"WILLFUL MURDER."

Such Is the Verdict at the Coroner's Inquest.

Charles Hodges Will Be Put on Trial for His Life.

The Jury Indite Him for the Slaying of Benjamin Hubbard on Sunday—The Farm Laborers' Testimony.

The inquest on the death of Benjamir The inquest on the death of Benjamin Hubbard was resumed by Coroner Flock at Fralick's Hotel, Arva, Thursday atternoon. Attorney McKillop appeared for the Crown, and Mr. J. Judd for the prisoner, Charles Hodges, who was present and quietly followed the evidence.

George Watt, a laborer employed on the Geary farm, was the first witness called. He testified that he saw the prisoner and deceased on the Sunday afternoon when the

He restified that he saw the prisoner and deceased on the Sunday afternoon when the tragedy occurred. Both men were at the milk house on a platform near the door, and were wrestling with each other. Hubbard had Hodges by the whisker, and Hodges had Hubbard by the collar. Mrs. Hodges hen ran up to them and parted them. Hodges then went into the milk house and Hubbard staggered down the steps like a drunken man and fell forward on his face. The witness thought Hubbard was intoxicated and did not go near him. He did not see Hubbard again until he was laid in the cated and did not go near nim. He did not see Hubbard again until he was laid in the barn. He was dead then and there was a dark stain over the left breast. Hodges went to the engine house shortly after and said, "I believe Hubbard is dead."

Witness—I went to feed the calves.

A close examination drew from the witness the fact that he had seen the prisoner half an hour after the tragedy.

Attorney McKillop—What did you say?

Witness—I said Hubbard has been stabbed, and Hodges said, "I did not do it."

The rest of the evidence was given very reluctantly, the witness maintaining that he did not remember what he said to the prisoner other than that he talked to him about taking his milk route the next day. He had not seen him with a knife that day, but he was in the habit of carrying a two-bladed tobacco knife. The men were not on good terms for some time on account of previous quarrels, and frequently they called each other names.

To Mr. J. Judd the witness stated that he never saw Hodges with a knife, except in his own house, as smoking was not allowed near the farm buildings.

Re-examined by Attorney McKillop the witness admitted that he charged Hodges with stabbing Hubbard, and that the prisoner said he did not stab him but that he had struck him.

Re-examined by Attorney McKillop the witness admitted that he charged Hodges with stabbing Hubbard, and that the prisoner said he did not stab him but that he had struck him.

Robert Geary, brother of the man who employed the deceased and the prisoner testified that fire was within sight of the milk house when the quarrel took place. The rattling of cans was the first thing that attracted his attention. He looked out and saw Mrs. Hodges between her husband and the deceased. Hubbard them staggered down the steps and fell. Hodges then came over to the boiler-house and said: "Ben caught me by the whiskers and struck mo in the face. He cut me here (pointing to his eyebrow which was covered with blood), and I struck him in the stomach." The prisoner's hand was covered with blood, and I struck him in the stomach." The prisoner's hand was covered with blood, and I struck him in the stomach." The prisoner's hand was covered with blood on the inside and outside. Witness did not see Hodges again until he was going away with the detective.

THE VICTIM'S SON.

Philip Hubbard, an 11-year-old son of the deceased, was then called. He was within five or six feet of his father when he came down the steps. He had heard no quarrel between his father and the prisoner. When his father got down the steps he fell, and never moved or said anything. Both the prisoner and his wife were on the platform at that time. Mrs. Hodges came down the steps and turned the prisoner and his wife were on the platform at that time. Mrs. THE VICTIM'S SON. were on the platform at that time. Mrs. Hodges came down the steps and turned the body of the deceased over, his face being downwards. She then spoke to Hodges, asking him what was the matter. Her husband replied, "He came up here for a row, and he got it." Hodges then went across the yard, passing by the victim's feet. He came back and called Alfred Wood, who had assisted to carry the body into the stable and went into the milk house. He did not see Hodges and his father having hold of one another and did not hear the prisoner say anything after he called to he prisoner say anything after he called to

To Mr. Judd witness said that the ground was rough where his father was walking.
Mr. Judd—Did he fall on his breast? Witness—Yes, Attorney McKillop—I object.

The witness stuck to his statement and was recorded. His father carried a knife that day, and witness saw him with it a few minutes before the tragedy. The knife had a broken blade and another small one. To the foreman of the jury the witness said he saw no knite in his father's hand when he fell.

ALFRED WOODS' EVIDENCE.

Alfred Woods, another employe of Mr.
Geary's, was then called. The witness was an Englishman of about 25 years. He cast his eyes down after taking the oath and did not raise them during the entire period of his interrogation. He testified that after the occurrence the princess results. the prisoner called to him. He said:
"Woods, go down and tell Geary that Hubbard came into the milk house to quarrel with me and fell off the step." In a subsequent conversation the witness said he spoke to Hodges about oats for the horses, but heard nothing and said nothing about the tragedy. He sat with Hodges for about fifteen minutes and then went to bed. He did not get up when the officers came for Hodges. He was employed by Hodges and slept in his house.

The coroner then took the witness in

A LITTLE MORE EXPLICIT.

Carrie Hubbard threw a little more light on the sad affair, especially respecting the finding of the body and her father's reason for entering the milk-house. Mrs. Hodges spoke first when the deceased fell. She said: "Come, Hubbard, get up, and don't be foxing like that." Witness had seen her father but a few minutes previous to the fatal occurrence. There was some discussion of the proposal to bar municipal councilors from becoming members of Boards of Education, Mr. Meredith and others objecting to it. The Minister defended the principle, being ably seconded and supported by Mr. Stratton. The clause was carried.

In the course of the consideration of the educational estimates there was a very interesting discussion on kindergarten schools arising out of the new item of a grant of $3,000 for those schools. In answer to Mr. Gibson, of Huron, Mr. Ross gave a brief but comprehensive statement of the principles underlying the kindergarten system, and of the advantages presented by it. Mr. Meredith wanted to know generally what class of pupils attended the kindergartens, suggesting that anything which made inroads upon the home life of the children more than the present system ild was to be regarded with careful scrutiny. One of the disadvantages of the public school system was the home life of the children was much transferred to the State, the feeling growing among parents that the State fore invalids will please not take offense if they are rejected as incurable. NO "CLASS" IN THE SCHOOLS. In Toronto, they have a department in connection with the Collegiate Institute known as "the preparatory." It is composed of pupils who really should be in the public schools. But it seems there is a class of people in Toronto who think that the public schools are not select enough for their refined offspring, and they demand that this special depart-ment shall be kept up for them. Hon. G. W. Ross, in the new school act, has he brought down on his head the wrath of several members of the Legislature. Among others who opposed the abolition of this class department was Mr. Meredith, who, now having his home in Toronto, is naturally interested in its "institutions." All the same, it seems only proper in this democratic age that the anomaly should be swept away, and the Legislature so de-

"READY AND EAGER!" Now that the elections are over, a high tax contemporary says Sir John Macdonald is ready and eager for reciprocity with the States. Yet but a few weeks ago he and Tupper went up and down the country denouncing every one who favored close trade relations with the States as traitors to their country. The Conservative leader was so anxious for reciprocity that in three olumns of an address to his constituents. he did not once mention it, nor has he up to this time stated one article in which he is prepared to reciprocate!

THE TURF.

At George E. Tuckett's sale of horses at Hamilton Wednesday Mr. Robert Davies, of Toronto, paid the highest price for a single animal, $550 for the imported English mare Beehive, in foal to Strathspey. He also gave $330 for the yearling filly by Strathspey and Beehive. Mr. Wm.

Hendrie bought the trotting mare Adriel, Strathspey and Beehive. Mr. Wm. Hendrie bought the trotting mare Adriel, by Administrator, for $154. Joe James got the bay filly Miss Myrtle, Adriel's daughter, by Superior, for $186. The Clear Grit mare Minnie, foaled in 1879, went to Fitch Bros. for $90, and another Clear Grit mare of the same age went as low as $26. Twenty-eight head brought $4,000.

The Belmonts, of Philadelphia, will make a tour west this summer, playing with Pittsburg, Detroit and Chicago.

Cricket has received a great boom on the Pacific coast. A league, consisting of six clubs, has been formed, and a regular championship series of games arranged. A Denver team will make a tour through California, and help to keep the enthusiasm alive.

The visits of English cricketers, which were so frequent when the game was of a poor standard in America, appear to have chased now that a really good team can be placed in the field. It is five years since the last team, under the management of E. J. Sanders, was here

It was supposed to be a profound secret, but owing to a very beculiar circumstance it leaked out. One of Montreal's most sucit leaked out. One of Montreal's most successful business men, and a strict church member, and one who was always looked upon as a total abstainer from alcoholic beverages, was compelled by medical law to use a certain quantity of brandy three times a day as a stimulant and invigorator. This merchant, from morn to night, had the cares and trials of an immense business on his shoulders; and some time ago became so weary, thin, worn out looking, and withal, so nervous and irritable, that his condition excited dread and alarm among his friends. For weeks the brandy diet was strictly adhered to in secret, when suddenly, coming excited dread and alarm among a treat of the received with great determination to give up the brandy and its physical remedy which had been recommended by a well known Corn Exchange plan. This remedy proved to be Patre's Celery Compound, and its use was at once commenced by the merchant. His surprise and pleasure was great after using the Compound for a week. He found his appetite returning, his nervous system in better condition, and strength taking the place of lassitude and weariness. In less than a month his bodily strength was greatly increased, his sleep was healthful and refreshing, and his capacity for work as great as ever before.

This is not an uncommon case; scores of such could be pointed out if necessary, showing the useless, yea the evil effects of alcholic stimulants, and the grand results of that great restorer and tonic, Paine's Celery Compound.

Liquor Cases Dismissed.

License Inspector Henderson had John Lewis and Matthew Glass before Magistrate Parke yesterday for breaches of the Liquor License Act. Both men were charged with selling liquor after 7 o'clock on Saturday evening. In the first case P. C. Howie testified that he heard voices and noises in Lewis' bar-room at 9:50 o'clock Saturday evening. He walked down the block and when he came back he met Constable Crawford and the inspector at Lewis'. The three went into Lewis' and the inspector demanded admittance to the bar. Constable Crawford testified that there were glasses on the bar and that in Liquor Cases Dismissed.

Francis Love appeared for the defendant. Lewis and his son each swore that there was no person in the bar after hours that day and the case was dismissed.

In the case against Matthew Glass, the inspector testified that in company with Constable Crawford he visited Glass' place on Saturday evening. He gave three short raps on the dining-room door and in a short time five men came out and among them the proprietor. The inspector on going into the bar found four glasses standing on the bar with the froth still simmering in them. For the detense the proprietor swore that he alone was in the bar at the time and that he went in to get a parcel. The case was dismissed.

The case was dismissed.

A LADY READS THE ADVERTISEMENT.

At about this time an English lady, who might be described with truth as young, interesting and handsome, sat in a small top room in a house near the Rue de l'Opera in Paris, counting a pile of napoleons and france. It was such a scanty pile that she counted it over and over again to try and make it bigger. The reason of her anxiety was that this little heap of gold and silver represented to the young lady her whole pecuniary fortune; and while she counted it she was asking herself what she must do when the store should be exhausted. Having quite satisfied herself that there were no more coins in the heap than she had numbered at the first reckoning, she got up and began to pace the room; taking mental stock as she did so of everything that it contained.

But everything, or nearly everything, belonged to the French landlady, for the room was a hired one. The young lodger's chattels were chiefly personal ornaments and articles of the toilet; but these, though not numerous, were a good deal better in quality than one might have expected in the possession of a top-storytenant. Notice ably, there were hairbunshes whose elony backs were inlaid with silver; on the chimmey-piece were two scent-bottles with silver tops; and the diminutive and unsteady dressing-table contained two or three small moroceo cases, one of which, lying open, discovered a gold braclet. Amongst two or three dresses hanging on the door was a silk one which looked quite to the contained two or three small moroceo cases, one of which, lying open, discovered a gold braclet. "The red room!" said Miss Nugent.

"And why the red room, if ye please?

When Arthur comes, won't he have the room he slept in always?"

"Oh, ye may have Arthur's room ready, too, to be sure!" replied her brother.

"Tisn't that room I was thinking of, for I know there's small need of asking you to have Arthur in mind. "Tis the red room I mean, and no other. It's just a notion of me own I have that I'll advertise in the newspapers for company. Isn't that a great

SOLID FACTS FOR SMOKERS

Reasons Why S. Davis & Sons Maintain the Quality of Their Brands. It has taken the best part of a life time which they have spent their that, and labor, but would result in a loss of that confidence the public have favored them with that money again apent in advertising to introduce new brands could not purchase. Therefore, is it to be supposed that any sane business man would be so foolish as to destroy in a short time what it has taken so long to establish?

Their brands, "Cable," "Mungo," "El Padre" and "Madre e Hijo" are undoubtedly the best value, the safest and most reliable smoke, and cost no more to the consumer than cigars of much inferior quality. Why smoke other brands or permit dealers (for the sake of additional gain) to sell you those that you are in most cases unfamiliar with?

A TRAVELER.

I have traveled the wide world over. In India, where I lived for years, I becamo afflicted with corns and bunions, and that more terrible disease of the feet by which so many terrible disease of the feet by which so many natives are cripided, and known in India as "SAND FERT!" I have lain in the hospitals for weeks under the best medical treatment, from which I received little or no benefit, and was all but reconciled to suffer for the remainder of my life, when happily I came across that great benefaction of this 19th century, popularly known as "BARKWELL'S SURE CORN CURE. You will say I am very loud in my praise, Mr. You will say I am very reason to be so, and would be very ungraveful if I were not. I got a bottle three years ago and it cured me completely when everything else failed. I have every faith in Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure, and my wife and I publish it as far as we can. If Mr. Barkwell lived in India he would make a fortune out of his Corn Cure; and I am happy to subscribe my name.

Collins—Moody.

There was a large and pleasant gathering in Aldboro township, near Wardsville, on Wednesday evening, when Mr. Ira Collins, of the G. T. R., this city, was married to Miss Dora, third daughter of Mr. John Moody, of Aldboro, the affair taking place at that gentleman's residence. The bridesmaid was the youngest sister of the bride, miss Rachel Moody, and the groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Irum Collins, of Tilsonburg. The performance of the ceremony was in the hands of Rev, Mr. Leith, of Wardsville Methodist Church. The evening was happily spent in viewing the extensive collection of presents and in partaking of the nicely-prepared supper. The newly-wedded couple have gone on a trip to Niagara Falls and other points east. They will live on Talbot street, this city.

In Faver of Woman Suffrage.

London Trades and Labor Council met last night in Labor Hall, Dufferin avenut. Several communications were read and disposed of. The secretary was instructed to communicate with the Teachers' Association re teachers' salaries, to Minister of Agriculture re enforcing Factory Act, Minister of Education thanking him for bill on compulsory education. The council indorsed Mr. Meredith's bill for the consolidation of the city debt. A petition from the W. C. T. U. in regard to woman suffrage caused quite a debate, and on unanimous vote the president and secretary were instructed to sign the petition on behalf of the council. Interesting reports were received from the Legislative, Municipal and Education Committees. The council now meets once a month instead of twice as heretofore.

Watt for the Big Show.

Zera Semon's big show will be at the Opera House next week, commencing on Monday evening. The Toronto Mail says: "Zera Semon and his excellent company gave a splendid and most pleasing entertainment at the opera house last evening before a large audience which packed the opera house from stage to door. The first part of the entertainment consisted of sleight-of-hand and magic by Zera Semon. Then the Reed brothers' shadowgraph act was really a fine piece of masterwork. Then came the Pattens in songs and dances, who just took the audience by storm in their specialties. There was the world's famous juggler, Edgar Nelton, who as a juggler is to-day unsurpassed in his line. Sahib Ben Hommed, in black art, was wonderful, and kept the audience in a wild state of excitement. He had tables flying through the air, and many other things too numerous to mention. The world's greatest musical marvel, Joseph Lee, and the two Bees, in their character specialties, also appeared."

Runjeet Singh cared little for human life, which was his toy or plaything. No one who knows his historical character will for oment admit that he would let himself a moment admit that he would let himself be deceived or played upon in a matter on which he had set his heart. Each scene—the suspension of life, the burnal, the disinterment, the reviving—took place in the tyrant's own presence, and before hundreds of spectators in open daylight and with every precaution that absolute despotic power could command. Runjeet cared little whether the man lived or died, so that his own curiosity was gratified. The guards under the palace windows commanded by Avitable would be anxious solely to carry out Runjeet Singh's wishes.—[Chambers' Journal,

Rare Absorption in Work.

Rare Absorption in Work.

The late chief justice of Maine, John Appleton, who has just died at a great age, had the literary as well as the legal instinct. He was born to read and love books as well as to be a judge. There was a literary-davor to his written opinions. He knew what was fresh in literature, here and abroad. He found time to read novels—good ones. As a trustee of Bowdoin College, when he graduated just before the golden age of the college, when Hawthorne, Longfellow and other men afterward famous were students, he kept touch with college men. His power of abstraction was great. He lost himself in a case. Absorbed in the details of a proin a case. Absorbed in the details of a procodure, he would go about in an absent-minded way, almost oblivious of sights and sounds. One day he met his own son, stopped him, and said cordially, "When do you expect your father home?" Life to-day acems so much on the surface, there is so little time to think, so much to do, that this picture lof a great lawyer and judge absorbed in his work is particularly at-

Deserved Retaliation.

Over-shrewd lawyers often furnish their adversaries with weapons. Even the eleverest of them have been put down in open court by equally ready witnesses. "Did you see this tree that has been mentioned, by the roadside?" an advocate mentioned, by the roadside?" an acinquired.
"Yes, sir; I saw it very plainly."

"Yes, sir; I saw it very plainly."
"It was conspicuous, then?"
The witness seemed puzzled by the new word. He repeated his former assertion.
"What is the difference," sneered the lawyer, "between plain and conspicuous."
But he was hoist with his own petard.
The witness innocently answered:
"I can see you plainly, sir, amongst the other lawyers, though you are not a bit conspicuous."

one inwyers, shough you are not a bloconspicuous."

In another instance, a blow directed against the character of a witness forcibly tecoiled.

"You were in the company of these

"Of two friends, sir."
"Friends! Two thieves; I suppose you mean."

"" hat may be so," was the dry retort;

"The blow that destroys the effect of an adverse examination is occasionaly more the result of an accident than of conscious effort. In a trial, not long ago, a very simple witness was in the box, and after geing through his ordeal was ready to retire. One question remained:

"Now Mr. tire. One question remained:

'Now, Mr.—, has not an attempt been made to induce you to tell the court a different story?"

"A different story to what I have told,

Yes; is it not so ?" "Yes, is it not so?"
"Yes, sir."
"Upon your oath, I demand to know who the persons are who have attempted this."
"Well, sir, you've tried as hard as any of em," was the unexpected answer.
It ended the examination.

Well, sir, , a," was the unexpected.

It ended the examination.

Country Life in the Argentine.

In a new country the traveler must not be particular, much less exacting; above all he must not expect to find refinement is unong the inhabitants, whose whole efforts parely suffice to sustain the combat against she elements. Still, I cannot refrain from noting the impression of sadness and disgust produced by the sight af the towns and colonies of the pampa, and by a glimpse of the life that the inhabitants lead. Verily majority live worse than brutes, for mot even the cleanly instincts of not even the cleanly instincts of ald. Their houses are said. Their houses are the cold shoulder. I never was in such a fix."

A Good Dear

"Why is it that you treat with my husband, I cannot possibly treat you kindly."

"As long as you are not on good terms with my husband, I cannot possibly treat you kindly."

"This is a horrible dilemma," responded the gilded youth. "If you show me any attention your husband refuses to speak to me, and unless he is friendly you give me the cold shoulder. I never was in such a fix."

that does not wear a bestial and ferocious expression. In the villages, there are no clubs, no libraries, no churches, no priests, rarely even a school. The men and women eat, drink and sleep, and their only distraction is the grossest bestiality, gambling and drinking in the pulperia, with occasionally a little knifing and revolver-firing. During my whole stay in the Argentine, and in all the centers that I visited, I was struck by the utter absence of moral restraint, and by the hard materiality of the faces of the people, from the highest down to the lowest.—[Harper's Magazine.

A writer in Blackwood's Magazine tells an amusing story, illustrative of Lord Palmerston's manners and of Lady Palmerston's tact in avoiding a scene by entering the room at the suitable moment, and in her charming manner insisting on the discontented one accepting her hospitality.

An old diplomatist was recalled from an important but distant legation, and appointed to an inferior post in Europe. On the day of his arrival in London he called on his friend, the writer, in a state of indignation that he had never been consulted about the change.

"I shall go at once to Lord Palmerston and let him know in unmeasured terms what I think of his abominable conduct; atterwards I will return and tell you the result."

He did return, and his friend said, "I

"Plague on the fellow! Inever could say a word," answered the diplomatist. "I sent in my card and was kept in the dining-room—while he wis, of course, arranging the scene, for no sooner was I shown into his study than, before I could utter a word, he rushed up and seized me by both hands.

"My dear, dear friend,' he said, 'I rejoice we have you heek amorest us. vo.

I am off to a Cabine. Lady Palmerston, get our friend to tell you some of those anecdotes which used to delight us. I leave him in your care. Good-bye—au revoir, at 8 your care. Good-bye—au revoir, at 8 o'clock.

"And so be rushed out. I am engaged to dine, and have lost my chance."

WORDS THAT BURN.

MY GOBLINS In the careless days of boyhood would blanch my cheek, esun was hidden the mountain peak.

But when the night its shadow Spread over glen and dale, Then ugly goblins would fright me gend and fairy tale.

No somer I closed my eyelids Than horrors thronged my dream Of all my brave daylight courage Remained never a gleam,

But now in my mind so strangely
The years have wrought a change!
Now valor flees when the morning
Peeps o'er the mountain range.

Now 'tis the day's fierce goblins, Life's brawl and wild unrest
Which throng with shuddering visions
Of horror my aching breast.

'Neath the hem of the veil of darkness, I hide myself full fain, Then rises as bold as an eagle
My daring spirit again.

Then falcon-like cleaving the heavens,

Both flame and sea I defy,
All anguish and wee forgetting,
Till dawn awakes in the sky.

But if night's shelter be lacking
My soul cannot rise to its height,
If ever a deed I accomplish
It will be a deed of night.

A SONG OF CHANGES. I sang in the sun the whole day long.

I sat in the dark and mouned all night.

And yet at dawn in my heart I heard Once more the voice of a singing bird, But memory hushed it with a word, So my lips ne'er echoed what I heard.

And now I am neither sad nor gay;

Latest From Bishop Tucker in a letter Uganda. Under date of Nov. 22, says: From all I hear of Uganda the whole country is literally thirsting for instruction. Busoga presents a vastand most promising field. Ulu is an open door. Mombasa must be occupied, and the other stations reinforced and vacancies filled ur. Twenty men do I ask for? I could with the utmost case place 40 men. To give you an idea of the eager thirst of the Waganda for instruction, I need only say that a man will willingly work for three months for a single copy of the Swahili Testament. I cannot help thanking God that he put it into my mind to bring up 250 copies from Zanzibar. I also brought with me a large number of other books, parts of Scriptures, the Kiswahili prayer book, etc. I am told that there will be joy indeed in Uganda at the arrival of these books. Of course none will be given away, all will be sold, and consequently valued, nay, I am assured, treasured."

some of these bad John Smiths. At last what he feared so much actually happened. One day the papers recorded the capture of an accountant in a bank for embezzlement, and through some blunder of the reporter the identity of the embezzler was confused with the subject of this paragraph, who was also a bank accountant. Then and there he determined to assume a name like unto no other ever borne by mortal man. And in Gagadig Gigadab most people will agree that he has done so. Dickens, in his most erratic flights of nomenclature, never invented anything like it.

Lady Palmerston.

The spirit, if not the letter of the adage, "A man must ask his wife's leave to be rich," was illustrated in the career of Lord Palmerston. He owed much of his success as a political leader in the House of Commons to Lady Palmerston, whose popularity and hospitality made her an efficient helpmate.

Her dinners and receptions, where her tact and courtesy showed her a perfect hostess, not only kept her husband's sup-

Stirrly The interesting fact is thristianity, stated that while the number of Christians in Japan is only about one in 1,000, and in no province do Christians even approach to a majority, yet there have been eleven members of the House of Representatives chosen from their number. There are also three professed Christians in the House of Peers. A Christian has been chosen president of the new House of Representatives. A former vice-president of the Liberal party is an active Presbyterian elder. After his election he was advised to give up his office in the church, as it might create prejudice against him, but he replied that he regarded his office in a Christian church as more import-

"Truth's" Spring Bible Competition.

NO. 22.

SEND NOW.

DON'T DELAY.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have railed and utterly perished, yet Truth prevails, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. Please note that there are twenty-one divisions instead of three, as formerly, of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this spring list is about $10,000. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words first found: 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RVE. If your answers are correct, and your letters arrive in time, you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many, and everyone sending in cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many, and everyone sending in cannot always and correct answers to an these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. There have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that we have given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. We wish it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano, or both, but we can't do it. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't regret it; and bear in mind that we do not guarantee that everybody whose answers are correct will get a prize. But this we do say, that all those prizes in the twenty-one different

"This woman come down from the city on the train, an' she hes no money. She didn't know as she'd have to stage it to Carraville," explained Bold.

The woman came up to Sarah, trembling and pale. "It is my husband that is at Carraville. He has been drinking hardher an away from me a month ago. He was hurt last night—they sent me word to come if I would see him alive—and I can't go—I can't go !" Emergencies in the Nursery.

Emergencies in the Nursery.

In any sudden illness the first thing, if possible, is to learn the cause and to be calm yourself under all circumstances. If you allow yourself to become excited, you cannot do the best for the child, and if the little one is less than a year old, even, your excitement will add to the trouble.

If a child has a fall, soothe and quiet its crying, then ascertain, by moving the limbs, if they are broken. If the head is burt, do not let the child go immediately to sleep. If it shows nervous twitching or rolling of the eyeballs, call a physician. Nothing is better for bathing any bruise than witch hazel. If possible, get the extract made without alcohol, and always keep it ready for an emergency. If a limb and the state of the call of the "You shall go!" said the lictle tailoress.
"How much is it, Jem? Fifty cents? All right. Open the door for her."

She watched the wagon drive down the street, and then took her way home, her money jingling in her pocket, and her heart beating glad and warm in her bosom.

Three months later Sarah had business in Carrsville. As she passed a snug little cabin, a woman ran out and caught her by the hand. Her face was plump and rosy; she laughed with excitement.

Three months later Sarah had business in Carrsville. As she passed a snug little cabin, a woman ran out and caught her by the hand. Her face was plump and rozy; she laughed with excitement.

"Here you are! I can thank you at last. My husband did not die. They said my nursing saved him. He is hard at work now—he does not touch a drop. Come in and see the baby and our house."

She brought her in, placed her by the fire, and put the baby on her lap. "I'm such a happy woman," she said, "and it was your money did it all."

As Sarah rode home that evening she thought: "It was not my money, but that dollar which Pitts gave."

"Pitts, perhaps, would have traced it back still farther. So little do we reckon, when we plant a single seed of good, into what forests it may grow.

necessary to maintain that condition. Naturally the appetite varies with the changing seasons, and unless it indicates an unreasonable extreme of indulgence or abstinence, no attention need be paid to any other monitor. Much harm is done by injudicious or meddlesome friends suggesting that a person is too stout or too thin, too pale or too ruddy, and serious disturbances of the system often follow the mischievous advice to take some bitters, or pilla, or refrain from fattening food or drink. Paying attention to any of these fads is like playing with fire. If you are file enough to seem to warrant any radical change of diet or any application of medicine, cousult your physician at once. Above all, avoid advertised quack medicines. To use the opinion of a successful dealer in them, whose bank balance is more liberal than his conscience, they are "made to sell."

If you feel a little debilitated take the coac tonic; eat plenty of fresh ripe fruit and vegetables, especially oranges; drink lemonade, and when unusually fatigued, and ust before retiring, drink a glass of milk as hot as can be taken in large sips. Walk reasonably, and sleep in pure air. If a few days of this sort of home treatment fail to bring up the body and mind to their proper tone, call in your doctor and follow his advice.

A Sitting-Room.

An ideal sitting-Room.

An ideal sitting-room, I was going to the deal of fashionable people, for it has no polished floor or costly rug, and it is innocent of frieze, dado and portiere. The ceiling is low, and the furniture does not belong to any particular age or era. It is as far removed from the correctly furnished style, as it is from the shabby, good-enoughfor-every-day type so often seen.

style, as it is from the shabby, good-enoughfor-every-day type so often seen.

It is full of light and color, yet nothing wearies the eye, nor distracts attention from the harmonious whole.

I have won permission to describe this room, and will give a truthful description, hoping some owners of old-fashioned rooms may lost with more favor upon painted wold-work, paneled doors and papered walls.

I will only add that it is at present in winter array, and I understand some minor shanges are made in summer; but with that we have nothing to do.

The carpet has its brown ground-work aearly covered with the brown and yellow leaves that are scattered over it. The wall paper shows a quaint mingling of brown aegonia leaves and tall swamp grasses with tiny clusters of yellow ferns and dark red perries. The border is of deep red, broken by irregular lines of gold.

The wide old-fashioned sofa is brown, too, A thoughtful and considerate sobriety of mind, so that one always knows what he is about, and what he means to do and what he means not to do, as contrasted with a headlong, impetuous and reckless môde of acting, is a cardinal quality in living a successful and a virtuous life. Men must think, and do so seasonably, if they would make the journey of life wisely. Every young man needs to learn this lesson.

Pits he must wait, Mary," she said.

"Here is the money," she said, adding to herself, "I would rather see a bare table before me than an unpaid bill."

Mr. Pitis' debtors were not usually so prompt. He took the bill with a chuckle of surprise and satisfaction, and walked down the village street in high good humor. As he turned the corner he met Sarah Good, the tailoross, who had done many little jobs of sewing for him, for Pitis was not married.

"Here, Sarah "he called. "I will settle that bill which I have been owing you since Christmas, and here is a trifle over. These button-holes were so neatly worked that my Sunday coat looks like new."

Sarah turned the bright new dollar over line hand as she left him, with a sudden in joyous consciousness of unexpected wealth. She had almost given up hope of ever getting any part of Mr. Piti's bill, and here is a trifle over. The se button-holes were so neatly worked that my Sunday coat looks like new."

THE HORSEMAN.

Palo Alto has sold 335 trotters in New York City for $420,000. Great Britain and Ireland have adopted

The Kentucky Stock Farm predicts that the time is not far distant when England will furnish one of the best markets for the nerican trotting horse.

The Australian high jumping horse record is now 6 feet 6½ inches, Spondulix having jumped that height at the Royal Agricultural Show in Melbourne.

The Indiana Legislature has passed a law making "ringing" a penal offense. The maximum penalty for entering a ringer is three years' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000.

The owners of Axtell announce that they will give $5,000 for the first of the stallion's get to acquire the 1-year-old trotting record, $5,000 to the first to obtain the 2-year-old record, and $5,000 to the first to secure the 3-year-old record. These are liberal premiums.

Don't give a young horse a chance to run away, for if he runs once he is apt to run again on the slightest cause. If not allowed to run while young he will grow up in blissful ignorance of his power or ability to do so. Accustom a horse to all kinds of noises and accidents, by gently but firmly restraining him when frightened, and he will in time become almost incapable of fright.

At a conference of prominent members of the National Association of Trotting Horse Breeders in New York last week it was decided to call a meeting of breeders of the whole country at Chicago on April 22 to formulate plans for reorganization, etc. A determined effort is also being made to secure control of registration, now under direction of Mr. Wallace, of New York, founder of the Register. founder of the Register.

founder of the Register.

Mr. Frank Brown, a Millington (Mich.) correspondent, in renewing his subscription for the ADVERTISER, writes:

"I have a colt coming 1 year old that has bunches on his stilles as big as my fists and is very lame. What is the best thing to do for it?"

The description fails to inform us whether the enlargement is a hard or fluctuating tumor. If of a firm and callous nature, blistering would be the proper treatment; blistering would be the proper treatment; if soft and fluctuating, the fluid would require to be drawn off with an aspirator.

A prominent veterinary dentist speaks as follows about horses' teeth: "I have observed in stock farms in New York, Vermont and New Hampshire, where I have been professionally called, that a common mistake among horse breeders is not to attend to the second growth of teeth in their colts, and not to examine whether the first ones were shed before the second came. The result of this neglect is ill growing teeth, indigestion, foul breath, leanness; and, although the horse may have a good appetite, his food does not seem to nourish him because improperly masticated. All this combined makes a horse what is commonly called a puller. A wolf tooth in a colt hurts him when he is bitted, and gives him a bad mouth to drive. Many a horse has been called vicious or unmanageable which only had bad teeth.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

It is now provided by a law passed in Deumark, that all drunken persons shall be taken home in carriages, at the expense of the landlord who sold him the last glass.

The Minneapolis Brewing Syndicate reported 2,000 barrels more manufactured during the month of October than the same month in 1889, and the syndicate is about

The liquor traffic is no friend to the workman, so far as employment is concerned. It gives occupation to fewer men than any other business in proportion to its capital. For example, the annual outsput of a brewery estimated at $5,000,000 employs but 660 men, while an iron ore works of the same capital requires 4,800 laborers.

The great cause of social crime is drink. Then I ask myself in perfect wonderment why do not men put a stop to this thing? Our legislators will come to gether and pass every measure necessary to the welfare of the people, and yet pass laws sanctioning the sale of liquor through saloons.—[Archbishop Ireland.]

"Uncle George," said Mattie, "papa says you were a private in the army. Is that something very grand?"

"No, Mattie, not exactly grand," answered Uncle George, with beaming modesty; "not grand, but a post of great responsibility. Mr. Halford is private secretary to President Harrison, and you know that is a position of distinction. Well, I was a private in the army. Do you see, my dear?"

Edward Everett Hale is evidently a befiever in the principle of the coffee house.
He concludes a recent article in the Cosmopolitan as follows: "If I were the dictator of this nation, there should be beef tea, or some stimulant of equal value and innocence, at the door of every factory where hard work is done, that man or woman might drink a cup as he goes out from work, before he could refresh himself elsewhere. You overcome evil by putting in might drink a cup as he goes out from work, before he could refresh himself elsewhere. You overcome evil by putting in good. You keep the devil out of the house by introducing angels.

According to a cable dispatch in the papers of last week, the English House of Lords has almost as large a proportion of drink-shop owners as even the New York Legislature. The mew Blue-book, so the dispatch reads, discloses the fact that 152 Peers of the realm are the owners of places in which intoxicating drink is sold. The number of "drink-shops" owned by these Peers is 1,539. The list is headed by the Earl of Derby, who the Blue-book shows, is the owner of 72 drinking places. Next comes the Duke of Bedford, with 48 to his steld. Then comes the Duke of Devonshire with 48, followed by the Earl of Candon with 39, the Duke of Rutland with 37, the Earl of Dudley with 35, the Duke of Northumberland with 34 and the Duke of Northumberland with 34 and the Duke of Clandaff, who, the Blue-book shows, is the owner of two such places.

Mr. Job Scales, of Toronto, writes: "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact, I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in his state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northorp & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permaner, manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this "Challength of my gratitude."

A teacher in a remote part of Devon, while making visits to the pupil's homes, got into conversation with an ancient lady. Of course, the school and former teacher came in for criticism, and the old lady, in speaking of his predecessor, asked:

"Well, master, what do you think he larnt the scholards?"

"Couldn't say. Pray, what did he teach?"

"Well, he told e'm that this 'ere airth was reound, and went reound, and all that sort of thing. Now, master, what do you think about sich stuff? Don't you think that he was an ignorant feller?"

Unwilling to come under this category, the teacher evasively remarked:

"It does seem strange, but still there are many learned men who teach these things."

"Well," said she, "if the airth is reound, and goes reound, what holds it up?"

"Oh, those learned men say it goes round the sun, and the sun holds it up by virtue of attraction," he replied.

The Law of Conjugal Astraction.

Hermann Fol, one of the most eminent of iving embryologists, while staying at Nice—the Mecca of honeymooning—had his attention attracted to the resemblances between young married couples. The popular notion that married people "end by resembling each other" was shared by Fol, but his trained vision detected among crowds of young married couples characteristics that led him to suppose a contrary proposition to be nearer the truth—they begin by resembling each other. To put the matter to scientific test he engaged in a series of observations and researches on the photographs of young and old married couples, the results of which he publishes in the Revue Scientifique. The following table gives his statistical conclusions:

Resemblances. Non-resemblances.

I WOULD not be doing justice to the afflicted if I withhold a statement of my experience with Jaundice, and how I was completely cured by using Korthrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. No one can tell what I suffered for mine weeks, one-third of which I was confined to my bed, with the best medical skill I could obtain in the city trying to remove my affliction, but without even giving me temporary relief. My body was so sore that it was painful for me to walk. I could not bear my clothes tight around ree, my bowels only operated when taking purgative medicines, my appetite was gone, nothing would remain on my stomach, and my eyes and body were as yellow as a guinea. When I ventured on the street I was stared at or turned from with a repulsive feeling by the passer-by. The doctors add there was no cure for me. I made up my mind to die, as I're I and Dora Lt. Fro. Cananas. One day a friend called to see me and advised me to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. It hought if the doctors could not cure me, what is the use of trying the Discovery, but atter deliberating for a time I concluded to give it a trial, so I procured a bottle and commenced taking it three times a day. Junso or key surpass at the expiration of the third day to find my appetite returning. Despair gave place to Hope, and I persevered in following the directions and taking Hot Baths two or three times a week until I had used the fifth bottle. I then had no further need for

ion. Blood. What the British Tenant Farmers Saw in Canada.

nable Hints on Farm and Garden Culture, Cattle, Bees, Etc.

What the Tenant Farmer Delegates for Canada, Sir Charles Tupper, by the direction of the Minister of Agriculture, invited the following who are all connected with agriculture in the different parts of wited the following who are all connected with agriculture in the different parts of Great Britain and Ireland in which they reside to visit the Dominion of Canada, to report upon its agricultural resources, and the advantages the country offers for the settlement of farmers and farm laborers, and the other classes: Mr. George Brown, Watten Mains, Caithness, Scotland; Mr. Arthur Daniel, 172, Dereham road, Norwich, Norfolk; Mr. Wm. Edwards, Ruthin, Wales; Colonel Francis Fane, Fulbeck Hall, Grantham, Lincolnshire; Mr. G. Hutchinson, Brougham Castle, Penrith, Cumberland; Mr. E. R. Murphy, The Kerries, Tralee, Ireland; Mr. Robert Pitt, Crickett Dourt, Ilminster, Somerset; Mr. Wm. Scotson, Rose Lane, Mossley Hill, near Liverpool, Lancashire; Mr. H. Simmons, Bearwood Farm, Wokingham, Birkshire; Mr. John Speir, Newton Farm, Newton, Glasgow, Scotland; Major Stephenson, Knocbrack, Goshaden, Londonderry, Ireland; Mr. J. T. Wood, The Court, Halewood, near Liverpool, Lancashire.

Parts 1, 2 and 3 of their report are now to hand. They are paper-bound, illustrated with drawings and maps, and contain as a rule fairly well written accounts of what the delegates saw during their tour through Canada, including several of the large exhibitions. The natural advantages of the country from a farming standpoint are set forth, but intending settlers are also apprised of obstacles to be overcome. The delegates speak highly of the morality and sobriety of the Canadian people, and appear to have enjoyed themselves immensely wherever they went, as, of course, it was intended they should. Reference is made to the work of the Dominion experimental farms and the Ontario Agricultural College and Farm at Guelph naturally comes in for favorable mention. Mr. Wm. Scotson in his report says among other Ontario notes: "I feel that I must specially thank the Minister of Agriculture, Ontario, for arranging for Mr. Biue, the Deputy Minister, to show Mr. Wood and myself some of the farms, stock and agricultural lands of Ontario, and she may still be c in saying that Ontario has sown the seeds of most of the farming now practiced in the Dominion west of Ontario, and she may still be called the premier Province for stock and mixed agriculture."

Another delegate, the gallant Col. Fane, does not confine himself altogether to actual observation and personal inquiry, but in contrasting the Dominion and the United States proceeds, on the basis of his reading of American publications, so he tells us, to say: "The shooting by judges, colonels, etc., of one another seems of daily occurrence, and little punishment appears to follow except occasionally by Judge Lynch. Even in Chicago revolvers, I was told, were worn by peaceful citizens, whereas in Canada all is order, even in the wildest parts." Whew!

These reports are being distributed in Great Britain as emigration literature.

Salt for Swine.

Salt for Swine. Salt or no salt for pigs? The experiment station at Geneva, N. Y., has experimented a little with pigs to determine the question whether they will do better with or without salt. It perhaps cannot be considered as a final settlement of the question, says as a final settlement of the question, says "Mirror and Farmer," but the experiment brings out some interesting facts which all point to the economy of feeding salt.

Those having salt showed the better gains under every one of the different rations fed, but made a profitable growth only when fed grains. They drank more water also under the grains rations, but when fed a more succulent ration they drank less than those that had no salt. While prickly comfrey was fed the pigs without salt rethan those that had no salt. While prickly comfrey was fed the pigs without salt required 52.8 per cent more water free food for a pound of grain, the cost being 55.7 per cent. greater than withsalt—but neither pen made a profitable growth on comfrey. We shall expect to find all careful experiments teaching the same lesson of economy in feeding salt. Those who are so sure that salt is hurtful or not necessary we suspect do not know as much as they think they do, nothwithstanding their positiveness.

Six-Cent Cattle.

Prices of cattle have at last squarely Prices of cattle have at last squarely reached the quotation of 6 cents per pound live weight in the Chicago market. These figures were given out last week, and we understand that sales justifying them have been made. This is a realization of just what has by many cattlemen been hopefully expected for some time, and really is an improvement which seems to be thoroughly warranted. There it no reason why strictly wholee cattle should not now sell at anywhere from 5c to 6c per pound, and when such prices are realized producers may congratulate themselves that there is in them nothing of inflation, and nothing which can be considered as the result of forcing on the part of sellers. It is time that cattle were cattle again, and no other one thing can do more for placing agriculture in the line of profit than the change which seems to be going on in the prospects of beef production.—[Stockman and Farmer, March 26.

Effect of Feeding on Butter Fat.

E. A. Chapman of Independence, Iowa, writes as follows to Hourd's Dairymans "At a Farmers' Institute held sometime ince the statement was made that the per tent. of fat in a cow's milk could not be be thered by any change of feed. Doubting the correctness of this I made a test of one of my cows with the following result. On her regular feed of corn meal and bran, she showed for three tests exactly alike, viz. 4.40. By changing to bran alone she lowered the quantity gradually and reached in a week the extreme of 3.60, changed to corn meal alone in one week the test showed the extreme of 5.00. Tests were all made by Weins & Shillinglan, proprietors of the creamery here. I neglected to say the coarse feed was not charged during the tests, which were made to verify, or refute the above statement."

Commenting thereon, the editor of the Effect of Feeding on Butter Fat.

the above statement."

Commenting thereon, the editor of the Dairyman says: "What have the cow savants to say to these cold facts—these of them who say that it takes long years of persistent good feeding to make such marked changes in the quality of a cow's milk. Was the cow a peculiar one? All we can say is, we are ready to believe most anything after we hear and see the good evidence."

evidence."

Cornmeal for Poultry.

Cornmeal is the best and cheapest feed for tattening all kinds of poultry. The meal should be fed raw one day, made into a stiff dough and cooked the next. Feed every four hours through the day, beginning early and ending late, and give as much at a time as will be eaten immediately, and no more. Season as plentifully as indirectly affecting others. One of the results of non-protection in the spring is chilled and dead brood, liable to end in foul-brood. Other serious results are spring dwindling, and the robbing of weak colonies thus neglected.

There is no doubt that a large proportion of the bees lost in the spring, could be saved by proper packing and protection. The breeding temperature must be kept up, with salt as person: do their food, and add a slight sprinkle of cayenne occasionally. These condiments serve a double purpose— that of improving the appetite and di-gestion and the quality of flesh for the table.—[Poultry World.

The Romney Marsh Sheep

The shepherd fears a marsh. It brings to him thoughts of flukes and lungworms, two kinds of parasites which are deadly to to him thoughts of flukes and lungworms, two kinds of parasites which are deadly to the flock. A sheep, therefore, which is at home on a marsh pasture would be a great boon to those farmers whose land is inclined to be damp, if not wet. The Romney marsh sheep is an English breed, which is proof against these parasitic diseases, just as some persons who have been born and reared in low localities are never troubled by the miasmitic diseases which affect others not to the manner born. This sheep has been reared for many years in the southeast mer of England, where a large extent o land is diked and ditched in the same man-mer as the low lands of Holland. These lands are mostly a moist, rich, alluvial clay, so productive of grass that fourteen cay, so productive or grass that routeen sheep are kept to the acre on many of the farms. These sheep are extremely hardy, and are rarely ever put under a roof. They are excellent mutton sheep, and yield a useful fleece of long, staple combing wool, bright and glossy, and weighing from seven bright and glossy, and weighing the sector to ten pounds to the fleece. The mutton is of the best second quality; not equal to the Southdown reared on the chalk pastures of the Downs, but quite as good as the common farm-fed sheep elsewhere.—[American Agriculturist. Scottish Farmers Irate.

According to the following, by "Lobby-iet," in the Mark Lane Express, British Minister of Agriculture Chaplin is having some trouble in the North with his pleuro bill:

bill:

"Mr. Chaplin has aroused the tartan and the philibeg! He has to confront a heavily-indignant section of Scotch farmers. They will deputationize him; if deputationizing is of no avail they will get their hecklers to tackle him in the House; if that moves him not they will set the heather on fire. Their indignation is one of the results of Mr. Chaplin's inflexible determination to exterminate pleuro among Scotch cattle. 'Exterminate is all very well,' quoth the logical Caledonian; 'but why, mon, should ye schedule whole districts when pleuro exists, perhaps in only one cattle-shed in the whole area." The Scotchmen will protest, deputationize, and heckle to no end. Mr. Chaplin is dowered with a mission. Its purpose is explained in its motte: "I must exterminate." Hydrophobia he has rid us of in London; pleuro must share the same relentless fate. It is bad perhaps for the tartan and the philibeg must consent, out of their "Mr. Chaplin has aroused the tartan and and the philibeg must consent, out of their overwhelming patriotism, to consecrate themselves to a national necessity." Spring Protection for Bees. Spring Protection for Bees.

Allen Pringle writes: In Canada and the Northern and Central States, the spring packing of bees is one of the essentials to successful bee-culture. Yet perhaps not one-tenth of the bee-keepers in those regions practice it. Not only do ordinary bee-keepers, but many extraordinary ones as well, neglect to give spring packing. This is not only against the person's own pecuniary interests, but amounts to a moral culpability as indirectly affecting others.
