Pros[illegible]pects of the McKinley Bill.

LONDO[illegible]N, Aug. 11.—A Herald correspond[illegible] yest[illegible]erday asked Charles A. Dana, who is [illegible] here, whether he thought the Mc[illegible] bill would be passed or shelved. [illegible]id: "At one time I was doubtful as to [illegible]ther the bill would ever become a law [illegible] now I am quite certain it will pass, but [illegible] a modified form, that is on the lines [illegible]mulated by Mr. Blaine. The United [illegible]ates will say, 'You take our corn and [illegible]en we will take your sugars.' But that [illegible]dification won't affect people over here, [illegible]o are clamoring about their silks and [illegible]lvets. There is no use in trying to dis[illegible]ise it from these merchants that the bill [illegible]l pass, and as regards their case no al[illegible]ation it will be made."

GRAND ARMY TROUBLES.

[illegible]lmost Wrecked in the Rapids—A Pullman Car Burned.

MONTREAL, Aug. 11.—The Grand Army of the Republic excursion launched upon a sea of trouble when they left the train at Kingston and embarked on the Richelieu and Ontario boats for Montreal on their way to the grand encampment at Boston. The steamers Corinthian, Corsican, Maud, Algerian and Bohemian left Kingston Saturday morning, but only the Maud [illegible]d Algerian arrived here that night, it [illegible]ing too dark for the others to run [illegible] rapids. The others landed at Coteau, [illegible] miles up the river, and transferred [illegible]ir passengers, from whence they [illegible]e conveyed by three Grand Trunk trains [illegible] Montreal. The Bohemian did not fare [illegible]ell, but in running the Cedar Rapids [illegible] with a misadventure. The boat was [illegible]ed with 700 passengers, and just as [illegible]as at the most critical point in the [illegible] the cabin floor gave way and for a [illegible]ent there was confusion and panic. [illegible] falling floor interfered with the steer[illegible]ear, and the vessel became unmanage[illegible]. The crew behaved like cowards, and [illegible] the life preservers, added to the [illegible]usion, but the captain and pilot stood [illegible] their posts. The shore bearings were [illegible]t, but they succeeded in bringing [illegible]e boat to the foot of the Beauharnois [illegible]anal, where the passengers were transferred to trains for Montreal. There was [illegible]so an unpleasant adventure for the ex[illegible]ursionists who had arrived and went on to [illegible]ortland without their comrades. When the train was nearing Actonvale at midnight, 50 miles from here, a lamp exploded and a Pullman car was consumed. The passengers were safely removed with all their baggage. This afternoon I saw Mr. Chabot, of the Richelieu and Ontario Line; Mr. Stevenson, of the Grand Trunk, and passengers on the boat, and they all con[illegible]irm the above particulars.

Uncle Sam's Crops.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—There is reduction in condition of all cereals as reported by the statistician of the Department of Agriculture. The decline from the 1st of July to the 1st of August is from 93.1 to 73.3 in corn; from 94.4 to 83.2 in spring [illegible]heat; from 81.6 to 70.1 in oats; from 88.3 [illegible] 82.8 in barley. The condition of buck[illegible]heat is 90.1 and of spring rye, 86.8. The [illegible]ondition of Irish potatoes is reduced from [illegible]1.7 to 77.2. A fall of twenty points indi[illegible]ates the disaster which has befallen the [illegible]orn crop within 30 days. The cause is the [illegible]bnormally high temperature of the central maize districts, with insufficiency of rainfall.

There has been a considerable reduction [illegible]n the condition of spring wheat, amount[illegible]g to fully 11 points.

The oat crop is certain to be one of very [illegible]w yield and probably poor quality.

[illegible]nother crop of great importance is [illegible]tatoes, which has also been damaged by drought. A low rate of yield is assured.

A Clever Swindle.

MONTREAL, Aug. 11.—Two clever scoundrels concocted a scheme and worked it successfully to defraud the city, the fire[illegible]men and several leading firms. R. B. Ford [illegible] J. Graham proposed to augment the [illegible]men's fund by publishing a souvenir [illegible] soliciting advertisements for it and turning over one-third of the proceeds to the fund. They then called upon large firms for subscriptions to the disabled firemen's fund, and among the checks received were: From the Bank of Montreal, $500; Merchants' Bank, $200; Sir Donald Smith, $100; Grand Trunk Railway, $100, or nearly $2,000 in all. They then handed these checks to Chief Benoit, alleging that they were in payment for advertisements in the mythical book, and as the same time presented a fictitious account for work claimed to be done by the Burland Lithograph Company, amounting to $1,000. The chief indorsed the checks in payment for the supposed work, which were then cashed and with the proceeds of which the clever young man disappeared.

TRAGEDY AT THE FALLS.

A Rochester Bigamist Pushes His Wife Over a Precipice.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 11.—Yesterday morning Mr. J. C. Hayden, chief of the detective force in Rochester, N. Y., accompanied by Detective Furtherer, of the same force, and having in charge a Mrs. Quigley, wife of Chas. H. Quigley, of Rochester, N. Y., arrived here and notified Ontario Policeman McMicking, of this place, that they were in search of the body of Mrs. Arthur Day, of Rochester, N. Y., who was murdered two weeks ago. Mrs. Quigley, the woman accompanying the detectives, was the sister of Arthur Day. On reaching a point below the whirlpool rapids elevator photograph gallery on the Canadian side the body of the unfortunate woman was found lying frightfully mangled on the rugged rocks and much decomposed. It being late in the evening, no attempt was made to bring the body to the top of the bank, but steps was taken to secure it. Mrs. Quigley related the following blood-curdling story to the police magistrate:

MRS. QUIGLEY'S STORY.

"I live at Rochester, N. Y.; I came to the Falls on Sunday, July 27; with me was my brother, Arthur Day, and his wife. The trip was proposed to my brother Arthur on the preceding Saturday. He called at my house and asked me to go to the Falls; I told him I was poor and could not afford it; he told me he would pay my fare; I told him I would go. Upon our arrival at the Falls we took the street cars to the bridge—my brother, his wife and myself. We crossed the lower bridge to this side and walked down towards the whirlpool, below the whirlpool rapids elevator. Being tired I sat down upon a stone looking towards the falls. My brother and his wife went on down and stopped at the place where the detectives and I did today. I saw my brother once standing near the precipice, his wife immediately in front of him. The next time I looked he was waving a black handkerchief for me to come to him, which I did, and not seeing his wife I asked him where Deseriah was. He admitted that he had pushed her over the bank, and said she had never moved and did not know what struck her. He said he wanted to get rid of her. Afterwards he gave me a ticket and said we must part. I went up on a street car to the Falls, and took the train from there. I saw my brother upon arrival at Buffalo, but did not speak to him. I saw him three days afterwards in Rochester. The only thing he said about the murder was that had he to do it over he would not.

THE DETECTIVE'S NARRATIVE.

Detective Hayden states: Last Tuesday Lizzen Breen, of 228 Plymouth street, Rochester, where she had lived comfortably with her father before meeting one Arthur Hoyt, of the same city, whom she had married on the 12th of July last at Canandaigua, N. Y., laid information before me that she had reason to think that she had been victimized by Hoyt, she having reason to know that his name was not Hoyt, but Arthur Day, and a married man. Detective Kavanagh was detailed on the case and had Day arrested for bigamy. He learned that Mrs. Day, No. 1, her husband and sister-in-law were at the Falls on July 27; that Mrs. Day No. 1 was missing, and that Day would awaken wife No. 2, talking in his sleep, by expressions of "There she goes over!" and such like remarks. The detective visited Mrs. Quigley. Being asked by the detective, she admitted to them that her brother had told her at the Falls that he had pushed his wife over the bank. Prior to this, Day had been arrested for bigamy, having married Deseriah Chatterton, of Saratoga, eight years ago, and had been living with her at 70 Stillson street, Rochester, up to the day of the murder, July 27, and at the same time had married Lizzie Breen, and was living with her at the rear of 30½ Mortimer street.

MRS. QUIGLEY.

Mrs. Quigley is a very hard-looking woman, and gives her age as 48 years. She has been married four times. She says that to her mother, Mrs. Cornelia Day, she had confessed the whole thing. Her mother told her she was glad she was gone. Mrs. Quigley said the reason for denying any knowledge of Mrs. Day No. 1's whereabouts was that she did not wish to betray her brother in his crime.

The Police Magistrate had Mrs. Quigley arrested as an accessory to the murder.

THE VICTIM.

The dead woman was a tall, slim figure with dark hair, fair complexion, dark eyes and rather good-looking. She was peevish, would take fits of anger. She had two children, one of them dying last winter. She was about 26 years of age. She and her husband had fights when they were living on Monroe street, and parted for a few weeks. The children were put in the Industrial school at the time. She was the daughter of Daniel Chatterton, of Saratoga. Wife No. 2 was the daughter of Mr. Breen, of Plymouth street, Rochester. The Breens had come to Rochester from Canada.

Mrs. Quigley was locked up in the jail. Application will be made to extradite Day, and he will be tried for murder here.

The place where the body of the unfortunate woman lies is about 60 feet from the top of the bank.

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL TIEUP.

Passenger Traffic on the Road Partially Resumed.

Circulars from the Knights of Labor—Both Sides Determined to Hold Out.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Local trains on the Harlem Railway and seven on the Hudson River road arrived in this city up to 9 o'clock Saturday morning. All the trains through from the west arrived here on time. Mr. Webb says there is no trouble in the western division with the exception of a few night station men who deserted their posts, but whose places were immediately filled.

NO MILK TRAINS.

One of the worst features of the strike will be the lack of milk to the people of New York. Not a can of milk came into the depot Saturday morning. This will sorely affect hospitals, orphan asylums, hotels, restaurants, bakeries, poor people and hosts of others. Over 22,000 cans of milk, each can containing 40 quarts, are received every morning at the Grand Central depot between 1 o'clock and 4 o'clock. About 250 milk dealers go to the depot for milk. Agents on the West Shore road raised the price of milk from $1 38 per can to $2, then to $5, and at last accounts were getting $6 and $7 for it.

THE OFFICIAL NOTICE.

The following is the notice sent out by the Knights of Labor:

> Brother co-workers of all occupations in railroad service: Greeting—The officers of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad are engaged in an effort to inaugurate the policy adopted by Austin Corbin on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, which means the extermination of all labor organizations among railroad employes. While they have commenced on our organization it will be only a short period until they proceed to exterminate all other organizations. Hoping you will appreciate the situation, that this action on the part of the company means solely the annihilation of all labor organizations, and that you will see the necessity of co-operating with us to set aside this unjust action on the part of this corporation, we remain respectfully yours,

UNPREPARED.

The Sun says the strike upon the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad and the Harlem Railroad had been foreshadowed for some days, but nobody expected it to come when it did, and no preparations had been made. The effect was to tie up not only the New York Central, but the New York, New Haven and Hartford as well, which had a strike of its own.

THE WHY.

Master Workman Lee, in an interview concerning the status of the New York Central strike, said: "The present policy of the Central road is the inauguration of the policy which has been pursued by Austin Corbin on the Reading Railroad, and is so viewed by every man employed by the company who is a member of any labor organization. The main question at issue is our contention for the reinstatement of the men whom the company have been discharging for three weeks. These men have been faithful in the discharge of their duties, and that has been conceded by the officers of the company in the past. No question has ever been raised to their fitness for their respective positions, nor have these wholesale discharges been made because the business of the road demanded it. It was purely and simply because these men were Knights of Labor."

In answer to a question whether it was true that the discharges were the result of the men neglecting their duty by attending to matters outside of their daily work and taking off in consequence, he replied that such a statement was a subterfuge on the part of the officials of the roads. The following letter was sent by Mr. Lee to Governor Hill:

> ALBANY, Aug. 9, 1890.
> To the Hon. David B. Hill, Governor:
> Your Excellency—D. A. No. 246, K. of L. railroad employes are to-day engaged in a struggle for American liberty and manhood. The press of the State intimate the calling out of the State militia. We beg to assure you that no act shall be committed or any attempt made to violate the laws of our State. We are citizens of New York and pledge our honor to depend on the justice of our cause, and not on acts of violence or lawlessness. The police departments of our different cities are, in our judgment, amply qualified and sufficient to maintain the public peace, and D. A. No. 246, K. of L. assures your Excellency that they and those whom they represent will do all in their power to maintain and preserve law and order. We will thereby gain not only the sympathy of American citizens who love fair play, but effectually checkmate efforts of Pinkerton tugs, who are endeavoring to promote disorder. Yours very respectfully,
>
> EXECUTIVE BOARD OF D. A. No. 246.

THE INDICATIONS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The indications now are that the strike on the Vanderbilt lines will not be a success. Yesterday the regular schedule passenger service of the New York Central and the Harlem roads was resumed, the only change being the consolidating of certain outgoing western trains. The tie-up on the West Shore road did not affect passenger traffic, although the freight business was brought to a standstill. The through Boston trains on the New Haven road left as usual. At a conference of officials it was decided to dispatch to-day all freight trains to their various destinations. The company found they could obtain all the men required in this city.

THE COMPANY'S STATEMENT.

The following circular was issued by Vice-President Webb, and was the result of the long conference held by the railway officials:

> The position of the company is this: We shall select our own men, and we do not propose that they be designated by the Knights of Labor or its committees. When men are dismissed we get rid of the inefficient, the most vicious and those least in accord with our interests. When promotions are to be made we will not be bound by the seniority rules promulgated by the Knights of Labor. A due consideration will always be given to the length of service, but the first and most important rule will be the qualification of the men for the place. If our men have grievances the proper officer will be willing to grant hearing and see that consideration is given, but we will not allow outsiders to interfere, or to interfere between the employer and employe. For this reason alone I refused to allow Mr. Holland to discuss any differences alleged to exist between the company and its men, and not for the reason, as stated, that we object to our employes being members of labor organizations.
>
> These are my views, and I am satisfied that they are concurred in and approved by every official of the company, by its Board of Directors and by the gentlemen who are most interested in its securities.
>
> The strike is ill-advised, cannot succeed, and we will put it down and maintain the position we have taken.

MEETING OF THE MEN.

Master Workman Lee, of the District Assembly, arrived from Albany at noon yesterday and attended a meeting of the Knights this afternoon. More than 3,000 were present. Reports were received from the various assemblies along the line of the road. What they were could not be learned. A resolution was adopted thanking the press for the fair manner in which it had treated the strike. J. J. Holland and Secretary Hayes, of the Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, left last night for Detroit. Before their departure they ordered all the firemen on the Vanderbilt lines here to quit work. The engines are deserted at the Grand Central Depot.

ASKING FOR PROTECTION.

ALBANY, Aug. 11.—Mayor Manning was served with another notice signed by C. C. Clark, vice-president of the New York Central road, saying that the company thought their property was in danger, and calling upon him to take proper action tending to protect the company's property.

VIOLENCE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The following dispatch was received at a late hour last night by Vice-President Webb from Syracuse: The Chicago limited, due in New York at 4 o'clock this afternoon, was flagged in the yard at Dewitt and stopped by strikers, who took out coupling pins, and the train is now there. A later dispatch says militia have control of the yards. Several strikers attempted to board a train, but were prevented in doing so by the soldiers. Then an attempt was made to disarm some of the soldiers by a few of the more foolhardy ones, but they were restrained by their friends. An attempt was made to blockade the track. It was only when the strikers were appeased by assurances that the train would not leave the yard that they withdrew from it and allowed it to proceed. A coal train attempted to run through the yard, but was stopped by strikers, who boarded her and set the brakes. In the afternoon the firemen who usually run to East Syracuse joined the strike, and in the evening about 75 locomotive engineers held a meeting and decided to hold out. The North Shore limited train struck East Syracuse about 8:30 a.m. and was held up by the strikers, who set the signal. The train remained in the yards until about 4 in the afternoon, when it was allowed to pull up to Syracuse station and unload its passengers. It did not unload, but went back to the Oswego Junction, where the West Shore crosses the Central, and switched on to the West Shore and then went East. Sixty Pinkerton men arrived here from Chicago at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and were sworn in as deputy sheriffs. The artillery has been gotten out.

HELP FROM THE ENGINEERS.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 11.—A prominent knight said last night that word had been received that the engineers from New York to Buffalo had agreed to support the men who are out, and have telegraphed Chief Arthur asking for permission to strike. He added, "If Arthur does not give his consent the engineers will go out anyway." This knight also said the firemen from New York to Dewitt had been ordered to be in readiness to go out at any time.

PETERING OUT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Supt. Voorhees states that Master Workman Lee has been deposed. Whatever way one might look at the situation all through the night and early this morning it looked as though the strike on the N. Y. C. road was slowly but surely petering out. Nevertheless both parties were, so far as words went, as stubborn as ever. The first train scheduled to go out was the Buffalo express or newspaper train, and it left promptly on time at 4:35 a.m. At 6 o'clock a train over the Harlem branch went out, followed by still another at 6:20. Announcement was made that all trains would run to-day with the exception of the Croton local both north and south-bound. Vice-President Webb said this morning: "The firemen have not struck, and all trains so far are running all right. The fact is," continued Mr. Webb, "everything is beautiful all along the road except at Syracuse. At that point the railroad is not getting sufficient protection."

AN ACCIDENT.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The west bound flyer on the Rome Watertown and Ogdensburg at 3 o'clock this morning collided with a number of freight cars that were standing on tracks at Adams Center by reason of a switch being left open. Four freight cars, the engine, the baggage and the first coach were damaged. No passengers injured. The fireman sustained severe bruises. The track is now clear.

FREIGHT MOVING.

The first train of freight since the trouble left here at 9:15 o'clock this morning. It consisted of 44 cars loaded with perishable stuff bound for Alabama. Only 1,400 cans of milk were received, when there should be 2,200. The American Express Company received and sent out its Sunday shipment of express.

FIREMEN GO OUT.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 11.—10:45 a.m.—Twenty firemen on the Central have gone out, and the engineers say they will pull no trains out with a green fireman as a helper.

Labor Notes.

An attempt to settle the miners' strike at Springhill, N. J., has failed

Some of the men employed on the Dublin, Wicklow and Wexford Railroad have struck in consequence of the discharge of a number of workmen who belonged to the employes' union.

The railway strikers in Wales are as determined as ever. They handed in the company uniforms and received the wages due them. There are no signs of yielding, and but few of the men have gone back to work. Expressions of sympathy have been received from all parts of the kingdom; the sailors' union has resolved to prevent Cardiff ship-owners from getting men at British ports, and notices have been sent everywhere giving warning that the strike is still on, and that people in search of work should go elsewhere.

The situation at Cardiff remains unchanged. The mails are still carried by wagons on the public roads. The strike has seriously affected the London shipping trade.

The Chicago Knights of Labor intimate pretty strongly that they will follow the example of their eastern brothers, and that the move is near at hand.

WELCOMED HOME.

Arrival of London Canton, Prize Winners at Chicago.

Enthusiastic Welcome from Their Brother Oddfellows.

Speeches from the Various Officers and Friends—Had Their Swords Been All Alike the Prize Would Have Been First—The Highest Honor Ever Attained by a Canadian Canton.

When No. 8 express from the west pulled into the G. T. R. station at 11:05 this morning a large crowd of Oddfellows and citizens had gathered there to welcome home the members of the London Canton, No. 1. For the past week the canton has been attending the triennial cantonment of Patriarchs Militant at Chicago, in which they were successful enough to carry off the second prize in class B, drill competition. As the air brakes were applied and the train brought to a standstill the victorious patriarchs were accorded three hearty cheers. The other members of the order then formed a square on the platform, into which Capt. Brown marched, after forming the canton into order. The men were all in the pink of condition and spoke highly of their treatment in Chicago. On the Captain's right hand was Major Stenberg, and associated with him were Adjt. Herald, Lieut. McRoberts, Ensign Darch and Surgeon Abbott. The canton was drawn up in line, after which Mayor Taylor came forward and in a few words welcomed them back to the city. He was more than pleased, he said, to hear that they had been so very successful in the competition drill in that they carried off the second award. In their success they had brought not only honor to themselves and to their order but to the city at large.

Major Stenberg replied on behalf of the canton, and at the conclusion of it the Seventh Band struck up "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." The band then moved off and the canton, marching in threes, fell in, followed by the other members of the order. On arriving at their hall the canton was dismissed, a great many repairing to the lodge room, where a general hand-shaking took place, followed with hearty congratulations. Canton Paymaster Patriarch Ed. Beltz afterwards called the members to order. He paid a compliment to the canton, and expressed the conviction that their success would have a beneficent influence over the whole order in Ontario.

Grand Representative Dr. Cl. T. Campbell was then called on, and in referring to the success of the canton he said that it was proof that London Oddfellows could do almost anything they attempted if they would but inculcate the same energy into their work that the canton evinced while in the competition drill at Chicago. "You deserve," he said, speaking to the canton, "all that you got, and perhaps more. You have come back here with honors higher than those which have ever been achieved by any other Canadian canton, and I hope that when you enter into such a competition again that your superiority may be so marked that you cannot in any way escape from the first prize.

P. C. P. Bro. Essery was the next speaker to commend the prowess of the local patriarchs. He thought that they had accomplished a big work when, in the face of the whole continent of America, they carried off second honors. He was proud of the canton and of Capt. Brown, of whom he said a better man at drill never stood on British soil. At the next competition the speaker promised to have his own family represented in the ranks by at least two.

P. C. P. Bro. James W. Burrows, of Chatham, and a member of Adelphian Encampment and Canton No. 1, who had come to the city to assist in the reception, was then called on for a few words. He had been on the ground, he said, when the drill was taking place, and had heard all of the comments made in his vicinity, and was it not that the London Canton was placed at the great disadvantage of having to drill two days ahead of the others, and on totally strange ground, he was convinced that they would have secured the first prize. He was pleased and considered it a privilege to greet the boys on their return.

P. S. H. P. Bro. John Hunter and P. C. P. Bro. J. Hanson also complimented the canton on their achievements, and said that they would prove a source of strength to the rest of the order.

P. G. Bro. Walter Fairbairn rose to confess that he was not a member of the canton, but said he was ashamed of himself because he was not. He thought that after their success he would have to join them. There was one change he would like to suggest in their name, however, and that was, that instead of being called patriarchs militant they should be called patriarchs triumphant. The remark called forth a hearty round of applause.

P. C. P. Bro. C. W. Bayley also made a short speech, in which he eulogized the canton and expressed great pleasure in their success.

P. C. P. Bro. Dr. Roome and P. G. P. Bro. F. Riddle followed, each speaking in the same strain and expressing unbounded satisfaction in the prowess of London Canton, No. 1.

Patriarch Beltz then announced that he had a check on the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company for $900 in favor of London Canton, No. 1, and that Capt. Brown also had a check in favor of himself for $90. The first amount represented the second prize money, the first being taken by Canton Amsterdam, No. 20, of New York, with Earl Canton, No. 16, of Ohio, third, while nine others brought up the rear.

Major Brown, captain of the canton, was then called on and received an ovation as he rose to his feet. He first expressed his thanks for the hearty reception which had been tendered to the canton and to himself on their arrival in the city. When he left a week ago he had hopes that the canton would win some prize, but had not set his hopes on second one. In the matter of drill the London Canton was first in merit, but it was the uniform that lost them the contest, all of the members not having uniform swords. This detracted six points from their total and so together with the fact that they were compelled to drill on strange ground the canton had every reason to feel proud with the result of the drill competition, they having received the full percentage for drill movements. The reception then ended with cheers for Capt. Brown and London Canton, No. 1.

LAST MOMENT DISPATCHES.

Gov. Warren, of Wyoming, is dangerously ill.

Ex-Mayor Samuel B. H. Vance, of New York, died at Douglastown, L. I., Monday morning.

The Toronto mortality returns for the week ending Aug. 19, gave 81 births, 18 marriages and 111 deaths.

The President and party have gone to attend the encampment of the Grand Army of Republic, at Boston, next week.

The mail and passenger service between Montreal and New York is badly demoralized by the strike of the switchmen on the N. Y. C. and H. R. R.

Mme. Bourrion, the fasting woman, of Bourdeuilles, France, has died from inability to digest food. She had abstained for 33 days.

The cost of the break in the Sault Canal to vessel-owners alone is placed at $80,000 per day and the country in general at something like $300,000.

At a dance of Italians at a saloon in Glasgow, N. Y., on Sunday evening, a fight took place during which an Italian was killed and another man believed to be fatally clubbed. Several others of the party were badly cut.

The strained relations between Turkey and Servia as shown by the correspondence in regard to the murder of M. Marinkovitch, the Servian Consul at Pristia, continue to cause uneasiness in diplomatic circles. The only satisfaction offered by the Porte consisted of a salute of the Servian Consul by a party of Turkish soldiers.

VOICES OF THE PEOPLE.

A Picnicker's Plaint.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Port Stanley seems destined to be the summer resort for London, St. Thomas and the surrounding villages. This season it has been more extensively patronized than ever in the past, and it is desirable that it should be made as pleasant a place as possible and have every facility that will make it easy of access at reasonable hours, more especially for those who may sojourn there; also that there should not be any drawbacks in the way of nuisances. We go there for fresh, pure air, but on Fraser heights west of the picnic grounds the stench from the stables of the Fraser House is so great that picnickers have to hold their noses whilst passing. I am sure that if your valuable journal calls attention to it the obliging proprietor will have it removed. The absence of this nuisance would add much to the value of his property and render the present vacant lots salable.

London, Aug. 11. RAMBLER.

Bathers Who Do Not Bathe.

The number of exhibition bathers who hang their clothes on a hickory limb but don't go near the water is daily on the increase, says an Atlantic City correspondent, and during a walk along the beach one can readily pick out hundreds of young girls, and even mature dames, arrayed in the most attractive and costly bathing robes who don't even wet their dainty feet in the surf, but prefer to gayly trip in groups along the strand or gracefully recline on the warm sands.

They, as a rule, wear collars and cuffs, jaunty little caps, neat slippers, and are invariably tight-laced. They are as careful of details in donning this beach costume as if they were dressing for a ball, and certainly appear far more captivating. These fair and frolicsome visitors are known as exhibition bathers, but they don't bathe.

A new fad among this particular class is to go carriage riding in their brief attire, and it is a familiar sight on the avenues daily to see a bevy of pretty girls clad in handsome surf costumes urging along a weary beach steed, and evidently enjoying the diversion.

The great lung healer is found in excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

Smoke reliable brands. Our celebrated brands, "Mungo," "Cable," "El Padre" and "Madre e Hijo" cost no more to the consumer than other brands of inferior quality. If you want the best value, a pure article and an enjoyable smoke, insist upon having our brands. S. DAVIS & SONS, Montreal.

"FINALLY, BRETHREN, FAREWELL."

Rev. W. H. Porter Preaches His Closing Sermon.

An Impressive Address to His Flock—Expressions of Regret at Leaving—He Wishes the Talbot Street Baptist Church Success—Offer to Start a New Church.

Rev. W. H. Porter preached his farewell sermons in the Talbot Street Baptist Church yesterday morning and evening to large congregations. In the evening the reverend gentleman chose as his texts II. Corinthians xiii., 11: "Finally, brethren, farewell. Be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace, and the God of love and peace shall be with you," and Ephesians vi., 10: "Finally my brethren be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might," also Philippians iii., 1: "Finally my brethren rejoice in the Lord," and II. Thessalonians iii., 1: "Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course and be glorified even as it is with you." The reverend gentleman said he wished to call attention to the four "finallys" of the great apostle. It was wonderful what the religion of Jesus Christ did for a man, how it could pick him up from the gutter and make a man of him; how it could dethrone self and enthrone instead the glorious Redeemer; how it could transform a man, how it could enlarge the soul. Such generosity, such divine impulses and sympathies and desires! It was wonderful to see what the grace of God did for Paul. This was seen in the whole "finallys" of the Apostle Paul, "Finally, brethren, farewell." There was something beautiful in the very words. Farewell, of course, was often used with sadness, but there was another side of it that was bright and the word "farewell" was full of brightness. The very word meant actually rejoice. Where it was in the New Testament it was used by an inspired apostle, and it was there the divine and gracious word. Why should it not be full of joy and blessing? Everything to the Christian was joy—sorrow was joy, disappointment was joy, and so the apostle in using that word meant rejoicing, and so he (the speaker) would say to them, dear brethren, be joyful, be prosperous, be healthful. They should not be sad and go with long faces and heavy hearts. Angels looked [illegible] them, Christ looked at them, God looked at them, and said rejoice when sorrow was in the home and in the heart, when losses and trials, and visitations of Divine Providence were calculated to make them sad and troubled. They should rejoice because God's hand was in their affairs and overruled all and [illegible] them for his glory. There was nothing [illegible] came nearer to the heart than trouble in the church. Trouble in the home was not like it. Religious trouble was the deepest, and if division and schism came into the church they should rejoice because it would develop and bring out those who were true. He wanted them to be full of prosperity—spiritual prosperity. He had noticed in studying over the New Testament that the New Testament Church in its palmy and prosperous days had been distinguished by three leading characteristics. One was a praying church; another was, when the burdens upon the ministry became too heavy for them they just selected a few men, full of the Holy Ghost, to take charge of them; in the other, those men and all the people through their co-operation recognized a leading mind and overseer to guide them and all went prosperously and well.

The church to-day was full of sickly Christians. "I could actually lay my hands," continued the reverned gentleman," on half a dozen men around me, and if, for the past five years, they had actively worked, we would have had prosperity to-day In a few Sundays one will lead you, feed you and bless you, but, after a little, unless you have spiritual health, work yourselves, and pray for your minister, you will want somebody else to lead you."

They should be strong in the Lord and the power of his might, for they had a good deal to contend with. They were not the Methodist Church, where, when a minister left a stationing committee appointed another; they were not the Presbyterian Church where there was a kind of a supervision over them, but they were the Baptist Church, and of all churches under heaven there was none so free and expansive in its character, or one so capable of being blessed while heaven's smiles rested upon it. But if heaven's smiles withdrew and God's wrath was laid upon it, there were no breastworks to ward it off, and there was no church so susceptible to divine anger and so ready to crumble in the dust.

"The only security and strength you have is in the favor of Heaven. Jesus holds the stars and the ministers in his right hand, he gives them, he appoints them, he moves them. Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, put your trust in him, look up to him, be right with him, be in his favor, and enjoy his blessing. Finally, brethren, rejoice in the Lord. Do not rejoice in any minister. It will be a broken, short-lived, shallow rejoicing; it will not last long; but if you set your heart on God, then it will not only be sweet, but lasting. Finally, brethren, rejoice, but do not let your rejoicing be in anything earthly, temporal or human, but let it be in the Lord. And finally, brethren, pray for us. Paul uttered that request seven times and for various reasons. Pray for the minister, for the prayer will react upon yourselves. Pray for your minister as he comes; pray for me as I go."

In conclusion Mr. Porter said: "I have endeavored to labor five years in this church, in the city of London, and I see the faces of others as well as my own people around me, but I love them all, and if I could bring down the treasure of God's grace, his choicest gifts, I just leave them with you. I may say in closing, one word personally. It is with great sorrow that I leave London. I came to it at a personal sacrifice; it is the last place in the world that I thought I would ever come to, but I came because I thought God had directed me. But I learned to love it, and from my heart of hearts as a man—and I am a man as well as a minister—I would say, 'Finally, brethren, farewell.'"

Many of the congregation were in tears at the close of Mr. Porter's impressive address, and the reverend gentleman himself was visibly affected. He has not yet decided when he will leave the city, although he has received calls from Brantford, Oshawa and Waterford, the last of which he has under consideration. He was offered the pastorate of a new church, which would be started in the city, if he would consent to remain, but he declines to do what he says would divide the interests of the church.

A Good Appetite

Is essential to good health; but at this season it is often lost, owing to the poverty or impurity of the blood, derangement of the digestive organs, and the weakening effect of the changing season. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful medicine for creating an appetite, toning the digestion and giving strength to the whole system. Now is the time to take it. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla. a

The township of Colchester South is excited over the bylaw granting $15,000 to pay off the claim of Hiram Walker & Sons. The Walkers own the big marsh farm, and last year the Council sued for damages from the Walkers caused by some drain. The Walkers turned the tables on the township and were awarded $15,000 damages. On Friday he applied for a ticket to the Port, and was told the fare was 45c., the train being a regular and not an excursion train. He refused to pay, got on the train, and was told he must get off at White's Station, the first station from St Thomas. Action is now brought to recover damages.

He was carried into the house and two physicians summoned, who at once went to work on him, but with little or no prospect of saving his life. Crughomme has been regarded as a sober, steady man, and no cause for the attempt on his own life is known.

STRATHROY.

A sad drowning accident occurred here about 10 o'clock Friday morning. William, son of Levi Plank, a young man about 16 years of age, had been working in the knitting factory, but work being slack he was allowed to take two or three days' holidays. Almost immediately after, he and another young man named Ab. Moore went together to a point about half a mile above Pincombe's mill, where the river is a considerable width and 16 to 20 feet deep, to have a swim. The boys swam across once and were coming back when young Plank was taken with cramps and went down. He tried to seize Moore who had a narrow escape, and ran for assistance, but it does not appear that he ever came up, and it was only after searching and dragging the river four or five hours that the body was at last found and carried home to his agonized parents.

The Cattle Man's Song.

Tell me not in mournful numbers cattle trading's full of gloom, for the man's a chump who says so, and he cannot die too soon. There's a steer, there's a heifer, and the grave is but their goal; dust they are and "dust" returnest when the salesman gets his "roll." But enjoyment and not sorrow be our destined end or way; if you have no cattle, borrow — buy a yearling steer each day! Lives of cattle kings remind us we can win immortal fame; let us leave the cranks behind us and we'll get there all the same. In the world's broad field of cattle, in the packing-houses' gore, let us make the dry bones rattle, let us make the old chumps sore. Let us then be up and doing, buy a heart of any weight, then a-chieving and a-chewing, 'chieving little, chewing late.—[Stock Grower.

Thinning Apples.

The following advantages are given by a successful orchardist of thinning the apples on heavy bearing trees while the fruit is small: 1. You get rid of the knotty and wormy apples before they have grown long enough to occupy the places of better ones. 2. You thus destroy, before they can increase, the insects in such are as stung by the curculio and infested by the codling worm. 3. The best ones being left, they they have plenty of room to grow into large, fine, salable specimens. 4. You are not obliged to gather twice as many small ones, the labor of picking depending on number and not on size. 5. The bad ones are removed in time at less than half the labor required for hand-picking when they become large. 6. You avoid much labor in assorting the gathered crop, and in separating the scabby and knurly from the best fruit. 7. The moderate crop which is allowed to grow will exhaust the trees less than the heavy crop of poor and seedy specimens. He thinks that to allow all the poor and worthless apples to grow is like the practice of the farmer who would permit all the coarse weeds to grow in his corn, to be assorted from his grain after harvesting.

The newest thing in baby carriages is a contrivance that by means of various appliances may be transformed into a sled, a cradle and a go-cart. The cradle, instead of being provided with rockers, hangs from the ceiling by a spiral spring, and the spring itself plays an important part in the adjustment of the sunshade that goes with the carriage when it is used in its normal character. The maker boasts that the whole contrivance is almost simple enough to be adjusted to its various uses by the infant occupant himself.

Directors and members of the existing private unlimited company who are the vendors as mentioned above.

This company has been formed for the purpose of acquiring and working the well known and valuable cotton thread business of Messrs. J. & P. Coats, at Paisley, in Scotland, at Pawtucket, Rhode Island, in the United States of America, and elsewhere, as a going concern. The business was originally founded at Paisley in 1830, and in America in 1842, and was carried on as a private firm till 1884, when it was converted into a private unlimited company, the whole of the shares belonging to the Messrs. Coats. It has now attained such proportions (having become one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the world), and the prospect of its further growth is such that the vendors have determined to convert it into a public company.

The Messrs. Coats, whose names appear as directors, have managed the business for many years, and they have agreed that at least four of their number will be on the board of the new company for a period of five years from the date of its incorporation. Mr. Archibald Coats will accept the chairmanship, and the company will also have the benefit of the services of Mr. Philippi as director (he having managed the foreign trade for upwards of ten years), so that the continuity of the policy hitherto pursued is insured.

The land covered by the works at Paisley and Pawtucket and available for further extension comprises upward of 120 acres, entirely freehold and subject only to few duties, amounting to $1,123 per annum. The buildings have been enlarged and increased from time to time, to meet the requirements of the business in each country; they are of the most substantial and improved description, and are probably unsurpassed by the works of any other manufacturing establishment.

The works at Paisley to be transferred to the new company are the absolute property of the vendors. The works at Pawtucket are vested in the Conant Thread Co., which is incorporated under the laws of the State of Rhode Island. The shares of this company are almost entirely held by or on behalf of the vendors, and Mr. James Coats is the president of the company. The mills in America were erected at various dates between 1870 and 1883, and the whole processes of manufacture are carried on therein, and the capacity of the establishment is equal to the large American trade of the firm.

The steam engines in the various mills at Paisley and Pawtucket give an aggregate of upwards of 17,500 indicated horse power, and the machinery and plant embrace every appliance of the best and most modern description. The total number of hands employed is over 6,000.

Upon the land at Paisley are commodious dining halls for the workpeople, a school, also numerous dwelling houses and recreation grounds.

A siding of the Glasgow & Southwestern Railway affords communication with the entire railway system of the United Kingdom, and most valuable rights to the supply of pure water for the bleach works are secured by the Paisley Waterworks Acts, 1835, 1854, 1866.

The mills, plant and machinery at Paisley and Pawtucket have been inspected and reported upon as follows, viz.:

11 Billiter Square, London, E. C., July 25, 1890.

DEAR SIRS—Ferguslie Mills:—Pursuant to your instructions, we have attended to these mills at Paisley, and have made careful inspection of the various mills, buildings, fixed plant, machinery, engines and boilers, etc., with a view to advising you as to their present condition. The plant is of a most costly description, and, for the greater part, of modern type, and includes not only all the latest improvements for the economical working of the business, but there are also special machines of the firm's own manufacture, for which they hold letters patent. The buildings are of the most substantial character and admirably adapted for the purposes for which they were erected, and it may be generally stated that, both as regards arrangement of mill buildings and the laying down of the machinery, the plans, which can only have originated from experience, have been followed up with one idea of thoroughness without regard to cost. In conclusion we may say that, nothwithstanding our large and varied experience in machinery, it has never been our lot to survey a mill so admirably designed, so well executed and so carefully kept and maintained. We are, dear sirs, yours faithfully,

To Messrs. Coates, Son & Co., 99 Gresham st., London.

In addition to the works above mentioned the vendors are interested in works now in course of construction in Russia and also in a small factory at Montreal.

All the interests of the vendors in America, Canada and Russia will pass to the new company.

Messrs. Turquand, Youngs & Co., chartered accountants of London, have given the following certificate with reference to the profits of the business:—

41 Coleman St., London, E. C., Aug. 5, 1890.

Messrs. Coates, Son & Co.,

Gentlemen—We have examined the statement of profits submitted to us by Messrs. J. & P. Coats and compared it with their books at Paisley, and, after making certain readjustments, find that without charging interest on capital or borrowed money, rent in respect of freeholds or subscriptions and donations, but after deducting the few duties and providing for depreciation, the profits of their business carried on at home and abroad during the seven years ended 31st December, 1889, including dividends, except as mentioned below, received during that period on shares held by or on behalf of Messrs Coats in the Conrad Thread Co., and their share of profits from the Canada Thread Co., were £2,982,340 16s. 8d., averaging as follows:—

Approximate average of the last seven years	£426,048	13s	8d	per annum
Approximate average of the last five years	425,246	0	10	per annum
Approximate average of the last three years	457,719	8	8	per annum
Amount for the year 1889	474,775	6	10	per annum

Subject to the following remarks:—

(1) That in addition to the profits above mentioned, Messrs. Coats have carried to the credit of a renewal fund and invested a special dividend of £103,434 3s. 1d., and also portions of other dividends received during the seven years from the Conant Thread Co., and these with accumulations now amount to £201,621 2s. 9d., of which only £30,864 3s. 9d. has been written back and treated as profit.

(2) That during the above period the sum of £208,647 11s. 4d. was expended in the erection of a spinning mill at Paisley, completed in 1888. Messrs. Coates wrote off £144,487 4s. 0d. of the above amount out of profits, but in preparing their statement of the profits of the above period they have written back that sum, and it is included in the above total of $2,982,340 16s. 8d. The reason assigned to us by Messrs. Coats for this is that having erected a mill in a style and of materials much superior to those usually employed for such a purpose, they determined, as a private company, to write down the cost to a low and arbitrary figure out of their profits, but contend that the actual profits made should not be reduced thereby, a contention which does not appear to us to be at all unreasonable. Messrs. Coats further state that in the future the cost of the maintenance of this mill will stand at a minimum as compared with that of other mills; and an inspection of the building in question confirms this view. Besides the above, Messrs. Coats wrote off £25,985 14s. 1d. in respect of the machinery in the new mill and a school erected about the same time, which sum has not been written back.

(3) That as regards the question of depreciation in respect of the buildings, plant and machinery belonging to Messrs. J. & P. Coats, at Paisley, so far as we are competent to judge from the materials placed before us, we are of opinion that sufficient provision has been made in the accounts.

(4) That no allowance to any partner for management in Scotland is charged in the accounts, but a special allowance of £3,000 per annum and taxes has been made to one of the partners residing in America.

(Signed)
TURQUAND, YOUNGS, WEISE, BISHOP & CLARKE.

The annual interest on £2,000,000 debenture stock at 4½ per cent. will require £90,000.
The annual dividend on £2,000,000 preference shares at 6 per cent. will require £120,000.
A dividend of say 8 per cent. on £1,750,000 ordinary shares will absorb about £140,000.
Together, £350,000.

The above averages show that the business is a progressive one, and it will be seen that even if the profits do not exceed the average of the last seven years there will be a surplus of $76,000 available for Reserve Fund or further dividends, and should the profits equal or exceed those of 1889, this surplus will be increased to upwards of £124,000. Before arriving at the above averages of profits there have been deducted certain percentages and allowances in connection with the American business which have amounted during the last seven years on an average to £19,089 per annum. Under the contract the vendors undertake to relieve the company of all these payments in future, which should more than cover any additional cost of direction, etc. The company takes over the business and profits as from 1st July, 1890, with the benefit of and subject to all current contracts, and pays interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum from that date on that portion of the purchase money which is payable in cash. The stock in trade of the vendors, consisting of wholly and partly manufactured stock and raw material, is estimated by them to have amounted, on the 30th June, 1890, to upwards of £960,000. The vendors believe that this amount of stock is fully sufficient for the working of the business, and that with the cash mentioned below it will constitute an ample working capital. They guarantee that the stock to be handed over to the company shall amount to at least £960,000, and undertake that if when the stocktaking on 30th June last has been completed there should be any deficiency in that sum they will pay the same to the company in cash. They also undertake to hand over to the company in cash £400,000, making, with the stock, £1,360,000. The company will not take over any of the liabilities or book debts of the vendors, but the debts owing to or by them will be collected and discharged on their account through the company in such a manner as to avoid interference with the ordinary trade arrangements with customers and connections. The price to be paid to the vendors for the business, good-will, properties, trade marks, machinery and utensils, shares in the American and Canadian companies, the interests of the vendors in Russia, and the above-mentioned stock and cash, is £5,750,000, which will be paid as follows:

In 58,333 fully paid ordinary shares	£ 583,330
In 66,666 fully paid 6 per cent. preference shares	666,660
In debenture stock	666,660
And in cash	3,833,350
Total	£5,750,000

Being one-third of each issue and the largest amount permitted by the rules of the London Stock Exchange.

The agreement for the purchase of the business is dated the 31st day of July, 1890, and is made between J. & P. Coats of the first part; James Coats (residing at Providence, in the United States of America), James Coats, jun., Archibald Coats, George Coats (Belleisle, Ayrshire), Daniel Coats, William Allan Coats, George Coats (Garthland Place, Paisley), Andrew Coats, Peter Mackenzie Coats, William Hodge Coats, and Stuart Anchincloss Coats (residing at Providence aforesaid), all thread manufacturers in Paisley, and being the whole of the present shareholders of the old company, of the second part; and William Pollok Stewart on behalf of this company, of the third part. The said agreement has been confirmed by an agreement dated the 6th August, 1890, and made between the same parties as the mentioned agreement of the first three parts, and the company of the fourth part. Copies of these contracts of the memorandum and articles of association may be seen at the offices of the company in Paisley; of its Solicitors in London and Paisley; at the Bank of the Manhattan Company in New York, and at the Bank of Montreal, Montreal, Canada. Besides these agreements there are also contracts and agreements too numerous to specify made by the vendors in the course of their business; also an agreement with Messrs. Coates, Son & Co., 5th day of August, 1890, with reference to making this issue. The vendors (who are the promoters of this company) out of the purchase money pay all expenses up to allotment; also all stamps and expenses of the transfer to the company and the execution of the trust deed and debenture stock certificates, and all subscribers for shares and debenture stock will be deemed to have accepted the information given in this prospectus as full and sufficient notice, and particulars of such contracts as are above specified or referred to, and to have waived all right to any further notice or particulars thereof, whether under section 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, or otherwise.

As security for the debenture stock, the various heritable properties in Scotland and the shares and other assets in foreign countries will, so far as is consistent with the due conduct of the business and with the laws of those countries, be transferred to the debenture corporation, limited, as trustees for the debenture stockholders upon the terms of trust deed, the form of which, with the form of debenture stock certificate, can be seen at the offices of the solicitors in London and Paisley, and at New York and Montreal as above. The statements in this prospectus as to the properties and business are made upon the authority of and information furnished by the vendors. If the number of shares or debentures alloted is less than the number applied for, the surplus deposit will be credited in reduction of the amount payable on allotment. It is intended to make early application for a quotation for the shares and debenture stock on the London and Provincial Stock Exchanges.

TIME FOR ANOTHER STEP FORWARD

City life has its drawbacks, especially to those whose vocation and income necessitate great economy, and oftentimes privation. But there is no reason why the lot of the people in centers of population should not be rendered much more enjoyable than it now is, without causing the corporation to be in any degree the loser. The co-operation plan is now carried out in lighting the streets, in laying out the thoroughfares and in keeping them in repair, in providing police and fire protection, and in otherwise doing for the people what they cannot accomplish for themselves unless at a very serious expense.

Why should this method of adding to the aggregate health and comfort of the population by co-operation, under the management of the civic authorities, not be extended to the supplying of other necessaries of life? It would be difficult to find a negative answer for this query that would bear investigation. Take the matter of public baths, for example. Old world cities, such as Birmingham and Glasgow, have solved this question of encouraging cleanliness, by municipal aid, in a manner that affords a strong incentive to action on the part of those of us whose lot is cast among an urban population. Even in busy, money-grabbing New York, there are indications that not only public baths but public laundries and public co-operative kitchens will be established and confer immense benefits on a large section of the community long before another decade elapses. The editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine has taken the matter in hand, and has secured the encouragement and aid of such leading citizens as Cornelius Vanderbilt, Richard M. Hunt, president American Institute of Engineers; Seth Low, president Columbia College; Bishop Potter, Edward Everett Hale, Professor Boyensen, Col. W. T. Comstock and Hon. George F. Seward. To these gentlemen were submitted the designs for public baths called for by the editor of the Cosmopolitan. The first-prize was taken by an architect who presented a beautiful building, containing baths not only for men and women, but Turkish baths and laundry as well, both wholly isolated from the rest of the building. The plunge in each case is made the distinctive feature, while at the same time ample accommodation is offered for shower and private baths, toilet rooms, etc. In the second story, which extends over the central portion of the building, is a commodious lecture room. This room, intended to be devoted for sanitary instruction, opens upon a balcony from which it is possible to witness swimming contests in the plunge below. This structure will, of course, be adapted for the needs of a large population like that of New York, and the interest on its first cost, wages, heating, etc., would be about $28,000. Against this there would be receipts estimated at $43,820, leaving a clear gain of $15,820 a year—certainly a good investment.

The scheme here outlined suggests the question why London should not possess baths. There would be no good sense in constructing a magnificent pile such as it is suggested should be established and made to pay in New York city. If our municipal authorities took the matter in hand they could easily proceed on a much less pretentious scale, and still provide public baths that would be of immense value as health-preservers, while virtually paying their way.

Let us outline a scheme that could be carried out: We have a splendid sulphur spring, convenient to all parts of the city, sending out an enormous quantity of the purifying fluid every day, all the year round. It is in the hands of private parties, and the water is used for bathing purposes. But it is not appreciated as it ought to be. Why should the civic authorities not acquire the property at an arbitrated value, remove the unsightly buildings, lay out the grounds at a small cost and establish a bathing establishment that would be a boon to the citizens, and be of great sanitary advantage to them as well as to many visitors who would be drawn to the city through the fame of the waters? The value of the mineral waters are undoubted, and there is no reason why they should not be much sought after.

One inducement to the City Council to seek control of the sulphur baths, lies in the fact that while the acquirement would result in the beautifying of a spot that now is an eye-sore, the reform need not necessarily be costly. Indeed the baths might be made to pay interest on the investment. In New York, the proposition is to divide the baths into three classes—one for which 7 cents will be charged, which includes one towel and soap; the 15 cent bath will include two towels and extras, and the Turkish baths will cost 25 cents. These divisions are made for the convenience of the patrons, not for the purpose of arbitrarily dividing the bathers according to their social standing. Somewhat similar arrangements might be made as to our public baths. There is no reason why a sulphur bath could not be provided for 5 cents, if the bather furnished his own soap and towels, as many citizens no doubt would prefer to do.

As bathing in the river in its present condition cannot be regarded as adding to cleanliness, and as the commissioners are not inclined to grant water from the domestic supply for the purposes of public bathing, we submit that the scheme we have outlined is the only feasible project within the reach of the public purse. What say the aldermen about it?

THE TURNING TIDE IN THE STATES

There seems to be little doubt that the people of the United States are waking to the monstrous folly and injustice of continuing war taxes in time of peace. One by one prominent journals even on the protectionist side are convinced that the time for a new departure has arrived. The latest is the Daily Champion, of Atchison, Kansas. For more than a quarter of a century it has been the active defender of the protective idea. It says to-day that the West has no use for protection. It declares that, all sentiment and partisan bias aside, while a protective tariff may be a benefit to the East, for the West, the great agricultural area of the land, it is a positive injury, a barrier to its progress, an insurmountable hindrance to its development, and an effectual estoppel to its true material prosperity.

What has led the Champion to this conclusion, this radical change in its economic opinion? Briefly this: It has found that under the dominance of the protective idea the East has steadily grown in wealth at the expense and to the detriment of the West. In other words, that Eastern manufacturers and capitalists have increased their accumulations enormously, while the farmers of the West have, during the same period, made no proportionate gain, but on the contrary have been reduced to a condition of vassalage, of tribute-paying serfs.

To put it in still another form. The capitalists and manufacturers of the East, aided and abetted by a protective tariff, have made money in fabulous sums while the farmers of the West have been scarcely able to maintain themselves respectably. Not only so, but Eastern manufacturers and capitalists have, by reason of this protective tariff, been placed in a position where their financial power gives them practical control of the Government in all its departments, despite the votes and wishes of the people of the Western States, who, by reason of being large creditors, of necessity borrowers of and dependents upon the East, are virtually politically disfranchised.

These facts have induced the Champion at this time to make public its conviction that a protective tariff is one of the many things the West does not want and cannot afford to sustain.

The farmer has no interest whatever in a protective tariff. His interest rather lies in the direction of free trade—of access to all markets—wherever his products may be in demand. It is for his interest to sell what he raises wherever in all the wide world he can find a purchaser, and thus provide himself with the means of disposing of his surplus crops. Not only is he vitally interested in securing all possible markets, but equally so in buying what he needs as cheaply as possible. Sell where he may and buy at the lowest figures—this, selfish as some may call it—is what most concerns the farmer.

Free trade will give the West the markets of the world, and an opportunity to buy what it requires at less than half it now pays for these same articles.

Lumber, hardware, furniture, clothing, groceries and agricultural implements, these the West needs principally. Free trade bring these things at figures far below protective prices.

"This question," exclaims the Champion, "is broader than party lines. It is more vital than mere political organizations and more essential than the dominance of any particular set of politicians, for it touches our life and is indissolubly interwoven with our existence."

The conclusion of the whole matter is thus given by the Champion:

> Protection continued twenty years longer and the West, with its vast agricultural possibilities, would be a pauper bound hand and foot. Let us who live here in the West be fools no longer, but let us exercise our common sense and protect our own interests by obtaining just as quickly as possible the freest trade with all its attendant benefits.

ON FRUIT—THE VALUE OF GOOD AND DANGERS OF BAD.

The Canada Health Journal has an excellent article on the above subject, the main portions of which we propose to give our readers.

Some one once said: "It will beggar a doctor to live where orchards thrive." Fruits are a well-known enemy to a torpid liver, to many forms of indigestion, and hence to general derangement of the bodily functions. The author of "Eating for Strength" says: "Writers on dietetics, because they are guided by the chemist, do not rank fruits as highly as they deserve. From the standpoint of the chemist, who finds but little solid matter in them, fruits rank low as foods; but they possess 'precious qualities' hardly yet known to the chemist." "Their juices distilled pure in Nature's laboratory" need no boiling or filtering to destroy or remove the germs of disease; while they go easily through the tissues of the body, "leaving their valuable salts and taking up and carrying off" the waste products "Their acids, how refreshing; their salts, how stimulating; their delicious flavors, how they play on the nervous system." The aroma of good ripe fruits is believed to have an animating, exhilarating, "inspiring" effect on the human body when they are eaten. And while it appears that the "fruit of the tree" was the special food of man in his earliest purified or glorified condition, it appears that more special attention is now given to the cultivation of fruits than to almost any other product of the earth.

But while we would thus highly exalt pure ripe seasonable fruits, we would as strongly condemn any in any way damaged, and all unripe fruits. It appears that in nature it is very common that the best—the finest and the most elegant things are the most perishable, the most easily injured and destroyed. Fruits being given to man in such great variety, "come in" ripe at all seasons; but being so especially perishable, they can be eaten with safety only in their season, only as they ripen, unless most scientifically, well and carefully preserved, and even then they are not nearly so valuable. Probably the only evil effects ever arising from eating fruit, when not eaten in glutonous quantities, arise from damaged or unripe fruit.

No particle of anything that has commenced to decay or decompose should ever be used as food by anyone having regard for body cleanliness, purity and health.

Even moulds will not grow on fruit until a certain amount of decay has commenced in it, forming suitable soil for the new growth. The heat of cooking checks the decay, but the fruit has lost much of its value, more in proportion than most people would suppose, while it is not nearly so wholesome and is more likely to disturb digestion than pure, sound, cooked fruit. Unsound fruit in an uncooked state is of course still much more objectionable. While it is always best—most economical of both life and money, to buy and use only the best, purest foods of their kind, this is especially so with regard to fruits. It is very much better to buy only a small quantity of that which is good and sound than much more that is deteriorated and sold at a low price.

During hot weather the digestive tract is in a measure, like the entire body, in a relaxed condition and is then much more easily irritated and disturbed by improper food, and at this season great care should be exercised in selecting fruit, and all should be very carefnlly looked over, in a good light, and every bad spot or part cut away and rejected. Mouldy fruit remember is decayed fruit.

A system of careful inspection, and with a small magnifying glass, should be carried out wherever fruits are marketed. This point is sadly neglected.

OTHER NEWSPAPERS.

DISCRIMINATION.

The Voice.

The farmers may be a little radical in their demands upon the Government that it build sub-treasury warehouses over the country for the storage in bond of farm products, but that is just what the Government does for the liquor men. It does not, indeed, lend them money on their whisky, but it gives them warehouse receipts that are readily negotiable. If it is a "wild idea" in the case of the products of the still?

ABOUT ADVERTISING.

The Money Maker.

Few advertisers value sufficiently the prestige a first-class newspaper advertisement brings in the business world. You may spend $50,000 in circulars or pamphlets, and each reader will realize only the cost of one at a few cents. A page advertisement in a first-class daily at $500 will probably impress your name and business on the mind of every reader for a lifetime, and each will realize that it cost that amount if not more, and rate your standing among your fellows accordingly.

THE PROTECTIVE TARIFF IN GERMANY.

L' Independent Belge.

The matter to which German statesmen should give the most serious consideration is the economic condition of Germany. The protective tariff which that country owes to Prince Bismarck begins to bear fruit which is far from satisfactory. The Department of Statistics of the Minister of Commerce and Industry has just published the general statistics of commerce in 1889. It appears by these figures that in the year named the increase of importations of foreign goods into Germany reached the enormous sum of 750,000,000 marks, while the exports diminished during the same period by 39,000,000 marks. More remarkable still is it that since the introduction of the protectionist system by Prince Bismarck, that is to say, since 1880, the amount of importations has not ceased to increase, while the exports, with some alterations of increase and diminution, have much diminished. The comparative figures of the last ten years show that protectionism gives favorable results only during the first year or two of its application. After the third or fourth year the situation changes, and the protective tariff steadily drains a country of its money.

Constipation,

If not remedied in season, is liable to become habitual and chronic. Drastic purgatives, by weakening the bowels, confirm, rather than cure, the evil. Ayer's Pills, being mild, effective, and strengthening in their action, are generally recommended by the faculty as the best of aperients.

"Having been subject, for years, to constipation, without being able to find much relief, I at last tried Ayer's Pills. I deem it both a duty and a pleasure to testify that I have derived great benefit from their use. For over two years past I have taken one of these pills every night before retiring. I would not willingly be without them."—G. W. Bowman, 26 East Main st., Carlisle, Pa.

"I have been taking Ayer's Pills and using them in my family since 1857, and cheerfully recommend them to all in need of a safe but effectual cathartic."—John M. Boggs, Louisville, Ky.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in excellent health."—S. L. Loughbridge, Bryan, Texas.

"Having used Ayer's Pills, with good results, I fully indorse them for the purposes for which they are recommended."—T. Conners, M. D., Centre Bridge, Pa.

CRICKET.

The record of the Australians in England up to date is 5 won, 7 lost and 4 drawn.

An All-American team, made up of the pick of the native cricketers, will visit England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales next year. The money for the expences of the proposed tour has already been raised. There is not the slightest doubt but that the scheme will be successfully consummated, while the season of 1891 will be a red letter season in the annals of American cricket. The tour will last from the beginning of May until the middle of September, which will allow the Americans to meet all the crack teams of England.

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—The Toronto club took the D. A. C. into camp handily Saturday, defeating them by 34 runs. Toronto, first inning, [illegible]59; Detroit, first inning, 91; second inning, 35.

On Wednesday Chatham will play the London Cricket Club, and as they are sure to bring a strong eleven London will have to do their level best. Owing to the as[illegible] having matches on both these dates the Londoners are not as strong as might be [illegible]. Everyone cordially invited.

ALERTS VS. RIVERSIDES.

The baseball match at Tecumseh Park on Saturday afternoon between the Alerts and Riversides was one of the most exciting contests that has been witnessed in the city since the formation of the amateur league. A purse of $50, which was to be the property of the winners, no doubt lent encouragement to the players and added to the interest of the spectators. The Riversides, although a much lighter team than their opponents, put up an excellent game, and, with the exception of the third inning, none of their errors were costly. In this inning, however, they had two chances to retire the side, both of which were unaccepted, and as a result three more runs were added to the Alert's score. Haddon, the Riverside's center fielder, particularly distinguished himself with good work in the field. The following is the score by innings:

FLYS.

The Louisville correspondent of the Sporting Life says: "Ed Bligh and Mickey Jones are favorites with the enthusiasts."

His full name is Louis Bierbauer. He is called Bauer because baseball reporters don't like to associate him with a bier. Louis never touches a drop except it be a "ball."—[Boston Globe.

Rusie hurt his hand in trying to open a window coming down on a Fall River boat on Tuesday night, and Manager Mutrie said yesterday that the young Hoosier would probably not be able to pitch for a week or so.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

Knauss is a powerful, muscular young fellow of terrific speed, and for a pitcher ranks away up as a hitter. He is master of all the deliveries, quick and clean in his movements, and is especially effective when men are on bases. He is the only left-handed pitcher in the corps of the Columbus club, and his accession "fills a long-felt want."—[Sporting Life.

The chief topic in baseball circles during the last week was the proposed amalgamation of the Players' League and American Association, the ball for which was started rolling last week. Everywhere but in League circles, of course, the scheme is regarded with more or less favor, and either amalgamation of, or at least an alliance between, the two organizations is generally conceded to be entirely practicable and calculated to simplify the situation.

Pitcher Mike Morrison, late of the Stars, has brought action against Manager Frazer for the $75 deducted from his pay. Manager Frazer says that Morrison was fined $50 for pitching a poor game against Columbus, and that he was subsequently laid off for four days. Morrison claims that he was never notified of the fine or the "lay off." Ex-Manager Fessenden has made affidavit that Morrison was not notified of a fine.—[Syracuse Standard.

It appears that Fessenden threw up the management of the Syracuse Stars because the directorate would not back him up in his endeavors to introduce new blood into the team. The Sporting life says: "Fessenden had the talk with President Frazer on Saturday, and Frazer, it, seems, would not give him the money or authority to go and hire some new players, but did give him his release, as he did not get along with the team, which lost nearly all of its games since Fessenden took charge. Frazer laughed at the idea of men from the Atlantic Association taking the place of such players as McQuery, Wright, Ely, McLaughlin and O'Rourke. Frazer is going to manage the team himself for the rest of the season."

THE OAR

The eleventh annual regatta of the Canadian Associatson of Amateur Oarsmen was held at Lachine on Saturday. It was unsatisfactory owing to the delay in starting the events and inadequate transportation facilities. The senior single scull race was won by a length by J. J. Ryan, of Toronto; M. Shea, of the Don Amateur Club, Toronto, second. Time, 9:42. G. O. Nettleton, of the Minnesota Club, St. Paul, also started, but before he had gone 100 yards he fouled a spar buoy, and henceforward was not in the race. A. P. Burnett, of Toronto, won the junior singles; T. Kenney, of the Don Amateurs, Toronto, second. The senior four-oared race was won by the Don Amateurs, of Toronto, in 9:57. The boats of the Ottawas and Argonauts filled with water, and the crews were picked up by the umpire's boat. When the race was concluded it was 7 o'clock, too late for further events.

A sculling race took place at Oyster Bay, L. I., Saturday afternoon between George W. Lee, of Newark, N. J., and John Largan, of Manchester, Eng., ex-champion of England, for $500. The course was about 1¾ miles, with a turn. The water was choppy. Lee won easily by two lengths in 12:30.

THE TURF.

The entries to the Grand Circuit racing at Poughkeepsie have closed, and there are 113 horses named, 18 in the 2:20 class and 13 in the 2:18 class. "WASN'T IT JOLLY?"

The Proverbial Character of "Advertiser" Picnics Sustained.

A Glorious Day at the Port—Good Music Galore — Spirited Sports — Delightful Dancing—Fun in Profusion, Pleasure ad Libitum, and No Mishaps.

Bright weather on Saturday afternoon, coupled with the first-class nature of the attraction, induced ten car loads of people to patronize the eighth annual ADVERTISER picnic—an event which is annually looked forward to by many of London's citizens besides the employes of the office and their friends. A lively marching air from the band of "D" Company, I. S. C., was given in front of the ADVERTISER office and continued on the route to the station. The ever needful lunch baskets were stowed in the baggage cars and the trip to Port passed pleasantly. At St. Thomas the band took up its position on the platform and played a selection or two for the edification of the good people of that city who happened to be in the neighborhood of the station. Arriving at the grounds the party dispersed to the various nooks and places of attraction the majority following the lead of the band to the well known Fraser Heights, where the sports and games were to take place. Lake Erie's surface had a heavy swell, induced by the southwesterly wind, but the refreshing breeze, coupled with the roar of the surf, more than atoned for the lack of boating on the lake.

THE BASEBALL MATCH.

The first event of the day was the baseball match on the flats between teams representing the married and single men of the establishment, and it proved sufficiently attractive to hold the attention of quite a large crowd. There was some grand base-stealing plenty of nice pitching and one triple play from Woonton to Wilkins to Begg which would have done credit to any amateurs. The married men only lacked one thing—a pitcher. Their old reliables were knocked out one by one, and had nine innings been played every man on the nine would have had a chance at twirling, as a change was constantly found necessary. Chambers' work was more effective. Mr. J. W. Symonds acted as umpire, protecting his complexion from the sun's rays with a lady's parasol borrowed for the occasion. The score follows:

THE RACING.

Immediately after the ball game the programme of racing events was taken up and carried through with a rush, all of the contests with but a single exception having a large number of starters. Mr. Charles H. Fewings, chairman of the committee, reigned supreme in this arena, with Mr. C. Frank Adams as starter and Messrs. John Cameron, Atwell Fleming and Cameron Brown as judges at the finish. The first event called was the married men's race, the awards for merit being glory, flavored respectively with 75, 50 and 25 cents. Upwards of a dozen benedicts entered the lists, two or three of whom would have been more at home in a fat man's race. A good start was made, and in a few minutes the heavy weights were to be seen laboring in the rear without hope of success. W. H. Taliferro finished first, with W. Joanes and Frank Plant second and third respectively.

The single men's race had a large batch of starters, who, not being fettered with matrimonial cares, were prepared to show their less fortunate brethren the way running should be done. When the signal was given nearly all got away together and made a good race to the finish, William Hunter reaching the goal first, George Brown and Robt. Renwick getting there in the order named.

The next event called was a jockey race, run in pairs, one of the pair carrying his partner for the first 25 yards, when a change in the mount was made and the race continued to the finish. About five teams entered and made a close race for the first 25 yards, when most of the party experienced some difficulty in remounting. Rattray and Wonnacott secured the first, while the second fell to the lot of Renwick and Chambers.

The sack race proved to be the most amusing feature of the programme. A starter was found for every sack provided, and they presented a ludicrous sight as they jostled each other for a few inches start, each hanging on to the top of his sack to prevent it tripping him. With the exception of three, all proceeded to amble along when Starter Adams said "Go"; but before the distance was traversed the most of them had left their feet and were rolling around the track in a helpless condition. J. Rattray was the first to propel himself to the handkerchief at the finish, while James Begg and Edward Hayden respectively secured second and third money.

A three-legged race was the next event as per programme. Six pairs entered in the race, but all were distanced by Rattray and Begg, Renwick and Hunter finishing second.

The carrier boys' race brought out a dozen likely-looking little fellows, whose sprinting abilities had been acquired in delivering the ADVERTISER to its thousands of readers. The prizes were won by H. McDougall, H. Chapman and Fred. Pendergast.

The race for apprentices over 16 years was contested by about eight typographical students. The pace was a hot one, the finish being made in the following order: James Begg, John Rattray and Fred. Chambers.

A similar race for apprentices under 16 years had but three starters for three prizes. They were Joseph Cheesbrough, Grant Murray and William McKenna, and finished in the order given.

The wheelbarrow race was then announced, and about seven couples made their appearance at the scratch. The wheelbarrow was formed by one of the pair getting down on his hands while his colleague took hold of his lower extremities and shoved him along. The course was 40 yards for this race, and when the signal was given the contestants moved off slowly with wheelbarrow Plant in advance, but unfortunately at the middle of the course some thoughtless driver stepped on that luckless wheelbarrow's fingers and with a howl the animated barrow rolled over to examine his injured propeller and lost the race, Billy Hunter shoving his accomplice, Renwick, over the line first, with Brown and Hayden a good second. Wheelbarrow Renwick smiled grimly as he clawed his way to victory.

A baker's dozen of juvenile sprinters started in the boy's race for those under 10 years, Freddie Reid got first, with Willie Hyer and Geo. Fixter second and third.

The race for girls under 10 years was won by Jessie McClellan, Stella Cushion and Bessie Blount getting second and third.

The candle race was the most difficult one to run owing to the high wind that was blowing. Each time the candle went out the contestant had to return to the starting point, have the candle relit and begin the race anew. While the majority of the competitors were extinguishing each others lights and with the shouting, Fred. Chambers walked around the course and won the race. His example was followed by Albert Edward White, who secured second, and about ten minutes afterwards Frank Plant was let into the secret and came in third with his candle burning nicely.

"Hippo-elephant" was the title of the next contest, in which each runner carried a rider on his back, whose duty it was to pull down every one that tried to pass him. About half-way down the track all of the contestants were together, and several were thrown down, which put them out of the race. Rattray and Hawthorne got the first prize and Black and Cheesbrough the second.

The news boys' race was won by A. McDougall, F. Pendergast and Harry Chapman getting second third.

The race for girls over 10 years was won by Mary Rattray, Ella Portwood coming in second, with Jessie McLellan third.

The consolation race for those who failed to take a prize in any of the other contests, brought the list to a close, and was won by Alex. Woonton, with W. Neil second and John Birmingham third.

THE DANCING.

Dancing was commenced in the pavilion about 6 o'clock and was continued until the hour of departure of the excursion train to the city. Dayton's orchestra supplied the music, and all who took a fancy to tripping the light fantastic had three hours' solid enjoyment. The weather was just sufficiently cool to make the exercise comfortable, and the many who participated enjoyed themselves heartily. Two intermissions were allowed, and Mr. John Rattray, of the ADVERTISER newsroom, gave exhibitions of Highland dancing and the sailor's hornpipe in a manner which elicited profuse and well-merited plaudits. The dancing programme was as follows:

1. "ADVERTISER" Grand March.
2. "Slug one" Waltz.
3. "End even" Lancers.
4. "2-em brace" Polka.
5. "Blacksmiths" Quadrille.
6. "Double dagger" Schottische.
7. "Em quad." Lancers.
8. "Phat take" Ripple.
9. "36 point" Waltz Quadrille.
10. "Italic" Rush Polka.
11. "Double leaded" Lancers.
12. "Pi" Glide.
13. "Price and a half" Quadrille.
14. "Double Paragon" Waltz.
15. "8 to pica" Cotillion.
16. "Distribution" Polka.

The best yet.

Excellent surf bathing.

Come again next year, everybody.

A little rough for the majority of those who bathe.

The attendance was larger than at any previous ADVERTISER picnic.

The lunch baskets were liberally patronized after the games were over.

Three crowded cars brought down the second contingent from the city.

The Grand Trunk officials handled the crowd carefully and comfortably.

"Little Annie Rooney," played by the band set everybody humming and whistling the tune.

Four of the men who were single last year are not that way now. That's why the married men lost.

Arrangements had been made for gratuitous trips on the lake in the "Ruby," but the heavy surf prevented that part of the programme being carried out.

Three typographical veterans were present in the persons of Messrs. Robert Chapman and John Hooper, sen., of the ADVERTISER, and Mr. A. J. Bremner, of the Free Press.

Dr. Oronhyatekha, of Toronto, was one of the guests. He had not visited Port Stanley in five years, but found the breeze quite as delightful and the hillside fully as steep as of old.

Everything passed off in perfect harmony, not a dissenting voice being raised against a decision of the judges, while the spectators took some collisions with the sprinters with the utmost good grace.

Superintendent H. T. Smith, of the Street Railway Company, had a good string of cars in waiting at the Grand Trunk station on the arrival of the excursionists from Port—a provision that was much appreciated.

On the return journey one car load of people enlivened themselves by singing a number of popular songs. "God Save the Queen" and three cheers brought the impromptu programme to a close when the train reached London.

The extremely energetic committee was composed of the following gentlemen: Chas. H. Fewings (chairman), J. M. Symonds (secretary), Atwell Fleming (treasurer), W. A. Hunter, Wm. H. Taliaferro, J. T. Archer, A. E. White, Frank Plant, Thos. Bland and Cameron Brown.

The "D" Company, I.S.C., band made hosts of friends by their willingness and ability to toot. After serenading the ADVERTISER Office they played a march to the G. T. R. depot where they formed in the miniature park and gave a lively selection. At St. Thomas they also rendered a number in good style, played on the march to Fraser Heights and again to the train, in addition to their afternoon and evening programme.

Angostura Bitters is a household word all over the world. For over 50 years it has advertised itself by its merits. It is now advertised to warn the public against counterfeits. The genuine article is manufactured by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

I consider WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY the most reliable preparation in the market for the cure of coughs, colds and diseases of the throat, lungs and chest. I have sold thousands of bottles, and, so far as I know, it has always given satisfaction. I. N. THORN, Brattleboro, Vt.

HEAVENLY FOOD.

The Gospel Provision for Ordinary and Extraordinary Needs.

Corn in Place of Manna—Rev. Dr. Talmage's Sermon.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 10.—Dr. Talmage, who is staying here, discourses this week on the Gospel provision for ordinary and extraordinary needs. His text is Joshua v., 12: "And the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land." Only those who have something to do with the commissariat of any army know what a job it is to feed and clothe 500,000 or 600,000 men. Well, there is such a host as that marching across the desert. They are cut off from all army supplies. There are no rail trains bringing down food or blankets. Shall they all perish? No. The Lord comes from heaven to the rescue, and he touches the shoes and the coats which in a year or two would have been worn to rags and tatters, and they become storm-proof and time-proof, so that, after 40 years of wearing, the coats and the shoes are as good as new. Besides that, every morning there is a shower of bread, not sour and soggy, for the rising of that bread is made in heaven, and celestial fingers have mixed it, and rolled it into balls, light and flaky, and sweet, as though they were the crumbs thrown out from a heavenly banquet. Two batches of bread made every day in the upper mansion—one for those who sit at the table with the King, and the other for the marching Israelities in the wilderness.

I do not very much pity the Israelites for the fact that they had only manna to eat. It was, I suppose, the best food ever provided. I know that the ravens brought food to the hungry Elijah; but I should not so well have liked those black waiters. rather would I have the fare that came down every morning in buckets of dew—clean, sweet, God-provided edibles. But now the Israelites have taken their last bit of it in their fingers, and put the last delicate morsel to their lips. They look out and there is no manna. Why this cessation of heavenly supply? It was because the Israelites had arrived in Canaan, and they smelled the breath of the harvest fields, and the crowded barns of the country were thrown open to them. All the inhabitants had fled, and in the name of the Lord of Hosts the Israelites took possession of everything. Well, the threshing floor is cleared, the corn is scattered over it, the oxen are brought around in lazy and perpetual circuit until the corn is trampled loose; then it is winnowed with a fan, and it is ground and it is baked, and, lo! there is bread enough for all the worn-out host. "And the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land."

From among the mummies of Egypt, and Canaan have been brought grains of corn, exactly like our Indian corn, and recently planted, they have produced the same kind of corn with which we are familiar. So I am not sure which kind of grain my text refers to, but all the same is the meaning. The bisection of this subject leads me, first, to speak of especial relief for especial emergency; and, secondly, of the old corn of the Gospel for ordinary circumstances.

If these Israelites crossing the wilderness had not received bread from the heavenly bakeries, there would, first, have been a long line of dead children half buried in the sand; then, there would have been a long line of dead women waiting for the jackals; then, there would have been a long line of dead men unburied, because there would have been no one to bury them. What they wanted was something to eat right there, where there was not so much as a grass-blade, an especial supply for an especial emergency. That is what some of you want.

There are those who feel that they must have an omnipotent and immediate supply, and you shall have it. Is it pain and physical distress through which you must go? Does not Jesus know all about pain? Is it approaching sorrow? Is it long, shadowing bereavement that you know is coming, because the breath is short and the voice is faint, and the cheek is pale? Oh, worried soul, you will wake up amidst all your troubles, and find around about you the sweet consolation of the Gospel as thickly strewed as was the manna around about the Israelitish encampment! Especial solace for especial distress. Or is it a trouble past, yet present? A silent nursery? A vacant chair opposite you at the table? A musing upon a broken family circle never again to be reunited? A choking sense of loneliness? A blot of grief so large that it extinguishes the light of sun, and puts out bloom of flower, and makes you reckless as to whether you live or die? Oh, try a little of this wilderness manna: "I will never leave thee. I will never forsake thee. Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him. Can a woman forget her suckling child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? Yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee."

Or is it the grief of a dissipated companion? You have not whispered it perhaps, to your most intimate friend; but you see your home going away gradually from you, and unless things change soon it will be entirely destroyed. At a woman's meeting in Ohio, where a lady was presiding her intoxicated husband staggered up to the platform, to her overwhelming mortification and the disturbance of the audience, and she pulled a protruding bottle from her husband's pocket and held it up before the audience, and cried out, "There is the cause of my woe! There are the tears and the life-blood of a drunkard's wife!" And then, looking up to heaven, she said, "How long, O Lord! how long? and then, looking down to the audience, cried, "Do you wonder I feel strongly on this subject? Sisters, will you help me?" And hundreds of voices responded, "Yes, yes, we will help you." You stand, some of you, in such a tragedy to-day. You cannot even ask him to stop drinking. It makes him cross, and he tells you to mind your own business. Is there any relief in such a case? Yes, there is a relief that drops in manna from throne of God. Oh, lift up your lacerated soul in prayer, and you will get omnipotent comfort! I know that for especial grief there is especial deliverance. I give you two or three passages; try them; take that which best fits your soul: "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." "All things work together for good to those who love God." "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." There are some people who always bring you the same stale sentiment about the usefulness of trial. Instead of bringing up a new plaster for a new wound, and fresh manna for fresh hunger, they rummage their haversack to find some crumb of old consolation, when from horizon to horizon the ground is white with the new-fallen manna of God's help not five minutes old!

But after 14,600 consecutive days of falling manna — Sundays excepted — the manna ceased. Now the fare is changed. Those people in that army under 40 years of age had never seen a corn-field, and now, when they hear the leaves rustling and see the tassels waving and the billows of green floating over the plain as the wind touched them, it must have been a new and lively sensation. "Corn!" cried the old man, as he opened an ear. "Corn!" cried the children, as they counted the shining grains. "Corn!" shouted the vanguard of the host, as they burst open the granaries of the affrighted population, the granaries that had been left in the possession of the victorious Israelites. Then the fire was kindled, and the ears of corn were thrust into it, and, fresh and crisp and tender, were devoured of the hungry victors. "And the manna closed on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land."

Blessed be God, we stand in just such a field to-tay, the luxuriant grain coming above the girdle, the air full of the odors of the ripe old corn of the Gospel Canaan. We soon get tired of a fanciful diet. We soon weary of the sirups and custards and the whipped foam of fanciful religionists, and we cry, "Give us plain bread made out of the old corn of the Gospel Canaan." This is the only food that can quell the the soul's hunger. The infidel scientists of this day are offering us a different kind of soul food; but they are, of all men, the most miserable. They are trying to live on telescopes and crucibles and protoplasms, and they charge us with cant, not realizing that there is no such intolerable cant in all the world as this perpetual talk we are hearing about "positive philosophy," and "the absolute," and "the great to be," and "the everlasting no," and "the higher unity," and "the latent potentialities," and "the cathedral of the immensities." I have been translating what these men have been writing, and I have been translating what they have been doing, and I will tell you what it all means—it means that they want to kill God! And my only wonder is that God has not killed them. I have tasted of their confections, and I tell you to-day that there is no nutriment or life or health in anything but the bread made out of the old corn of the Gospel. Christ is the bread of life, and taking him you live and live forever.

This Gospel corn has been threshed and ground and baked. When on Calvary all the hoofs of human scorn came down on the heart of Christ, and all the flails of Satanic fury beat him long and fast, was not the corn threshed? When the mills of God's indignation caught Christ between the upper and nether rollers, was not the corn ground? When Jesus descended into hell and the flames of the lost world wrapped him all about, was not the corn baked? Oh, yes, Christ is ready. His pardon all ready; his peace all ready; everything ready in Christ. Are you ready for him?

It is a simple Gospel. In its simplicity is its power. Oh, soul sick with sin, invalid in your transgressions, this Gospel will agree with you! I think if you cannot take anything else, you can take this. Lost — found! Sunken — raised! Condemned—pardoned! Cast out—invited in! That is the old corn of the Gospel.

Another characteristic about bread is, you never get tired of it. And that is a characteristic of the Gospel. Old Christian man, are you tired of Jesus? If so, let us take his name out of our Bible, and let us with pen and ink erase that name wherever we see it. Let us cast it out of our hymnology, and let "There is a Fountain" and "Rock of Ages" go into forgetfulness. Let us tear down the Communion-table where we celebrate his love. Let us dash down the baptismal bowl where we were consecrated to him. Let us hurl Jesus from our heart, and ask some other hero to come in. Let us say, "Go away Jesus; I want another companion, another friend, than thou art." Could you do it? The years of your past life, aged man, would utter a protest against it, and the graves of your Christian dead would charge you with being an ingrate, and your little grandchildren would say, "Grandfather, don't do that. Jesus is the one to whom we say our prayers at night, and who is to open heaven when we die. Grandfather, don't do that." Tired of Jesus? As well get weary of the spring morning, and the quiet of your own home, and the gladness of your own children. Jesus is bread, and the appetite for that is never obliterated.

A Child Saved

My little boy was taken very bad with diarrhea. He was very delicate and got so low we had no hope of his life, but a lady friend recommended Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and although he could only bear a few drops at a time he got well. It saved my child.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—Mr. W. C. L. Gill left on Saturday afternoon for a three weeks' sojourn in Muskoka.

—The London delegates will leave this evening to attend the High Court, I. O. F., to be held at Guelph.

—Ald. Skinner is lying ill at his residence, and in consequence will be unable to go to Detroit with the aldermen and Board of Trade to-morrow.

—Miss Jessie Angus, of this city, has returned after a four weeks' visit to Toronto, and is accompanied by Miss Nora Fessenden, of that city.

—From a letter received by a friend from Percy, son of Mr. R. J. Young, it is evident there are less attractive places than Stratford and vicinity in which a lad may spend a holiday season.

—Mr. W. H. Winnett, one of the camping and fishing party who have returned from a couple of weeks outing in the vicinity of Wiarton, reports having had a good time and a plentiful supply of the finny tribe.

—"What the matter with having Bob Manley's opinion on the fire department quoted next?" said a Central Station man to-day. "It would be better than some of the attempts at criticism which some of the "gutter slush" published in the Free Press."

—Provincial Detective Webb, of London, was at St. Thomas to-day, and there prosecuted William Howard, of that city, for violation of the Ontario Medical Act for practicing medicine without being registered. The defendant was fined $75 and costs.

—"If London wants to make a good impression on strangers the city should hire a band and play a couple of tunes at the station on such occasions as when twelve train loads of the G. A. R. are passing through," said a local musician as he walked from the Grand Trunk station this morning.

—Despite the watchfulness and care of Mr. Hansford, the efficient caretaker of Mount Pleasant Cemetery and his staff, four instances of pilfering flowers from graves have been reported during the past few days. It is to be hoped the perpetrators of such contemptible work may be discovered and punished as they deserve.

An Opinion of the Strike.

"Say," remarked a Wagner car porter to an ADVERTISER young man this morning, "I suppose you know there's a strike on the New York Central among the brakemen and switchmen?"

"I did hear something about it," admitted the scribe.

"Well, mark my words, it isn't going to stop there. Before long it'll spread to all the Vanderbilt roads, including the Lake Shore and the Michigan Central in this country. You just wait and see."

The G. A. R. Delegates.

The delegates to the G. A. R. encampment, held at Boston, with their wives, children, relatives, etc., continued to pass through the city Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday afternoon a band alighted and serenaded the people on the G. T. R. platform. Yesterday three more trains went through accompanied by bands in uniform. This morning the regular train was crowded with another batch of veterans, wearing their medals and badges. It is estimated that over $5,000 was spent in the city by these American cousins.

He Was Excited.

"Say, it's a howling shame," said a Colborne street ratepayer this morning as he walked down to business.

"Hold on; what's the matter?"

"The city's money is to be squandered on a stone crossing on Dundas street, east side of Colborne."

"Well, a crossing has been needed there for years."

"That's all right, but you know and everybody knows that next year the whole street will be block paved. Why should money be wasted on a crossing which can only be used now for a few months before it is torn up. The lack of foresight of some of London's aldermen and officials is truly remarkable."

A Suitable Recognition.

As will be remembered on Friday, Aug. 1, a brave rescue was achieved at Port Stanley by John A. Bland, son of Mr. Thos. Bland. Miss Ruby Smith, daughter of Mr. D. Smith, fell into the water and was pluckily saved by the young man, who plunged in after her. To-day a second chapter in the affair came to pass when the mother of the rescued lady presented the rescuer with a handsome gold watch and chain. The outer lids of the watch bear the recipient's monogram and the figures "1890," while the following inscription on the inner cover shows the reason for the gift: "Presented to J. A. Bland by Mrs. D. Smith for rescuing her daughter from drowning at Port Stanley, Aug. 1, 1890."

A London Brakeman Killed.

Albert E. Oliver, a young man about 22 years of age, living at his home, 149 Horton street, was killed at Woodstock on Saturday night. He was formerly a machinist with the McClary Manufacturing Company, but gave up his situation for that of a brakeman on the G. T. R. Four months ago he made his trial trip, but was not permanently appointed until Friday, when he made his first trip. He went as far as Suspension Bridge safely, and it is supposed that on his return trip he was climbing on a car and missing his footing, fell under the wheels, which passed over his hip. Death was almost instantaneous. The remains were conveyed to this city Sunday morning, and the funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon to Pond Mills cemetery, under the direction of the Ancient Order of Foresters, of which the deceased was a member. He was unmarried, and lived with his mother, who is a widow. The family have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

The Botanical Club.

The Botanical Club held its regular meeting on Saturday evening. In the absence of Dr. Carson the duties of the secretary were performed by Dr. Hotson. Dr. Woolverton presented a preliminary report on the programme for the general meeting of the Provincial Entomological Society to be held on the 27th and 28th inst. Arrangements will be made for a field day in connection with that meeting. Mr. Balkwill took up the distinction between the species of cranberry that grow in this country. No attempt has yet been made to cultivate them here, but in some seasons enough grow on the native vines to pay for gathering them. Mr. Dearness exhibited specimens collected in London township of two or three different kinds of carnivorous plants, and described the contrivances these are endowed with for the purpose of capturing their living prey, and holding it until it is digested. Mr. Judson and Dr. Woolverton led an interesting discussion on the paleobotany of the Devonian rocks.

FORECASTS.

Two women [illegible] were seated in the small drawing-room [illegible] of Garsbill Abbey. The late summer even[illegible]g was already dying, and lamps and cand[illegible]s were lit. The elder of the two, who [illegible]ght be 31 years [illegible], sat by a little [illegible] busy with a bit of lace-work; and the [illegible]np, towards which she bent her head, cast [illegible]trong light upon her features. She w[illegible]ingly handsome, with a fair, c[illegible]m beauty, which gave one the idea of bei[illegible] rather the result of many worms withsto[illegible] than of a never-ruffled tranquility. [illegible] had fair hair and blue eyes, like all t[illegible] Merediths; her eyes were beautiful, sof[illegible] deep, with a little sadness in them [illegible] they had looked on sorrows. He[illegible] too, was beautiful, with a great te[illegible]s in its soft curves. No one look[illegible]her could doubt that she had liv[illegible]lived to some purpose; she convey[illegible] the expression of having outlived quire[illegible] of youth, and of having ac-ma[illegible]trength and staying power of [illegible] She looked a good, kind woman [illegible] whom one would gladly go in [illegible]ruth she had her story as every woman [illegible] Twice had she been disappointed in th[illegible]earest wishes she had ever cherished. I[illegible]r early youth she had wished to be a nu[illegible]—unable to reconcile with her conscie[illegible]ce the life which is usually led by girls i[illegible]r position. With great dfficulty she had won the consent of her parents to this scheme. Her wish was a great disappointment to them; they had hoped to keep her with them until she married. She had gone as a probationer to a London hospital, and had fought her way through the drudgery and weariness which belong to that form of training, as to all others; her hard-won certificate was scarcely gained, she was just beginning to reap the fruits of her labors, and was entering upon a new career with both enthusiasm and a full knowledge of what it meant, when her mother's health failed and she was called home. She nursed her through a long and trying illness—not less trying perhaps to nurse than to patient and then, when her mother was dead, and she herself at liberty again, all hope of returning to hospital life was at end. Her place was at home, and she took her place, fighting down her disappointment in silence, so that no one knew how great it had been. This went on for a year or two. Her dreams and ambitions had become things of the past, and she had found another source of happiness in the love of a man whom she had known from childhood, and for whom her regard had developed into love without her being aware of it. It was not until he asked her to marry him that she really knew what her feeling was, and the deep roots it had struck into her whole being. She engaged herself to him with the consent of her father, but stipulated for a year's engagement, on the ground that she could ill be dispensed with at home. The delay was agreed to, but grudgingly, perhaps with a foreboding of evil. Two months before her marriage, in the midst of her preparations and the congratulations of her friends, her father met with an accident on the hunting-field which deprived him of all power of movement and rendered him a helpless invalid for life. This was an awful blow to Gertrude. She had a long struggle with both herself and her lover; she could scarcely say which was the more difficult to conquer, and then she stood alone, having made her choice, having thrown off all thought of self—resolved to be her father's life companion.

[illegible]s she was the eldest of a family of four, [illegible] her companion was the youngest, there [illegible] a great difference between their ages—the other girl being 21. She was an exquisitely pretty blonde, and no more. Blue eyes, rosy mouth, and straight nose, pure complexion and a rosy brown, bird-like head, with its masses of golden-brown hair, and small, delicate figure were all perfect in their way. But the perfectly pretty features were almost devoid of character, and the graceful head was equally empty of brains. Her likes and dislikes were of no importance to any one but herself. She loved sweets and cakes and new gowns, and young men who paid her attention, and did not converse beyond her intelligence; and as she was one of the favored ones of fortune there was an unfailing supply of young men naturally adapted to fill her requirements. Not long before this she had engaged herself to the most eligible of these young men—a wealthy land-owner in the neighborhood. He was just now on the Continent with her brother Rupert, and she paid him the compliment of sometimes wishing he was at home. He was the only man who kept her well supplied with the kind of chocolate she liked best; and she found it rather tiresome to have him to write to every day. She finished the book she was reading and put it aside, saying:

"Was aunty asleep when you went up last, Gerty?"

"Yes; she was considerably better tonight. I daresay she will be able to see Diana when she comes."

"Have you told aunty yet that she is coming? What did she say?"

"I told her this morning. She did not say much except that we had given Guy a good deal of trouble, and that Diana is of no use in a sick-room. She could not even nurse her father when he was dying."

"Clumsy, I expect," said Dora, with a grimace. "I wonder what she is like. I don't suppose she is pretty."

"Aunt has never said she was. I think if she had been, aunty would not have let her go away alone."

"No," said Dora; "and we have no photograph of her—aunty says she never would be photographed. It all looks to me as if she were plain, excessively plain, and conscious of it."

She heaved a little sigh of relief as she spoke, and her face took a happy, tranquil expression. It was so pleasant to feel that she herself was exceedingly pretty, and that in that respect this unknown cousin would probably be beneath her contempt.

"I wish Guy had told us more about her,'" she went on. "He only sent such a scrap of a note, and did not say a word about her."

"Perhaps there was nothing to say," suggested the fond elder sister. "There is nothing to say about some people you know."

"I wonder what she will think of this house. She can't have seen anything like it, either in Whitfield or Polland."

She looked round complacently as she spoke, for she had a vulgar little soul, and loved to think other people might be dazzled or impressed by what were every-day matters to her.

"You go too far, Dora," said Gertrude in mild reproof. "Diana is not likely to be common, and you speak almost as if you thought she would be."

"Oh, no, not so bad as that, or how could we bear to have her in the house? But I don't suppose she is used to things as we have them here; and probably she won't know quite how to behave."

"Well, she will be here pretty soon and then you can judge for yourself, dear. I am curious to see her I admit. It seems so strange that we have never met."

"That is entirely her own fault," said Dora, with a hard ring in her voice, which surprised a great many people the first time they heard it. "I am not at all curious to see her. I am very sorry she is coming and I see no use in pretending we are glad."

"We must be civil, Dora."

"Oh, yes, we can be civil, and I don't intend to be more. She refused to come and live here when a home was offered her, and I am sure it was very kind of us to offer it; and now that she has to come she can't expect a very warm welcome. Besides, we don't want her; she will be in the way. I don't see any place for her among us."

"Well, dear," said Gertrude, soothingly, for the spoiled child's voice had risen to a very angry pitch, "I don't suppose she will be much in your way; she will be a great deal with aunty, of course."

"I hope she will and that she won't expect to join in what we do, and to visit with us. It will be such a nuisance, having to introduce her to all our friends. I expect she will be shabby and badly dressed. Oh, I am angry that she is coming? I wish we had never sent for her. I feel sure she will spoil everything and be a regular drag upon us. Why did you send for her, Gerty?"

"My dear child, do not excite yourself so," said Gertrude, in alarm. "Aunty was so ill, there was no choice. We thought she was dying, and we could not let her die without sending for her only daughter."

"Yes; but she has not died. That is just the provoking part of it.

"My darling!" said Gertrude, very gravely.

"I don't mean its provoking that aunty has not died. Poor aunty! I am very fond of her, and would not have her die for anything; and it would be so terrible to have a death in the house. But it is provoking that she should have been so alarmingly ill that we all thought she was going to die, and sent for this girl in such a hurry. Then aunty rallies, and by the time Diana comes is quite on the way to recovery. I do call it provoking, and I am sure that in your hearts you all think the same thing."

"Well, love it cannot be helped now."

"No; that is the worst of it! How long do you suppose we shall have her here?"

"Till aunty is well, I suppose. Perhaps papa will again offer her a home."

"Oh, dear! I hope not. But if she sees she is not welcome, perhaps she won't want to stay."

"Don't do anything unkind, dear," said Gertrude, rather apprehensively. "I am not glad she is coming, but we could not do otherwise than send for her. When these sudden emergencies arise, it is very difficult to know the best thing to do. But at the same time we must be kind; she is a perfect stranger to us, and it would not be right to make her feel awkward and not at home. I think the best way will be to let see we mean well, and then leave her to find her own place among us; she will soon do that."

Dora received all this in silence. It was the nearest approach to a lecture which Gertrude ever made, and at least showed Dora one thing, that if she behaved badly to Diana, she would not meet with any support from her sister.

HEALTH AND HOME.

A QUEER CHINESE ANÆSTHETIC.

A curious anæsthetic used by the Chinese has recently been made known. It is obtained by placing a frog in a barrel of flour and irritating it by prodding it. Under these circumstances it exudes a liquid which forms a paste with the flour. The paste, dissolved in water, has well marked anæsthetic properties. After the finger has been immersed in the liquid for a few minutes it can be cut to the bone without any pain being felt.

BALDNESS DUE TO INDIGESTION.

Of all the causes of premature baldness none is so common as indigestion. Dyspepsia and weak and falling hair go hand in hand. As the one affection has increased so has the other, and not all the oil of Macassar, the bear's grease of Siberia, nor the cantharides of Spain will prevent a man's hair from shortening and thinning whose stomach is badly out of order. Indeed, anything which debilitates the nervous system has a weakening effect on the scalp tissues, which shows that loss of hair may proceed from general as well as local causes.

THE WASHING OF HANDS A SANITARY MEASURE.

Clean hands are praiseworthy, both literally and in business transactions metaphorically. The Sanitary Era adds another powerful incentive to keeping that part of the human body clean: "Cases of infection that could be accounted for in no other way have been explained by the fingers as a vehicle. In handling money, especially of paper, door-knobs, banisters, car-straps and 100 other things, that every one must frequently touch, there are chances innumerable of picking up germs of typhoid, scarletina, diphtheria, smallpox, etc. Yet some persons actually put such things in their mouths, if not too large! Before eating, or touching that which is to be eaten, the hands should be immediately and scrupulously washed. We hear much about general cleanliness as 'next to godliness.' It may be added that here, in particular, it is also ahead of health and safety. The Jews made no mistake in that 'except they washed they ate not.' It was a sanitary ordinance as well as an ordinance of decency."

DOGS HEALTHY AS CHILDREN'S PETS.

Cats have long enjoyed the reputation of taking threatened or actual diseases from a child, but a medical authority, quoted by the Chicago Journal, claims that dogs perform a similar service: "I don't mean that the dog shall actually sleep with the child, but be with it continually—be played and romped with. There is something in the mere healthy animalism of the dog which goes to make the child healthy. For a dog can catch every disease from a child, and just by being about can often decrease the violence of an attack—take off some of the disease, you know. But a child never takes a disease from a dog. Of course the dog should be accommodated to the infant. A delicate baby should not be with a rough and vigorous young dog. Nor should a healthy and hearty child have too small a companion puppy. To carry out this principle still further, a dog is of great benefit in a consumptive's room. For one in the early stages of that disease the constant presence of a dog is the best thing I know of."

FRUIT AS FOOD.

Now, I will tell you what I claim for fruit as food; that is, for fruit as a complement of one's daily diet. First, that it is exceedingly palatable; secondly, that it causes, owing to this very palatableness, an increased flow of saliva; thirdly, that it thus assists us in digesting other food, both bread and meat; fourthly, that fruit is itself easily assimilated by the system; fifthly, that it keeps the system free and in good working condition; sixthly, that from its acids, salts, and essential oils the blood is purified and disease germs destroyed; and seventhly, that from its saccharine matter the body is nourished and the animal heat kept up.

It would seem like a paradox to say that fruit both warms and cools the body, but such is the case. In summer its acids temper and equalize the heat, in winter its sugars warm. Sugar and acid, in fact, are so equally balanced in this food, formed in the great laboratory of nature, that neither preponderates unduly or to the detriment of the other.

Pimples, boils and other humors are liable to appear when the blood gets heated. To cure them, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—Dog days are over, the dog-catcher is no longer seen on the streets, and instead of muzzles the festive canines of the city are displaying the abrasions on their countenances which have been caused by the wire masks which have been so gladly forsaken. Henceforth:

Let dogs delight
To bark and bite.

—In his discourse last evening—taking for his text Rev. xiv., 13. Rev. Mr. Boyd, pastor of Queen's Avenue Methodist Church, referred to the useful and self-denying life-work and triumphant death of Mrs. Elliott, a mother in Israel, who was one of the oldest members of the church. She had faithfully performed the duties of class-leader for upwards of 40 years and was beloved by all.

—Mr. H. C. Symonds, of the ADVERTISER subscription department, was agreeably surprised on Saturday by half a dozen of the Weekly agents, who presented him with a couple of very handsome plush-covered chairs, in recognition of the uniform courtesy with which Mr. Symonds had ever treated them in connection with the subscription department. Mr. Symonds made a suitable reply.

—Roderick McDonald was up before Magistrate Parke this morning charged with using abusive language towards Mrs. Susan Hammond of Queen street. McDonald was put in the box, after Mrs. Hammond had ventilated her grievances, and denied ever having said anything disparaging of Mrs. Hammond at any time or place. As the evidence was conflicting the Magistrate dismissed the case and bound both of them over for $50 to keep the peace toward each other for one year.

—Mr. McMullen, who occupied the pulpit of King Street Presbyterian Church so acceptably a few weeks ago, again preached there last evening. He chose as his text I. Cor., xvi., 13: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." Mr. McMullen delivered a sermon of exceptional power and depth, in which the leading truths of Christianity were presented in a faithful and forcible manner. The anthem, "Be Ye Strong in the Lord," by the choir was well rendered.

Committed for Lunacy.

Thomas Hastings, the man who attempted to commit suicide in the jail a couple of weeks ago by cutting his throat, appeared at the Police Court this morning charged with insanity. Dr. Smith testified as to the symptoms Hasting had displayed, of being in an unsound mental condition. The Magistrate decided to commit him to prison. His wife Catharine was also up at the court charged with vagrancy, and was also sent down—her term being two months—upon pleading guilty. It appears that both husband and wife are very intemperate.

Serious Accident in South London.

A painful accident happened in South London on Saturday evening which may yet result fatally. As one of Stanton's wagons was delivering ice on Craig street, Eli Mustill, a little son of Mr. John Mustill, ran after the vehicle and endeavored to climb on the step at the back. In some way he was caught in one of the wheels and thrown up in the air, sustaining several severe bruises about the head. The driver immediately went in search of a doctor, and in a few minutes the little sufferer was made as comfortable as possible. On Sunday the doctors had but slight hopes of the lad's recovery, but he took a turn for the better to-day, and if no complications set in, may recover.

Criminal Assault Not Proven.

Walter Magee, the deaf mute, who was charged with an indecent assault on the 4-year-old daughter of James Dudley, Wellington street, appeared in the dock for examination at the Police Court Saturday morning. When the rest of the cases had been disposed of, Mr. McKillop held a consultation with the relatives of the little girl, with the result that the court adjourned to Magistrate Parke's office in the next room. Magee was brought up and Mr. McKillop conducted the cross-examination by signs. The prisoner admitted taking the child into the vacant house, but affirmed that he was acquainted with her and had often played with her, and furthermore that he had no wrong intention. He promised faithfully never to interfere with the girl again. The Magistrate discharged him, as the child was too young to give evidence and as Magee had been discovered in nothing criminal.

They Have an Ear for Music.

A meeting of the junior members of the Board of Trade was held Saturday evening for the purpose of completing arrangements for the excursion to Detroit to-morrow. It was decided to secure the services of the full band of the Seventh Fusiliers to accompany the excursionists. The band will leave the Board rooms at 7:45 o'clock and march to the C. P. R. depot, where a number of pieces will be rendered previous to the departure of the train, which leaves at 8:30. It was also decided to spend part of the time at Star Island or Brighton Beach, and for this reason Mr. A. Holman was sent on to Detroit this morning to make arrangements with one of the steamship companies to carry the entire party. As the St. Thomas Board of Trade is picnicking at the former place it is altogether likely that it will be chosen for the water trip. It the evening the party will dine at the Russell House after which the return trip will be made. The Board is of the opinion that the Chatham delegation intend to turn out with a gilt edge as two special cars were sent down there the other day to be decorated for the occasion. They will likely have one or more bands accompanying them.

Death Calls Another.

After a protracted illness Mrs. Elliott, of 370 King street, a resident of this city for nearly 40 years, passed peacefully away on Friday morning last. Deceased had reached the ripe age of 69 years, having survived her husband, the late Wm. Elliott, fourteen years. She was well known and highly respected. Naturally of a kind and affectionate disposition, she won the friendship of all with whom she was associated, and during her long illness of seventeen weeks the kind word of many a warm friend helped to cheer and comfort her, and during this period she had the consolation of each member of her devoted family. From early youth she was a consistent member of the Methodist Church and for the last 35 years a class leader. Deceased will be mourned by a large circle of friends, and more immediately by the members of her class in Queen's Avenue Church. A family of five daughters and one son survive her, Mrs. Alex. Shaw, Montreal; Mrs. Sparling, wife of G. B. Sparling, M.A., Upper Canada College, Toronto; Mrs. Eli Pavey, St. Thomas, and two residing at home, and John W. Elliott, engineer, Globe train, G. T. R. The funeral took place at 3 o'clock this afternoon to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

A Family's Difference.

The Police Court was the scene of a family squabble on Saturday morning. Catharine Jones was arrested Friday night for drunkenness, and appeared at the court Saturday morning evidently the worse for her debauch. John Jones, her husband, a respectable-looking man living on the corner of Maitland and York streets, stated that he could do nothing with her.

"They won't let me alone, between him and the policemen," pleaded Mrs. Jones. "Look at this, your Worship." And she rolled up her sleeve to show the court her bruised arm.

"She has been drinking ever since the Queen's birthday," interposed her husband. "I have a miserable life to lead. Sometimes she meets me with a club when I go home, and I often have to leave without my dinner. The neighbors will tell you what she is."

"Don't you believe him, your Worship," said the woman, looking unutterable things at her spouse, "he's even turned my own boys against me."

"How can you imagine boys will respect a drunken mother?" asked the Magistrate.

"Oh, it was an unhappy day for me when I clapped eyes on that man," murmured Mrs. Jones as she sat down.

The Magistrate fined her $5 or twenty days for drunkenness, but, as she desired to go down for a longer period, an information for vagrancy was made out, and two months added to her term.

HE DID NOT KNOW.

Assault Case at the Police Court—Examination of the Boy Paul Quick—The Case Dismissed.

There was an unusually large crowd at the Police Court this morning, as there generally is when anything unusual is on the list. The announcement that the case in which Stephen A. Barnhart, of 195 Colborne street, is charged with an indecent assault on Paul, the 6-year-old boy of Israel Quick, painter, 190 Colborne street, would come up this morning, no doubt accounted for the fact. But they were doomed to disappointed, so far as hearing anything was concerned. When the rest of the business had been dispensed with the court room was cleared and only those directly interested were allowed to remain.

The little boy was placed on the stand and first examined by Mr. Ed. Meredith, counsel for Barnhart.

"Do you know when your birthday is?"

"No."

"Do you go to school?"

"Yes."

"Which one do you go to?"

"The big red brick one."

"What street is it on?"

The boy could not tell.

"Did you ever hear of the Bible?"

"No."

"Did you ever hear of kissing the Bible?"

"No."

"Do you know where boys go when they die?"

"They go to heaven."

"Do all boys go to heaven?"

"No."

"What boys do go to heaven?"

"Good boys."

"Do you know what God is?"

"No."

"Do you know what heaven is?"

"No."

"Do you know what to tell lies is?"

"No."

Mr. McKillop—Do you know you can be punished if you tell lies?

"Yes."

It was evident that the boy did not understand the nature of an oath, although Mr. McKillop maintained that he had a conception of what was right and wrong. The Magistrate decided that the evidence of the boy could not be taken, and as no further witnesses were forthcoming, he dismissed the case.

Party Politics.

When party politics run high bad feeling and bad blood are often caused, but all parties agree that when bad blood arises from ordinary causes the only satisfactory cure is Burdock Blood Bitters, nature's blood purifier. Recommended by the medical profession.
