Place /Cord Around His Neck a.d Allowed Himself to Choke to Death.

Beginning life anew under conditions vastly different from those to which he had been accustomed was too much for Edward Davies, a Welshman, aged 48 years, from Carnervon, Wales, and he committed suicide about 7:10 o'clock this morning, at the residence of Mr. William Roberts, 332 Egerton street. He was found hanging in a disused chicken coop in the rear of the yard by Mrs. Roberts and his wife. Life was extinct when the body was cut down. Dr. Lindsay was called, but could do nothing. Dr. Maclaren, the coroner, investigated the circumstances with Detective Down, and decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Came to London on Monday.

Davies and his wife were residing with his cousin, Mr. William Roberts. For some years he had written that he would like to come to Canada, and Mr. Roberts invited him over. About three months ago Davies' daughter came here and obtained a position with a good family. She urged her parents to Monday evening he landed in London, where he was met by Mr. Roberts. The latter gave him a home and secured him a position in the Grand Trunk car

Mr. Roberts and Mr. Davies talked metters over, and the latter appeared to be in good humor.

"I do not feel well after the voyage," Davies announced last night. " think I will take a week's holidays." "Don't go to work until you feel right," said Mr. Roberts. "The job is

Mrs. Davies a ose and in about half an hour she began to look for her husband. Mrs. Roberts and Mrs. Davies went to the chicken coop at the rear and looked in. They were horrified to see Davies hanging from a beam with a rope about his neck. Mrs. Roberts ran to the house and got a knife and cut him down. Dr. Lindsay was immediately summoned, and although he endeavored to restore respiration his efforts were fruitless.

The man had taken some heavy packing cord and tied it in a strap over a rudely constructed door in the chicken house. He then tied it about his neck as short as he could. This completed he settled down on the cord and slowly choked to death. When found his legs were doubled under him. showing the deliberateness with which he took his life.

No Inquest Necessary. Coroner Maclaren investigated the arcun stances, and decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The dead man was a strongly-built man, and did not look to be 48 years of age. He was a carpenter by trade in Wales, and was sober and industrious. No reason, other than that Davies feared at his age to begin life anew in a strange land, is given for the rash act.

"He did not need money or a home," said Mr. Roberts to The Advertiser. "He had a good job to go to as soon as he was ready." The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence of Mr. R. Roberts, 332 Egerton street, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Rev. E. Appley and, of St. Matthew's Church, will conduct the services.

Up With Extreme Policy, Says the Thunderer.

[Canadian Press.] London, July 24. - Discussing the present situation in the Liberal party Times says the question of moment in political circles is whether Mr. Lloyd George will resign his office and conduct a political land campaign. It goes on:

"Mr. Lloyd George has appointed a committee on land policy with the sanction of Mr. Asquith. The body of land reformers in the Liberal party has been running to an extreme land tax policy at the by-elections in the country with some success. "Whether the country is or is not ripe for such a policy, the Liberal party as a whole is not ripe for it, but if the electorate can be captured by a political land campaign there are many Liberals who believe they can win the next general election, and Mr. Lloyd George is marked out as the protagonist.

"To conduct this campaign with freedom Mr. Lloyd George would have to resign office. The question of mo-ment in political circles is whether the chancellor will take the plunge."

Brantford Authorities Agree to Guarantee the Expenses of the

There is not much doubt in the minds of the local authorities but what the man is the missing fugitive, as the description fitted him perfectly.

It is feared, though, that he has succeeded in crossing St. Clair River, and made good his escape. The residents at the reservation have promised to inform the police if he is seen again, but too much credence cannot given their statements in cases of this kind, where one of their own nationality is concerned. The man might have been captured had the Indian constable living at the reserve known that he was there. The constable knew nothing about it, however, until Detective Acton arrived on the scene. It is not believed that Bennett armed, from the accounts given those who had seen him. Brantford, July 24. - The search for Jack Bennett will go on. Crown Attorney Wilkes has given an official guarantee of the expenses incurred in Bennett's case and the officers were instructed to proceed. They were just about to return, when informed that their disbursements would be paid. The county authorities have refused to offer a reward for the Indian's capture, largely because the reservation contributes nothing towards the county exchequer, and annually requires a considerable expenditure for the maintenance of law and order.

It was with considerable difficulty that the county was remitted $1,000

Engineer and Flagman Held Responsible by Coroner's Jury for Fatal Crash. Corning, July 24. - Engineer

Schroeder and Flagman Lane were today held responsible by the coroner's jury for the recent wreck on the Delaware and Hudson by which several score passengers lost their lives. They are charged wih manslaughter. The jury finds Lane, who was flag-man of the train No. 9, the stalled passenger train, into which the ex-press driven by Schroeder crashed, negligent, in failing to use a torpedo, and so help protect his train by warning the oncoming express. Schroeder declared negligent in not observing the signal set at caution about 4,700 feet to the rear of train No. 9. The Lackawanna Company is not censured, except by implication, in the verdict, which says that freight train No. 393, the breaking down of which blockaded the passenger train, making the wreck possible, was drawn by an engine which was not steaming properly when it was sent out from the roundhouse. The jury recommends the employment of two enginemen on the Mother Hubbard type of engine, and the use of torpedoes as an additional factor of safety at all times in connection with the flagging of trains. The abolition of the wooden coaches, baggage and

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 24,

CANADA AND IMPERIAL REPRESENTATION.

Mr. Asquith makes a friendly but guarded reference to Mr. Borden's dewar. Immediately some Canadians and some British commentators begin to draw very large inferences. They talk grandiosely of "a new epoch," a "history-making development." Better wait until Mr. Borden descends to particulars. At present his proposals are in the clouds. They are useful for rhetoric, but elude analysis for the present. Sir Joseph Ward flew a sim-Har kite, but it came to earth. The Ward plan was unanimously squelched by the prime ministers of the cently to expunge it from the statute United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, South Africa and Newfoundland. Mr. agree. Without the concurrence of Asquith declared at the time that the control of the foreign policy of the Empire must remain in the hands of several millstones around the neck of the Imperial Government: it was a power that could not be even shared. Thus, by mutual confidence, discussion and counsel have the problems of empire been worked out. Every delegate has represented the Parliament of his own country. He has been answerable to that Parliament alone for his votes and his opinions, and no decision of the Conference directly affecting any British dominion has been binding on that dominion without its consent. If Mr. Borden has devised some new machinery which while bringing the various British countries into closer touch and more effective cooperation, will preserve to each its present antonomy unimpaired, he will find the Liberal party ready to help him. But this implies, of course, that there will be no surrender of Canadian control over Canadian expenditure for naval purposes.

THE DOCTORS' STRIKE. The decision of the British Medical Association to refuse to work the new insurance act, and to break off negobeen expected and to some extent. discounted.

The British medical profession is more thoroughly unionized than any trade in the country, and it will use trade union methods, 'Its weapons will, of course, be not exactly the same: it will punish recalcitrant members by social ostracism, a grievous penalty in a country where social distinctions count for so much. Any physician who disobeys the association will be listed as a "blackleg," the English equivalent of "scab," and will be treated as a pariah by the medical fraternity. The doctors will be adopting a perfectly legitimate method of trying to attain their object. Whether their object, a higher fee for insured persons, is just and reasonable, is a subject of dispute. The insurance act gives them six shillings per annum for every person insured; they claim eight shillings six pence. As there are 14,000,000 insured persons, there is a difference of $8,000,000 to $,9000,000 between what the doctors ask, and the Act provides for. The chancellor has offered a fractional increase of the fee, but the Medical Association is standing by its original demands.

Recently a noted actuary, Sir Wilfiam Plender, was commissioned to make an inquiry into the income of doctors. He examined the books for the two years ended December 31, 1910, chewan Mr. Haultain will carry sixteen and December 31, 1911, of medical out of twenty seats. Northeastern Saspractitioners in Cardiff, Darlington, majority, and Central Saskatchewan Darwen, Dundee, Norwich, and St. will be for Haultain by two to one. Albans. The number of medical practitioners in the six selected areas is 265, and of this number 51 refused access to their records. Sir William Plender reports that the annual gross upport of the Chancellor's contention Act a patient earning, say, $15 a week will pay no more than one earning only $5 a week, and that they will be deprived of the liberty of adapting their fees to the' means of their patients, which enables them to discrimnate in favor of the poor.

As no medical benefits are to be granted under the Act for six months, there will be time for further negotiations if the doctors can be induced to renew them. If not, the various friendly societies will pay the benefits directly to sick members, who will have to arrange with doctors as individual patients. The Act would not break down, but its purpose would be American people for Democratic, sucn some measure defeated, since many cess in November. patients would not resort to the doctor as readily as if medical attendance were free. There has been a suggesmand for Canadian representation in tion of a state medical corps to work the councils at Westminster, which the Act, but it is scarcely possible that deal with the questions of peace and it could be organized in face of the opposition of the Medical Association.

THE REPEAL OF RECIPROCITY.

It is reported that Mr. Taft has adised the Senate to repeal the Canadian reciprocity act. This is not unexpected, Mr. Taft having already declared reciprocity to be a dead issue But it is not in his power, or in the Senate's power to kill it. The House of Representatives is keeping it alive. When the Republican Senate voted rebook, the Democratic House declined to both Houses it cannot be wiped out. Undoubtedly the pact is one of the

ALL MEN HAVE THEIR FEARS. [F. P. Dunne (Mr. Dooley), in the

Probably his second bore the hope in all humility that if such circumstances should arise for him he would behave without too much of the awkwardness of panic. Only a fool would hazard a prediction of his conduct in the face of a peril so unexpected and attended by the terrors of midnight and the sea. is no discredit to the human race to say that cowardice is a gift from the tributed among mankind.

Every man who thinks at all of death. He may be more of life without buttered muffins, but he chooses death only as a bad alternative for a worse. If he is not afraid of one thing you may be sure he is afraid of another. A man will go up to the clouds in a balloon, who wouldn't go down into 20 feet of water in a submarine. A steeplejack may be afraid of dogs and a lion tamer of riding in an elevator. We know a man who has made a great reputation for coolness under fire in battle, who gibbers with fear whenever he has a stomachache. One man fears fire, another burglars, another railway trains, another of measles.

Conduct in an emergency depends on many things besides those ab-stract qualities known as "cowardice" and "courage." A man is apt to act calmly when his surroundings, at the time the peril presents itself, are customary and familiar, when his nerves happen to be sound, or when he has time to meditate on his action and weigh carefully its consequences. Again, a man may be persuaded to or glory as the case may turn a hundred men into a panicstricken mob, or he may convert them into a throng of heroes through their very horror of his conduct. And one man who has established his moral and cowardice both like company.

LIPTON UNDER FIRE

Reported To Be Much in Company of Widowed Marchieness.

London, July 24.-Sir Thomas Lipton has lately been raising the hopes of eligible spinsters and widows who up to now have looked upon him as an inveterate bachelor.

The genial baronet was, in fact, regarded at one time as an absolute weman hater, and put in the same hopeless class, matrimonially, as Arthur Balfour, the Conservative ex-Premier, and that distinguished soldier, Lord Kit-

Lately, however, the dovecotes have been fluttered by the discovery of rea-sons for altering this view of Sir Thomas. For he has been entertaining the Marchieness of Donegall and her boy (the youngest Marquis), aboard his yacht while cruising in the Mediterranean, where Sir Thomas loved at one ime to surround himself with bachelor

It has been noticed, too, that his "at homes' at his beautiful mansion in North London have been patronized of late by many society women with eligible daughters, who would willingly sacrifice titles for beautiful frocks and the luxury of a substantial bank balance. At one time Sir Thomas was decidedly awkward when trying to play the part of host to ladies, but now he is as much a: ease as if he were a professional master of ceremonies to the King.

SIDNEY'S LOVE STORY

(By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

Yesterday, in writing of Sir Phillip Sidney, I omitted to make any mention of his love story. It would not, have been natural if that star of tournaments had not sighed out his soul towards a cruel fair. Her name was Penelope Devereux, of Chartley Castle, and she was the daughter of a belted earl. When she was 12 years of age Sir Philip, then a brilliant young courtier of 22, met her for the first time at the ancestral mansion. Her father, the Earl of Sussex, was very fond of the staid-minded Philip. and desired that he should wed his beautiful Penelope. The fathers talked over the match, but somehow or other the negotiations fell through.

When Penelope was 14 years of age, Sir Philip began to write sonnets in her praise. Fresh from Italy, where it was the custom of young men to write sonnets (the very word is Italian) to their ladies, he instituted the fashion in England, a fashion which was to be taken up by all the leading literary men of the time, including Shakespeare, Drayton, Spenser, Raleigh, Daniel, Constable and others too numerous to mention. At first his poems in honor of Penelope were very calm in tone, merely literary exercises in which he eulogized her beauty. Maybe she was in love with Sidney, maybe not; it seems quite certain, however, that when he first began to write of her, his heart was still his own. But his experience shows that it is a dangerous literary exercise for a young man to write sonnets to a lady's eyebrows. Sir Philip began in sport, but he wound up in dead earnest. The worst of it was that while he delayed to put his head devil which has been impartially dis- in the matrimonial noose, as the Earl of Essex desired, another suitor came along, a certain Lord Rich (his name afraid of something else, of loss of is ominous), and, before Sir Philip honor, health or money, or going to a realized what was happening, Penelope had become Lady Rich.

Henceforth, during the rest of his days, Sir Philip was to sigh after the unattainable and to brood on the might-have-been. He made a marriage of convenience himself, taking to wife the daughter of Secretary Walsingham and the union was a happy one. His wife was devoted to him and he was kind to her, but his heart was with Penelope. He continued to write sonnets in which he enshrined his affection for her, and the later poems are marked by a passionate remorse. Whether Lady Rich responded to this ardor is one of the enigmas of literary history. In his sonnets Sidney called himself Astrophel, while Penelope, was addressed as Stella.

Undoubtedly the finest poem in this sequence is Sidney's invocaby the example of his neighbor. One tion to the moon. # PROGRESS IN MOTORING GREATEST IN AMERICA

More Private Cars Per Head in Canada and United States Than in England.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 24.-Lord Montague, of Beaulieu, has returned from a two months' visit to Canada, and the United States, where he studied motoring and the opening up of new roads. He says that progress in the motor industry in America has been remarkable, and that the number of private automobiles per head of population is far greater in that country man in England.

Both Canada and the United States he finds are awakening to the advantages of cheaper and lower-powered cars, which are being sold in inreasing numbers.

Lord Montague, speaking of the agitation for good roads i. America, declares that at present the roads there leave much to be desir d, and that Mother Purchases the Ballikinrain Es tates for Millionaire.

Edinburgh, July 23. In spite of the fact that many Americans are at present finding Scotland an uncongenial place in which to live, Mrs. John Jacob Astor is negotiating for the purchase of the fainous Ballikinrain estate for the son and heir of the millionaire who perished in the ill-fated Titanic.

Hitherto Americans who desired a Scottish residence have favored the pic-turesque scenery of the Highlands, but Mrs. Astor has chosen a spot further south, where her son can be in touch with the commercial and industrial aclytties of Glasgow.

The estate contains 6,000 acres and the situation of the castle is one of the most charming in the world. It commands an uninterrupted view of the Grampians and Ben Lomond. It has historic associations, too. Rob Roy and his followers helped to make the district famous. Demonstrator From New York Points Out Distinctive Features of the Modes.

"What styles are we to wear next autumn and winter?" is the question that invariably arises when a group of women get together at this season of the a few hours' chat. The question is being admirably answered for London women at the fashion talks given in the Finch-Fashen parlors every after-noon this week by Mrs. L. Berryman Strong, of New York city. It is a decided innovation for a Canadian firm to bring before its customers a fashion exper directly in touch with the advance styles of New York and Paris, and London women should indeed feel favored at be ing granted this opportunity. In her remarks yesterday Mrs. Strong impressed her hearers as being thoroughly conversant with the subject of up-to-date

Proper Corseting Important. The importance of proper corseting, both to health and appearance, was first dwelt upon by Mrs. Strong. The ladies present were urged to be careful not only in the selection of a corset, but also in the manner of adjusting it to the body. The proper method of fastening a corset and securing the hose supporters was demonstrated by Mrs. Strong. She also emphasized the danger of pushing the flesh out of place, as many stout women are apt to do, by a poorly fitting or too tight corsets. Several corsets built along common sense lines, and suited to the needs of various figures, were exhibited.

"The well-dressed woman is the woman who is properly dressed and groomed," said Mrs. Strong. "She must pay attention not only to her wearing apparel, but also to her personal appearance, and

The English woman is spending much time, thought and money on her bathing dress this year. ### THE GIRL, THE MAN AND THE MONEY By Dorothy Dix.]

I have a letter that would be funny if it wasn't so pathetic, from a girl who complains that when her "gentleman friend" comes to take her out to any place of amusement he always borrows the price from her, and never pays it back. She says that she thinks he is no gentleman. No one will dispute her opinion of the grafting youth.

Most of us, to quote T. R., would describe him by a shorter and uglier word. In fact if one should apply all of the opprobrious epithets in the dictionary of abuse to the creature flattery to call him a manis meal on a poor little working girl, one could enough to sponge on a poor little working girl, one could scarcely do the subject justice. A parasite is a contemptible object at best, but the male parasite who fastens himself upon the slim pocketbook of the woman who earns her own living is beneath contempt. He is the lowest thing that crawls, and why a girl should permit anything so loathsome to hang about her is past comprehension. Every sentiment of self-respect, every intuition of self-preservation should bid her spurn him from her presence the very first time he tries to dip his hand into her purse. To this girl, and all other working girls, I say with all the earnestness I can command, never lend money to a man Have nothing to do with a man who lets you pay for his meals and his ticket when you go to places of amusement together. He is he cheapest sort of a deadbeat, and means you no good. He is simply playng you for an easy mark that he can work by making a little love to you and dattering you a bit.

A man never tries to borrow money of a woman until he has gotten so well known as a panhandler among men that no man will lend him a cent. Any honest fellow who pays his debts can get a few dellars from his men you will become. You can't scold with acquaintances if he happens to strike a streak of hard luck. It is only after that smile on your face. You can't one becomes notorious as a borrower who never pays back, and other men refuse to be held up any farther by him, that he descends to preying upon ple smiling cure covers many diseases.

Of course, we all have troubles, but KISS MONEY GOOD-BYE.

Therefore, you may kiss your meney good-bye, little sister, when you lend not intended that we should have a t to one of this gentry. He never even intends to pay it back. If he did, he wouldn't have to borrow it of a woman. Every dollar that a working girl has is stained with her very lifeblood She has paid for every cent of it with long hours at desk, or typewriter, or with gratitude, and smiling gratitude behind the counter, or the machine in a factory. Every penny she saves out at that. So our thoughts must be free of her meagre wage represents incredible self-denial. Of course, these strictures do not apply to rich women who have plenty of money, and who are thus put on an equal financial footing with men, and may borrow and lend just as men do. Naturally there is no more reason why a man shouldn't borrow of Hetty Green or any other woman with money to lend than there is why he shouldn't borrow of Mr. Morgan or any other man. It is the working girl and her problem we are discussing and this is a problem she must face, for the minute a woman begins to earn money she is set upon by a horde of sycophantic men who get their evil living out of graft-ing upon women. All of the drunken, triffing, no-account, lazy loafers and nounced. It is utterly impossible to ne'er-do-wells, all of the tellers of hard luck stories, and all of the visionary have a sour heart and a sweet, pretty, men with dopsy schemes that they never have enough money of their own to finance themselves, swarm about her, and it takes grit and courage and independence to turn them down and keep a padlock on her pocketbook.

Yet that is what she must do for her own self preservation, and what makes the situation doubly hard for a sentimental and unsophisticated girl to deal with is that the foxy gentleman who is trying to borrow her money almost always accompanies his touch for a five or ten spot with ardent love-BLINDS THE GIRL.

In this way he blinds the girl to his real motive, so that she cannot see how mean and selfish and low he is, or how little worth having is the man who even before marriage is willing to live on the hard toil of a woman. The girl who lends money to a man on the theory that she will thereby bind him to her by ties of gratitude and appreciation makes the mistake colored mosaic framed in bands of of her life, for if it is true that the man who lends money and his friend loses his money and his friend both, it is doubly true of the woman who lends money to a man. There is no easier way for a woman to make a man hate her than for her to put him under obligations to her, and especially financial

For proof of this you have only to take the multitudinous cases you see black enamel, or of onyx outlined with all about you of women who support their husbands, and in not one single instance will you find a man who is appreciative of what his wife does, or who treats her well. He will let her work herself to death for him, and then he revenges the bitterness of his dependence upon her in a thousand becoming to the woman with white or little tyrannies and grouches and tempers.

Therefore, I say again to you, working girls, don't lend your money. Hold on to it. A dollar in your pocketbook is worth more than a beau whose way you have to pay.

A WORD FOR THE WOMEN.

[Elbert Hubbard.]

Woman is a natural conservator. I never in all of my life heard of a woman who played the part of. a Coal-Oil Johnny and flung money to the birds. If women were allowed to pay the bills there would be no lobster palaces; the after-theatre supper would be cut out; we would get three square meals a day with just what we needed, and no more.

Women who have their own money in their own pockets, and know where their pockets are never say "Keep the change," with a lofty flourish. If there is any money coming back to them they sweep it into their reticule, be it five cents or five dollars. Tips are taboo. It is only male man who is intent on impressing the head waiter or the floor walker.

My opinion is that women are better financiers than men. They are not so

Eight rinks remain in the competi-tion for the Labatt trophy—three from the London Thistles, Langford, Nightlrgale and Platt; two from Toronto.
Dr. Rice, of the Queen City Club, and
Dr. Wray, of High Park, and Hoover, from Clinton; McCurdy, Stratford, and Dr. Wiley, of Brantford. There are plenty of good bowlers in this octette of rinks, and the final games will unoubtedly compare favorably with the best of the past.

The bowling on Tuesday was most Interesting, and the surprises many. Rinks touted as winners before the tournament have fallen away with regularity, and unknowns are still fighting for the blue ribbon.

One of the greatest battles of the day was that between Dr. Rice, of Toronto, and John Lochead, of Lon-don. Both are bowlers of a high order and for hours they battled. Rice was always master of the situation, and despite some high class bowling on the part of Lochead and his rink, the Lendoners could not get up.

A Sensational Game, A sensational finish occurred in the McCurdy-Deans game. On the last end they were a tie. Dean. ....d had a kitty toucher at the rear of the while McCurdy's lead bowls were not close up. The wil/ Stratford skip instructed King, his second player, to run the kitty to the ditch. The shot was perfect, and King's bowl lay right top of it. This practically ended the same, although there were many bowls yet to play. Deans, of Galt, tried to get his toucher on the jack, but it was an impossible task, and he had to give it up.

ed together for the tournament, showed class by taking the measure of Dr. Macarthur, of Toronto. The local bowler got a flying start, and try as he might the Toronto trundler could not get up.

George Nightingale's win over Argue, of Strathroy, was not due to the horseshoes that the members of his rink carried, but to good bowling. Mr. Lashbrook made the horseshoes after the last game on Monday night, he had to give it up. Platt's Thistle four, hastily gather-

President vs. Vice-President. Joe McGuffin, vice-president of the Thistle Club, was drawn against President A. A. Langford, of the same club in the Labatt trophy competition, but the president was too much for the vice, and put him out of the running. It was a hard-foucht, well-

Dr. Wiley, of Brantford, is not say ing much, but winning his games with regularity. He trimmed Bawden, of Exeter, and qualified for the big eight. He won the Labatt mug one year, and is always considered dangerous, no natter what kind of a rink he has ahead of him. He and Nightingale are the only two skips remaining who have won the trophy.

Hoover, of Clinton, is proving conclusively that it is a great tournament in which he cannot win a few games. He is going great guns this year, and ne ny pick him to be near the finish.

Dr. Wray's High Parkers are a new rink, but they are consistent bowlers, and have tumbled over many good rioks during their climb. Rice will have something to do when he meets

Was Given Two Tryouts But Failed to Show Anything Out of the Ordinary.

Pitcher Ward, of the London team, was released today by the local management. Ward came to London a couple of weeks ago, and has since been tried out in two games. He failed to come up to expectations, and as the club had to get rid of one member of the twirling staff, it was decided to let him go. The team has now five pitchers, all of whom seem to be making good. Harry Furssedonn is again in shape, and he will likely pitch one games played in the W. O. B. A. tour-nament this morning. LONDON'S ATTEMPT

AT BOHEMIA FAILS

CHAPTER II.

At about the time that the Count D'Este was having his unpleasant interview with Grace Ellicott, a man of somewhat unusual appearance might have been seen strolling carelessly along Avenue Victor Hugo. He was a tall man, and his height was accentuated by his long gray overcoat, which he wore in apite of the fact that the air was not particularly chilly on this bright May morning. He had on a soft black hat, under which appeared a mop of curly dark hair, worn rather long. His heavy eyebrows, dark moustache and pointed Vandyke beard suggested the art student or possibly the professional man, but the roughness of his clothes and his general air of careless assurance rendered such a conclusion improbable. There was about the set of his shoulders and the carriage of his head an evidence of determination which would have made the average man think twice before entering into an argument with him. Yet it could not be said that his expression was quarrelsome; so much of it, indeed, as could be judged from his heavily bearded face was keen and determined, rather than aggressive.

As he strolled along the avenue he "No."
"You are sure?"
"Yes, he has not left the house."
"Very well. What else?"
"He has telephoned for the Prefect of Police. He is to arrive in half an hour."
She turned and glanced at the bronze clock which stood upon a cabinet in the corner. "He should be here now."
"He will be fifteen minutes late," said Girard, glancing swiftly up at her. "Have you searched the desk?"
"Yes." tonight.

"At twelve?"
"I may come As he strolled along the avenue h tonight."

"At twelve?"

"I may come earlier—perhaps a half-hour. Watch for the lights."

"Very well." The girl turned as sounds were heard of someone approaching along the hallway, and, picking up the feather duster, started toward the door. "They're coming," she whispered.

"What room is that?" demanded Girard, in a low voice, as he pointed to the door on the opposite side of the library.

"The Count's private cabinet."

"In there—quick—and listen."

"In there—quick—and listen."

The girl at once crossed the room and entered the study, closing the door noise-lessly after her. Girard picked up the newspaper and again pretended to be reading it. He glanced up with elaborate carelessness, then rose, as he saw the Count standing in the doorway. D'Este came slowly into the room, looking from the card which he held in his hand to his visitor. His face showed both annoy-ance and anger. "What do you want here?" he demanded, throwing the card down upon the table.

Girard faced him with an imperturbable expression. "You know perfectly well, Monsieur the Count," he said in a steady voice, "one million francs."

To Be Continued. As he strolled along the avenue he seemed to be observing carefully the few persons he passed, but his scrutiny of them was never sufficiently direct to attract attention. It was only when he arrived in the neighborhood of Number 42 that he began to show any unusual interest in his surroundings.

The house was a new one, of white stone, somewhat ornate in its architecture. Broad, curving white steps led up to the main entrance, while further on, at the level of the pavement, a handsome iron gateway afforded admission to a garden along one side of the house. This garden was surrounded by a high stone wall, so that it was impossible to see into it except through the iron grillwork of the gate. The man paused for a moment, his keen glances fixed upon the gateway. For an instant he approached it closely, placing his hand upon the knob as though about to enter; then, retracing his steps, he ascended the stairs to the front door and rang the bell.

the stairs to the front door and rang the bell.

In the caurse of a few moments the door was opened by a servant. The caller, apparently quite sure of his ground, brushed past the man who had admitted him, and, in spite of the latter's indignant protests, strode down the hall and entered a room which opened on it from the right. The servant followed open-mouthed, his objections being silenced for the moment by the visitor's assurance. Once inside the room the man in the long overcoat faced about and confronted the indignant butler. "But, Monsieur, you must not enter here," gasped the latter in confusion. "Why not?"

"It is Monsieur the Count's library."

"Indeed! So much the better."

The caller took a card from the case.

"Here—give him this!" He thrust the bit of pasteboard into the man's hand.

The latter looked at it suspiciously, then read the name aloud. "Victor Girard," he said, allowing his eyes to dwell for a moment upon the stranger's rough-looking clothes. "Your business?"

"The tell that to the Count."
"Very well." The butler turned resigned and went toward the door. "I will find out if he will see you."

Presently he opened the newspaper, but instead of beginning to read it glanced keenly about him. The room was a handkeenly about him. The some side a large double French window, at the rear of a shallow recess, overlooked a garden in which evergreens mingled with bright-colored early spring shubbery. The sunlight coming through this window lighted up the Turkish rug of brilliant coloring which covered the floor, and glanced brightly upon the rich tapestry hangings which were draped on either side of the window. On the opposite side of the window. On the opposite side of the room from that by which he had entered he observed another doorway leading to a smaller room. About the walls of the library were many books in entered he observed another doorway leading to a smaller room. About the wails of the library were many books in cases of polished French walnut. Over the handsome table at the centre hung a large dome lamp, suspended from the ceiling by means of an ornamental brass chain. Girard listened attentively for a few moments as though to assure himself that he was quite alone, then, placing the newspaper upon his knees, leaned forward, took up from the desk a silver pencif and struck four sharp blows with it upon the glass dome of the lamp. This done, he replaced the pencil upon the table and pretended to be busily engaged in the contents of the newspaper.

In the curse of a few moments a young girl, from her dress evidently a maid, entered the room from the hall, carrying in her hand a feather dust brush. She

How to Absorb an Unlovely Complexion

(Phyllis Moore, in Town Talk.) The face, which is admired for its beauty, must have a satin-smooth skin, pink and white and youthful looking. The only thing I know of that can make such a complexion out of an aged, faded, or discolored one—I mean a nat-ural, not a painted, complexion — is ordinary mercolized wax. This re-markable substance literally absorbs the unsightly cuticle, a little each day, the clear, healthy, girlish skin beneath gradually peeping out until within a week or so it is wholly in evidence. Of rse, such blemishes as freckles, moth patches, liver spots, blotches and pimples, are discarded with the old skin. If you will procure an ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store, use like cold

Everything, however, was Bohemian except the audience, and little Bohe-mians on the stage toiled desperately for three hours to soften the starch of the conventional Britishers, all in vain. How I pitied these poor artistic creatures who had been lured into this den of somnolent respectability and who went on hunting for smiles and digging for laughter. The sight of an audience of men of marble and women of ice, coldly staring at the pathetic efforts of French, Danish, Spanish and Norwegian Bohemians to breathe joy into their chilly veins, is still haunting me.

Analysis Which Makes One Regard Them With Respect.

Have you an idea of the strain to which a steel rail is subjected today? Let us consider one for a moment, in the time of its greatest torture, and see. The Cannon Ball express is coming. It is drawn by two engines. The largest weighs 100 tons-77 tons of the weight are carried on the six driving wheels, which means almost thirteen tons to a wheel.

Thirteen tons of weight upon each wheel. That means thirteen tons of weight impinging for a flying instant upon a rail service perhaps no more than an inch square, and then, moving forward all the time, a succession of whirling blows from a thirteen-ton

If the train is going 30 miles an hour imaginary square inch has but 1.528 part of a second in which to receive the blow, wince under it, distribute the terrible force of it through its elastic elements to the surrounding mass of the rail, brace itself to help distribute stresses that are being set up on adjacent surfaces, and zig-ag ging back and forth in all sorts of ways through the content of the rail and then almost instantly lift its de

of a second, And yet this isn't all that is hap The Hungarian minister of com-merce and railways has entered into pening to the nerves of the rail. This pression strains. There is another wheels are pulling the train. They have caught hold of the rails, just as your hande grip the rope in a tug of war, and they take a fresh hold every fraction of a second. The tendence is to pull the top of the head off the rail, to pull it all to pieces. It is the business of the rail to stick together

Berlin Cable Says Extra Expenditure Contemplated Cheerfully by the Average German.

[Canadian Press.]

Berlin, July 24.—Such progress has een made with the strengthening of the German navy, voted almost unanimously during this year's session o the Reichstag, that it is now officially announced that the new third squad missioned by the autumn of 1914, far earlier than had been thought possible. This will bring the active bat-tle fleet up to 25 battleships in full mmission. Crews for the four battleships of the reserve squadron, which, according to the same law, are to be kept in full readines for sea at all times, will not be available probably for two or three years after that, so it is pointed out, here that the alarmists in the British press and parliament are premature in assuming the presence at sea of 29 fully manned Ger-man battleships in the autumn of

The extra expenditures entailed by the army and navy bills are con-templated cheerfully by the average German, who finds much more to worry him financially in the increased cost of living, the price of meat during the past ten years alone costing him more each year than his total annual contribution to the maintenance of the army and navy.

While the total charges for the German army and navy, including this year's increases, is less than $5 per head per year, a German economist, Dr. George Goldstein, has comprice ten years ago. For greater Ber-lir the total extra cost is about $18,-000,000 per annum.

Chancellor Lloyd George, in the course of the debate in the House of Commons, on the dockers' strike, said the labor disputes were becoming more and more serious, and were more and more challenging British commercial supremacy. The time had come, said Mr. George, to reconsider the whole problem, and the Government proposed to deal with it by some form of legislation in the immediate future.

It would be a mistake, said the chancellor, to try to deal with the dock strike as an isolated affair. Wall Street, Noon.

NEW YORK, July '24.—Wall street, noon.—The stock market today continued its uncertain course, verging at times upon heaviness. Some of the standard shares were again pressed for sale, but only in a moderate degree, and early recessions were soon overcome, except in a few of the less prominent specialties. The electrical issues displayed further strength, General Electric rising almost three points, with a sympathetic move in Westinghouse. National Biscuit, common and preferred, and U. S. Realty were distinctly weak, yielding 2 to 5 points. Trading was extremely dull, with operations largely of a professional character. Bonds were steady.

MANY HURT IN FIGHT ON LONDON DOCKS

Thousands of Strikers Attack Non-Unionists and Battle With Police.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 24.-Volleys of stones hurt today in a fight between striking dock workers and strikebreakers at the Clyde Shipping Company's docks in the Wapping district of London. The strikers, parading the streets to the number of thousands, broke ranks as they passed the Clyde docks, and, rushing the gate, tried to break it down or to scale the walls. Police, coming to the defenders' rescue, clubbed the strikers off.

Semi-Gotha Says Napoleon III., Three Popes and Others Had Hebrew Blood.

Berlin, July 23.—Germany is chortling over the prospect that Japan will find here a new European ally in the place of Great Britain as the result of Prince Katsura's coming visit. There Prince Katsura's coming visit. There is a notable change in the attitude of the German and Japanese press, both of which were antagonistic in tone a short time ago but are now most friendly. It is said here that Japan is quite willing to forget the Kaiser's "yellow peril" onslaught if she can secure Germany as an ally in the place of England.

A noted diplomat told a correspondent that it was no secret that Japan was disappointed and dissatisfied over the treaty with England, which Japan the treaty with England, which Japan regards as of little value in the event of a war since the modification enabling England to withhold her help if Japan should go to war with the United States, Japan, he said, has recently turned her eyes toward Russia. There are many reasons why Germany might decline the outstretched hand of Japan, among them being the hand of Japan, among them being the inconsistency with the Kaiser's old attitude and the fact that the Japanese are regarded as black heathens by the German state and church. Germany is also shy of the possibility of trouble with the United States. On the other hand, there is much in the political situation which might cause Germany to welcome Japan's friendship. Germany realizes that in friendship. Germany realizes that in the event of war with England she is liable to lose her Chinese and other Far Eastern possessions and trade, for which she has spent millions in devel-

The publishers had intended to get out a second edition with two additional volumes, but leading Germans, representing parliation with two additional volumes, but this was forbidden by the Government. The preface of the book says that the purpose of its publication is to gather data of the genealogy of noble families which are genuinely of Oriental or Jewish races in the male line, and to follow them up from their origin to the present time noting the confession the present time, noting the confession of the Christian faith and the mixture London Conservatory of Music of the Christian faith and the mixture of blood through marriages with women of the Aryan race. "Semi-Gotha" declares that King Menelik of Abyssinia is a Jewish descendant by direct line from Menelik, the son of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba. The book also says that King Sheba. The book also says that King Nicholas of Montenegro is of Jewish descent, having descended from a Venetian Jewish merchant who belonged to the priesthood and was himself descended from the princely house of lower line of the most influential descended from the princely house of lower line of the lower line of the most influential lower line of the lower line of t Negosch, which is also traceable to Solomon. The book also traces the ancestors of the Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria to Jewish origin. Napoleon III. a Hebrew.

The most amazing chapter in the publication makes Napoleon III. a Hebrew and a direct descendant of a Holland Jewish family. The story is that one Carel Hendrik Verhuell, a costs. February, 1764, was actually the father of Napoleon III. Verhuell was man fleet as a vital issue for Germany, tion for several reasons. Batavian deputation which welcomed Louis Bonaparte as King of Holland. Louis Bonaparte made Verhuell an admiral and minister of marine and ennobled him as Count van Zevenaar. "Semi-Gotha" says Verhuell enjoyed the most friendly relations with Queen Hortense.

The book also places three popes-Calixtus III., Alexander VI., and Paul V. - in the Jewish category, and attempts to show that the latter's family were Borghese descendants of German Jews. Prince Henckel of Donnersmarck, who next to the Krupps is the owner of the largest locomotive and railway car works in Germany, and one of the richest men in the empire, is listed in the new book as a Jew who is descended from a court servant who was enriched by commissions from court traders. Of the famous Russian princely family of Metschersky, book says:

"Their antecedents walked dry footed through the Red Sea, and the Russian family was descended from Jews who lived in Hamburg at the time of Peter the Great."

"Semi-Goteha" finds numerous Ger-man counts of Jewish origin, the most prominent being Count Aerenthal, the late Austrian premier, who is declared to be of the tribe of Levi, who in the time of the Emperor Joseph II. of Germany were army contractors who were later ennobled.

ARGUMENT ENDS IN MARRIAGE CASE

Hearing Before Privy Council Is Brought to a Conclusion.

DECISION IS RESERVED

Their Lordships May Not Give an Answer to One of the Questions.

London, July 23.—he judicial committee of the privy council, on the onclusion today of arguments by ounsel in the Canadian marriage case, eserved its decision.

At yesterday's session, Mr. I. F Helimuth, following Georgey Lawrence, who supported the previous argument, replied to the argument which had so far been addressed to their lordships and mentioned that Mr. Mignault would deal with the further point of the stat-us of Roman Catholics who were married by a minister other than a Roman Catholic priest.

Lord Chancellor-You are not deal-ng with the code. The learned counsel replied that he was not dealing with the point that, on a true construction of the code, Roman Catholics were rendered absolutely incapable of having their marriages solemnized otherwise than before the paish priest or one other of the parties.

Continuing the argument in supporting the negative answers to questions one and three, he characterized the act as one dealing with the solemnization of marriage, which was a subject assigned exclusively to the respective provinces, and with the proposed changes in the ceremonies of marriage t took away the liberty of the provinces to say what ceremonies should be observed. Each province now had its own laws.

Lord Shaw—It is not your view that what is aimed at here is, assuming a proper ceremony in a particular province. ince, marriage shall be valid notwith-standing religious disqualifications?

Mr. Hellmuth said the religious side of the question was ignored. There were other cogent arguments why the provinces should not make their own

Lord Halsbury—"You say that on a true rule of construction does a general right given the Dominion over legislation referring to marriage and divarce include the particular empired. divorce include the particular subject of the matter of solemnization of a marriage in a province. Why do you say that?"

Mr. Smith submitted that the particular subject matter being invested exclusively in the provinces by the act brought this about. In reply to a question by the lord chancellor, counsel submitted that failure to legisiate reasonably upon any subject within its exclusive jurisdiction could mans for following "a policy incompatible with the rights of other nations," and Sir Thomas Barclay's criticism of the German settlement of the Franco-Quebec might be.
