

LADY AVON'S RELEASE

THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER VI.

Angela's quick eyes at once noticed that he wore the pink moss-rose-bud which her mother had given him. How carefully he must have cherished it! Why did her mother's face flush crimson when her eyes fell upon it? Why did people smile when they saw the handsome captain lingering by her mother's side? Why did other men make way for him with a smile and a bow? Why did he dance with her so often? There was some understanding between the captain and her mother which she had never suspected before, and she had not the faintest idea what it was. Once, when she was standing near Lady Bellamy, she overheard some one say to her ladyship, "It will be the most sensible and most brilliant match of the season;" but she had not the faintest idea to whom the remark referred. She overheard too the reply that was given, and it was, "Yes, now that he has sown his wild oats, he will settle down into a 'good husband.'" She wondered for a moment who the speaker had alluded to, and then forgot all about the incident.

It was a delightful ball, and mother and daughter frequently met during its progress. Angela had no lack of partners; but she noticed, and thought it strange, that whenever she saw her mother Captain Wynyard was by her side.

When the ball was ended, it was Captain Wynyard who drew the soft feecy wrap round Lady Rooden's shoulders; it was Captain Wynyard who placed mother and daughter in the carriage, and spoke in a low tender voice of the beauty of the stars in June; and then, bending his handsome head, with a look of utterable love in his eyes, he kissed her ladyship's hand.

Angela did not hear his "Good-night" to herself—the shock she had just received had been too great. Her mother's hands were sacred in her eyes; her father had kissed and caressed them. He, too, had held them sacred; and now this man, whom she disliked and mistrusted by instinct, had dared to kiss them!

Her face burned with indignation and her eyes flashed with anger. That he should dare to treat her own mother so, her dear father's wife, to her mind all the more sacred because he was dead! That any man should dare to approach this beautiful mother of hers—who was enshrined in her heart with her father, never to be separated from him—with whispered words and kisses, seemed horrible to her.

"My mother—my mother!" she cried to herself. "How dare he!"

But she spoke no word of what filled her heart until they reached home; then she went into her mother's room. Her ladyship had taken off her superb dress of amber velvet, and she sat, the very picture of comfort and luxury, with her golden hair falling like a shimmering veil over her white shoulders. Angela hastened to her. She flung herself upon her knees at her mother's feet, and raised her lovely face to hers.

"Oh, mamma," she cried. "I saw him, and it has almost broken my heart!"

"Saw what, Angel?" asked Lady Rooden, looking up in wonder, and with a little laugh.

"I saw him—Captain Wynyard—kiss your hand, mamma! I saw him! Never let him do that again! How dare he! It was my father's privilege. No man but he had the right to kiss them. Now that he can kiss them no more, do not permit any one else. Oh, mamma, when I saw him—saw what he was doing—I felt so jealous for my dead father's sake! I felt that in some way his memory was outraged. Oh, mamma, mamma, promise me that you will never let him do that again!" She caught her mother's shapely white hands and kissed them passionately. "It is right for me," she cried; "I am my father's child. But they are not for him, mamma, these sweet white hands that I love."

Then Lady Rooden seemed to recover from the shock of the passionate words.

"My dear Angel," she said, "you cannot possibly know what you are saying."

"I do—I do indeed, mamma! But promise me—say that Captain Wynyard shall never kiss your hands again!"

"I could not make such an absurd promise," laughed Lady Rooden. "Why, Angel, what a jealous child you are!"

As Angela Rooden left her mother's room that night, the terrible shadow that was to make her life so wretched began to fall over her.

CHAPTER VII.

The garden-party at Lady Avon's lovely villa at Richmond, the grounds of which sloped down to the river Thames, was one of the most successful of the season. The guests were the creme de la creme of London society, and the weather was most propitious.

Lady Rooden and Angela were admittedly the belles of the fete. Her ladyship looked more beautiful than ever in a dress of palest blue velvet, elegantly trimmed with white lilac; a bonnet of blue velvet and a plume of white lilac crowned her golden hair. Her gloves matched her dress, so did the pretty Parisian shoes.

Angela wore a dress that suited her slender, girlish beauty well—white with a profusion of rich carnations—a most effective costume.

Wherever between the trees the blue velvet and white lilac gleamed, there was to be seen also a small gathering of ardent worshippers; but Angela's happiness was unclouded until she saw Captain Wynyard, with a smile on his handsome face, take his place by her mother's side, when a feeling of uneasiness possessed her which she could not shake off.

Angela had so many admirers as her mother, but at present they did not interest her. She liked dancing for dancing's sake; the sweet strains of the music and the gliding movements were a delight to her. Consequently, if one of her partners danced better than another, she preferred him. Such matters as birth and fortune did not interest her. She admired any one who sang well, spoke well, danced well, rode well; but, so far as admiration for herself was concerned, it did not interest her or make the slightest impression upon her.

She was essentially one of those who are born, and destined to love once, and once only, with a love worth a thousand smaller affections. She could not have wasted her love in meaningless flirtations. Hence her partners gave her no concern so long as they danced well. She hardly remembered their names, so little interest did she otherwise take in them. She knew the same faces crowded round her nightly, but she was not sufficiently interested in them to welcome one more than another.

She was perfectly indifferent to the fact that the young Duke of Horton needed but a smile to encourage him, and he was ready to lay his title and fortune at her feet. She knew and cared less that Lord Farbury, the great match of the season, was bent upon winning her. They were all shadows to her—these handsome, gallant young noblemen who gathered round. At present she was far more interested in her mother's admirers than her own.

As Lady Avon and her young guest were strolling through the grounds, Angela's eyes were riveted on the face—darkly beautiful, yet with a shadow on it—of a young girl coming toward them.

"Who is that?" she asked, in a quick, low voice, of Lady Avon.

"That is Gladys Rane," was the reply.

Was it her fancy? She could not tell, but it seemed to Angela that a curious expression passed over Lady Avon's face. It must have been fancy, for, when she looked again, the strange expression was gone.

In a few well-chosen words Lady Avon introduced the two who were to cross each other's lives so strangely. When the dark eyes of Gladys Rane rested on Angela, something flashed into their depths, something that was like hate and despair. Miss Rooden asked herself if this was fancy also. It must have been fancy, for the next time she looked Gladys Rane was regarding her with smiling eyes and lips.

Czech Budget Shows Real Economies.

The budget of the republic of Czechoslovakia for 1923 shows a deficit of about 560,000,000 Czech crowns, which is 370,000,000 crowns less than the deficit for 1922 and 170,000,000 crowns less than that for 1921.

There are two interesting features in the document. One is the setting forth of the salaries of public officials separate from all other items, so that the total can readily be seen, and the other is that next year the budget is to be submitted to Parliament in the form of a commercial balance sheet. This latter feature will make it possible for Parliament to determine if the socialization of industries is more productive and profitable than the use of private capital.

Public expenditure in Czechoslovakia reached its maximum last year. The cost of running the government has increased steadily since the founding of the republic four years ago. But 1923 promises a considerable reduction which ultimately may be far greater than is hoped for now. The 1923 figures show expenses of 19,370,000,000 Czech crowns, and revenue of 18,810,000,000.

TUKKS RENEW ULTIMATUM.

Allies Given Three Days to Withdraw Warships.

No Undue Haste Being Shown to Comply -- France Will Enforce German Policy of '71 -- Free State or Republic?

A NEW ULTIMATUM. LONDON, Feb. 11. The Turks have presented a new ultimatum to the Allies giving them three days to quit Smyrna, according to reports to Reuters.

REPORTS CONFIRMED. PARIS, Feb. 11. Reports from London that the Allies have renewed their ultimatum to the Turks at Smyrna, confirmed by the morning papers today. It appears that last night the Allies announced they would wait three days longer after which they would reserve the right to demand the Allies' policy, it is said, is to be modified by the new ultimatum should the Turks use force. Warships have orders to defend themselves.

FINDING AN EXCUSE. CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 11. Insisting that the order of the Allies to withdraw their warships from the Bosphorus is an "unreasonable and threatening act," the Turkish government has declared that it will not comply with the ultimatum until the Allies have withdrawn their warships from the Bosphorus. The Turkish government has also announced that it will not comply with the ultimatum until the Allies have withdrawn their warships from the Bosphorus.

OSGRAVE WOULD AGREE. LONDON, Feb. 11. President Cosgrave, of Dail Eireann, in a statement in the Daily Mail, declared he was ready to agree that Edmond de Valera should advise his followers to surrender their arms on condition that the question of a Republic should be decided by the people.

MUTT AND JEFF. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS 12-day. We occupied Ruhr without a drop of blood, we have all the population full liberty, we are crushing the country under us, but we want to get paid. We shall get paid. We are getting ahead in organizing the region. Germans may sneer, but we can't hang idle in Ruhr than they can. Referring to Chancellor Cuno's reference to Germany being too weak to resist physical resistance, the British Commander said, "Germany never fight unless she is stronger than her opponent. The moment she feels her opponents are stronger she surrenders. She pleaded and begged for assistance under circumstances which the Allies would have considered they had just begun to fight. We did not quit after we fought to a finish and lost. Germany is branded as a traitor before the entire world. In vain, arrogant and pitiless in victory, she is servile self-pitying in defeat. Cuno talks about sabotage by the French in the Ruhr. We continue repairing acts of sabotage by Germany in their own country. This sabotage coming from men who syspublic or Free State should be left to the electorate. De Valera is said to have announced his willingness to accept such terms on conditions that the Irish elections be held on the clear issue whether Ireland should be a Free State or Republic. President Cosgrave's declaration was made unhesitatingly in reply to an interviewer's question. He added: "The new franchise list will not be ready before June or July, but I would then be more willing to leave the decision of Ireland's Government to the people; the election to be fought on the system of proportionate representation. There is not a seat in Ireland that De Valera could win under these conditions; not even Clare, where he won his last seat, nor West Cork, where the Irish Regulars are supposed to be strong. De Valera's followers are actually very few—they consist mainly of irresponsible young men and women."

55 STILL ENTOMBED. DAWSON, New Mexico, Feb. 11. The shattered depths of Dawson Mine No. 1 had given up sixty-five bodies to-night within the subterranean tomb fifty-five miners still remain. It is more than reasonably certain that all have perished, officials say.

ANOTHER SCHOONER GONE. HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 11. The auxiliary schooner Scotia Maid, 529 tons, from Marcellles, was abandoned in a mass of flames today in latitude 40 north, longitude 14 east, according to a despatch from Gibraltar. Capt. Collier of Lunenburg and the crew, were taken off by the steamer Fenchurch. The Scotia Maid was built at Church Point, Digby County, in 1913, for the Scotia Maid Company, Ltd., Halifax, but was sold to the Vegetable Oil Company. She was bound from Society Islands to Marcellles.

Blaze at Tub Factory.

DAMAGE NOT GREAT. At 3 p.m. yesterday the Central and East End Fire Companies were called to the Tub Factory, situated on Water Street, East, where a slight blaze was in progress. The fire it was supposed was caused by some disarrangement of the electric wires which are used to run the machinery. It was difficult to get at the seat of the trouble and the firemen were working for nearly an hour before the blaze was finally extinguished. The damage by smoke and water is not great, and the stock and building are covered by insurance.

St. Lawrence And The F.P.U.

SOME FACTS TOLD BY "STRAIGHT FACTS."

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—We noticed some time ago two situations in the Advocate from F. Bugden, Epworth, and John Reeves, St. Lawrence. We are really indebted to Mr. Bugden for discovering us; we are so small and obscure that really we must thank him for giving us a "spot in the sun." He refers to the village of St. Lawrence, which he has honored with his presence to secure a double increase in the membership of the F.P.U. Now that the public may know what these vapourings amount to as far as the F.P.U. membership is concerned, let us inform them that we have some two hundred and thirty-five voters, and of this number not over fifty are Union men. Further we will add that those fifty members, as in the general rule wherever the Union is established, do not represent the intelligence of the community. Mr. Bugden refers to some of our people being destitute, which is, unfortunately, only too true, but, Mr. Editor, we are in this respect, no worse off than the neighbouring settlements. Up to date this winter no pauper doles have been handed out, but we fear that some of our poor will not be able to continue all winter without a help from Government sources. Now let me remind Mr. Bugden that we do not feel so little as he would have outsiders believe we are. We have one of the finest harbors there is from Cape Race to Cape Ray, easy of access, open all the year round, a splendid site for a large city, lots of room for expansion, but, we, in common with other settlements, need industries and commerce in order to be prosperous. There is no need of stating that prosperity cannot exist under present conditions, but let me tell Mr. Bugden that when the automatic Coaker came to power in 1919 St. Lawrence was a happy, prosperous, contented little town. We all, both big and little, could pay our bills and give every man his own, but Mr. Coaker, the bete noir of Burin District changed all this. The internal regulations jumped on us without warning for the special benefit of the Big Six. The inner circle, the ground floor, etc. along with the five thousand dollar export license, all have had the same effect here as in every other town and village, dependent on the fishing on this coast. We hope Mr. Bugden will not be offended at our calling St. Lawrence a "little town," but we feel that our pretensions are justified in that we have a population of over a thousand inhabitants. We have a tri-weekly coastal service, two fine churches, an excellent school system, Recreation Halls, General Stores, Post and Telegraph Offices, etc. also in spite of very short supplies for the fishery, which was prosecuted this year only half heartedly, by the fishermen, and with a large number of our young men away from home the past season, we managed to secure nearly 13,000 quintals of cod-fish (dried), not so bad a catch for a little village, eh?

We heard so much about all the F.P.U. was doing and going to do in Epworth that really it was a shock to learn that all the noise centered around five thousand dollars cash and the sale of five hundred barrels flour, and this painful information from the Chairman, Bugden himself. It is also rather disheartening to learn that this wonderful business branch flourished as a rose in the heat and sunshine of Epworth, but, alas! it withered with the first nip of frost. Come, Mr. Bugden, help your needy F.P.U. members, when help is help indeed; outfit them for the fishery; play the game, don't wait for Messrs. Hollett, Epworth Trading Co. and others to take the risk as last year and when the fish is ready to ship, but in to sneak the profits. Now Mr. Reeves, just a word or two for you. It was very unfortunate indeed for your Chairman, Mr. Bugden to refer to the petition sent from here to the Government for relief last year. Such an one was forwarded

A special Relief Committee with strict instructions from Mr. Foote to the chairman that only those in actual distress and unable to obtain employment, and without other means were to be helped out of this fund. Will you believe it, Mr. Editor, every F.P.U. member with one or two exceptions, worked and claimed a share of that relief fund. Intended only for the destitute, O. Temporal O. Mores! What a Union! How uplifting. Mr. Reeves also invites Mr. Coaker to come along, he is sure. One F.P.U. there would not be cash enough paid out to buy a box of matches. Comparisons are generally odious, but it reaches the height of absurdity when this Mushroom Branch is lauded and given the credit which belongs to the established firms at Burin, who bore the heat and burden of the day, and without whom the fishermen would be poor indeed. Mr. Reeves sold all his fishery products, but not to the F.P.U. A good man praises the bridge that carries him safely over. In conclusion we would recommend the Messrs. Bugden and Reeves to these two lines of Scotia's immortal bard: "Oh, would some power the gills' give us, To see ourselves as others see us," and remain.

Ice Sports To-Night.

ENTRIES FOR RACES.
The annual ice sports at the Prince's Rink takes place to-night under the distinguished patronage of his Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardye. For some time past many intending competitors have been practicing and there is much speculation as to who will carry off the three-mile contest. Johnson the Canadian speed artist, seems to be the favorite, but with such local men as Squires, Chaney and Coxworthy entered for this event, the race is bound to be closely contested. Up to Saturday night when the entries closed the following had entered: 220 Yards (Boys under 12 years)—C. James, C. Morris, G. Bailey. Quarter Mile (Girls)—Misses D. Sellars, R. Hart, N. Wright, L. Thomas. Three Mile—W. Darcy, C. Rice, J. Chaney, W. Johnson, G. Squires, F. Coxworthy, J. Jacobs, F. Coxworthy. Mercantile Relay—Baird's, Reid's, Royal Stores, Ltd., G.P.O. One Mile Backwards—J. M. ## In Memoriam.

TRIBUTE TO LATE J. A. CLIFT.
In the course of his sermon at St. Thomas's Church yesterday morning, the Rector, Rev. E. C. Earp, made the following reference to the passing of Mr. J. A. Clift: "This morning we pay our tribute to the honoured memory of James Augustus Clift, who passed to his rest on Thursday last. In the press, in the Law court, and in the Lodge rooms, others have honoured him as a great citizen, a worthy councillor, and a noble and distinguished brother. His contribution to the national life was indeed memorable. He served his generation by a generous giving of his talents in times of peace, and in the great day of account—when the war wind swept the world—he consecrated himself upon the altar of our common need. His first words in August 1914, were these: 'Every man who can shoulder a musket ought to go.' With a clear mind and with a patriot's intuition, he foresaw the gigantic issues of the struggle. Like thousands of fathers in the Empire, he spared not his own sons but gave them freely for God and King and Country. Only those parents who were united with him in that mysterious and sacramental bond of sacrifice, can fully understand the feelings of those who gave their sons to die. In this sense we know that the war was the cause of the illness which ended his days on earth. For many years Mr. Clift was a faithful and devoted member of this congregation. He served on the Select Vestry, was a lay delegate to the Synod, and had a place in many of its committees. His passing forces another link in the long chain that binds the Church Militant with the Church Triumphant. Yesterday at his burial our faith in immortality was revived and strengthened. Such a life as his did not reach its full fruition here below—only eternity can fulfil the service he gave to God and his fellows. We unite as a congregation in earnest and prayerful sympathy to Mrs. Clift and to his daughter, May God's comfort sustain them, may His Grace and Peace possess their souls in a patient and living hope of re-union in the greater life beyond. To which fuller and truer life may God in His Mercy bring us all. Amen."

Yesterday afternoon the Belvedere Ladies' Association held a meeting in the Nickel Theatre which was largely attended. Mrs. Arthur Hascock presided and the various officers were present. The reports were read and adopted and showed the Association in a sound condition financially and as regard membership. In addition to the ordinary routine business a large number of tickets in the Sealing Sweep were distributed. Prior to the close of the meeting a hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Kiely for the use of the theatre.

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT FOR WEEK ENDING FEB. 9TH.

Called to Hamilton Street to humanely put to death a dog for Mr. F. Cornick; also a small dog at the East End Fire Hall. It had been wandering around for some time and I could not find an owner for it. The firemen have been looking after it for some past month. I received two anonymous letters, one about a dog on Long Pond Road; the other about a white bulldog which follows the street cars on Water Street and causes some trouble at the rink. No notice can be taken unless the correspondents sign their names, and information received is confidential. I examined several cab and truck horses in the city and drivers on the whole seem to be getting more careful about keeping their horses covered. I don't see anything more cruel than clipping some of those horses in winter time. Several prominent ladies and gentlemen in the city have refused to hire a cab horse which is clipped. I hope this will be a warning and in another year we won't see any more of this clipping done. The Act says that whether the driver or owner causes any unnecessary suffering shall be heavily fined or imprisoned. I spoke to several drivers for having lame horses on the street and they took them in for treatment. Saw a car-load of horses shipped by Mr. Thos. Curran, who had every care taken of the animals, lots of feed put in the car and they went out in cars of Veterinary Surgeon Smith. Another lot of pictures of "The Horses' Express" are now ready and will be delivered on Saturday and Monday. Anyone wishing to have one kindly phone 558, and they will have immediate delivery.

JONAS BARTER,
Chief Agent.

You bet I am going to try for one of those big prizes at St. Vincent de Paul Hall Monday night.—Feb. 10, 21

INCREASED PROTECTION.

This FACT is an important one to bear in mind when considering Casualty Insurance.

The Death Benefit Amount is increased TEN PER CENT each year up to 50 per cent, so that a Policy issued to you NOW for $1000 would pay $1500 if claim were made in 1927, or would pay $1500 in 1928 if the first full year's premium were paid in advance.

It might be worth your while to learn all about this policy.

Annual Meeting at College Hall -- His Excellency The Governor Presides.

(I.O.M.)

and with the Choir of Gower Street Church, it need not be wondered at that the meeting began well, and having begun well it continued so until the end.

The meeting was opened by the President, Rev. Canon Bolt, who announced that grand old hymn "From all that dwell below the skies," which was followed by Scripture reading by the Rev. R. J. Power, and prayer by the Rev. E. C. Earp.

The President in a few words called upon his Excellency the Governor, Sir William Allartree, to preside. His Excellency has already made a name for himself as a speaker at various gatherings within our city since his arrival, and he has early gained an entrance into the hearts of our people, and last night his address at the close of the meeting deepened those feelings, and revealed to a greater extent, his sense of human nature, and his high sense of dignity in connection with the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society. We thank his Excellency for his words, and for his presence. We feel that the community, and country in general, as they read the reports of these meetings will be the better for his help.

Before his Excellency's address, the Secretary's annual report was read by Mr. Arthur Templeton, who also presented the financial statement. Both the report, and the statement showed advancement, and told of the good work, which is being carried on, and of the deepened interest, as manifested by the increased funds.

This is very encouraging, and is no doubt due to the recent effort put forth by the committee to increase the funds of the Society, and considering that we are passing through times of financial stress, there is much room for congratulation, and encouragement. With the reports passed, the meeting was in order for the addresses of the evening, and with the hearty singing, which had gone before, there was a receptive mood upon the audience, and a sympathetic chord between the speakers and the people. The first address was delivered by the Rev. Hammond Johnson, and the second by the Rev. Canon Bolt. The dominant note of Mr. Johnson's address was that of triumph, and he paid a high tribute to the work of the Bible Society, and a still higher tribute to the Bible itself. As a book, the Bible was first in literature, and was the secret of all true teaching. Around it gathered the best minds of Christendom, and from it they imbibed the highest ideals of life. All divisions of the Christian Church exercised a common belief in the Scriptures, and all are willing to support the good work of circulation. The teaching of the Bible tend to unite the children of men. In the late war there was a great rally to the colours, and men of different classes and traditions were as one in the cause of right—the cause of Empire. The principle of this spirit of unity is contained in the Bible, it was this same principle of high moral teaching, and spiritual vision, that Victoria the Good referred to when in reply to the enquiry of a foreign ambassador as to the secret of England's greatness, she presented him with a copy of the Scriptures and said, "Here is the secret of England's greatness." Mr. Johnson left a splendid impression upon the meeting, and in moving the adoption of the report he expressed great pleasure.

The Rev. Canon Bolt ably seconded the resolution, and followed out in considerable detail, the spirit of Mr. Johnson's address. There was a broadness in the Canon's utterances that was refreshing. Not that the Rev. speaker indulged in any extremes of free thought. He believed in the Bible as the best book of all others. Not that other books did not

"I Can Now Do My Work. Without Feeling Tired"

Mrs. A. Moffatt, Roston Falls, Que., writes:

"I suffered from a run-down system and nervous debility. I could not sleep or rest at night, and felt so weak I could not walk any distance. I took several tonics, but they only helped me while I was taking them. Mother advised me to take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I felt great benefit from taking several boxes. Today I feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work without that dreadful tired feeling."

contain some truth—far from it. The sacred books of antiquity, even though they were not inspired, contained many high ideals of moral obligation, which tended to good citizenship and justice. But those books fall in the higher essentials of life, especially in their teaching of immortality. The Koran of Mohamed contains many scripture quotations, but it is not a safe rule of life, inasmuch as it teaches the use of the sword. The Shastra of Castus abounds with lofty ideals, but is a blank at the portals of death. The Zend-Avesta of the Parsees, and even the Jewish Talmud fall short in the best teachings. The result of those books is not at all equal to that of the Bible. The Bible included all their best teachings, and it outdone them in its revelation of God and His Son. As a missionary agency the Bible was of great value, and was really making it possible for all peoples to have the Gospel preached and taught to them in their own tongue. The Rev. Canon made a strong plea for the support of the Society, and he felt certain that if the proper steps be taken, greater results will follow, and greater good be accomplished.

The officers for the New Year were then unanimously elected as follows:—

President—His Excellency the Governor.
Hon. President—The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland.
President—Rev. Canon Bolt, M.A., D.C.L.
Vice-Presidents—Wm. Frew, Esq., Rev. Dr. Curtis, and John Leamon, Esq.
Treasurer—Edwin Murray, Esq.
Corresponding Secretary—Rev. B. T. Holden, M.A.
Recording Secretary—W. R. Stirling, Esq.
Distributing Secretary—John Leamon, Esq.

COMMITTEE.

C. of E. Cathedral—Lady Horwood, Mrs. H. Hayward, Messrs. George Bursell and E. Hayward.
Presbyterian Church—Mrs. A. G. Smith and Mrs. Dr. Patterson; Messrs. R. A. Templeton and Dugald Munn.
Gower Street Church—Messrs. W. Peters, A. Soper, Dr. J. Alex. Robinson and Harold Macpherson.
Congregational Church—Messrs. John Cowan, George Langmead, J. H. Thomas, and S. E. Garland.
George Street Church—Messrs. Charles P. Ayre, R. F. Horwood, C. R. Steer, and Walter E. White.
St. Thomas's Church—Sir M. G. Winter, H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., H. Y. Mott, and P. F. Harris.
Wesley Church—J. C. Fuddister, Jesse Whiteway, Arthur W. Martin, and J. F. Chislett.
St. Mary's Church—Mrs. A. B. S. Stirling, Miss Mabel Worrall, Gordon P. Pike, and Albert Whitten.
St. Michael's Church—Messrs. J. M. Carberry, George Tucker, Eliezer Dave, and John R. Shears.
Cochran Street—Messrs. John Maunder, Wm. Drower, Arch Lindsay, and William Mews.

Following the election of the officers a hearty vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., and seconded by Mr. John Leamon, was presented to his Excellency the Governor for presiding.

Replying, his Excellency said in part:—"I have no doubt that each one of us here to-night remembers the time when he or she was young and loved to be told a story, and the more wonderful the tale the greater the excitement. One longed to hear of people who lived in far away countries, and when mariners and travellers returned from long voyages and foreign ports it was an intense pleasure to meet them and get them to relate their experiences in countries inhabited by people who not only spoke in unknown tongues, but whose manner of life was quite different from ours. There was a romance about it all that stirred one's innermost feelings. But the age of romance still lives and one of the greatest romances of to-day is to be found in the work of the Bible Society. With that simplicity of service which I explained when last I addressed you, the Society combine a host of operations that I feel confident were never contemplated by the original founders. Its sole and single aim is to provide every man know from personal experience what a comfort and consolation the Bible has been to them; how, at times, when well nigh overcome by distress and sorrow, they have found the word of God to be their greatest strength and consolation. If so, does not our common humanity and our common Christianity alike demand that populations in other lands not so highly privileged as our own should have the opportunity afforded them of purchasing, reading and studying this unique book that has brought such great peace and contentment to many millions of the human race and has done so much to beat the broken-hearted, to uplift the down-trodden, and has clearly indicated the path to immortality."

During his address his Excellency told one or two excellent stories of the benefits that had resulted from the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society, which had come within his own experience.

The meeting, which was so successful, was closed by the Benediction, given by the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland. It was a good meeting, and congratulations are in order for all who had charge of it, and warmest thanks are due to Miss Tait, who had charge of the music, and with her the choir from Gower St. Church, led in the volume of songs. Miss Tait has officiated on many occasions in the exercise of her musical talent, and last night her efforts were all that could be desired.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE PEOPLE YOU LAUGH AT.

Do there stand as sign posts along the roads of your life the figures of people whom you laughed at and then long afterward found out to be right?

If you say "No" to that question I suspect one of three things about you. Either you are very young.

Or else you have the habit of forgetting things you do not want to remember,—such as the conclusions you are not coming to you scorned when they were pointed out to you by others.

Right From the Cradle.

Or thirdly, you never are wrong but have always from your infancy chosen the right course and understood the fact of life without having to be taught them by experience!

If none of these things are true, surely there must come times when you hear yourself announcing a fact, and then suddenly remember that someone tried to convince you long ago that that was so and that you laughed at him from the height of your superior youth.

I heard myself saying the other day:

"The best way to get rid of a cold is to go to bed and stay there. Nothing will ever stop it so quickly or shorten its course if it gets started. Even if it's fearfully inconvenient it's worthwhile in the end."

Going to Bed For a Cold.

And then there loomed up one of those sign posts. I remembered the young doctor who told me that some years ago, and how I laughed at the idea of going to bed for a cold, as if one could spare the time out of a busy life!

I'm busier now than I was then but I find I can better spare the time than spare two or three days later.

I once knew a young girl who, when her mother imparted to her some of the facts about life was not only displeased but disbelieving. "I don't believe those things at all," she said. "It's all an old woman's notion."

Of course she had come to laugh at that now. But I wonder if that shakes her faith in herself when she is sure that older people are wrong about other things.

How Long Should We Learn!

Probably not. It does with a very few of us. We go so far in self-knowledge as to see that we were wrong when we were so positive before. But we don't question as to whether we are wrong in what we know now. That's different. We are older, we have learned life's lessons. We forget that experience is a teacher who never closes the term or gives a vacation until the very end of the course.

And even then who knows but what we do not graduate from school altogether but only pass into some higher grade where we shall still be learning, and still looking back at the time when we knew so very little and were so very positive in our ignorance.

THE TWO AUNTS

Aunt Bridget takes in washing, her work is hard and long, but she is joking, joshing, and springing chunks of song; Aunt Bridget is a dinger, a happy, cheerful singer; she piles her creaking wringer and she is going, and she is going, "How is it, Aunt, you're full of joy and hope? So many folks are whining, so many are repining; your face is always shining—now hand me out the dope." She says, "I can't explain it, why I am always gay, and yet, I dare maintain it, the fantods keep away; if I had time for brooding I might find hope deluding, and grief would come intruding before the close of day. Throughout the day I'm busy in soapsuds and in foam, and then, in my tin Lizzie, I take the bundles home; I'm always on my mettle, I'm in the finest fettle, and sorrow doesn't settle upon my furrowed dome." Aunt Julia has a bundle that well might load a dray, and to the bank she'll trundle a package every day; but she is tired of gadding, of servants round her padding, and she is tired of adding the coin she's put away. She's tired of week-end parties and pink teas on the lawn, of entertaining smarties who bore her till they're gone; she's tired of fashion's rulling, of all the idle fooling, the gossip and the drooling; her face is sad and drawn.

Belgian War Memorial at Havre.

HAVRE—A lovely spot has been selected at the extremity of the Boulevards, on the shore road, for the monument to be erected to the Belgians who fell in the Great War. The King and Queen of the Belgians, as well as the President of the French Republic, will be present at the inauguration which is to take place in July. It will be remembered that when their country was almost entirely in the hands of the German invaders, the Belgian Government set up its headquarters at Havre.

Things to Remember.

If fat takes fire, throw on salt, flour, or baking powder or sand. Don't try water.

Do not use soap to wash a raincoat, but a solution of one pound of alum to three gallons of water.

When warming plates in the oven, put a newspaper underneath them to break the heat and prevent cracking.

Paper is of great use for wrapping round exposed pipes likely to be affected by the frost, and straw serves the same purpose.

Hang creased coats, etc. in the bathroom and turn on the hot water tap. In a few minutes the steam will remove the creases.

New casseroles should be scalded well before using; they should not be subjected to fierce heat; long, slow heating is best for food cooked in them.

If your windows rattle, cut a cork slanting across its length, so that each piece has a thick and a thin end, and insert the two wedges where required.

To prevent holes in lisle thread stockings, before washing them rub the heels with silk mending, then rub the right side well with castile soap, and dust the foot with boracic powder.

If bathroom taps freeze and cannot be turned, pour boiling water over them and it will thaw them. Wrap an old woollen shawl or garment round them to prevent freezing.

Dry bits of stale bread in the oven, rolls into crumbs, and keep in a covered glass jar for frying fish. Odd bits of cheese treated the same way are useful for sprinkling over "made dishes" or toast.
