GGESTED BY THE DEATH OF MRS. HARRIETT STAR.

When all around us bright appears, And bosoms swell with gladness, Some sudden stroke calls forth our tears, Some sudden stroke calls forth our tears
And chills our hearts with sadness.
The Death of those we long have loved,
Whose smiles our lives have brighten
Whose steady friendship we have proved
Who have our burdens lightened,
Shed darkness on life's brightest day,
And fills our breasts with sorrow,
Which will not wholly pass away
On any tuture morrow.

ome favorite tree by storm uptorn Or flower blighted early, tegretfully we sometimes mourn Because we loved it dearly; But we have greater reason far
For sadness and for grieving
Whene'er extinguished, falls a Star,
Nights'e darkness darker leaving:
And Harriet, I, heart wrung with pain—
With spirit chilled—deplore thee—
Alas I we cannot meet serving. Alas! we cannot meet again
For death's cold shade is o'er thee.

Martel was very tall, but scarcely looked his height, being unusually devoloped about the chest and shoulders. His grey eye, keener features, and curling chestnut hair and beard conveyed the impression of a daring nature, not too readily subservient to the trammels of society.

'No,' he continued, 'I shall not go to Greystone. Sir William looks upon me with the suspicion naturally felt by a wealthy uncle towards a scamp of a soldier who has nothing but his sword.

'I came out without a keeper because I thought we could talk more freely,' said Hyde, in a hesitating and doubtful tone.

Methodical Arthur consulted the almanac in his pocket-book.

'Last quarter—eleven-thirty,' he said. 'I may go out and shoot a wild duck,' said Martel, explaining. 'Don't be surprised if I am not in when you return.'

It was a rather slow, solemn dinner at Greystone that evening, notwithstanding the beauty which adorned the table.

Sir William Greystone's two neices, Ida Swayne and Florence Greystone, were each gems in their particular style.

Both of the same height and figure, there was a general family likeness between them, but only atfirst sight, Ida having coaliblack hair and blue eyes, and a pale, clear complexion; Florence beautiful golden hair of greater length, gray eyes, a rosier complexion and lively manner. Ida was more calm and sedate—still waters rund dep.'

Arthur Hyde sat between them, lighter at heart than he had been for many a day, for he fancied there was an understanding between Ida and Martel.

'Though his heart was full of Ida his conversation was with Florence—as it often happens, and she asked atter Martel.

'He has just had a chance of freeing his little estate from encumberances,' said Hyde; 'but it requires about ten thousand dollars, and he will not let me lend him the money.'

'Foolish fellow,' said Sir William. 'It is rediculous to despise money. What is it, Mark?'

Titis standard article is compound d with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and as tisfactory as over.

It restores gray or faded hair to its outhful color. It removes all cruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glauds to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been ound so effectual or desirable, A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."

Uterly confounded, Arthur listened to her confession.

Wild with love for Martel and jealously of Florence, whom she knew he worshipped, Ida had herself stolen the bank-notes in the character of Florence, contriving so that the butler should see her returning. A clever actress in amateur heatricals, and not unlike Florence, all she did was to hide her dark hair with false golden hair and keep her eyes half-closed.

A ware of Florry's scrett meetings with Charley, she had seized that moment to enter the boudoir and take Florry's letters assisted by skeleton keys which had been used in acting a charade.

As a proof of what she had stated she placed the bank-notes in Arthur's hands.

When the matter was blown over she intended to have cleared Martel's little property with the money.

She had never anticipated the turn things would take, and that he would be suspected of abetting the theft.

Her idea had been to separate the lovers not to drive them away together, by the appearance of Florry's guilt.

Arthur lifted her from the floor.

A Grammatical Pupil.—A schoolmaster after giving one of his scholars a sound drubbing for speaking bad grammar, sent they each put on one of a pair, and the mates are sold, hit or miss to the gentlemen, and each man has to devote himself for the evening to the lady whose wristlet is numbered the same as the one he has drawn.

Imagine the feelings of a man, who, starting in a hurry for a picnic, took the wrong basket, and found when he got there that he had brought a litter of kittens instead of his lunch.

A Grammatical Pupil.—A schoolmaster after giving one of his scholars a sound drubbing for speaking bad grammar, sent the regive of the rend of the room to inform another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew another boy that he wished to speak to him, and, at the same time promising to renew the does if he spoke ungrammatically. The youngster quite satisfied with what he had browing cost of advertising.

So well had the whole thing been managed, that actually an apartment had been reserved for Florence. Charley was marched off and placed in durance vile.

Galling at Greystone next morning about eleven, Arthur Hyde found everyshing in disorder. Sir William had left by the first train for the city; and he had to hear the history of the steine ten thousand dollars, and the elopement upon the ice, which North, the maid, being suspicious and watchful, had discovered—the thin snow bore the tracks of shates.

While he listened in amag ment there came a telegram;

'I am getting a warrant for Martel; to hight he will be in Newgate. He stubbornly denies. Florence fil;

At this Ida left the room, apparently agitated.

'Follow her,' said Lady Greystone 'she feels deeply for poor Florry.

Arthur overtook her in the library; perhaps it was the excitement of the moment strung up his courage—the words to ask her if she could love him trembled on his lips, when suddenly she threw herself at his feet, and grasping his knees begged him to forgive and aid her.

Utterly confounded, Arthur listened to her confession.

A WONDERFUL COW.

Mr. A, H. Gilbert, of Tweed County, Ontario, Canada, is the owner of a grade Durham cow, of large frame, weighing 1,200 lbs. 7 years old, that is an aston ishing milker. A record of her from the 26 of March of the present year to the 17th of April, 22 days, in which me is an aston ishing milker. A record of her from the 17th of April, 22 days, in which me is a pounds of butter was ohurned from her milk. In April 418 lbs. of milk was sent to the cheese factory; in May 1030 pounds; in June 1039; in July 1,039; In August 858; November, up to he 4th inst., 79 pounds. Besides this extraordinary quantity of milk sent to the factory, aggregating 6,253 pounds, one quart was reserved at home every day for use. The cow was not extra fed, and the pasture in which she grazed was rather poor.

SMALL PIGS GROWING IN FAVOUR.

It is only a few years since swine breeders were viving with each other for the greatest weight of carcass. But

It is only a few years since swine breeders were vieing with each other for the greatest weight of carcass. But this is done away with. Hogs that will weigh 500 lbs., are sold at a less price per pound than those of 250 to 400 pounds. The market in England has long favored light weights. London is chiefly supplied with pigs of less than 200 pounds weight. And this tendency of the market to pigs well fattened, but of small weights is just what the farmore to make the second 100 pounds in the line of his interest. It costs more to make the second 100 pounds a pig, than the first, and still more to make the third 100 pounds, and so every pound added becomes more expensive.

"No, ma'am. I don't known any such man."

"What has he been doing?"

"He's been doing lot's that's mean for a man to do. He pretended like he wanted to marry me, and kept it up mad, mister, and if I had him I'd Simpson him."

"Bo you think he's here at this depot?"

HORSES.

From our observations we expect to see much influenza, syoradic at least, if not epizootic, the coming winter. To avoid this weakening disease, thorough ventilation should be given in the stables, and too great warmth avoided; the food should by of the best character, the bowels should be kept some what relaxed by bran mashes and linseed meal, and give an occasional tonic, and one dram of sulphate of copper. With such care, this disease will probably be avoided. Horses after driving should not be left to stand exposed to storms.

POULTRY.

POULTRY.

To keep poor fowls, now that the heavier pure bred hinds are so cheap and easily procured, will not pay. A prominent poultry dealer from Ohio, who exhibited largely at the Centen-nial, stated to us that the income of nial, stated to us that the income of farmers from poultry in his locality had doubled since he had been in business, from the use of better kinds of poultry. In our own experience we have surpassed even this increase of profit.

Bread fritters are made by soaking bread-crumbs in milk over-night. In the morning add an egg and salt, and very little flour, as the thicker the batter is made by the crumbs, the shorter and more delicious they are.

It is all right for the Hon. Bardwel Slote to lug his "Mighty Dollar" around the country and say g. f. for good fellow, c. d. for cash down, and s. m. for sour mash, but such little eccentriciti don't wear well in the family circle for ward youth of 14 whose parents on Myrtle avenue, entered the house the other day and remarked to his mother than the family circle for the table hot. They are very nice for breakfast or lunch.
