Weekly Monitor.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1885.

The Rev. Mr. Lough, of Halifax, against whom a charge of improper conduct was preferred by a woman, has been fined $50 or sixty days imprisonment. — Frederick Harris, son of the late Thomas H. Harris of Bear River, was drowned at sea a short time since, from an American vessel bound to Baltimore. — In another column will be found a short sketch of "John Fitch," in regard to whom a being the first to apply steam to propelling steamboats, we gave a short notice a week or two ago. Mr. A. D. Munroe, of Wilmett, kindly furnished us with the extract. — The cold has been extreme for the past week. Sleighbing was quite good on one day, and our streets were very lively. The snow has drifted considerably, however, during the past day or two. — Our local photographer, Mr. J. N. Rice, has been doing some fine work lately in enlarging pictures in India ink. Those who need enlarged pictures need not send abroad to secure them, as Mr. Rice can do so much more in a better manner, at a visit to his rooms will convince. — Our thanks are due Mr. J. H. Parson, one of our California subscribers, for a copy of the special new year edition of the Los Angeles Daily Times. It contains a most interesting description of Southern California. — Queen's County has an Epoch Advertiser. Some few years ago, a man named Morton, married a girl named Bowers. Shortly after the event, Morton went to sea, and after a short time returned, he married again a man named Snow. Morton turned up the other day, and made matters pretty lively and used rough language. Snow tried to have Morton arrested, but did not succeed. In a few days, it was reported, he was going to leave Snow in possession. — An alarm of fire was given on Monday afternoon last, which was soon found to proceed from Capt. John Longmire's residence, on Water St. Before the engine arrived on the scene, however, the fire was out. It was caused by one of his little boys throwing a lighted match in a large tin containing kerosene in the attic. Mr. Longmire by a fortunate circumstance happened to be in the room at the time, and discovered the location of the flames. The smoke was so dense in the room that he made matters pretty lively and used rough language. Snow tried to have Morton arrested, but did not succeed. In a few days, it was reported, he was going to leave Snow in possession. — An alarm of fire was given on Monday afternoon last, which was soon found to proceed from Capt. Miscellaneous.

John Bright in the House of Commons. The massive well-set head, the lofty brow, the white hair, the clear blue eyes, as seen in the expression of the language of the speaker, have immediately attracted the attention of all spectators.

something you can imagine of a queer sort, thirty-four G. H. East's (log) to a patient hitching post. The odd thing about the dead letter office is the persistence of the writer's letters in their places. It seems improbable that last year 1,300 letters containing articles of value were received at the office, and that only one or two of them were sent to whom sent. It's a fact, though, and the cause is this: The writer, or only one of a dozen other strange folk, nor does the cause seem here, but it might appear to be that on the "secret" list of the office, there are 1,300, or more than 90 per cent increase over last year. Of course, the office is not a "secret" one, but it is a "secret" one, and it is a "secret" one.

The Farm Journal thus describes a portable sheep shed: It consists of two pieces, and may be carried to any place, and set up with only a few minutes work. The sides are nailed together with three studs and the top is made of canvas and made of washed pine, with a board over the crack where the sections go together.

Chloroform as a Hot Bath.—The Kansas City (Mo.) Times narrates a remarkable case in which "without pain or trouble" a patient was cured of a disease which had been in him for several years. The patient was Mr. Charles A. Dyer, of Kansas City, Mo. He had been in the hospital of the University of Kansas, at Lawrence, Kan., for several months, but without any benefit. He was then sent to the hospital of the University of Kansas, at Lawrence, Kan., for several months, but without any benefit.

Christmas Dead Letters.—I went through the Dead Letter Office of the Post Office Department the other day. I am rather sorry I did not, though I have always wanted to look into its mysteries, but I ought not to have gone at Christmas time. If it had not been for the coolness and kindness of Mr. J. H. Dyer, the chief of the office, who is not easily affected at such things, the water would have stood in my eyes several times as I looked at Christmas packages which had been turned from the usual current of the mails into a stagnant pool. It was really touching to see, after passing through the "dead" letters and packages are opened, letter after letter out upon the counterside of a table, and each at the rate of 1,000 per day, each with its little message of love and cheer.

Washing the Face. There are some who object to washing the face often, especially with soap, thinking this an injury to the complexion. But those who have made a specialty of skin diseases say no other part of the body needs soap so much; that the face, being constantly exposed to dust, collects so much, it is not enough to wash it in the clear water. They say soap makes the face shiny, as so many plain folks show that it is more needed and that the work of drying after the bath has not been properly performed. The face however, should not be wet immediately before or after going out. Its most thorough ablution should be performed at night before going to bed, and the following method should be observed in the process: Fill the basin with soft warm water, lather a medium-sized sponge with good soap and wash the face carefully. Then take fresh water, without soap, and wash again with the hands, and rub thoroughly with a Turkish or crash towel until the face is dry and tingling. This will do much toward improving and preserving the complexion; and the little vexatious black spots which "dash words" will usually disappear after a time, if it is persevered in.

How to Start a Stock Pot.—A kettle made for the purpose is a great convenience, though, if well cared for, an ordinary iron kettle will answer. Most of any kind should be put out into small pieces, and if you have bones, as you ought to have, they should be broken. In a small family there is not likely to be enough meat of one kind to start the stock; but nice scraps of several kinds may be used. The water should be cold, since it is the aim to extract all the nourishment from the meat. Salt the water, put in the pieces, and let them simmer for hours. A quart of water to about a pound of meat and bones will be a proper proportion, though it may vary, and more water may need to be put in as the soup simmers and evaporates. An authority on cooking recommends the use of an ounce of salt to a gallon of water. The soup which rises to the top when the stock has cooked until you see that it is gaining nothing in strength, you may remove it from the fire and pour it from the kettle into a large earthen dish kept for this use; keep this where it will be cool, and under ordinary circumstances it will be perfectly sweet as long as it lasts. This forms the base for innumerable soups. Do not be frightened and think that somehow you have made a terrible mistake if, when you go to the jar to get some stock, you find it almost jelly; this is the gelatine from the bones, and recent scientific experiments prove that, taken in connection with other ingredients, it is truly nourishing; put a portion of this into the soup, kettle, add a little water and vegetables and herbs to suit your own taste. If you wish a clear soup strain it through a muslin, laid inside a colander, and by the way a good colander can be made by taking a pan which leaks, turn it upside down, and with a piece of fine or six years, and making any fear that the stock will not keep well, heat it to the boiling point every morning.—Selected.

Our California operators are small, and with no more individual character about them than grains of rice; but these delicate creatures were insistent with evil intentions, and I dare not swallow one for fear of the intestinal pang he might raise in my interior. So I set about getting rid of them, for I was never going to give up beaten before those fellows. I hung up a sheet over the keyboard after I locked the door, and just outside my window found a tin water-pail that had a small hole in it, carefully enlarged it, and then slid every one of them into the pail, and then down one by one—one hundred and two of them—they all the time saying to me with that odd, pesty look of malignity. When the last one was out of sight I stopped trembling, and finished my dinner in peace, and then rang for the waiter. You should have seen their faces! One of the waiters asked me if I would have some more. May be never know the internal pang he inflicted upon me, but I replied calmly: "Not now. I think too many at once might be hurtful."

A passenger on a train up in Wisconsin was complaining of hard times. "I don't see nothing hard about 'em," remarked a contented looking man opposite him. "Well, you're the first man I've seen that wasn't growling," replied the speaker, "and I should like to know your business. If there is one prosperous man in the country I want to make his acquaintance. What do you do?" "Oh, I'm working for the railroad company, watching the wood cutters, to make sure they don't pile in no poor stuff. Get $2 a day."

"$2 a day? You don't call that prosperous, do you?" "Oh, that ain't all. The contractor pays me a day to spend three-fourths of my time down to Bill Jackson's sea-son. Can't you?" "No."

"Parasitic Solutioe.—'Are the girls looked up for the night, wife?' 'Yes.' 'Cookman chained?' 'Yes.' 'Has the patent boot-catcher in the front yard been pulled, so that it works well?' 'Well, we might as well chloroform the gardener, and go to bed.'

Sue Green Has Run.—"Strangs," remarked Mrs. Brown, "I have rung at Mrs. Smith's door three times this week and I never succeeded in getting an answer. I expect the family is out of town."

"Possibly," replied Mrs. Jones, "but Mrs. Smith was telling me a few minutes ago that she could tell your ring among a thousand."

Poor Mother.—"Are you better my dear?" "LITTLE ERIN.—I donno. Is it jolly all gone?" "Yes." "Well, I'm well enough to get up then."

An exchange has an elaborate account of the newest wrinkle in stockings. It omits, however, to mention the original wrinkle, which will continue to carry on business at the old stand until the best.

A travelling combination at a hotel in one of the small towns in Ohio, recently left word at the office before retiring, for a general call at 7 a. m., to enable the members to take the train for Cincinnati. The night clerk was a son of Ireland, and at 5.30 he awakened the combination, saying: "If you gentlemen please, you have an hour and a half to sleep yet."
