Learning of the intention of Mrs. Wright to leave Athens, the ladies of Oak Leaf and Athens auxiliaries of Oak Leaf and Athens auxiliaries or the Anglican Church held a joint meeting in the basement of Christ church on Tuesday afternoon, at which the following address was read by Mrs. Merrick, President of Athens as he was well up in the eighties his death was vot altered to uncontaction of a death was vot altered to uncontaction. Auxi iary, and the presentation of a beautiful gold Winchester cross (initialed W.A.) and pin was made by Mrs. Johnston, President of the Oak Leaf Auxiliary:—

Bas he was well up in the eighties his death was not altogether unexpected.

Born in Elizabethtown, the late Mr.

Taplin spent his whole life in the ownship following farming until old age compelled his retirement.

Mrs. J. Wright, Honorary President Dear Sister,-We, the members of he Woman's Auxiliary in the Parish of Lansdowne Rear, have been called to say farewell to you. These partings cannot but give rise to feelings of sadness, yet we must remember that there will be a happy time when we hope to meet to part no more. In Christ Church Sunday School, as teacher for many years and co worker with your dearly beloved husband, the late Rev. Wm. Wright, pupils have been taught by you the Word of Life with great faithfulness, making known the divine call—"Suffer little children to come unto me."

It is the wish of the branches of Oak Leaf and Athens to make you a life member of the W.A., to bear testimony to the part borne by you in all that relates to church work.

We shall always be united in our monthly meetings by prayer; although separated in body, one in spirit. We pray God may go with you and bless you in your home and new field of that had prompted the honor conferred. Then dainty refrehsments were served and a very sociable and enjoyable afternoon was spent.

During her long residence in Athens Mrs. Wright has gained the universal esteem of our citizens, who view with regret her departure and the consequent verance of the chief tie that unites her estimable family with this village.

On Sunday morning last his text was the second link, "Love," and at this special service he spoke on the subject of the final link, "Truth," the cardinal virtue of the order. He recived a most attentive hearing and his discourse was very much enjoyed, as was also the fine musical service rendered by the choir.

On returning to the lodge room votes of thanks were passed to the minister and choir, and several of the brethren spoke in terms of the highest praise of the able, scholarly discourse to which they had been treated by Mr.

DEATH OF AUGUSTUS TAPLIN

One of the oldest and one of the few remaining pioneer residents of Elizabethtown died at his home in Addison,

Taplin spent his whole life in the township following farming until old age compelled his retirement. He was one of the men who helped to transfer the township from a wilderness to the present beautiful farm country, and with those passing away a good deal of history connected with it will remain untold

The late Mr. Taplin's wife who survives him, was a Miss Arnold, sister of the late Richard Arnold, of Athens, a member of the historic Arnold family of these counties. One son, Charles, in Colorado, is also left. Sidney A. Taplin, Athens, is a brother.

The late Mr. Taplin was a man of conscientious habits and unsullied character and in his passing away a good resident has laid down the cares of life. He was a faithful member of the Methodist Church and a staunch Liberal. While he took an active interest in party affairs he never sought public honor.—Recorder.

By Wednesday morning over 300 tickets had been sold, and from this fact an opinion of the popularity of the event may be formed. Strawberries were served in abundance and an exceptionally fine lot of sandwiches and pastry were on the bill of fare, the latter including a brand of doughnuts such "as mother used to make." The music discoursed by Mr. W. B. Perci val's celebrated Victor gramophone was very much enjoyed, and all intervals were filled with pleasant social con-

So large was the attendance that the hour was late before the programme could be introduced. In the absence of the rector, the Rev. Mr. Croly of Lyndhurst presided most acceptably and in a song he gave he won high favor with the audience. An entertainer was expected to be present, and cluded a brief address by the Rev. S fall. WONDERFUL FINDS IN EGYPT.

Tombs of Gizeh and Assitt Historic Treasuries.

Prof. Flinders Petrie delivered a lecture yesterday to the subscribers of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt on the first month's work season at Gizeh and the subsequent four menths in the region of Assiut. He suid the results represented the first and to some extent the second and third dynas ties as well as a period from the ninth to the twelfth.

In the first month forty-nine graves were found in the royal tombs of Aby-los. The objects disclosed showed that the civilization of Abydos was of the same character as that of Memphis. There were stone vases, bracelets, blue glaze pottery and a long necklet, indicating that the people of the household wore ornaments similar to those of the royal house, but of a cheaper kind.

There was a slate palette for painting.
Wands were discovered with elaborate ivory carving and knives of the first and second dynasties. The work had been mostly destroyed by the twenty-sixth dynasty, but in these comparatively modern tombs there had been unearthed stone vases of the earlier age. He hade also found objects of quartz and a long slab 2 by 12 inches made of flist with a sharp polished edge, the use of which he was unable to determine. It was

Prof. Petrie said the season had been particularly interesting, as objects of the first three dynasties had been found, whereas the origin of Gizeh had hitherto been ascribed to the fourth. He had also worked a way to a crowded ceme-tery and brought home 1,600 skulls, which Prof. Karl Pearson was now ex-common from the nature of sea life, but the circumstances attending them differ materially and therein lies the interest of each narrative. I will tell of three instances, writes R. G. F. Candage, in the Boston Globa. The first occurred in the Atlantic east of the Grand Banks, in the month of February, while on the passage from London to New York. The ship was running with square yards before an easterly gale, making 12 knots under double-reefed topsalis. The sea was so rough, the ship was running with square yards before an easterly gale, making 12 knots under double-reefed topsalis. The sea was so rough, the ship was running with square yards before an easterly gale, making 12 knots under double-reefed topsalis. The sea was so rough, the ship was running with square yards before a easterly gale, making 12 knots under double-reefed topsalis. The sea was so rough, the ship was possel, and the sail and stood just shaft the break of the forecastle watching him. He cast off the gasket and was in the saot of making it up when by a heavy roll of the ship to starboard the sail shipped from the boom, struck him and knocked him from the footrope overboard! I saw him fall, heard the ary of "Man overboard!" and ran as swiftly as possible est for the taffreil.

Upon each quarter were kept wheel remember of the sale of the sail and gale lander to account if order to reach the poopdest, and before it estimated them and perhaps save him.

There were four steps of a ladder to account if order to reach the poopdest, and before it estimated them and reach the tackles the man at the wheel, with the same thought, left his station, took up the tackles and and shoulders just as the ship was passeng him.

He had often wondered at the size of the rock tombs, but concluded from what he had seen of the unfinished ones that they were used as quarries by the chiefs to build houses they would inhabit in life. kept on her course with me one at the wheel.

The noise and bustle on deck brought up the captain and the passengers from the cabin to ascertain what it meant and they were astonished when told that a sallor had fallen overboard from the jib-boom and had been rescued in the manner here described.

The sallor was nervous but uninjured; the captain gave him a glass of brandy; he went forward and changed his clothing and came back on deck and stood the rest of his watch. It was a close call and almost a miraculous rescue.

The second eccurrence took place in the autumn of the same year as the first, in the Pacific, on the passage from New York to San Francisco upon another ship of which I was chief officer.

The ship was in the southeast trades, running down to the equator, with square yards, studding salls set alow and aloft and making five or six knots. All hands were buey recitting ship and in tarring down the rigging, weather fine and ship steady, except for a gradual rolling from side to side.

When the President May Make an Arrest.

Our diplomacy has always been marked by a refreshing republican simplicity of speech. The fifth case is, of course, the recall of Senator Dupuy de Lome, just prior to the war with Spain, for having unwisely criticised the administration in a letter to a friend.

The recall of De Irujo, though, was marked by an unusual circumstance. At the request of the Spanish Government, actuated by a desire to avoid scandal, the State Department had arranged that Irujo should depart quietly, as though his recall had not been demanded; but being a surly specimen of his race, he lingered on and on, becoming more and more a thorn in the side of the administration. To hints he was dumb, and when ordered away defiantly replied when ordered away defiantly replied that he would suit his own pleasure in going; a course of action which resulted in the enartment of a statute empower-ing the President to arrest and convey out of the United States any envoy who remained after his recall and reasonable notice to leave.-From "The Diplomat at Washington," by Aubrey Lanston in the July Bohemian.

COST OF LONDON FOG.

Metropolitan Soot Makes the English man Lose Much.

The annual cost of the pall of fog which overhangs London has been esti-mated to be $28,000,000, and this is said mated to be $25,000,000, and this is said to be entirely due to the presence of soot in the air. The annual loss from sooty chimneys alone has been figured up at $10,000,000. The problem of dispensing with this great nuisance has been struggled with for a great many years and in all probability the famous London fog will be conquered in the near future. The latest scheme in this direction is a coal substitute which is being introduced with some success in the English metropolis. It is not, strictly speaking a substitute, for it is a preparation of coal itself which is stricted in such a manner that the impurities are entirely removed so that combustion in the furnace or stove is accomplished without giving off soot or smoke.

Aeronauts in the Sea.

Aeronauts in the Sea.

It is not a little remarkable that although scores of balloons have been driven out to sea, cases in which this missdventure has ended fatally are few.

More than a century ago, when Major Money made an ascent from Norwich, he was compelled to descend in the sea, where he remained for seven hours until his plight was seen and he was rescued by the crew of a revenue cutter. Some years later, in 1812, James Sadler, narrowly escaped drowning in an attempt to cross the Irish Channel; his balloon dropped into thie water some miles off Liverpool and he was on the point of succumbing when rescue came in the form of a fishing boat.

In a similar attempt a Mr. Crosbie was saved when almost in extremis many miles from the English coast. Lunardi, in 1785, nearly lost his life in the sea off Edinburgh, and in the same year two aeronauts, in an attempt to cross the English channel, had also German Authority Speaks Highly of Officers.

Berlin. July 15. Capt. Von Reventlew, formerly in the German navy and now probably the foremost German journal-istic writer on naval subjects, has written a half-page article on the quality of the American officers and men. He does not agree with the judgment that American officers are mostly too old to possess energy, too inclined to comfort, and extremely self-satisfied. "Various American officers of the higher rank," the Count asserts, "would probably disappear soon after the beginning of a war. Among the officers the liveliest national feeling prevails, together with that practical spirit and that quiet special talent for technical things. The American fleet does lack several thousands of men to make up the crews, owing to there to make up the crews, owing to there being no compulsory service, and the higher wages paid and independence enjoyed outside of the navy. But these facts ought not to be taken too seriously because of the immense number of civilhigher wages paid and independence enjoyed outside of, the navy. But these facts ought not to be taken too seriously because of the immense number of civilians, trained to practical, technical work, from whom, upon the outbreak of war, would come a stream of recruits which would come a stream of recruits which also would include many seamen." Count Von Reventlow concludes his remarks with complimenting Rear Admi-

The feeling among the Americans was at fever heat, and hostile demonstrations were made where the Japanese quarters are. The excitement spread rapidly and thousands of Japanese laborers poured into the city from the lemon groves and railroads. They appeared ready to use force in case the Americans determined to attack the Japanese quarters.

The news of the granting of the pension has roused much interest. It is known that the novelist once went three days absolutely without food through sheer want.

HAYWOOD'S STORY.

THE PRISONER DENIES ALL ACCU SATIONS OF HARRY ORCHARD.

That He Had Frequent Interviews With Orchard After Reward Was Offered for Him,

Boise, July 15.-William D. Hayern Federation of Miners, took the ern Federation of Miners, took the stand in his own defence this afternoon. He followed President Moyer, of the federation, whose cross-examination was ended just before the noon hour, and his direct examination was still in progress when court adjourned for the day. The examination of neither Moyer nor Haywood produced any great surprise, so far as the ease for the defence is concerned. As had been expected, their direct testimony consisted largely of an account of their legitimate doings as officers of the federation, and of denials of the charges that Orchard had made against them.

What Haywood's testimony will reveal when it comes to cross-examination remains to be seen. He went at length into the political history of Colorado, remains to be seen. He went at length into the political history of Colorado, and the causes which, in his judgment, led to the turbulent days in the Cripple Creek region. Of course, the union miners had nothing to do with it. Violence was forced upon them from start to

About the only new contribution About the only new contribution of consequence that Haywood made related to a talk he had with Orchard in the summer of 1905, about a trip to Alaska that Orchard was speaking of. Haywood said of this that he remonstrated with Orchard against deserting his wife and children, and Orchard said that the children were by the woman's fivet huschildren, and ordered said that children were by the woman's first husband, and he did not propose to go on to support them. He never saw Orchard after that time, Haywood said, until he saw him in court.

The object of this testimony is, of course, to account for the letter Haywood wrote Mrs. Orchard in November, 1905. saying that Orchard was in Alaska, when he really was in Idaho gunnin for Steunenberg.

But, while Haywood's testimony pretty barren of practical results, it was quite otherwise with Moyer's cross-ex-amination. This made it clear that in amination. This made it clear that in the year 1904 Moyer was very well ac-quainted with Harry Orchard and saw him several times in Cripple Creek and at Moyer's office at the federation headquarters at Denver, it emphasized the closeness of the relation that induced closeness of the relation that induced Moyer to select Orchard to guard him on his trip to Ouray. And it rubbed in the fact that though Moyer knew the authorities wanted Orchard in connection with the Independence explosion, he met him and dined with him and had a long nim and dined with him and had a long talk with him, yet he never made a move to turn him over to the authorities, and all the time at Moyer's own request the federation had a reward of $5,000 out federation had a reward of $5,000 out for the detection of the man who blew up the Independence station.

Moyer made a much better witness for himself than he did for Haywood. When Sénator Borah came to the draft for $100 that was sent to Simpkins by Haywood on Dec. 21, only ten days before Steunenberg was assassinated, the feder-ation's president promptly disclaimed any knowledge of it.

The movining meeting of the General Association was addressed by Dr. Colquhoun, Deputy Minister of Education for Ontario; Dr. G. H. Locke of Montreal, and Inspector J. L. Hughes, of Toronto. More freedom for the high school and greater breadth of its curriculum were dominant notes in addresses before the higher education section, as also in Dr. Locke's paper in the morning. The other sections also had interesting papers and discussions in the afternoon. "The True Work of the High School" was, in the paper by Mr. A. W. Morris, M. A., of Hamilton Collegiate Institute, stated to be in its relation to the social and civic life around it. It performed and civic life around it .It performed and civic life eround it it personness a great work in bringing together students from every class in the social scale, harmonizing the different elements of society and leading them to an appreciation of each other's good qualities. BOTH RESIGNED

The trial of the Athens constabulary ase in Brockville on Saturday last is thus reported by the Times :-

Geo. W. Brown, and Nelson Earl, both of Athens, County Constables, appeared in chambers before Judge McDonald to answer charges preferred by each against the other, Mr. Earl was represented by T. R. Beale, and denied having used the language attributed to him by Mr. Brown though he admitted having used some strong language. The record of conviction made by S. Foddy, J.P., was produced from the office of the clerk of the Peace and it was found that the pro fane language charged was not set forth in it. However as Mr. Earl had himself pleaded guilty before the ma gistrate the judge thought it advisable that he should resign.

In the case of Mr. Brown charges against him for drinking while in discharge of his duty in addition to which it was alleged that he had col lected fees to which he was not en. titled and that his moral character unfitted him to be constable. Also that R. Foster. he had allowed cases of profane swearing in his hearing to go unpunished. Mr. Brown admitted that he had drunk ale on one or two occasions, but a witness was called to prove that this habit of Mr. Brown was more frequent.

Mr. Brown admitted having collected fees to which he was not entitled but said it was done through ignorance on the part of himself and S. Boddy.

J.P. of the regulations of the tariff and that in all cases he had refunded the in passing the entrance examination. amounts so illegally collected. Beale proceeded to enquire of Mr. Brown as to the matter of immorality Westport on the 12th.

The judge read a letter from Mr. M. B. Holmes, Reeve of Athens, to attending the investigation savi ters, Mrs. Burns of Ogdensburg and that the council had dismissed Mr Mrs. Amell Cardinal. Brown and appointed a successor and that therefore the investigation was not of interest to the council. Mr. Brown stated the real ground of his dismissal was his enforcement of the law against profane swearing, an offence of which some of the council. lors were guilty and that it was owing to opposition of such men that he did not press the enforcement of the law with the vigor he would otherwise have done. The judge suggested to Mr. Brown

LESSON III.—PULY 21, 1907.

The Ten Commandements-Duties Toward Men.-Exod. 20: 12-17. Commentary .- I. The fifth commandcommentary.—1. The litth command-ment (v. 12). This commandment is a connecting link between the first and second tables of the law, and properly belongs to both. Whedon has put it in the first table. 12. Honor—This means more than to obey, it is to treat with reverence and affection. No child is required to do wrong at the command of a wicked parent, but still the child should love his parents even though they may be unholy and unlovely. Thy father and thy mother—There is a degree of af-fectionate respect which is owing to fectionate respect which is owing to parents, that no person else can properly elaim. For a considerable time parents stand, as it were, in the place of God to their children, and therefore rebellion against their lawful commands, has been considered as rebellion against God. This precept therefore prohibits, not only all injurious act, and irreverent and unkind speaches to parents, but enjoins all necessary acts of kindness, filial respect and obedience. We can a sarrely support and obedience. pect and obedience. We can scarcely sup-pose that a man honors his parents who, when they fall weak, blind or sick, does not exert himself to the utmost for their support. In such cases God as truly requires the children to provide for their parents, as he required the parents to support and instruct the children when they were helpless and dependent. — Clarke. "By Oriental custom, the terms Clarke. "By Oriental custom, the terms father and mother, are by no means limited to one's natural parents, but are applicable to superiors in years, or in wisdom, or in civil or religious station. We should honor those who are over us in the Lord, as the representatives of the Lord." See chap. 21. 15, 17; Lev. 19., 3; Prov. 30, 17; Heb. 12. 9. That thy days may be long—The apostle calls this the first commandment with promise (Eph. 6. 2). It is the only one in the decalogue to which a special promise is attached. From this we may learn, in some measure, how important the duty is in the sight of God. Most of those who come to an untimely end are obliged to conto an untimely end are obliged to conto an untimely end are obliged to con-fess that breaking this commandment and the fourth was the first cause of their ruin. Upon the land, etc. —1. The nation shall be permanent in the pro-mised land. 2. The individual life shall be long, implying happiness, peace and prosperity.—Peloubet. While in its pri-mary meaning this is to be understood prosperity.—Peloubet. While in its pri-mary meaning this is to be understood as referring to the promised land, the land of Canaan, yet "the wider scope which this commandment has, as being grounded in the nature of the family and grounded in the nature of the family and as alike binding upon all men, it is to be understood of the land or country of any and every individual." Children should honor their parents because: 1. Parents have authority by divine right. God has commanded it. 2. Parents are wiser than children. 3. Most parents do more for the children than the children can possibly repay. 4. True affection prompts obedience to this command. 5. Self-respect demands it. 6. Blessings are attached to it. 7. In the future children will need a like respect shown them. How can we honor our parents. 1. By loving them. 2. By obeying them. 3. By showing them due respect in the presence of others. 4. By tenderly minister ing to their necessities. There are many notable examples: Jesus was higher than them. Joseph on the Egyptian throne honored and reverenced his aged father. Solomon showed a like respect to his mother, bowing himself unto her and giving her a place at his right hand. II. The sixth commandment (v. 13).

13. Thou shalt not kill—The murderer is regarded as one who wickedly destroys Gods' image in man, and so most basely assaults God Himself. Suicide is accordingly prohibited by this commandment. The Hebrew legislation everywhere emphasizes the sacredness of human life. All the precepts in chapter 21, 12-30, aim to guard life from violence. If any man by earelessness or neglect occasioned the death of another, he .brought blood guiltiness upon his house (Deut. 22, 8). A murder by an unknown hand would pollute the very land in which it was committed until suitable expiation were made (Deut. 21, 1-9). Our Lord took up this law for special treatment, and taught that he who cherished anger against his neighbor was guilty before God of the spirit of murder (Matt. 5, 21-24). John also enlarges on the same profound idea (I. John 2, 9-11; 3, 12-15). As not having any other God instead of Jehovah is at the basis of the laws of the first table, so not hating one's neighbor is at the basis of all those of the second. Hence the two great positive commands, inclusive of all others: 1. Thou shalt Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

-Whed, Com. "Our own life." -Whed, Com. "Our own life should be held sacred and we are to do nothing that will shorten or destroy it, as by it we are enabled to serve God and bless our fellow men." The person who takes his own life performs a cowardly and wicked act. Dissipation, drunkenness and sins against the body that unfit it for usefulness and shorten life, are vio lations of this commandment. It is generally supposed that there are cases where the killing of another might be justifiable, as: 1. In the execution of justice. 2. In self-defence. But even in this there is a difference of opinion among good men. Note 1. Human life is precious. 2. It is a sacred trust. 3. Christianity puts a high estimate upon it. 4. We should do nothing to destroy it, either in ourselves or others.

III. The seventh commandment (v. 14)

the kings of earth, yet he was subject to His parents. He honored and obeyed

Thou shalt not commit adultery-The violation of this commandment means the destruction of the home and family, an institution ordained of God and ne cessary to the building up of his king dom in the earth. "This commandment forbids all acts of uncleanness, with all those fleshly lusts which produce tho acts and war against the soul, and al those thoughts or practices which cherish and excite those fleshly lusts, as ish and excite those fleshly lusts, as looking in order to lust, which Christ has expressly forbidden (Matt. 5, 28). It also forbids all those unholy amuse ments which lead souls into sin, such as theatre-going and dancing; and also looking at obsoene pictures, reading impure literature, and telling lewd stories.

Mark x 2-12. Weighty and suggestive also, are the apostle's words in Eph. v. 23-33. A sound scriptural view of this subject shows the crimmality of bigamy and polygamy. Although these abominable evils forced themselves into the domestic life of patriarchs and other distinguished men of Old Testament times, the law of God and nature has ever frowned upon them, and pursued them with a curse. Our Lord showed clearly that these sins had been tolerated because of the people's perversity, in spite of the original law and commandment. He not only re-announced the ancient law, but gave it a broader scope and deeper significance (Matt. v. 28), including fornication and all sensual uncleanness under its prohibition, and limiting the rights of divorce to one cause unit. ness under its prohibition, and limiting the rights of divorce to one cause only."

IV. The Eight Comandment (v. 15.)

15. Thou shalt not steal—The rights of property are of divine appiontment, and we refrain from claiming as our own that which now belongs to another.—Trum-

V. The Ninth Commandment (v. 16.)
False witness—This is the worst form of lying and includes all other forms.
"Truthfulness is the only other condition on which human intercourse is possible, and it lies at the foundation of all personal transfer of the condition of the conditi sonal character." Lying is one of the worst sins, because it leads to the com-mission of other sins, and seeks to cover mission of other sins, and seems to cover wrong doing. This commandment for-bids perjury, false oaths, tale-bearing, slander, backbiting, and evil speaking, or anything that would in any way injure another in his gods, person or character. See Lev. xix. 16; Deut. xix. 16-19; Prov. xii. 22; Eph. iv. 31; Titus iii. 2; Jame iv. 11. VI. The Tenth Commandment (v. 17.)

17. Thou shalt not covet—This is the onl yone of the commandments which treats solely of sins of the mind and heart, and in so doing it strikes at the very root of all sin, for every sin is born of desire (Mark vii. 21, 22; James i. 14, of desire (Mark vii. 21, 22; James 1. 1s, 15), and there would be no sin committed if this commandment were perfectly kept (Rom. vii. 7.)—Todd. "The word 'covet' occurs some twenty times in the Hebrey Scriptures, and is commonly translated desire. One may properly desire everything lawful and good, but no one can look with longing upon any posone can look with longing upon any possession of his neighbor's without violating this commandment."

I. Love respects authority (v. 12). A speaker in a children's mission asked I. Love respects authority (v. 12). A speaker in a children's mission asked. "Boys, a kite is a good thing, isn't it?" A bright little fellow answered, "Yes, sir, but it is not worth much when it breaks loose." "Stop, right there," said the speaker. "I want to ask you a question; how much is a boy worth when he breaks loose?" He understood and the shildren all agreed that a boy who broke loose was not worth much. Adroitly they were led to testify against the habit of breaking loose from parental restraint, from the teacher's authority, and from the loving rule of Christ.

Christ.

2. Love cannot murder (v. 13). Love 2. Love cannot murder (v. 13). Love never takes life. Love lays down its own (1 John 3; 15, 16). Love keeps the precept; "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law." (Matt. 7, 12).

3. Love is pure (v. 14). It is lust, the ounterfeit of love, which works ruin and wrecks homes (Matt. 5. 38). A true lover of mother, sister, wife or sweetheart will keep his thought and hippure, and will honor and protect all wonested. manhod.

Mannod.

4. Love is generous (v. 15). Love will give and "lend, hoping for nothing" (Luke 6. 35); love will neither buy nor (Luke 6. 35); love will neither buy nor borrow not intending to pay again (Rom. 13. 8). Love seeketh not her own (1 Cor. I3. 5).

5. Love speaks true (v. 16). A little girl's answer to, "What is a falsehood?" was "It is when nobody did anything and somebody went and told of it." Love tells no tales. Love never slanders, never misrepresents, never pretends. Love never makes engagements which it does not intend to keep. Love never deceives. Love thinketh no evil, much less speaks

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy-self" (Matt. 19, 19). Neighbor is from self" (Matt. 19, 19). Neignoor as from a word signifying "close by." The question, "who is my neighbor?" was one day answered by Jesus in the following incident: "A certain man went down from the control of the contr Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his rai-ment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead. And by chance there came down a certain priest that way; and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side. And likewise a by on the other side. And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side. But a certain Samaritan as he journeyed, came where he was and when he saw him, he had compassion on him, and went to him and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast, and brough him to an inn, and took care of him And on the morrow when he departed, he took out two pence and gave them to the host, and said unto him, Take care of him, and whatsoever thou spend-est more, when I come again I will re-pay thee. Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbor unto him that fell among the thieves? And he said, He that showed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, Go, and do thou likewise" (Luke 10, 30-37). Our lesson reveals that love to our neighbor is, I. Imperative. "Thou shalt love" (Matt. 22, 39). Again and again we are given the precept, "Love one another" (I. Pet. 1, 22; I. John, 3, 23). II. Individual. "Love thy neighbor" (Matt. 22, 39). Not thy neighbors, making it a public, wholesale endeavor, but thy neighbor, single individuals who have your divine affection day by day as you have opportunity, and there are always opportunities.

III. Impartial. "Thy neighbor" (Matt.

22, 39). Not thy good, or kind, or polite, or generous neighbor, but "thy neighbor," though he be neither good, nor kind, nor polite, nor generous.

IV. Interminable. "As thyself" (Matt. 22. 39). Love to hide thy neighbor's failings as thou dost hide thine own own (Phil. 4, 8). Love to see thy neighbor own (Phil. 4, 8). bors' excellencies as thou dost of thine own (Phil. 4, 8). Love to se thy neighbor prosper as thou dost love to see thy self (Rom. 12, 15; Prov. 3, 28). Love to These things are debasing, degrading and soul-destroying.

"He who created man in his own image created them male and female (Gen. ii. 27), and declared that a man and his iffer us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren" (I. John 3, Gen. ii. 24.) Compare Matt. xix. 3-9;

John Clark on the rush to the scene of the tragedy. Headquarters were notified, too, and Detective Coulter was detailed from there. Neighbors gathered in a group, excitedly discussing the crime, guided the police to the spot. Inside the house a terrible sight met their tragedy, for which he is accused of being responsible, the police discovered Sunfield. They say he pretended to be asleep, but was really listening to what was taking place. Not ten feet away he could see the blood stained carpet and hear the dying gasps of his victim. With a show of stolid indifference he submitted to the handcuffs being placed on his wrists, and walked quietly away with the officers. Although Sunfield Sergt. Walsh's Story. Sergeant Walsh believes that after the first bracelet closed on his wrist, the prisoner was in a mood to fight made an attempt to draw his revolver. George Brandow, a special officer from the International Harvester works, and Eddie Goodall, 42 Fullerton avenue, janitor employed at the same place, a stood guard over the prisoner until the police arrived. They pointed to him as the man when the officers entered, and neighbors, emboldened by the presence field sat unmoved in the patrol as the horses galloped to the hospital with Radzyk lying at his feet in a dying con-

At the police station the prisoner gave name of Jacob Sunfield, and stated hat he was a citizen of the United States, born in Chicago, 30 years of age and unmarried. He claimed to be a Ro man Catholic by birth.

Woman Gave Alarm.

The first intimation that neighbor nad of the tragedy was shortly before and of the tragedy was shortly before 3 o'clock when they heard three shots, followed by Mrs. Radzyk rushing from the house and screaming in terror. She was taken charge of and through other foreigners told an incoherent story of what had happened. The police were immediately notified from the International Harvester office and Mrs. Radzyk later returned to the house. The police last night admitted that they were at sea The prisoner Sunfield, who boarded was surmise from information ould do gathered here and there from the other foreigners as to what happened. Here is the story they told last night.

Story of the Crime. The prisoner Sunfield who boarded at Radzyk's place, spent the day there with the dead man and his wife drinking—a fact that is supported by the amount of beer found in the house. It is suspected that there had been a quarel earlier in the day, perhaps over a board bill, or, as gossip has it, over the woman. It was reported that Sunfield, who had made preparation to return to Chicago, from where he came two years ago to work at Hamilton, had boasted at the works before leaving that he was going "to make a clean up."

Yesterday Sunfield removed his clothes and valise from the house, leaving them at his sister's home on the same street. The police say she begged of him not to go to the Radzyk home again and to leave for Chicago. He laughed at her and told her he was going back "to have some more fun." The police suspect that Radzyk discovered Sunfield was too fond of his wife and had a row over it. dow, from the International Harvester works, found him lying in a pool of blood works, found him lying in a pool of blood on the floor when they entered the house. It was impossible to get an intelligent story from Mrs. Radzyk as to how she was shot. The police think that when Sunfield shot her husband she screamed out in terror and rushed for the door. Believing that she was going for assistance, they think he fired as she fled. This, is borne out by the nature and position of the wound.

Dined and Slept After Shooting. While the prisoner was not sober when the house a terrible sight met their gaze. Lying on a bed in the back parlor, his clothes soaked with blood and with blood spurting from a gaping wound in his neck; the officers found a man about was passing and was attracted by the shots, of what he had done. He return ed to the house, took a pie from the cupboard, and sat down at a table to await the arrival of the police. Why he only a matter of a short time.

Sitting at a table in the kitchen, his head resting peacefully on his arms, and exhibiting no agitation over the terrible tragedy, for which he is accused of being responsible the police discovered.

prisoner was in a mood to fight, and field's remarkable indifference as he made an attempt to draw his revolver. George Brandow, a special officer from room where one of his victims, the man, lay on a bed with his life slowly ebbing away. "When we entered the house," Walsh, "we found the prisoner with his head resting on his arms on the table, feigning sleep. George Brandow, a spe-cial constable from the International of the police, rushed in crying, "Arrest Harvester Works, and Eddie Goodall, a that man, he did the shooting." Sunfield sat unmoved in the patrol as the who were the first to respond to the woman's alarm, were in charge, guarding the prisoner. Sunfield, when touched on the arm, quietly arose and walked to the centre of the room. "I am your man. I am under arrest," he exclaimed, without any show of excitement. Radwas unconscious, and the death rat-tle in his throat was clearly audible It was useless to try to get him to iden tify the prisoner, and I questioned the woman. She could not speak English, but through an interpreter, Mary Rankal, an intelligent young foreign woman who came to the house shortly after the shooting, the Radzyk woman identified Sunfield as the man who fired the shots." "Who did the shooting?" she was asked in her native tongue.

"Jake," was the reply,

"Was it Sunfield?" asked the officer.

"Yes," she said.

Reached for Revolver Again. While Sunfield submitted quietly to While Sunfield submitted quietly to arrest, the officers believe that after one of the bracelets was snapped on his wrist, he began to realize the position he was in, and was desperate enough to fight for liberty, if given an opportunity. Walsh had already felt his pockets, but evidently overlooked the revolver in his back left pocket. While Clark held the handeuff on his right hand Sunfield the handcuff on his right hand, Sunfield slowly backed towards the wall, draw-ing his left hand slowly around to his hip pocket. The sergeant quickly grab-bed his hand and snapped the other handcuff. At the station the police handcuff. At the station the police found the 32-calibre Iver-Johnson revol-ver, with which the shooting was done in this pocket.

"Sunfield," said Sergt. Walsh, "after doing the shooting, walked over to the table and calmly sat down to eat a pie. We found him with the partly eaten pie hefore him." pefore him."

ing searched and questioned. Before leaving the scene of the crime he replied, when asked about the tragedy, "You will find it all out. It will all be cleared up in the court." Some of the officers say that the prisoner denied at the station that he had done the shooting. He made no comment, as the revolver with three empty chambers was taken from his pocket. He showed considerable interest, however, when the police emptied his pockets of money.

"How much have you got there, eer war." he asked, as the money was being counted. Sunfield had $29.45, and Sunfield was marched out to the dungeon in the rear of the station and lodged in the cell that Pearson, who mundered a girl on the Waterdown road some years ago, occupied during his stay at the station. When word was received by the police that hadry's was dead, instructions were issued to have the prisoner removed to the jail for safe, keeping.

Removed to the Jail.

A small crowd of men and children gathered as the patrol drew up to get a glimpe of the prisoner. With his hands closely manacled Sunfield marched out in charge of P. C. Lowery. He walked steadily to the wagon and seemed to be quite sober. He glanced curiously over his shoulder at the newspapermen who stood on the walk. P. C. Lowery and P. C. Sunfield did not know last night when the iron door at the Barton street jail clanged behind him that he would have to face a charge of murder. The police refused to inform him then that Radzyk was dead. The officers took no chances with their prisoner and drove him through the yard to the jail steps.

Died on Operating Table. Died on Operating Table.

The dying man and his wife were hurried to the City Hospital. It was seen there that the woman's injuries were not likely to prove fatal, but it was evident from the first that the man had no chance of recovery. From the gaping wound in his neck blood was spurting. He was too weak then from loss of blood to stand the shock of an operation and the doctors permitted him to rest for an hour or two to try and revive him sufficiently to permit them to probe for an hour or two to try and revive him sufficiently to permit them to probe for the bullet. London, uly 15.—Two officers of the British navy, Commander Hall and Staff Surgeon Rees, have invented an apparatus which, it is expected, will remove the present dangers to crews navigating submarine boats. It is designed to enable the men to escape from the vessel even if it is filled with water or poison-

Eperiments carried out by the Admiralty at Portsmouth proved, it is stated, that the apparatus will fulfill what is claimed for it, and it is likely to be adopted by the British fleet. The invention resembles a diving helmet with a jacket attached

KILLED BY WHITE DAMP.

Eight Italians Overcome Near Hazelton Pennsylvania.

Hazelton, Pa., July 15.—Eight Italians miners were killed by white damp in an abandoned slope of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company at Honey rook to-day. Two of the men were sent into the mine to measure the waters. Then two more were sent in to assist them. It was believed that the force was inadequate, and the others were ordered to help them. When the men did not return after a reasonable time an investigation was made, and the presence of damp was discovered.

of Laura from her stupor, and agonized joy of meeting with her husband. As soon as she had sufficiently recovered her self-possession, Cassinove, with his form dilated with pride, and his eyes beaming with joy, informed her that she was again the Baroness of Etheridge, and that the title came through him. That was the secret Colonel Hastings had communicated to him. He was no longer Ferdinand Cassinove, but Ferdinand Etheridge, the son of the late baron and Mary Coke, the beautiful daughter of his gamekeeper, whom he had married before running away with her. After his second marriage (with Rose's mother) he had hesitated to own his son; but soon as she had sufficiently recovered his second marriage (with Rose's mother) he had hesitated to own his son; but on his deathbed he had told the whole story to Colonel Hastings, placed the necessary documents in his hands to establish the truth, and requested him to see that his darling boy wah put in pos-session of his rights. Hastings had be-trayed his trust, for the sake of aggrandizing his son; but all his plans had been thwarted by Providence, and the terri-ble death of Albert had at last brought him to repentance.

"Will you value the rank and title the less because you must receive it from me?" inquired Cassinove of Laura, from me?" inquired Cassinove of Laura, in a voice that was every moment becoming more agitated. "You gave me your hand in marriage when I was a poor prisoner in Newgate, with no fortune to endow my bride except sorrow, danger and ignominy. And now, Laura now, I come to you with vindicated honor and with the power of replacing on now, I come to you with vindicated honor and with the power of replacing on

And if fortune had offered me a choice of her best gifts. this privilege of restoring you to your rank and title—this privilege that I would have purchased with my life! Oh, my dear Laura! say that you do not value the old barony less, now that you receive it from me, than when you be-lieved it yours in your own right."

"No, no; I value it a thousand times more as your gift! I love to owe every-thing to you. But is this all true, be-thing to you. But is this all true, beyond doubt?" inquired Laura.

"Beyond the possibility of doubt. I have the names and addresses of the minister who married my parents, the physician who attended my mother, the took care of me, the guardian who suc cecded her, and, finally, I have the personal evidence, of Colonel Hasting." "Oh, how does Colonel Hastings justify his long silerce as to your position and

Lord Etheridge laid before the Duke of Beersleigh a package of documents that he requested him to examine.

The duke, in some surprise, took up the packet, and looked over the papers carefully one by one. Rose antirely ignorant of what was to come, awaited in preplexity the issue of the investigation. Ferdinand and Laura anxiously watched the countenance of the duke, which, as he picked up and read one document after another, exhibited much astonishment, but not a shade of grief or displeasure. When he had finished and laid down the last one, he arose, with a pleasure. When he had finished and that down the last one, he arose, with a cheerful smile, and, extending his hand across the table to Caesinove, shook hands with him cordially, saying: "Let me be the first to congratulate "Let me be the first to congratulate you upon your accession to your title, Lord Etheridge." Then, turning to his astonished wife, he continued "And let me congratulate you also, my dearest Rose, for you have gained a brother. Ferdinand, embrace your sister, while I salute my dear sister in law."

And going around the table to Laura, he took her hand, and kissed her cheek, saying:

"I wish you a long enjoyment of your recovered possessions, my dear sister."
Rose, who had received the embrace of her brother, now turned and threw herself in the arms of Laura, exclaiming:
"Oh, my dearest, I am so happy! happier than I have ever been in my life before, for I always felt like the usurper before, for I always felt like the usurper of your rights." Then suddenly remembering that the vast estates gained by Ferdinand and Laura were lost to the Duke of Beresleigh, Rose turned pale, dropped the hand of her friend, and walked away to the distant window.

The duke, instinctively surmising the cause of her agitation, went after her, and putting his arm around her waist, drew her to his side, saying tenderly:

"How is this, my darling Rose? What distresses you?"

"Oh, Beresleigh, it is as I said; I al ways said that my possession of the Swinburne estates would be transient, and when Colonel Hastings threatened to produce the rightful heir, I more than half believed that he could do so; than half believed that he could do so; and even sometimes thought that the alleged heir might be the son of my fa-ther's first marriage with that beauti-ful gir! that he took to the Continent. "Oh, yes! as far as I am concerned, I am, or should be very, very happy; but oh, Beresleigh, to think that you, when you supposed you had wedded a richly-dowered baroness, had wedded only a penniless maiden!"

"But the very sweetest maiden that ever was made a wife; and the loveliest wife that ever man was blest with!
Sweet Rose! dear Rose! could you believe that any circumstance could make me prize and love you less? No, darling of my heart and eyes, you are and ever must be to your husband a treasure be-yond price," said the duke, with deep emotion.

Rose turned on him a smile radiant with gratitude and joy.

"Besides, dearest, you are very tar from having been the penniless bride you described. You surely forget that you are, in the right of your mother, still the possessor of Laurel Hall, in Norfolk, and of Forest Park, in Kent, two estates that, taken together, the flight of The continuity and in the flight of The continuity and in value to Swinburne."

now I can rejoice freely with dear Laura and Ferdinand."

"Then come and rejoice with them at once, dearest. And let us have some champagne and drink the health of the new Baron and Baroness Etheridge," said the duke, drawing her arm within his, and leading her back to the table, where they rejoined Laura and Ferdinand.

Disgraced and impoverished, but still handsome and fascinating, he eloped with the daughter and heiress of a wealthy manufacturer in Leeds. The deeplywronged father sent his erring daughter a thousand pounds, but refused ever afterward to see her or her profligate husband, and dying two years afterward, left the whole of his property to his patron, Colonel Hastings. Captain Thugsen having spent his wife's small dower, and being disappointed of the fortune, and weary of the woman whom he had married only for her money, soon abandoned his wife and children, leaving them in obscure lodgings in London, and betaking himself to the fashionable watering-places, where his handsome person, fascinating manner and ready cunning, enabled him to get on in certain sets.

At these places he always passed as

From the moment Captain Thugsen met Mrs. Ravenscroft, he resolved to win her love. The circumstance of his own marriage seemed of no more importance of his own fact that she was the betrothed of auother. of the beach.

Thugsen urged her to fly with him so the Continent, but Helen was scarcely prepared for such a desperate measure. She said that if Lord Earlington were only out of the way, she would consent to become the wife of Thugsen. She never dreamed of the deep depravity that could put a fatal construction upon her words, and dare to obey their sup-posed meaning. At this time Lord Earl ngton, whose suspicions had been arous ed, wrote a civil note to Thugsen, re questing the latter to afford him a pri vate interview at his earliest conveni-ence. Thussen smiled with demoniac pleasure at the receipt of this note, and wrote a reply requestnote, and wrote a reply request-ing Lord Earlington to meet him at sun-set in a certain secluded coombe in the Lord Earlington kept the tryst, and Thugsen, awaiting him in that solitary spot, sprang upon him and buried a dagger to the hilt in his breast, and it was only then, from the lips of the dying man, Thugsen learned that Lord Earlington was his father, who, in a late repentance, had sought that interview with the ance, had sought that interview with the purpose of acknowledging his son, yield-ing up Helen to the latter, and endowing the young couple with a portion of his large fortune.

Sir Vincent had the body of the murdered peer conveyed to Brighton, where, upon his person, was found the note of Captain Thugsen summoning him to the fatal tryst. Helen Ravenscroft was informed of the death of Lord Earlington, by the hand of Captain Thugeen, and, though she never knew the relationship that existed between the murderer and his victim, and that her lover's soul was blackened by the awful crime of parricide, yet from hearing of the crime, and Kent, two estates that, taken together, are quite equal in value to Swinburne."

The Foreseeing Muskrat.

In the month of March, before the rivers have opened, on the snow around the heads of the creeks and about the the neads of the creeks and about the air-holes in the thick ice may be seen the curious trail of the muskrat. It can readily be recognized by the firmly-planted footmarks, heavily and slowly impressed, and the sharp after-drag of the long, scaly, blade-like tail. Al through the cold winter months these through the cold winter months these heavily furred animals have lived warm and comfortable in their well-construct-ed houses, rearing their third and last litter. One house erected about Sep-litter. One house with almost hulitter. One house erected about Septemper seemed planned with almost human foresight. Here with their long, sharp teeth and strong, inch-long claws they had cut and cleared wide paths through all the marshes—paths so deep that three feet of ice did not close them, so wide that we have often paddled so wide that we have often paddled along them, marvelling at the great flaoting masses of torn-up aquatic vege-tation. These paths were a hundred yards long and four feet wide, and were cut through a mass of tangled cover high enough in most places to thorough ly conceal a duck hunter and his cance. In the winter months the muskrats can asily dive from their houses into these easily dive from their houses into these under-ice channels, and the whole marsh is before them to choose their meal from. The long yellow roots of the flag and the juicy tubers of the wild onion (the multirat apple is the more poetic Ojibway) hang exposed before them, or are readily torn out.—From "Hunting the Muskrat with a Camera," by Bonnycastle Dale in the Outing Magazine for July.

Cities, like human beings, have characteristics. There are cities which boast of industries, the din and contusion of forges, furnaces, shops and factories; there are others boastful of incomparable elimate, a maximum amount of sunshine, a minimum amount of cloud and gloom. Some boast of the progress made in city building, and some of the wealth of nature's resources near at hand. The desire to "remove," or take, without the consent of the owner grows out of the desire to have, to retain some real or imaginary want, or because the thing desired is rare, scarce or valuable. All these reasons considered, the notice referred to is a "redundancy of matter," for not only is the Gorge clothed in such a wealth of fcliage as to make it invaluable, but the city of Victoria is robed in nature's gorgeous splendor.
