BOERS AT HAUGE

London, Aug. 5.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at The Hague says in a despatch that it is becoming increasingly difficult to combat the generally accepted Dutch theory that the Boer leaders here are campaigning toward the ultimate subversion of British rule in South Africa.

The Boer general, Lucas Meyer, who has just reached Holland from London, instead of going to Germany, has stopped at The Hague, and is going to visit Mr. Kruger, while several other prominent Boer leaders are assembling here.

Nobody at The Hague, continues the correspondent of the Daily Mail, believes their story that their mission is to collect funds for Boer widows.

STORY DENIED IN OLD LONDON

King Will not Undergo Second Operation—His Recovery Excellent.

His Return to London—Rehearsing for the Coronation—Physicians Careful.

London, Aug. 5.—A story uttered for several days that a second operation for appendicitis will be performed on the King after the coronation is denied here. According to all authoritative reports the King is making an excellent recovery, and it is considered unlikely that his physicians would allow him to endure the fatigue of the coronation ceremony if another operation was impending.

KING'S RETURN TO LONDON.

London, Aug. 5.—All preparations have been completed for the return of King Edward to London to-morrow. The Victoria Station has been brilliantly decorated. It is expected that His Majesty's return to the capital will be marked by a great street demonstration en route to Buckingham Palace. The trip to London will be made on a royal special train, but there will be no invalid chair or other special arrangement, for it is felt that His Majesty is fully equal to the fatigue of the journey.

DENIALS ARE CONFIRMED.

London, Aug. 5.—The emphatic denial of the sinister rumors of King Edward's condition are confirmed by all the persons who have recently visited His Majesty. The King will land at Portsmouth and entrain for London at half-past three o'clock to-morrow afternoon, and his train is due to arrive in London at half-past five. His drive to Buckingham Palace will be an extended route, instead of the direct way, in order that the public may have an opportunity to see and congratulate the Sovereign. The King has commanded that coronation day and the anniversary of his coronation be observed as "Collar Day" (a day of ceremony at the English court when the courtiers wear the collars of their orders).

On account of the approaching coronation most of the volunteers are at present undergoing their annual training at Salisbury. It has been decided that they are to leave their camps Aug. 8, instead of Aug. 9.

REHEARSAL FOR CORONATION.

The rehearsal of the coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey this afternoon was the most largely attended and elaborate one which has yet been held. The King and the Queen and other very important personages who were not present were represented at the proceedings by substitutes. Colonel Brocklehurst, equerry to Her Majesty, impersonated King Edward, and Lady Suffield, one of the ladies of the bedchamber, took the part of the Queen. Even the servants were drilled in their duties connected with the robes, carried out theoretically their functions of coronet carrying and train bearing. Although the religious and musical features of the ceremony were omitted this afternoon, the instructions and regulations by those who are not perfect in their parts, caused the rehearsal to occupy about the full time planned for Saturday's ceremonies.

NEW ONE

Another Fish Story Teller Enters the Arena and Acts Like a Winner.

Dr. Russell is only a novice as a fisherman when compared with A. C. McKay, E. J. MacIntyre and Beg Pardon, but any man who says that when he was a boy he used to go out with an axe, thump on the ice, turn up big fish by the force of the concussion and then remove the stunned fish at an air-hole half a mile down stream, certainly gives great promise of some day developing into a real angler.

The doctor bowed gracefully the other night and delivered himself of a story. Merlin was the scene of his exploit, a place where one wouldn't expect to find fish within eight miles. Dr. Russell claimed that he stood on the sidewalk in Merlin and caught a fish in the ditch in front of the largest hardware store in the place. The Maple City dentist man says that the heavy rains had filled the ditch and the fish had probably come up some of the streams to which the ditch was tributary. The doctor hasn't yet, however, told what the fish weighed.

BOARD SETTLE DIFFICULTY BY STAR CHAMBER SESSION

Journeyed off to a Private Caucus and all was Harmonious—Both Principals Secure Equal Increase in Salary—Mr. Brackin Contemplates Retiring—Good Work Done by Both.

The statement made by The Planet a couple of weeks ago—on the authority of remarks made officially at the Public School Board meeting—that the Principals were booked for an increase in salary, is said to have inaugurated a lively lot of street rumors alleging vigorous differences among the members of the Board as to how the increases were to be adjusted.

Rumors were never noted for belittling themselves during their meanderings, and as these tales spread they developed splendid proportions. Trustees were reported to be at daggers-drawn with no possibility of armistice; heated discussions were recorded; mysterious caucuses were chronicled; deft wire-pulling was hinted; rival movements were bulletines—everything but a free-for-all fight, and that, it was hinted, would have a place on the boards when the Trustees assembled for their meeting—it was scheduled as the grand finale.

But the members put up a little job on the unsuspecting and inquisitive public. When the reporters—there were a whole quartette of them—put in their appearance, the Trustees arose and fell into Indian file with a precision and regularity which only practice makes perfect, and, with a martial carriage, which would have done credit to the 24th Kent Regiment, paraded to the privacy of their ante-chamber. Here they doubtless bolted and barred the portal and mounted keen-visioned and strong-armed sentries on guard.

The Star Chamber session lasted but two minutes over the half hour, but in that 32 minutes wonders were accomplished. When the stalwart watch let down the barricade and the Trustees sauntered back into the daylight of publicity, they were gentle and docile, interchanging pretty pleasantries and bestowing mutual admiration upon one another.

And the Star Chamber session was not a stormy one, either. There were no wild flights of bombastic oratory, no heated arguments—it was quiet and business like.

When the bars and bolts had been presumably well secured the work of reaching and understanding. The members individually were asked to express their views as to the adjustment of the Principals' salaries. This resulted in three proposals, viz.:

To increase Mr. Plewes' salary to $1,100 and Mr. Brackin's to $1,000. To increase the salaries of both Principals to $1,000 each.

To increase the salary of Mr. Plewes to $1,100, Mr. Brackin's remaining as at present, $900.

These proposals were then discussed. The Board was unanimous for an increase to Mr. Plewes. This was brought about by the fact of the large attendance at the Central by reason of the amalgamation of the Payne and Queen street schools, which has resulted in a 17-room school, the success of the Model school and the general organization and improvement in the South Chatham work.

And many of the Board felt that the recognition should also extend to Mr. Brackin in view of his splendid work in North Chatham and his long services.

After a full discussion of the different proposals, in which it was pointed out that in a comparatively short time Mr. Brackin contemplated retiring and in the interim his long service might fittingly be acknowledged, a majority of the Board reached the conclusion to do the graceful act and give Mr. Brackin the prestige of holding an equally lucrative position with his colleague.

The proposal to pay each Principal at the rate of $1,000 per annum for the balance of the year was then adopted by the majority.

Only one lively interchange characterized the "inside" meeting. One of the Trustees remarked that the brother of Trustee Cornish would "like to get the Central at $800."

Trustee Cornish gave it a vigorous denial, stating that his brother "would not accept the work under any consideration, let alone at such a salary."

On motion of Messrs. Morley and Benson the Finance committee report as follows:

The report was adopted.

It was moved by Robertson, seconded by Paxton, that the bill for the extras at the Central school be referred to the Building committee with power—Carried.

A communication was received from Robert Gray's solicitor enclosing a cheque for the Queen street school property for $2,000.

A communication was read from Miss Ida M. Hillman, teacher at the Central school, asking for leave of absence from the holiday to Christmas to recuperate her health.

In moving the request be granted, Trustee Morley spoke in the highest terms of Miss Hillman's work as a teacher and expressed the hope that she would quickly regain her health.

The Inspector's report for June was taken as read.

Trustee Bray, for the Model school committee, reported that Miss Irwin had been engaged as assistant for Mr. Plewes during the Model school term.

Miss McTaggart was appointed as Kindergarten assistant at McKeough school at $20 per month.

In regards to the McKeough school improvements, the committee had met and found Mr. Cucksey's tender, which did not include plumbing and heating, to be the lowest tender, and Trustee Heyward moved, seconded by Mr. Benson, that the tender be accepted.

Trustee Robertson—You're going to make a big tangle of the air if you don't give the whole contract to one person.

After some discussion it was decided on motion of Paxton that it be referred back to the committee with power to get a bulk tender.

Dr. Bray moved, seconded by Dr. McKeough, that Miss Lottie Thompson take Miss Hillman's place during the next term—Carried.

Moved by Cornish and Robertson, that Miss Florence Nicholl be appointed as substitute for Miss Snell—Carried.

Trustee Dr. Bray reported that the fees received this last term for non-residents attending school had been just about half of what it was the year before. The date, he said, for paying the fees was on or before the 15th of the month, and the pupils had avoided that date in many ways and thus got out of paying it.

It was moved by Bray, seconded by Morley, that the fees be made payable in advance—Carried.

Dr. McKeough spoke of the raising of the salaries of the principals at McKeough and Central schools and on his motion, seconded by Dr. Bray, each were raised from $900 to $1,000 per year, beginning August 1st.

The Inspector's report on the past term was as follows:

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

Chatham, July 12th, 1902.

The Board of Public School Trustees of the City of Chatham:

Gentlemen,—I beg to report upon the condition and progress of the city schools for the term just ended, as follows:

The term opened most inauspiciously. An outbreak of small-pox kept the schools closed for the first two weeks, and thereafter thinned the attendance to an alarming extent up to the Easter vacation. Indeed, for the first three months of the term the primary rooms were practically empty. The completion of the third story of the Central school led to noise and confusion there from Easter to midsummer. Under these circumstances it would be idle to expect the best work. Our teachers, however, have labored zealously, and with such skill that at the end of the term the promotion from class to class and room to room are quite up to the usual mark, and we shall begin the work of the fall term under most favorable conditions.

McKEOUGH SCHOOL.

I have inspected this school several times during the term, and I am thoroughly satisfied with the work done in each room, from the lowest to the highest. Miss Young has shown herself to be an excellent teacher of the little people, who are just beginning, and her work has fully justified her selection for this position. If I were to individualize, I should have to bestow the highest praise upon each of the teachers of this school in turn, ending with the principal, whose magnificent work at the recent Entrance Examinations shows that the years but add to his teaching powers.

I am glad to know that we are to have improved cloak-rooms and sanitation.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 6.

A GOOD MOVE.

By increasing the remuneration of the principals of the city public schools the members of the Board last evening gave evidence of their appreciation of the good work which has been, and is being, accomplished under their respective regimes. In The Planet's opinion, it is only false economy to underpay able, earnest and successful servants, more especially when they are identified with so paramount a work as that of education—and in the university of the masses.

It is also very satisfactory to know that the members of the Board were enabled to arrive at an amicable understanding in the matter—even if it took a Star Chamber session to do it. It is unquestionably to the best interests of all that questions of the kind should be so disposed of and a unanimity conserved in acting for the weal and development of this great branch of public progression.

Chatham is proud of the conduct and management of her public schools and The Planet heartily congratulates Messrs. Plewes and Brackin upon the recognition they have received at the hands of the Board.

To Mr. Plewes' indefatigable energy and capable teaching the present exceptional success of the Central school, its mammoth proportion of pupils and its perfect organization are due. To his efforts, too, can be ascribed the fact that Chatham last year took precedence as the possessor of the Model school securing the premier position in the Province. Mr. Plewes has done magnificent work in the two short years he has devoted his efforts to education in the Maple City; he has established a new era for the South Chatham schools, and it is very satisfactory to learn that later it is the intention of the Board to give him further recompense for his splendid services. No one is more deserving.

Of Mr. Brackin's work, also, too much cannot be said. The long history of progress and prosperity which belongs to McKough school is indelibly associated with his personality and efforts. He has labored for a short life-time in its behalf and the city at large has reaped the benefits of his service. It will be a source of genuine regret to learn that he is contemplating a comparatively early retirement from the sphere of usefulness with which he has so long and so honorably been identified. In view of this fact and his long and valued services, the Board did a graceful act in joining him with his younger and progressing colleague in the salary honors.

The Planet does not think that there will be any disposition on the part of the ratepayers to question the comparatively small increased outlay. There should not be. If ever there were two citizens deserving of substantial recognition by the people of Chatham those citizens are J. W. Plewes and James Brackin.

THE KING'S CORONATION.

We have once more moved into coronation week and all eyes are turned with hope and expectancy to old London, comments the Guelph Herald. Robbed of much of its splendor the ceremony assuredly has been by the almost tragic postponement rendered imperative by His Majesty's illness. But if the spectacle be less glorious in appearance it will have a deeper and more devoted heart interest for the people of the British Empire. Gratitude for the speedy recovery of our King, joy at seeing him wear the crown which fate seemed determined should never rest upon his head, will fill all hearts, and those days of gloom, when the pale-horsed rider seemed to be knocking at the gates of Buckingham Palace, will be forgotten.

His Majesty has surprised his physicians and his people. When the serious nature of his illness became known, months, it was felt, must in-

Intervene before the great event fixed for next Saturday could take place. But His Majesty has shown himself the possessor of wonderful vitality and recuperative powers. From the moment he was taken from the operating table he appears to have made steady progress; no suggestion of a relapse of weakness was at any rate contained in the bulletins of the royal physicians. With splendid strength and patience he has battled his way to convalescence, and will, his people all earnestly hope and pray, soon be entirely recovered. That the King has undergone great suffering is undeniable; that he has borne it with admirable resignation all reports agree. We have been afforded but few glimpses of the royal sick room, but what has come to us gives us a clearer view of the manliness of King Edward and the womanliness of his royal consort, Queen Alexandra. She, the most lovable woman in England, has in the trying period now happily ended, given gracious evidences of wifely devotion to the King, and queenly interest in his people.

May this week end happily for their Majesties. May no further difficulties impede the pathway to the coronation chairs and may they be long spared to reign over a peaceful, a happy and a prosperous Empire.

SOME CENSUS FIGURES.

During the past week a census bulletin was issued which contained interesting statistics regarding the ages of the people of Canada, comments the Hamilton Herald. From it may be discovered some of the reasons for the slow rate of increase in the population which has been a frequent cause of complaint. It appears that during each decade from 1871 there has been a steady decrease in the proportion of children and persons under twenty years of age to the whole number of the people. This decrease is most marked for the ages below ten, and in this particular the figures for Ontario are even more impressive than those for the Dominion as a whole.

The largest proportion of children under ten years of age is found in the Northwest Territories, with Quebec in second place, and Manitoba close up. Ontario is the lowest with the single exception of British Columbia, and this province is a long way below the proportion for the whole Dominion. When it comes to persons under the age of twenty years, Ontario is also next to the foot of the list, with only 418,541 per thousand, while Quebec has moved up to the head, followed closely by Manitoba, with the Northwest Territories in third place. Although the population of Ontario is one-third more than that of Quebec, the number of children under five years of age, in the latter province exceeds that in the former by 13,021. Under these circumstances, and unless other factors enter to complicate the problem, it ought not to be many decades before Quebec will pass Ontario in the race. The inrush of settlement into new Ontario may delay or prevent what otherwise would appear to be an inevitable result.

The smaller proportion of children in Ontario cannot be attributed to any decrease in the number of marriages, actual or relative. In comparison with the total population of the Dominion, the number of married people per thousand has shown a small but steady increase since 1881. The same is true of Quebec, where the proportion, which in 1881 was a little greater than that for Canada as a whole, in 1901 was a little less. In Ontario, however, the increase has been marked; in 1881 the proportion was practically the same as that of Quebec, in 1891 it was 1.2 per cent. greater, and in 1901 it had grown 6 per cent. and was that much ahead of Quebec. In other words, the proportion of married people per thousand in Ontario in 1901 was 353.391, and in Quebec only 334.080, while in the Dominion as a whole it was 341.262. Of course, this is explained in part at least by the larger number of persons below marriageable age in Quebec as compared with its total population.

Tables showing the number of males and females at various ages also afford room for some interesting deductions. There were in Canada in 1901 2,751,106 males and 2,619,609 females. The excess of males over females appears at all ages below 85, when the fair sex secures the majority and retains it. This would seem to indicate that women are more likely to attain a great age than men, a fact which has been borne out by statistics in other countries as well as Canada. The figures for Ontario tell practically the same story.

The alleged unwillfulness of women to disclose their age has furnished a theme for jesters from time immemorial, but it is a curious fact that of the people of Canada, whose ages were not given to the enumerators, 29,766 were males and 19,311 females. Blacksmith's Backache.

Swinging heavy hammers, frequent stooping over shoeing horses, getting a wrench once in a while from a refractory horse, bending at all sorts of odd jobs that the average blacksmith does—any wonder that in time the strongest man begins to find his back give out and his kidneys trouble him.

The progress of medical science has produced nothing that is a greater boon to the blacksmiths throughout this country than Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. They get at the origin of the backache in the kidneys and make a thorough and radical cure.

THE RESULT OF A STRAIN.

A Soper, blacksmith, John Street South, Aylmer, states his case as follows: "A blacksmith's work is always hard and mine is no exception. I strained my back some time ago, and the trouble settled in the small of my back and kidneys, laying me up. I have been subject in times past to an attack of backache, and took different kidney pills, but got little relief along use. This time I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and they stopped the attack in a hurry. They acted far differently and away quicker than anything I ever took. I am pleased with them, and consider them satisfactory in every way."

Kitchener is not at home in a high silk hat. A London report states that when getting out of a railway carriage the other day, he had caught the door and was jammed down over his eyes. Some esteemed contemporaries are talking about what they call the strange bequest of a French gentleman, who is accredited with having shown an interest in red-haired girls, of which he is to be devoted to providing dowries for them. Where is the strangeness? That gentleman knew the need of his country and recognized a remedy in red-haired girls. Nothing strange about that. It was good business sense. Good patriotic philanthropy.

WRITES HOME

Interesting Letter From Walter S. Verrall to a Maple City Friend.

W. S. Verrall, travelling in the Western part of Canada, writes an interesting letter from Slocan City, B. C. He says:—

"Your delightful interesting epistle of July 7th reached me a few days ago, and as I wish to hear from you on your head, I'm going to answer promptly.

"You will notice from the above address that I am now in the centre of one of the best known Canadian mining districts and one which you have frequently heard of at home. The famous Payette is in the close vicinity and is still turning out ore. I will be in the Rosebud district in three or four days, and shall then put forth an effort to get down to see the War Eagle. You hear of nothing but mining in this district, and I can assure you I'll be glad when I get out of it.

"I have finished my work at the coast and am now on my way east. Expect to be at least two weeks longer in British Columbia, and then I start in to finish up my work in the territories; and, as near as I can tell, I will have two months' work there and in Manitoba. Enjoyed my coast trip very much and really think Victoria one of the most beautiful spots I have ever seen. While there I met Dr. Herman Robertson, whom, of course, you will remember. Herman is working up a very lucrative practice and, besides, has the position of Medical Health Officer, which gives him a salary, apart from his practice, of about $100 per month. While there I also met Dr. Frank Hall, a brother of Dr. Hall, Medical Health Officer, Chatham. I also met Dr. Hall of New Westminster, another brother.

Mrs. Hugh Johnston, Miss Hattie Kelly, Mr. H. Kelly and others expect to take up their residence at the club house near the lighthouse this week.

Startling and Staying.

At the start in a long race, the advantage often appears to be with an outsider. But the race is won not in starting but in staying. The quality which wins is staying power. It is so in the race of life. Staying power wins, and as a rule the best stayer is the man with the best stomach. All physical strength is derived from food which is properly digested and assimilated. When the food eaten is only partly digested and assimilated there is a loss of nutrition which means a loss of strength and the general result is physical break-down.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery gives strength and staying power, because it cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food eaten, and so strengthens the body naturally by the nutrition derived from food.

"I was troubled with indigestion for about two years," writes Wm. Bowler, Esq., of Julia, Utah, "I tried different doctors and remedies but to no avail, until I wrote to you and you told me what to do. I suffered thought that it would kill me. Now I am glad to write this and let you know that I am all right. I can do my work now without pain and I don't have that tired feeling that I used to have. Five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and two vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets' cured me."

Accept no substitute for Golden Medical Discovery. There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are easy and pleasant to take. A most effective laxative.

DYE MIND THAT!

So was Fungus overheard. That was clear. For didn't he get a hot box On the ear?

AT A PRIVATE VIEW

She—What an extraordinary picture and why on earth does the artist call it home?

He—Can't imagine, unless he knows that there is no place like it.

Headache.

Pain across the forehead or at back of head is dangerous. It slowly but surely weakens the intellectual powers, impairs the vitality and will. Headache is sometimes from the eyes but more frequently is caused by a disordered condition of the stomach and digestive organs. Do not suffer. The pain can be cured by the harmless remedy

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

It never loses its effect. Cures by driving out the poison, and does not simply deaden the pain as do so many preparations containing narcotics. Abbey's in the morning will make you well and keep you well.

OUTSIDE MARKETS.

HENRY CLEWS' REPORT.

Henry Clews, in his weekly letter to The Planet, says:—

There is nothing new to be said regarding the crops. The outlook in the west is promising, though slightly less than a week ago. Each day, however, reduces the possibility of damage, and the agricultural sections from the country seem assured of a season of great abundance and prosperity than a year ago—a most important offset to other drawbacks. The industrial situation is perhaps less satisfactory than a year ago. There is a large demand for manufactured products, but strikes and increased cost of production impose a set of conditions upon manufacturers necessitating a policy of caution regarding the future. Distribution of commodities is often checked by high prices and buyers hold off in anticipation of recessions in values. In a few weeks we shall be in the midst of a sharp political agitation. Trusts and tariffs will be the chief issues, and while no radical action need be anticipated, still the discussion will exert a restraining effect upon Wall Street operations. During the next few weeks a fairly active market may be expected with good opportunities for quick turns, upon all sharp rallies, however, stocks ought to be a good sale.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Aug. 5.—There were about 1,000 head of cattle, 500 calves and 1,200 sheep and lambs brought to the city for sale since yesterday morning. A large number of these animals were sold yesterday, but the larger proportion of them were offered at the east end abattoir today. The bountiful supplies in such warm weather had a depressing effect on the prices, which were considerably lower than on Monday's market, and a good many of the cattle will not be sold today. Only three or four head of the best cattle brought over 50c per lb., and not many over 4c per lb. pretty good stock selling at from 3-1-2 to 4-1-2c and the common beasts at from 2-1-4 to 3-1-4c per lb. The leaner beef critters were bought by the canners at from 1-2 to 2-1-4c per lb. Calves were rather dull of sale and brought from $2 to $10 each. Sheep sold at from 2-3-4 to 3-1-4c per lb. Lambs

WORLD OF SPORT

There is a possibility of Wallaceburg lacrosse team playing here on Monday next for a game.

Frank J. Laurie received a message yesterday from Secretary Muir, of the Woodstock lacrosse club, to the effect that a game could be arranged for here for Monday, Aug. 11, civic holiday, if $100 would be guaranteed. Manager Coupland being away from town and Captain Wilson also being away, Mr. Laurie decided that such a sum could not be arranged, as we had no gate, and civic holiday was bad as most people go out of town on that day. The game then could not be arranged.

BASEBALL

The Bankers and Aberdeens play this afternoon on Tecumseh park at 4.30. The game will be a good one. A silver collection will be taken up to help along this good sport. The Aberdeen line-up will be as follows: Campbell, c., Robert, p., Taylor, 1st, Avchouster 2nd, Bensen 3rd, Mc'Garry, s. a., McGuire 1, McKie, m., Glasford, r.

There will be no reason for anyone to go out of town on Monday next. There will be cricket with Detroit, for lovers of that great English game. Two games of baseball, one with the Walpole Island Indians, and there will likely be a lacrosse game with Wallaceburg.

CELERY FARM

"The Celery Farm at Rondeau has been deserted and given up as a bad job." So said Supt. E. B. Jones, this morning. "Why, the place out there," he continued, "is about 18 inches under water. Messrs. Dunkley have labored unceasingly for some time to overcome the flood but it was of no avail and they have now given it up for this season."

FROM SOUTH AFRICA

Geo. Horstead, brother of Harry Horstead, of the Chatham Mfg. Co., also a brother of John Horstead, formerly of this city, and well known here himself, was in the city yesterday, having just returned from South Africa. He left Nelson, B. C., in April, joining the last contingent that went out. He was in no fighting, but saw a good deal of the country. About 18 out of the 25 that went out from Nelson, stayed in the country. George will attend the celebration in Montreal on Saturday. He is with the C. P. R., and is doing well.

SHOT HIMSELF

A young seven-year-old son of Jacob Labombard, proprietor of the Montreal House, Head street, is in St. Joseph's Hospital as the result of shooting himself early yesterday afternoon. The little fellow, while playing around the house, ferreted out an old 32 calibre revolver in one of the drawers. No one noticed that he had it until a report was heard and the poor boy was found on the floor in great pain. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and Dr. McKeeough was immediately called. Upon examination it was found that the ball had passed through the abdominal cavity. After passing through the abdominal wall, the ball went through an inch and a half door and a partition. The boy is doing well to-day in the hospital.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK.

This famous national park offers to the tourist and sightseer more novelties and curiosities than perhaps any other spot on earth. The stage ride from Monida is through scenery hardly inferior to the park itself, and this ride is one of the very many enjoyments of the trip.

The new route to the Yellowstone is via the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line Railroads to Monida, Monida, thence daily by special Concord coaches of the Monida & Yellowstone Stage Company to all points in the Yellowstone National Park. Full information cheerfully furnished on application to:

ALL CANADA AT TORONTO

There will not be a province or a piece of territory in the Dominion that will not be represented at the exhibition to be held in Toronto this year from Monday, Sept. 1st, to Saturday, Sept. 13th. To mark their appreciation of the importance of the country's confidence, the Executive have increased the prize list until now it is proudly boasted that, with special awards of $37,000 will be distributed in prizes among the exhibitors, six-sevenths of which will find its way to the agricultural community. While this large sum proves the magnitude of the exposition, the surprise of its managers, and the comprehensiveness of the exhibits, the fact that $30,000 is to be spent in attractions and special features, the latest inventions as well as the latest novelties in the amusement world, and including $7,000 for music, shows that while the agricultural and industrial interests of the country are to be well looked after, the people's enjoyment will not be neglected. America and Europe have been secured for all that is best in every line of attraction. Bolossi Kiraly, the greatest master of spectacle on earth, has been secured to produce in all its brilliancy and gorgeousness his stupendous production "The Orient," which was the wonder of London, Eng., at Olympia for a year, and that is only one of the most costly features that have either been engaged or are being negotiated for. Then there are the new Dairy Building and the new Art Gallery, which will greatly increase the value of the exhibition as a factor in the education and elevation of the people. In the Dairy Building not only will there be exhibits of dairy products, utensils, and so on, but lectures and demonstrations will be given twice daily in a hall provided with seating accommodation for 600 people. Reduced rates will, of course, be available on all lines of travel.

Preparation is the best prayer to Providence.

The police should use the club when the tongue falls in such cases.—To-day's Growler

Over 75 lashes were dealt, and there are more than 50 wounds from two inches to a foot long on his face and body. The bark was worn from the tree where the ropes which bound the unfortunate man touched, and the whip left the marks on the tree as if it had been cut with a knife. Harry Stevens has returned from a business trip to the West Indies and has many a story to tell of his pleasant trip. He visited the scene of the recent volcanic eruptions. Mont Pelée vomited forth destruction for 33,000 human beings living at St. Pierre.

Mr. Stevens stayed only three hours at the scene of destruction, and he says that was long enough. Earthquakes still continue and are shattering the ruins of once handsome buildings. Mr. Stevens stopped at all the islands which the Quebec steamer line touches. He also took transfer steamers to neighboring islands. He spent some time at St. Martin's island, which belongs jointly to France and Holland. There are about 12,000 people on the island and they have two sets of custom officers. Mr. Stevens has many photographs taken showing scenes in the devastated city of St. Pierre.

A VENTRILOQUIST

Every evening, a number of citizens take the five o'clock train to Erieau. Generally the ride is noted for its sameness, but yesterday, a little vaudeville specialty was put on. The act furnished lots of fun while it lasted. The spectators say it was a whole circus. J. G. Kerr, L. E. Tillson and W. E. Merritt were sitting in a double seat. Across the aisle sat Judge Houston. Two innocent and ordinary fellows sat behind Mr. Merritt and Mr. Kerr.

Suddenly the Chatham crowd were aroused by an apparent altercation between the conductor and a passenger. The Maple City men began rubbing and the trio in the double seat after nearly dislocating their spinal column and taking a good deal of the stretch out of the in-jury rubber in their necks, the lawyer, banker and railroad man realized that they were up against a ventriloquist. Judge Houston, wasn't quite as quick getting next, and he started dag to investigate who the passenger was refusing to pay his fare, and swearing at the conductor. The Judge got next quick, as soon as he stood up and he joined in the snail.

At Blenheim the train stopped and Dr. Bray, having finished his smoke, came into the car.

W. E. Merritt saw him coming and whispered to the man who could throw his voice, the Doctor's name. The Doctor stopped to talk to the three when some one called "Doctor, Dr. Bray." The Doctor looked all around. "I say, Doctor," the medical man continued to gaze around. "Was some one calling me," he asked.

"Doctor, Doctor Bray," came the eager call again. Dr. Bray reached over and peered out the window, then rushed out on the platform and looked all around. The rest of the Chatham crowd could keep silent no longer and broke out into loud laughter. The Doctor realized that he had been joked and took the laugh good-naturedly.

The ventriloquist is a Clevelandian, and a good one. He is staying at the Lake View House. He has lots of fun around the dining room.

DREAM OF FUTURE

Berlin, Aug. 4.—The King of Italy's proposal of a contraction of European armaments is a subject upon which the Czar and the German Emperor will undoubtedly converse at their meeting at Revel on the occasion of the Russian naval manoeuvres. Emperor William will give the suggestion no encouragement. His opinion, well-known to diplomatists, is that disarmament is a dream of the future, and a fantastic idea, when considered in connection with the present continental situation.

"Germany cannot consent to impair her finest instrument of defence, which is the defence of her existence," he is quoted as saying, "because other nations are anxious to equal." We can stand the expenses, and besides, I consider that the army returns to the nation all that it costs in discipline of character and wholesome training of the boys."

Opinion here does not regard the meeting of the Emperors as of large importance, though it cannot be called a mere visit of kinsman for the reason that the Chancellor, Count Von Bismarck, and Count Lamdorff, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, accompany their respective sovereigns.

A GIRL OF THE PEOPLE

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

"I must forgive you, since I am sure you meant to be so kind," I said more gently. "At least, I will, if you'll tell me one thing."

"I can almost promise, for such a bribe, that I will."

"Why are you suddenly so different from what you were a few nights ago, when you came to me at the bridge? You are more like what I remember of you the first time."

"Thank you for remembering at all. But that is another thing I must ask you to forgive me for; the way I behaved to you at Waterloo Bridge. It was the only thing to do, you know—to be firm and stern. But it was not what was in my heart. I wonder if I dare tell you what was really there?"

I looked up at him half-startled. But I said: "Yes, tell me." And I made a sign that he should sit down in the chair left not far from my side by Mrs. Jennett.

"It may be presumptuous for a man like me to pity a woman like you," he began, slowly, even shyly. "But I did pity you then, with an infinite pity. If I had been your brother I could not have felt greater sorrow and tenderness. I thought how you must have suffered, and it seemed cruel that you should have to suffer. You are almost a child still, you see, and I had thought of you so many times after that first meeting at the theatre, as a girl born to happiness and good fortune. I shall never forget how I felt when you turned your face as—as I held you back from that plunge, and saw—it was you. I could not believe my eyes for a moment."

"Nor I mine," I said, softly. "It seemed very strange that you should come to my rescue for the second time."

"Do you forgive me for what must have seemed like harshness and lack of sympathy?" he asked.

"There's nothing to forgive. Only everything to thank you for."

"Then you do thank me?" he questioned, eagerly. "You aren't sorry now that I forced you back to life?"

"I ought to be sorry," I said. "Nothing is changed. I have as little to live for as I had then, as little chance of redeeming miserable failures. Yet—I suppose because I'm young and the love of life is instinctive, now that—that there's sunshine, and I'm not faint with hunger and dropping with weariness—I can't feel all sorry."

"Good heavens! You were hungry?" he ejaculated in an odd voice. "How terrible—how unbelievable!"

I could not help laughing, though I really did not feel like laughing at all.

"Not so very terrible to be hungry," I returned. "But now, looking back upon that night, the blackest I ever knew, I think, perhaps, if I hadn't been physically so weak I might have been morally stronger. Of course, it was cowardly to do what I meant to do, though I'd just persuaded myself that it wasn't—when you came. I hope that I shall never be so wicked again. And I shall not even think of it, if only I can get work. I did try so hard before, but I had no luck. Maybe you will give me a little good advice how to find it."

He looked me earnestly in the face.

"I didn't dream it was that kind of trouble," he said. And I thought that, for some reason, his eyes expressed relief.

"I suppose not," I rejoined, with a smile that was not very gay. "When you saw me first I didn't appear exactly a candidate for the workhouse, but I was, even then, though I didn't know it myself. And the other night—well, that frock and hat were made before I realized that I was a beggar."

Suddenly, when I had gone so far, I was overcome with an irresistible desire to tell him my whole story—that part of it which concerned myself alone. I had not intended, even a moment beforehand, to confide in John Bourke or anyone else, but his eyes dwelt on me with a yearning look, and the words spoke themselves.

I told him my name, which he had not known before; then I had thought myself Sheila Cope, and found that I was Jenny Harland, for Harland, I had learnt, was my own father's name. I told John Bourke that Lady Cope had died on the very night when I had seen him first. That I had lost my home, and the money which would have come to me if I had really been Lady Cope's daughter. I even went faltering on, and to my own surprise was presently describing Easel street, my mother, Pan and Totsey, and Tom Stephens, Pan's lover. I said little of Sir Roger Cope or his attitude towards me, save that he had inherited everything; but when my companion spoke at last, it was to begin with Roger Cope.

"Don't think me very impatient," he said, having heard me to the end without interruption. "I don't speak out of idle curiosity. But—didn't Sir Roger Cope want you to keep your old home—only in a way to which you couldn't consent?"

"Yes," I rather reluctantly admitted. "And you ran away from him, and from everything? And he didn't write to you, or come to see you though he knew your address?"

"He came the very day I left Easel street. I suppose you'll think I'm always running away." I said this, laughing, and no prophetic instinct brought the tears instead.

"He came to make the same offer again?" I nodded.

"Do you like Sir Roger Cope?" abruptly.

"No-o. I never did. Though I could not have explained why till lately."

"Well, then, perhaps you won't mind my telling you what has struck me. I don't know Sir Roger Cope personally, but I know of him. He is popular, in his own set, and he is called clever in his profession. But he has shown the iron hand under the velvet in his treatment of you. I heard that he had come into a fortune through the death of a relative, and that a girl who had believed herself the heiress had gone abroad to live, on an allowance made by him. No doubt that's the version which has been given out, for the benefit of those who knew you. And I, not knowing the name of the ladies I had very impudently followed from the Lyceum, didn't for an instant associate the story with you. Now I believe that Roger Cope is even a more unscrupulous man than you have thought him. Did you connect your failure at the employment agencies in any way with him?"

"No," I responded in surprise.

"Well, I do. I think it is not at all unlikely that he paid some person to watch your movements, report to him, and prejudice the minds of the agents you had applied to against you with some falsehood."

"What object could he have had for being so gratuitously cruel?" I cried.

"I may be doing the man a hideous injustice," said John Bourke, "but the object which he might have had is easy enough for anyone except an unassuming young girl to see. He wanted you to marry him; you refused. He, indirectly, sent you away to a place where he knew you would meet with humiliations and deprivations beyond anything you had experienced. Then he might have resolved to turn the screw tighter and prevent your escaping to more endurable surroundings."

"I did suspect that he had waited before coming to see me until I should have grown nearly desperate. But I never thought of the other part. Even now it sounds too horrid to be possible."

"I hope it is not possible," said Mr. Bourke.

"Surely you don't suggest that he hired the woman to pick my pocket and add almost the last feather to my burden?"

"No, I stopped short at that in my accusations. But it isn't beyond believing if he paid certain persons to keep an eye on you."

"If that be true, thank heaven he must have lost sight of me now," I said.

"He shall not find you again if I can help it. Not while you desire to keep out of his way. And as for work, you shall have it, I promise you, as soon as you are strong enough. Already, if you will forgive me again, I've thought of a plan, and I'll risk offending you by proposing it."

"I shall be grateful, not offended, whatever it may be. Don't keep me in suspense."

"Well, how should you like to learn typewriting, and, after a while, if you fancied it, shorthand, too?"

"Like and fancy are inappropriate words in my desperate case," I said.

"But, as it happens, I should do both."

"Very well, then, I'll teach you typewriting when you are stronger—in a few days, perhaps."

"But I can't go on staying here—in your house."

"It isn't my house. It is Mrs. Jennett's. But as you are so anxious to get away you will be able to, say, ten days or a fortnight's time (if you are quick at learning), to earn enough money for lodgings of your own."

"Who would give a wretched aman-

teur work," I asked, when there must be so many clever girls who are professionals?"

"I will give you work. All you can do. Don't look like that, please. It's no charity, I assure you. I have lost my secretary and I need another. You can learn typing in a week, and in three or four months, in leisure hours, you will have made good progress with shorthand. As for the machine, I have two, and one of them I'll lend to you."

"Thank you for stopping to think in time and not saying 'give,'" I laughed.

"How good it is to hear that laugh," he said. "Now, are you glad you didn't go down under the dark waters?"

"Oh, so glad!" impulsively.

I held out my hands and he caught them both, gripping them so tightly that the grasp gave me pain. Then, suddenly, he let my hands go, with a changing expression that I wished I had the clue to read.

"Mrs. Jennett shall find you just the right rooms," he went on, with a hint of sadness in his voice. "Meanwhile, you shall be practising your new art, which will be all the easier for you if you know the piano, as of course you do. And in a few days, perhaps, you will be able to move. Then you'll be soon earning three guineas a week, on which, if you are a very prudent young lady, you can live quite comfortably."

"Dear me, can I really earn as much as that by typewriting?" I asked, opening my eyes. "It is more than I could have hoped for as a governess. Even with my music and languages, the people at the agencies told me, before they grew disagreeable, that I could not ask at most more than forty pounds a year."

"Oh, well, you see, people often take advantage of their governesses; whereas expert typewriters are pretty well paid," he informed me with a grave face, so grave that I never thought of doubting him. "Shall I come back tomorrow with the machine and give you your first lesson?"

At the end of a week I could write very well. Mrs. Jennett had found me rooms, which were to be ready in a few days, but as they were still in occupation, I must stay where I was till they were free. I had grown to love the study and every book in it. I should be home when I went away. As for John Bourke, I would not let myself think what it would be when the days should go by without a glimpse of him. I had begun to live in the present. Little dreaming of the precipice that my feet had all but reached.

CHAPTER XV.

"The Man You Love."

"There! I've typed a thousand words in an hour!" I announced. "Isn't that good for the other part. Even now it sounds too horrid to be possible."

"Splendid!" said John Bourke.

"Shall I ever be as good as your other secretary, who left you to be married?" I wistfully asked.

"The man was a secretary like you," he replied.

"Oh! But is that meant for praise or—otherwise?"

"It's meant to tell you that I wish I could keep you for my secretary always."

"Perhaps you may. I'll grow old in your service."

He came closer and stood looking down at his finished work; yet not seeming to see it. I felt that there was something which he wished to say, and that he was thinking of the right beginning; but just as he had opened his lips to speak there came a knock at the door. Mrs. Jennett entered with a telegram sent on for Mr. Bourke from the hotel where he was living.

He read it and crushed the paper in his hand. "I must go at once," he said. "But I shall be back to-morrow morning about half-past six, with some work for you to do, if you will."

TALKS IN NATURAL TONES.

Machine That is a Vast Improvement on the Phonograph.

While the reproduction of the human voice by means of the phonograph and gramophone is a remarkable achievement, there are objections to the strained, and unnatural quality of sound reproduced by the ordinary phonograph and gramophone. The peculiar metallic quality heard from those instruments is due to the fact that in order to make the reproductions as loud as possible the original must be of abnormal effort.

Emile Berliner, the well known electrical inventor, has, however, devised a reproducing machine wherein this trouble is remedied. It is composed of a number of separate gramophones operated simultaneously. The art has advanced so far that the records may be made exact duplicates of each other, even to the minutest detail. The only difficulty in operating several machines is to have them registered exactly with each other so as to insure simultaneous operation. A table or support is provided, on which there are mounted a number of rotary tables of the usual gramophone type and adapted to receive the well known record tablets of commerce. These tablets are generally arranged in a staggered row, each being supported on an upright spindle or shaft journaled in a standard fashion to a table.

Upon each shaft just below the table is secured a disk having equally spaced radially projecting pins of its periphery. The disks are all of the same size, with the same number of pins, and they are driven together with the tables at the same speed by means of a belt having perforations spaced to fit the pins and operated by a motor of any desirable construction. The registering devices make it possible to insure the contact of each stylus with a corresponding point of each record by the mere act of placing the stylus on the proper line. Power being applied to rotate the records, identical sounds issue from each of the horns, and the combined body of sound may be made as great as desired by using an appropriate number of records. Therefore it is possible to provide an exact reproduction of the human voice or to make it louder or softer.

Most people, if they were asked to state the color of the sun, would say that it was orange, and they would as confidently assert that the color of the atmosphere was blue. Recent researches and investigations, however, says "Knowledge," point to the conclusion that the real color of the sun is blue, while that the atmosphere surrounding the earth is orange.

A little machine which threads one thousand needles a minute is at work in St. Gall, Switzerland. The purpose of the machine is to thread needles that are placed afterwards in an embroidery loom for making Swiss or Hamburg lace. The device is almost entirely automatic. It takes the needle from a hopper, tries it along and threads it, ties the knot, cuts the thread off a uniform length, then carries the needle across an open space and sticks it in a rack. The work of threading these needles was formerly done by hand.

The highest waterfall in the world, geography tells us, is the Corcovado, in the Alps, having a fall of 2,400 feet; that of Arvey, in Savoy, is 1,100 feet, and the falls of the Yosemite Valley range from 700 to 1,000 feet. But higher yet is the fall in the San Cayatan canyon, in the State of Durango, Mexico. It was discovered by some prospectors ten years ago in the great Barranca district, which is called the Tierras Desconocidas. While searching for the famous lost mine, Narajal, a great roar of water was heard. With great difficulty the party pushed on and up and down the mighty chasma, until they beheld the superb fall that is at least 3,000 feet high.

The date-palm may solve the problem of what to do with the arid and alkali lands of Arizona and other Western States. Experiments have been made in the past, but renewed interest is being taken by the section of plant introduction of the Department of Agriculture at Washington. According to the New York "Sun," Professor D. G. Fairchild, agricultural explorer for the department, now traveling in Africa, has procured a number of suckers, or offshoots, from the Delta of the Nile, which will be distributed in the southern Western States. In the United States the date is an article of luxury, but in its native country it is a most important food, many regions in Arabia and the Sahara being uninhabitable but for the date-palm.

President Harper of the University of Chicago recently received the following letter from a prospective girl-student at Peconica, Ill.: "Dear Dr. Harper—I know you will be pleased to learn that I have decided to attend the university school of education this fall. I am going to Chicago next Saturday on the morning train, and as I have never been in the city before, I would be glad if you would meet me at the depot. I am five feet four inches tall, have light hair and eyes, and a pleasing appearance. I shall wear a dark-brown traveling suit and a blue waist with white yoke. I think I shall know you from your pictures, but for fear I make a mistake, will you please wear your card in your hat?"

"A pathetic incident in connection with a biograph scene occurred in Detroit, Mich., March 17 last," says "Popular Science." "A view made of the occupation of Peking was flashed across the screen. It represented a detachment of the Fourteenth United States Infantry entering the gates of the Chinese capital. Last file of soldiers seemed literally stepping out of the frame on to the stage, there rose a scream from a woman who sat front of me. 'My God!' she cried hysterically, 'there is my brother Allen marching with the soldiers.' The figure had been recognized by others in the audience as that of Allen McCann, who had mysteriously disappeared some years before. Subsequently Mrs. Booth, the sister, wrote to the War Department and learned that it really was her brother whose presence she so strangely had been confronted with."

Evidence to the Contrary.

Citizen—Madam, why do you persist in punching me with your umbrella? Madam—I want to make you look around, so I can thank you for giving me your seat. Now, sir, don't you go off and say that women haven't any manners.—Chicago "Record-Herald."

An Ambiguous Compliment.

Miss Beekley—I'm so glad I'm not an heiress, Mr. Soper. I should never know whether my suitors were attracted by myself or my money. Mr. Soper—Oh, Miss Beekley, your mirror should leave you in no doubt on that score!—"Punch."

Changed Her Mind.

The house was "handy to the street car line" and in good repair, there were the proper number of closets and the rental was reasonable, but before coming to terms the house-hunting matron said to the agent:—"It is only fair for me to tell you that we have five boys." "That won't make any difference, ma'am," he said, with a smile. "You will find big families of boys on both sides of you." "Oh, then I don't want the house at all!" she exclaimed. "I want to find a neighborhood where there won't be any boys about mine!" At last accounts she was still hunting.

The Love Letters of a Christian Scientist.

My beloved Prince of the New Thought—I have been wondering today if our exchange of gifts seems as beautiful to you as it does to me. Most lovers exchange rings, but how much more your betrothal gift to me really means! The thought that you have given me your well-studied and dog-eared copy of Science and Health with a Key to the Scriptures, and that I have given you my copy of the Mother's Words, thrills me to the heart—or would, if there were any reality in matter. (Heart would come under the head of matter, wouldn't it? And matter, reflected, of course, from mortal mind, which is evil.)

Do you remember the day, darling Vibration of the Mind Universal, that we sat together planning what we should represent at the Lemar's Book Party? It seems but yesterday! We decided that you would wear goggles and your college cap and gown, for you were to represent Science, and I, Health (trusting to my red cheeks, to treating the guests for intelligence, and to silent affirmations that I was the first rent she came forward and began to receive offers of marriage.) (Do you know, Beloved, they say the Mother has demonstrated an immense fortune out of her Words—really, three dollars and fifty cents to give them is something fierce, isn't it?) Well, we were just finding a way to represent the Key (by putting ourselves in touch with the Way Universal), when your mother came in and asked the day of the month, and apologized for addressing us in English, adding sarcastically that she didn't speak Christian Science! Ah, my Own, I have to vehemently affirm that I am not with Love Omnipotent, Omnipresent, Omnipotent, every time I think of your mother. I begin each day by treating myself for Love and Non-resistance, and yet I must say your mother is without exception the most antagonistic old party I ever met! But then she is your mother—our mother—and All is Love, and you are All—or almost All.

I know my gift with a Key to the Scriptures will arrive safely and bring you the kisses I entrust to its wise care. How dear are the Mother's Words! Do you like kisses? Yours, with a Key to the Scriptures, would I could wear at my heart! It was so sweet of you not to select as the first manifestation of your Individual Love, some vulgar thing to dazzle the world, such as a grand piece of jewelry, so much prefer having you simple, adorable Radiator of Hope, like Wisdom. Hold me in your Thought, as I hold you in mine—even as Thought (the universal Mind)—holds us both to its breast! And come in to tea soon—soon!

P. S.—You remember, Bobby, don't you, Beloved? The poor child has such a frightful claim of superstitious flesh—actually, the neighborhood boys call him "the fat boy of the circus," but he is getting strongly in accord with the Principle of Life and will yet demonstrate his Freedom. Yesterday, Bobby was walking along with Ralph Hughes, when an unlighted little street ur-chin yelled, "Hello, Skinny! hello, Skinny! hello, Skinny!" "Smash him!" suggested Ralph. "Not on your life!" said Bobby. "He is giving me a Treatment!" Isn't it touching to see such Belief in the Power of the Word as this child has? Did I tell you that we have given up the claim of mind? Yes, we are now entirely free from them!—Ethel Shackelford in "Life."

Chimnie Fadden on Company Promoting.

"I see by de polpers where a company dat is going to make birch-bark canoes—or is it go-carts?—by machinery, offers stock for forty-three cents a share which is sure to pay one hundred per cent. on one hundred dollars' share. Dis proves how wonderful is de methods of modern finance. But dat is not what most excites my fancy. De same company says de same stock will be forty-seven cents in three days, a dollar and six-bits in ten days, and will sell for two or three hundred dollars inside of six months. Dat being so, sir—and of course dey would not say so if it was not true—I am filled with astonishment dat dey lets de public in at forty-three cents!"

"Dey may be philanthropists," says Miss Fannie. "I am not sure," says Mr. Paul. "De only thing sure about 'em is dat dey is not in jail; and a man out of jail may be anything. Den dere is de oil companies wit spouting wells, pipe lines, and railroads, who is selling stock easy wot seven hundred dollars a share for from four to twenty cents. As de poet says, 'I often wonder what de vendors buy one-half so precious as de stuff dey sell.'"

"Mostly, dey buys advertising space," says Whiskers, and den he near falls out of his chair laughing at his joke.

England's Royal Guests.

It is expected that more royal personages will be in London at the coronation than England has ever before seen together. When Victoria was crowned there was a European court sent a representative with rank higher than ambassador extraordinary; but in the years between that occasion and her Jubilee the Queen fortified England against another such slight by becoming grandmother to most of the ruling monarchs of Europe. The accommodation of so much royalty is giving the Royal host some anxious moments. London has no such assortment of colossal royal palaces as most of the great European capitals. Marlborough House and Buckingham Palace will not lodge comfortably any save the privileged close relations of the King and Queen. It is said that a large hotel near Buckingham Palace has been taken for the King's guests, and that several nobles have placed their London houses at King Edward's disposal. After the coronation week many of the royal guests will visit Windsor and Sandringham, and certain of the great country houses of England; so mighty preparations for elaborate entertaining are being made throughout the length and breadth of the land, as well as in London, and the amount of money that will be hospitably spent during the season is beyond ordinary calculation.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Soon after my marriage two years ago I found myself in constant pain. The doctor said my womb was turned, and this caused the pain with considerable inflammation. He prescribed for me for four months, when my husband became impatient because I grew worse instead of better, and in speaking to the druggist he advised him to get Lydia E. MORE DETAILS OF COLLISION

The Two Steamers Which Ran Together at Midnight off the t. au.

First Mate Sullivan's Version of the Accident—Sounded Whistle.

Cleveland, August 5. — The steamer City of Chicago arrived here early today with a number of survivors of the wreck off Road Eau. The mate, a watchman and a fireman of the City of Venice, were drowned. John Sullivan, mate of the Venice, is so badly injured that it is feared that he cannot recover. He was removed to the Marine Hospital here. The steamers met bow on in a fog, the City of Venice going down almost instantly.

Latest—As a result of a collision on Lake Erie, between the City of Venice and the steamer Seguin, a steel lumber vessel, off Road Eau, Ont., last night, just after midnight, the former vessel was sunk and three lives lost, while several other persons were more or less seriously injured. The drowned are—Peter Simonsen, fireman, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Thomas Flanagan, deck hand, Buffalo; George Weir, Watchman, residence unknown.

The injured are—John Sullivan, Chicago, confusion of back, will probably die; J. A. McDougal, Cheboygan, Mich., engineer City of Venice, arm injured and body badly bruised; Louis Houbecker, Cheboygan, Mich., head and back badly bruised. The cause of the collision is not known. There was no fog whatever, and the night was fairly clear. The lights of the City of Venice were burning brightly. The second mate of the Seguin, W. A. Lavigne, who was on watch, refused absolutely to give any information about the accident. "The less said about it the better," was his only remark. The City of Venice, laden with 3,000 tons of ore, was bound to Buffalo, while the Seguin was going north to Parry Sound from Ogdensburg. On board the Seguin all were asleep save Lavigne, and a watchman with him in the pilot house. The first mate of the Venice, Sullivan, was on watch aboard that boat. He is now in the hospital. The Seguin struck the Venice fairly amidships and plowed her way half through the boat.

All those who were sleeping rushed out on deck and there was a frightful panic for a time. The Venice was sinking rapidly. Captain Broderick ran on deck in his sleeping robes, and called to the men to man the life boat. The members of the crew, who had not been hurt, rushed to his assistance, and in five minutes they had the boat in the water. Several of the men threw themselves overboard, but they were picked up by the life-boat from the Seguin. The City of Venice went down in very deep water in less than fifteen minutes after the collision occurred. After standing by for an hour the Seguin headed for Cleveland with the survivors, arriving here early today.

The City of Venice was a wooden vessel, 261 feet long and 42 feet beam. She was owned by the McGraw Transportation Company, of Bay City, Michigan. The Seguin is an iron vessel 207 feet long and 34 feet beam. She is owned by J. B. Miller, of Parry Sound, and commanded by Capt. J. B. Sims.

First Mate Sullivan, of the City of Venice, rallied slightly this afternoon and made a statement relative to the collision. He whistled three times, he says, but not a signal was answered by the Seguin. He then attempted to get out of the Seguin's way, and veered his ship diagonally in her course, he says, hoping to escape with a slight rub of the collision which he realized was inevitable. He was swept overboard with the smashed pilot house of the City of Venice, but was soon picked up. There were about twenty-five persons in all on the lost vessel.

VILLAGE IN THE HANDS OF MOB

Sheriff and Armed Posse on Scene—Attempt to Run Street Cars.

Non-union Men Driven From the Cars of the Camden Inter-state Railway.

Knightstown, Ind., Aug. 4.—The village of Knightstown, five miles west of here, was in the hands of a mob for several hours last night and the sheriff of Hancock county, with 75 armed deputies is on the scene. The trouble arose from an attempt to prevent the running of its cars by the Indianapolis and Eastern Traction Company. Recently a quarantine was established by Hancock county against this city on account of small-pox here. The traction company stopped running its cars until yesterday. When an effort was made to resume, the police of Knightstown stopped the second car, arrested the motorman and conductor and side tracked the car. Later other cars were run through the town, and late last night a car was assailed by a fusillade of shots from the guards and villagers and C. M. Kirkpatrick, one of the directors, and several other passengers, were hurt. The sheriff of Hancock county, with the armed deputies, has been sent to the scene to enforce the quarantine.

DRIVEN FROM THE CARS.

Canton, O., Aug. 4.—The strike of the employees of the Camden Inter-state Railway almost completely tied up the lines from Guyandote, W. Va., to Hanging Rock, O., and intermedial points yesterday. In seven hours all the non-union men were driven from the cars in this city by violence. At noon James Sanders, a union man, who refused to quit, was taken from his car and dragged toward the Ohio river. On promising not to resume his car he was escorted home in a roundabout way to escape the crowd. Cars were held up all over the city until noon, when traffic was suspended. The non-union men are also afraid to run through the crowds at Cattleburg and Ashland, Ky., and other points on the Kentucky & West Virginia side of the Ohio River. The Ironworkers ran cars and secured more passengers than the street cars, women who chose that conveyance in preference to street cars, being cheered by the crowds.

BOARD SETTLE DIFFICULTY

I am well pleased with the results so far arising from the consolidation of the Payne and Queen street schools with the Central. Of course the school work has been seriously impeded, the reasons for which have already been mentioned. Yet notwithstanding all this, the percentage of any estimates has been very good throughout the term, and since Queen street school has been joined with the Central the average attendance has been higher than for the whole three schools in the corresponding months of 1901. Though carried on under difficulties, the work throughout the whole school has been better done than heretofore, and the promotions have been satisfactory.

There is no part of the work carried on in the Central school which has made such evident improvement as that of the primary rooms. I have paid especial attention to this work and I could not ask for two more painstaking, earnest and skilful teachers than Miss McKellar and Miss Tackberry have proved to be. They have at all times adopted my suggestions and the results have exceeded my anticipations. With an attendance of less than a dozen for each of these rooms up to Easter, we have still a great promotion list as we over had, and those promoted are much farther ahead, and have acquired more power to investigate for themselves, and consequently more ambition to advance, than heretofore. I shall feel proud of the work done in these rooms during the coming Model school term, and I expect it to have a most beneficial influence upon the teachers in training, and thus materially improve the teaching of primary work throughout the county.

The results of the principal's work with the entrance class must be especially satisfactory to the Board, for out of a class of 54 pupils not one fell by the way. It is doubtful, indeed if this feat with so large a class has been paralleled in the province. The results of the promotions from the Senior Third and Junior Fourth classes will, I think, justify us in forming two classes for entrance work at the opening of school in September. We shall have one Junior Fourth class until New Year, when the promotions will give us a second Junior Fourth, which we propose to carry on until Midsummer, 1903, by reducing the four second classes to three, thus saving the expense of an additional teacher.

It is needless for me to further lengthen this report. I feel certain that the Board, as well as the general public, know that, notwithstanding the discouragements we have had to contend with, the schools have made a distinct advance during the past year, and with our equipment complete, as it will be when school opens,

Everything for Summer Wear

From crown to toe—everything a civilized man wears is here except shoes.

Most garments sold in the store are made in our own factory. Well made they must be, or the factory would not have grown so steadily from a small beginning—would not be able to pay the best wages, and provide spacious, airy workrooms for its employees—but these things go with good work as naturally as growth goes with sunshine.

Other lines of garments and furnishings we buy, but our own ideas—and yours—are often worked into them. When you think of it, it takes about as much technical knowledge to buy right as to make the article yourself.

Between making and buying this store has gathered for you the finest all-round collection of summer wear that Chatham men have ever been invited to choose from. If a thing is seasonable, sensible and stylish we're showing it. Test us.

SCANDALS RE-AIRED

London, August 4. — The remount scandals were re-aided in the House of Commons today in the course of a discussion of the army estimates and the item of transportation of remounts. Chas. Dilke suggested the publication of the evidence bearing upon the United States scandals, obtained from the United States and Argentina. Col. John H. Nolan condemned the loose system of contracts under which such dreadful scandals were possible, while several other members of the House deprecated the method of purchasing horses through middlemen.

Mr. Brodick, the war secretary, replying, said the members overlooked the difficulties in the way of providing 150,000 horses in an emergency. He said the Government intended to probe the charges, but that he believed some remount officers had been harshly judged. He did not believe that Lord Kitchener would join in the universal cry against the remount department.

In answer to the war secretary John Dillon asserted that Mr. Brodick's vague speech only strengthened his suspicions, and he pointed out as an instance of this that the Government had not denied that Major Studert had profited largely through buying horses in Ireland under a false name.

Mr. Brodick denied that he had no disposition to push the Studert and other investigations and said the Government would go to the fullest extremes to convict the perpetrator of conspiracy and fraud.

The vote on the item of transportation and remount was agreed to.
