The Healing Touch. "Could I but touch His garment's hem." The woe-worn mourner said : The act my secret plague would stem,

She touched, and in her inmost soul, She felt herself at once made whole. Long had she sought for help in vain. From earthly care and skill: No ease, no respite could she gain, .But grew in weakness still : And now she has but touched the Lord, And lo ' her health's at once restored.

And vield me instant aid!"

O woman! matchless was thy faith, & And wond'rous was its power; It saved thy sinking frame from death And healed thee in an hour; And more, far more, a hope it gave Of endless life beyond the grave!

Thy case was mine. A fell disease Had seized me from the womb : Which sapped my strength by slow degrees, And wrapped my days in gloom ; A deadly plague, which gnawed within,-The foul, corroding plague of sin'

I asked my friends to ease my woe, But all in vain they tried; I hade the world its help bestow. The world its help denied; Its children laughed my griefs to scorn, And left my soul still more forlorn.

I turned from their reproaches loud, Their taunts and speers I braved ; I sought the Saviour in the crowd. I touched and I was saved! My plague was stemmed, my wound was healed My everlasting pardon sealed!

Then glory, glory, to that grace, Vhose streams as freely flow For us, as for lost Isreal's race, Two thousand years ago; And still shall flow, till time shall end, And Jesus as the Judge descend!

" Me, Too!" " WE'LL seek for flowers in the woods," I heard a mother say;

" For in their shady solitudes My children love to play. " Come, Willie, call the other boys, Ere falls the evening dew;" And then another little voice, Soft pleading, said : " Me, too!"

Oh, childish heart that could not hear Her name should be forgot! Oh, childish love that longed to are With all the common lot! Such tone should ne'er be heard in vain, So tremulous and true; A link in that sweet househe'd chain.

She claimed her right- "Me, too!" But not alone in childhood's years The heart gives out this cry; 'Tis beard smid the silent tears Of life's deep agony. The lonely soul, athirst for love, Will cry as infants do; And list, all other tones above,

Its passionate " Me, too!"

Formed by one hand we live and die; Before one throne we kneel; The longings of humanity Send up one deep appeal. Our nature's tendrils interwine, Fed by one common dew; None seek in solitude to pine,

Each heart-throb says: " Me, too !" God teaches us in rank to stand Firm as brave spirits should; Joined heart to heart, and hand to hand, In holy brotherhood; And casting off the ice of pride, Wear warm hearts mild and true.

Who feebly cries: " Me too !" And, little child, who sweetly plead, With love learnt long ere speech. Lift up thy golden baby head To hopes thou yet shalt reach; For when His angels gather in His holy ones and true, In that fair garner thou shalt win. A place-He needs thee, too!
