"KYRA,"

OR,
The Ward of the Earl of Vering.

CHAPTER XXXI.
Old Stephen's Testimony.

"Without informing you of the pains and penalties you are laying yourself open to."

Percy turned aside with a contemptuous wave of the hand, "Tell them," he said, "that I give them half an hour to get clear of the grounds, or I will have them horsewhipped, man for man. As to penalties and the rest of it—" he was stopped suddenly by the touch of a hand upon his arm.

It was Kyra—Kyra white and despairing, but firm and resolved.

"My Lord Percy," she said, in a low, sweet tone that thrilled every heart in the room, "I will go with them—you shall not sacrifice yourself for me—no unworthy to cause you a moment's unhappiness and trouble. I will go with those gentlemen."

Percy turned to stone for a moment, then put her back with his hand; but Mr. Meek had heard every word, and came up with a quick vicious snuff.

"Lord Vering, the young lady has declared her willingness to place herself under our charge and acknowledge us as her proper guardians. You will restrain and withhold her at your peril."

Percy strode forward, and stood before the miserable man little figure almost mad with rage. "Will nobody take this reptile out of my sight?" he demanded.

Instantly there was a rush forward, but Mr. Butterwick stepped in front of the shrinking attorney.

"Come, come, Mr. Meek!" he said, "you are trying our patience too much, take your friends and yourself off. Here is our answer: We say that the young lady remains here, and that we will meet you in a court of law. Come, that's better than the horse-pod, which," he added, with a smile, "is what you will certainly get if you try these good fellows here much longer."

"I care nothing for all your intimidations and brutal threats," exclaimed Mr. Jackson; "I say that the girl shall come—"

There was a little stir at one side of the room, and the bent figure of Stephen Gringe limped through a door and stood leaning on his stick, with his eyes fixed on the lank face of the Yankee. He raised his voice again.

"If not to-day, then we get her tomorrow. You can't set yourself against law and equity, and the right of next of kin, Earl Vering, and I, Jabez Hiram Jackson. My dear girl shall go back to the States and her people with me!"

"And I say she shall not!" said the thin, shrill voice of Stephen Gringe.

The storm which the Yankee's overbearing words had raised stilled

Chronic Skin Disorders Now Overcome Quickly

There is no hope of getting rid of disfiguring skin and blemishes until the blood is purged of every trace of unclean matter.

Wonderful results follow the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills which provide the blood with the elements it needs to become rich and red.

Quickly indeed the blood is brought to normal strength, is filled with nutrition, is given power to drive out of the system the humors that cause rashes, pimples, pesty complexion and kindred ills. again. A profound silence ensued, as all eyes fixed on the shrunk figure of the old steward.

"And who are you, old man, to say that?" sneered Mr. Jackson, sticking on his hat and eying him contemptuously. "It seems the upper servants and high-class pensioners have a hand in the business of this house. Who may you be?"

"I am Stephen Gringe," said the old man, leaning on his stick, and bringing his eyes to bear upon the hard features of the Yankee. "I've no call to ask you the same question. I know you, Cutthroat Jackson; you led the massacre of the whites by the Sioux in Zion Valley! Yes, you'll hang for that, Jackson, when I go over and give my evidence! Oh, yes, I know you, Commissioner Jackson: I was in the mail you and your two brother commissioners*plundered in '29—they were hung for the murder of the guard, but you fired the shot—I'll swear it! Yes, I know you; and I knew Tahitari, and Black Hawk, and Grey Eagle! I laugh at your warrants and your affidavits, real or sham; and I say that Black Hawk is no more the guardian of Kyra, the daughter of Grey Eagle and Tahitari, than I am—and that, therefore, the claim falls to the ground!"

"Pshaw! the old man rambles," interrupted Mr. Meek, with a snarl. "Black Hawk is her uncle, old dotard; her father is dead!"

"I know it," said Stephen, with a strange nod of the head.

"Consequently, the uncle is the guardian; and his claim is grounded on lies. Here are the papers—neither you nor any other man have power to retain her. If her uncle is not her guardian, who is?"

"Percy Chester, Earl of Vering!" cried Stephen, with a flash of his small, gray eyes.

"Lord—Vering!" exclaimed Mr. Meek.

"Pshaw!" snarled Mr. Jackson.

"Silence!" said Mr. Butterwick, listening keenly for old Stephen.

"Yes," said Stephen, "Lord Vering is her legal guardian, duly appointed by her father by his own hand, and in the presence of three witnesses."

"What!" exclaimed Mr. Butterwick.

"Her father, Grey Eagle, an Indian, who could not write his name!" said Mr. Meek.

"No, but Grey Eagle, otherwise John Chester, the last Earl of Vering, who had died, and lived with the Modocs, and married Tahitari. Grey Eagle and Lord Vering are one, and Kyra is his daughter."

There was a murmur of excitement. Mr. Meek came forward, flickering his papers and mumbling with passion.

"It's a concoction—palpable," he commenced.

"Tut!" said Stephen, with a sardonic smile—"look at Cutthroat Jackson!"

All eyes were turned that way, and read the look in Mr. Jackson's hang-dog and cadaverous countenance.

"Legally married," resumed Stephen. "Lord Vering and Tahitari are the parents of Lady Kyra. Lord Percy is her cousin and her guardian, and no person can take her, against her will, from his protection. In proof thereof," he continued, limping forward and holding out a parchment in his trembling hands to Percy, "is the last will and testament of the late Lord Vering, her father, in which he leaves her all of which he is possessed, and makes Lord Percy her guardian."

"What!" exclaimed Mr. Butterwick, taking the parchment from Percy's surprised grasp.

"Yes! The lost will! My lord, you were right! you were right. She takes it all, and—my God! the Wolding lands!"

Percy silenced him by a look, and then came forward to where stood Kyra, now white and terrified.

"Kyra!" he said; "you hear!"

"No!" she breathed, putting up her hands.

"Yes!" he said, in a low, clear voice, with a sweet smile. "It is quite true! I feel it! You are no longer Kyra, the Indian girl, but Kyra, an earl's daughter and heiress."

He stopped, for with a cry she fell at his feet in a swoon.

"Ah!" cried Mr. Meek; "nicely planned—nicely planned. But we'll have you, low and high, master and servant, if suppression of a will is still a crime in the calendar."

Then the crowd closed in, and he and his fellow conspirators were suddenly and mysteriously borne off; it was of no use for Mr. Butterwick to shout out warning and threats; the servants had waited too patiently to be baffled at the moment of their triumph, and in less than the half-hour the three were standing in the dirty road, wet to the skin, and smarting from the application of a pair of stout cart-whips.

Never did a road or a half-hour seem so long! At last he reached one of the lodges, slipped through the gate, and taking care to keep under the trees, gained the house and the window. As he did so, the stable clock struck eight, but he had to wait a full quarter of an hour—ten hours it seemed to him—before a slight creaking at the old-fashioned lattice window frame raised him from the depths of despair to the airy heights of hope. Very slowly and cautiously the window opened, and a voice—it was pitch dark—was heard in tremulous tones to speak his name—

"Charlie are you there?"

With a flush of love and warmth, Charlie pushed through a rosebush—which retaliated in the way of scratches—and drew himself up to the window ledge so suddenly that a pale, pretty face, indistinctly seen in the gloom, drew back with alarm.

"All right, Polly, darling! Don't be afraid! Here I am!"

"Oh, how could you come!" exclaimed Lady Mary, woman-like, forgetting that she had awaited him.

"Here I am. Where are you?" cried impetuous Charlie. "Is this your hand? Can't I come in?"

SUNDAY.

"I'm always glad when Sunday comes, and our old town no longer hums with all the jargon of the mart, the bargaining that breaks my heart. On Sunday morning I can meet my friends and neighbors on the street and they won't try to sell me prunes, or real estate or patent medicines. And by no agent I'll be lured upstairs to have my life insured. No auto salesman on my track. I freely walk to church and back; I hear the pastor's helpful views, in my new suit and polished shoes; the worshippers have left behind, for one brief day, the beastly grind, and when the parson's discourse ends, I mingle freely with my friends, and no one tries to sell me socks or whiskers, dyes, or patent locks. No salesman interrupts the hymn, to boost his duplex wooden limb. I do not hide behind a tree when some investment sharp I see. I do not have to dodge or spurn the agent for a patent churn."

words, must be shut up for the autumn, in the old and stately, and somewhat dreary Manor Hall; and kept under close surveillance. But, love laughs at locksmiths, and mercenary mammas, and the naughty girl had managed to slip a tiny letter into the village post office, informing her despairing lover of the exact position of affairs, and imploring him not to forget her. Forget her! as if a night passed without the miserable lad's lamentations to the stars; for indeed Charlie did love her with all his heart, and was as miserable as she could have desired. He lost no time, after the receipt of her letter, and of course made for the place of imprisonment; and there, in Boxley village, at the little inn, and round about the hall itself, he had lurked and hovered, often being mistaken for a footpad, and once nearly shot for a poacher.

At last the tender-hearted maid-servant, who had had love passages herself, smuggled a note to him from his beloved, telling him that on a certain Wednesday night, papa and mamma, the earl and countess, were bound to attend a county dinner; that there was a certain small library situated on the east side of the house, and that perhaps a certain young lady might appear at a window in the said library, at the hour of eight; and this explained Charlie's tramp, tramp along the cold and cheerless lane.

Never did a road or a half-hour seem so long! At last he reached one of the lodges, slipped through the gate, and taking care to keep under the trees, gained the house and the window. As he did so, the stable clock struck eight, but he had to wait a full quarter of an hour—ten hours it seemed to him—before a slight creaking at the old-fashioned lattice window frame raised him from the depths of despair to the airy heights of hope. LONDON, July 17. The Governor, Newfoundland, reports that the Somme battle continues to develop favorably. Delville and Bazentin le Petit Wood have been captured, and our troops occupy the outskirts of Protreres.

It is just announced that fifteen hundred yards of enemy positions, northwest of Bazentin le Petit, and the strongly defended Waterloo farm, east of Longueval, have been captured. The remainder of the brave garrison of Ovillers, numbering 125, surrendered. The Dragon Guards have been in action, and over two thousand prisoners have been taken.

On Friday, five more howitzers and four other guns were captured. Captured documents indicate that the enemy casualties have been very heavy. South of the Somme the enemy retook Blaches and Maisonette by a surprise attack, but were again ejected. At Verdun during the week the enemy entered Dampoul battery and made some progress towards Fort Souville. The French have recently made progress in the same sector.

Russia announced to-day that the enemy had been defeated south of the Latak salient, and driven across the Lips. Thirteen thousand prisoners and thirty guns were captured.

Heavy fighting continues on the Stokhol and Hironovitch sectors. In the Caucasus the Russians retook Mamakhatan and captured Baidurb.

The Italians continue their pressure upon the Austrians.

BONAR LAW.

CAPTURED DOCUMENTS.

LONDON, July 17. The following captured documents are interesting as showing the very heavy casualties which the enemy suffered in the recent fighting. From Company 18, Bavarian Infantry, Regiment 3rd, Battalion 16: "Owing to severe enemy artillery fire of all calibres up to 28 centimetres, the company strength is now reduced to 12 men. The regiment urgently asks for speedy relief for the company. What remains is so exhausted that in case of attack by the enemy the few totally exhausted men cannot fight on."

From another Company of the same Regiment 3rd Battalion, 16th Bavarian Infantry: "Very heavy intense enemy fire. The Company in this sector has completely lost its fighting value. The men left are so exhausted that they cannot be employed in fighting. If heavy artillery fire continues, the Company will soon be entirely exterminated. Relief for the company is urgently requested."

From 2nd Battalion to 3rd Battalion, 16th Bavarian Infantry Regiment: "The Battalion has just received orders from Lieut.-Col. Kummé that it is placed under orders of the third Battalion, 16th Bavarian Regiment, as a section of the reserve battalion. It consists at the present time of three officers, 2 non-com. officers, and 12 men."

FROM DIFFERENT FRONTS.

LONDON, July 17. Further successes have been gained by us northwest of Bazentin le Petit Wood. We stormed and captured the German second line positions on a front of five hundred yards. The large number of German dead in this sector bear evidence of the very heavy casualties which the enemy have suffered since our advance began. East of Langueval we still further widened the gap in the German second line by capturing the strongly defended positions of Waterloo farm. On our left flank in Ovillers and La Boiselle, where there has been continuous hand-to-hand fighting since July 17th, we captured the remaining strongholds of the enemy together with the two officers and 125 guardsmen who formed the remnants of the brave garrison. The whole position is now in our hands.

In the Somme sector the Berlin War Office admits the British penetration of Ovillers Wood. Emperor William is reported at the front in the Somme sector. In the Ypres region the French have been on the aggressive, following up their successes west of Fleury. Southwest of Vaux they have gained additional ground last night in the same region, capturing machine guns. Their advance on Lorraine, southeast of Nomeny, two German attacks were repulsed.

Paris has announced the landing of another contingent of Russian troops in France, supplementing the force, estimated at 25,000, sent by way of Port Dely, Manchuria, and the Suz Canal late in April and early in May.

An important victory is indicated for the Russians in Volhynia sector. Berlin admits the retirement of Gen. Von Lingden's troops at one point, while Petrograd announces the taking of some 13,000 prisoners during Sunday's fighting.

Large captures of guns and material in the region of the Lower Lipa, where Petrograd reports a continued Russian advance against stubborn Teutonic resistance. It is announced in the Russian statement that 34 guns were captured, 17 of them heavy pieces.

WAR COSTING BRITAIN SIX MILLION POUNDS DAILY.

LONDON, July 17. The successes of the Entente Allies are following each other with great rapidity. To-day brought further news of the Allied offensive. A despatch from General Haig to-day shows that steady pressure by British arms is forcing an ever-deepening salient into the German lines, and the Commander-in-Chief for the first time produces evidence in the shape of documents, captured from the Germans, giving testimony as to the high price the Germans are paying in casualties. The British have improved their position along the whole of their line of battlefront, capturing by assault 1,500 yards of the German second line positions, north of Bazentin le Petit Wood, strong German positions at Waterloo farm between Longueval and Guillemont, besides completing the capture of the whole of the villages of Ovillers and La Boiselle. These gains bring the British almost to the crest of the Albert plateau, where stretches the German third line.

News from the eastern front to-day is equally important. The Russian Commander, General Kuropatkin, has launched an offensive against Field Marshal Von Hindenburg on the Dvina River. Gen. Von Linsingen's troops southwest of Latak, have been compelled to retire behind the Lipa River, while in the course of Sunday's fighting in Volhynia the Russians captured an additional 12,000 prisoners and 30 guns. Gen. Von Linsingen's retirement, according to Petrograd military critics, represents a great Russian tactical success. It was preceded by heavy fighting, in which the Russians smashed the Teuton front on a width of a mile, and penetrated several miles into their positions.

The war is now costing Britain six million pounds daily, but with such news as the successes of the Entente Allies, this sacrifice is nowhere grudging. While the powers of endurance of the Teutonic Allies, should they be forced to act entirely on the defensive, have still to be tested, the British nation is full of confidence. It is taking nothing for granted, but is fully prepared to acquiesce in the advice of its leading ministers, like Foreign Secretary Grey and Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna, who are publicly exhorting the nation to patience. McKenna announced in Parliament to-day that the daily cost of the war was six million pounds. He told the House that nobody could estimate what the nation's war expenditure might be a month ahead, and intimated that it would become necessary this week to ask Parliament for fresh borrowing powers.

BRITISH OFFICIAL STATEMENT.
LONDON, July 17. A British official statement issued to-night reads: Rain and heavy mist again interfered with operations. Nothing of importance occurred on the British front to-day. In local actions which have taken place we have captured some more prisoners. The total number of un wounded German prisoners taken by us since July 1st is 189 officers and 10,778 of other ranks. German losses in artillery are greater than at first reported. The captured armament already collected by our troops now include five 8-in. howitzers, three 6-in. howitzers, four 6-in. guns, five other heavy guns, 37 field guns, 30 trench howitzers, 66 machine guns, and many thousand rounds of ammunition of all descriptions. Above are exclusive of many guns not yet brought in, and numbers destroyed by our artillery bombardment.

ONE FRENCH INHABITANT.

PARIS, July 17. Only one French inhabitant was found in thirty villages retaken by the French and British in their offensive in the Somme region. He was a farmer who had hid in a cellar below every French civilian into the interior in anticipation of the allied attack.

IN VOLHYNIA.

PETROGRAD, July 17. In Volhynia, E.S.E. of Sainul Village, our troops, under General Sakaroff, broke down the resistance of the enemy, says a Russian official report. In battles in the region of Punitomy more than one thousand German and Austrian prisoners have been taken, together with three light guns, two heavy guns, machine guns and much other military booty. In the region of the Lower Lipa our successful advance continues, the enemy making stubborn resistance. In battles in this region we took as prisoners 225 officers and 5,827 men. We also captured 24 guns, of which 12 were heavy pieces, fourteen machine guns, a few thousand rifles and other equipment. We have captured in this vicinity 51 officers and 2,185 men. The total number of prisoners taken to July 16th in the battles in Volhynia are approximately 314 officers and 1,237 men. We captured 30 guns, 17 were heavy pieces, a great number of machine guns and other material.

THE 'DEUTSCHLAND' REVIVED.

LONDON, July 17. The question of the possibility of a dispute between Britain and the United States over the status of the German commercial ship, 'Deutschland', which arrived recently in the States, was raised in the Commons by John Dillon, who asked Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, to present immediately to Parliament, communications which have passed between the two Governments, and to undertake to keep the House fully informed of the course of negotiations on this matter. Lord Robert replied that correspondence was proceeding but that it was not in the public interest that it should be published now. He would see that the suggestion to keep the House informed of the course of negotiations should be fully considered. "Will you see," asked Dillon, "that Parliament is not committed to a dispute with the States without the House being given opportunity of discussing the whole subject?" Lord Robert replied: "I don't think the House would wish me to give such an undertaking as that, but I will present the suggestion to Sir Edward Grey."

MAKE REPRESENTATION.

WASHINGTON, July 17. Both the British and French Embassies have made representation to the State Department urging that the 'Deutschland' is a potential warship, and not entitled to treatment in neutral ports as a peaceful merchantman. The British statement of views is in writing, but with the explanation that it merely was for the information of the United States and was not in the nature of a protest. Now that the Department has ruled formally that the submarine is entitled to recognition as a merchantman vessel, it is understood that diplomatic representatives of the Allies are awaiting instructions from the Foreign office.

REPRESENTATIVES OF PARLIAMENTS IN FRANCE.

PARIS, July 17. Thirty-three members of the British Colonial Parliaments, from Canada, Newfoundland, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, arrived at Paris to-day, and will visit the British and French fronts. Each delegation will go to that sector of the front held by troops from its own colony. Canada's delegation consists of Senators Landry, Belcourt, Dennis, Ross, Sir George Foster, Rhodes, Shepherd, Nickle and Knowles. The French Government has arranged an elaborate reception for the visitors. Premier Briand will give a luncheon for them to-morrow.

PEOPLE STARVING IN POLAND.

WASHINGTON, July 17. Personal letters will probably be sent by President Wilson to the King of England, President of France, Emperor of Germany and Emperor of Russia, urging them to allow food to be sent from the States to the starving people of Poland. The President has asked the State Department to advise him as to the most desirable way to proceed. So far all efforts to arrange for shipments of food into the portions of Poland occupied by Germany have failed. It will be necessary to get permission for the passage of food through the Allied "blockade" and assurances from Germany that they will be used by the Poles and not by the German army of occupation.

STEAMERS SUNK.

LONDON, July 17. Lloyds reports the British steamer Euphorbia, the Italian steamer Sierra British, and the steamer 'Virginia', probably British, sunk.

FLOODS DOES EXTENSIVE DAMAGE.

RALEIGH, July 17. The flood waters which swept parts of North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee and West Virginia, yesterday, taking toll of at least nine lives, rendering hundreds homeless, and doing damage variously estimated at from ten million to fifteen million dollars, were receding to-day.

Complaints of Road.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—I'd like to draw the attention of the East End Road Inspector to the state of the road extending from the top of Kennebec Hill to Mount Cashel. It has been ploughed up the centre by recent rains. It is full of boulders and is hard to negotiate, either by pedestrians or with any kind of wheeled vehicles. It hasn't been repaired for years. It is one of the most-used thoroughfares in the suburbs. The present condition of the road is disgraceful. I'd like to call the attention of your member to this matter, so that he may get the Inspector to work immediately to repair this piece of road. Motor owners, as well as farmers and pedestrians are all bound in complaint of the state of the road-bed. In a few days thousands of citizens will be using the road in addition to ordinary traffic, and it is absolutely necessary that it be repaired quickly. July 18, 1916. FREDERIAN. Toward the Goal.

"The successes of the Entente Allies are following each other with great rapidity." With these words this morning's message begins an account of gains and advances which makes cheerful reading. East and West the pounding of the German circle goes on with pitiless perseverance.

The nature of the British operations is characteristic. The young enthusiasm of the first months and former offensives has been restrained by a change of method into a dogged pertinacity which suits the British soldier well. With great thoroughness they are cleaning up every inch of ground over which they pass.

In the East the Russian successes have all the importance claimed for them by the despatches. Von Linsingen has been driven across the Lipa. This river runs north and south, but from west to east. The fact means that the left wing of the great Russian army that is pressing upon Kovol is free to advance and carry further the encircling movement.

The attitude of the British public, staid and confident in the face of increasingly heavy losses and financial burdens, is the best earnest of success that could be desired. For the British public is well informed, and has abundant means of sizing up a situation. To the patience which has been sorely tried for nearly two years there is added a discernible expectation, and a quiet but firm conviction that the time of waiting and of sacrifice is soon to bear fruit.

Valedictory.

Another contingent go to fill up the ranks of our Regiment. They go at a fitting time. Not alone the crisis in Europe, of which we can have here the remotest conception, but a new and nearer summons, the empty places in the Regiment, call them away. In the course of his stirring address last night His Excellency the Governor said to them: "In Europe you will carry our honor. In your hands is the safety of our country. It is in your hands to carry it in safe keeping; they will carry it as did those before them who have nothing to fear. They have a high reputation to live up to; their duty is their distinction. We do not know, of course, what part will be assigned to them on the other side, but they are sorely needing and their arrival will infuse new strength into their comrades. Whether or not they take their places on the firing line will not matter to the part they play. If not, it will be for the welcome reason that they are not needed there; if they do, they are of no lesser stuff than those who have gone before, and we know how they acquitted themselves. We speak for the whole Island in wishing them God-speed, honor and victory to their arms and a safe return ere long.

"It's a better car sold at a lower price." That's why there are so many "FORDS" on the road to-day.—jun22,tf

Performance by Blind at College Hall.

A crowded, fashionable and sympathetic audience greeted the pupils of the Halifax School for the Blind at the College Hall last night, in their initial concert and demonstration. Sir Wm. Horwood, Chief Justice, who presided, explained the object of the performance. The programme was faithfully done by the Halifax Institution. He was followed by an instructive address given by Mr. John Weir, Traveling Secretary of the School. The concert followed and rarely before have music-lovers of St. John's had the privilege of listening to such high class music and talented vocalism. This was testified to by the prolonged applause and enthusiasm of the audience. The programme was faithfully carried out and consisted of piano solos by Messrs. Roderick Fraser and Cyril Pretty; Miss Flossie Johnson, vocal solo; Miss May McNeil, vocal solo; Mr. John Peterson, vocal solo; Miss Evelyn Ellis, Braille reading; Messrs. Allison, Messrs. Grannan and Hayden, part songs. At the close Mr. W. W. Blackall moved a vote of thanks, seconded by Mr. C. B. Steer and acknowledged by Mr. Weir. The next performance with a change of programme will be held to-night. His Excellency the Governor will preside.

Sorry He Was Not There

Capt. Wes. March, writing to a friend in the city, while staying at the Ritz Carlton, Montreal, enroute to England, says:—"Yesterday we received word about the boys who were missing something of how I feel—all the boys with whom I suffered so at the much are gone, and I was not there." Capt. March, who is highly respected, D. and Mr. R. G. Reid who motored him around Montreal and the nearby places. Sir William who was just recovering from a critical illness, received a severe shock on hearing that his son, Lieut. Bruce Reid, was missing.

The Jutland Battle.

(By Archibald Hurd.) Four weeks have passed since the battle of Jutland—top that is the title by which it is known—was fought, and it is possible in the light of an immense mass of information from British and neutral sources to form some idea of the verdict of the historian on one of the most splendid incidents in our annals. The more carefully all the evidence is examined, the more certain it is that the enemy narrowly escaped annihilation. In half an hour the work probably would have been completed. Vice-Admiral von Scheer, the commander-in-chief of the high seas fleet, who showed considerable sailor-like capacity, was most fortunate in the character of the weather and light. Not a British naval officer who was present during the engagement but is convinced that the battle of Jutland was within an ace, so to speak of realizing Nelson's ambition—"no victory, but annihilation."

Tom Flannigan's Visit to the Post Office.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—I suppose that's what I must call ye—but if Mary, my wife, when I call anyone else a "dear," barrin' her own sweet self, there'd be "wigs on the green." I was very much taken up with a letter that "come one" in yesterday's Telegram signed Timothy Flannigan. There wasn't one word but was true, since myself had a "like experience" last night. Mary, see I put on your bonnet and that coat I bought ye at the Royal Stores, and be the same token, "for one" that I mean the "bull-e-tin," I think that's what they call it, on which the war news was printed. There was a "bull of a feller" with his back lying against the wall, right fornic' the bit. I mean the "bull-e-tin" and the dickens a bit if he'd move. Mary said that he must be glued there. I noticed a gang of fellows knocking' for out of their defenses and you'd want a telescope to see them. Some more were squirting' tobacco juice 'like squids, while three or four more were criticizing the last great drive in France, so I sed to Mary, an she agreed with me that it was a pretty tough corner of the globe and that it was no place for her, nor her "daycent" husband.

Simply Splendid.

Within the past few months a new line of rubber boots has been introduced. The Buddy Boot is the name. The Buddy Boot is extremely soft and pliable; it can be rolled or twisted into almost any shape, and when released will immediately spring into its former shape, without leaving any cracks or marks. Capt. John Matthews, the well known banking manager of Grant Bank, says:—"The Buddy Boot gives better satisfaction than any rubber boot I have worn in my twenty-one years' experience."

THE BUDDY BOOT IS THE BEST BOOT FOR FISHERMEN.

Sub's Return Cargo

Of Rubber and Nickel is at Her Pier and She May Start Any Night. New York, July 13.—Every pound of the Deutschland's return cargo of rubber and nickel is already stowed at her pier. The nickel is in small boxes, which can be stored readily in space available for it. The great quantity of rubber has been cut in odd shapes, which are reported to be so arranged that they can be used to fill practically every odd nook and corner aboard the Deutschland. Maritime men here assert, therefore, that there can be no real reason for delaying the departure of the submarine, and that they would not be surprised to hear her start boldly down the bay any night. Nothing has been learned or given out regarding the nickel and rubber for the Deutschland, but from fragmentary stories in the past several days, it was originally sent from New York to different points and later assembled at Baltimore.

IRISH TROUBLE REVIVING.
LONDON, To-day. Premier Asquith announced to-day that the new Irish Bill will be introduced in Parliament before the adjournment for the autumn recess. He repeated that the whole Irish question will be submitted to an Imperial Conference after the war. It is understood the Bill will not be presented until next week. Meantime the delay is allowing opposition to crystallize, which threatens trouble and indicates that the measure is to have anything but a smooth passage. An important meeting of the new party representing Lansdowne's views of Lloyd George was held in the Commons to-day. Seventy-six members of the Lords and ninety-eight members of the Commons were present. It is said the party is daily growing larger, and resolutions were carried by acclamation declaring that the party views with apprehension the attempt to establish an Irish Parliament executive so soon after a rebellion and during the war; and welcomes Lord Lansdowne's assurance that the Government will take necessary steps to suppress treason and sedition in Ireland and to uphold the supremacy of the law.

HUNGARY LOOKING FOR PEACE.
LONDON, To-day. Count Michael Károlyi resigned from the Presidency of the Hungarian Independent Party, according to a Budapest despatch to the Morning Post and will form a new party, which will demand immediate peace between enemies with or without the consent of Germany and Austria. Count Károlyi's peace party, the despatch adds, will start with a membership of seventy members of the Hungarian Parliament.

A SIGNIFICANT APPEAL.

LONDON, To-day. The German general staff issued an appeal to the people of Germany for confidence in the conduct of the war according to a Rotterdam despatch to the Daily News. Never has the world experienced anything so stupendous as the present battles, says the appeal; never has an army braved what ours has braved. The appeal adds, the enemy are sending out villages and woods and thousands of prisoners, reports that are no longer couched in the language of soldiers, but are a fatiguing hyphen of victory that mock truth in the effort to undermine German confidence.

A DESIRABLE EXTENSION.

LONDON, To-day. The British Government will publish a list of from 70 to 80 business firms and individuals domiciled in the United States with which residents of the United States are forbidden to trade. This will be the first time any American firms have been placed on the statutory list which is better known as "the trading with the enemy" black list. All other countries have been represented on the list for some time.

FIGHTING ON THE SOMME.
PARIS, To-day. The Germans made an attack last night on the French line south of the Somme, and gained ground in the vicinity of Baches, the War Office announced to-day. The German attacks were delivered against the French position from Baches to Lamaisonette. Several attempts to take Lamaisonette failed with heavy loss to the Germans, but groups of attacking forces are spread along the canal on the east side of Baches, where fighting continues. A German raid on Hill 304 on the Verdun front west of the Meuse was broken up by French infantry fire. East of the river there was activity about Bellefleur and Chenois.

CHASED BY SUBMARINE.

NEW YORK, To-day. Members of the oil tank steamer Leoco, sailing under the British flag from Gibraltar, declared the vessel was chased several miles by a submarine which fired 50 shots at her, two shells striking, one tearing a hole in the starboard side just below the bridge, the other damaging the foremast. She exhibits a canvas patch on her starboard side well above the water line, about ten feet long and five feet wide.

Trouble at Shipping Office.

Matters became hot in and around the Shipping Office last evening when the crew of the s.s. Kite went to sign on. The firemen refused to sign articles at the same rate of pay as on an ordinary voyage, claiming that they wanted $5 per month extra to go to Baffin's Land, the same as is given by other ship owners on such passages, owing to the dangers that a vessel and crew are liable to while in the far north. Mr. Prowse, the owner of the Kite, stoutly refused to entertain the request of the stokers and in stiff terms told both firemen and engineers not to go aboard his ship, although the engineers had no grievance with him at all. He is now looking for men to go for wages named by him, but the difficulty to get them seems to be insurmountable.

Train Notes.

The express which left here Sunday, reached Port aux Basques at 12.30 a.m. to-day. The mail and freight left Port aux Basques at 9.15 a.m. to-day. The local from Carbonear reached the city on time to-day. The Proprietary train, reached the city at 9.30 a.m. to-day.

Germany's impossible Peace.

(Toronto "Globe.") Prince von Buelow is quite the most potent voice among the statesmen and near-statesmen in Germany to-day. He sees below the surface, and is not deceived by the fair seeming of things. For this reason his deliberate judgment on the terms of peace, as Germany must look at them and must insist on them, or confess her own defeat and loss, is of interest to all who have to do with the war.

In a new book, "German Policies," just published in Berlin, the former German Chancellor lays it down with the utmost absoluteness of conviction that Germany will not and dare not consent to peace on the basis of pre-war national boundaries. He sees quite plainly that because of the war, its facts and its purposes, Germany will have to face "the bitter heresies of France, England and Russia," and he adds:

"We would not be able to say with a good conscience that our general situation has been bettered by the war unless the strengthening of our political, economic, and military power considerably outweighs the emitties engendered by the conflict. . . . We must gain real securities and guarantees, both as a recompense for the unheard-of trials and sufferings we have endured, and as a security for the future."

But it is much too late for the day either the war lords or the statesmen of Germany to take stock of the situation created by the war, as though the shaping of it will in the end be under their control. Together they willed this war. Long before the incident happened that supplied the excuse for Austria's assault on Serbia, the leaders of German opinion resolved on a world war, and on the details of their programme for it.

So confident were they that their program would "do the trick" that Germany's spokesmen were not careful to conceal the programme itself or its further objective. General von Bernhardi was quite as outspoken about Germany's project for World Power in his speeches in San Francisco and Los Angeles in 1913 as others of the German General Staff were in Berlin. As Harden told his fellow-countrymen months ago: "We willed this war." Public Right—they meant "Will to Power." Now they must insist, as Prince von Buelow does, that their programme shall not miss its purpose.

French Cavalry Sever Peronne-Chaulines Railway

First Phase of the Offensive is Now Ended. Paris, July 5.—A feature of the recent fighting on the Somme has been the use of cavalry, for the first time over twenty months. Several detachments were used in short charges during the advance over the ground after the Germans had lost the second line. But the principal work of the cavalry, which was successfully carried out, was the cutting of the railway communications between Peronne and Chaulines.

To-day's communique show that the first phase of the new offensive is over and, while the infantry activity is still intense, the principal business of the allied armies for the next few days is again to pave the way with heavy guns for another dash. At present the Allies, or at least the French, have gone through practically the first German zone of successive trench lines. That the heavy guns have followed quickly is shown by the way the serious German attempts at counter-attacks have all been checked. The organization that has accomplished this is more remarkable in the face of territorial gains, very unusual at this time of the year, which continued unceasingly the last few days. The Somme Valley is swampy, even in the best of weather, so now the advance in places is through a regular bog.

All reports from the wounded to Paris, indicate that the high morale of the army was never shown to better advantage. I learned from a wounded officer that the famous Twentieth Corps, now called the Garde Francaise, as a result of their saving the situation at Verdun, distinguished itself on the opening day by one division alone capturing over sixty guns. They were subsequently ordered to be relieved, but the men all refused to go to the rear. The officers then protested, so the Twentieth is still the vanguard of the attack.

The situation at Verdun is now comparatively quiet, despite the activity at Thiaumont. It is best illustrated by the fact that few permissionnaires from the sector are now in Paris. Verdun has lost its significance for Paris. Whether it falls or not, it has served the purpose. In the French mind its successful defense was only the prelude for what is happening now elsewhere.

Hardest-Worked M. P.

What It Means to be an Under-Secretary. "I would not have Tennant's job for two hundred pounds a week," a certain M. P. said, recently, alluding to the Under-Secretary for War. The remark will be echoed by those who understand the tremendous labours and responsibilities "H. J." as he is termed in official circles, has had to shoulder since the war began.

Owing to the fact that Lord Kitchener was a peer and could not answer questions in the Commons, Mr. Tennant has been the target of the heavy bombardment directed by the members who "wanted to know," and so well has he acquitted himself that his elevation to the peerage seems practically certain. Mr. Tennant is a brother-in-law of the Prime Minister, and acted as his private secretary when Mr. Asquith was Secretary for Home Affairs. This was from 1892 to 1896. One of Mr. Tennant's ancestors was John Tennant, the close friend of the father of Robert Burns, and one of the witnesses to the poet's baptism. Of one of John Tennant's sons he wrote, "I'm tauld he offers very fairly." This offer was more than borne out, for this son was no other than Charles Tennant of St. Rollox, one of the founders of the great chemical trade of Glasgow, and great-grandfather of the Under-Secretary for War.

After acting as Mr. Asquith's secretary Mr. Tennant sat on various important committees. He became Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade in 1899 and Financial Secretary to the War Office two years later. Mr. Tennant has represented Berwickshire in Parliament since 1894. An advanced social reformer, Mr. Tennant has studied trade and labour questions with great diligence, and was highly praised for his work as Secretary of the Departmental Committee of the Home Office which some years ago inquired into the question of lead-poisoning.

Mr. Tennant's interest in industrial matters is shared by his wife, who, as Miss Margaret Abraham, was H. M. Superintending Inspector of Factories. Mr. Tennant is fifty-one years of age, and has a passion for such recreations as shooting, fishing, golf, and tennis.

Third Shark Victim

While Bathing in New Jersey Waters. Mattawan, N.J., July 12.—Lester Stillwell, 12 years of age, was killed by a man-eating shark while bathing in an arm of Raritan Bay, near here, this afternoon. Stanley Fisher, 24 years of age, who went to his aid, was so badly injured in a desperate struggle with the nine-foot monster, that he died while being removed to hospital. Joseph Dunn, 12 years of age, who was bathing some distance away in the same inlet, was attacked by a shark and one of his legs was so badly lacerated it probably will have to be amputated. Charles E. Van Sant, of Philadelphia, was killed by a shark off Beach Haven, N.J., July 2. Charles Bruder, of Spring Lake, N.J., was attacked, and both his legs were taken off by a shark on July 6. His white men who went to his rescue were carrying him ashore. Motor boat patrols, carrying armed men, have been established at various points to hunt the man-eaters.

Germany's Latest Crime.

(From the Montreal Herald.) Just as the Germans have stopped at nothing to secure victory, so now they are stopping at nothing to prevent defeat. Their latest crime, that of forcing Belgians into the German army to fight in the unrighteous cause which has soaked their country in innocent blood, is particularly shocking and inhuman. The protest of the Belgian Government shows that it is in direct violation of the explicit conditions laid down in international law. But it is worse than this. It is a spiritual outrage of the gravest kind. When the Germans overran Belgium they requisitioned all the food in the country, using much of it for the army and sending the remainder to Germany. The inhabitants were left to starve, and would have starved had they not been supported by the world's charity. Then, at the point of the bayonet, the Germans made those thus supported work for them—many in munition factories to aid Germany in its satanic work. Now Belgians are actually being forced into the German Army. Surely this is the last insult to supreme law that Germany can inflict upon its unhappy victim! Its only effect can be to nerve to greater efforts of those who are fighting to rid Europe of the malignant power that plagues to rule it. What a world it would be if Germany ever were to assume a position of supremacy!

DOING WELL.—Private Frank Gordon Best, No. 42 of the First Nid. Regiment, who was officially reported wounded last week, sent a wire from London this morning stating that his wounds were not serious, and that he is doing well. Frank went through the Gallipoli campaign and was invalided for a while but recovered in time to take part in the famous fight of the Nid. Regiment in France.

A shoe for well-dressed men. Coats enough to insure a perfect shoe, but is as low as a shoe of this character can be sold. Seen beside a cheaper shoe, the difference is unmistakable. Men who want appearance, satisfying wear, and solid comfort, should wear the "Invictus Shoe."

Two Leading LEATHERWARE Lines

In Shoes; Low Prices and Cheapness

Are as far apart as the Poles. Cheapness in Shoes does not depend upon their price, but upon the service they give. To maintain the Low Price of cheap shoes it is necessary to use even more inferior leather than usual. That can only result in one thing—less service—less wear—therefore less economy. No substitution of inferior stock has been made in either of our two Leading Lines for Men and Women.

Last night the soldiers and sailors in the city were given a concert in their club rooms at the Seaman's Institute. The hall was filled to overflowing. God Save The King.

His Excellency addressed the troops as follows:—
I can speak a few words only in this crowded hour and these few words are chiefly to those who will shortly embark to join the Regiment on active service.
I hardly know how to address you. In this room we are fellow club members bound by ties of comradeship; outside we are members of the same glorious Regiment in Newfoundland; and we represent all that is bravest and best among those who have rallied to the call of duty when our Flag and our Nation are in peril.
In Europe you will carry our flag in your hands. I need not ask you to hold that Honour as your sacred possession, as your standard of conduct in camp and as you battle flag in the presence of the enemy. As soldiers you will carry the honor of advice to all soldiers of the King by that peerless Knight,
"In battle close, tighter than steel, in camp a counsel sage."
That organizer of victory, Earl St. Germain of Khartoum, the greatest hero of you all.
You do not need words to tell you to bear yourselves in battle as your forefathers have done. You will do because, as Newfoundlanders, you cannot fail in courage and courage. Nor do you need words to remind you that as Newfoundlanders

The Eternal Question

By RUTH CAMERON.

Is there anything the employer of labor hates more than the eternal question? A dentist told me the other day that he should have to get rid of his assistant. She seemed a sweet, willing little thing and I asked him why.
"Because she asks so many questions," he said. "It seems as if I should go mad if I had to answer another question."
The Eternal Question is the Thoughtless Question.
"The other day," he went on, "I asked her to do an errand on B Street (naming one of the best known streets in the city). She said, 'What B Street? The one over back?' Now there is another B Street in the city and she must know it. What under the sun should make her ask me that question?"
What indeed, but just habit?
The eternal question is always the thoughtless question.
Easier to Ask Questions Than to Think
It is easier to ask questions than to think, and so the person who follows the line of least resistance gets into the habit of responding to every request of his employer by a string of questions. Some relate to things he needs to know but might have thought out if he had tried. Others, like the one the dentist quoted, are absolutely without any excuse.
Of course you remember the employer Elbert Hubbard tells about in his "Message to Garcia," who asked his clerk to look up Correggio in the encyclopaedia.

"The clerk," says Hubbard, "will look at you out of his fishy eyes and ask one or more of the following questions:
"Who was he?"
"Which encyclopaedia?"
"Where is the encyclopaedia?"
"Was I hired for that?"
"Is he dead?"
"Is there any hurry?"
"Shall I bring you the book and let you look it up yourself?"
"What do you want to know for?"
How Can an Employer Concentrate Under the Eternal Question?
I know just how that employer feels. I once had a guest who tried to help me with my work. Every step she took was accompanied by a question until I, who was trying to concentrate on what I was doing, felt as if my brain were being torn into shreds. Yes, I know it is not easy to go into another person's home and find your way about, but I have seen plenty of women who could do it with one-quarter the questions this girl asked.
People who consume their own smoke and people who answer their own questions by applying their brains to the matter are always needed.
The employer can forgive an occasional mistake better than he can forgive the eternal question.
I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MR. HUBBARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was not to work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

Don Opto Tablets for eye troubles seem to have very distinct healing, soothing and astringent properties, and most people who have used them speak of them in the highest terms. They may be used with hope of good results in the treatment of weak, inflamed, watery, itchy, sore, irritated eyes and eyelids, as well as acute and chronic conjunctivitis, congestion of the eye either recent or of long standing, caused by colds, overwork, or exposure to wind, sun and dust encountered in automobilizing, cycling, travel, etc. Price $1 a pkg., containing the complete outfit.

Your Boys and Girls.

Who of us do not remember the childish fear that often came when our mothers closed the door or turned off the light with her good-night kiss? The fear of the dark room is something almost sure to be found in every child. There may be strange animals in the dark, or burglars, or supernatural beings! Or there may merely be a haunting terror of something unknown. Such fears must never be laughed at. The best plan is to make home seem a very safe place, where Father and Mother are always near. Later on will come the time when the child may be taught physical and mental bravery.
Perhaps this way of helping timid children to sleep in a strange bed may help. Make a rag baby of unbleached muslin, fully large as a real baby, stuff it with cotton batting, make eyes, nose and mouth with ink. Make a night gown for it. It's unbreakable and good if they happen to fall upon it and lots of comfort. Such a rag baby can be used five years. It will help in teaching children to sleep alone in the room; in time the baby is forgotten altogether.

East End Emporium.

As will be seen by advertisement elsewhere in our columns, the above new concern has just opened for business on Duckworth Street, under the management of Miss C. Fitzgibbon and Mrs. C. Summers. The new store is bright and attractive and carries a large and carefully selected stock. It would be difficult to enumerate the various kinds of articles carried; suffice it to say that full lines fresh from the abodes of fashion are shown. The proprietresses have had wide experience in the local millinery and ladies' supply business and this fact, combined with an untrifling desire to please is ample assurance that the most fastidious lady or child customer can not fail to find something to suit her at the new store. We presage for the management a full measure of success in their new venture and trust they will receive a liberal share of public patronage which their enterprise merits.

Britain's Way.

That battle of Agincourt strikes me as one of the most perfect things in its sort, we anywhere have of Shakespeare's. The description of the two hosts; the worn-out, fabled English; the dread hour, big with destiny, when the battle shall begin; and then that deathless valor: "Ye good yeomen, whose limbs were made in England!" There is a noble Patriotism in it—far other than the "indifference" you sometimes hear ascribed to Shakespeare. A true English heart breathes calm and strong through the whole business; not boisterous, prostrative; all the better for that. There is a sound in it like the ring of steel. This man, too, had a right stroke in him, had it come to that—Carlyle, "Heroes and Hero Worship."

A Word about Carpet Squares!

We have just opened the finest display of Wilton, Axminster and Tapestry Carpet Squares that have ever been seen in the Island.

These Carpet Squares are remarkable for their exquisite colors and perfect design. Beautiful old Blues and deep Brown tones are blended in a fine Wilton that is very pleasing and restful to the eye. Another—a Tapestry in quaint Grey Tints has a lovely Pompadour border of roses in subdued colors. Yet another in lovely Old Rose and Reseda.

His Excellency addressed the troops as follows:—

"In battle close a fighter grim,

That organizer of victory, Earl Kitchener of Khartoum, the greatest hero of you all.
You do not need words to exhort you to bear yourselves in battle, as your forefathers have done. That you will do because, as Newfoundlanders, you cannot fail in consistency and courage. Nor do you need words to remind you that as Newfoundland-ers and Christians you will put to shame our brutal foes and bear yourselves with moderation in the fast approaching hour of victory.

Sir Douglas Haig has said "Newfoundland may well feel proud of her sons." These are his words on behalf of "the whole of our Armies in France." As our Sailors have done amid the perils of the Seas, as our Regiment has borne itself at Gallipoli and in France, bear yourselves as warriors "surpassed by none."

Before closing Major Montgomerie on behalf of the Regiment thanked the ladies of the city for providing the Club Rooms and for the enjoyable entertainment given them. The C. L. B. Band played several selections, following which refreshments were served by Mrs. Jones, Mrs. King, Misses Clouston, Rendell, Johnson and Jones.

S.S. Kite for far North

The S. S. Kite, Capt. Parsons, is now provisioned and outfitted for a cruise to the far north. The crew signed on yesterday and she will likely get away from here sometime to-morrow, proceeding direct to Baffin's Land where she will land a party who will go along from St. John's. The Kite will not remain long in the frozen regions, this trip and immediately on her return will go to New York where, it is understood, she will be put in readiness by an American party for an exploration voyage north.

AT THE CRESCENT.

To-day the Crescent Picture Palace presents "Divorçons" the wittiest of all Sardinian brilliant comedies produced in four reels by the Biograph Company featuring Mary Malatesta, Dell Henderson and Charles H. To-morrow "The Reaping," a great three reel feature.

Advice—Often Worth Heeding

What has he left of the name and fame that came to him from the good old game? The game his soul had learned to love? A faded dream—and a worn-out glove.

Owing to the strain on Cooney, of the Lions, which would be necessitated if he were to pitch to-morrow afternoon and again to-morrow night, the Mt. Cashel game between the Lions and Cubs called for to-morrow night at 6 o'clock, has been deferred until Thursday night at 8.30. Will fans and players please take note?

THE COMING UMPIRE.

Dad and Ma were talking one night of what we'd be, in eight kids all snug in bed, and all asleep but me. Said Dad, "John wants to doctor equine or human ills; Maude to join the movies and specialize in 'drills; Marmaduke's to study law; Hannah-Ann will teach; Laura Jane is sure to write, and Perigal to preach. Won't you help the orphans? God meant little Molly to reign in someone's home; but Sam (that's me) is the problem, with that Gibraltar home. Nature never wined him up to anything at all; He couldn't clerk or preach or teach, or play a game of ball."

"O, bosh!" said Ma, "Dame Nature's no fool is Sam is, Jim, for, can't you see, she means to make an umpire out of him."
Some answers to correspondents have been held over until Saturday owing to pressure of space.

To-night's game between the B. I. S. and Wanderers in aid of Mount Cashel, will begin promptly at 6.30. King will be on the mound for the blue-and-whites while Carew will present his offerings on behalf of the Irishmen. Sergt. McHenry and Pte. Callahan will likely play with the latter English Red Fund. We will publish the admission is only 5 cents.

"The Coacher"—
"Get in the game—Head up, old scout! The Coacher's call swings to a shout; So, at Life's base the voice of fame—"Get in the game—Get in the game."

To-morrow afternoon the regular League fixture between the Red Lions and B. I. S. will be played in aid of the English Red Fund. We will publish the time-ups to-morrow.

Memorial Service at Kenville For Lieut. Frederick C. Mellor, Who Was Killed in Action.

Kenville, July 15.—A memorial service for the late Lieut. Frederick Courtney Mellor was held this afternoon in St. James' Church, of which Rev. T. C. Mellor, the father of the honored hero, is rector. The hymn "Hark, hark, my soul," was sung by the choir and the opening portion of the service for the dead was read by Chaplain Tupper.

Rural Dean Dixon, of Wolfville, spoke briefly on the subject of "why this waste of our manhood" and in a few words on the situation and needs of this so-called "waste" spoke of the heroes, our own men, who gladly gave their lives and counted it not as waste. In closing the Rural Dean paid not only tribute to Lieut. Mellor, but to all those "gallant gentlemen" who had laid down their lives. They had given their lives for King and Country—could any man die in a better cause.

Rev. J. D. Hull, the rector of St. John's Church, Church Street, gave a brief personal sketch of Lieut. Mellor's life, speaking with the knowledge of an intimate personal acquaintance of the man, whose highest ambition was to serve his King and Country, but who had now passed into the presence of the King of Kings. At the conclusion of the service the band of the 85th Highland Battalion played, and a closing hymn, "For all the Saluts" was sung. A detachment of the 85th, a company of the 193rd Battalion, and many of the officers from Aldershot, including Lt. Colonel A. H. Borden, were present.

Much sympathy is expressed for Rev. and Mrs. Mellor in their sad bereavement. Their remaining son, Sergeant W. M. Mellor, is serving with his regiment in France.
