PERFECT THROUGH SUFFERING.

God never would send you the darkness If he felt you could bear the light, But you would not cling to his guiding hand

If the way were always bright, And you would not care to walk by faith Could you always walk by sight.

'Tis true he has many an anguish And the furnace of sevenfold heat;
'Tis the only way, believe me,
To keep you close to his feet;

For 'tis always easy to wander When our lives are glad and sweet.

Then nestle your hand in your Father's,
And sing, if you can, as you go; Your song may cheer some one behind you

Whose courage is sinking low,
And well, if your lips do quiver, God will love you better so.

THE POET PRIEST.

His weary feet no longer roam, No more he questions what is best;
Within the Master's Post's home His longing soul is now at rest.

What though the thorns did pierce his feet And rough the pathway which he trod?
He made the passing moments sweet And held communion with his God.

Ah, well we know the songs he sang From out a bleeding heart were wrung; But sweeter far the music rang, Because his heart was in his tongue.

That sorrow was his lot we know—He tells his story in his song;
He drank the bitter cup of woe And learned to suffer and be strong.

God rest him in a brighter clime, Beyond the reach of grief and care;
Beyond the touch of ruthless time, Beyond the dying of the year.

God rest him well, and Heaven grant That we who loved him here below May someday join him in the chant, Around the throne of spotless snow.

Oh, ye who bend above his grave And deck it o'er with roses sweet, Make room for one whose heart doth crave

To lay a tribute at his feet, Spurn not this offering of mine, A little spray, perchance, it be the least—A little spray of Southern pine, From one who loved the Poet Priest.

Interesting Story.

A NOBLE REVENGE.

A fair, fragile-looking boy, of apparently some fourteen years, stood looking over the railing in the counting-room of Glendon & Co., the great importers and merchant princes of the city of Boston. There was a look of piteous pleading in his soft brown eyes, and his pale, sad face spoke more than words could tell of the fear and anguish with which his young heart was so cruelly rent. "It is not myself that I care for," he sobbed, gazing at the hard-featured man who was writing at one of the desks, "but it's my mother, sir—this shock will kill her!"

"Young man, you ought to have thought of that before," replied the hard-featured man, in a cold harsh tone.

"But I'm innocent, sir. Indeed, sir, I never took the money."

"How, then, do you account for the possession of part of the bills?"

"I can account for them in no other way, sir, than I must have received them in change."

"But where?"

"I cannot tell where."

The stern merchant, for it was Mr Glendon himself, looked up, while an eagle light beamed from his merciless eyes.

"William Sanderson," he exclaimed, laying his watch upon the desk, while the hard lines around his face became still harder, "I will give you just five minutes to reveal what you have done with that money. If at the end of that time you are silent, I shall give you in charge of the officer." And he resumed his writing. The boy leaned still farther over the mahogany railing and the great sobs which shook his frail form, it would almost seem, would have moved a heart of adamant. But the merchant was made of even sterner stuff and did not once look up until the five minutes had expired.

"Now, sir," he said, taking up his watch with an important gesture and glancing at the boy.

"I cannot tell, sir, for indeed I did not steal it, sir. I came honestly by those bills."

"Enough said," was the merchant's quiet rejoinder, as he stamped his foot upon the floor.

"Oh, spare me, sir—spare my mother!" pleaded the boy, tears of anguish and shame streaming down his cheeks.
"Be merciful, and Heaven will reward you. Oh!"

"Enough said!" repeated the merchant, with stern emphasis. "Not another word from you, sir—not another word!"

"Officer," he added, as a policeman entered, "there is the culprit—do your duty!"

And, half dead with terror, William Sanderson was dragged away to prison.

"Only a woman fainted, your honor," said the sheriff, in response to the interrogatory of the judge, next day, in the crowded police-court room.

But, with one wild spring, William Sanderson cleared the prisoner's dock and was beside the inanimate person.

"Oh, mother, speak to me!" he cried, as kneeling down he placed his cheek to hers. "Oh, I am not guilty —indeed I am not—my innocence will be proved. Oh, will some one bring a glass of water—anything—quick!" and he glanced around wildly upon the array of pitying faces.

A medical gentleman who chanced to be present stepped forward. Giving her a hasty glance, he knelt beside the boy and placed his hand quickly upon her heart. Then an expression of awe stole over his grave face, and he turned sorrowfully to the almost as pallid

"Be brave, my boy," he said, as he placed one hand on the youth's head.
"I can do nothing for her; she is past all mortal help. In a dazed sort of way the lad rose and looked around him.

"Make ready for an important witness," called the crier from the extrenity of the court-room near the door.

There was a hurried consultation on the bench, and then Thomas Elsie's was called to the stand. His testimony was straightforward and conclusive.
He had received the bill from Glendon himself in change for a draft. Mr Glendon having called his attention to the fact that they were marked at the time. And he had paid them out to William Sanderson, never expecting to hear from them again. But having just at that moment read a paragraph in the morning paper relating to the case, he hastened to the court-room to prevent any injustice being done. Mr Glendon admitted now that he recollected the circumstance of the payment, which had slipped his memory. With a strong reprimand to Mr Glendon, the judge ordered the discharge of the prisoner. Utterly humiliated, the stern merchant approached William Sanderson. Even his hard heart was melted.

"Forgive me, William," holding out his hand; "I will give you back your old place, and double your pay also in consideration of my error."

Then, for the first time, did the poor fellow arouse from his lethargy.

"Will you give me back my dead mother?" he demanded, fixing his eyes, in which now glittered a steely light, upon those of his employer.

"No, I cannot do that," replied the merchant, still proffering his hand, "but I will repair, so far as lies in my power, the wrong I have done you.
Let us be friends."

"Never!" exclaimed the youth, the steely glitter increasing to a glare.

"Never will I be friend with my mother's murderer. There is a grave between us—a grave that I will some time avenge."

And he brushed by the merchant and was lost in the throng.

* * * * *

Twenty years had passed away, bringing its usual vicissitudes and changes. The great house of Glendon & Co. had gone down in the midst of a terrible financial panic such as frequently sweep over the country, and Mr Glendon was a poor man, depending for his daily bread upon the labors of his son, who held a clerkship in the rapidly rising establishment of Sanderson & Allan. But suddenly his support to his declining years seemed about to be taken away.

Roger Glendon was accused of forgery.
"It cannot be true," the old merchant repeated to himself; "yet I will go and see." And he hastened to the counting-room of his son's employer.

He found the senior partner of the firm alone.

"I have called," he said, "in relation to the reported accusation against my son. Tell me, is it true?"

"The gentleman gave a great start of surprise when he began to speak, but but some of you in your dungeon would get up and go out. You stand it well."

No pulpit speaker has sought and obtained so much practical observation of the world and the motives and habits of men. Quick to mingle all this with the powers given him by nature and education, he is clothed with an effectiveness as a speaker which has given him a foremost place in modern oratory. He moves great multitudes as do trumpet blasts to action; he beats down the waves of sin in the heart and in the world with the appeals of religion; and he grapples with iniquity with the sinews of a moral giant.

Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage was born near Bound Brook, N. J., January 7th, 1832. He is the son of David Talmage, who at one time was Sheriff of Somerset Co., and was a most estimable man. Four brothers entered the ministry, and another was a well-known rice merchant of New York.
T. DeWitt Talmage was graduated at the University of the City of New York in 1853, and at the Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, in 1856.
He was ordained and installed at Belleville, N. Y., in the summer of 1856, where he remained about three years.
In 1859 he was called to the Second Reformed Church of Philadelphia, where he labored seven years. He was installed as pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, in April, 1869, where he has since remained, a period of fifteen years.

This is one of the oldest churches in Brooklyn, but has only grown in power under the ministry of Dr. Talmage. When located in Willoughby street the Rev. Mr. Duffield was the pastor, and on the 13th of February, 1851, the Rev. Dr. J. Edson Rockwell was installed. In December, 1854, a new edifice on Schermerhorn street was dedicated. Dr. Rockwell remained some fourteen years, and in 1869 Dr.
Talmage was called from his very successful ministry in Philadelphia.
The congregation immediately entered upon a career of prominence and prosperity which it had never before known.

The church became crowded at every service to its utmost capacity.
All the pews were taken at increased rentals, and the pastor was paid a large salary. In 1870 it became necessary to erect a larger structure on a site of six lots on Schermerhorn street, not far from the old church. This was called the "Tabernacle," and was crowded at each service with thousands.
It was totally consumed by fire just before service on a Sabbath morning in December, 1872. Services were conducted at the Academy of Music until the completion of a new and still larger edifice on the same site. The cornerstone was laid with impressive services on the 7th of June, 1873, and bears the following inscription—"Brooklyn Tabernacle, Built 1870; destroyed by fire December 22d, 1872; rebuilt, 1873." The completed edifice was dedicated on Sunday, February 22d, 1874, before an immense congregation. On the following Sunday three hundred and twenty-eight new members were received, and partook of the sacrament. The services were witnessed by an assemblage of five thousand people. This structure is one of the largest public buildings in Brooklyn, and at every service it is filled to its utmost capacity. The Sunday-school is also large, and all the work of the church is on a grand and effective scale.

Dr. Talmage has always been a popular lecturer, and has visited all parts of the United States. He has also traveled abroad, and been received with much distinction. He early became a contributor to the literary press, then the editor of a religious paper, and he is now the editor of a popular religious magazine. He has published various books. He is a polished, original, and entertaining writer.

From the very outset of his career this passage, delivered with stern emphasis: "Scores of men have lived highly, and when they died left their families to the cold charities of the world. The death of such men is a grand larceny. Their bones should be sold to furnish bread for their chilren. I know it hits. I didn't know but some of you in your dungeon

would get up and go out. You stand
it well."

as being very poor and the grass badly winter-killed, the mountains a total failure and the meadows and intervals correspondingly poor. The long continued dry weather, it was feared, had so injured the grain, particularly the late-sown oats, as to nearly ruin that crop.

A FEW HOURS WITH THE SALVATION ARMY.

In our enlightened age all forms of religious worship are tolerated. It seems strange when we compute the increasing number of denominations and sects, that each body of Christians should have such diversity of administration; and yet all seeking to attain the same end.

CURIOUS FREAK OF NATURE.—Mr Jas. E. Harris, of Windsor, has a pear tree in his garden which has indulged in a curious freak. Although in appearance like other trees, yet this particular one has endeavored to attain notoriety by producing annually two different crops of pears. Besides setting full of fruit at the usual time, it blossomed again near the first of July, and now it has three well shaped pears of the later blossoming at the extreme end of about fourteen inches of new growth. Last year this tree did the same thing, the fruit not coming to maturity on account of not blossoming till late in August. Mr Harris thinks they will fully ripen this year.

He is now considered out of danger and recovering rapidly as could be expected.

IMPROVEMENT.—We are pleased to note that the Trustees of the Wolfville school have decided to shingle the roof of the schoolhouse and have made a move in that direction. This is as it should be, but we hope they will not stop at this. The exterior of the building needs painting, and as money was voted for this purpose at the last Annual School Meeting, we hope they will have "an eye single" to this much needed reform.

"KITTY KING."—About a week ago, this poor creature, who has for a long time been wandering through our streets in a filthy, semi-nude, demented condition, was sent to the Cornwallis poor-house, but as we go to press we learn that she is again at large. Friends of humanity what are you going to do? There surely is a place for her. It is a disgrace to our Christian civilization to allow this poor creature to suffer. We send our money and our missionaries far across the sea to the poor benighted heathen in a gentler clime, but poor Kitty King under the shadows of our churches and institutions of learning—exposed to the vigorous elements of a northern sky—must go forth alone!

"GRIP'S" GREAT SUPPLEMENT.—With its Midsummer Number, our facetious contemporary, Grip, has issued a magnificent supplement, in the form of a lithograph plate, 18 x 24 inches, a group of Conservative Leaders in Canada. The picture is as fine as a photograph, and is well worth framing. The likenesses and autographs are accurate, and the whole picture is at once striking and pleasing. It is one of the best things of this kind ever attempted in Canada; and not only all conservatives, but those of the other side, will like to secure it. The price, together with Midsummer Grip is only 25 cents, and it will be forwarded to anyone enclosing that amount to the Company at Toronto. In this connection we may state that the success of the enlargement and improvement of Grip (now 16 pages) has led the Company to reduce the price of Canada's Comic Week to $2. New subscribers sending $1 (together with 5 cents for tube and postage of plate), will get the paper for the last six months of this year, to Dec. 31, and have the Midsummer Number and its fine Supplement Plate thrown in.

THE FIREMEN'S TOURNAMENT.

DEAR ACADIAN.—As the Firemen's Tournament is the one great attraction here at present, a few items may be interesting. Each incoming train and steamer has been bringing numbers of sightseers until the city is thronged. The tournament opened under favorable circumstances—fine weather, although rather hot to be comfortable, numerous contingents of visiting firemen, and elaborate preparations, all ready in time. The procession is considered the best that has ever been seen in Halifax. The appearance of those who took part was without exception very fine. Each contingent wearing its own distinctive uniform produced a grand effect. At no point in the procession was there any sameness, except so far as each individual corps was concerned. Now would pass a company in red tunics and black pants, then others with blue tunics and black pants, low others all in blue, and again a company in buff and black, and so on. At regular intervals bands of music occupied positions in the procession, and with some of the companies were hose reels and engines, all finely decorated and bearing allegorical and historical designs. Imagine all this combination of attractions extending over a mile in length, headed by the worthy members of our city council, and you have something worth looking at. It would be very difficult to say which of the many companies made the best appearance, but in our humble opinion the Dartmouth contingent bore the palm. Their cream-colored tunics with handsome facings and black pants made a fine show, while the men themselves were all stalwart able fellows. The St. John salvage corps, in uniform similar to those worn by Her Majesty's Navy were also specially noted. The music was furnished by the following bands:—63rd and 66th Volunteer Batt., St. Patrick's and Hibernian of Halifax, St. John Artillery of St. John, N. B., and Lunenburg Band of Lunenburg. The Dartmouth Co's engine, beautifully polished, attracted much attention. The decorations and designs on our city reels were very beautiful, especially those of "Vista No. 2." Amid clustering pyramids of flowers and shrubbery set four small children, representing Justice, Mercy, Praise and Prayer, and surmounting the whole was an immense eagle with outspread wings. Resolute No 4 had a representation of an Indian encampment which was very novel. To-day the different prizes will be contested for on the polo grounds, and a concert will be given in the public gardens this evening. To-morrow evening there will be a grand torchlight procession which will probably eclipse anything of the kind that has ever taken place here. Yours, "SCHIBLER."

CONTENTMENT

Man wants but little here below. Little I ask; my wants are few. I only wish a bit of stone (A very plain brown-stone will do) That I may call my own.

Plain food is quite enough for me; Three courses are as good as ten. If Nature can subsist on three, Thank heaven for three. Amen! I always thought cold victuals nice; My choice would be vanilla-ice.

I care not much for gold or land— Give me a mortgage here and there. Some good bank-stock, some note of hand Or trifling railroad share: I only ask that fortune send A little more than I can spend.

Honours are silly toys, I know, And titles are but empty names; I would perhaps be Pliny; But only near St. James. I'm very sure I should not care To fill our Governor's chair.

I would not have the horse I drive So fat that folks must stop and stare; An easy gallop—two forty-five— Suits me; I do not care; Perhaps just for a single sport Some seconds less would do no hurt.

Thus humble let me live and die, Nor long for Midas' golden touch; I shall not miss them much, Too grateful for the blessing lent Of simple tastes and mind content. —O. W. Holmes.

HE PLAYED WITH DOLLS. There was no sunshine to his poor, old eyes. The night and the day were the same to him. Perhaps the night wind sang songs a little more sad to his half-drowned ears, but he never told anyone about it.

He saw no floating telegraph poles. The fields of waving grain with the reapers among them he did not notice. How could he? Why should he? He was blind. But he babbed and played with his dolls and seemed to derive as much pleasure from them as did the young mother across the aisle, who played with her sunny-eyed babe.

Everybody smiled when the old man laid his dolls upon the seat beside him and took up the ugliest and most wretched of his inanimated treasures. It was a homemade, dirty, ragged thing, and the sunny-eyed babe across the aisle looked frightened as the old man dandled it before him.

And he laid the ugly doll close to his chin and leaning over it sang a soft little song that no one heard without tears. When the station was reached where the old man was to get off the men carried him off. He never reached the poorhouse, and his little deal girl's doll went no one knew where.

A CHEERFUL FACE. Next to the sunlight of heaven is the cheerful face. There is no mistaking it—the bright eye, the unclouded brow, the sunny smile, all tell of that which dwells within.

It may be a wrinkled face, but it is all the dearer for that, and none the less cheerful. We linger near it, and gaze tenderly upon it, and say: "God bless this dear, happy face!" We must keep it with us as long as we can, for home will lose much of its brightness when this sweet face is gone.

God bless the cheerful face! What dreary world this would be without this heaven-born light! And he who has it should pray for it as for his daily bread.

MANAGEMENT OF EARLY FRUITS.

Early apples and pears will now be ripening and should be gathered for home use or for market. In the eastern States, in localities near a market, early apples pay better than late varieties, as the grower has not to compete with the Western fruit growers.

Early apples, of snowy kinds, should be carefully selected, and sent to market in neat packages. Half barrels, lined with white paper, are the most attractive packages, though, on account of their cheapness, bushel and half bushel crates are used by many.

When an apple or pear is mature, it readily parts from the tree; when lifted to a horizontal position the stem of the fruit will break away from the twig to which it is attached, leaving a clean, well defined scar.

When advertising is wanted. There's nothing on earth so mysteriously funny as a newspaper advertisement. The prime, first, last, and all the time object of an advertisement is to draw custom.

There's nothing on earth so mysteriously funny as a newspaper advertisement. The prime, first, last, and all the time object of an advertisement is to draw custom. It is not, was not and never will be designed for any other human purpose.

daughters to be able to work, act and talk like honest, sensible young women, is the special task of mothers, and in the industrial ranks there is imposed also the prime obligation of learning how to respect household work for its own sake, and the comfort and happiness it will bring in the future.

"Every man," says John B. Gough, "becomes a drunkard by trying to imitate moderate drinkers. All men believe they can drink without going to excess. My father was a moderate drinker and lived till he was 84 years old. You say that is an encouragement for moderate drinkers, is it? I knew a man in Washington ninety-two years old, who had carried two bullets in him from the war of 1812. Go get two bullets in you and see if you can stand it! My father was a moderate drinker; but I could not be a moderate drinker any more than I could discharge a gun slowly. See that man swinging on the scaffold 100 feet high. Could you do it? I could not. I would go down too rapidly. I would not have time to say, as the man falling from the eleventh story said to the man at the fourth story: 'I am having an awful fall.'"

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of Cutting Teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers; there is no mistake about it. It cures Dysentery and Diarrhea, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Whooping Cough, Sore Gums, reduces Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system.

A teacher took an apple from one of his boys during school hours. After a while the teacher ate the apple while the pupils were busy with their sums. The lad noticing this, began to cough. "What is the matter with you?" inquired the teacher. "Oh, please, sir," answered the little boy, "the apple has gone down the wrong way."

Mrs. Stephen Kaulbach says: "My daughter suffered for two weeks with Earache, could not rest day or night, tried many remedies without any relief, used 'Mirrad's Liniment' and Sweet Oil in equal parts, in the ear, it cured like magic. I would recommend it to all as the best family medicine known."

Jane Marsh Parker has written a book which she calls "The Midnight Cry." We have not read it, but we know all about it, and Jane has our sympathy. The cuts, both up, too.—Hambler.

THAT TIRED FEELING.—The warm weather has a debilitating effect, especially upon those who are within doors most of the time. The peculiar, but common complaint, known as "that tired feeling," is the result. This feeling can be entirely overcome by taking Dr. Norton's Buxyok Blood Purifier. Sold by all druggists.

The most distressing case of scrofula or blood poison that we ever heard of was cured by Parson's Purgative Pills. These pills make new rich blood, and taken one a night for three months will change the blood in the entire system.

Wrongs done is a road that may open fair, but it leads to trouble and danger. Well-doing, however rough and thorny at first, surely leads to pleasant places. Cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels, dysentery and diarrhoea are very common just now and should be checked at once. Johnson's Anodyne Liniment will positively cure all such cases and should be kept in every home.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT. For Internal and External Use. MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD. It is a well-known fact that most of the sore and Chills, Fever, and Ague, are due to impure blood.
