CHAPTER XXI.

"I am so glad we have met, dear Lady Ferndale," she says; "I hope—oh, I know we shall be great friends!"

"One after another are introduced and make their bows; servants hover to and fro waiting for the arrival of some one ere they announce dinner."

"Delighted to see you!" he says. "We shall be friends, Lady Ferndale! Don't say there's a doubt of it, though I am Van's bachelor friend; and wives don't like bachelor friends, do they? But you'll let me put my toes on the fender and smoke a pipe, eh?"

"As many as you like!" says Jeanne, and Vane, standing by, smiles—as he hasn't smiled for three months quite.

"Come, I'm awfully hungry," says Lord Charles; "so are you, I'm sure. What are we waiting for, mother? Oh Sparks is dancing about with impudence like a bear on hot bricks!"

"Oh, Lord Lane isn't here yet—oh, yes, here he comes."

"And the next instant Clarence's handsome face is seen above the crowd. It is flushed, not to say red; he has evidently had a struggle with a refractory collar or necktie, and he looks tired and exhausted."

"For a moment he recognizes nobody, and it is not until Charles takes him by the arm and draws him to the sofa with a 'Lane, let me introduce you to Lady Ferndale,' that he looks at Jeanne."

"GIRLS! GIRLS! Clear Your Skin Save Your Hair WITH CUTICURA"

Make these fragrant super-creamy emollients your every-day toilet preparations and have a clear sweet healthy skin and complexion, good hair and soft white hands, with little trouble and trifling expense. Absolutely nothing better, purer, sweeter at any price.

"Cuticura Toilet Trio" Contains Cuticura Soap to cleanse and purify, Cuticura Ointment to soothe and protect, and Cuticura Talcum to powder and perfume, promote and maintain skin purity, skin comfort and skin health often when all else seems to fail.

"Quite well when I heard last," she says, in a low voice.

"And—and your brother Hal?" he asks, gaining courage from the sound of his own voice.

"Quite well, also," says Jeanne, turning her eyes upon him with sudden courage on her part.

"Have you been well? You have been away, haven't you?"

"Yes," said Clarence; "I've been about a good deal since—since I saw you last."

"Who was to know—except, of course, yourself, Lady Ferndale. By Jove, you kept it well!"

"Then he stops short, as a sudden thought takes possession of him, body and soul, and makes his heart beat."

"It is a welcome, a delicious thought! If the great Marquis of Ferndale had not been his rival, he might have won her. After all, she may have cared for him—Clarence! Such things have been."

"It makes his heart beat madly; he drains a glass of chablis, sends his entree—for which he has been waiting ten minutes—away untouched, and is only brought to compose by meeting Vane's dark eyes fixed on him."

"Lord Ferndale must be a wonderfully clever fellow!" he says, with sudden moodiness.

"Yes," says Jeanne, and at the coldness of the assent Clarence's face clears again. He glances around at her with greater courage; yes, she is as beautiful, she is more beautiful than ever; and, what is more surprising, she is just as girlish; just, in fact, the Jeanne who set his heart beating nine months ago, and whose refusal of his love has only increased it tenfold.

"And Jeanne?"

"Well, Jeanne had grown more charitable and less critical. Clarence has improved in appearance, in manner, in the quantity and quality of his brains, and she is not sorry to see him."

"You cannot feel unamiable with a good-looking young fellow who waits on you with hand and eye, discusses your taste in the matter of the menu as anxiously as if life and death depended on it, nearly breaks his neck in getting a flower from the epergne, because you happen to say that it has a pretty bud, and evidently is doing, in all and every possible way, his best to be agreeable."

"Jeanne has been living a life of solitude for the last three months, with new friends, and a husband only in name; here is an old friend, and I say it is not to be wondered at that she should unbend and be agreeable."

"But is there no other reason than that of natural amiability for the gentle smile with which she enraptures poor Clarence? I wonder why she looks so close to Vane's face opposite, which is so close to Vane's handsome head that no one can hear what the soft, red lips are saying."

"And what are they saying? Do you think my Lady Lucelle is making love to Vane? Nothing of the sort; she is not so foolishly inexperienced as to commit such a blunder. She knows Vane better, alas, than Jeanne does."

"She does better than make love to him—she amuses him. Not a word of his marriage, not a word of that bitter, cruel, scornful letter, not a word concerning Jeanne or herself does those soft, red, mobile lips utter."

"No; at the slightest word on any of these subjects, Vane, she knows, would turn to stone or become like a hedgehog, all points. She amuses him, and when Lady Lucelle lays herself out to amuse, no man, scarcely a woman, can resist her."

"At first he is—well, sulky; meets her little, witty, pointed remarks with dry and caustic money-shibboleths, but she is not daunted. From subject to subject she flits easily, gracefully, adorning with her bright, delicate wit all she touches, until at last Vane's lip curve, and a slight smile lightens up his grave face."

"You still retain your wonderful face, and he stares as if he had seen a ghost. The silence causes Jeanne to look a little pale, and she turns pale. It is only for a moment, but two persons see it and notice. One, Lady Lucelle, smiles behind her fan; the other, Vane, frowns behind nothing."

"It is only for a moment, the next Jeanne holds out her hand."

"Lord Lane and I are old friends," she says, quietly.

"—yes, yes," stammers Clarence, taking her hand and lowering his eyes.

Aspirin Tablets

You are bilious, constipated, head-achy, full of cold, unstrung. Your meals don't fit—breath is bad, skin sallow. Take one or two Aspirin Tablets at night for your liver and bowels and wake up clear, rosy and cheerful. No griping—no inconvenience. Children love Aspirin too. 10, 25, 50 cents.

"spirits, Lady Lucelle," he says, as if it were wrong for him.

"Can't say I do," he says (though he does, and remembers many other things that occurred in the Engadine besides the badly-cooked vegetables); "my memory is bad."

"How I envy you!" she says—and she sighs lightly. "I once asked Lord Frederick, the great wit, whom he should consider the happy man. What do you think he said? The man who at five-and-thirty has lost his memory and saved his digestion!"

"At any rate, my digestion is all right," says Vane, laughing.

"And having lost your memory, you are the happy man," she says.

"The Secret of Coalbrookdale. After the workshop had closed for the night, he and his employer remained behind and conducted further experiments. Before morning they had succeeded in casting an iron pot. Darby was so delighted that he offered to take the boy into partnership, and an agreement was entered into."

"Though enticed to leave, by an offer of double wages, the boy stood by his master, and when Darby died he showed his fidelity by materially assisting the latter's widow and children."

"For more than one hundred years after the eventful night when young Thomas and his master made their successful experiment of producing an iron casting in a mould of fine sand, the same process was practiced and kept a secret at Coalbrookdale, where the keyholes were plugged and the doors were barred—TIT-BITS.

A Shepherd Boy Who Made An Industry.

THE WONDERFUL HISTORY OF CAST IRON.

The pluck and perseverance of a Welsh shepherd boy in saving his master's sheep from a snowdrift was instrumental in revolutionising one of the most important of British industries.

The cast-iron which to-day comes from the blast furnaces of many, from its useful quality of fusibility, he immediately used for manufacturing purposes by remelting it and pouring it into moulds of any required shape, this, of course, being the business of the iron-founder.

The use of cast-iron is comparatively modern. Though it may be traced as having been used as early as the fifteenth century, the process of casting was best with numerous mechanical difficulties, and it was not until 1700 or thereabouts that they were completely overcome.

This triumph was partly due to an intelligent mechanic named Abraham Darby who brought some Dutch workmen to England and established a brass foundry at Bristol. It was here that he conceived the idea of substituting cast-iron for brass. He prevailed upon his workmen to try the experiment, but their efforts did not meet with success.

"At this time an incident took place which was destined to play an important part in the solution of the problem. A shepherd boy named John Thomas, after saving his master's flock from a heavy snowdrift, swam across a river in order to fetch home a herd of mountain cattle."

"He collected the cattle and drove them to the river. Finding that the ford had become a torrent, he crossed it astride an ox and so brought the whole herd home in safety."

"For this gallant act his master rewarded him by presenting him with four of the sheep he had saved. He sold behind and conducted further experiments. Before morning they had succeeded in casting an iron pot. Darby was so delighted that he offered to take the boy into partnership, and an agreement was entered into."

"Though enticed to leave, by an offer of double wages, the boy stood by his master, and when Darby died he showed his fidelity by materially assisting the latter's widow and children."

"For more than one hundred years after the eventful night when young Thomas and his master made their successful experiment of producing an iron casting in a mould of fine sand, the same process was practiced and kept a secret at Coalbrookdale, where the keyholes were plugged and the doors were barred—TIT-BITS.

Good in Poverty.

MR. GOSLINGTON DOES A LITTLE PHILOSOPHIZING

"Glimmerby, my friend Glimmerby," said Mr. Goslington, "propounds the theory that both poverty and worry are conducive to longevity; and I think there is something in that. I am not so sure about the worry, and yet I think even that may be true. I can see, for instance, that if a man worried hard enough he would keep himself lean and so escape the ills and inconveniences attendant upon obesity; but that poverty tends to lengthen life I have no doubt whatever."

"The man who is poor, as we most of us are, has to work for a living. Surely it is in work that we are most blessed; and if we have work to do in which we are interested, that appeals to us, then are we fortunate indeed; we find a pleasure in labor and a joy in accomplishment; and it makes me smile to think how in such work we forget our worries entirely."

"So we don't really need to consider whether worry is a life prolonger or not; all we want to lengthen our days is to be poor, poor enough so that we have to work and keep plunging; but I do wonder that Glimmerby did not mention along with poverty and worry, as among the things that might tend to prolong life, our physical ailments."

"Some years ago a friend of mine began to lose weight and he kept on in that way until he had lost 25 pounds. Then he consulted a doctor."

A Message to Skin Sufferers

For years perhaps you have had to endure discomfort, disfigurement, humiliation, or even daily torture and sleepless nights, because of some skin disease. Times without number you have followed some hopeful advice and each time you have met only disappointment and despair.

"Who knows?" you ask, "Whose advice may I follow?" Here is a frank and honest answer: Reputable physicians admit they can only guess at the true cause of skin disease. Some say it is a blood disease, to be treated through the blood. Others say it is a skin disease, to be treated through the skin. But they are not sure and we would be foolish to try to tell you what even science does not know.

A Doctor's Prescription D.D.D. is the prescription of a physician, Dr. D. D. D. Dennis, who first overcame his skin disease in his neighborhood practice 15 years ago. Today it is a household name. It is a miracle. It is just a common-sense remedy composed of well known healing and soothing ingredients, such as Thymol, all of which are pure. We make no extravagant claims. We say only this: That for 15 years, day after day, thousands have simply poured it on—without our suggestion or solicitation—telling us of their restored health and happiness.

Without making any promise of a cure, we can tell you that we have cured thousands of skin diseases. We have cured eczema, psoriasis, dandruff, itching, and all other skin diseases. We have cured the most stubborn cases. We have cured the most hopeless cases. We have cured the most incurable cases. We have cured the most chronic cases. We have cured the most painful cases. We have cured the most disgusting cases. We have cured the most embarrassing cases. We have cured the most humiliating cases. We have cured the most degrading cases. We have cured the most humiliating cases. We have cured the most degrading cases. We have cured the most humiliating cases. We have cured the most degrading cases.

Just Folks

UNFORGETTABLE THINGS. They ain't much seen from day to day— The big elm tree across the way, The church spire, an' the meatin' place Lit up by many a friendly face. You pass 'em by a dozen times, But never think them in rhymes. Or fit for poet's singin'. Yet They're all the things you can't forget.

AN' they're the things you'll miss some day If ever you should go away. The people here ain't much to see— Just common folks like you an' me. Doin' the ordinary tasks Which life of everybody asks; Old Dr. Green, still farin' round; To where his patients can be found, An' Parson Hill, serene o' face, Carryin' God's message every place, An' Jim, who keeps the grocery store. Yet they are folks you'd hunger for.

They seem so plain when close to view, Bill Barker, an' his brother too, The Jacksons—men at the rank Because they chance to run the bank. Yet friends to every one round here, Quiet an' kind, an' full of cheer, Not much to sing about or praise, Livin' their lives in modern ways— Yet in your memory they'd stay If ever you should go away.

These are things an' these the men Some day you'll long to see again. Now it's so near you scarcely see, But some day later on you'll see. An' wonder if it's standin' still, An' if the birds return to sing.

The Brigade paraded as usual at 8 p.m. sharp. Lieut.-Colonel R. F. Goodridge being in command, with Capt. Outerbridge as Adjutant and the following officers on duty: Major G. R. Williams, Captain Henry, Lieuts. Fern, Harold Hayward, Lance Hayward, W. R. Mott, Phil. B. Rendell and Regt. Sergt. Major Rowland Williams. The orders issued were for the usual monthly inspection of all ranks, Ambulance, School, Quartermaster's Department, Company rooms and N.C.O.'s Mess. Unfortunately, due to some unknown reason, very few of the lads were on parade and the inspection was postponed until next Thursday instead. New orders for the week ending February 10th are as follows: Orderly Officer, Lieut. Phil B. Rendell. Next for duty, Lieut. Lance Hayward. Duty company, F. Company. Duty Chaplain, Rev. A. B. Stirling. Battalion will parade on Tuesday and Thursday next week at 7.45 p.m. Dress, drill order. Inspection will be held by the Officer Commanding, Lieut. Col. Goodridge on Thursday. The following lads are posted to Companies: A Company—7029 F. Barley, F. Company—7028 C. James, 7029 M. Lane, 7010 F. Watts, 7018 R. Martin, 7022 E. Churchill, 7023 G. Noseworthy, 7029 L. Young and 7010 A. Gill.

After parade the lads were marched to the gymnasium, where Major Geo. R. Williams addressed the boys on the Church Lads' Savings Bank, pointing out that this institution was prosperous and progressive and was able to help them by offering banking facilities to aid them in saving up a fund for a "rainy day." Deposits on hand now total $3,451.91. An account can be opened by a deposit of ten cents. A nicely printed bank book is furnished each depositor and lads are taught by its constant use economy and thrift. Major Williams informed the gathering that the C.L.B. Bank was founded by Lieut.-Colonel R. G. Rendell, C.B.E., many years ago on a sound financial basis and the only dividends paid have been the interest of 3 per cent to its members and a hundred cents to the dollar when any Brigade lad wanted his money to provide himself with tools to learn his trade, money for educational courses or anything his money could purchase to advance the Bank Book's owners interests. The Major announced that the Bank's Office were Bank President and Trustee Lieut.-Colonel R. G. Rendell, C.B.E.; Lieut. A. S. Lewis of Messrs. Reid, Son and Watson's office, Treasurer, and Lieut. W. R. Mott, Bank Cashier at Headquarters. An appeal was made by all ranks to open up Savings Accounts next Tuesday and Thursday nights.

The officers were glad to see Rev. E. Clench of Spaniard's Bay visiting the Armoury Tuesday and Thursday nights this week and he was heartily welcomed and given the "freedom of the mess."

Paymaster Lewis is busy working on his 1920 financial statement and in a few days the annual meeting of the Officers' Mess takes place, when the accounts will be presented and discussed and the financial tactics for the 1921 budget outlined.

All ranks join in congratulating Captain Frank Miles, of F Co. and Co. Sergt.-Major Harold Rendell of A Co., on their recently joining the happy ranks of matrimony. We wish Captain Miles and Sergt.-Major Rendell and their brides long life and every good luck, and we feel sure they have the best wishes of all the Brigade members on their voyage through life.

We were glad to see our old friend Major Fred Marshall, O.B.E., of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, helping along his old Brigade of Alma Mater this week in the gymnasium. He was there in the boxing game, and instructing the lads in gymnastics. A Co. boys were greatly interested. Outport Companies have settled down to steady work. No news lately from any of them—so no news is good news!

Lieut. Jack Daws, Officer Commanding of Bay Roberts Company, had a shipment of kit sent out by express Monday morning, showing he is kitting his new recruits and adding to the strength of his Company.

N. C. O's Dinner.
 On last Thursday night the N.C.O's and Warrant Officers' Mess held their annual dinner at Wood's West End Restaurant, about 35 covers were laid. The President of the Mess, Regt. Sergt. Gatherings of this kind tend to promote good fellowship and we congratulate President Rowland Williams and his Committee on their successful dinner.

All Brigade members were very sorry to hear Thursday of the passing out of one of the Brigade's oldest and largest subscribers to its funds monthly inspection of all ranks, Ambulance, School, Quartermaster's Department, Company rooms and N.C.O.'s Mess. Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE HAPPIEST TIME.

RUTH CAMERON

"The fortnight was near its conclusion and both looked forward with eagerness to the return to England. He would plunge into his work, she would be near the Hawthornes and have friends to come to see her. Neither of the pair regretted the step they had taken. Each loved the other, but a honeymoon was a trying institution viewed as a whole."

I came across that paragraph in a book the other day and was delighted with it. As one always is when one finds the thoughts that one has had formulated in one's mind appearing in print.

There has always been a tradition that the honeymoon is the happiest time in a man or woman's life. If one could have truthful statistics on such an impossible subject to "statistificate" upon, I haven't a doubt in the world that one would scarcely find one case in five, even among the most devoted lovers, in which this was true.

There are Unconscious Lies, Too. You notice I underline truthful. That is because I mean a great deal by it. There are unconscious lies as well as conscious ones. Many people would say their honeymoon was the happiest time even if they knew it was not, just because they would be afraid people would think their marriage wasn't happy. And many other people would say it was because they would really think so—because that is the traditional thing to think.

So, you see, even if we should engage a statistician to make inquiries on this important point (which seems a trifle unlikely), we shouldn't get any very reliable results. But tell me, Reader-friend, you who are in the habit of really thinking, don't you admit that there may well be periods in one's life that are more perfect than the honeymoon? There's the falling-in-love period. To the woman, at least, I think there is never anything quite so delicious as this marvelous time when she begins to feel her power.

The Ever New Miracle.

And then there is the period just before a third life comes into being, when those who truly love are drawn closer shut off more completely from the world by their great and ever new and unbelievable miracle, than at any other time.

Then there are the years of young married life after adjustments have been made, and when things are running smoothly and both are filled with the sense of power and joy in life that comes at the prime of a well lived life.

And then there's the period of later middle age when the family has shrunk to two again—two who have many tender memories in common, who understand each other and love each other the more because and in spite of it, two who can find a deep and true happiness in passing into the calm and peace of old age since "hand in hand they'll go, and sleep together at the foot."

Different for Different People.

Which is the happiest period in one's life depends somewhat on what are the extraneous circumstances in each life. But it is my humble opinion that it is far less likely to be the honeymoon than any other period, because the honeymoon holds so many readjustments and is lived in the unnatural condition in which neither has his natural friendships and duties to ease the strain of a new and constant companionship. Therefore I am glad, as I said before, to know that someone else dared attack the sacred tradition. Perhaps I shall be execrated by some for taking away the joy of expectation by such a suggestion. But I have a feeling that I may also be blessed by some young people who have just passed through a honeymoon and found it not so perfect as they expected and drawn the natural conclusion that if this be the best and the rest an anticlimax, they may have made a mistake. Such, I am sure, will not blame me for suggesting that the honeymoon is not necessarily the best, and that they have every right to look forward to much greater happiness.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—Canadian Trade Commissioner Ross, writing to the Weekly Bulletin, of the Department of Trade and Commerce, states that the exportable surplus of apples from Australia this season is estimated at 2,250,000 cases. He added that transportation facilities are doubtful. The apple season in Australia commences in February and continues to the end of April.

A Funny Story With a Moral.

Three times within an hour a woman, accompanied by her little boy had enquired from the station agent the hour of the departure of the next train for Cincinnati. Each time he had told her, with increasing irritation, that the next train for Cincinnati would leave at midnight. He had an impediment in his speech which gave his words a pronounced nasal intonation. When for the fourth time the woman accosted him with the same enquiry, he lost his patience. "You must be deaf, woman," he shouted angrily; "I have told you a dozen times that the next train for Cincinnati leaves at midnight. Take the cotton wool out of your ears and listen to what is going on." The boy was still with her, and as she turned to go away she said, meekly, "I beg your pardon, mister, I would not have troubled you only my little son Key likes to hear you speak." Any mother who would like to entertain her son should bring him along to the Prince of Pilsen, so that he may hear Dr. Howlett speak. He will laugh until the Easter holidays.

When Choosing the Material for a washable Frock for the growing child—

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

Packets (two sizes) may be obtained everywhere.

MY COLUMN

SEEKER AFTER KNOWLEDGE.

A few days ago I received a letter from one calling himself "Denice", in which he put a question which to any one else would have meant hours of research. In fact, any other editor would have told him to "go to the devil" or probably some place hotter. As, however, I am always glad to get an opportunity to help out one who is sufficiently anxious to put on, to take the trouble to ask for a solution to any difficulties which may beset them, I am answering the complex questions put to me by "Denice".

These questions are asked in connection with the game of "forty-fives", but as the rules would not be used by ordinary non-fives, I presume he means another. He says that the expression "jugs" is used when one receives a good and in place of a discard.

(1) The exact meaning of the word.
 (2) The derivation of the word.
 (3) Whether it is correct English or slang.

(4) Whether it is not, in my opinion, scophonous.
 I have answered my answers to correspond with his questions.

(1) The latest unpublished Webster gives the exact meaning of the verb "jug" as (a) To lock up, to imprison, to sear.

EG.—Suggest thou that drunk—(Dr. Brakstaff liv).

(a) In card games, to jug is to hide in the sleeves, to secrete, to pick up after the discard.

EG.—He jugged the five of trumps; meaning he either took it from his sleeve or got it from the discard.

(2) The word is derived from the Latin "jugus," a yoke. This was corrupted by the ancient Britons to "jugul" meaning "to be hauled by a rope attached to the neck." It has since drifted into use as explained in the answer to Question 1. The parts are jag, jagged, jagged or jagged.

(3) Whether or not it is correct English depends upon the context. We refer you to the work on "Slang Words of the Ancient Celts and their Modern Derivations" by Professor O'Shaughnessy in 10 volumes.

(4) No, it is not cacophonous but dictaphonous or telephonous.

RIMES OF THE TIMES.

 The Find.
 Four "blades" one Sunday eve set out

A nearby pond to walk about. And when a mile from town they'd come One found a pack of chewing gum. Said he, "Now here's a piece of luck." Another, "Pitch away that muck." A third, "My hunger I'll appease— And you can leave it if you please." The fourth did with his friends agree, To lose their find would foolish be. "Look here, you chaps," the second said, "To cheer this gum might knock you dead." "Unto this dog let's give a stick And if it can survive a lick I'll think it is sufficient test, And we can then chew up the rest." So to the dog a stick they gave, The brute at once began to rave;

And fiercely then the "blades" it eyed, Turned over on its back and—died. A moral from this story take, And when your walking 'round the lake, If e'er you find some chewing gum Just pass it by as if 'twere rum.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
 The average length of life is greater in Norway than in any other country on the globe. This is attributed to the fact that the temperature is cool and uniform throughout the year.

In many cases where artificial respiration is employed, a man apparently killed by electricity or lightning can be resuscitated. A man struck by lightning should be treated like one apparently drowned.

The first news of Niagara's power was made in 1725, a primitive saw-mill being worked there. Nothing more was done until 1842, when the plan of hydraulic canals was conceived, and in 1851 one of them was completed.

 "I'm nae sae very sure about that," replied the butler, "for he died this mornin'."

"Prince of Pilsen" Scores Again.
 The theatre goers of St. John's are undoubtedly showing their good taste in a very marked fashion, for in spite of the storm of last night, for the third time in succession, "The Prince of Pilsen" was performed before a capacity audience whose appreciation of the musical and dramatic treat given them is a high tribute to its intelligence. Delightful singing, excellent acting, dainty and multi-coloured costumes and picturesque scenery all combined to produce an effect such as has rarely, if ever, been presented on a local stage. The principals were again in fine form, their solos and acting delighting the audience, the humorous characters, particularly Hans Wagner, Artie and Francois, keeping them in a perpetual fit of rollicking laughter. During the evening some pleasing presentations were made, boxes of candy being presented to Misses Madeline Kavanagh, Elsie Herder, Mary Egan and Mary Ryan, and Mesdames Ring and Cahill. Tonight the performance will be repeated and a matinee is being given this afternoon.

Grant has witnessed many changes in the methods of catching and curing fish; and as he watches the new-days fisher with that ease which modern equipment provides, he shakes his head, and harks back in memory to the days of hemp cod seines, spruce ears, black punts, high break-back flakes, and oar ropes. Today, one hundred and fifty planters go to their traps and hook-and-line fishing in up-to-date motor boats, followed by the one hundred and fifty hired men who work the traps. It has been found necessary to hire the trapmen, in order to equalize the value of trap berths. Mr. Grant has also seen the business (which was begun at the old Jersey Room at Blanc Sablon) go on extending year by year, till it has included the Rooms at Isle au Bois, Lance au Clair, Greenly Island, Lance au Loup, Porteau, and that of Fruting & Co. on the other side of the river at Blanc Sablon, thus including from Bras d'Or to Lance au Loup—on twenty miles of coast—what at one time were eleven distinct fishing rooms; that of Fruting & Co. being the last Jersey firm in either Newfoundland or Labrador.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Shady and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugstore, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add the following ingredients: One ounce of molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage and raising the phlegm, soothing and healing the membrane, and gradually but surely dissolving the inflamed, swollen, and diseased parts of the throat. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic cough, hoarseness, or bronchial asthma. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membrane.

Avoid disinfectants, steam inhalants, and drugs for "2½ ounces of Pinex" will give full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Queen Ann's Bounty.

Queen Anne celebrated her fortieth birthday by a noble act of beneficence. The birthday actually fell on a Sunday—February 6, 1704—but on the following day, Sir Charles Hodges, Secretary of State, brought down to the House of Commons a message from the Queen stating that her Majesty desired to make a grant of the whole of that portion of her revenue, arising out of the First Fruits and Tenths for the benefit of the poorer clergy. These first fruits and tenths were originally sent to Rome, but Henry VIII. added them to the Crown revenue. Charles II. squandered funds on his mistresses and their offspring. Bishop Burnet had recommended to William and Mary a plan for benefitting the poorer clergy by the use of the fund, and he took considerable credit for Anne's resolve. The income was £210,000 a year, to which Parliament added an annual grant of £100,000. The bill enabling her Majesty to alienate this branch of her revenue also created a corporation to act as trustees for the bounty. There was likewise a clause repealing a part of the statutes of mortmain, so that it might henceforth be free to any man to give what he thought fit, either by deed or will towards the augmentation of benefices. This clause was warmly opposed in the Lords, but it was eventually carried with the rest of the Bill. Later statutes of George I., George II., and Victoria enlarged the scope of the original Act as touching the livings to be dealt with, and further allowed certain advances for the repairing of churches, building parsonages, and other similar purposes. "Queen Anne's Bounty" has well fulfilled its appointment, and rendered signal service to the Church.

TRINITY.

These men in Trinity who contribute most largely to the best interests of the community, and of whom our citizens are proud—some at home all the time, and others away from home the greater part of the time. The one, however, who is the subject of this article—Mr. Grant—has just been away from home for months and at home seven months of every year. During those months the community is largely left to Mr. Grant, for remuneration given to the hundreds of men who take with him to Blanc Sablon during the seven months, and the community is again indebted to the circulation of the money he carries away. We do not begrudge him the permanent annual income of his bank account, for the money he carries away is as a result of his generous expenditure of a proportion of his earnings and his moral and Christian example and influence in daily life.

Mr. Grant is the product of an old-fashioned school, conducted by an old-school-master, who was as thoroughly trained in the same kind of school. The school in which Mr. Grant was trained, was the fishing establishment at Blanc Sablon, and the master who trained him was Amos Blandford. Before he was admitted to this school, he had to take a primary course with the distinguished masters. So, as when he was not running errands for his father in the carpenter's shop or carrying the parson's money to St. John's, he was busy with Solomon Hiscock. Then a summer fishing at Labrador, then a summer fishing at Blanc Sablon, and then a summer fishing at Blanc Sablon, and then a summer fishing at Blanc Sablon, and then a summer fishing at Blanc Sablon.

Mr. Grant is a man who knows how to run a business, and he is in full enjoyment of the company of his employers, and the respect of all who have served, and he is serving under him.

During those thirty-six years, Mr. Grant has seen many changes in the methods of catching and curing fish; and as he watches the new-days fisher with that ease which modern equipment provides, he shakes his head, and harks back in memory to the days of hemp cod seines, spruce ears, black punts, high break-back flakes, and oar ropes.

The train on the Bonavista Branch has been making daily trips, with un-failing regularity.

At the annual meeting of St. Paul's congregation, tenders were invited for the performance of sexton duties for the church during the year. The committee accepted Mr. Alfred Hiscock's tender for $190.00, and he has entered upon his duties.

Some heavy timber is being cut at Pope's Harbor, for the new Government wharf at Trinity.

Mr. Peter Conolly, station Master at Trinity East, and his bride came by Thursday's express (27th). Mrs. Conolly was Miss Costello of Conception Harbor, and has many friends in Trinity, as she taught in the R. C. school here a year ago. They were married at Conception Harbor, and will occupy the Station Master's residence at Trinity East, which has been carefully furnished for their use. Every good wish.

At a special meeting of the members of the Women's Patriotic Association, and the Red Cross Society, it was decided to divide the $60.00 (received to them by the Secretary of the Monument Fund) between the schools in the district in which the money was collected.

Mr. Grant remembers his sale of 10,000 quintals of fish in 1902 for $1.80 a quintal, whilst other sales were made at $1. He remembers when the catch of 14,000 quintals was sold for $2.50, $2.80 and $3.00 a quintal. He would find it difficult to remember the year when not a caplin was seen on the shore, and the season ended with a deficit of several thousand dollars. He recalls the excitement of Capt. Joe Blandford, when, having seen for the first time a motor boat belonging to the Light House steamer, towing a landing lighter to the shore—he saw a vision of a fleet of such motor boats towing the loaded trap skiffs, etc. here and there along the coast; and emphatically declared "that's what we need Sir! and that's what we must have Sir!"

"Mayor" Crocker, of Trinity, is successfully negotiating with the official department at St. John's for the relief of some destitute families at Pope's Harbor.

Scores of people took advantage of the Harbor ice and a beautiful afternoon on Sunday last, to visit friends at Trinity East, and several remained for evening at St. Andrew's.

Mrs. James Bewley, of Fort Point, South Side, died on Saturday night last. Mrs. Bewley had been a widow for fourteen years. Her children all died young. Her maiden name was Soper, and she was born and bred at Han's Harbor. She was 82 years of age. May she rest in peace.

Mr. Ralph Palmer, steward on the Reid Nfld. mail steamer on Bonavista Bay, after spending a few weeks at Grand Falls, is visiting parents and friends at Trinity. Always glad to see you.

A Criticism—Any advertiser, either in the Evening Telegram, or in any other respectable newspaper, who believes that the embodiment of such a sentence as: "Get wise men . . . for what the trade do you care," will increase his trade, in my opinion, sadly mistaken. Other persons advertisements, and have clothes to be cleaned and hats to be blocked. But . . .

QUEBEC MAN GETS RESULTS FROM DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mr. H. Dinelle Suffered from a Complicated Case of Kidney Troubles and tells how Dodd's Kidney Pills Helped Him.

Cheneville, Que., Feb. 14.—(Special.)—I suffered for eight years from diabetes, neuritis of the heart and rheumatism.

"A year ago I commenced to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. "My health is very much improved." In these three concise sentences Mr. Hyacinthe Dinelle, a well-known and highly respected resident here, tells why he recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Dinelle is still using Dodd's Kidney Pills. He believes that his troubles are caused by sick kidneys and that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the remedy he needs.

Sick kidneys are the cause of many serious diseases. When the kidneys are not right, they do their full work of training all the impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood. There can be no pure blood if the kidneys are wrong. There can be no good health unless the blood is pure.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the sovereign remedy for sick kidneys.

Establishment of British Power in India.

The news that the Prince of Wales is to open the new Parliament in India, brings to mind that February 5, 1757, was the date of a battle in the Ditch of Fort William, Calcutta, which may be said to have established British supremacy in India. The Nabob of Bangol commenced hostilities against the British, and having overpowered Calcutta, confined his victims in the famous "Black Hole," thus killing them in a truly fiendish manner for only twenty three out of over a thousand survived the horrors of that night. By the time the news of this outrage had reached England, rousing the indignation of every British subject, Colonel—afterwards Lord—Clive, and already marched up country with the intention of speedily avenging this atrocity. After visiting Calcutta, in spite of what appeared insurmountable difficulties, he arrived with an army of three thousand men within a day's march of the Nabob's encampment. Clive had set himself a task that appeared well-nigh hopeless. The enemy were at least fifty thousand strong, and his determination to advance was formed in spite of the advice to the contrary from his officers. The Bengalees came on in masses, and looked formidable enough to have appalled even a strong force; but the first cannonade from the British threw the enemy into confusion; it turned and fled, and the English found India open to them.

Willie Must Stay Where He Is.

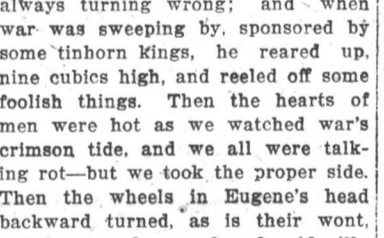

Ex-Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany, in an interview given to the editor of a German weekly published in the Netherlands, gives the reasons why he does not return to Germany, why his wife does not join him in his sojourn at Wieringen, and why he does not join his father, the former German Emperor, at Doorn. Frederick William also sets forth his plans regarding the education of his sons.

"Naturally I would be glad to return to Germany, and I would be happy if I could devote myself to agriculture, particularly to horse breeding, the former Crown Prince is quoted as saying. "I could rejoice to associate with the learned men at Breslau University and regain what I lost during the war at Wieringen. I would like to use what little power I have to help build up the Fatherland, but that cannot be. My friends in the Fatherland and abroad would see my hand in every deed which others might begin, but of which I would know nothing at all. Unrest would follow. I cannot go to my parents at Doorn. Our opponents are continually trying to put us in the position of being ready to set the world on fire, and if we were together, then, in the eyes of our opponents, the overthrow of the world would be a question of but a short time."

EUGENE DEBS.

In a prison cell he sits, for his carnival of crime, jalled for three days a sundry fits at a nervous, crucial time. Now the crucial time is past, and 'twould make the angels weep that we hold him, caged and fast, sighing in his dungeon k e e e p. Poor Eugene! His health is good, and his courage high and strong, but his head has wheels of wood and they're always turning wrong; and when he was sweeping by, sponsored by some tinhorn kings, he reared up, nine cubics high, and reeled off some foolish things. Then the hearts of men were hot as we watched war's crimson tide, and we all were talking rot—but we took the proper side. Then the wheels in Eugene's head backward turned, as is their wont, and he paved around and said silly things, in language blunt. And he's been in jail for years, and it seems he'll there remain, while the hearty profiteers flourish on their crooked gain; and the gangsters run at large, and the slayers shoot and stab, and they're not placed in charge of the prison grim and drab; and the swindlers and the thieves raise their divers kinds of hell, while poor Eugene sits and grieves at the window of his cell. In the bustle and the rush man's errors must prevail, but our Uncle Sam should blush that this man remains in jail.
