The Am. Novel of 1915.

MICHAEL O'HALLORHAN
by Gene Stratton Porter.
This is the story of Mickey the newsboy and his ward-peacher, whom he found with a crippled back and cried for until she was cured. It tells of Mickey's part in the romance of Douglas Bruce and Leslie Winton; and of the kindness of Peter Harding and his wife to peacher, and finally of Mickey's own love story with the wife he found years before.
The book possesses, like all of the author's works, a deep feeling for nature, the charm of the woods, the flowers and all growing things.
Paper 65c.; cloth 90c. Not a dull page in all the 500 pages.

'IT SAVED MY HAND.' I am a blacksmith. I contracted a sore finger, which led to blood-poisoning. After three months of doctoring, the finger had to be cut off. It was too late! The poison had spread to my hand and arm. My hand was opened and the bone scraped. No use! Doctors said hand would have to be taken off. I refused, and began to use Zam-Buk. I used it regularly and freely for a few weeks. It subdued the blood-poisoning and by the time I had used 7 boxes of Zam-Buk my hand was quite healed. Zam-Buk surely saved my hand, and I firmly believe it would have saved my finger too had I used it at first. These facts were sworn to by Mr. John Evans of 87 Lawrence St., Halifax, N.S., before Supreme Court Commissioner O'Hearn, and the sworn statement may be seen by any person so desirous. Zam-Buk cures ulcers, eczema, abscesses, piles, cuts, cold sores, burns, scalds, babies' rashes, etc. See box, all druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

'ECHOES of the Past;

The Recompense of Love!

CHAPTER XXXI.

With a volley of muttered oaths, Koshki gave the directions, then seemed about to draw back, but Quilton gave him almost a friendly touch on the shoulder.

"In with you!" he said. "I'm hankering for your company. You've been bashed about a bit—I can trace Mr. Harvey's hand; he hits hard, doesn't he?—But you are all right; you've had a good go of brandy, I can smell it."

Koshki got into the cab, and coiled himself up into a corner like an over-fed snake. Now and again during the journey Quilton said a word or two to Tibby, but otherwise silence reigned. It was, perhaps, as awful a journey as that which Clive had just taken. But Quilton displayed no impatience, whatever he may have felt; they traversed the soul-quelling district, the earthly inferno through which Clive had passed, and at last they reached their destination. Quilton handed up some money to the cabman and told him to wait; then he linked his arms in Koshki's.

"I'm not fond of talking, as you know," he said suavely, "but I should like to tell you exactly how this charming little case stands; or, rather, how you stand. I imagine that you have lured Miss Mina and Mr. Harvey down to this cheerful spot, from their faces, their teeth clenched, and Tibby was leaning forward scanning the water with fearful eagerness. Suddenly, as they shot abreast of the faint light, she sprang to her feet and uttered a faint cry, a suppressed scream.

"There, there!" she cried, pointing to something floating a little ahead of them. Quilton saw it almost as soon as she did, and both men strained at the oars. They came alongside it, and the dull light of the moon revealed Mina's white face. Both men seized her, she was lifted into the boat, and Tibby flung herself beside her, panting.

"A knife, a knife!" In an instant the ropes were cut, and Tibby caught the lifeless form to her bosom. "She's dead, she's dead!" she wailed.

But Quilton, who had been feeling for Mina's heart, uttered a hoarse cry of relief. "She's not, she's not! She's alive! Quiet now, Tibby! We are fighting for her life! Be calm! She's in your hands, remember, yours! Here's brandy—give her a little, not too much. Our work's not done yet; there's Harvey to find."

"There he is!" said Koshki, with an oath, and he pointed to another dark object just ahead of them. They made for it with almost incredible speed, grabbed at it and hauled Clive aboard. His case was worse than that of Mina; and Quilton, after severing his bonds, bent over him for some minutes in silence.

"Is he dead?" whispered Tibby hoarsely. "If he is, it won't be much use bringing her to life!" Quilton stretched out his hand for the brandy; presently he said:

"He's—yes, he's alive; but— We must get ashore at once and get a doctor. Pull for that ruined shed where the light is," he said to Koshki sternly.

Koshki pulled, and as he did so, looked from side to side with a cunning gleam in his small eyes. As the boat approached the opening of the shed from which Clive and Mina had been launched to death, he dropped the oars, and leaping out of the boat waded to shore. Quilton sprang for the oars, and as he pulled, looked over his shoulder.

Kashki was running, staggering up the steep incline toward the lantern, which Quilton knew the brute intended to extinguish; but suddenly Quilton saw the figure of a woman glide out from the darkness and confront Koshki. It was Sara, her arms waving wildly, her face working like a mad-woman's.

"Traitor!" she hissed. "You have betrayed me! Tell me they are dead, that it's not too late!" Koshki swore at her and laughed with ruffianly contempt. "You're sold, old lady," he said. "They've been too sharp for us; but the gel and that swine, Harvey, are alive, curse him! Get out of my way, let me pass!"

"You shall not!" she screamed, stretching out her arms. "You have betrayed me. I'll keep you here and leave him to deal with you."

"Out of it!" he snarled. "Out of my way, or I'll—"

He raised his hand to strike her; but her hand had shot up before his, the long knife gleamed dully in the moonlight as she poised it for the strike; then the blade came down with an unerring aim and, flinging up his arms and screaming like an animal wounded to death, Koshki wailed from side to side, and suddenly pitched face downward on the slimy stones. Sara spurned the body with her foot; then, as Quilton leaped ashore and made fast the boat, she sprang to the lantern, overturned it with her foot, and glided away into the darkness.

When Clive came to and, opening his eyes, gazed vacantly about him, his returning consciousness told him that he was lying in his own bedroom and that Quilton was sitting beside him. For a minute or two Clive could remember nothing; then, when the hideous scenes through which he had passed came crowding back upon his brain, he was convinced that he had just awakened from a nightmare.

He tried to move, to raise himself, to speak; but to his amazement he found that his limbs were as heavy as lead, that he had no strength to raise himself, that his voice came with difficulty, as if he had to fetch it from a long way off. It was Quilton who first spoke, as he gave Clive a drink. "Come back again, then, old man!" he said, with his old impassive manner, but with just a hint of tenderness and of anxiety. "You've been a devil of a long while. And now you have woken up, you'd better let me do all the palaver. Here, drink this! You want to know how she is, of course? She's in a good deal better trim than you are; in fact, she's nearly all right."

Clive's bosom heaved with a labored sigh, and he closed his eyes that Quilton might not see the tears that painfully welled up in them; but Quilton was staring at the wall.

"Yes, she's had a bad time, of course; but they hadn't treated her as they had treated you; you were badly bashed, old man; in fact, you must have the constitution of a rhinoceros or you would be up aloft by this time. Yes, she's all right; and I'll let you go to her, see her, when you're strong enough. That's the best kind of tonic I can give you. Any more questions to ask? Dozens of course. Well, I'll relieve that too active brain of yours by answering a few. You'll be interested in hearing that Mr. Clive Harvey is confined to his bed by an accident—not a serious one; accident while driving in a hansom cab; horse fell down, right honorable gentleman struck his face; absolute quiet and repose insisted upon by his medical adviser. Friends will kindly accept this intimation."

Clive tried to stretch out his hand to the friend who had been so true a friend in the hour of such a terrible need; but he had to be content with expressing his gratitude by a look.

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making it at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. Two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2 1/2 ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchi tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol, and has been used for generations by the best inland membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. Guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, given with the preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Rod and Gun.

A glance at the list of contents of the November issue of Rod and Gun in Canada magazine indicates that this number is of general interest to the outdoor lover and sportsman, while a reading of the number justifies the first impression. "Big Alec and the Portage of Death" is a Hudson Bay story by R. J. Fraser of pathetic interest, concerning a veritable 'portage of death' which was negotiated by an unfortunate band of Indians, the victims of a factor's cruelty. "Martin and the Mortgage" is another of H. C. Had-don's stories and has to do with the capture of a den of black fox puppies. "How Saundees caught the Game Hog" is a story of deer hunting by camera vs. deer hunting by gun, written and illustrated by F. V. Williams. There

Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health. —Mrs. J. T. COOK, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada. Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need. The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women — ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

War News.

Messages Received Previous to 9 A.M.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Nov. 8.
The Governor, Newfoundland: Lord Kitchener is paying a short visit to the Eastern war theatre. A British armed boarding steamer was sunk by a submarine in the Eastern Mediterranean. Thirty-four are missing. France—Artillery duels. Enemy attacks against Courtrai works in Champagne, completely failed. Russia and Italy—No official news. Serbia—The Bulgarians have occupied Nish.

BONAR LAW.

GERMAN CRUISER SUNK.

MALMO, Nov. 8.
The cruiser Undine was sunk on Sunday, while she was escorting the German ferry boat Poesunen from Treleborg in Sweden to Sussnitz in Prussia. The cruiser sank in three minutes, but with the exception of fifteen men, who went down with her, the crew was saved. The second officer and six men died later from wounds. The torpedo boat which accompanied the Undine, and the ferry, were not attacked.

BRITISH STEAMERS SUNK.

LONDON, Nov. 8.
The British steamers Bursk, 2,278 tons, and Glenmore, 1,656 tons, have been sunk. The crews were landed.

JAPANESE STEAMER SUNK.

TOKIO, Nov. 8.
The Japanese steamer Yasakuni Maru was on its way to Salonika when it was sunk by a German submarine near Gibraltar on Wednesday. It was chartered by the British Government.

WHITE STAR LINE'S DECISION.

LONDON, Nov. 8.
Following the example of the Cunard Steamship Company, the White Star Line announced to-day that no further bookings on its steamships of emigrants of military age will be permitted.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

PARIS, Nov. 8.
The situation is unchanged at the Franco-German front. To-day's communique announced that calm has prevailed in the Serbian war zone, since the Allies' victory over the Bulgarians in the Kriwolaka region.

SLOW BUT SURE.

SALONIKA, Nov. 8.
The French offensive against the Bulgarians is proceeding slowly but surely, because of difficulties after rain. In the sector northeast of Strumitza, Kachaly and Moinitsy were occupied on the 5th and Dolompe was stormed yesterday. It is reported here that the French advanced toward the north is continuing uninterruptedly to-day with the British contingent on the right wing. The Serbians are reported to have repulsed heavy Bulgarian attacks in the Kriwolaka sector, where the French also have materially extended their line, which reaches northwest beyond Grasko, and west beyond the Thema River to the Kavadar region.

FRANCO-SERBIAN JUNCTION.

PARIS, Nov. 8.
French troops have occupied Kosink and Babuna Heights which command Elovav Pass through which runs the Porlope-Evadar Road and are expected to effect a junction soon with the Serbian army occupying the northwest slope of Babuna Range, says a Monastir despatch.

THE SERBIAN PREMIER.

"No one can measure your 'Nerve Force' as it leaves you." "Prescription A" will increase your "Nerve Force" wonderful. Nerve Force is the very motive power of the body as petrol is of the engine. If you are using up too much Nerve Force through overwork, worry or other causes—you are like a motor car with a leaky petrol tank, however good the mechanism it must break sooner or later. #### ROUMANIA.

LONDON, Nov. 8.
A despatch from the Copenhagen Exchange Telegraph Co. says that the Roumanian Government has sent a railway commission to Petrograd to discuss the possibility of opening a new route for the transportation of supplies from England to Roumania. It is proposed to ship goods by way of Scandinavia and Russia, inasmuch as the usual route through Salonika and Nish is now unavailable on account of the capture of the railway by the Germans.

BRITISH PRESS ON AMERICAN NOTE.

LONDON, Nov. 8.
The attitude taken by the London morning newspapers on the American note, which has been the subject of more discussion than any diplomatic question for many months. The Foreign Office has already given it very careful consideration, but it has not yet been before the Cabinet, and probably it will be a fortnight or more before a reply can be prepared. For the moment the note has even overshadowed the Near Eastern situation and Earl Kitchener's proposed visit to that theatre of operations. Beyond the fact that Kitchener departed for his destination, there is little or no news from the Allied side respecting the Balkan situation. The Austro-Germans have succeeded in crossing the Morava River in Serbia. General Von Gallwitz has occupied Krusevac, one of Serbia's largest towns, about thirty miles due north-west of Nish. The fall of Krusevac means that the branch railway line at Ushietze near the Bosnian frontier, has been broken by the invaders close to the point where it leaves the

FRENCH COMMENT.

PARIS, Nov. 8.
The comments of the British press on the American note to Britain, are reproduced at unusual length in the French newspapers. The Temps concludes its summary of the note by declaring that Germany, through her constant violation of international law, and her contempt for neutral merchantmen, has made necessary the blockade of force against her.

WHITLOCK'S STATEMENT.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 8.
"I was advised by my physician, two months ago, that rest was imperative," said Brand Whitlock. "I am now taking a portion of the leave of absence to which I am entitled under regulations, after fifteen months of unbroken labor. I expect to spend a few weeks in my home in America and return to Brussels at the end of December. My journey has no political significance."

LUXEMBURG'S PRESIDENT.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 8.
A telegram from Luxembourg says that Dr. Lutach, lawyer, who was appointed Minister of State on Saturday, by Grand Duchess Marie, has assumed the Presidency of the Luxembourg Government.

DEBATE IN THE LORDS.

LONDON, Nov. 8.
In a debate on the War in the Lords to-day, Earl Loreburn complained that mistakes had been made by the Government and declared it was no exaggeration to say that if the war continued indefinitely, revolution or anarchy might well follow. Earl Loreburn, who formerly was Lord High Chancellor, complained that legitimate channels of information had been choked, and the public kept in the dark. He declared that some real incapacity existed somewhere, and expressed regret at the formation of the coalition government on the ground that it had deprived the country of the services of a critical opposition. He feared the nation was again on the brink of serious difficulties in the Balkans, and hoped Earl Kitchener's absence would be brief, as it was no exaggeration to say that if he went on indefinitely, revolution and anarchy might well follow. Lord Milner said the news published in this country was misleading from first to last, and had been constantly doctored. German reports, he asserted, were more trustworthy than British.

FRENCH STEAMER ON FIRE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.
The French liner steamer Rochambeau, two days out from New York for Bordeaux, is reported by wireless to-day with fire in her coal bunkers, and steaming to-night for Halifax, the nearest port. Her exact position is not given. A single wireless message brought news of her plight to the land. It was estimated that she would make Halifax some time late to-night or early to-morrow. Aboard the burning steamer were 650 persons, 421 passengers and a crew of about 230, and a large cargo of war supplies, including 2,561 cases of cartridges and 136 bales of cotton. The fire which turned the vessel from her course toward the northern port of Halifax, is deep in the hold bunkers, where is placed the reserve supply of coal. Its exact location, according to the wireless message sent by the captain, is number five reserve coal bunker, which is located amidships. This message said that the vessel was in no danger. From its tone, the officials here of the French line inferred that the situation was not a serious one. "We are not alarmed," said Paul Faguet, general agent of the line. "Bunker fires are not uncommon, nor are they generally very serious, as they are away from the cargo space. There is every reason to believe the fire is not serious. If it were, Capt. Juham would undoubtedly have given his position and S.O.S. signals calling for help, which would have been sent out. Only one wireless has been received from the steamer when the French line office closed to-night. This was from Capt. Juham, and reached the office here about 2:30 p.m. as follows: Fire number five reserve coal bunker. Fighting fire. Have turned to Halifax."

LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, Nov. 8.
The press and public were largely occupied to-day with the American note, which has been the subject of more discussion than any diplomatic question for many months. The Foreign Office has already given it very careful consideration, but it has not yet been before the Cabinet, and probably it will be a fortnight or more before a reply can be prepared. For the moment the note has even overshadowed the Near Eastern situation and Earl Kitchener's proposed visit to that theatre of operations. #### Who's Who in the Balkans.

M. Venizelos, the Greek Premier, who has resigned because King Constantine of Greece would not agree to his policy of aiding Serbia and the Allies, is fifty-one years of age. He is known as the "Bismarck of Balkan Diplomacy."

He is a widower with two sons, and is really a Cretan, his father being expelled from the island by the Turks. In the Cretan revolt of 1896 Venizelos donned the Cretan costume and top-boots, and showed great military powers.

On one occasion at a Cretan village meeting, a resolution was passed to kill Venizelos. Hearing of it he went to the villagers, explained his aims, and then revealed his identity, with the result that the would-be assassins gave him a vote of confidence. Such is the power of the man.

10 Cent Cascarets

Best Laxative for Liver and Bowels

Don't stay constipated, headachy, bilious, with breath bad or stomach sour.

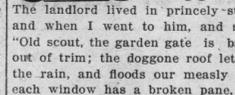

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from a cold, constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable. Take Cascarets to-night; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, bad cold, offensive breath and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the bile, gases and constipated matter which is producing the misery.

A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

PAYING RENT.

For seven years, in discontent, I leased a humble cot; it kept me busy paying rent—it also kept me hot. Each month for seven weary years, I coughed up twenty bones; I handed out the coin with tears, and deep heart-rending groans. The landlord lived in princely state, and when I went to him, and said, "Old scum, the garden gate is badly out of trim; the doggone roof lets in the rain, and floods our mealy hut, each window has a broken pane, the doors will not shut stay," he answered me, "The times are bad, and growing worse. I trow; I simply cannot spare a scad to fix that cabin now." At last I bought a lowly shack, that measured two by four, with rainpipes running up the back, a latchsting to each door. Now if the roof is sagging down, or holes are in the stairs, I chase no landlord through the town, beseeching for repairs. I take my jimmy and my ax, my shotgun and my spade, and plug the holes and fix the cracks, without a landlord's aid. And there's a pleasure simply great, a sacred sort of glee, in working round your own estate, however small it be.

A Barrister by profession, Venizelos

first became Premier of Greece ten years ago. He has remade Greece. He reformed the Navy and Army, founded the Balkan League, and has always been a friend and admirer of Great Britain.

M. Zaimis, the new Prime Minister of Greece, was Premier eighteen years ago, towards the close of the Greeco-Turkish war. He only retained the position a year and a half, however.

The favorite hobbies of M. Zaimis are fishing and rowing.

King Constantine of Greece is an enthusiastic pedestrian. He has tramped, incognito, through many of the countries in Europe.

In comparison with other European monarchs, the King of Greece is poorly paid, for the thirty Greeks pay only £70,000 a year for the maintenance of the Royal family.

King Constantine married the Kaiser's sister in 1889. He was educated in Germany, received military training there, and has always been sedulously cultivated by the Kaiser, who recently wired to his sister: "Tell Tino" (King Constantine) "I shall crush all who oppose me."

The King of Greece has six children, three boys and three girls, the eldest of whom, Prince George, is fifteen years of age.

King Constantine is a nephew of Queen Alexandra, his father, King George, who was assassinated in 1913, being His Majesty's brother.

Queen Eleonora of Bulgaria, whom King Ferdinand married seven years ago, is a skillful nurse. She served for fifteen months as head of the Russian Imperial Ambulance Corps in Manchuria during the Russo-Japanese War.

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria is an enthusiastic botanist. His collection of Alpine plants is considered the most complete in Europe.

He is a distant cousin of our King's through an uncle of Queen Victoria's. He was born in Vienna on February 28th, 1861, and for some time he served as an officer in the Austrian army. He possesses large estates in Hungary.

Prince Boris, King Ferdinand's eldest son, who, it is said, will be Commander-in-Chief of the Bulgarian army, only completed his twenty-first year last January. He is the eldest of the four children of King Ferdinand and by his first wife, Princess Marie Louise of Parma, who died in 1899, immediately after the birth of her youngest child.

The King of Rumania, also named Ferdinand, is just fifty years of age.

He has six children, his eldest son, Carol, being twenty-two years of age. Ferdinand of Rumania did not succeed to the throne until last year.

Fall--1915--Styles.

Was there ever a more fickle lady than Dame Fashion? She is always making changes, and this season has surely surpassed herself.

There is a more decided change in this Fall's styles than has been known for many seasons. While materials are similar, Serges, Gabardines, Tweeds, Cord, etc., the designs are absolutely unlike any of their predecessors. Coats are of many styles, chiefly a la militaire, with high collars, snug-fitting sleeves, and the entire coat in some instances is beautifully braided. Skirts are much fuller, both pleated and gored, and are worn very short.

As descriptions are quite impossible, we can only say that we carry the largest and smartest line of Ladies' Costumes in the city.

Hot Water and Happiness.

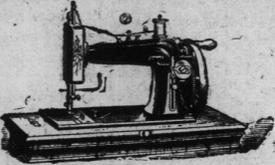

Hot baths are necessary for health, in summer as in winter. But in households where hot water supply is dependent on the kitchen range, a hot bath cannot be secured during the summer months without turning the kitchen and its neighbourhood into a miniature inferno. No wonder, then, that cook complains bitterly when nurse demands to have the fire made up, and that relations between the members of the household staff reveal a state of strain extending almost to breaking point. It is here that the gas industry steps in to keep peace by means of its water-heating inventions, all of any which, being entirely independent of the coal range, can give unlimited hot water at any moment without causing the least inconvenience. Of all the boons and blessings that the twentieth century brain has devised, the gas water-heater is by no means the least.

Needs a Lesson From the Ranks.

One of the chief functions of the House of Lords is held to be that of exercising a moderating influence in politics and government. It might well be supposed that those most fitted to exercise such an influence would be the elder statesmen who had been trained in the House of Commons, and had occupied high office at home or overseas.

It is disappointing to find that in a crisis, which calls for calmness, coolness and common-sense, some of the elder statesmen are betraying symptoms of "nerves," and giving way to hysteria in the cool seclusion of the House of Lords. This morning, we learn that Robert Threshie Reid, a famous lawyer, who first entered the House of Commons some thirty years ago and held office as Solicitor General, Attorney General and Lord Chancellor in Liberal administrations, and who now occupies a seat in the House of Lords as Baron Loreburn, is suffering from an attack of blues. He is satisfied with the censoring of war news, regrets the formation of a coalition, fears the Balkan difficulties, trembles at the absence of Kitchener from the War Office and predicts revolution and anarchy if the war lasts indefinitely.

It is enough to make one wonder whether age and experience are a sufficient qualification for the translation of statesmen from the House of Commons to the House of Lords, and whether we shall have to take a page out of our naval philosophy and insist on courage, coolness, and ability to keep the head, as qualifications for elevation to the House of Lords. If such utterances had come from a street corner demagogue, the panic-monger would have had to seek safety from the mob in the arms of the policeman, but being uttered by a grave and reverend seignior, they are received quietly by his compeers and noised abroad, to depress the nation, dishearten our allies, and hearten up the enemy. The members of the blue ruin school might take a lesson from the cheeriness of our soldiers and sailors at the front, and from the nation at large, who are less near to anarchy and revolution than the Ex-lord Chancellor Loreburn himself, one time President of the House of Lords, Keeper of the Great Seal, and Guardian of His Majesty's Conscience. Lord Loreburn is in need of a lesson from the ranks.

THE AMERICAN NOTE.

President Wilson and Secretary Lansing to-day read the American and British press comment on the latest note sent by the States to Britain and awaited the effect of the document upon the British treatment of neutral overseas trade. So far as American shippers are concerned the note marks the turning point of vast importance, for henceforth the U. S. is to consider the British blockade as ineffective and inoperative. All cargoes of non-contraband goods destined for Germany or through neutral countries to the enemies of Britain will be viewed by this Government as immune from detention and claims presented by Americans for detentions or seizure of such goods will be supported by the diplomatic machinery of the States to the fullest extent.

Speculation in official quarters to-day as to what Britain's course would be was varied. Some officials pointed out that if Britain abandoned all presence of a blockade applied the laws of contraband, the forthcoming American note on the propriety of including various articles in the contraband list would be pertinent to the controversy. On the other hand, the blockade was made legal so far as the German coast was concerned, the American Government will continue to insist that legitimate trade with neutral countries must not be interfered with. What American officials express particular concern about in connection with the alleged illegal practices of Britain is the large trade they claim Britain herself is carrying on with neutral ports, with which American exporters are forbidden to trade. It is this feature of the situation which officials regard as most serious and indefensible. Among all the Allied diplomats the view prevailed that the controversy would not become acute, it being pointed out that even if a deadlock is reached in the negotiations, Bryan peace treaties still were available for years of investigation of the points in dispute. These treaties have been ratified between the States and all the Allies. In German quarters the arguments of the American note were commented on as sound and justified by international law.

SUNK BY SUBMARINE.

COPENHAGEN Nov. 8. The steamer Birgit was sunk by a German submarine, which landed the crew near Gothe, Sweden. Captain Birgit says the submarine carried a crew of 22 men.

SERBIAN TOWN CAPTURED.

BERLIN, Nov. 8. The Serbian town of Krivevac, on the railway about fifty miles northwest of Nish, has been occupied by German troops, according to to-day's official statement given out by the army headquarters staff.

BRITISH MERCHANTMAN SUNK.

LONDON, Nov. 8. The British merchantman Tara, was attacked and sunk in the Eastern Mediterranean by two German submarines on Friday last, according to an official announcement made this afternoon by the Official Press Bureau.

"CONFRATERNITY OF ARMS."

Telegrams congratulating each other upon the "fraternity of arms" in the different theaters of war and the intention of both countries to get in greater union have been extended between Germany and France. In closing his message Asquith said: "Whatever changes time and circumstances may bring, I know that in France as in England the will to decisive victory is won remains unshakable, and we are sure of winning."

CAPTURED SWEDISH STEAMER.

COPENHAGEN, To-Day. German torpedo boats and a German submarine have captured the Swedish ship Capella, bound for Denmark with a cargo of machinery, and taken her into Swinemunde.

EARLY WINTER IN GERMANY.

ROTTERDAM, To-Day. Great anxiety exists in Germany, the Telegram says, because of an unusually early winter, which began on October 28 with frost and a heavy snow fall in Berlin.

THE HARD ROAD TO VICTORY.

LONDON, To-Day. The Times Petrograd correspondent, who is visiting Russian headquarters, gathered that there is no tendency on the part of the Russians to underestimate the still unnumbered road to victory. They realize says the correspondent, that the Germans have the advantage in the central position and unity of command, but that the Allies eventually have the advantage in numbers. Nevertheless they consider that the struggle will be unnecessarily prolonged if numbers alone are relied on, for the Germans meanwhile continue to wield the initiative and the Allies have to remain expectantly on their toes and if possible defeat their moves.

ANOTHER AMERICAN PROTEST.

WASHINGTON, To-Day. Ambassador Gerard at Berlin has been instructed to protest to the German Government against the detention of the American sailing ship Pass of Baltimore, which after being seized by a British warship was captured with a prize crew aboard by a German submarine. Germany recently ordered the vessel held for prize court proceedings at Hamburg on the ground that her transfer from Canadian to American registry after war began was illegal.

PEER KILLED.

LONDON, To-Day. Lord Kesteven has been killed in the Balkans where he was attached to a cavalry regiment. Lord Kesteven was sixth Peer to fall in the present war.

FIRE EXTINGUISHED.

NEW YORK, To-Day. The fire in the hold of the passenger steamer Rochambeau, which broke out after the steamer left here last Saturday, has been extinguished and the steamer is proceeding to Bordeaux. The news was received in a wireless message this morning.

He-perian Sunk by a Torpedo.

NAVY EXPERTS DECLARE.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Secretary Lansing has announced that the fragment of the explosive found in the hull of the Hesperian was a section of a torpedo. About a month ago the British government forwarded to the State Department a chunk of metal with the announcement that it was found in the wreck of the Hesperian after she was attacked off the British coast.

The fragment was analyzed by the Bureau of Ordnance of the navy department. The navy formally notified the state department that the fragment was a section of a torpedo. When the Hesperian was destroyed the German government insisted informally that she struck a British mine, while the admiralty reported that there were no German submarines in the vicinity where she was attacked and that it had received no report from a submarine commander covering the case.

A naturalized American named Wolfe, who was a steward on the Hesperian was killed.

Mr. Lansing appeared to believe that the report of the fragment would have little effect on the submarine issue. The administration expects Germany to come forward with a statement that it is impossible to place the blame for the destruction of the Hesperian on a German submarine, because the fragment of metal was turned over to the United States government by the British foreign office.

In other words, Germany is expected to take the position that it would be impossible to establish legal proof that the fragment was not manufactured by the British government for the sole purpose of placing the blame for the Hesperian's loss on Germany. The administration is morally certain that the Hesperian was attacked by a German submarine and that an American citizen was killed as a result of the action of the submarine commander.

Owing to the complex nature of the evidence, however, it is improbable that the administration will use the Hesperian incident as a basis for establishing a new submarine situation. Germany's disavowal in the Arabic case and her apparent intention of carrying on the submarine warfare within the laws of civilization hereafter appear to have satisfied the president that it would be unwise to reopen the dispute.

Secretary Lansing will lay before Germany the report of the naval officers who analyzed the fragment, and it will then be up to the foreign office to disprove the charges that a German submarine commander was responsible for the attack on the Hesperian and the loss of an American life.

The report probably will be given to Count Bernstorff, the German ambassador, who appears to be handling the matter with almost unlimited authority from the foreign office.

Cost of Modern Wars

The cost of modern warfare is well illustrated by Great Britain now having to spend a little over £3,000,000 a day, and Germany over twice as much. It is interesting to note what the expenditure of other countries was in former wars. Towards the close of the great Russo-Japanese War in 1904-5 Russia was spending over $2,097,000 a week. The war in South Africa cost £211,948,000. The total cost of the Crimean War was about £313,000,000. Of this Russia paid £142,000,000, France £93,000,000, and Great Britain £78,000,000.

France, however, up to 1874 paid the most heavily for making war, for she had to part with £316,000,000 during the great Franco-German War. The Napoleonic wars, which practically ended with Waterloo, were comparatively cheap for France, seeing that her total bill amounted to only £225,000,000, while that of Great Britain including the financing of many small Powers in their struggle against the Emperor Napoleon, amounted to £831,000,000.

FLORIZEL'S QUICK RUN.—The S.S. Florizel reached Halifax last evening, after a run of forty-three hours from this port and which is a quick passage at this season.

And Then We Die.

For health or wealth or love you seek,
You win or lose—no matter which,
The goal's the same for strong or weak,
The end's the same for poor or rich
You strive for knowledge,—With a spoon
You try to bail the ocean dry,
Hope says: "You'll do it pretty soon!"
And then you die!

Life teases, tempts with baubles bright;
Extends the prize and draws it back
Some joy is ever in your sight
To blunt the torture of the rack.
When Fortune frowns you know she'll smile,
The thing you prize is ever nigh,
Life lets you hold it for a while—
And then you die!

Who cares? When one has seen the show
Who wants to see it o'er again?
We gaily come, let's gaily go,
We're tuppenny goods, we little men
And, God-like, we may taste the joys
Of present days, no wonder why,
So let's be happy, girls and boys!—
For soon we'll die.

And happiness? 'Tis in hard knocks,
In bloody sweat and dripping toil,
The great eternal paradox
That justifies the endless coil.
The kindnesses we take and give,
Who knows but when we're turned to dust,
'Tis then we'll live.

German Morality.

London, Oct. 24.—In view of the claim so frequently made that Germany leads the world, these figures dealing with Germany morality are noteworthy. When we compare the statistics of crime in Germany as given by the Imperial Statistics Office, Berlin, with the figures of the same crimes in Great Britain as supplied by the Home Office, we are faced by a remarkable contrast. The following table has been carefully compiled to show the average annual convictions for crimes recorded in ten years in Germany and Great Britain. The Germany population may be taken as 67,000,000; the British as 48,000,000:—

	German	British
Malignant and felonious wounding	172,153	1,262
Murder	359	97
Rape	9,381	216
Malignant damage to property	25,757	358
Illegitimate births	178,115	37,041
Divorce petitions	20,340	965

These figures have been reduced to a common basis for ten millions population and give the following proportions:—

	German	British
Malignant and felonious wounding	25,694	263
Murder	51	20
Rape	1,400	40
Malignant damage to property	381	74
Illegitimate births	26,584	772
Divorce petitions	3,026	201

New York Sun:—An illuminating part of the correspondence between Austria and Italy is the despatch of Count Berchtold, dated August 12, 1914, in which he says: "We had, it is true, received the assurance from Germany that she would stand by our side if Russia should intervene."

The existence of any such understanding between Germany and Austria has been frequently denied. The attitude taken was that Austria consulted no one in sending her ultimatum to Serbia. If any additional evidence of the complicity of Germany in bringing about the war is needed, it seems to be given here.

Why She Was Happy.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Her Husband's Compliment Meant So Much.

The other day I heard one of my neighbors singing softly to herself as she sat on the porch sewing. "You seem to be light-hearted this morning," I commented. She lifted a bright, sweet face from her sewing and smiled at me. "I am." "Would it be intrusive to ask why?"

"I'm almost ashamed to tell you, and yet why should I? My sister dropped in this morning and she told me that Harry (my neighbour's husband) told her last night at the dance that he never saw me look so well. You know Harry is one of those people who can't seem to say such things to your face. Even before we were married he seldom said he was pleased with anything I wore. So you see how much it meant. Just supposing she hadn't told me. I've been sitting here thinking of it and trying to think if I can't remember something nice someone has said about someone else so that I can tell them about it and make them happy. I do think people ought to be more careful in their praise on things like that, don't you?"

"With a sudden pricking of conscience I admitted that I did. How is it with you, reader friend? Does that thought set your conscience a-pricking, too?"

The Fine Art of Passing On Compliments.

There are some people who make the art of passing on all the pleasant little things they hear people say of each other. I know one girl whom I seldom meet that she has not one of these delightful little second-hand compliments to slip into the conversation.

But the majority of us are careless or indifferent. We forget the pleasant word, or we don't want to take the effort to bring it into the conversation. Or perhaps we're even ungenerous enough not to enjoy hearing another praised, and to prefer to let the praise stop with ourselves.

Anyone who catches himself feeling that way (even deep down in his subconscious mind) needs to discipline himself by making himself repeat every compliment he can possibly get hold of.

One Second-Hand Thing That Is More Valuable Than First-Hand.

Most second-hand things are nowhere near so valuable as first-hand. A compliment is one of the rare exceptions to this rule. The pleasant thing that someone says of you to your face may have to be discounted a bit, but if it is said to a third person you can usually take it at its face value. People don't flatter behind your back (I except the few far-seeing schemers who deliberately flatter through a third person.)

If you were wealthy and could lighten other people's lives by gifts of money and beautiful things, you would take pleasure in doing so, wouldn't you?

Why not learn to take pleasure then in the gift you can give—the gift of a kind word passed on?

Make it a rule never to let a compliment or word of praise for another stop with you.

Items of Interest.

The murder of Franklin R. Voorhees, a war supply broker, near his home in the most exclusive section of the South Side, Chicago, on the night of Oct. 23rd, it is believed, will lead to the developments similar to those attending the attempted assassination of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan last July. A German spy is suspected, as Mr. Voorhees had been followed by suspicious persons for some time.

Porter Charlton, the American who has been on trial at Como, Italy, charged with murdering his wife in 1910, was on Oct. 25th condemned to six years and eight months' imprisonment. Charlton killed his wife in their villa on Lake Como on June 9th, 1910. He was 29 years old and she many years his senior. The jury found the murderer only partially responsible, and that there were extenuating circumstances. Owing to amnesty, and the fact that he will be allowed credit for the time he has been imprisoned, Charlton will serve only twenty-nine days in prison.

Because of the recent housewives' riots, during which the women in their struggles to purchase butter and other commodities, broke store windows and doors, the Berlin authorities have placarded the east side, the poorer section of the city, with scarlet colored warnings pointing out the penalties for the violation of the imperial statutes regarding mobs and rioting and the regulations of martial law under which Berlin is governed. Berlin should remember '48 when the present Kaiser's grandfather remorselessly shot down the people for rioting.

It is announced that a railway from Petrograd to Ekaterina, a port in the Arctic which is free from ice throughout the year, will be open for war traffic at the beginning of November. This new line has been built under the direction of American engineers. An army of 10,000 men, mostly prisoners have been employed upon it. The terminus on the edge of the Arctic is Ekaterina, on the northern coast of the Gulf of Kola, where large docks and sheds have been constructed. This new railway, with double lines, is 1,229 miles long, and has been built in six months. Boats unlikely to reach Archangel will be able to go to Ekaterina at all seasons.

The latest outrage by Germans in the United States has just been discovered by the New York Police Department, assisted by Federal Secret Service men, who on Oct. 24th arrested in a secluded wood on the western slope of the Palisades two Germans engaged in testing explosives. The confession of one of the prisoners satisfied the authorities that they have the key to the agencies responsible for the long series of explosions on ships, fires on piers and accidents in munition plants. Enough high explosive to blow up a ship was found in suit cases in the room occupied by the two men at No. 27 Fifth street, Union Hill. Bombs of two different types and bases for four other bombs, wigs and false mustaches, maps of New York Harbor and other data useful to a spy were found among the prisoners' effects. Startling developments are expected.

Swords of Honor.

Lord Kitchener, like his old antagonist, General Botha, owns a Sword of Honor which was presented to him by the Corporation of London in November, 1898. This is one of the most elaborate ever commissioned by the City Fathers. It has a hilt of eighteen-carat gold studded with amethysts, beryls, and turquoises, with the monogram of the recipient in diamonds, rubies and sapphires. Figures of Britannia and Justice, and a panel bearing the British and Egyptian flags, also appear on the hilt, whilst the blade is damascened with solid gold in Oriental fashion.

As a rule Swords of Honor are forever treasured heirlooms; but a few from time to time come into the market. Some years ago two swords presented to Lord Collingwood by the Corporations of London and Liverpool were sold in the auction-room for £240 and £260 respectively; and at the same sale a regulation sword of no intrinsic value realized 260 guineas because it had been used by Nelson when a Lieutenant.

Injuring Their Own Cause.

New York Evening Post:—The attitude of Germans and some German officials, in this country has been wrong from the very beginning. It makes no difference whether they believed that the United States was unfriendly to their country and working for the Allies, or not; that gave no one the right to violate our laws and to undertake to extend the warfare of Europe to our country, and that is just what has been done. We believe that when all the facts of which the Government is now in possession are laid before the American people, a great wave of indignation will sweep over the land. That there could be nothing more stupid and hurtful to the German cause than the activities of these conspirators is so obvious to any person of sense that the wonder of it increases day by day.

Russia's Hero.

STORIES OF GENERAL IVANOFF.

After the dark and gloomy days, when at one time it seemed as though Russia's army would not escape the grip of Von Hindenburg, the Czar's forces turned, as did the French and British at the Marne, and not only checked the German advance, but smote the enemy with such effect that they compelled them to retreat and evacuate places they had won at fearful cost.

The man who engineered this magnificent offensive movement—General Ivanoff—is to-day the hero of Russia, while the grudging admission of the Germans that "Ivanoff operated with good fortune" shows how they respect and fear him.

General Ivanoff was not unknown before the war. As head of the fortress artillery at Kronstadt, he was responsible for introducing many new methods of training which resulted in bringing the Russian artillery up to the highest pitch of perfection. Original in his methods, he does not believe in placing discipline first and individual capacity second. He is fond of saying that the first thing a young artillery officer has to remember is that he has a head; which he has to keep cool in all circumstances and to use to the best of his ability. Strict execution of orders alone does not count much with him.

"Were a hundred guns thundering about the General's ears," says one who knows Ivanoff intimately, "he would still light his cigarette without a tremor and inquire casually of anyone who might know about the health of his family. He sleeps a normal eight hours only on the eve of great battles and great events, when, as he says, one has to keep his head cool." Officers love to work under Ivanoff, for he is a soldier who is always giving his men opportunities of distinguishing themselves. He issues his orders only in general terms, demanding that all details shall be worked out by subordinate officers, thus developing independent thinking and initiative among them. And they well know that should they succeed in carrying out and executing some successful strategic movement on their own initiative, the General will be the first to see that it is brought to the notice of those high in authority in order that the officer may be duly rewarded.

One of the greatest strategists Russia has ever possessed, General Ivanoff has many military achievements to his credit. Incidentally it might be mentioned that it was he who introduced the new mode of simultaneous firing by all coast batteries, which was adopted later on the coast fortresses in Russia, and which rendered such good service in the defence of Port Arthur.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The Labrador schooners belonging to this place are now all home.

Mr. John Keeffe and crew arrived from Labrador by the s.s. Sagona, having lost their schooner Elizabeth at Corbett's Harbor, Labrador.

A very sad death occurred at Island Cove on Wednesday last. A young man named Griffin, who had been in poor health for some time had apparently become mentally unbalanced, and ended his sufferings by drowning. He left his home at about 10 p.m. and on Thursday morning his boots and cap were found on the bank over a deep gulch. His body was recovered. Judge Oke and a police officer immediately proceeded to the scene to hold an investigation.

Thursday last being the 9th anniversary of the consecration of His Lordship Bishop March, the officers and members of the C.C.C. called on His Lordship at the Palace and tendered their congratulations on the occasion. The Bishop was pleased to receive them. All our citizens join in good wishes to His Lordship for very many happy years in our midst.

Mr. E. Reid, of Heart's Delight, was in town yesterday.

Mr. Archibald Taylor arrived from Sydney on Tuesday last for the purpose of accompanying his mother, Mrs. Samuel Taylor, to his home there. Mrs. Taylor will reside at Sydney in future.

Dr. Goodwin is moving into his new dental parlors to-day. The genial doctor has now a most up-to-date office for his dental work, where his patrons will receive his best attention.

A Sunday School rally was held in the Methodist school hall yesterday afternoon. A large number of scholars and parents were present, and a most interesting service held.

Wesley Students Enlist

At a meeting of the faculty and students of Wesley College, Montreal, held recently, it was pointed out that the Empire is passing through a critical period in her history, and that even a man's calling as a minister did not excuse him from doing his part. The College has already sent ten men to the front, and as a result of this recent appeal 25 men volunteered and amongst them are 11 Probationers of the Newfoundland Methodist Conference: Messrs. A. V. Robb, B. J. Warr, I. J. Waterman, H. Allenby, S. J. Pike, W. H. McKirdy, J. W. Baggs, A. F. Marsh, A. J. Penny, A. Patterson and E. Davis. The students will join the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, the faculty offering them certain examination exemptions.

Nyal Club Organized.

The Druggists of St. John's Bay Roberts, Carbonar and Grand Falls met last night at McGarry's Cafe and after doing ample justice to an extensive menu, organized the N.Y. Club, with the following officers: President—H. Pedigrew, St. John's; Vice-Pres.—P. O'Mara, St. John's; Sec.—Treas.—B. Stafford, St. John's; Advertising Committee—B. Stafford, St. John's; H. Thompson, Bay Roberts; Leo O'Mara, Grand Falls; T. McCarthy, Carbonar.

Mr. Scarborough, representing the firm of Frederick Stearns & Co., Windsor, Ont., was present and gave an interesting talk on efficiency and creative salesmanship. We expect to hear more from the Nyal Club in the near future.

I would not start on a voyage without it if it cost a dollar a bottle.
 CAPT. F. R. DESJARDIN,

Amusements.

AT THE CRESCENT.

Mr. Delmar sings the latest ballad published: "The Little Grey Mother," at Crescent Picture Palace to-day, don't miss hearing this song. A beautiful number. To-night "The New Magdalen" will be the second picture screened so as to give those engaged in stores and offices a chance to see this great feature and hear Mr. Delmar sing "The Little Grey Mother." To-morrow the Crescent presents a two act modern society drama: "The False Guardian." Don't miss to-day's fine show.

BRITISH THEATRE.

The boisterous weather of last night was more conducive to home comforts, yet a large attendance braved the elements in order to hear Mrs. Ayre at the British in her new song of the "Four Leaf Clover." Mrs. Ayre has lost none of her old time popularity which was amply proven by the applause which greeted her in her rendition of this number. Her many friends will have not only the pleasure of hearing her beautiful singing but also that of helping on the cause of the W.P.A. towards which her salary is being devoted. Miss Marguerite Mitchell comes forward to-night and generously offers her services for the same cause. Miss Mitchell will be heard in "Break into Song," and her initial appearance will we feel sure meet a very hearty reception. "On the Golf Links at Bally Haly" is the title of a film by our own N.Y. Biograph Co., and will be screened on Wednesday night. A number of our most prominent citizens of both sexes will be seen in close pursuit of this very healthful sport. The "Trey O' Hearts" will also be continued on Wednesday with an entire change of programme. Last night's show will be repeated again to-night, when the house will be kept open till a late hour for the convenience of many friends who may not be able to attend early.

CARROLL AND ELLOR — INSTANTANEOUS HIT.

The Irish sketch artists made a great impression last night. They are the tip top notchers and they had the house in roars. Carroll, as a female impersonator can't be beat; his wonderful voice and splendid appearance together with magnificent wardrobe delighted one and all, their act is original. Miss Ellor in her diamond dress looked a dream; altogether the act is so out of the ordinary that there can be no comparison to anything ever seen here before. The audience applauded loud and long and the clever artists had to respond again and again. They have numerous changes and sketches galore. The dancing of Miss Ellor was loudly applauded. The pictures are very fine. "A Man's Right to Die," in two parts, is a marvellous film and no one should miss; the other features are equally good. Mrs. Rossley has commenced her pantomime rehearsals for her fourth annual pantomime.

FINAL EPISODE OF THE "TREY O' HEARTS."

The final chapter of the "Trey O' Hearts" attracted large audiences to the Nickel Theatre yesterday in spite of the disagreeable weather. It is a most interesting episode and afforded pleasure to all who saw it. "In the Switch Tower," "The Poetic Justice of Omar Khan" and "Cupid's Column" were also high class pictures which were viewed with the greatest interest. This evening the whole programme will be repeated and as this will be the last opportunity to see the final chapter of the "Trey O' Hearts" there will no doubt be crowded houses. The theatre is open every night until 11 o'clock for the benefit of those working in the stores.

Safe Arrival of Our Soldiers.

"G" Company, of the 5th Contingent of Volunteers of the Newfoundland Regiment, that left here has reached Liverpool safely, after a speedy voyage, official notification of this having been received in a cable last night by His Excellency the Governor from Capt. Montgomerie, who went across in charge of the contingent and some German prisoners. The communication added, all well. The news of the safe arrival of our troops at their destination will be received with satisfaction. Company G left here on October 27th, by rail en route to Quebec where they embarked by Transport Corsican for Liverpool.

Wesley Church.

Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, B.A., officiated on Sunday morning, and preached a mastery and most eloquent discourse from the words, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." (Mat. 6:34). The Rev. gentleman introduced his discourse by referring to the basis of religion as a means of living. The basis is formed either from an intellectual standpoint, or from imitative impulses. Intellectually or unintellectually such a basis will become an idea of living. The Rev. gentleman presented the question "What is your idea of living?" refuting the claims as to the impracticability of Christ's teaching for the present mode of living. Taking as an example "Take no thought for the morrow" he dealt with the wrong impression inferred from Christ's literal teachings, and pointed out most clearly that the selfish things, instead of becoming secondary have evidently become the pre-eminent motives of life. To some the true estimate of life consisted in either of the following: For the sake of adorning the body; satisfying taste; building a beautiful home; amassing wealth; educating children; cultivating morality; doing good to the world. The dominating thought, the real core, the central form of religion consists in doing good. The present life is only a means to an end. If duty performed in this regard, in the home, church and state divine intervention would amass her dividend. Life counts in heart throbs, but the troubles of each day are sufficient and cannot be transferred to the next day. In concluding the preacher referred most touchingly to the anxious mothers of this island, whose tears at this time stain the very ground upon which they fall. The entire discourse was attentively heard by all present. —T.M.G.

Getting Repaired.

The freighter Maggie Sullivan, which was badly battered on her last trip from here to Fogo, as exclusively reported in the Telegram a week ago, is now at the northern port undergoing permanent repairs. Besides a deal of other new rigging she is also getting put in position a new mainmast which arrived here by the last Red Cross Liner. In about a week's time repairs will be completed and the vessel ready to resume her work between this port and Fogo.

It's Time to Wake Up. Free Calenders for the W. P. A.

Dear Mr. Editor, Will you please allow me space in the valuable columns of your paper to say a few words on Education and the teachers in Newfoundland. I think education can be far ahead of what it is to-day. One way by which this may be accomplished is to get teachers to devote their life to the teaching profession, to do this we need to encourage them.

Are the people of Newfoundland giving to their children an education that will fit them to take any position in this island or in any other land, or are they even building a strong foundation so that they may continue their education when leaving their home. I think not.

Does the fault lie in the teacher? To-day we find a large number of teachers young people who are just out to make a living, we find them teaching for a few years then leaving the profession, so we have all the time young inexperienced teachers scattered all over the island to teach our children; can those teachers do justice in a school?

Mr. Editor, to keep men in the profession we need to encourage them and one way by which we can do this is to pay them a living wage, a wage on which they can live and provide for a rainy day.

I was very much struck on a remark which was passed in your paper some time ago, it is this: "That the teacher should do that which he is paid for. Yes, they should, and if they did I think the people of Newfoundland would have their eyes open for peace. They would then find that the teachers who are scattered all over the island be engaged at something else, the people would not have them. Why? Because they would not be doing enough to satisfy them. It was also stated that "Home Lessons" should be done away with. I agree with that person if our age was lengthened to, instead of three score years and ten, we may find time to learn enough to fit us for life under the present rule and regulations of education.

How on earth can a teacher who has 70 pupils divided up into nine classes teach children and have good results.

At present a teacher in the outports has too much work to do to have good results from his work, and he is not paid for the work which he is doing, and therefore, Mr. Editor, it is time that the men who have to provide the lawyers, doctors and clergy-men of our island should be paid for their work, and before I close I wish to ask this question: If it is a Divine Right that we should have liquor in our island home. Is it a Divine Right that teachers should work for half-pay.

Thanking you for space,
I remain yours,

W. P. A. at Long Pond.

Editor Evening Telegram.—Dear Sir:—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper for the insertion of a few remarks with regard to the W. P. A. at Long Pond.

Last winter the good ladies of Long Pond formed an Association, which, under the able guidance of its President, Mrs. E. Elliot (nee Miss Jennie Greenleaf), did notable work. The members of the Association used to meet in the schoolroom, where, with a nice cosy fire, and with excellent reading material, knitting needles were played very busily.

The funds of the Association were augmented very considerably by the indefatigable works of the members of the junior committee who collected about $11. The names of this brave little band of workers deserve to be made public.—Junior Committee: Misses Lily Rendell, Molly Greenleaf, E. Elliot, E. Dawe, Irene Dawe, Violet Rideout. In passing, I cannot refrain from making mention of the good work accomplished by the former president. She gave ungrudgingly of her time and talent for the material and social benefit of the community; she was interested in anything and everything that tended to uplift the social status of her native town. But she has severed her connections with Long Pond, and is now we trust doing noble work in another part of the "wide, wide world." Our loss has been somebody's gain. She has gone to make the man of her choice happy, and is now the wife of Mr. E. Elliot, Principal of Bay Roberts Academy. Her many friends as they meet weekly in the Association room send a kindly thought to her over the "cable town" and each and everyone joins in wishing her many years of wedded bliss.

This year we see the Association inaugurated on a new working basis, which promises good results. The officers for this year are: President—Mrs. C. R. Rendell. Sec.—Mrs. W. Rendell.

Treas.—Miss J. M. A. Greenleaf. Under such a capable staff of officers we expect to see the Association go forward by leaps and bounds. May all success attend those ladies. They deserve to be given all the help and encouragement that is possible to be given them. They are trying to do their "bit" to help out the Empire in this great hour of danger. They fully realize the great responsibility which has devolved upon the women of the Empire in keeping our brave soldier lads at the front equipped with various articles of clothing which go far towards keeping them comfortable. They are determined to do their part to smash German militarism, to bring peace and security to the Empire and humanity, to uphold the ideals of Christianity and to keep the old flag flying.

Yours sincerely,
PATRIOT.
Long Pond, Nov. 8th, 1915.

Broke Into House.

The police have been informed of a burglary which occurred at the house of Mrs. Pike, on Prescott Street, between midnight Sunday and yesterday morning. Mrs. Pike, who occupies the lower flat of the house, heard noise in the basement and alarmed Mrs. Roberts, who lives on the flat above. Both women dressed themselves hastily and without disturbing the burglar or burglars ran to the opposite side of the street and aroused Mr. S. Frelich, who quickly notified the police. Two officers responded. On arrival they could find no trace of anyone but there was ample evidence to show that someone had been on the premises. The two women state that while Mr. Frelich was gone for the police they saw a man coming out of their house with a bundle of something. They are now on the hunt for the burglar.

Enemy's Secret.

Because of the failure to destroy the sights on their rifles before abandoning them, the Austrians have placed in the hands of the Italians a valuable invention. These sights, which are only in some of the captured rifles, consist of what might be called a prismatic eyeglass, the objective consisting of a little convex lens, which reflects objects at a long distance. The object reflected is transferred to small prismatic mirrors fixed on axes which are not parallel with each other, and which reflect the object upon a flat iridescent surface. When the person aimed at appears on the intersection of the lines contained in the sight, it is impossible for the soldier to miss him. This instrument is supplied to all sharpshooters with instructions to pick off officers. The Austrians were instructed to destroy the sight if they were obliged to abandon their rifles, or were made prisoners, but some omitted to do so.

Patriotic Association.

A meeting of the Patriotic Association was held at the Board of Trade Rooms last night. His Excellency the Governor presided.

Mr. W. J. Higgins acted as Secretary, and a large number of members were in attendance. In opening the meeting His Excellency briefly reviewed the war situation. He then announced that the casualties in the Regiment since the 1st Battalion left for Egypt, up to November 3th, totalled 91, the number being made up as follows: killed in action, 4; died of wounds, 9; died of disease, 7; dangerously wounded (all better) 4; severely wounded, 2; wounded, 32; dangerously ill (two better) 6; seriously ill, 7; reported ill, 14.

The report of J. A. Gilt, K.C., Treasurer of the Trafalgar Day Fund Committee, showed that $10,753.42 had been subscribed, and that the amount is being forwarded to the authorities with the idea that it be devoted to the aid of the sick and wounded in the near East.

The report of the Finance Committee as submitted by Hon. E. R. Bowring, showed that $77,245.37 has been expended to Oct. 31st; and that of the Patriotic Association tabled by Mr. J. S. Munn gave the total receipts as $102,557.04 with an expenditure of $10,753.76.

Hon. P. T. McGrath, on behalf of the Non-Combatant Selection Committee stated that five hospital nurses and five hospital orderlies have gone forward to assist in the care of the wounded and that others will likely follow. The report of the Reserve Force Committee was submitted by Sir Joseph Outerbridge, but consideration was deferred until Monday night next. The other reports were adopted. His Excellency then read the latest officers this year and announced that Dr. W. T. Grenfell leaves shortly for the front with a Harvard Red Cross Contingent. After which the meeting adjourned.

"Is it Imperative."

Mr. Seebohm Rowntree Says That it is Imperative that the Nation Should Consider in Advance Some of the Social and Industrial Problems Which Will Confront it When Peace is Signed.

Mr. B. Seebohm Rowntree has an urgent and informative article in the October Contemporary Review on our Home Problems After the War. His argument runs thus—of its urgency there is no doubt.

Three Stages After the War. "The war has taught us many lessons, and one of the most striking is the tremendous material advantage which Germany has gained not only from the extraordinary thoroughness with which she has prepared for war, but also from the ability which she has shown for many years past in developing the full industrial resources of the State.

"Just as Germany has for years been patiently preparing for war, let us prepare for peace, and grapple beforehand with the difficulties which, like the other nations of Europe, we must face when hostilities are over.

"It seems likely that after the war industry will pass through three stages.

"First, a period of very serious dislocation of trade, causing much unemployment, and probably lasting for several months.

"Second, a period of feverish trade activity, lasting for a year or more.

"Third, a long period of severe trade depression.

"My purpose in this article is to indicate the grounds on which I make this forecast, and the problems which, if it be correct, will call for solution.

stay with the colors for months after hostilities cease. The great majority of them will return straightway to their previous employment, throwing out of work those who have occupied their places during their absence.

"Considerably over a million men will be thrown on the labor market within three months of the termination of the war, and work will have to be found either for them or for the individuals whom they will displace. Moreover, the labor market at the time will be singularly unqualified to absorb this additional labour. Vast numbers of workers to-day are engaged in manufacturing goods, the demand for which has been created directly or indirectly by the war. When peace is signed the great bulk of this demand will cease, and consequently there will be very serious dislocation of industry apart from that caused by the demobilisation of the army.

"Just how long the state of dis-

Prized equally in hospital and home, because no other Coffee is so rich, so strong, so delicate, and so unflinchingly good.

Feverish Trade Activity.

location will last depends on many circumstances at present quite uncertain, notably on the length and cost of the war, the size of the Army when it is over, the length of the interval between the cessation of hostilities and the signing of peace, and the nature of the peace. But after a longer or shorter period of transition, a period varying from trade to trade, industry will gradually pass into a stage which will be one of feverish activity.

"Orders will pour in from manufacturers and retailers whose stocks are depleted; France, Belgium and Russia will need goods to restore the districts ravaged by war, and a share of the contracts will come to England; shipowners will clamour for new ships to replace those which have been sunk; many manufacturers, seeing a time of booming trade before them, will order machinery and enlarge their buildings. No doubt too, England, although she will for some time to come lose the export trade previously done with Germany, will secure a part of the trade with our Allies which was previously in German hands, and will probably be the gainer on the whole.

Prolonged Trade Depression.

"The extent and the duration of the trade activity of the second industrial period will depend, as in the period preceding it, upon the length of the war, the material damage done, and the extent to which the financial exhaustion of the different countries proceeds. It is conceivable that the activity may for a time be sufficiently marked to absorb the surplus labor, but when the depleted stocks of machinery and goods are made up, and the abnormal initial demand to replace capital and wealth destroyed by the war has been met (to whatever extent it can be met) industry will probably pass into a third stage, characterised by a depression lasting for a long time. This depression, well nigh inevitable, will be due to the fact that the world is poorer.

"Humanity will have spent directly upon the war many thousands of millions of pounds—money wasted, from the industrial and economic standpoint, as completely as if it had been devoted to employing men to dig holes in the Sahara and fill them up again. But the indirect losses occasioned will have been far greater. When the gigantic struggle is over, wealth representing fabulous sums will have been lost through destruction of property, through loss of trade through the withdrawal of millions of men from productive industry, and through the premature death or disablement of millions of men, many of whom possessed knowledge and skill of inestimable national value."

What Can Be Done.

Having thus stated the possible condition of affairs, Mr. Rowntree considers what can be done, and he makes these remarks and suggestions:

"We must provide for our soldiers on their return an honourable means of subsistence.

"The cost of living will be high and the economic position of the worker will be weaker. Many women will retain the posts they held during the war. To avert the calamity of a lowered standard of living surplus labor must be absorbed as it tends to keep down wages in periods of bad trade.

"Let the Government form an exceedingly strong committee to prepare a comprehensive scheme for dealing with unemployment. This committee might consider:—

1. The provision of working-class houses.
2. Afforestation and reclamation of waste lands.
3. New roads.
4. Clearance of slum areas.
5. Work held back by the war.
6. Training unemployed men and women to be efficient workers.

"If such schemes are said to be unnecessary, Mr. Rowntree replies that "the problem of dealing effectively with periods of exceptional unemployment never has been solved in the past." But "if suitable provision is made, it should be possible even at a time of serious industrial depression for the State to prevent the volume of unemployment from rising above the normal level."

No Fatalism.

"We must steadfastly resist the spirit of fatalism. If we survey the industry of the country we shall see that almost everywhere there is room for great improvement. It is universally admitted that our agricultural land might produce a great deal more than it does. . . . We might be very much more efficient in the conduct of our industry. Wealth equivalent to tens of millions of pounds is lost to this country every year by the continued use of obsolete machines and methods. Let us, while carefully avoiding nerve-destruoying and quite unnecessary 'drive,' try and introduce into the industrial world something of the push and go which characterize much of the industry of America, and something also of the plodding methodical efficiency of Germany."

"Then Mr. Rowntree urges that our whole system of education shall be reviewed so that it may qualify the boys and girls to succeed in life—"in life itself, not in the trappings of it." "As to the money for all these schemes, "we should not be content unless we are creating wealth that is in itself creative. . . . There is wealth which is destructive, there is wealth which is simply inert; but there is also creative dynamic or seminal wealth."

Splendid Health of British Army a Splendid Feature.

London, Oct. 29.—England's splendid sanitation and the unprecedented healthfulness of the British army is a saving feature in England's status in the present war, according to a statement by Sir Jas. Crichton-Browne, an eminent medical authority, before the Sanitary Inspectors' Association to-day.

"With a larger army in the field than ever before," said the speaker, "the percentage of disease is lower than in times of peace." Sir James called attention to the fact that although a million men had been rejected for physical defects during the first year of the war, these men had all been born from thirty-eight to forty years ago, in the days of imperfect sanitation, when disease was prevalent and went unchecked.

WINDSOR TABLE SALT

When "Purity" is mentioned, WINDSOR SALT naturally comes to mind.

Unpatriotic Greed.

The notice from the Treasury reveals the fact that there is a tendency on the part of some investors on this side of the Atlantic, to take up some of the Anglo-French loan in the United States owing to the exceptionally high yield of interest with excellent security. British banks and the Stock Exchange are not likely to offer any facilities to persons anxious to place their money in this way. The loan in the United States is not intended for British investors, and any subscriptions sent across the "Pond" would militate against the main purpose of the loan—which is to restore exchange between the two countries. There are, however, sordid people who care for nothing except opportunities for enriching themselves, and it is to be feared that such persons are cunning enough to find a means of participating in the loan without having to ask the assistance of British banks or stock brokers. It can only be hoped that such avaricious and mean-spirited folk are few in number.—(From The Dundee Advertiser.)

Crocodile Tears.

The newspapers of Budapest relate a story of Emperor William which comes, they say, from a Socialist member of the Reichstag. In the course of a conversation the Emperor, with tears in his eyes, is alleged to have said that France was the greatest disappointment of his life, and that he was sincerely sorry for that country, which, he thought, was destined to ruin. The Emperor is also quoted as saying: "The French method of warfare is one of a terrifying nature, brutal and inhuman, the details of which will only be known after the war." The deputy says that the Emperor actually cried when he said that France was condemned to death. "The aim of this war," added the Emperor, "is that Germany, in its great unity, should become the heart of Europe, and lead in the work of civilization and humanity."

The Hungarian papers give great prominence to the interview.
