Wm. Cotter Lost his Life While Walking on Track

Walking on Track

Another fatal accident, the result of walking on the track, has been added to the many previously recorded. It occurred on the track just west of Watford on Tuesday night. William Cotter, an Englishman about thirty years of age, known about town as "Scotty," was the victim.

Cotter made his home at Arch. Wiley's, 6th line, and at the time of his death was in the employ of Wm. Marwick, contractor. He was in town on Tuesday night and started for his boarding house about eleven o'clock, going west on the railway track. It is said that he had been drinking some during the evening, but was not intoxicated when he left for home. His body was found early Wednesday morning by the crew of a freight train. The remains were brought to Harper's undertaking rooms. The body was badly mutilated, the lower part of one foot ent off, arm broken, skull crushed, and other injuries that would cause instant death.

Deceased has been around these parts for two years or more, and has worked for several farmers in the district, all of whom speak well of him as an industrious, capable workman. It is said that he has a brother in England and one in Africa, but their addresses are not known. Although making good wages he was without funds at the time of his death, but the parties who have employed him will see that his remains are decently interred.

Dr. R. G. C. Kellly, coroner, ordered an inquest and the following jury was empanelled:—E. McGillicuddy, foreman; Jos. Keller, Angus Mitchell, And. McDonnell, John Wiley, J. S. Williams, H. Schlemmer, Jas. Annett, J. D. Brown. After viewing the remains the enquiry was adjourned until Friday evening at 7 o'clock, in the Fire Hall.

The annual report of the head constable which has just been published shows that Canterbury, England, is about the most sober in Great Britain despite the fact that there are 83 public houses to every 10,000 of the population. A Washington Farmer's Good Roads Endorsement

FRANK TERRACE, ADDRESSING THE M Good Roads Convention at Tacoma, Washington, gave the following enthusiastic testimony in favor of good roads:

"I am a cabbage grower. I haul my produce to the sauerkraut factory at South Seattle. Before the road over which I travel was built, I had to get up at 4 o'clock in the morning to start on my journey. The limit of the load I could haul with a team of 1800 pound horses was 2500 pounds, and after visiting the factory I would arrive back at my home late in the evening. But look at the difference now that a permanent hard surface has been laid down. I start on my trip about 8 o'clock and need only a team weighing 1400 pounds to haul a load of 5000 pounds of cabbage, which is double my previous capacity. And, best of all, I find on my return to the house early in the afternoon, that I have finished the day's work without the horses having turned a hair.'

Concrete Roads Mean Road Economy

They prevent your road taxes being spent in patching up roads that never will be good roads.

They are the cheapest kind of roads at the end of ten, fifteen or twenty years because they practically eliminate the cost of upkeep. They enable you to haul bigger loads with less effort and less wear and tear on horses and vehicles. They increase land values, better conditions generally, and decrease the cost of living.

Write for, free, Good Roads literature, and learn how good roads will benefit you.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, the heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is which contains no dangerous narcotics or alcohol.

It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fevers; for the rundown, anaemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing.

Black and White Fabrics Make Suitable and Stylish Summer Gowns. After all its riot of color Paris is showing a marked tendency to return to black and white, always a favorite color combination with Parisiennes. Gowns seen at the races and various outdoor fetes show a distinct preference for this combination. A fine linen is the most satisfactory material for the lingerie frock that is to endure tubbing, and it will pay to obtain an excellent quality. The ba-tistes and mulls are softer and launder well if carefully handled, but the linen will outwear them every time.

Various other sheer cottons have come into popularity. Swiss and organdie are, of course, old favorites, but their crispness, once their chief merit, has made them yield place somewhat to the softer mulls and batistes and linens, though they are still liked. The cotton nets, voiles and crapes are more recent arrivals and have achieved decided popularity.

These launder well, are easily handled and are very soft, graceful and durable despite their sheerness, and they lend themselves admirably to simple forms of trimming, although they may be made very elaborate with hand embroidery.

meshes, in wide widths and are not extremely expensive. Frequently one sees a frock made entirely of the net and quite devoid of trimming save for scalloped or picot edges or edges hem-

The fashions of the moment are of a character that make it difficult to select for elderly women costumes that will be both fashionable and dignified, For the woman whose figure is more than a little plump the gown illustrated here is both becoming and smart. This tub frock is carried out in white cotton crape trimmed with venise lace. The long front line, the gore over the hips and the long points in the blouse give a cleverly contrived effect of slenderness. The gown fas-tens invisibly down the front by means of closely set snappers. A touch of black is given to the blouse by means of the black velvet ribbon girdle and the band of black velvet ribbon across the vestee. Crochet ornaments and crochet buttons decorate the garment.

TOWELING APRONS.

They Are Useful In Many Household Emergencies.

The newest idea for an apron is one made of toweling. The kind that can be purchased by the yard, with stripes or wide stripes at each side, is used. The blue barred toweling also can be turned into attractive aprons.

These toweling aprons are usually made with a bib and can be used for sewing, housework or chafing dish aprons. Of course they have one or two large pockets, a necessary adjunct to all serviceable aprons.

The edge is sometimes fringed, which makes a very good finish, or it is simply hemmed, using the French method, which makes the stitches invisible.

The use of Turkish toweling made into aprons has been discovered by young mothers, as it is just the thing to wear when giving baby his bath.

Eliminating Insect Pests.

To get rid of roaches try the follow ing: To one part of sulphur add an equal amount of ground red pepper and five parts of borax. Mix well and dust into their runways, resting places and breeding places with a bellows. Some housewives use with good results a mixture of borax and red pep-per. The addition of sulphur to this is to be recommended. It fumigates the haunts of the marauders, besides being disagreeable to them when they

tions All Around. In his "Reminiscences" General Basil

W. Duke of the Confederate army tells of an incident he witnessed just after the close of the war: "One morning about 9 o'clock I was sitting on the platform of a station waiting for my train when my attention was attracted to a squad of Federal soldiers who had evidently been on guard during the night, but were now getting their breakfast. They were well supplied with rations and seemed in high spirits.

"Just then I caught sight of a lank, hungry looking fellow who was unmis-takably an ex-Confederate. He wore a ragged, faded gray jacket, with the buttons cut off, a pair of most dilapidated blue trousers and an old canvas haversack, as empty as extra-sidereal space, hung around his neck. If he had eaten a square meal within six months appearances were deceitful. He was partially hidden behind a cotton bale, whence he watched the Yan-kee spread with eyes that threatened to protrude across the intervening dis-

"About the time I saw him the 'Yanks' also caught sight of him. They held a short consultation; then one of them sprang up, started toward him and shouted out: "'Hello, reb! Come this way; we want you!

"For some reason—perhaps because I was sick and peevish—I conceived the idea that they wanted to arrest him, and my blood boiled with indignation at so totally an unprovoked act of oppression

"The 'Johnnie' evidently entertained the same opinion, for he began a rather rapid retreat. A fresh summons, however, re-enforced by a volley of threats, induced him to turn and approach the party, with an attempted dignity of demeanor that was ludicrous compared with his hasty retrograde movement. "When he reached the spot where the 'grub' was the Yanks seized him, made him sit down and began to exert themselves to appease his manifest hunger. I have known some extraordinary feeders, but I honestly believe I have never seen any other two men eat as much as that fellow did. He kept at it steadily for not less than an hour, while the Yanks sided and encouraged him to the utmost. He drank six tin cupfuls of coffee. He swelled visibly, and I wondered how his frail garments stood the tension.

"When at length he finished his captors crammed his weatherbeaten old haversack full of hard tack and bacon and sent him on his way rejoicing. "It is scarcely necessary to say that my own feelings in regard to the incident had very materially changed during its progress."

The Gallery's Verdict. In the old days the proprietor of a music hall always used to walk up and down the center gangway during the performances and restrain the exuberance of his patrons. One night a lady singer began a doleful ballad in a still more doleful voice, and at once received "the bird" from the gallery. "That'll do, boys," said the proprietor.
"Order, please! Give the artiste a chance." But when the performance was finished he took off his hat, bowed to the gallery and remarked, "I beg pardon, you were quite right."-London Express.

In certain of its essential respects, madhouse; in others, a pageant; in still others, a commonplace succession of humdrum incidents. At times you are quite sure it is all a gray monotony; again it begins to arise and spread it-self like an Arabian night. And the unexpected breaks loose—a series of strange encounters, flashes of vivid color, bright eager personalities jostling and strutting in excess of vitality. -Harper's Weekly.

fifty-three days when he wrote the exams. The members and friends of the Warrwick Women's Institute, 43 in number, assembled in the Forester's hall to hear the debate given by some of the young ladies of the branch at the July meeting. The audience was well repaid, for the debate on the subject, "The Advantages of Country life over City life," was well given, the papers showing great care in their preparation, and the girls gave their ideas with force and spurit. The critics had much trouble in giving their decision, for both sides were so well sustained that it was a hard matter to decide but the affirmative won. The critics were Miss Iles, Miss McKenzie and Miss Wordsworth. Miss Laws gave her views on country versus city life. Millie Barnes and Anna Auld sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." A pleasing feature of the singing and one much appreciated was that it was unaccompanied. The next meeting will be held on August 13th, at the home of Mrs. Chas. Barnes, when the program will be given by the tiny tots of the Institute. The Secretary would like the names of the pieces to be given by the children to be handed to her before the day of meeting, so that the program can be arranged. A tea will also be given for the older folks, Everybody welcome.—SEC.

 The Pink Sunbonnet

How an Artist Found His Model

By CLARISSA MACKIE *****

Neal Whitcomb whistled cheerfully as he climbed the hill to the low white farmhouse. On every side the ground sloped away from the hospitable look ing domicile. In front was a tree covered lawn, on the north was a vegetable garden, on the south a flower garden and on the east sunny fields of strawberries. Neal went up the front walk and rang the doorbell. A middle aged black woman responded to his summons.

"I am looking for Mr. Huxford," said Neal. "Mistah Huxford am gone to town with a load of berries," replied the servant, "and Missis Huxford am gone to de sewin' s'ciety." Neal smiled pleasantly. "Then I'm afraid I must call again. Perhaps you can tell me if there is a Miss Huxford The woman shook her head. "No sah; ain't never heard of no Miss Huxford. Dere's young Master Huxford, but he's away at school jes' now."

"I am a painter—an artist," explain-ed Neal as he turned away. "I am staying at the hotel. The proprietor told me I.might find a young lady to pose for me up here at Huxfords'. I told him I wanted some one dressed as a country girl in a pink sunbonnet-to put in a picture, you know." Then, suddenly realizing that he was doing much useless explaining, he added hastily, turning away, "Of course there may be another Huxford."

"MISS BEMIS, I WONDER IF YOU REMEM-BER ME?"

"Dere ain't no mo' Huxfords around heah," advised the woman, and she added, with a twinkle in her eyes: "P'raps mebbe Mr. Dowd down to the hotel meant yo' could find a young lady out in our strawb'ry beds here. Dere's any sight of 'em pickin' berries this minit."

"May I go around and look for myself?" inquired Neal. And without waiting for permission he started around the house

"Mebbe yo' might find a pink sunbonnet yander in de field," called the servant after him.

Neal Whitcomb went around to the back of the farmhouse, through the green tunnel of a long grape arbor and down a winding path that led to a barred gate. Over the gate he went into a small field, and, crossing this field, where several cows were pas-tured, he came to another gate, against which he leaned in stunned surprise. Here were several acres given over to long rows of strawberries, and thickly scattered over the field was a sea of pink sunbonnets! There was the sound of laughing voices, merry questions and answers, pink sunbonnets bobbing up and down as sun browned hands filled the square baskets, which were quickly removed by several older women, who kept tally of the pickings of each girl.

Out of this sea of plnk sunbonnets he out or this sea or pink sunbonnets he was to choose his model! The landlord of the village hotel was evidently a joker. No wonder the black servant at the house yonder had grinned when he mentioned pink sunbonnets!

Neal turned away and tramped with what display he could master head.

what dignity he could muster back through the grape arbor and around the path to the front entrance. He had started down the path when the servant ran out and spoke to him.

"Scuse me, sah." she said timidly. "I loke off on yo'?"

"Not at all," said Neal stiffly.
"If yo'll scuse my presumptiousness, mistah. I'd like to say somethin'," went on Delia. "Yo' was sayin' yo'd like to paint a young lady inter yo'r pictur'?" "Yes."

"I spects dere's money in it fer de young lady, sah?"
"Of course I always pay my models," said Neal.

The woman came closer and spoke confidentially.
"Den, sah, Pd like to recommend Miss Sally Bemis, the pretties' young lady in de county, lak a rose, sah-sopinky and sweet! Her folks has come down in de worl', and dey's livin' in dat little cottage yander on a weeny corner of de big plantashun dat be-longed to Miss Sally's grandpap, old General Bemis. Dere's jes' Miss Sally and her ma, and her ma's deliket, and Miss Sally works all kinder ways to earn money. Now she demeans herself by pickin' strawb'rys fer Mr. Huxford. It ain't no ways fer a Bemis to earn money erlong wid de village gals hereabouts."

"Thank you, auntie, for the information," said Neal, who was much interested in the story of the plucky young girl. "Shall I call upon Mrs. Bemis?" "Well, sah, suppose yo' tak' a look at Miss Sally fust. If yo' spoke fust it might lift up dere hopes, and mebbe she might not suit. If she don't yo' must be mighty perticular!" she ended rather belligerently. "Where shall I find her, auntie?" asked Neal patiently. "I certainly can't go into the field and face that battery of sunbonnets." "Why, jes' set here on de end of de veranda behin' de honeysuckle vines. Dey'll all come trailin' past pretty, soon, and yo' jes' fix yo' eye on de pretties' and most uppsy one of de whole lot, and dat's Miss Sally. If yo' satisfied yo' can go and see 'em. I gotter go, sah." He went up to the wide piazza and sat down in a great easy chair close to the honeysuckle that screened the piazza from the path around which the strawberry pickers must come.

Two years ago, at the art school, there had been a little student, and he was sure her name was Sally Be-mis or something of that sort. He had given several talks to the students, and he remembered the girl's lovely, earnest face upturned to his. If he had met her oftener he would have fallen in love then and there, but he was very busy at that time, and he was about to sail for Italy, and the little student had drifted out of his mem-the rear of the farmhouse, and pres ently there strolled past, singly or in groups, the strawberry pickers.

Nineteen girls had gone out of the big gate, and he confessed himself disappointed that not one would do. There came a light step along the path and a rich contralto voice trilling soft-ly. Through the honeysuckle vines he saw her coming, sunbonnet slipped back on the dark masses of her curls; her fair face with its magnolia-like complexion tinged with soft pink; her lovely dark eyes, fringed with long, curling lashes; her sweetly curved lips.

It was Miss Sally Bemis. More than that, she was the one girl for his picture. She was the girl of his dreams, and she was the little student of the art school!

Neal overtook her at the gate. She turned lovely, surprised eyes at him, and suddenly a deep rose flush stained her cheek from brow to chin. There was embarrassed recognition in her glance. Neal lifted his hat. "Miss Bemis, I wonder if you re-member me?" he asked eagerly.

"One does not soon forget a celebrity, like Neal Whitcomb, the artist," she said quickly, holding out a stained little hand. "What are you doing way, down here in Dixie?"

"Painting," said Neal, falling into step beside her. "I've been looking for a model to pose in a daisy field. I wanted a girl in a pink sunbonnet, and when I expressed my wish somebody sent me up here to Huxfords'. Fancy my dismay when I went out to the strawberry field and saw twenty pink Sally laughed deliciously. "The pink sunbonnets are Mrs. Huxford's idea. She bought a piece of pink calico, and made sunbonnets for all the girls; said she liked to see us in the field."

the field."
"It's an amazingly pretty sight," agreed Neal as he went down the hill beside her. "You are taking home some of the strawberries?"
"Yes, to my mother. She is an invalid. Her failing health, combined with lack of money, compelled me to abandon my art career," she explained cheerfully.

"That was a hardship," said Neal sympathetically. Sally laughed again.

"It was at the time, but I ave found out that my talents are more in the domestic line than otherwise. I am fortunate in finding it out in time, don't hope yo' all don't think I was gettin' a | you think so?"

"Brava!" cried Neal. "And now tellme, Miss Sally, is this your home that we are approaching?" "Yes, and there is mother on the porch waiting for me. You will come in and have a cup of tea with us, Mr. Whitcomb?' "It will give me much pleasure," he said, so emphatically that they both laughed with some sudden knowledge of good fellowship.

Sally led him to the porch and introduced him to the sweet faced little lady who was her mother, and then she disappeared while Neal talked to Mrs. Bemis.

Mrs. Bemis declared that she and Neal fell in love with each other long before Neal fell in love with Sally, but they all agreed that it didn't matter in the least so long as Neal and Sally were married and lived happily ever If you ever see Neal Whitcomb's famous painting "He Loves Me-He Loves Me Not!" showing a pink sunbonneted girl telling her fortune in a daisy field you will recognize the love ly girl stripping the petals from the daisy as Miss Sally Bemis, and those who know will add that she is the

They Make Striking and Attractive Summer Draperies.

NOVEL COLOR SCHEMES USED

Black and White Designs Carried Out In Geometrical Patterns So Fine They Look as if Etched-Novel and Attractive Gift Boxes.

Cretonne is a fabric we could ill do without in these days of brown bungalows and black furnishings. It gives the note of brightness and airiness to the somber and simple interior.

The importance of these fabrics in our furnishing scheme is due to the popularity of the rattan, reed, willow and wood sets with which we are adorning the summer porch and furnishing the summer home. Custom calls for cushions on the airy chairs and settees, and what material so use ful as gay cretonne, which may be easily cleaned when soiled?

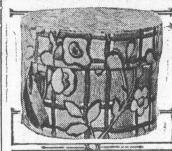

Seldom have these materials attracted so much attention as this season. They come in a wide range of colors and designs, but the fad is for the new art patterns, for which we have the German and Viennese schools to thank. Black and white, dark blue and white and dark green and white are favored by the artists to whom the creation of the color schemes and patterns of these fabrics is an important matter. Each minute part is worked out with infinite care. The designs on some of these stuffs are as fine as though they had been etched there.

Flowers in their natural forms or in conventionalized shapes are the favorite motifs. Quaint uses are also made of birds and animals. One of the most remarkable of these fabrics is adorned with a' forest scene in which deer, foxes, birds, etc., are cleverly intermingled. With such art are these interesting animals arranged that at a distance it looks like a Persian pattern. Striped and square patterns are favored in these fabrics, which are carried out in geometrical lines, even when nature subjects are used for the backgrounds. Not only is furniture for the summer upholstered with such art materials, but the fabrics are used for hangings, couch and table covers and for porch or hammock pillow covers.

They are useful for creating the many fancy articles which are usually fashioned with cretonne, their novelty mak ing them especially popular.

In Paris the large dressmaking houses are giving away boxes covered with new art fabrics and handsomely lined. The boxes hold gifts and may be used for the accessories of the toi-let, such as neckwear, corsage bouquets, necklaces, etc. Some of them are large enough to be used as hat

Cretonne sets are useful for the table. They are easily made, and if the cretonne is of a cool pattern in blue or one of yellow and the centerpiece of yellow or blue flowers to match a most attractive result will be obtained. Mark the plate size with the largest dinner plate and either crochet an edge to these or apply one of Irish crochet that can be bought for very little a yard at any of the shops.

Most attractive breakfast sets could be made of cretonne with a crocheted edge. The different sizes wanted are : Clarence Hone cut out of the cretonne. The edge is slightly rolled and worked with double crochet. Any desired edge of simple construction can be added.

Any particular color scheme can readily be carried out in these mats, and a simple crochet scallop would be Though repeated attempts have been made, by physicians and chemists, it has been found impossible to improve the formula or the pills. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are a household remedy throughout the world for Constipation and all Kidney and Liver troubles. They act promptly and effectively, and sufficient finish

These cretonne sets are not only nice for breakfast use, but they are very appropriate for summer and seaside cottages.

If one would not care to crochet, a buttonholed scallop done in colored mercerized floss or a narrow braid could be used as a finish for the edge. Every girl enjoys having dainty boxes in which to keep her belongings, and the handy needlewoman can easily make the chintz and cretonne covered boxes not only for herself, but as gifts for her less ingenious friend. Boxes of this kind can be made any size or shape, although the oblong ones are more easily constructed.

It is always pleasant to be remembered, but especially so when shut in a sick room, away from the bustle and delights of active life. Women certainly ought to realize this, and yet they miss many opportunities to give happiness to another at slight cost to themselves.

A graceful behavior toward others is a constant source of pleasure; it pleases others because it indicates respect for their personality, and gives tenfold more pleasure to our-

Keep clear of personalities in general conversation. Talk of things, objects, thoughts. The smallest occupy themselves with lities. Personalities must minds personalities. Personalities must sometimes be talked, because we have to learn and find out men's characteristics for legitimate objects but it is to be with confidential persons. Do not needlessly report ill of others. There are family boards a constant process where depreciating, assigning motives, and cutting up of character goes forward. They are no pleasant places. who is healthy does not wish to dine at a dissecting table. There is evil enough in man, God knows; but it is not the mission of every young man or woman to detail and report of it. Keep the atmosphere as pure nd fragrant with gentle ness and charity.

Home life is the source of exquisite blessings. There is nothing more attractive, refining and uplifting than its simple joys and firesides pleasures. The world has pleasures gay and bright but nothing exceeds the joy of home and bliss of our own fireside. It is the place of gladness where burns the firelight bright. We cross the doorsill and enter its threshold to find the garden of Paradise. We cannot be indifferent to the sweet attractions, simple pleasures, pleasant conversation and sweet song of the family circle. None are more bright, more pure and none more like the love of highest heaven. It is more like heaven than any spot on earth.

Newspaper Laws

I.—A postmaster is required to give notice by letter. Returning the newspaper does not answer the law, when a subscriber does not take his newspaper out of the office and state the reason for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

3.—Any person who takes a paper out of the post office, whether directed to his name or not, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.

4.—If a subscriber orders his paper stopped and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

Abolish Sulphur Matches

It is an excellent sign that the safety first movement, launched by the great public service corporations, has been taken up by municipalities. Buffalo and Cleveland have inaugurated safety first days with the object at present, of lessening the number of street fatalities caused by carlessness and recklessness.

Eventually it is proposed that the campaign be widened to include such problems as smoke nuisance and kindred evils that menace the health of the city. Meanwhile why not carry the safety first campaign into the home? There is hardly a day passes but what newspaper reports tell of some tragedy in the home that might have been averted had safety been a first consideration. In many cases children are the sufferers. Loaded weapons and poison left within reach of little ones are responsible for many accidents that have plunged a household in deep sorrow But statistics show the match to be responsible for the largest percentage of accidents by which children are injured or killed. The rapid and widespread introduction of electricity for heating, cooking and lighting is greatly lessening the necessity for the use of matches, and in time it will largely disappear, but at present, it is a necessity, and too much stress cannot be laid upon the importance of considering it a dangerous, if useful, member of the house hold

That they should be kept out of the reach of small children goes without saying. But fire isn't the only thing to guard against. Within a few weeks, right in this province, two infants have expired as a result of eating the tops off sulphur matches. Here is an opportunity to exercise safety first. Because of its cheapness the old fashioned "eight day" match with its poisonous, distressing fumes is still preferred to the non-sulphurous safety lucifer. Otherwise, the use of this pest is indefensible and, as shown by the cases mentioned, may be a dear economy.—Advertiser.

Watford High School

In a former issue of the Guide-Advo-cate that the standing of this year's Form II. was exceedingly good, twenty-two having stood the teacher's test, of these 19 obtained Lower School certificates.
One student that failed in examinations set by the staff passed the Lower School, set by the staff passed the Lower School, making twenty in all.

The record of this year's Upper School class is difficult to surpass. The entire form, 13 in number, wrote, 12 were successful, the remaining 16 candidates of the 28 successful ones of Lambton Co., it is to be presumed were from Sarnia Collegiate, Forest or Petrolea High Schools. Six candidates obtained honor standing in the county and four of these were W. H. S. students. Watford H. S. has for many years distinguished itself in preparing students for non-professional first class certificates or now termed Entrance to Faculty of Education. Last year 20 candidates from Lambton county succeeded in passing Pt. I. or Pt. II. of the latter examination, and 11 parts were passed by W. H. S. students.

sticcetted in passing rt. 1. of rt. 11. of the latter examination, and 11 parts were passed by W. H. S. students.

The following are the names of our Form IV. students who were successful this year. Algebra, Annie McDonald (hon.), Donna Tanner (hon.)

The student that failed merits the sympathy of all. The sudden death of his father was a severe shock and afterwards an attack of measles prevented attendance at school and also rendered close reading impossible for some time. Had it not been for these misfortunes he would have been almost certain to have obtained his certificate.

Alice P. Currie, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Currie, of Glencoe, died on Sunday, July 26th, at the age of 38 years. Death came quite suddenly from acute indigestion. The deceased had been an invalid since three years of age. Up to that age she was in good health, when, eating cherries and drinking milk during extreme hot weather, she was seized with convulsions. This was followed by a paralytic stroke, which left her an invalid.
