious drawback observable in the strains of these ancient bards, and a grance at titles of ductions will render it apparent. Their sympathies were more factions than Irish, more clanish than national. Not that they loved Ireland less, but that they loved their Sept more. We have appeals to the O'Neils and O'Donnells of the North, to the O'le ons and McCarthys of the South, to a O'Moores and O'Byrnes of the East, to the O'Connors O'Rourkes of the West; but unfortanately, seldom an appeal to the spirit and energies of universal Ireland. except when some great victory spired the national voice, and lifted it up to higher hopes and grander aspirations. But this is scarcely to be wondered at, when we consider the rivalries of the clans, and the constant struggles for ascendency and personal aggrandizement - the natural result of the feudal system upon the warm and impulsive character of the Irish people.

Passing over some apt quotations from Mons. Thiery corcerning minstrelsy of ancient Ireland, we come to another phase of the sub-

The calumnies uttered against the character of the bards may be easily traced to the political influence which they exercised over the people. When the sword of O'Neil was broken, the minstrelsy which had made it start from its scabbard still lived and moved the pulse of the nation's heart. When the battle-axe of Tyr-Connell had rusted, the strains which once nerved the arm of the ferce gallowglass still hung on the 100ple's lips, and kept alive the spirit of national resistance. 'The warrior's strength dies with him; but the poet's power ever stirs like an immortal prophecy. The bards of Ireland were persecuted because they excited hopes of national independence, as the ancient minstrels of Spain sang her struggles against the Moor, or the minstrels of Scotland the Border-battles of the Percy and the Douglas.

It has been well said that poetry has an influence not to be measured by arithmetic, nor expressed by syllogism. And we know no instance in which this is so true as with reference to Irish minstrelsy. Great poets are the legislators of the cm pire of the heart. The poetry of Spain flung back the Moor from the Astorian mountains to sigh for his fallen power by the banks of Guadalquivir, and the fountains of the Alhambra. Centuries of suffering, instead of crushing the national spirit, but kindled it into higher resolves, and prompted it to deeds of nobler daring. Religion is ever a powerful element in a national struggle, and no unfailing source of poetic inspiration. When Tasso lived, Europe throbbed from end to end with religious excitement. The sword of the Ottoman was at her throat, and her own members were arrayed a-gainst each other, while she trembled for her safety on the brink of ruin. It was then that the victory of Lepanto burst like an inspiration over the religious genius of and the moral grandeur of his muse in which he almost stands alone in his glory, shows how much religion may effect for ;metry. Ireland had all the benefit of this inspiration in her warfare and in her muse, though it has failed to secure for her what it did for Spain, the enthusithe same faith unsulfied - the same

The Doukhobor Exodus

(By an Occasional Contributor.)

It appears that the now famous and, or tribe of Russian fanatics, hand, or tribe of Russian fanatics, known as the Doukhobors, have un-dertaken to "trek," as they say in South Africa, and their intended course is towards the Yukon. Why they should go north to such a cold te, when they are unwilling to prepare for even the comparatively mild winter of Manitoba, is something that no person can under-stand, and possibly they do not know themselves. The story of their movements has been concisely told, in an interview, by a gentleman who is conversant with these people and their peculiarities. He states the matter thus:-

There seems to be a general move population was, in every case, very much depleted. In some I would find only a few families, while in one the only living thing to be seen was a dog. It was impossible to judge whether they intended to come back or whether they considered it imma-terial what became of their worldly goods. I looked into the communal thousand bushels of grain, besides thousand Doukhobors were congregated in the village and little knots were gathered, all discussing one matter earnestly. I was informed the people had gathered here "to and old men assembled there, as well as the younger men, and all appeared to have their minds centered enthusiastically on the one subject. Last Thursday I returned to Yorkton, and about twenty-five miles from that town I passed a large body, comprising probably 1,100 Doukhobors, heading toward the south. They were straggling along for two miles, carrying their sick and children. Their provisions consisted of a peck of bread for each I found the bread to be of the very coarsest kind, made of whole wheat, bran and all. It was as hard as bread can possibly be and they ate it, after dipping it in the water in the sloughs. They were barefooted, and wore nothing but cotton clothing, as their religious principles prevented them from wearing woollens or any other animal products. Their provisions cannot possibly last them for more than a few days, when they will be absolutely destitute."

There is something very mysteriou and strange about these people. That they are a most undesirable class of nigrants no person will denv.

As to their religious convictions, it eems to us that they are queer mixture of Protestant Christianity and of Paganism of the Oriental stamp. This perpetual seeking for the Lord olic. Then, in solemn conclave, the savors very much of Protestantism, alternative was given to her to while their migratory propensities ally them with a race from which they not improbably sprang. It must be remembered that they are Russians; and Russia is the land of strange mixtures as far as population goes. ssibly some of our readers will recall De Quincey's famous history "The Flight of a Tartar Tribe." It is one of the most graphic pieces of composition that ever came from the pen that traced the "Confessions of an Opium-Eater." He tells of a Chinese tribe that at the beginning of the 17th century found its way across the Russian steppes and final ly settled on the banks of the Volga After one hundred years of residence in Russia, under the sway Czars, the children of this of the Tartar tribe suddenly conceived the idea of private judgment. going back to China. So secret were their preparations that even the watchfulness of Russia's authorities failed to discover the plot. One morn ing they vanished, to the number of one hundred thousand. They fled southward. The Russian and Cossack soldiers found about twenty steppes and then over the Tartar plains and the vast desert extending to the Chinese wall, they left track marked by the bones of mu horses, cattle, men, women and chil-dren. They left the banks of the Volga on the 3rd February, and Volga on the 3rd February, and reached the Ely river, the Chinese undary on the 12th Sept en regions of the North by the Cos-sacks, and were met at the end of thousand Doukobors were congregat-who took them to be invading en-emies, and attacked them furiously. In fine, of the one hundred thousand, not more than thirty thousand reached the home of their forefathers.

An Instance of What Some Converts Have to Endure.

The following advertisement apeared in a New York daily paper: Wanted-A position as teacher of ily of respectability, by a young lady who has been turned from her home on account of embracing the Catho-lic religion; the highest references exchanged. Address W. T., 858 "Her-

It is a general rule not to believe every advertisement that appears, particularly in the Want Column of the daily press; but this one seemed so unique that I thought it worth while to look it up. Sure enough, it did not state the truth or one-tenth of the truth. Behind those nent from all the villages, and their few fugitive words is a history of petty persecution—a soul full trouble, years of affliction from the dearest ones on earth, and wellnigh a broken heart. She young lady of twenty-three She was a Her family is one of wealth and social position. Her father is a lawyer of distinction. When she was young she was sent to a convent to granary of one village and found one educated. Her father knew that there was no place where his daughthousand business of the state of virtue and where her character of virtue and where her character would be so well developed as under the training of the devoted teachers she would have in a convent. He, however, laid the most solemn injunction on the Sisters when he placmake a big prayer," preparatory to going on a pilgrimage looking for Jeshould not in any way influence the should not in any way influence the There were women, children young lady in her religion. He need not have been so explicit and exacting in his instructions, for the Sisters make it a rule, anyhow, not to interfere in any overt way with anyone's consc:ence. The young lady remained some years in the convent, and after graduation went to her father's home. She did not forget the quiet, peaceful, edifying, religious atmosphere of the convent. It was a picture of an earthly paradise in the young woman's mind. As she entered society the contrasts were continually forcing themselves on her soul, and an eager longing for the neace and virtue of a Catholic life, with the sacraments and Holy Communion, was awakened in her soul. She could not resist it.

When she informed her parents of her purpose of becoming a Catholic the storm burst upon her. In deference to their wishes she postponed her reception into the Church, her determination to become a Catholic was unalterable. As the days went by the persecution began; it continued in a thousand and petty annoyances, dark looks, denunciation of things Catholic, and those secret heart-thrusts from the ones she loved best. All this made her life almost unbearable in her own home. Finally, she became a Cathleave the house and be disinherited and disowned forever, or to repudiate the Catholic Church.

In her own conscience there was no choice. She went out of her father's house to face the world with only a few dollars in her pocket and no friends to turn to in a great, heartless city. She accepted a small room in a boarding house and set herself with courage born of her reliance on God and her constence to earn her own living. The advertisement in the paper was almost the last resort. She had only a few dollars left. All this hap-pened in New York in this age of enlightenment and our boasted mosphere of civil and religious liberty, and in a devout Protestant fam-

It is only another instance of a deep-rooted antagonism to the Cath-Church, and another evidence of the fact that the movement which has for its object the explanation of the truths of the Catholic Church is ssary in all parts of the country. If this can happen in the of New York where there are so many intelligent Catholics of secial position, what might not hap en elsewhere? But if the doctrines of the Catholic Church are presented in so attractive a way that their realess bigotry, and antangonism such as this young lady has suffered from will be a thing of the past.

The following letter has this 1.10nent been received in the mail:-

My dear Father Doyle:-

"In loving gratitude to Almighty God for the great gift of our feith and for the opportunity of practising it in all places where I have been in my worldwide travels, I enclose my with sentiments of deep regret and every ac of sincere sympathy that we record mestic life, as a parishioner, and as the death of one of Montreal's old and most highly respected and universally beloved citizens, in the person of the late Mrs. Owen McGarvey. The parishioners of St. Patrick's missed a familiar sace and an unfailing presence at all the services of the Church, especially at Grand Mass each Sunday and Holyday, when the late Mr. Owen McGarvey was called to his reward, and now that his beloved, faithful and devout follow him beyond the tomb, same feeling will be manifest-for she too, was an equally faithful and constant attendant in the church MRS. OWEN McGARVEY.— It is that they both loved so well. Mrs. ceptation of the term. In doher death has created more than on void in our midst. The vacant chair by the home-hearth, the unoccupied place in the family pew, and the empty seat in those assemblies where the faithful and charitable ladies of the faithful and charitable ladies of our nationality congregate to per-form works of untold merit, will long speak eloquently to all who knew her, of the virtues of the de-ceased, and will, at the same time, preach silent sermons in which each one will hear an invitation to remem-

RECENT DEATHS.

The funeral, which took place Tuesday, from her late residence, Lagauchetiere street, to St. Patrepresentatively attended. Apart from her immediate surviving relatives and the great concourse of friends and acquaintances, the vari friends and acquaintances, the var ous orders in the city were represent ed, while all the schools and acc ed, while all the schools and academies sent their contingents to swell the number of mourners and to bear testimony to the worth and merits of the departed lady. The chief mourners were Mr. J. Cooper, of Lindsay, Ont., her brother: Mr. Owen McGarvey, of Ottawa, a nephew; Mr. William McNally, her sop-

ber her goodness and to pray for her | Mrs. William McNally and Miss An ie McGarvey. In extending to them dolence and sympathy we desire to unite with them and with the Church, of which she was such an exrayer for the repose of her immor

> MRS. O'REILLY .- The oldest wo MRS. O'REILLY,—The oldest woman in Montreal passed away on > Sunday evening last at her residence > 644 St. Antoine street. Mrs. O'Heilly > was in her 94th year, and was hale > and hearty up to an hour before her > death, which was as sudden as it > was unexpected. She was born in > Cavan, Ireland, and came to Canada
> 75 years ago. She had been a resilent of Montreal for over a quarter > of a contury.—R.I.P.

Great Mind Small in

× ••••••••

Mr. William Mathew the "Saturday Evening made a study of a sul scores of examples other selected as illustration tention, still he has tr ject so well that it we to either amplify or c has given the public. fore, simply reproduce teresting sketch with priate introduction

"One of the natural regarding the personal those persons who hav tally high above their ever we read or hear or and especially when we with his history, we form a picture of his l ture to which the cont ture to which the contitued man is often veing. Often we refuse the strange, unsatisfying our own fond creation, the great man is found one—the intellectual great dwarf. As a rula fimate the height and f What Some Have to Endure.

dvertisement ap-York daily paper:tion as teacher of ompanion in a famity, by a young lady rned from her home abracing the Cathos W. T., 858 " Her-rule not to believe ent that appears, ne Want Column of out this one seemed thought it worth up. Sure enough, it truth or probably truth. Behind those ls is a history of a soul full of affliction from the earth, and well-heart. She was a wenty-three years, e of wealth and so-r father is a lawyer hen she was young a convent to be e where his daughp in an atmosphere ere her character developed as under the devoted teachers most solemn isters when he placith them that they way influence the religion. He need explicit and exacttions, for the Sisile, anyhow, not to vert way with any-The young lady ars in the convent, ion went to her fadid not forget the lifying, religious atconvent. It was a hly paradise in the nind. As she encontrasts were con-

of a Catholic life, ats and Holy Comkened in her soul. ist it. ed her parents of coming a Catholic pon her. In defer-nes she postponed the Church, to become a Cath-As the days le. ecution began; it ousand and one Catholic, and those sts from the ones Il this made her able in her own ne became a Cath-emn conclave, the iven to her to nd be disinherited ver, or to repudi-Church.

nemselves on her

r longing for the

cience there was no out of her father's world with only a pocket and no in a great, heartaccepted a small g house and set ge born of her re-her cons ience to it in the paper left. All this hapk in this age cf our boasted atand religious liberit Protestant fam ther instance of a

nism to the Cathanother evidence movement which the explanation of Catholic Church is arts of the . ounappen in the Catholics of sectal night not hap; en iy that their rea-lent there will be antangonism such has suffered from the past.

tter has this moin the mail:-

Doyle:tude to Almighty gift of our faith unity of practising ere I have been in els. I enclose my Old - Time Reminiscences,

(By a Regular Contributor.)

Dan. McCarthy lived for years on the Chelsea road—he has long since gone to his rest, and few people to-day will remember him. He was not very conspicuous character, nor did he play any important part in the affairs of the country. In fact, his principal business or occupation was to act as foreman in the lumering shanties. He had served the late John Egan in that capacity, as he had also served several other old time lumbermen on the Ottawa. He was naturally a rough and ready fellow, but he had a big heart and he was at most devout Catholic. The reason why I specially recall him is because he was a rervent believer in ghosts and such like supernatural apparitions, and his faith in these was due to a ghost that he once saw and with which, he had held con verse for some time. At least this was his own explanation of the case, and I suppose I have no right to doubt his word. He was very fond of telling how he saw that remarkable disembodied creature, and was on one of the occasions, when he was in humor to tell his personal experiences, that the incident I am about to record took place.

It was the year of the great fire, when the entire country was a prey to the conflagration, the year 1870, that Dan. was acting as foreman upon the farm of a gentleman who resided some five or six miles outside the city. If any of the readers can recall that time they will not fail to have a vivid recollection of the universal destruction to timberlands, farm houses, crops, and even fences and fields that took place. One night in August the sky was red from horizon to horizon. It looked as the end of the world were at hand. The country was scorched; the forests were laid low; a fearful wind, augmented by the fire itself, fanned the flames into a conflagration and the cinders, sparks, pieces of burning roofs, and fragments of wood were carried miles upon the wings of the tempest. Every person was up and watching; no one dared to go to sleep in case he might be burned alive, or suffocated in his slumbers. Barns, out-houses, dwellings were all guarded, and the fire was seen to leap, on several occasions, across the river, and commence another conflagration miles away from the scene of the burning.

It was on that night, and during such scenes, that Dan. McCarthy sat by a fence on the road-side, with four or five companions, chatting, and watching the sheds and barns, ready to pour water on the spot the moment a fire would start. While thus keeping up the vigilance the men amused themselves smoking and chatting. At last Dan. got at his stories, and amongst others his great ghost story. As a lad I was around enjoying the universal excitement, and when it came to a matter of story telling I certainly was delighted. I sat down with the others, and Dan began in a most graphic manner to tell how on a certain darknight he was walking along this very road, and how he sat down, as they were then doing, to cut a pipefull of tobacco and have a smoke when from the field behind he heard a strange noise. On looking up he saw a fearful looking creature, half man, half beast, having long horns on its head and fire in its eyes. He was about to jump up and run when the creature spoke in hollow and sepulchral tones, bidding him sit still and listen. He described the creeping feeling that awe causes, especially to one in the dark and in the presence of something unnatural or mysterious. He was a good story-teller and he stirred us all into a state of excitement-a subdued excitement of the kind that forbids one to stir lest a movement would cause some ghost to spring up. He was in the full swing of his eloquent account of how the horns gradually vanished, the head assumed the proper shape and proportions of a human head. The voice grew more familiar, till at last he recognized it as that of a man with whom he had worked two years, and who oad been found dead in the woods. We had just reached that point when the interest was the greatest, and all were on the "qui vive" for the remainder of the adventure. As Dan was describing nis own feelings, we were startled by a rumbling, shuffling sound behind us, a snorting noise, and a huge head, capped with long horns and encasing two flaming eyes appeared over the top log of the fence, and immense mouth gave a bellow that sound like a foghorn, or a score of human beings in distress.

It would be no easy matter to describe the shock that followed, the scramble, the rush, the separation and the disappearance of each one in some direction or other, Dan was the swiftest and readiest of all. and possibly his former experience added wings to his fight, for he was soon lost in the gathering, gloom. I was too frightened to run, and I stood crying upon the road. At last, when all had gone, and I was tirely alone, and I saw that no further attack was intended by the ghost, I picked up courage to look towards the fence — and behold! There stood, large as life, and frightened almost to death by the fire that was raging on all sides, huge ox belonging to a neighboring

That night ended Dan's ghost stories-whether because they had been frightened out of him, or subsequently laughed out of him I never learned.

A Sermon To Medical Students.

Addressing the medical students of Laval University, Montreal, on the occasion of the celebration of the east of their patron saint, St. Luke, the Rev. Rene Labelle, S.S., said:-This feast which you are celebrating requires no explanation at my hands. You are impelled to honor it by the Catholic sentiments which animate you. You have come here to celebrate it freely and spontaneously. For you there is no conflict between science and religion. On the contrary, they are two sisters who understand each other, and whom The feast, therefore, one is the feast of the other. What shall I say to you if, owing to the sacred edifice in which we are gataered, I omit from my sermon endations which you deserve? I shall say to you: Deserve them always by taking care never to seper ate, in your future careers, what should always be united-faith and knowledge. To be brief, I shall recall to you the wise words of Catholic scientist who was pernaps the cleverest man of the last century, as he was certainly one of your most illustrious masters- Pasteur-when, filled with emotion, he attended the ceremony of the placing of a commemorative tablet on the little house in which he was born "Look upward, and go upward," Look upward! What does that mean? It means that you should seek G.d. for God, though hidden, exists in every science, as the Seraphic Doctor admirably says: "Patet quod in omni re quae cognoscitur, interius latet ipse Deus." Whatever ma; be the field of your investigations, philosophical sciences, natural, medical, or others, God is there, as the First Cause and the prime source cf all You should therefore look higher than individualities, kinds species, and particular facts; should look aloft to principles and primordial causes; you should soar to the Infinite; and the Infinite is God. You, especially, who analyze this wonderful organism in the depths of which the soul is at work without ever letting itself be seen, who dissect the members, who compose the tissues, who take hold of the fibres one by one, and who go to the first elements, to the mother celi, to the living atom; do not leave religion at the door of the 'a bolstory, but bring it inside as a companion necessary to science order to enable it to discover the najesty of the Creator in His works, and to your labors the guarantee of fruitfulness. You have studied the history of the human mind; you have counted its numerous hallucinations, its da:ly falls; and its moral ings; you have heard the hollow words: "We have no soul; I have not found it at the end of my scal-Behold the sad lot of proud and faithless science; as it sees thing beyond matter, it believes that it is matter that engenders the mind it invents sophisms; it lies to itself. Look upward, and do not lose your souls or your God. Be determined to rise in your profession; for mediocrity is a thing to be feared, especially in this age of intense progress, passionate research, and restless activity. Every force, physical, scien-You must bestir yourselves Life is action; inertia is shame. Well, I know that you do not want to increase the number, already large, of mediocre beings; and that you would eagerly repeat the words of Caesar "I would rather be first in a village than second in Rome." But then, you must make hard work the law of your lives. Yet, if hard work is ecessary in order to attain any real superiority, so also is virtue; and it this thought which the illustrious Pasteur had doubtless in his mind when he said: "Go upward! , in fact, the first of the In the midst of intellectual Virtue is, in fact, the first abors it is live the star towards which the prow of the ship is turned.

vessel that is not guid-

it hastens surely to destruc-was it not Socrates who said:

ery knowledge, without the viedge, is harmful," and did not nate pronounce this dictum: "All lowledge that is separated from tue is but an aptitude for doing not be your language; for with a higher intelligence, you have a loftier conception of life. Money, honors, pleasures, are not the aim of your labors nor the end of your lives.

If you have the ambition to reach a position of honor in society, it is only in order to strive better to promote social welfare and your own future destiny. And this is why you put the knowledge of good which is virtue, above all other knowledge. To raise yourselves up, prayer is necessary. Prayer is an elevation of the heart of God. If you practise prayer you will grow proficient in knowledge and in virtue, those two weapons necessary to the conquest of time and eternity.

The Perils of School Life.

(By a Regular Contributor.)

(Continued.)

We have followed the pupil from almost the cradle into the classroom and have seen him fairly on his way to education. We must now leave the young boy to the care of his teachers. It would be no easy matter to follow him through the perils of school-life; for they are proportionately as numerous and as serious as any to be met with in after life. In fact, we might say that the dangers which surround the young in school days are more important than those that arise upon the pathway of life. In the first place, the young lad is less capable of contending with them than is the man; and in the next place, school days constitute the period when the foundations for the future are laid. Be it the development of the physical, or the moulding of the moral forces, the avoidance of premature weaknesses of constitution, or of early laxity of religious or moral character, it is evident that what the boy is the man will very probably be. Hence the immense importance of those few years. Were we to attempt indicating the dangers to be met with and to be avoided, the obstacles to be overcome, and the struggles to be endured we would scarcely ever end the list. Yet, no list of the same could be looked upon as universally applicable, for the dangers are not the same for all. Much depends upon individual characteristics, qualities, capacities, qualifications, and accidents. It is rare that two boys are found to require the exact same treatment in every particular. So we will not attempt to lay down any cast-iron law, nor to trace any imperative rule of conduct. But we must leave all these things to the experience and knowledge of the teachers.

Since then, the duties of teachers are of such paramount importance, it stands to reason that they deserve all the support, co-operation and encouragement that it is possible to accord them. Parents too often forget that the teacher place as far as the child is concerned. If then, the parents find it such a difficult task to train, rear, and educate their child or children, what must not be the teacher's task when he is obliged to represent the partific, social and moral, is called into ents for a score or may be two score love for the child that can found in the breast of the father or mother. He is obliged to cultivate an affection for the child, a ment that he cannot be expected to possess for the offspring of strang ers. He is forced to do violence, as it were, to himself in each particula case. And despite all this, he generally fulfils the duties of the parent as well as if he were the Heaven-appointed and responsible guardian it much better than the parents then selves. We have flung out this hint concerning the teachers merely as a matter of justice. We know how very poorly teachers are remunerated; we know that they too often lack that appreciation which their lives, their sacrifices and their labors serve. Yet, if they are not thanked by a grateful public, at least they should not be treated with direct in-gratitude. If there are perils in pronounce this dictum: "All gratitude. If there are perils in school life the child that is happy is but an aptitude for doing These maxims are considered admirable in the mouth of a but when the Church preaches the reply is: "Why, virue is soney, honors, pleasure, any titled!" "Virtus post numbered that the teacher has been the prime factor in such success, and that to him the approval of parents and the recognition of pupils is even more than the gold or silver of his pairty stipend.

From "L'Oncle de Chicago," of Andre Laurie, the following account ladies or rather of the young ladies themselves-is given. It is Mme. Bertoux, a French lady, whose daughter was sent to the seminary who speaks. produce it merely as a what may possibly be the case in more than one house of education, where the daughters of the moneyedlords of the great Republic congre-

"My daughter arrived at Wabash minary and was astonished when

" What time is it by your dia-

"'I have no watch in diamonds nademoiselle, but a little metal watch. It is 3 o'clock.'

utes after 3; replied the young lady, showing a superb watch and chain, the former incrusted in the richest diamonds. 'My watch cost $400 without the initials,' she add-

" I am delighted with the inform-

"The other, not seizing the irony, continued: 'For the initials alone cost $60. See, "A. P." My name is Ada Pigott."

"'Marguerite; rather a pretty name If my name was your I would ask my papa to give me a brooch in diamonds, with the flower for subject. But without doubt your father does not make enough.

"A neighboring girl.

"'Have you any bracelets? Why do you not wear any? I have twentytwo.

" 'Why, you have no rings. How can you go out? Have your parents

"General stupor. " 'We are not well-mannered enough for mademoiselle. That is too much.

Mme. Bertoux was so astonished, scores of examples other than those we could furnish the writer with selected as illustrations of his con-tention, still he has treated his subject so well that it would be a pity to either amplify or curtail what he has given the public. We will, therefore, simply reproduce this highly in-teresting sketch with its very appro-

Mr. William Mathews, writing in made a study of a subject that can not fail to interest all readers. While the "Saturday Evening Post,"

Great Mind,

"One of the natural instincts men is that curiosity which all feel regarding the personal appearance of those persons who have stood men-

Small in Body.

Small in Body.

Increase and endow them, if attract laverage size. Napoleon III., while ive, with superhuman beauty or, if hateful, with ugly and repulsive looks. It was this feeling which maile the people at Yarmouth, England, when Nelson, delicate in body and insignificant in appearance, was miserable Nights.

MISERABLE NIGHTS. passing over the quay to take com-mand of his first ship, exclaim, "Why make that little fellow cap tain?

in Italy in 1796, the Italians were pale face, the sickly thinness of frail body, which seemed consumed by the fires of his genius, but was in reality made of muscles of steel, seized the imagination of the people by the contrast they presented to his dazzling feats of arms It was a novel and startling experience glance, that abrupt, imperious gest-ure, that laconic speech and perempt-ory and absolute tone—all which bespoke the man born to command—associated with such a dwarfish and attenuated frame.

attenuated frame.

It is a singular fact that while nothing would seem to be easier than to ascertain the exact size of great men yet it is really difficult and often impossible to do so. How long did "the grand Monarch," Louis heroes and endow them, if attract- average size. Napoleon III., while baby from the cradle and walk it up greatly surprised at his personal ap- and down the floor all night. It do His short stature, his moralizes the infant and enslaves the parents. Baby does not cry for th fun of the thing; it cries because it is not well—generally because its stomach is sour, its little bowels congested, its skin hot and feverish every night growing stronger in pro-portion. Just what mothers need is told in a letter from Mrs. E. J., Flanders, Marbleton, Que., who says: -"I cannot say too much in favor of Baby's Own Tablets. They have who was very restless at night, but Raby's Own Tablets soon brough quiet sleep and rest. I shall never by without a box while I have a baby. Baby's Own Tablets cure all mino tilments of little ones, and are guer did "the grand Monarch." Louis Inl drug. They are sold at 25 cen XIV. pass for a large man, being described as such by couriers and historians! Yet the measurements of his skeleton some years after his death revealed that he was under the day, N.Y.

What to do when Baby is Fretfu and Sleepless.

Education.

of the Wabash Seminary for young She relates her experiences to the French Consul at Chicago. We regate to display the evidences of their parents' wealth rather than to acquire the knowledge which would serve them in life. Here is the text:

she took her place in class to find that all the scholars, without exception, the young ladies of her own age, were dressed at 2 o'clock in the afternoon as if for an opera-silk and lace dresses, hats with feathers, and, even worse, diamonds in their ears, at their necks, on their fingers. daughter, according to our custom. was dressed as befitted her age, in a modest wool gown, and, you can believe me, without other jewellery than her own freshness. All the class stared at her and exchanged unpleasant remarks. The lesson over, a young person extravagantly adorned, approached my daughter, and scanning her from head to foot, in a superior tene, asked:

nond watch?"

'You are slow. It is ten min-ation,' replied the French girl.

"Silence! " 'And you name!' " 'Marguerite Bertoux.'

do not ""I do not know and I care to know,' replied Marguerite.

" 'It is not possible-

A cry of horror from many throats.

a carriage?' Then the little French mademoiselle oses patience. 'No, young fadies, I have no rings, no bracelets, nor laces, nor carriages. But I have what you cem to lack-good manners.

We who have diamonds and riages. My father is worth twenty millions. My mother has a casket requisition in these days; and the talent that rests in indolence finds assume all the responsibilities of pagrace neither before God nor before rents without having the natural what kind of beggars from foreign inary they would soon take me ashe tells the consul, that she accom-panied her daughter to see for herself the strange "Wabash seminary Her impression was that the girls were but with nothing but the dollar in their heads, not knowing how to talk anything else."

We do not pretend to decide whether the foregoing is an exact statement of the conditions therein represented, or merely a caricature of the manners and habits engendered unlimited command of wealth. But we are happy to remark that this institution and we know that in all the broad union she could not find one of our female homes of education wherein a like condition of as-fairs could be found. Be this exag-gerated or not, there must be a certain degree of foundation for it. wonder, then, that so many of our non-Catholic neighbors from across the line, select our Canadian Catho-lic convents for the training and eduMr. Balfour took this for a day for a vote of said in that case he we fix next Wednesday. In raised a storm by allud Irish members as a "se Opposition, and later of matters worse by am phrase to one of "a fac Warm repudiation can Irish benches, and M. twisting of C. B.'s word equally warm repudiation Liberal leader. William O'Brien s the Irishmen were not a day it was quite possi would take it (loud Iris

Mr. Balfour suggested Irish Party should subm tion, and then the Lead position could say what intended taking, and the ernment would decide as day for the discussion.

THE FLANAGAN TH the House of Commons ober, consequent upon a of questions from the Ir the Chief Secretary was promise that he would h Inquiry into the laments Mr. Flanagan, J.P., dri one of Wyndham's priso further promised that he cure the fullest publicity ceedings of the court.

COERCION IN SLIGO against Mr. B. M'Ternan concluded on 18th Oct.,

emovables delivered sen The presiding Sweep, I they had gone over the e fully in this case. It was question to ask them to ence. It was a clear case acy, and they convicted nan on all three counts mons, and ordered him t soned for two months w bor in Sligo Jail. On e Mr. Tarrant- that is

Mr. Brown-Yes; two m prisonment altogether, w

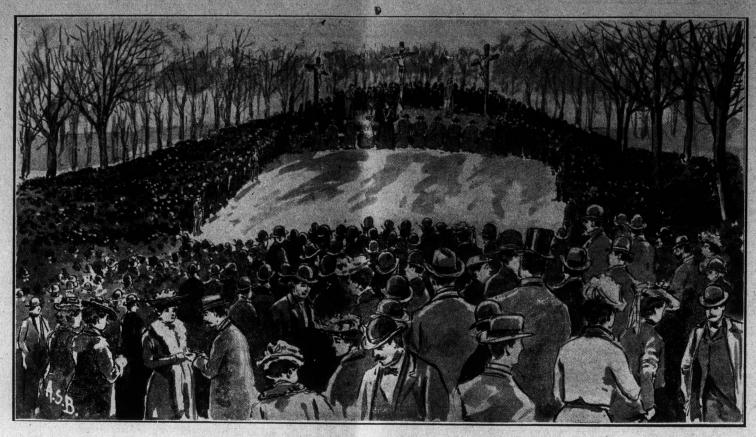

CASTLE DENOUNCE ly all the meetings of the branches of the U. I. L. h Oct., resolutions were pa demning the action of t in their disgracefu of Mr. J- O'Donnell, M.P. Ireland and the House of and expressing appreciation Commons on Thursday

"SLIGO CHAMPION."tying announcement is ma "Sligo Champion," which P. A. M'Hugh's manager things so warm for the the people's organization of Ireland, is again being and this week the Nation Shigo, Leitrim, Roscomme large area over which the casts its great influ nd indomitable friend. In the interruption, car ent legal proceedings l'Hugh, the "Sligo M'Hugh, ably and feurlessly kept lighting spirit inculcate 'Champion.' The 'Nati career was short, but bril the manner in which it was at a moment's notice and

COERCION IN LIMERY

Imposing Ceremony at the Cote des Neiges Cemetery.

THE SCENE AT "CALVARY."

"It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead." Down through the ages, from the pre-Christian dispensation has this text been wafted, and in all lands, and at all times has the Church of Christ been mindful of its salutary admoni-

Never since Archbishop Bruchesi inaugurated this touching and salutery of Cote des Neiges, on our gathering of Catholics in the cemetery of Sote des Neiges, on our Mountain Park, as that which assembled there on Sunday last, the "Day of the Dead," to pray for the repose of the souls of the departed, parents, children, relatives and friends, and also, in the words of the prayerbook "Those who have none to pray for them."

In front of the Calvary which had been erected, Archbishop Langevin and Father Thomas Heffernan, the two preachers of the day; Monsignor Racicot, V.G., and several other clergymen, took up their position shortly after three o'clock in the afternoon, surrounded by a vast concourse of the faithful. A choir of nearly eighty musicians and singers, gave the "Libera" and Chopin's funeral march.

"What does the presence of this multitude, of Catholics mean," asked the eloquent Archbishop, "if not the triumph of that cross around which we have gathered? In coming here we are animated by a double sentiment-faith and charity. It is consoling to see this great Catholic demonstration. It is the triumph of the Catholic faith; it is a grand example given to our seperated brethren. You believe in eternal life and the resurrection of the dead; you believe in the communion of saints. Here we have, so to speak, three churches in one mystical body. Today, as always, the Church Triumphant and the Church Militant joins hands with the Church Suffering. Take pity on those suffering souls; pray for them. In helping them to go into Heaven, you are working for the triumph of God." Father Heffernan followed by an eloquent sermon in English, in which he dwelt upon the merit and the duty of praying for the dead that they might be loosed from their sins. The "De Profundis" having been chanted the great crowd slowly dispersed.

fully seventy-five thousand of the afternoon to the abode of the departed. They came on electric cars, until the company's service could no longer carry the throng; they came in vehicles of every description, until the roads and bye-ways that lead to the cemetery were packed with processions of carriages; they came streaming over the mountain slopes on foot, until the very declivities of Mount Royal seemed populated with a moving mass of humanity. Not in the days of O'Connell's monster meetings did Slievenamon or Galteemore present a more animated spectacle. Yet the silence that hangs perpetually over the tomb-marked slopes of Cote des Neiges was unbroken by any harsh sound, by any murmur, by any unwonton noise save the hum of a multitude responding to the prayers that consecrated lips pronounced over the remains of the departed or sent heavenward in solemn hymns of invocation for the souls of the faithful gonè before.

No such spectacle can any other Church offer to the world. It was a solemn sight to behold the young and the aged, the rich and the poor, the tradesman and the man of profession, the laborer and the wealthpossessor, the white-robed Dominican, the brown-clad Franciscan, the dark-garbed Sulpician, Jesuit, Oblate, Christian Brother, the purpledressed Archbishop, the members of all religious orders, the children of all schools, the thousands that would go back next year to again walk the same "Way of the Cross," and the hundreds that next year will be sleeping in the stillness that surrounds the dead of to-day, all bowing "like trees to one tempest," and all offering up prayers for the unforgotten souls of those who have had precedence along the way of life

If there were aught in religion to stir the soul into devotion and to make the heart beat with pulsings of love, veneration, gratitude and remembrance, surely it was that picture of tens of thousands, bound to each other by the tie of a same faith, bound to the dead by the mystic link of the Communion of Saints, bound to heaven by the chain of prayer that unites the Church Militant on earth with the Church Suffering in Purgatory, and these two finally with the glorious army of the Church Triumphant in Heaven.

Who Would Forfeit ings will be held every Thursday evening at eight o'clock in the St.

 OT THE EDITOR OF THE TRUE

Sir,-As you are fully aware (hav ing more than once published reports of its deliberations) there is a branch in Montreal of the United Irish League. I would ask you to give all possible publicity to the fact (by ne means sufficiently known) so that every Irisiman" in the city may without delay, have life firme

Guerin, on the roll of membership. Till the end of this month the meetings will be held every Thursday

There are branches already estabished in Quebec and Ottawa, but it. ems to me that Irishmen all over Dominion should be given the opportunity of serving in the ranks of the United Irish League Towards this end I believe the "True Witness" can lend most valuable assitance by inviting Irishmen in every town and village of Canada to found local

Now is the useful time to gather our forces together, and it seems to me that there is a duty and an obligation on each one of us to do whatever in his power lies to help the people of our race in Ireland in their struggle for self-government. Instead of reflecting honor upon the heroism of those who went he fore us are a reproach if we do not now at least stand up and from ou abundance give a little in the cau

What right have I to call myself an Irishman or to if I repudiate the obligacan I conscientiously continue to bear my father's Celtic name, if I refuse to fulfil the duty that always attached to it?

In other nationalities, in contrast with the Irish, there are a few noble names that stand out from the com mon rank and fyle. This is not the case in Ireland, for there the perse cutions have been so universal and these persecutions have been so heroically borne not by a few individuals, but by the entire Irish race that at one time or another, every Irish ame has been made illustrious history; and, while is may be tr to-day that no Irishman pretends t oubtedly true that every Irishma obligations binding in honor. "Noblesse Oblige."

glory in the past of Ireland ations, at the present time particular tions of his heritage. larly? Is it sufficient that once in a year we testify to our Irishism by ding "en masse" when Redmond, or Dillon, or Blake come here to address us? Surely it is not only when the master's eye is upon him that an honest man does his duty,and it should not be only at time when the leaders of our people come here to see what is being done that we should be found at our post. Our duty as Irishmen is very evilent at the present time. The list of bership in the United Irish League in Montreal should be a con olete directory of the Trich names i this city, and each one of us should see to it that his name is properly entered in the directory. The na of the people with small mean hould be there as well as the nam and talents, and that he owes them to his race. He is really in the position of an heir, and has accepted not only the benefits but the obliga-

> Mr. Dillon and the Hon. Edward Blake are coming here in the beginning of December to state the pre sent case of Ireland to the people o Montreal, and no doubt the Windson Hall will not be large enough to hold all who would wish to hear them. And yet, for my own part, being an Irishman, I should be a shamed to go into the presence of the leaders of our people, if I possessed not enough of the Irish spirit to force me into the ranks of the United Irish League, which may be correctly described as the "Union of all Irishmen" striving to bring to ar end forever the government of Tre and by the enemies of Ireland and ndeavoring to bring about the early old motherland to a Parliament o

> > HOME-RULER.

Montreal, 3rd November, 1902.

HOW TO KEEP YOUNG.

of the secrets of keeping young, vigorous and supple-jointed, is to continue to practice the activities of youth, and to refuse to allow the mind to stiffen the muscles by its as of age limitations. men like Peter Cooper and William E. Gladstone, who kept up the vitalizing exercise of robust manhood when far into the eighties, had sucapproaching age, how much of their valuable life work would have 18-

LEADERS OF CIVILIZATION.

It is a curious fact, in the history of nations, that only those which have had to struggle the hardest for existence have been highly stre-stul. As a rule, the same thing it would be a great relief to have the bread-and-butter problem solved by one's ancestors so that he might devote all his energies and time to the development of the meatal and spiritual faculties. But this is contrary to the verdict of history and the daily experience of the world. The strugglers, those born to a heritage of poverty and toil, and not those reared in the lap of fortune, have, with a few exceptions, been the leaders of civilization, the giants of the rare. t would be a great relief to have

T, NOV. 8, 1902.

 The Week in Ireland. ************************

Pirectory United Irish League.

Dublin, Oct. 25, 1902. IN THE COMMONS. -Considerable liveliness was witnessed in the House of Commons on the 22nd October, arising out of the question of fixing day for the discussion of the Irish administration.

Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman intimated that he supported the demand of the Irish members for a day to he evoted to such a discussion, because the question was supremely an Irish one, the Prime Minister had refused to give a day at the request of the Irish members, but would give it only if an Englishman or Scotchasked for it.

Mr. Balfour took this as a demand for a day for a vote of censure, and said in that case he would agree to fix next Wednesday. Incidentally he aised a storm by alluding to Irish members as a "section;" of the Opposition, and later on he made matters worse by amending the phrase to one of "a faction."

Warm repudiation came from the Irish benches, and Mr. Balfour's twisting of C. B.'s words led to an equally warm repudiation from the iberal leader.

Mr. William O'Brien said that if the Irishmen were not going to get a day it was quite possible that they would take it (loud Irish cheers).

Mr. Balfour suggested that Irish Party should submit their motion, and then the Leader of the Opposition could say what course he intended taking, and then the Government would decide as to giving a day for the discussion.

THE FLANAGAN TRAGEDY .- In the House of Commons on 22nd October, consequent upon a ceaseless fire of questions from the Irish benches, the Chief Secretary was driven to promise that he would hold a sworn quiry into the lamentable case of Mr. Flanagan, J.P., driven mad one of Wyndham's prisons; and he further promised that he would secure the fullest publicity for the proceedings of the court.

COERCION IN SLIGO.-The case against Mr. B. M'Ternan, T.C., was concluded on 18th Oct., when the Removables delivered sentence.

The presiding Sweep, Brown, said they had gone over the evidence carefully in this case. It was out of the question to ask them to hold that this was a case of friendly interference. It was a clear case of conspiracy, and they convicted Mr. M'Ternan on all three counts in the summons, and ordered him to be imprisoned for two months with hard la bor in Sligo Jail. On each count the sentences to run concurrently. Mr. Tarrant- that is practically

Mr. Brown-Yes; two months' imprisonment altogether, with hard la-

CASTLE DENOUNCED -At near ly all the meetings of the London branches of the U. I. L. held on 19th Oct., resolutions were passed condemning the action of the Government in their disgraceful (reatment and expressing appreciation of Mr. O'Donnell's action in the House o Commons on Thursday evening.

"SLIGO CHAMPION."-The gratilying announcement is made that the "Sligo Champion," which under Mr P. A. M'Hugh's management, mad things so warm for the enemies of Ireland, is again being published and this week the Nationalists of Sligo, Leitrim, Roscommon, and the large area over which the "Chancasts its great influence, will be able to welcome back their old and indomitable friend.

In the interruption, caused by cent legal proceedings against Mr.
M'Hugh, the "Sligo Nationalist" ably and feurlessly kept alive the fighting spirit inculcated by the "Champion." The "Nationalist" is now merged in the "Nationalist" in own merged in the "Champion." It career was short, but brilliant— an the manner in which it was produce at a moment's notice and under circumstances of extraordinary difficulty constituted a record in provincia bornalism.

Rathkeale Quarter Sessions on 21st Oct. the appeal case of Mr. Samuel Harris, hon. secretary East Limerick Executive United Irish League, against the sentence of six months' imprisonment imposed on him by the Coercion Court at Newcastle West, was heard before Judge Adams. A large force of police was drafted in to the town to preserve order, but, notwithstanding that contingents of people polyed into the place in sympathy with Mr. Harris, there was not the slightest disorder. Mr. Har ris was prosecuted some time ago under the Crimes Act for an alleged intimidatory speech at Knockaderry, and sentenced to three months' prisonment for the same, and a further three months in default of giving bail for future behavior.

His Honor, in giving judgment, said considering the character of Harris and the peace of the county, His making Harris a first-class misdemeanant to serve the term imposed by the magistrates.

In the appeal of David Sheehan, hail, His Honor confirmed, but removed the hard labor. Both defend-with prayers and hymns. At the clares, "is not needed for this pur ants were allowed out to give themselves up. Harris was chaired by the people in the Square after the sentence. The Rathkeale band playof the police was not required.

TIPPERARY SENTENCES. -De livering judgment on 22nd October against Mr. Denis Kilbride, ex-M.P., and Mr. J. A. O'Sullivan, Judge Moore said that as regards Mr. O'Sullivan's case he did not concur with the local magistrates in their decision. He found him guilty only on the second count. He could not find anything on perusing Mr. O'Sullivan's speech that could be attri-buted to boycotting, but he was undoubtedly guilty of intimidation, Mr. Kilbride, he considered, was guilty on both counts. After a long lecture he ended by saying:-Having regard to the mild tone of Mr. speech he would commute the senence to three months, but would confirm the sentence as against Mr. Kilbride.

SOME MEETINGS, Cork, 19th October .- A largely attended meeting was held to-day at Ballinhassig for the purpose of furthering the objects of the United Irish League. Amongst the speakers was Mr. Eugene Crean, the Parliamentary representative of the division. A large force of police attended.

Midleton, 19th October.-To-day a the merchants, shopkeepers, and and his followers and Catholics. He workmen of the town, as well as of said if the latter attempted to hold the Cork Young Ireland Society, to enlist the public sympathy and sopport for the National monument to juil for so doing. be shortly erected in Cork. The local bands, brass and fife and drum, paraded the town before and after the meeting, and a large number of poment in their disgraceful (reatment of Mr. J. O'Donnell, M.P., both in Ireland and the House of Commons, Government notetaker, watched the for inciting an Orange mob to at-proceedings. On Sunday, 19th October, a highly successful public meeting was held at Killanny for the purpose of estabishing a branch of the United Irish eague. Representatives were praent from Dundalk, Louth, Roches own, and Corcrocagh. Considerable nthusiasm prevailed. The Corcreagh fife and drum band attended and discoursed a selection of National CRIMELESS LIMERICK .- Limerick, 20th October, His Honor Judge Adams opened the Quarter Sessions at Rathkeale to-day, and was irented with white gloves in the abnce of criminal business.

ARMAGH NATIONALISTS. - That ARMAGH NATIONALISTS. That the Armagh Nationalists are determined to keep the old flag flying was fully demonstrated by the meeting held last Sunday by the Armagh executive U.I.L., at Derrymmenth Nation, gates were present from fatton. The large number of them who have portadown, Lylo, Derrymmen, Ribmore, and Cornikenigar. A series of very important resolutions were unanimously passed expressing deep regret for the death of Mr. Michael M'Cartan, whose name had always en the synonym of fidelity to the Nationalist principles; that arrangements be made with the contral Council in Dublin for the holding of a public Nationalist demonstration as soon as possible; that an immediate and energetic effort be made to send a generous subscription from North Armagh; condemning the policy of Mr. Wyndham in making the Irish executive servile to the interests of the landlords, who had publicly flouted his advice for the settlement of the land purchase question; congratulating the members of Parliament, newspaper editors, and others who have been sent to gaol by Removable magistrates. pledging the United Irish League of North Armagh to an immediate re sponse to the appeal for a National Defence Fund. It was further resolved to send delegates to the Emmet celébration to be held in Belfast in May next.

SCENES IN BELFAST: - Bel-

Honor would amend the sentence by band, and by Gailbraith and the the member for South Beliast, on sentenced to two months' hard la- his followers took up a position or conclusion of the Loxology Trew vigorous boohing. to make his vo a head above the minutes. At length, during a brief hull, he shouted out that he had got a telegram from Sloan, M.P., asking Hints to the Laity. to meet him at Dee street Hall on Sunday night, but he (Trew) would not do so, because he knew he would Saunderson had said that Sloan got into Parliament on his (Trew's) back, and he (Trew) assured them that Sloan would come out on his tors feel called upon to scold back as he went in. Trew then called on his friends to take up the colthe Sloanites to interfere at their peril. accepted, and while the collection was proceeding a free fight took place, collecting boxes and sticks and vented by a little crowd of sympathisers, who made a circle round the dethroned founder of the Association. A number of people on each knocked down and brutally kicked. tion of hostilities, and Trew continued his harangue, indulging > meetings, were dispersing, there was will be remembered that Trew was ceive Holy Communion make one im for inciting an Orange mob to attack a Corpus Christi procession in vent it, and was prepared to go to

THE LANDLORDS .- The Landowners' Convention, which was held lately in Dublin, having by a sweeping majority rejected the proposal for a conference between chosen representatives of landlords and ants, the agrarian war in Ireland, must necessarily go on under conditions embodying another element of bitterness. It was all the work of Calvary. This they believe, the big political Anglo-Irish lords, the Abercorns, who really do not want a settlement of the Irish land question-men who draw princely incomes from other sources than their Irish estates, and who, as Mr. John Dillon, M.P., has said, are not Irishmen at all, but Englishmen. The bulk of the smaller resident land-hope is still entertained that a conference may come off; but it should be remembered that the leaders the tenants have from the first clared that they will enter into no conference with unauthorized and unrepresentative landlords. The finding of the Landowners' Convention - in itself something in the nature of an organized conspiracy directed against the rights and interests of the peo ple-is in strict conformity with the best traditions of the English garrison in Ireland, whose uncompromising selfishness and unreasonableness has wrecked and ruined the unfortunate country cursed with their exist-

THE LAND PROBLEM. - In a pamphlet just published Mr. Michael Davitt recommends that a national conference should be summoned . to consider the land question, not as a rival, but as a necessary supplement to the practical proposal made by Captain Shawe-Taylor, and he suggests as a representative and compefast, 19th October. —Thica were ex-citing scenes at the Belfast Custom of final land settlement into effect House steps this afternoon Guring Mr. Thomas Sexton, The O'Connor the progress of the usual services Don, Mr. Land Commissioner Murreld under the auspices of the Beller rough O'Brien, Lord Castletown, Mr. fast Protestant Association. The dif. John Dillon, M.P., Mr. T. W. Rusferent sections of the Association, sell, M.P., and Mr. James M'Cann headed by Arthur Trew on the one M.P., embracing, as he says, the most eminent financial experts, principal supporters of Mr. Sloan, ablest landlords, staunchest Nationalists, and trusted loyalists of the the other hand, assembled in large country. Pending consent to an amnumbers at three o'clock. Trew and cable conference on the part of the landlords, however, he thinks there bor and four months in default of the north side, and the Sloan tes en must be no pause in the vigorous the clares, "is not needed for this purpose, more especially when the Dubgave his benediction, and then pro- lin Castle allies of the landlords' cecded to deliver a political address, party are filling the prisons with the denouncing the Sloanites as traitors leaders and lieutenants of the popued him to the station. There was to the cause of Prostantisto. The lar movement. Peace in this, as in great excitement, but the interference opposition crowd than rushed to other righteous conflicts, will come wards his platon and set up a the sooner by a vigorous prosecu-"rew endeavered tion of a just and necessary war."

Painfully irritating at times is the conduct of some Catholics in the discharge of their religious duties. Nor is it a matter of surprise that pascerning them. The wonder is that they manage to contain themselves so admirably under the circumstances. For in many cases these The challenge was promptify individuals show less respect in the House of God than do visiting non-Catholics.

As an example of the class other weapons being used freely, Rev- which we refer might be cited those eral of the Sloanites endeavored to who sweep past the holy water font lay hands on Trew, but were pre- without deigning even to notice it. The one-legged prayer crowd in the rear who cling around the confessional boxes during Mass, but are rarely ever seen there at any other side were injured, one man being time throughout the year. The stiff-He was subsequently treated at the genuflect and never kneel erect. The Royal Hospital. The intervention of self-opinionated people, who when the police ultimatery caused a cessa- seated, assume positions between a stage pose and a bar-room lounge nably they know the Mass by very large and influential meeting of vile epithets, both as regards Sloan heart, for rosary or prayer book is never seen in their hands. It would not do, however, to question them.

the farmers of East Cork, was held a demonstration next year in the Such persons, it is hoped, are never at Midleton, under the auspices of city in honor of the Rebel Emmet he taken as devotional types of the real (Trew) would do all he could to pre- Catholic. To say the least of them in charity, they are a strange But, bad as they are, they are better At a later stage, when the rival than those who constitute the fireverent rush. These are the people a renewal of the riotous scenes. It who in approaching the rail to resentenced to twelve months' impri- agine they are pursued by fire. With and shuffle until the whole aisle is in commotion. There is nothing about them to indicate devotion or rever sons in public gatherings seeking advantage of ingress or exit

Now, all this is most reprehensible. There is no act the laity can perform weighted with more solemnity than the reception o the Blessed Eucharist. They are re ceiving the Body and Blood of Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ Himself. The same as was crucified or they profess. But how out of keep-ing with both are their actions. Or the contrary, do not the latter indicate indifference, irreverence and in This should not be. It would not if the guilty parties had a pro-per appreciation of the solemnity of the act they were about to perform And until that is done there is little hope of having the offensive evil corrected.-Church Progress.

ROAD TO SUCCESS.

There is no road to success

Mrs. Notterman, who for fifteen rears has been well known to the surgeons of the Cancer Hospital, in London, where she has had two operations performed, has just returned from a pilgrimage to Lourdes France, with a wonderful story the cures effected at that shrine.

Father Eskrigge of St. Francis Church, London, testifies to the woman's apparently hopeless condition when she started for the celebrated French city. "The doctors had completely given her up," said he, had anointed and prepared her for death. I regard her cure as miraculous." This is the woman's own This is the woman's own

"I arrived at Lourdes on Friday and bathed that day, but it had no effect. On Saturday I got up at 5 o'clock and went to Holy nion. At 7 I arrived at the baths. 1 was very reluctant to enter, but prayed to heaven and plunged in.

'A terrible sensation overcame me I thought death was at hand. I ac cepted my fate. Although suffering dreadfully, I prayed to God to let me die at once rather than go back not cured. Immediately I made this act of resignation all the pain left

"When I left the bath the belt I had been wearing over the growth was no longer needed. It fell off me. I came home, knowing that I was cured of my terrible malady."

The woman has presented herself at the Cancer Hospital, and the astonished surgeons have certified that she is no longer suffering from cancer.

THE SQUIRE'S RECOMMENDA-TION.

A kind-hearted squire dismissed a gardener who used to steal his fruit and vegetables. For the sake of the man's wife and family however he gave him a testimonial worded thus: "I hereby certify that A. B. has been my gardener for over two years and that during that time he has got more out of my garden than any man I ever employed."

The New Apostolic Delegate To United States.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 1, 1902 .--Mgr. Frederick Z. Rooker, secretary of the Apostolic Delegation, received a telegram recently from Mgr. Falconio, announcing that he had been appointed Apostolic Delegate to the United States to succeed Cardi-Rome last May. Mgr. Falconio is now in Ottawa, and will remain until Nov. 15. He will arrive Nov. 20, and trefoils, emblematic of strength and will be installed the following St. Aloysius' Church.

Franciscan Order. He will be the third representative of toe Pope accredited to the American hierarchy. The new delegate is a native

Italy, and was born in 1842. came to this country in 1860, and oined the Franciscans at Alleghany city. In 1864 he became naturalized, and in the presidential efection of 1872 he voted for General Grant. He afterward came to Washington and met the famous President, who gave him his photograph with his autograph thereon. Mgr. Falconio retains this treasure.-Boston Pilot.

The Pope and Irish People.

The correspondent of the New York 'Freeman's Journal," writing from Rome, under date of October 25, says:-Pope Leo last week received Sir Thomas Esmonde, the bearer of an address of congratulation on the Pontiff's jubilee signed by both Cath- of Parnall at the base in front, olic and Protestant members of the the act of speaking by a table, over Irish Parliamentary party.

The Holy Father received Sir "The pyramid is to represent Ire-Thomas with the utmost gracious land. The four sides will contain ness and kindness, and asked him a symbols cut into the marole in gold, number of questions about Ireland , expressive of the four provinces of and Irishmen that showed the inter- Ireland. Around the ba est which he takes in the affairs of pyramid the names of the fifty-two the country. He looked well, and counties will be inserted. expressed his gratification at the tri-bute of reverence and devotion from ment has been that it should be simthe Irish people which Sir Thomas ple, impressive and austere, in keep-presented to him, and spoke of the ing with character of the Irish cause, fidelity of the Irish race throughout as well as of Parnell. The cost of the world to the Faith. He gave his the monument will be $50,000."

blessing to Ireland to the Irish people at home and abroad. He went with the model of the monument, on in an impressive way to steak of which he is taking with him back to Cancer Cured at Lourdes throughout the world were a re to Catholic nations. He then throughout the world were a model quired about the condition of the Irish people at home, and expressed his fervent hope for the cessation of their troubles. He promised to transmit an official reply to the address, at the earliest moment, to the Chairman and members of the Irish Party.

Sir Thomas Esmonde was impressed by the alertness of the aged Pontiff, and his great foresight, keenness, and knowledge of affairs when speaking of Irish matters. He was gratified to find the Holy Father possessed of much vigor years. He expressed his deep gratitude for the Sovereign Pontiff's expression of sympathy with the Irish people in their affliction, and his appreciation of the work of their reresentatives.

The address presented to His Holiness the Pope by the Irish Parliamentary Party was handsomely illuminated and engrossed and was enclosed in a silver casket. It is in the Irish language with an accompanying translation in Latin, former being illustrated in Celtic. and the latter after the 12th century style; both are remarkably in contrast, the Celtic is far and away the superior style of the two, the ancient symbolism of a religious nature being faithfully adhered to, not only on the objects introduced, but in the design and form of the shape of a cinque foil, a plant that in nature protects its flowers during storm, like a mother sheltering her child. Ireland, a beloved daughter, having found refuge in the Church during many storms, is symbolized by a circle surrounding the cinque foil. The intervening space is filled in with shields containing the arms the provinces and the Capital, with the Pontifical Arms at the head, and pictures of two of the earliest Christian Churches in Ireland, St. Flannan's at Killaloe, and St. Columb's in Donegal, held on either side by interwoven animal forms typical of life eternal. The coloring is in beautiful harmony, the prevailing tones being those of the Pontificate. The address is on the second page in three panels, with border work of the interlaced form containing many beautiful interlaced crosses and animal forms, of the earth, air and sea, representing Faith and the Universe. The title page of the Latin translation is in the form of a trefoil, within a circle signifying the Godheadthree in one, the niches containing the emblems of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, "the Hand of God in the clouds," "the Lamb of God," and the Dove descending. containing the arms of Ireland occupies a prominent position onpage. The address on the last page nal Martinelli, who was recalled to is inscribed on three panels also conveying the thought of the Trinity. 'The ornament consists of vine leaves and joy. Each column being suport Sunday with a solemn High Mass at ed by the symbols of the Evangelists-Matthew the winged man; Luke Mgr. Falconio is a member of the the winged lion, and John the easte. The four leaves are united by cords and tassels of silver and gold and are bound by a covering of Irish poplin, also in the Pontifical colors, the whole forming a very handsome scroll. It has been designed and illuminated by James M'Connell, who has closely followed the traditions of ancient Celtic art, both in tion and beautiful finish, fully sustaining his already well known reputation

The title is on a panel in the

The Parnell Monument

Before sailing for home last Friday, Mr. John E. Redmond said: "Mr. Augustus St. Gaudens has been engaged upon the model of the monument for nearly two years, and it is now complete. In a letter, Mr. St. Gaudens says: "After a great deal of time and study devoted to which form the monument should take, I have concluded that it should be a pyramid of forty or lifty feet in height, composed of gran mara marble, with a colossal statue which is thrown a large leish t'up.

the unity of the Irish people. The Ireland. It will be the greatest no Irish race in Iritand and scattered nument in the Irish capital.

Church Sufthese two army of the eaven.

00000000000

ands that the Cross,"

next year

tillness that to-day, all

e tempest," ers for the e who have

way of life religion to on and to pulsings of de and res that pics, bound to

by the mys-

n of Saints.

chain of hurch Mili-

KEEP YOUNG. secrets of keeping and supple-jointed, is practice the activities to refuse to allow the the muscles by its age limitations. who kept up the vitalof robust manhood the eighties, had sucy to the thought of e, how much of their ork would have 16-

OF CIVILIZATION. s fact. in the history

uggle the hardest for ve been highly ule, the same One would think that great relief to have great relief to have utter problem solved ors so that he might mergies and time to of the meatal and so. But this is con-rdict of history and ience of the world.

(By an Occasional Contributor.)

GEORGE ELIOT.-Although these few articles upon the reading of novels by Catholics, we mapped out short sketches of five leading writers of romance—Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Lytton and Beaconsfield-before dealing with the last mentioned, we wish to dot down a few remarks concerning the chief female novelist of English literature-George Eliot. We do so at this stage, because we consider that our cause we consider that our young people are far more likely to be than those of the great literary statestissue of political and diplomatic intrigues. Besides George Eliot has had, for years, a powerful sway in the realm of light, or imaginative literature, and she has had the unfortunate faculty of leaving deep impressions upon those who read her works. We say "read," because any person, of sound judgment and sane morals, who has studied her books cannot but come to the conclusion that she painted worlds as false as the one in which she lived, and that she prepared her readers for lives as fruitless and as wretched in their ending as was her own. In this instance we cannot seperate the life of the writer from the works that she has given to the world. To ignore her own career would be to omit the key to her so-called principles neglect the mainspring of her false coloring and still falser reasoning We know of no writer of fiction, be it in our age or in any other one, more dangerous and more to be avoided than George Eliot; and the fact of her being a woman makes the matter still worse.

Mary Ann Evans was born in 1820, and was from her infancy an exceedingly clever child. In her early school days she developed talents that were not to be expected in a girl or woman-in fact, they masculine in their vigor and extensiveness. She had a wonderful apfor the study and acquirement of languages, as well as for the art of English composition. She was destined no doubt to become a great writer, and her subsequent career, when she entered the field of romance and assumed the name of George Eliot justified the most extravagant prophecies that could have been made regarding her. She wrote early and wrote well; that is to say, from a literary point of view. One eminent critic has justly said: "Standing as an impassable morality warns us that, value George Eliot as we will, from the literary standpoint, no success can excuse her disregard for social virtue.'

The translation of Strauss' "Life of Jesus" appears to have been her first serious work and, at the same the foundation of her anti-Christian principles. From 1852 to readable number. The leading arti-cle is a timely "Vindication of the

THE CATHOLIC WORLD is

with the recent strike of the American coal miners. Says the writer:-

"In the first place, the chief con-tention in the strike was the right of the miners to unite into labor organizations not merely for self-pro-

but for the attainment in the future of healthful living conditions that have been denied them. The opera-the illegality of the miners' organiz-

"As to the legality of Trades doubt. It is admitted on all sides it is denied only by those whose pur-cannot set it on fire to the detriment

They refused to arbitrate any representative of the with

pose seems to be to reduce honest cular lesson it has taught that is no such thing as absolute over the his historical encyclical "On the ship in such sense that a man organize. In their interview v President Roosevelt they spoke ction against existing injustices, of the People" in connection

Catholic Magazines for November.

teaches the right of labor to organize, but he urges organization after the manner of the mediaeval guilds only by combining that the miner in Pennsylvania has secured even the shadow of a decent livelihood. Any one at all familiar with the condi-

what hardships labor there has been has nowhere been so evident as in the anthracite coal mines. When it

European peasants whom centuries of wrong had debased to the lowest stages of mental and physical squa-lor, and he tried to lower the scale of wages and break the power of the unions by pitting these human slaves against honest labor."

If the strike has taught any parti-cular lesson it has taught that there is no such thing as absolute owner-as a means of self-protection.

tions in the mine regions was found that the American 1859 she was an assistant editor then she met the infidel essayist, George Henry Lewes. Their subsequent career together — putting into practice the false ideas of morality which they preached—ended in the personal dishonor of the weaker one. was in 1857 that enes of Clerical Life." a work that at once stamped her as a dan -an able and therefore still more dangerous-person. In 1859 she began her course of novel writing with "Adam Bede." This is the first, and possibly the strongest of all her works. It created a reputation for her, and set her at once in the first rank of English novelists.

A list of her principal novels gives an idea of her industry. "The Mill on the Floss," (1860); "Silas Maron the Floss," (1860); ner," (1861); "Romola," (1863); "Felix Holt," (1866); "The Spanish Gipsy," (1868)—this one in verse; "Middlemarch," (1872); "Daniel Feronda," (1877). It is said that she consulted over one thousand volumes to write this book. Her last work was "Impressions of Theophrastus Such," in 1879. At the end of her life she married Mr. J. W. Cross-but only lived one year in actual married life.

Brother Azarias says: "George Eliot cast off the shreds of Christianity that had hung about her when she first began to write, and in her later works suppressed Christian influence as false and pernicious. Here is the fountain whence the poison permeating this gifted writer's later works." Brother Azarias dwells specially upon her "later works" it is difficult to say, for his estimate of them applies equally to all her important writings. In fact, the poison can be traced back to her very first production "The Life of Jesus."

Our reason for thus drawing attention to George Eliot and the danger of his novels is two-fold; firstly she decidedly ranks, in a literary sense, amongst the great English novelists, and she leads by long odds in the phalanx of female writers of romance; secondly, we have found literary associations, classes and circles, all Catholic and all under the direction of Catholics, wherein George Eliot is studied. It is quite possithe that they argue to the effect that it is her style and perfection that studied; but these cannot be are made a subject of study and criticism without that the students read her novels. And no person can read them without becoming, more cr contaminated. Hence it is that we believe the works of George Eliot should be strictly forbidden in all Catholic circles. We can live without their dazzling literary splendors-we may die morally in consequence of their marked corrupt-on.

| Condition of Labor," not only | do as he rleases with his property

miner would no longer submit to fare where the lives of others galling conditions, the operator in-endangered. If he owns a house, he vited to the coal regions hordes of of his neighbors. If he owns a coal irrespective of the rights of

An exaggerated idea of ownership or the part of many has done more to thing. We shall probably hear no more of the claims of "the Christian nen to whom God in His Infinite

Wisdom has given control of the property interests of the country."

In the exact sense of the word any Himited in its nature. If a man is owner of a stick of dynamite, he cannot explode it in a public thorough-mine, he cannot grind the faces his workingmen. He must make such provision as is necessary for ysical safety. "There is dictate of nature," says Leo XIII., "more imperious and more ancient than any bargain between man and man; that renuncration for labor must be enough to support the wage-earner in reasonable and frugal com-fort." And again he writes: "If through necessity or fear of a worse evil the workingman accepts harder conditions because an employer or contractor will give him no better, he is the victim of force and injus-tice." The laborer is not a pice of machinery to be purchased at the least possible cost, and thrown aside as worthless when it is of no further use. Nor is he a mere animal need-ing provision for bodily wants only. He is a man with God-given facul-ties, of high and noble dignity, having the most sacred relations and owing the most solemn duties to his Maker, and having spiritual and mental aspirations that require be satisfied just as much as wants of the body."

THE MESSENGER, amongst oth er interesting articles, has a trenchant one upon the attack recently made upon the American public schools by the president of Harvard

"It is fortunate," says the writer, 'that Dr. Eliot's diatelle agains the public schools was not uttered by a Catholic. It would have so ex cited the whole country that some American Combes would have called for an Associations Law and closed up all our establishments. But we are used to being startled by President Eliot. With all due allowance for its sensationalism, we think it is unjust to the public schools. Why should they be arraigned for not doing what they are forbidden to do, and what their very nature prevents them from even ing? They are purely secular, and their object is to impact exclusively secular knowledge. The ladylike morality which it is proposed to inculcate in the schools, such as kindness, gentleness, cleanliness, punctuality, etc., can never be expected to wrestle with such grim problems as the impurity, drukenness, dishonesty, gambling, political, corruption, dis-regard of human life, etc., which Dr. Eliot considers to have invaded the republic, and for which he holds the defects of the public schools responsible. Religion is the only power that can cope with such disorders, but by Dr. Eliot and his associates debarred from the religion is schools. It is not the schools, but it is he and other educational experimenters who are to be held countable for the condition of affairs which he notes. To clamor for more money is to imply that the subject matter of the school curriculum badly taught, and that the teachers are incompetent because of insufficient remuneration. What else does more money mean if it is not to spur them on or to replace them by more efficient teachers? Catholics have always considered that the opposite is true; that the subjects studied are generally good enough- or were until lately-and the teachers most devoted. Only one thing they object to, and that is the want moral teaching, which is absolutely impossible without religion. We are quite willing to accept the schools as they are if that one gap is filled. For such a shrewd man the proposition to heal all these ills by more money s so illogical and unbasines like that one can scarcely regard it as serious. In this single year we have spent for 17,000,000 pupils more than $226,-000,000, exclusive of the interest on $576,000,000, which the schoolhouses are worth. Ten thousand times that sum would not be excessive if it could help the morality of the country, but if it has hitherco only resulted in the harvest of crines which he points out, then it is uneasonable to ask for more. thing is wrong with the methods. To change the metaphor, the commonest quack will discontinue the medicir which is killing the patient. Even his word will not be sufficient to assure us that money is the panacea.

The origin of the feast of Our Lady of the Snow is given in "Pilgrim Walks in Rome," by S.J., who, re-ferring to the basilica of St. Mary Major, says:-

This is one of the largest noblest religious edifices of the Christian world: it is also probably first church of our Lady publicly consecrated in Rome (though some think this distinction belongs Sancta Maria Antiqua in the Forum), and, after the basilica of Loretto, the greatest and most important of our Lady's sanctuaries. lis an cause of its consecration by Pope Liberius in A.D. 360. It is use known as Our Lady of the Mauger, from its possessing the relics of the Holy Manger, in which our infant Saviour was laid; Our Lady of the Saviour was laid; Our Lady of the Snow, because of the miraculous event mentioned below, to which it oves its origin. St. Mary Major, because it ranks above all the churches of our Lady in Rome, and (after Loretto) in the world. The traditional story of its foundation is as follows: A Roma patricial named John, who owned the property on the Esquiline hill, whose the busilion now stands, had marred a pieus lady, and, having no children.

he and his wife resolved to make our Lady heiress of all their property, and sought in prayer for some intimation of her will as to its disposal. One night both were bidden in their sleep to build a church on the Fsquiline hill, on a spot which they would find on the following morning marked out in the snow. This hard marked out in the snow. This har pened on August 5, A.D. 358. As August is the hottest month of the year in Rome, the fall of snow at that season could only happen by naiked out in the snow. This haping to acquaint Pope Liberius with the purport of Our Lady s expressed himself received a command from our Lady to co-operate with the pious couple in the work enjoined The Fore, accompanied by the cler gy and people, repaired to the Esquiline and there found the ground future church clearly traced thereon The basilica was begun forthwith, and completed in 360. Some recent writers think that this story on insufficient evidence, and observe that it is not found in the long dedication poem inscribed in marble by Sixtus III. It is, nowever, retained in the lessons of the feast of Our Lady of the Snow, August 5, and so is not without some authority. the Borghese chapel of the Basillca the miraculous snowfall is commen orated every year on August 5 by a shower of white rose-leaves from the dome during High Mass."

THE OTTAWA UNIVERSITY "published by the stud magazine, ents," is a very creditable review, filled with good and well selected reading. From the Rector's Commencement Address a few passages may be quoted:-

all things we must look to the end; "In omnibus respice finem."

"Thomas a Kempis tells us that in "Evidently he does not refer to the proximate end; which is indeed usually kept in mind. For instance, the end of the scholastic year is, least in this case, a proximate end. Where is the student who forgets it, notwithstanding the cares and distractions of his studies, recreations, and even examinations? If he could, he would emblazon the town with parents and devoted teachers is almost as vivid in this respect; and who can blame them, in view of the sacrifices which the scholastic year entails? What Thomas a Kempis means, then, is not the proximate but the ultimate end, and this gives the maxim a paramount importance; for the means are constantuniversally, pushing that ultimate foolishness; the dismal lot of the reprobate. Hence again, profound ignorance of the real nature of things present; as nothing can be rightly known, except in the light of its ultimate end. Allow me to apply this maxim to education, and fix your mind on its ultimate end. Now, is the ultimate end of education? The word "education" in itself, as we all know, means the leading from one thing to another, educere. that other point? Is it simply the making of a living, or food and rai-These are means, surely ment? the ultimate end. Is it simply the harmonious developing, training and perfecting of the physical, intellectu-al and moral faculties? Thats is, indeed a great deal; but it is only the process of education, not its ultim-You do not train for the sake of training. What, then, is the ultimate end of education? It is, to quote Scripture, 'the plenitude Christ, imparted to the children God.' In other words, it is the deification of God's adopted children And, note well, this is true, not or ly of what is termed religious education, but of education in the full one kind of education, and religion is of its very essence. 'A system of education.' says Cardinal Manning imposture.' It is not education; cannot educate the people. Call instruction, if you will; but in the name of Christianity, and also truth, let it not be called education You might as well call the tower of may be a 'hard saying' to the world ly-minded: but it is the truth. And so, that is the ultimate end God has in view in the education of His chi dren, the angels included; the

MOSHER'S MAGAZINE susta the exce'l nt standard reached

Christ has in view in the cducati of all mankind; the Church in the education of all nations; and the University of Ottawa in the educa tion of all those whom Providence has confided to her care."

Business Cards

T. J. O'NEILL Real : Estate : Agent, 180 ST. JAMES STREET,

if you want to buy, a property, want to sell your property; if you want to exchange your property, want your rents collected, your taxes, insurance, sepairs and renting attended to, call or write for terms. Special attention given to properties of non-residents. Prompt Returns, Moderate Charge

M. SHARKEY.

Real Estate and Fire Insurance Agent

Valuations made of Real Estate. Per-onal supervision given to all business, Telephone Main 771

GARROLL BROS.

Plumbers, Steam Fitters.

795 CRAIG STREET, near St. Antoine Street Drainage and Ventilation aspecialty. CHARGES MODERATE. Telephone 188

CONROY BROS..

228 Centre Street.

Practical Plumbers, Gas and Steam Fitters ELECTRIC and MECHANICAL

BELLS, etc.
Tel. Main 3552. Night and Day Services

TELELEPHONE 3833.

THOMAS O'CONNELL

Dealerin General Household Hardware, Paints Oils, and a fine line of Wall Papers. or, Murray and Ottawa

> STREETS. PRACTICAL PLUMBER.

GAS, STEAM and HOT WATER FITTER

RUTLAND LINING, FITS ANY STOVE

CHEAP, Orders promptly attended to. :-: Moderate harges . .-: A trial solicited.

ESTABLISHED 1864.

G. O'BRIEN. House, Sign and Decorative Painter

PLAIN AND DECORATIVE

PAPER-HANGER. Whitewashing and Tinting Orderspromptly ttended to. Terms moderate. Residence 645, Office 647, Durchester street, ast of Bleury street. Montreal.

Bell Telephone, Main. 1405.

DANIEL FURLONG.

CHOICE BEEF, VEAL, MUTTON and PORK,

Special rates for Charitable Institutions. TELEPHONE EAST 47.

LAWRENCE RILEY, PLASTERER.

Successorto John Riley, Established in 1866. Plain and Ornamental Plastering, Repairs of all kinds premptly attended to. Estimates fur-vished.

OHUROH BELLS.

CHURCH BELLS Chimes and Peals, OSHANE BELL FOUNDRY

MENEELY BELL COMPANY

TROY, N.Y., and

177 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY. lanufacture Superior EHURCH BELLS

0 their stock with their I soon fe of these la

School Lif

myself so: What in we ing to do tiny urchir all that th of old a p tain class the book t since explo is suppose more learne this is not former year standard h carefully a long throug tains nothin works, and much. In rule that o solid and la the general the learning that of the the sight o immense vo so ponderou tions. In help think more in the heads: for i his evenings in school to memory all what is in cramming a expense of cationally.

AFTER THREE YI

FROM RHEUMATISM.

red Much Agony, His tite Failed, and His otr Left Him-Hope for Sin

ly those who have suffe ngs of rheumatism kn h agony the sufferer has endure. The symptoms The symptom pains in the muscles trial, these pi

the simple or pondering mentary his case with a

they have for their own g ary, but among them will 1 latter sometimes much times the patient is s himself, and the slight ot possibly cure ri ad for this purpose ther edicine yet discovered Williams' Pink Pills

ness Cards

T. NOV. 8, 1902

J. O'NEILL Estate : Agent,

JAMES STREET. nt to buy, a property, want property; if you want to our property, want your ted, your taxes, insurance, renting attended to, call or crms. Special attention operties of non-residents.

Moderate Charge

SHARKEY. and Fire Insurance Agent

made of Real Estate. Persion given to all business, Main 771

OLL BROS., ers, Steam Fitters, etal and Slate Roofers.

REET, near St. Antoine Street nd Ventilation aspecialty. DERATE. Telephone 188

OY BROS..

Centre Street. bers, Gas and Steam Fitters Cand MECHANICAL

BELLS, etc. 2. Night and Day Services

ELEPHONE 3833.

S O'CONNELL

l Household Hardware, Paints fine line of Wall Papers, ray and Ottawa

TREETS. TICAL PLUMBER, and HOT WATER FIFTER NING, FITS ANY STOVE

ly attended to. :-: Moderate rial solicited.

TABLISHED 1864.

O'BRIEN,

and Decorative Painter AND DECORATIVE

APER-HANGER.

and Tinting. Orderspromptly rms moderate. Office 647, Dorchester street, treet. Montreal. elephone. Main. 1405.

L FURLONG,

VEAL, MUTTON and PORK, for Charitable Institutions. LEPHONE EAST 47.

RENCE RILEY.

STERER.

ROH BELLS.

HURCH BELLS Chimes and Peals, Superior Copper and Tim. Getour price, SHANE BELL FOUNDRY Ealtimore, Mc.

BELL COMPANY

Y, N.Y., and NAY, NEW YORK City. Superior CHURCH BELLS

ATEST SELL FOURINY Estab. 1867.
The Pont and Chime Boile.
Ower tot I left In the cannot be to be times the patient is unable to shimself, and the slightest jar-As and outward applications canpossibly cure rheumatism; it the treated through the blood, for this purpose there is no dicine yet discovered can equal Williams' Pink Pills. When given trial, these pills never tall

ON SCHOOL CHILDREN. HE other morning I was IN THE CASE OF GIRLS.-While I am on this subject, I may as well

Our Curbstone Observer.

tanding on the curbstone on Sherbrooke street when a oand of boys came along on their way to school. I was specially attracted by the smaller lads. Each of them carried a big bundle of books; some had green baze covers over their volumes; others had satchels too small to hold their stock; many of them had little boxes with pencils or drawing materials; and all were well loaded down with their weight of school mate-

I soon fell to musing over the lot of these lads, and as I had been reading the articles from one of your contributors on the "Perils of School Life," I was inclined to ask myself some pertinent questions.
What in world, I asked, is a boy going to do with as many big volumes as 1 noticed under the arm of one tiny urchin? Is it possible that he should be able to hold in his head all that these books contain? It was of old a prejudice, amongst a certain class of people, that the bigger the book the more learned the reader. But common sense has long since exploded that idea. Then it is supposed still by many that the more a person reads the wiser and more learned that person must be. Now, experience teaches us that this is not the case. The man, in former years, who had a few good, standard books, and who read them carefully and studiously educated himself, while the person who gal-lops through, as millions do to-day, volume after volume, generally retains nothing beyond the titles of the works, and sometimes not even that In fact, we may take it as a rule that omnivorous reading is but ill calculated to store the mind with solid and lasting information. Hence the general superficial character the learning of to-day composed with that of the past. It may be that the sight of those boys with their immense volumes, so numerous and so ponderous, led me to these reflections. In any case I could not help thinking that they carried far more in their arms than in their heads: for it is not reasonable to expect that a young boy could devote his evenings at home and his days in school to the acquiring a knowledge of, or to the retaining in his memory all that these books contain. I do not pretend to know what is in them, but I do know that cramming a young mind with matter far beyond its capacity at the expense of the solid rudiments- and a little at a time of them-is by no means calculated to advance him educationally. Imagine a boy studying conic sections who does not know the simple rudiments of arithmetic or pondering over the philosophy of history, who does not know the elementary history of his own country. I am not saying that such is the case with any of the boys to whom I refer. But I am confident that they have far too many books for their own good.

JOSEPH ROCHETTE RELEASED

ered Much Agony, His Appe

aly those who have suffered from pangs of rheumatism know how a agony the sufferer has at times endure. The symptoms often y, but among them will be found

e pains in the muscles and joints, latter sometimes much swollen.

tite Failed, and His strength

Left Him-Hope for Similar

Sufferers.

direction of higher education. But it seems to me that while a magnificent dress serves to adorr a lady and to enhance her other fine qualities, yet the same dress would be entirely out of prace in the house, at ordinary domestic work, it would make her look foolish were she at the sewing machine, and render her ludicrous were she in the kitchen. .The same with the adornments of education. While music, painting, botany, geology, and so forth are emblishments not to despised, it would be far more profitable if practical and plain needle work, domestic work of every kind, were added thereto. What kind of a wife can a girl ever expect to become who knows absolutely nothing about the running of a house in all its details? She may be brilliant, attractive, a social success; but that does not mean a domestic success. And if she is not calculated to be a helpful wife much less can she ever be a useful and good mother. It may be argued that she expects to marry a husband sufficiently wealthy to leave her all the leisure she wants, and to relieve her of the necessity of having to do any real work. That is a mere speculation, a chance. She may never get such a husband. And if she did so marry, she would be at the mercy of her servants. Not knowing how to do anything herself it would be hard for her to dictate to others, or even to detect when errors would be committed. But no girl should be allowed to calculate upon such a future. The fact is that the vast majority of them have to face the realities of life, sooner or later, to learn from bitter experience that which they might have learned in a more pleasant way in school days. . They soon forget, in the eternal drudgery of domestic life, the acquirements once intended to adorn them. The piano, if she has one, is long left untouched; the brush and the pencil are forgotten; even the ordinary pen rusts and ink dries, and she almost forgets how to write. Then when the children commence to grow up about her, she has to spend long hours attempting to do, with difficulty, what other women can do with ease and rapidity. She has no sense of order, no knowledge of how to work, no acquaintance with the requirements of her home, and she is miserable, oppressed, broken in spirit and in body, until she looks upon her young ambitions and her early ac quirements as the mere phantoms of a dream never to be realized. What I mean by all this is that girls need practical and technical training just as much as do boys, and yet there is no question of them when people talk about industrial schools and technical education say a word about the girls. There is nothing more delightful than to meet with an accomplished, educated girls to have all the advantages that our schools of to-day afford them in

It is a grand thing for young

AFTER THREE YEARS proof of the value of Dr. Williams' you to try something else which he Pink Pills in cases of this kind. Mr. may say is "just as good." See that Rochette says:-"For nearly three the full name "Dr. Williams" Pink years I was a great sufferer from Pills for Pale People," is on rheumatism. The pains seemed at times to affect every joint, and the wrapper around every box. If in doubt, send direct to The Dr. agony I endured was terrible. Someliams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. times I could scarcely move about, and the pills will be mailed and was unfitted for work. The trouble affected my appetite, and in for $2.50. this way my weakness increased and my condition became more deplor able. I tried a number of remedies, but nothing helped me until I was

Pills, and then relief came. Gradu ally the pains left me, my appetite mproved and I became greatly trengthened. Before I had taken a lozen boxes my health and vigor was advised to take Dr. Williams'

End of a Pine Career.

The murder is announced of the brother of Sir Alfred Moloney, Governor of Trinidad, who has been oc cupying the post of British Resident ozen boxes my health and vigor was in Northern Nigeria, for the past ch that I felt better than I did year. The London "Universe" thus before the trouble began. I have refers to that unfortunate and emin ent gentleman:

"Captain Moloney was formerly in feel convinced that Dr. Williams' the Royal Irish and South Stafford-Pink Pills are the best medicine in shire regiments, but resigned Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold since when he has served in a milin every civilized land, and their normous sale is due entirely to tary capacity in various West African quarters. His life and his death are but another proof of the good work of Irishmen and Catholics in the Imperial service, work that even at the present day has found many, and most, British Governors of the Catholic Magazines for October

(Continued from Page Six.)

"Ye who would, pagan-like, build nan's littleness into divinity, see rather with Dante how God has dignified our humanity by uniting it so closely to Himself! See, believe, exult, and give thanks! Would you feed your soul upon the rapturous beauty of a thought as noble as it is ennobling, as sublime in its conception as it is poetical in its execution, and as soothing, sweet, comforting, hopeful, uplifting as it is beautiful and true, seek it not even in the divine Plato, but in the di-viner Dante's "Paradiso." And yet many a time and oft does this celestial pilgrim during the recital of beheld and the transports of love which he experienced. And this occurs not only when he ascends to the dizzying heights of God's supreme beauty, as we have but just now heard him declare, but on many other occasions does this same sense of overwhelming beauty, of loveliness quite unutterable overpower the For instance, he says, no muse could inspire in poet a strain lofty enough and thrilling enough to fittingly celebrate the witching, the imparadising smile of the evermore lovely Beatrice. If all he has hitherto said of her exquisite beauty were combined in one laudation, he continues, "'t were all too weak to furnish out this turn." Such was the increased brilliancy of Dante's happy and happy-making Beatrice at this point that the very remembrance of it "doth even now quite dispossess his spirit of itself." Again, of his vision of Mary, that lovely one of heaven, of the triumph of that queen, "whose visage most resembles Christ's," he says: "Had I a tongue in eloquence as rich as is the color-ing in fancy's loom 't were all too poor to utter the least part of that enchantment." Notwithstanding the abundance of deep impressions he does report, he constantly accuses memory of incapacity to recall the hundredth part of what he had experienced. Towards the end of his pilgrimage he utters a fervent prayer that his tongue may have power to relate to the future races of men but one sole particle of God's glory. All this, of course, is of a piece with the realism, the fervid intensity and prophetic earnestness which we found to be characteristics of Dante's manner especially in the "Inferno."

THE ANNALS OF STE. ANNE de Beaupre contain good and profitable reading. "The Christian's Day," is the title of an article from which we take the following extract:-

"Because we do not understand mysteries is not at all a reason for not believing them. There are many things around us that we cannot understand; how your food, through the process of digestion, turns into blood and restores your strength? Do you understand how the grain of wheat sown in the soil, sprouts and puts forth a stalk on which a fine ear of the same wheat will grow and ripen? Do you understand how water when reduced to steam acquires such force that it can haul heavy passenger and freight trains on our railways? Do you understand how those convenient vehicles that run through the streets of our cities are less you find no difficulty in believhave existed or do exist; you believe it on the evidence of your fellow beings. You have never seen Jacques Cartier or Samuel de Champiain but you believe that the former discover ed Canada in 1535, and that the latfounded Quebec in 1608. You have never seen the city of Rome; you believe that it exists because you have been told so. You have never seen your mind and yet I am sure that you believe you have one lf it be reasonable to believe in the testimony of an honest man, still more is it sovereignly right to believe in the testimony, in the word of God. By our adhesion 'o the truths revealed we do homage God's infinite science. ledge Him as the inexhaustible source of all truth. We do homage to His sovereign veracity, believing that He can neither be deceived nor us. The act of faith is therefore religious act by which we glorify the perfections of the supreme Being in esses to the highest de what He possesses to the highest gree. You do your fellow-leing pleasure when you say to him:

in His infinite veracity. This act of faith is excellently meritorious for it implies the sacrifice of our reason of which we are so justly proud. In effect it is through our reason we resemble the angels and God Himself. The act of faith raises instead of lowering us and makes us participate in the divine science.

THE GUIDON, an Muscrate monthly, published at Manchester, N.H., presents its readers with an interesting assortment of literary products. From an article "Out Fishing," we take the following ex tract:-

"A moderate preference for angling is a gentlemanly trait. It is an accomplishment which benefits one more than medicine. The reverend prelate of Boston, Archishop Williams, can guarantee this conclusion. his wonder-filled journey complain the impossibility of forging speech to express all the beauty he where the staircase of life is usually where the staircase of life is usually supposed to be a trifle rickety. The Archbishop, however, walks to-day with the firmness of an army officer, and at all the cathedral functions sings with the strength and confidence of a choir-hand. I have been informed that he attributes the ripe youthfulness of his long, useful life to the salutary open-air benefit derived from the days which be spent fishing during the leisure of early priesthood. It was his advantage for several years, as a young priest, to be given every Man'ay 'off;" and for him this meant regu larly, once a week, an afternoon with the fishing rod. The unique Thorees did not know the fields and meadows of New England more intimately than this same archbisnop when the latter was but a simple churchman, although already a seasoned fisher man. Rod in hand,—that is to say the fishing-rod, for I never heard that he wielded any other,-he has followed the brooks up through wildest lands of central Massachusetts and on over the boundary into the vallers of the White Mountains into districts where certainly Catholic priest ever penetrated before him and where probably only abandoned farmers have even thought of living since. Honors came into his life; work increased, and, with it responsibilities multiplied, crowding out leisure and rendering his favorite pastime a reality to him no longer. It is over thirty years since he sacrificed his fondness for the hook and line. There remains vet from those days, however, the elastic step, the buoyant manner, the sympathetic eye, and as much hair on his forehead as he had when a young man, more indeed than many a junior pre-late can make boast of. A noble figure is Archbishop Williams, -wise silent, strong in patience, and always given to clear convictions; a grand old man in body and mind, worthy of his great see. "Vivat, crescat, floreat! as they say in the German universities."

CONSCRIPTION LAW IN ITALY

This evening, writes the Rome correspondent of the "Freeman's Journal," under date of October 8, Vox Urbis was at a very curious dinner party in Rome. There was present a few prelates, two editors, three professors of political economy, a journalist or two like himself, moved by electricity? Not a savant two private soldiers. The latter wore in the world can tell you how all the regular military mustache, and these wonders are worked. Neverthe- the uniform of the Italian army. But from the very outset any one might ing them because your good sense has long ago told you that life is impossible without this natural faith. In the same manner there are about them which showed that they thousands of things you have never were not quite made for the charac-seen and yet you believe that they time being. All this, however, not prepare one for the surprise of learning that the two gentleman in question were actually priests. Such is the conscription law in Italy even the ministers of the altar are obliged to give a year, or two or vice, and to be under the command of a corporal who oftentimes his best to make them suffer for the crine of being in holy orders.

Yet even this cannot be said be the worst features of the conscription in Italy. Priests have as a rule gone through a course of and arrived at an age which makes them able to resist the evil influ ences of barrack life, but it is otherwise with the young men who are taken from their studies at college and plunged at once into the vortex of temptation which is the common lot of the common soldier in all countries. That the results than they really are is due to the extraordinary care which is taken of these young men by their religious ation of the barracks only too often leaves some sort of a mark after it.

Premium

Subscribers.

We offer as a premium to each Subscriber a neatly bound copy of the Golden Jubilee Book, who will send the names and cash for 3 new Subscribers to the True Witness.

This is a splendid opportunity to obtain a most interesting chronicle of the work of Irish Catholci Priests and laymen in Montreal during the past Fifty years.

FRANK J. GURRAN

B.A., B.C.L.,

.ADVOCATE ...

Savings Bank Chambers, 180 St. James Street, Montreal:

New Books AND 💝 New Editions.

A Practical Commentary on Holy Scripture; for the use of Catechists and Teachers. By the Right Rev. F. J. Knecht, D.D. With illustrations and maps. Second edition.

Two vols. 12mo. Half morocco, net $4.00. Manual of Sacred Rhetoric; on How to prepare a Sermon. By the Rev. Bernard Feeney. 12mo. net

Translation of the Psalms and Canticles with Commentary. By the Rev. James McSwiney, S.J. 8 vo. net $3.00.

The Triumph of the Cross. By Fra Girolamo Savonarola. Edited with introduction by the Very Rev. John Proctor, O.P. net $1.35.

The Little Imperfections. Translated from the French, by the Rev, Frederic P. Garesche, S.J. 12me. net $0.60,

The Oratory of the Faithful Soul. By the Right Rev. Abbot Lewis Blosius. Translated by the late Bishop Coffin, C.SS.R. 16mo. net

A Mirror for Monks. By the Right Rev. Abbot Lewis Blosius. 16mo. net $0.20.

A Book of Spiritual Instruction s "Instructio Spiritualis." By the Right Rev. Abbot Lewis Blosius. Translated from the Latin by the Rev. Bertrand A. Wilberforce, O.P. Second edition. 12mo. net $0.75.

A General History of the Christian Era. For Catholic Colleges and Reading Circles, and for Self-Instruction. By the Rev. A. Guggenberger, S.J. In three volumes.

pire; with a table of Aryan Languages and ten colored maps. $1.50. Vol. II. The Protestant Revolu-

Vol. III. The Social Revolutions with six colored maps. $1.50. The Life of Bartolome de Las Cacan Ecclesiastical History. By the Rev. L. A. Dutto. 12mo. net $1.50. A Benedictine Martyr in England. Being the L,fe and Times of the Ven. Servant of Go., Dom. John

Roberts, O.S.B. By the Rev. Dom. Bede Camin, O.S.B. 12mo. net $1.25. Lucius Flavus. An historical tale the time immediately preceding the destruction of Jerusa the Rev. Jos. Spillmann, S.J. 12 mo. $1.50.

The Place of Dreams. Four stories by the Rev. William Barry, D. D.

The Marriage of Laurentia. By Marie Haultmont, 12mo. net $1.60.

B. HERDER. 17 S. Broadway St. Louis, Me.

LI MITED

St. James Street.

"My children," said an old man, as he lay on his deathbed, "I, have lived long, toiled hard and worried much. But as I look back upon my life I find that my greatest troubles have been those that never happended."

How many men and women would have to make the same confessional! Life, as a rule, is made twice as miserable as it need be simply by imaginary troubles. The disposition to worry is one of the most unfor-tunate mental traits or habits with which a young woman can start in life. It is generally such a needless burden—as needless as the sack of meal which the Irish farmer carried on his back, as he rode home in hi cart, to lighten the labor of his horse. Imaginary troubles seldom come to pass—in a form, at any rate as bad as we have imagined, and ye they are the most depressing and wearing mental ills with which many people have to contend. It is the bridges we never cross that give us worst tumbles into rushing torrents and frightful chasms.

One of the happiest purposes that a young woman can form, on enter-ing upon the serious business of life, is the resolution not to worry -to hatch as few imaginary troubles as possible. Make the rule never to be distressed about anything that such a calamity is going to happen. This would not, of course, exclude preparation for any possible trouble, but it would prevent that premature and generally unnecessary suffering which helps to make so many heads gray before their time.

FATHER LEPORE'S AIRSHIP.

Father Felix M. Lepore, pastor of the Mount Carmel Italian Catholic Church, Denver, Col., has been notified by the committee in charge of the $250,000 prize for airship competition by Mettz of London that his machine is one of the three so

THE

HOME

MONEY

MAKER

We wish to secure the services of families to do knitting for us in their homes. Our method is the same as adopted a England. We are the introducers of this plan and the largest knitting concern in Canada.

After long experience, we have been able to produce an Automatic Machine by which all and the same seem of control of the control of control of the control of control of the control of cont far accepted for the race out of hundreds of applicants. The inventor will not discribe the details of his hip. There is no doubt of its success," said Father Lepore enthusiastically. "I never before studied so long on an invention, and as soon as the vessel is completed it will be as easy for me to fly from here to New York as to walk five miles."

JEW BECOMES A CATHOLIC.

solemnly adjured the Jewish faith and declared his conversion to Cathlicism at the Church of St. Thomas Daquin, Paris, on last Wednesday General Recamier and Duchess Bearn were his sponsors.

MR. REDMOND RETURNS TO IRE-LAND.

Mr. John E. Redmond, chairman of the Irish Parliamentary Party, who came over to attend the United Irish League Convention in Boston, sailed on Friday of last week on the Celtic for home. He was accompanied by his wife and son.

John Dillon, M.P., and Michael Davitt, who accompanied him to this country, will remain here until Christmas working in the interests of the Irish cause.

Whoever considers distinctly what or where the fountains will gush and he delight of knowledge is, will see the birds sing. That is with God. the delight of knowledge is, will see good reason to be satisfied that it cannot be the chief good of man; all this, as it is applicable, so it was nentioned with regard to the attribute of goodness. I say, goodness. Our being and all our enjoyments are the effects of it; just is itself lutely due to God, so also it is ne cessary in order to a further end, to seep alive upon our minds a sense of His authority, a sense that in our ordinary behaviour amongst men we act under Him as our governor and judge.-Bishop Butter.

More Home Knitters Wanted

To Work at Their Homes

Under the Direction of

The GLASGOW WOOLLEN CO.

37 MELINDA ST., TORONTO,

To Fill Large Contracts—Good Wages

Easily Earned.

OUR METHOD OF DOING BUSINESS

NO CONNECTION WIT: ANY OTHER COMPANY.

We want a few more workers in this.

We want a few more workers in thislocality, at once, and in order to secure your co-operation without the delay of oorrespondence, we herewith explain our full plan in this advertisement.
The work is simple, and the Machine is easily operated, and with the Cuide, requires no teacher. If you wish to join our staff of Workers let us hear from you promptly with the Contract, order form, and remittance, as a guarantee, and we will send machine and outfit to begin work at once.

THE POOR SOULS.

Calling on thy name with grief? "Why dost thou forget my needing" Why refuse to me relief?

Did I not, through years unbroken, Spend my heart's best love on thee' Now do thou, in grateful token, Pray for me, o, pray for me!"

Father, mother, may be calling; Wilt thou list to them in vain? Couldst thou know their woe appall-

Couldst thou judge their bitter pain; Then wouldst thou, with glad acced-ing. For their freedom constant pray. Mindful that thou, too, in pleading, Wilt upraise thy hands one day!

-Amadeus, O.S.F., in St. Anthony's Messenger.

No experience will ever reveal to us what changes are yet to come to us, or what now growth or pruning we shall have. We know not what day will bring forth. We can come familiar with a landscape; know where to find the waterfall and the shady ledge, where the violets grow in spring and the sassafras gives forth its odor; but we never can become familiar with our life landscape; we can never tell where we shall come upon the shady dell,

Happiness is cumulative as misery is. Happiness has no limits, as Heaven has neither bottom nor boundsand because happiness is nothing but the conquest of God through love. Seek to mingle gentleness your rebukes; bear with the infirmities of others; make allowances for constitutional frailties: never harsh things if kind things will . do

A Pair in 30 Minutes

GLASGOW WOOLLEN CO., 37 Melinda Street, Toronto

PACIFIC

MPROVEDOTTAWA SERVICE

"Ho am 4.00 p.m., "10.00 p.m., 12.5 p.m., 17.00 p.m., 18.25 p.m., 17.00 p.m., 18.25 p.m.,

Springfield, Mass. Through Cor. From Windsor St. 7.46 p. m. daily, ex

City Ticket and Telegraph Office. 129 ST. JAMES STREET, next Post Offi

GRAND TRUNK

INTERNATIONAL LIMITED" &

MONTREAL AND NEW YORK.

Shortest Line, Quickest Service.

Day trains, daily except Sunday, each way.

I Night train, daily each way.

Lye, MONTREAL †7.15 a.m., †11.00 a.m., AFF. NEW YORK *6.30 p.m., +10.00 p.m.,

Daily. †Daily, except Sunday.

ONTREAL and SPRINGFIELD, Ma Through Coach Parlor and Sleeping Car Service. Trains leave Bonaventure Station 9 01 a.m. eek days and 8.40 p m. daily.

FOR COMFORT TRAVEL by the GRAND TRUBE RAILWAY SYSTEM CITY TICKET OFFICES, 187 St. James Street Telephones Main 460 & 461, and Bonaventure Station.

THOMAS LIGGET'S CARPETS

Excel in Novelty and Cheanness

2474-2476 St. Catherine Street

Catholic Sailors' Club

A special meeting will be held in the rooms of the Club, corner of St. Peter and Common streets, on Friday, Nov. 17th inst., at 3 p.m.

Every member is requested to atend, as business of an important nature will be transacted.

M. A. PHELAN,

Catholic Sailors' Club

ALL SAILORS WELCOME.

Concert Every Wednesday

Evening.

All Local Talent Invited; the finest in the City pay us a visit.

MACS at 9 30 a.m. on Sunday.
Secred Concert on Sunday.
Tvening.
Open week days from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.
On Sundays, from 1 p.m. to 10

references as to our honesty and integrity, we must ask you to do the same, in order that we may know with whom we are dealing.

We have, in as brief a manner as possible, endeavored to show you what our work is, and we simply say as to the machline, it is just what we represent it to be, and will positively do everything we claim for it, or refund the money. Each machline, securely packed with an outfit, is set up for work, thoroughly tested, and a sock or stocking partially knitted before boxing and shipping. Should you decide to read of the stocking and shipping with us, it will be necessary to send us Cash Control of the stocking and shipping with us, it will be necessary to send us Cash Control of the stocking of the st

Tel. Main 2161. St. Peter and Common Sts.

CARPETS

Decorate Hundreds of Beautiful Homes.

2474-2476 St. Catherine Street.

lass certificate; salary, $500 pe ol-house close to Church an lotre Dame Street.

v. Windsor Stp., 8.45 s.m., *9.40 am sl0 s.m., 4.00 p.m., *10 06 p.m. r. Ostowa, 11 45 a.m., *12 40 p.m., sl. 25 p.m SATURDAY, NOV. 8, 1902.

> A Wonderful Exhibit of Fac-Simile Copies of All the Crowns Worn by Leading Rulers of the World.

> Each Crown is full size and an exact reproduction of the original as to color of metal, size, cutting, color, brilliancy of setting of its priceless jewels. It is the most attractive and unique Historical Art Exhibit ever attempted, and coming, as it does, at a time when Crowns and Coronations are in the thoughts of almost everyone, it cannot fail to be received not only with interest, but with enthusiastic appreciation,

POPE LEO XIII.

Amongst the Crowns being exhibited at The S. Carsley Co., Ltd., none are more interesting than the

Tiara and Sceptre of His Holiness

Pope Leo XIII. • It is a marvel of beauty and of intense interest to everybody. It alone attracts thousands of people.

To cover the cost of the Booklet which we give away, containing an illustrasion of each Crown, along with a short, concise historical description, and other expenses, a small entrance fee of ten cents for adults and five cents for children will be charged.

The Exhibit is on the FOURTH FLOOR, adjoining Mail Order Department, and will be opened Tuesday morning at 10.30 o'clock.

Waterproof Specials.

Ladies' Waterproofs.

Ladies' Rubber Coats in Blue, Black, Drab shades, plain back, flare sleeves, turn down collar. Carsley's special $2.35

Ladies' Rubber Coats in Gray and Drab shades, yoke back, wide sleeves and large turn down collar. Carsley's special $5.75

Ladies' New Heptonette Coats, tucked back and front, wide sleeves, with new collar in Drab and Gr-y fhades. Carsley's Special. $8.25

Men's Waterproofs.

Men's and Young Men's Fine Waterproof Coats, strongly sew-ed, side slanting pockets. Carsey's Special $5.65 Men's and Youths' extra fine Men's and Youths' extra ine Waterproof Coats, strongly sewn, silk velvet collar, slanting peckets, equal to custom made. Carsley's Special. . $ 2.00 Men's and Youths' extra quality Rainproof Overcoats, in bark Gray Striped Tweed, slanting pockets, sewn with silk, silk velvet collar. Carsley's Special $15.75

Brady came into our clas afternoon and called me we got in the hall he one had told him th sing. And then he asked would like to join the ch going to lend me a casso ice until I can earn mo to get them. There is g mission next Sunday, a feel fine up there singing those people. Now, grand the supper.'

And while our little frie occupied, we shall desc what more in detail these ortant characters of o

Patrick Kiernan and his li on, Gerald Crighton, li e of Rd-the boy so merry and ne, and his aged relative and, it was believed, some abby and hard to get alo But Patrick cared not for ing tongues. He had pro would care for the boy he was able, and would in the Catholic faith. S nise had been faithfully

The lad had grown to be boy; rather too fr to playing tricks on s, but, withal, the mfort of Patrick's old poral gifts, he was blessinging voice of rare posetness, but which, unfo d had no cultivation; for s poor and could not to send the child to at singing masters of trest large city, even dected on the desirabil ceted on the destrabiliblan, which he had not be allowed by the could help them of the choir boys of St
Catholic Church of I
Catholic Church of I Whe could help them of the psains and hymni
I Brady had never give Brad

of the many families we are employing, together large amount of knitting we are able to turn out. If you wish to examine the machine and see the machine we save rents, insurance, interest on capital, etc. If you wish to examine the work, you can do so by use to undersell any manufacturers of this class of and we have sale for all the knitting we can have used to the same of the property of the same When the street of the street Thomas Ligget's To the Glasgow Woolen Co., 37 Melinda St., Toronto. Gentlemen,—I deeline to do the work as described in this divertisement, and enclese $15$ to pay for one Automatic Knitting Machine, together with material, instructions, and everything necessary for the work, the same to be sent to me by Express, CHARGES PropAID. It is understood and agreed that any time after I have lone an amount of work equal to the purchase price, $15$, and wish to discontinue, that the Glasgow Woolen Co. will and wish to discontinue, that the Glasgow Woolen Co. will expresse, refund me he amount paid for same. Sender or head of family (if possible) must sign here;

A Lady Teacher Wanted

Wanted for Holy Cross Catholic perate School, Macleod, N.W.T., a ady teacher holding first or second in price is heard ou all sides in the Dress Goods Salon. It you knew the magnitude of THE BIG STORE'S busing power you'd understandh ow.

COLORED DRESS coocs.

"WOOL FRIEZE"-Heavy All-Wool Frieze

Suiting, all wool, elegant effect, full range of Fall and Winter shades, 54 inches wide. $1.00 $1.00 "EROMA"— New Black Eroma Cloth Dress Goods all wool, rich finish, makes a stylish tailor-made costi me, 42 inches wide. Carsley's Special..... 55C

BLACK DRESS COODS

IMAIL ORDERS CAREFULLY FILLED.

LIMITED. 1765 to 1783 Notre Dame Street, 184 St. James Street, Montreal

SATURDAY, I

THE NIGHT

THE

MISSION.

"Oh, grandad, I have news for you! I am to choir at last, and next vespers you shall hear you glad, gran Gerald Crighton, a curly-headed boy, abo years of age, threw dow hang his pile of well-w

"Easy, lad, easy," can voice from a corner of room, where sat an old working away with various straws, which he was def into a pretty little basi afraid you'll spoil your "Oh, no, grandad," r boy, as he went over an ingly down by his g knee. "They're used to feel as if I just have t hing to show how happy I tell you all about it, g fore I get the supper?"

"By all means, Gera the old man, laying a k on the boy's head. Any erning his harum-scaru grandson interested him.

"Well," Gerald begar

er in a tiny thatched contside the small New En

St. James Street. DAY, NOV. 8, 1902.

LI MITED

mile Copies of Leading ld.

tion of the original as to g of its priceless jewels.

Ratibit ever attempted, Coronations are in the received not only with in-

CHI. CARSLEY Co., LTD., none

His Holiness

to everybody. It alone away, containing an illusistorical description, and adults and five cents for ning Mail Order Depart-clock

you; you can defy en's aterproofs.

a's and Youths' extra fine proof Coats, strongly sewn, velvet collar, slanting ts, equal to custom made. Y's Special. . $ 2.00 a's and Youths' extra qualinproof Overcoats, in Dark Striped Tweed, slanting ts, sewn with silk, silk collar. Carsley's Special $15.75

oods Salon, If you busing power you'd eavy All-Wool Frieze of Uxford and Gray. stylish winter 59c itiful Snowflake Dress ect, full range of Fall $1.00 es wide. Goods

e cos-BLACK 55c DRESS ric, all inches COODS 75c

ILLED. Co. LIMITED. mes Street, Montreal

. J. & S. Whisky

S.

highest price in

OUR * BOYS * AND

~{{

THE NIGHT OF THE

MISSION.

'Oh, grandad, I have such good ews for you! I am to be in the choir at last, and next Sunday at espers you shall hear me sing. ren't you glad, grandad?'' And And erald Crighton, a bright-faced, curly-headed boy, about twelve years of age, threw down with a bang his pile of well-worn school

"Easy, lad, easy," came a weak roice from a corner of the tiny room, where sat an old man, busily forking away with various colored straws, which he was deftly weaving into a pretty little basket. "I'm afraid you'll spoil your books."

"Oh, no, grandad," replied the boy, as he went over and knelt lovingly down by his grandfather's knee. "They're used to that, and I feel as if I just have to do something to show how happy I am. May I tell you all about it, grandad, before I get the supper?"

"By all means, Gerald," replied the old man, laying a kindly hand on the boy's head. Anything conerning his harum-scarum young grandson interested him.

"Well," Gerald began, "Father Brady came into our class-room this on and called me out. When we got in the hall he said that meone had told him that I could sing. And then he asked me if I would like to join the choir. He is going to lend me a cassock and sur- days.' plice until I can earn money enough to get them. There is going to be mission next Sunday, and won't I feel fine up there singing before all those peoffe. Now, grandad, I'll get the supper.

And while our little friend is thus pied, we shall describe some what more in detail these two ortant characters of odr simple

Patrick Kiernan and his little grandm, Gerald Crighton, lived togein a tiny thatched cottage jus itside the small New England vilge of R-

They were a queer contrast, folks id-the boy so merry and frolicne, and his aged relative solemn , it was believed, sometimes even by and hard to get along with. ing tongues. He had promised Ger-ald's mother, on her death-bed, that would care for the boy as long he was able, and would bring him in the Catholic faith. So far, the ise had been faithfully kept. The lad had grown to be a bright uppy boy; rather too frisky and then to playing tricks on innocent s, but, withal, the pride ort of Patrick's old age. Of oral gifts, he was blessed with aging voice of rare power and ss, but which, unfortunatel ad had no cultivation; for Patric poor and could not have afford poor and could not have allora-to send the child to one of the t singing masters of Boston, the uest large city, even had he ever-exted on the destrability of such blan, which he had not.

old the desirability of such blan, which he had not. seraid's one wish was to be amit the choir hoys of St. Monica's. Catholic Church of R.— He whe could help them out in singthe psalms and hymns, but Fairady had never given him the nee, so what could he do about Though not of a particularly id disposition, he was far too he so to beg this privilege. Anyhow, granded knows I can and God knows.

eing, and exert his imagination as Rto how he could possibly make a little more money for "grandad."

For, as we have said, they were poor, and Patrick, who was now too old and infirm for any hard labor, sat in his arm-chair all day long, making baskets, an occupation he ald attended the parochial school part of the day, devoting the remainder to doing odd jobs for the neighbors, who were always ready to help the aged man and dutiful lad any way they could.

So we find them on the evening our story opens-humble, yet happy, resigning themselves in all trou-bles and difficulties to the good God, and trusting to Him for the bare necessaries of life.

The supper was soon prepared.

Patrick Kiernan and his jubilant young grandson drew up their chairs to partake of it, the latter continuing to chatter on the subject which was uppermost in his mind right then-his much-desired appointment to the choir.

Patrick listened in silence for a few moments, and then, seemingly after deep thought, he said soberly:

"Gerald, my boy, I hope you won't let the blessed gift that the Almighty has seen fit to give you make you proud. Promise Him that you'll always use it for His service, and then do your best. Oh! that your poor dear mother could have nived to see the day! What fathers are to preach the mission, lad?"

"The Redemptorists. And I heard Mr. Phelan, the sexton, say that he thought people would come from miles around, as this is the first mission they have had in many a day."

"Well, well, my lad, we all need a stirring up to God's service once in a while, don't we? But come, Gerald, clear away the dishes now, and we will say our rosary. Poor grandad is not as strong as he used to be, and he gets tired early after the close of these long summer

"Oh, you're strong, grandad," plied Gerald hastily, who could not bear that his precious old grandfa-ther should show signs of falling health. "You're strong," he repeated, "only you've been working a lot to-day, and it's natural for you to be tired. I sold your three baskets this afternoon to some ladies at the Benson Hotel, and, I declare, I forgot to give you the money. Here it is," and the boy praced three shining half-dollars in Patrick's hand.

Not many moments later the cottage was in darkness and its occupants sleeping soundly. That night Gerald dreamed that Sunday had come. He thought that, kneeling before the altar, donned in and surplice for the first time, the Blessed Virgin had appeared to him and, in the sweetest of tones, said:

"I am pleased with you, my child, but you must sing for me."

Gerald thought he discerned just the faintest possible accent on the word "me" in the sentence Blessed Lady had spoken. Then while in imagination, he was con emplating the beauty of his Augus Queen, the vision disappeared, and he awoke to find himself in his own little cot at home, with the morn inLg sun streaming in at his dow and the sound of a clatter of dishes coming from the next room, where Patrick was fumbling about in where Patrick was itimizing about it his careful, deliberate manner, pre-paring the breakfast for his young grandson before sending him off for the day.

Gerald sprang from his bed, solido quizing on the lateness of the hour for it was past eight o'clock, and he feared being tardy for school.

he feared being tardy for school.

Very often during the day, however, did he think of his pretty dream of the preceding night, and his mind dwelt particularly on the words of our Blessed Mother: "You must sing for me."

Would he do Her bidding and beneth Her, or rather the souls of Her hildren, by his voice?

We shall see.

surrounded by shady lawns and bordered on one side by a little rippling stream, stood Ferncliff, the summer home of Mr. Foster, a wealthy gentleman of Boston.

Every spring, about in May, the house was opened up and thoroughly cleaned in preparation for the comhad learned when a boy, while Gering of the owner, with his gentle young wife and fairy-like little daughter, Aline.

The Fosters were Catholics; that is, Mrs. Foster and Aline were, and it was the one trial of their loving hearts that the head of the family had not been to the Sacraments in a long, long time.

Mr. Foster was not a bad man. On the contrary, he was a kind and devoted husband and father, honorable towards his neighbor and charitable to the poor, by which last he was greatly loved and respected. But business cares seemed to have driven from the poor gentleman's mind and affections all remembrance of our dear Lord and His commands; and it was with deep sorrow that Aline and her mother were obliged to go to the Holy Sacrifice Sunday after Sunday without Mr. Foster, who, at that time, would be comfortably seated in his cnsy study, reading the morning papers.

Aline had been often told that by prayer alone could her dear father be won over to right, and therefore the pious child trudged to Mass every morning, even during the sesaved," was her one stimulant when she was tempted to yield to an inclination for a trifle longer sleep in the comfort of her downy bed. It often seemed to the little girl as if the dear God were indeed deaf to her Then her earnest petitions. guardian angel would whisper softly her words of courage and perseverance, dispelling her doubts and misgivings. And Aline was also strengthened by the thought of Monica-how this holy woman had prayed thirty years for the conversion of her son, the great St. Augus tine, and at last her prayer had been answered. To Aline thirty years seemed almost a life-time; "but," she assured herself, "God will not make me wait as long as that, and even if He does, He'll help me to be patient, I'm sure."

One bright June morning, when the Fosters had been settled at Ferncliff for some weeks, Aline, returning from Mass, ran into the sunny breakfast room, where her father and mother were leisurely finishing their coffee.

"What do you think, mama," she exclaimed joyfully. "A mission is to be opened in the church Sunday and the Redemptorists are to preach it! Those are the priests who have a church near us in the city. You know them, don't you, papa? One of them came to our little Ellis when he was dying, and we liked him so

At the mention of the dear little boy who had left them for a better world a year or so ago, Mrs. Foster dropped a tear, while her husband ouchsafed a hasty, "Yes, Aline, child, I remember the good father you speak of," and quickly left the room, under pretense of giving some important directions to the gardiner, who conveniently passed the window at that moment.

After his exit, Aline removed her light straw hat from her pretty auburn curls, and, sitting down near the open door, she gazed wistfully after ner father's retreating form.

"Oh, mama darling," she said oftly, "don't you wish that papa would make this mission? I prayed to the dear Sacred Heart to-day for that intention. May I go to the ser-

"We'll see, dear. They usually give ecial instructions for the children, nd, of course, you may attend hese. Pray without ceasing for our pape, Aline. This may be the ery occasion God has chosen to ring His lost sheep back to Him-if."

"Yes, mamn, indeed I will,"

The remainder of that week passed | merry little voice of Aline from the rapidly. Sunday came, a beautiful foot of the stairs leading to his credulously. "I thought it was an bright day, as far as the weather room. was concerned, and destined to be so in many other respects also.

 $\frac{1}{3}$

Aline Foster was very happy. She was to accompany her mother to the Solemn High Mass at eleven o'clock. This in itself was a source of delight to her pious little heart. To kneel there before the altar, with its numerous sparkling tapers and fragrant' flowers, and to listen to the sweet music, while her thoughts were raised to her Adorable Saviour sacrificing Himself to His Eternal Father for the sins of the world- all this was to Aline a veritable Heaven. And to-day a new attraction was in store for her-the opening of the mission.

Indeed, so happy and light-hearted was the little girl that, after breakfast, she actually found courage to follow her father into his study, and there begged him to go to church with them that morning. So earnestly did she plead that Mr. Foster was moved in spite of himself, though rather impatient at her persistency, and, pushing her from him gently, he said:

"Perhaps to-night. Now run and play.

Aline thanked him prettily with a kiss, and ran to tell her mother the good news.

St. Monica's was crowded to overflowing at the last Mass that day, were winter weather. "Papa must be | and at the close of the service one and all firmly resolved that nothing short of inability to get to the church should prevent them from attending every sermon which would be delivered by that eloquent young preacher.

Yes, Father Cassidy had touched his hearers, and he had hopes of reaping a great harvest of souls during his stay in R--; but little was he aware of the great aid which was to come to him from a most unlooked-for quarter.

"Wasn't it grand?" exclaimed Aline, as she and her mother 'walked slowly up the dusty road towards their home, "And didn't the choir boys sing lovely!" (Aline did not always use the the most correct English, especially when she was particularly in her reference to any. thing.)

"You should say 'well' instead of 'lovely,' " corrected Mrs. Foster. 'Yes, dear, the boys are really improving.'

Some hours later, when the good lady was describing the scene of the morning to her husband, she said:

"Aline was almost enchanted with the boys' singing this morning, and usual. One in particular seemed to be inspired. I could hear his voice above all the others. I saw that old man, Patrick Kiernan, in one corner of a pew. He seems to be very devout. The little grandson, Gerald Crighton must be ill, as he was not with Patrick as usual to-day. If you have time to-morrow you might walk down to their cottage and see if anything serious is the matter with the boy. I have heard from several sources that they are poor, but thoroughly respectable and de serving.

Around seven o'clock that evening Mr. Foster began to be very uneasy He remembered with vexation that he had as good as promised Aline to attend the mission service, and he had not the heart to disappoint his daughter, much as he would have liked to back out the last mo-

"No, I must go," he "And, after all, it will not be so can sit at the back of the church can sit at the back of the church and if the sermon is very awe-in-spiring I can think of some business matter and so lose the greater part of it."

I hope our young readers will not be horrified at this unholy reflection on the part of Mr. Foster: but they must remember that he had forfeited the grace of God by sin which rendered him, in a great measure, in the power of the devil, and when we are in this deplorable state it is "Coming, my daughter," answered her father, and so they started.

On arriving at the church they found the entrance already thronged with people who, by degrees, were forcing their way into the pews. Much to Mr. Foster's annoyance, he and his were pushed along with the crowd, and finally ushered into one of the very front pews, where he would be obliged to catch every word the preacher might utter.

Before long the church bell rang, after which the long line of red-robed altar boys entered, followed by Father Cassidy, who said a short prayer, and, ascending the pulpit, began his sermon.

We do not wish to try the patience of our young readers by a recital of all Father Cassidy said that night, for we suppose that they are eager to reach the end of this story. But, in order that they may more fully understand the after events which will be related, we will set down a few points of his discourse.

The subject chosen was "Jesus, the Good Shepherd." He spoke impressively of our dear Lord; of His attributes as man; of His glorious mission on earth; of His great de sire for the salvation of poor sinners, and of the great malice those that will not be converted in spite of all He has done for them. As the zealous young priest con cluded with a beautiful appeal to all his hearers to turn to their Good Shephered with truly contrite hearts, many heads were lowered and strong men coughed to keep back the sobs rising in their throats.

Aline was crying softly, and, on glancing timidly up at her father, she perceived with pleasure that his face wore an earnest, thoughtful expression, as thought his heart were moved; but he still remained seated while many of the congregation had fallen on their knees in the exceeding love and fervor of their during those moments.

Two little boys are engaged in lighting the candles for the Benediction service, which is to follow, and presently the soft notes of the organ are heard, as a short prelude is played.

Then through the arches of the lofty edifice rings out a voice. Such a voice! Clear, full and mellow. Surely they are favored by a miracle and have an angel in their midst. One all hold their and breath. Oh, the pathos of those tones, as every sylfable comes forth clear and distinct of that beautiful I noticed how much stronger and Length a Time." It seems to the "Jesus, Jesus, Behold enraptured listeners as if every word is invested with a new meaning, and their love for the dear God is increased an hundred fold. But finally the last note died a > was finished, and as many curious persons (Aline among the rest, it must be admitted) gazed up into the chancel from whence the voice had come, they saw nothing of note. The usual crowd of black-rob ed choristers had not yet entered, but a little curly-headed boy in a cassock much too large for him, was laying a sheet of music on the miniature organ, and surely he not have been the soloist. He was far too small to be possessed of such a voice! No, it must have been an ungel, and at least one happy little heartcame to that conclusion. But we are wiser on this point, for we know that Gerald has sung his first public solo, and presently we shall ee that he indeed sang it for Her.

In the cosy sitting-room of Fernvealing to us that she, too, is consicilif Mrs. Foster and Aline were derably advanced in her journey toseated, nearly overcome with joy, for, wonder of wonders! papa had on these occasions they delight in gone to the Sacrament of Penance at talking of by-gone days; of life at

Some hours later Mr. Foster re-Some hours later Mr. Foster regraded to his home, and on learning that his wife and little daughter were still up, he went to bid them cond-night and to be congratulated in the happy change that had so ately taken place in his regard.
"It was the voice that did it." he selared repeatedly, "and I must are that boy, whoever he is."

"Was it a boy?" asked Aline in-Then they all laughed and went to Bright and early the next morning saw Mr. Foster on his way to Patrick Kiernan's little cottage. He had attended an early Mass, received Holy Communion and had succeeded in obtaining from Father Brady as much information as he desired concerning the instrument of his conversion, for as such he considered the owner of that angelic voice, which, together with the grace of God, had wrought so marvelous a change in his soul the evening before.

"Yes, it was Gerald Chrighton, Patrick Kiernan's grandson," ther Brady had said, "and I fear you will find it very difficult to carry out your plan of adopting him. The boy is defoted to his grand-father, and I am sure he would never consent to leave the old man and accompany you as your son, even if he knew his condition would thereby be bettered. If you really believe you are indebted to the lad, and wish to help him, you can do nothing better than to pay his way through college. He is a bright, industrious lad, and would make good use of God grant you may do the right thing."

We will not repeat the whole conversation between Mr. Foster and Gerald. Our space is limited. Sufficient it is to say that the former was more than pleased with the frank, pleasant manner of his future protege.

"You see, my boy, you have done as great service," concluded the gentleman, after he briefly related to the astonished Gerald the cir-cumstances which had led to his visit, "and I should like to repay you. What would you like best to do if you had plenty of money?"

"Well, sir," replied Gerald without hesitation, "I should like to be a priest—a missionary priest." Then he added in a lower tone, lest his grandfather, who was in the next room, might hear what he was about to say: "But who would take care of grandad? He's been a good friend to me, grandad has, and I couldn't leave him alone."

"We'll fix that all right, my lad," replied Mr. Foster. "Grandad can come, if he will, to live with us; and my little sunny-haired girl help to cheer him up when his dutiful young grandson is away at college."

After his benefactor had leave that day and Gerald had explained to Patrick all that had been decided upon, at the same time obtaining his consent to the desired plans, the two knelt reverently the tiled floor, thanked God for the good fortune that had so unexpectedly come to them.

And now many years have passed since the events just related took place.

Mr. Foster, his wife and good old Patrick have long since been called by our dear Lord to their eternal re ward.

Gerald, is an old man. His hairs have become silvery in the service of the altar and his life work is nearly over. But he has spent his

No doubt many poor sin the brink of despair have brought back to the right path his prayers and preaching, and for this last office his beautifully and musical voice has stood him

The Benediction was over, and the people were wending their way is by a flock of children, many of homeward.

Aline is happy—surrounded as she people were wending their way is by a flock of children, many of homeward. , whom call her grandma, thereby rederably advanced in her journey to-wards eternity.

On these occasions they delight in talking of by-gone days; of life at Ferncliff after Gerald and Patrick had become as members of the Fos-ter family. Then there will invari-ably be a prolonged silence on the part of the old priest. He is think-ing; and his thoughts dwell on a cer-tain much-to-be-remembered night in June Jones serve the picht of Father.

* OF BOSTON AND THEIR CHAPLAINS

CONVENTION of the Massa usetts State Firemen's ociation was held October 16 in Boston, at which dress was given by the Rev. William St. Elmo Smith, of the Fathers of Mercy, attached to French Church of St. Vincent de Paul, New York, and chaplain of the New York Fire Department.

We append Father Smith's uddress "The chaplaincies in the department date back to March 28, 1899, week following the disastrous fire of the Windsor Hotel, when men and women were bidden before their Maker without any preparation the conflagration. The usual fire lines had been formed, and the clergy from the near-by Cathedral found difficulty to break through the ranks to minister to the injured and dying, so the commissioner, who was the Hon. J. J. Scannel, thought of having chaplains recognized among the uniformed force. He reasoned the army and navy had their chap-lains, and even the houses of the Legislature, where there is no danger, and if these needed them, surely who are called out day night to the unexpected and the many risks attending their arduous duties where so many are exposed to lose their lives, not to mention the of the many who are huddled together in the congested tenements York, where many are yearly smothered or burned, it would consolation for the firemen and people to know that near by the priest and minister are ever on the to come to their spiritual rescue

The work was to be done without any compensation whatever, so we procured for ourselves horse carriage, uniforms, and all the accoutrements of a fireman. We rank as battalion chiefs, with the device of two trumpets surmounted by cross upon our helmet.

city assigned to us a driver from the uniformed force. Recently under our present administration, the commissioner, Hon. Mr. Sturgis has kindly presented each of chaplains with a horse and carriage

"In our rooms is installed , a alarm in communication with head quarters, and all fires are registered within the rectory, besides a bell that hits the stations. There is also a telephone, to keep us warned in case of emergencies.

"We respond to all third alarms in the city proper of New York, Fourth alarms send us anywhere in Greater New York, which includes Brooklyn. Second alarms bring us in the business district below Fiftyninth street. I have responded to as many as three third alarms in one night, which makes it a trying work metimes, especially as I must be fasting from midnight so as to be able to celebrate my Mass in the

"At the alarm, our drivers live in the nearest fire house to our rectory, drive over for us to find us at the door, with rubber ready With utmost and coat on. speed we reach the fire, penetrate the lines, and move about as close to the men in danger as possible, often lending a hand to carry the line to the hottest place. At first the lal temperance is unlimited, and men found it queer to see the clermuch has been accomplished. men found it queer to see the cler-gymen so near them.

"One night I heard firemen swear ing and cursing, as firemen sometimes can do. One of them bumped up against me. I called his attention to the language he was using. Who the h—— are you?' he said. 'Oh, I'm Chaplain Smith.' The men fell back, and I assure you the silerce that followed was impressive

"On a Sunday afternoon in the thickly populated East Side a fireman was injured and brought into a aloon, followed by the worst of abbles. I administered the last rites of the Church to the dying hero: every hend uncovered, every knee bent, and who can tell the ince it had on that hardened

ent. It was in the cold of winter at a huge fire consuming chemicals. Fireman Daniel O'Connell, of Engine Company 6, fell headlong from a roof to the rear yard. For a few moments it seemed as if he was doomed to be roasted alive, but several of his comrades, at the eminent wisk of their own lives, carried him to the street. While awaiting an ambulance, I administered restoratives, and during a spell of consciousness, heard the dying man's confession. It was a weird and impressive scene. There, amid the roar and rumble of a dozen snorting en-gines, the glare of the flames, and the heavy clouds of suffocating smoke that rolled from every opening the building, stood a dozen fire cles and policemen with bare heads forming a semi-circle. Within this space I knelt, my ear close to the dying man's lips. Suddenly the fire department searchlight turned its bright light on the reverent and held it there motionless, while I gave Extreme Unction to the whose eyes were fast closing Surely such a sight as this mus salutary effect upon brawny men who risk life and daily in the performance of The knowledge that far below stand the anointed minister of God ready to give the consolation of religion in case of fatal accident, must doubtedly steady the foot and nerve the arm of this fire fighter plies his perilous vocation in mid-

smoke of the burni

"Besides attending to the spiritual wants of the men, it has been our good fortune to Not long ago my fellow chap lain, Mr. Wall:ley, who responded the third-alarm fire of the Morton himself a hero House, proved saving, unaided, from certain death two young men who were taken unconscious to the hospital.

"The presence of chaplains at fire is not only comforting and as suring to firemen, but it has a quieting effect upon the inmates of burn Hysterical women ofing buildings. ten subside when the chaplains appear, or when they hear ce in the house Frequently lives have been saved by taking injured in our buggies to the hospital-injured who, otherwise would have to wait for an ambulance and suffer by the delay. "I might tell you of what was ac complished at the explosion of the Murray Hill Hotel, the disastrous fire of the Park Avenue Hotel, where we worked over many dying, and somewhat their last agony as they closed their eyes forever. ast incident. This was at the horror of the telescoping train from New Rochelle into the Grand tral Station. By telephone I was summoned on the first alarm; reach ing down into the tunnel, ghastly in the extreme was the sight that met my eyes. Clusters of men hanging from the windows of the car, faces black with congestion, held fast in their futile efforts to escape "A feature in connection with work has been the service of the cof fee waggon at big fires. We had no ticed how the men, hungry and thirsty, many of them not eating a mouthful in their long hours of fighting, felt faint and exhausted were sorely tempted to accept strong drink that was slipped among then so we made arrangements with a freshments. "Besides our presence at fires our work consists in visiting the men in quarters. We talk individually with the men, and many a fellow is fortified in his resolutions for go or a return to God is made by the chance a man has to confess his sins by taking him apart in the officers

ladies' temperance society, who fur nish us gratis with coffee and re-

"Weekly we made an official visit accompanied by the chief or b talion of the district. Men stand line, give the formal salute. listen to an address from both of us. The call is concluded as we pass down the line and grve each man a hearty

"We follow the men everywhere as much as possible, at their hard fighting in fires; their home difficulties are communicated to us; sit out for the trials for firemen held every fortnight before the commissioner notice the tendericies of men, their weaknesses as they are unfolded at their trials. Often chiefs and superior officers tell us of the faults men who may be threatened with punishment or expulsion from the ranks for oft-repeated delinquencies. We sreak with them and endeavor to better their spiritual life, feeling convinced that if that is right, all convinced that if that is right, all will be well. For you know that in bottling with fire, brute force is much in evidence; and wanted on these occasions, and so when men are constantly called upon to bring out animalism, the tendency is to submerge the spiritual, that God-spark which is given to man to fit him for the august presence of his Creator."

DEPRAVITY'S PROPAGANDA THE STAGE.

It is said that the world is daily growing more corrupt, and it is feared that there is ample cause for such an unpleasant statement wever, there is a bright side the picture, and if society is on the decline there is no stint of endeavor to prop it up and to redeem it. That regular propaganda of vice daily and hourly carried on is not a matter of surprise. The Devil is active, and may be more so day, as ever he has been, and the against him and his works, is just as potent, a vigilant, and as determined at this hour as ever sne has been throughout the centuries. In a public." Hon. John F. Firzgerald, editorially calls the attention of all Catholics on this continent to one of the latest efforts being made destroy the morals of the rising generation and to undermine the influ ence of the Catholic Church He says one place, that "The Republic upon "its brother-journals all parts of the country to set forth in its true light scenes and holy personages." In cent number of the Boston" Re view of the fact that Canada, especially Montreal, may be treated to the exhibition, and similar ones to which the article refers, we feel it our duty to reproduce the principal portions of that wise and timely varning. The Editor thus writes:-"It would seem that Miss Marlowe's managers might have selected a play which show forth as an actress without shocking the sensibilities of This they have done, in a "Queen most grievous manner, in Fiammetta," which is now completing a two weeks' run at the Hollis Street Theater.

Its author, Catulle Mendes, Parisian poet of Portuguese descent, whose literary flights have carried him in a direction quite opposite to the soarings of Santos-Dumont. Mendes is more at home in the Inferne than in the Empyrean. He is not only depraved himself, but he exalts and teaches depravity. He has beauty at his command, but it is the beauty of serpents and of panthers, of sinister, cruel passions that writhe and crouch in the dark recesses of our nature. The French courts have taken notice of his He counts his victims among the girted Paris

To minds like his, religion is unintelligible. The only form of beauty which they comprehend is that of Circe and the Sirens. The Madonna's loveliness escapes them. The Church, aiming to subdue and regulate passion, presents itself to them as tyrant and their response to her lofty admonitions is that tude of violent which is so familiar in the Latin countries.

This is the spirit in which Catolle endes has drawn his picture of Bo during the Italian Renais ding figures of play are Churchmen,-a cardinal, who is Cesar Borgia under a slight disguise of name.-a young friar, who consents to assassinate a Grand Inquisitor, who decrees in the name of the Pope himself the tragic and cruel catastrophe. Over this wicked consummation the Cardinal in his red robe presides like a conse-Mephisto. Worldly intrigue fanaticism, intolerance,-these the aspects of Catholicism which are exhibited to the spectator of this play. Borgia, Ravaignac, Torque-mada, such are the figures selected as typical of the Church.

Even the comedy scenes are irre-verent. The spirit of this degeners of Latin plays about holy things with Latin plays about holy thouse with a curious fascination, as if biasing, my had its own intrinsic deinght. In the second act we see a convent chapel, in which the gay queen, Fiammetta, tempts the young no es with songs and dancing and inflames their pure hearts toward a longing for the pleasures of a court not reproved for its imposence. There mees, for the pleasures of a court not renowned for its innocence. There meek nuns throw oil their piety and resume it with the coming and going of the abbess, as one doffs and doma mask. The whole scene is a satire on the supposed hypocrist of convent life, relieved only by a spurious pity for the unhappy inmates.
Catholics know that sich a picture is false. The face of almost which they all enjoy; and the clois er contains far more of true happ ness than the Venusberg.

Nothing of this, however, appears figure in it is quite innocent and cere, except the abbess, who is subject of ridicule and, moreover insignificant. Certain grisly dents of religious history are s as if this were all there were to it. By this process of selection one could compose hymns from Voltaire may be literally true and yet pro foundly untypical, and this is case with "Queen Fiammetta." does not even afford a just picture of Renaissance Italy, which had its saints as well as its artists and brigands. No one denies that the paganism of the Latin blood assert ed itself boldly at that period that the spirit of a Nero and Claudius sometimes crept gown of a Churchman. It reappears occasionally in modern times (let us say contemporary Paris), in robes of a poet or a prime minister Yet poetry is not essentially tious; nor is persecution the whole study of a statesman.

But "The Republic" is not dealin especially with Catulle Mendes. annot prevent foreign authors. living in the Paris of Combes and Waldeck-Rousseau, from giving shape to their own interpretation of religion however base and blind it may But it can and does warn Ameri can Catholics to shun these import ed exhibitions. It calls upon brother-journals in all parts of the country to set forth in its true light this travestry of holy scenes and personages. Only a few years since religious themes were avoided in the drama, by an unwritten rule -nich tion of prudence and good breeding If we may not appeal to a ense of courtesy, an instinctive re luctance to give offense, in preasts of the theatrical managers of to-day, we may at least entreat their prudence to take heed of our objections and our numbers. We are some twelve to fifteen millions this country, chiefly collected in the cities, where theatrical troups seel their patronage. A united voice of protest on out part might result in a revival of the old principle of forarance and the speedy retirement of this bigoted production by unspeakalle mocker Mendes.'

 THE SENSATIONAL LIES OF THE SECULAR PRESS,

plied with European corre pondence by the Press Publishing Company were recent ly treated to the following morsel of news, especially cabled, and displayed under "scare

"Paris, August 30 .- Louis Probst government engineer, asserts ost of the water used to heal the pilgrims of Lourdes does not flow e grotto where the Virgin is said to have appeared but is brought through subterranean pipes, said to have been secretly laid by monks years ago. Engineer Probst occu-ples a high position here and is a firm believer in the Roman Catholic

"A year ago he took his wife, who is afflicted with a malady the doc tors had pronounced incurable, to ourdes expecting a cure by a miracle, but as soon as she plunged in-to the tank she died.

to the tank she died.

"While the arrangements for her funeral were being made the engineer spent several days in observation. He noticed that the water used in the bottling department did not taste like that in the grotto and it occurred to him that the enormous quantities consumed could not be furnished by the scant grotto spring. Afterward he got a quantity from the grotto to investigate, and now he has made a report, in which he gives a chart of underground cannels and analysis showing different chemical elements in the water. Last year nearly 3,000,000 pligtins.

Rev. J. Van der Hayden, of the ntinel,' that this who puts implicit faith in all that specially when the news co ial cable, as did the above, had nis belief in the Lourdes' shrine siderably shattered, after perusing his sensational item.

"Indeed, who could be better qual ified to expose the monks' clever canalization scheme than an engineer, and a government engineer over, he is an excen tion to the common run of prese day state officials in France; he is a firm believer in the Roman Catholic Hence, he could not polsibly have acted in his denunciation out of hatred or malice towards the Church If it had not been added that he was a firm believer, it might have got into the head of the sceptical newspaper reader-a rare bird nowadays-that the fellow with the "high position" was a common fraud of the Professor Muller type, learned Bavarian pedagogue who at tacks the Church, as per his own ac knowledgment, for revenue only. Not very long ago, Professor Muller expressed his willingness to give his anti-religious zeal and to devote himself to scientific subjects entirely if the Bavarian bishops would be pleased to drop in a few shekels, when he would pass the hat around among them.

grounds for doubting the trath of the great piece of informa tion were eliminated by the careful stating: that Louis Probst was government engineer, that he was a irm believer in the Roman Catholic religion, that he occupied a high to sition

"But alack and alas for all titles of Louis Probst!

"He is neither an engineer, nor Catholic nor a man with a high pcsition, according to the ordinary standard of a 'high position.'

He is a common, every day clark, in an obscure dry goods store. obscure provincial town. All the engineering he ever did consisted measuring out yards of calico for employer's customers.

"His Catholicity is as wide of the mark as his engineering, for he is a member of the Lutheran church, and the most venomous anti-Catholic agitators of his district 'His wife may have been sick, and she may have plunged in the water of the grotto; but she certainly did not die there, for she is alive and well.

"The observations he made whilst the wife, supposedly dead, was being prepare for burial, might as well have been made, for the purpose o the lie, thousands of miles myar. they would have had equal value viz., none at all.

"The Superior of the Lourdes Fa thers did not at first condescend to notice the foolish inventions of notoriety-seeking humbug. When he did, on account of the imlicity given to the fake, the famous er came out with the startling retort-that the Fathers had in the meantime done away with all trace the incriminated canalization making the proof of the fraud impossible to him. 'The idiot did not reflect for coment that if the channels existed no more, neither could the enormous antities of water continued to h furnished. Up to date no one htard that the flow diminished in the that the flow diminished

"If the monks contributed $250,-000 to the Peter's Pence, they cer- their meaning, that one cannot tainly did not make the Press Publishing Co. correspondent, nor Mr. Probst, the confident of that little

"The good Fathers very likely con-The good Fathers very likely contributed their modest share to the Papal Fund as it is every Catholic's fliul duty to do; and the veracious and omniscient correspondent multiplied that contribution by a thousand, just as he multiplied the population of Lourdes by ten.

"Indeed, a town that shows only sake of a beautiful, solidly built city of eighty thousand inhabitants, one nay do something."

WALTER G. KENNEDY, DENTIST, 758 Lagauchotiero (Palace St.) Two Doors West of Beaver Hall, CRIMES OF THE TONGUE.

R. H. T. SUTTON in a recent address, at a banquet, held under the auspices of the inights of Columbus, speak-"Crimes ares and pleasures of the world that we are prone to forget our own mperfections, like the man St. Paul oke of, who beheld his counte in the glass and presently way and forgot what manner of man We are apt to take ideas of ourselves from the image the mirror of public opinion, and it is only serious illess or approaching death that brings us to a full realization of our wrong-doing. It therefore behooves us to study ourserves carefully, in order to eliminate that which is jectionable from our lives and to cultivate that which is good.

It is the duty of eveny member of our organization to exert his influence for all that is manly and good and to oppose with the same zeal all that is lacking in these essentials. But few men, indeed, nave escaped with unwounded con rom the sins of the tongue. The tongue, in large measure, the true character of man, showing whatever good or evil possesses in life. There is to-day no other existing social evil which disturbs so much the friendly relations between men or renders the domestic life of men and women so unhappy as the crimes of the tongue.

And it is not alone the memb of the so-called weaker sex who indulge in this crime, but strong-minded man as well. There is no other controllable, and there is no other reform which would elevate society ore It is falsehood and slande that cause perpetual strife among kindred, and develop the fullest bit terness of hatred between man and man. Then, Sir Knights, let in our efforts to do good, make bold crusade against this most dan gerous enemy to the soul.

Theft and murder are awful crime yet in a single year the aggregate pain, sorrow and suffering they edus a nation are but microscopic pared with the sorrows resulting from the crimes of the if you will, in one of the scale pans of justice the evil resulting from th acts of criminals, and in the other, the grief, tears, and suffering cause by the gossiping tongues of thos who are supposed to be Christians and you will be amazed to see ho quickly the former will shoot high into the air. At the hands of thie and murderer few of us suffer either directly or indirectly, but from th careless tongue of friend or the crue tongue of enemy, who is free?

Shakespeare said, more than four "Be ye pure as ice o as chaste as the unsunned you cannot escape calumny." ame is true to-day. No human being can live a life so good, so pure to be beyond the reach of malic or immune from the poisonous emanation of these tongues. The insidi attacks upon one's reputation falsehoods by whi they seek to ruin character, are like the insect parasite which kills the eart and tife of a mighty oak. cowardly is the method, so stealthy the piercing of the poisoned thor so insignificant the separate acts on guard against them. Ah! the dy-namite gun, with all its deadly and destructive power, cannot be comared with the slanderer's tongue The gun kills bodies only; the tongue kills character and reputation. The run does its work alone; each loaded tongue has many accomplices. The havoc of the gun is visible at once; the full evil of the tongue passe down through ages and it is suppossible to trace it to its finality.

down through ages and to sible to trace it to its finality. Then. Brother Knights, let our promises of brotherly love serve to prevent us from indulging in the crimes of the tongue; let us try to remember the good things we hear about each other and reject the slanders. Let us also be free and Christian-like in our forgiveness of those who indict wrongs upon us, for the man who has not the spirit of forgiveness in his heart cherishes an enemy who may yet arise to slay him. We should be sparing in our condemnation of others, for who of us is assured of his own salvation? is assured of his own salvation of those who have been slandered ould do no better than quote the cage of our Blessed Redeemer a He said: "I say unto you your enemies, bless them that

They called her dark-haired great mournful eyes, such deep black circle from County Kerry th companions knew of h toiled from early at night in one of th which are so frequent England States of them, she received in pittance, of which the went to the dear one land. But what was in that? Nothing, su of every three was do "Kerry" worked her with the rest, in the the Irish character. ence between her and hearts, respected it. During the short re each day, no one was than "Kerry" to hear land across the sea, n share in all joys and for herself, she seldom ter. In fact, she seen the world, save that ings found their way one at home. At rar letter came, having h queer, foreign writing, girls next saw her the picious redness about forbade questioning.

SATURDAY. N

ions lay, perhaps, in t

which she hedged hers

her companions, wit

Was there any little It could be traced to opportunity to lighter After hours she could ing along with the rest ed compartment of or tablishments called Boarding Houses, and when the meagre supp finished, she disappear seen again until retirir was she after her har work. Perhaps if you poor invalid in the ne came of an evening to ly life, sometimes to saved from a scanty m answer you. Perhaps ter, so tonely in the corner could tell. tle sanctuary lamp see when she entered and harder to pierce the s its feeble rays. Surel peep over the shoulder white angel with the g

There was one differ her cot and the rest. was a tiny picture of And many of her comp ed that she had a spe to the saint. When sh her short night prayers turned lovingly toward picture. When any of would invariably send foster-father of the Ch pecially was it whisper or Brigid's mother wa poor lonely girl would ple words, "I am sure will give her a very l am praying hard for l liarity which the keen were surprised to obse ry"-a great dread of ever a weird tale of a being told, "Kerry" way unseen, and were ed, she would fairly sl self, and look so piteo questioner would forbe further.

This reminds me of

For three years, day and week after week, steadily to her labor, der the little form slender the little form Then, after an unusua ter, she found herself But many had greater she had much to be At all events, she was tated for work, and most important consi

The wind was howling the poor rectory. The heaped high in great reached even to the y and the white dakes , NOV. 8, 1902, 00000000000000 CRIMES OF THE TONGUE.

. T. SUTTON in a readdress, at a banquet, under the auspices of the ats of Columbus, speakof "Crimes of all so busy with the pleasures of the world prone to forget our own, like the man St. Paul beheld his countenance and presently went his ot what manner of man are apt to take our selves from the image the mirror of public it is only serious illproaching death that a full realization of our It therefore behooves ourseives carefully, in sinate that which is ob-rom our lives and to t which is good. uty of eveny member of tion to exert his influthat is manly and good se with the same zeal acking in these essenew men, indeed, have unwounded conscience s of the tongue. The shadows arge measure, true character of man, life. There is to-day no g social evil which disch the friendly relations or renders the domestic and women so unhappy s of the tongue. not alone the members led weaker sex who incrime, but strong-mindvell There is no other ecomes so quickly and there is no other h would elevate society falsehood and slander erpetual strife among develop the fullest bit tred between man and Sir Knights, let s to do good, make a against this most danto the soul.

nurder are awful crime gle year the aggregate and suffering they oduse but microscopic the sorrows resulting nes of the tongue. Place in one of the scale pans e evil resulting from the mals, and in the other, ars, and suffering cause ping tongues of posed to be Christians, be amazed to see how former will shoot high At the hands of thiel r few of us suffer either ndirectly, but from th ue of friend or the cruel emy, who is free? "Be ye pure as ice of the unsunned snow, escape calumny." to-day. No human bea life so good, so pure, ond the reach of malice s eman om the poison se tongues. The insidi upon one's reputation, ruin character, are like arasite which kills the e of a mighty oak. So the method, so stealthy of the poisoned thorn, nt the se g, that one cannot be linst them. Ah! the dy-with all its deadly and ower, cannot be comtongue ! he slanderer's bodies only; the tongue or and reputation. The work alone; each loaded many accomplices. The gun is visible at once; of the tongue passe ages and it is suppose it to its finality. ther Knights, let our protherly love serve to orotherly love serve to come indulging in the tongue; let us try to good things we hear other and reject the us also be free and in our forgiveness of lict wrongs upon us, for has not the spirit of his heart cherishes an any yet arise to slay und be sparing in our of others, for who of this new salvation?

his own salvation? ave been slandered, tter than quote the Blessed Redeemer,

 KERRY. KERRY. ^Xaraki alaka karaka karaka

They called her "Kerry," this dark-haired girl with the great mournful eyes, underlined with such deep black circles. She came from County Kerry that was all her companions knew of her. Like them, toiled from early morn till late at night in one of those tall mills which are so frequent in the New England States of America. n, she received in return a mere pittance, of which the largest share went to the dear ones in old Ire land. But what was there strange in that? Nothing, surely.

of every three was doing likewise.
"Kerry" worked her long hours with the rest, in that resignation which is often found so strongly in the Irish character. The only difference between her and her companions lav. perhaps, in the reserve with hedged herself about. And her companions, with their true

During the short respite for lunch each day, no one was more eager "Kerry" to hear news from the land across the sea, more eager to share in all joys and sorrows. As for herself, she seldom received a letter. In fact, she seemed alone in the world, save that her little earnings found their way back to some home. At rare intervals a letter came, having her address queer, foreign writing, and when the girls next saw her there was a suspicious redness about her eyes that

Was there any little kindness done It could be traced to "Kerry." Any opportunity to lighten the lot of After hours she could be seen trudging along with the rest to the cramped compartment of one of those es tablishments called Corporation Boarding Houses, and very when the meagre supper had been finished, she disappeared, not to be seen again until retiring time. Where was she after her hard day's weary work. Perhaps if you had asked a poor invalid in the next block who came of an evening to cheer her lone ly life, sometimes to bring a morse saved from a scanty meal, she would answer you. Perhaps the dear Master, so lonely in the church around the corner could tell. Even the little sanctuary lamp seemed to know when she entered and to struggle harder to pierce the shadows with its feeble rays. Surely, could you peep over the shoulders of the great white angel with the golden pen, you would be satisfied.

There was one difference between At its head her cot and the rest. was a tiny picture of St. Joseph And many of her companions observed that she had a special devotion to the saint. When she was saying her short night prayers her look was the little turned lovingly toward picture. When any of the came to her with their trie others would invariably send them to the foster-father of the Christ Child. Especially was it whispered that Mary's in this house?" A man brought me poor lonely girl would feel a little ple words, 'I am sure St. Joseph will give her a very happy death. I am praying hard for her.'

This reminds me of the one peo liarity which the keen Irish minds were surprised to observe in "Ker-ty"—a great dread of death. Whenever a weird tale of a deathbed was being told, "Kerry" would stip a-way unseen, and were this mention-ed, she would fairly shrink into her-self, and look so piteously that her questioner would forbear to press it further.

For three years, day after and week after week, "Kerry" kep steadily to her labor, and not a few of her companions observed how slender the little form was growing

The wind was howling wildly about the poor rectory. The snow was heaped high in great drifts which reached even to the window panes and the white dakes were still swithing through the air.

Above all the second of the street o housekeeper, who was making her final nightly rounds, candle in hand, from sheer force of habit, septled her cap and smoothed down her then cautiously approached the door

"The good Father," she reflected. 'is safely tucked in bed with a se vere cold. But were this a sick call!"

She trembled and mentally resolv ed that he should know about it.

As if in defiance to the thought, a third knock sounded and a spoke, low but audible to the last syllable

"For the love of God open the door.'

Fearfully she obeyed, and as th loor swung wide a sudden gust of wind extinguished the flickering candle. A man stood there, shrouded in a huge storm coat, his hat pulled over his brow.

"Is the priest in?"

"Too ill to see anyone."

"No matter. Tell him as he value his soul's salvation to come with 'Wouldn't the morning sir?"

But as she spoke, the housekeepe felt the uselessness of arguing with this persistent stranger, in whose presence she felt a certain awe.

By this time the Father was par tially ready, for those distinct words had reached his ear; and in anothe moment he faced the stranger.

"Bring the Holy Viaticum acred oils, and follow me."

With a supernatural strength born of his vocation, the priest completed his preparations and started forth behind the guide.

Wishing to ask further details. time and time again he quickened his pace, but to no avail, for his companion still left him in the rear At last, yielding to the strange whim, he gave himself up to thoughts of the poor soul, whoever it might be, to whom he was bringing for the last time the Lora of

After a rapid walk of some two miles through the falling snow, the stranger siddenly halted before tall structure in the very poorest part of the city. As they tne steps a flurry of snow brushed them against the building. or not the door opened, it was impossible to decide. At all events, his companion had disappeared, and the priest was left there alone. Again and again he knocked at the door. At length a sleepy landlady opened an upstairs window and roughly manded what was wanted at such an hour. The priest replied that he had come to minister to the dying.

"No one dyin' here as I knows

But after some further conversa tion, yielding at last to an unexplained impulse of charity, the nan descended to open the door and let the half-frozen priest inside.

"Are you sure there is no one sick ere, but I lost sight of him when we reached the door.'

"There's not a man in the house nor has there been. However, seein' as you've come so far, I'll go and see if any of the girls might be

The Father sank wearily down, asking help as best as he could from the God he carried with him. In a few moments the woman reappeared. She was trembling with excitement. "O, sir, there's a girl up there in the attic, who's dyin', I believe. give you my word that I didn't know till this minute that she was even ailin'. Now I'm afraid she's ear gone. I'll send for a doctor

The priest followed up, flight after flight, to an improvised sleeping room, where they had hastiy carried the poor sufferer. She was scarce more than a child, but pale and wan. A bright red drop stained her lips. She looked up eagerly as the

"I knew you would come, Father," Whom did you send for me,

Only St. Joseph, Father," was

"Kerry" (let us know her now a Kathleen) was prepared for death and received the last Sacraments of the Church. Before she breathed her last, however, the dying giri asked for a little packet that had been under her pillow. Opening it, she gave the two letters which it contained to the priest.

"This one is for you, Father, and please send the other one to Ireland. The address is on it. I was afraid I should die without anyone with me. Thank you, Father, andthank—St. Josepn—for me. Good-bye—to the girls." Say

Then there was a long pause, during which she seemed half unconscious, though ever and anon the names of Jesus and Mary could be faintly heard.

By the time the doctor arrived there were only the mortal remains of a poor factory girl. He hastily made out a death certificate and de parted, secretly not sorry spared several troublesome visits Perhaps the reader would like to peep at the letters which were Kathleen's only last will and testament

The first ran thus: "To the one who may open this: I who am now writing shall be cold in death you read. It is a fear that haunts e night and day that I may die without the last rites of the Church try to keep myself pure, God knows my frailty and how often fall. Each of those at home has been taken by a sudden death, and there is a feeling in my mind that I shall soon follow likewise. My only hore is St. Joseph, to whom I constantly pray that I may not go un-

"As for myself, I am a poor Irish girl, whose history is probably no sadder than the rest. One by my dear ones have been snatched away, until now I have but one little cripple brother, I commend him to God's care.

prepared. Ithink he will work a miracle if need be.

"I have had a lover, too, though his love for me has changed. I am not surprised nor hurt, because I am far away, and there are many lovely girls he might have for the asking Do not blame him. This letter for him. Read it if you wish.

"All I ask from you, charitable soul, is to pray for me. have said too much in this letter, but the shadow of death is upon me and I must confide my sorrows to some one.

"Kathleen O'Brien."

Since all parties interested in this story are dead these many years, we have no fear of breaking the confidence by showing the second letter

"My dear John - (I should once have said my John, but that time is past and gone). This is a voice from the grave. Do not blame yourself, dear, I understood it all. forlorn girl, slaving from morning till night in these far off American mills, is not the little sweetheart whom you used to visit in her ther's home, wh but talk to her John.

"No. I am not angry with you Not at all. God forbid. It is only natural that you should forget me, when there are so many sweet col teens smiling on you.

"I forgive you, John, and now you are free, for I shall not trouble you any more. It was very thoughtful of you to write to me these years, and very manly and frank to tell me in that last letter that you loved some one else.

"All I have to ask of you is to be a good man, so that your new weetheart will be proud of you. (It a good man, cost me many a bitter prayer before could say this with eart, John, but, thank God, I can now. Believe me.) I hope she has dark eyes. You always admired them so.

"Once more, I say, be a good man and never forget your faith. And on your wedding day do not let the thought of the littre grave in America make you sad, for Kathleen, I hope, will be before the throne of God praying for you both.

"I have loved you well, John, and low I commend you to our Heaven

"Kathleen."

-Catholic Mirror

Christianity And Knowledge.

One of the most notable events in the history of Washington was the discourse delivered on a récent Sunday morning at St. Patrick's Church by the Rt. Rev. John Lancaster Spalding, Bishop of Peoria, and a member of the coal strike arbitra tion con ission, says the "New Cen The arrangements were ad mirable-the altar a mass of flowers and glimmering lights, and th sanctuary glowing with red-cassocked acolytes. Solemn High Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Thomas S Dolan.

A darge and representative co gregation gathered to hear the tinguished orator. The sermon based upon the Gospel of the It was in reality a transcription in to the modern mental idiom of the exquisite Biblical narrative, the texbeing: "She is not dead, but sleep eth.

The Bible is a whole literature,-e literature of infinite tenderness, mer cy, and Divine love. The tenderest are embodied in the Gospel of to day. God manifests Himself in many ways, in nature, in conscience, history. He speaks to us from the starpeopled firmament, the flowers show forth His beauty, the moun tains are clothed with His Majesty the never-resting ocean proclaims His power. To teach one He whispers reproval or condemnation and universal experience teaches that however the wicked may seem prosper, the wages of sin is death, and of righteousness, life. In indivi dual reen and women His attributes shine. In this one, His love and patience; in another, His purity; in another, His justice; in another, His mercifulness But in Christ dwells all the ful-ness of the Godhead bodily. As he says of himself—"He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father."

Life, as manifested on earth, is largely life in death; it is subconscious, partial, superficial. The race has been busy with efforts to survive, to secure the means of living rather than with learning how to hve. The great minds of the noblest races have been busy with specula tal processes to fathom the eterna problems which deal with ultimate auses and final ends: and it may be said that the outcome has not been satisfactory. In the modern world the search for speculative truth has largely been superseded by the me thod of scientific investigation which aims at getting at the facts of nature and life.

The supreme charm of science lies in the hope it inspires of getting at some solution of the eternal prob-But those who have best insight now perceive that this hope is illusory. If all the facts from beginning of time until the present moment were known in all their details, the infinite mystery would re main unillumined.

Science has transformed and proved human existence in a thou-sand ways, but it has thrown and can throw no light on the beginning purpose and end of conscious life so far as science makes it known to us. is evanescent, unsatis factory, and illusory. Hence the Sa turns from speculative truth and scientific truth and directs our attention exclusively to vital truth, to the truth which is revealed faith, hope, love, and conduct, rather than by rationalistic processes They and they alone who live life can know the truth which He re veal and enforces by deed and word His truth is a principle of life which is engrafted on the life of man and re-creates it, resulting in newness of life. It is the truth which brought home to the lowly minded, the pure of heart, the lovers of peace, the hungerers for righteous-It is the truth which produce a nobler and more unalterable faith a more ail-pervading hope, a more Godlike love, a profounder conviction of the worth and sacredness of life. It turns the thoughts of man from his circumstances to self, from outward success to inner

The kingdom of God, which He vished to realize on earth, consists ssentially in an inner disposition, in state of soul. Let men become lowly minded, pure in heart, asel-sh, devoted to truth and love strivers for righteousness, and what-ever social and material conditions are helpful to the test life will realt es the natural outcome of the sformation of love, a turn whole man to the truth nee, to conduct, to the thi of the soul, as the essential and in dispensable element in all real pro gress and improvement. His thought the tendency of civilization for nine teen hundred years has been in the direction in which Christ has walked and lived as a doer and teacher.

Religion, not philosophy, nor culture, nor science, first set up the ideal of a kingdom of God on earth which shall be fashioned more and more into the likeness of that of the blessed in heaven; a kingdom which is not a policy or state, but divine rule; not merely a course of life, but an animating principle, diffusing it self through the world, and transforming individual and social life Ideas are the ultimate realities, the thoughts of God which His makes the substance of things; they are the presuppositions of religion science, art, and government. Christ did not send His apostles to teach all knowledge, but to teach

His religion: to teach the worship of God in spirit and in truth, in low liness of mind and purity of heart as men who hunger and righteousness. In all that concerns the religious life the Church has the office of Christ, represents Him and speaks with His authority, and to enable her to do this with infallible certainty, the Holy Ghost was sent did not teach literature, philosophy, history, or science; and consequently He did not establish His Church to teach these things. He founded a Church, not an academy. "Non in dialectica complacuit Deo salvum facere populum suum." He left natural knowledge where He found it; eft it to grow by accretion development, through the activity of special minds and races, process of the ages. He bade His Apostles teach whatsoever things. He had commanded them - the doc trines of salvation and the principles of Christian living. These things He came to reveal; these He lived and died to plant in the minds and hearts of men as seeds of immortal life. God doubtless might have made known from the beginning all the truths of science; but this not part of the divine economy. For thousands of years the race was left to make its way amid the darkness of universal ignorance; and when here and there a ray of light fell from some mind of genius, it seemed quickly to be extinguished amid the general obscurity. The philosophy and the science of Plato and Aristo tle had been in the world for three centuries when Christ came, but He made no allusion whatever to them. He neither praised nor blamed these great masters or all who know, Those whom he denounced were not the teachers of wisdom, for the formalists, who, holding rigidly to the letter of the law, and adding observance to observance, and rule to rule, had lost the spirit of religion, had apostatized from the infinite love, which is God. Christ came to bring immertal faith and hope and love to man. He uttered no word which might lead us to suppose that He considered diterature or philosophy or history or science as an obstacle to the worship of God in spirit and in truth. He denounces greed and lust and indifference and heartlessness; but He does not warn against the desire to know, the desire to upbuild one's being on every side, to become more and more like unto God in power, in wisdom, in goodness, and in beauty. He lays the stress of His example and teaching upon religion, upon eternal things. He tells us that we cannot serve God and Mammon, but He does not say that faith and reason conflict. We are human because God is present in the soul; we have reason berause the divine light shines within us-the light which enlighteneth every man that cometh into the world

To attempt to set up an absolute distinction between faith and know ledge, is to undermine faith and enfeeble reason; for each strikes its roots into the other, and draws thence sustenance and life. We believe because we are rational, and we are rational because we believe in the messages borne to us through the channels of the senses, and in the intimations given, we know not how, to the soil.

C. A. McDONNELL,

Accountant and Liquidato 180 ST. JAMES STREET,

.. Montresl ..

Fifteen years experience in con ion with the liquidation of Private and Insolvent Estates. Auditing Books and preparing Annual Report ations a specialty.

TELEPHONE 1182

Society Directory.

A.O.H., DIVISION NO. 3, meets can the first and third Wednesday can each month, at 1863 Notre Dame street, near McGill. Officers: Alderman D. Gallery, M.P., President; M. McCarthy, Vice-President; Fred. J. Devlin, Rec.-Secretary, 1528F Ontario street, L. Brophy, Treesurer, Lohn Hurber, Editoria, Pressurer, Lohn Hurber, Editoria, 1864 No. 1864 Treasurer; John Hughes, Financi Secretary, 65 Young street; H Fennel, Chairman Standing Committee; John O'Donnell, Marshal.

ST. ANN'S T. A. & B. SOCIETY.
established 1868.—Rev. Director.
Rev. Father Flynn. President, D.
Gallery, M.P.; Sec., J. F. Quinn.
625 St. Dominique street; M. J.
Ryan, treasurer. 18 St. Augustin street. Meets on the second Sunday of every month in St. Ann's day of every month, in St. Hall, corner Young and ostreets, at 3.80 p.m.

A.O.H. LADIES' AUXILIARY, Division No. 5. Organized Oct. 10th, 1901. Meeting are held on 1st Sunday of every month, at 4 p.m.; and 3rd Thursday, at 8 p.m. Mise Annie Donovan, president; Mrs. Sarah Allen, vice-president; Mise Nora Kaynnaugh, recording secret. Nora Kavanaugh, recording-s tary, 155 Inspector street; financial-secretary na Doyle, Miss Charlotte Sparks, treasur Rev. Father McGrath, chaplain.

ST. PATRICK'S SOCIETY.-Established March 6th, 1856, incorporated 1863, revised 1864. Meets in St. Patrick's Hall, 92 St. Alexander street, first Monday of the month. Committee meets last Wednesday. Officers: Rev. Director. Rev. M. Callaghan, P.P. Presidents Hon. Mr. Justice C. J. Doherty; Vice, F. E. Devlin, M.D.; 2nd Vice, F. J. Curran, B.C.L.; Treasurer, Frank J. Green, Correspon-in Secretary, John Kahala; Recording Secretary, T. P. Tansey.

ST. ANN'S YOUNG MEN'S SOCIE-TY organized 1885.—Meets in its hall, 157 Ottawa street, on the first Sunday of each month, at 2.80 p.m. Spiritual Adviser, Rev. E. Strubbe, C.SS.R.; President, M. Casey; Treasurer, Thomas O'Connel; Secretary, W. Whitty.

ST. ANTHONY'S COURT, C. O. F., meets on the second and fourth Friday of every month in their hall, corner Seigneurs and Notre Dame streets. A. T. O'Connell, C. R., T. W. Kane, secretary.

ST. PATRICK'S T. A. & B. SO-CIETY.—Meets on the second Sunday of every month in St. Patrick's Hall, 92 St. Alexander St. immediately after Vespers. Comittee of Management meets same hall the first Tuesday of ev month at 8 p.m. Rev. Father Mo-Grath, Rev. President; W. P. Doyle, 1st Vice-President; Jno. P. Gunning, Secretary, 716 St. An-toine street, St. Henri.

C.M.B.A. OF CANADA, BRANCH 26.—(Organized, 18th November, 1873.—Branch 26 meets at St. Patrick's Hall, 92 St. Alexanden St., on every Monday of each mon?h. The regular meetings for mon?h. The regular motions are the transaction of business are held on the 2nd and 4th Mondays held on the 2nd and 4th Mondays held on the 2nd and 4th Mondays of each month, at 8 p.m. Spiritual Adviser, Rev. M. Callaghan; Chaneellor, F. J. Curran, B.C.L.: President, Fred. J. Sears; RecordingSecretary, J. J. Costigan; Financial-Secretary, Robt. Warren;
Treasurer, J. H. Feeley, jr.; Medical Advisers, Drs. H. J. Harrison, E. J. O'Connof and G. H. Merrill.

YOU WANT TO SELL ANYTHING TRY . THE ADVERTISING COLUMNS THE TRUE WITNESS RATES ARE

Household Notes.

DISHWASHING. - All should be scraped before washing. A small wooden knife is best for this purpose. Bread and cake bowls, or any dishes in which flour or eggs have been used, are more easily cleaned if cold water is put into them immediately after using, or Clear up as you work; it takes but a moment then, and saves much time and fatigue afterward.

Never put pans and kettles half filled with water on the stove to adhered to the kettle. makes it much more difficult to clean Keep them full of cold water, and soak them away from the heat.

Kitchen knives and forks should ever be placed in the dish water Many err in thinking it is only the which should not be wet. The practice of putting the blades wrong, as the sudden expansion of steel by the heat causes the handles to crack. Keep the knives of the water, but wash thorwith the dish cloth, rub them with mineral soap or brick dust, and wipe them dry. Keep them bright, sharpen often on a sand stone.
disadvantage and the vexation every woman would learn to use whetstone, and where and when to apply a little oil.

Milk will sour quickly if put into dishes which have not been scalded. They should first be washed in clear, cold water, then in hot soapy water then rinsed in clear boiling and wiped with a dry, fresh towel, Do not forget to scrape the seams grooves of a double boiler.

Ironware should be washed, side as well as inside, in hot mapy rinsed in clean hot water, and wiped dry, not with the dish cloth, but with a dry towel. Dripping pans, scotch bowls and other greasy dishes should be scraped and wiped with soft paper, which absorb the grease. The paper absorb the grease. The paper be found useful in kindling the and is a great saving of water, sometimes an object. poon of soda added to to will facilitate the cleaning.

Kitchen mineral soap or pumice stone may be used freely on dishes. It will remove the from white knife handles, also the grown substance that adheres to earthen or tin baking dishes, and the soot which collects on pans and ket-

Tins should be washed in water. Rub them frequently with mineral soap, and they may be kept as bright as when new. Saucepans and other tin or granite dishes browned by use may be cleaned by for glass. Keep a damp towel on letting them remain half an hour in the table when cooking, for wiping boiling soda water, then rubbing with a wire dish-cloth or stiff brush.

A new tin coffee pot, if never washed on the inside with soap, may be kept much sweeter. Wash the outwith clean water. Then put it the stove to dry, and when dry rub the inside well with a cleun dry cloth. All the brown sediment may be wiped off in that way, but a soapy dish cloth should never be put.

use in washing vegetables, and the hand basin for its legitimate fush the drain pipe often with hot suds or soda water, wipe dry and rub with a greased cloth kerosene. Keep it greased wish to prevent its rusting.

Cremation is the most satisfactory vay of disposing of kitchen refuse But if there must be other disposi tion made of it, keep two pails and use them alternately, cleansing each as soon as emptied.

Wash dish towels in cold water with plenty of soap, and rinse thoroughly in cold water every time they are used. If left to dry with-out washing they will be sticky to nandle and have a disagreeable odor. If the dishes be well washed, rinsed and drained the dish towels will require no rubbing. It is easier take care of three or four which have never been left to become grim; than to wash one after it is staine and saturated with grease. Towel used in this way may be kept swee and clean without boiling or drying in the sun.

With a little care in observir these hints, and always using clear hot, soapy water, changing it as soon as greasy, dish washing would be robbed of half its terrors. And after the work is done, if the hands be carefully washed with castile soar (not with strong washing soap) and wiped dry, no unpleasant effect upon the skin will be felt. A little vinegar is good to counteract the effect the alkali in the soap.

The usual order is to wash glasses leaving the cooking utensils until the last, but some reverse the order, because the cooking dishes are emptied irst and food hardens on them, and because it is better to do the hard est thing first, and because, if delicate articles are washed in a crowded sink, there is danger of breaking

Hot, soapy water may be used to wash china, silver and ordinary glass. Cut glass is liable to crack in hot or cold water, so warm should be used. Rinse all other dishes in clean hot water and wipe with clean, dry towels.

In putting glasses into hot water they should be dipped in edgewise so that the outside and inside are heated together. This will prevent

Wash every part, outside and inside, of every dish with the cloth Use the mop if dishes are too small to get hands into.

Scrub your boards and tables with mineral soap; scrub with the grain of the wood, then rinse off therof the wood, then rinse off thoroughly with the ends. If the table has leaves, lower them, and wipe around the hinges each time. Let no dirt collect in the seams Ammonia water will take the grease spots out Keepy a good supply of small holdthe over and fine crash towels for wiping dishes, and glass towelling the hands. Avoid the habit of working with sticky or floury fingers, or using your apron for a hand towel or oven holder, or using the dish towels about the stove.

These hints and suggestions are given by one who has always like to wash dishes, and who thinks it not beneath the dignity of any woman to learn to do such work in the very best manner, and that no apology is needed for acknowledging a taste for this much-abused portion of domestic work.

Virtue is not more exempt than vice from the ills of fate, but contains within itself always an energy to resist them, sometimes an anodyne to soothe.

SYMINGTON'S

超越 口 日				- T
			Note in the
BUDGEOUS BUDGE	lelous eoftes a llows at	STEP STANDED	and Fallen	sabdajni).
			anasaria	eksterallerie
COCCUTATION OF THE PERSON OF T

Notes for Parmers

The harvesting of the root crop is in progress at the Ottawa Central Experimental farm. This work will be completed next week, and then the taborers will be employed in draining and making general preparations for the winter.

Whenever time is afforded draining is resumed. It is considered well spent money to improve the fields in this way. Many thousand tiles have been utilized on the Central Experimental Farm, and the cost is speedily made up by improved crops. Farmers when constructing drains should not fail to keep a plan of such, as it may prove invaluable as reference at a future time.

The various officers of the farm

The various officers of the farm ave been at home nearly all the past month. The season for tours of inspection and lecturing has concluded and there is less outside work for the professional staff. Imon in the different departments the annual meeting of the Ontario Entomological Society in Mr. Grisdale and Mr. Hay were in Toronto on business.

ley and 80 varieties of six-rowed barley were under test in 1902 at the Central Experimental farm. The six leading varieties in each were:-

	Tw	o-ro	wed	Barle
NU9	areses:	TENNITE	NC35264

	· The
1. French Chevalier 68	16
2. Danish Chevalier 64
8. Canadian Thorpe 62	24
4. Kinver Chevalier 60)
5. Gordon 55	40
6. Fulton 55
Six-rowed Barley.
Bush	Lbs.
1. Blue Long-head 74	8
	16
3. Trooper	40

Last year the six leading varieties

		Lbs.
French Chevalier	55	10
Danish Chevalier	47	4
Canadian Thorpe	46	2
Beaver	45	10
Standwell	42	84
Clifford	41	12

The three leading varieties last year were also the three last this year. The much larger than in 1901. Chevalier, Danish Chevalier, and Canadian Thorpe, which were foremost the last two years, productive sorts of barley with stiff straw and loads of grain from 3 to 4 inches long. The variety is not subject to rust. The weights grain per bushel is in the neighbor-two-rowed barley over a period of seven years to ascertain what varie have permanent merit. Nine good sorts are:-

	Juen.	Tins.
French Chevalier	46	6
Jarvis		7
Clifford		44
Harvard		21
Dunham		16
Beaver		89
Danish Chevalier	48	31
Canadian Thorpe	43	26
Logan	42	88

average yields. The list contains largely in 1901 and 1902. Samples from Europe, United States and Hybrids produced by Dr. Saunders are tested with a view to inhigh yielding seed for the farmers Following are six comparatively new varieties, none (except Standwell) of which, however, have appeared among the heaviest yielding grains: Orong the heaviest yielding grains: Oregon, from Tritted States; Bestehorn's Kaiser and Fitchel Mountain from Germany; Plumage from Norway, and Standwell and Invincible, two varieties produced as hybrids by Garton Br.s., of England, Dr. Saundirs hinself has produced the tiplowing 17 hybrids: Feaver, Bolton, Clifford, Dunham, Fulton, Gordon, Par ev, Jarvis, Leslie, Logan, Monck, Nerean, Pacer, Felham, Rigid, Sidney and Victor. Many of those are productive and farmers could not do better than introduce them on their farms.

The six be t varieties of six-rowe

		Bush. I
Odesse			41	m
Mensu
Stella
Claude
Monro
No. 8

Nine leading brands for that pe

Claude 50 44 Mansfield 48 44 Odessa 48 19 Argyle 48 11 Yale 43 35 Trooper 47 4 Common 46 38		Bush.	Lbs.
Mansfield 48 44 Odessa 48 19 Argyle 48 11 Yale 43 35 Trooper 47 4 Common 46 38	Mensury	51	29
Odessa 48 19 Argyle 48 11 Yale 48 35 Trooper 47 4 Common 46 38			44
Argyle 48 11 Yale 48 35 Trooper 47 4 Common 46 38	Mansfield	48	44
Yale 48 35 Trooper 47 4 Common 46 38	Odessa	48	19
Trooper 47 4 Common 46 38	Argyle	48	11
Common 46 38	Yale	43	35
	Trooper	47	4
	Common	46	38
Royal 46 82	Royal	46	82

ley are Princess Sialoff from Ger many; No. 8 from Norway; Chines Hulless, Hondeum Chusk, and Sis losk Spring from Washington.

Dr. Saunders has produced the fol-lowing hybrids, some of which are among the best yielding sorts: bert, Argyle, Brome, Claude, Empire, Sarsfield, Lytton, Muwo, Rugent, Parkin, Phoenix, Pioneer, Royal, Stella, Success, Summit, Troop-Vanguard and Yale.

Canadians are generally interested in the agricultural display made in foreign cities. At present the one at Cork is discussed more than any other, many having seen it. The products were arranged principally by Mr. W. Hay of the Central Experimental farm, when he was in England and erected the coronatio arch. The extent of the Cork exhibit is not so large as that of the one at Wolverhampton, nevertheless, the chief industries of Canada are repre sented in an artistic and impressive style. Those who have been on the scene were reminded of the hand-some Experimental farm exhibit at scene were reminded of the the Central Canada Exhibition.

The exhibit is primarily commercial, but none the less interesting for that, and is intended to bring the products of Canada before the consuming public and in that way stimhas wonderful natural resources, and it is to display these to those to plate a demand for them. Canada it is to display these to those hitherto unacquainted with them that the Agricultural Department has been represented at all the great exhibi-tions of late years.

Samples of the leading brands of the chief Canadian food products, consisting of meat, fruit and veget ables, such as chicken, turkey, goose, duck, corned beef, pig's feet, ox and lunch tongues, potted meats, sausage, roast meat, etc.; raspberries strawberries, cherries, plums, apples, greengages, currants Bartlett pears, Crawford peaches egg plums, etc; wax string tomato catsup, etc., are seen. cheese, honey, beaver wiss food, artistically decorated ta bles weighed down with plates containing tempting specimens of Canadian apples, and numerous selections of fruits bottled in antiseptics, are

Canada has unrivalled facilities for fruit growing, and once her fruits en-ter into competition with those from California and elsewhere, their periority is easily seen. There is a flavor from the Canadian fruit due to the temperate climate of the country in which they are produced and which is retained even when bot tled and tinned.

displayed.

The agricultural exhibit consists of wonderful display of cereals noth in straw and in bottles, and artistic festoons of corn in sneaves, arches and bunches. This portion of the exhibit has an especial interest for Ire land, which imports large quantities of fodder, hay and oats, Indian the home supply not being equal to the demand. If we remember that of Saskatchewan, competing with it, and with the supplies which come from the valley of the Danubs, Russia and the States. Oil paintings representing seed-time, harvest and threshing operations in the Canadian Northwest are distributed along the valls and are framed by wheat storage chamber and contains frozen chickens, bacon, Cheddar cheese, apples, butter, eggs, maple sugar, etc Specimens of wood of every sort, pine, maple, birch, elm, cedar and states, some showing the natural grain, others the effect of staining or polish, line the walls, and amongst them are placed massive and effective paintings representing lumber operations life on the prairies, etc. Pho Tographs of various trees indigenous to Canada, framed in the wood o the special trees they portray, give an added interest to this portion of the exhibit. Specimens of spruce wood, a pulp wood, are also shown, which in the future promises to prove one of the most valuable of ada's products, as the manufacture of paper has now become a thriving and a valuable industry.

Ladies' Tailoring. Parisian Dressmaking FOR

Of Interest to

Our purchase at "snap" figures of part of a large importer's stock of All. Wool Dress Goods is now on sale on our first floor at such special and exceptional prices as to merit the imme-diate attention of every lady in the city. The collection is composed en-tirely of the latest and finest weaves of Fall Novelties for 1902, and large as the quantity is, 10.0 o yards, the values are so far out of the common run that it is not likely to remain long on our

10,000 YARDS FINE ALL-WOOL DRESS GOODS, comprising among lines, the tollowing, to clear, as follows:-

Finest All-Wool Canvas Cheviots, assorted colors. Regular value $1.25. Sale Price 75c

500 yards Fine Costume Cheviots, assorted colors. Regular value $1.00.
Sale Price 65c

1,000 yards Colored Costume Serges, all finest wool Regular value 75c. Sale Price 45c

35 yards Finest Silk and Wool Dress Goods. Colors: Gray and Black. Worth from $1 25 to $1.75. Sale Price BOo Black Silk and Wool Crepon Worth $1 25 Sale Price 500

Country Orders Carefully Filled.

JOHN MURPHY & CO.

Canada to-day stands in the first! Terms Cash Telephone Up 2740

Roofs of Every Description Asphalt, Cement, and Vulcanite Floors.

If Low Prices make a targain, High-Quality doubles it, that is why we are sure-of our own ground.

All our work supervised by Special

GEORGE W. REID & CO. 785 CRAIG STREET.

Rubber Rubber!!

Rubber Production Shares. will pay You

100 Per Centum Annually

LIFETIME.

Absolutely Safe Investment.

WILLIAM F. SHARSWOOD

180 ST. JAMES STREET

FARM SALE.

of a village, having good stores, two blacksmith shops, wheelright shop, creamery. Post Office, Catholic Church, a place of Protestant worship, two schools, about the same distance from R. R. Station, on C. V. R. R. The place is well watered, the buildings are large and in first-class repair. A brick house arranged for two famifor summer boarders, or for a genhis family in summer. There are also apple and sugar orchards; with a sufficient quantity of wood for a life-time. With care the farm will carry team. For particulars apply to

PHILIP MELLADY. North Stanbridge, P.Q.

* SUBSCRIBE NOW

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER

The True Witness P. & P. Co.'y, Limited P. O. BOX 1188, MONTREAL, P. Q.

I hereby authorize you to send me THE TRUE WITNESS for which I agree to pay to your order at the rate of One Dollar per year.

Subscription Rates Strictly in Advance—

Vol. LII., No.

THE TRUE W

SUBSCRIPTION PR. Danada, $1.00; United Stanffrance, $1.50; Belgiu

THE LIBRARY QUE question of the selection for the proposed Montr lic library is again before Council; and the major Catholic aldermen seem posed to the idea of re-right of the Church in ant matter. And those or the recognition of th the Church in this com nostile to the proposal the Irish Catholic secti nity the same ri are freely granted to th ection of it. The stru dom right, and fair play be still far from being as this province is con another column we prin from the pen of one of sional correspondents or

MR. TARTE'S SUCCE last the Cabinet chan necessary by the resigna Tarte have been authenounced. His successor inet is Ex-Mayor Prefon istry of Public Works is man, Mr. James Suther thus loses the head of c two great spending department, New having one, and Ontario We have had occasion to Prefontaine's conduct i able instances; when he right of Irish Catholics t in the mayoralty, and v the hands of the Harb sioners. Nevertheless, w success as a Cabinet Mi we hope that he may ye regard to the rights of I

ST. PATRICK'S PAST Patrick's, celebrated his londay. The occasion v Patrick's School, Alexan by whom this worthy pri been held in affectionate ince he first became cor his present position as. 'True Witness' join with in heartily wishing him returns of the day.

on for English-speaking een going on this weel hurch of the Gesu. attended, and is b

OUR SUBSCRIBERS. e would be relieved or dal worry, freer to di tapics in our editorial enabled to brighten up

OUR GREAT MEN'S