The chairman said that the probable boundaries of the diocese would be from the western line of Lower Canada to the River Trent, as one—from the Trent to Grand River, a second—and from Grand River to the St. Clair, a third. The great northern regions forming a fourth. Nothing could be more complimentary to the lord bishop than the chairman's concluding remarks. He alluded forcibly to his letter of the 27th January, and also to one of the 17th February. Those letters, he said, showed the truly christian spirit of an indefatigable and aged prelate. Feeling that his labors could not extend over many more years, he evinced a sincere desire to have the church placed on a secure and permanent basis, so that, in after years, she might extend and flourish, and meet the spiritual requirements of our people throughout the vast bounds of this Province.

The Hon. Geo. J Goodhue moved the first resolution, as follows:—

"That the pastoral letter of the lord bishop of Toronto, now read, is entitled to the most respectful and serious attention of all churchmen within the diocese, not only as emanating from one whose untiring zeal to promote the interests of the church has entitled him to the confidence of all the members of our communion, but also because we regard the project therein proposed as one of paramount importance, and which, if carried out, will confer the most lasting benefits on the church in this country.

Mr. Goodhue said that he rose with pleasure to move the resolution, and although men might differ, as to the absolute necessity of the number of dioceses proposed, all, he thought, would admit that a division was required. The bishop's long experience fitted him eminently to form a correct opinion as to what would best meet the requirements of the church, and he, Mr. G., would therefore submit to his superior judgment in the matter. Every churchman feels that no one man can attend to the wants of a Province so extensive as this. And while he felt bound to contribute to the local wants of the church, and thought that the time was not distant when the little that we now receive from the clergy reserves might be taken away, he was not on that account deterred from aiding the proposition before the meeting on the contrary, he would, while not diminishing his yearly contributions, for church purposes, aid the fund now sought to be raised, and felt that, by proper activity and perseverance, it could be done without being oppressive to any. In ten years from this day, we may see half a million of churchmen west of the Grand River; and when he recollected that, in 1823, there were but two clergymen to officiate in that wide field, where now there is upwards of thirty, and still a great many stations are unsupplied.—He thought that there was sufficient evidence that the principles of the Church of England were cherished by the people. In the United States, episcopacy flourishes; there we find the number of bishoprics increasing without state endowments and it would be so here—only make the people feel that the services of the church will be extended to every township. Some think that episcopacy cannot flourish on this continent: but republican America indignantly refutes the assertion.

Freeman Talbot, Esq., seconded the resolution.

L. Lawrason, Esq., moved the second resolution as follows:—

"That the following gentlemen do form a committee of general management, for the purpose set forth in the bishop's pastoral:—All the clergymen having pastoral charges in the diocese, the Hon. G. J. Goodhue, L. Lawrason, W. W. Street, L. Ritout, H. Barwick, James Hamilton, J. B. Askin, Chas. Monsarrats, John Wilson, T. C. Dixon, Crowell Wilmot, James Shanly, W. Horton, F. Talbot, W. Elliott, E. Adams, H. C. R. Becher, L. Burwell, W. Wallace, Dr. H. Going, F. Going, Dr. Dewson, John Geary, Thos. Woodbridge, E Ermatinger, together with all the lay delegates of the late convention. That —— be secretary and L. Lawrason, treasuter."

[An addition to the resolution was here argued upon, although not submitted in writing, that the committe should appoint the secretary and treasurer at the first meeting.]

Mr. Lawrason said that the resolution was not one that called for a speech, and it was merely naming a committee, one of the forms necessary to go through on all such occasions. Still, he would remark that in his estimation, the sum sought to be raised was not sufficiently great to deter the churchman of what may be the western diocese. In his memory, the clergy had increased from one to 53, and the churches from 1 to 50; most of these churches had been erected when the people were much poorer than they are now and he thought that a sum equal to that expended on the 50 churches, would be sufficient for the endowment in this pro

COMPOUND
CAMOMILE FLOWERS.
Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.
London C. W. June 18th 1852.
Messrs. Rexford & Co.
Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavour, in which lies the curative medicinal qualities, appears to be largely infused and well preserved; and as this vegetable tonic is highly beneficial in those forms of Dyspepsia originating in debility or want of tone of the digestive organs (the form most frequently met with on the continent), your cordial will found a ready form in medicine accessible to our Pharmacopœia.
From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending the preparation of this valuable Tonic to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial,
I am, Gentlemen Yours &c.,

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or muscles. Gout. Tic Douloureux, Nervous and Sick Headache, Pain in the Side, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Stiffness of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Cholic, Cramp, Burns and Scalds, &c.
It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, in fact the vitality of life and that disease in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient, we can successfully combat disease and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.
There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.
There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them much good. I have first used it in a case of Scarlet Fever and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

DEAR SIR.—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—
For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure except by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price.
I was about to employ one, when you visited this place and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instruction how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

GUN MAKER,
LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.
In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, carrying in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, Jaundice, and all bilious diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

AXES! AXES!!
THE well known superiority of the GENUINE HARTFORD COLLIN'S AXES have induced some manufacturers to stamp their axes H. Collins, and such axes are repeatedly sold as my manufacture. The genuine Collin's Axes which have been made under my direction for more than twenty-five years, and which have sustained such an unrivalled reputation, are invariably stamped Collins & Co., Hartford. They are to be found at one principle city of New York, and at the principal Hardware stores in the large cities.

Poetry.

The Wedding Bell.

For where the strong protects the Tender,
Where Might and Mildness join they render
A sweet result, content ensuring;
Let those then prove who make election,
That heart meets heart in blent affection,
Else Bliss is brief, and Grief enduring!

In the bride's rich ringlets brightly
Shines the flowry coronal
As the Bard, now pealing lightly,
Bids her to the festal hall.
Fairest scene of Man's elysian
World! thou closest life's short May:
With the zone and veil the Vision
Melts in mist and fades, for aye!
The rapture has fled,
Still the love has not perished;
The blossom is dead,
But the fruit must be cherished.
The husband must out,
He must mix in the roar,
In the struggle and strife
And the clangor of life,
Must join in its jangle,
Must wrestle and wrangle,
O'er-reaching, outrunning,
By force and by cunning,
That Fortune, propitious,
May smile on his wishes.
Then riches flow to his uttermost wishes,
His warehouse glitters with all that is precious:
The storehouse, the mansion, soon calls for expansion,
And busied within is
The orderly matron,
The little ones' mother,
Who is everywhere seen
As she rules like a queen,
The instructress of maidens
And cuther of boys;
And seldom she lingers
In plying her fingers,
But doubles the gains
By her prudence and pains,
And winds round the bobbin, the threads at her leisure,
And fills odoriferous coffers with treasure,
And storeth her shining receptacles full
Of snowy-white linnen and pale-colored wool,
And blends with the Useful the Brilliant and Pleasing,
And toils without ceasing.

And the father counts his possessions now
As he paces his house's commanding terrace,
And he looks around with a satisfied brow
On his pillar-like trees in rows-mounding,
And his barns and rooms that are filling amain,
And his granaries under their burden bending,
And his wavy fields of golden grain;
And speaks with exultation,
Fast as the Earth's foundation,
Against all ill secure,
Long shall my house endure!
But ah! with Destiny and Power,
No human paction last an hour,
And Ruin rides a restless courser.

Good! the chasm is guarded well;
Now, my men! commence to found;
Yet, before ye run the BELL,
Breathe a prayer to Heaven around.
Wrench the stopple-cork!
God protect our work!
Smoking to the bow it flies,
While the flames around it rise!

Mishaps of a Short-Sighted Man; or, Adventures of Bartholomew Buzzard, Esquire.

I'LL put it off no longer. I'll buy a pair of spectacles this very day.
The truth of the matter is, I should have taken that step fifteen years ago. It is just fifteen years since Dick the hostler picked me, for the third or fourth time—I rather think it was the fourth—out of my uncle's horse-pond, which I was never able, by my own unassisted faculties, to discriminate from the surrounding terra firma.
"But Buzzard," said my venerable relative, "you cannot see your nose's length before you. Get yourself a pair of spectacles, boy, or that horse-pond will be the death of you."
Had I taken my uncle's sage advice, I should not now be writing the present lamentable history; but my evil genius ordered it otherwise. The shape my evil genius took upon this occasion was that of my fair cousin Sophy.
"Oh, papa" said my cousin Sophy, "I really don't think spectacles would become Bat of all."
My uncle called her a blockhead; and so she was: but there was a greater blockhead than Sophy, and that was Bat Buzzard for minding her.
Yet so it was: my uncle's good counsel backed by so many cold experiences of the horse-pond, went for nothing. Sophy said that spectacles would not become me; and accordingly as I went with my natural optical apparatus, knocking my pate against lamp-posts, sign-posts and door posts; trying the resistive hardness of my skull, and every modification of matter that came in my way; tasting the duckweed and dirty water in every ditch, quarry-hole, and stranding pool in the county; falling, in short, into as many ridiculous scrapes, and committing as many ludicrous blunders, as would supply the "Comic Annual" with matter of merriment for the next half century to come.
Parliament must pass a bill to restrain the influence of young ladies!
Suppose, Mr. Buzzard, your pretty cousin had hinted that your own pair of visionary organs, such as they are, misbecame you, should you have thought it incumbent on you forthwith to put out your eyes to please her? You recollect the hero in the song—

"There was a man of Thassaly, and he was wondrous wise;
He jumped into a quickset hedge, and scratched out both his eyes."

Perhaps I should; and in truth, S he wooden highlander who stands sentinel at the door of the Cigar Divan.

The repairs of this effigy cost me five guineas; and into the bargain I lost a silk handkerchief, and a gold snuff-box that had been in the Buzzard family since the glorious Revolution of 1688.

Again I determined to buy the spectacles.

I was not very long in the south before my optical mal formation gave rise to another little adventure, which I had better relate while I think of it. I dined one day at the house of a friend in the county Limerick, about ten miles distant from a small town where I had fixed to take up my quarters for the night. It was near eleven when we got up from the dinner-table. I ordered my horse. Major Rifle—that was my friend's name—informed me that there were two roads to my place of destination, one five miles shorter, and every way preferable to the other, which he said lay through a wild country, and was crossed by a rapid mountain stream, not always fordable with safety. I thanked the Major for his advice—looked at my pistols and rode off. At a short distance from the house there was a place where the road diverged in two branches. I was quite sure it was the right the Major had said. On I rode as fast as the state of the roads, which were flooded in consequence of the recent heavy rain, allowed me. There was, however, a full moon over head, which was in my favor. I rode on for about an hour.

Zounds! I had taken the wrong line after all!—there was the very rapid stream, my friend had told me of, running dark and swollen, directly across my path! I stood on the edge, and saw the chill gusts of a November midnight curling its black surface into a hundred eddies: it was not many yards broad, but it was far too broad to be leaped, and the Major had said enough to deter me from an attempt to ford it. There was nothing for it but to stand railing and scolding the whole night on the banks of the torrent, or to ride back, and get into the proper track. I adopted the latter plan; returned to the point where the road diverjected; took the branch to the left; and after a multitude of difficulties, and some hair-breadth escapes, my posey stumbling every moment into some rut, or bog-hole, at about four in the morning—as bleak and inclement a winter morning as ever found a traveller on high way or by-way, I arrived—where?—at the side of a dashing, roaring child of the mountains, as wide as the Liffey at Chapelizod!

There had once been a bridge; but it had long ago been swept away by the impetuosity of the flood; and the county Limerick gentlemen had not rebuilt it; for, in fact, it would have benefited few but the peasantry, and I suppose it would not have contributed in any way to the convenience of a grand-jury-man.

I was obliged, of course, to return to my friend's house, heartily abusing him the whole way, for presuming to direct a traveller through a country, with the localities of which he was obviously totally unacquainted.

I got a couple of hours' rest and joined the Major and his family at breakfast.

The Major was positive—so was I—there was a long and almost quarrelsome altercation.

"So you discovered a river on the Ballycastle road, Mr. Buzzard?—Ha, ha, ha—the north-west passage will be the next thing—ha, ha, ha."

"Ha, ha, ha," echoed Mrs. Rifle.

"Ha, ha, ha," re-echoed the Misses Rifle and Master Rifle.

The servants joined the chorus.

"Laugh," I answered, "as long as you like; I think at this time of my life I know what a river is."

"I'll engage to leap across all the rivers between this and Ballycastle," said the Major.

"So will I, papa," said his son, a child only seven years of age.

"And I too Johnny," said his mother.

I replied again—"I think at this time of my life I know what a river is."

"Well, well, Ba!," said the Major, still laughing heartily, "I'll tell you what we'll do; we'll all make an expedition in search of your river—Maurice tell James we shall want the carriage at half-past eleven."

We'll call it the Buzzard, papa," said Miss Rifle.

"Let us discover it first, love," said the Major.

"You could have the boat, Sir, brought down from the lake upon Tim Ryan's car," said Maurice slily, as he was leaving the room to deliver the message to the coachman.

This sally of Maurice, who was an old soldier, and special favorite of his master and the family, renewed the mirth; and I really began to be shaken in my view of the question. But how could there be a mistake on such a point? It was quite impossible.

The expedition set out—we reached the spot, where, as nearly as I could calculate, I had encountered the watery obstacle to my journey.

The deuce a river was there, true enough, any more than there is across College green.

"We don't want the boat, I think said one.

"The Buzzard is dry," said another.

"You could leap that yourself, mama," said a third.

"What an odd mistake," said a fourth.

"Quite unaccountable," was the general opinion of the whole expedition.

"I have it," suddenly exclaimed Mrs. Rifler

So she had, indeed.

There stood close to the road-side, on the right hand, the gable of an old building, whether a house or a church, it was not easy to say. The moon had projected the shadow of this ruin, in a broad dark mass, directly across the road, and in this simple way the formidable stream that had thwarted my progress the previous night had been formed.

That part of the Ballycastle road, however, goes by the name of the river Buzzard ever since.

Into all these and infinite more absurd scrapes have I been brought through the original sin of listening to Sophy's foolish speech when I was last pulled out of the goose-pond.

"I don't think spectacles would become me," said Sophy. Have I not cause to hate and detest woman-kind? Many a time I inquire with Adam—

O! why did God,
Creator wise that people highest heaven
With spirits masculine, create at last
This novelty on earth, this fair defect
Of nature, and not fill the world at once

Foreign Intelligence.

German Opinions of Russia.

The German press is as unanimous as that England in condemning the unjust aggression of Russia, and its self disregard for peace and order of Europe.

A conservative paper, the Preuss. Westett, the organ of the party of which Bethman Hollaeg is the leader in the Prussian Chamber, vehemently attacks the feudal country party which clamors for an alliance with Russia. The Czar, it is said, did not ask the advice of Prussia before entering in his present difficulties, nor did he consider the injury which his conduct must necessarily entail upon his neighbor. Russia has created a pretext for war with the view of expanding her claims in proportion as the operation of the Divan became more illusive. Russia alone, by invading the Principalities, made the quarrel an European cause. It is, therefore, for Russia alone to stop in her course, and not to involve Prussia in her difficulties; and since she has not had the wisdom to avoid the war, she must be left to find the means of getting out of it.

The Cologne Gazette observed that now France and England have come forward not to pursue selfish or interested views, but to defend European interests, which are those of Germany more than of any other nation, the duty of Austria and Prussia is plain.—These States have no longer an excuse for a passive attitude. Duty and interest alike call them to defend the common cause of violated law and right. According to all appearances, Russia has not succeeded in inducing the courts of Berlin and Vienna to renounce their freedom of action, and the corps of observation which Anstria is now stationing on the Turkish frontier is much more likely to be a bridle on Russia in possible circumstances than a defence against some dozen political refugees. As for Prussia, a single company would suffice to keep its refugees in check, and with an army of 150,000 men it could compel Russia to accept a fair and equitable peace.

Ireland.

The Limerick Reporter gives the following gloomy picture of the state of affairs in that part of the country, consequent upon the high prices of provisions:—

"The state of the poor is lamentable in the extreme. We never remember to have witnessed them undergo more privations. The 'capitalists' who speculate on 'war' have absolutely placed provisions beyond their reach, no matter the amount of employment they may enjoy. The gates of the workhouses, consequently, through the country, present the same afflicting appearance they did during the pressure of the famine in the memorable years '46, '47, and '48. Yesterday 300 applicants were received into Limerick Union Workhouse; and, to judge by the crowds of beggars that fill the streets, it is certain that hundreds more will have to seek a refuge within the workhouse walls before the lapse of another week, unless a favorable change should take on the Eastern question. The laboring classes are not much better off than those who are forced into the poor-house. With the exception of a few establishments, the wages given does not average more than 1s 4d a-day. We believe in one or two cases it amounts to 1s 6d a-day; but the general average is 1s 4d, if not less. This, we pronounce, no remuneration whatever under present circumstances for the laborer, without whom the employer cannot carry on his business; and we have heard of numberless cases in which the wretched laborer works through the day without food sufficient to recruit his strength, in order to supply the cravings of his miserable family!"

☞ A London paper comments as follows on the present position of affairs:—

"The period of forty days allowed by the Porte for the Russian acceptance of the terms adopted by the Turkish Cabinet expired on Thursday, February the 8th, and the Porte and its allies are justified in taking, without further notice, any measures they may now think necessary. The period for the withdrawal of the Russian fleet to their ports must also have already expired. If war is inevitable, it matters not whether the formal declaration of it proceed from Russia or from the Western Powers. It is acknowledged that a mere pacification at this moment, with a prospect that Russia would take some fresh advantage of the Ottoman empire when the other European Powers are less united or otherwise engaged, is not a result the nation has any reason to desire. If the British government are satisfied that the Emperor Nicholas has made enormous preparations for war, apparently with the object of crossing the Danube, and attempting the conquest of Constantinople, there is evidence enough to justify this country in its anticipating the worst, and in taking most energetic steps to prevent it. It is time for all parties to emerge from a state of uncertainty that promises no tangible benefit. Hostilities in Asia and on the Danube have commenced with fresh violence, and the part we are prepared to act should be distinctly made known before some fresh catastrophe excites the compassion and resentment of civilized Europe."

Sandwich Islands.

Advices from Honolulu to the 7th of January has been received at San Francisco.

The small-pox appears to have abated its ravages in the Islands. The total cases reported up to the 1st of January were 6,280, and the deaths 2,424.

A census of the Islands, in the course of being taken, shows a rapid depopulation. It is estimated that the number of inhabitants does not exceed 70,000, a decrease of 10,000 since 1849. The return of births, deaths and marriages in the 1st district, in which is Honolulu, for 1852 and 1853, were:—

	1853.	1852.
Births,	191,	337.
Deaths,	3,759,	906.
Marriages, natives,	458,	3418.
Do. foreigners,	61,

The Hon. David L. Gregg, commissioner of the United States, and his family, also the consul. Mr. Angel, and his family, were received by their Majesties, the King and Queen, at the palace on the morning of the 6th of January.

A grammar of the Hawaiian language is shortly to be published by Judge Andrews.

MANUFACTURE OF INDIGO.—The Polynesian says, that the Eastern side of Maui is being overrun with indigo, which grows large and rapidly, and is used very generally for wood.

River Navigation in Australia.

The following extract from a private letter announces the commencement of a most important commercial enterprise in connection with this colony—the opening of the navigation of the Murray River. The writer is a squatter in the Liewan district, adjoining Edwards River. Under date October 2nd 1853, he says—"I had the pleasure the other day of starting with the first load of wool ever shipped on the Murray River, at a distance 1,400 miles from the sea mouth. The opening of the navigation of this river will be a great benefit to all of us squatters on or near its banks, and will greatly increase the value of our runs, as in a great many instances we shall be able to roll our wool from the wool shed into the barge. The steamer that has commenced running—the Lady Augusta, Captain Cadell—is 100 feet long, and 20 feet beam. She is housed over for passengers and carries no cargo; but tows a tender of 70 tons burden, which will convey 500 bales of wool, and they talk of making the trip from this point and back in three weeks. At present their freight is too high, but they hope to reduce it as labor becomes more plentiful. Farming is now a profitable employment. We are beginning to feel the benefit of the gold discovery in the price of our fat stock and wool, and I intend to realise, if I can, while things are high, as I am sure there must be a turn. I am nearly through my shearing now, but I am very short-handed, and have had a great deal of trouble, chiefly owing to the inconvenience arising from the want of laborers, which is still as scarce as ever. The way I have to humor and coax to get anything done is perfectly disgusting—especially as we are asked to assist in supporting a starving population in Melbourne. At this time I am without a house servant, and have been so for some weeks; nor do I see any immediate prospect of obtaining one."

The Seat of War.

WIDDIN, Jan. 23.—I paid a visit yesterday to the hospitals at Widdin, which contain the greater part of the Turkish wounded. They are three in number. The staff of surgeons is, I am bound to say, composed of men in every way qualified for the satisfactory performance of their duties, and who present an agreeable contrast to their confreres in other regiments of the service. They are almost all Italians, and several have been in the Turkish service many years. The Medecin en Chef is a Turk, but he has received a European education, and carries out all the arrangements admirably. A physician in the Turkish army has no ordinary difficulties to contend with. The mass of the men can boast but a very small amount of culture, and carry with them all the prejudices and superstitions of their native villages. Strange to say, this is true of the rediffs even in a greater degree than the young soldiers who are serving for the first time in their lives. The latter are enlisted at an age when the impressions of childhood are easily effaced, and new ones received under the influence of change of scene and example. Few of the regular troops have much of the religious fanaticism of which you hear so much in England. They all entertain a cordial deadly hatred of Russia, but this is a military tradition in Turkey, and not the offspring of bigotry. They hate the Russians as the enemies of their nation, but rarely as giaours; and as they are the most obedient troops in the world, they readily submit to the ordinances of their superior, however novel or distasteful. When they are discharged after 5 years' service, they return to their native place, marry, acquire land, and settle down quietly to cultivate it, and are enrolled amongst the redif, or landwher, if I may be allowed to explain the word by its Prussian equivalent, as we have nothing in English which exactly corresponds to it. Then it is that the old Mussulman bigotry and prejudices fasten on them, as moss on a wall.—When these men are re-called into service they naturally feel irritated by the forced separation from their oxen, their fields and their fireside, and take every opportunity of venting their rage upon the enemy against whom they are called on to fight. It is amongst them, therefore, and the bashibuzuks alone that the old Turkish fanaticism is still to be found in the army; but it never interferes with their native politeness and civility to strangers. It nevertheless makes them a little prone to despise the art of physicians, and leave all to fate or to magic.

When a Turkish soldier enters the hospital he gives himself up at once to the surgeon, and undergoes every manipulation and operation without murmur or hesitation; but he often merely a passive agent, and does not exhibit the active anxiety for his recovery that a European soldier would evince in the circumstance. Medical aid is to him more or less of an interference with the will of God.

Having said thus much as to the notions on sanitary subjects entertained by the Turkish soldiers, I must now return to the Widdin hospitals. The beds are raised about a foot above the floor, and for comfort and cleanliness surpass, or at least equal, everything of the kind which I have ever seen in similar institutions in England, and are certainly superior to the accommodation usually provided for wounded soldiers in time of war. The sheets were scrupulously clean, and the thick coverlids of down were better than those usually found in Turkish houses, and in fact the best the country affords. Each patient wore a long warm garment, quite good enough for an Englishman's dressing gown, loose linen drawers, and a white nightcap, all of which were likewise remarkable for their perfect cleanliness. The rooms were not always so lofty as could be desired, but the multiplicity of windows renders ventilation easy, and I was glad to find it was carefully attended to.

The aspect of the men was such as would have astonished any one, who went prepared for the usual scene of horrors presented by an hospital after a sanguinary engagement, in which on the side of the victors alone 1,000 men were put hors de combat. The swarthiness of their complexion prevents them wearing that ghastly hue which overcasts the features of a European, when exhausted by suffering or loss of blood, but independently of this, they exhibit an air of placid resignation, and even of indifference. It was something curious to see these long rows of wide fighting men, whose brawny muscles, and still glistening fiery eyes and wounds, testified their courage and prowess, laid prostrate and feeble as so many children—great oaks blasted by the lightning of war. They generally looked up with an air of vague curiosity as we entered, and some feebly raised themselves and saluted the officer who accompanied us. Our visit was evidently an agreeable episode in long hours of suffering and ennui. As I walked from bed to bed, I did so much regret that they should be ignorant of the full importance of the struggle in which they had been struck down, though I felt fully sensible that no want of political knowledge on their part could render their valor and devotion less praiseworthy. Most of the wounds are in the legs and lower parts of the body, as the Russian soldiers, like our own, droop the musket while putting on the cap, and raise the muzzle to the mark, and of course, as is usually the case in action, often discharge the shot before the piece has reached the necessary elevation. The French always level their pieces breast high, and lower the sight as they take aim, and then fire. Whenever it is not too high, it is consequently deadly in the extreme, as wounds in the upper part of the body are, of course, more dangerous than those in the feet or legs. The Turkish infantry have all been drilled by French instructors, and their system is consequently the same; so that in walking over the field of battle after the engagement, great numbers of the Russian dead were found shot through the head and chest. Certainly, appearances are much in favor of the latter plan, as the wounds received by the Turks were in a great number of cases very slight—so slight, that one third of those who had received injuries at Citate were able to return to their regiments within a week afterwards. In the hospital we visited, there were but very few cases in which no hope was entertained of recovery. One poor fellow who had received a ball in his chest, and for whom nothing could be done beyond assuaging his pain, was sitting up in his bed, supported by pillows, his eyes closed and his face ghastly pale, awaiting his end in silence. I could not help thinking he must have presented a painful and even terrible spectacle to those whose own recovery was at all doubtful, or who fancied it was doubtful.—Sick men never have strong nerves, and the greatest trial an hospital patient has to undergo, must surely be the forced witnessing of the dying agonies of others.

The Latest Proposals of Russia.

The last terms of peace offered by the Czar, and unanimously rejected by the Vienna Conference, was not hitherto precisely known. The following quasi official statement of the Times is important:—The proposals were four in number. First—That a Turkish Plenipotentiary should proceed to the head quarters of the army at St. Petersburgh to open direct negotiation with Russia, but with liberty to refer to the ministers of the Four Powers. Second—That the former treaties between Russia and the Porte should be renewed. Third—That Turkey should enter into an engagement not to give an asylum to political refugees. Fourth—That the Court should recognise by a declaration the Russian protectorate of the Greek Christians. As the Times remarks, these proposals amount to a considerable increase on Menschikoff's demand.

The Coalition.

From the Press.

It is about a year since the attempt was made to form a coalition of men eminent for their Parliamentary talents and their official dexterity, without any reference to the particular principles which they professed or any consideration for the identity of their public views. The twelve months of this perilous empiricism have terminated in strange disaster. The Government may not be responsible for all the calamities of the country. They may not have occasioned the bad harvest, which the Chancellor of the Exchequer persisted in not foreseeing, although warned by Mark Lane and the Bank of England; they may not have caused the strikes, any more than the shipwrecks. But, from out the congregated circumstances of danger and distress which on all sides gather round us, it is not difficult to show that the most important are directly occasioned by the policy of the Government, and that that policy has been the inevitable consequence of the heterogeneous materials of the Ministry.—We are involved in war with one of our most faithful allies; we are menaced with "large" democratic innovations; the securities for the Protestant Church and cause, devised, a quarter of a century ago, by the emancipators of our Roman Catholic fellow-subjects, are to be abrogated. All these positive or possible consequences have been caused, or are to be carried, by the direct conduct of the Coalition Cabinet.

No one can now doubt that, on more than one occasion during the last eight months, the Emperor of Russia has been desirous of re establishing the peace of Europe, if he could do so consistently with his own personal honor, and the reputation of his empire. The Emperor, though pursuing his hereditary policy, has been drawn into a war which he never contemplated, and he has been drawn into that war entirely by the vacillating and deceptive conduct of Lord Aberdeen. The plea of the Coalition Cabinet, that they were deceived as to the intentions of Russia, is not tenable; and to use the discreet epithet of Lord John Russell, when speaking of the despatch of a foreign Minister, it is "fraudulent." The intentions of Russia were more than suspected by the predecessors of the present Ministers, and they were providing against them. The present Ministers had not been a week in office when they received warnings from the British Envoy at St. Petersburg of the concentration of Russian troops on the Southern frontier, and of the unsatisfactory explanations of Count Nesselrode on the subject. Even so early as January, 1853, M. Drouyn de Lhuys sent for Lord Cowley, and told him that "England and France must prepare for the occupation of the Principalities by Russia." What was the conduct of the Coalition under these circumstances? After a Cabinet Council of long duration, held on foreign affairs, one of our Ministers went down to the hustings of Halifax, and delivered a ribald invective against the French Emperor and the French people. Of course, Sir Charles Wood is as capable of forming a judgment on questions of high policy as a clerk in a counting house is on celestial mathematics; but he is a shrewd man, of official experience, who knows how to take the right tone. He was in the habit, as all the Ministers in the country, foreign or domestic, were in the habit, of hearing Lord Aberdeen speak of the French Emperor in terms of insult and distrust, and he followed his leader. Sir George Seymour tells us that, after the accession of Lord Aberdeen to office, there was a striking change in the tone of Count Messelrode.—Then commence a series of hostile expressions whenever France is mentioned, combined with skilful compliments to Lord Aberdeen. "The salutary impulse which Lord Aberdeen has given to the English Councils," is highly praised by the Russian Minister. The refusal of Lord Aberdeen to join in the French demonstration, and send our fleet to Malta, is lauded as a masterpiece of statesman-like discretion. The Emperor of Russia is charmed with the renewed proofs of "the confidence of Lord Aberdeen in his intention." He desires Baron de Brunow personally to express his thanks to our trusty Minister. He absolutely compliments Lord Aberdeen on the "beau rôle" that England is playing, in leaving France "isolee;" the congratulations are received with a grim smile of self-satisfaction, and—the Pruth is passed.

We express our conviction that if Lord Aberdeen had not been Minister of this country the Pruth would never have been passed; but being passed what happens? The antagonistic element now begins to work in the alarmed Coalition, and, having encouraged the invasion of Turkey, we now proceed to go to war with Russia.

It is the same with the democratic innovation. Lord John, exhausted in 1850, began to mutter Parliamentary Reform, meaning that some "large measure," after a due term of exile in Opposition, should restore him to another lease of power. In process of time, with this view, he formally and repeatedly identifies himself with this "progressive" policy and takes his seat as Leader of Opposition, with his sagacity as a statesman staked on the necessity of Parliamentary Reform, and with a five pound franchise as his ticket. Unable, in an evil hour for the Whig party, to resist the seductions of an abnormal section, who had the offer of office without a Parliamentary party, he condescends to become the subordinate of Lord Aberdeen; and to compensate for the degradation, in effect, as it were, an equality of disgrace, no prevails upon the minion of Castlereagh and the "pupil" of Metternich to endorse the democracy of the Perth Manifesto, to become the colleague of Sir William Molesworth, and the boon companion of Mr. Bright.

A general war is to take place when every country wishes for peace, and Parliament is to be reformed when every party is against change. Such are the fruits of Coalition!

But the picture is not yet complete.

Some seven years ago Lord John Russell, in consonance with these principles of religious liberty which he has always advocated, proposed the admission into Parliament of those of her Majesty's subjects who professed the Jewish religion. His measure, though repeatedly sanctioned by majorities of the House of Commons, has been hitherto unsuccessful. In 1851, however, the country being much agitated by Papal aggression, Lord John Russell, still Prime Minister, came down to the House of Commons and announced his belief that there was, and had been for some time, a great conspiracy of the Court and See of Rome against the Protestant religion, and the civil liberty which is its fruit, and he immediately proposed some measures of a defensive character. These, carried by overwhelming majorities, were opposed in an uncompromising spirit by Lord Aberdeen, Sir James Graham and Mr. Gladstone. In 1854, the author of the Ecclesiastical Titles Bill, sitting between the same Mr. Gladstone and Sir James Graham, and a right under the same Lord Aberdeen, under the grievance of effecting the admission of Jews into Parliament by a side wind, proposes, among other oaths, to annul that very one which was devised and offered by Sir Robert Peel as a check "security" for the Protestant Church and liberties of this country. Is there less evidence now of a Papal conspiracy against our Protestant religion and liberties than in 1851? On the contrary, there is scarcely a country in Europe or America which cannot afford subsequent instances of Roman aggression. And are conspiracies of Rome against Protestant faith and freedom things that will flourish and fade in the course of a few years? If Lord John Russell was justified in making his memorable declaration, not only to his country, but to the world, in 1851, he is bound, so long as he remains a public man, to devote all his energies to resist that Ultramontane contrivance which he denounced after so much meditation and with so much energy. But instead of this, with the prime patrons of English Cardinals for his colleagues, he criticises the oath which asserts our fidelity to our Protestant dynasty and our Protestant Church, in the spirit of Mr. Gladstone, and almost in his language, as if the importance of that oath were to be gauged by verbal criticism! And as if its abrogation would not be a triumph in every consistory of Christendom, from St. Peter's at Rome to St. George's-in-the Fields.

In 1851, the Coalition, then justifiably suggested by the Court, could not be effected, because of a repugnance on the part of the Puseyites to Lord John Russell's Protestant principles. In 1854, sitting between these same Puseyites, the same Lord John Russell proposes to omit all Protestant principles from our Parliamentary oaths! But what are foreign war, or domestic revolution, or even Protestant principles, compared with the advantage of being governed by "ALL THE TALENTS?"

The Battle of Citate.

The following particulars of the battle of Citate are from a private letter:—

"On Friday, the 6th of January, the Turkish troops under the order of Ismail Pasha and Ahmed Pasha, marched to attack the Russians, who had fortified themselves in the village of Citate, which is about five hours' march from Kalafat. The force of Ismail Pasha was composed of three regiments of regular cavalry and one regiment of Bashi-Bozouks, with six guns. Ahmed Pasha was stationed at some distance from the village, with some reserve troops, consisting of five battalions, and also six guns.

"The Russian force in the village consisted of three battalions of infantry, commanded by Colonel Bonnegarde, three squadrons of hussars, and two squadrons of Cossacks, with six guns.

"The Turkish troops were, as will be seen, superior in number; but the position of the Russians, who were distributed in all the houses, which is of great extent, and which is surrounded by a double ditch, rendered the attack extremely perilous, as the enemy, well sheltered, were able to direct a murderous fire upon the Turks, without the latter being able to reply to it. In spite of this evident disadvantage, Ismail Pasha, gave orders for the attack, and threw himself into the village under a shower of balls fired from all the windows. At first the Turks received very serious injury; but, although this circumstance somewhat disorganised their attack, their impetuosity was by no means checked. The greater portion of the soldiers, who had never before been exposed to musketry, nevertheless displayed indomitable courage. After a desperate struggle they attacked the houses, and fought hand to hand with sword and bayonet. The massacre was frightful. The Russians in vain begged for quarter. In the fever of the fight the Turks listened to nothing, and slaughtered, without pity, all who fell under their hands. The Mussulmans of the Crimea, incorporated with the Russian army, in vain appealed to their character of Mussulmans. No quarter was given to them. Gutters of blood ran down the streets from this wholesale human slaughter. To add to the horrors of the scene, it may be stated that a number of pigs which had been let loose were seen eating the dead bodies.

"All who could escape the slaughter took refuge in a redoubt at the head of the village, and thence recommenced a murderous fire upon the Turks, who returned it vigorously, but not with out receiving considerable injury from the Russian guns.

"At last the enemy, incapable of any further struggle, decided upon abandoning the entrenchments. A number of Russian troops had already evacuated the place, when a colonel of Turkish cavalry conceived the unfortunate idea of endeavoring to oppose their passage. The Russians finding themselves surrounded, and having no outlet for escape, and no resource but the terrible energy derived from despair, no other alternative but to conquer or die, recommenced the fight with desperation, and in a vigorous sortie they succeeded in capturing two guns. It should be stated that the Turks, upon the first success in the entrenchments committed the incredible fault of not destroying the enemy's guns.

"While the battle was thus going on in the village, 12 battalions of infantry of the Russian army and a squadron of cavalry, with 16 pieces of cannon, were brought to the assistance of the besieged, and attempted to place the Turks between two fires. Information of this was given to Ahmed Pasha, who by a skilful manœuvre, directed his soldiers to the point, in order to prevent the junction with the besieged troops. For this movement he made use of three of his reserved battalion.

"The advantage of the position was now on the side of the Turks, who were on ground which sloped towards the Russians; but the latter were in three times greater number than the Turks. In spite of this inequality, however, the Russians were entirely beaten, and fled in great disorder. They were completely routed, a fact constituting a feat of arms on the part of the Turks which does great honor to them, and establishes another important truth—that the Russians cannot cope with Turkish troops in equal numbers to themselves in open field, and that they can only hope for any success when they have a much more powerful force than their enemy. Their losses in these two simultaneous affairs amount to nearly 4,000 men among whom are included 30 superior officers. The Turks had about 300 killed and 396 wounded, who were sent to the hospital at Widdin, and of whom it is hoped the greater part may be saved.

"According to the opinion of some European officers now at Widdin, this affair is a most glorious one for the Turks, and, if not productive of any material result, will at least prove of great moral advantage to them.

"On the next day the Russians attempted to reoccupy the redoubt from which they had been driven in the night, but the appearance of some Turkish battalions discouraged them from the attempt and they beat a hasty retreat.

"At the time of the attack upon the village the Turkish soldiers, particularly the Bashi-Bozouks, committed the fault of stopping to pillage before being entirely assured of victory, and by this means, in despoiling the dead, obtained some trifling articles, much to the prejudice of the general interest. It is to be regretted that it has not been possible to derive all the advantage from this affair of which it is susceptible, at least so far as regards material benefit; but so far as regards the moral effect, there is nothing to desire.

"Ismail Pasha fought like a lion, and more like a soldier than a general. He had two horses killed under him. He was grazed with two balls—one on the shoulder and another on the wrist. A third ball struck the scabbard of his sword.

"The Turks took from the field of battle, besides a number of horses, a great many muskets, sabres, schakos, epaulets and decorations, and also many wounded. The latter consider themselves for their wounds by the sight of watches or handfuls of gold, gathered in the midst of danger, which they place by their beds of pain as a solace to their sufferings.

"Justice has been done to the bravery of the Russian officers who courageously did their duty, but were badly seconded by the soldiers, whom it was often necessary to prick with the point of the bayonet in order to prevent them from running away. Some of the Wallachian militia were incorporated among the Russian troops, but the former force were in very bad odour with the Russian officers, and were continually subjected to their jeers. A Wallachian captain refused to march against the Turks, and he consummated his refusal by blowing out his brains. This fact may be relied on.

"The Wallachian soldiers are continually deserting to the Turks, whose position is decidedly becoming advantageous. It is believed that they will shortly undertake a new expedition. Besides this, although I do not state the fact as certain, it is said that Omar Pasha is about to proceed to Widdin. At all events the Turks will be received in Wallachia as liberators. The Turkish soldier enjoys a reputation for honesty and good conduct, which is well founded. All the provisions which are necessary are paid for in ready money, and no burden is thrown on the inhabitants. So much cannot be said of the Russians, who are, indeed, charged with all sorts of odious acts. About two or three weeks ago some Cossacks, at a small village near Plewna, cut off the heads of three Wallachians and violated 15 women. Thus, the Russians are strange protectors. When the Turks reached the village, with the view of assisting the unfortunate inhabitants, the culprits had escaped.

Important.

The following information, which, if true, is of the highest importance, and a portion only of which has appeared in the European journals, and that in a partial and disguised form, we have received from a most trustworthy source in London.

1. On the 3rd of February the following declaration on the part of the Prussian Cabinet, was despatched to Paris and London:

"1. The explanations of Count Orloff leaving no doubt whatever as to the uselessness of any further attempt at meditation with the St. Petersburg Cabinet Prussia hereby withdraws her meditation, the opportunity for which can no longer be said to exist.

"2. Count Orloff's proposals of a formal and binding treaty of neutrality, have met with an absolute refusal, communicated to him in a note, Prussia being decided upon observing even without the concurrence of Austria, the most strict neutrality on her part which she is determined to enforce by suitable armaments, as soon as the proper moment shall have arrived.

"3. Whether Prussia shall propose in common with Austria, a general arming of the German Confederation, will depend on the conduct of the maratime powers toward Germany."

II. Louis Napoleon has sent a confidential agent (Mr. Bremier) to Turin, with the following message for the King of Piedmont and Mr. Cavour:—At a given time insurrectionary movements are to break out in Parma, Piacenza, Guastallo, and Modena.—Sardinia must then occupy those countries, from which the now reigning princes are to be expelled. Napoleon is to guarantee to the King the incorporation with Sardinia of the three former principalities, and perhaps of Modena, also, in compensation for which territories the County of Savoy is to be ceded to France. This arrangement England may be said to have as good as agreed to, although reluctantly and with very bad grace. Mr. Brennier then proceeded further on his tour through Italy, till he reached Naples, where his arrival evoked the "most painful sensation." His mission is that of preparing an Italian insurrection, as Napoleon is seriously convinced that he is the man, not only to set Italy on fire, but also to draw the line which the flame shall be forbidden to to cross. He proposes to concentrate the following armies:

1—100,000 men on the frontier of Savoy.

2— 60,000 men at Metz.

3— 80,000 men at Strasburg.

III. Prussia does not object to the assembling of a French army of 100,000 men on the frontier of Savoy, but she considers the concentration of an army at Metz, and of another at Strasburg, to be a direct menace against herself. She already fancies Baden, Hesse, Wurtemburg, ect., in full insurrection and some 100,000 peasants marching from the South of Germany on her own frontiers. She is, therefore, protesting against these two measures, and it this eventuality which is alluded to in section 3 of the Prussian declaration. At all events, Prussia will put her army on a war footing by, and perhaps before, the end of March. She intends calling out a force of 200,000 to 300 000 men, according to circumstances. But if Napoleon insists on concentrating the the two armies at Metz and Strasburg, the Prussian has already resolved to augment its force to 500,000 men. In the Berlin Cabinet, where the King, with the great majority of his Ministers, had chosen to side with Russia, and Manteuffel alone, backed by the Prince of Prussia, carried the declaration of neeutrality, (Manteufel originally proposed a formal alliance with England,) fear and confusion are asserted to reign supreme There exists already a formal resolution of the Cabinet (Cabinets-Beschluss) according to which under certain circumstances, all the more notorious democrats of the monarchy, and above all, of Rhenish Prussia, are to be arrested on the same night, and to be transported to the eastern fortresses, in order to prevent them from favoring the subversive plans of Napoleon, (die Unstutzlane Napoleon's!!) or from getting up popular movements generally. The measure it is proposed shall be executed instantly in the case of Italian disorders breaking out, or if Napoleon concentrates the Metz and Strasburg. This resolution, we are assured, has been taken unanimously, although all the eventualities are not provided for, under which the Cabinet might think fit to put it into execution.—[N. Y. Tribune.

The Present Crisis.

We adopt the last line, "We must, therefore, if we would succeed, imitate our adversaries in the system and the energy of their combinations." We must provide the means of diffusing far and wide, a knowledge of those institutions which they would destroy, and a sense of the blessings of which they would bereave us, facilities should be offered to every individual to disabuse himself of the pestilent errors, respecting both religion and government, with which the Ministerial press at present teem, and by means of which the ministerial party have been enabled to do so much mischief. Rank weeds thrive without culture; wholesome plants require labor and care, hence it is our supineness amounts to a species of passive co-operation with our adversaries, whose cause is sure to prosper when we only neglect our own, they may calculate, to a frightful extent, upon the corruption and depravity of human nature, they may calculate also upon that natural antipathy to good government that belongs to all untutured minds, and upon an indisposition to acquiesce in that regulated subordination of the different classes of society, upon which its progression depends, and which constitutes its beauty, ensures its stability and provides for its improvement; it should be the duty of every person holding constitutional views, to furnish all those who are liable to be led astray, with an antiseptic to the prevailing delusion.—Our numerous constituencies, under the new reform bill, and those whom the new registration bill will enfranchise, should have perpetually spread before them the reasonings and the facts which are best calculated to enlighten their understandings respecting their political duties many circumstances hitherto unforeseen and not calculated upon, have lately transpired. Men who, a short time since, stood at the head of a formidable combination, are now comparatively powerless. Rats desert a falling house, the corroding consumption within produces the hectic spot of no remote dissolution externally, their supporters duped by their hustings promises, have at length found that tooth forms no item of their political creed. The ordinary decorum observed by every previous Ministry, even the most abandoned (the keeping state secrets,) has found no recognition from them. One Minister, an adept in Billingsgate slangs his fellow; another attributes to the Governor General the fault for which he is blamed; the licensed falsehood of the endorsed "private," in official communications, renders them the more acceptable to their pensioned hirelings. Oh! that in the dearth of Literary productions, Thackery would bring out a new edition of his book of Snobs, he could easily give a chapter to "Ministerial Snobs." Malcolm, the Literary Snob, illustrated as Mrs. Malaprop or perhaps as Mrs. Jelleby, attending to the African Mission, while her children and household are going to ruin, so Malcolm lecturing on temperance, or perhaps travelling in hopes of finding a lost character, leaves the mails to take care of themselves; or Dr. Rolph presiding over the commission 'De Lunatico Inquirendo," discovers his Partner to possess from his very extended and long standing in his profession, a capacity beyond Dr. Scott, and a celerity to enable him, beyond conscientiously discharging the medical duties imposed upon the head of the Lunatic Asylum, to attend to (his) Dr. Rolph's own private practice; while the head of the Bureau of Agriculture can indulge his Cacoethes Scribendi, perhaps preparing a speech for the papers, anticipatory of the next debate on the Clergy Reserves; we need not go further into this

Lake Ontario Arrangements for 1854.

The Rochester Union has a statement of the steamboat arrangements on the north side of Lake Ontario for 1854.

"Though the arrangement for running the several lines of steamers on Lake Ontario the coming season are not yet perfected, we have gleaned from different sources some information in relation to the boats that will be interesting to the public. It may be generally known, that some new and elegant steamers of a large class, are now being constructed for these waters.

At Niagara dock, two splendid steamers are now on the stocks for the Great Western Railway Company. They are over 300 feet in length, and will be finished in a superior manner, to excell in size, speed and splendor everything on the lake. They are being constructed under the direction of Capt. John Mason, for several years master of the steamer Rochester. These boats are designed to form a daily line between Hamilton and Oswego, to carry freight and passengers in connection with the Great Western Railroad. They will not probably be out before August.

The Chippewa and Niagara Railroad Company are building a steamer of moderate dimensions, to run between Niagara and Toronto in connection with their road.

Capt. Thomas Dick, of the Peerless, has an iron steamer of large class building on the Clyde, Scotland, where the Peerless was built. The new steamer will probably run in a line with the Peerless between Lewiston and Toronto. The Peerless was brought to this country in parts, and put together at Niagara.—The new steamer will cross the Atlantic on her own bottom. She will be so constructed that a section at the bow will be taken off to enable her to come up the St. Lawrence Canals.

Donald Bethune Esq., the managing proprietor of the British Steamers running between this city and Toronto, is now in Europe, contracting for two swift and elegant iron steamers for the Ontario trade. It is not yet known what precise route they are destined to run. Mr. B. has again been awarded the contract for carrying the Royal Mails between Montreal and Hamilton for five years, and rumor hath it that the new boats will perform said service between Hamilton and Kingston. But we are told on good authority that the boats are intended to form a daily line between this city and Toronto after next season.

Hon. John Hamilton is building a fine steamer for both lake and river trade, of capacity for passing the canals below.

There will be two or three daily lines through the lake direct, and coasting on both shores.—The arrangements, however, have not been made yet. The American Company have eight boats to put on commission, and we hear that the Directors are to meet on the 15th inst. to arrange plans for the season.

The fine upper cabin sea steamer Maple Leaf, owned by Bethune & Co., will take her place on the route between this city, Coburg, Port Hope, Toronto, &c., in a few days—probably by the 1st of March at the farthest. The Princess Royal, now running between this port and Hamilton, will also be put to the same service in the spring, forming a daily line to Toronto—provided she is not sold. The Montreal Assurance Company have made overtures for purchasing her for a tug and relief steamer in the gulf and river St. Lawrence. The Princess, being a staunch sea-going steamer of great power, is admirably adapted to such service. If she is sold, another boat will probably take her place in the line with the Maple Leafe.

Steaming between England and Canada.

From the Toronto Leader.

Our private advices from England describe the cheering prospects of the screw steam navigation company which has a contract with our government to run a line of steamers from Great Britain to the River St. Lawrence. We understand that the enterprise has been taken up by men of first rate commercial position and ample means. Henceforth it will be a powerfull company. It will be in a position to fulfill the spirit of the contract with our government during the present year. The company has given orders to Mr. John Laird of Birkenhead to build a fleet of vessels of from 2 000 to 3,000 tons each. The orders for new vessels have in view the establishing of a weekly line between this province and the mother country, in the course of two years. Now that the powers of the screw are becoming fully tested, and the value of it is every day being more appreciated, we shall be justified in expecting some great results from its use in ocean navigation between this Province and England. The recent voyage of the Himalaya to Malta has done much to show what we may expect from the screw in future. The Himalaya, in that voyage, obtained, under favorable circumstances, 16½ knots an hour; and averaged on the whole voyage nearly 14. Mr. Laird, the builder of the ocean steamers which are to be run to Canada under the existing contract with our government, promises to turn out vessels for this route which shall obtain a speed equal to that of the Himalaya on her recent voyage. In fact these vessels are expected to bring London within nine and a half days of Toronto! £23 sterling will be the fare for a first class passage; to include all charges except for wines and liquors, when those are used.

This intelligence will be welcomed in every part of Canada. It is especially important to the mercantile class and all who have frequent occasion to cross the Atlantic. It is gratifying to know that the company are now possessed of ample means to carry out the enterprise in which they have engaged, and the contract into which they have entered. Hitherto they have not come up to the mark; but there has been a disposition to look with indulgence on their short comings. Some slight murmurs of dissatisfaction, scarcely audible however, have been uttered; and if the company had not put itself in a position to carry out the spirit of its contract during the present season, and by the orders which it has given to Mr. Laird given an earnest of what it will achieve in future, a demand would probably have been made to transfer the bounty to one of the other steam companies which are about to establish communication between the mother country and this province. The preparations now in progress will prevent any difficulty arising from this cause. The truth is, the enterprise was not at first in the hands of men of first rate commercial position or means at all equal to those who have now entered into it. And they had to encounter all the difficulties incident to a new enterprise which was required to go into operation without delay, but which could be properly established only with time and much experimentary operation.

The Collins and the Cunard lines will eventually find in the Canadian Atlantic steamers powerful competitors, both in point of speed and fares. The proprietors of these lines understand this too; and it was some time since announced that the proprietors of the Cunard line would start an opposition from Portland, if we are not aware that this statement has been confirmed. When the Grand Trunk Railroad is complete', our ocean steamers and always will divert from present routes a good deal of the travel between the Western States and England. There are three sufficient reasons why this will be so: shortness of route, cheapness of fare, and a saving of time. The Collins and the Cunard lines of steamers may indeed lower their fares to an equality with those charged on our lines; but they cannot abridge the distance, and we suspect they will ultimately find it difficult or impossible to compete with us in point of time. Time is, in such cases, the only practical measure of distance. The question is not how many miles have to be travelled, but how long it will take to travel them? With equal powers of propulsion, the chance of successful on the side of the shorter distance. Well, we have the shorter distance in our favor; and there is every reason to believe that the vessels now being constructed by Mr. Laird of Birkenhead will be more than the equals in speed of either the Colins or Cunard lines. But if they attain a speed no greater than the vessels of these lines, they will by reason of the lesser distance beat them; and the Canada route to the western and north western states will inevitably be preferred.

AN EDITOR ON SNOW SHOES.—Mr. J. V. Brown, Publisher of the Lake Superior Journal, arrived in town yesterday, overland, or rather, over ice, from Sault Ste. Marie, having left that place on the 15th February. He travelled the entire length of the Georgian Bay, along the north shore of Lake Huron, on snow shoes and dog trains, and accomplished the trip, of three or four hundred miles, Penetanguishene, in twelve days; during which time there was but one day mild enough to melt snow in the sun. The winter is represented as having been at times unusually severe at the North. There is a large body of snow on the ground, and the ice everywhere thick and strong. Mr. B., with his Indian guide, came in company with the Mail carrier as far as La Cloche, from which place he came in advance of them. Seldom finding a chance to sleep in a house—camping out wherever the night overtook him—but notwithstanding the hard hips and exposure of the trip, he seems to be little affected by the journey.—Toronto Colonist.

THE COURT MARTIAL.—We understand that instructions from the Horse Guards have arrived in this country, directing this Court to re-assemble, for the trial of the soldiers of the 26th Regiment, for their conduct on the 9th of June last.

It is not stated whether these instructions are framed upon the advice of the Imperial law officers of the Crown, or on the opinion of the Judges.—Montreal Paper.

FAMILY RESIDENCE!!

WITH

TEN ACRES OF LAND ATTACHED,

TWO MILES from the TOWN of LONDON,

FOR SALE, BY AUCTION.

E. EMERY

HAS received instructions, from Mr. B. A. Mitchell, to submit to public competition, at the City Auction Mart, Dundas Street, London, on Wednesday, March 29, at Two o'clock.

That beautifully situated parcel or tract of Land being Lot E. & F. Concession C, Gore of London, Hamilton Road, about two miles from the Court House, Town of London, containing ten Acres, with a substantial two story brick house, fitted up in the best manner, to render it both comfortable and convenient, containing breakfast, dining and drawing rooms, seven good bed rooms, bath-room, capital kitchen, cellar and wood shed, all well supplied with excellent soft and spring water, with brick tanks and pumps attached; the out-buildings and offices are conveniently arranged, there being a capital frame stable and carriage house, etc.

The land has been recently cleared of stumps, levelled and cultivated, with a good young orchard, and partially planted with ornamental trees and shrubs, and with a small outlay in additional planting and laying out the ground, a most beautiful little residence may be made, and being fronting the Hamilton Road, an enlivening scene is constantly kept up, relieving the usual monotony of a country abode; it is within half-a-mile of the River Thames, and surrounded with the most picturesque scenery, with delightful rides and walks in its vicinity, and any person desirous of a so near to Town, will find this well deserving of their attention, as few such properties command all the advantages which this possesses, and with the increasing value of property, and the easy terms of payment, it is a very rare opportunity to be met with.

Part of the Furniture, which is all new, will be sold to the purchaser of the house and lot, if required, by private sale.

TERMS:

One-fourth of the purchase by a bankable note at 3 months, with interest, balance in five equal annual instalments, with interest on the unpaid principal sum yearly. Deed given and Mortgage taken on the property.

☞ The property can be viewed any day previous to the sale, between the hours of eleven and three o'clock, Sundays excepted.

TO PRINTERS.

A NEW Edition of the Specimen Book of BRUCES NEW YORK TYPE FOUNDRY has been published in September, 1853, and will be given to those Proprietors of Printing Offices who will send for it, or it will be forwarded them by mail, on receipt, in advance, of 50 cents for the postage.

In it are exhibited many articles never before shown; there have been added to the Foundry new varieties of Roman Types, from Nine-line Pica to Pearl, various imitations of writing, a great number of Fancy Founts, Borders both Plain and Illuminated, Labor-saving Rules, and a complete Foundry of Germans.

The type now manufactured are cast from a new combination of metal of great durability, and are usually kept on hand in large quantities. Every fancy fount is sold by weight, and at the printed prices, which are from 10 to 25 per cent. less than those of some other foundries. All other printing materials are furnished at manufacturers prices, either for cash or credit.

Printers wishing to open accounts with me, or whose dealings have been long suspended, are requested to accompany their orders with city references, to prevent delay.

Printers of Newspapers who choose to publish this advertisement, including this note, three times before the 1st of August, 1854, and send me one of the papers, will be paid for it in type when they purchase five times the amount of their bill from me, of my own manufactures, selected from my specimens.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will, and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to commend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. I. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreno, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

Dr. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1846 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health, I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which the nature sinks and life becomes a burthen.—Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business again, entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.
JOHNSON BURKE,
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. And therefore delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of sinking, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, lassitude and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills, in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of health which again invariably follows the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What artificial appendages equal that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What paints can compare with the crimsoned colored blood coursing its brilliant roseate hue through the transparent texture of the skin? What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? Let Dr. Halsey's wine supply the place of all cosmetics. The use of this excellent wine in a short time creates pure, rich blood which, coursing through the veins, penetrates the minutest fibres that verge towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, imparting a vivid, rosy color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a man of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rutgers street,

New York, July 7th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister, from her youth had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest attended with a cough. About the age of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to commencing with your medicines she had not been able to get out of the house. Her countenance was greatly emaciated, yellow and sickly. Her face and neck was covered with disagreeable pustules every week much annoyed her cough increasing. In fine, she bore every appearance of soon becoming an unhappy victim to consumption. At this time I presented her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of recovery was an uncommonly good appetite, her face hourly become smooth and her cheeks rosy. Her cough left her altogether. She is now strong and vigorous and presents the finest example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MAXWELL.

DR. HALSEY'S

GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are coated with pure Gum Arabic, an important invention for which Dr. Halsey has received the only Patent ever granted on Pills by the Government of the United States.

Dr. Halsey's Forest Wine and Gum-coated Forest Pills unite in accomplishing the same great end, THE PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THE RENOVATION & RESTORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.

The life principle of man is the blood, no sooner are these organs of the stomach which secrete the blood, cleansed of morbid matter and restored to healthy action by the use of the Forest Pills and pure rich blood made to flow in the veins, by the use of the Forest Wine, than disease begins to vanish and strength and energy of body returns. This is the principle on which is founded these great medicines, and by which nearly all diseases are cured.

The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles, with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One Dollar per bottle, or six bottles for Five Dollars. Gum-coated Forest Pills 25c. per box.

BRITISH AMERICAN

FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

OF MONTREAL,

Office No. 102, Notre Dame Street.

OFFICERS:

HENRY T. STRONG, Esq., President.
J. H. PHILLIPS, Esq., Secty. & Manager.

DIRECTORS:

A. A. DORION, Esq.	J. C. BIBAUD, Esq. M.D.
A. T. STRONG, Esq.	J. DOUTRE, Esq.
A. M'DONALD, Esq.	W. HENDERSON, Esq.
J. H. PHILLIPS, Esq.	P. COOPER, Esq.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0
Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment.
0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company," and to issue Debentures in payment of the same And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the b half of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company" on the following terms, that is to say. That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in paymedt of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or facsimiles of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few word- regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

koff. There was nothing, at first sight, either unnatural or ominous in such a proceeding, for the influence of Russia at the Porte might have been thought compromised, and it was certainly desirable to bring matters to a conclusion. But the mission soon assumed a mysterious and alarming kind of character. It was conducted with circumstances of arrogance and even menace; its object was left indefinite, its purposes seemed obscure, and misgivings were created in all quarters at once. Beside the affair of the Holy Places, "reparation" was mentioned as due to the Russian Government for the breach of faith committed towards the Greeks: and "security" was talked of for the future. However, in due course, Prince Menschikoff arrived at the Turkish capital, and on the 2nd of March last paid his official visit to the Grand Vizier, but omitted, in a most pointed manner, to offer the same compliment to Fuad Effendi, the Minister of Foreign Affairs. Nothing as yet had transpired of his ultimate designs, but the misgivings of the Sultan seemed to have been instinctive, and as early as 6th of March Colonel Rose was informed that "his Highness entertained strong apprehension that the mission of Prince Menschikoff, far from being of a conciliatory character, as pretended, was on the contrary, intended to involve the Porte in serious difficulties, and that the Emperor's object appeared to be to trample under foot the rights of the Porte and the dignity and independence of the Sovereign." It was at this period, and under these circumstances, that Colonel Rose sent those requisitions to Admiral Dundas to bring up his fleet, which, with the full approval of our Government, the Admiral declined to obey. In the policy thus pursued Lord Stratford himself concurred, for we find him afterwards (April 5) reporting from Constantinople. "I took occasion to explain the grounds on which it had been deemed advisable, under present circumstances, to keep Her Majesty's squadron at Malta; and the Grand Vizier had every appearance of understanding that the interests of the Porte had been more judiciously consulted by its detention than by its appearance in the waters of the Archipelago."

Count Nesselrode himself had early remarked to our Minister at St. Petersburg that there was "necessarily some vagueness" in Prince Menschikoff's orders, and this vagueness became more and more remarkable as his mission took effect. At the end of March the Grand Vizier told Colonel Rose, "His policy is most confused. At one time he would attract us to Russia by mildness, spreading abroad the report that the intentions of his Government are pacific. At another he seeks to gain us over by pointing out the disadvantages and inutility of our alliance upon England and France, and how wrong we are in following the advice of those two Powers, to whom we ought not to be attached, especially if we consider that the nature of their constitution differs from that of our's, which, on the contrary, resembles that of Russia and Austria." All this, quite with the alarming rumors put into circulation, and the visible military preparations of Russia, created some uneasiness in the British Cabinet; but no emphatic were the assurances of the Czar that credit was given to his declarations, and Lord Stratford de Redcliffe, who at this period returned to his post with special instructions, was charged to mediate between the contending Powers, and to dispose the Sultan to prudent resolutions. The object, in short, was simply to satisfy what the British Government and its Ambassador admitted to be the reasonable requirements of Russia, without offence to the dignity of France. That there might be some difficulty was foreseen; but M. de Lavalette had been recalled, the tone of the French Court was exceedingly temperate, and it was hoped all might be arranged. No idea was yet entertained that Prince Menschikoff's requisition would include any such demand as the Porte would be compelled to resist, and the Western Powers support it in resisting. There was still no European question. All the difference was between the Greek and Latin Churches—between France and Russia.

At the beginning of April Lord Stratford got back to his post, and found the plot thickening. It was not that the original dispute seemed to preclude the hopes of settlement, but that the "ulterior" proposals of Prince Menschikoff were beginning to be perceptible. Lord Stratford informs our Government that he found the Turkish Ministry in a combination of "alarm, seeking for advice, and reluctance to tell the whole case frankly;" but it gradually appeared that the Prince had made a demand for a secret treaty, which, over and above the particular question of the Holy Places, was to define certain general relations between Russia and the Porte; and that he had imperatively desired of the Turkish Ministers that none of these proposals might be permitted to transpire. Nevertheless, although Lord Stratford's sagacity already discerned the probable result, and though he suggested that, if the demands of the projected treaty should, on examination, be found to carry with them that degree of influence over the Christian subjects of the Porte in favor of a foreign Power which might eventually prove dangerous or seriously inconvenient to the exercise of the Sultan's legitimate authority," they might be declined in favor of a less pernicious arrangement, he took up no position of antagonism against Russia. The advice which, "at their repeated solicitation," he gave the Turkish Ministers was, to keep the question of the Holy Places separate from the ulterior proposals, to avoid entering upon the latter till the former had been adjusted, and then to consider them on their proper merits. He further "expressed his opinion that it would not be reasonable or prudent for them to discblige the Emperor of Russia in matters which might be conceded without any serious objection," and he offers these remarkable observations:—"The personal character of the Emperor Nicholas, his obligations in common with the other great Powers of Christendom, and his frequent declarations of respect for the independence of the Turkish Empire, exclude the suspicion of any attempt to carry his point by mere arbitrary force. He lies under the restraint of moral as well as political considerations.—He could not throw of the mask, and compel the Porte to accept, on no distinct grounds of treaty, propositions merely affecting the Sultan's relations with a large portion of his subjects, and consequently, to a certain degree, his position in the general scale of power, without exposing himself to severe censure, and risking interests of the most important character. Were it, however, to turn out, contrary to all reasonable calculation, that his Ambassador was authorized to proceed to extremities, the Porte would still have the resource of reserving its compliance until it had consulted with those of its allies who, together with Russia, were parties to the treaty of 1841.' This, therefore, was the state of things at the commencement of April. Though Prince Menschikoff had alarmed the Porte by his demonstrations, and though his views began to be apparent, the British Ambassador was still incredulous as to his actual purpose. Neither Lord Stratford, indeed, nor any of his colleagues, had been furnished with instructions for the contingency actually impending; the general negotiation was still directed to the original question of the Holy Places, and on the 22nd of April the British Ambassador was enabled to report this dispute as virtually adjusted—a fact which Count Nesselrode himself, in a conversation with our Minister at St. Petersburg, presently acknowledged. Still there was, "in more respects than one, a mystery hanging over the intentions of Russia," and well there might be; for, a few days afterwards, when the question of the Holy Places had been conclusively settled, Prince Menschikoff presented to the Turkish Government that celebrated Note which created the subsequent embroilments, and which may end in European war.

Colonel Chesney on Turkey.

The following observations (says Colonel Chesney) on the means which Turkey possesses, as one of the necessity of sustaining a contest with Russia single-handed, are based upon the difficulties she has experienced during her past campaigns (of 1828, 18.9,) which were carried on under more adverse circumstances. And to show that this was the case, it is only necessary to remind the reader, that to the disadvantage of an imperfect organization, which only comprised as yet thirty infantry regiments, was added that worst of all calamities, a divided country. Mahmoud's intended reforms had diminished the confidence, if not completely alienated the affections, of a large portion of the Moslem. He had become an object of suspicion to one large section, and of total hostility to another, which was prepared for the horrors of civil war. To this it is believed the Christians had been taught to look as the probable means of removing their infant seat of government from Athens to Constantinople. The encouragement given to the discontented by foreign emissaries had prepared the way for what might have been a fearful crisis, had less firmness been shown at this trying period. But if the Sultan's, presence, and several timely executions saved the capital from an insurrection, it was effected at the expense, in some degree, of the more energetic defence of the frontiers. The Nizam (the active or regular army) had been retained in Constantinople during the early part of the campaign of 1828, with a view to preserve order in the capital; and when a portion was at length sent, the Sultan's purpose of speedily following with the remainder was frustrated by the necessity of still keeping some regular troops in the city, in order to keep down the malcontents.

If, under such circumstances, Turkey resisted the well appointed and numerous army of a first-rate power and its successive reinforcements, up to the close of a second protracted campaign in Europe, and caused immense loss to her invaders, it is surely not too much to expect that under the greatly improved circumstances which have enabled Turkey to take a respectable army and an enthusiastic people into the field, she will be able to offer a still more successful resistance to the fresh attempt now made to conquer the country.

Colonel Chesney then proceeds to state:—

"That the defences of the Bosphorus are too formidable to be forced by a fleet, and that Constantinople is not liable to be taken by a coup de main. That the Russian fleet in the Euxine, of 13 ships of the line, 8 frigates, 6 corvettes, and 12 smaller vessels, would not afford the means of transporting 30,000 men to the Bosphorus, and such a force, even supposing it had landed near the entrance of the straits, would be insufficient to take Constantinople. In endeavoring to accomplish the invasion of Turkey, the Russians must therefore advance from the Principalities; and use their fleet to lessen their difficulties by transporting part of their provisions and stores."

In estimating the relative strength of the Russian and Turkish forces, Colonel CHESNEY asserts, "that of the enormous Russian army, consisting of more than a million and a half of men, and nearly 1,700 guns, only 290,000 men and 800 guns can be marched to a distance and kept effective. Although the talents of the generals and of the staff may be no means inferior, and the bravery and passive endurance of the Russian soldier not to be surpassed, yet the army of that nation cannot claim a first-rate place amongst European powers. There exists two defects in the Russian service which seldom fail, ere long, to thin the ranks and diminish the effective force with which a campaign may have commenced. These are the medical and commissariat departments, on the efficiency of which so much depends. Supplies frequently failed in consequence during the last campaigns; and, as regards medical care in going from the Turkish to the Russian stations in 1829, the former were found by Colonel CHESNEY free from plague, while the latter were suffering from that calamity. The high name acquired by the Cossacks elsewhere in Europe was not maintained in Turkey, where they were speedily overmatched by the Delhis; and the heavy massive dragoons shared the same fate."

If the author were to venture to compare the Turks and Russians—and an opinion on this subject is offered with some hesitation—he would give a preference to the Russian infantry, as the principal part of an organised force, over that of the Turks; whilst the cavalry of the latter had, and will probably continue to have, the advantage in the field.

The actual effective of the Sultan's regular army can scarcely be less than 160,000 men. The artillery has received more care from the Turks than the other two arms, and the soldier-like bearing of the men and their conduct in the field shew that a considerable efficiency has been attained. This is a most important point; and if the author be not misinformed, the rapid advance of the Turkish artillery, of late, has been fully appreciated in a very high quarter, for when its state was described to the Emperor Nicholas, previous to the declaration of war, his Majesty remarked, "This will be a hard nut to crack." Physically, the Turks are a fine race of men and excellent soldiers.

The defence of Bulgaria and Roumelia may be said to begin with the Danube. The judicious use of some gun-boats and small steamers to ascertain the movements of the Russians, would render the passage of a wide and rapid river, in the face of an army, favored by its commanding banks, a tedious and perilous operation. But, supposing it accomplished, the invaders would have the choice, either of advancing with much risk, after masking certain fortresses, or of endeavoring to secure their line of march more effectually, by best ging those places likely to operate on their rear. In the latter case, as the fortresses attacked would naturally be supported by the Turkish field force, considerable time would be consumed before the hostile army could advance into the country. In the former case, the Turks would dispute every inch of ground as they retreated.

On reaching the second line of defence, which is formed by the fortress of Varna, and the strong posts of Pravadi, Schumla and Turnova, the invaders would again be reduced to the same alternative as after crossing the Danube. They must either continue their march after masking these places, or they must besiege one or two of them. If the latter, the Turkish army could operate with great advantage by debouching on their rear; and even if their efforts to raise these sieges or blockades should fail, their invaders would be delayed at the foot of the Balkan, where, in case of failing to force a passage, they must soon suffer from the want of supplies.

If, on the other hand, the enemy followed the more daring course of passing the fortresses, with such a body of troops as might be sufficient to force the mountain defiles, and yet not too numerous to carry supplies during his coup de main march against Constantinople, difficulties would still assail him. Even supposing every thing to have favored the advance of the invaders, they would at length find themselves in front of the formidable position of Buyuk-Checkmedge. An attack on this position in the face of an army, could only be undertaken advantageously after bringing up heavy artillery to carry on the operations; and these, both here and at Kuchuk Checkmedge, would probably be attended with such serious loss as to render any ulterior operation impracticable.

The fate of war is proverbially uncertain; but if intrenchments have, as we have been told, been constructed in the passes of the mountains, and if the Turkish army retires to occupy them with troops and artillery, without previously risking a battle excepting under the most palpable advantages, it is not going too far to predict that the enemy will not penetrate beyond the northern slopes of the Balkan, should the present state of hostilities lead to the continuance of the Russian campaign in Turkey.

The Recent Battle of Guirgevo.

The Moniteur gives the following details of the recent action at Giurgevo:—

At six o'clock in the morning of February 6th, about 1,000 regular and Albanian troops, embarked in sixteen boats, and left the port of Routchtchouk making for Slobozie, about half-a-league from Giurgevo. Their somewhat Cossacks stationed on the outposts fired a few shots at the Turks, and then hastened to inform General Samonoff, who was at Giurgevo, of the advance. Without returning the Cossack fire, the barques continued to descend the stream, but on arriving at the great Tchoroi island, and finding it already occupied by the enemy, they took a southerly course, and landed at the other extremity of the island.

All these manoeuvres were protected by three gun shallops, armed with six guns each, and by the Routchtchouk batteries, which ceased their fire as soon as the Turkish trumpets announced that their force was in battle array. The Russians had time to throw a bridge across to the island, and to send two battalions of infantry across.—General Saymonoff commanded on the left bank. The Turkish General remained on board one of the boats. The battle began at once with the bayonet, raged with great fury for five hours, and ended by the defeat of the Russians, who however, retired in good order. They left about 160 dead on the field, including one colonel and four officers, and about the same number of wounded. They removed their wounded to Giurgevo. The Turks lost 26 killed, of whom one was an officer. The number of their wounded was not known.

What proves in spite of the Russian bulletin, that the Turks remained masters of the field is, that the Russian soldiers who fell during the action were stripped, and the decorations of the officers taken away. After the battle the Russians returned to the island to bury their dead. The bodies of the 26 Turks killed in the action were publicly exposed in the public market place of Giurgevo. All the soldiers of the garrison were marched past the corpses, and an officer said to them, "Here are the dead bodies of these miserable Turks, who inspire you with so much dread. Fight against them with confidence. God and the Czar are with us." Upon this the Russian troops chanted their songs of victory.

From the Melbourne Argus.

Melbourne Gold Circular.

Saturday, 17th December, 1853.

The ruling price of gold during this week has been 76s 9d; but as high as 77s was paid for some lots for shipment by the Sydney steamer.

The continued demand for gold tends to keep up the price, thereby leaving a very narrow margin in its favor over bank drafts at the current rate of exchange of 1 per cent. premium. From a paragraph in the M. M. Herald we notice that something of a novel kind has occurred this week, in the transmission of about 1,000 ounces of gold from Mount Alexander and M'Ivor direct to Geelong. Hitherto Melbourne received nearly all the produce of the gold fields, with the exception of Balarat, which is considered as more properly belonging to Geelong, and from that field receives weekly a small share. Now, in return, Geelong has begun to share with Melbourne part of the produce of the other gold fields, along with our neighbors from Sydney and Adelaide. Among so many claimants for the diggers' gold, he will at least be benefitted by the competition.

The quantity of gold from Bendigo shews a slight increase over last week, while from Balarat a decrease has taken place. M'Ivor and Goulburn remain the same.

For the first time since writing our weekly statement, we notice that a large number of people have left the colony than have been reported to have arrived. This is easily to be accounted for by the fact that many successful diggers are returning to spend the holidays in the neighboring colonies, and not a few of our fortunate mercantile and other business men are also living under exceedingly comfortable circumstances; thus making room for fresh energy and enterprise.

THE CAPITAL OF RUSSIA.

St Petersburgh, the present Capital of Russia now containing a population of 350,000, is little more than a century old, having been founded by Peter the Great, in 1703, when he raised with his own hands the first hut, which is still preserved for the inspection of the curious. The first brick house was built in 1710, and in 1712 the residence of the Emperor was transferred from Moscow to the new city, which was named St. Petersburg; after the patron saint of its founder. The approach to the city is through a wild desert country. There are neither country seats nor gardens in the environs of this city. The steeples are not sufficiently high enough to be seen at a distance. The entrance is under a wooden barrier, and for a mile the traveller drives through a street of small wooden houses. Turning an angle, he finds himself on a bridge over the blue Neva, having before him the Admiralty, the winter palace of the Emperor, the Hermitage, the Marble Palace; and a succession of magnificent buildings on the quay. No dirty lanes or paltry huts are to be seen, the ground being the property of the Emperor or the nobles.

Most of the original edifices have been destroyed by time or by fire, and none of the principal streets are now permitted to be built of wood. The usual material is brick, well smeared, and the proprietor being compelled to renew the outer wash once a year, the building always look new. The modern houses are built on piles, the ground being marshy. They are lofty and generally handsome, with roofs nearly flat, sheeted with iron, painted red or green; they are all numbered, and the name of the proprietor is over each door; the ground floors are nearly all shops, the first and second floor being occupied by families. The panes of glass in the windows are as large as 6 feet by 4 feet and upwards, so that each appears a separate window. At the corner of each street is a policeman in a sentry box. Three large and several small canals, studded with bridges of cast iron and granite, facilitate the intercourse between the different parts of the city, whose circumference on the banks of the Neva is nearly 20 miles, though scarcely a fourth part of the area is covered with buildings. The waters of the Neva are perfectly blue and transparent and reflect the long line of Grecian pillars on the banks. The river, at the broadest part, is about three quarter of a mile wide, and is deep enough for heavy ships, but a bar across the mouth prevents vessels from drawing more than seven feet from going higher up. Near the Isaac-bridge, in the centre of the city, is the famous bronze equestrian statue of Peter the Great, weighing 16 tons, and resting on a piece of granite of nearly 1,000 tons, being the largest block ever moved by art.

The Royal residences are so numerous that St. Petersburg may well be called the city of palaces.

CANADIAN MERCHANTS IN THE ENGLISH MARKETS.—The following which we clip from the trade report of the Times of the 2nd ult., will show how our trade is estimated in England; and what is more agreeable, it shows that the people there are beginning to understand a little more about us:—"Several Canadian hosiery buyers have already made their appearance in Nottingham, as well as in London and Manchester, and, judging from those who have operated in our warehouses, we may safely predict that the Canadian demand this season will exceed anything they have done for us many years past. The remunerative price that canadians are now obtaining for all their principle productions have furnished them with the means of buying and paying for large quantics of such of our manufactures as their climate renders it essential for them to wear, if they are to retain their health and be comfortable, while the construction of railroads throughout the colony provides their merchants with facilities for transmitting them into the most important districts. These two circumstances have combined to produce a higher state of commercial prosperity in Canada than has been the case hitherto, which will now enable them to take off much larger quantities of our manufactures every season.

The Home Commissariat.

Perhaps what most excites the admiration of civilians in modern warfare is the Commissariat. They wonder, as well they may, at the providence and command of resources by which ten thousand men, on arriving at a village or a mountain pass, of which none of them had heard the day before, will find a table spread for them in the wilderness in the shape of biscuits and beef for that number of men. That the ravens who prepare this miracle, occasionally fail, and the army has to go to bed, or rather to grass, supperless, is no matter of surprise. The surprise is, that the feeding of a host as fleeting and vagrant as the birds of the air should be done with anything like regularity. How far it is done well, leave to the student of such glorious tales as the history of the Peninsular war. But what will our civilians say when they hear that the difficulty is not so much in war as in peace, and that at this moment the British soldier lodged in the palatial barracks in Birdcage-walk, or within sight of all the nobility of England at Knights-bridge, is suffering privations just as if he had arrived, after a long forced march, at the summit of the Sierra Morena? If in the latter case, rivers and rocks, the out-posts of the enemy, or a hostile population, had interposed between him and his supplies, in the present instance he has not less reason to complain of the inaccessible recesses of offices, rugged forms, inhospitable functionaries, and a system of government which, defies all the skill of geographers, scouts, and guides. The story is soon told, and we may leave the reader to say whether we have at all exaggerated the extent of the inconvenience, or the absurdity of the cause.

All who have the misfortune to keep house are aware that provisions have nearly doubled in price since last spring, and that persons with limited incomes have suffered accordingly. Now, there is nobody with a more limited income than the British soldier. It is and has been, and will be for many years, the inexorable thirteen pence. Nor is he allowed to spend this as he please. He must pay a contract price for a daily ration of bread and meat sufficient for his dinner, with a little over for his breakfast; and he must pay also a continual drawbacks for articles of clothing and costs of repair, not left to his own judgement, but enforced by the order of his superior. So here the whole income is fixed, and where the expenditure is highly elastic, it is evident that there ensues a sort of pressure like that in the boiler of a steam-engine, and that something or other must give way. In this instance the most elastic, most swollen item, is the contract price which the unhappy soldier must pay for his ration, and which, from an average of 4½d., is now 6d. This, it is scarcely necessary to say, does not include the whole of even a soldier's hard fare. It only gives him the basis of his dinner, and he has to pay for various et ceteras, all of them now much dearer than usual. Thus, after he has paid for his ration, he has out of a diminished remainder, to find various necessary things at a greatly increased price. Every body with any insight into the mystery of a soldier's life and ways knows that in this state of things he is simply a bankrupt, a starving adventurer, reduced to live on his wits. In the best of times it has been calculated that all the pocketmoney the most careful soldier can save from his income and call his own, to hoard or to spend, is about three half pence a day. This margin has long since ceased to exist, and for many months no soldier has been able to do more than to make both ends meet. The regiments that were at Chobham were particularly unfortunate, for they have only just paid for the extra repairs of their uniforms required after the weather and other hardships of the camp; and while their pay has been stopped to meet this demand, their debts to less powerful and less exigent creditors have been running up all the faster. Now, what has to be done in this case? Every reasonable person would say that either the pay ought to have been raised, or that the soldier ought to have been provided with rations at a more moderate price. So thought the Horse Guards three months ago—that Horse Guards which people in general fondly imagine to be solely responsible. Under Parliament, for military affairs. The Horse-Guards, however, had to apply to the War-office, which may be said to have the financial administration of the army, and the War-office, wishing nothing but well to the soldier, could only refer the case to the Treasury. What keeps it in the Treasury, whereabouts it is; whether sunk dead, and forgotten at the bottom of the abyss—whether eddying in its daily discussion, or floating on the surface in temporary favour, or wedged between the edges of thick-ribbed ettiquette, is wholly unknown—as unknown as the fate of the famous diver who a second time descended Charybdis.—London (England) Times.

TERRIBLE COLLIERY EXPLOSION NEAR WIGAN ENGLAND.

A dreadful colliery explosion occurred in the Arley mine of the Ince Hall Company, near Wigan, on the afternoon of the 18th ult. About 240 men and boys were in the pit. Soon after three o'clock the persons above ground heard two loud explosion, and immediately asignal was made from below to haul up the miners—Thirty men were immediately hauled up from the south shaft, and reported that the north shaft was on fire in such a manner as to cut of the retreat of the workmen. It was some hours before the fire could be extinguished so as to allow a body of searchers to descend. On arriving at the north level they found the unfortunate men piled up in heaps and dead. Eighty bodies were at once taken up, and from another part of the shaft twenty four bodies. Only a few and those much exhausted, were got out alive. Some few had escaped into another pit, so that the exact number lost is not known—but as forty persons were known to be in a part of the mine where the roof had fallen in, the number of dead cannot be less than 120. In the same mine sixty lives were lost by an explosion in March of last year.

STEAMBOAT DISASTER, THREE STEAMERS BURNT—IMMENSE LOSS OF PROPERTY.

The disasters on the Western waters are increasing at a fearful rate and now we have to add the beautiful New-Orleans and Memphis packet Mary Agnes, which was destroyed by fire on the morning of Wednesday, the 1st March, about daylight. She was on her way from New Orleans with about 400 tons of merchandise, groceries, &c., for Memphis. The fire was discovered among a lot of carriages on the after guard, and in a few moments the ladies' cabin was all in flames, and the passengers fled from their rooms in the greatest confusion, all in their night clothes very few of them saving anything but what they had on their backs.—The destruction of the boat was inevitable, and Captain Greenlaw, her commander, immediately landed the boat and secured it to the shore at the head of the Fairchilds Island. The steamer Belle Key was about a mile ahead of the Mary Agnes on fire, and Captain Key turned his boat back to the rescue of the people and goods on the burning boat.—When the Belle Key reached the boat she was completely enveloped in flames. The hose and fire buckets of the Belle Key were immediately brought to bear upon the burning boat, but such was the rapidity of the fire that all efforts were useless, and she was burnt to the waters edge. The Belle Sherdian, Captain Montgomery, from this city, with accustomed impetuosity made every effort to arrest the destruction of the beautiful Mary Agnes, but all in vain, and she soon was burnt to the hull, with nothing but the unsightly, blackened and smouldering hulk to view.

A great deal of confusion was caused among the passengers of the boat, who were suddenly aroused from sleep by the alarm of fire, and compelled to flee for their lives from the cabin, which were all in flames around them, and it was very fortunate that no lives were lost. Most of the passengers and officers of the boat lost all their clothing, and baggage, though some few things were saved. The Mary Agnes was built in this city last season at a cost of $20,000, but how much elsewhere we don't know. The loss on freight will be immense.—[Cincinatti Times.

Disturbance at Erie.

From the Buffalo Express of Tuesday.

We learn by a gentleman direct from Erie who was an eye witness of part of the performance, that the mob of Erie re-assembled yesterday morning and again tore up the track across Sassafras tress. This subjects passengers to a walk of nearly half a mile, and cuts off freight entirely for the present, except as it is carted round. We understand that the track was torn up by order of the Mayor. The Sheriff was on the spot promptly, and addressed the multitude in a manner consistent with law and good order, exhorting those engaged in destroying the track to desist. He also called upon persons standing around to aid him in protecting the property of the railroad, but all to no purpose. He might as well have appealed to so many stumps for aid in inforcing law and preserving property.

Colonial Postage Regulation.

The following Postage Orders have just been issued from the Post Master General's department:

The Post Master General has issued a circular announcing the following regulations in regard to the postage on letters between Canada and Great Britain, which have received the sanction of Her Majesty's Government, and will take effect on and after the 23rd March instant.

By the weekly closed mails sent through the United States and despatched by the British Mail Steamers, the postage on letters from any place in Canada to any part of Great Britain or Ireland and not exceeding half an ounce weight will be 8d. sterling, equal to 10d. currency.

Over ½ an ounce and not exceeding 1 oz. 1s. 4d. stg. or 1s. 8d. cy.

Over 1 oz. and not exceeding 2 oz. 2s. 8d. stg., or 4s. 4d. cy., &c.

When sent by the semi-monthly Packets via Quebec and Halifax, or by the Canadian Line of Ocean Steamers, the rate on a single letter will be 6d. stg. or 7½d. cy.

Over ½ oz. and not exceeding 1 oz. 1s. stg. or 1s. 3d. cy.

One oz. and not exceeding 2 oz. 4s. sterling or 5s. cy.

On letters for the undermentioned British Colonies and possessions, the single rate will be as follows, increasing upon the British scale as above for letters weighing over ½ oz.

	Via closed mails through the United States and British Steamers.	Via Quebec and Halifax by the Canadian Steamers.
British W. Indies	1s. 2d. stg.	1s. 6d. stg.	Prepayment optional.

Most cases to be prepaid.

Newspapers between Canada and the United Kingdom by whatever route sent or received, will be liable to a rate of 1d. each, to be always paid in advance by the sender. When the papers are not so paid they will not be forwarded.

Newspapers sent in the closed weekly mails through the United States will be liable, in addition, to a transit rate of 1d. as at present, payable on delivery of the papers; thus each paper forwarded by this channel will have to pay two pence—a penny by the sender and 1d. by the receiver.

Newspapers sent via England to British West Indies, Gibraltar and Malta, must be pre-paid 2d each; to any other British possession or Colony 1d. each, and newspapers passing through England to or from any foreign country, will be chargeable as at present.

Parliamentary proceedings sent to the United Kingdom, are to be treated precisely as ordinary book matter, under the regulations of the Book Post with England and unless pre-paid cannot be forwarded.

* Letters from Malta via Marseilles, will have to pay a French transit of 5d. per ½ ounce in addition.

TIMES OFFICE REMOVED.

OUR Subscribers and the public generally, are informed that the office of this paper is removed from Talbot Street, to that large brick building on Richmond Street, next the new Town Hall, and immediately opposite the Methodist Chapel.

Truth versus Falsehood.

It seems rather strange, but nevertheless true, that the English, who send forth such crowds of travellers,

"Not less in number than the embodied cranes,
Or milk-white Swans on Asia's watery plaines,"

Should be so very ignorant about every country but their own, hence it is only by favour of a disgraceful ignorance among the public of Turkey and its people, that the Ministerial Times and Messrs. Cobden & Co., have been able to affect a contemptuous pity for "the hopeless and helpless Moslems;" and that the Edinburgh Review under treasury influence, endeavors to quench the generous sympathy due to a magnanimous government and nation by describing the Ottoman Empire as a body destitute of vigor and life; fortunately we have an authority apart from the organ of Placemen and the oracle of change which will entirely dispel the effect of this misrepresentation, and only regret it did not appear earlier in the just published Russo-Turkish campaigns of 1828 and 1829, with a view of the present state of affairs in the East, by our distinguished countryman, Colonel Chesney, in it will be found all that is requisite for understanding the Eastern question, and the relative forces of Russia and Turkey; we refer, elsewhere, to Colonel Chesney's observations. We have been induced to make these remarks and cite their authority, from having observed a notice in a Toronto paper of Mr. Cobden's work on the Eastern question. To those on this side of the Atlantic, an antecedent of Mr. Cobden may not be known, a man who gained his election, on one occasion, for the East Riding of Yorkshire by a direct and wilful falsehood, is not the more likely to adhere to truth where either his own interest or that of the party who are the most likely to serve his purposes may be compromised by so doing. Mr. Cobden has been the hired agitator of the Anti-Corn Law party; his political views must be gilded with some of the precious metal to render them attractively interesting to him, and because forsooth the Utopian system of free intercourse with all nations, i. e. the one sided free intercourse endorsed by England may be imperrilled by this Russo-Turkish War, therefore every nerve must be strained, every possible quality of dust must be thrown into the eyes of the public to delude them into a belief that, no matter what occurs England must not go to war, that she must suffer every indignity, that she must violate every honorable engagement, and that she must descend from that high position which she has hitherto held among nations, in fact, that she must abandon her Colonies, because, like Peru and Mexico of old, they cease to send her home the precious metals, that she must desert her allies, because they cannot subsidize her, that in fact she dare not engage in hostilities, because an increase of taxation and consequent rise in provisions, might imperil her new commercial code. Such are some of the Statesmenlike views of the new Cotton School, and to maintain those views, the jesuitical principle "the end justifies the means" is freely adopted, but we rejoice to perceive from the English papers that John Bull has at length aroused himself, that the glories of the past are not forgotten, that the protecting arm of England is over her oppressed and persecuted ally, and has not been withdrawn, and that though England, for a time, may be led astray, she will ultimately right herself and prove to the world that her glory has not departed. We therefore warn our readers to receive with great caution, should they meet it, this quack production of the greatest political humbug of modern times, Richard Cobden.

MALCOLM CAMERON.

The leading article of our contemporary the Free Press of last week, headed as above, is ably written, and contains some wholesome truths characteristic of the Post Master General, after attending to the celebrated speech at Perth and the subsequent denial of it by the Leader, (the Ministerial organ,) and justly remarking that when the Leader denied the correctness of the report, it was bound to give, in support of the denial, the true speech, it proceeds to argue from analogy that what once occurred may occur again, and instanced the election of the late Mr. Wetenhall, in Halton, when Mr. Cameron delivered a speech at Halton, "fraught with falsehood and misrepresentation in order to damage the election, and the government handed in the manuscript to the editor of the Provincialist, left the slanders and misrepresentations to do their work, and after his return from Washington, issued a letter basely denying the statements he had made and the correctness of the report." This is a grave charge brought by our contemporary and certainly establishes one of two facts, either that the government could get no one of character to take the places which Malcolm has filled, or else that the cabinet officials have been so corrupt and rotten, that the Nasitaca Scelis has been the Ministerial motto. The Free Press proceeds to conclude from the above "that there is enough to render it a question for his colleagues to consider how far they are justified in associating in any capacity, with a man so destitute of both honor and principle, enough to let the Province to consider the disgrace of having at the head of one of their most important Public Departments, a man whose word is not to be believed, and who seems not to be even bound by the solemn sanctions of his oath of office." The next charge proves him guilty of falsehood in his statement of reasons for resigning from the Lafontaine-Baldwin administration in 1849. And having gone into particulars, our contemporary says, "No government can maintain its position before the country exhibiting such an amount of indifference as I want of principle as that exhibited by the Hon. Post Master General." With the conclusion we heartily concur, "We think that the country has had enough of him, that it is tired of his political harlequinism, and that his term of political glory is like the flickering light of the taper about to expire, the people will come to their sober senses and learn to appreciate only truth, integrity, intelligence and worth." We hail, with pleasure, the appearance of any lucid intervals amongst our contemporaries, rejoicing in the name of Reform journals, and when any of them throw off the thraldom of Ministerial leading strings, we receive them as the exponents of measures, not men, and omen that a bright day is at hand, when prejudice shall disappear and an earnest and effective union of the public journals shall put a stop to those disgraceful deeds daily heralded by the Press as the Court circular of those in high places.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

LONDON, March 11, 1854.

A special Meeting of the Council was held according to notice to take into consideration the By-law for taking stock in the London and Port Stanley Railway Company.

Present—John Scatcherd, Esq., Warden; Messrs. Anderson, Barker, Craik, Dill, Elliott, Fraser, Moore, McLary, McKeller, Niles, Sparling, Clinch, Toule, Smith and Moyle.

The Warden stated, that at the Public Meeting of qualified electors, called by him, pursuant to requisition, on the 10th instant, to take into consideration the propriety of this Council taking Stock in the London and Port Stanley Railroad, to the amount of £25,000, on the question being submitted and the By-law read, it was approved and carried in the affirmative.

Mr. Anderson moved and Mr. Craik seconded, That the Warden be authorized to subscribe for one thousand shares in the London and Port Stanley Railroad, in accordance with the wish of the majority of the qualified electors of the county, as expressed at the public meeting.

In the division there were

Yeas, Messrs. Anderson, Barker, Craik, Frazer, Moore, McClary, Sparling, Niles, Toule, Clinch—10.

Nays—Messrs. Dill, Elliott and McKellar—3.

Motion carried by a majority of 7.

The By-law No. 26, "A By-law to authorize the Municipal Council of the county of Middlesex, to subscribe for one thousand shares in the capital stock of the London and Port Stanley Railroad, was then adopted and carried, Mr. Smith desiring his vote to be recorded, as opposed to the By-law. The Council then adjourned.

P. S.—This was omitted in our last weeks issue, several of the Provincial Journals have committed an error in stating that 100,000 stock was taken, it should have been as above, £25,000.

We also omitted, in our last, the Report of the Conservative delegates selected by the townships of London, Westminster, Nissouri and Dorchester, to agree upon a candidate to represent the East Riding of Middlesex, in the Provincial Parliament; the following delegates appeared for each township:

London—William Balkwell, George Robson, William Taylor, William McMillan and William Moore, 5.

Westminster—William McKerlie, Thomas Smith, Thomas Shore and David Main, 4.

Nissouri—William Moore, William MacMartin, Charles Scott and Arthur Willson, 4.

Dorchester—Robert Dreany, William Wood, William Jelly, George Main and Cornelius Hickaids, 5.

Having, pursuant to arrangement, met at the City Hotel, on Saturday, March the 11th, at 12 o'clock, Wm. Horton, Esq., obtained the nomination, the only other candidate being Lionel Riddout, Esq., without expressing any opinion as to the merits of Mr. Horton, beyond that of his being a consistent and honest Conservative; we may be permitted to offer a few remarks on the mode adopted for selecting candidates for Parliamentary honors at this side of the Atlantic, different from the course pursued in the old country, probably from the general equality of position in this country, no one possessing either hereditary claims or an immense preponderance of property; the system of delegates may gentleman will not thank the Prototype for dragging his name before the public, if we are not mistaken. We do not pretend, as the editor of the Prototype does, to take any particular township under our especial charge, but this we do know, that Mr. Horton got the nomination by a majority 12 to 5, which we think was decisive enough, we also know that 4 and not 5, London Delegates voted against him, and that Mr. Balkwell, the other London Delegate, as chairman of the meeting, and every other Delegate from London and elsewhere, 18 in number, sent for Mr. Horton, before the close of the meeting, and not only promised personally to support him, but also pledged themselves in presence of each other, to do their utmost to secure his return.

"If the editor of the Prototype wishes to sow dissension in the Conservative ranks, and thus divide the party in order to give an easy victory to Mr. Niles, or any other Radical candidate, let him come out boldly and say so, he knew long before the nomination that Mr. Horton's name would be brought forward, and surely that was the time for him to urge his objections, if he had any, instead of lying by until after a nomination has taken place, and then setting up his opinion, forsooth! against that of the chosen delegates of the county.

He says poor Mr. Notman, (and pity is next of kin to lore) was sacrificed because he had read Coke and Blackstone, when he well knows that Mr. Notman was not sacrificed on account of his law but his politics! not because he had read Coke and Blackstone, but because the Conservatives of the township of London rose up to a man in defence of those great Conservative principles which they have always maintained, and which they know Mr. Horton possesses, against a man whom they knew to be a demagogue and a clear grit of the first water. No, no, Mr. Editor, this won't do, they have not forgotten the course you adopted to blackball our present worthy member, Crowell Wilson, Esq., and although they may have forgiven you for that, they will not allow you to indulge in any more such freaks, impotent an unavailing though they be.

AN ELECTOR.

Provincial.

Mr. Cameron on Temperance.

From the Perth Standard.

Malcolm Cameron proceeds that he is a devoted champion of the Temperance cause—a second Father Mathew, in fact. But does his actions bear out his assertion in this respect? We think not. In his late tour through these counties he lectured several times in favor of the Main Law, contending stoutly that it should become the law of the land, and that no person should be returned as a representative to parliament who was opposed to this measure. But at the same time that he was advocating this course, he was endeavouring to whitewash Mr. Hincks, who is one of the dead-set enemies to this measure in the house. This was consistency with a vengeance. Again, in the new Post office regulations, papers devoted to temperance, were to be free of postage! Now, hardly any paper is devoted exclusively to temperance, or any other subject; but there are some papers which are chiefly devoted to the advocacy of temperance, such as the Toronto Sun of temperance and the Montreal Advocate, Mr. Cameron insisted that the Advocate shall go free, but that the small rate of postage shall be charged on the Sun. This partial conduct is in consequence of the Sun sometimes smoking out, and showing Mr. Cameron up in his true colors; while it is the best and most consistent temperance paper in the province. Mr. Cameron has lately been making a fool of himself at Perth, in a speech one day, and contradicting it the next.—Quebec Paper

RUMORS OF A THREATENED INVASION OF CANADA BY RUSSIA.

MONTREAL, March 15, 1854.

A strange story appeared some days ago in a Quebec paper, to the effect that in consequence of advices from England, the Provincial Post Office authorities had seized a letter intended for the Russian government containing a programme of an intended invasion of Canada by Russian soldiers, via the United states. It was looked upon as a hoax but to-night it is announced by telegraph from Quebec, that the writer of the letter had been seized, but no proof of treason had been found—in consequence of his having had time to destroy his letters—and that 10,000 militia are to be called out. The matter is still considered as a humbug of some kind.

Rascally attempt to extort Money.

On Saturday morning, a German named Ernst, and his wife and servant girl, were brought up before His Worship the Police Magistrate, in company with another German doctor, named Schack, charged with brutally beating and extorting money, by threats from Alderman March. The case created considerable excitement, the Hall being densely crowded. From the evidence given by the Chief of Police, who got most of his statements from the parties accused. It appears that Mr. March went into Ernst's Saloon on Young Street, on Tuesday last, he asked for paper and ink, and went up stairs to write, and after remaining some time. Ernst came into the room and charged him with insulting his (Ernst's) wife. Ernst then shut the door and commenced a violent attack on Mr. March, which continued at intervals, for about three hours, till Mr. March had got a pretty good beating. Ernst threatened to bring an action against Mr. March, when Doctor Schack, who was in the house at the time, interfered, and proposed a settlement by Mr. March drawing up promissory Notes at 10 months in favour of Ernst, for the sum of One Thousand Dollars. Mr. March being a good deal frightened, as well as beaten, did so, by signing four promissory notes, which were drawn up by the worthy Doctor, for £50 each and two for £25 each. As soon as he got out of their hands, he gave information to the Chief of Police, who proceeded to Ernst's house, and arrested him, and his wife, and Servant girl. Four of the notes were got up on Ernst, the remaining two for £25 each, it seems were transferred to the Doctor, as his share in the transaction. The Chief then proceeded to the Doctor's house, on Richmond Street, and arrested him. Upon asking him for the notes, he at first refused to give them, but afterwards he produced one of them, and said he had got the other discounted by Mr. Charles Durand. His Worship postponed the case till Mr. March is able to make his appearance to give evidence, as at present in a very precarious state. The prisoners were remanded, His Worship refusing bail.—Patriot.

DESTRUCTION OF THE GALT BRIDGES.—We extremely regret to learn, that in consequence of the sudden breaking up of the ice on the Grand River, above Galt—the two bridges crossing the River at that place gave way and were totally destroyed.

DELIGHTFUL COUNTRY RESIDENCE.

New Brick

FAMILY RESIDENCE!!

WITH

TEN ACRES OF LAND ATTACHED,

TWO MILES from the TOWN of LONDON,

FOR SALE, BY AUCTION.

E. EMERY

HAS received instructions, from Mr. R. A. Mitchell, to submit to public competition, at the City Auction Mart, Dundas Street, London, on Wednesday, March 29, at Two o'clock.

That beautifully situated parcel or tract of Land being Lot E. & F. Concession C., Gore of London, Hamilton Road, about two miles from the Court House, Town of London, containing ten Acres, with a substantial two story brick house, fitted up in the best manner, to render it both comfortable and convenient, containing breakfast, dining and drawing rooms, seven good bed rooms, bath-room, capital kitchen, cellar and wood shed, all well supplied with excellent soft and spring water, with brick tanks and pumps attached; the out-buildings and offices are conveniently arranged, there being a capital frame stable and carriage house, etc.

The land has been recently cleared of stumps, levelled and cultivated, with a good young orchard, and partially planted with ornamental trees and shrubs, and with a small outlay in additional planting and laying out the ground, a most beautiful villa residence may be made, and being fronting the Hamilton Road the passing scene is constantly kept up, relieving the usual monotony of a country abode; it is within half-a-mile of the River Thames, and surrounded with the most picturesque scenery, with delightful rides and walks in its vicinity, and any person desirous of a so near to Town, will find this well deserving of their attention, as few properties can command all the advantages which this possesses, and with the increasing value of property, and the easy terms of payment, it is a very rare opportunity to be met with.

A part of the Furniture, which is all new, will be sold to the purchaser of the house and lot, if required, by private sale.

TERMS:

One-fourth of the purchase by a bankable note at 3 months, with interest, balance in five equal annual instalments, with interest on the unpaid principal sum yearly. Deed given and Mortgage taken on the property.

☞ The property can be viewed any day previous to the sale, between the hours of eleven and three o'clock, Sundays excepted.

TO PRINTERS.

A NEW Edition of the Specimen Book of BRUCE'S NEW YORK TYPE FOUNDRY has been published in September, 1853, and will be given to those Proprietors of Printing Offices who will send for it, or it will be forwarded them by mail, on receipt, in advance, of 50 cents for the postage.

In it are exhibited many articles never before shown: there have been added to the Foundry new varieties of Roman Types, from Nine-line Pica to Pearl, various imitations of writing, a great number of Fancy Founts, Borders both Plain and Illuminated, Labor-saving Rules, and a complete Foundry of Germans.

The type now manufactured are cast from a new combination of metal of great durability, and are usually kept on hand in large quantities. Every fancy fount is sold by weight, and at the printed prices, which are from 10 to 25 per cent. less than those of some other foundries. All other printing materials are furnished at manufacturers prices, either for cash or credit.

Printers wishing to open accounts with me, or whose dealings have been long suspended, are requested to accompany their orders with city references, to prevent delay.

Printers of Newspapers who choose to publish this advertisement, including this note, three times before the 1st of August, 1854, and send me one of the papers, will be paid for it in type when they purchase five times the amount of their bill from me, of my own manufactures, selected from my specimens.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of

Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced numbers to commend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. L. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreano, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1845 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health, I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which nature sinks and life becomes a burthen.—Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business as it entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.
JOHNSON BURKE,
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. And therefore delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of sinking, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, lassitude and at times pain or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompanies the highest perfection of health which natural purity of the BLOOD. What artificial appendages equal that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What paints can compare with the crimson and colored blood rushing in unlimited roseate hue through the transparent texture of the skin? What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? DR. HALSEY'S wine supplies the place of all cosmetricks. The use of this excellent wine in a short time creates pure, rich blood which, coursing through the veins, penetrates the minute fibres that verge towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, imparting a vivid, rosy color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes.

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rutgers street.

NEW YORK, July 7th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister from her youth had been in very delicate health, emaciating frequently of weakness of the chest attended with a cough. At all the ages of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to commencing with your medicines she had not been able to get out of her house. Her countenance was pale, emaciated, yellow and sickly. Her face and neck was covered with disagreeable pimples every where, much around her cough increasing. In fine, she bore every appearance of soon becoming an unhappy victim to consumption. At this time I procured me her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which are continued using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of recovery was uncommonly good appetite, her face finally became smooth and her cough left entirely. Her health is now strong and vigorous and presents the best example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MANWELL.

DR. HALSEY'S

GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are coated with pure Gum Arabic, an important preparation for which Dr. Halsey has received the only Gold Medal ever granted on Pills by the Government of the United States.

Dr. Halsey's Forest Wine and Gum-coated Forest Pills have been pronounced the most extraordinary PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THE REGENERATION & RESTORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.

The life principle of man is the blood, no sooner are those organs of the stomach which secrete the blood, cleansed of spurious matter and restored to healthy action by the use of the Forest Wine and pure rich blood made to flow in the veins, by the use of the Forest Wine, than disease begins to vanish and strength and energy of body return. Thus is the principle on which is founded these great medicines, and by which nearly all diseases are cured.

The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles, with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One Dollar per bottle, or six bottles for Five Dollars. Gum-coated Forest Pills, 25c. per box.

A.T. STRONG, Esq.	J. DOUTRE, Esq.
A. M'DONALD, Esq.	W. HENDERSON, Esq.
J.H. PHILLIPS, Esq.	P. COOPER, Esq.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each members being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0

0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 103, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster, That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms that is to say That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or facsimiles of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Boron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, tery, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune; these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

HERMAN KORDES.

London, Nov. 15, 1853.

I BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence there have been false reports, taking the advantage of Mr. Gaunalt, my uncle, compelling him, through false swearing, to pay my debts, as partner, which he never was. There were parties who certainly swore to falsehoods, through evil designs and animosity, which they hold against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my baking business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and despatch on the shortest notice.

COMPOUND
CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London, C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. REDFORD & Co.,
Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aromatic flavour and peculiar bitter flavour in which (to those sentol Medicinal qualities, appears to be largely infused and well preserved) and as this vegetable tonic a highly useful in those forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone of the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with on the continent), your cordial will, I should say, form an unobjectionable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Redford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Preparation of this valuable Tonic to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial,

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galtonic Embrocation. This Galtonic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or muscles of Gout, Tic Doloreux, Lumbago, Sciatica and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Ets. Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Stiffness of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deformity of Diseases, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, infact, the vitality of life, and that disease, so many of its most painful forms, is entirely owning to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportion. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who does not keep pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which does not make its appearance without the statement of wonderful cures, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galtonic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Comfort and Relief for the Afflicted.
NO ONE MEDICINE FOR ALL DISEASES.

W. C. SWEETS
CELEBRATED FAMILY MEDICINES

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,
Cures all Pains, Cramps, Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague, in the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head Ache, &c;

HIYATO CHINESE BALSAM,
Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Cholic, Pains, &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them much good. I have first used it in case of Sore Throat and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.
Respectfully yours, JOHN DOTY.
Rochester, March 23rd. 1852.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.
Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is
SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application.—Cures all Ulcerated Sore Throat, Piles, Felons, Sore Feet, Blisters and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.
Try it: you will not regret it,

TO W. C SWEET.

DEAR SIR.—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure, except by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price. I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.
JOHN PERRY.
Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry; and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.
LYAS WOOD.—Keeper of the Wilson Hotel.
LUTHER WILSON.—Merchant.
Thousands of Testimonies of the above character as handed.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for Pell-Evil, Fistulas, Scratches, Sand-Cracks, Old Sores with Fistulous Formed, Saddle-Galls, Fresh Wounds, Wind Galls of every description, Ringbone, Spavin, Coke, Knee, Coffin Joints, Sweeny, Cracked heels, Sprains and Bruises, Lameness or Weakness of the Joints, contraction of the Muscles, Callous Tumors, Poll-Evil, Fistula and Quitter, Hoon Distemper in Cattle, Hoof-Ail, Black-Hoof, &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL REASONABLE CASES.

Facts are stubborn things. The medicine is not surpassed by any as yet known for the above diseases. It has cured, more of Pell-Evil, Fistula and its numbers than any other Medicine prepared for those diseases of horses and Cattle—no Gargling Oil excepted. As names and honors, as flowery words are not to every kind, it is needless of this medicine, we publish but a few from the many thousands we have in possession; but suffice to say, jug in knowing.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned, have for years used and seen used Sweet's Black Oil for horses and can safely recommend it to the public as a superior preparation for scratches, galls, cuts, bruises, Mosquito bites, and for every kind. It is thought much of by those who have used it. We would most respectfully recommend it for horses, but to give the preference to none particularly to Sweet's Black Oil. We would advise every horse owner to keep a bottle of the above Oils on hand, for as friends use will save time and money.

Fire and Life Insurance?

Royal Insurance Company.
CAPITAL £2,000,000.
Or Ten Million Dollars with a very large surplus.

HEAD OFFICES.
Royal Insurance Buildings, Liverpool; and 29, Lombard Street, London, England.

LONDON AGENCY,
MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund for contribution—the capital stock of this company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal, in 1852—has practically shown to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:—

☞ Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to two-thirds of its net amount—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportions by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premiums, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 35 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississip River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and re-cross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another—or from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississip River.

Further information regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

Seals for School Sections,

ENGRAVED BY

GUN MAKER,
LONDON C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases, by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Poetry.

The Tale of the Tub, or the Strange Things that Happened to Bishop M'Hale.

A New Irish Ballad to the tune, "Which Nobody can Deny."

Come all ye gay fellows from Cork to Kinsale,
Who love a good song or a tragical tale;
Attend to my lay, and you'll hear without fail
Of a strange thing that happened to Bishop M'Hale,
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny.

'Twas all in Maronia the same come to pass;
Such a crowd at the chapel the like never was,
Some knelt on the steps and some knelt on the grass,
And they all knelt together attending high mass,
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny,

When all of a sudden—I tell a true story—
Up starts in the middle old Denny Mac Rory,
Crying "look, Judy, look at the Bishop before ye,
For I'm blest but he's got on a bright crown of glory!
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny,

Then Judy looked up, and she saw such a sight,
As dazzled her two eyes and bothered her quite;
For, behold you, the Bishop was clad like a sprite,
In a blazing array and a wonderful light,—
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny.

You may think how the people were struck with surprise;
Some held up their hands and some turned up their eyes;
Some thought it an angel came down in disguise,
And some thought the Bishop was bound for the skies,
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny.

Till that heretic Bet gave her neighbor a nudge,
(For Bet at the Bishop had always a grudge,)
Saying, "Troth, it's the sunshine reflected, I judge,
From that tub full of water behind Father Fodge,
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny,

Ere the words were well out, up spoke young Father John:
"Sure enough, boys," says he, "it's a miracle you;
And never you mind how old Betty goes on,
For she still was a goose and a great Omadawn,
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny,

"It's a miracle, boys, if there ever was one,
By ever a saint in the calendar done;
It's as plain as a pike-staff and clear as the sun,
And the man that denies it's the son of a gun.
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny.

"It may seem a strange thing to this silly poor dunce,
That has hardly a nut's weight of wit in her sconce;
But, though heretics laugh and would call it romance,
The likes was as common as ditch-water once,
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny.

"Did you never hear tell of the King of the Vandals,
Struck blind by the light of St. Anthony's sandals?
Or St. Patrick, whose teeth were so bright, says M'Handles,
That whenever he laughed they had no need of candles?
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny.

"Or blessed Saint Bridget—and oh! could I utter
How she changed fish to flesh, and turned stones into butter—
The soles of whose feet did so gloriously glitter
That they made a clear stream of the dirtiest gutter?
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody nan deny.

"And was not Saint Crispin, as every one knows,
So gloriously over by stripes and by blows,
That, when he was hung up to die, by the toes,
The old Romans lighted their pipes at his nose?
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny.

"And if honor like that to a cobbler was showed
That lived in a stall by the side of the road,
Why shouldn't her greater on him be bestowed
That's a Bishop, no less, and a Father in God,
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny.

"For, what says Saint Austin—"De Hibernicarum
Aqua mirabili—whiskey goleorum—
Nemora, fenarat, hic, hoc, et horum,
Sanguis et corpis—bonh!—diabolorum!
Which nobody can deny,
Which nobody can deny.

Then, turning to Bel—"So, you impudent targe ye,
You'd set yourself up for as wise as your clergy!
But fasting and penance shall properly purge ye
Or I'll take my own whip, and it's neatly I'll scourge ye,
Which nobody can deny, deny,
Which nobody can deny."

"Your Reverence's pardon I humbly implore," Cries Bet kneeling down on the sill of the door,
"For

LONDON CANADA WEST, TIMES AND GENERAL ADVERTISER.

...until the starting and winning [illegible] were placed; this was the favorite stand, a long line of carriages of every description occupied it; ladies were there in chick and leaves in the Vauxhall ombrosa," for everything distingue and beautiful for counties round, was on the ground.

At twelve o'clock a warning bugle was heard and from their respective cantonments the horses slowly approached the same point; each as he entered the field was scrutinised by a crowd of horsemen, who were assembled for that purpose at the gate; with short interval, a grey, a brown, and two bays passed review; they had their respective admirers, but caused no great sensation, and expectation "was still on tip toes;" presently a buzz was heard, a horse approached, and Firebrand, a noted racing hunter from Roscommon appeared; he looked to be in capital condition, and from having won four cups already, his character was deservedly first-rate.

"But louder yet the clamor grew," as the pet of the day, the far famed English horse Comet, appeared; he was a splendid thorough-bred chesnut, full sixteen hands high, and "looking every inch" a racer; I felt my cheek blanche as I examined him; he was indeed a formidable opponent; and as his late owner, Captain M——, reputed justly to be the best field horseman in the kingdom, was to ride him, no wonder that I began to dread the contest.

He was led off, and my forlorn charger was impatiently expected. In the few minutes which elapsed before his entree, I and my man-killer, were subjected to many a sporting jest; at length the brother of Mousecatcher appeared, and on he came with a careless toss of the head, as if he had never finished a stable boy; closely sheeted as he was, his appearance was very different from what had been anticipated; the knowing ones looked more knowing, and Jemmy Joyce swore with a grin, that he seemed "mighty-like a Tartar."

While the horses were leading to the starting-post, I galloped up to the rise to the place my pretty mistress occupied in an open carriage: "tell me, pray you," said her cousin, "what spell is over Rosa; know you the secret that robs her of her roses?"—"Shall I restore them?" I replied; and unbuoying my top coat, I disclosed my handsome jacket. When it met her eyes, her cheeks were dyed with blushes, and left me at no loss to conjecture whence my fancy favor came.

Again the bugle sounded; Comet and Firebrand occupied the attention of the crowd, while Selim was stripped and saddled behind a large marquee; to assume my gay cap and doff my coat was the business of a minute; my competitors were already mounted, and I was impatiently called for, when from behind the tent, a dashing horse and gallant rider issued; our appearance elicited a murmur of applause; the owners of Comet and Firebrand looked blank enough; and feith they had good reason.

As we drew up in line, I thought the English racer appeared not to be in full force; but the determined countenance of his inimitable jockey, dressed in black and buff stripes looked alarming; nor was Firebrand without his friends; and the green cap was clothed fully against everything but Comet; as to me, people seemed afraid to back, or bet against me; and those who had laid the odds last night pretty heavily were edging now, as fast as they could meet with customers.

Off we went in a bunch; the bays, brown and grey, making the running; I saw at once that the pace though severe for them, was nothing to Comet, Firebrand and my friend the Man-killer; after a mile we tailed them off, and had the race to ourselves.

One moiety of the ground was broken into tillage fields and enclosures; the other was open meadow, affording excellent galloping, and interspersed with stiff fences. Hereabouts having cleared the paddocks, we increased the speed, and came out at a killing pace.

On entering the grass lands, I found my rivals could not conveniently go faster, and that I was up to it well; the pace was indeed beautiful; for the next mile a sheet would cover us; the tenors were taken in line; and none could tell whether black, yellow or green was foremost.

Half a mile from home, there was a fence of tremendous size; it was a ditch with a drain at either side, and the face that we approached, staccaded with stumped thorns. It was in truth, "a regular rasper," and was distinguished by the country people "par excellence," as the big leap; as we neared it, my companions gathered the energies of their horses for the trial, and Selim looked as if he were he'd inclined to decline it; for the first time, he felt the steel; and with a glorious effort, cleared this formidable barrier in a style that drew from the multitude a thunder of applause; not so my rivals: Firebrand fell and staked himself, while Comet, by his rider's horsemanship, was indifferently brought across, but staggering, he came down on landing, and in the mistake lost ground he could not recover during the run home, he did make a wonderful struggle to pull up; it was in vain, for when I crossed the break neck fence I had the race hollow.

Amid deafening cheers I was carried from the scales in triumph; I was declared even by Jemmy Joyce, a youth of promise, and my Man-killer the best weight-carrier in the kingdom.

Every tale has its moral, and so has mine; never condemn a horse untried; for many a good one has thus been sacrificed; I saved Selim from slavery and a jingle, and he won me four cups and carried me four seasons as I was never carried afterwards; nay, more, I owe my connubial happiness to my "bonny bay." Rosa was an heiress, and I a younger son; a rich rival was encouraged by her guardian, and in a few days he was expected to make his addresses in form. I was blushed with victory, and she flattered to see her fairy favor foremost in the field; at the ball that night, my eloquence was irresistable, she smiled upon my suit, and to end uncertainty, and save her guardian future trouble, eloped with me next morning to Gretna.

Years of happiness have proved how fortunate our union was; and if some reminiscences of early indiscretion will sometimes intrude upon my memory, on two eras I can look back with unallayed delight: the morning when I rode my first steeple chase and the evening that made Rosa mine.

Foreign Intelligence.

What and where is Nebraska?

Perhaps some of our readers should like to know something about the present condition, extent and population of Nebraska. One would suppose from the bluster made by Douglass and his creatures, that it was vital to the salvation of the country that its interest should be attended to at once. The commissioner of Indian affairs states that on the 11th of October, when he left the territory, there was no settlement made in any part of Nebraska. From all the information he could obtain, there was but three white man in the territory, such as were there by authority of law, and those adopted by marriage or adoption into Indian families.—Judging from the space it occupies on the map, Nebraska contains an area of territory about four times that of New York. It is bounded on the east by Kansas and the Indian territory, on the north by the Indian and North Western territory, on the west by Oregon and Utah, and on the south by New Mexico, Texas, and a portion of the Indian territory. A corner of Iowa and Missouri approach, we should suppose, within fifty or sixty miles of the Eastern extremity; a strip of territory occupied by the Ottoes and half-breed Indians, watered by the Little Nemhaw river interfering. The principal rivers are—the North Fork of the La Platte, the Arkansas, the Blue, Little Blue, and Kansas Rivers. The Santa Fe route passes through the southern section, while the Oregon route traverses its northern section. Geographically, it lies between 36 deg. 30 minutes, and 43 deg. of North latitude, and between 96 deg. and 113 deg. of longitude—thus comprising an area of seven and and a half by sixteen degrees, or about 486 miles broad by 1,139 long.

Tremendouous Gale—Roofs blown off—Marine Disasters.

The wind, which had blown roughly all day yesterday at about six o'clock rapidly freshened until it blew the most tremendous gale which has been felt here for years.—Dust and gravel flew in dense clouds, signs blew down, and dry goods boxes danced cotillions upon the side walk.

A portion of the roof upon the store of Haywood & Woods, Water street, was rolled up; and part of the roof of Chittenden's livery stable was carried away, as was the gable end of a small building on River street. The lead which crowned the ridge of Plymouth Church was rolled up as if it had been paper.

As the evening trains came in, the waves made a clean breach over them, and it is wonderful that none of the depot buildings or piers were injured.

This morning, the body of a man was found washed up on the railroad pier. He had evidently been in the water a long time, as nearly all his clothes and hair had washed off.

The schooner Ohio, which went out yesterday with a load of coal for Sandusky, succeeded in regaining this port with the loss of her deck load, part of which was thrown and part washed overboard.

The schooner Buttles, which went out yesterday, light for a cargo of lumber, is reported ashore near Avon Point, but it is hoped she got into Black River.

The scow Mary Ann is ashore just above West Pier.

We are informed that a large portion of the walls of the Lunatic Asylum, now building in Newburgh, were blown down by the gale of last night.

Great Fire in New Orleans.

THIRTEEN STORES BURNED—LOSS THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.

A terrible fire has occurred in this city.—It commenced about midnight last evening, and before the flames were subdued, thirteen stores were laid in ashes.

The fire was discovered in Perry's furniture store, and from thence it extended to Natchez and Gravier Streets—consuming some of the finest buildings with the large stocks of goods contained therein.

The loss by the conflagration is estimated at from three hundred to five hundred thousand dollars, a considerable portion of which is covered by insurance.

It is feared that a number of lives have been lost by the falling of the walls, though but one body has yet been found, that of Mr. Woodruff, foreman of the "Exempt Company," and an old and highly respected citizen.

Mr. McLeod, the foreman of another of our city companies, was dangerously injured and is not expected to recover.

Three others have also been rescued from the ruins, but their injuries are not considered serious.

SECOND DESPATCH.

The fire broke out on Magazine Street, in Messrs. Wood & Perry's furnishing establishment, and burnt with great rapidity.—The Canal Bank, though in imminent danger fortunately escaped, uninjured. Mr. McLeod, reported above as injured, has a leg and arm broken and his recovery is very doubtful.

The total los is $300,000, of which $228,500 is insured.

Great Gale—Unroofing of Houses—Loss of Life, &c.

The New York and Albany papers of the 18th and 20th instant, are filled with the details of a terrible gale which prevailed over the eastern parts of the Atlantic States on the 18th inst. We shall probably soon hear of shipwrecks and disasters at sea, even more appalling than those which occurred in January. From Boston the Telegraph of 19th inst. is as follows:—

A heavy north-west gale prevailed here yesterday and last night, but moderated this morning. The gale lasted 24 hours, and has undoubtedly occasioned a heavy loss of property and probably many lives, as the wind blew with great violence all along the coast from Cape Cod to Nova Scotia. In Waltham, Fitchburg, Pepperell, Ashland, and other towns in the interior of this State, chimneys were blown down, buildings unroofed, and other damages done, but we have heard of no fatal accident.

In our harbor, such was the violence of the storm that the steamship Arabia and ships Parliament, Bell Rock, and several other vessels parted their cables and nearly careened over, but were finally secured.—The bark Yuba was driven ashore on George's Island, but succeeded in getting off and went to sea for safety.

The gale is represented to have been unusually violent at Portland, Bangor, Eastport, and Calais. At Bangor there was a heavy fall of snow.

THE TORNADO AT ALBANY.

We find in our Albany papers of Saturday afternoon the following particulars of the storm in that city and vicinity:—

Never before, in the recollection of the oldest inhabitant, has our city been visited with so terrible a gale. The wind shifted from the south to the west and blew quite hard, increasing in fierceness until day-break Buildings were shaken to their foundation, trees uprooted, fences blown down, chimneys scattered in reckless profusion, and window shutters clashing and crashing in terrific confusion. Our citizens were very naturally alarmed at this state of things, and precautionary measures, as far as practicable, were taken to prevent more disastrous results.

The gale continued to increase in intensity as the day advanced, and at ten o'clock resembled a hurricane, unparalleled in the history of our city. Bricks from chimney tops were thrown about like snow-flakes, and scuttles, borne by the blast, were sailing through the air like paper.

A long list of particular instances of damage, followed the above.

THE GALE AT TROY.—MEN KILLED.

Another such tremendous blow as that of to-day the "oldest inhabitant" can hardly call to mind. Buildings unroofed and blown down, piles of lumber scattered, boards, signs, chimneys and scuttles, slating and timbers, flying about like feathers. The river presents a singular appearance. Nothing can live on it; and so strong is the gale that it licks up the heads of the waves, carrying them off in a spray, creating a continual spectacle of rainbows, sometimes like that seen at Niagara.

Several persons were injured and some killed by falling chimneys, &c.

ARE THE CALIFORNIA MINES FALLING OFF?

From the New York Herald of Thursday.

Some discussion has lately arisen in regard to the depletion of the gold mines of California. As yet we are unable to arrive at any reliable conclusion in regard to them; but we must certainly admit that the indications at the present moment are rather unfavorable to the continuance of their productiveness. We have before stated that there was no doubt of the existence of plenty of gold in the mines; but the question has arisen whether the future cost of procuring it will not overbalance the profit, in which event the best claims would be speedily abandoned, and the production would depend entirely upon chance discoveries of new mines, and the luck of roving emigrants.

The shipments for the last three or four months have shown a decided falling off, which carries with it a certain weight of reasoning that there is a diminished production; while on the other hand it is contended that the season has been very unfavorable to the miners, and to this fact is attributable the seeming falling off in the amount of gold. But it must be remembered that the winter is always adverse to the profitable working of claims, and it has usually been the case that the miners during that time have flocked to San Francisco with the product of their labor of the previous season, for the purpose of making purchases and transmitting funds to their homes, by which means the actual amount of gold dust in that city has been greatly swelled beyond what is usual during the months when the miners are seeking the precious mineral.—As an evidence of the above fact we subjoin a table of the shipment of gold dust from San Francisco during the month of February, 1353, which month is considered about the close of the unpropitious season:—

GOLD SHIPPED FROM SAN FRANCISCO IN FEBRUARY, 1853.

1st, Steamship	Tennessee	$2,000,000
" "	Cortes	139,489
16th, "	California	2,890,558
" "	Brother Jonathan	900,000
		$5,330,047

Six million, three hundred and thirty-three thousand dollars left last Francisco for the Atlantic in the month of February, 1853, and all with the exception of about two hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars, was landed in this city. Now let us look at the shipments for the same month in 1854; and after a comparison is made very little consideration will be required to settle any one that the mines of California are not as productive as they have been in previous years, and it immediately becomes manifest that they are, to a certain extent, giving out, at least so far as individual labor is concerned; and we very much question whether the most profitable application of machinery can ever bring them back to their former days of productiveness:—

1st, Steamship	Cortes	$806,219
" "	Columbia	646,062
16th, "	Brother Jonathan	908,026
" "	California	978,383
	Total February, 1854	$3,338,690
	Total February, 1853	6,333,047
	Decrease	$2,994,438

In January, 1852, the shipments from San Francisco amounted to $1,014,717, and during the same month in the present year they were $3,382,279, showing a falling off of $632,438. This added to the decrease in February, makes the total falling off this year, as compared with 1853, upwards of three million, six hundred thousand dollars. Will the mines give out?

LIVERPOOL MONTHLY TIMBER REPORT.

The arrivals from British North America into the docks of the Mersey, containing timber, during the month, are 25 vessels, 16,345 tons; for the corresponding period last year, 5 vessels, 4,240 tons arrived.—The consumption during the month of timber and deals has been of an average character, and the closing prices of last month have been maintained, and in some instances advanced upon for square timber; spruce deals have been rather lowered in the market, owing to an unlooked for sale of a large quantity in the yard, by a large dealing house, at a very great reduction on the former value, and at considerably less than the import cost; and this at a time when they were much lower in price than the commonest pine timber, and with all the advantage of sawing, carriage, and measure, in their favor.

BALTIC TIMBER is on the advance; and the sudden decline which took place, owing to the pressure of so many cargoes arriving simultaneously, as they did last month, has been removed. Such occurrences being always taken advantage of by the dealers, owing to proper accommodation not being afforded by the Dock Trustees to the importers for holding their imports at a moderate rate; thus forcing them to sell at the price the combined trade may fix, or to store at most exorbitant rates of per centage, carriage and rent, which few importers will undertake, being compelled to submit to the first sale; rather than have these annoyances, it is taking a considerable rise in price to cover these in time. The importers have also another and very serious grievance to complain of, viz., the vessels in many instances being detained until they come on demurrage from want of room on the quays. We do not think that the Dock Trustees have any right to cripple the space allotted for vessels to discharge their cargoes upon, by converting the quays into timber stores, or if they do as they have done on the West Quay of the Brunswick Dock, we think they should be held liable for re-demurrage caused by want of space. At the present time there is, and during the late pressure there was, little more than half the quay space at the Brunswick Dock for discharging the cargoes upon as there was in 1848; under these circumstances vessels cannot get one fair day's work done during two, and thus detention enhances the rate of freights to this port considerably.

Here (Birkenhead) no such delay can possibly occur, as the timber is discharged into the water, rafted, chain and staples supplied, and removed at once to the store at the moderate rate of 3d per foot, calliper measure.

NORTH AMERICAN TIMBER.—A cargo of St. John, of 19 inches average at 2s. 5d. per foot, and a cargo of 20½ inches average at 2s. 5d. per foot. This cargo was yarded.—The last sale of Quebec we have heard of, is 150 logs of good quality, say 90 feet average, at 2s. 3d. per foot.

RED PINE.—This is a very scarce article, and commands high rates.

QUEBEC OAK.—The stock is very light and the demand good, therefore high rates are obtained for that on the market.

QUEBEC ELM.—The stock is remarkably light, and the price, as regards former years, is exorbitant.

QUEBEC ASH.—This sells as per quality; we can scarcely give a quotation, as it varies so much.

BIRCH.—St. John, with cargo as broken stowage, has sold at 2s. 2d. per foot; Prince Edward's Island at 2s. 1d. per foot; Parabro,' by auction, at 22d. per foot; and a parcel of Charlotte Town at 2s. per foot.

QUEBEC DEALS.—Yellow have been sold by auction at £13 per standard for third quality, £14 10s. per standard for second, and £17 10s. per standard for first quality.

CIRCASSIAN WALNUT WOOD.—This, by private, is selling from 8d. to 2s. 6d. per foot

PITCH PINE.—A very fine parcel, just imported, is being sold by retail at extravagant rates—say from 2s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per foot; 135 logs of Savannah sold at 2s. 3½d. per foot.

UNITED STATES STAVES.—These are arriving in considerable quantities, and sell readily.

NEW BRUNSWICK AND NOVA SCOTIA FIR PLANKS, &c.—Owing to circumstances we have already alluded to, have declined in value in this market, and we believe it is the exception to every market in the kingdom. St. John Spruce have been sold by a dealer to a broker at £12 10s. per standard; a cargo of Spruce and Yellow sold at £13 per standard; a cargo, principally 3 x 7, at £12 10s. per standard, and a cargo, consisting of Boards Yellow and Spruce Deals, at £13 3s. 9d. per standard.

STAVES, Quebec Standard.—Merchants' le have been sold at £63 per standard and culls at £52 10s. per standard; W. O. P. of merchantable quality sell at £24 to £26 per mille, and culls at £19 to £20 per mille.

BALTIC TIMBER.—The arrivals during the month are two vessels 506 tons, against two vessels 691 tons for the corresponding period last year; the sales during this period have been by retail, excepting two cargoes which have been bought by the Liverpool Dock Trustees at 2s. 6d. per foot—the cargoes being crown and best middling. Last month crown Memel sold at 2s. 4d. per foot, and best middling, at the present time, could be bought at 2s. 2d. per foot.

DEALS AND BATTENS.—St. Petersburg have sold at £21 per standard, a few short Swedish at £13 2s. per standard.

LATHWOOD.—Sells according to quality, when separate from cargo at 35s. to 37s. 6d. per lineal foot per fathom.

Expedition to the Baltic.

As a powerful fleet has been placed at the disposal of Sir Charles Napier for operations in the Baltic, and it is understood that the reduction of Cronstadt is to be attempted preparatory to an attack upon St. Petersburg, but a few miles distant, a description of a great Russian seaport, as given by McCulloch, will doubtless be of interest to our readers:—

"Cronstadt is a strongly fortified maritime town of Russia in Europe, gov Petersburg, of which city it is the port, besides being the principal station of the Russian Navy. It stands on the S. E. extremity of the sandy island of Kotline in the gulf of Finland, about 20 m. W. Petersburgh. Lattitude 59 ○ 59 26 N., long. 29 ○ 49 30 E. Pop. variable, but inclusive of sailors, foreigners, &c. during the summer, generally between 40,000 and 50,000. Its shape is triangular, its base being towards the S. Being, as it were, the outwork of Petersburg, it is very strongly fortified. The narrow channel which bounds the island of Kotline S., and is the only practicable passage from the gulf of Finland to the east, is protected on the side of Cronstadt by a fortress erected on a detached islet; and on the opposite side by the batteries of the Riesbank, and the castle of Croslot. The streets of Cronstadt are regular and generally paved, but the houses are mostly of wood, and only one story in height. There are about 160 stone buildings, most of which belong to the government.—The town is divided into two grand sections, those of the commandant and the Admirality, and into four subdivision; it is traversed by two navigable canals, those of Peter the Great and of Catherine. The former commenced in 1721 and finished in 1752, is 3½ furlongs in length, by about 30 yards wide, and bordered with stonework. It is in the form of a cross, one of its arms communicating with a dock paved with granite, in which 10 ships of the line may be repaired at once. The Catherine canal, begun in 1782, is much more extensive, and bordered with granite; it communicates with the mercantile port, and is used chiefly for commercial purposes. Between these two canals is the Italian built and formerly inhabited by Prince Menschikoff, now a school for Baltic pilots, with 300 pupils. The other principal public buildings and establishments are, the naval hospital with 2,500 beds, the civil hospital, arsenal, cannon and ball foundry, admiralty barracks, custom house, Protestant college, several schools, nobility's club, three churches and two chapels appropriated to the Greek faith, and Lutheran, English, and Roman Catholic chapels. Peter the Great had a residence and a garden here; the latter continues to be a public promenade; but of the trees planted by the hand of Peter only a few remain: here is, however a bust of the great Emperor on a column, which bears an inscription that he founded Cronstadt in 1703. On the south side of the town are three ports; the east or Imperial port will accommodate 35 ships of the line, besides small vessels; the second or middle port, used chiefly for the equipment or repair of ships, has been already noticed, and has attached to it some building dock and pitch-houses and a powder magazine: the W. or mercantile port is capable of accommodating 600 vessels of any size. All these ports are very strongly fortified, of a convenient depth, and safe; but the freshness of the water injures ships which remain long in them; and the bay of Cronstadt is liable to be blocked with ice for several months of the year.

Two-thirds of the whole external commerce of Russia is carried on through Constradt.—Most ships load and unload here, and goods are conveyed to and from Petersburg by means of lighters the channel higher up being generally available only for vessels drawing not more than seven or eight feet of water.

Arrival of the "Africa."

KALAFAT NOT TAKEN.

Fall in Breadstuffs.

THE EASTERN WAR.

NEW YORK, March 28th, 9, A. M.

The Africa, from Liverpool, with dates to the 11th, arrived here this morning.

The statement that Kalafat was captured by the Russians was an atrocious falsehood, totally unfounded.

The 1st division of 14 British ships under Admiral Napier sailed from Portsmouth today for the Baltic, and reported that 3,000 British troops go to the Baltic for land service. The 77th regiment embarked at Liverpool on the 11th for Turkey.

The allied fleets were at Baleos Bay.

BREADSTUFFS.—Liberal arrivals and fine weather had caused dullness in the market.

ADDITIONAL BY THE "AFRICA."

The Greek Insurrection—Austria Cooperating with the Western Powers—Proclamation against Prussiering.

The Africa brought 95 passengers.

Lord John Russell was quite ill and unable to attend to his duties in the House on Friday. The House adjourned in consequence till Monday.

A dispatch received in Paris fully confirms the news of the attitude assumed by Prussia and Austria on the Eastern question, Austria expressed perfect willingness to join the Western Powers, but Prussia positively refuses on the ground that, as Prussia was not a maritime power she had but comparatively little interest in the matter.

VIENNA, 9th.

Prince Paskiewitch is appointed General-in-Chief to the Russian army on the Danube.

MALTA, 5th.

The 1st division of the expedition army have arrived here.

LONDON, 10th.

The Queen, yesterday, issued a proclamation against British subjects engaging in foreign service, or fitting out vessels for warlike purposes without special license.

VIENNA, 8th.

It is reported that the Russians were withdrawing from Kalafat. Archduke Albert will be Commander-in-Chief of Austria's south-eastern frontier.

CONSTANTINOPLE, 26th.

Sha Galata has been deposed at the instance of the Austrian internuncio.

A dispatch to the Morning Chronicle of the 10th from Athens, states that the Greek insurrection was extending to Messilla.—General Kanyas had joined the insurgents.—The city of Asda had been taken, and the Turks beaten in several encounters.

A serious conflict took place on the 17th February by night near Kalafat, between two divisions of the Russian army about 5,000 strong each. They were ordered to move by different routes upon a Turkish out post, which it was desirable to drive in. By some mistake the Russian divisions came into collision, each mistaking the other for their enemy, and fought with fury until daylight discloved the error. Their loss in killed and wounded was several hundreds.

Persia remains neutral, but is fortifying her Turkish frontier. The Affghans are attacking the kingdom of Candahar. Persia has offered her mediation. The Khan of Khiva had taken refuge at Bokhara, and summoned the neighboring Khans to take part in the struggle against Russia.

Advices from Bucharest state that on the 23rd ult. a Russian battery, between Ibrail and Matchin, attacked a Turkish battery; the cannonade lasted five hours, and it is said was to be continued on the following day.

The Marquis of Londonderry died at Holderness House, London, on the 5th instant.—He entered the army as Ensign Charles Stewart, in 1794 and served and was wounded in the expedition to Holland; distinguished himself greatly during the Peninsular War, where we find his name with approval at Talavera, Busaco, Fuentes d'Onor, Badajos, and Corrunna, and was especially charged with the supervision of King Barnadotte when that monarch was wavering in his desertion of Napoleon. Lord Londonderry was esteemed in private life, but did not shine much as a statesman. The malady which carried him off was inflamation of the lungs. The Bishop of Salisbury is also dead.

Sir Charles Napier's Speech

At the Dinner given to him by the Members of the Reform Club.

His health was drunk with three times three, followed by prolonged cheering.

SIR C. NAPIER was received with long and prolonged cheering. He said—My lord and gentlemen, I can scarcely find words to express to you my gratitude for the very handsome manner in which you have received my health. I am rather singularly situated at this moment, for I have on my left a noble lord who was one of the Lords of the Admirality when I began my career in the navy, and on my right I have my right hon. friend who is now the First Lord of the Admirality. The noble lord has entertained the company with some allusions to my agricultural pursuits, and has given me credit for having devised some plans for improving the agriculture of the country. He has, however, omitted one plan that I recommended to him as a means of getting young lambs early. (Great Laughter.) I will not repeat it here, but I shall be extremely happy to explain it to any gentleman who will apply to me on the subject. (Laughter) The noble lord has also followed me to Portugal, and where he has found all his amusing stories is quite astonishing to me. (A laugh.) On one point I must correct him, because he has given me credit which belongs to others.—He stated that I was the first who boarded the Portuguese line of battle ships. My gallant Captain Wilkinson, now an more, and my son who was lost in the Avenger were, however, the first persons who boarded that vessel. The noble lord has alluded to my campaigns in the north of Portugal.—There, fortunately, as well as in Syria, I was successful, and I hope to be so in the expedition upon which we are now about to embark. I cannot say we are at war, because we are still at peace, (great laughter) but I suppose we are very nearly at war, and probably when I get into the Baltic I'll have an opportunity of declaring war. (Loud cheers, laughter, and a cry of "Bravo Charley.") Certainly, if I have that opportunity, I hope it will end in a prosperous war, for I may safely say that this country never sent out such a splendid fleet as will sail for the Baltic in a few days. I think my right hon. friend (Sir J. Graham) and his coadjutors at the Admirality, deserves the greatest credit for having fitted such a fleet in such a manner after so long a peace.—(Loud cheers) My hon. friend the Surveyor of the Navy, has corrected the faults and errors that had been committed for a great number of years; and I don't think we could now point out a single fault in the construction of our ships. We have enormous line of battle ships that, with the screw, defy wind, tide, and every element I do not mean to say that our fleet is yet in order, but I believe, considering the officers who have been appointed to it, that it very soon will be. With the force, then, that we have, although it is not equal to the Russian force, I believe that by the assistance of the screw, we shall be able to attack a very superior force; and, I have not the slightest doubt, when we do so, that every sailor and every officer in our fleet will remember the words of Lord Nelson, that "England expects every man will do his duty." (Loud cheers.) The gallant Admiral concluded by proposing the "health of the First Lord of the Admirality," which was received with great applause.

The Manifesto; the Fraud Detected.

We direct especial attention to an article headed as above, which we have inserted from the Leader, (the Ministerial organ), we care not the source, provided the article be intended to expose deception and fraud, means too often adopted to carry ends in this country. We, though strenuous supporters of the Grand Trunk Railway, condemned the fraudulent map sent to England, sanctioned by certain members of the Canadian Ministry, because it was calculated to mislead, by representing the Great Western Railway as passing through the States, and the G. Trunk, the only line through Canada. Just so, the Leader, though advocating secularization, protests against secularization being carried by means of falsehood and deception, and deals a just castigation upon certain individuals rejoicing in the prefix of Rev. and justly asks, "have the churches authorized these miscellaneous Reverends to turn politicians, and commissioned them to preach political rancour, instead of the gospel?" and goes on to ask, "is there no safety for the country unless it be in the hands of a pack of retained priests of this and that sect?" Now we think that that class have been happily described by a popular English writer, who says, that instead of a "light" they are to be regarded as "a dark object between the scriptures and their congregations;" one gentleman, Mr. Goldsmith, deserves a passing remark, on being called on by his congregation to explain, he stated he advised his signature, not as minister of that church, but in his individual capacity, and that he did not, by that act, in any way presume to represent the New Connexion Church, but that the appendage of his name was added without his knowledge, similar disclaimers were made by others, but what matters it, the falsehood is patented, the manifesto goes forth, and those Reverend gentlemens names appear affixed to it as the representatives of their various congregations, and for the one hundred who read that document, carefully circulated by the secularizing papers, one will probably not see the explanation or denial; Mr. Goldsmith must be regarded as a Lusus Natura, this 'janus' will, we trust, give through the press, his new discovery in physical science, truly it savors a little of transubstantiation. We are aware that characters have been assumed, at different times, which have had no existence whatever in reality, many by means of a voluble tongue and a certain moral attribute vulgarly called impudence, contrived to gain the false character of a patriot and a man of honor; the former of which we assumed to enable him to obtain a good place or pension, and the latter to shield him from the rather disagreeable consequences of his impertinence and buffoonery, and such a person has succeeded in persuading the great mass of the thinking public, that he is an individual worthy of respect and admiration; whatever justification, expediency laymen may have, we cannot opine, but what excuse can be advanced by those claiming the rank of ministers of religion. It has been laid down by Locke that the only mode whereby we get knowledge of the existence of things without us, is "by sensation, grounded on the belief that our senses do not deceive us." Now it must be evident that very few could, in the nature of things be convinced in the existence of the Rev. Mr. Goldsmith, by this mode of connection it is therefore quite clear that this direct evidence of our senses unsupported by collateral arguments is a test to which our reason refuses assent. Now how will it be proved that the Rev. Mr. Goldsmith, who, we suppose, preaches against lying and against coveting his neighbors goods, can be the same who, when directed of his ministerial sanctity, practises in his other capacity, those very sins which he has condemned. His unity cannot be established, as it were, by his duality, his two natures are contradictory, the one of the other, they are like opposing forces. What standard may be taken to weigh this Reverend gentleman we are at a loss to determine, certainly not the standard of the word of God, the golden rule finds no favor in his manifesto. He may be considered, perhaps, by secularizers as a sample of a religious Prometheus, who anemated, for his own object, and called into existence a nomenis umbra, a political allos eyo, for the avowed purpose of humbugging and deceiving the public and enabling them to shelter themselves under "the shadow of the shade," when accused either of imbecility, weakness or firmness and due exercise of power, we cannot be surprised at this Rev. gentleman advocating voluntaryism, because no country, no matter how mormon its views may be, could devote any portion of its public revenues to sustain ministers holding such anti-moral and anti-religious views, perhaps we may expect a new essay on white lies. But we nearly forgot that our space is limited, and we shall, therefore, postpone till our next, further remarks based upon a statistical report in another issue of the Leader.

FAIRS.

Some time since we advocated the establishment of semi-annual Fairs, which, we think, would prove highly beneficial to the farmers.—We now copy particulars of the Spring Cattle Fair to be held at Woodstock, and trust Middlesex will follow suit. We are the more anxious to give this notice, as we perceive a condition is appended interesting to Londoners, viz: "To exhibit them at the London Provincial Show:

"A public Fair, for the sale of Horses, Cattle and every other kind of Farm Stock, will be held on the Agricultural Show Ground, at Woodstock, on Wednesday the 5th day of April next. The County Agricultural Society offers the following premiums, to be given on that occasion:

Agricultural Stallions—1st Prize, £3; 2nd Prize, £2; 3rd Prize, £1

Bulls—1st best, £1 10s; 2nd best, £1; 3rd best, £10s.

These to stand in this County during the Season. Prizes open to all who wish to compete, (not excepting the Stock of the Society's) but not to be paid until the end of the season.

Further it is resolved that the Society's Horse (the Suffolk Horse) shall serve only 80 mares during the season, a ballot will be taken on the above day, at the hour of noon, on the Show Ground, and those who wish to avail themselves of the use of the Horse, shall then apply for their tickets, on receiving which they shall pay £1 10s. for the season. If those entitled to Tickets do not accept the same, there will be a further ballot on the same day. If the full number of Tickets are not then taken up, terms to non-members afterwards, £2 10s.

It has been further resolved that the Bulls belonging to the County Society shall be let for one year, (subject to their present engagements) to the Township Societies, or any persons wishing to hire them; the horses to be found to exhibit them at the Provincial Show at London, entered in the name of the property of the County Society, but receiving the Prizes themselves.

All the members of the County Society are particularly requested to attend the Fair. Those desirous of having the Canadian Agriculturist sent to them, will leave their names immediately with Messrs. Lawson & Hutton, Woodstock.

By order of the Directors.

JAMES SCARFF, Secretary.

INQUEST.

On Tuesday evening last, a woman named Eliza Hagarty, died very suddenly in one of Starr's shanties, back of the barracks. Her husband, Garrett Hagarty, had been before his worship the Mayor about 10 days ago, for threatening to kill his wife with an axe; Hagarty had aimed the blow at her head, with the axe, but she, observing the aim, defended herself by raising her left arm, on which she received the stroke, there was a gash made in the fleshy part of the arm, of about 6 inches in length, grazing the bones, and wounding the branch of the Ulner artery, which bled profusely. Dr. Wanless, the corporation surgeon, passed a ligatine around the vessel and dressed the wound, which was doing well up to the time of her death. From the pair having been almost always drunk and quarrelling, strong suspicion arose that Mrs. Hagarty had been killed by her husband—an inquest was held by Dr. Wanless, on Wednesday morning, but there appeared no evidence of guilt against Hagarty.—The post mortem examination resolved—old disease of the left lung, a drunkards stomach, &c., which was very much congested with blood was likewise found in very large quantity within the pleural cavity, which had escaped from a pulnerm vessel, this was assigned as the cause of death by Dr. McKenzie who made the post mortem examination. On the Thursday evening when she was found on the floor, cold and deathlike, a large empty black bottle, smelling of whiskey, lay by her side, the contents of which, no doubt, had been recently swallowed; what pictures of degraded mortality present themselves from time to time, caused by the inebriety cup!

The jury gave a verdict according to the medical evidence, and found great fault with Hagarty for allowing, as he said he did, a quart of whiskey daily to his wife.—Com.

Blackwood's Magazine.

We were much pleased in reading the following handsome compliment paid by the Philadelphia Banner, to that justly popular magazine, if our American neighbors would exhibit a like degree of liberality in other matters, judge things according to their merits, and so discard that narrow prejudice which generally induces them to imagine that nothing can be good, except it be American, they would nationally raise themselves very much in the estimation of foreigners, besides putting a check upon that inordinate degree of self-esteem, so characteristic of their fellow countrymen; every nation, no matter how old or how wealthy, can always acquire information from others, the life of man is too short for attaining perfection, besides that very intercourse which springs up in the pursuit of knowledge tends to allay those prejudices which an isolated position engenders, and we feel confident that there would be no stronger guarantee to the preservation of peace and good feeling, than the adoption of such a course.

Of Blackwood's Magazine, known all the world over, read by political foes as well as by political friends, and esteemed by each alike, even when dissented from as to its conclusions, nothing need be said—but that among Magazines, it is what the Quarterly is among Reviews, in religion and politics. In classic literature, history, travels, antiquities, biography, poetry, criticism, fiction, philosophy, reviews, &c., it stands, and ever has stood without a parallel. Even in this country, where its Toryism is opposed to every political sentiment of a Republican people, yet its sterling talent and seductive pages have always secured for it a large band of admiring readers.—Philadelphia Banner.

The International Journal, alluding to the Cuban matter, justly remarks that:

"There is one fact in connection with this subject which we cannot forget. It is, that we have no war-ships. The Duke of Wellington, Charly Napier's three-decker, would blow the whole American navy out of the water, we are sorry to say. If we want to bully Spain and take Cuba, we must build ships of war. It is ridiculous to think we can lay strong and violent hands on our neighbors, or their property, after the fashion of our monarchical contemporaries over the way, if we content ourselves with such a peddling little sea armament as we have got. Feeble bluster is always contemptible. Whereas the same on a large scale, is glory, destiny, progress—just as it was from the beginning and shall be to the end—or at least very near it. Unless we get more ships, an English war-frigate and a French war-frigate anchored outside the Moro would preserve Cuba till the population were all as black as the ace of spades in spite of all the filibusterers in this great Republic.

ballots were obtained. As one instance we may mention that Mr. Yates was induced to sign the document on a representation that its object was "to put down popery." Mr. Samuel Shaw signed it under an impression that it was not published; and his first resolution on seeing it paraded in print, was to have his name erased.

But it was not sufficient that signatures were fraudently obtained. They were next destined to be doctored, arranged, classified and made to appear as the representatives of the several churches to which they belonged. The list of signatures was duly cooked and then offered to the public inspection as a genuine document! We suspected from the first that the list of signatures had been fraudulently interpolated; and the fact is now established beyond the possibility of cavil. The appearances of the document on the 16th inst. naturally excited indignation among the churches on whom an attempt has been made to father the production. The surprise is that any respectable man could be found to put his name to so atrocious a libel; and charity constrains us to conclude that it must generally have been signed without being read. Without a shadow of proof; nay, in defiance of all known facts of the case, this document construes the proposed appeal to the people as an intended betrayal of the secularization cause. The signers are thus made to bear false witness against their neighbors. The atrocity of the charge is in no way mitigated by the array of nine clerical signatures; nor will the churches become responsible for the libel merely because the ministers have endorsed it. Already has one of the churches on which it was attempted to palm the responsibility of this vile production called its minister to account and obtained from him an assurance that he did not sign the manifesto in his capacity of minister but simply as an individual, and censured the fraudulent interpolation of the list of signatures. It happened that the quarterly meeting of the New Connexion Methodists took place on the night of Wednesday, on which day the manifesto appeared. Mr. Good attended the Quarterly meeting and demanded to know if the church was about to engage in a political crusade; declaring that if such were the case his course was clear; he could not remain in connexion with any church which resolved itself into any political organization. The Minister, Mr. Goldsmith, whose name appeared on the list of signatures as "Minister New Connexion Methodists," found it necessary to explain that he did not by that act in any way presume to represent the New Connexion Church. The appendage to his name in the list of signatures, which made him appear as the representative of the Church had been added without his authority. The proof of fraud was now clear; and it received further corroboration by the prompt disclaimer of Mr. Dool, and Mr. Brett that they signed the document in the capacity of New Connexion Methodists. An explanation having fixed the guilt on Mr. James Leslie, a resolution of censure was passed unanimously, and the Minister was instructed to forward it to the Examiner for publication, to be accompanied by a suitable explanation of the affair.

It is to be presumed that other denominations whose character and respectability an attempt has been made to compromise by the detected fraud will lose no time in disclaiming responsibility for this discreditable document; this compound of lib ls, unchartableness and falsetestimony. Indeed we hear that steps are about to be taken to that end; but it is possible that the proof of the fraud already offered will be declared sufficient evidence that the denominations are free from the responsibility which so discreditable an attempt was made to fasten upon them.

The value of the latest manifesto issued by the self constituted and self styled Anti Clergy Reserves Committee—as if they were not Anti Reserve than all the rest of the liberal party—will now be understood by the public. Fraudulent representations to obtain signatures, and frauds practised upon those signatures when obtained are among the things proved. How far the parties who resorted to such tricks to deceive the public are fit guides of opinion on this subject we leave the public to say. Our duty is performed in having laid bare the imposition and exposed the frauds resorted to give an appearance of weight and importance to a libellous and puerile document.

THE ELECTORAL BATTLE GROUND SHIELD.

The Guelph Advertiser gives the following synopsis of the Free choice and Registration Act. The electoral battle ground has by the introduction of a system of registration, been shifted from the polls to the Registration Courts. It is to the latter that the right to vote must be determined. Now is the time to see to the assessment rolls, in order to correct any inaccuracies; to supply deficiencies if they exist, of to expunge names which have no right to be there:

The Act 16 Victoria chapter 153, commences by declaring that it is expedient to extend the elective Franchise, and also to amend the Act 12 Victoria Cap. 27 and declares:

"That the following persons, being of the full age of twenty one years, and subjects of Her Majesty by birth or naturalization, and not being disqualified as the holder of any office or otherwise by law prevented from voting, shall be entitled to vote at Elections of Members to serve in the Legislative Assembly of this Province that is to say:

"Every male person entered on the then last assessment Roll, revised, corrected, and in force in any Parish, Township, Town, Village or place not being within any City or Town entitled to send a member or Members to the Legislative Assembly of this Province, as the owner, tenant or occupant of real property of the assessed actual value of fifty pounds or upwards, shall be entitled to vote at the Election of a Member to repr sent the Electoral Division in which such Parish, Township, Town, Village or place is included; subject always to the provisions hereinafter made.

"II. And be it enacted, That wherever two or more persons shall, whether as being partners in business, joint tenants or tenants in common, or par indivis, be entered on such Assessment Roll as aforesaid, as the owners of any real property, or as tenants or occupants thereof, each of such persons shall be entitled to vote and to be entered on the list of voters (if any be made for the place in which such property lies) in respect of such property, if the value of his part or share be sufficient to have entitled him to vote at any election for Members to represent in the Provincial Parliament the Electoral Division within which such property is situate, if such property had been assessed in his individual name; except that if the property be held by any body corporate, no one of the members thereof shall be entitled to vote or be entered on the list of Voters in respect of such property."

Section 3 refers to Lower Canada.

IV. Provides that persons in arrears to the Crown, as holders of Crown property or Clergy Reserve lots, and Squatters, are disqualified from voting. This section also directs, that the Commissioner of Crown Lands, in the month of January in each year shall transmit to the County Treasurer, or other officer, a list of the lands within such county or municipality, which may be granted or leased, of all ungranted lands, and of all lands on which money or instalments are due; and parties in such list at the final revision of the assessment rolls for the respective municipalities, shall remain disqualified for the year.

V. Refers to Upper Canada exclusively and provides—

1. That in any alphabetical list of parties and properties assessed, the Clerk of each Municipality may be required to post up, be being the "disqualified" opposite any property in arrears to the Crown, or of which no grant may be made; and any disputes shall be decided by the Court of Revision, subject to an appeal to the Judge of the County Court; but it shall be competent for any persons in arrears to make his payment and prove his claim to vote before the close of the Revision.

2. That lists, as finally passed, shall be furnished to the registrar of the County by the first of September in each year, such lists being the sole guide as to the qualification of voters at the ensuing election, except by way of proof that the party tendering his vote is the person mentioned on such lists.

3. Refers to the duty of returning officers.

Section 6 refers exclusively to Lower Canada.

VII. Persons on the list of voters shall be allowed to vote on taking the oath if required:

"You swear (or solemnly affirm) that you are (name of voter, as entered on the list,) whose name is on the list of voters now shown to you, (showing the list to the voter,) that you are a subject of Her Majesty by birth (or naturalization), that you are of the full age of twenty-one years, that you have not before voted at this election, either at this or any other polling place, and that you have not received anything, been promised to you, either directly or indirectly, in order to induce you to vote at the election. So help you God."

"And no other oath or affirmation shall be required of any person whose name is entered on any such List of Voters as aforesaid."

VIII. Requires the Registrar or other officer having the custody of the List of Voters to furnish copies on payment of one penny, for every ten names on such lists,

IX. Imposes fine and imprisonment on any party furnishing false lists, as required by preceeding clause.

X. Repeals such portions of 12 Vic. c. 27 as are inconsistent with this Act.

XI. Explains the use of terms therein made use of.

XII. Provides that as regards the duties of assessors and other Municipal officers the Act comes into force on the 1st January 1854, but for electoral purposes not until January 1855.

By the foregoing it will be seen that all parties who desire a vote at the next election for the Riding, will have to see that their names are entered and retained on the Assessment Roll for the Municipality in which their property is situate, will be requisite to secured right to vote. To politicians it is important that all parties entitled to a vote should be on the Assessment Roll; and it is equally important that those not entitled should be excluded.

NEW PUBLICATION.—We have received from Mr. GILLEAN a copy of "The Secretary, or Circumstantial Evidence;" it is a reprint of an English novel and appears very interesting, being one of the many cases upon which conviction have taken place in England on circumstantial evidence, and will be found entertaining and amusing. Price, 50 cents.

MARRIED,

On Tuesday last, by the Rev. John Fletcher Clark, Isabel, the third daughter of Luke Dyer, Esq., to Mr. William Seldon of this town.

Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Consumptions incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

For a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects, have in general by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike stop others. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and bowels, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and assistance to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for British North America, have induced Dr. Holmes to recommend them to the friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. L. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience, he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time resting several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreno, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

Dr. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1845 I became the victim of the Heart disease, and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical assistance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health. I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which nature sinks and life becomes a burden. Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business again, entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.
JOHNSON BURKE.
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace a definite particular cause. And therefore delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of Chilliness, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sinking sensations, lassitude and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills, in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are to be taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and love liness accompany the highest perfection of health, which again invariably follows the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What additional appearance equal that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What paints can compare with the crimsoned colored blood receive its brilliant course up through the transparent texture of the skin! What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? Let Dr. Halsey's wine supply the place of all cosmetics. The use of this excellent wine at a short time creates pure, rich blood, which coursing through the veins, penetrates the minutest fibres of that verge towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, imparting a vivid, rosy color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes.

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rutgers street,

New York, July 7th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister, from her youth had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest attended with a cough. About the age of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to commencing with your medicines she had not been able to get out of the house. Her countenance was greatly emaciated, yellow and sickly. Her face and neck was covered with such large pimples as to render them painful and her cough increasing. In fact she bore every appearance of one becoming an unhappy victim to consumption. At this time I procured for her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she progressed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of recovery was uncommonly good appetite, her face finally became smooth and her cheeks rosy. Her cough left her entirely. She is now about and appears and presents the finest example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MAXWELL.

DR. HALSEY'S

GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are coated with a pure Gum Arabic, an important invention for which Dr. Halsey has received the only Patent ever granted on Pills by the Government of the United States.

Dr. Halsey's Forest Wine and Gum-coated Forest Pills are in accomplishing the same great end, THE PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THE RENOVATION & INVIGORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.

The two principle organs in the body, no sooner are these organs of the stomach and bowels regulated, the blood cleansed of morbid matter, and restored to its due action in the use of the Forest Pills and pure rich blood made to flow in its course to the several parts of the body, than we observe an increase in animal and muscular energy or body return. This is the principle on which is founded these great medicines, and by which nearly all diseases are cured.

The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles, with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One Dollar per bottle, or six bottles for Five Dollars. Gum-coated Forest Pills, 25c. per box.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 20 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster, That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in paymedt of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or tials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years meuttoned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

HERMAN KORDES.

CELEBRATED FAMILY MEDICINES

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,

Cures all Pains, Cramps; Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague, in the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head Ache, &c;

PIVATO CHINESE BALSAM,

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Cholic, Pains, &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them much good. I have first used it in case of Scarlet Fever, and six doses as the child was taken. I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.

Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application.—Cures all Ulcerated Sores, Piles, Chilblains, Scalds, Burns, Bruises and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.

Try it, you will not regret it,

TO W. C. SWEET.

DEAR SIR.—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure except by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price.

I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

JOHN PERRY.

Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for Poll-Evil, Fistula, Scratches, Sand-Cracks, Old Sores with Piles Formed, Saddle-Galls, Fresh Wounds, Wind-galls of every description, Rheumatism, Colds, and Sore Throat, Coldness, Soreness, Cracked heels, Sprains and Bruises, Lameness or Weakness of the Joints, contraction of the Muscles, External Poisons, Burns or Scalds, Ruin Lockjaw in Cattle, Boils All Black-Heel &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL REASONABLE CASES.

Facts are stubborn things. What is here said is not surpassed by any as yet known for the above diseases. If a doubting one, call and see. Certificates of Cures can be produced by the hundred, and those who have used it, will say it is the best pain killing medicine in the world.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned, have for years used and sold Sweet's Black Oil for horses and can safely recommend it to the public as a superior preparation for curing Scratches, Sore Heels, Sore Shoulders, and several other complaints to which horses are liable. We would advise every horse owner to keep a bottle of the above Oil on hand, as it is the best we ever have used in many years.

LONDON AGENCY,

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution—the capital stock of the company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire in Montreal in 1852—has practically shown the disinterest of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world for their liberality. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:—

1. Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to two-thirds of its net income—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportions by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premiums, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 35 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and re-cross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another, or from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississippi River.

Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Hardly a person now there is to be found, but has tried them, and having the unlimited testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them. It is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system a renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is really astonishing, often carrying in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Reflections on Night.

The moon has gained the zenith of her power,
Attendant planets roll their solemn round;
An awful silence speaks the midnight hour,
My rising soul is big with thoughts profound.

You lofty spires reflect the pale beam,
A glimmering blaze illumes their dusky head,
The thick'ning mist ascends slowly from the stream,
Man, quite oppressed, forgets his downy bed.

Primeval silence seems to reign around,
Even on the tongue the voice of wonder dies
The' now you blazing orbs are whirling round,
Swift as an arrow darts along the skies.

Now Contemplation's happy sons explore
The works of nature stretch'd from pole to pole,
Mount on the wings and boldly soar
Where mighty fires and worlds unnumbered roll.

Immense the scene, beyond conception grand,
Stupendous emblems of the Deity,
What adoration can require the land,
Th' Almighty maker of those worlds and me.

Teeming with gratitude and heart-felt joy
Thanksgiving song with cheerful voice we'll raise,
His boundless mercy shall on theme supply
And each new thought continuate to his praise.

On him relying for salvation's balm,
With sweet tranquility we'll pass the day,
And when the trumpet sounds the dread alarm
To cease of life's security we'll say.

Sir C. P. Roney's visit to Hull—the Grand Trunk Railroad.

Sir C. P. Roney and Mr. Keefer recently paid a visit to Hull for the purpose of making themselves acquainted with the facilities of that port for trade, &c., with a view we suppose to the selection of a point of departure for a line of steamers to run in connexion with the Grand Trunk Railway in Canada. We are indebted to Mr. William Rudston of this city for the following extract from a private letter, and also for a copy of the Hull Advertiser from which we cut the extract also given below.

For our own part we consider it no dream of a visionary when we look forward within twenty years, to the extension of the vast Railway artery across this continent, meeting in the Pacific another line of British steamers, thus girding the world with its iron track. The Grand Trunk Company are the men to carry out such an undertaking, and by the time the present project is completed, the feasibility of a Pacific Railroad will not escape the notice of men of the enterprise and energy of that has married the career of Sir C. P. Roney, Jackson, Peto, & Co., Robert Stephenson, &c., &c. The following are the articles above alluded to.

Extract from a private letter, from a merchant in Hull, to Wm. Rudston, Esq.

"You will perceive by the Hull newspaper, that we have had a visit from Sir C. P. Roney and Mr. Keefer, who seem to be much interested in the prosperity of Canada. A deputation of Gentlemen consisting of some of the most influential merchants and ship owners, with the officers of the chamber of Commerce accompanied them during nearly all the whole day, in inspecting the docks, public buildings &c., they expressed themselves much pleased with the appearance of our Town and business facilities.

From information derived from the gentlemen, I feel quite certain a much better class of emigrants than Sheffelore will come out and settle amongst you, for although Hull is now and has been for many years doing an extensive business in timber &c., sending yearly a large number of vessels to Quebec, still we seem to have known but little respecting the resources and prosperity of Canada. Those gentlemen have given us such a favorable impression of what Canada is, and will be, that I venture to assert men of worth and intelligence will begin to make arrangements to settle amongst you, I mean respectable tradesmen, mechanics (and farmers who have the means to purchase land,) for there can be no doubt Canada is a desirable place for the farmer and agricultural laborer. Probably this year there will be no great increase of this class of emigrants I have mentioned, on account of the war prospects. We in Hull of course are deeply interested in this question, as you are aware Hull has always done a very large business with Russia. My own opinion is that the Grand Trunk Railroad is to be of great advantage to you in a commercial point of view. We have been well pleased with the gentlemen, and consider ourselves favored, for we have got much useful, and no doubt beneficial information from their visit."—Kingston Commercial Advertiser.

Printing Establishment.

A few of our leading Merchants are moving in having a line of Printing Telegraph put up connecting Quebec, Detroit, Hamilton and Buffalo, to be called the Merchant's Printing Telegraph Company. The Capital is £30,000. The line is to be built in a very superior manner, and with all the late improvements. The posts are to be larger, stronger and a great number to a mile, and the wire of the best quality. The insulators are to be of a very superior quality and different from any now in use. They are the result of scientific investigation. The insulating of a line is the main point, for without good insulation no line can be made to work well through all weathers, it is in fact the main spring, and upon its reliability depends the success of a line. Those that are proposed to be used in the Province, but the owners will be amply remunerated for the outlay, when they have the positive assurrance of still greater accuracy and constancy in operation. The extension of the telegraph to the various towns in the Province, together with the multiplicity of offices opened, has so increased the business of the main lines, as to require these additional telegraph facilities. The line is to be a Printing Telegraph, and for through business, having offices only at important points, and will claim for itself a decided preference over any other line. By the printing instrument messages can be transmitted quicker, and with more accuracy than by any other system; the instrument moves faster and at the astonishing rate of 70 brakes in a second, and at once records the information in Roman letters—it literally gives letters to lightening, as well as lightening to letters; it is also a great favorite with printers, for they can set up their type from the printed slip, and therefore save the onerous task of deciphering and copying unintelligible manuscripts.

The line will require nearly 1 000 miles of wire, and will cost some £30,000. It is proposed to put that portion between Montreal and Toronto in operation first.

The construction is to be done under the superintendence of Mr. Thompson,—a gentleman long and favorably known as a telegraphists, and one who has made the telegraph his study since its first discovery by Professor Morse, and is highly qualified for the work.

Success to the enterprise.—Montreal Herald.

A pitiable Case.

One day last week there called at our office about as seedy a specimen of humanity as ever came under our cognizance!—You could read at one glance that he was "a swell out of luck,"—and altogether was strongly suggestive of that eminent but unfortunate jurisconsult, Mr. Sampson Brass.

The mission of this thread bare gent was to crave the gratuitous insertion in our sheet, of an advertisement, which for safety he carried in the band of his "shocking bad hat." As our Neighbor Solomon of Streetsville, had compelled with his petition, we could not well refuse, and accordingly handed the greasy document to our foreman, explained as it was of stale deer and red herrings! Thus it runs:

TO THE CHARITABLE AND HUMANE.

A number of sharp set humans, whose teeth all water consumedly after the loaves and fishes of office, contemplate coming forward as Parliamentary candidates on the CONSERVATIVE TICKET, at the next general election.

Being much weakened by the prevailing epidemic of EXPEDIENCY, they lack the nerve and moral courage to stand up for the preservation of the CLERGY RESERVES! This question, consequently, they are willing to sacrifice, in order to gain admittance into the public pantry. They do not undervalue principle, but alas! it will not fill up the vacuum of a progless belly!

The advertisers, however, find themselves placed in a most perplexing predicament!—Abandoning the RESERVES, they are unable to conjure up a single distinctive cry! They have churned their brains to no effect, to find out a political slogan, which might distinguish them from the common herd of Voluntaries, Clear Grits and Destructives! In these vexatious circumstances, they are constrained to ask the assistance of philanthropists, who may be blessed with sharper wits, and clearer pumpkins than themselves! Any Samaritan who may furnish them with a Cry which will have a decent Conservative sound will confer an inestimable kindness upon a body of the poorest creatures which Canada contains!

FEEBLE READY-TO-HALT

For self and fellow adventurers.

Noticing the pitiable debility of our client, we despatched one of our ministering Demons for four-pence three farthings worth of bread and cheese. No sooner had the sustenance been placed before him than he dug his nails into it after the fashion of a famishing wild cat, and commenced the process of mastication as if he had been holding banyan days for a twelve month!

Whilst the gaunt wretch was thus occupied we gently remonstrated with him, upon the discreditable course which he, and his associates proposed pursuing. We represented that, supposing they should get into Parliament as Conservative secularizers, no one would place the slightest confidence in them or even believe them upon oath! Though principle (we added) was unquestionably at a sorry discount now-a-days, people insisted that a public man or office should, at least, be draped with the fig leaves of consistency—and that it was the lack of this covering flimsy as it was which rendered Hincks & Co. so offensively inodorous at present moment!

The starving vagabond, whilst generally admitting the force of our reasoning, declared, with tearful eyes, that it was "Hobson's choice" with them.

"We can neither delve nor chop, your Honour!" quoth he—"and our fingers are too much cramped by short commons to pick pockets!" Squire Brown makes us fair promises, and, between ourselves, we are willing even to undergo even the rite of Circumcision if the Grand Turk will only assure us potatoes and butter milk!"

Of course after hearing this avowal we shut up.—Hamilton Gazette.

Railway Enterprise.

The following railroads are under contracts or partially completed in Canada at present. The distance stated may not in all cases be exact; but they will be found to be very near the mark:

	MILES.
Northern from Toronto the Georgian Bay,	120
Toronto and Sarnia,	230
Great Western and Hamilton and Toronto,	300
Great Western Branch to the Falls,	50
Great Western Branch from London to Sarnia,	100
Buffalo and Brantford,	170
Woodstock and Erie,	75
Grand Trunk from Toronto to Montreal,	400
Do below Montreal,	200
Peterboro' and Cobourg,	30
Prescott and Pytown,	65
Brockville to Perth,	30
Montreal and Pytown,	130

Here are nearly 2,000 miles of railroad under contract; some few hundreds of miles of which are completed, and more soon will be. The railroad fever is getting dangerously high. Every week the Gazette announces new applications for some route or other. A want of cash will stop these new schemes, or the greater part of them; and it is fortunate that it will be so, or the future would be made pregnant with financial disasters arising from railroad recklessness.—Toronto Correspondent of the N. Y., Tribune.

Lake Superior Silver Mines.

An assay of a quantity of ore from this mine recently had in London, shows the results set forth in the accompanying extract from a letter received by a gentleman in Detroit. The ore assayed shows a value of about $300 in silver and copper.

Assay Office, 10 Hatton Garden
London, 5th November, 1853.

"The two casks of copper and silver ore have been assayed for a A. J. Smith, Esq., Secretary of the Lake Superior Silver Company, to whom the ore belongs; and it contains 552 oz. of fine silver to the ton of 20 cwt. of ore; and 16½ per cent. of pure copper."

"The price of fine silver about £1 35 per oz., (and premium besides). Now, then, if we can only get enough of this ore, L. S. S. Stock would be worth par or over; shortly, and the question of quantity, I have no doubt of, and in any case it will be decided in the spring."—Detroit Advertiser.

The Lake Superior Journal publishes several particulars with regard to the mines in that district, including a statement of copper iron and silver ores received at Sault Ste. Marie, during the past year, from which we find that the enormous quantity of 1,351 tons 326 pounds, was taken from the Ellff mine alone, while the average yield is only about 20 tons.

Of Superior copper mines we find that the proprietorship average in shares from $6,000 to $100,000, some not yet disposed of by the Company, making on the whole $220,000 and the amount of paid up capital averages about 12 per cent of that sum. The value of the Boston and Pittsburg mine is estimated at by far the largest figure, viz: $870,000, while the 1 west is the iron city mine, stated to be worth $40,000. The total value of all the mines is put down at $7,638 300.

Newspaper Postage to Great Britain.

John Dewe, Esq., Post Office Inspector, has addressed the following communication to the Toronto Globe, relative to Newspaper Postage. No doubt the information given will be important to those who send papers to the Old Country. The reduction on letters to the Old Country, also takes place from the 23rd inst.:

Sir,—I have just received an intimation from the Postmaster General at Quebec, stating that the order recently issued by the Postoffice authorities in England, directing an additional charge of one penny each on newspapers, passing between the United Kingdom and Canada has been rescinded.

The present regulations as regards those papers will therefore continue in force.—When transported via the United States they will be liable to a rate of one penny each, payable on delivery to the party, to whom addressed.

When transmitted via Halifax, (by which route however they are much longer in reaching their destination) they will pass free.

Will you be so good as to insert a notice to this effect in your next publication.

I begg to add that the reduction of postage on letters passing between the United Kingdom and and Canada by British or Canadian mail packets will take effect on and from tomorrow, the 23r

Foreign Intelligence.

The Supremacy of the Sea—Whose is it?

To the Editors of the Y. Y. Courier and Enquirer.

The question of the Supremacy of the Seas, might have been very easily answered in 1851. Jonathan was everywhere victorious. His clippers made the quickest trips to China; his steamships made the shortest time across the Atlantic, and his yacht beat all creation at Cowes. Jonathan was everywhere triumphant. John Bull knocked under, acknowledged himself beaten, and with good grace too.

But Jonathan was not satisfied with merely winning, he wants everybody throughout the world to know it. All the newspapers in the United States proclaimed his great achievement with his yacht America, and indeed we thought at one time we should never hear the last of it, though the America was subsequently beaten, by some means or another; but Jonathan comforted himself by saying that she was then manned by an English crew. They, of course, neither steer or hoist her sails right.

And then her owner, Mr. Stevens, must have a grand dinner on his return, and the Cup, of course, everybody must see it, and it was consequently placed in a very conspicuous position in the Great Fair at Castle Garden. Of course it would not do to let Mr. Steers, the builder, go without some public demonstration—the man who built the America, who conquered Old England; he too, had his grand dinner; and one of the guests, Mr. E. K. Collins, in his speech took occasion to congratulate Mr. Steers for having done so much towards humbling the pride of England.

The year 1852 was also rather in favor of Jonathan, though there was no yacht race this year, and though the English disputed his claim to victory in the contest from China to England. He was still ahead of the Atlantic; and though it cost him this year and the next, (£600,000) each year over what he received for letters, to sustain this darling line, yet he is perfectly satisfied in paying this large amount to a defunct company so long as they beat the Cunard line.

But John Bull we may well suppose was not idle during this time. He was building steamers, clippers and yachts. He first tried to regain his lost ground with the Arabia, but her first passage was not as quick as the Baltic's, which threw the American public into an ecstacy of delight, though in fairness something might be said about the stiffness of new machinery, &c. But no, the superiority of American steamers was manifest.—It was so said by the newspapers. But what is the result at the end of the year? She has beaten each of Colling steamers in their ture—she made three out of the four trip within ten days, this year. But never was any vessel abused more by the press than this same Arabia, the reason is obvious, she was too fast for the Collins.'

We will now take a glance at Jonathan's second race. He had another Yacht that had beaten the America, and by the same builder too, of course. John Bull had nothing to compete with her. Her owner sent her over to win—the great race-day came to witness Jonathan's second triumph; but the new English Yacht Julia took the lead from the start and kept it to the last, not giving Jonathan the slightest chance. Here there was mortification indeed. Bet the spirited Yankee boldly challenged for another trial, which was declined, and which saved him a second defeat, perhaps.

After John Bull had defeated the Sylvie, the conqueror of America, of course he too, in his turn, had his dinners, (he is fond of them) his toasts, his speeches &c., to celebrate his victory! He had nothing of the kind. The owner was not toasted, the builder was not toasted, the Cup was not taken to any great fair to be exhibited, nor was there any English merchant found complimenting the builder for doing so much towards humbling the pride of the United States.

We next come to the clipper races from China. We had heard from Jonathan himself about his clippers. We were led to suppose that it would be sheer folly to any nation to try him on these. Not so thought John Bull. The first race of this season was between the American clipper Challenge and the British clipper Stornaway, though the Challenge sailed first, she was outsailed and passed in the China Sea; subsequently she sprung a leak, and had to put into Fayal, water-logged, and with most of her cargo damaged.

The next and last this year (1853) was between the American clipper Nightingale and the English clipper Challenger. Heavy bets were made in China on this race. In this race John Bull was also successful, having beaten his competitor from one to two days.

There is another class of vessels coming into use, and which John Bull manufactures exclusively, viz., a screw clipper. He has any quantity of them, and one of these, the Argo, has lately returned from a voyage round the world. She sailed 28,000 miles, and her engines was as perfect as when she started, and the time occupied in this long voyage was only 120 days. Now can Jonathan, under the combination of circumstances, build such a vessel? Much as it may humble his pride to say so, we assume that at the present time he cannot. If we take his past efforts has a proof, we are confident is what we say; his first trial was the Massachusetts, built in Boston, sailed from New York to Liverpool, was a long time going there and some fifty days coming back, was sold to government at a great loss.

The next was the Boston Line to Liverpool, of which the S. S. Lewis was the first; she made one trip to Liverpool, broke her Fan, was sold on her return. The next was the Pioneer, from New York, she also made but one long trip, and was sold on her return. We next find Philadelphia trying her hand; the City of Pittsburgh, built in this city, to run in connection with the English line now running, and possibly to beat them too, but she met with some mishap in going, was 46 days coming back, and was sold on her return to go to the Pacific. The next and last attempt was the South Carolina, built in this city, to ply between Charleston and Liverpool, but she was even more unlucky than the rest, for she never returned; she made one trip to Liverpool, was offered for sale, nobody would buy, the engines were finally taken out, and she was at last sold as a sailing vessel.

Now, Gentlemen, I have brought my "saying" to a close. I have stated nothing but facts, and gleaned mostly from your own paper; and your numerous readers can account for them as best suits themselves.—They will not prove palateable to your readers, I fear, because they are true. They are not pleasing to me either; but they are facts, and it is well for Jonathan to know it. I speak without prejudice; I could have none. I am neither an Englishman nor an American. I have never been in England. I have lived in this country nineteen years. I am a man, however, without nationality, because my native country has none.

I beg, therefore, to subscribe myself

Very respectfully a

WELSHMAN.

Financial Status of Russia.

The sinews of modern warfare consists in money, and however formidable Russia may be in soldiers, guns and horses, she is feeble in the means of transporting them to a long distance. It was the deep, full purse of England that conveyed them to Paris in 1814, and when she fires a shot against England her credit is gone, beyond the circle of her own resources; let us then endeavor to explain to Canadian readers what is the financial status of this territorial colossus:—

Customs Revenue.

1837	-	-	£4,683,022
1849	-	-	4,764,047

The internal revenue in the latter year amounted to £6,000,000, so that the annual resources may be put down at £11,000,000. There may be some trifling change since these returns were published, but none of later date are immediately accessible. But it is not only the small amount of revenue that is to be considered, in estimating the resources of Russia in the event of war; we must also inquire in what direction its trade chiefly flows. The following is the return made in 1850:—

Value of Exports.

By the frontiers of Europe,	£12,470,092
Do. do Asia,	1,122,295
For the Kingdom of Poland,	346,702
For Finland,	266,988
	£14,206,077

The value of the Imports for the same year were thus divided:—

From Europe,	£12,476,087
Do. Asia,	2,361,663
Do. Poland,	791,337
Do. Finland,	148,585
	£14,087,653

The total amount of specie exported from Russia in 1350 amounted to £786,826 and imported £1,116,398.

Taking then the year 1850 as a guide, the total value of exports and imports, including specie, may be put down in round numbers at £30,000,000, of which £25,000,000 are the result of trade with Europe. A war, therefore, of Russia against Europe would at once destroy 83 per cent. of its external trade, and of course, a large portion of its internal trade, so far as it feeds exports.—Ships of war would command the Gulf of Finland; the British, French and Turkish fleets, in the Black Sea, would cut of the Russian trade to eastward, and surely there would be no difficulty in seizing the Crimea. Under all these circumstances there ought to be no fear on our side, and as our government still hesitates, nay quails, this cowardice can only be attributed to the fear of the Bank being drained of gold, and the necessary result, the suspension or the abandonment of the monetary acts of 1819 and 1844.

The British Commander.

Lord Raglan, who commands the British force of 2,000 men sent to the aid of Turkey, was the Duke of Wellington's Aide-de-camp and Secretary at Waterloo and many other important battles. He is better known as Lord Fitzroy Somerset. The following account will be interesting to our readers:—

Lord Fitzroy Somerset performed the arduous and responsible duty of Aide-de-Camp and Military Secretary to His Grace the Duke of Wellington throughout the campaigns in Spain, Portugal, France, and Flanders, and was present at the battles of Rolica, Vimiera, Talavera, and Busaco, (wounded) the attack and capture of Oporto, pursuit of Marshal Soult, retreat to the lines of Torres Vedras, occupation of them, operations in the pursuit of Marshal Massena, battle of Fuentes d'Onor, 1st siege of Badajoz, battle of Salamanca, capture of Madrid and Retiro, driving the enemy from Valadolid to Burgos, seige of that castle, various affairs on the retreat from Burgos to the frontiers of Portugal, advance in 1813, battles of Vittoria and the Pyrenees, action of Irun, passage of the Bidasson, the Nivelle, and the Nive; advance in 1814, battles of Orthes and Toulouse, and every other affair which took place; also the battle of Quartre Bras, retreat of the 17th of June, and battle of Waterloo,—severely wounded, right arm amputated. His Lordship has received a cross and five clasps for Fuentes-d'Onor, Badajoz, Salamanca, Vittoria, Pyrenees, Nivelle, Nive, Orthes, and Toulouse.'

PRUDENTIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO THE RUSSIAN NAVY.—The Russian Admiralty have issued a despatch to the Commader of the Navy at Sebastopol, stating that the Maritime Laws of Peter the Great are still in force, which forbid the risking of ships of war for "the vain advantage of glory gained in an unequal combat." It approves of the affair of Sinope as the Russian Admiral had taken care to secure such odds as to render defeat nearly impossible, and declares that the Russian Commanders in acting in accordance with the course adopted at that action will never be deemed culpable by their Government. The document reminds them of the example of the Russian Admiral Golovine, who, in 1743, was cried down throughout Europe for not daring with 17 vessels to attack 12 Swedish ones, but his conduct was highly approved of by his sovereign.

SWEDEN AND RUSSIA.—The London Globe, the organ of the Imperial Government, and a journal whose information upon matters of foreign policy can be fully relied on, states that—"the Russian Government has declared that it could not accept or recognize the announcement of a policy of neutrality on the part of Sweden. The Swedish Government have replied that they can make no change in that policy, and are prepared to defend it—and have commenced defensive preparations accordingly. Should the Russians not recognize the neutrality of Sweden and Denmark, it is believed that they will not join the alliance of the Western Powers.

LIEUTENANT O'REILLY'S PLAN OF SEBASTOPOL HARBOR.—On the 7th ult. Lieutenant Montague O'Reilly, of the Retribution, 21, Steam-frigate, Captain, the Hon. H. R. Drummond, had the honor of a private audience of the Sultan to present a plan of Sebastopol Harbor and fortifications, which were sketched by that officer when the Retribution se bolly entered that inviolable port with despatches. His Majesty graciously accepted the diagram and view, and expressed himself gratified by this second indication of the Lieutenant to afford information, in the highest degree, interesting.—The Turkish chief officers of state, were all strictly attentive to Lieutenant O'Reilly, who partook with them of seasonable refreshments. Soon after the cruel affair at Sinope Lieutenant Montague O'Reilly furnished the Sultan with a correct sketch of the remains of his frigates, their positions in that bay, &c.

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBITION OF ALL NATIONS. The Council of the Society of Arts have determined to hold an Educational Exhibition in the month of June, of the present year, when the conference of the representatives of its various affiliated institutions, now amounting to 335 in number, will take place. The Council have already sought the aid of her Majesty's Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs and for the Colonies, with the view of obtaining models of the schools of primary instruction approved by the departments of Public Instruction in France, Holland, Prussia, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Canada, and at Washington, New York, or Massachusetts, and specimens of every article authorized to be used in the different classes of schools recognized by each State, as well of the writing, drawing, needlework, printed examination papers, &c., done in the schools. The council have also asked to be furnished with copies of the codes of public instruction in force in each country, and they promise to publish, at the time of the exhibition, an English synopsis of the whole.—Letters have also been addressed to the large educational bodies and Government departments dealing with this subject in this country, claiming their co-operation in the undertaking.

VANCOUVER'S ISLAND.—In the House of Commons on March the 9th, Sir John Pakington moved for information whether the connection between the Hudson Bay Company and Vancouver's Island had terminated; and whether it is the intention of the British Government to establish a new form of Government in Vancouver's Island when that connection shall have ceased? He also took occasion to present a petition from the inhabitants of that Island, complaining that the high price of land charged by the Hudson Bay company prevented many persons from settling there—further praying that a Governor may be appointed from Britain, and that Courts of Justice and a form of Legislature be appointed.

Mr. Peel, for the Government, replied that the term of the Hudson Bay grant of the Island had not yet expired.

THE EUROPEAN STRUGGLE.

THE CZAR'S REPLY TO THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON.

The Paris Moniteur, in its non-official part, gives the following as the reply of the Emperor of Russia to the recent letter of the Emperor Napoleon:—

THE EMPEROR'S REPLY.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 28, (Feb. 9) 1854.

"SIRE,—I cannot better reply to your Majesty than by repeating, as they belong to me, the with which your letter terminates:—"Our relations ought to be sincerely amicable and should be based upon the same intentions—the maintenance of order, the love of peace, respect for treaties, and reciprocal good feeling." Your Majesty, in accepting this programme as I had traced it, says that you remain faithful to it. I dare believe, and my conscience tells me so, that I have not exceeded its limits; for in the affair which has excited division between us, the origin of which is not to be attributed to me, I have always sought to maintain friendly relations with France, and I have always endeavored to avoid anything which might clash against the religion professed by your Majesty. I have made for the maintenance of peace all the concessions both of form and substance, compatible with my honor, and, in claiming for my co-religionists in Turkey the confirmation of the rights and privileges which they have long acquired as the price of Russian blood, I claimed nothing which was not confirmed by treaties. If the Porte had been left to herself the difference which has so long kept Europe in suspense, would have been solved. A fatal influence has thrown everything into confusion. By provoking gratuitous suspicions, by exciting the fanaticism of the Turks, and by detaining their Government as to my intentions and the real scope of my demands, it has so exaggerated the extent of the questions, that the probable result seems to be war. Your Majesty must allow me not to enter too much in detail into the circumstances as they present themselves to you in your letter, in which those circumstances are marked out. Several acts on my part appreciated with little accuracy, according to my opinion, and more than one fact perverted, would require, in order to be properly rectified, at least as I conceive, long developments, into which it would not be proper to enter in a correspondence between sovereign and sovereign. For instance, your Majesty attributes to the occupation of the Principalities the evil of having suddenly transported the question from the region of discussion to that of fact; and your Majesty leaves out of view the circumstance that this occupation, still purely conditional, was preceded, and in a great measure caused, by a very important previous fact—the appearance of the combined fleet in the vicinity of the Dardanelles; and beside this, much before that period, when England hesitated to assume a hostile attitude, your Majesty took the initiative in sending your fleet as far as Salamis. This wounding demonstration certainly exhibited little confidence in me. It was calculated to encourage the Turks, and to paralyze beforehand the success of negotiations by giving them the idea that France and England were ready to support their cause under all circumstances. In the same way your Majesty makes it appear that the explanatory commentaries of my Cabinet upon the Vienna note, rendered it impossible for France and England to recommend its adoption by the Porte; but your Majesty may recollect that our commentaries followed, and did not precede, the pure and simple non-acceptance of the note, and I believe that the Powers were so little seriously desirous of peace, that they confined themselves to the claims of the pure and simple adoption of that note, instead of allowing the Porte to modify what we had previously adopted without change. Besides if any point of our commentaries had given rise to difficulties, I offered a satisfactory solution at Olmutz, and such was it considered by Austria and Prussia. Unfortunately, in the interval, a part of the Anglo-French fleet had entered the Dardanelles, under the pretext of their protecting the lives and properties of English and French subjects; and in order to allow the whole to enter, without violating the treaty of 1841, it was necessary that the Ottoman Government should declare war against us. My opinion is, that if France and England had desired peace as much as I, they would, at any cost have prevented the declaration of war, or, when war was once declared, have taken care that it should have been restrained within the narrow limits to which I wished to confine it on the Danube, so that I might not be compelled by force to abandon the purely defensive system which I wished to adopt. But from the moment when the Turks were allowed to attack our Asiatic territory, to carry away one of our frontier posts, (even before the term fixed for the commencement of hostilities,) to blockade Akhaltzik, and to ravage the province of Armenia—from the moment the Turkish fleet were allowed to transport troops, arms, and munitions of war to our coast, could it be reasonably hoped that we should wait patiently the result of such an attempt?—Was it not to be supposed that we should do all we could to prevent it? The affair of Sinope was the result of it. That was the forced consequence of the attitude adopted by the two Powers, and the result certainly could not have been unexpected. I had declared my wish to remain on the defensive, but before war broke out, as far as my honor and my interests could permit me to do so, and so long as the war was restrained within certain limits. Has all been done which ought to have been done to prevent these limits being exceeded? If the character of spectator, or even that of mediator, was not sufficient for your Majesty, and if your Majesty wished to become the armed auxiliary of my enemies, then, Sire, it would have been more honorable and more worthy of you to have told me so, frankly, beforehand, by declaring war against me. Each of us would then have known the part he had to play. But is it an equitable proceeding for those to make a crime of that event after it has happened which they did nothing to prevent? If the cannon-shot of Sinope reverberated painfully on the hearts of all those who in France and in England appreciate the national dignity, does your Majesty think that the menacing presence at the entrance of the Bosphorus of the three thousand pieces of cannon of which you speak, and the report of their entry into the Black Sea, remain without echo in the hearts of the nation whose honor I have to defend? I learn from your Majesty, for the first time, (for the verbal declarations made to me up to this period have made no such allusion,) that while protecting the reinforcement of Turkish troops upon their own territory, the two Powers had resolved to prohibit to us the navigation of the Black Sea—that is to say, apparently, to take from us the right of strengthening our own coasts. I leave it to your Majesty to consider if that be, as you say, the way to facilitate the conclusion of peace, and if, in the alternative which is placed before me, I am permitted to discuss, or even to examine for a moment, your proposals for an armistice, the immediate evacuation of the Principalities, and the negotiation with the Porte of a convention to be submitted to a conference of the Four Powers? Would you, yourself, Sire, if you were in my place, accept such a position? Would your national feelings allow you to do so? I boldly answer, No.—Allow me, then, in my turn, the right of thinking as you would think yourself.—Whatever your Majesty may decide, menaces will not induce me to recede. My confidence is in God and in my right, and Russia, as I can guarantee, will prove herself in 1854 what she was in 1812. If, however, your Majesty, less indifferent to my honor, should frankly return to our programme—if you should proffer me a cordial hand, as I now offer it to you at this last moment—I will willingly forget whatever has wounded my feelings in the past. Then, Sire, but then only, we may discuss, and perhaps we may come to an understanding. Let your fleet limit itself to preventing the Turks from sending additional forces to the theatre of war. I willingly promise that they shall have nothing to fear from my attempts.—Let them send a negotiator. I will receive him in a suitable manner. My conditions are known at Vienna. That is the only basis upon which I can allow discussion.

I beg your Majesty to believe in the sincerity of the sentiments with which I am,

Sire, your Majesty's good friend,

NICHOLAS.

Russia and Turkey.

MANIFESTO OF THE EMPEROR NICHOLAS.

ST. PETERSBURGH, Feb. 11, (23.) 1854.

Yesterday the following Manifesto appeared from the Emperor to his people:—

We, Nicholas I., &c.,—

We have already informed our beloved and faithful subjects of the progress of our disagreements with the Ottoman Porte.

Since then, although hostilities have commenced, we have not ceased sincerely to wish, as we still wish, the cessation of bloodshed. We entertain even the hope that reflection and time would convince the Turkish Government of its misconceptions engendered by treacherous instigations, in which our just demands, founded on treaties, have been represented as attempts at its independence veiling intentions of aggrandizement. Vain, however, have been our expectations, so far.

The English and French Governments have sided with Turkey, and the appearance of the combined fleets off Constantinople served as a further incentive to its obstinacy; and now both the Western Powers, without previously declaring war, have sent their fleets into the Black Sea, proclaiming their intention to protect the Turks, and to impede the free navigation of our vessels of war for the defence of our coasts. After so unheard of a course of proceeding among civilized nations we recalled our embassies from England and France, and have broken off all political intercourse with those Powers.

Thus, England and France have sided with the enemies of Christianity against Russia combatting for the orthodox faith.

But Russia will not betray her holy calling; and if enemies infringe her frontiers, we are ready to meet them with firmness bequeathed to us by our forefathers. Are we not still the same Russian nation, of whose exploits the memorable events of 1812 bear witness?

May the Almighty assist us to prove this by deeds. With this hope, combatting for our persecuted brethren, followers of the faith of Christ, with one accord let all Russia exclaim—"O Lord, our Redeemer! whom shall we fear? May God be glorified, and His enemies be scattered.

St. Petersburgh, Feb. 9, (21,) 1854.

VIENNA, Feb. 24.

The Lloyd has received a warning for the publication of articles which has given offence to Russia.

The movement of the troops towards the frontiers continues. Two battalions left the day before yesterday, and a regiment is to follow in a few days. The corps of observation will be completed by the 7th of March.

Our Government has decided, in conjunction with the Western Powers, to summon Russia to evacuate the Danubian Principalities, and, if necessary, to employ force to compel her to do so.

The Gazette de Cologne, of the 28th, states that great irritation is felt at St. Petersburgh, especially against the neutral states. It is considered likely that they will be unable to maintain their neutrality, and will join the Western Powers. "It is certain this will be the case with Austria, whilst Prussia will come to her determination when the force of circumstances shall compel her.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 25.

The soldiers dismissed in the year 1850, 1851, and 1852 are ordered to rejoin their standards, and they are to be with their regiments by the 11th of March.

Manifesto of the Emperor Napoleon.

The following circular has been issued by the Minister of Foreign Affairs to the diplomatic agents of the Emperor:—

PARIS, March 6, 1854.

SIR,—You are now cognizant of the answer of the Emperor Nicholas to the letter of his Imperial Majesty, and you have also read the manifesto which the former sovereign has just addressed to his people. The publication of these two documents has destroyed the last hopes which might have been placed upon the wisdom of the Cabinet of St. Petersburgh; and that same hand which had acquired honor by the firmness with which it had offered support to Europe, shaken to its foundation, now opens the way to passions and chances. The government of the Emperor is deeply afflicted at the inutility of its efforts and the ill success of its moderation; but on the eve of the great struggle which he has not desired, and which the patriotism of the French nation will enable him to assist, he feels it necessary once more to disavow responsibility for results, and to place the whole weight of it upon that Power which will have to account for these results to History and to God. Important considerations of propriety, I know, render my task difficult; but I shall fulfil it, with the certainty that I am not saying one word which is not dictated by my conscience.

In addressing the Emperor of Russia in terms which the utmost conciliation was united with the most noble frankness, His Imperial Majesty was desirous of clearing the question of all the obscurities which kept the world in suspense between peace and war, and endeavored so to arrange it, that there might be no offence against the dignity of any one. Instead of acting upon a similar principal, and accepting the friendly hand which was held out to him, the Emperor Nicholas preferred to recur to facts upon which public opinion had definitely decided, and to represent himself as having had to contend, from the commencement of a crisis provoked by his government, with a preconcerted and systematic system of hostility which was fatally calculated to bring about that state of things which has arrived. It is not my voice, Sir, it is that of Europe, which replies that never at any period did an imprudent policy meet with adversaries more calm or more patient in their resistance to designs which their judgment condemned, and which considerations of primary importance compelled them to resist.

I will go back to past events, upon which such full light has been thrown; but I must once more repeat, that it is no longer allowable to assimilate disputes respecting the privileges of the Latins in the Holy Land with the claim now put forward. That question was arranged from the very commencement of the visit of Prince Menschikoff to Constantinople, and it is the claim which that ambassador raised upon one point

THE PROTOTYPE AGAIN!

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—In again addressing you, I freely apologize for the valuable room I occupy in your columns, and I assure you that in dealing with the pertinacities of the Prototype, I shall be as brief as possible.

In reply to the remark of the Prototype, I do not profess to be a philosopher of history, and I shall be excused by your readers for not entering into a detail of the births and peculiar features of the delegates in their lives and professions assembled in convention, neither is it my intention to use the name of any person exercising his birthright of advocating or repudiating any political candidate, and still less do I wish to enter into any private conversations, such as the editor of the Prototype has detailed between Mr. Ellwood and himself in July last. These matters I am accustomed to look upon as private and confidential, and therefore I leave the Prototype and his friends to gabble such matter as they may deem correct and proper. I took up the unwarrantable interference of the Prototype after the delegates had decided upon their main as an attempt to divide, when all appeared to be unanimous, and an effort to damage Mr. Horton when the parties more deeply interested thought differently, and decided that he was a fit and proper person to represent the Riding. Sir, I may be one of Mr. Horton's "indiscreet friends" and I may have made some ignorant assertions and I may have made some assertions respecting the duties of the editor of the Prototype to attend "caucus meetings," I may have a "feeble frame" and I may be left in the "cesspool of mortification," I may wield a "feeble pen, &c." and want sundry other vast and important qualifications, as the Prototype so unblushingly asserts, but as I generally leave such matters of opinion to be decided by your readers, I would therefore, with all humility excuse myself taxing their judgment upon this matter, and refuse to follow the example of the Prototype in his extraordinary modesty. I still further would state that I have nothing to do with the part that Col Ball, or any of his conferees took in Mr. Killaly's election. All the persons named are of the highest respectability, and they (no doubt) exercised their political liberty on this occasion with the freedom of British subjects as became men and patriots. If, Mr. Editor, the space of your columns would allow it, I should feel a little pleasure in following the erratic editor through the history of his interviews with Mr. Killaly. His temperance principles and especially his dignified conduct upon that occasion, "we were their President of the Temperance Society, and as such, we could take no steps towards doing him an honor then." Although these were the editor's feelings at the time of the dinner, yet its clear this feeling was not much or kept warm for (probably the next day) the scent for us and handed us a map of the London and Sarnia Road told us to get men and trace the line through the township of Lobo, chain it correctly and take field notes of the whole line. We left in less than ten minutes, did the work and returned in less than three days, not a word of office having passed during the interview." Oh! shades of Larry Flinn!" what melting forgiveness! what sympathy with "one of the most unprincipled combinations ever entered into by opposing political parties!" What alacrity "less than three days" in achieving the wishes of an unprincipled conspirator! And yet "not a word of office passed during the interview!" Mr. Editor, were I to follow the inconsistencies of this Trump of politicians, I should be perpetrating an infliction upon your readers, which I believe they would not like to sustain. Leaving therefore this "inquirer" the obnoxious appointment and the deputation of Messrs. Goodhue and others, to the reflection of its own members I proceed to the crowning piece of absurdities. The editor of the Prototype seems to think that his readers have a profound reverence for the opinions of the editor of the Orange Patriot, and then proceeds to quote a column of the opinions and assertions of the editor, respecting the Montreal Elections, &c. As I have no wish to intrude a column about Charley Napier and the Baltic Fleet, I forbear to comment upon the obscurity and inanity of introducing foreign matter into this and of the "ancient Fathers, to wit: Father Ogle R Gowan, the Grand Master of the Royal Scarlet Chapter." The editor of the British Canadian repudiating the Sovereigns unsound logic on liking Orangeism and radical politics together or the three Orange lights which he has quoted as an unanswerable argument against my remarks Orangeism. Sir, I repeat that the Prototype has (as he almost invariably does) most decisively answered for his own romantic observations on this subject. "What! Gowan seduce Orangemen, Benjamin split their ranks, or the Prototype hit at the blighting slander, that a true son of them could vote for Niles! I will not take up your time in transcribing his bitterdash in his issue of March 29th, about the chaplain in Dorchester, and the Orangemen voting for "Mr. Niles as a good neighbor," but merely refer to his own remarks as sufficient for my purpose, what is of equal importance, insult your readers by again showing it in print.

To close this letter, I would merely observe that the editor of the Prototype may amuse himself by reminding me of my "ignorance of the principles and objects of the Orange Institution," and that I am equally ignorant of sacred things, and "quiteas deficient in ancient literature," and of my Rush Lnumnay yet as he very justly observes, he is not an Orangeman, he must certainly, by his own admission admit that it would be highly improper in me to discuss the mysteries of the order with an universal politicum who knows "nothing about it;" and I beg to finish my letter with the very quotation he has made from brother Armstrong's observations. "That the Orange association is based on the infallible word of sacred truth, being a religious institution embracing as much of politics as it essential to debar the Papist or Rebel of admission into our ranks." Sir, I ask not contend for more, it is too high and sacred, and whatever my ignorance of Orangeism or sacred things may be, I claim the liberty of refraining from discussing things I do not understand, but this I do understand, that the editor of the Prototype will not seduce either the Orange religious teacher, or any one Orangeman in the County to vote for Mr. Niles. I had nearly forgot the murder of my own motto in its translation, but if the editor of the Prototype will only look to his own columns and keep plural nouns and verbs within the traces, he may then find fault with other compositors for neglecting their work.

I am, Sir, your obdt servt,
An Elector.

Clare's new Principles of Ship Building.

On Exchange Newsroom, for the purpose of illustrating a new principle in shipbuilding which has excited considerable interest amongst nautical men, and those connected with shipping. The inventor is Mr John Clare, of this town, who recently obtained a patent for a metallic cast, to which we have already called attention in our columns. The ships are to be built in frames placed at equal distances, and with plates of uniform size. The plates are formed on the arch and key principle, with flanges, secured internally thus obviating the necessity of weakening the plates by punching holes in them, according to the present mode of building. It is considered that by building vessels with the longitudinal frame and flanged plates the latter will be prevented from tearing asunder; and even should a shot, or any violent action, be brought to operate against a single plate, it cannot extend to another or star, the rivets, a result which frequently occurs in iron ships of the present build. By the ordinary method of plating, Mr. Clare contends that the whole stress lies on the top of the plate and rivets, an instance of which occurred in her Majesty's ship Nemesis and the steam frigate Birkenhead, the latter, on striking, parting into three pieces, whereas the flanged divide the strain top and bottom, and prevent them splitting. It is proposed, under the new plan, to use double flanged plates for iron ships below the low water line, and plank them with wood outside, secured by bolts through the flanges and planks, and afterwards coppered in the usual manner, any galvanic action between the two metals being prevented by the application of gutta percha and cement between the iron and plank and the plank and copper. This plan is, undoubtedly, intended to prevent the fouling of the bottom of the vessels. In addition to Mr. Clare's new feature in shipbuilding, he purposes to make patent metallic masts and yards. The masts are to be constructed in pieces or plates, with flanges introduced either externally or internally, and rivited through the flanges or secured by being held together with nuts and screws; they may then be cased with plank between the flanges and hooped. Such a combination would, it is contended, make the most efficient mast that can be adopted for strength and lightness, having also the advantage of a good spring. Another advantage is that the metallic mast would be considerably lighter than the wooden mast of similar size and dimensions. By the application of the hydraulic principle, the mast can be lowered when necessary, and raised at pleasure. Yards are also to be constructed on the same plan as the masts, having sliding tubes by which they can be extended when required. Mr. Clare has already secured his inventions by patent. The models have been inspected by a number of gentlemen, many of whom have expressed a high opinion of the merits of Mr. Clare's plans, and it is said that they are to be brought under notice of the government.—Toronto Papea.

Prospects of the Lumber Trade for 1854.

A Kingston correspondent of the Oswego Times and Journal who states that he has long been engaged in the business and derives all his facts either from personal observations or the most reliable authority, estimates the produce of sawed lumber that will be produced this year as follows:—From the northeastern portions of Michigan, 100,000,000 of feet of which he thinks twenty million of feet will be sent to the water markets. Canada West will not produce the average supplies, partly from the deficiency of snow this winter which prevented the millers from getting in their full supply of logs, and partly from the money advances by the merchants to the lumberers not having been so liberal as formerly. He thinks that not over 75,000,000 feet will be made from the Canada side of Lake Erie, including the Grand River Districts and the neighborhood of the Welland Canal, and of this only from twenty-five to thirty millions will be forwarded to the North River. From the head of Lake Ontario and down the Lake to the head waters of the Bay of Quinte twenty millions.—From the Bay of Quinte twenty to thirty millions and from near Kingston ten millions.

This aggregate quantity is very considerably less than that furnished last year and taking into account with this, the increased value of timber lands, the high rates of freight and the prospect of war in Europe, he concludes that the price of lumber for 1854 will be more than maintained.

The Quebec Gazette says:—Capt John McDougal has addressed to us an interesting communication drawing attention to the circumstance that the spring fleet of trading vessels bound for the gulf may be endangered by Russian privateers fitted out in the United States, or emerging from the northern ports of Russia. "The Dardanelles and the Baltic may be closed against the egress of privateers or vessels of war, but the White Sea remains free." The Quebec people must be very nervous.

There has been great destruction of property on the Grand River in consequence of a flood.

Fire.—On Monday last, the 27th inst., the Residence of Henry Vansittart, Esq., at Eastwood, near Woodstock, was burnt to the ground. Some of the furniture was saved; but the loss must be very great. The building being of wood, and the wind blowing hard at the time, the flames spread rapidly, and in a very short time all was reduced to ashes. We understand the property was insured.—Woodstock Paper.

AUCTION SALE OF REAL ESTATE,
In the flourishing Town of Clinton, on the line of the Buffalo, Brantford and Goderich Railway.

THE Subscriber has received instructions to offer for sale by Auction at Mr. Wm. Rattenbury's Hotel, Clinton, on Thursday the 20th day of April next,

FORTY TOWN LOTS,

Most eligibly located in the thriving town of Clinton. Clinton is situated 12 miles from Goderich, and in the midst of the best cultivated and most valuable portion of Canada West. It is surrounded by wealthy farmers, and contains Grist and Saw mills, Mechanics' Shops, Stores, Hotels &c. The Buffalo, Brantford and Goderich Railroad runs through the town, land for a Depot has been already sold and preparation made by the Company to build on an extensive scale. Independent of the great advantages to be derived from the Railroad, Clinton must become a place of considerable importance, from the fact that the stage roads from Stratford, Guelph, Hamilton, Toronto, &c., and the one to London, &c., with two other leading roads unite here with the great Huron Road, and good opportunities are now offered to men of good business and intelligence to develope its resources, and benefit themselves.

Terms—One fourth cash, and the balance in three equal annual instalments. Sale to commence at 12 o'clock, noon.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE, and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will, and becoming the favorite medicines of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and Impure State of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to commend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. I. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreano, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

Dr. G. W. Halsey—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1846 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health, I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which "nature sinks and life becomes a burthen." Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business again, entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body &c

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. And therefore delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of sinking, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, insatiable and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and been agreeably surprised. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of health, which again invariably follows the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What artificial appendages equal that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health! What paints can compare with the commanding colored blood coursing through delicate hue through the [illegible] skin! What charms are more [illegible] nature in the highest perfection! [illegible] wine supply the place of all cosmetics. The use of this excellent wine in a short time creates pure, rich blood which, coursing through the [illegible] penetrates the minutest fibres that verge towards the surface of the skin, giving an unfeignable purple and liveliness to [illegible] imparting a vivid, rosy color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In confirmation of these facts, Dr. Halsey lets every testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rutgers street,

New York, July 7th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister, from her youth, had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest attended with a cough. About the age of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to [illegible] meeting with your medicines she had not been able to get out of the house. Her countenance was greatly emaciated, yellow and sallow. Her cough was severe and often covered with disagreeable pustules; eyes very much sunk and her cough increasing. In fact, a chronic every appearance of soon becoming an unhappy victim to consumption. At this time I procured her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She soon fully perceived as she followed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of recovery was an uncommonly good appetite, her face finally became smooth and her cheek rosy. Her cough left her altogether. She now stays fat and vigorous and presents the finest example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MAXWELL.

DR. HALSEY'S
GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is a [illegible]-ritual adjunct. They are covered with pure Gum Arabic, an important invention, for which Dr. Halsey has received the only Patent ever granted on Pills by the Government of the United States.

Dr. Halsey's Forest Wine and Gum-coated Forest Pills unite in accomplishing the same great end, THE PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THE RENOVATION & RESTORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.

The life principle of man is the blood, its source are those organs of the stomach which secrete the blood, cleansed of morbid matter and restored to healthy action by the use of the Forest Pills, and pure rich blood made to flow in the veins, by the use of the Forest Wine, then disease begins to vanish and strength and energy of body return. This is the principle on which hundreds of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

BRITISH AMERICAN

FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

OF MONTREAL,

Office No. 103, Notre Dame Street.

OFFICERS:

HENRY T. STRONG, Esq., President.
J. H. PHILLIPS, Esq., Sec'y. & Manager.

DIRECTORS:

A. A. DORION, Esq.	J. G. BIBAUD, Esq., M.D.
A. T. STRONG, Esq.	J. DOUTRE, Esq.
A. M'DONALD, Esq.	W. HENDERSON, Esq.
J. H. PHILLIPS, Esq.	P. COOPER, Esq.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0
Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment.
0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

TORONTO, C. W.

MESSRS. SMALL & PAIGE, importers and dealers in Music and Musical Instruments, etc., beg to announce that they have opened their new ware-room (situated as above,) and will constantly have on hand, both Wholesale and Retail, every article of Musical Merchandize of various qualities and prices. They would particularly solicit an inspection of their new style of

Grand Square Piano-Fortes,

from the manufactories of Collard & Collard, London; and Linnard & Weber, Philadelphia.

Messrs. S. & P. have also on hand, a large stock of New York and Boston Piano-Fortes, of excellent quality, which they can warrant in all respects, and especially in regard to their keeping in tune. They will also retain the same softness and sweetness of tone for a number of years, without ever acquiring that metallic, hard and wiry tone which many instruments, of otherwise good reputation, are apt to have.

Their piano Fortes are carefully selected by one of the firm, "Mr. R. G. Paige, Professor of Music, Organist of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto," whose professional experience enables him to judge of the qualities of an instrument. They can, therefore, fully guarantee every instrument purchased of them.

Brass and Wooden Instruments, for Military, Amateur and Quadrille Bands.

Likewise, every description of Stringed and Wooden Instruments necessary for a complete Orchestra.

Violin strings of a very superior quality, which they warrant cannot be surpassed.

Messrs. S. & P. are also the sole Agents for the sale of Warren's celebrated

Harmoniums & Melodeons.

The newest and most fashionable Music can always be procured at their Establishment.

Classical Sacred Music—consisting of all the celebrated Oratorios; also, church music.

Second hand Piano-Fortes Bought, Sold and taken in Exchange; Piano-Fortes tuned, repaired and for hire.

Music for Military Bands, Italian, French and German Operas.

The newest and most popular Ballads.

Instruction Books for every musical instrument; Vocal instruction books of the best masters.

The latest and most fashionable dance music of all kinds.

Polkas, Schottiches, Galopes, Mazurkas, &c. &c., &c.

Piano-Forte music by all the great masters.

The newest French, German, Italian and English publications received weekly.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

"To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000 and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster, That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or initials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

BAKING ESTABLISHMET.
London, Nov. 15, 1853.

I BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence there have been false reports, taking the advantage of Mr. Garnall, my uncle, compelling him, through false swearing to pay my debts, as partner, which he never was. There were parties who certainly swore to falsehoods, through evil designs and animosity, which they held against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my baking business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and despatch on the shortest notice.

COMPOUND
CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.
London, C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. REDFORD & Co.
Gentlemen—I have received the ample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial" and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavour, in which its therapeutical Medicinal qualities appears to be largely infused and well preserved; and as the vegetable tonic is highly beneficial in those forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone of the digestive organs, (for form which we frequently met with on the continent) your cordial will, I doubt not, form an inestimable addition to our Pharmacopœia.
From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Preparation of this valuable Tonic to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.
I am, Gentlemen, Yours, &c.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs; Gout, Tic Douloureux, Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Stiffness of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds &c.
It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, in fact the vitality of life, and that disease in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. It then, we can really supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of commanding magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.
There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Comfort and Relief for the Afflicted.
NO ONE MEDICINE FOR ALL DISEASES.
W. C. SWEETS
CELEBRATED FAMILY MEDICINES

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,
Cures all Pains, Cramps, Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague, in the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head Ache, &c.;
ENVATO CHINESE BALSAM,
Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Cholic Pains, &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family which has done them much good. I have first used it in a case of Scarlett Fever, and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it on a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.
Respectfully yours,
Rochester, March 23rd, 1852. JOHN DOTY.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.
Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no fe:er.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is
SWEET'S KING OF OILS.
It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application.—Cures all Ulcerated Sores, Piles, Chilblains, tetter Feet, Blisters and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.
Try it, you will not regret it,

TO W. C. SWEET.
DEAR SIR—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—
For the last eight years I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure, except by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price.
I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicity, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.
JOHN PERRY.
Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing to the fact as the above disease and cure.
SILAS WOOD—Keeper of the Wilson Hotel.
LUTHER WILSON,—Merchant.
Thousands of Testimonies of the above character as furnished.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for Poll-Evil, Fistulas, Scratches, Sand-Cracks, Old Sores with Pines Formed, Salded Head, Fresh Wounds, Wounds in Stables, Scrupious Rheumatism, Cracks and Cute, Collar-galls, Sweeny, Cracked heels, Spasms and Bruises, Lameness or Weakness of the Joints contraction of the Muscles External Poisons Horns and Scrolls, Horn Distemper in Cattle, Hoof-Ail, Black-Hoof &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL REASONABLE CASES.

Facts are stubborn things. The medicine is not surpassed by any as is known for the above diseases. It has cured more of Poll-Evil Fistula Sweeny Shoulders, than any other Medicine prepared for those diseases of horses and Cattle—see Gargling Oil excepted. As names and numerous flowery certificates form no part of the ingredients of this medicine we publish but a few from the many thousands we have in possession; but suffice to say ying in answering.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned have for years used and seen used Sweet's Black Oil for horses and can safely recommend it to the public as a sure and safe preparation for scratches, galls, cuts, bruises, Poll-Evil, and sores of every kind. It is thought much of in these parts who have used it. We have used many preparations for horses, but we give the preference unhesitatingly to Sweet's Black Oil. We would advise every horse owner to keep a bottle of the above Oil on hand, for its timely use will save time and money.

LONDON AGENCY,
MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution—the capital stock of this company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal, in 1852—has practically shown to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

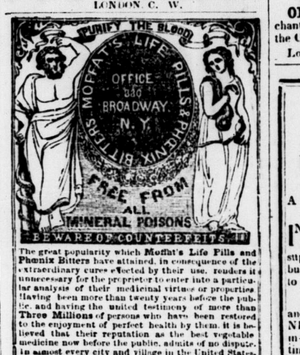
LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:—
Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to upwards of six per cent annum—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportions by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.
Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premiums, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 38 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississipi River.

2. VOYAGES.



They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and re-cross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another—or from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 36 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississipi River.
Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

Poetry.

The Bible and Crown.

A new Ballad, to be Said or Sung in all Churches and Meeting Houses throughout the Land.

Awake to the combat! stout hearts to the strife!
Each blow that we deal is for freedom and life.
The vulture of bigotry screams on the blast;
The foeman around us his leaguer has cast,
And loud is his menace and dark is his frown
As in vain he would be glares on the Bible and Crown.

No phantom illusive allures to the fight,
No vision that flashes and fades on the sight,
That flits like the vapors of morning away,
A moment deceptively gilt by its ray,
No selfish ambition—the bubble renown—
But the soul-stirring cause of the Bible and Crown.

Oh yes, 'tis a cause every bosom to fill
With the holiest ardor of chivalry's thrill,
A cause to ennoble the meanest whose brand
Gleams gallantly drawn for the weal of the land,
In brotherhood linking the prince and the down,
As they boldly rush on for the Bible and Crown.

Each minor discussion be lost at the call,
Absorbid in the peril impending o'er all;
Let the Presbyter strike by the Prelatist's side,
And stem, in strong union, fell Popery's tide,
Whose billows unsparing both quickly would drown
Strike, Protestants all, for the Bible and Crown.

Oh, dream not the demon will pause in his ire.
Of Luther or Calvin the signs to inquire;
Enough ye the fetters of error have burst,
Alike ye have dared, and alike are accurst;
He heeds not the squabble of surplice and gown:
Woe, woe, is your doom, with the Bible and Crown.

By the halo of glory undying is flame
That gilds with its lustre your forefathers' name,
By all that to freemen and loyal is dear;
Come for hearths and for altars, and loud be the cheer
That wakens the echoes in country and town:
On, on, gollant hearts, for the Bible and Crown.

Awake to the contest, and proudly and brave
Let your banners of freedom and loyalty wave:
While we strike for the cause of our freedom each blow,
Despise we the traitor, and dare we the foe,
As tumbles the Dagon of tyranny down
Before the blest ark of the Bible and Crown.

long a secret; and while it would alarm and alienate the Sultan, the knowledge of its existence would stimulate all his enemies to increased violence and more obstinate conflict. They would fight with the conviction that they must ultimately triumph; while the Sultan's generals and troops would feel that no immediate success could save their cause from final overthrow. Thus would be produced and strengthened that very anarchy which is now feared, and the forsight of the friends of the patient would prove the cause of his death.

"On the part of Great Britain, her Majesty's government at once declare that they renounce all intention or wish to hold Constantinople. His Imperial Majesty may be quite secure on this head. They are likewise ready to give an assurance that they will enter into no agreement to provide for the contingency of the fall of Turkey without previous communication with the Emperor of Russia."

A further interview took place between our Ambassador and the Emperor after the receipt of this despatch, at which the Emperor said:—

"'All I want is a good understanding with England, and this not as to what shall, but as to what shall not be done. This point arrived at, the English government and I—I and the English government—having entire confidence in one anothers views, I care nothing about the rest.'

"'I remarked that I felt confident that her Majesty's government could be as little disposed as his Imperial Majesty to tolerate the presence of the French at Constantinople; and being desirous, if possible, of ascertaining whether there were any misunderstanding between the Cabinets of St. Petersburgh and Vienna, I added—But your Majesty has forgotten Austria. Now, all these Eastern questions affect her very nearly. She, of course, would expect to be consulted.'

"'Oh!' replied the Emperor, greatly to my surprise, 'but you must understand that when I speak of Russia, I speak of Austria as well. What suits the one, suits the other. Our interests as regards Turkey are perfectly identical.'

"The Emperor went on to say that, in the event of the dissolution of the Ottoman Empire, he thought it might be less difficult to arrive at a satisfactory territorial arrangement than was commonly believed. 'The principalities are,' he said, 'in fact, an independent state under my protection; this might so continue. Servia might receive the same form of government. Roumania, with Bulgaria. There seems to be no reason why this province should not form an independent state.'

'As to Egypt, I quite understand the importance to England of that territory. I can then only say that if in the event of a distribution of the Ottoman succession upon the fall of the empire, you should take possession of Egypt, I shall have no objection to offer. I would say the same thing of Candia; that Island might suit you, and I do not know why it should not become an English possession."

A long document recapitulating these views of the Emperor, was subsequently placed in the hands of our Ambassador, which was drawn up as if England acquiesced in the views of Russia, and in consequence, Sir G. H. Seymour addressed the following distinct letter to Count Nesselrode:—

St. Petersburgh, Feb. 24, (March 8.)

"My dear Count Nesselrode.—There is an observation respecting the very important memorandum placed yesterday by your excellency in my hands which I feel obliged to make.

"I am most anxious to observe that this paper must have been drawn up under the impression of English policy at Constantinople having been very different from what in reality it has been.

I can affirm conscientiously and distinctly, that the object proposed to themselves, as well by the late as by her Majesty's present government, has been to act as a common friend in the contests between the allied governments; and far from having inclined, as has been stated, to France in the course of the late critical transactions, it has been the desire of the Queen's advisers (to the full extent permitted to a government compelled to observe a neutral attitude) that ample satisfaction should be given to the demands which his Imperial Majesty's government were justified in making.

This assertion I should have no difficulty in substantiating by written evidence; and I will add, that in any just demand which England may have to make on a foreign cabinet, I only desire that the conduct of a friendly power towards us, may be that which quietly and unostentatiously the English Government has pursued in the complicated question of the Holy Places with regard to the claims of Russia.

I request your excellency's good offices for causing this, the real state of the case, rightly understood; at all events preventing a contrary belief for being adopted until it shall be clearly ascertained whether or no, my statement is correct."

I have, &c.,

(Signed) G. H. SEYMOUR.

With these extracts—evidence of the treachery of the Emperor, and the good faith of Great Britain, we shall close our observations, merely adding that whilst they acquit Lord Aberdeen's government, of the suspicion of having lent themselves willingly to the designs of Russia, they, at the same time, prove that knowing them they entertained a sham proposal from Russia, during which she matured her preparations for the invasion of Turkey, and the pending war.—British Canadian.

The Russians in Possession of a Deadly Element of Destruction.

A certain French Engineer on a late visit to Sinope, upon examining some of the wrecks, gave as his opinion that the missiles used in the destruction of the Turkish vessels were of novel invention, and unlike anything hitherto used in warfare. Some of the spars from the dismantled ships were despatched by him to the French Commander, to be duly examined by persons of experience in matters of this nature. Among those present was the captain of one of the frigates, who had, under Louis Philippe, formed part of the Council of Marine. At sight of the fragments sent for examination by the engineer, he was struck with the remembrance of an invention offered to the minister while he was in the bureaux of the marine, and which was rejected at the time, as its employment in war would be contrary to the laws of humanity and honorable warfare. The invention was due to the chemical researches of a M. Fortier, who calls it, in his programme, the boulet asphyxiant, and was discovered in the year 1839. Upon Fortier's offer to communicate the secret to the Minister of Marine, he refused to accept it alleging the great number of means for the destruction of human life already existing, and there, it seems, the matter ended. In 1842 another proposal was made of the same invention, registered in the archives of the Marine, as Fortier's "boulet asphyxiant" no longer, however, made by the inventor, but a M. Champion, an individual well known in the annals of Paris life, who had lost and won many fortunes—who had been fermier des jeux, speculator on the Bourse, an infant de balle—in short one of those who deem all means of gain lawful where all have equal chance.

The offer was again refused, upon the same pretext as before, and nothing more was heard of the affair until it became known that M. Champion had repaired his broken fortunes in Russia. Captain B——, who had seen the specimens which Fortier deposited at the Marine in 1839, declares the effects to have been precisely the same as that visible upon the shattered spars of Sinope.—The programme of Fortier's invention describes it as liquid fire burning under water, and destroying life by suffocation in all who happen to be within a certain distance of its explosion. The observation made by Capt. B—— at the end of the report, which had been sent home, is this:—

"If the Emperor of Russia is really in possession of this deadly element of destruction, the combined navies of the whole universe would be powerless against him."

PRINCE ALBERT'S NEW COAT.—Prince Albert, as Colonel of the regiment of Grenadier Guards, has suggested that the blue cloak should be set aside, and a great coat the same color as that of the men, worn in its stead. The reason is that the officers at the head of their regiments, in the blue cloak, would be a mark for the enemy's rifles. The new coat, designed and approved by his Royal Highness, has immense advantages over the cloak. It may be worn without using the sleeves, the latter being so placed that the arm may be put through or withdrawn without assistance even on horseback. The pockets are large, sufficient in an encampment to contain linen, and the requisites for the toilet. The skirts may be withdrawn from the front, so as not to impede the free use of the legs on the march. The shoulders and arms are also protected by a large cape.

We have advices from Australia to the 7th December, by the steamer Sydney, which brought over £300,000 of Gold, the whole of which has gone to the Continent. The general yield of gold has fallen off nearly one-half. New mines at the Pyrenees and Avoca promised well, but on trial they failed, Ballarat still bears the palm. The cost of carriage cuts down profits, an evil which railways alone can remove. Coal has been discovered close to the sea beach, and three cargoes have been paraded through the streets of Melbourne amidst loud hurrahs! There were great speculations in sawn timber, in anticipation of a rapid increase in building in the contemplated townships of Bendigo—Some of the sawyers are earning as much as £30 to £40 per week. At Forest Creek the £50 half acre lots, purchased some six or eight months since, were selling for £3,000 and others letting at £50 a week. A monster house of deal, from Canada, comprising 34 rooms, was in course of erection.

The Steamship "City of Glasgow."

A great deal of anxiety is felt throughout the country because of the non-arrival of this vessel, which sailed from Liverpool for Philadelphia, on the 1st of March. She had a fair cargo on board, and over three hundred passengers. She had an ample supply of coal for twenty-six days, and with economy it might be made to last thirty days; but she has now been out forty-one days, and if fast in the ice, as is supposed, her coal must be exhausted. It is thought by some that she may have made her way into one of the West India Island ports, if she got clear of the ice. In the meantime it is proposed to dispatch revenue cutters in search of the missing vessel.

One of the greatest fires ever known in Manchester, commenced in that city on Wednesday, March 1st, and was not extinguished until the following day. Much delay took place before the fire engines arrived, and during the time the flames steadily gained strength until a whole row of buildings was one vast sheet of fire, and the goods within destroyed. The total loss is estimated at over £180,000 sterling.

ARRIVAL OF THE "EUROPA."

THE WAR IN THE EAST.

The Czar refuses to give an answer—nothing new from the seat of war—Austria yet undecided—Hostilities expected to commence on the Danube—Two Frigates have gone to destroy the Stockade at its mouth.

NEW YORK, April 8.

The Europa, from Liverpool, 25th March, arrived this afternoon at half past four o'clock.

Consols closed 88¾.

Political affairs in Europe unchanged.

The Sarah Sands arrived at Liverpool on the 24th.

The fear of war produces dullness in all markets.

The export of gold was not so heavy.

The Bank rate of interest was unchanged.

The London Globe says that Russia consents to recognise the neutrality of Sweden. It now seems to be the Russian course to separate Denmark.

The Prussian people were earnestly petitioning their Government to join the Western Powers, but the Government hangs back.

Austria seems to act in concert with the Western Powers, but not yet in any decided manner.

From Omar's camp, on the Danube, there is nothing but casual affairs of outposts in the neighborhood of Kalefat.

An English and a French frigate had gone to destroy the Russian stockade at the mouth of the Danube. This will probably be the first of the hostilities between Russia and the Allies.

Nothing new from the Baltic or the Black Sea.

The Greek insurrection yet lives, but is languid.

From the Ionian Islands the export of grain was prohibited.

The Cunard steamer Cambria sailed on the 28th for Kingston, Ireland, to ship more troops, and the steamer Teneriffe will sail for Malta with troops.

BERLIN, March 24.

Count Nesselrode has communicated to the English and French Consuls that the Emperor will give no answer at all to their joint communication.

There is no change in the Danish Ministry.

PARIS, April 20.

Three divisions of the French army for the East will have embarked by the end of the month, and the fourth will follow early in April.

At Marseilles a grand fete was preparing for the Duke of Cambridge.

The national loan subscription is now said to reach 430,000,000 francs. Every description of securities had fallen.

Invasion of Canada.

It is reported in the States that the Emperor of Russia has his emissaries here, as well as in Greece and European Turkey, and that the Irish population of this country are favorably disposed towards him and anxious to second his views by helping on an invasion of Canada. It is also stated that there is an organization in Ireland, the object of which is to enlist men for the Czar and join him if he should think of giving poor old Granu Waile a lift in the world.

John Mitchell has issued a proclamation to his countrymen in Ireland and elsewhere, cautioning them not to enlist or aid England in her military movements, the New York Times talks of the invasion of Canada by the 10,000 Irish militia men in New York; and the New York Herald considers Canada as good as lost to England. This is all very well for newspaper excitement; but we can assure Mitchell & Co., that the gentry beyond the St. Lawrence are about the last people from which they will receive aid in any attempt against England and her interests. We should like to see the editor of the Citizen go to Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, or any section of Canada to stir up his countrymen to disloyalty. Although they are a law-and-order people over the lakes, there would be a demand for tar and feathers simultaneously with his entrance into their cities. There is but one feeling throughout Canada towards England.

We love liberty and think the Irish have good cause of complaint; but the Canadas are not fortunately selected as foyers of rebellion, or as likely to turn against England. For, as matters stand, they have no grievance to complain of, and the home government have been latterly throwing the management of their own affairs into their own hands so freely, that it would be very difficult for them to find a decent excuse for getting into a passion. This fact is overlooked by Mitchell, Bennett & Co. Dr. Nelson was the leader of the Canadian revolt in 1837; but the "hero of St. Dennis" is now the Mayor of Montreal.

Anything like a row in the North West would only smash the Canadian crockery, without injuring England in any great degree even if the movement were successful, and would not do Ireland any good either. For the Green Island is as little inclined to make a united, hearty effort to help herself now, as she was in 1848.

It is no go, Mitchell; and if attempted will prove as unpopular as the slave plantation speculation. Canada, if appealed to, in a generous, touching and most eloquent style of proclamation on the subject of her wrongs, would probably retort, with the jolly recklessness of Canning's renowned and "weary knife-grinder," who had never a poor story to tell, and unequivocally bid the sympathisers go to the—whom? Island of Cuba, reader,—Montevideo, Sonora, or any other place of that kind! The time when John Bull tells his colony that she had better look to herself, manage her own business and prosper after her own fashion, is not exactly the time to tempt the Provincials to rebellion. At least so we think.—Boston International Journal.

The Case of Narcisse Filian.

The action brought by Narcisse Filian against the two magistrates of Beauport who condemned him in a fine for having behaved in a disrespectful and indecent manner during the procession of the Host, as it was leaving the church of Beauport, has been tried at Quebec in the Superior Court. The Judges present on the Bench were the Honorable Chief Justice Bowen, Duval, and Meredith.

His Honor the Chief Justice cited the Act 7 George III. ch. 3 entitled, An act to provide more effectually for the maintenance of good order in churches, chapels, and other places of public worship, and for other purposes mentioned. The second section of this Act declares that it is the duty of the verger (marguillier) in office, in every parish and establishment of the Province to maintain good order in and near the church, or chapel, or other place where public worship is held, within or without the said church or chapels, &c., and also in the neighboring roads or public places. The third section declares that every person causing disturbance in the church, &c., during divine service, or behaving in any indecent or disrespectful manner in or near such church, &c., or resisting the vergers or other persons in the performance of duties imposed upon them by this act, or insulting them, may be arrested by any verger or constable or officer of the peace and taken before a justice of the peace; and on the oath of such verger or constable or officer of the peace, or of one or more credible witnesses, declaring that such person has caused disorder, or has conduct d himself in a disrespectful manner or has otherwise misbehaved, or on the confession of the person himself, the said justice of the peace shall condemn such delinquent person to a fine not exceeding forty shillings currency nor less than five shillings; and if such person be not able to pay the fine he shall be imprisoned for fifteen days, or until the fine be paid. The same section says also that persons loitering about the churches, chapels, &c., or neither going in nor going away, may be carried before a justice of the peace and condemned to the fine; and the eighth section gives to justices of the peace, at the demand of the vergers of the churches, the power to appoint one or two constables to assist the vergers. The conduct of Filian is thus found condemnable, for his behavior was punishable by fine; but there has been a want of formality as to the manner in which the magistrates have proceeded in regard to him, and on that account the Chief Justice has considered that he is entitled to recover costs.

His Honor Judge Meredith said expressly that if the declaration had alleged that the place where Filian had behaved disrespectfully belonged to the church, or that the ceremony, according to the custom of the Roman Catholic Church was one of those in which parties present ought to be uncovered, or i supposing that it was upon the property of the church) the choice had been offered him of withdrawing or being uncovered; if the declaration had alleged all this, the case would have been very different. For want of this the Court found itself obliged to give the costs.

His Honor Judge Duval was, however, of opinion that the Court ought not to award costs, inasmuch as, even if the information had been drawn according to form, the defendant could not have justified his conduct. He was upon the property of the church, the priests and the parishioners being in prayer; the defendant, who is a catholic, was a member of the church, and yet his conduct was most disrespectful and most indecent. I have the conviction, said the learned Judge, that, according to the principles of English criminal law, and the spirit and even the letter of our own provincial statute 7 Geo. III. chap. 3, the defendant ought to have been cast, notwithstanding the want of form.

If Odds La Minerve, from whom we have translated from the above) the defendant has recovered this costs, he has not gained his justification, which must be much more important to him.

Quarter Sessions.

The General Quarter Sessions of the peace for the County of Elgin was opened on Tuesday. There was a very full attendance of Magistrates, probably thirty. D. J. Hughes, Esq., Judge of the County Court presided.—The occasion of the presence of so many Magistrates was the final arrangement of the division Court districts, but we believe they have not altered any of those already formed. The criminal cases were commenced yesterday evening, but they will probably last until Saturday evening, for there is one case which in itself would be quite enough of work for one Session. The only case of public interest brought before Court was one in which John Campbell, junior, and Lydia Campbell, his wife, were the plaintiffs, and Samuel Robins, defendant. The female plaintiff is sister to the defendant, and the action was brought to recover a certain sum of money, said to be due for services rendered as housemaid and servant to her brother before her marriage with Campbell. Several witnesses were examined who proved that defendant treated his sister with the greatest kindness and brotherly attention during her residence with him. This fact was also corroborated by the fact that she would not come into court to give evidence against him. After the marriage, he gave her four cows, ten sheep, and several articles of much value.—The jury, after patiently listening to the evidence retired for a few minutes and came in to court with a verdict for defendant. Agents for the plaintiff, Henry Hamilton, Esq., for the defendant, James Farley, Esq.

We understand the business of the Courts of Assizes and Nisi Prius, will be rather heavy.

The want of hotel accommodation is now felt in St. Thomas. Scarcely can a bed be obtained for any consideration with several hotels in town. To night there is an influx of School Teachers expected for the public examination by the County Board of Instruction which will be held to morrow. Where they can be accommodated it is hard to say. Something must be done by the enterprising men of the town to provide reasonable accommodation.—St. Thomas Dispatch.

THE RECTORIES.—While the general question of the validity of the endowment of Rectories in Canada, is pending in Chancery, an introductory case has just been decided. This case though not exactly analagous with, or involving the principle of the general subject possesses no common interest at the present time, when curiosity is so much excited on the subject of this Chancery suit.

The action just decided was brought by a private individual named Martyn against the Rev Mr. Kennedy, Rector of Darlington. The land in dispute consisted or Lot No. 25, in the 1st concession of that Township. This lot was applied for as a Glebe in 1831 and afterwards appropriated as such. The details of the case are quite voluminous and beyond our limits. Mr. Martyn proved a prior right declared through preceding occupants, and the consequence is, that Rectory patent has been annulled and Martyn's right confirmed. We understand that no appeal will be made from the decision of the court. We hope the general question too may soon be set at rest for ever.—Leader.

CANADIAN GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.—A very large emigration of masons, carpenters, quarry men, engine drivers, engine fitters, and other artizans, is taking place for this railway. Between four and five hundred have already left England, and all the third class accommodation in the Canadian Screw Company's vessels which leave Liverpool this and the next month has been secured by the contractors for these men. Great numbers are seeking this employment, tempted partly by the high wages offered, (in many cases double what they receive in England and Scotland,) and partly by the comparative cheapness of provisions in Canada, and the certainty of every industrious man becoming a possessor of land within a very few years. Arrangements have likewise been made for sending out large drafts of "navvies" and other laborers, in sailing vessels during the spring. Constant employment has been guaranteed by the contractors to steady men for five years. The passage money of those who cannot pay it, as well as of their wives and children, is detrayed for them, on condition of the men being under stoppage of a shilling a-day each until the debt is liquidated. This is a light infliction, inasmuch as the lowest rate of pay for unskilled labor is 4s, and it ranges up to 8s and 10s a day for mechanics and artizans. If the conduct of these latter has been good during twelve months after arrival, each is to receive a bonus of £2, and under similar circumstances a laborer is to receive £1.—Herepath's Journal.

NEW COTTON FACTORY.—We learn with much pleasure that an establishment is about being erected at Newmarket for the manufacture of grey cottons. The enterprise was started by Mr. Ellsworth, of Newmarket, and Mr. W. A. Clark of this city, and been taken up with unusual spirit by the business men of Toronto. A company is to be formed under the General Act, with limited responsibility. The capital is fixed at a moderate sum, to commence with—£35,000. The mill is intended to be 150 feet long by 50 wide—four stories high, and will contain 120 looms and 5000 spandles. The estimated cost of mill, machinery, repair shop, and twelve tenements for workmen, is £16,250—and the working capital, £8,750. It is calculated that 1,200,000 yards of 36 inch cloth can be turned out annually, which, at 5½ per yard, would produce £25,000. Upon this, it is alleged, a very respectable per centage would accrue as profits.—Globe

NEW APPLICATION OF CHLOROFORM.—We translate the following from the Journal de Quebec.—Doctor Delabarre has just made an important discovery in rendering insensible by means of Chloroform that part alone of the body on which it is designed to operate, instead of the general insensibility which is so dangerous. He directs a jet of chloroform vapor upon the part affected. At a meeting of Physicians Dr. Delabarre operated upon nine patients with more or less success; some felt nothing, others had felt the operation, but not experienced any pain.

PROHIBITORY LIQUOR LAW DECLARED ILLEGAL.—Chief Justice Robinson has declared the By law passed by the Municipal Council of the Township of Darlington, prohibiting the Licensing of Inns and Taverns, illegal. He concludes as follows: "I think therefore that the By-law now before us, passed in February, 1853, goes further than the Municipal Council had power to go, in prohibiting the opening of any house for the sale of wine, spirits, beer, ale or cider, by retail, to be drank in such house. If we are right in this view, then the By law was illegal, and being moved against while it was in force, though it has since been repealed, such repeal, as we have determained in a similar case, though it renders it needless to make any order respecting the By law, makes it right that the rule should be discharged on paying the costs of the application."

£1,600 Reward.

£1,600 will be given in the following sums:

£100 Reward will be given to any person who can produce the whole of the Roman Catholic Rule of Faith.

£100 To any person who can produce the Traditions of the Church of Rome, and prove them to be genuine, authentic, and divine.

£100 To any person who can produce the Unanimous consent of the Fathers in the Interpretation of Scripture.

£100 To any priest who can produce an Infallible Interpretation of the Holy Scriptures.

£100 To any person who can tell where the Infallibility of the Church of Rome is to be found.

£100 For the best method of discovering the True church without the exercise of Private Judgment.

£100 For any command of Christ or his Apostles forbidding the people to read the Scriptures.

£100 For any command of Christ or his Apostles to adore the Host, or bow down to Pictures or Images.

£100 For any command of Christ or his Apostles to ask the Intercession of the Virgin Mary.

£100 For any command of Christ or his Apostles to ask the intercession of Saints or Angels.

£100 For any command of Christ or his Apostles to take away the cup from the laity in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

£100 For any command of Christ or his Apostles forbidding the clergy to marry.

£100 For any passage of Scripture requiring us to believe the doctrine of Purgatory.

£100 For any command of Christ or his Apostles to say prayers in a language not understood by the people.

£100 For any passage of the New Testament where any minister of the church of Christ on earth, as such, is called officially a priest, or sacrificing priest.

£100 To any Roman Catholic, Pope, Bishop or Priest, who can prove infallibly that he and all his predecessors up to the Apostles were duly ordained, or have ever rightly administered any true Sacrament, supposing the Roman doctrine of Intention to to be true.

The above sums are offered in a spirit of kindliness and respect to the members of the Roman Catholic Church, and will be most thankfully paid to any one who can produce the things required, on application to the Rev. S. B. Ardagh.—Barrie Herald.

Great Western.

The N. Y. Tribune thus refers to the Great Western Railroad, and recent international arrangements for the convenience of the travelling public:

"When we announced the opening of the Great Western Railroad connecting Niagara Falls and Detroit, we indulged in some speculations upon the probable results of the daily transit of hundreds of American citizens through the Canadian territory, and the increased intercourse of the Canadians with our Eastern cities, upon the political relations of the inhabitants of the peninsula, which is now made a mere elongation of the ferry over the Detroit and Niagara Rivers. It was quite clear that the boundary line would soon be an inconvenience to our people. Heretofore it had been one only to the Canadians, whose agricultural productions it barred from a more convenient market. One inconvenience has just been remedied by an order of the Secretary of the Treasury made on the 13th inst. Some five hundred passengers had been carried daily each way over the Great Western Road on their route between points in American territory. Though their trunks were locked up in the baggage cars, and inaccessible to them during the whole period of transit, the owners were compelled the moment they gained the soil of the Union, to open their baggage for inspection by the custom-house officers, and to see the train they desire to take, start while the examination was taking place. The amount of grumbling daily vented by our free and enlightened citizens at this vexatious interposition of thier own government may besafely left to conjectural estimate. To relieve them from further annoyance, Mr. Guthrie has directed the conductors of the Great Western Road to be appointed Inspectors of the Customs for the Districts of Detroit and Niagara, and authorised through baggage conveyed in locked cars under their custody to be passed without entry or examination upon the affidavit of the Conductor inspector that the property has been unopened during the transit. The same regulation is made in regard to American produce and merchandise carried over the Canada Road on its transit from point to point of our territory. Two additional inspectors are appointed to facilitate the transit at Detroit and Niagara, and the warehouse of the Railroad made Government warehouse, to provide for the case of necessary detention at the frontier.

THE UNITED STATES MAILS OVER THE GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.—The Detroit Advertiser, of Monday, says:

It gives us extreme gratification to be able to announce that the arrangements for carrying the mails through Canada have at last been completed. The Hon. Charles E. Stuart has written a letter to Mr. Daniel Munger, Esq., of this city, informing him of the fact and also that the latter had been appointed the agent to superintend the transmission of the mails through the provinces. The appointment of Mr. Munger is indeed an excellent one; long connected with the press, there are but few citizens who could have been selected, whose experience, ability and indefatigable attention would prove of more service in the successful establishment of this new and untried mail route. We heartly congratulate Mr. Munger on the success which he has met with in his application for this office, and sincerely hope, as we are sure all his friends do, and they are numerous "as leaves in Vallambrosa," that it will prove to him remunerative and reward him for his long and severely tried fidelity to his political frends.

Loyalty of Roman Catholic Irishmen in Quebec.

From the Canadian Colonist.

A large number of Irishmen, members of the Hibernia Benevolent Society, dined together at Chartrain's London Coffee House, in celebration of the National Festival of Ireland. About 200 persons sat down to dinner.

The following were the regular toasts:—

1. The Pope.
2. His Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminister.
3. His Grace the Archbishop of Quebec and the Catholic Clergy of Canada.
4. The Day and all who honor it.
5. The memory of O'Connell.

And the Queen was left out!

Reliability of the Manifesto.

We again extract from the Leader a portion of the continuation of their article on the recent Clergy Reserve Manifesto, claiming against the falsehoods resorted to, a portion of which we alluded to in our last, (the affixing of the names of certain Rev. incendiaries, the denominations to which they officially belonged, whereas they, themselves, alleged that they signed it in their individual capacity and not as ministers.) In this extract the system of deception is exposed in the matter of pounds, shillings and pence. We commend the mistatements and the refutations to our readers, also the false references to the Judge's reports, clearly proving that no falsehod is too gross for the adoption of these political firebrands to circulate if only the end can be achieved. Before we give the extracts referred to we draw attention to the following:—

"Besides some liberal allowances from the French Crown, the Hotel de Ville, and other external sources, no less than one-fourth of all the granted lands was bestowed upon the church establishment, and the several religious, educational and charitable institutions of the Colony, and a tithe of a twenty-sixth part of all the produce of the fields was also appropriated to the support of the parochial clergy." From page 125, Vol. 2, of Werburton's Conquest of Canada, we extracted the above; a great cry has been raised here at one seventh of the land being appropriated by a Protestant King, George the III, for the support of the Protestant Churches, while a Roman Catholic Monarch does not consider even one fourth sufficient, and makes up the deficiency by "granting a twenty-sixth part of the produce of the fields as a tithe." The dishonest secularizers, for there are the two classes, one who oppose state support to every religion, the other, who merely echo the cry for political motives and who would move heaven and earth to take from the church the Clergy Reserves, so called. Now, from the extract above, it is quite evident the source from whichthese endowments and appropriations spring is the same. The Sovereigns of France and England each, according to the law of nations, being ex officio owners of the wild land in the newly discovered and newly conquered colonies, and as such owners granted these lands, the one-fourth and the one-seventh for religious purposes; now if one had a right to confer the grant the other had likewise, if one is invalid the other is likewise so, but if the grant of George the third be set aside, the grant of Louis the 14th will not long retain its validity. We hear a great deal of the wealth of the Roman Catholic Church in Lower Canada—no wonder, where one-fourth of the land was set apart to maintain that church exclusively besides the tithes. Length of possession will avail nothing, an investigation will sift their titles to its source, and we should not give one year's purchase for their property when the Clergy Reserves of the Upper Province are secularized. And if any doubt existed as to our views they are removed by reading the extract from the Barrie Herald, commenting on the Globe which we give previous to the one from the Leader:—

"CHURCH PROPERTY IN LOWER CANADA.—When publishing in last week's issue, the Globe's lengthened article upon Church property in Lower Canada, we omitted drawing attention to the significant fact, that the Secularization Party through their recognised champion—Mr. Brown—have fairly thrown off the mask and now declare their intention of waging a fierce crusade against every description of Church endowment. Until a late period the "Clear Grits" of Western Canada angled for French support in their Secularization schemes, with the assurance that the Endowments of Roman Catholics in the Lower Province were secured by treaties between the French and English monarchs and could not be called in question; now, however, growing bold and trusting we presume, from their fancied strength, they do not hesitate to declare that such treaties were of a temporary character, and that religious endowments both in Upper and Lower Canada may, and must, be swept away. Surely treachery of this kind will meet its merited punishment, and Roman Catholics in both Provinces will record their votes against such reckless and unprincipled politicians! Secularization or non-secularization will be THE TEST QUESTION at the coming elections, and we trust that the opinions of candidates may be thoroughly ascertained before promises of support are given.

"The innocent signers of the manifesto will learn with shame and indignation what a string of falsehoods they have been seduced into endorsing. The public is now gravely informed "the annual income now derived from interest "and rents is estimated at from 40,000 to "£50,000 currency. The truth is that the present income is little over one-half of £50,000 per annum. In 1852 the amount distributed among the churches was £26,032, 3s. 2d.; instead of £50,000. All the revenue but a mere fraction is distributed every year; so that the total amount is only about £27,000. In 1851 the amount received on account of the Upper Canada Reserves was £46,542, 11s. 8d.; but of this the greater part was capital, not revenue.—£3,551, 15s. 2d. was capital on account of old sales, and £26,903, 19s. 10d. capital on account of new sales; leaving but a fraction over £14,000 of revenue; and against this there was a Crown lands charge of £2,890, 19s 3d, for management. On the point of revenue, then, the manifesto is grossly inaccurate. What it states as the revenue of one year being nearly equal to that of two years.

"From annual revenue, the manifesto passes to aggregate amounts; declaring,—

"That it has been computed that the Church of England has already received, from this fund, cash to the amount of one million of dollars, besides Glebes, Rectories, and other grants of land; and the church of Scotland about £400,000 besides land grants and Glebes."

We have no hesitation in stating that no such computation has ever been made; and that there exist no data on which a computation could be made which would produce such a result. A return laid before Parliament in 1850 (we think) gave the sums that had been paid out of public sources to all the churches in the Province from 1841 to 1850. The return contained materials for a computation which was made and which showed that, during the period mentioned, the Church of England, in Upper Canada received, from all public sources, £200,-7?5, 10s. 0¼d sterling, and that the same church in Lower Canada received £108,766, 11s. These amounts make considerably over a million of dollars; but up to 1821 the whole charge was paid out of other sources than the Clergy Reserves—the Imperial Treasury—and it was not till 1840 that the Church of England, in Lower Canada, received a farthing from the reserves. The Church of England has received from the reserves fund the following amounts:—in the years 1840—1823, £150; 1824, £200; 1824, £775; 1825, £350; 1826, £1,072, 4s 5½d; 1827, £397, 1s; 1828, £928, 6s 8d; 1829, £250; 1830, £461, 2s 2¾d; 1831, £100; 1832, £2,444, 8s 10½d; 1833, £6,575, 15s 1¼d; 1834, £1,708, 13s 3¾d; 1835, £6,110, 6s 7¼d; 1836, £6,159, 5s 11d; 1837, £6,132, 11s 8¾d; 1838, £5,003, 9s 0¾d; 1839, £6,132, 17s 2½d; 1840, £6,221, 11s 9¾d; 1841, £8,911, 1s; 1842, £8,189, 5s 1d; 1843, £7,912, 9s 11d; 1844, £7,724, 14s 3d; 1845, 8,128, 17s 8d. These sums comprise every shilling received by the Church of England out of the Reserves' Fund up to the year 1846.—Since that period, the amount has been greater; but the aggregate amount will be found far short of a million of dollars; showing the manifesto to contain false information on this point also.

"Immediately after the statement that the Church of England has received over a million of dollars out of the Reserves' Fund, follows this declaration, as to who were entitled to have received these moneys:—

"Yet all other Protestant Denominations, according to the unanimous opinion of the Judges of England as to the act of 1791, were entitled to an equal participation in the supposed benefits accruing from the wilds of the lands. The injustice of the unequal proportion of the proceeds of the Reserves has also been greatly aggravated by giving a portion of the funds to support a Roman Catholic Priesthood.

"The Judges never gave any such opinion.—After declaring the right of the Church of England to the Reserves, under the Constitutional Act of 1791, they say,—"We do not find on the Statute Book the acknowledgement by the Legislature of any other clergy answering to the description [of Protestant clergy] and as we are not furnished by your Lordships with any information as to the doctrine or discipline of any other denominations of Christians to which the statute of 31st, Geo. III. can by possibility apply, we are unable to specify any other to whom Lordships as falling within the statute." The Judges could not say which, if any other denomination besides the Churches of England and Scotland were entitled to participate in the Reserves, they only set out, in the face of this declaration, the manifesto gives the Judges as authority for the assertion, that all Protestant denominations were entitled to an equal participation! What confidence can be placed in the statements of a document so grossly inaccurate as we have proved this to be?

We have scarcely noticed a tythe of the mistatements contained in the manifesto. When a person is asked to sign such a document, he cannot stop to test the fidelity of its statements. He must take them on trust. But when he finds he has been seduced to endorse a string of falsehoods, he owes it to himself to see that his name does not continue a minute longer than it will take to effect its removal.

SECRET CORRESPONDENCE.

We give elsewhere a condensed report from the British Canadian of the Secret Correspondence, carried on during the past year between Russia and England, through Sir G. H. Seymour, our Ambassador at the Court of St. Petersburgh. No one can peruse it without observing the difference between the conduct of England on the occasion, and that of the States upon all similar ones. The noble reply given by the British Ambassador as to the duty of a powerful State to protect a weak, is what we should expect from an honest Englishman, if such an opportunity had been afforded our Republican neighbours their annexation frenzy would have prompted them to close with so congenial an offer. And we can see no difference between the monopolizing decree of Russia in Europe, and that of the States in America. Injustice equally characterize the attempts of each. From the publication of that correspondence the Aberdeen Ministry are presented to the Country as being cognizant of the designs of Russia, and completely belie their defensive statement for protracting active measures "That they had no reason to doubt the sincerity of the Czar or question his desire for the maintainance of peace." The last mail informs us that the Duke of Newcastle at a Public Dinner in London declared that "they the Ministry, went into the War most reluctantly."—This fully accounts for the shuffling and evasive course which has characterized the miserable patchwork denominated the Aberdeen Cabinet, since their entrance upon the duties of office, on the Eastern Question.

FAIRS AND MANUFACTURES.

We refer to two extracts from the Woodstock American, on the above subjects, and we agree in the regret expressed of the non-co-operation of the Farmers in aiding what we have before expressed our opinion would be most useful and beneficial to their interests. Now that Railroads offer a facility of easy and cheap transit, we trust the Fall Fair and any succeeding ones will make amends for the comparative failure of this. On the other subject the inhabitants of London might take a hint. This is peculiarly a Wool growing country, the stastistics we adduced in former numbers comparing Western Canada with Ohio, and some of the other States, justify us in expressing a hope that we may soon have Woollen manufacturies established through the Western Country, in order that all the Profits of conversion from the raw material to the manufactured Goods, may find its way into Canadian pockets. We are also happy to see a new Cotton Factory is to be erected at Newmarket, C. W.

"OUR SPRING FAIR.

"We were present at the Fair which was held last Wednesday, in this town, for the sale of cattle, horses, and other stock.

We notice, with regret, that our Agricultural friends are backward in carrying out the desire of the Directors of the County Society, by sending to the Fair the stock they may have to sell—we wish it had been otherwise. Ample notice of the Fair was given, and we know that persons from a distance came to purchase.

Farmers should bear in mind that it is of great importance, (if these Fairs are to be held, and which we hope to see well established,) that as little disappointment as possible should occur to parties coming to purchase, more particularly to those from distant places; and justice compels us to acknowledge, that purchasers had good cause to express disappointment at the small quantity of stock for sale at the Fair on Wednesday.

Four yearling Ayrshire Bulls, belonging to the late J. B. Ewatt, Esq., of Dundas, were sent up for sale. We understand two of these were purchased by gentlemen who have farms in this neighborhood. A. H. Farmer, Esq., East Zorra, bought one for £25, and —— Woods, Esq., West Zorra, bought the other.

The Agricultural Society took advantage of the holding of the Fair to offer premiums for stallions and bulls, upon the condition that such animals gaining a prize should serve in the county the ensuing season. There were but few entries. The prizes awarded were—

For Horses—A Clydesdale stallion belonging to the East Zorra Society, 1st prize.

Suffolk Punch Stallion, belonging to the county Society, 2nd prize.

Stallion belonging to E. Bourchier, Esq., Blenheim, 3rd prize.

For Bulls—"Wheat Ear," short horn, belonging to the County Society, 1st prize.

A Devon Bull, belonging to A. Hamilton Farmer, East Zorra, 2nd prize.

A Hereford Bull, belonging to the County Society, 3rd prize

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will, and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any others. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and assimilation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to commend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. I. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreno, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1845 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my bedside nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health. I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which nature sinks and life becomes a burthen.—Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to attend to business again, entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.
JOHNSON BURKE,
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body &c

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. And therefore delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of sinking, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, lassitude and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or false symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills, in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of health, which again invariably follows the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What artificial appendages equal that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What paints can compare with the crimsoned colored blood causing its brilliant cascade hue through the transparent texture of the skin? What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? Let Dr. Halsey's wine supply the place of all cosmeticks. The use of this excellent wine in a short time creates pure, rich blood which, coursing through the veins, produces the innumerable tints that verge towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, imparting a vivid, rosy color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rutgers-street,

New York, July 7th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister, from her youth, had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest attended with a cough. About the age of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to commencing with your medicines she had not been able to get out of the house. Her countenance was greatly emaciated, yellow and sickly. Her face and neck was covered with disagreeable pimples, excessively much annoying and her cough distressing. In fine she bore every appearance of soon becoming an unhappy victim to consumption. At this time I procured for her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her best symptoms of recovery was an excellent good appetite. Her face hourly became smooth and her cheeks rosy. Her cough left her altogether. She is now strong and corpulent and presents the finest example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MAXWELL.

DR. HALSEY'S

GEM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are entirely free from Mercury, or any injurious preparation, and which Dr. Halsey is exceedingly careful. Patent ever granted on Pills in the Government of the United States.

Dr. Halsey's Gem-Coated Vegetable Forest Pills unite in accomplishing the same great end, THE PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THE RENOVATION & RESTORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.

The life principle of man is the blood, no sooner are these organs of the stomach, which secrete the blood, clogged or impeded in their action, and rendered healthy action to the use of the Forest Pills, and pure rich blood made to flow in the veins, than the cause of the Forest Wine then disease begins to vanish and health and energy of body return. This is the principle on which is founded these great medicines, and by which nearly all diseases are cured.

The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles, with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One Dollar per bottle or six bottles for Five Dollars. Gem-coated Forest Pills 25c. per box.

NOTICE

THE Annual Meeting of a proposed [illegible] will be taken into consideration at the Second Session of the [illegible] of the County of Middlesex, at the Wharncliffe Inn in said Township, on Saturday the Tenth day of December next, at the hour of Twelve o'clock, noon, when and where all persons interested can attend and place the matter before the Council and Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

ADAM MURRAY,
Township Clerk.

Dated this 26th, 1853. 3-3m

STOP! STOP!

THE [illegible] other inhabitants of this and the adjoining Counties would do well to examine the Large stock of Stoves, at the

PHOENIX FOUNDRY!

London, C. W.

THE Subscribers, thankful for the liberal support they have enjoyed since commencing business, beg to inform their numerous customers and the public generally, that they are manufacturing at the above premises a large and well assorted stock of Stoves, Ploughs, Harrows, Scrapers, Fire Irons, Waggon boxes, Grates, Coolers, Cauldrons, Sugar and Potash Kettles, and every other description of Castings, which they Warrant to give satisfaction to those who may favor them with their orders.

Their stock of Stoves embrace the celebrated Union Ventilator; Bang Up Air Tight: large and small Burr; Forest Queen; improved Clinton; No. 3, and 4, premium, American Pattern, Folding Door Parlor Stoves; Plain and Fancy do.; a great variety of Box Stoves.

Among their large assortment of improved Ploughs will be found the celebrated Provincial Prize Plough; London district Prize do; No. 1 and 2 Iron Beam, do; Scotch improved Double Land side, do; Niagara premium, do, do; Eagle Michigan, do. do.

N.B.—ELLIOTT & BURGESS would particularly call the attention of the Farmers to the Iron Plough. They have strengthened the Land Side and made the plough to take a larger Coulter, and raised the Mouldboard 2 inches higher, thereby affording greater facility for turning up and pulverizing the soil.

☞ Cord Wood, Sheepskins and old metal taken in exchange for castings.

ELLIOTT & BURGESS.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

HERMAN KORDES.

BAKING ESTABLISHMET.

London, Nov. 15, 1853.

I BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence Oliver have been false reports, taking the advantage of Mr. Garnett, my uncle, compelling him, through false swearing to pay my debts, as partner, which he never was. The true were parties who certainly swore to falsehoods, through evil designs and animosity, which they hold against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my baking business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and despatch on the shortest notice.

CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London, C. W. June 15th, 1852.

MESSRS. READFORD & Co.

Gentlemen—Having received the sample bottle of your Compound Camomile (Cordial) and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aroma and fragrance and genuine bitter flavour, in which the essential Medicinal qualities, appears to be largely infused and well preserved; and as this vegetable bears a highly beneficial in those forms of dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone of the digestive organs (the form most frequently met with on this continent), you cordial will I doubt not, form an unexceptionable addition to our Pharmacopeia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Readford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Preparation of this valuable Tonic to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a decidedly valuable invigorating cordial.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Cutaneous Embrocation. This Cutaneous Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, &c. located in the joints or limbs—Gout, Tic Doloreux, Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spasms and Hip Complaints, Affections of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Cutaneous, Local and Nervous &c.

In the drug as usually administered, by the learned and scientific that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that the cure in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient, we can see readily cause of disease and pain has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of communing magnetism of fluid, with a mind which has CONSUMED the study of the recently years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal called in this country or Europe which make it its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The discovery of Dr. Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

CELEBRATED FAMILY MEDICINES

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINIMENT,

Cures all Pains, Chronic Rheumatism, Wind Colics, Ague, in the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head Ache &c.

PRIVATE CHINESE BALSAM.

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Chests, Pains, &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have tried one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them much good. I have first used it in case of Scarlet Fever, and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of cases, I am satisfied that it is an unfailing remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN DOTY.

Rochester, March 23rd, 1852.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.

Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Frame.

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application.—Cures all Uncurable Sores, Piles, Chilblains, Tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.

Try it; you will not regret it.

TO W. C. SWEET.

DEAR SIR—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure, except by the knife, and they would have charged me high price.

I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with strict use how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now Seven months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

JOHN PERRY.

Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 5, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.

SILAS WOOD—Keeper of the Wilson Hotel.

LUTHER WILSON—Merchant.

Thousands of Testimonials to the above character as furnished.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for the following Female Complaints. Sore Chest, Old Sores with Ulcers Formed, Sublic-Boils, Tetter, Tumors, Wind Galls of every description, Rheumatism, Chicken, and Thoroughpin, Sweeny, Contracted Sinews and Bunches, Incipient Weakness or Weakness of the Joints, connection of the Muscles, External Poisons Burns and Scalds, Hoon Distemper in Cattle. Hoof &c. Ringbone &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL TREATABLE CASES.

Facts are stubborn things. The medicine is not surpassed by any as yet known for the above diseases. It has cured, more of Bold-Head, Tumors, Sores, and Ulcers than any other Medicine ever introduced for those diseases of horses and Cattle—no Gargling Oil excepted. As numerous and numerous flowery certificates from part of the ingredients of this medicine, we publish but a few from the many thousands we have in possession; but suffice to say ying in knowing.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned, have for years used and seen used Sweet's Black Oils for horses and can safely recommend it to the public as superior preparation for scratches, galls, cuts, bruises, Mud-fever, and sores of every kind. We have thought much of by those who have used it. We have used many preparations for horses, but we give the preference to Sweet's Oils to all others. We would advise every horse owner to keep a bottle of the above Oils on hand, for its timely use will save time and money.

LONDON AGENCY,

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town and London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others, from which they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution—the capital stock of this company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses effected by the great fire at Montreal in 1850—has practically shown to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that losses may rest assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:—

1. Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participation of profits by the assured—annual exhibition of the affairs of the company by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnerships.

Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premiums, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 35 degrees of North latitude; but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and re-cross the Atlantic ocean in steamers of first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of North America to reside in another—or from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of north latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

ENGRAVED BY

JOHN GURD

GUN MAKER,

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation is the best vegetable medicine now before the public. Minute directions, in almost every one of the languages of the United States, whereby there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigour and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing, in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases, by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsies, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their effective properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Poetry.

The Grave of Two Sisters.

Oh, ever thus, the soonest fly
The lovely from the earth—
Too chill a clime, too bleak a sky
For flowers of heavenly birth.
And beautiful were ye, and pure
As dreams of sainted nun,
Twin fountains in a rocky cave,
Unkissed by the sun.

Sisters in more than name, ye grew
A fond and lovely pair—
And not a hope or dream had one,
The other did not share.
Nor are ye severed in the grave
Ye slumber side by side—
One in your lives, one in your death—
Oh, none can now divide!

Oh, woe that beauty! woe that truth
None from the spoiler save—
That virtue, loveliness and youth
Must moulder in the grave;
That all we love, and all we cherish,
Are withering day by day,
And not a flower that will not perish,
No star but wears away.

Yes, bitter were our earthly doom,
Were friends to meet no more,
And did no ray of hope illume
The darkness of death's shore—
Were there no pure and blissful home
Beyond the starry sky,
Where God himself shall wipe the tears
For ever from each eye.

J. S. H. M.

The Rainbow.

The hurricane careers o'er vale and plain;
The oak its strength avails not, nor the bower
Its loveliness; alike, before the power
Of the triumphant tempest, both are vain.

Put forth your might, ye elements! constrain
The kingly oak to crouch—spare not the Flower!—
But lo!

Constantinople Gossip.

A letter from Constantinople describes the social aspects of the city under the influx of military and trading adventurers from all parts of the world:—

"Every steamer that arrives brings hundreds of persons to Constantinople. They all come with the intention of doing something of a warlike nature in Turkey—Poles, Hungarians, Italians, and Germans, mostly exiles. These men all look for employment in the Turkish service; but few, however, succeed in getting it, as the Turkish government has very wisely determined not to accept the services of any but those who can produce certificates from the governments under whom they have been employed as to their competency to undertake the command of troops, their character, and a few other considerations of no small importance. The consequence is, that Pera, and Galata, the Christian suburbs of Constantinople, are crowded by idle men of this class, all waiting for the things that are to come, and lingering in the hope of yet being put in the position to serve his Majesty Abd-ul-Medjid. The representatives of some of the powers strongly oppose the formation of foreign legions, and it cannot be said that any of those projected are at all in a fair way towards realization.

"The Anglo-Saxon race is, however, not unrepresented. Numbers of English officers, and some Americans, are here, ready to draw their sword for the cause of Islam. These gentlemen are in many instances of what the Germans call the eisen fresser class (fire-eaters,) men who are anxious to engage with an enemy, whoever he may be. There are several English gentlemen of private fortune here at the present moment, in whom the spirit of war is busy and stirring. They would like to command a regiment—to have a rub with the Russians, no matter wh ther in Asia or Europe, whether on the banks of the Danube or on the frontiers of Russian Armenia—not particular, provided they can have a good campaign. Bimbashee (Major) Tattis, of the United States, and Bimbashee Bonfanti, idem, are both gone to Asia. Bimbashee O'Reilly, an Irish gentleman, is on the Danube.

"The dinner tab'e at Misseri's Hotel d'Angleterre, at Pera, is not a very large one. The company that attend it is, however, of a rather uncommon, and perhaps unprecedented description. With the exception of her Britannic Majesty's political agent for the Danubian Principalities (a forced exile from Bucharest,) his secretary, two civil engineers, and the correspondents of two of the London morning papers, it is composed of the most warlike and destructive elements that could be well gathered together. The original inventors and sole proprietors of the most combustible instruments for the destruction of mortal man there dine together in peace and harmony. Mr. ———, the original inventor of the newest species of rocket, sits little removed from Mr. ———, the exclusive proprietor of the celebrated patent explosive shell; whilst a little lower down, the happy owner of 20,000 revolvers is casting up in his mind whether the Turks will appreciate the five-fold qualities of his arm. The rest of the table is filled almost wholly by military men, and has for the last few days been honored by the presence of Lieutenant-General Sir John Burgoyne and his staff, who have just returned from the Dardanelles."

France—The Secret Correspondence—Comments of the French Press.

We have published the documents respecting the overtures made to the English Government by Russia, during the first portion of the last year. The views of the latter Power are now confirmed by official proofs, emanating from the Russian Chancellor, and from the private Cabinet of the Emperor Nicholas; and it is now sufficiently demonstrated that the French Government was justified in characterising the demonstrations made under the pretence of protecting the sanctuaries of Palestine, as designs dangerous for Turkey and for Europe. It is now known with what precision of language the English Cabinet refused to join with Russia in any attempt to make a partition of the Ottoman Empire, and it is not necessary for us to indicate which of the two governments has the advantage in this correspondence.

If there be in the propositions, thus repudiated by England, proofs of excessive hardihood, there is also instances of forgetfulness which will excite surprise. The Emperor of Russia re-models the map of Europe without taking any account of Austria. It has been seen in what terms that Sovereign replies to the expression of astonishment which the silence preserved, respecting the latter Power, inspired the English Ministry.

It has, indeed, been asked what part Austria could take when Russia appropriates to herself Moldavia, Wallachia, Bulgaria, and Servia. Equal attention has been paid to what concerns Greece, for which country the Emperor Nicholas interdicts not only the restoration of the Byzantine Empire, but "all extension of territory calculated to render it a powerful empire."

As to the Government of the Emperor Napoleon, there is but one observation to make upon the studied endeavor of Russia to leave it out of the question in her plans of territorial re-modification, which is that Russia came back to the French Government after having failed in London, and that France, in her turn, had to decline advances more or less direct, which are not without resemblance to those which were first made to England.

Turkey.

The following "Order of the Day" has been addressed by Omar Pasha to the troops at Kulafat:—

"Generals of Division and Brigade, Superior and Subaltern Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers, Corporals and Soldiers of the Imperial Army!

"The stronghold of Kalafat, which you have conquered with so much courage, has suddenly become of the greatest importance for our cause. In your hands rests the honor of the country.

"If, with your usual bravery, you remain firm in that post—if you are ready, in its defence, to shed the last drop of your blood, it will be impossible to calculate all the advantages that will result from your heroism.

"If, on the contrary, the enemy should succeed in gaining possession of your intrenched camp (may God save us from that immense calamity,) it would be in the eyes of the entire world a blot on Musselmen honor. His Imperial Majesty the Sultan, our most Gracious Sovereign, confides entirely in your well-known courage.

"Soldiers! Can I rely on you? With this extraordinary courage which I have so often seen you display, with your devotedness to his Majesty, with your love of country, you will not say, 'Our intrenchments are terminated; nothing more remains for us to do.'

"Soldiers! You will not be deterred by fatigue from augmenting still more the strength of the intrenchments of your camp. If the Russian army attacks you, you will fight to the last extremity and overcome that implacable enemy, with the assistance of the Almighty and the help of the Prophet.—Should the enemy carry even one of your redoubts, without receding one step, you will attack them with the bayonet and drive them out of it.

"Soldiers! If you fall supreme happiness awaits you above. If you conquer you will acquire here below the esteem and admiration of the entire world, whose eyes are fixed on you.

"Shumla, 30, Djemasiyul, year 1270."

Prussia.

Letters have been received from Berlin which state the Prussian Government is greatly alarmed at the popular demonstrations which are in course of organization in the north of Prussia, for the purpose of welcoming the English and French fleets on their arrival in the Baltic, and of forcing the Prussian Government to take part in the war against Russia.

The Seat of War.

Latest accounts from Europe show that the Russians had crossed the Danube in great force, their object being to strike a decisive blow before the arrival of the Anglo-French army. It is stated that not less than 50,000 Russians are now on the Turkish side of the Danube. A desperate battle occurred at the crossing of the Danube at Oltenitza. The Russians were repulsed with dreadful carnage, 3,000 of them having been slain. The Turks suffered so severely, that they had to retire within their intrenchments.

The allied fleets remain at Beycos.

Napier's fleet was, according to last accounts, (29th March), sailing up the Baltic. No collision had as yet taken place. But the Russians were making stern and extensive preparations for hostilities. They had removed all the buoys and lighthouses, and dragged masses of rock along the ice, which would impede the navigation when the ice melted. Also, formidable fleets of gun boats are collected in shallow waters at the principal points. All the houses in Cronstadt not capable of defence were pulled down, and bare ice were erected everywhere.

The Greek insurrection was reviving, and the Turkish Minister had demanded his passports and left Athens. An Anglo-French occupation of the revolted provinces was not improbable.

By telegraph to Liverpool before the steamer had sailed, it was stated that the Russians had attacked Kalefat, and taken three redoubts.

The treaty between England, France and Turkey, was signed at Constantinople on the 12th.

Telegraphic despatches from Vienna and Buchurest, announce that 18,000 Russians crossed the Danube on the 23rd ult., and occupied Gaschad.

Thirty thousand Russians had also crossed at Matshin, without molestation from the Turks.

A large force was assembling between Gaschad and Matshin.

A telegraphic dispatch from Belgrade states that on on the 15th, General Gortschakoff wished to depart from opposite Kalefat, and while his troops were occupying the bridge, they were fired on by the Turks.—The bridge was destroyed, and 2,000 Russians were precipitated into the stream and drowned. The Turks suffered no loss.

The British Cavalry for the East was to pass through France, to embark at Marseilles.

The Duke of Parma was stabbed by an assassin, and died the following day.

The Emperor Napoleon was received by the chambers with great enthusiasm.

A division of the Russian fleet left Sebastopol to provision the Russian fortresses on the coast of Circassia.

The Czar's Forces.

Omar Pach, in a despatch to the Sultan, gives the following as the total of Russian forces on the Danube:—

	Men.
Dannenberg's Corps..... (This corps has suffered much from sickness and during the engagements).....	30,000
Luder's Corps..... (A division of this corps is in the Caucasus).....	28,000
Osten Sacken's Corps..... (More than one division of this corps is in Bessarabia. It is by no means complete).....	25,000
A division of Cavalry.....	4,000
Total.....	87,000

We may, the despatch goes on further to state, without hesitation deduct from this army 10,000 men, detatched from the ranks by sickness, for the typhus and other fevers are making great ravages among it.

From the Panama Herald, March 25.

News from Australia.

TWO WEEKS LATER FROM MELBOURNE—EMIGRATION—GOLD NEWS.

We have received by way of Callao the Melbourne Morning Herald of the 12th January, being fourteen days later.

The Argus contains a very strong leading article against the new Governor, Sir William Denison, whom it calls a "mere jailor," and concludes by saying, "If we are to be insulted by his presence the worst fate to which he could be sentenced would be infinitely too good for one who has injured us as he has done."

In speaking of immigration and labor, it notices the temporary stoppage in the emigration from Great Britain, and after reasoning upon the cause and consequence thereof, comes to the conclusion that, "there is ample room and abundant work, first rate wages, and a certain prospect for every industrious artizan and laborer who chooses to come to it, and there is hardly any assignable limit to the number of such workers who could find immediate employment in it."

The gold market remains dull, and the price may be quoted at from £3 15s 6d, to £3 16s 9d. At the Bendigo markets flour was quoted at £42 to £45 per ton.

Stanton Proclamation.—There is a proclamation extant, addressed by Russia to the Circassian Chief in 1837, in which it is asked:—"Are you aware, that if the heavens should fall, Russia could prop them with her bayonets? The English may be good mechanic artisans, but power dwells only with Russia. No country ever waged successful war against her. If you desire peace, you must be convinced that there are but two powers in existence—God in heaven and the Emperor upon earth."

☞ Col Colt has received an order from the British Government to furnish their Baltic fleet with 5,000 of his navy pistols, as soon as possible; and he is notified that the entire fleet is to be furnished with them. The armory here will be required to do a good portion of this work, and probably the Enfield gun orders for Colt's pistols will be immense. Mr. Bicks, engineer, is pushing forward the South Meadow Works as fast as possible, so that the armory in this city may be greatly increased.—Hartford Times.

The Prohibitory Law in Vermont.—The following resolution was recently passed by a temperance convention held in Woodstock, Vermont:—

Resolved,—That we believe the cause of Temperance has declined since the enactment of the present stringent laws for its support; and that to recover the ground already lost by ill legislation upon this subject, it is necessary to drive the question altogether from the political arena, and to return to the good old way of convincing men of the error of their ways by the powers of reason.

Sebastopol—Is it Impregnable?—This question is answered in the negative by Mr. Oliphant, whose work, on the shores of the Black Sea, has just been published. Mr. O says:—"Of one fact there is no doubt, that however well fortified may be the approaches to Sebastopol by sea, there is nothing whatever to prevent any number of troops, landing a few miles south of the town, in one of the six convenient bays with which the coast, as far as Cape Kherson, is indented, and marching down the main street (provided they were strong enough to defeat any military force that might be opposed to them in the open field), sack the town and burn the fleet.

The last mail from India announces the following deaths among the officers of Her Majesty troops:—Lieutenant-Colonel Farrant, Her Majesty's 81st Regiment, at Allahabad, on the 21st of January; Lieutenant-Colonel Trifton, 10th Hussars, at Bombay, on the 8th of February; Lieutenant-Colonel Shortt, 87th Regiment, at Allahabad, on the 25th of January; Cornet Ross, 14th Light Dragoons, at Meerut, on the 23rd of January.

Horrible Accident on the Hudson River Railroad—Falling of a Massive Rock simultaneously with the approach of the Train—Loss of Life.

A melancholly accident occurred on the Hudson River Railroad last evening, caused by the falling of an immense piece of rock on the track, two miles north of Tivoli, when the 4 45 train from this city was under full headway and within four rods of the place. So sudden and unexpected was the fall, that the flagman, who was at his post, had signalled to the engineer of the down train that all was right; but as the train approached, he heard a rumbling sound which was followed by the falling of the rock. He narrowly escaped, and immediately reversed his signal, but not in time to prevent the accident. The jar caused by the running of the train undoubtedly shook the rock so as to cause it to fall at that moment.

The train was at full speed when the locomotive struck the rock, smashing it and the two baggage cars almost into atoms.—So great was the concussion that passengers were lifted out of their seats and thrown several feet. There were five passenger cars in the train, two of which were badly broken but no passengers injured.

But the worst features of this accident are yet untold. Four persons in the employ of the company were so severely injured that it is thought three of them will not survive.

Francis Scott the engineer, aged 40 years, a resident of Poughkeepsie, skull fractured and otherwise injured. He was dead or dying when the up train left. He was the oldest engineer on the road, and was considered one of the most scientific and prudent in the employ of the company. The locomotive he was running was a new and powerful one, called the "St. Clair."

Francis Shultz, the fireman, a resident of Green Bush, was badly injured, but he is the only one out of the four who, it is thought would survive.

Joseph Alger, of Alje, and Charles Bertrand, brakesmen, were both severely injured, having been smashed between the cars.—Both were insensible, and the former was dead or dying at latest accounts.

George Simpson, Mr. Caldwell, conductor, a mail agent, the messenger of Pullen and Virgil's express and John Young, the baggage man, were all in the baggage cars at the time.

The cars were broken into atoms, and were subsequently taken and burned in the ovens in the cars to keep the passengers warm. Even the stove was broken to pieces, but miraculous as it may appear, all the persons in these car- escaped unhurted, except Mr. Young, who received a slight wound on his head.

The rock that fell on the road is said to have been eight or ten feet wide and two feet thick, not less than five tons in weight. —Albany Journal.

Latest Intelligence, Telegraph.

ARRIVAL OF THE "ARCTIC."

PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

CHANGE OF THE PLAN OF THE CAMPAIGN.

THE MARKETS.

The Collins steamship Arctic, from Liverpool, April 5, arrived at 8 o'clock this morning.

The Asia arrived out on the 3d inst.

The Niagara sailed on the 4th, with the 88th for the East.

Fifteen packet ships, amounting to 16,000 tons, are at present fitting up at Liverpool, to convey troops to the East.

The Glasgow steamship, from New York, arrived at Greenock on Saturday, 1st inst.

The influx of immigration into Liverpool surpasses anything of the sort ever previously known.

The Russians have taken the strong position of Babadah and are thus masters of Upper Dobraska. It is also reported that Bakitshi was captured by Russians on the 20th. 4,000 Russians are reported to have left Sebastopol on the 5th, and steamers to and Prince Gortschakoff beyond the Danube.

The Turks are throwing reinforcements into Varna, and the British and French fleets are cruising off that coast.

The late Russian movements have changed the entire plan of the Campaign. Sir Charles Napier with 22 ships is anchored off Moses Island, in the Baltic. A portion of the Russian fleet is frozen in at Revel.

Shipments of troops from France and England go on rapidly. France has already shipped 20,000 and England 10,000.

Nothing of importance from Asia. Scariff was appointed to chief command in Asia. The appointment was received favorably.

Aspect of Greek insurrection unchanged.

A telegraphic despatch says that members of both Houses of Parliament went in procession to present a cordial address to the Queen in support of the declaration of war.

It is said that Napoleon has written to the Emperor of Austria, reminding him of his promise to regard the crossing of the Danube as a casus belli. France has loaned 10,000,000 francs to Turkey.

Austria still wavers, and Prussia making no sign.

It is positively asserted that the Russians have landed 3,000 troops and seized a large Island of Menaras, below Toltscha; also that a Russian fleet of 13 ships have attacked Varna. Public feeling is considerably excited in Constantinople, which causes disquiet to the government.

The Russians are raising all the fortresses on Dobrascha.

The general tenor of news is considered unfavorable to the Turks.

The British steamer Inflexible was employed in conveying Turkish troops from Constantinople to Varna. A portion of the British fleet was also near Varna watching the movements of the Russians.

There is no doubt that the Russians have lodged 50,000 men on the south side of the Danube.

The Russians are not on the route to Constantinople, however, nor in Bulgaria, but in the Dradbrurschad, an immense marshy plain, with many place of approach, and difficult of communication. Behind them is a Turkish force of 25 or 30,000; before them, a line of fortresses such as Silistria, Kosdendjee, Varna and Shumla, being between them and the Baikan.

Omar Pacha, in a despatch published at Constantinople, said that if the enemy crossed the Danube, it would render a great service to his plan.

The Russians expect Admiral Napier to attack the Island of Oesel, and have stationed there a garrison of 30,000 men.

ASIA.

The Russians are concentrating forces at Askalzick. Operations are directed against Kars. The Turks are concentrating at Sivas.

Persia is quiet.

GREECE.

Correspondence of the 12th states that the French had sailed from Constantinople with orders to the King to arrest the hostile movements against Turkey in his territory.

A despatch from Malta states the King and Queen had left Athens for the frontiers.

The great debate in both Houses of Parliament on the Eastern war is of more interest than an other feature by this arrival. In the House of Lords the Earls of Clarendon and Aberdeen defended the Government against the Earl of Derby, and in the House of Commons opposition speeches were made by Mr. Layard and Mr. Disraeli and answered by Lord Palmerston and Lord J. Russell.

LATEST.

PARIS, Tuesday.

The Legislative body sanctioned by a vote of 184 to 52 the institution of prosecution against Montalambart.

The central Jewish Consistory of France have petitioned the Emperor to extend the privileges about to be obtained for Christians in Turkey to the Jewish subjects of the Sultan.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Wheat advanced 2d; Flour 6d; since Friday, Indian corn receded 1s 6d, but had recovered; market nearly bare of American yellow. Wheat in fair average demand; white 11s 9d, a 12s; mixed 11s a 11s 6d.

Flour mostly in consumptive demand; western canal 39s a 40s. Philadelphia, Baltimore and Ohio 40s a 40s a 6d. Corn 40s a 41s. Manchester—rather more inquiry on 4th, but recent accumulation of stock have made anxious sellers even at reduction in provisions.

Cotton.—Accounts to the evening of the 4th says, small business in foreign sugar but prices maintained.

Coffee very firm and active.

Arrival of the "Asia."

THREE DAYS LATER NEWS.

NEW YORK, April 20.

The Asia arrived this morning.

Flour declined 1s. to 2s.; wheat 2d. to 3d. but little doing.

Russia has made conciliatory propositions, but have been rejected by the allies.

The Asia brings Liverpool dates to the 8th instant.

The Arabia arrived out on the 8th. The Washington at Southampton same day.

The Asia passed the Canada, and signalled on the 20th, the Europa. The Asia brings 106 passengers.

No battle on the Baltic yet.

Russia was dismantling the fortresses on the Island of Aland.

Napier's fleet was at Kauge Bay.

Navigation open to St. Petersburgh.

Allied fleet entered the Black Sea, to effect a movement in conjunction with Omar Pasha—going to Varna as soon as hostilities commence on the Baltic.

The Empress and the Russian Court will remove to Moscow.

The Russian position was considered critical. Reinforcements were called for.

The Turks were falling back in good order on Trojan's Wall.

The Turks have been, on the whole, victorious in Bessarabia; they have also crossed the Dadube at Atcopolis and Rustschuck.

It is rumored that Austria will make the Russian passage of the Danube a cause of war.

The English and French Governments entirely reject the proposition of the Czar, in his letter to the King of Prussia.

A despatch from Berlin says that negociations between Austria and Prussia were not closed.

In the House of Commons, on Friday, Lord John Russell confirmed the statement that Austria was concentrating troops on the frontier of Servia, but as negociations were in progress, he would not state what course Austria would pursue.

April 26th is appointed as a national fast day in Great Britain.

A man named Bechi was arrested as the assassin of the Duke of Parma.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Richardson, Brothers quote a suspension of excitement in breadstuffs market, and wheat declined as above. Western canal flour, 36s to 37s; Baltimore and Philadelphia, 36s to 37s; Ohio, 37s to 38s; corn, 41s; beef, now, 120s; pork unsaleable; bacon lower; lard nominal, 54s, tending downwards; tallow lower; cotton, better feeling; fair, a shade lower.

Baring's London circular quotes money unchanged—consols 87¼ to 87¾.

THE DECLARATION OF WAR BY FRANCE.

The subjoined telegraph despatches from Paris thus announce that a simultaneous declaration of a similar purport to the above had also been made to the Legislative Assembly by the French Emperor:—

PARIS, March 27, 1854.

The Minister of State read to day to the Corps Legislatif, in the name of the Emperor, a message announcing that the final resolve of the Cabinet of St. Petersburgh, has placed Russia in a state of war as regards France. The Emperor also declares that the whole responsibility of this rupture rests on the Russian Government.

The message was received with energetic expressions of adhesion by the whole legislative body.

M Billaut, the President, then went on to say that the Emperor relied on the support of the legislative body, as well as that of all France, under this grave aspect of affairs.

This intimation was also received with loud cheers, and the Assembly broke up with loud shouts of "Vive l'Empereur!"

A similar communication was made to the Senate, where it was received with the same enthusiasm.

DECLARATION.

Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, having been compelled to take up arms in support to an ally, is desirous of rendering the war as little onerous as possible to the Powers with whom she remains at peace.

To preserve the commerce of neutrals from all unnecessary obstruction, her Majesty is willing, for the present, to wave a part of the belligerent rights appertaining to her by the law of nations.

It is impossible for Her Majesty to forego the exercise of her right of seizing articles contraband of war, and preventing neutrals from bearing the enemy's despatches, and she must maintain the right of a belligerent to prevent neutrals from breaking any effective blockade which may be established with an adequate force against the enemy's forts, harbors, or coasts.

But Her Majesty will waive the right of seizing enemy's property laden on board a neutral vessel, unless it be contraband of war.

It is not Her Majesty's intention to claim the confiscation of neutral property not being contraband of war, found on board enemy's ships, and Her Majesty further declares that, being anxious to lessen as much as possible the evils of war, and to restrict its operations to the regularly organised forces of the country, it is not Her present intention to issue letters of marque for the commission of privateers.

Westminster, March 22, 1854.

The Conard screw steamer Teneriffe sailed from Liverpool on the 18th for Malta, and the Cambria from Kingston, sailed on the same day, both with troops.

The Convention between Turkey, England, and France, has been published. It was signed on the night of March 12, and embraces five articles, in substance as follows:—

1. England and France agree to support Turkey by force of arms until the conclusion of a peace that shall secure the independence and integrity of the Sultan's dominions.

2. The Porte will not conclude peace without the consent of her allies.

3. The allies shall evacuate the Turkish territories after the war.

4. This treaty to remain open for the adhesion of other Powers of Europe.

5. Turkey guarantees to all subjects of the Porte, without distinction of creed, perfect equality in law.

Divorces.—They are progressing fast in California, it would appear. The newspapers advertise after the list of marriages and deaths, the divorces which have lately taken place, with the names of the separated parties and the judge, we presume, who decided the matter. Here is a specimen:—

Provincial.

Canada Company.

A meeting of the Canada Company took place on the 22nd; Mr. C. Franks presiding, when the annual settlement was unanimously adopted. The progress made in the sales of land is announced to have been most satisfactory, while the system of leasing has also proved extremely advantageous. The progress made in the surplus, exclusive of the additional value of the unsold land beyond its worth as originally estimated, is £546,824, and the amount of outstanding debentures to to the 31st December is £85,200. With regard to the 635,235 acres of land, it is stated that, although valued at the price of 9s. 4d. per acre, the estimate formed from an inspection in 1847; the directors believe that much better terms on the average can now be secured. Taking into consideration the rates at which sales have lately been effected, and making allowance for the inferior and undrained locations, they consider 20s. per acre will ultimately be realized. The rapid developements of the province continues unchecked, and in the Huron district so great has been the competition that settlers are known to have paid high rates of interest to complete their purchases. It was suggested that, as a lengthened period had elapsed since the last survey, it would not be impolitic to take measures for arriving at an accurate estimate of the value of the property, a question to which the directors promised to give attention. The annexed statistics show the receipts in Canada and the cost of management in 1853:—

Elgin Assizes.

From the St. Thomas Standard.

The Court opened on Tuesday last, Mr. Justice Draper presiding. The civil docket presented a formidable appearance, for the first Court of supreme jurisdiction held in this county—23 cases being entered for trial. Several important criminal cases had also to be disposed of, which, with the civil business occupied the attention of the court till a late hour this evening. We will give a synopsis of the civil cases next week. The following is a list of the criminal cases.

Jas. Russel, indicted for stealing a watch. Pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 6 months imprisonment in gaol.

Obediah Taylor; horse stealing. Taylor is an old grey headed man and apparently infirm from age, nevertheless he was clearly proved to have stolen a pair of horses from a French Canadian in the Co. of Essex, and brought them to St. Thomas, where he endeavored to sell them. Verdict, guilty; 12 months in the common gaol. Counsel for prisoner, Mr. Harris.

Nathaniel Ferguson was charged with having assaulted Robt. Cusack, in the discharge of his duty as constable. Ferguson is a colored man, of great muscular power, and being suspected of having a stolen sheep in his possession, refused to allow his house to be searched by Cusack, who had a Magistrate's Warrant for that purpose. Ferguson resisted Cusack and struck him a severe blow on the head with a cow's horn, which he had hold of, when he was fired at by Cusack—the ball entering his face—and secured. Sentenced to one month in gaol, and to give security for his good behaviour.

Thomas Reynolds and William Patterson Randall, were severally indicted for circulating and having in their possession counterfeit bank bills of the Montreal Bank. It appears that these persons came up from Darlington a few weeks ago and having reached Mrlsjide induced one Mackson to drive them about the country with his team. They then commenced circulating their forged bills, purporting to be fives of the Montreal Bank, but poorly executed and not bearing much resemblance to the genuine bills of that Bank.—The signatures of Gunn and Simpson, officers of the Bank, were good imitations.—The prisoners were at length detected at Aylmer on their return from their tour and lodged in gaol. Verdict guilty; sentence five years hard labor in the Penitentiary. Counsel for the prisoners Mr. Wilson.

Mackson was indicted for the offence of passing counterfeit money, and acquitted by the jury. Mr. Wilson for prisoner.

H Putnam was charged with having assaulted Mrs. Chapman in the township of Bayham with intent to commit a Rape, and was acquitted by the jury. Messrs. Stanton and Hamilton for the prisoner.

L. C. Clarke, and H. Putnam, who had been indicted for stealing money from Mr. Chapman at the time that Putnam was charged with the offence for which he had been acquitted, were discharged on their own recognizance.

Conservative Convention.—On Saturday last the Delegates appointed to nominate a Conservative candidate for East Elgin, met at Aylmer. 26 out of 30 being present, Mr. Walker of Vienna, was appointed Chairman, and Mr. McKinnon of the same place Secretary. The contest for nomination lay between Mr. Ermatinger and Mr. Parish, both of St. Thomas, each of whom had warm supporters amongst the delegates. After the names of other candidates, had been disposed of, a vote was taken relative to the two last named gentlemen, when it was decided in favor of Mr. Ermatinger by the casting vote of the chairman. A protest was entered on behalf of Mr. Parish, on the grounds that as the chairman had voted as a delegate, he had no right to a contrary vote, and the convention adjourned.—Ib.

It may be well to explain that the first column above contains the amount of the shares, the third the amount paid up—and that the discounts and premiums are not as some may imagine per cent., but are so many pounds discount or premium on the share. For instance, £10 per share has been paid on Grand Trunk Stock, issue A, and the discount is 4s3 dis., which makes the absolute depreciation from 40 to 30 per cent. Quoted in the same way as Government stocks, either in England and America, Grand Trunk would be reported as worth from 69 to 70 per cent. of its face.—That part of the stock which has been all paid up stands better, of course, than the other. With £25 paid, the discount is only 6 a 4, which puts it a depreciation of from 16a23 per cent. The rise in Great Western stock is very rapid. It is quoted at 22a23—that is at £1 10s a £2 sterling premium, equal to 7½ a 12½ per cent. Those who invested in that stock when the road was considered rather a doubtful enterprise will now reap a handsome profit from their public spirit.—Globe

Commercial.

The Montreal Sun of the 7th has the following observations on monetary affairs:

For some time past much stringency has been felt in the money market in this city and generally, as we understand, throughout the Province. The causes of this tightness are not very remote. Our staple articles have for some months past ruled at prices which demanded nearly double the amount of capital necessary to deal in them to what was required six or eight months ago; and as very large quantities of grain remained in first hands at all locations, they consider 20s. per acre will ultimately be realized. The rapid developements of the province continues unchecked, and in the Huron district so great has been the competition that settlers are known to have paid high rates of interest to complete their purchases. It was suggested that, as a lengthened period had elapsed since the last survey, it would not be impolitic to take measures for arriving at an accurate estimate of the value of the property, a question to which the directors promised to give attention. The annexed statistics show the receipts in Canada and the cost of management in 1853:—

ment has been compelled to fit out Armaments, and prepare for active hostilities, in order to maintain the faith of treaties, and guard the interests of the Empire from the aggressive spirit manifested by the Emperor of Russia.

Though far removed from what may be the theatre of War, Your Majesty's loyal Subjects in Nova Scotia, will regard, with grave solicitude, the operations of Your Majesty's forces by Sea and Land, and your Majesty may be assured that whenever the National Flag is borne, their sympathies will follow it; and that, in triumph and disaster, the efforts of its gallant defenders will ever be marked with deep interest in this portion of the Empire.

Should the land forces now in this Province, be required elsewhere, Your Majesty may rely upon the loyalty and devotion of the Militia of Nova Scotia, who, until the return of peace in Europe, will defend their own Country and protect Your Majesty's Forts and Arsenal from Foreign aggression.

THE PROVINCIAL SECRETARY OF NOVA SCOTIA.—The Halifax British North American says it is rumored that the Hon. Joseph Howe, Provincial Secretary, will resign shortly, in order to take the post of Chief Commissioner of Railways. It would seem that the man of horse-whipping notoriety has taken good care to feather his nest well while laboring so assiduously to carry out a system of Railway progress in Nova Scotia. We opine the office will be a sinecure, for we cannot believe the necessity exists for the creation of such an office as that of chief Commissioner of Railways. Nova Scotia is not yet in a fair way of accomplishing what Mr. Howe has long desired, and notwithstanding the action of the Legislature, it is not certain that her projected Railways will be built. The Imperial Government has refused to aid the undertaking, and Mr. Jakson has abandoned the North American project as impracticable.—How, then, can Mr. Howe count upon the creation of a useless office with such a paltry prospect as are indicated by these facts? The Hon. W. A. Henry is spoken of as Mr. Howe's successor and also Mr. Lewis M. Wilkins, as opponent of the Ministry.

INTER COLONIAL TREATY.—In the Nova Scotia House of Assembly, a resolution was passed requesting the Lieutenant-Governor to enter into negotiations with the Governor General of Canada, and the Lieutenant-Governors, of New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Newfoundland, with the view of a more unrestricted commercial intercourse between them.

RECIPROCAL TRADE WITH THE CANADAS.—The Senate of Ohio has adopted the following resolution:—

Resolved,—That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and requested to use their best endeavours in favor of establishing reciprocal free trade with the Canadas and the opening of the navigation of the River St. Lawrence to the commerce of the United States.

☞ We beg to direct attention to the very handsome Dry Goods Store opened by J. & R. Robson, on Dundas Street, their stock comprises the newest patterns, and have been most judiciously selected. An inspection of their goods will well repay.

☞ We regret to learn that the handsome residence of Captain J. P. Puleston, near Brantford, has been totally consumed by fire; the loss must be very heavy, as we have heard there was no insurance. We understand there was some defect in one of the chimnies which caused it.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAMERS.

The steamers of Ontario and St. Lawrence Steamboat Company, which have wintered at Genesee, as we learn from the Rochester American, have been thoroughly repainted, refitted and repaired. Their paper says they look beautiful with their fresh white paint, their bright new furniture, and all the other preparations for the summer time, and are the fine State, Capt. Ireland; New York, Capt. Chapman; Cataract, Capt. Estes; Northern, Capt. Throop. The steamer will take her place first in the line. She will commence her trips next week, and the others will follow in order. The Bay State will run as a shore boat till June 1st, when she and the New York will form the Express line from Lewiston to Ogdensburg. All these boats connect with a line of steamers from Ogdensburg to Montreal, through the rapids of the St Lawrence. The American line of steamers on Lake Ontario and the river St. Lawrence is in the elegance of its boats, in the capacity of their officers, and its general management, unequalled. It has never met with an accident in all the years during which the boats have run, and no passenger ever left the boats without kind feelings towards the courteous officers.

OBITUARY.

When the past week has most respected of our townsmen Are he is removed in the bosom of death under the most melancholy circumstance. Messrs. Samuel Peters junior and Ralph Gird, one year since left their homes for the land of gold, where, after enduring great privations and hardships by mountain and sea, on to the promised land on the Pacific coast, on their homeward journey they met their untimely fate. The accidental death came by the overturning of the Panama fever they proceeded onward to Panama where having arrived in a small boat to land some passengers the misfortune of death occurred to them, and not on the Lake as I before stated. They were both well known in London, they were also members of the Masonic Fraternity, and their friends have the sympathy of all in their bereavement. We trust that the sad example added to the list of Lake fatalities, may lead to more persons purchasing or coming to Canada, before they consider the matter settled for distant lands.

GRAND ORANGE LODGE OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

TORONTO, April 10th, 1854.

THE Grand Orange Lodge of British North America will hold its Annual Session, for the Election of Grand Officers, and for the consideration of such other business as may be brought before it at the Town of

BRANTFORD,

in that part of the Province called Upper Canada On TUESDAY the 20th June, 1854,

Of which all Grand Officers, all Members of the Grand Committee, all County Masters, all District Masters and all Masters of Subordinate Lodges in British North America, are requested to take notice and to govern themselves accordingly.

The Right Worshipful, the Grand Master, has great pleasure in opening the Grand Lodge in the Royal Scarlet, at 12 o'clock, noon, on the first day, after which the Sovereign and Knight's Companions, will redince the Degrees, to suit the necessities of the Brethren that may be then present.

The Grand Officers and Brethren, will attend Divine Service on the first day of the Session, in the Parochial Church, Brantford, when it is intended (Deo volente) that the Rector of the Parish the Venerable the Grand Chaplain and other Reverend Brethren will take part in the services.

The Election of Grand Officers will take place as usual, at 12 o'clock, noon, on the second day of the Session.

Brethren attending as Proxies, whether for Counties Districts or Lodges, will please be careful to bring their certificates of Proxy with them properly authenticated.

The Grand Officers and Brethren will dine together on the evening of the second day of the Session; for which suitable arrangements will be made by the Brantford Brethren. The Right Worshipful the Grand Master, and other dignitaries of the order, will deliver addresses upon the occasion, in explanation and defence of the institution. The admission to the dinner party will be by Ticket.

As this meeting of the Grand Lodge, will probably be the most important ever held in British North America, it is desirable that no part should be Brethren intending to proceed from this city, or from the counties of of of York, Simcoe, Ontario or Peel, will please signify their intention as soon as convenient, to the Grand Secretary, that proper arrangements may be made for their conveyance.

By Order,

GEORGE L. ALLEN,
467-d Grand Secretary.

STEWART'S EMPORIUM OF FASHIONS!

CASH SYSTEM

25 per cent. Cheaper than the Credit System.

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well, but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

His stock will be found to consist of the latest and best materials of Home and Foreign Manufacture, consisting in part of

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will and becoming the favorite medicine of the people. And known as a most celestial remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Consumptions notwithstanding its Remedies Lung-curing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and the maintenance of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet they sound have experienced their good effects. Patients convert by these physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by the use of these medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the blood, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never weaken but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to communicate to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the well in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. E. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time naming several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty at New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreno, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1848 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affection, which kept me confined to my bed one year, during which time I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health. I had been under the treatment of three physicians, but complaint was fixed under which nothing seems and the consequences laughed. Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to get a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt a different person and was able to resume nothing to my entirely cured by taking the Bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.
JOHNSON BURKE.
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. And therefore they give no attention to it, until the disease becomes constitutional. These diseases are often characterized by a sense of loathing, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, lassitude and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills, in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

Time honesty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of health which again and again follows the PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD. What material if possible could equal that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What points can compare with the transcend roborant blood coursing at fullness? roseate hue through the transparent texture of the skin? What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? Let Dr. Halsey's Pills supply the place of all cosmetics. The use of this excellent Wine in a short time creates pure, rich blood which, coursing through the veins, produces the mucous fluid that verges towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, imparting a rich, rosy color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes.

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, and is one of her former residing in Rutgers-street,

New York, July 5th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister from her youth, had been in very delicate health, from the combined influence of weakness of the chest, and a cough which was enough, at times, to take her off. For six months previous to commencing with your medicines she had not been able to get out of doors. A friend recommended your Wine, which she procured, and commenced using. In three days she was able to ride out, and in a week was entirely relieved from her cough, and has not had the slightest return since. She has gained in flesh, and is now in the enjoyment of the best health she ever had. Her case was considered by the physicians as one of confirmed consumption, and that I was told by one of them that he could do nothing for her

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual permanent relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitled to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during Incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in paymedt of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or tials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By Law, shall in the years menttoned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest there on shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for tha purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the dupayment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Cotopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominent in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

BAKING ESTABLISHMET.

LONDON, Nov. 15, 1853.

I BEG leave to inform, the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence there have been reports, that the Establishment of Mr. Gemmell my uncle, is changing hands, therefore I take occasion to say no such report is authorized by me, and I am determined to follow the old maxim of live and let live, which they will against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my trading business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and despatch on the shortest notice.

CAROMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London, C. W. June 15th, 1852.

Messrs. Rexford & Co.

Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottle of your Compound Carominile Cordial, and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavour, in which its discovery and preparation appears to be largely attributed and well preserved, and as this vegetable tonic is highly beneficial in those forms of dyspepsia depending on debility of the digestive organs, (for I consider it the most frequently met with as the continent), your central will, I doubt not, form an unobjectionable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in cordially recommending his Preparation to the public, as a desirable and invigorating cordial, &c.

I am, Gentlemen Yours &c,

DR. SHERWOOD'S Unbrenne Embrocation. This Golden Liniment is used with positive and great success in all cases of Rheumatism acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs; Gout, Tic Doloureux, Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spasms and Hip Complaints, Stiffness, of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Debeancy of Diseases, Cutaneous Diseases and Scrofula &c.

It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism is, under the vitality of the blood, developed in some of its most powerful forms, is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then we can readily supply this wonderous power when it is deficient, we can successfully combat the disease and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining more than one half century's study and labor.

There is no mistake about it. Physicians who have kept pace with the progress of science that does and readily approves of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes a single exception without the statement of wonderful cures, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or confirmatory previous experience of their beneficial uses. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has several times unhesitatingly to Sherwood's Rose Ointment. We would advise every house owner to keep a bottle of the above on hand, for it is surely one will save time and money.

LONDON AGENCY,

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses, which may happen to themselves or others—and do they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution—the capital stock of this company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal, in 1852—being practically shown to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under the head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without recourse to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:—

1. The guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to nearly 80 of the net amount—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportions by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premiums, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 36 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and recross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another—or from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississippi River.

Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

Try it; you will not regret it,

TO W. C. SWEET.

DEAR SIR,—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Female Tumor, close to the Navel section, and consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure except by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price. I was also told by a number who had employed this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Months was entirely cured. It is now two months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

GUN MAKER,

LONDON C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Poetry.

On the War.

What means that voice of thunder
Which echoes o'er the land?
Why wave those crimson banners,
On England's every strand?

And wherefore do her children
By thousands rush to arms,
And leave their island homesteads,
Their peaceful trades, their farms?

What call is that so mighty
Which thrills the hearts of all,
From the dweller in the cottage,
To the noble in his hall?

'Tis one which dear old England
Shall ne'er leave unredressed,
While float her wooden walls, and she
Can arm her youthful chivalry—
The cry of the oppressed.

Now England strikes for freedom,
For justice and for right,
There lives not one on British land
Who doubts that she hath drawn her brand
To conquer in the fight.

Then onward, gallant Moslems,
For Britons lead the way:
Right against might for victory!
Wrong shall not gain the day.

March 23, 1854. AN ENGLISHMAN.

To the Brave Leaving Ireland.

Farewell! God speed the gallant barques
That bear you o'er the wave;
Go forth on deeds of high import,
To conquer and to save.

To help the right against the might—
To vanquish Russian hordes—
To teach the Muscovite to dread
The power of British swords.

Mind ye the fields your fathers won—
Aye, many an Indian plain—
Or nearer—when with Wellington
Our banners streamed o'er Spain.

The Muscovite is on his way
The Bear has left the North—
Now from his frozen forest lair
In might he marches forth.

St. George's blood-red banner soon
Shall wave within Stamboul,
Beside the Crescent, to o'erthrow
The tyrant Russian rule.

And former feuds forgotten now,
The youth and flower of France
Will leave their land to aid the Turk
Against the Czar's advance.

Draw, Britons, draw—for Freedom draw—
Your watchword in the fight
Be "Hearths, and Homes, and Liberty."
May God defend the right.

AN IRISH GIRL.

Friendship.

Hail smiling friendship, sorrow soothing queen,
Chief quickening source of every smooth delight,
Thou makest the coarsest cup, the soul serene,
And life's hard lumber seem for ever light.

Thrice happy they whose sympathetic hearts
Thy kind influence ordinarily has joined,
Who share the bliss in their bosom friend imparts
Whose silent rapture shows the joyful mind.

Should dire affliction, stealth destroying foe,
Or potent love their peaceful minds oppress,
With greatest ease they sooth each other's woe
And by partaking make the anguish less.

O, friendship, every blessing spring as from thee
And all the pleasures which on Eve attend,
O, make the votaries hearts and bosoms agree
And let the faithful never want a friend.

Many ungenerous wretches sure there are
Who use thy name to serve their purpose base,
And while their friends fall overwhelmed they sheer,
By artful means would bring them to disgrace.

Let such never taste the heavenly sweets that flow
From the mild converse of thy virtuous fair,
Nor know the joys (unspeakable) that glow
In the calm bosoms of the friendly pair.

But, oh, may such as love thy sacred chain
In strictest unity be firmly bound,
With gay contentment tread life's chequered plain,
While friendful hours and social joys abound.

London, April 20th, 1854. S. LAKE.

Foreign Intelligence.

State of the Christians in the Turkish Dominions.

Louis Napoleon announces in his assembly of Occidental nutes, that the French are going to Constantinople "to defend the cause of the Sultan, and nevertheless to protect the rights of the Christians in Turkey." This sentence is quite in accordance with a despatch of Lord Clarendon, highly eulogised indeed, in a leader of the Times, but dictated, we do not hesitate to say, by ignorance and fear—by ignorance of the real state of the Christian subjects of Turkey; and by fear, common to almost all diplomatists, of the exaggerated power of Russia.

In that despatch Lord Stratford is directed to state to the Sultan, that—

"It is the deliberate opinion of her Majesty's government that the only real security for the continued existence of Turkey as an independent Power is to be sought by enlisting the feelings of its Christian subjects in its preservation; that, although Turkey may get over her present difficulties by the aid of her allies, she must not reckon on external aid as a permanent resource; but that she must create for herself a surer defence in the affections of the most intelligent, active and enterprising class of her subjects; and that it is impossible to suppose that any true sympathy for their rulers will be felt by the Christians so long as they are made to experience in all their daily transactions the inferiority of their position as compared to that of their Mussulman fellow-subjects, so long as they are aware that they will seek in vain for justice for wrongs done either to their persons or their property, because they are deemed a degraded race, unworthy to be put in comparison with the followers of Mahomet. Your Excellency will plainly and authoritatively state to the Porte that this state of things cannot be longer tolerated by the Christian Powers. The Porte must decide between the sacrifice of an erroneous religious principle and the loss of the sympathy and support of its allies. You will point out the immense importance of the election which it has to make; and her Majesty's government conceive that very little reflection will suffice to satisfy the Turkish ministers that the Porte can no longer reckon upon its Mussulman subjects alone as a safeguard against external danger, and that without the hearty assistance of its Christian dependents, and the powerful sympathy and support of its Christian allies, the Turkish empire must soon cease to exist."

The check tingles when reading this ungracious document, and contrasting its domineering tone with the missives from the same noble hand to the ministers of the great northern constable of European law and order. If Turkey had been in a state of maladministration, and the Christians not without reason disaffected, as alleged by Lord Clarendon, still that despatch would have been unworthy of a British minister at such a juncture. It would have been insulting and impolitic under any circumstances, but it is nothing less than shameful when the present relations of Turkey towards England are considered, and when the state of facts upon which the document is grounded can be shown to be a total misrepresentation of the truth.

Unimpeachable testimony may be adduced to show that the Christian subjects of the Porte have not only less cause to complain than the Christian subjects of many non-Mahommedan European States, but that they do not in point of fact feel themselves at the present time either degraded or materially aggrieved. In the present day they neither need nor desire protection under treaties with the Christian Powers, and as those treaties which have heretofore conferred such rights of protection upon Russia have served as a pretext for the present rupture, and are now abrogated by war, true policy dictates that they should not be renewed. It would be well if the other European States also agreed to forego, at a general settlement, any similar rights which they may have been entitled to exercise.

The Christians of Turkey in Europe amount, it is said, to about 13,000,000. Of these the Wallachians and Moldavians form four millions and a half, who certainly cannot, neither do they, complain of Turkish oppression, for they enjoy an independent administration, and are unmixed with Mahomedans. The population of Bulgaria is of about the same amount as that of the Principalities; and Sir John M'Neill, in his Progress of Russia in the East, thus describes its condition.

"Bulgaria, stretching along the southern banks of the Danube, from above Widdin to the Euxine, for nearly 400 miles, and with a sea coast of nearly 200, occupies an area of about 30,000 square miles. The range of the Balkan which forms the southern boundary, sends down towards the Danube numerous parallel ranges of hills, diminishing in height as they descend till they sink into slight undulations in the plains. Between these ranges lie a succession of beautiful valleys each watered by its own stream, and widening till it expands into the great alluvial plain that occupies the basin of the Danube. The uplands and sides of the valleys are clothed or sprinkled with wood.—On the slopes hang orchards and vineyards, and mulberry groves for the silkworm. The lower grounds wave with corn. The choicest flowers of our gardens are scattered profusely over hill and dale. The hum of bees is incessant, for every house has its hives. Herds of buffaloes and cattle, and of sheep with wool little inferior to the merino of Spain, and of horses highly esteemed in those countries of horsemen, cover the pastures.

"This rich and beautiful country is inhabited by two millions (upwards of four millions altogether) of Bulgarians, Slavonians, and Turks, of whom more than one half are Mahommedans. It has also mines of great value, which have for centuries been successfully worked; and manufactures of iron and leather, which supply the neighboring countries. In the principal town, Sophia, the clang of the hammer is incessant. The present population, industrious cleanly, and prosperous, is better dressed, better housed, and in easier circumstances than the agricultural population of most of the other countries of Europe. Unquestionably there is not anywhere, except in Turkey, a Slavonian peasant population of nearly equal amount, that in these respects can bear comparison with the peasants of Bulgaria, which has been subject to the Turks for five-hundred years."

The Albanians and other inhabitants of Northern Greece, are discontented, not as Christians under a Moslem yoke, but from the desire of national independence, and the restoration of the kingdoms subdued in the fifteenth century. The revolt from foreign domination, as the Italian from the German, or the Hollanders from the

The Baltic Fleet.

Correspondence of the London Times.

COPENHAGEN, April 2, 1854.

It being publicly known that the British fleet had arrived from Kiel in Kiego Bay, the Danish steamer Cimbra, with 400 passengers on board, went down there on the anniversary of Nelson's bloodiest battle, 23 years ago,—the battle of Copenhagen. The weather was fine, nearly summerlike, with a breeze from the north-west. We left the harbor of Copenhagen at 11½ o'clock and at 1 o'clock we arrived at the station of the fleet. It is anchored 2 miles of Stevns, in the very bight of Kioge Bay, and is moored in a semi-circle upon a square of 1½ English miles, the Duke of Wellington, in the centre, with Sir Charles Napier's blue flag at the fore; and next to him on one side, the St. Jean d'Acre (the only one of the ships which has its name written on the stern,) the Royal George, then the Edinburgh, and then, next to the land, a very large three-decker, with a red flag—I believe the Neptune. There are two ships more with red flags, whose names we were not able to make out. Nineteen vessels lay there in all, in two lines, the smaller paddlewheel steamers ahead, and the larger ships in the second line. We sailed round the fleet, and the Danes cheered each ship, especially the Duke, with repeated hurrahs, which were answered from the fleet with louder cheers, and from two of them, the St. Jean d'Acre and the Neptune, with music. Evidently we should have been most hospitably received on board the fleet, but the passengers of the Cimbria being so numerous, the Danes gave a proof of tact and good taste in withstanding their desire to see the interior of the ships, which would inevitably have been a great trouble to the crews, and especially the officers of the fleet. The Danes therefore contented themselves with sailing round the fleet, singing the British National Anthem, and giving vent to their delight and sympathy by repeated hurrahs to every ship. It was a delightful day, and one of the grandest sights I have ever seen, as we lay by the side of the last ship in the fleet—the Neptune—and looked down along the majestic line and saw the tremendous set of white teeth from 1,000 cannon mouths smiling as friendly at us this time as they lit us hard fifty-three years ago. When we stopped at the "Duke" Sir Charles was most cordially cheered, and the gallant Admiral appeared himself on the stern gallery, his hat in one hand and a book in the other, and bowed very civilly to us.—We returned to Copenhagen at 6 o'clock in the afternoon, and I am convinced that if the fleet stays here some days longer, these pilgrimages to Kioge Bay will frequently be repeated in spite of the remembrance of 1801 and 1807, which some people here try to refresh and strengthen. Besides the 19 vessels at Kioge, 5 vessels have ain in the roads of Copenhagen since yesterday, viz., Tribune, 20 guns; Dauntless, 40 guns; Vulture, 15 guns; Valorous, 10 guns, and Bulldog, which this evening took the British Minister, Mr. Buchanan, to the fleet.

War Preparations in Russia.

The London Globe of the 7th inst. says:—Information on which we can rely, has reached us this afternoon, from St. Petersburgh. So far from the Czar showing signs of a desire to treat, there is every indication of the most active prosecution of war, and our informant states that the determination of both Emperor and people to resist, is beyond question or doubt. It is computed that the Russian army now exceeds one million of fighting men in number. The export of gold having been stopped, 800,000 imperials, which had reached the frontier, were ordered back to the capital by telegraph. Reports were current that silver, to the amount of one million sterling, had been taken from the fortress of St. Petersburgh; and some went even to the length of doubting whether much bullion had been suffered to remain there.

The Vienna Presse learns from Sebastopol, (March 20) that the fortress is now being fortified on the land side. The place is considered perfectly impregnable if only attacked by sea, as hostile ships would be exposed to a raking cross fire long before they could get near the inner fortifications of the port. About 30,000 men are now assembled in an entrenched camp behind Sebastopol. On the 18th two frigates and four corvettes were sent to Anapa, with a heavy lading of artillery and flour. On the following day, a great number of transport ships were sent under convoy to Redout-Kaleh, with troops and ammunition. At present only two liners—the Grand Duchess Helen, of 110, and Vladimir of 120 guns, four 60 gun frigates, six steamers of 8 and 10 guns; 20 gunboats and some transport ships are in port.

The Cologne Gazette, under date of St. Petersburgh, 29th ult., says:—An imperial rescript addressed to the Governor General of Finland, is thus conceived:—

"When I visited Finland at the beginning of the month, I felt myself deeply affected at the joyful welcome given to me by all classes in my Grand Duchy, which is very dear to me. I found in the general devotedness which was manifested a testimony which was the echo of my cordial sympathy. It was equally agreeable to me to see that all the authorities, and the people rivalled each other in promoting the development of the welfare of the country. I had long before been aware that this constant object of my solicitude was favored by the exalted morality of the people deeply penetrated with a sense of their duties and conscientions in the fulfilment of them. I have never doubted the sentiments of loyalty of my faithful Finlanders, and I charge you to express to them the sentiments of sincere gratitude and of my unchangable kindness towards them.

SEIZURE OF WAR STEAMERS BUILT FOR THE CZAR.

We have received the gratifying information, that through the diligence of Mr. Scanlan, of the Customs, a seizure has been effected of two war steamers in process of completion by Mr. Pitcher, of Northfleet, for the Emperor of all the Russias. The seizure of the vessels was effected about 9 o'clock last Tuesday evening, and at an early hour this (Wednesday) morning, Mr. Scanlan seized the steam-engines and boilers, then ready to be put on board. Whatever may be thought of the patriotism of the shipbuilders, by whom the execution of such contracts has been undertaken, it is impossible not to admire the foresight of Mr. Pitcher, who, it appears, insisted upon it; as a condition of the contract, that, as the work progressed, he should be paid by instalments; [illegible] seizure by Consul-General [illegible] Russian government. [illegible] as of a first-class character, and their building and equipment were superintended by three Russian engineers of high reputation. But those scientific gentlemen deemed it prudent to depart some time ago, and, as we learn, for America, for the purpose of having further contracts of the same kind executed in that country for their government. It has been represented to us, that the parties have been endeavoring, in avoidance of the forfeiture incurred by this transaction, to set up a contract for the disposal of the seized ships and their machinery to the subjects of a neutral power; but in the face of proceedings which indicate, beyond a doubt, that the contract has been between a British citizen and our declared enemy, we have no apprehension that the government will permit the delinquents to escape the consequences of their misconduct. We are enabled to announce the fact of further seizures having been made of a very considerable quantity of machinery intended for the Russian service, comprising a large portion of the machinery intended for the equipment of the steamers now under capture, and engines designed for exportations to Russian ports, in which ships of war are now being built. The total value of the last seizure is estimated at about £100,000. The engineers by whom the contracts were entered into have shown no disposition to evade or deny their responsibilities.

SCARCITY OF AMERICAN SEAMEN.

At the present time, when Europe is about to plunge into a long and bloody war which will convulse the world, the American people seem to be awaking to the startling fact that they have not a sufficient number of seamen to man their navy in case of emergency.—Mr. B. Forbes, a distinguished merchant of Boston, in a lecture which he recently delivered, and since published in pamphlet form, says that the superiority of American crews over those of other nations is no longer noticed in foreign ports. The cause of this is undoubtedly the large number of foreigners employed by our ship owners.

Hardly a vessel sails from our ports, a large proportion, if not a majority, of whose crew, is not composed of Aliens. To remedy the evil three plans have been proposed.

The first is the enactment of laws to compel ship owners to take a certain number of boys on foreign voyages; another is the apprenticeship system, and the third that of a bonus, given by government, of so much per month to the ship owner for every lad or green hand who may be taken on his first voyage.

It is the third of the above mentioned plans that Mr. Forbes regards as the least liable to objections. Subsidiary to this, however, he suggests the expediency of the establishment by Congress, in the principal seaports of the United States, naval schools for the preparation of boys for sea service.

Of the two and a half millions of men constituting the marine of the world, the United States claims about 175,000, with a tonage of over four millions. In view, therefore, of the important interests to be affected by the action of Congress in this matter, the establishment of naval schools is not a mere question of the supply of merchant vessels or ships of war with able-bodied and capable seamen, but of the protection of the vast amounts of property entrusted to our ships and seamen, of the maintenance of our position as a maritime power, and the protection of those in maritime rights and interests which are identified with the commercial prosperity of our country.

In accordance with a memorial of the N.Y. Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Florence, of the Committee of Naval affairs, has reported a bill in the House of Representatives, providing a system for the thorough education, to the calling of a large number of lads appointed to it, making it obligatory on every merchant captain to have his quota on board, and prove, when necessary, that he has done his duty to them, before a collector is authorised to clear his vessel.—Detroit Daily Advertiser.

LONDON, FRIDAY, APRIL 28, 1854.

A CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT.

Many of our readers may exclaim at this heading, and ask, what, have we already got a new government? or does this term apply to the present one? we answer—neither, but when we find some of the Press, professing Reform views, describing in rabid articles, the views of Conservatism and representing it in all the dark characters that a distempered political vision may suggest, or perhaps, with the dissolving views of the enjoyment of present patronage and future jobbing of the Provincial Revenues, it is high time now to step forward and vindicate ourselves from the assertion, by denning what Conservatism is—a term which means, the conservation of the ancient foundation of the monarchy, the preservation of its free institutions, and the maintainance of the interests of the United Kingdom and Canada, with these fundamentals are connected the safe and sure, though it may be gradual, progress of social and commercial improvement [illegible] to the condition of the people, to the necessities of the Province, and to the spirit of the age in which we live; these are the principles of Conservatism, they imply the continuance of that which is good, and the removal of that which is evil, they admit of the safe and judicious reform of proved practical abuses, and they offer to a free and enlightened community, the best security that human wisdom can devise for perpetuating the liberty and for extending the happiness which this extensive province possesses—holding, then, that no government would, for an instant, be tolerated in Canada which did not conserve the principles of freedom, the rights of property and the public tranquility, indispensible to the beneficial use of both. We assume that Conservatism is the essential characteristic of Canada, and that, although in every free community differences of opinion, as to the mode, time and manner, in which Conservative principles may best be worked out, yet the fundamental basis exists, and the intelligence of the country will exercise its own judgment, divested of prejudice or passion, and solely with reference to just principles; how far it will bestow its confidence on these statesman who aspire to the government of its complicated and important interests, were we to trace back we should find party strife and personal animosities were not unknown here; happily now, from the extension of the press, and from free discussion, mere assertion is disregarded, and the politician is bound to prove his political creed, it is no longer because he is a Tory, Radical or Clear Grit he is believed, his colors may do very well so far, but like the man in the mark, the spectator desires to see behind it and view the reality; just so the political creed of these parties must be disclosed and when disclosed will be analyzed, hence it is we see the storm of indignation rising throughout the country, the blast of preparation has sounded, the coming elections are potentuous for good or evil, those who have so long traded on the credulity of superficial politicians or persuaded followers, will have to answer for past misdeeds, and those who rank under the banner of Reformers, and arrogate to themselves the censorship of the correction of abuses, will be obliged to confess that all their changes, called reforms, were solely carried out for extending their patronage, whether to bribe new allies or reward active supporters, we need not inquire. Now we maintain that the true principles of Conservatism, while utterly repudiating any desire to perpetuate proved abuses or to uphold exclusive privileges, is equally determined to maintain the constitution as by law established, and to accord to each and all, their just rights, and thus on the only true Conservative principle of justice, endeavor to reunite in one harmonious whole the diversified wide spread, and, we fear, partially estranged communities and interest, subject to the sway of the British Crown, and we hope also the subsidence of the party rancour which now distracts the very bosom of society, for the mitigation of that political strife, irrespective of Provincial benefit, which desolates the heart and deprives the head of its wisdom, for the yielding up of prejudices to principles, and for the sacrifice of imagined personal interests on the altar of our common country, this indeed would be a consummation devoutly to be wished for; this would renovate Canada to the core, and the energies of mind, the power of industry and the resources of capital, would perpetuate peace, contentment and plenty in our dwellings: our hope then is that the inherent good sense of the people and the indomitable love of justice which prevades every class, will combine to give a clear field and a fair trial to a new administration, for we are approaching a change and though that change may be one year or two, come it will, and those faithless and corrupt guardians, who now hold the reins, will not only be called on to surrender a trust they have abused, but to account for their political sins of omission and commission, and we trust received such punishment as will serve to deter future adventurers from daring to trifle with public rights and public property.

BANQUET TO LORD ELGIN.

Our contemporaries of the Press have passed many comments on this, said to be by some complimentary entertainment to Lord Elgin and his Aidecamp, Mr. Hincks, while others again allege it was got up for stock jobbing purposes; but there is one view we think all here will agree with us in taking: that the more Canadian matters (not political ones) are brought before the English public, the more it will tend to our benefit, and the less we have to fear from investigations into our natural resources. Adopting the definition of a Governor, we have read somewhere "that he should not only be a man whose passions are in perfect subjection to reason, but he should also have a deep knowledge of human nature, its lights and shadows, its perfectibility and its evil propensities; judging favorably of the former and charitably of the latter; deeply reflective in his resolves and prompt and firm in his execution of them; neither weak enough to encourage favoritism nor too proud to despise the affections of the good; stimulating virtue by his rewards, checking vice by precept and example, and fulfilling the duties of religion with scrupulous correctness, rendering justice to all men, fearing God, honoring his sovereign and loving his country." Such ought to be the character of a Governor; few of them are possessed by Lord Elgin; his conduct on the Rebellion Losses Bill, will remain a lasting stigma on his Canadian career—and his admission to his Council of a traitor for whose head a large reward was offered—the North American, alluding to the banquet, concludes with these few lines:—

"Let us hope that, by and bye, when Mr. Hincks shall have done hobnobbing with dukes, he will condescend to prepare himself for the searching parliamentary scrutiny which he his destined to undergo; and that the really amiable Governor General will, in due season, withdraw from the poetry of the banquets, to grapple once more with the common-place realities of Canadian rule."

Two extracts we give our readers from the speeches, the first is from Lord Elgin, and we might, perhaps, infer from it his views of non-secularization:—

"I have often warned my Canadian friends against doing anything to lead the people of this country to suspect that they were capable of abusing the powers confided to them, and pointed out to them that if they do not pay the same scrupulous regard to the rights of property as the people of England, they will bring a blight upon the land, and cause the fair flower of their prosperity to wither to its root—(cheers)—and what is more, that they will bring a scandal to one of the best causes entrusted to a people, because I believe that on the success of our Canadian experiment not only the liberties of many other colonies depend, but to a far greater extent than many suppose, the future greatness and happiness of the mother country."

The other is a handsome compliment paid by Lord Ellesmere, whom some of our readers may remember travelled through part of Canada last fall, when he came as one of the English Commissioners to the New York Crystal Palace:—

"To all those who had the time to spare he would say visit Canada, and to those whose time was too valuable to go themselves, to send their sons or their daughters, (laughter); for sure he was that no person could visit it without being enriched by the contemplation of the transatlantic scenery, dressed of prejudice, and assured that there was a bright future in store for it.

A LITERARY GEM.

We cannot deprive our readers of the following erudite epistle of our Post Master General, extracted from the columns of the North American one inference we may draw from it is a man can not be in two places at the same time, or do two things at once, it quite accounts for the universal complaints throughout the Province as to the irregular transmission of the mails. We hope the next shuffling of the political cards will award Mr. Cameron the Bureau of Temperance, of course he takes assistant for it, as he agreed to take the Bureau of Agriculture; it is high time the Province should know who is Postmaster General, and into whose pockets the amount awarded in the Public accounts, to that official, finis it may:—

Interesting Letter from the Hon. M. Cameron, Post Master General, and one of Her Majesty's Privy Council of Canada.

From the Albany Prohibitionist.

Montreal, Feb. 7, 1854.

To E. C. Delevan, Esq.,—

My dear Sir,—Since I left Albany, I made arrangements to go 150 miles northwest and appointed seven meetings on the way to distress the Maine Law. They were gloriously attended; in each place we took the vote, nine tenths at least standing up in favor! The last meeting at Perth was over 1000, and the feeling was unanimous: and the ranscllers now know that the Maine Law is to be the law of Canada! Last evening there was a meeting of the Rechabites and there were upwards of 3000 here in this city. It was, however, connected with a charity for the orphan school. Mr. Kellogg made a very good speech. I said a few words. Mr. Dow made a very deep impression on the public mind every where here.

At every meeting, I urged the people to double the number of local papers, and send for the Prohibitionist.

The idea of the simultaneous meetings takes well.

Your happy friend,
MALCOLM CAMERON.

MORE JOBS.

We fully endorse the views of the British Canadian, given elsewhere, in the corrupt Government appointments connected with the Custom's Department, as also the view of our new Conservative confrere the Owen Sound Times. Sincerely do we hope that there may be independance enough to obtain on the meeting of the Provincial Parliament a committee to investigate and report on those cases of the gross abuse of government patronage. We request our readers attentive perusal of the facts stated.

LOWER CANADA.

Some matters connected with the Lower Province may possibly prove not very interesting to some of our readers, while on the other hand, some may as it were, have an equal interest in both Provinces. The fountain of justice is the same in both. From the Crown of England the Judges derive their appointments, and the Criminal Law is the same in both.—Having premised so much, we now give from the Montreal Gazette the Rule of Court:—

"RULE.

"Henry Driscoll, Esquire, one of Her Majesty's Counsel, conducting the Crown business before the Court at this present term, for Mr. Attorney General, having on Monday, the 27th day of March last, when there were present on the Bench Mr. Justice Rolland, Presiding Judge, and Mr. Justice Aylwin, addressed himself in the singular number and in a marked manner to Mr. Justice Aylwin, and not, as he was bound to do, to the Court or the Presiding Judge, and it appearing to the Court, that in so doing, the said Henry Driscoll, Esquire, acted wilfully and designedly with intent to cast contempt and reproach upon the Court, and to obstruct its proceedings; it is ordered that the said Henry Driscoll, Esquire, do show cause on the first day of the next Term, to wit, Saturday the fourteenth day of October next, why an attachment for contempt should not issue against him, and such further proceedings be therefore had as to law and justice may appertain."

Having carefully perused the antecedents, we are at a loss to determine under what law Mr. Justice Aylwin has a right to auger a man's intentions from his look; whether Mr. Justice Aylwin's optical powers be more perfect than his legal we cannot say, but if the Press be regarded as the index of opinion, we must say that we feel sincerely thankful that no such luminary enlightens the Bench of this Upper Province. Mr. Driscoll, we are informed, is one of the most able and respectable practitioners in the Province, and there has been nothing in his previous legal career to justify a supposition that he would even indirectly sanction any insult to the representatives of his Sovereign.—This learned Judge, we suppose, wishes to become a Canadian Jefferies. We have never detailed a more unbecoming scene, and when we take into account the fact that the learned Judge, the day before passing sentence on the prisoners, stated he would wait, to do so, until some other Crown Prosecutor was appointed, who would treat the Bench with due respect, still the very next without any such functionary being appointed, he proceeded to pass sentence. This has been considered illegal, inasmuch as the Judge has no right to pass sentence until called on so to do by the Crown Prosecutor, who may, possibly, have a pardon in his pocket. This view is maintained by the Transcript which the Gazette adopts in the following extract:—

"Since the above was written we have seen the able article of our learned confrere of the Transcript, in which he suggests that sentences thus pronounced are illegal. He very properly suggests the possibility of a Crown pardon having been in the hands of the Counsel entrusted with the Crown business. Yet sentence was passed non obstante, the Court refusing to recognise the Queen's Counsel. An application for a reduction of bail was actually made and granted, without the Crown being allowed an opportunity of resisting or acquiescing in it! Such proceedings as these are indeed subheard of. The substantial interests of the Crown and people in the administration of justice are passed over as of lesser moment than the gratification of the wounded feelings of a Judge who should have been superannuated,—than the vindication of the dignity of a Court which acts in a most undignified manner."

AUSTRALIA.

The auriferous regions of Australia certainly have proven to numerous individuals sources of sudden wealth, and have been the cause of millions of the precious metal being transported to the old world; but they have been to a vast majority the scenes of bitter disappointment and the fruitful fields of indescribable misery.—Their means having been expended in the long voyage and in the enormous expenses incurred in that new world, ere they could commence operations at the "diggins," many individuals, being disappointed in their search for gold, have longed for the distant land they left behind but have been unable to retrace their course, and are now engaged in menial employments which barely furnish them with the necessaries of life. Others, not having expended their all, have made a desperate effort to return to their old homes and, wearied and enervated by excitement and fatigue, have fallen a prey to disease and perished in a land of strangers; while a few have returned mere wrecks of what they were in the commencement of their speculative career; and a few also, alas! have returned to the country of their homes to die prematurely among sorrowing relatives. We have been led to these remarks from the lamentable death of our two late townsmen, Messrs Birrell and Peters, the particulars of which we have since our last issue fully understood. It seems that those unfortunate gentlemen while waiting in Panama for a vessel were attacked with the peculiar fever which prostrates so many Europeans and strangers in those regions, and that they labored under its distressing effects through the whole passage, and that a vacant delirium accompanied them even to their arrival here in London. When set down here, they knew not for whom to enquire, or to what place to proceed, and were at length recognised by a friend and conveyed home. Everything that affection could devise was employed to remove their disease and to obtain a recognition, but neither of these objects was accomplished. The painful solicitude of an affectionate wife and the innocent prattle of his own children made no impression upon Mr. Birrell; and the agonizing distress of aged parents and the presence of other dearest relations, were unnoticed by Mr. Peters. Disease had dimmed their perception and cut them of from all the sympathies of life: and they died without the knowledge of the fact that their dearest friends were weeping at their departure, and that they were within the long-wished-for and hallowed walls of home! The sympathy of this whole community is with the highly respectable and bereaved relatives of the deceased; and we trust that the soothing comforts of our holy religion—the richest blessings we can invoke upon them—may be sought for and found under this heavy blow of Divine Providence! Mr. Peters was the youngest son of Samuel Peters, Esq., and Mr. Birrell was brother to Jno. Birrell, Esq., and son-in-law to Mr. Peters, both of this town.

☞ On the 19th of April, Dr. Hobbs made a Postmortem examination of the late Thomas Taylor, who was stabbed on the evening of the 6th of April, the wound was made by some sharp pointed instrument over the region of the bladder, passing for some way upwards, and backwards into the cavity of the abdomen, penetrating one of the small intestines, from which opening the contents of the intestine had escaped into the cavity of the abdomen, producing inflamation of the bowels, and ending in quagrene. The medical gentlemen who attended while living, Doctors Hobbs and Brown are surprised how life could have been prolonged for so many days, even under the most active depletion, such as they had recourse to.

We have great pleasure in stating that two men charged with this murder, have, by the energy and perseverance of head constable Van-Valtenburg, and constable John Wilson, who followed them to Michigan, (where, we are happy to say, the local authorities aided them,) have been safely lodged in gaol to await their trial.

☞ We regret to announce the death of Mr. Thomas Payne, Inn-keeper, which took place on Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, in this town, aged 54 years. Mr. Payne was greatly respected by his fellow townsmen; and was engaged for the last 12 years by the Commissariat Department. He has left a wife and numerous family to deplore his loss. The funeral takes place on Friday, (this day,) at 3 o'clock.

"GOING OUT OF BUFFALO BY THE BACK DOOR."

"The Commercial of Saturday evening says, the propeller New England is preparing to leave for the upper ports. She will pass down the Niagara River to Chippewa, through the Chippewa River to the Welland Canal, and thence into Lake Erie. This is a circuitous route of fifty miles, but the New England will doubtless get through if the ice is clear from Port Colburn on Lake Erie."

The above we cut from the Journal & Express of a late date. It is astonishing how little some newspaper writers know of their own country. Had the scribe who penned the above, been well posted up he would have known that the Welland Canal has two outlets on Lake Erie, viz: Port Colborne, (which he specifies) and Port Maitland, (the mouth of the Grand River) which is 20 miles further west than the former, and therefore more likely to be free of ice. We very often see remarks in the papers about the ignorance of foreign writers as regards Canada, but is that ignorance in the least surprising when we meet such forgetfulness on the part of a Canadian Editor?

THE PROVINCIAL FREEMAN.—This new addition to our Canadian Press, we forgot to notice until now, on the receipt of the fourth number: it is very creditably got up, the articles well selected and as to politics, it says: "We are no partizan, neither are we neutrals, we have no party principles to serve, neither have we any personal end to gain."

A NEW PAPER.—We have received the prospectus of a new paper of the right stamp—Conservative—to be issued in a very short time in Paris, by J. Greenstreet, Esq. We wish our new brother all success, and shall notice his principles more at length next week. It is to be called the Paris Maple Leaf.

Provincial.

Great Western of Canada.

[From the Morning Chronicle April 6.]

A meeting of English shareholders in the Great western railway of Canada was held yesterday at the London Tavern; Mr. Laing, M. P., in the Chair.

The Chairman said that they had all been aware that the Great Western Railway of Canada had been open ever since the commencement of the year, and that the traffic on the line within the first month of its opening had produced £5,000 a week. It was increasing rapidly; and, according to the experience of other American lines, there was every reason to believe that, as they approached the season of greatest activity in America the traffic would be doubled—that is if they could get rolling stock to carry all that offered. He did not wish to predict large dividends, but looking to the traffic already realized, he thought they were justified in expecting to raise in the first year, a sufficient sum to pay a dividend of 8 or 10 per cent. upon the present capital (hear, hear.) Of course it would not be possible to exceed their dividend if they had to increase their capital for rolling stock, enlarged stations, and other facilities for developing a larger traffic; but he believed that if they were fortunate enough to escape the errors of English policy, they would be able to secure that enviable ultimatum—a good round 10 per cent. dividend (hear, hear.) This was a property worth protecting; for experience of railway management in England showed that lines that had opened with as brilliant prospects as the Great Western of Canada had been reduced to ruinous depreciation by useless and unprofitable purchases—by extensions, guarantees, and amalgamations with lines which were originally made to be bought and not to be used (hear, hear). He believed that, unless they could see some means of avoiding those errors, their present brilliant prospects would soon be overcast. The extent and fertility of Canada, and the immensity of its recources had led people to contemplate railways in every part of it; and when it was seen that land and house property, at Hamilton and London, and other places along the line, had doubled and quadrupled in value, it naturally induced those who had property in the south and north to expect similar results, and in order to attain them as soon as possible they were willing to subscribe money in their municipal capacity. A glance at the map of Canada would show that it was highly important that the Great Western and the Grand Trunk Company should come to a proper understanding, and should not be cutting each other's throats like the London and North Western and Great Western Company in England. The Grand Trunk embraced all the land eastward of Toronto, and having taken up the Great Western line there, it carried it to Quebec and Portland. The success of this 800 mile railway would depend mainly on getting the access to the Western frontier. This line was taken up by the Canadian Legislature as a national undertaking, and in all probability would have a majority in parliament. He believed that the key to the success of both undertakings consisted in a good understanding existing between them. In his opinion the interest of the two companies were identical. It was their interest to stick to their trunk line and to avoid branches, which diverted their capital and diminished the dividends (hear, hear, hear.) The object of the Grand Trunk line was the same. They had to make 800 miles of railway, and if they kept to their trunk line, without constructing useless duplicate lines, they would have a valuable property. They had greater difficulties in the way owing to the pressure of the money market; but he had no doubt they would overcome them. The question for consideration was, whether an understanding could be established between the two companies, on any footing to be fair and just to both interests. Of course, the more complete the union, the better it would be. If both lines were completed, and equally under the same control, it would be unnecessary and this was out of the question at present, for the value of the Great Western line was in some degree in the prospective, although well ascertained; while the value of the Grand Trunk was altogether speculative. The Grand Trunk Company was only in the middle of their undertaking, and there was no knowing whether it would be an exceedingly good or exceedingly bad affair, and therefore to sell to, or to ally with, such a concern would be suicidical, and out of the question. The only point to be considered, therefore, was whether some union of interest might not be effected at once to secure them against competition, on the basis of a prospective union, to take place in three years after the Grand Trunk line was open. By this means, if the Great Western was earning 10 per cent. and the Grand Trunk 5 per cent, the profit could be separated 2 for 1, and so on in proportion. It so happened that this movement owing to the presence of Mr. Hincks in town, was peculiarly favorable to the colony. He (the chairman) had considered this subject with friends competent to form an opinion upon it, and their objection to the mode of purchasing or amalgamating with subsidiary lines was so great, that they were disposed to recommend the shareholders to adopt a committee to enquire into the absolute necessity of such proposals, and not to pledge themselves to any definite course of policy until they had the report of that committee. They had considered the question of entering into negotiations with the Grand Trunk Company in order to see if they could not lay down some comprehensive system of railways for Canada, so that persons might invest money in railways, in that country, without being exposed to the ruinous consequences which had so sadly depreciated railway property in England. The English shareholders had the largest stake in this undertaking, and they would suffer most if any mistakes should occur with the Canadian directors. He hoped that this would not be considered by the directors as a hostile step, as it was not intended in that light. The agent of the company in this country (Mr. Buchanan) was with them, and approved of the proposal in question. He (the chairman) did not know how it was, but it certainly appeared that while there was a desire to negotiate here they were at cross purposes, in the colony, and the tendency there was towards fighting, while in England it was for peace. The reports of the directors of the company had already circulated among the proprietors. The directors were in favor of confirming the purchase of the Erie and Ontario line, including the Niagara Docks. On the other hand the English shareholders had strong reasons for opposing this amalgamation if they could avoid it. At all events, they recommended the shareholders gene rally, not to decide positively yes or no, until the committee was appointed and had made their report. The English shareholders, who had interested themselves in this matter, felt that they could not proceed with their negotiations in a satisfactory manner until a committee was appointed; and even as far as things had gone, it had become necessary to do something which the committee should have done Mr. Gill, Mr. Shaw, Mr. Buchanan, and himself, who had declined the negotiation up to the present time, felt that they could no longer without the appointment of a committee, as it was impossible for them to communicate on Canadian railway policy simply as individual shareholders. The Hon. gentleman concluded by moving a series of resolutions, disapproving of any amalgamations or purchases on the part of the company until the capabilities of the line should be fully developed.

Mr. H. B. Wilson, of Hamilton, said he had been deputed to attend the meeting, and represent the feelings of the citizens of Hamilton, who were opposed to the purchase of the Erie and Ontario line, and wished to protest against it.—That is feeling was also shared by the citizens of Detroit, who had £50,000 or £40,000 stock at risk. The directors appeared to think that it was necessary to get hold of the Erie and Ontario line, and the charter should get into the hands of some other company who would destroy a competing line. He was instructed to state, in reply to this arguments, that the opinion of counsel had been taken, and that it did not sustain the belief that any such use could be made of the charter. He was also instructed to state that the Niagara docks were purchased by a contractor who had made a fortune out of the company, for £12,000, and that immediately afterwards he stated to the directors that he had an offer from the Grand Trunk Railway to purchase them, under the pressure of which the directors entered into a provisional agreement for their purchase, at $40,000, whereby the contractor would be enabled to make a profit on the transaction of £28,000. The same contractor controlled the Erie and Ontario Railway, and the two were to be purchased for £179,000, which included the value of a steamboat. With regard to the merits of the Erie and Ontario Line, he contended that so far from its being a competing line, it was at right angles with the Great Western line, and would not do it any serious injury. He believed it would be far better to leave the matter in the hands of the Canadian and American shareholders, who were on the spot, and who could judge far better of what was really for the benefit of the undertaking. He considered that the success of the American lines was to be traced to the circumstance that they avoided purchasing lines got up especially as competing lines. This was shown by the fact that the companies which had adopted this policy had their shares from 20 to 30 per cent. premium, while those that had departed from it were selling at 75 or 80. (hear; hear.) The American and Canadian shareholders represented two-fifths of the whole capital, and if the question were left in their hands, he believed the Erie and Ontario line would not be purchased, and that the company would soon be free of all the difficulties which now appeared to be hanging over it, (cesar, hear.)

Mr. Baithwaite said that if the American and Canadian shareholders held two-fifths of the capital, the English shareholders held all the rest, and they were best entitled to settle the present question (hear.)

The Chairman said that the observations made by Mr. Wilson showed the importance importance of appointing the committee, for it was quite impossible for a meeting like the present, unless they had the gift of intuition, to form a correct opinion upon the facts as detailed by him. Mr. Wilson had undoubtedly made out a strong prima facie case for inquiry, and he hoped the committee, when appointed, would not come to any conclusion without seeing Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Makins, of Leeds, handed in a protest from the shareholders resident in that town against the proposed purchase of the Erie and Ontario line.

Mr. James Foster said that the appointment of the committee was a matter of the utmost importance, and that with a view of making it as effective as possible he had bestowed much time in the selection of names which, by their weight and influence, might represent in a worthy manner the feelings of the English shareholders.—The names of the shareholders which he proposed should constitute the committee were, Mr. Samuel Lying, M. P., Mr. J. B. Smith, M. P., Mr. Robert Gill, Mr. John Harris, Mr. James Baird, M. P., of Glasgow; Mr. C. Makins of Leeds; and Mr. Buchanan.

Mr. Key moved that the name of Mr. Carpenter, of Brighton, should be added to the list.

Mr. Carpenter said that he held £15,000 worth of stock on the company, and that there were a great many shareholders in Brighton who had expressed a wish that their interest might be represented on the committee.

Mr. Foster opposed the nomination on the ground that if the committee was too large it would be difficult to get an attendance of working members.

The motion was ultimately lost on a show of hands.

The Chairman then put the resolution disapproving of any purchases or amalgamations for the present; and the committee proposed by Mr. Foster, having been appointed a vote of thanks was passed to the chairman, and the proceedings terminated.

The Libel Case.

From the London Shield.

The suit instituted by the Hon. M. Cameron against the Editor and Publisher of the Shield, came on for trial last Saturday. As the case was important, a considerable audience had gathered,—there could not be less than 500 persons present, including a large number of ladies.

Messrs Vankoughnet, of Toronto, Becher of London; Albert Prince, of Sandwich, and Vidal, of Sarnia, were counsel for the defence. Messrs. S. Richards, of Toron

SALE OF

Town Lots

By Auction.

TO be sold by Public Auction, at Morpeth, in the Township of Howard,

On MONDAY, the 15th day of MAY.

Next, at 12 o'clock, noon,

Forty Lots.

The subscriber having received numerous applications for Building Lots, is induced to offer to sale Forty Lots, containing about one-quarter of an acre each, on the south side of the

VILLAGE OF MORPETH.

An excellent opportunity is offered to Mechanics, Tradesmen and others desirous of building, of securing sites in close proximity to the central part of the village. Morpeth contains about 500 inhabitants, and is pleasantly situated about one and a-half miles from the shore of Lake Erie, where there is a large new warehouse and wharf, from which the produce of the surrounding country is shipped.

From the rapid advancement which the village has made within a few years, and the fact of it being situated in the healthiest part of one of the most farming tracts in Western Canada, and remote from any other village of any size, it is evident that this sale presents a good opportunity for a profitable investment.

A plan of the Lots can be seen on application to Mr. J. G. Nation, at Morpeth, or to the subscriber at Toronto.

Terms of Sale:—One-fourth down and the balance of the purchase money in three equal annual payments with interest.

Bonds for Deeds will be given, and bonds required to secure the balance of purchase money. An upset price will be named.

GRAND ORANGE LODGE OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

TORONTO, April 1st, 1854.

THE Grand Orange Lodge of British North America will hold its Annual Session, for the Election of Grand Officers, and for the consideration of such other business as may be brought before it, at the Town of

BRANTFORD,

in that part of the Province called Upper Canada

On TUESDAY the 20th June, 1854,

Of which all Grand Officers, all Members of the Grand Committee, all County Masters, all District Masters, and all Masters of Subordinate Lodges in British North America, are requested to take notice and to govern themselves accordingly.

The Right Worshipful the Grand Master has signified his pleasure to open the Grand Lodge in the usual Seattle, at 12 o'clock, noon, on the first day, after which the Sovereign and Knights companions, will receive the Degrees, to such necessities of the Brethren that may be then present.

The Grand Officers and Brethren, will attend Divine Service on the first day of the Session, in the Parochial Church, Brantford, when it is intended (Deo volente) that the Rector of the Parish, the Venerable the Grand Chaplain, and other Reverend Brethren will take part in the service.

The Election of Grand Officers will take place as usual, at 12 o'clock, noon, on the second day of the Session.

Brethren attending as Proxies, whether for Counties Districts or Lodges, will please be careful to bring their certificates of Proxy with them properly authenticated.

The Grand Officers and Brethren will dine together on the evening of the second day of the Session; for which suitable arrangements will be made by the Brantford Brethren. The Right Worshipful the Grand Master, and other dignitaries of the order, will deliver addresses upon the occasion, in explanation and defence of the institution. The admission to the dinner party will be by Ticket.

As this meeting of the Grand Lodge, will probably be the most important ever held in British North America, it is desirable that no part should be unrepresented.

Brethren intending to proceed from this city, or from the counties of of York, Simcoe, Ontario or Peel, will please signify their intention as soon as convenient, to the Grand Secretary, that proper arrangements may be made for their conveyance.

By Order,
GEORGE L. ALLEN,

CASH SYSTEM

25 per cent. Cheaper than the Credit System.

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well, but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will, and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health, by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to recommend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. L. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great virtues of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Clieseman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Morcano, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the king of Medicines. It has cured me in a few weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1846 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health, I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that kind under which nature sinks and life becomes a burthen. Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial and before finishing the first bottle I felt that a different person, and was able to resume business again entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.,
JOHNSON BURKE,
Waverly Place, N.Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the flesh &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. And therefore conclude that the disease is incurable until the disease becomes consumption. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of sinking, or faintness sometimes after exercise. Some experience a weakness, lassitude and at times pain in or dizziness in the head, palpitation of the heart, flatulency, &c.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to those medicines as an infamation and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are to be taken according to the directions on the labels.

TO THE LADIES.

That beauty and health are always accompanied by the highest perfection of health which again is accompanied by a PURE STATE OF THE BLOOD. What additional expenditure equal that of a course of medicine which renovates their health. What panacea can compare with the extraordinary combined blood purifiers and regulators the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great virtues of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Morcano, and others.

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rutgers street,

New York, July 7th 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister from her youth had been in very delicate health, complaining of weakness of the chest and pain in the side, &c. About the age of 20 she began to get much worse, and was unable to go out, or receive company with our delicate sex, and in fact confined to her room. Her countenance was greatly emaciated, yellow and sickly. Her cough was severe, and covered with disagreeable matter. Her eyes were much sunken and her cough increasing. In fact she had every appearance of soon becoming an inmate of the grave, a victim of consumption. At this time I procured for her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she continued using according to the directions. She gradually improved and followed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of recovery was her constantly good appetite, for she hardly knew one minute from the next when she had eaten enough. Her cough left her, and her eyes very much sunken and her cough increasing. In fact she had every appearance of soon becoming an inmate of the grave, a victim of consumption. At this time I procured for her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she continued using according to the directions. She gradually improved and followed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of recovery was her constantly good appetite, for she hardly knew one minute from the next when she had eaten enough. Her cough left her, and her eyes very much sunken and her cough increasing. In fact she had every appearance of soon becoming an inmate of the grave, a victim of consumption. She is now strong and vigorous and presents the most example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MAXWELL.

DR. HALSEY'S

GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are coated with pure Gum Arabic, an important discovery for which Dr. Halsey has received the thanks of Patent Office, as the first time in the history of the United States.

Dr. Halsey's Forest Wine and Gum-coated Forest Pills are noted for accomplishing the same good end, viz: PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THEREBY ESTABLISHING A RESTORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.

The life principle of man is the blood, no sooner are those organs of the stomach which secrete the blood, obstructed or morbid matter and rendered to be either active or inert, than the Forest Pills and Wine come to the rescue and restore to flow in the veins in the use of the Forest Wine; then disease begins to vanish and strength and energy of body return. This is the principle on which the Forest Wine and Pills are based, and by which nearly all diseases are cured.

The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles, with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One dollar per bottle or six bottles for Five Dollars. Gum-coated Forest Pills 25 cents per box.

NEW PIANO-FORTE AND MUSIC Establishment,

KING-ST., THREE DOORS WEST OF YONGE-ST
TORONTO, C. W.

MESSRS. SMALL & PAIGE, Importers and dealers in Music and Musical Instruments, etc., beg to announce that they have opened their new ware-room (situated as above,) and will constantly have on hand, both Wholesale and Retail, every article of Musical Merchandize of various qualities and prices. They would particularly solicit an inspection of their new style of

Grand Square Piano-Fortes,

from the manufactories of Collard & Collard, London; and Linnard & Weber, Philadelphia.

Messrs. S. & P. have also on hand, a large stock of New York and Boston Piano-Fortes, of excellent quality, which they can warrant in all respects, and especially in regard to their keeping in tune. They will also retain the same syltness and sweetness of tone for a number of years, without ever acquiring that metallic, hard and wiry tone which many instruments, of otherwise good reputation, are apt to have.

Their piano Fortes are carefully selected by one of the Firm, "Mr. R. G. Paige, Professor of Music, Organist of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto," whose professional experience enables him to judge of the qualities of an instrument. They can, therefore, fully guarantee every instrument purchased of them

Brass and Wooden Instruments, for Military, Amateur and Quadrille Bands.

Likewise, every description of Stringed and Wooden Instruments necessary for a complete Orchestra.

Violin strings of a very superior quality, which they warrant cannot be surpassed.

Messrs. S. & P. are also the sole Agents for the sale of Warren's celebrated

Harmoniums & Melodeons.

The newest and most fashionable Music can always be procured at their Establishment.

Classical Sacred Music—consisting of all the celebrated Oratorios; also, church music.

Second hand Piano-Fortes Bought, Sold and taken in Exchange; Piano-Fortes tuned, repaired and for hire.

Music for Military Bands, Italian, French and German Operas.

The newest and most popular Ballads.

Instruction Books for every musical instrument; Vocal instruction books of the best masters.

The latest and most fashionable dance music of all kinds.

Polkas, Schottiches, Galopes, Mazurkas, &c., &c., &c.

Piano-Forte music by all the great masters.

The newest French, German, Italian and English publications received weekly.

All orders from a distance carefully executed. A liberal discount to dealers, teachers and heads of schools.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in paymedt of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest there on shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

SCHEDULE

Of Special Rates referred to in this By-Law.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

COMPOUND

CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London C. W. June 15th, 1852.

Messrs. Radcliff & Co.

Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottles of your Compound Camomile Flowers, and consider it a valuable medicine in all cases of Debility, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Languor and general interruption, in which incidents Medicinal qualities appears to be largely infused and well preserved; and as I have a regular issue in highly beneficial in those forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone of the digestive organs. (the form most frequently met with in this country) and which will, I doubt not, form an unestimable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Redford as an Analytical high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Preparations of this valuable Tonic to my professional brethren and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

DR SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs Gout, Tic Doloreux, Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Stiffness, of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Debasement of Diseases, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, in fact, the vitality or life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient, we can successfully combat disease; and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery, of combining magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic or Galvanic processes, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cures, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished professors of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Comfort and Relief for the Afflicted.

NO ONE MEDICINE FOR ALL DISEASES.

W. C. SWEETS CELEBRATED FAMILY MEDICINES

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,

Cures all Pains, Cramps, Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague, in the Face, Nervous Toothand Head Ache, &c;

HIYATO CHINESE BALSAM.

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach Colds, Choke, Pains, &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them much good. I have first used it in a case of Scarlet Fever and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Respectfully yours, JOHN DOTY.

Rochester, March 23rd, 1852.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.

Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application. Cures all Ulcerated Sores, Piles, Chilblains, tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.

Try it; you will not regret it,

TO W. C. SWEET.

DEAR SIR,—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure, except by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price. I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with minstructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

JOHN PERRY.

Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.

SILAS WOOD.—Keeper of the Wilson Hotel.

LUTHER WILSON.—Merchant.

Thousands of Testimonies of the above character as furnished.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for Poll-Evil, Fistulas Scratches, Quitt-Cracks, Old Sores with Proud Flesh, Saddle-Boils, Fresh Wounds, Want Galls of every description, Ringworm, Cakes, and Cuts, Collar-galls, Sweeny, Cracked Heels, Sprains and Bruises, Lameness or Weakness of the Joints, contraction of the Muscles, External Poisons, Burns and Scalds, Horn Distemper in Cattle, Hoof-Ail Black-Leg, &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL REASONABLE CASES.

Facts are stubborn things. The medicine is not surpassed by any as yet known for the above diseases. It has cured, more of Poll-Evil, Fistula, Sweeny Shoulders, than any other Medicine put up for these diseases on horses and Cattle—no Gargling Oil excepted. As names and numerous flowery certificates from no part of the ingredients of the medicine, we publish but a few from the many thousands we have in possession; but suffice to say, ying in knowing.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned, have for years used and seen used Sweet's Black Oil for horses and can safely recommend it to the public as a superior preparation for scratches, galls, cuts, bruises, Mud-fever, and sore eyes, and we have thought much of by those who have used it. We have used many preparations for horses, but we give the preference to the Oil sold by Sweet's Black Oils. We would advise every horse owner to keep a bottle of the said Oils on hand for as timely use will save time and money.

LONDON AGENCY,

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution—the capital stock of this company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal, in 1852—has practically shown to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:

☞ Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to two-th ds of its net amount—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportions by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premiums, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 38 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississip River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and recross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another—or from any part of North America to another, within be limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be in the south from 35 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississipi River.

Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

ENGRAVED BY

JOHN GURD

GUN MAKER,

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their properties as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, stands of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Cutaneous Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, can yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Poetry.

Once More Old England's Warriors.

Once more, Old England's warriors
Have girt their good swords on,
And hied them forth to battle
With "the dwellers on the Don"—
They go to tread, like true men,
The path their fathers trod;
And their trust is strong and hopeful
In their good swords and their God.
Go boldly forth, ye brave ones,
For many a field prepare;
And those you leave behind you
Shall be your country's care.

No thirst for spoil allures you,
No dazzling glories blind;
You go but forth to battle
In the cause of all mankind.
For the nations they are arming
For the trampled Moslemah;
And ten thousand hearts are shouting
For vengeance on the Czar.
Then boldly forth, ye brave ones,
And let these Northmen feel
The strength of English sinew,
And the shock of English steel.

Step step for step, beside you,
Those eagle hosts advance!
True comrades in the conflict,
The warrior sons of France.
Your time ye've bided calmly,
Till, now, your hour is come;
Draw, then, your bright blades boldly,
And when ye strike—strike home!
Then, boldly forth, ye brave ones,
Your flags, as one, unfurl'd;
The Freemasons of the despot,
The vanguard of the world.

WAR WITH RUSSIA.

Political Will of Peter 1st., Written in the Year 1710.

SIR.—Now that war has been proclaimed against Russia, and that the fleets and armies of England have proceeded to the seat of war, it may be interesting to your readers to place before them a documentary testament, the authenticity of which admits of no doubt. I has been carefully translated from the original, which was sketched after the battle of Pultowa, one of the fifteen decisive victories of Europe, and which prostrated the power of Charles XII. of Sweden. It was revived by Peter I., in 1722, after the peace of Mystad, and finally endorsed, in 1730, by the Russian Chancellor Osterman. It was known to Louis XV. of France, and his ministers, since the year 1757, and published in Paris, in 1830, by Leonard Chodzko, in its litteral text, in his history of Poland.

The perusal of this testament will be found most interesting, whether viewing the extraordinary fulfillment, up to the present time, of all the instructions contained therein, or as tending to exhibit the ignorance, connivance, or credulity of the coalition ministry, during the tedious course of the long-pending negociations:—

"In the name of the Most Holy and Undivided Trinity. We, Peter I., &c., to all our descendants and successors to the throne and government of the Russian nation:—

"The Great God, to whom we owe our life and our crown, having constantly enlightened and sustained us by His Divine support, permits me to regard the Russian people as called on hereafter to the universal domination of Europe. I found this impression on the fact, that the European nations have arrived for the most part, at a state of senility bordering on decay, to which they are hastening at a rapid pace. It follows, therefore, that they can be easily and undoubtedly conquered by a people young and vigorous, so soon as they shall have attained their full strength and growth. I consider the future invasion of the East and of the West by the North, as a movement periodically arrested in the designs of Providence, who has thus regenerated the Roman people by the invasion of barbarians. These migrations of Polar men are as the overflow of the Nile, which at certain periods enriches by its slime, the impoverished lands of Egypt.

"I found Russia a rivulet, I leave it a mighty river; my successors will make it a great sea—destined to fertilize impoverished Europe—whose waves will inundate it, despite all the obstacles which enfeebled hands may oppose, if my descendants know how to direct their course. It is for this reason I leave to them the following instructions, which I recommend to their unceasing attention and observation:—

"1. To keep the Russian nation in a state of continual war, in order that the soldier should be inured to battle, and always prepared; to give it no repose except to im the finances of the State, to refit the armies and choose opportune moments for attack. To make peace subservient to war, and war to peace, for the aggrandizement and increasing prosperity of Russia.

"2. To entice, by every possible means, from the polished nations of Europe, commanders during war, and learned men during peace, in order that the Russian nation may profit by the advantages derived from other countries, without losing anything themselves.

"3. To take part on every occasion in the affairs and quarrels of Europe, and, above all in those of Germany, which being nearest to us, interests us most directly.

"4. To divide Poland, by stirring up insurrections and perpetual jealousies; to gain over the powerful by gold; to influence the Diets, and to corrupt them, so as to influence the election of their kings; to make them name our partizans to protect them, thereby causing the introduction of Muscovite troops, with the view of their continuing there, until an opportunity offers of remaining there altogether. If the neighboring nations oppose obstacles, to appease them for the time, by apportioning the country, until an opportunity offers for retaking what has been given.

"5. To take everything possible from Sweden, to induce her to attack us, in order to give us a pretext for subjugating her.—To effect this, to isolate her from Denmark, and Denmark from Sweden, and keep up with care their rivalries.

"6. Always to select the wives of Russian princes from amongst the princesses of Germany, to increase family alliances, to draw close the interests and unite Germany herself to our cause by thus multiplying our influence.

"7. To seek the alliance of England for our commerce, as being the power which has most need of us for her navy, and, may be, the most useful for the development of ours. To exchange our wood and other productions for gold, and to establish between her merchants, her sailors and ours continual intercourse, so as to instruct those of our country in navigation and commerce.

"8. To extend ourselves without ceasing towards the north, along the Baltic; also towards the south, along the Black Sea.

"9. To approach as near as possible Constantinople and India—whoever power shall reign there, will be the absolute sovereign of the World. To carry out this, to excite continual wars, sometimes with Turkey, sometimes with Persia; to establish naval depots on the Black Sea; to seize by little and little, this sea as well as the Baltic, which is a point doubly necessary for the success of the project; to hasten the fall of Persia; to penetrate the Persian Gulf; to re-establish if it be possible, through Syria, the ancient commerce of the Levant; to advance into India, which is the entrepot of the world. Once there, we could do without the gold of England.

"10. To court and maintain carefully the alliance of Austria; to uphold in appearance her aspirations for the future sovereignty of Germany, and to excite against her, underhand, the jealousy of the German princes.—To endeavor to attain that, the aid of Russia should be called in by the former as well as by the latter; and thus to exercise over the country a kind of protection which would prepare it for future conquest.

"11. To make it the interest of Austria to drive the Turks out of Europe, and to neutralise her jealousies as to our conquest of Constantinople, either by stirring up a war with the old States of Europe, or by giving her a portion of the conquest, which we could take from her shortly after.

"12. To strive to rally round us all the discontented Greeks, whether spread over Hungary, Turkey, or the south of Poland; to make us their centre, their rallying point, and to establish as a first step a universal predominance by a sort of autocracy or sacerdotal supremacy.

"13. Sweden dismembered, Persia vanquished, Poland subjugated, Turkey conquered, our armies assembled, the Black Sea and the Baltic guarded by our vessels, we must propose separately and secretly, first to the Court of Versailles, then to that of Vienna, to divide with them the empire of the universe. If one of the two should accept the proposal, which is infallible, by flattering their ambition, to make use of the one in crushing the other, then in turn to crush that which remains by engaging with it in a struggle that will not be doubtful, Russia already possessing in reality all the East and a great part of Europe.

"14. If, which is not probable, each of them should refuse the offer of Russia, we must take care to excite them to quarrel, and to destroy one another. Then profiting by the decisive moment, Russia will pour her assembled troops at first on Germany; in the meantime, two considerable fleets will sail, the one for the Sea of Azoff, and the other for the port of Archangel, manned with hordes of Asiatics, under the convoy of armed fleets for the Black Sea and the Baltic. Advancing by the Mediterranean and the Atlantic Ocean, they would inundate France on one side, and Germany on the other; and these two countries conquered, the rest of Europe would pass easily, and without a blow, under our yoke."

If the reader will place before him the map of Europe, and trace in succession the aggressions and conquests made by Russia since the period when that will was sketched, he will find that each succeeding monarch vigorously and successfully carried out the instructions of Peter the First.

On the death of that Emperor, after a reign of forty-three years, in 1686, by a treaty signed at Moscow, 8th May of that year, between Poland and Russia, and subsequently with Sweden in 1700, Russia became possessed of vast possessions, comprising the Grand Duchies of Esthonia and Livonia—the Duchy of Smolensk and their dependencies—the provinces forming a part of little Poland with numerous others adjoining, as far as the right bank of the river Dnieper, forming altogether a vast and important territory, to the north of which, wrested from Sweden, at the extreme end of the Gulf of Finland, and St. Petersburgh, the foundation of which was laid in 1703. Peter at different periods waged war successfully against Persia and Turkey, but shortly before his death abandoned all his conquests over those kingdoms.

During the reign of the Empress Anne, from 1731 to 1740, a vast territory was wrested from Tartary.

In the reign of Elizabeth, from 1742 to 1748, war was declared against Sweden, which terminated in the acquisition of a large portion of Finland.

Catherine II, who reigned from 1762 to 1796, made conquests of immense extent, comprising Poland, Little Tartary, the Caucasus, and the Crimea, which latter territories were taken from Turkey, and gave her possession of the Sea of Azof, and the command of the Black Sea,

THE GREEK CHURCH.

In Turkey the dignitaries of the Greek or Orthodox Church exercise, in some degree, the powers of civil magistrates. The primes of the Greek hierarchy (said Lord Stratford), as well in the exercise of civil authority, as in the management of temporalities are notorious.

This showed the character of the Greek Church in Turkey. It was not necessary to read more than the correspondence relating to the condition of Protestants or seceders in Turkey from 1841 to 1851—the letters (1844) from Consul Wood (himself, he believed, a Roman Catholic) spoke with indignation of the cruelty and intrigues of the Greek clergy and he added these words:—

"The Russian Consul-General of Beyrout has sent his dragoman to the authorities of Damascus to persuade them to assist the Greek patriarch in recovering his flock."

Mr. Wellesly wrote to Lord Palmerston in 1846:—

"The promises of the Armenian patriarch that the penalties should not affect the civil rights of the seceders have been violated. They are falsely accused of crimes, charged with imaginary debts, turned out of their houses. The patriarch possesses the right of banishing any Armenian from one part of the Sultan's dominions to another."

This was the state of things now, and this was the state of things which the Emperor of Russia was determined, if possible, to perpetuate over the whole body of the laity. They could trace, step by step, the interposition of the Russian Government, for its own purposes, for, indeed, the records of the Foreign Office were full of the subject. It began to be manifested in Syria in 1844.—On that occasion Consul Wood wrote to Lord Aberdeen:—

"The menaces of the father (the Russian Consul-General at Beyrout), supported by the unreserved declaration that he would protest against every proceeding which tended to the encouragement of the professing Christian Protestants, coupled with the subtle intrigues of the Patriarch," &c.

Lord Aberdeen, in writing to Sir Stratford Canning says:—

"As the Russian Government have expressed an earnest desire that English authorities should be instructed to abstain from taking any part in the conversion of members of the Greek Church to the Protestant faith, &c., I have conveyed to the Russian Government an equally explicit desire that the Russian Consul General should be restrained in his over-zealous exertions in favor of his co-religionists in Syria."

The papers then detailed the efforts of the successive British ministers to procure the public recognition and protection of the Protestant seceders from the Armenian Church at Constantinople, and for all other Protestants. The first step in this direction was shown in a single sentence in a general proclamation:—"Metropolitans and dignitaries shall not use force or injustice to their co-nationals." Lord Aberdeen again declares that remonstrance must be made against "religious persecution." The Armenian patriarch promises to protect Protestants at Hasbega from violence. Then, in 1846, Lord Palmerston takes up the correspondence and transmits to Constantinople a memorial of the Free Church of Scotland, putting the question wholly on the rights of conscience. The Hon. Mr. Wellesly, writing to Lord Palmerston in October, 1846, details the violence still perpetrated against the Protestants. He says:—

"It is true that Sir S. Canning, before his departure, obtained the promise of the Armenian patriarch that the penalties attending excommunication should be limited to the spiritual condemnation, and should not affect the civil rights of those who came under its ban. Yet not only is the promise constantly violated, but other means of annoyance have been found."

The next step in the way of toleration was a memorandum of the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs. The third step was a viceregal order of toleration obtained by Lord Cowley. Then Lord Palmerston was found sending a copy to the late Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of London, who acknowledged it with great satisfaction—the Bishop of London terming it "a valuable concession to the rights of conscience." To be sure it was so; but when have we ever received anything from Russia? When had Christianity been thus set free in the Muscovite dominions?—He now came to the last—the final point of aggravation: Sir S. Canning obtained a charter of Protestant rights under the signature of the Sultan, which he thus characterized:—

"Religious liberty and exemption from civil vexations on account of religion are now secured to all the Protestant community, and the example of its members may, with God's blessing, operate favorably on the relaxed morals both of the Greek and Armenian clergy."

Here are a few extracts which show the persecutions that the members of the Armenian church underwent, and which led to their subsequent freedom:—

"In the latter part of January of the year 1846, the full vials of hierarchal vengeance were poured out upon the heads of defenceless men and women, in the Armenian church, who chose to obey God rather than man.—They were summoned before the patriarch one by one, and peremptorily ordered to subscribe their names to a creed which had been prepared for the purpose, on pain of the terrible anathema, with all its barbarous consequences. In the course of a week or so they were ejected from their shops and their business. Men, women and children, without regard to circumstances, were compelled to leave their habitations, sometimes in the middle of the night, and to go forth into the streets, not knowing whither they should go, or where they should find shelter. The bakers were prohibited from furnishing them with bread, and the water carriers with water. Parents were forced by the patriarch to cast out even their own children who adhered to the Gospel, and to disinherit them. The patriarch and his party resorted to every species of oppression without the least scruple or pity; and it was evident that want of power only prevented them from cutting off heads. The heathen could not pass through the streets without being abused by all kinds of filthy language, spit upon and stoned; a few were cast into prison, and for several Sundays the churches rescunded with anathemas against the followers of the new sect. It was at this crisis that the bitterness of persecution was arrested from a quarter where such an interference might have been least expected. The Turkish Government interposed to stay the tempest of ecclesiastical fury, and protected the incipient reformation. The Armenian patriarch summoned before Redschid Pasha, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, was charged by him to desist from his oppressive course. It was through the influence of Sir Stratford Canning, whose noble and persevering efforts to secure in Turkey liberty of conscience are above all praise, that this result was obtained." He could not refrain from reading a few passages to their lordships in honor of that great and good man, England's representative at Constantinople. Mr. Dwight, the American missionary, writing of Sir Stratford Canning, in May, 1846, said:—

"It matters not to him by what name the victim of persecution is called, or to what nation or denomination he belongs—whether he be Jew or Greek, Mahometan, Armenian, or Roman Catholic. This noble philantropist is always ready to fly to his relief, and his influence is very great. The Lord has used him as an instrument in bringing about as great changes in this land as we have ever seen in any part of the world; and the recognition of the principle by this government that Protestant rayahs (subjects) can live in this country and pursue their lawful callings, and at the same time worship God according to the dictates of their conscience, is not among the least of these changes."

The exertions of Sir Stratford Canning continued, and the result was, that an imperial edict was issued on the part of the Turkish Government:—

"The tolerant policy of that government towards its Protestant subjects became invested with a final and conclusive aspect by the publication of the Imperial firman from the Sultan Abdul Medjid, whereby they are placed in the same grade, and on the same platform with the ancient established Christian communities. Previous documents had been 'vizierial only, and local and temporary in their application;' but this charter of Protestants is Imperial, and accompanied with the Sultan's cipher:—To my Vizier Mahomet Pasha, Prefect of Police in Constantinople. When this sublime and august mandate reaches you, let it be known that hitherto those of my Christian subjects who have embraced the Protestant faith, have suffered much inconvenience and distress.—But, in a necessary accordance with my Imperial compassion, which is the support of all, and which is manifested to all classes of my subjects, it is contrary to my Imperial pleasure that any one class of them should be exposed to suffering. As, therefore, by reason of their faith, the above-mentioned are already a separate community, it is my royal compassionate will that, for facilitating the conducting of their affairs, and that they may obtain ease and quiet and safety, a faithful and trustworthy person from among themselves, and by their own selection should be appointed, with the title, 'Agent of the Protestants,' and that he should be in relation with the Prefecture of the Police.—You will not permit anything to be required of them in the name of fee, or on other pretences, for marriage licenses or registration. You will see to it, that, like other communities of the empire, in all their affairs, such as procuring cemeteries and places of worship, they should have every facility and every needed assistance. You will not permit that any of the other communities shall in any way interfere with their edifices, or with their worldly matters or concerns, or, in short, with any of their affairs, either secular or religious, that thus they may be free to exercise the usages of their faith. And it is enjoined upon you not to allow them to be molested an iota in these particulars, or in any others; and that all attention and perseverence be put in requisition to maintain them in quiet and security. And, in case of necessity, they shall be free to make representations regarding their affairs through their agent, to the Sublime Porte."

Lord Shaftesbury, who cited the above correspondence proceeds thus:—

"Their lordships would observe that this was at once emancipation from the political power and tyranny of their priests—emancipation from the power and influence of Russia, whose instruments they were; it gave to them a recognised status—a recognized independence—and the grant was of inestimable importance. He believed that in this was to be found the whole secret of the movement on the part of the Emperor of Russia from the commencement to the present time. He saw that the danger was becoming imminent—that things were creeping from under his hands—for the circulation of the Scriptures was giving rise to those aspirations after liberty which religious freedom must inevitably be followed by. His own dominions were contiguous to those in which this religious freedom was tolerated, and how could he hope to put out the light that had begun to burn so brightly? It was then that the thought occurred to the Emperor, and that Prince Menschikoff came forward with the Note, demanding the restoration of the status quo ab antiquo. If the Sultan had been induced to yield this, he would have wiped away at one fell swoop all that had been effected in 20 years by the labors of Sir S. Canning, the decree of Redschid Pasha, and the Imperial firman of the Sultan, which gave freedom for the development of liberty and truth, which, by God's blessing, would never be extinguished—(hear, hear, hear.) He no longer wondered at the Imperial hatred of Sir Stratford Canning, or the Nesselrode calumnies, that took so much trouble to set aside; for that great and good man (Sir Stratford) had, year by year and day by day, dogged the steps of Russian tyranny, and had enabled them to expose its colossal conspiracy against the national, civil, and religious liberties of the fairest portion of the globe and 14 millions of the human race. He believed this to be a long conceived and gigantic scheme, determined on in ancient times, and to be now executed, with a view of suppressing every hope of liberty. He felt convinced that this had been the policy of the Emperor from the moment he ascended the throne. The Emperor Alexander was a very different man; he did all in his power to repress the liberty of the Greek church, while the present Emperor did all he could to stimulate it for the purpose of his own aggrandisement.—He would show the state of things under Alexander, and contrast it with that under the present Emperor. In the reign of the Emperor Alexander there was the most free, unfettered scope for the labors of the Bible Society, as much as in England itself. The Emperor gave his personal sanction and aid to it. He issued an order that all letters on the business of the society, as well as the Bibles and Testaments, should be transmitted by post, free of charge, to every part of the empire. He gave a house, and 15,000 roubles for an addition to it. He formed the Moscow Bible Society, and announced it in this remarkable passage:—

"'I consider the establishment of Bible Societies in Russia, in most parts of Europe, and in other parts of the globe, and the very great progress these institutions have made in disseminating the Word of God, not merely among Christians but also among heathens and Mahommedans, as a peculiar display of the mercy and grace of God to the human race. On this account, I have taken on myself the denomination of a member of the Russian Bible Society, and I will render it every possible assistance in order that the beneficent light of revelation may be shed among all nations subject to my sceptre.'

"He died, and in 1826 the Emperor Nicholas ascended the throne, and what did he do? He suppressed, by ukase, the Russian Bible Society with all its branches, suppressed every privilege granted to religious societies and brought back the night of the human intellect and the human heart that he seemed to prize so dearly. Had Turkey done anything of the sort? Had she not in twenty years done more than Russia in the famous 900 or pity; and it was evident that want of power only prevented them from cutting off heads. The heathen could not pass through the streets without being abused by all kinds of filthy language, spit upon and stoned; a few were cast into prison, and for several Sundays the churches resounded with anathemas against the followers of the new sect. you know it is your opinion that the sessions often cry and the priests' curates are the returning officers?' I then added 'Lord John Russell must be mad—that was the word used—to expect that he will ever obtain the support of the Catholics of Ireland when he wrote that letter' (the Durham letter.) Mr. Shiel said, 'I was speaking to Lord John Russell on the subject of the Irish Reform Bill, on which he asked my opinion,' and I said, 'the priests will have the power over three fourths of the representation: to which Lord John replied, 'As to that, the Irish members returned by the clergy always support the government, and I shall have them.' I then said, 'I suppose the government think they have the Irish members leashed like greyhounds,'" Mr. Shiel's memory was very retentive, and we don't suppose that Lord J. Russell will exercise the safe "malignity" he imputes to others, by suggesting that he told a falsehood when he reported their political colloquy as above. For the practical purpose of history this bit of dialogue is worth more than one of the lost books of Livy.

In the first place it limits and points that imputation of corruption in which the Times with its usual business sought to involve the entire representation of Ireland. "The Irish members returned by the clergy," says Lord John Russel, "always support the government." This restriction of the charge is satisfactory to the Protestants of Ireland, however "the clergy" may be disposed to take it; but doubtless they will, for certain excellent reasons, "bear it with a patient shrug," as the Jews did the invective spite and spurns of that influential Christian, the merchant of Venice.

In the next place, what an indiscribable machinery, how wide in its sweep, and how secret and certain in its action, is implied in the curt, dry, and sly remark—"I shall have them!"

Now, here is a fact for the consideration of the free constituencies of England. Lord J. Russell is sure—by what means we do not here enquire—of "the Irish members returned by the clergy." It is very comical, very convenient, and perfectly certain. And by this mercenary phalanx, marched in counter marched under the baton of the minister, has England in effect England, in effect, been arbitrarily governed during the better part of a quarter of a century of arduous conflicts and hair-breadth majorities.

It is for this reason that in proportion as his influence declines in England, he degrades the franchise in Ireland; since, for some mysterious cause "the Irish members returned by the clergy always support the government:" and so he realizes the policy of James II., and controls the opinion and laws of England by means of His Irish soldiery.

The reference to the Durham letter suggests one consideration more. When Lord J. Russell followed by Sir G. Grey, who played Lake to the Premier's Huddleras, effected that celebrated puritanical sally, there was a great deal of harping and hymning in praise of the zeal and manhood which could thus break for ever, on a point of conscience, with the Popish parliamentary party, and deliberately snap the bladders which had floated him through so many surfs and storms. But when, in confidence, the risk and the sacrifice were mentioned to him by Mr. Shiel—"As to that," said his Lordship, with a cheerful coolness, "the Irish members returned by the clergy always support the government and I shall have them."

You shall have them—aye, but how? Common sense assumes the process, and spares your blushes. But the Protestant public, whom you fooled by your ostentatious "turning over a new leaf," will chew the cud upon it.

What a contrast be ween the dashing Durham letter and the sneaking dodge with Shiel—between the glowing heroism of your sacrifice, and the cool consciousness that it will cost you nothing—between the soaring altitudes of consience and the dreamy depths of corruption! Our readers have seen, perhaps, a sanitary publication containing a print of a certain Lord-in-waiting, bedizened in a chamber which had once been a chapel. The thin screening of the deal floor, separates the ball room from the crypt. Above are the lights, the benches, the smirks, the bows, the capers, and the whirl—the lemonade, the buzz and the music of the specious gala. Below, coffins, darkness, spiders, and corruption.

ARRIVAL OF THE "PACIFIC."

NEW YORK, May 1, 1854.

The Pacific, with advices to the 19th, has arrived. Flour has again advanced. Western Canal quoted 39s.; Ohio and similar qualities 40s. Corn 40s a 41s.

No news has been received from the seat of war, only that five Russian merchant ships have been captured in the Baltic.

The steamer Africa arrived out on the night of the 16th.

ALBANY, May 1st.

The rain storm which has visited this section of the country was very severe in New York—in Brooklyn, on Saturday, a land slide occurred, by which two persons were killed and several injured.

The Ericsson remained in the same position as at last accounts. She cost $500,000, and is insured for $300,000.

A destructive fire occurred on Pearl Street New York, on Satuday night. Houses Nos. 178 and 180, occupied by several parties, were destroyed.

The railroads between here and New York are interrupted by land slides.

At Troy the flood has been nearly as bad as here. The loss of lumber is incalculable. The river has been covered with it all the morning. Some 28 canal boats lie upon the flats above the city. The lumber districts have been swept of piles of lumber, and several houses have been carried away.

A Grocery in the lumber district was carried off bodily. Only one boat was cleared out of the canal, the G. W. Beatley. The weigh lock is flooded to such an extent that it is impossible to weigh boats.

The water is now receding slowly.

All railroad communication is entirely interrupted

BUFFALO, May 1st.

The Erie Canal was opened to-day, and about 50 boats cleared.

NEW YORK, April 29,

The Ericsson remains in the same position perfectly straight with her upper deck just under water. A number of small steamers are employed about her, the storm continued throughout yesterday. The Baptist Church on Third Avenue was completely destroyed. Vessels were torn from their moorings and drifted off. A large three story Brick Candle factory, on Red Hook point, occupied by the American Candle Co., was damaged to the extent of 10,000.

BOSTON, April 28.

The U. S. barque Donizetta arrived from Glasgow to-day, fell in with a Boat containing Cpt. M. W. R. Field and 12 men, the survivors of the British Barque Beaufort for London, which vessel sprung a leak and was capsized on the 8th inst. in latitude 30° longitude 53°—3 men were drowned.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29,

The storm has continued through the night. Mr. Hushman's silk fringe factory on Cherry St., was badly injured.

Additional by the "Pacific."

NEW YORK, May 2,

The Pacific brings four days later news from Europe.

At Liverpool on the 19th April, the news was altogether indefinite. Napier's fleet of 37 sail had left their anchorage at Kiege, and had put to sea eastward, supposed for the purpose of attacking the Russian Squadron.

The frigate Tribune from Admiral Plumridge's division had rejoined Napier, after having captured the first prize, viz, three ships laded with lead and sulphur, from Bupec, and bound to Russian ports in the Gulf of Finland.

The Black Sea, allied fleets at Varna, sailed on the 1st towards Sebastopol, since then, nothing has since been heard of them, except a rumour that they are preparing to attack Odessa.

Admiral Deschetines sailed with the French fleet, to join Napier's on the 1st April.

From the Danube, the substance of the news is, that there has been no great operations, but sanguinary skirmishes occur daily.

Mustapha Pacha has his main force, 50,000 men at Karrasca, and he likewise holds Tchernovada and Kostendje, north of the wall of Trajan.

The Russians maintain themselves in Bobrudscha.

About 10,000 of the allies had reached Gallipoli.

There is a great absence of authentic news for some days past.

The report that the Austrians were marching into Servia is supposed to be true, but the news wants confirmation. The Greek insurrection is feebler, but still exists, and the expulsion of the Greeks from the Turkish territory is being enforced.

Advices from Asia to the 5th March, state that no operations had taken place at Erzeroum, in consequence of the unfavorable weather.

Yussiffa Pacha, Commander in-chief of the Asiatic Turkish forces had arrived.

The Russians were concentrated at Garurie which they were fortifying.

The Circassians had gained a victory over the Russians, and compelled them to evacuate several forts, and return to their ships. Some of the garrisons were cut to pieces.

The English Parliament was not in session. Great Britain demands of Spain that she shall refuse to permit Russian privateers into Spanish ports.

Breadstuffs are to be admitted free into Sweden, until the 2nd May.

The Austrian minister has been recalled from London, from personal not political reasons.

DETROIT, May 1.

The steamer Ruby succeeded yesterday in making her way through the St. Clair River.—She reports the following vessels in the ice—some of them having been carried ashore. The Shakespeare, Blair and Fox all safe; Racine considerably damaged, White Squall lost both anchors and her boat; the Miranda one anchor gone; P. Crooks one anchor and considerably damaged, the Cartier lost one anchor; the Spartan lost bowsprit and headrail; the Castellation lost boats and davits; the McBride Globe and Black Hawk all right also the Rambler and Hudson.

NEW YORK, May 2.

New Orleans papers of Wednesday are received, containing Texan news to the 21st ult. The San Antonio letters state that Mr. Gallocher Bancho, near that city had been attacked by a party of Indians, who killed an American named Forrest, having knocked him down, beat his wife and killed four children. They also carried off a man named Shephard and his wife.

Later news from Hayti states that the Emperor was making preparations for the invasion of Dominique, and a navy was being put in readiness to commence operations on the 18th May.

Provincial.

THE OLD ENGLISH GENTLEMAN.

We learn from a correspondent, that the "Old English Gentleman," acting of course as Queen's Counsel, has distinguished himself more suo at the recent Sandwich Assizes. It will be recollected, that at the last Autumn Assizes at the same place, the "Gallant Colonel" made use of some abusive language to Mr. Charles Baby, in full Court, which Mr. Baby resented by kicking the Colonel's ears. It was very evident, that there was some feud existing between the parties independent of the immediate cause of the quarrel, and the facts have now come out. It seems that Mr. Baby had acted as the Solicitor and Agent of the Indians of Anderdon, in pressing a claim of theirs upon the Government, to certain lands in Sandwich, which had never been surrendered. The Colonel claimed an interest in the land in question, and was much annoyed at what he called Mr. Baby's interference. As Queen's Counsel, he procured the finding of a bill of indictment against Mr. Baby for purchasing the interest of the Indians in the lands! How the bill was found, the Grand Jury best knows and of course must not tell; but that he did not purchase the land is now very evident, the finding of a Jury to which we are about to allude, to the contrary notwithstanding. This fact however is certain, that the foreman of the Grand Jury was the opponent of Mr. Baby in the action of ejectment, which was the immediate cause of the row which ended in the ear-boxing we have mentioned. The indictment was under an somewhat extraordinary Statute, which renders it a misdemeanor to contract in any way for the purchase of any interest off Indians in their lands, without the consent of the Government.

The trial came on the other day, and it was proved by the Crown witnesses, that the arrangement made by Mr. Baby was, that he would agree to purchase a small piece of the land at a certain price if and when the Government should agree; and further, that he expressly stated to the Indians that no purchase could be made from them without such consent. It was also proved that the arrangement, such as it was, went for nothing, and a few days afterwards a power of Attorney was executed, whereby certain trusts and duties were imposed on Baby for the Indians, which are utterly inconsistent with his being a purchaser. The presiding Judge charged the jury with much clearness and impartiality, but he left a question to the Jury of some nicety, and they seem to have given it the go-by, and divided for some time on the broad question of whether or not there was ever any arrangement at all which might result in a purchase. At all events, in the face of the evidence as have stated, Mr. Prince succeeded in getting a conviction, after the jury had been out all night. The Counsel for the defence, R. Cooper and J. O'Conner, moved to have the judgemnt respited to the next Assizes, on several legal grounds, and on the broad ground also, that the indictment is not sustained but is contradicted by the evidence and meantime the argument will be argued in term, when we shall be able to state the merits of the case more clearly. Mr. Prince consented to the respiting of the judgement; and, in order to show justice to be said, that although he opened the case with some harsh and irrevalent remarks, he replied after hearing the evidence, with moderation. We readily suppose that he saw an acquittal would be proper. But it necessarily occurs to the public, that in a county where a Crown officer has a strong personal influence, he should not ask juries for convictions in cases where he is personally interested and where his feelings are enlisted. Why could not the Government direct some other counsel to act for the Crown in this particular case? It would have been decent and no more than just; and there was ample opportunity for such a course, for at the autumn assizes, when the indictment was found, Mr. Prince forthwith sent a copy of it to head-quarters, and followed up that significent step, by applying to the Executive to dismiss Mr. Baby from his office of Clerk of the Peace of the County of Essex. That this was an uncalled for procee ing is proved by the evidence, which exonerates Mr. Baby from all charge of wrong, however he may be accused of want of caution in not drawing all the papers in such a shape as to afford full evidence of the real facts, and so put an accusation beyond the range of possibility. That we have given a fair view of the position of the matter as it now stands, we are confident—for our informant is cognizant of all the circumstance, The judgement of the court will show, we trust, who is right and who wrong, as to the morals of the transaction, whether the conviction is quashed or not; and if the government at the instance of Mr. Prince allows itself to be prejudiced against Mr. Baby in any way, before the matter is argued and fully investigated, why we can only say, the government will be even less scrupulous than usual.

Nor was this the only exploit of the circuit. At the same assizes, a true bill was found against the proprietors of a Montreal paper, for the libelling the gallant Colonel touching the same ear-boxing affray. Really there is nothing like having the ear of the Essex juries, when the Crown officer wants to punish those whom he cannot agree with. There is an old story current, of a juryman who on being aroused from a comfortable sleep to consider of the verdict, said honestly enough, "I'm for Prince—verdict for Prince." The Colonel was on one side of the case and, no one can say the juryman did not take a clever way of preventing any slip which might have occurred, in consequence of his forgetting whether the learned Counsel was for plaintiff or defendant.—Colonist.

Fraud in taking the Assessment.

From the Colonist.

The South Riding of Hastings, which is said to be kept in Reserve for Mr. Hincks, or for Mr. Ross the Attorney General, is the scene of frauds in taking the Assessment, which are as novel as they are base and sneaking. If Mr. Hincks or Mr. Rolph expect to cook up constituencies in this manner, we trust the independent Press of the country will "hand them round." The exposures below are manly and to the point.—There are no general statements made, or innuendoes indulged. Names, figures, and localities are given; and the whole system of deception and fraud is made bare to the public; and we trust that it will act as a warning to other constituencies, to look out for similar impostures, where Ministerial creatures are assessors, and Ministerial tools, or Ministers themselves, are candidates. The Belleville Intelligencer thus narrates the facts:—

"In Stirling, it is well known that one street, and that one street the principle street divides the Township of Rawdon and Sidney, and consequently is assessed accordingly. Well, on the Sidney side the assessing is of the most outrageous character. For instance Mr. Peter Cronter, who pays £18 a year rental to Mr. William Parker, of the village is assessed as an occupant of land, value £40, not as a tenant paying £18 a year, for that would have given him a vote: In this case it will be observed, that if the land occupied by Cronter be worth only £40 the owner is receiving a yearly income of £45 per cent. Again, Mr. Robt. McCray, who pays the same landlord £15 per annum rent, is only assessed for £45, being just £5 below the qualification of a voter. And Wm. Stilman, paying a rent of £10 per annum, is assessed for £40, while Thos. H Bosper and John McCuen, both paying £6 per annum, are assessed £40 also. Here are tenants of one man, and all Conservatives, chiselled out of their vote in the most glaring and palpable manner possible. We are also informed that Mr. Cronter, was first assessed for £50, but when the notice was served, it stated for £40 evidently shewing a premeditation in the whole affair, which requires a thorough and searching investigation both at the Court of Revision and at the Queen's Bench. One more case, and we have done for the present. Mr. Thos. Warred who purchased a lot from Mr. James Ross of this town, for £100, since which he has expended large sums in improving the property, and built a house upon it, was only assessed for £45, but having made a route about it, these honest Assessors changed the amount, and presented a notice with a sum of between £60 and £75.

These acts show conclusively what is at work, and behoves all parties to watch well the proceedings at the Courts of Revision, and if the above be true, of which there can be no doubt, the Assessor or Assessors should be punished in accordance with the law which will teach them in future, to pay more attention to their duties and less to party intrigues."

JOHN WILSON.

Christopher North has been gathered to the tomb of his fathers, at the comparatively early age of sixty-six.

What multitudes has that man delighted by his bright and manly-hearted genius! How many have wandered with him in solemnized mood through the grass covered vistoets of the "City of the Prostrate!" How many have drawn lessons of resignation and virtuous endurance, from the sorrs tried, heroic "Margaret Lindsay." How many a resident of North Britain has blessed the artistic hand which enshrined the "Lights and Shadows of Scottish Life" as enabling him on the banks of the Ganges or the St. Lawrence to realize scenes cherished in his heart of hearts!

The fame of John Wilson will mainly rest upon the glorious "Noctes," which for a long series of years shed such a peculiar glory over the pages of Blackwood's Magazine. Who can adequately characterize that matchless combination of wit, intelligence, and fancy, and humor, and pathos! It is not too much to affirm that a corresponding cento of mulform excellencies is not to be met with in the periodical literature of the world!

As a man, the fine old Tory was beloved by all who enjoyed the privilege of his familiar intercourse. Though unswerving as a rock to his political principle, he still could extend the hand of social kindness to an opponent, and where the claims of humanity were concerned he never asked the party question—"who is my brother?" From struggling genius, his sympathy and succor on no occasion were withheld, and many who now occupy prominent positions in the Republic of Letters have to confess substantial obligations to Christopher North!—Hamilton Gazette.

RAILROAD AND STEAMBOAT ACCIDENTS.—The following are the number of steamboat and railroad accidents, with the number of killed and wounded in each month, which have occured in the United States from the 1st of January, 1853, to the present. ☞ The Brant Herald says that the Grand River and Canal are now quite free of ice.—The ice at Buffalo has been started, and at Dunkirk a steamer landed flour on Friday last.

British Emigration to Australia and to America.

Only three vessels left England for Australia with passengers during the month of February, carrying the aggregate number of 1,024. In the previous month, there were 1,493, passengers left for the same destination, being 469 more than in February.—The decrease was attributable, no doubt, to the unfavorable accounts which had been received from those Colonies. These passengers were aided by a Governmental Commission.

During the same months, and without any Government aid whatever, there were no less than 11,264 passengers left Liverpool alone, for various parts of America, and the excess in February over January being 6,388; whereas, in the Australian emigration, a considerable diminution took place in the same months. Of those who came to America, 6,389 were Irish, the remainder being English and Scotch with a small number of Germans. It is a fact, remarkable in emigration, that the better class generally leave in the winter, it being more inconvenient, as more expensive, to leave at that season, and the poor being thereby prevented from doing so. Should, then, those emigrants prove of the better and richer classes which is very likely—how much must they add to the wealth, as well as to the intelligence and strength of the United States? We wonder under, the auspices of the genius who now mixes pills and seed potatoes in the Bureau of Agriculture, and who controls lunatics by the power lunatics gave him, how many of these valuable emigrants will ever find their way into Canada. We suspect that the statistics of the Toronto School of Medicine, and the ways and means of advancing charlatans and victimizing honest men, are the chief study of Dr. Rolph just now. Valuable British emigrants are about the last people he would like to see come into Canada.

☞ The Welland Canal was opened for the passage of vessels on the 1st April.

A Hard Hit to Doupduster.

At a missionary meeting recently held in Kingston, the Rev. Dr. Duff expressed himself as follows:

"I can testify that institutions of learning where nothing but a secular education is given, to the exclusion of the Bible, there infidelity has been the result! Brahminism was shown to these men to be ridiculous, and they forsook it and not having Gospel truth set forth before them they became infidels!"

It is stated by the Chronicle and News that the meeting at which the above remarks were made was closed with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Ryerson.

Our contemporary does not furnish us with a report of the orisons offered up by Leonidas Charity constrains us to conclude that they contained a confession of the supplicator's monster sin, in laboring to establish a Godless system of national education!

If the empiric's "prayer" embraced no such penitential palinode, it must have been one of the most blushless manifestations of profane assurance ever exhibited beyond the precincts of perdition!—Hamilton Gazette.

London Times.

LONDON, FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1854.

THE GREEK CHURCH.

In our last we cited several authorities to shew how false the charge was against Turkey treating the Christians with cruelty, and, as it were

"His Lordship" or any other title they might like better. There is no state church here though many of the ministerial press endeavour to make it appear such exists.

MORE RUIN AND DECAY.

Besides the Railroads, gravel roads, and various general improvements which attract notice on every hand in this portion of the Province, numerous instances of enterprise and progression on the part of private individuals, meet the eye of the observer. Water privileges are being improved, and suitable mills being erected in the remotest townships; and where natural mill sites are not to be found, the public are being furnished with necessary milling conveniences. No less than three steam grist mills will, now, in a short time be finished, for instance, on the Sarnia road. In Lobo a steam grist mill with foundry connected, has been in operation for a number of months past, and does; under the mangement of its enterprising proprietors Messrs. ————, a most excellent business. In Adelaide the frame for a new grist mill is raised; and in Warwick the framers are busy at work, and the building for a flour mill will be put up in a few days. The Whole Province is rapidly advancing in prosperity. What ruin! What decay!

TOO MUCH STEAM.

On Monday last as the stage was waiting before the Robinson Hall for the passengers and luggage, the horses, four in number, imagined that it was time for them to be off, and accordingly started at full speed on their wonted journey. Although there were two drivers on the box, as it happened it was impossible to stop them. Notwithstanding, the leaders were several times pulled back on their haunches, for the wheel horses again and again urged them forward, until all four sprung into a gallop. Their career was at length stopped by the leaders coming suddenly in contact with a building and being hurled to the ground, by which catastrophe one of them broke his legs. The drivers though considerably "skeared," then managed to soothe the wheel horses, and to get off from their precarious elevation. The horse was shortly after shot. No further damage, however, was sustained.

GREAT ARTISTS UNION ENTERPRISE.

In another column on this side of our paper will be found an advertisement with the above caption, which deserves the notice of our readers and of the public generally. By paying the small sum of one dollar a steel plate, "Darling's at once secured, being given by the agent here on the reception of the dollar; and a ticket obtained which stands its chance to draw one of the 250,000 prizes which are to be distributed among the purchasers of the tickets! A copy of Wyoming can be seen at any time in our office. It is expected that the whole of the tickets will be purchased by the First of July next. The scheme is spoken well of by the press: nothing can be lost, much may be gained: and the mere purchase of the picture will be an advantage to any person of taste. No time is to be lost in securing tickets. See advertisement.

☞ We regret to hear Capt. Priestotts pretty cottage at Brantford was recently burnt to the ground. Though insured, we are sorry to add the captain will be a heavy looser, as the high price of materials and labor cannot refund such a cottage for double the insurance money.

HOSPITAL.

We have heard with great satisfaction that it has been determined by the council to erect an hospital near London, we say near, for we hope the site selected may be apart from the crowded thorough fare. With the great increased communication daily springing up with the eastern and western parts of the States and the immense travel of emigrants with it, the arrival of the spread of epidemics. In fact nothing recollect the devastating effects of the emigrant fever now some years ago, and latterly some circumstances have occurred which loudly demand the establishment of some receptacle for travellers suffering under illness, who may be refused admittance to any hotel, of which we are aware of some instances lately occuring. We rejoice that steps are about being taken to supply the want.

SHIP.

We are informed by the agent of the Steamship Glasgow, that the accident to that vessel in the Clyde, by striking a sunken rock, is of such a nature as will detain her for several weeks. The directors have therefore abandoned the voyage, and she will not leave Glasgow till her next date of sailing, viz., 1st June.

To the Editor of the London Times.

SIR,—Although only a mere subscriber to your journal, I hope you will allow me the privilege of thanking and recommending a townsman of yours for the manner he treated me, a stranger in Canada, a short time since. The person I have reference to is Mr. Morgan, proprietor of Morgan's Saloon, Talbot Street, I called accidentally, at the above house, when I received, as I before said, such treatment and gentlemanly attention as warrants me in recommending this establishment to the travelling public, and to your townspeople in particular. He is well supplied with everything of the best, both in the eating and drinking line, and for attention and civility to his guests, he cannot be surpassed. To the traveller I would say, give little Morgan a call, and to those residing in your town, may they never see him in want of an abundant business.

Yours
JOHN LOWTHER.

NEW HAT STORE!

G. WINTER & CO.,

THE Celebrated HATTERS from Detroit, have just opened a new hat store on

Richmond-St., Opposite Weslyan Chapel, and would respectfully invite the attention of the public to their Extensive and Fashionable Assortment of

Hats, Caps, & Straw Goods, which comprise every variety. They would also direct the attention of the public to their

French Conformatuer, by the use of which they are enabled to obtain a correct model of the head, and thus secure a more accurate fit, which entirely obviates the unpleasant sensation which new hats so often produce.

SALE OF TOWN LOTS
By Auction.

TO be sold by Public Auction, at Morpeth, in the Township of Howard,

On MONDAY, the 15th day of MAY,

Next, at 12 o'clock, noon,

Forty Lots.

The subscriber having received numerous applications for Building Lots, is induced to offer for sale Forty Lots, containing about one-fourth of an acre each, on the south side of the

VILLAGE OF MORPETH.

An excellent opportunity is offered to Mechanics, Tradesmen and others desirous of building, of securing sites in close proximity to the central part of the village. Morpeth contains about 500 inhabitants, and is pleasantly situated about one and a-half miles from the shore of Lake Erie, where there is a large new warehouse and a wharf, from which the produce of the surrounding country is shipped.

From the rapid advancement which the village has made within a few years, and the fact of its being situated in the healthiest part of one of the finest farming tracts in Western Canada, and remote from any other village of any size, it is evident that this sale presents a good opportunity for a profitable investment.

A plan of the Lots can be seen on application to Mr. J. G. Nation, at Morpeth, or to the subscriber at Toronto.

Terms of Sale:—One-fourth down and the balance of the purchase money in three equal annual payments with interest.

Bonds for Deeds will be given, and bonds required to secure the balance of purchase money. An upset price will be named.

STEWART'S
EMPORIUM OF FASHIONS!
CASH SYSTEM

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

His stock will be found to consist of the latest and best materials of Home and Foreign Manufacture, consisting in part of

WEST OF ENGLAND BROAD-CLOTHS,

FRENCH GOODS,

SCOTCH TWEEDS,

and a splendid assortment of Silk, Satin and Fancy Vestings, Silk Handkerchiefs, Ties, Gloves of various materials and colors, Shirts, &c., which he is now prepared to sell and make up to order in the latest and most approved English, French or American Styles, to suit customers, at a very small advance on cost (for cash.)

He has just received the latest fashions from Europe and America, and will continue to receive monthly the very latest styles. He earnestly invites his numerous customers and the public in general to give him a call as early as possible. His workmen will be, as usual, of the first class. The cutting will be done entirely by himself. Ladies' habits will receive his particular attention.

☞ Remember! 25 per cent. less than the Credit System.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and THE FOREST PILLS are fast gaining for themselves the favorable medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of

Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impure Estate of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to recommend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. T. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marcus, Dr. J. M. Moreano, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1846 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health. I had been nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which "nature sinks and life becomes a burthen." Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business again entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0

0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in paymedt of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or tials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years menttoned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the dupayment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London C. W. June 18th, 1852.

Messrs. Rogers & Co.

Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottle of your Compound Camomile Flowers, and consider it a most valuable and highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavour, in which its essence consists, both appreciable as appears to be in the highest degree, and well preserved; and the vegetable tonic is legally exercised in those forms of dyspepsia depending on debility or wasted tone of the digestive organs. The Camomile Flowers sent with (or for the contents), your medicinal combination, form a valuable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, who has very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Preparation of this valuable plant to the public as a genuine article and for sale by

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or muscles Gout, Tic Douloreux, Nervous and Sick Headache, Vertigos, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Trifacial, or Nerve Pain, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblains Burns and Scalds &c.

It is supposed to contain a principle identical with that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism is in fact the vitality of life, and that disease, whether acute or chronic, in its most general forms is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If this were chemically supply this wondrous power which it is thus deficient we can successfully combat all disease and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of continuing magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which in this cost the sum total of this remedy vears at trifling and latent.

There is not an intelligent Physician who does not know with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cures effected by some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborative previous experience of their beneficial use. The writer of the Galvanic Embrocation now offered to the public begs to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from whom of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

HIYATO CHINESE BALSAM.

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Choice, Pains &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done for me much more than I expected. I have first used it in a case of Scarlett Fever, and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Respectfully yours, JOHN DOTY.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application—Cures all Ulcerated Sores, Piles, Chilblains, Tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.

Try it: you will not regret it.

TO W. C. SWEET.

DEAR SIR.—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure except by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price.

I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with minute instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicity, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

GRAIN.

Wheat, Barley, Oats, Peas, Indian Corn (in the cob) Buckwheat, Rye, &c., of the different varieties, five pecks of each, of the best quality that can be obtained, and, each carefully named, also, with the name of the producer and of the township where grown.

SEEDS.

Flax, Hemp, Turnip, Canary, Millet, Clover, Timothy, &c., one peck of each.

PRODUCE USED IN THE MANUFACTURE OF TEXTILE FABRICS, &c

Flax and Hemp, five pounds of the raw plant of each; and five pound of the hackled fibre. Wool, two pounds of the best specimens of the fine, medium, and long sorts, carefully chosen and put up.

WOODS.

Superior specimens of the rarer kinds of wood are desired, in the form of transverse sections of the tree, with the bark on; the specimens to be about two feet in length, and of the entire girth of the tree Longitudinal sections in the form of rough planks, about 4 feet in length of the entire width of the tree will also be acceptible. It is highly desirable that all our native woods should be represented in the Sydenham Exhibition, but the board do not desire to receive anything of this sort unless it be a very superior specimen.

NEW INVENTIONS, &c.,

The board will be happy to communicate with parties possessing new and useful inventions, or with manufactures of such articles as indicate our industrial state and progress, with a view of terminating the expediency of transmitting such productions to the Sydenham exhibition.

The Effects of British Trade.

Not in the least important feature of the news from England is the agitation produced in the money circles of the various European capitals, and particularly that of Great Britain the now financial centre of the Old World, by the near approach of the formal declaration of general war, and of actual hostilities between the great Powers. It was foreshadowed by the two or three previous packets, that a sudden but decided change in public confidence as to the commerce at effects and financial effect of the war, was about to take place in England, where the utmost certainty had been felt that the Russian aggression could be met on either element, or both, with out seriously disturbing the regular course of the home trade, the ordinary movements of commerce, or even the value of the public funds. The immediate causes of this change were the renewal of large shipments of the precious metals to the continent, the consequent weakening of the coffers of the Bank of England, and the rise of discounts in Lombard Street. There extending their influence to the stock exchange, to the manufacturing districts, and the provincial towns and seaports, appear, by the accounts before us to have simultaneously depressed the funds, discouraged trade, checked all speculation in cotton, and even produced increased dullness in the corn markets, which were expected to be benefited by the occurrance of war.

In the previous calculations of the English opinion on the domestic effect of the war, it appears to have been overlooked that immense government loans would immediately be required by nearly every power interested in the Eastern question, on the approach or declaration of hostilities, and that these would naturally be drawn from the sources most likely to afford the money, in actual gold, at the least cost and with the greatest certainty. The first of these sources is undoutedly the London market and the Bank of England, the second the Bank of France, and the wealthy stock jobbing and money coterie of Paris that revolve around it. And that these loans have come upon them quickly and simultaneously, and for sums so formidable as to make the drafts upon the gold treasurers in London inconvenient to the bank, and uncomfortable to the stock exchange, is evinced by a French loan of fifty million dollars; a loan to Turkey of ten Millions; another to Austria of twenty-five millions, and a fourth proposed by Prussia of twenty-four millions.

If these adverse influences shall be confined to the money wants of the war, it is possible the rates of interest and the course of business in Great Britain will gradually conform to them, without widespread mischief. But the complicated questions of seizure, of confiscation, embargoes and privateering, with their endless train of international controversies reclamations and heart burnings between friendly powers are to be equally dreaded; and it must strike most disinterested lookers on, that the sooner the merchants and trades people, as well as statesmen of Great Britain, make up their accounts for a costly job in conducting the war with Russia, the sooner they will recover from the disappointment now experienced at its first financial results.—N. Y. Tribune.

RECAPITULATION TOTAL.

Royal artillery	2,431	Infantry	18,750
Cavalry	2,000
Foot guards	2,550	Total	25,731

The above enumeration comprises only the rank and file—amounting to a total of fighting men in the finest order of equipment, and in the highest condition—comprising a grand total of 25,731 men and muskets. In this enumeration the staff is not included, neither are the commissioned or non-commissioned officers of any part of the force—so that the round number or 30,000 men and officers of all ranks may be safely set down as the effective force ready to take the field together. We may observe too, that the above calculation, giving 850 men, for example, to each of the infantry regiments, is under, rather than over the mark. They are, in fact, required to bring that number into the field; but it is well known that many of them emparked in still larger force. The 95th left Portsmouth in the Medway steamer on Tuesday, 1070 strong, 220 men more than a medium contingent. The 93d embarked more than 1,000 men at Plymouth. The 50th mustered 1,100 at Dublin and the Rifles at Dover over that amount.

These are all the effective force—not to speak of the followers and attaches of all sorts, and the sailors and marines of what we may now safely call the Back Sea squadron—since they have entered that sea definitely to carry the terror of the British arms against the common enemy of Europe. The marines under the command of Admiral Dundas exceed 7,000 men, and his ships are known to be manned with a full complement of able and experienced seamen. The French force by land will muster 47,000 men. The land forces will muster at Gallipoli, which is situated most conveniently (in the old Thracian Chersonesus) at the top of the Hellespont, and the commencement of the Sea of Marmora. Gallipoli has the advantage of being open to both seas—the Dardanelles on the one side and the bay of Saros on the other. Troops can be landed or embarked on either side, the land being extremely narrow across at this peculiar point. On the Ægean side the Bay of Enos is at hand, with the ancient highway by Hebros to Adrianople. On the side of the Hellespont and the Propontis, it is in close contiguity by the water to Constantinople itself, and a most admirable rendezvous for any operations in the Bosphorus, or the Black Sea.

EUREOPEAN NEWS.

From the Times, April 21.

We learn from Paris that the convention between the French and English governments which was signed a few days ago in London, has already been ratified, and that the text of this important document will probably appear this morning in the Moniteur. The object of the alliance of the two courts is stated to be the reistablishment of peace between the Emperor of Russia and the Sultan on a permanent basis, and the preservation of Europe from the dangers which have disturbed the general peace. For this purpose, and in order to rescue the dominions of the Sultan from foreign invasion, the English and French governments agree to combine their military and naval forces in a manner sufficient to accomplish the result they have in view. They bind themselves not to accept any proposition for the cessation of hostilities against Russia without having communicated to each other the nature of such overtures. They distinctly exclaim all exclusive advantage to themselves from the events which may arise, and they invite the rest of Europe to co-operate with them in an alliance destined solely to protect the public interests of Europe. The lateness of the hour at which this information reaches us compells us to defer till to morrow all further comment on this important convention, which seems to supply the necessary basis to the operations in which the English and French forces are now engaged, and will we trust, cement the permanent alliance of the western powers.

A telegraphic despatch in the Daily News date I Hamberg, states that by the new captures, the number of Russian vessels taken has been increased to ten.

A despatch from Copenhagen states that the English fleet is off Gothland. The Austerlitz has left Kioge Bay.

The (French) Baltic Fleet has set sail to Brest; it is composed of 25 vessels, of which 9 are ships of the line.

A Greek vessel with ammunition has been captured at Euboae.

A despatch from Constantinople of the 10th states that 300 Greeks, who have landed at Volo, in Thessaly, have been put to the sword, with the exception of a few who were saved by going on board the Austrian corvette Carolie.

To ides the 93rd Highlanders, the 44 Regiment and three companies of the 50th had arrived at Gallipoli on the 11th inst, from Malta.

The sappers who went out with General Frome in the Golden Fleece had laid out a camp. Some inconvenience, but which was by no means unexpected, as the telegraphic despatches suggest, had been occasioned by the want of horses. The deficiency of horses in Turkey, even for the purpose of mounting the Ottoman cavalry, has been remarked on nearly as often as the condition of the Sultans regular army has been discussed.

Subjoined are the latest advices relative to the state of navigation in the Baltic.

BOLDERAA, April 11, noon.

As a heavy drift of ice in the river is likely to take place shortly, the vessels that have wintered here, are now being hauled into the winter harbor. In consequence of the heavy fall of snow, there is nothing to be seen seawards. The sea channel is still firm, and the ice appears to lie on the ground. 12, p. m.: This morning there were several vessels in the ice close off this port, amongst them some loaded Norwegian yachts and sloops. The gulf is completely covered with large masses of ice, and the ice in the sea channel has everywhere heaped itself till it lies on the ground; 20 vessels in sight of the harbor. Wind, N N W. Temperature, 5° of frost.

Depth of water in the Sea channel 13½ feet Dutch—(afternoon): The ice lies as far as the Tiele, heaped up to the extent of 15 to 20 feet, and there must be a strong land wind to get it free.

A Kiel letter of the 16th inst., states that it was understood that the Dauntless brought word to Copenhagen on the 12th that 18 Russian ships of the line were lying at Helsingfors, and might soon be attacked. They seem as if they intended, as soon as it became possible, to put over to Revel. Admiral Plumridge was watching them with four frigates, which, before this, will have been reinforced by the arrival of Admiral Napier with a strong division.

A letter dated Hamburg April 17th states that the British minister at Copenhagen had just announced officially to the Government that Sir Charles Napier, having entered the Baltic, has orders to employ all necessary means for enforcing a strict and effective blockade of the Russian ports in that sea, and in the Gulf of Finland.

The Danish minister of Foreign affairs had announced this important fact to the mercantile community, recommending them to avoid dangers to which they would be exposed by infringing the regulations established by the British Admiral.

Up to the latest accounts, the British government had taken up no less than seventy-four vessels, and further tenders were invited to be sent in.

The French general, Broconi and suit arrived at Gallipoli on the 8th, with two companies of sappers, seven companies of rifles, and 2,810 Frenchmen. The total of the allied Forces arrived at that date was 5,000.

The Post says it was known at St Petersburg that reliance could no longer be placed on the neutrality of Germany, and the Cabinet was quite conscious of the serious position of affairs. A new levy of 11 men to 1000 is spoken of to facilitate the formation of an army on the Gallatian frontier.

The Times states that Chevalier Bunsen has replied to the clandestine efforts to obtain his recall by placing his resignation in the hands of the king, and by requesting to be relieved from the performance of duties which are neither consistent with his political opinions nor with the firm alliance between Prussia and this country.

Her Majesty's cutter Argus had brought into Portsmouth as a prize the Russian ship Freya, laden with 600 tons of salt. She was from Lisbon to Abo, and made no resistance.

Count Nesselrode's circular to the Russian diplomatic agents is favorable to the Greek insurrection.

The Trieste paper Wanderer asserts that the Russians lost all their stores in the fire at Pokschan

The Vienna Observer says tha police have discovered a Greek conspiracy at Constantinople for attacking the Turks and Franks during the Easter holidays.

The military posts have been trippled in Pera and Galata.

The French navy has 56.000 sailors afloat on the different seas.

Including the Austerlitz, the French Baltic fleet consists of nine line of battle ships, nine frigates, and nine corvettes. The admiral has taken with him a large body of artillery and marines.

The Journal of St. Petersburg of April 13, publishes a manifesto, replying to the English and French declaration of war. The manifesto throws the responsibility of the war upon France add England, and says that the Czar's generous confidence has been abused. The same journal of the 12th says that the secret correspondence recently published, was brought by the czar himself to the knowledge of the sovereigns of Prussia and Austria, but was not communicated to Napoleon, because the French envoy of Constantinople was at that time actively employed in supplanting Russian influence there.

The Morning Chronicle's Copenhagen correspondent writes that Swedish government has positively entered into a secret treaty with Russia, by which an absolute enactment, forbidding more than four ships at once to enter the harbor, has been restored, and the same extended also to Norway. The matter is however, taken by the Swedish parliament.

The letter from the King of Prussia to the Emperor Napoleon is stated to have given satisfaction, although it is admitted that it contains no pledge that Prussia will take part against Russia when hostilities commence.

The Shipping of England.

During the year 1853 there was built and registered in the United Kingdom 645 sailing vessels of a collective burden of 154,956 tons, and 153 steamers with a tonage of 48,215, making a total aggregate of shipbuilding during the year of 203,171 tons. This is independent of the vessels built in the colonies.

A striking fact in the ship-building of the United Kingdom is the rapid increase of iron ships. Of the 153 steamers built last year 117 were of iron. Of the sailing vessels 10 were built of iron, averaging 857 tons each. On the Clyde, which is one of the finest ship yards in Great Britain, more than half the vessels now on the stocks are of iron. The returns for the coming year and for future years are thus likely to show a great increase of iron sailing vessels. As timber grows more and more scarce, it is probable that sailing vessels of iron will become as common in England as iron steamers already appear to be.

As yet no discrimination is made in our returns of ship-building between iron and wooden vessels. But comparatively little iron is used, however, in building our sailing ships and our steamers are almost universally constructed of wood. In England the iron ship is constructed at a less cost than that of wood. Here we presume it would be otherwise. If our Government were but wise enough to develope the iron manufacture the results would soon manifest themselves in our marine in the same way as now in England. The iron ship has not yet been thoroughly tested, but so far as experience goes, the results have been most encouraging. The ship "Three Bells" lately at this port from the memorable voyage in which she rescued the "San Francisco," was an iron ship between five and six years old, Clyde built, perfectly tight in her beams from the day she was launched and apparently as good as ever.

The Times publishes indices that our ship building is rapidly surpassing that of Great Britain. Over 350,000 tons of shipping were built in the United States in 1852, and a still greater number in 1853. At present the aggregate amount of tonnage owned by the two countries does not materially vary. The rapid strides our mercantile marine has made since 1817 have closed up the great gap then existing in the relative proportions of shipping owned by the two countries, until it now appears probable that within ten years the American flag will cover more vessels than the flags of all other nations together. If we cannot boast as many ships of War as Great Britain we can at least boast of as many ships of Peace.—N. Y. Tribune.

Probable effects of the European War upon American Securities.

Under the above title, the last number of the American Railroad Journal has an article of some length. The subject is particularly interesting at the present time, when we are expecting to see Europe suddenly plunged into a long and bloody war. Such are the commercial relations existing between the United States and England, and in fact the whole of Europe, that whatever affects the one, must to a certain degree effect the others. If the manufacturers across the ocean are decreased, the demand for the raw material furnished by this country is lessened. For the loss which we sustain this way, we may find a compensation in the stimulus it will give to our own mills, in supplying the markets which were before filled with articles of foreign manufacture.

Thus far, the uncertainty of coming events has caused a depression in American Securities. At this moment, when it is known that English consols has declined, the fact, though it has no immediate, if any connexion with our railroad stocks, has caused a corresponding declination in their stock. It will undoubtedly be the case during the continuance of the war, that any sudden change in the English market will produce a like change in our own. We must expect many panics, but we think we have little need to fear them They are produced frequently by the slightest causes. The two greatest "humbugs," —to use a common phrase of the present day —which two world ever saw, were the South Sea bubble and the Mississippi scheme. Without any foundation but an imaginary one they in less than an hour often enrich thousands and impoverished thousands. This all resulted from confidence and fear, and depended upon no real basis. Thus it always is, to a certain degree, in exciting times. A groundless opinion, adverse to any important interest in this country, will injure that interest frequently, as much as for a short time as though the judgement upon it were well founded. We should not be unduly alarmed by sudden changes; but should look beyond to see what the real effects is to be on our securities.

The Journal suggests one consideration which is worthy of attention. It says:

"For several years past our people have been in the habit of borrowing large sums from abroad, for the prosecution of our public works. It has been foreign capital that has enabled our people to accomplish no small part of the immense results that have been achieved. If the whole, or a considerable portion of this supply be cut off, the entire burden of our public works will be thrown on our own people. This fact must draw large sums from other investments, and create a general stringency, the effect of which must be to reduce the market value of all our securities.

"The prospect of war has already produced the result we have described. It his almost entirely checked the flow of European capital into this country—imposing upon our own people the burden of providing for themselves the whole cost of our public works. A depressed share and bond market is the necessary result."

To show that our market is now yielding to a sentiment borrowed from abroad, the Journal states that the internal trade of the country was never more active than at the present time, and that the earnings of the entire investments in railroads in the United States are at least 25 per cent. greater than at a corresponding period of the past year. Notwithstanding these facts, railroad stocks are depressed. This state of things cannot remain long. Confidence must return, and while distrust in European investments will be increasing, our securities will be regarded with greater favor. We may expect to see a considerable amount of foreign capital invested in the United States, during the contuance of the war, as the safest place of deposit. This, with the additional impetus which will be given to our manufactures, and the increased demand for breadstuffs abroad, will give Jonathan an excellent opportunity to gratify his money making propensity; and if he only has sufficient discretion to keep out of the fight himself, he will take advantage of the misfortunes of others to advance his own interest.—Detroit Advertiser.

THE TAKING OF MATSCHIN AND TULTSCHA.

The Freuden Blatt has some particlars relative to the fall of Matschin and Tultsch. The field works constructed by the Turks between Matschin and Isatcha, which were very extensive and strong, were taken by storm, and the first mentioned place was in the hands of the Russians at four o'clock in the morning of the 27th. The fortress was bombarded on the 25th and 26th, and two fruitless attempts were made to take it by storm. The garrison, which was rather more than 5,000 strong probably surrendered at discretion on the 27th, as it was at once sent under escort to Bessarabia. Some English and French "officers of instruction" are said to have been in the fortress when taken. Tultscha, according to the same paper was taken by storm on the 27th, when 1,000 Turks and 10 guns were captured. The Dobrudscha has been declared to be in a state of siege and Baron Budberg, summoned from Bucharest to make the necessary arrangements for the administration of the affairs in the newly-acquired province. It was known at Bucharest on the 8th that the combined fleets had reached Varna. The following account of the taking to Hirsova, which is probably from an Austrian source, has a semi-official character. Bucharest. On the 20th, consequently three days before the passage of the Danube at Braila, Colonel Struff, with 2,000 men, crossed the river some nine English miles above Hirsova, and marched along the bank of the river towards the entrenchments thrown up for the defence of the place. A fierce attack was made, which was supported by a heavy fire from the gunboats, but the Russians were three times repulsed by their adversaries, who fought with extraordinary courage. On the 21st the entrenchments were taken, on the following day the place was invested, and on the 24th, when General Engelhardt's troops arrived, the siege was begun. The operations continued until the 30th of March, on which day the citadel was taken by storm, a part of having been previously set on fire by the Russian rockets and shells. On the 28th General Luders was close to Kostendje, and in direct communication with the column acting on the right bank of the Danube at Hirsova.

It is said that a serious conflict had taken place on March 30th at Kulafat, 10,000 foot, 2,000 horse, and 60 guns advanced against the Russians, who were posted in force at Skirpetz. After a sanguinary engagement which lasted four hours, the latter were routed and pursued to a considerable distance. The loss of the Turks is given at 200, and that of the Russians at 600 men. From the 28th of March to the 2nd of April there were engagements of greater or less severity. The Fremden Blatt has a telegraph despatch of the 4th from Bucharest, in which it is said that a regular engagement has taken place on the 2nd, Rasso, which is at the western extremity of Trrajan's Wall, but but the result was unknown. Omar Pasha left Rutschuk for Rassova on the 26th March on which day Czernavoda, Carassu, and Kostendje were still in the hands of the Turks. Mustapha Pascha, who has his head-quarters at Carasu, has already received reinforcements, and may now be at the head of some 15,000 men. the garrison at Varna—it has since been reinforced from Constantinople—consisted of but 1,200 men.

According to the Allg. Deutsche Post, a Russian gunboat flotila, on the 29th bombarded Czernavoda, which forms the terminus point of Trajan's Wall. A direct communication between Dobrudscha, below Hirsova, and Wallachia has been secured by a pontoon bridge across the Danube. Six Turkish transport ships, which were stationed in St. Georges Canal, and managed to escape from the Russians, have reached Kostendje. On the 27th two steamers and thirteen sailing vessels belonging to the combined fleets were in sight of Kostendje. This place is the point on the Black Sea to which Traj n's Wall extends. The object was to support the right of Omar Pasha's army. The Soldat Fraud learns that the one-half of the combined fleets was off Varna on the 28th, the other vessels having gone to Suchum Kaleh and Redout Kaleh. All kinds of rumors were in circulation at Constantinople, in respect to the prolonged inactivity of the fleets. Redschid Pasha, in spite of the energetic resistance of Lord Redcliffe, and General Baraguay d'Hilliers, is believed to have insisted on the fleets not quitting Constantinople until the auxiliary troops arrived, "as an insurrection of the ultra-Mahometan party was expected. It was not until news was received that the Russians had crossed the Danube that the sleepy leviathans from the west considered it necessary to weigh anchor"

Provincial.

Anticosti.

Quebec Correspondence of the London Morning Post.

Anticosti has hitherto been condemned to desolation, not on account of its being incapable of being made to sustain a population, but because of the superficial examinations of its soil, bordering upon the sea-shore only, which have been made from time to time, and of the reports and general rumors which have for many years kept backmany other countries and many other parts of Canada, since become thoroughly known, and now arrived at a flourishing condition, and which until the last few years, condemned Newfoundland to be a mere fishing station. With a climate from its insular position, much milder than that of Quebec, Anticosti has been found to possess excellent soil at most of the spots where it has been properly tried, capable of producing in perfection all the hardier grains and every description of vegetables. This is particularly the case at the south-west point and at Ellis Bay. At the former the light house keeper grew last year the finest crop of oats, 300 bushels of the best potatoes (the disease never having reached the island,) and every other vegetable which is grown in Canada; and he supposes—though it has never been tried, and the humid state of the atmosphere is against it—that wheat might be successfully cultivated in the interior, which has never been explored beyond 10 or 12 miles from the beech. In some parts the island is nearly 40 miles broad, and in length it is about 130 miles. It is generally level to near the centre, where a hill appears to run the whole length of the island. It is mostly covered with a thick forest of trees, stunted near the sea, but gradually larger as they recede from it, and has several very fine natural meadows, and some salt marshes. Among the trees, the tamarick is about the most valuable. Rich grasses are found there; cattle thrive well, and, no doubt, large flocks of sheep might profitably be raised. For the farmer, the famous tussac grass of the Falkland Islands, which has been found to answer at the Orheny Islands, might be introduced. The seed of this grass has become a profitable export from the Falkland Islands. There are innumerable streams, many of them proceeding fine lakes, all of which are full of salmon and other fish. The lake which feeds Jupiter river, near the south west point, is 20 miles long and several broad; and at the entrance of all the rivers and creeks immense quantities of lobsters are thrown up by the sea; while the best whale, cod, and mackerel fisheries in the gulf and river exist upon each side of the Island. To carry on these fisheries around it, many vessels come from the United States, New Brunswick, Prince Edward's Island, and from even Newfoundland and the Magdalen Islands. Besides marble, there are many indications of minerals and ores. The navigation is open for about two months longer than it is at Quebec; and last winter there were only six of sea ice. This description of some of its riches, and accounts of many other resources and capabilities, the writer has obtained from several of the parties now residing on the island, some of whom have been there for 15 years, and also from an examination of every authority bearing upon it; but it has so many resources and its position is so admirable for commerce—being midway in the river at its entrance, which obliges every vessel for Quebec, whichever of the three channels from the Atlantic she may take, to pass close to its shores—that a proper statement of its advantages, and of how they could be best turned to account, may well occupy another and an entire article. It contains 34,0,000 acres of land more than Prince Edward's Island, which, with its undoubtedly milder climate, was also for many years much neglected and discouraged, and its progress arrested, but which is now a province of itself, with a thriving population of 80,000 souls. The three lines of steamers about to run between England and Quebec will tend much to call attention to, and develope, the resources of Anticosti; for lying on their direct track, and their often requiring coals and and supplies when within five or six hundred miles of their destination, it cannot help being examined with a view to the establishment there of one or two coal depots. Should the Canadian Government hesitate to obtain the island for the important public purposes to which it could be applied, from its present proprietors, who themselves are not aware of its real value, it would be worth the while of a company, whether in England or Canada, to one belonging to both, to purchase it, and, after a thorough exploration (either before or after the purchase), and a full inquiry into what has been accomplished in other parts long thought to be hopelessly barren and useless, proceed to take proper measures for turning to profitable account its advantages of position, of soil and climate (when compared with the opposite shores of the St. Lawrence), its marble quarries, and its valuable and inexhaustable sea, river, and lake fisheries. When we consider that Iceland raises her flocks and herds, her sheep number ing 500,000, her horned cattle 40.000, and her horses 90,000, and exports the finest fleeces, also dairy and other produce, and that New Iceland, which shelters Anticosti, had been until very recently condemned as incapable of yielding any return to the labors of the agriculturalist, and that it now grows excellent autumn and spring wheat, in addition to all the hardier grains, we have no reason to despair of Anticosti, whose soil has only been turned in one or two places, and in those place has proved to be fruitful.

The latest Yankee Dodge.

We glean the following appetising advertisement from a late number of the New York Tribune:

$150 PER MONTH.—A small fortune for $1—A chance to make money, by all persons in or out of business. No capital needed, and but little expense incurred. It requires no travelling—no peddling, but gives you the comforts of a home, with the chance to make from 100 to 200 per month. This right will be sent to any person enclosing $1—post paid—to

E. S. SHIPLEY,
Kingston, Ross county, Ohio.

Annunciations cognate to the above, are of frequent occurrence in the newspapers of Dollardom, and many of them promise better bargains for the invested honorarium, than those offered by the philanthropic and disinterested Shipley!

Touching the gushing generosity of such advertisers, there cannot be the sceptre of a doubtation! If they sordidly desired to enrich themselves they could with the greatest facility procure the services of travelling agents at from thirty to forty dollars a month to work the mines of which they have the exclusive keys! But no! With a prodigality of Brotherly love, without counterpart, these wonderous climaxes of self denial, hunger and thirst, to behold the balance of Adam's race enriched at their own expense!

Should not steps be immediately taken to present the glorious Shipley with some befitting testimonial to evidence the world's appreciation of his cosmopolitan virtues? The only difficulty would consist in divising a suitable memento! If we might presume to offer a suggestion, we would propose that a purse voluminous as a Black Bridgesman's brief bag, be manufactured quam primum, and transmitted to Shipley with a request that he would fill it for himself by his own peculiar process!—Hamilton Gazette.

Destructive Fire at Brantford.

BRANTFORD, Tuesday afternoon.

About 1 o'clock this morning, an alarm of Fire was given, when the Fire Brigade together with the citizens in very great numbers, turned out, when it was discovered that the handsome depot, round house, and Machine Shop, were all literally in flames, and before all could be procured the buildings were so far consumed that no human effort could save them. Two very fine locomotives and seven cars, together with a great quantity of building materials, tools, merchandise, and goods, 1,200 bushels of Wheat, household furniture, &c., were consumed. The loss is estimated at £25,000 and the insurance is only £8,000.

There is no doubt, from the manner in which the fire was first discovered, that it was the work of an incendiary, whom it is to be hoped justice will speedily overtake. A full and open investigation has been demanded by one of the sufferers. A public meeting has been called by the citizens of Brantford, to take steps to raise funds to rebuild the depot, machine shop, &c.—Hamilton Spectator.

London Times.

LONDON, FRIDAY, MAY 12, 1854.

The Assizes.

SATURDAY, May 6th, 1854.

THE QUEEN VS. ADAMS.—The court was occupied in the trial of this case most of the day. The prisoner, Robert Adams, was indicted for the murder of one Dugald Crawford, in the town of London, on the 21d of October last. After some challenges on the part of the prisoner the following jury were sworn: David Anderson, Edward Baker, Andrew Gardner, James Creighton, Robert Darch, John Tibbs, John Gallagher, John Hart, William McCoombs, George Rheubotham, John Patrick, and James Seward. Col. Prince, Q. C., after opening the case in a temperate strain on the part of the Crown, proceeded to call witnesses. 1st Witness—Dr. Philips: Stated he was called on by a man of the name of Snooks, to attend his wife between the hour of 12 o'clock and daylight, on the morning of the 23d of October last, and when going was informed by Snooks that a man was lying apparently dead in Fullerton street, opposite the bar room door of McCann's tavern; on passing by knocked and desired them to take in the body at McCann's; they said they knew nothing about it. When returning home he found blood on the threshold of the door. On the next day was examined at the Coroner's inquest; found several wounds on deceased's body; wounds inflicted by a sharp instrument found on the body of Dugald Crawford, (deceased's name;) the instrument had no handle; identified the one produced in court; one wound between the 6th and 7th rib, and another between the 5th and 6th, both penetrating the heart; besides wounds in the back; the wounds penetrating to the heart, and one of those in the back penetrating the spleen would cause his death; he had other wounds also in the back.

Cross Examined by Mr. Horton.—Blade dropped out of the clothes; could not without a handle have inflicted the wounds; searched edge of the sidewalk for handle; don't know whether others searched for handle.

2d Witness—Dr. Wanless, Coroner, presided over the inquest with Drs. Philips, and Sherwood, examined the body; found several wounds; considered they were inflicted by the instrument produced, and three were capable of causing death.

Cross-Examined by Cooper.—Adams did not appear to be fighting savagely ween separated; Benjamin Higgins, junr., showed the constable Adams' room; never saw Adams wear a coat like that produced.

For the defence: William Pope knew prisoner for two years, gave him an excellent character.

John Noble Ross knew Flanerty, knew he had a dangerous instrument; went into Mr. Lindsey's house, where he brandished it; said he bought it for half a dollar; could not identify it.

James Crommarty saw Flanarty the 22nd of October.

Mr. Cooper then addressed the Court and Jury on behalf of the prisoner; having directed their attention to the merciful provisions made in our Law, with reference to legal proof, as contra distinguished from impressions of guilt, that is, that though many might consider a man guilty of a crime, still that consideration is not to avail, unless the most satisfactory and indisputable evidence is adduced to sustain it; hence the great necessity there is in carefully comparing the evidence adduced to see whether it sustains the indictment, in this case he considered there was no evidence to justify them in finding the prisoner guilty; he directed their attention to the evidence of Young, who proved a scuffle between Flanery and Crawford on that evening, and commented upon the crown omitting to have Flanery (who it appears is in Biddulph) present, he also dwelt upon the fact of no proof being given of the clothes produced belonging to Adams; Adams having given the keys of his boxes to the constable, who, in examining the contents, found no traces of blood upon anything in either of them; Adams' room was open to everyone, and those clothes found hanging up in it, may have belonged to any one; there were several scuffles on that evening, and very grave doubts might suggest themselves, whether Flannery might not have been the person and not Adams who killed Crawford. The learned counsel concluded by an appeal to the obligation they all were under to give a verdict in accordance to the evidence, and trusted they would discharge the solemn obligations imposed on them with fidelity, and a patient investigation.

Verdict, not guilty.

THE QUEEN VS PATRIC CARTY, WILLIAM O'Brien, and JOHN MCDERMOTT—Who were indicted for the murder of Thomas Taylor on the 10th of April in the town of London. The prisoners refused to join in their challenges. Patric Carty, the person accused of striking the fatal blow, was first put in his trial.

The following jury were sworn after some challenges by the Prisoner: McKay, Sifton, S. Hunt, Fredric Platt, John McKenzie, John Waugh, R. Smith, Alexander McDonald, Duncan McCrae, Dougald Brown, Thos Robson, Francis Smith, and John Donaldson.

After Col. Prince, Q. C. stated the case for the Crown he proceeded to call witnesses.

Richard McCarthy—[Brother to one of the prisoners] stated he saw the three prisoners on the evening of the 6th of April in London, all were rather under the influence of liquor, and gave some evidence of hearing his brother say he was going to get law of those who beat him.

Watt tavern keeper: the three prisoners were at his house the evening of the 6th April. They had been drinking before they came to his house, turned them out for quarrelling. Heard his brother cry for murder, he saw Carty come out and change hats, Carty went towards door, saw big John Wilson there, tall man pulled short man, all went out of the house, soon after heard Taylor was stabbed, did not see him before he was stabbed, did not take any part in the row, Torrence was not out of the house to his knowledge.

John Taylor saw his brother that was stabbed near Watts' tavern the evening of the 6th April, and saw him go towards B Higgins' tavern saw some man run up against him; a middle sized man with a white hat and gray coat; heard his brother exclaim, "I am stabbed;" went down with him to Dr. Kermott's; saw Carty pushed out of Watts' tavern, and saw him pull something out of his coat; saw a crowd around him; did not see any others.

Dr. Wanless saw deceased that evening; said it was a fatal wound, and necessary to have his dying declaration taken down; sent for Mr. Morrell, who not being able at the time to come; Mr. Lawrason was sent for and Mr. Morrell afterwards coming, the dying declaration was taken before them.

Both the gentleman were subsequently examined and produced it. In it the dying man stated that it was a short man ran towards him and stabbed him, (Carty is a tall man and O'Brien the short man.)

VanValtenburg, the high constable, with John Wilson, (constable) went after the prisoners, Carty and O'Brien, to Michigan, to arrest them; their evidence established the fact that both prisoners were working on a Railway, and the moment they saw them drop the tools they were working with and ran away towards the bush, the constables, aided by the Michigan authorities, pursued them, and when arrested Carty said, it is a bad job for us, it is all up with us; searched the shanty they lived in and got the large knife produced Carty also asked if "he was dead; constable answered yes, dead and buried; Carty also said, oh! Billy, it is up with us now, and it is as bad as it can be, would that I had not run away!

John Cameron thought, on his returning from court, on the evening of the murder, he saw Carty running away, and had on a white hat, red handkerchief and drab coat.

Joseph Douglass, a boarder at Benjamin Higgins', saw a row that evening in the street, opposite Watts, being a stranger could not identify any one.

For the defence. Messrs. Schram, Arthur Wallis and Robert Abernathy, gave prisoner, Carty an excellent character, and Abernathy said he passed Watts tavern that evening and saw Torrence in the street brandishing a stick; this took place before Taylor was stabbed.

Mr. Wilson made an able speech on behalf of prisoner, who was acquitted.

The other prisoners Col. Prince declined to prosecute, and there being no evidence offered to the Jury, they were, as a matter of course, acquitted.

Messrs. Wilson and Daniell were counsels for prisoners.

THE QUEEN VS. HESSIE.—Hessie was indicted for the murder of his wife, by burning her, at Dorchester.

Seth Young, the first witness, recollected seeing Anne Hessie on the 11th of March last, between 11 and 12 o'clock in the morning, and saw her, after running out of the house, on fire, jump into a large sugar kettle; helped her to extinguish the fire; her husband stood still and called out fire; saw her half an hour before in her own house; she was not sober; they had a bee that day.

Other witnesses were produced, on the part of the crown, who proved the facts as above, and Wm. Black proved the reluctance of Hessie to send for a Doctor; also Mrs. Young who swore that Mrs. Hessie was dreadfully burned, and that she said "take him to gaol, he set me on fire as sure as God is in heaven," she further swore that Hessey said he was glad of it, and wished his wife in the flames of h—l; Mrs. Young was examined before the Coroner but did not swear that; accounted for the difference of evidence by saying, she wished, before the coroner, to say as little as she could; it appeared also, in evidence, that both Hessie and his wife were habitual drunkards, continually quarrelling, but that one was as bad as the other. A day or two burning took place both were in liquor, Dr. Wanless, the coroner, proved the death caused by the burn, and no other wounds on the body.

Horton for the defence.—Examined, 1st, Geo. Belton

VILLAGE OF MORPETH.

An excellent opportunity is offered to Mechanics, Tradesmen and others desirous of building, of securing sites in close proximity to the central part of the village. Morpeth contains about 500 inhabitants, and is pleasantly situated about one and a-half miles from the shore of Lake Erie, where there is a large new warehouse and a wharf, from which the produce of the surrounding country is shipped.

From the rapid advancement which the village has made within a few years, and the fact of its being situated in the healthiest part of one of the finest farming tracts in Western Canada, and remote from any other village of any size, it is evident that this sale presents a good opportunity for a profitable investment.

A plan of the Lots can be seen on application to Mr. J. G. Nation, at Morpeth, or to the subscriber at Toronto.

Terms of Sale:—One-fourth down and the balance of the purchase money in three equal annual payments with interest.

Bonds for Deeds will be given, and bonds required to secure the balance of purchase money. An upset price will be named.

STEWART'S EMPORIUM OF FASHIONS!

CASH SYSTEM

25 per cent. Cheaper than the Credit System.

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

His stock will be found to consist of the latest and best materials of Home and Foreign Manufacture, consisting in part of

WEST OF ENGLAND BROAD-CLOTHS,

FRENCH GOODS,

SCOTCH TWEEDS,

and a splendid assortment of Silk, Satin and Fancy Vestings, Silk Handkerchiefs, Ties, Gloves of various materials and colors, Shirts, &c., which he is now prepared to sell and make up to order in the latest and most approved English, French or American Styles, to suit customers, at a very small advance on cost (for cash.)

He has just received the latest fashions from Europe and America, and will continue to receive monthly the very latest styles. He earnestly invites his numerous customers and the public in general to give him a call as early as possible. His workmen will be, as usual, of the first class. The cutting will be done entirely by himself. Ladies' habits will receive his particular attention.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the great wish, and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of

Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints Incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the crude, and impure matter from the blood. The Wine and Pills pover Weakness but give strength and assimulate to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to commend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. A. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physicitin, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time reviving several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in dangerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Chesemun, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreano, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1845 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health, I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which "nature sinks and life becomes a burthen." Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business again entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.,
JOHNSON BURKE.
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body &c

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. Authors to delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of sinking, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, lassitude and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills, in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to hereby medicines as an ultimatum and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of health, which again invariably follows the purest state of the blood. What artificial appearances equal the vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What paints can compare with the crimsoned colored blood casting its brilliant tinge like flame through the transparent texture of the skin? What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? Yet Dr. Halsey's wine supplies the place of all cosmetics. The use of this excellent wine in a short time creates pure, rich blood which, coursing through the veins, penetrates the minutest fibres that verge towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, imparting a vivid, rosy color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes.

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rutgers street,

New York, July 9th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister, from her youth, had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest attended with a

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Benefits.

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in paymedt of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures of tials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers.

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality: in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

of the latter, as well as part of the former, should be stationed at Anticosti, where the Americans also come to fish, and where they, and other parties who also come there for the same purpose, have a keen eye to wrecks. To these duties many others could be added, such as laying down buoys, and carrying stores to lighthouses, &c., for which the Trinity House employs a steam vatch,the the expenses of which might it us be saved.

Last year about 1,600 vessels from sea arrived at Quebec, and these could not take anything near the quantity there was for shipme t. With the closing of many ports of the Baltic and Black Seas, the consequent increased demand for our staple exports of b eadstuffs and timber, and the relief of shipping from those quarters which will be employed in this, together with the extraordinary existing prosperity of the province, we shall this year have at least over 3,000 sail from Europe, manned by upwards of 50,000. To provide for the good order of so large a body, to which must be added the thousands of hands belonging to coasting and other craft something more than 15 or 20 river police who are put on pay at Quebec during the season, will be wanted. This want would be most efficiently supplied by our small provincial navy.

With regard to manning this new force, our fellowmen, with whom it would become very popular, would readily volunteer for the service. In procuring officers for it there would be no difficulty; many half pay officers of the British Navy, residing in Canada, would eagerly take command of the steamships and gun boats; the mates for instance being chosen from intelligent officers of our commercial marine; and, if a superior class of naval academy were created upon the present Government school in Quebec for pilots and masters; our best families in the province would furnish all the officers who would be required in future, by the latter going through the usual course of naval cadets and midshipmen. We may thus possess a navy useful in war and in peace, upon which we could, within the shortest period, form a force large enough to repel any hastily organised attack upon the province, either by the lakes or from the Atlantic, in the probable events of the United States taking advantage of England being occupied in Europe, as she did in 1812, to make and declare war. Although a better feeling now exists between the two countries and their interests are, to a certain extent, bound up together, still the there is no telling what the minority and the worst class in the former, led by General Cass: (the veteran in his oft-repeated, but hitherto impotent, attacks upon England), may yet be able to effect should any event happen which they could possibly make capital of in pursuing their acknowledged designs upon Canada and Cuba. It is, therefore, and visable that we have regardto what may possibly happen from this quarter, as well as to the probable visits of Russian privateers to the St. Lawrence, in our organising our defences either by sea or land. When we reflect that at the siege of Louisbourg, in 1745, Massachusetts, Newhampshire, Connecticut, and Rhode Island, then our colonies contributed among them ships and men at a cost of £.35,749 2s. 10d., it is high time that Canada, which is infinitely richer than they were at that time, should provide something towards her own defence at this period of emergency to the empire at large.

The Grain Trade of the Danube.

The annexed account of the total suspension of the grain trade of the Danube, consequent upon the recent operations of the Russian army, is from the circular of Messrs. Thomas Brocker and Co., dated Galatz 27th March:

"The prohibition on the export of all grain took effect on the 19th inst., and has since been peremptorily enforced. Business has consequently been brought to a dead lock, and nothing like accurate quotations can be given, although very low prices would be accepted for stocks in store here, consisting of something like 150,000 quarters of wheat and Indian corn. On the 4th inst., the pontoon bridge was launched, and on that and the preceeding day some 30,000 Russian troops were poured across the Danube into the swampy country of the Dobrutscha. Simultaneously with this movement, another corps d'armee of some 35,000 men crossed at Ibrail, one of 50,000 at Ismail, and the fourth consisting of about 40,000 men, from different points in Little Wallachia. Several vessels are yet detained here, owing to their passage being obstructed by the pontoon bridge across the Danube. Two English vessels and a steamer have been fired into while proceeding down the Danube, and one, the Bedlington, sunk. Under the existing inauspicious state of affairs we are compelled for a while to withdraw our establishment. It is our present intention, however, at the conclusion of the war (which we presume, sooner or later must have an end), again to commence operation in Galatz; feeling sanguine that although the present military occupation may for a time inflict a severe blow on the prospects of the principalities, it can check, not crush, their vast, and as yet but partially developed agricultural resources."

Turkey and Russia.—The past history of these rival states presents more than one parallel passage like the following, extracted from Watkins's "Travels through Switzerland, Italy, the Greek Islands, to Constantinople, &c." (second edition, two vols. 8vo., 1794:—"The Turks have been and indeed deserve to be praised for the manner in which they declared war against the Russians. The sent by Mr. Bulgaroff, her Imperial Majesty's minister at the Porte, to demand the restitution of the Crimea, which had been extorted from them by the merciless despot of R——a (sic) when too much distressed by a rebellion in Egypt to protect it. On his return without an answer, they put him in the Seven Towers and commenced hostilities. They hate the Russians; and to show it the more, frequently call a Frank Moscoff. To the English they are more partial than to any other christian nation, from a tradition that Mahomet was prevented by death from converting our ancestors to his faith." (Vol. ii., pp., 276 7.) —From "Notes and Queries."

Financial Crisis in Russia.—The Paris correspondent of the New York Commercial Advertiser says, "The Russian paper currency has fallen to a discount of 12 per cent., and several failures have occurred at St. Petersburg and Riga, as well as in the interior. The finance question is likely, in the end, to be to the Czar in the present war, what the winter at Moscow was to Napoleon in 1812. It will wear him out, because it is an element with which he is totally unprepared to deal. In his own territory he is unassailable, but he cannot keep armies in a distant country without money.

TURKEY.

Advices have been received by telegraph from Constantinople to April 10 h. Varna, which was only defended by 6,000 men, has asked for reinforcements from the combined fleets. The English and French troops which have arrived at Gallipoli will, it is said be ordered there. There is a great concentration of Turkish troops near Battschik. At Matschin there has been a sanguinary combat. Three Russian and three Egyptian battalions were put hors de combat.

The Sulina mouths of the Danube are still blocked up. Snow continued to fall at Gallipoli. At Gallipoli, on the 11th inst., the Kangaro, with British troops, was in port.

THE GREEK INSURRECTION.

The Greeks, expelled from Constantinople, will, it is expected, join the insurgents as soon as they get out of the Ottoman territory but the presence of 20,000 or 25,000 enemies in the capital is a serious consideration, and fears are entertained that some insurrectionary movement will be attempted before their departure. It would be easy for a band of organized conspirators to burn down Constantinople.

On the 9th of April well-armed Greek volunteers were passing through Missolonghi, to join the insurgents. Thousands of Thessalian families have fled to Greece.

Prince Daniel of Montenegro published a proclamation calling upon the people to take up arms.

THE BALTIC.

A despatch from Copenhagen, dated yesterday, states that seven merchant prizes were in Kioge Bay.

PIEDMONT.

Turin, April 15.—The Sardinian Government has issued an order prohibiting any privateers under the Russian flag from being armed, provisioned or harbored with their prizes in Sardinian ports.

A despatch from Vienna, dated yesterday states that the important frontier town of Tokticham, in Wallachia, which had been fortified had been destroyed by fire. All the Russians stores, provisions, arms, clothing, and ammunition—all the military hospitals have fallen a prey to the flames. The Russians occupy Kostendje.

A second despatch, dated last night, states that the Russians have positively entered Servia; and on the 15th the Cossacks crossed the Danube, at Orsova—a Turkish fortress on one of the Danubian islands, and occupied Wartanco a

The Turks bombarded the place but it was not known whether a regular passage of the Danube was intended at that point.

The Vienna evening papers of last evening state that all the Russian ports in the Black Sea are blockaded.

A part of the allied fleet has anchored at Odessa. The total allied force at Gallipoli, on the 8th inst., was five thousand.

A Steamship to Talk About.—An immense iron steamship is now constructing at the yard of Scott, Russell & Co., at Backwall, near London, for the Eastern Navigation Company. She is to be a screw and a paddle steamer. The dimensi ns will be nearly as follows:—Tonnage, 16,000 tons or builder's measurement 32,000 tons; extreme length 700 feet; extreme breadth 82 feet; depth of hold 84 feet, with screw and paddle engines of the aggregate nominal horse power 2,800, horses; stowage for coals 10,000 tons, for cargo 5,000 tons; 500 first class cabins, with ample space for troops and lower class passengers. Her entire construction will be similar to the tube of the Britannia Bridge, a kind of double ship, with a space of 2 feet 8 inches between, of a cellular formation. She is to have 14 watertight apartments, most of them 40 feet apart With these it is said, she will carry sufficient fuel for a voyage to Calcutta or Australia and back to England, and avoid the delay of lengthened stoppages and coaling which other steamers are subject to. It is expected that she will accomplish the voyage between England and India by the Cape, in 30 or 33 days less time than the distance is at present done by sea-going steamers. She is to be completed in 18 months.

A writer, in a literary journal of Paris, says that bees greatly improve the fructification of fruit trees. Orchards in which several hives are kept always produce more fruit than others in which there are none. In the provinces of the Rhine the fruits are more abundant and finer than in any other part of Germany, and there it is the custom to keep large quantities of bees. Plants, which bees visit, thrive best in the neighborhood of hives.

New Invention.—Mr. F. H. Green of Baltimore has invented a new waggon axle and box. The invention consists in an entirely new mode of constructing the arms of carriage axles, which not only reduces their cost, but increases their durability, we might say ad infinitum. The model adopted is that which is well and favorably known as the 'English Mail Cerch Patent," the safest and best contrivance for screwing the wheels to the axles perhaps ever designed; but is expensive and troublesome. In Mr. Green's axle all the advantages of this celebrated patent are retained, but so combined and arranged as to afford the greatest desirable facility for oiling, cleaning, examnat on or repairs. Mr Green forms his axle by plain hammering it to a taper octagonal or eight square form, and this he covers with a cast metal sleet, the surface of which is finely turned to the proper form, and is secured by a nut on the point of the arm, which nut is in no way affected by the motion of the axle, and therefore can never be removed till required. Now it will readily be perceived that when these sleeves are worn on one side, all we have to do is simply to turn them on the axle, and thus present a new and unworn face, this we may do three or four times, and when totally worn out, we can take a fresh start with a new cover, and do all this without ever removing the axle from the carriage.

The Bible in the Roman States.—Two English gentlemen who were travelling through Italy—one of them an invalid—were arrested on the frontier town of Pieve on the 31st of January. The extent of their crimes was that of having bibles in Italian, their names being written in the front page as is the English custom, which proves that they were for their own private use. They were immediately examined by the Bishop, and desired to account for their having these Bible. They replied that being Protestants, and unfamiliar with the Italian version, they had chosen it for their own private reading. They were then both conducted in the midst of gensdarmes, to the criminal prisons, where they were searched, being left nothing but their watches, handkerchiefs, gloves, and some money in silver. Their papers and covers of letters were passed over the fire in order to ascertain if there were any chemical writing on them. These gentlemen underwent an examination of two hours by the governor, and were afterward confined in the kitchen of the prison where they were obliged to pass the night. The next morning they were taken by force by the gensdarmes, to Perguia, where they were confined in the criminal prison amongst robbers and assassins their watches being taken from them and their very shoes were searched. They were then separately confined, in order to preclude the possibility of speaking to each other.—After being thus treated, they were set at liberty, but their Bibles were not restored to them. Thus are the English treated by the Romish priests, whilst in England these are striving for the mastery.—Italian Paper.

Progress of the Crystal Palace at Sydenham.—The Crystal Palace Company are progressing bravely with their great work. The have voted the raising of £250,000 more money, making £1,000,000 in all. They are their space last at 7s 6d. to 6ds a square foot, in one instance £500 has been given for a plot of space 8 feet by 8, and they have given to the idea of erecting a monster organ, of which we some weeks since showed the absurdity. Seven Industrial Courts are to be erected for the use of exhibitors; and the art and natural history works are proceeding with great rapidity and beauty. The water towers at each end of the building have not been found adequate for working the fountains, but £2,000 will soon set that right not soon enough, however, to exhibit jets d'eaux at the end of May, when the building is positively to be opened. The public is now excluded, and having a handsome balance at the bankers, the Crystal Palace Company may carry on their labours with dauntless energy. We wish we could say as much of the West End Crystal Palace Railway Company. A meeting of the shareholders the other day showed the arrangement for money raising to be tolerably advanced; but the works have made little progress. Facility of access is an essential element in the success of the undertaking.—London Literary Gazette.

Great Riot at Boston.

The Telegraph of last night states that a serious riot had occurred at Boston on Sunday last. It appears that Mr. Orr alias Angel Gabriel, preached in the open air, when the police interfered, and his friends carried him to Chelsea, where he again commenced preaching, when a riot ensued and several were injured. It was finally suppressed by the firemen and polic. The riot was resumed in the evening and severe fighting between Americans and Irish, the latter were driven from the ground and an attack was then made on the Catholic church. Windows were broken and curtains torn. Sheriff Read read the riot Act, and the military were called out, when the rioters dispersed—several parties more or less injured.

The Delights of Benevolence.—If there be a pleasure upon earth which angels cannot enjoy, and which they might also envy man the possession of, it is the power of relieving distress; if there be a pain which devils might pity man for enduring, it is the deathbed reflection that we have possessed the power o doing good, but that we have abused and perverted it to purposes of ill.—Bacon.

Quebec Clipper Ships—Extraordinary Passage of the Boomerang to Australia.—The fastest sailing upon record has been accomplished by one of our Quebec built ships the Boomerang, built by Mr Sir John, of St. Roche, which was launched last spring in our waters. Mr. P. O. Doud, of Quebec, and now of Melbourne, Australia, writes:—This splendid vessel, the Boomerang, 1823 tons, commanded by Captain Flyn, young Irishman, formerly of the bark Recovery, of Dublin has made the quickest passage on record, beating the celebrated Marco Polo 4 days, (the latter vessel is ashore at the Heads). The Boomerang made the passage from port to port in 70 days, frequently running 18 knots an hour, and accomplished the extraordinary run of 400 miles a day, for several days. I have been on board with a number of Quebecers and it is needless to say how proud we all felt to see one of our vessels beat everything afloat. Captain Flyn requests me to write, to say to the builder, Mr. St. John, that a better sea boat does not float, and to express to him the gratification he feels at commanding so splendid a vessel. The Boomerang is the whole talk of our city since she has eclipsed the renowned Marco Polo. Quebec clippers have made themselves known now all ove the world. The George Wilkinson which left your port in July last, has not yet arrived nor any other vessel from Quebec.

Our Iron Mines.

From the Kingston News.

In Canada, the means of obtaining a native supply of iron, it is well known, are abundant and one of the localities where the best and most abundant of such supplies may be had, not above 60 miles from the City of Kingston In 1839 the Government of Upper Canada appointed a commission to examine the Marmora Iron Works, with a view of ascertaining by actual observation whether or not the capabilities of the mines were such as would justify the Government in transferring the Penetentury labor from King-ton to Marmora. The Commissioners, in the performance of their duty, not only directed their attention to the productiveness of the mines and the ore but also to the natural resources of the locality, in affor ing means for carrying the work into successful operation, such as abundance of wood for charcoal, fuel and other purposes, the vicinity of hydraulic powers, with facilities for transporting the former to the works. They also extended their notice to whatever natural productions the mines afforded, that happened to fall under their observation for the purpose of making the comprehensiveness of their report commensurate with the importance of the object the Government has in view.

The Commissioners reported that in the vicinity of the establishment, and for miles around it, they found beds of ore, seemingly of the best quality, comparatively free from sulphur and highly magnetic, and in inexhaustable quantities. About four miles up Crow Lake they came upon a mountain; on the lake shore, entirely composed of iron ore. The Commissioners in their report, expressed their most unbounded astonishment at such an extraordinary mass of ore in one spot, never having had a conception of the existence of such a phenomenon.

They also reported that numerous mines exist in a more inland direction, but equally abundant with those on the lake shore, and the ore of a similar purity. They also found in the seams of the ore beds red and yellow ochre—the latter in large quantities—and were informed that the red ochre had formerly been made an article of considerable traffic. They also found heavy beds of pure white marble and others of black and variegated marble, quarries of superior lithographic stone, slate quarries, marl beds and other mineral objects. As the great cman appointed for this commission had no possible motive for overcharging their statements, their representations must be received as being substantially correct in every particular. We therefore find that within a few miles of the Bay of Quinte there exist mines of iron unlike entirely abundant, not only to supply the consumption of all Canada, but of the whole continent of North America, if means commensurate with their capabilities were put in force to meet the demand.—In the immediate locality all the means and appliances for carrying on the work to an indefinite extent are found in great plenty—wood, water, moulding sand &c., &c.,—and the works themselves, erected at an enormous expense by the Company who first brought the mines into notice, are complete in every respect, as far as they go, but fall infinitely short when compared with the inexhaustable supplies which surround them in every direction, fitted for their operations. The great obstacle in the way of bringing these works into profitable operation is, no doubt, the proper conveyance for the metal from the establishment to the waters of the Bay of Quinte, or rather to the navigable waters of the River Trent, which a railroad or canal of some 18 miles would supply. This obstacle was the direct cause of the failure of the enterprise which the first Company entered into with so much spirit and energy, and in which they sank a capital which had they at first removed this grand hindrance to their exertions, would have insured them, in all probability, a rapid and rich return.

It is certainly a matter of astonishment that amongst all the projects afloat for the improvement of the country, that the Marmora Iron Works should have been, seemingly, so completely forgotten, particularly at the present time when the demand for the article which they could so amply, and, comparatively so cheaply supply, is in so unprecedently great. In 1852 the best imported pig iron was laid down in Kingston at 90s per ton; this spring it cannot be bought under 100s, and even at the latter price it is eagerly sought for and large sales are effected every day at that rate. We are credibly informed that one house has realised the large sum of £22,000 by its importations of this article alone.

Grand Solar Eclipse.

From the Montreal Commercial Advertiser

On the 28th of this month, one of those remarkable eclipses will occur, which are rarely seen. It will be visible throughout all North America, the North-eastern parts of Asia, and a portion of the extreme north west of Europe. The moon will pass over the sun's centre, and as her disc will be so situated (with regard to her distance from the earth and sun), as not at any time or space during this interesting phenomenon to cover the sun entirely, it will of course be annular. This annular appearance will be centrally visible to all persons residing between a point on the earth's surface situated in latitude 43.14 North and longitude 73.53 West of Greenwich and another point in latitude 41 10 North, and longitude 61.35 West. That is it will be visible as a central annular eclipse from about the central portion of the County of Renfrew, in Canada West, in a straight line crossing the States of New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and extending into the Atlantic Ocean to a point about 600 miles nearly due east of the city of Philadelphia. On tracing this line on the map, it will be found that it passes over, in Canada West Beauzium, Perth, (nearly) Smith's Falls, Prankville, Addison, Elton, Marshall, and Prescott, (nearly); in the State of New York, over Farristown, (nearly) Ogdensburg, Black Lane, Depau, Edwardsville, Canton (nearly) Cranberry Lake, Long Lake, Lake George, Whitehall; in the State of Vermont, Lake Austin, Danby, Peru, Jamaica Wardsboro', New Fane, Battle ord' (nearly); in New Hampshire, Chesterfield, Swanzy Jeffrey; Keene (nearly), Sharon, Brooklyn, Hollis, Nasau, Pelham; and in the State of Massachusetts, over Lowell (nearly) Andover, Topsfield, Wenham, Manchester, and East Point at the entrance of Massachusetts Bay. The annular phenomenon will be visible for nearly fifty miles on each side of the central line, consequently the eclipse will be seen in its ring-like aspect, along the valley of the St. Lawrence, at nearly all places between Kingston and Cornwall, and at Bytown Napierville, Burrits Rapids, Merrickville, Jones' Falls, Kemptons Kingston Mills &c. Its aspect at Montreal will not be annular, nor are we to the eastward of the central track of the eclipse; but it will be nearly total. It will commence here at ten minutes past four o'clock in the afternoon, and end at thirty-three minutes past six. Of the twelve digits comprising the whole of the sun's disc, eleven digits and one tenth will be obscured, and the greatest obscuration will take place at twenty-six minutes past five o'clock, P. M., It will be the largest solar eclipse visible at Montreal until the 7th of August 1869.

The first time this great eclipse was seen was on the 2nd July 1313 and since then it has returned thirty-one times. In this century it occurred in April, 1800; in May 1818; in May, 1836, and will return again June 5th 1862, and in 1890. Its last occurrence will take place on the 17th August, 2593, being 739 years from this date. The following date will exhibit the times of its beginning and end in several places of note in British America, viz:—

	Begins.	Ends.
Toronto	3 h. 45 m.; P. M.	6 h. 15 m., P. M.
Victoria	3 h. 54 m., P. M.	9 h. 23 m., P. M.
Kingston	3 h. 57 m. P. M.	6 h. 21 m., P. M.
Montreal	4 h. 10 m., P. M.	5 h. 43 m., P. M.
Three Rivers	4 h. 14 m., P. M.	6 h. 48 m., P. M.
Fredericton	4 h. 45 m., P. M.	7 h. 18 m., P. M.
Halifax	4 h. 59 m., P. M.	7 h. 18 m., P. M.
Quebec	4 h. 19 m., P. M.	6 h. 44 m., P. M.
St. Johns	6 h. 3 m., P. M.	8 h. 39 m., P. M.

At this last mentioned city the sun will set eclipsed.

Meeting of Parliament.

Parliament is at length called for the despatch of business on the 13th of June! The Globe says:—By special telegraph from Quebec we learn that a Gazette extraordinary issued yesterday, containing a proclamation summoning Parliament to meet at Quebec on the 13th June—precisely twenty-four hours before the expiration of the statutory limit! And when we say statutory limit, we mean the letter of the statute, but certainly not its spirit. The intent on undoubtedly was that Parliament should convene annually within one year from its last assembling; but temporising Ministers have introduced the practise of shirking the annual meetings, and so contriving that they shall meet the representatives of the people but three times in a four years Parliament. Thus the Session of 1851 began on the 20th May; that of 1852 began on the 19th August—or fifteen months apart! At this rate we can have but three sessions in any Parliament, and this Parliament but two. The system is utterly wrong; it gives uncertainty to every legislative proceeding—retards the public business—prevents all control over the public finances—and interferes sadly with the public arrangements of the members. It has but one apology—one motive—it enables a corrupt shirking Ministry to push off the day of reckoning; it enables them to meet their opponents at a season when the country is entirely occupied with business—when no man has time to read—and when the summer's lassitude gives a feeble tone to the attacks of the opposition.

☞ The minister who lost the thread of discourse, has obtained a fresh skein.

Reciprocity.—We notice that several of the American journals, of different hues deride the mission of Messrs. Ross and Tache to Washington as labor lost. Reciprocity stands no chance the present session of congress. Nebraska, the Gadsden treaty, and Spiritual Rappings give both houses quite enough to do; and the administration is in two tight a fix, domestically, to trouble itself withoutside affairs. The Canadian Ambassaders will dine with Mr. Crampton, shake hands with the President and come back again.—[North American.

Within little more than three months the Hall of the Legislature and its prepared though temporary substitute have both fallen victims to the flames, and the Government which the country has branded is again houseless, and vagabond, seeking a roof to shelter and a refuge from distress. Lord Elgin can say what no other governor could say, that in his seven years of rule the Houses of Parliament have been three times burnt down. It does look as if the very elements declared that the seat of the united legislature should not be in Lower Canada.

On Thursday night the building fitted up as a temporary House of Parliament was burned to the ground, and our Legislature is again houseless. Where they are to meet is now the question; and as Parliament must meet somewhere on or before 18th June, and as 40 days notice of the time and place of meeting must, be given the notice must have issued yesterday. How of course we could at once accommodate them, but unless the government dare not leave Quebec, and so turn their back upon their French Canadian supporters. Under these circumstances, it is likely our Collective Wisdom will be cramped into some ill ventilated and over-heated Black Hole, as the best means of forcing an early prorogation and a respite for the condemned criminals.

The particulars of the fire, as known here, are as yet very meagre. They are as follows:

Quebec, May 3 11 p. m.

The Parliament buildings totally destroyed by fire! This evening by ten o'clock, by some most unaccountable fatality, the handsome and capacious edifice situated on Cote Coton, built as a church for the Soeurs de Charite, which was nearly fitted up temporarily at an immense expense for the meetings of Parliament, is at this moment in one sheet of flames.

The cupola at one end, and the handsome spire at the other, are wreathed in smoke, and the flames are rushing out over Mr. Dean's house on the one side, and bursting forth through the lofty gothic windows all round.

The firemen are adjusting their hose.—The Commandant is at the scene of destruction, and thousands of people are looking on, and doing what they can in the way of saving property but the building is doomed.

Only to-day a carpet for this building was bought and paid for, but no doubt it is covered by insurance.

All particulars will be given as they become known.—British Canadian.

"Abscond".—This is a word which appears to have lost its primary meaning of concealment, apart from that of escape.—Horace Walpole, however, uses it in the former sense: "Virette absconds, and has sent Mde. Hocquigny word that he shall abscond till he can find a proper opportunity of fighting him.—From Notes and Queries.

The Finest Specimen of a Fat Cow that has been produced in Huron, and perhaps in Canada, was brought into town yesterday, by James Dickson, Esq. of Tuckersmith. Mr Dickson purchased it as a young animal, from David Christie, Esq. M. P. P. some three years ago, and after carrying its purposes with her in breeding, has certainly done her great justice in the fattening. She girths seven feet four inches, weighs about six cwt. hundred pounds, and was sold to Mr. Potts, Butcher in Goderich for 100 dollars!—Can you beat it.—Goderich Signal.

☞ A gentleman coming into the room of the late Dr. Easton, told him that Mr. Vowel was dead. "What," said he, "Vowel dead, thank God it was neither a nor i."

A Valuable Table.—The following table will be found very valuable to many of our readers:

A box 24 inches by 16 inches square, and 28 inches deep, will contain a barrel, (5 bushels.)

A box 24 inches by 16 inches square, and 14 inches deep, will contain half a barrel.

A box 26 inches by 15-3 inches square and eight inches deep will contain one bushel.

A box 12 inches by 11-2 inches square, and 18 inches deep will contain half a bushel.

A box 8 inches by 8 4 inches square, and 8 inches deep will contain one peck.

A box 8 inches by 8-4 inches square and 4 2 inches deep will contain one gallon.

A box 7 inches by 8 inches square, and 5 8 inches deep, will contain a half gallon.

A box 4 inches by 4 inches square, and 4-1 inches deep, will contain one quart.

London Times.

LONDON, FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1854.

THE WAR.

We are frequently asked what news from the seat of war, and whether such and such a report be true or not, each day as it were gives birth to rumors only to be dissipated, the next we read in one mail that the Czar has the mouth of the Danube filled with obstructions, and the next brings a contradiction. It is, however, so far satisfactory to observe that the same difficulty of getting at the truth exists in the old country as here. This article entitled the war corroborates our statement:

"We have again to state that there is no new intelligence worthy of the name. Again we are forced to encumber our columns with a number of contradictory and obviously false reports; and again we have to call attention to disgraceful feats of stock jobbing. The telegraphic accounts of victories and defeats of Turks and Russians have become so inextricably confused that not even a fraction can be made out of them by bulls or bears; so, in the Times of yesterday a new line was taken. In the evening the public mind was carefully prepared for a boating operation by an article, which we give at length elsewhere as a Capel Court curiosity. In this the intrigues of Prussia during several months last past were laid open, and then, in the course of the day, a second edition was published announcing, as if from Berlin, that the Russian party had triumphed, and that the Chevalier Bunsen had been recalled from London. A panic immediately seized the stock market, and consols fell nearly two per cent, below the price of Monday. The bears, no doubt, did a safe business, and after "change hours' yesterday evening Lord Clarendon declared in the house of Lords that the news of the Times was not known to him or the Chevalier, but the Times of this morning repeats its assertion."

That this uncertainty is not at all palatable in England, The resolutions passed both at London and Stafford attest.

"The support that ministers may count upon from a crowded meeting, held in the Music Hall, London, may be inferred from the following resolutions, presented to the noble foreign secretary, by a special deputation, viz:—

"1 That this meeting having considered the recently published 'secret and confidential' correspondence between England and Russia on the Turkish question, perceives with shame and regret that the British government has for at least twelve months past being cognisant of the Czar's designs upon the Turkish empire—risked our amity with France, by corresponding on so grave a question of European policy, to the exclusion of the French government, and permit the Czar to conclude the correspondence with the record of his satisfaction at the good understanding established between himself and the British Government as to the disposal of the Ottomad dominions.

"2 That this meeting views with alarm the project of garrosining Turkey with British troops and is of opinion that there can be no defence of Turkey; save by attacking the territory of Russia, and that by taking the defensive, both the British troops and the Ottoman empire are exposed to hazzard.

"His lordship rejoined that the country had come to a different conclusion, and was quite satisfied. Apropos to which rejoinder a monster torchlight meeting, held in Stafford, on last Monday evening, thus delivered its opinion on "the secret deplomacy and the war of ignorance."

"That the events which have occurred in the east, and the secret correspondence laid before parliament, proved that the English cabinet has intentionally betrayed the Turkish Empire to Russia, and that the prosecution of the present course jeopardises the safety and the very existance of the British empire.

"That the only hope of safety for England is to be found in directly stripping of authority the men who hold power, and impeaching them for their crimes.

"The foregoing resolutions having been unanimously adopted, it was further resolved.

"That a committee be appointed to draw up an address to the Queen, and a petition to parliament, founded on the foregoing resolution, and also an address to the Sultan, imploring him, for the common safety of himself and Europe, to rely on the patriots of his own people alone.

The people have been truly long sickening in this matter; but the limits of John Bull's forebearance, remote as they are may be reached at last. The 40th Regiment, which was under orders for colonial service, has been countermanded, and directed to proceed to the disturbed districts in England. This is the commencary upon the satisfaction of the people relied on by Lord Clarendon."

Admiral Dundas' policy, heretofore in the Black Sea, has been unaccountable, perhaps when another Sinope affair occurs he may send a steamer to ascertain whether the butchery be true, Omar Pasha has been urging the necessity of the advance of the allied troops, to sustain him in his present position. But we shall now take another point of view in which the Russian war is to be regarded by Canada. We refer our readers to an early edition of McCulloch's Dictionary of Commerce, which according to Blackwood is equally applicable to the present state of Russia. "Her nobles and great land owners hold their property burdened by the pressure of many mortgages, and they are utterly unable to bring their produce to market, or to raise their crops at all without the advances of European capitalists; these consist chiefly of a few English houses who have branch establishments at St. Petersburgh, Riga and Memel on the Baltic and Odessa on the Black Sea, The mode of operation is the following: about the month of October the collectors and traders from the interior visit these parts and receive advances on the produce and crops to be delivered by them ready for shipment at the opening of the navigation, and it is stated that engagements made between these parties and British capitalists have rarely been broken. This process of drawing advances goes on until May, by which month there are large stocks ready for shipment at all the large ports, the winter in many districts being the most favorable for their transport. The import trade is carried on in a similar manner by foreign capital. Long credit in many instances, extending to twelve months, being given to the factors in the interior." Mr. John Wilson the editor of the Economist, says upon the subject of the amount of the British capital thus embarked in Russia at the period when her armies crossed the Pruth. The most accurate calculations we have been able to make with the assertions of persons largely engaged in the trade, show that at that moment the British capital in Russia and advanced to Russian subjects was at least 7,000,000 including the sums for which houses in this country were under acceptances to Russia. We know our climate is not so severe as Russia and we shall now see whether we could not produce many of the articles hitherto supplied by Russia, and if so, we cannot see why British mercantile houses should not adopt the system hereafore pursued by them towards Russia, and let us have the benefit of the same advances. When the Grand Trunk Line is completed we shall possess an uninterrupted intercourse with Hal

EMPORIUM OF FASHIONS!

CASH SYSTEM

25 per cent. Cheaper than the Credit System.

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well, but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

His stock will be found to consist of the latest and best materials of Home and Foreign Manufacture, consisting in part of

WEST OF ENGLAND BROAD-CLOTHS

FRENCH GOODS,

SCOTCH TWEEDS,

and a splendid assortment of Silk, Satin and Fancy Vestings, Silk Handkerchiefs, Ties, Gloves of various materials and colors, Shirts, &c., which he is now prepared to sell and make up to order in the latest and most approved English, French or American Styles, to suit customers, at a very small advance on cost (for cash)

He has just received the latest fashions from Europe and America, and will continue to receive monthly the very latest styles. He earnestly invites his numerous customers and the public in general to give him a call as early as possible. His workmen will be, as usual, of the first class. The cutting will be done entirely by himself. Ladies' habits will receive his particular attention.

☞ Remember! 25 per cent. less than the Credit System.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will, and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalid-given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and sustenance to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to commend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. I. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreano, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. I was for years the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had used several hundred dollars in medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health. I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which nature sinks and life becomes a burthen.—Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business again, entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.
JOHNSON BURKE,
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body &c

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. Authors recommend the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of smoking, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sleeplessness, lassitude and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills, in every species and debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of health, which again invariably follows the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What antidotal appendages equal that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What paints can compare with the crimsoned colored blood casting its brilliant cosmetic hue through the transparent texture of the skin? What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? Let Dr. Halsey's wine supply the place of all cosmetics. The use of this excellent wine in a short time creates pure, rich blood which, coursing through the veins, penetrates the minutest fibres that verge towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy impurities and blotches to disappear, imparting a vivid, rosy color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rutgers street,

NEW YORK, July 7th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister from her youth had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest attended with a cough. About the age of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to commencing with your medicines she had not been able to get out of the house. Her countenance was greatly emaciated, yellow and sickly. Her face and neck was covered with large red pimples, every month increasing and her cough increasing. In fine, she lost every appearance of soon becoming an unhappy victim to consumption. At that time I procured for her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of recovery was an uncommonly good appetite; her face finally became smooth and her cheeks rosy. Her cough left her altogether. She is now strong and vig

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age: Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

If being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universaly adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster, That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures of tials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

SCHEDULE

Of Special Rates referred to in this By-Law.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophicleides, Sax horns, Trombones, Coupeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

Foreign Intelligence

Defences of St. Petersburg.

From the seaside St. Petersburg is protected by the fortress Cronstadt, which, lying on an island commands the narrow channels through which large vessels have to approach the capital. At the back of the Island, towards the coast of Finland, there was also a channel through which vessels of the size of the size of a sloop could pass, but this was blocked up at the beginning of the century by means of blocks and huge piles of stone, and a week since large square stones were sunk until the passage was completely impassable. An attack on Cronstadt is therefore only possible from the narrow channel, which in its various twistings and turnings is commanded, for a distance of nearly four English miles by the fort in front of the Island. All signs such as buoys, posts &c., have been removed. Even if the vessels have the most experienced pilots on board, they will be obliged to move very slowly, and consequently a vessel advancing to the attack would be exposed for a whole hour to the fire of the Russian batteries some of which have Paixhan's guns of 130 pounds. If a single ship of the line is sunk the channel is so effectually closed that the others cannot advance. Cursory mention has been made of Professor Jacobi's invention for destroying vessels at sea, and the German writer now gives some details on the subject. Strong iron chests charged with powder and other combustible materials are sunk into the sea, and connected by means of wires with a galvanic battery outside. "Above the chests is more machinery, which on being touched by the keel of a passing vessel, causes two galvanized wires to come into contact, which produces an electric spark, and with it an explosion." A hundred submarine mines of this kind are said to have been sunk in the channel, leading to Cronstadt. Military men in St. Petersburg are divided in their opinions as to whether the fortifications of Cronstadt will be able to resist the heavy artillery of the ships. Four of the forts is formed of enormous granite stone s, the fifth is of logs. The greatest danger of Cronstadt is that these forts may be taken one after the other, as each of them will be exposed to the fire of a great number of vessels. After all, the greatest security for the place is the narrowness of the channel, which just at the entrance of the port behind Port Mentschikoff, will be commanded by two enormous floating batteries, formed of old ships of the line. It must depend on the state of the ice whether it will be possible to send the two divisions of the fleet which are still at Cronstadt to Sweaborg (Helsingfors) which is considered impregnable. Gen. Dehn, of the engineers, has been appointed Military Governor of Cronstadt, and Admiral Ricard, an old but energetic man commands the fleet.

Independent of these three squadrons, and of all the steam frigates or corvettes collected in the Mediterranean for the transport of the army of the East, all the naval stations have received important reinforcement in the West Indian Archipelago, in the Pacific Ocean, in the India-China Seas, and in all the quarters where the deep sea fishing is carried on.

The imperial navy possesses at the present moment, on all the seas, 36,000 sailors embarked.

Nelson in the Baltic—Dundas in Becois Bay.

Mr. Fergusson surgeon of the Elephant, in a letter in which the public may not be sufficiently acquainted, thus describes Nelson's personal exertions.

"At the battle of Copenhagen he writes, I was among the companions of the hero. The attempt was arduous in the extreme; no common mind would have dared to conceive it; but it suited the exalted enterprise of Lord Nelson; as his was the invigorating spirit of the council that planned the attack, so in the execution he only could have commanded success. During the interval that preceded the battle, I could only silently admire when I saw the first man in all the world spend the hours of the day and night in boats, amid floating ice and in the severest weather: wonder when the light showed me a path marked by buoys which had been trackless the preceding evening, and this, be it remembered when Lord Nelson was in miserable health, suffering from wounds, and an arm lost—with but one eye, and that in a state of extreme weakness."

Captain Scobell, R. N., M., lately stated at a public meeting, that during the last war the Russian ports in the Baltic were so completely blockaded by the English squadron, that not a vessel could come out during that time.

It would appear that Admiral Nachimoff does not feel himself to be so completely shut up in Sebastopol, if any reliance may be placed in the accounts of his visit to the Circassian coast. "The fleet is now close to the scene of operations," says the Examiner, and we hope that is sufficient guarantee that all past neglect will be gloriously redeemed."

But we cannot discover any extenuation for the neglect that allowed the carnage of Sinope, when the latest and most accurate account of the Black Sea show that even extraordinary nautical perils cannot be alleged as a reason for not keeping the sea during the winter.

Admiral Smyth, in his admirable account of the Mediterranean Sea, including also a survey of the Euxine, uses these terms.

"The streams of the great rivers produce stormy currents, particularly in the beginning of summer, when they are increased by the melting of the snows, and when stormy winds act against these flowings, a chopping sea is produced dangerous to small craft in foggy weather. I dependently however of such chances, the Black Sea is free from danger, having with a trivial exception or two, neither islands, rocks, nor reefs in the general track of navigation, and, almost everywhere there is excellent anchorage affording good ording for the largest ships."

The length of the excavation for the Sault Ste. Maria Ship Canal, from water to water, is 4,350 feet, to which is added the pier below, 308 feet long, and the pier and the bank at the head 1000 feet long, making the entire length the work 5,658 feet—378 more than a mile. The fall of the St. Mary's is 18 feet, and the canal is to be 12 deep. The sides are to be cinclined from the canal bottom to the slope of 1½ to 1, and are to be walled with stone where there is a natural wall, so that they will present a rock surface throughout. On the canal bottom the width is 64 feet; consequently it is 100 feet wide. The walled banks are to rise five feet above the water line, making breadth of canal at towpath 112 feet. There is a basin 400 feet long, 40 feet wider than the canal placed at about 1,000 feet above the locks. There are to be two locks each 350 feet in length, between the gates, made with walls 10 feet thick at the base,and strengthened with stone buttresses on the outside 12 feet apart. These will contain 25,000 cubic yards of masonry, of which probably 13,000 yards must be brought in a vessel from a distance. Not less than 12,000 tons of it come in schooners from Malden, near Detroit. The locks are of sufficient capacity to admit the largest steamers now afloat upon the lakes. The work will probably be completed during the summer.

Her M. S. Furious fired upon at Odessa.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 13.—The Banshee came in on Monday night from Beljik, near Kavarna, the latest station of the British fleet in the Black Sea. Her Majesty's ship Furious had been detached from the fleet at Beljik, and sent to Odessa, to take off the British Consul and 75 resident of Odessa who are British subjects. The Furious arrived off Odessa at 6 o'clock on the morning of the 8th instant, and stopped at the distance of a mile and a half from the port. A boat was manned and placed under the command of Mr. Alexander, the third lieutenant of the Furious with whom was Mr. Parsons, naval cadet. The boat hoisted a flag of truce, and entering the port in spite of the signals made to warn her off, Mr. Alexander gallantly determined to execute his commission, ran her on shore, where he was received by a crowd of Russian soldiers, and other functionaries, who effectually resisted his landing. A dispute ensued and the boat lay on the beach a considerable time. During this delay several captains of British merchantmen, now prisoners in Odessa, made their way through the crowd, with the intention of speaking to the officer in command of the boat. They were rudely pulled back by the soldiery, who conducted them into the town. Finding at length that all his endevvours to obtain an interview with the officer in command of the place were unavailing, Mr. Alexander gave orders to pull back to the ship. But he had scarcely quitted the port, when, it appears, the commandant of Odessa, having been apprised of the arrival of a British boats crew with a flag of truce, orders were sent down to the harbor, and the strand batteries opened upon the boat and the ship, without doing harm to either though they threw shot and shells. A frigate, too, came out of the harbor, and chassed the boat, though without success, for Mr. Alexander and his crew got safely on board the Furious which then tried to get near the Russian vessel. The Russian who was unable to return to Odessa, ran away and the Furious ran after her until the Russian took refuge in Oleron, when she went into shallow water, where the Furious could not follow her. The vessel returned to Beljik, and reported the affair to Admiral Dundas. She joined the fleet on Sunday morning and in the afternoon came the Banshee, with the official news of the declaration of war. The fleet received this intelligence with the greatest enthusiasm. The sailors manned the yards, and gave three cheers for Old England and the Queen. The Banshee, which returned to the Bosphorus left the fleet at Beljik on Monday. The fleet itself was under orders to sail for Odessa early in the morning of Tuesday the 11th inst, and by this time the Russians at Odessa will have been called to account for their gross violation of the rules of war among civilised nations.

State of Spain.

"To give you an idea says a private letter in the Times, "of the state of Spain and its people, I may mention an incident which took place on the 30th, while the Guard was mounting before the Palace of the Queen Mother. A cart happening to be passing before the house of the British Ambassador, which is next to that of the Queen, and the leading mule very naturally was going straight on, the driver being behind, when he was stopped by a bugler who thrust a bayonet into the animal's nose. The driver, who had been stopped by a person speaking to him ran on at once, and, without making the slightest resistance, and while in the act of turning the cart into the Plaza behind the guard, a young officer—one of that unfledged crew known in Spain as officialitos—happy, as most people of the kind are, to wet their swords with the blood of their countrymen, walked up to the driver of the cart and cut him over the head, wounding him severely in two places. The English Minister, Lord Howden, who happened to be looking at the Guard mounting, probably from old military souvenirs, immediately descended to the street humanely took the wounded man bleeding profusely as he was, into his house, and then sent him with a secretary to the Captain General, stating that he was ready to give his evidence if called upon, as his Lordship witnessed the whole of the brutal and unprovoked outrage, and that if the driver was not taken care of by the Spanish Government he (Lord Howden) would himself take care of him."

The War.

From the Daily News.

The telegraphic reports from Odessa are meagre and unsatisfactory. This was to be expected. They are conveyed along two lines—one Russian, the other Austrian. The Austrian authorities will, of course, take care that the despatches—passing—Odessa and through the Vienna telegraph is known—are in capacity to repeat any message in strict accordance with fact. Nor are matters likely to be mended by the subsequent transmission of news thus manipulated along a line under the supervision and control of the Prussian Minister of Police. A few days must probably elapse before accurate and full details can reach us. The fundamental fact, however, that bombarding operations have been commenced at Odessa, there appears no good reason to doubt. The supplementary intelligence received yesterday intelligence received yesterday intimating that little injury had been done to the houses of the townspeople, is also probable. The object of the Admirals was to retort the outrage perpetrated by the mercenary bravos of the Emperor of Russia to our flag of truce; they had no quarrel with the citizens, no motive to seek to injure the town. On the contrary, sound policy would dictate the drawing of a marked line of demarcation between their conduct towards a piratical garrison, who had shown themselves regardless of the laws of civilized war, and the peaceable unoffending citizens. It is highly probable that the attack has been confined to the forts and other defensive outworks, and that what damage, if any, has been done to the town, has been the consequence of inevitable accident.

Ultimately Odessa must be taken by the Allies, as a "material guarantee," for the compliance of the Czar with such terms of peace as ought alone to be offered to him. But meanwhile if the defensive outworks are destroyed, and the place thus rendered untenable the Russian garrison will have to be withdrawn in no long time, and possession of the town be gained without any irritating collision between the inhabitants and the assailing force. In the meantime it is sufficient that all communication by sea between Odessa and the Russian troops in the Dobrudscha has been cut off. The garrison at Odessa will have their hands full, and no leisure to devise means of overland transit to the Lower Danube. With the main force of the allied squadron concentrated before Odessa, no vessel can run out of port without being captured. And the fleet at Sebastipol—valiant only when an inferior force at anchor has to be sunk by heavier metal, or when a little steamer of four guns has to be pursued by two frigates—will not look the superior force at Odessa in the face. During the last war, from the time the Russian troops crossed into the Dobrudscha till they reached Adrianople, they were victualled from the sea. Odessa is the chief granery to which the Russians in the Dobrudscha can look for adequate and permanent supplies of food. A little grain might be obtained from the ports on the Sea of Azoff, but a couple of steamers can effectually cerne them; and some remnants of provisions—squeezed from the all but exhausted provinces of Wallachia, Moldavia and Bessarabia—might be filtered across the Danube; but a few English and French war steamers on the river would dam up at once this tiny rivulet. In a few weeks or days the Russian troops in the Dobrudscha will have eaten up every thing in it like a flock of locusts. The allied fleets imprison them on two sides: the Turkish army with the advancing French and English auxiliaries, can do as much on the other two. The rats are in the trap; keep them there. Hunger will do its work to prepare them for the visitations of the fever which from the month of May onward, throughout the summer, suspends the dark pall of death over the isolated and melancholy region they now occupy.

Turkey and Russia.

The past history of these rival states presents more than one parallel passage like the following, extracted from Watkin's "Travels through Switzerland, Italy, the Greek Islands, to Constantinople, &c.," second edition, two vols. 8vo., 1749:—

"The Turks have been and indeed deserved to be praised for the manner in which they declared war against the Russians. They sent by Mr. Bulgakoff, her Imperial Majesty's minister at the Porte, to demand the restitution of Crimea, which had been extorted from them by the merciless despot of R——a (sic), when too much distressed by a rebellion in Egypt to protect it. On his return without an answer they put him in the Seven Towers and commenced hortilities. They hate the Russians; and to shew it the more, frequently call a Frank Moscovy. To the English they are more partial than to any other Christian nation, from a tradition that Mahomet was prevented by death, from converting our ancestors to his faith." HOUSE OF LORDS.

Friday, May 5.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF ODESSA CONFIRMED.

In reply to the Marquis of Clanricarde respecting the attack on Odessa, the Earl of Clarendon read the following telegraphic despatch received this morning, from the British Consul at Belgrade:—

Belgrade, May 4th, 7 50 p. m.

"Admiral Dundas announces, through Her Majesty's Consul at Varna, that a division of Steamboats of the combined squadron destroyed upon the 22nd April, the Imperial Mole, and the Russian ships at Odessa. The mole and quarantine and Foriegn ships, and the city itself had not been injured, great care having been taken with regard to private and neutral property.—The Pacha of Belgrade had stated yesterday that the great powder magazine had been entirely destroyed, and that the loss sustained by the allied fleet did not exceed 8 men killed and 18 wounded. I am informed that the fleets immediately after the attack upon Odessa, sailed towards Sebastopol. (Cheers.)

The Duke of Newcastle in answer to Lord Redesdale, stated that the Duke of Cambridge had acted according to instructions in proceeding from Paris to Vienna, and that immediately after having discharged the duty confided to him, he lost no time in proceeding on his way to the seat of war.

After a short discussion, introduced by the Marquis Claricarde, on the subject of the conveyance of Russian troops from the Circassian coast to Sebastopol, the House adjourned.

Property Sales.

The Sales of Town Lots in this place, took place on Monday and Tuesday last. The 10 water lots in front of the portion of the Indian Reservation sold last year, were not put up to sale, as it was understood they would be required by G. W. Railroad Company; and they were disposed of to said Company, at the valuation of £150 each. The remainder of the Lots, sold behind the Reservation alluded to, consisted of Park Lots, ranging in extent from 1½ to 4 acres, and running in a straight line each from the river; they sold at an average of £3 5s. per acre or £2,103, for the whole. The Lots comprising part of Mr. Vidal's property and situated on the London Road, at the eastern end of the Town, also realized good prices. These lots were sold on Monday.

On Tuesday came on the Sale of Lots belonging to the Hon. M. Cameron; and the price obtained for some portions of his property was astonishingly high. As a sample we may mention that a vacant space between Messrs. Clark's and Durand's, fronting on the river, was sold at £40 per foot, realizing the sum of £4,400, for a space 116 feet in front. The lots situated on Victoria street, the third from front street, brought from £80 to £110,—these Lots being 50 by 100 feet; the prices of course receding from those mentioned, as the situation became further removed from the river.

The whole value of Town property sold including one private sale, on the two days mentioned, must have amounted to about £15,000! evidently indicating that there is a general and well grounded expectation that Sarnia (we must have a more euphonious name for our city,) must be a great place before many years roll round.—[Lambton Observer.

Experiment of Blowing up ice in New Brunswick.

We extract the following description relative to this experiment from the Fredericton "Head Quarters," of which we have already published some particulars:—

An interesting experiment was exhibited here on Saturday for the benefit of all concerned.—The object was to show the application of electricity as a means of producing heat at any required distance, the effect of gunpowder under ice, and generally to gain useful information for the future in such cases where such knowledge was likely to be applicable. Twenty pounds of powder was placed in a tin vessel which could be conveniently screwed to a tube, 1 knows of tin and about four feet long.—Through the tube two insulated copper wires were forced, which were connected at their extremities by a slender wire of platinum, a piece of amadou or tinder was placed in contact with the platinum wire, and the tube screwed into the jar containing the powder. This jar was then dropped carefully into a hole cut in the ice in the river opposite the Province Building, and distant from Gaynor's landing about 80 yards: from the round hole a narrow fissure had been cut with a saw, in to which the tube of the jar was drawn, and left resting upon a shoulder of the upper end. The ice was 22 inches thick, clear and black, and over it there were 4 inches of half melted snow. The ends of the copper wires projecting from the tube were next connected with a couple of wires supported above the snow, and extending from the hole to the shore, and which were ready for connection with a galvanic battery on the wharf. This battery consisted of 20 of Grove's cells from the College and the Telegraph office, and was under the superintendance of Mr. S. Par. Dr. Robbs, who superintended the details of the arrangements, made the connection of the conducting wires with both sides of the battery, and in an instant the electricity having become heat, ignited the amadou, which again ignited the gunpowder, which immediately becoming gas heaved up the water and ice over an irregular area of at least 30 feet in diameter, to a height of nearly 60 feet. The spectacle was very striking, and completely satisfied the projector. The interest of the public in this novel and striking experiment was We have no numbers who crowded the banks until the [illegible] completed. There was a little delay at first, owing to the want of sufficient battery power, but it was amply made up for by the perfect success of the final trial in which the heat was employed primarily to ignite the amadou rather than the gunpowder itself as was originally intended.

Tempest in a Teapot.

Our Western neighbors of London, have been stirred up into a state of excitement, by the Grand Trunk amalgamation bugbear, which a certain gentleman in the direction of the Great Western Railway has already managed to make some capital with. A meeting of the inhabitants was held on Saturday evening last, to take the matter into consideration. The following is an extract from the reported proceedings:

Wm. Barker, Esq., thought the object of the meeting of the greatest importance to London. He quoted largely from the proposed articles of amalgamation.

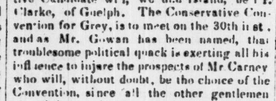
Hon G. J. Goodhue wished to know from whom the articles of amalgamation had been received?

The Mayor remarked that they had been sent to the London Town Council by the Directors of the Great Western Railway, for an expression of opinion, they, the directors, not wishing for the present to take any action in the matter.

Our London friends have been egregiously imposed upon by somebody. The Board of Directors of the Great Western Railway never sent the papers to London, "for an expression of opinion," and never decided on any step of the kind. The Mayor of London, being an ex-officio Director, and an extensive Contractor with the Great Western Company, displays a zeal for this, quite becoming, under the circumstances, but the inhabitants of London have not been appealed to by the Board and we are glad to see that they suspected the imposition themselves, as they broke up without doing anything. Which of the Directors could possibly have taken such an advantage of his friends' good nature?—[Hamilton Spectator.

Election Preparations.

We believe it is now pretty generally understood that the elections will take place in August or September, and in the meantime the work of preparation goes vigorously on. The movement on the part of the Conservatives, which the organs declared to be premature, is being closely imitated by the Reformers: nor are the emissaries of the Government Candidate for the East Riding of Northumberland is moving heaven and earth to secure his return for that important constituency. He does not appear, however, to have [illegible] at all his own way. The Grand Trunk [illegible] not take so well as was expected; and has a powerful opponent in the person of Stephen Young, who comes forward as an independent Reformer and anti-ministerialist. Promises of place and Patronage are, as usual freely made to induce the electors of Northumberland to vote for the Attorney General's brother; but all will not do. Mr. Young seems to carry everything before him; and wherever he has met the electors, the show of hands has been greatly in his favor. As for the West Riding, the Coburg Star says, one of the Candidates practices at the jump from two or three hours each day, in order to prepare himself to shake hands with the electors.



Haldimand seems anxious to get rid of its present representative, Mr. W. L. MacKenzie; and the two local journals, we perceive, express their determination of supporting a resident Candidate. Several gentlemen are said to be in the field, among them O. S. Phelps, Esq., of St. Catharine's, a gentleman of whom we know nothing of politically, but who has a large interest in the county. The Brant Herald sneers at the pretensions put forward by Mr. Phelps, and while indulging in the vulgar sneer, ventures the opinion that his chance against little Mr is is "ridiculously small." The sneer comes with an exceeding ill grace from the Herald, since it is apparently the mere prompting of jealousy, dictated by a less successful rival in business. The Herald will know to whom we allude.

In Wellington and Grey, candidates are as plentiful as blackberries in Autumn. A Reform Convention is spoken of to determine on a candidate for the North Riding of the first named County, but it seems Mr. Allen of Elora, is anxious to steal a march on his political friends, and a requisition, calling upon him to allow himself to be put in nomination, has been hawked about, which has given offence to the great body of electors. Messrs. Notman and Spence, of Dundas, have been named as likely to be brought forward: the Conservative Candidate will, we understand, be Mr. Clarke, of Guelph. The Conservative Convention for Grey, is to meet on the 30th inst., and as Mr. Gowan has been named, that troublesome political quack is exerting all his influence to injure the prospects of Mr Carney who will, without doubt, be the choice of the Convention, since all the other gentlemen named have refused to stand. Poor Gowan has not the shadow of a chance in Grey, nor do we think that his pretended support of the nondescript Rankin will have much effect.—[Ib.

THE LAKE OF ZURICH.—The Swiss journals give the following details relative to the discoveries recently made in consequence of the extraordinary fall in the waters of the lake of Zurich:

"About one hundred feet from the right bank of the lake, opposite the village of Meilen, there have been found several rows of piles formed of trunks of trees. The piles are about a foot apart, with an interval of sixteen feet between the rows. Those piles support enormous beams, which form a very large area. Between the piles there have been found the skeletons of animals which are no longer to be found in Switzerland, but no trace of any domestic animals. On removing the mud there have been found an immense number of heads of arrows and spears made of stone, carefully cut, and very pointed; poinards made of flint, with bone handles; a battle-axe in stone, clay vases, evidently formed by the hand with out the aid of any instrument, and afterwards baked in an oven; and several other articles baked in clay. A human skull has been also found. These remains, which are considered to have belonged to the ancient Celts, are under examination by a commission of antiquarians."

A STATEMENT NOT MEANT TO BE PROVED.—The late Sir James Allan Park interrupted a learned counsel who was dealing forth common place and self evident propositions with great fluency, with "It needs no ghost from the grave to tell us that sir." "I don't intend to call one, my Lord," was the reply.

T. C. Dixon, M. P. P.

John Scatcherd, Esq.

Messrs. Holmes, Strathy, Styles, Moor, Carling, Balkwell, Alexander; Robson, Barker,

The minutes of last meeting were read and signed.

Resolved that the resolutions passed at the forgoing meeting appointing W. W. Street, Esq., as Treasurer of the local committee be rescinded, as the number of members of which the committee should be composed had been previously filled up and that Mr. Strathy be now appointed treasurer.

Resolved that the portion of the ground reported upon yesterday and adopted by the committee, be as follows: commencing two chains from the Macadamized Road at the front angle of the picket fence then running north parallel with the road before mentioned, across the lake then entirely along the north shore of the lake then southerly to a point four chains east of the north east angle of the picket fence and then west to the north west angle of the picket fence at the discretion of the committee, but not to include more than twenty acres exclusive of the lake.

Resolved that a building committee be now appointed to superintend the fencing of the ground, and the erection of the necessary buildings and that Messrs. Holmes, Barker, and Carling be such committee, and that they have power to employ an architect and other such assistance as to them may seem necessary, and that the work be let out by contract to the lowest bidder on the principle adopted last year at Hamilton, that principle is by paying so much per thousand feet for the lumber used the contractor takes the lumber away and converting it as he pleases, leaving the ground in the same condition as he found it, filling up the holes, &c.

Resolved that these buildings be erected the first to comprise a space of not more than 3,000 square feet, to be called the floral hall, the other two not to include a space of over 2000 square feet each, to be called the manufacturers hall and the mechanics hall. That the floral hall shall contain flowers, fruits, lad

TOWN OF LONDON.

BY-LAW, authorising the Town Council of the Town of London, to raise the sum of Fifty Thousand Pounds, and interest to be applied in taking Stock in the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, and to raise the same on the credit of the Consolidated Municipal Loan Fund of Upper Canada.

Whereas, By an act of the Parliament of this Province, passed in the sixteenth year of the reign of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, entituled, "An Act to consolidate a Municipal Loan Fund for Upper Canada, it is amongst other things enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Corporation of any Incorporated Town to authorise any sum of money to be raised on the credit of the said Consolidated Municipal Loan Fund, and to appropriate such sum to assist in the making, constructing or completion of any Railroad within or without the Municipality, but the making of such construction thereof will benefit the inhabitants of such town, and by such by-law to declare the purposes for which the sum so to be raised shall be applied, and to make such other provisions as may be necessary to ensure the due application of such money, and the attainment of the objects contemplated by such By-Law.

And whereas, a Company has been incorporated under the name and style of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, and whereas the making, construction and completion of the said Railroad will greatly benefit the inhabitants of the town of London, and it is expedient to raise the sum of fifty thousand pounds on the credit of the said Consolidated Municipal Loan Fund of Upper Canada for the term of thirty years for the purpose of enabling the town Council of the said London to assist in the making and completion of the London and Port Stanley Railway and now holding on behalf of the Municipality Shares in the said, the London Railway Company.

Therefore be it enacted by the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of London, assembled under the authority of the Municipal Council of the Upper Canada Municipal Loan Fund Act, and now it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same

STEWART'S EMPORIUM OF FASHIONS!

CASH SYSTEM

25 per cent. Cheaper than the Credit System.

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

His stock will be found to consist of the latest and best materials of Home and Foreign Manufacture, consisting in part of

WEST OF ENGLAND BROAD-CLOTHS

FRENCH CLOTHS,

SCOTCH TWEEDS,

and a splendid assortment of Silk, Satin and Fancy Vestings, Silk Handkerchiefs, Ties, Gloves of various materials and colors, Shirts, &c., which he is now prepared to sell and make up to order in the latest and most approved English, French or American Styles, to suit customers, at a very small advance on cost (for cash.)

He has just received the latest fashions from Europe and America, and will continue to receive monthly the very latest styles. He earnestly invites his numerous customers and the public in general to give him a call as early as possible. His workmen will be, as usual, of the first class. The cutting will be done entirely by himself. Ladies' habits will receive his particular attention.

☞ Remember! 25 per cent. less than the Credit System.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will, and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of

Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the CONSTITUTION.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to commend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. I. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilson, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreseo, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY.—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1853 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep the house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health, I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which many sink and life becomes a burthen!—Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business again. I entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.,
JOHNSON BURKE,
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body, &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. And therefore delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease leaves the constitution. These diseases are often characterized by a sense of sinking, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, lassitude and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills, in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and been specially cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of health, which is invariably followed by the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What artificial appendages equal that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What paints can compare with the crimson colored blood coursing in brilliant cascade line through the transparent texture of the skin? What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? Let Dr. Halsey's wine supply the place of all cosmetics. The use of this excellent wine in a short time creates pure, rich blood which, coursing through the veins, penetrates to minute fibres that verge towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, imparting a vivid, rosy color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes.

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rutgers street,

New York, July 5th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY:—

My sister from her youth had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest, followed with a cough. About the age of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to commencing with your medicines she had not been able to get out of the house. Her countenance was pale and emaciated, yellow and sickly. Her face and neck was covered with hungry-like pimples, causing much annoyance and not enough encouraging. In fact her every appearance of mind becoming an unhappy victim to consumption. At the time I procured for her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of recovery was uncommonly good appetite, her face healthy in appearance, soon it was strong and vigorous and presents the most example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MAXWELL.

DR. HALSEY'S

GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are coated with pure Gum Arabic, an important invention, for which Dr. Halsey has received the only Patent ever granted on Pills by the Government of the United States.

A. M'DONALD, Esq.	W. HENDERSON, Esq.
J. H. PHILLIPS, Esq.	P. COOPER, Esq.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perfect safety to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d

PROPOSED BY-LAW,
To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stock holders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or facsimiles of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest there on shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham. Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Cyphichers, Sax horns, Trombones, Comopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

IMPORTANT FROM THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

Gold Fields of South Africa—A New African Republic.

By the bark "Springbok," from Capetown, March 26, we have further particulars of the discovery of what may prove to be extensive gold fields in Southern Africa.

The Cape Town Mail of March 18 says: "Letters from Burghersdorp, from respectable parties remove all doubts respecting the discovery of gold and copper deposits near Smithfield, One letter dated March 10, says Gold is now found in large nuggets. We have some splendid specimens here that have been dug up in the past two days. Copper mixed with gold is found in abundance upon another farm."

The Graaf-Rhiret Herald, of March 2, says that the Veal Government have closed the diggings until it is decided whether they shall coin their own gold, and whether the sovreignty will be retained or abandoned by the British Government. The same paper says: Smithfield is about three hundred and twenty-four miles from Algoa Bay. It is the most southern point at which gold has been discovered, while Patchesfstroom is the most northern. The distance between the two points is at least five hundred miles, the whole of which it is highly probable, will be found auriferous. The whole of this immense tract of country is almost unknown, with the exception of a small strip.

The Cape Town papers of March 23 contain the following addition particulars:

The reports from the diggins, received at Bloem Fountain are to the effect that it is hoped that the golden deposits extend over the whole sovereignty and Transeal country.

A person returned from Smithfield reports that several nuggets found (one of the size of a small nut) are pure gold. A party of diggers were expected at Smithfield from Graham Town.

The Cape Town Advertiser says:—"The fact has been ascertained that prolific gold diggings have been discovered, and by yesterday's post some six or eight nuggets, one weighing forty grains, have been received here."

A letter in the Eastern Province Herald says:—"Gold seems to be found everywhere on the Koesberg, in Moreeh country, and on the Smithfield Dike. What the end of all this will be I cannot tell."

A letter in the Cape Town, from the Smithfield diggins says:—

"The whole dug by Finley brought them down to the bed of an old river, where agates and other valuable stones were found. Here the largest nugget was found but the water coming in in great abundance stopped further operations. Other holes have yielded more gold, and it has now been found in such quantity as to warrant the expectation of a larger discovery. The gold in some places is found in the centre of a ridge of iron stone (which has evidently been blown up by volcanic action) in a vein quartz. The upper part of the vein is small, which gradually widens as the shaft is sunk. The most profitable part, the clay is thrown away, the diggers not having the proper washing cradles. From accounts I have received of California and Australia, there has been more gold found near the surface here than there.

The deepest shaft that has been sunk is 16 feet. Copper ore has also been found of a purity that will astonish you. I believe the copper ore will contribute as much to the enriching of the territory as the gold discovery. The copper is found on the surface in waggon loads, and contains a considerable per centage of gold.

All these statements have of course made a considerable stir in the Cape Colony, and a rush to the mines is anticipated—indeed it has already commenced. If the mines now discovered should prove productive, it would probably cause as great a revolution of affairs there as it did in Australia, and perhaps even greater, as it is much nearer both England and this country, the run from here by sailing vessels having been made in forty-five days.

The only other noticeable fact in the papers is, that England has withdrawn from any further control of the Orange River sovereignty. The Cape Town Mail says that in the sovereignty the arrangements for the withdrawal of her Majesty's dominions seem to be nearly complete, but adds that it is doubtful whether this is done at the wish of the majority of the inhabitants of the territory, and that promises to protect the settlers cannot be fulfilled if British supremacy be withdrawn. The whole subject, the editor thinks will be best dealt before the British Parliament, when the recent gold discoveries in that region will give a degree of importance to that part of the interior which in the eyes of the busy world of England.

One thing should be remembered says the editor, is that the extension of the British dominion towards the interior of Africa never been a favorite object with British statesmen or the British people generally."

The new "republic" has already formed a Provincial government of which J. P. Hoffman is President. The assembly of the people which formed this government adopted a document, which says while other nations sacrified years of struggle and torrents of blood to get independence, they have obtained it through the magnanimity of her Britanic Majesty, until yesterday our respected Queen They declare the only bulwark of our national existence is unity, and the establishment of churches and schools among them. The new republic, though small in population has an immense extent of territory. The colonists now that gold has been discovered there, do not appear willing to let the country slide from their graspand at Cape Town a petition to the Queen has been numerously signed, praying her to re-annex it to her dominions, on the ground that the establishment of a republic will lead to bloody border warfare with bad results to both parties. As the British Government has, however, finally withdrawn from the country, it is difficult to see how she can re-assume her control over it.

The Humane Spirit of Modern Warfare.

From the Tribune.

In reading the accounts of the bombardment of Odessa, one is struck by the humanitarian aspect it presents in comparison with the mode of sacking cities and putting the inhabitants to the sword, practised in good old times. It is certainly a step towards the millenium to find nations, while panoplied with the means of waste and murder greater than history records, beginning their campaign simply with the destruction of the vessels of the enemy, sparing private property of all kinds. The combined fleets in a word, attacked the outer mole of Odessa, and the Russian ships lying within the mole; the land batteries were destroyed, and all the ships lying in the outer mole; the fleets sustaining a loss of only eight killed, and eighteen wounded. This was done while the utmost caution was used not to injure the property of neutrals or private persons. Upon this statement being made in both Houses of Parliament, a very wholesome feeling was exhibited by members of all parties, showing that the ruffian age is passing away and the good time is coming. Mr. Cobden remarked on the benign conduct of members of Parliament while this statement was made to them. He hoped the example set would apply to the Baltic, and that the precedent of the late Duke of Wellington would be generally followed, and that no bombardment could take place when there are only the lives and property of unoffending individuals to be destroyed. It must be confessed however that the first naval blow struck by England in the Black Sea does not tally with the order given to take burn or destroy everything Russian, as edict as comprehensive, as curt—and terrible in its literal acceptance. On the same occasion, Mr. Cobden said, that England having abandoned privateering, should go one step farther and exempt from capture all private ships of the enemy, unless they were actually caught in the act of cutting through an effective and decided blockade. He suggested to the Government as the executive of the first maratime people in the world, that private property afloat should be treated on the same terms as if it were on shore. England had always eighteen thousand millions sterling of property afloat, and the effect of the present system upon that property is that ships leaving her ports are obliged to insure against war capture, and in this way at a moderate computation, some three millions sterling are paid annually to keep up a system which the United States fifty years ago, through Mr. Jefferson had denounced. These tendencies to a higher civilization than human annals have hitherto recorded, are the growth of a long peace. They may and will be retarded by the present war, but the proclivities of the world are now in favor of humanity. We can only adequately feel the privilege of living at this period when we reflect upon the past career of men. Antiquity shows that philosophy and religion were nearly or quite ineffiacious in placing its professors above the level of barbarians whenever war was concerned. The antique states although giving us legacies in art and letters which are imperishable, yet exhibited habitually scenes of cruelty rivalling savages.

The same may be said of the middle ages which yielded so much to art. In the wars of Napoleon extra military horrors glare upon every page, nor was our contest of 1812 with Great Britain barren of incidents which would now be condemned by every man in Parliament.

Marine Court New York.

Importance to Travellers and Hotel Keepers.

CONKLIN vs. WALKINS.—This action is brought to recover the value of a trunk and its contents, the property of Mr. Joseph Leaycraft, which was lost by the defendant, Wilkins: Mr. Leaycraft is a merchant residing in Quebec, Canada. The defendant is the owner of a hack, and is employed in carrying passengers to the Metropolitan Hotel, from various railroad and steamboat depots in this city. Mr Leycraft was married on the 17th of February last, and on the same day left Quebec with his wife, on an intended wedding tour to England and France. He reached New York by the way of the Hudson River Railroad, late in the evening of the 18th of February.

On his arrival at the depot in Chalmers st, he gave seven baggage checks to a driver of the defendant's hack; and requested him to take his baggage together with himself and wife to the Metropolitan Hotel. The driver took charge of the baggage, but on arriving at the Hotel it was discovered that a russet trunk containing the following articles were missing: four $20 gold pieces; two bank notes of £1 sterling each; a gold snuff box of the value of $60; a gold seal valued at $15; prayer book and bible $4; opera glass $6; two new dress coats $52; two pair pants $20; two black cassimere vests $10; a frock coat white and black vest and pants $26 dozen shirts $25; pocket handkerchiefs $12; neckties $2; dressing gown $18; silk shirts $17; stock $5; shaving utensils and box $20; medicine box $7; and the trunk itself $18, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of about $420. The Messrs Leland of the Metropolitan Hotel, and the defendant had made several endeavours to compromise the matter with Mr. Leaycraft, but without success—The plaintiff in the action is the assignee of Leaycraft, the owner of the articles lost.

His honor rendered the following decision.

The proprietors of hackney coaches, publicly engaged in the conveyance of passengers are liable for the loss of baggage belonging to a passenger.

So far as the baggage of a passenger is concerned, the carrier is amendable to the same rule that governs the duties, obligations and liabilities of common carriers generally. The only question for me to consider in this case is, Whether the articles above enumerated or what of them, if not all may legitimately be included in the word baggage, as used in connection with travelling in public conveyances. The gold snuff-box and the opera-glass should undoubtedly be excluded from the list. It was contended on the trial by the counsel for the defendant that the four twenty gold dollar pieces, the prayer book Bible, gold seal and medicine chest should also be excluded and that the carrier should in no event be liable for the value of these items.

To determine with precision what particular articles should be considered baggage within the legal import of the term, has not been attempted by any adjudication that has fallen under my observation. Indeed it would [illegible] possible to accomplish any such task. The term baggage [illegible] too comprensive in their import to render it possible to assign them a position and unvarying signification. There seems to be no perplexity in embracing within the meaning of these terms such articles as wearing apparel, brushes, razors, writing apparatus and the like; but whether even a reasonable amount of money intended for travelling expenses, only should be regarded as such is a mooted question. In the case of the Grand County Bank vs. Brown and others, 8 Wend 82, it may be inferred from a mere dictum of Judge Nelson, that this eminent and learned jurist was of the opinion "that carried by a passenger for travelling expenses may be included" under these terms. Still in the latter case, Hawkens vs. Hoffman, 6 Hill 586, the very able and eminant learned judge Bronson uses the following language:—

"A contract to carry the ordinary luggage of a passenger is implied from the usual course of business; and price paid for fare is considered as including a compensation for carrying the freight But this implied undertaking has never been extended beyond ordinary luggage, or such things as a traveller usually carries with him for his own personal convenience in the journey. It neither includes money nor merchandise. He then cites the case above referred to in the 9 Wend, and then proceeds to say: "It was then suggested that money to pay travelling expenses might be included. But that I think may be doubted. Men usually carry money to pay travelling expenses about their persons, and not in their trunks and boxes; and no contract can be implied beyond such things as are usually termed baggage." It is true that in neither of the cases cited, was the question of the liabilities of the carrier for the loss of money directly before the court; and in the absence of any authority settling the point, I am of the opinion, for the reasons advanced by Judge Bronson, that money should not be regarded as a portion of man's luggage.

Finally, should the Bible, Prayer-Book, gold seal, (used as a letter stamp); and medicine chest be included under the term baggage. It is estimated in the opinion contained in 6 Hill, that books for the instruction or amusement of the passenger on his way—his gun or fishing tackle, would undoubtedly fall under the term baggage; because they are usually carried as such. His bible and prayer book accompanied him as sacred and cherished companions—ever imparting their lessons of truth and virtue as he journeyed upon the way. The gold seal was a portion of his writing apparatus. His medicine chest was provided for the time of sickness, and must be considered a baggage. Taking this view of the case under advisement, the defendant must respond to the plaintiff, for the full value of the articles which I have here regarded as legitimately included in the term baggage; amounting to three hundred and four dollars —Judgement accordingly with costs.—New York Daily Times.

BOMBARDMENT OF ODESSA.

The German papers contain the following extract from a report of the Russian General Osten Sacken, dated the 22rd of April:—

"On the 21st of April the English and French squadron cast anchor at a distance of three versts from Odessa. The squadrons was composed of six first class vessels, 13 two-decked vessels, and nine steamers. Towards four o'clock in the afternoon Admirals Dundas and Hamelin sent a flag of truce with a summons to surrender the Russian, English and French vessels lying in the quarantine port. To this summons no answer was given.

"Yesterday, Saturday, April 22, at 6½ o'clock in the morning, nine steam vessels of the enemy, one of which carried 54 guns, and almost all the others 34, after stationing themselves beyond reach of the battery No 1. situated on the right of the roadstead, advanced successively to the whole extent of the batteries Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5, which they attacked throwing occasionally shells into the town itself, and finished by directing their concentrated fire upon battery No 6 situate at the extremity of the quarantine port. Our batteries were armed with 48 pounders. The enemy profited by the large calibre of his pieces and kept at a distance which circumstances did not allow the batteries Nos 3, and 5 to take an active part in the engagement, although exposed to the enemy's fire. The battery No 6, under the command of Cornet of Artillery Schogoleff kept up a well sustained fire from its pieces; but one of the latter having been destroyed, and the enemy having placed himself beyond the reach of the third gun, only the two guns of the left could be brought into play, and with these two pieces the battery No 6. held out during six hours against the steamers of the enemy, and to the end against eight steamers and a screw steamer of thirty-four guns, which had come up as an reinforcement. Even then the battery was not silenced, and Count Schogoleff did not quit his position until the vessels stationed in the port behind the battery itself took fire.

"In consequence of the fire from this battery three of the enemy's vessels were, towards the end of this action, forced to be towed by the others.

"A report upon this brilliant feat of arms was immediately sent to the Commander in-Chief, who exercising the perogative he possesses conferred the decoration of the military orders upon those who had particularly distinguished themselves.

"Thanks to their small draught of water the iron vessels of the enemy succeeded in surrounding the fort of free pratique, and in approaching the Faboury of Perissep, from where by the aid of boats, they were enabled to throw congreve rockets, which set fire to the vessels in the port, and to a few houses in the faubourg. They even attempted a landing, but the grape shot from four pieces of light artillery, covered by six companies of infantry, prevented the execution of that enterprise. The boats were met by our balls and experienced considerable loss.

We had on our side a few dead and wounded, and two gun carriages were destroyed.

"During the action some of the ships of the line belonging to the enems left their order of battle, advanced towards the country house of General Luders, against which they directed their fire; but having been fired upon by our batteries Nos 1, 2, 3, they contented themselves with a few discharges and resumed their previous position. This manœuvre was repeated several times. At 7 o'clock the action ceased and tha assailing vessels joined the rest of the squadron. Our artillery worked in a brilliant manner, and our batteries suffered little, with the exception of No 6. We had four killed and sixty-four wounded.

The Baltic Fleet.

The Doncaster Gazette has just received from a gentleman resident in Hull the following interested intelligence in connection with the Baltic fleet, and the preparations on the part of the Russian Emperor.

HULL, Thursday, May 4, 1854.

"I have just seen two gentlemen who arrived here by the Helen Macgregor steamer from Hamburg. One left Cronstadt and the other St. Petersburg, about 13 days ago. The one from Cronstadt said the Emperor is putting large heavy pieces of flat iron down in the river with sharp heavy spikes fastened in the centre, in order to pierce our ships as they sail towards the port. The Emperor was down there himself, looking over the different forts: and he asked one of his Admirals about the safety of the place from the attack of the combined fleets. The Admiral's reply was, that it was of no use keeping the ships of war in the port, as they would be sure to be burnt or destroyed. And that it was arranged that they should be brought out and placed in a line across the river or gulf, so as to act as a battery: the admiral adding that they might be the means of doing a deal of damage to our fleet; if they were shattered to pieces in that position it would not matter. They have three thousand guns in the different batteries there. Two or three English merchants have built houses in the immediate neighborhood. The Emperor has seized them, turned the owners out, and made use of them for barracks for his troops, 100, about 200,000 guns are located there, and Finland—some at one place and some at another.

At St. Petersburg there was the greatest consternation, and the English were leaving as fast as they could. One poor fellow who had got his little property converted into cash was seized and robbed, except a handful of sovereigns he had snatched, and with which by good luck he had escaped. It was the opinion of a great many English people who could get away, that in some districts, they might expect to be murdered by the Russians all at once, if things should go averse to the Emperors wish. He said he would give all he had to leave the country, Sir Charles Napier is dreadfully feared by the Emperor and his troops.

"We have letters here from some of the pilots every week. Hull has the honor of piloting Sir Charle's flag ship, and that of the French Admiral. I know the men well, and we have important news from them all along. The Duke of Wellington's guns are splendid. One of the pilots has returned from ill health and he gave me a glowing description of her firing all her guns broadside. They can be brought to bear so as to strike a space no larger than a good door or window, and they can direct the shots with so much precision, that a very small boat placed a mile distant was shattered to pieces by the first shot. It is considered by nautical men that a broadside from the flag-ship was equal to, and would do as much damage as all Nelson's fleet. The fleet Sweaborg is the first place Sir Charles intends to attend to, but he will do nothing until the French fleet arrives to share in the glory.

THE GUN-BOAT FLOTILLA OF RUSSIA—ITS PROBABLE EFFECT ON THE ALLIED SHIPS.

The following is from the Paris Debats of May 3d, on the formation of the flotilla of armed boats in the Baltic, by order of the Emperor of Russia:—

We give some details on the important part performed by flotillas in the time of the maratime war in the Baltic, as shown by the history of the different wars of the eighteenth century, between Sweeden and Russia, and of the last war in 1808. The coast of Finland on the two gulfs are almost all bordered by a belt of Islands, without speaking of the sands and a number of rocks of sharp granite some above and others just below water. Amidst this labyrinth are narrow, winding, and not very deep passges. Some of them, which are the widest and the peepest, lead vessels into the ports and harbours. In order to attack as well as to protect the coast, it is necessary to have a numerous armament of row-boats, specially constructed for navigating and fighting in those waters. The smallest sailing vessels cannot everywhere pass. The Swedes and the Russians who have imitated them, therefore make use of flat-bottomed boats, armed with two 36 pounders, the one in the bow and tho other in the stern, which are loaded at the breach with much promptitude; these boats are rowed, and their crew is composed of thirty men, twenty rowers and ten gunners; each man is provided with a carbine. The belligerent party who has not a flotilla can do nothing except in the open sea and in the navigable channels; but in these very channels large vessels may be assailed by a host of gun-boats, coming unawares through a number of chanels at the same time, which can discharge their guns and then disappear amidst the differens islands where they cannot be pursued. It will be seen that these armed boats are real maratime guerrillaros, and serve as the advanced guard of a fleet. By mean of them a war of surprise and ambuscade is carried on; they approach an enemy's squadron to observe its movements and give notice of them; they suddenly attack large vessels by boarding when their enemy is not prepared; they keep up a rigorous blockade of a coast or of a port and they are used for the landing of troops and artillery on coasts bordered by reefs.—Russia, besides her Baltic fleet, composed of thirty sail of the line, divided between three ports, has eight hundred vetsels war formed into squadrons, stationed at St. Petersburg, Rotschemsalm, Sweaberg, Abo, and Vasa.

The Emperor Nicholas has just published a decree, in which he holds out great advantages to discharged sailors who will again enter the service in the flotilla of row-boats until the month of November next—that is to say, until all naval operations are put an end to by the ice. The Grand Duke Admiral recently returned to Sweaborg to organize the flotilla, and put it into a state to act with the greatest possible success. The Anglo-French fleet being in absolute want of a good flotilla of very small vessels drawing little water, Admiral Napier has just demanded them from the British Government. During his recent visit to Stockholm, where he was on the the 24th ult., he was enabled to examine the Swedish flottilla at Sandham and at Vaxham, and to notice the form the armament and the manner of manœuvring these boats.

The English flotilla will be composed of small steamers of all dimension, and drawing very little water, which would be far preferable to the row boats of the Russians. The Russian people have no taste for the naval service, and their instincts are opposed to it; but the Government has at its disposal the sailors of its German provinces, and the Finnish seamen. It might be, therefore, attended with serious danger to look with too much contempt on the officers and crews of the Russian vessels.

These vessels, it is true, scarcely ever quit the Baltic; but in that sea they have the advantage over us of being thoroughly acquainted with it.

London Times.

LONDON, FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1854.

THE ASSIZES.

In our last issue we stated being obliged to postpone some observations upon the present jury system which we now propose to fulfill, we should more properly have said the grand jury. The Assizes for the County of Middlesex, after sitting day by day for a fortnight were obliged to adjourn for another sitting after the Goderich, and with a long list of prisoners on the callender for trial, some charged with the highest crime (murder) but five were found guilty, viz:

Three for larceny, George Robertson, sentenced to 8 months imprisonment and hard labor.

Maria Cook, 6 months imprisonment and hard labor.

Franklin Hall, 3 months imprisonment and hard labor.

One Fraud, Daniel Grant, 2 years in penitentiary.

One Felony, Thomas Reynolds 3 years penitentiary.

As we stated on a prior occasion 2 lives were lost, parties were brought to trial, but they were acquitted and we consider justly in accordance to the evidence, for a petty jury must only go according to the evidence sworn before them, we may here refer to the statement of Col. Prince, in opening the case for the crown against Adams, charged with the murder of Dougald Crawford, that Adams was a carpenter and that the constable found his clothes bloody in his room and that several articles found in the pockets of these clothes would be identified as belonging to Adams. Did the evidence sustain this? no, on the contrary, every witness, and those crown witnesses distinctly swore they never saw those clothes or any of the things found in them with Adams not even the fatal instrument that committed the deed had even been seen with Adams on the contrary an instrument like it was sworn to as having been seen with Flannery a couple of months before, and Flannery according to the evidence was [illegible] on the night of Crawford's murder was [illegible] at the trial of Carty and O'Brien for the murder of Taylor, when the prisoners refused to join in their challenges, the tall man was selected by the crown as the principal. The dying Declarations of Taylor being read, stated it was a short man who stabbed him, consequently, there was an acquittal. In the case of the man charged with burning his wife, the case ought never to have been brought to trial, in a case of arson though the burning took place, still there was no evidence to show that Cooper and Chapman the persons charged had anything to do with it It may now be asked what do these remarks lead to, simply this, that there ought to be a crown prosecutor, or an assistant crown prosecutor resident in every assize town, whose duty it should be to have every indictment preferred, and the witnesses of each ready to go before the Grand jury immediately on there being sworn. All cases whether of commitment or bale, should be on the calender, and the criminal business being first proceeded with, the grand jury would then probably be able to get away after three or four days and if a crime was committed during the assizes the next quarter sessions would not be too long to allow the trial to stand over, the great waste of time under the present system found fault with by all who have the misfortune to be on the grand jury penal, and whose time both in spring and fall is most valuable would be removed. We may here remark that the crown prosecutor, exhibited in every trial that clemency and moderation towards the prisoners for which he is characterized but he required assistance to get up the case as it is called in legal parlance. Taking the criminal business first would also be but an act of justice, witnesses in criminal cases are not paid and therefore they should be the first attended to the present objection to the system would then be done away with. Professional men and others who are kept in attendance loosing their time from day to day would then know when they would be required, we shall not allude to the absurd mode now of striking common juries. As we understand the law is likely to be amended.

WAGES.

Our contemporary the Free Press had rather a lengthened article upon Wages in its last week's issue, part of that article we agree with, and part we disagree with. The latter we shall now allude to, first premising that our contemporary is in error as to the bricklayers having struck, they neither struck or demanded higher wages, where the laborers without any notice entered upon the [illegible] the laborers without any endeavored by strike to obtain what the mechanics pursued a just and perfectly legal course to obtain, and if the laborers had adopted the same course, we have no doubt they would have obtained the additional York shilling they demanded, but where parties adopt strikes and endeavor by illegal means to coerse employers, we trust they shall always be equally unsuccessful

ADDRESS TO THE QUEEN.

We alluded in our last to an address to the Queen, read to the citizens of London, C. W., on the 24th for their approval. Not getting it in time for last weeks issue, we give it this:—

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR MAJESTY:

We the Mayor, Town Council and Inhabitants of the Town of London, in the Province of Canada, deem it a sacred duty at this momentuous period of your Majesty's reign, humbly to approach your Majesty with expressions of respect and attachment to your Majesty's person, family and Throne.

We beg to assure your Majesty that we deeply sympathize with our fellow subjects in Great Britain and Ireland, in their warm expressions of Loyalty and attachement, and, in that general expression of abhorrence at the attempt of a powerful, but barbarous Empire, to check the advancment of civilization and humanity among those countries in the Mediterranean Sea, in which your Majesty, as well as your illustrous predecessors, have so long labored to mitigate the evils of superstition and proscription.

We beg to assure your Majesty that we shall watch with intense interest the progress of your Majesty's arms, through this dire struggle, and while we deplore the causes which have called for the exercise of those terrible powers of war which it pleased Providence to place at your Majesty's disposal, to check and awe unprincipled aggression. We earnestly pray that our fellow countrymen will come out of the strife having earned for themselves new claims for that bravery and humanity which has ever characterized your Majesty's united service, and added fresh lustre to your Majesty's prosperous reign.

BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

By reference to our advertisement columns it will be seen a branch of this establishment will be opened in this town on Saturday next, at the present time when to use a well known term, there is a tightness in the money market, an additional bank will form a desirable acquisition. The Shareholders of the Bank of BritishNorthAmerica are all English, and the increased investments of British capital in Canada, will be a proof of the increased confidence reposed in Canadian security by English capitalists.

NEXT PROVINCIAL SHOW.

We are happy state that the Great Western Railway company from a correspondence we have seen, are prepared fully to carry out their promises of carrying all stock and articles for exhibition free of charge to and from London on conditions, which any exhibitor can ascertain, by communicating with the secretary. The committee also have asked the company to allow a train to start from London each evening of the exhibition, to Woodstock, Beechville and Ingersol, returning each morning, so as to secure accommodation for the night at these places. The company in the most liberal manner acquiesced in the request. The ground for the exhibition is now being staked out and before our next, some of the fencing is likely to be put up.

AGRICULTURAL DAGUERREOTYPES.

We were much gratified to find that a subscription list is now on foot for the purpose of having daguerreotype representations taken of the next provincial show, of the different kinds of cattle exhibited, of the machinery and other matter, deserving of public notice, for the purpose of transmitting them afterwards to the Illustrated London News, a paper of great circulation, both at home and here, it must be a matter of great interest to every person holding property here, to extend the knowledge of the present agricultural position of this country and to show the English agriculturalists that we are not far behind them in our desire for improvement, and we have no doubt some of the animals exhibited will compare favorably with those at some of the English shows In order to carry out so desirable an undertaking A subscription list at a dollar each is opened at Messrs Lawrason & Chisholms, and we infer the usual liberality which has allways characterized the citizens of London will induce them to aid in their plan. In our next we shall return to the subject.

OCEAN STEAMERS.

We are sorry to perceive by the following statement that very great neglect attachet to the "Ottowa" as the Province contribntes some funds towards the St. Lawrence line of steamers. We feel justified in noticing the complaints attested by the signatures of many respectable persons, and we trust the Proprietors of these vessels will at once see matters set to rights.

We, the undersigned, second cabin passengers on board the "Ottowa" from Liverpool to Quebec, having suffered many aggravated hardships and inconveniences, arising from the uncaulked and insecure state of the deck, hatch, and skylights, and the very insufficient accommodation and attendance afforded in the cabin, &c.,—and having commenced our voyage under the impression that a competent supervision had secured to us during its continuance the enjoyment of at least ordinary comfort,—our disappointment is extreme, and as its the general feeling amongst us that, had we known the actual state of matters on board the "Ottowa, very many of us, indeed, would never have made the voyage in her, we hold it a duty we owe to society to publish the result of our experience, in the hope that public opinion may enforce remedial measures, of which future voyagers may reap the benefit.

From the first the saloon was filthy,—boxes, chests, &c., giving a storehouse view to the entire

Ere this nuisance was abated, on the third day, the vessel began to ship part of an occasional wave, each of which as it washed the deck left a residum indicative of its weight and violence.

On Sunday evening (the fifth day,) we shipped some tolerably heavy seas, from which the fall of water through the hatch and skylights into the saloon, is very moderately described when likened to so many ordinary shower baths in full play; while through all the bed-rooms so great was the leakage, that it is questionable if in the entire cabin six dry berths could be found,—but the great majority were completely saturated.

The weather becomes milder—we cease to ship water—and yet for days we walk a wet and dirty floor, eat off wet tables, covered with with dirty cloths, furnished with dirty knives, and sleep in wet births.

There was no Stewardess, as promised in the advertisement.

The table of the Saloon is forty feet long, capable of accommodating fifty four persons to dinner, our number is seventy.

The table is furnished about half round with seats, six in number, and two chairs for the ends; trunks, and pieces of planks laid across them, supply from time to time the remaining space. There is no second table, so that of the number every day who cannot get places at the table, any one who is not willing and able to play at grab and scramble, and balancing himself against some door, eat his dinner standing plate in hand, may wait till some one leaves the table, and get he ped to something cold and miserable.

The water also, was a constant cause of complaint.

At the upper end of the Saloon, temporarily and rudely erected stands a coffee mill at which, (most frequently during the time of breakfast and tea) the process of grinding goes on filling the apartment, with the strong flavor of coffee, and stunning our ears with the grating sound proposed by that process.

Beneath the Saloon is the ship's store-room the entrance to which (a trap door in the passage between the table and bed rooms, frequently lying open without a watch or guard of any sort, and in a place at sometimes almost dark) formed in reality a tempting and formidable one. Many passengers narrowly escaped, one or two each, two actually did fall too gun d the trap, nor was any system left observed in the visits made to it.

Few meals passed, without some of the many parties having access thereto, paying it a visit, and dragging forth provisions of some kind, utterly regardless of the feelings or convenience of the passengers.

The water-closets stunk, face the companion way, a distance of five feet, and being dark and filthy are indeed a nuisance. There it a very good one off the Saloon, to which the passengers had no access during the first five or six days of the voyage, (including all the bad weather) which, considering the weak and sickly state of many of them, constituted a grievance of no trivial nature.

We do not pretend to enumerate everything of which we feel we have cause to complain; but the above being ode of the striking points, we publish them trusting, as we set forth above, that puplic opinion acting upon them may prevent their recurrence in future:—

Secularization of the Clergy Reserves.

From the Montreal Transcript.

"Will a man rob God; Yet ye have robbed me, But ye say, Wherein have ye robbed thee! In tithes and offering. Ye are cursed with a curse, for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation."—Mal. 3 ch., 8 & 9 vt.

The long disputed subject of the Clergy Reserves is unquestionably one of the weighty importance and heavy responsibility. It has been discussed in private weighed in the scale of public opinion, debated on in our halls of legislature, submitted to the collective wisdom and highest judicial authorities of the Empire. Every creed, sect, and party in the realm has claimed and interest in its decision and some right in its disposal; and yet to this hour, twisted, turned and rent to fragments, so that its natural features are scarcely distinguishable, and its true character lost sight, it remains a subject over which the thoughtless multitude, in strange infatuation, are looking with eager expectancy for its immediate and final catastrophe. It has not surprised us that, under such circumstances, it has come out of each succeeding scuffle worse than it entered. This is, perhaps, natural enough,—nor should we greatly wonder if in the end it becomes alike unavailable to all. But it is strange that the real character of the question should be so much forgotten; that, (to apply a scripture phrase in a limited sense) "There is no one goodly man left, the faithful fail from among the children of men." The zeal of faction, the blindness of self, the impulse of party, the eye of envy, political ambition, and the law of expediency, God has suffered to deal the maddening blow, (quem Deus perdat primum dementit,) that like the man among the thieves, and left half dead, the question may now be regarded we fear, only as an object of God's severe contemplation, and a call upon his vindictive justice, in the exercise of his sovereign righ.

Will a man rob God? If "righteousness exalteth a nation," surely such a sin would be a lasting infamy to any people. Man forgot—proscribe Deity? the creature and the creator!—tho clay the hand that formed it to honor! He, that has nothing but what he has received, "glory as though he had not received it!" He may wickedly usurp a right over God's heritage; and under the pretext of public rights appear more just than his Maker, may kindle a fire before which the unthinking and unbelieving may rejoice; and sparks whereof they are glad; but let him remember the counsel of the Lord—"Behold all ye that kindle a fire, that compass yourselves about with sparks, walk in the light of your fire, and in the sparks that ye have kindled. This shall ye have of mine hand; ye shall lie down in sorrow." Thus in the excited pulse of of bodies politic and polemic, the feverish constitution has become incapacitated for a rational consideration of the question; its true bearing has, consequently, been too little regarded, and the claim of God, whose only right it is, has been totally overlooked or uncerrated; so that our Christian Province is, in her blindness about to plunge into a sin of perhaps, unparalled guilt, and hon equen punishment.

A Late number of the Transcript contains a paragraph taken from the Quebec Chronicle, announcing the immediate return of his Excellency the Governor General and the consequent assembling of the Provincial Parliament for the purpose, amongst a few other objects, of sequestering the Clergy Reserves In a former issue of the same impartial journal, was some account of a meeting in Canada West, voting a want of confidence in their representatives, for a supposed inertness in confiscating the Clergy Reserves, and thus committing a high handed outrage upon the rights of God, and his established worship in the land—we particularize no church. It is to this view of the subject we would beg to call the public attention before it be too late. We would intreat the Christian rulers and the people of Canada, by every motive which should govern their conduct, in relation to God and their country—to themselves and posterity—to be cautious how they provoke the Lord to anger. The cause is God's, the transgression is against God—the punishment will be, undoubtedly, His. The design of the writer is, in succeeding papers, to bring before his readers what he considers the correct view of the case—the Divine right as an apology for the claims of the Church. He would speak with humility; in no respect above his fellow subjects and fellow christian—in many respects inferior to most. And lest he should seem too take too much upon him, and the want of access to authorities to such as he should quote, must render it impossible to do the subject justice The sacredness and responsibility of the measure in might, however challenge the attention of the rulers of our destinies to whatever may be said in its behalf; while in Christian community should remember the words of Isaiah—"Hearken unto me, ye that know righteousness, the people in whose heart is my law."

Judge Mondelet.

This worthy, who as aboard and disloyal coniner, has won for him a unenviable notoriety, and who seems better qualified for a cell in the penetentiary or lunatic asylum than to represent the sovereign he maligns on the seat of justice would not appear, at a previous period of his career, to have had such a Pharisaical horror of war and such a peculiar opinion of his actors and abbettors as he now deems meet to profess. The following is from a Quebec journal.

"Charles Mondelet the gentleman who will not pray for a pack of murderers, has been in jail for participation in the rebellion of '38. The man of peace who consents to adjourn the Court in deference to the feelings of others who wished to pray for a set of CUT-THROATS was indicted in the term of the Court of General's Bench held at Quebec suiting letter to the interim addressed an inment.

Nay, the late Mr. Neilson was indicted for libel, in having published the libellous writings of "Charles," now Mr. Justice Mondelet, who looks upon war with abhorrence, and on Queen Victoria as a murderess, Mr. Neilson published the proceedings only of a public meeting at Three Rivers, in which Lord Dalhousie is accused of falsehood, Reno Kimber, Esq., being in the chair, and Charles Mondelet and Ant Z. Leblanc being secretaries.

That meeting was held to remonstrate against the Cashiering of two Colonels of militia who were rebels just like Mr. Justice Mondlet. Mr. Justice Mondelet then expressed his detestation of cut-throats in introducing one of the resolutions thus: "If Messrs Legendre and Cursol had enlisted themselves under the banner of the horde of our invaders and destroyers of our rights, they would now have been held forth as faithful subjects.' Not pray for the army. Charles Mondelet, when to it you are indebted for your judgeship! The notoriety which you acquired by coarse abuse directly addressed to Lord Dalhousie on the occasion of your dismissal from the rank of Captain Aide Major in the Bouchervi le Militia Regiment, and by rebellious conduct generally, only put it into your power, in the character of a judge, to call Queen Victoria a MURDERESS!!!

TABLE RAPPINGS AND WRITINGS

A cedar wood dinner at Scores, inhabited by a spirit pretending to be Saul, the first king of the Jews, has become an authority on the Eastern question, and people go to France to consult it.

A pencil is affixed to one of its legs, and it writes its replies in French with great vivacity. I am assured, by a person whom I had previously been in the habit of believing, that the table appears to write, and that the paper appears to come from under the pencil, impressed with the characters it has inscribed upon it. I may say in this connection, that M. Babinet, of the Institute, has published in the Revue des Deux Mondes, a long article in which he declares the movements of, and the rapp ags upon tables to be genuine, and to be produced by an unconsciously applied influence of the combined pulsations of the superposed hands. M. Babinet hoots at the alledged intervention of spirits, but considers the subject highly worthy of patient, cool, scientific investigation.—Paris Cor. N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 20 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

In being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Managers would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratis), in large and well-sized paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relating to the British American Friendly Society.

Messrs. S. & P. have also on hand, a large stock of New York and Boston Piano-Fortes, of excellent quality, which they can warrant in all respects, and especially in regard to their keeping in tune. They will also retain the same coltness and sweetness of tone for a number of years, without ever requiring that metallic, hard and wiry tone which many instruments, of otherwise good reputation, are apt to have.

Their piano Fortes are carefully selected by one of the Firm, "Mr. R. G. Paige, Professor of Music, Organist of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto," whose professional experience enables him to judge of the qualities of an instrument. They can, therefore, fully guarantee every instrument purchased of them

Brass and Wooden Instruments, for Military, Amateur and Quadrille Bands.

Likewise, every description of Stringed and Wooden Instruments necessary for a complete Orchestra.

Violin strings of a very superior quality, which they warrant cannot be surpassed.

RETURNS his sincere thanks for the liberal support that he has hitherto received in the Cabinet-making line, and would only state that past favors will inspire him to further exertion to meet the wants of his customers. At the same he would intimate to the public that he has added to the above line that of the Undertaking business, having observed for some time past the want of such, has induced him to fit up a new and splendid HEARSE, with all the customary fittings in the line, in a style not inferior to any in the Province; he, therefore, would beg leave to state that coffins and all other furnishings can be had at the shortest notice.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company," and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 090, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company" on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pound, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, and be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached to them coupons with the signatures or initials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO FORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham. Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Cornpeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

TURKEY AS A FIELD FOR EMIGRATION.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Times writes:—

"We are every year sending off the extremities of the globe bands of emigrants, the outcasts of our crowded shores or the hopeful pioneers of a new state.

But why should they expatriate themselves to a region so distant that a letter only gives the intelligence of what is long passed, and to revisit their country seems an idle dream! Here, within a moderate distance of their place of birth is a land blessed with all that can afford the means of wealth and happiness

Here the emigrant does not find the blazing sun and sandy plains of Australia, nor is he exposed for months to the insufferable cold of a Canadian winter. He comes to a portion of the earth the geography and productions of which are known; he establishes himself in the neighborhood of civilized nations, on the banks of the great sea which is the historical centre of the earth, he is on the highway between East and West; by his exertions another generation may see the commerce of the Old World from Cadiz to Canton; take the route of the Euphrates and the Persian Gulf; and he advances the history of the mother country by linking more closely to her those Indian dependencies with which her greatness is bound up.

Vast tracts of country in the neighborhood of the noblest harbors and watered by navigable streams only want the hand of the cultivator to yield an abundant harvest. The Corn of Russia, the wool of Australia and the wines of France might be rivalled by the productions of Anatolia and Syria and the deserted cities of antiquity once more raise their heads in the centre of a new race and a more durable civilization. The only obstacle to the regeneration of these glorious regions is the domination of an effete religion and incapable race."

HOW NEBRASKA WAS CARRIED.

Correspondence of the New York Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, May 24, 1854

The northern traitors are to be paid off in a variety of ways,

Walbridge is to have a friend appointed Consul at Honolulu and receive half of the profits as his share of the plunder. Ingersoll is to be appointed charge to Turin in case of Daniel's coming home, or perhaps, to Stockholm, in place of Schroeder, Seaton's son-in-law, appointed by Clayton.

McDonald is ready for anything; thinks he must have a charge-ship, but if he can't get that, then a tide-waiter's berth in the Portland Custom House, or some old clothes will do. Hibbard is to be backed by the President in an effort to be elected Senator by the New Hampshire Legislature in June. Old's son has already got a place, and he himself is to be appointed Governor of one of the territories if nothing better can be found for him.

Internous he remarked the other day that he was not such a "G—d—d fool as to be satisfied with a Territorial Governorship," still he may have to put up with it.

Florence of Philadelphia, is another man on the sick list who is to be taken into one of the wards of the Administration Hospital somewhere,

The two Camden and Amboy men, Lilly and Vail, are to be turned over to the monopoly.

TURKISH BRAVERY.

When crossing at Hirsova, a single Turk exhibited a degree of bravery which parallel's anything of the kind ever performed. He was a private soldier of the Bashi Bayouk, and had, by some means been separated from his regiment, while retiring from the enemy. Seeing his unprotected position, three or four Russian troops made a dash for him.—But the Turk, undaunted, stood up to receive them, and as the foremost trooper swung his sword to deal the blow, the soldier by a powerful effort seized his horse and threw him on his haunches, and then, quick as lightening cleft the troopers skull. Then springing to the saddle he turned to face the others, one of whom by his uniform betokened the officer.—Instead of waiting the charge, he shouted the name of Allah and spurred to the contest.

With a single hand he maintained the unequal fight for some time, till two out of the four lay at his feet.

The Russian officer still fought bravely, but animated by fanaticism and the determination to conquer the Moslem seized the officer though a larger man by the belt, and dashed him like a child to the earth. With another blow he hurled the remaining trooper from the saddle, and securing the steeds, he made his way in safety to the imperial camp where his exploit had been witnessed, and where he was dubbed captain on the spot.

I merely mention this incident to show that though much underrated by the world in general, the Turk has bravery and courage, and would under good discipline, form a most efficient soldier.

The Quarrel between France and Turkey.

From the London Times May 12.

It it a fortunate circumstance that the late unpleasant difference between the French Ambassador at Constantinople and the Minister of the Porte lasted but a short time, and that we were informed by telegraph of the termination of this dispute almost as soon as we know of its commencement. Indeed, we have every reason to believe that the French Government had already taken measures, before the arrival of this intelligence, to obviate the occurrence of difficulties like injurious to the independence of the Porte to the concert of France and England, and to the cause in which we are engaged.

Upon the promulgation of the Turkish order expelling the Greek residents from Constantinople within 15 days from the interruption of diplomatic relations between the Sultan and the Hellenic kingdom, General Baraguay d'Hilliers claimed an exemption from this decree in favor of the Greeks who profess the Latin faith, and are therefore considered to be under the protection of France The Turkish Ministers acted as they usually do act when pressed by some inconvenient demand from a foreign Powe. The first conceded the boon, and then retracted their consent. General Baraguay d'Hilliers took fire, demanded nothing short of the dismissal of the Turkish Ministers on whom the conduct of the war and the existence of the empire depend, and vowed that, if satisfaction were refused, he should embark with his whole embassy in forty eight hours.

Great was the gossip in Pera and Galata, great was the consternation in the Divan; but Lord Stratford de Redcliffe seems to have given the Porte a firm and judicious support, and the French Ambassador was at length appeased.

The cause of the dispute has since been removed by permitting all the Greeks not compromised in an alledged conspiracy against the Porte to remain in Constantinople and we hope the same right will be extended to the Greek population in all other parts of the empire.

The News.

In the case of the fugitive slave Burns, at Boston, the Commissioner decided on Friday that he must be given up. There was intense excitement in the city. The stores were closed and the buildings festooned in black, while the United States flag floated across the street where the fugitive was to pass, Union down.

A company of United States infantry, with a detachment of artillery, with brass six pounders, formed a double line from the Court House to the wharf. The mayor issued a proclamation calling on the citizens not to molest the civil or military officers in the discharge of their duty. The cannon were so placed as to sweep the Court House square; all the approaches to which were packed with people. At one place a coffin was suspended, and at another an American flag, tied up and draped in mourning was hung across the street. The artillery were provided with twenty four rounds ball cartridge. Nothing but the presence of artillery and infantry prevented a desperate attempt at rescue.—Leader.

Lord Raglan's Address to the Army

Immediately on the arrival of Rord Raglan at the seat of war, he issued a regular order in the following words:

"The Commander of the Forces avails himself of the earliest opportunity to impress upon the army the necessity of maintaining the strictest discipline, respecting persons and property, and the laws and usages of the country they have been sent to aid and defend; and particularly to avoid to enter mosques, churches, and the private dwellings of the people, whose habits are peculiar, and unlike those of the other nations of Europe.

"Lord Raglan fully relies upon the generals and other officers of the army to afford him their support in the suppression of disorder; and he confidently hopes that the troops themselves, anxious to obtain the character they have acquired elsewhere, will endeavour to become the example of obedience to order, and of attention to discipline, without which, success is impossible, and their presence would be an evil instead of an advantage to those whose cause their Sovereign had deemed it proper to espouse.

"The army will be for the first time with an ally to whom it has been the lot of the British nation to be opposed in the field for many centuries. The gallantry and high military qualities of the French are matters of history, and the alliance which has now been formed, will the commander of the Forces trusts be of long duration, as well as productive of the most important consequences.

"Lord Raglan is aware from personal communication with the distinguished officer who is appointed to command the French army Marshall St. Hand and many of the superior officers that the disposition exists throughout their ranks to cultivate the best understanding with the British army, and to co-operate most warmly with it; and he entertains no doubt, that her Majesty's troops are animated by the same spirit, and that the first ambition of each army will be to acquire the confidence and opinion of the other."

European Items.

A report has been current that Denmark and Sweeden had given their adhesion to the Western Powers, which was fully anticipated shortly. It seems that a Russian army of 75,000 men is advancing to the north, part of a greater camp forming at Kaminetz, in Polish, east of Moldavia, threatening the Austrian territories of the Bukovina and Transylvania whilst Austria, on the other hand, is making a corresponding movement to watch the operations, besides holding an immense army ready to cross the Save.—These movements are the natural preludes to hostilities; and if Austria declares herself Prussia must immediately follow her example or submit to be crampled up.

It is now declared that an increase of 40,000 men is to be added to the English land forces, whilst a camp of 60,000 100,000 men will be formed at St. Omer, and another of 30,000 men near Marseilles.

The Russians give out that their evacuation of Lesser Wallachia is but temporary, and they intention to return and punish any faithless Wallachians.

The real case, however, seems to be that Prince Paskewitch finds his position even at Bucharest exceedingly untenable. He is now forming a line of troops, drawn as it were from Ruskiuny to Silistria.

A glance at the map will show the perilous position the Russians are in if the Anglo French armies force the mouths of the Danube.

The Russian army in the Dobrudscha would be cut off, whilst, in fact, the whole Russian armies would be surrounded on all sides. It seems to us something like insanity for the Russian generals not to fall back—If is plain they have been foiled at Silistria.

THE NAVY.

Launch of the Royal Albert at Woolwich.

MAY 12.—The launch of the screw line of battle-ship, Royal Albert, 120 guns, took place this afternoon, at Woolwich, in the presence of her Majesty and the Royal family, and a vast concourse of persons.

Shortly after one o'clock her Majesty, Prince Albert, the Prince of Wales, Princess Royal, and a large suite, arrived in the yard, and were received by salvos of artillery, and the loud acclamations of the assembled throng.

Her Majesty, after passing a short time to admire the great height and magnificent proportions of the stern, proceeded along a covered platform, laid down along the western edge of the ship, towards the bows.

She was attended by a very brilliant cortege, including the admiral Sir Baldwin Walker; the superintendent Captain Shepherd, and other officials of the dockyard; the Marquis of Bredalbane, the Marquis of Abercorn and others of the great officers of the Royal household; the Lords of the Admiralty among whom was Captain Milne, Admiral Berkely, Sir W Parker, and the First Lord Sir J Graham, towering over all his colleagues; the Duke of Newcastle and other members of the Government were also in attendance. The Queen, who looked extremely well, and appeared in the highest spirits, wore a dress of green brocade, a drab and pink shot mantle, trimmed with a pink silk fringe, a white bonnet ank ostrich feather, and although the bonnet was as small and as pretty as any in the large and distinguished assemblage, we think it right to say that it was worn on her head. The Princess Royal and her sister were in fine dresses and pink silk jackets, and appeared much interested in the proceedings.

The Queen and her brilliant cortege having arrived at the platform from beneath the bows of the ship, welcome the ceremony of christening was to take place, her Highness the Princess Royal was immediately initiated in to the mysteries of the baptismal rite, and the suspended bottle hung out to her, with due directions as to the mode of breaking the same and of christening the good ship.

The bottle was a small one filled with sherry. It was suspended by a silken cord and was a beauty in its way, being trimmed with Honiton lace, and encircled with a wereath of flowers.

Breathless silence now prevailed, spectators were on tiptoe, and necks were vainly stretched by occupants of distant booths to witness the interesting ceremony, expected to take place.

Old tars looked on with dread suspense not unmingled with superstitious awe lest the mysterious bottle should fail to break at the precise moment; and shipwrights who had worked for years, perhaps with a labour of love, on the noble ship, showed something of the anxiety of poor Jack, as to the destiny in which that suspended bottle hung over the Royal Albert. Her Royal Highness advanced to the rude naval font—for above her head towered the huge sides of the ship she was about to name—her royal parent appeared to look on her from the figure head, and he stood by her side, her brothers and sisters pressed round her, and bench above bench around her was crowded with all the beauty and fashion of rank and aristocracy. Agitated with gentle emotion, the Princess advanced, took the brittle vessel in her youthful hand and drew it from the bow.

Loud cheers and hurrahs from the stentorian lungs of stalwart shipwrights increased the agitation of the Princess, and the bottle fell obliquely on the metal slab: too willing to shiver when required to stand, the obstinate vessel now refused to yield up its mystic contents. Again the Princess seized the baptismal bottle—again she let it go, and again it refused to break.

The knitting brows of seamen and shipwrights had not time to settle into gloom, or shadow disappointment ere the twice foiled Princess nerved her arm with increased vigour, and hurling the devoted bottle from her, shivered into a thousand atoms. Amid the sound of the breaking and falling glass, a youthful voice was heard pronouncing the name of her illustrious father, and the red wine streaming at her bows told that hence forth the vast hull, fitted with its tall masts, its threaden sails, its raging furnaces, its vast screw, and its triple row of adamantine ipe, should bear victorious on every sea the name of the "Royal Albert,". Loud and long-continued shouts announced the conclusion of the august baptismal ceremony.

The Royal group then retired to the booth erected at the end of the ship, whence an uninterrupted view of the company could be obtained.

The signal was then given for liberating the ship, the dog shores were knocked away, and amidst the deafening cheers from both sides of the river, the firing of guns and the playing of the National Anthem by the bands of the Royal Marines, the noble pile glided into the river in the most graceful and easy manner, the Royal standard, ensign, Admiralty flag, union jack, &c., flying at her bows, fore main, mizen and stern. After drifting a short distance down with the tide, she was brought up, and steam tugs get ing hold of her, preparations were made for towing her to Sheerness, where she will be fitted out with all expedition.

Immediately after the launch had been effected, the Queen and the other Royal visitors entered their carriages and left the dockyard amidst the same enthusiastic demonstrations of respect.

A great deal of delay and confusion necessarily took place in clearing out so large an assemblage, but the carriages were at length all found. The steamers and the North Kent Railway by degrees absorbed the pedestrians, not without a good deal of grumbling at delays which the enormous pressure upon their resources sufficiently accounted for and the interesting proceedings, we are gratified to say, were brought to a close without any accident of a serious character.

Items of the War.

At Karasu, situated midway between the head of the river and the coast, the Turks maintain their position, so that the whole line of the Trajan's Wall remains unshaken, whilst Omer Pacha remains calmly at Shumla, with a view to direct his army to the point where assistance may be most needed.

Lord Raglan and Prince Napoleon have arrived at Constantinople, and the troops are pouring in as fast as possible.

General Baraguay d'Hilliers has had some quarrel with Rechid Pacha about the Catholic Greeks in Turkey, but from the instructions sent out from Paris, it is presumed this peppery general will be removed. This seems certain, as Louis Napoleon will not tolerate the agitation of religious differences at this critical juncture. In the meantime a reconciliation has been effected.

Lord Redcliffe preserves his equanimity, and of course, his paramount influence amongst these cabals, which, however, cannot fail to afford great delight to the enemy.

The Greek insurrection is broken up, and Grivas and his followers dispersed; but the Montenegrins seem likely to revive a spirit of mischief in their neighborhood. King Otho and Prince Daniel had better make the best of their way to Russia. Their knell is rung. It is even positively stated that an army of occupation is about to take possession of Greece.

Austria seems quite as willing to maintain order at Athens as the French Government.

Sir Charles Napier's fleet has by this time been reinforced by the division of the French fleet from Brest, which sailed through Wingo Sound without any anchoring.

Sir Charles himself has been living at Elgsnabben, off Stockholm, whence he sailed on the 5th instant.

We cannot make out exactly the real position of the Russian fleet.

We have details about a division putting to sea from Helsingfors, but there is no appearance of authenticity about such reports.

People seem to have made up their minds that Sir Charles will make a dash at Cronstadt, but we hardly think this will be the case until the flotilla of small steamers, now sailing from Southsea under Captain Ommaney, shall arrive.

The Balkans—Shumla.

From the Moniteur de la Flotte.

The gloomy and rocky defiles of the Balkans are still at this day as impracticable as when Darius passed them from the south five hundred years before the christian era. For centuries the rich and fertile delta, which lies between the Carpathians, the Balkans, and the Black Sea, has lain unused, and its immense resources have remained almost unknown to Europe.

And yet nature has lavishly endowed these magnificent regions, while the Danube offers them an easy outlet, and a means of communication with all the rest of the world. Why then are they so much neglected? The cause is not far to seek.

As the constant battle-field of every nation, these vast plains have been periodically devastated by war at each great historical period, and hence so far from lamenting the mountain chains which shut them in, the inhabitants of these countries have lit ally reared them as bulwarks against invasion, rather than as obstacles to their commercial relations.

This fact explains why the Balkans are so little known, and why the practicable passes still remain in their primitive state. As regards the former point, the general state of knowledge is so imperfect, that the celebrated historian of Turkey, Von Hammer, reduces the defiles of the principal chain to eleven only, whilst by a paper lately read before the Royal Geographical Society of London, it appears that the real number is much greater.

The author of that paper General Jochmus states that with the express object of studying the entire chain from Cape Eminch (jam Haemi) to Tirnova, situate at the foot of the mountain between Schipka and Tirnova, he crossed it seven times in a zigzag directions—that is from Messambria to Sudshik, from there to Aschly, from Aschly to Dobrak, from Dobrak to Carnabat, from Carnabat to Kasan from Kasan to Selimnel, and from Selimneh to Tirnova. He also explored the little chain of the Hoemus in the same way, and crossed it from Tirnova to Osmanbazar, from that place to Kesan, from Kasan to Ozalidavak, from Ozalikavak to Kopriköi, from Kopriköi to Shumla, from Shumla to Paravadzo, from Paravadzo to Varna.

The highest point of the chain beyond Monastirkoi is 2,000 feet above the level of the sea, the pass itself being situate at a height of 1,800 feet.

It leads to Bana, a village twelve miles south of Messambria, passing through dense forests of oaks, by the roads used by the waggons that convey wood and iron to Messambria.

Shumla, lying at the foot of the Balkans, is a strategi position of extreme importance.—It is strongly fortified by nature, and art has furnished additional means of defence which render it almost impregnable.

The Turks have given it the appellation of Chazi (victorious.) This town is the key of the valley which extends from the Balkans to the sea; it commands the principal pass of the chain, and like Rustchouk and Silistria, is one of the stages on the road to Constantinople.

Shumla contains a population of about 35,000 inhabitants, and covers a surface of between two and three miles in length by one mile in width.

It stands at the foot of a wooded hill 600 or 700 feet in height, which half surrounds the town like an amphitheatre. The greater part of the ancient entrenchment no longer exists, but the hill which protects the town is steep and inaccessible—qualities which have been taken advantage of in constructing the modern fortifications which are open to the European system.

The ports, redoubts, and easements which now guard Shumla render it a very formidable place. The position of these new works have been carefully chosen, so as to cover all the ravines and defiles leading to the camp, and to defend the high-road to the great pass of the Balkans, which is only thirty miles from Shumla,

The passage of the Balkans by a hostile force is, therefore almost impossible; and as long as the flags of England and France cover the coasts of the Black Sea, the chain cannot be turned.

The position of the Turks is excellent, supported as it is by impregnable fortifications and impassable mountains, whilst, on the other hand, the Russians, at the least check, might be thrown back on the Danube and forced to return to the Principalities.

Foreign Military News.

The Ost Deutsche Post of Vienna states, from Bulgaria, that 12,000 French and English troops had arrived at Varna, and that a division of the combined fleet was blockading the mouths of the Danube. Troops it was said would be landed on the coast; and establish themselves in a fortified position.

A letter from an English officer, dated Scutari barracks Constantinople, April 20th states:

"The force now here is nine battalions of the line, and three of the Guards, and all are in the best health and spirits, and first-rate condition."

SPANISH TROOPS FOR THE EAST.—The English and French governments, are it is said, endeavoring to induce Spain, Portugal, and the other secondary states, to send an auxiliary contingent of 50,000 men to the East.

The Army in Ireland.

The reduction that has taken place in the Irish military establishment in consequence of the war amounts to about 9,000 men; of these the 9th, 14th, 17th, 29th, and 89th regiments, had gone to Gibraltar to supply the place of the 30th, 41st, 48th, 47th, 49th, and 55th regiments ordered to join the Eastern expedition.

Two regiments the 23d and 50th have gone direct to the seat of war, and depots of 200 men each have gone to strengthen their respective corps to war establishment. One infantry regiment, the 46th has come over to England, and three cavalry regiments, the 4th and 5th Dragoon Guards, and the 11th Hussars, are about to proceed to the East.

The present force consists of five regiments of cavalry, the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 7th Dragoon Guards, and 17th Lancers; six regiments of infantry, the 41st and 63rd order of the special service; the 27th and 90th under orders for India, the 12th about to embark for Van Diemen's Land; and the 91st which is the only battalion not under orders for foreign service. There are besides 27 regimental depots, making altogether exclusive of artillery a force of 14,700 men.

INCREASED PRICE OF PASSAGE ON THE CUNARD STEAMERS.—Mr. E. Cunard announces by advertisement that in consequence of the increased cost of coal, stores, and provisions the price of passage on the British and North American Royal Mail steamships will be increased. From New York to Liverpool, the price of chief cabin passage will be $130; of second cabin passage $75. Form Boston to Liverpool, chief cabin passage $110; second cabin passage $80.

The Emperor of Austria is popularity shooting. On his marriage the other day with a pretty girl of sixteen, he gave full pardon to 249, and partial amnesty to 111 prisoners. He has quashed all criminal suits for treason he has declared the state of siege in Lombardy and Venetian territory to be ended on May 1. he has given 200,000 florins to the poor; and has promised to take his wife as Queen of Hungary to visit the Magyars.

VIENNA, May 14.—Prince Paskiewitch and General Gortschakoff are together in great force at Kalarasch, opposite Silistria. The bombardment of Silistria has commenced.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA MAY 13.—The armies of Italy and Galicia are placed on a war footing. Movements on the frontiers indicate that Austria is preparing to take an active part in the struggle.

Prince Paskewitch is in Kalarasch.

Omer Pacha is concentrating all his forces in the direction on Shumla and the passes of the Balkans.

RUSSIA.

The Invalide Russe of the 5th May contains the following vexatious decree of the Emperor of Russia, addressed to General Osten Sacken:—

"On the day when the inhabitants of Odessa, united in their orthodox temples, were celebrating the death of the Son of God, crucified for the redemption of mankind, the malices of the enemies of his holy name attempted a crime against the city of peace and commerce against that city where all Europe in her years of dearth has always found open granaries. The fleets of France and England bombarded for twelve hours our batteries and the habitations of our peaceful citizens, as well as the merchant shipping in the harbor. But our brave troops, led by you in person, and penetrated by a profound faith in the supreme Protector of justice, gloriously repelled the attack of the enemy against the soil which in Apostolic times, received the saintly precursor of the Christian religion in our holy country.

"The heroic firmness and devotion of our troops, inspired by your example, have been crowned with complete success; the city has been saved from destruction, and the enemies fleets have disappeared. As a worthy recompense for so brilliant an action, we grant you the order of St Andrew.

Arrival of the Arctic.

NEW YORK, June 7.

The "Arctic" arrived at her dock at 2 o'clock to-day.

It is stated that the French army will be augmented 170,000 men.

The Protocol has been signed by the Representatives of the four Powers, agreeing to maintain the integrity, of Austria, and Prussia, and the evacuation of the Turkish territory.

The Russians were endeavouring to cut off communication between Varna and Sillistria.

NORFOLK, June 7.

Two vessels were detained in Hampton roads by a heavy wind.

BOSTON, June 7.

The result of the examination of the persons arrested at the riot in the fugitive slave case is as follows:—Bishop, Scull, Jackson and Morrison have been fully committed for the murder of Batchelder. Wesley and Phoenix are held in $3000 bail.

The "Arctic" brings dates to the 28th, 8 days later than the "Asia" and one week later than the "Niagara."

The combined fleets were still before Sebastopol.

A Greek Bishop was arrested at Perth as a Russian emissary, and many important papers were found on him.

The rebellion in Tessari was gaining ground,

It was rumoured that the Russians were unable to defend the Circassian Sea board, and that they had evacuated all their positions from Amaton to Anapa, burning all of their own ports, after which, they retired to Kartis. The Caucasians came down and took 15,000 prisoners.

ARRIVAL OF THE "NIAGARA."

HALIFAX, June 7.

The "Niagara" arrived to-day at ten o'clock.

Heroic Conduct of a Woman.

One day last week, Mrs. Horton who resides about three miles west of Oswego, saw a large pine tree fall directly across the railroad track. She instantly laid down the baby called her husband from his work, and they both ran to the railroad, a distance of some hundred rods, taking an axe with them. But the tree was wound, and not less than two feet in diameter where it crossed the track, the spot being at a short curve in the road, and out of view from any considerable distance.—Worse than all the time for the train to pass was close at hand. Probably at the suggestion of the wife, as women are always the best expedients, Mr. Horton immediately took off his red flannel drawers, tore them in two, and ran up the road with one leg, while his wife ran down with the other. In a few minutes the mail passenger traid approached at full speed, when it was arrested by Mrs Horton standing on the track, waving the leg of the red flannel drawers on a mullen stalk.

The tree was soon cut and rolled of the track, with the aid of the passengers, who proceeded on their journey; many lives and limbs doubtless have been saved by this really kind and noble act of Mrs Horton.

LONDON, FRIDAY, JUNE 9, 1854

MEETING OF PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

In a few days our provincial parliament are actually to assemble for the despatch of business, and if we judge from the tone of the Provincial press, little is expected from their deliberations in fact it is generally admitted by all, that the meeting is only in accordance with the letter not the spirit of the constitution. Ministers were compelled to convene the parliament and they can say we have done so, but will the country admit to such subterfuge. The Gazette contains applications for numerous bills. Will the short session suffice to take the one tenth of them into consideration. On the month of August the earliest date they can become law the most fit time to commence public works, necessary to be sanctioned by those bills. If there will no be time for more than a tenth of the bills to be considered are all the parties and witnesses connected with the other nine tenths, to be taken to Quebec at unnecessary cost and expense to dance upon an imaginary committee, a remedy is required for this justly complained of evil. Our present ministers, whether the Aberdeen in England or the Hincks in Canada are equally devoid of that fundamental requisite a public non "truth." None can believe their promises or their assertions, their cohesion is produced by a selfish disregard of every enlightened and enobling principal which should actuate public men in the discharge of a public office, the direct pecuniary advantage and the indirect one receiving occasionally agency fees (see Hincks' defence on the Toronto shave) is the great load stone which attracts our public men to their political places, the patriotism of our modern statesmen is not de decible from the noble Roman, who exclaimed It is not that I love Cæsar less, but I love Rome more. The underlings here exclaim in the converse, It is not that I love Canada less but I love Hinks more. If so what has constituted Mr. Hincks the dictator of Canada, does it proceed from a slavish acknowledgement of his vastly preponderating talents, in the management of the affairs of state or form a tacit admission that no one is endowed with a capacity equal to cope with his giant intellect. In the same way the successful gambler, who, night after night by means of what is termed luck, or by the occasional aid of what is termed loaded dice, succeeds in the end in amassing a large fortune, success having stamped his character, may be considered a talented, wealthy and clever man is gold, then the only goal to run for the only prize to obtain and if the end only be worth considering, are the means to attain it to be equally undeserving of considering, we cannot think Canadians morality ranks so low as to indorse these views, and it is therefore we hope that some few honest men may be found, regardless of abuse from the ministerial press (not many now, it is true) or of that non-interference principle which seems to actuate many public men, but whose want of action we feel assured will have the effect of placing them in the eyes of the country as silent participaters in the numerous delinquencies charged against our rulers, according to the just principle of outlawall men are deemed innocent until found guilty, the jury to try these charge is virtually the provincial parliament, but the time for trial appears to rest with the culprits themselves, we well know the truth of the old adage "delays are dangerous," we know what may happen between the cup and the lip, and we may speculate upon what may have happened had the provincial parliament met in Feb., their usual time, but no it was convenient for the Governor General to be absent. Absence became contageous, and the ministers also found the other side of the Atlantic a pleasanter place to read the charges brought against him in Canada, than where he ought to have been we nee here hardly do more than recapitulate. The Toronto £10,000 job, The Scuit Ster Maire' The Point Levi job, the various appointments made to judicial or other offices which the press of the country teemed, with denouncing the unfitness of the persons appointed or the direct corruption in the motives for the appointments for the sake of the province some investigations should take place the gross charges against an executive should undergo a searching enquiry the the Province should be freed from the taint of acquiesing in such misdeeds but to do so securing to what we said at the commencement truth formed no attribute of the Hincks cabinet and therefore not unnecessarily to involve the minister or his aids, in telling another falsehood, that if no law was passed he promised that the Provincial Parliament should meet in February. the first act done should be to fix the time of the meeting of the Provincial parliament, and next to move the postponement of the consideration of the Clergy Reserves, and the amendment of the act for registering of voters, until all these charges were investigated, and why do we recommend postponement simply because we believe the question of the secularization is only got up for agitation, the public sentiments of some of the noisy declaimers, has been belied, by their acts. Will the deluded people reflect upon why the Rev. Mr. Ormiston, who took so prominent a part at the Simcoe discussion, and like Hamilcar, who bound himself to eternal enmity with Rome, bound himself to wage eternal enmity with the Clergy Reserves and be an agitator for Life, should accept a situation in the Normal School at a fixed salary, not at a voluntary one. Dr. Burns, who recently figured at the head of a very fraudulent manifesto, is to be found holding an endowed appointment in the Toronto university. And also we ask, whether if the Rev Dr. Ryerson receives one hundred a year out of the clergy reserve fund what receipt he gives or why, if elected for a constituency he is to vote for the voluntary system, we need not enumerate more instances, the gross inconsistency of those enumerated, and of others whose political knowledge is only equalized by their self conceit, and who swarm through the country like the drones around the hives will suggest the shallowness of their views and motives, conscious of the absence of justice or of law for their secularization scheme and the better under its mask to avoid inqury into their own conduct. The voluntary cry has been cooped up for the forthcoming election, the last raft of the dying polititians to cling to, and if we wanted instances of the fruits of Voluntarilism We now give our readers only the following from the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"The Rev. Dr. Pickards, the eloquent and popular divine, who so long dispensed the subject to our neighbors across the river, has abondoned the profession, and is now a clerk in the Canal commissioner's office.

"The Rev. A. McReynolds, late pastor of the Presbyterian church at east Cleveland, has also laid off the surplice and gown (if such things they wear) and is now the popular station keeper at the Euclid depot.

"The Rev. B. K. Malthy, late of the Methodist Church, St Clair st. devotes his time to the American Monthly Magazine.

"The Rev S. D. Mix, late of the same church is retailing supplies in the dry goods line at Chagrin Falls.

"The Rev Wm Day, the well known and popular chaplain of the mariners church, and he whom every sailor on the lake reverenced as a holy father, has abandoned the profession, and is selling hats and bonnets by wholesale for Mr. A. Fuller, & Co.

"The Rev J. H Prack, lately of the presbyterian persuasion in this city, is farming in the south part of the country.

"The Rev Mr. North has been some time in the daguerrean business.

"The Rev Mr. Fuller, now of Brighton, is also farming it a little, and attending to other matters more congenial.

The Rev Mr. Borritt, who, a few years ago, fed hungry souls from the pulpit of the presbyterian church in Franklin mills, is now feeding the physical man—he keeps a boarding house now in this city."

As to the Registration bill it will come into operation the 1st of January 1855, quite soon enough, after giving the present parliament time to investigate the pressing measures now awating this decision. The country in the mean time will be enabled to hear sufficient evidence to satisfy them whether Hincks, Rolph, Cameron & Co. are really deserving of that credit or confidence which their memyodus claim for them, a general election the commencement of next year may at least secure an honest and independant representative system, men whose intellects may enable them to base their decisions on measures not on men and whose independence may afford some guarantee that they are not under the portecting mantle of government magnets.

ACCIDENT ON THE GREAT WESTERN RAILROAD.

A most painful sensation was created here on last Friday, the 2nd June, in consequence of a report that the cars from Chatham had got off the rail, and were precipitated down a steep embankment, various rumors were circulated as to the extent of the accident, and, as many Londoners were known to be in the carriages, an hour of fearful suspense was passed before the real truth was ascertained.

In the evening, Dr. Wanless the coroner held an inquest on the six bodies, five were identified, the last one was supposed to be a man of the name of Page, from Delaware but such turned out afterwards not to be the case, and he was buried without being identified, the five that were identified were:—

A lak Thorbjornjen,
Thorbjoven Asbaljen.
Teiger Asbakyen,
Tellif Ojen.
Khari Tier Datter E Kozen.
Supposed Page.

The following Jury were sworn:—Benjamin Nash, foreman; Dantial Mills, Wm. Johnson, N Carrie, George Webster, James Gaddes, Joseph Whitehead, John Logan, Donald Macpherson, Wm. Grant, Hugh Cameron, Josiah Blackburne, and Wm. Dunbar. Having sworn an interpreter. 1st witness, examined, was Thor Asaljen Eagassen was from Norway, going west to Chicago, was in baggage train, detailed accident same Hopkins, see after. This testimony was confirmed by next witness, Olsen Skeslie, also a Norwegian, the next witness was John Kennedy, from township of London, saw cows on line before train came up, James Buchanan, a boy, corroborated this evidence. Thos Horton, Engineer of the Company, saw two cows on the track where the accident occurred, about seven miles west of London, one on each side of track, one cow attempted to cross, but before she had done so the engine struck her and threw her down on the track, the engine passed over her, and two baggage cars, the third car flew off the track, together with cars 4 and 5, stopped the engine within 200 yards of where the cow was struck, was going only at the rate of 15 miles an hour, as the engine was disabled during the last 36 miles, believed that if they had been going at full speed, cow would have been thrown off track altogether; had been 16 years an engineer, on the London and Southampton Line in England, the Paris and Havre in France, and on the G. W. since last October, considered the accident unavoidable, the brakes were in good order, and the rails dry, the cow was only from 10 to fifteen yards ahead of engine, when she attempted to pass, could not pull up in that space C. J. Eyrdges, Esq, acting director, stated emigrants preferred travelling with their luggage and when there was space to allow them to do so the company never prevented it. The jury soon after brought in the following verdict:—

VERDICT.

"We find said parties came to their death (with the exception of a man supposed to be Page who jumped off the car) in consequence of the car in which they were passengers, having been thrown down an embankment situated on section 4 of the G. W. R. whereby they received certain injuries on their bodies of which they died, that the said accident arose in consequence of a cow being on the track which caused the 3rd, 4th and 5th cars of the train to be thrown off the road the jurors would thereon remark that the said road not being fenced on its whole route is much to be regretted, and are of opinion that the company should use every exertion to have it completed and securely fenced forthwith, and they are also of opinion that the practice of placing emigrants in the same car with their heavy luggage is attended with much danger and should be discontinued."

Eight persons were also considerably injured, six of them have been enabled to leave for their destinations, the other two are going on favorably, and are expected to recover. We are informed the company through Mr. Brydges afforded every facility for investigating the matter, and that no blame can possibly attatch to them, except from neglect to secure the fences along the line, which we are glad to observe verdict takes especial notice of. In London the very unprotected state of the line, the only wonder is that accidents do not more frequently occur and we sincerely trust that the Yankee idea of placing cattle on the track when not marketably in order to be paid for them by the company, at the risk of all the passengers lives, may never be even countenanced by a Canadian company, and like as the old country, the lines should be properly fenced, all that could be done we are assured was done by the company to alleviate the sufferings of those involved in the calamity great care was taken of the injured, and remuneration liberally given to all who had claims on them. One circumstance we omitted to mention, it has been asked what brought emigrants going west, east, but on the train reaching Chatham, some of the cars were unhitched in one of them were some Irish emigrants for London who in mistake were carried on to Chatham and when the conductor asked who were for the east, said they were, the foreigners being in the same car with them, and not understanding English came with them; supposing they were all going to the same place. We are also informed that often when the emigrants are turned out of the baggage car when the train stops, they immediately get in again where their baggage is, so we hope in future the baggage cars may be kept locked, and no one permitted to travel in them.

At a meeting of the passengers on the morning express train from Windsor, held on the 2nd June, five miles East of London. Andrew Le Dew, Esq., of Detroit, in the chair, and Dr. L. A. Douglass, of Genesee, N. Y., acting as Secretary, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:—

Resolved,—That the thanks of this meeting are tendered to Conductor John Cook, for his indefatigable exertions in relieving the suffering victims of the sad accident which has so recently occurred, and for his services in forwarding the passengers with as little delay as possible—and further, that it is the unanimous opinion of this meeting, that no blame should be attached to the Conductor in connection with said accident.

Resolved,—That the thanks of this meeting be tendered to Dr. L. A. Douglass, for his prompt and efficient attention to the unfortunate victims of the accident,

It is with great regret we feel constrained to refer to a second letter in our columns of this day from another Passenger in the Ottowa. It speaks for itself but this much we will say, that no class of men should be better attended to than emigrants. We are forever demanding fresh supplies from the Old country and we are trying with the United States who should carry them cheapest We start our own vessels "direct communication between Canada and the Old Country" and here is the result on the part of the Province. We demand on investigation on the meeting of the Provincial Parliament our Rulers are too lazy or too much engaged we require some of our members to move for a committee to investigate these same charges and as the Province contributes some funds towards this direct line so

BRITISH AMERICAN FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

OF MONTREAL,

Office No. 103, Notre Dame Street.

OFFICERS:

HENRY T. STRONG, Esq., President.
J. H. PHILLIPS, Esq., Sec'y. & Manager.

DIRECTORS:

A. A. DORION, Esq. | J. G. BERAUD, Esq. M. D.
A. T. STRONG, Esq. | J. DOUTRE, Esq.
A. M'DONALD, Esq. | W. HENDERSON, Esq.
J. H. PHILLIPS, Esq. | P. COOPER, Esq.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and priority to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0
Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment.
0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province of Canada, we would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that it's principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

NEW PIANO-FORTE AND MUSIC Establishment,

KING-ST., THREE DOORS WEST OF TON-BST

TORONTO, C. W.

MESSRS. SMALL & PAIGE, Importers and dealers in Music and Musical Instruments, etc., beg to announce that they have opened their new ware-room (situated as above,) and will constantly have on hand, both Wholesale and Retail, every article of Musical Merchandize of various qualities and prices. They would particularly solicit an inspection of their new style of

Grand Square Piano-Fortes,

from the manufactories of Collard & Collard, London; and Linnard & Weber, Philadelphia.

Messrs. S. & P. have also on hand, a large stock of New York and Boston Piano-Fortes, of excellent quality, which they can warrant in all respects and especially in regard to their keeping in tune. They will also retain the same softness and sweetness of tone for a number of years, without ever acquiring that metallic, hard and wiry tone which many instruments, of otherwise good reputation, are apt to have.

Their piano Fortes are carefully selected by one of the Firm, "Mr. R. G. Paige, Professor of Music, Organist of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto," whose professional experience enables him to judge of the qualities of an instrument. They can, therefore, fully guarantee every instrument purchased of them

Brass and Wooden Instruments, for Military, Amateur and Quadrille Bands.

Likewise, every description of Stringed and Wooden Instruments necessary for a complete Orchestra.

Violin strings of a very superior quality, which they warrant cannot be surpassed.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company," and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company" on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached to them coupons with the signatures or initials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

EVERY ARTICLE WARRANTED TO GIVE SATISFACTION

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baren and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable aperient now before the public admits of no dispute, in almost every city and village in the United States there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Sores or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicine is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases, by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, much yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Thomas' Dining Saloon.

157 and 159 Main Street.

UNION CONCERT HALL AND THE AMERICAN EXPRESS OFFICE BUFFALO.

THIS Spacious Restaurant having by untiring exertions on the part of the proprietor for itself become the most celebrated establishment of the kind ever before enjoyed by any other establishment in the Western part of New York, the proprietor takes this method of returning his sincere thanks for the very liberal patronage they have thus far received, and begs to assure them that during the ensuing season no pains or expense will be spared to render it worthy of their continued support. Every luxury may be found in readiness to be served at short notice and to a style unequalled in the west. No game or liquor will be served to please the most fastidious epicure, but of the superlative kind of quality. The BAR will be constantly stocked with the choicest Wines, Ales, and Liquors—while the Larder will be well supplied with game of various kinds and fish of every species that finds its way to the table of the epicure.

Fire and Life Insurance !

ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

CAPITAL £2,000,000. STERLING.

Or Ten Million Dollars, with a very large surplus.

HEAD OFFICES.

Royal Insurance Buildings, Liverpool; and 29 Lombard Street, London, England.

LONDON AGENCY.

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favorable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Those insured in this Company are not liable to be called on to make good losses sustained by those upon themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund for contribution—the capital stock of this Company being a sufficient guarantee to the insured in cases of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself in its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal in 1852—has practically shown to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life risks taken on favorable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz.:

1. GUARANTEE OF A SIMPLE CAPITAL, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to two-thirds of the total amount—small charge or management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportions by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premium, to reside in any part of Europe or in any place in North America to the North of 38 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and re-cross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another—or from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified, also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where fire and life Assurances may be effected.

Try it, you will not regret it.

TO. W. C. SWEET.

DEAR SIR,—As you desire me to forward to you the following certificate.

For the last eight years I have been troubled with a Lameness in my knee in the Inclement I had consulted Physicians and tried many remedies but have got no relief except by the use of your Liniment, which I have always kept by the house, and they would have completed me a long time.

I was about to employ one when you visited the place and gave me a bottle of your Liniment which soon relieved me from the pain. I followed your directions and in a few weeks was perfectly cured. I have since used it in my family for Rheumatism, Sore throat, Colds &c., and find it to be a most valuable remedy.

From the knowledge I have had of your Liniment I can recommend it as a most valuable addition to our Pharmacopeia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist I feel much pleasure in recommending the Preparation of this valuable remedy to my professional brethren and to the public as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

I am, Gentlemen, Yours, &c.,

DR. SHERWOODS Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is daily giving positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or muscles. Gout, Tic Douloureux, Neuralgia and Sick Headache, Tenderness in the Region of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints and pains of the Limbs, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervousness Pre-mature Decrepitude, Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Childbirth Burns and Scalds &c.

It has now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is in fact, the vitality of life, and that diseases in many of its most painful forms are entirely owing to the absence of the Galvanic or Magnetic power in the healthy proportions. Hence we can readily supply the wanting power when in this difficult, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy, Alfred Sherwood, sixty and four years. There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science who does not readily approve of the Galvanic power in various diseases and forms as a specific, or corroborating previous specific means of incalculable use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in announcing to the world that many of the most distinguished physicians of New York are constantly recommending the Embrocation in their practice, and many of them to his personal knowledge have used it in their own families with success.

THE HARVEST HYMN IN A WET SEASON

We lift our eyes, our hearts to Thee:
Our knees, our souls to Thee we bend.
Father of all earth's family!
The appointed weeks of harvest send.

The ground, thy table, is full spread
With food to nourish man and beast:
Hast thou prepared the children's bread,
And will thou now forbid the feast?

Summer and winter, day and night,
Seed-time and harvest, thou hast willed;
And dew, and rain, and warmth, and light,
Have each their graceous task fulfilled.

Shall whelming floods the hopes destroy,
Of those who in thy promise trust,
Shall storms prevent the reapers joys,
And lay his confidence in dust?

O bid the winds and waters cease,
The lowering firmament unbrood;
Think on thy covenant of peace,
Look on thy brow, tis in the cloud!

We fall adoaring at thy feet,
Our prayer is heard, the vale is risen;
With deep thanksgiving let us greet
The Bread that cometh down from heaven.

THE DEATH OF THE ROSE.

Oh weep for the rose, the lovely white rose,
She has bowed her sweet head to the cold winter snows;
She has sunk from the kiss of the north's icy breath
She has found a safe refuge, her refuge is death!

There are flowers still round her that smile on their stem,
But they mourn not for her—for she was not of them
The zephyr had wooed her, and call'd her his own
And she miss'd the soft music that breathed in his tone.

Oh twas lovely to see with what maiden grace,
She bent her to answer his fragrant embrace!
How she treasured the dew drops to cool his tired wing,
Such love was too strong for so fragile a thing.

For o'er fann zephyr died by chill autumn blast,
He fled to her bosom there murmured his last!
And his ruthless destroyer, ossaging her bower,
Roughtrudely the love on the heart-broken flower.

She told not her griefs—and each rose had conceived
That she folded them close in her delicate leaves
There left them—a secret for death to disclose!
Oh weep for the rose! for the lovely white rose.

The Wine Trade.

The following account of the present state of the wine trade is from Messrs. Groves & Croslands circular:—

The late season of excessive commercial activity has been followed by one unusually calm; but in consequence of the entire failures of recent vintages, the exhaustion of stocks, and the different prospects of supplies in future, prices have been so considerably as greatly to discourage purchasers. Stagnination of trade does not, however, yet render holders of wine disposed to lower their conditions, and we must, therefore, be content to submit to the advance of nearly 100 per cent, which has been made on the price of the lower class of wines more especially, during the last twelve months. The following particulars respecting vintages in the Bordeaux district, may perhaps be acceptable. We commence with 1844, which is generally considered very good; but that which remains at Bordeaux is not commanding such high prices as some more recent vintages. 1845 has no reputation. 1846 produced some very fine wines, remarkable for delicacy, elegancy, and bequet; but they are more highly esteemed in Germany than in this country, the Germans being greater connoisseurs of French wines than we are. 1847. The Clarets of this year command high prices, they are delicate and high flavored, but not generally full bodied. The Sentorges are unrivalled and the quotations for pure Chateau Yquem (premier vin) are £100 per hogshead and 10s per bottle at Bordeaux. 1848. The present generation cannot remember so fine a vintage as that of 1848. It ranks even above those of the memorable years 1825 and 1834; and the prices paid for the genuine the growths are almost incredible. There can be no doubt that the day is not far distant when pure Chateau Lafitte and Chat. Margeaux, 1848, will be currently worth £1 per bottle; and the present possessors of the producers of this year are hoarding it like so much gold. Unfortunately for us the greater part of this vintage has found its way into Germany. 1849 produced some stout strong wines, but wanting in delicacy and elegance of flavor. 1850 was a failure. 1851, the wines of this year may be commended, and with the 1847's they furnish the principal supplies of good, servicible, moderate priced wines now being offered to meet the wants of the trade. First growth is being sold at Bordeaux at forty pounds per hogshead. 1852 has an indifferent reputation at present. 1853 worse and worse. The government of France recently wanted to purchase fourteen thousand hogsheads of it is vintage for the use of the troops and navy; but the brokers, who may be considered to act in the interest of the growers, were obliged to reject a large quantity as being quite unfit for human consumption. The brandy made this year is not clean. 1854, at present the vine does not look healthy; but it is impossible to predict what their produce will be. Should however, the vintage be successful, the wine could not be matured for consumption for several years to come. There is therefore, little prospect of a reduction in prices. We are not alarmists. We would merely rather have wines good, abundant, and cheap, than scarce and dear, but we cannot shut our eyes to the fact that the present condition of the wine trade is not the temporary result of undue speculation or groundless fears, but that it is probably destined to work an important change in the tastes and habits of the world.

The Danger of Musical Titles.

A lady of fashion (the well known Marchioness of Finsbury,) had been loitering for nearly an hour in a fashionable music shop. She had purchased a copy of nearly every piece of music that had a sentimental title. She had sent into her carriage a whole Canterbury full of "Love," going through every mood of the feeling, past, present, and future, and was following their example, when she paused before the step, as it meditating whether she should take it or some other step that was evidently turning itself over in her mind. The shopman, who had been somewhat moved by his tender tone in which she had asked him, "Will thou love me then as now?" watched her with an anxiety that betrayed itself too plainly in the adjustment of his shirt collar, and in the arrangement of his hair. Suddenly the Marchioness seemed resolved. As, with one bound she cleared the pavement, and, breathless paled her auburn hair fluttering in the wind, stood once more before admiring shopman: "I had nearly forgotten," she said in a voice tha seemed to viel her blushing words, "dear! dear! I cannot tell where my head is to-day. I have come back to ask you if by chance——," here she paused as if to take courage, whilst the trembling shopman poised his two thumbs elegantly on the mahogany counter, and leant his body inquiringly forward, "to give me one kiss before parting?" "M-a a-a-d a-m!" exclaimed the astonished shopman. "I want you," repeated the Marchioness; "to let me have one kiss before parting—one will do it you please." She raised her beautiful blue eyes full upon his, and met them boldly, unblushingly. She then without betraying any emotion, repeated her question, addressing it calmly as possible, "if you cannot give it me now, I will call some other time." He could doubt no longer. Springing over the counter he seized hold of the Marchioness's fair form, and then and there gave the kiss she so earnestly begged for previous to departure. To his great astonishment, the only return the Marchioness made was to give him a tremendous box on the ears. This was followed by a volley of blows dealt with her parasol over his head, which were accompanied by an equal number of shrieks that never terminated till the police came into the shop. This affair was carried into flow street, but was soon dismissed upon its being explained that "One Kiss before Parting," was the title of a song, which the unsophisticated shopman, blissfully green from his native fields, had never heard of before. It was a favorite joke with the old Duke to ask the Marchioness, whenever she was at the piano, if she would mind giving him just "One Kiss before Parting."—British Jour.

The Gun-Boats for the Fleets.

The new gun-boats building by the Admiralty are to carry guns of the heaviest calibre used in the navy, are to be propelled with screw machinery; so placed as to be altogether out of reach of shot, the machinery being under the water line; they will also have the advantage of being the swiftest steamers in the fleet, as well as most formidable gun-boats. Half a dozen of these are equal to a hundred of the Russian gun-boats, and, as may be easily perceived, they will be much better adapted for war purposes than the paddle-wheel gun boats that have been so much puffed off.

To meet however, the requirements, of the war, a class of gun-boats of smaller tonnage, and of less horse power machinery, is being constructed—vessels superior in every respect to paddle gun-boats, for they only offer a good target at which to direct a destructive fire.

Analysis of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's Scheme.

The Morning Chronicle contains the following clear statement of Mr. Gladstone's propositions last night. The deficiency of the year may be taken in round numbers at £10,000,000. By the grant of an additional 3½d. in the pound on the income tax, the House of Commons have already provided more than £8,000,000, leaving £5,000,000 of estimated outlay, and £8,000,000 for contingencies to be covered by new imposts. The increase of the income tax to 14d. in the pound will supply £3,250,000. An addition of 1s. to the Scotch, and of 8d. to the Irish spirit duty will give £450,000. The foreign and colonial sugar duties are to be equalised at once at rates somewhat lower than that which is at present paid on sugar, while it is higher than that which, under the existing act, would have become payable on all that description in July. The proposed change will add 700,000 to the revenue duty. The items already mentioned leave a deficiency of £2,600,000. This is to be met by an increase of about forty-five per cent on the malt tax. The issue of £2,000,000 of Exchequer bills, and £4,000,000 of Exchodquea bonds, will give the Government in the command of a considerable portion of ready money, in addition to the income arising from taxes.

Intelligence from Australia.

The Melbourne Argus of the 31st March says, in commenting upon the new Constitution:—

"This House is to consist of thirty members, who must have within the colony a money qualification of two thousand pounds. The house will not from its very construction be a very industrious one, and a small but compact phalanx of conscriptionists may, acting in

6. Every article exhibited for competition must be the growth produce or manufacture of Canada, except classes Y and Z. Live Stock for breeding must be the property of persons residing in Canada. All premiums for articles, except stock, entered in competition, are to be awarded to the manufacturers or producers only.

7. Discretionary premiums will be awarded for such articles as may be considered worthy by the Judges, although not enumerated in the list, and the directors will determine the amount of premium.

8. In the absence of competition in any of the classes, or if the stock or articles be of inferior quality, the Judges will exercise their discretion as to the value of the premiums they recommend.

The Judges, Competitors and Officers of the Association only will be permitted to enter the show grounds, until 2 o'clock p. m. of Wednesday, September 27, at which hour members will be admitted. Non-Members will be admitted on Thursday and Friday morning after 8 o'clock.

10. No articles or stock exhibited will be allowed to be removed from the ground till the awards are made, or without the permission of the president, under the penalty of losing the premiums. An Auctioneer will be on the spot after the premiums are announced and every facility afforded for the transaction of business.

11. Delegates, Judges, and Members of the Press, are requested and expected to report themselves at the Secretary's office immediately on their arrival.

The Judges to meet at the Secretary's office on the grounds on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock precisely, to make arrangements for entering immediately upon their duties.

13. It being essential to the satisfactory working of the exhibition that all articles be entered and forwarded in reasonable time, all such as arrive on Wednesday morning, and not previously entered will be charged an entrance fee of 5s each. All entries will positively close on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Articles arriving afterwards will be admitted into the show grounds; but they will be entitled to compete only for discretionary premiums.

14. Arrangements will be made for Agricultural lectures or Discussions during the evenings of Wednesday and Thursday of the Show week.

15. The Treasurer will be prepared to commence paying the premiums immediately after the success ful competitors have been declared, and parties who shall have prizes awarded them are particularly requested to apply for them before leaving London, or leave a written order with some person to receive them—stating the articles for which prizes are claimed.

The Local Committee will make arrangements with steamboat and railway proprietors for the show at reduced rates: Also with the Hotel and Boarding House keepers for accommodating visitors at their ordinary fixed charges. Full particulars will be published hereafter.

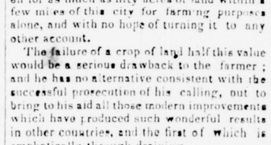
The Prospects of 1854.

From the Leader.



It would be premature to make any decided estimate of the prospects of the harvest of 1854 from the present appearance of the crops At the same time their present condition forms one of the best criterions by which it is possible to form any opinion on the matter. After paying some attention to the subject, we find that the crops generally, in this part of the country, have a healthy appearance.—In low lands, where there is no drainage some damage has been done to the fall wheat by an excess of moisture; large quantities of rain having fallen for some time past. The spring wheat was got into the ground before the late heavy rains fell. If there be any exception this rule it has been impossible for some time past, to sow wheat owing to the quantity of rain that has fallen. If fine weather follow the spring wheat will be got into the ground without any difficulty. On the other hand a succession of heavy rains would be attended with serious injury to the prospects of the spring crops: we should in fact have a repetition of what happened last year—a difficulty of getting in spring grain and great injury to that crop from excessive moisture, with a serious dimunition in that description of produce. Last year, in many parts of Upper Canada, the crops of spring grain were more than half ruined from an excess of moisture. We shall barely escape a like calamity this season. The contingency of a wet season being ever liable to occur, it becomes a matter of importance to inquire whether there is no remedy with which the calamitous effect of adverse weather can be met by the farmer. If we look to the experience of other countries, whose agriculture has been carried to a higher state of perfection, we find that miracles have been done by a proper system of drainage; a branch of improvement which has been almost universally neglected in Canada.

The partial failure of the spring crops in Upper Canada last year was almost entirely to the the absence of a proper system of drainage; indeed of almost any drainage at all. And the same evil will always be likely to occur until our farmers adopt a complete system of drainage as circumstances will permit. It is the heavy clay lands that suffer most from any absence of drainage. The time is not far distant when such lands, especially in the neighborhood of cities where the price of land is high, can be profitably cultivated only by a full developement of their capabilities. At the prices which lands in the neighberhood of cities are attaining, inferior farming will not pay. The fixed capital of the farmer becomes so great that he must have large returns to cover the item of interest and other expenses; and such returns are not obtainable except by the adoption of the best methods of farming. A man may afford to cultivate in an inferior way a bush farm of the value of two or three dollars per acre; but when as is the case in the neighborhood of a city, the price of land per acre rises to £10, £15, £20, and even £30 per acre the owner cannot afford to farm it indifferently. If he did, he would place himself on the high way to ruin. The interest on the value of a farm of £100 is easily made; but it requires a considerable amount of produce to pay the interest on the capital invested in a farm worth £4,000 or £3,000. In other truth, there are some descriptions of farming land in the neighborhood of Canadian cities selling at as high a price as very fair land can be bought for in England. We are informed that there is at least one instance in which as much as £40 per acre has been given for as much as fifty acres of land within a few miles of this city for farming purposes alone, and with no hope of turning it to any other account.

The failure of a crop of land half this value would be a serious drawback to the farmer; and he has no alternative consistent with the successful prosecution of his calling, but to bring to his aid all those modern improvements which have produced such wonderful results in other countries, and the first of which is emphatically through draining.

The high price of grain has naturally stimulated our farmers to put under crop an unusual breadth of land. Wheat is perticularly run upon; and it is very easy to carry the practice of depending almost entirely upon one crop to a vicious extent. In Ohio, where this practice does not prevail to the same extent that it does with us, over-cropping has reduced the productive powers of the soil in a very sensible degree, and the process of deterioration still goes on. Nothing more certainly exhausts the productive powers of the soil than a constant succession of wheat crops which there seems to be a disposition in our farmers to produce. But as to the present year, judging from the present appearance of the crops, anything like a favorable season ought to reward our farmers with an abundant harvest.

Although the imports of last year greatly exceed in value the exports, and in all probability the same thing will be witnessed this year, there is no reason for despondency.—The amount of the indebtedness of the province for imports is not supposed to be excessive; and at no time have the storekeepers kept their accounts squarer with the wholesale merchants than at the present. All this proves that the province is not importing in excess of its ability to pay, and is not incurring for articles of immediate consumption, any debts abroad which can inspire reasonable fears of a future financial crisis in the province. As gas may come, when the influx of money to this country for the construction of railroads shall cease, and the drain in the shape of interest commence. Then will come the pinch. But the time is not yet. The year 1854 promises to be one of great prosperity. Of course some adverse contingency may occur to blight the present prospect; as a bad harvest, or low prices, neither of which appears at present probable.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT!

SPEECH OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL,

Quebec June 13.

To day, at three o'clock p. m. the governor general proceeded in state to the council chamber, in the parliament buildings. The members of the legislative council being assembled, his Excellency opened the second session of the fourth Parliament of the province with the following

SPEECH.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Council, and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

During the recess, the Province has sustained I regret to say, serious loss by fire, in the destruction of the house of parliament, and of the parliament buildings which was secured for the temporary occupation of the egislature. The best arrangements possible have been made for your accommodation (Hear, hear.) Her majesty, having failed in her anxious and particular endeavours to preserve the blessings of peace, has felt herself call upon, by regard for an ally, the integrity and independence of whose empire has been recognized as essential to the peace of Europe, to take up arms in conjuction with the Emperor for the defence of the Sultan.—The manifestations of loyalty and sympathy, which have been so general throughout the Province at this conjecture, I am confident will be heartily responded to by the legislature. The cordial co-operation in this war is well calculated to call forth the sympathies of a country peopled by the descendants of those two empires. Having, during my recent visit to England, been honored by the Queen's command to endeavor to effect the settlement of various important questions bearing upon the interests of the British North American Provinces which had been long pending between the governments of Great Britain and the United States. I proceeded to Washington where, after frank discussion with the authorities of the United States, I was enabled to conclude a treaty which now awaits ratification upon terms which, it is my firm conviction, will prove, beneficial in the highest degree to the colony generally, as well as to the United States.

A measure to give effect to that treaty will be submitted for your approval. I will communicate to you the despatch from the secretary of state for the colonies with reference to the addresses of the Queen from the two houses of the legislature on the subject of the contraction of the Legislative council I will commend to your consideration the passing of a law for bringing into early operation the act of last session, which extends the elective franchise, in order that the constitutional expression of opinion may be obtained as speedily as possible under the system of representation recently established on the various important questions on which legislation required.

Gentleman of the Legislative Assembly:—The public expenditure for the past year, and the estimate for the present, will be submitted to you without delay, and I rely with confidence on your to make the necessary provisions for the exigencies of the government. The prosperous condition of the revenue may suggest to you the propriety of making such reduction in the tariff as may be compatible with the security of the public credit, and efficiency service. During my sojourn in England, I was much struck by the proofs which I received from all quarters of the unswerving interest in Canadian affairs, and I trust that my acquaintance with the Province, derived from long residence in it; may have enabled me to render some service in spreading more widely a knowledge of its resources, and of the feelings of the inhabitants. A state of warfare has a necessary tendency to restrict operations involving large expenditure of capital, I feel confident that the credit of Canada has attained a position in English opinion, which it never before achieved, and that to enable you to retain it, nothing more is requisite than prudence in your undertakings, and the maintenance of the high character for fidelity to pecuniary engagements, which the Province has at all times formed—Hear, hear.

NEXT PROVINCIAL SHOW.

We devote a considerable portion of our space at the exclusion of other matters, to the prize list to be given at the Provincial show. The rules and regulations we first give, and next the classes to class O, which we propose, with the remainder giving in our next. Persons desirous of exhibiting are often too fond of procrastinating, leaving things to the last moment, in the regulations published the last days for entering are given, and the requirement of a pedigree for blood horses and thorough bred stock which must be properly attested, and sent to the secretary in Toronto not later than the 20th of September, we therefore hope, these arrangements will be attended to, with reference to class J it will be perceived that the small breed of pigs require the age to be stated on the cards, this also should be attended to and we are happy to perceive by a N. B attached to class J, that double the amount of premium offered in the prize list is to be given to the importers of any male animal which shall receive the first prize and which shall have been imported since the last provincial exhibition, this is as it should be, the importation of stock from Europe is costly and uncertain, and therefore a portion of the funds of the association could not be more judiciously expended than in encouraging any spirited individual who at his own risk undertakes so hazzardous an enterprize. The poultry class comes next, and we have no doubt the occupants of from 2 to 5 acre lots could profitably devote their time to this class especially if near a town or railway station. We are aware considerable expense has been incurred here in procuring the Cochin China breed some of which we expect will take the first prize. As to the next class, the agricultural productions, we trust every farmer will contribute, our wheat is equal if not superior to any grown in any part of the world, and we are glad to see the exhibitors are required to state the nature of the soil, mode of preparation, time of sowing, the amount of produce to the acre, and the kind and quality of manure. With reference to oats and other seeds, we were glad to observe on the 4th of May, a resolution was passed by the Upper Canadian board of agriculture, at Toronto "that as certain seeds are particularly liable to deterioration in this climate, it would be advisable for the board to import a quantity of oats, barley, peas, spring vetches &c, from the United Kingdom, and distribute the same under certain regulations to the county societies at cost price." Now that we recommended many months since in our columns and we are glad to see the association at length becoming alive to the requirements of the farmers. We regret the same requirements were not made for oats Barley and peas, as for wheat, as we are aware much difference prevails as to the time of sowing soil, manuring &c. Flax and hemp are also two articles that we hope will soon be in extensive cultivation through the province. The Horticultural prizes, we expect, will afford many competitors, persons in the country are too often ready to say say such a thing will not grow, perhaps had you, a very dry season or late frosts may have caused one or two failures, a general conclusion is come to often erroneous that they will not do. In favored England how often do the fruits, vegetables, and flowers fail, and do the cultivators then abandon their cultivation, no such thing, the high remuneration now paid market gardeners around London should induce a trial We have seen finer crops of onions, carrotts and parsnips grown in Canada, than we ever have in the old country, and that at a considerable less cost. From the vast number of small lots varying from ¼ of an acre and upwards around London, we hope to see many specimens of vegetables and flowers, for the latter we are happy to say an increased taste appears to be springing up, and many of our old country friends might envy the handsome flowers requiring protection at home growing in our open borders during the summer months. The dairy products and suggar is the last class we shall allude to, the demand for butter and cheese, and the remunerating prices obtained for them render these articles of great importance, and we are gratified to hear generally the great improvement that has taken place within the last two years in cheese. We shall now draw the attention of the exhibitors to another circumstance, most of our reader have heard of a paper called the "London Illustrated News," a paper of immense circulation on both sides of the Atlantic, and to those who have not seen it we tell them it exhibits in its columns by means of pictures or sketches, the flowers, animals, fowls and other things worthy of publicity. Now it is intended that measures should be taken to have the prize animals at our Provincial show placed in the columns of that paper, any very handsome, well cultivated farm stead can also be placed there, and what gratification will it afford to persons in England to see their friends and relatives places in Canada, accurately drawn and a short account given of each. Agents have been always busy in England puffing off her Australian colonies, Except a few lectures, the testimony of Lord Elsimere, and the gentlemen who visited Canada connected in England with the G. T. R, few means have been taken to place this fine agricultural country before the British public, that omission, we trust will soon be rectified, to the mechanics some of our handsome public buildings will show that taste is not wanting in their erection, and the high the very high rates of wages earned here will prove a strong inducement to their crossing the Atlantic. A view of our home productions will remove the icy visions of those who imagine we are encased in furs and in perpetual snow, and now that the north of Europe is closed for exportation our cereals can take their places in the British market, thousands of acres, millions we may say await the ax-men, and a home we offer to thousands who are now barely able to exist under the pressure of taxation at home but who here can add to their own comforts and independence and also to our provincial wealth. To carry out the object to which we have referred the Town Council of London have given £25, and the county council £—, the balance required we expect will be made up in dollar subscriptions and we feel assured no farmer will refuse, as it will be the means of considerably raising the value of his property. A list lays at Messrs. Lawrason and Chisolm's (to the latter gentleman we are indebted for originating the plan) for those who wish to put down their names.

TOWN COUNCIL.

On Monday evening last the council met at the Firemans' Hall.

His Worship the mayor in the chair.

PRESENT COUNCILLORS:—Green, Gibbons, Carling Barker, McClary, Clegg, Blair, Leonard, Anderson and Orr.

A by-law was proposed and passed for collecting statute labor.

A petition from Thomas Carter and others for permission to make a drain on Wellington street was referred to the town engineer with orders to report on same.

Moved by Mr. Barker, seconded by Mr. Gibbons: That the tender of Messrs Peters and Sceeton for building the Sewer on Talbot Street between King and Dundas street be accepted—carried.

Mr. Anderson moved and Mr. McClary seconded:

That this council resolve itself into a committee of the whole on the report of the special Finance committee.

Mr. Blair in the chair.

The council resumed, his worship the mayor in the chair.

Proposed by Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Carling.

That the report of the financial committee as past by a committee of the whole be adopted—carried.

Moved by Mr Barker seconded by Mr. Carling:

That the council resolve itself into a committee of the whole on the report of the Town engineer, containing the estimate for the improvement of Dundas, King and Clarance streets,

The committee rose and reported progress When the council resumed.

moved by Mr. Anderson, and seconded by Mr. Carling

That the report of the committee on printing be received and adopted—carried.

Moved by Mr. Barker and seconded by Mr. Gibbons:

That councillors Blair and McClary be a committee to lease a lot for the purpose of piling lumber on—carried,

Moved by Mr. Barker, and seconded by Mr Gibbins

That Mr. Whittemore be appointed as assistant to the town inspector for the next four months at a salary of £5 per month—carried.

Soon after the council adjourned previous to which an animated discussion took place, on a proposition made by the mayor to the council for appointing two extra constables, provided the G. W. R. pay half their salary, a resolution embodying this was proposed by Mr. Carling, seconded by Mr Gibbins, which on a division being taken stood 5 for and 5 against, the mayor who had the casting vote declined to vote either way, the resolution therefore remains over for further discussion.

JUDGE MONDELET.

We referred our readers before to the disgraceful conduct pursued by Judge Mondelet, on the bench in the Lower Province. Since then we have seen his conduct condemned all over the Province, even some grand juries in their addresses to the Queen on her birthday specially commented on it, but behold the government of the Province who boast of the loyalty of Rolph & multis aliis of the same stamp, let it pass in silence he may be regarded it is true as insane, is he therefore the better fitted to discharge the judicial function. Canadians are easily pleased with their judges, and perhaps the higher court in the Lower Province, may now be experiencing some of the qualifications referred to by Lord Durham as then in the inferior court, I shall not add that previous to my leaving the province, I was very usually and forcibly urged by the highest legal authorities in the country to abolish all their tribunals at once on account of great many of them being composed entirely of disaffected French Canadians who were busily occupied in harassing loyal subjects by entertaining actions against them on account of the part they had taken in the late insurrections; there is no appeal from their decisions. And it was stated that they had in the most barefaced manner, given damages against loyal persons, for acts done in the discharge of their duty, and judgement by default against persons who were absent as volunteers in the service of the Queen, and of course this frequently by levying it on their property." No doubt judge Mondelet must have been in the law school, so highly spoken of by Lord Durham, and where her Majesty's subjects were refused justice in her own courts it is quite natural it should have come to her Majesty our turn to be treated so treasonably by one of her own judges. We commend the following from a Montreal paper to our readers, by it we find loyalty is at a discount.

THE QUEEN AND LORD ELGIN.

The justice of the distinction that we drew yesterday between the feelings entertained for the Queen and her representative in Canada, as evinced by the attendance at the Quebec meeting has met with a singular exemplification here. We understand that when the firemen were requested to turn out for the Queen's birthday, some of them manifested the utmost alacrity, while others hung back or positively refused. A day or two since, the subject of a demonstration to receive Lord Elgin being broached, the men who were averse to turning out for the Queen were quite ready to greet this lordship, while those who were most ready to do honor to the Queen, refused plumply to have anything to do with a demonstration in favor of the governor general. Comment is needless.

WEST RIDING OF MIDLESEX.

Last week for want of space we were unable to give insertion to a communication from Strathroy, as to the views embodied in some of the resolutions, we have repeatedly expressed our dissent and determined opposition but there are two the last two 6 and 7 essentially conservative, and we are glad to see them even promulgated, we say even promulgated because we fear the party who can swallow the first will offer a very slender gag, rantee, for observing the two last. Our friend at Strathroy will do well to know beforehand whether the man of their choice is a ministerialist or not, as if he is, his promises as to his independence will prove alike treacherous, those who have not the atribute of stern unbendig integrity when drawn within the whirlpool of ministerial attraction, became so devoid of any self acting power that they become perfectly useless to any but those whose involuntary agents they become, hence we see the slavish majority registering the edicts of their ministerial masters and the utter want of independence, characterising the Wrights Whites, Christies &c. Had their been sufficient independence in the present house to carry the 6 resolution, the Representative bill would have been a just measure but that would not have selected the ministers, it is just as great and object here to balance the French and English representation as it is in England to balance the agriculturalists and the Manufacturers in facet the ministry in both places retain their positions not from any qualities inherent in them, either as statesmen or as honest men but of the skillful balance of parties opposed to them. The 7th resolution can never be carried into operation particularly so long as the Hincks cabinet remains. When a savage beast gets a taste of blood the victim may quail, so those who have handled the debentures and cents of the exchequer, cannot refrain from the itching temptation which possesion of place affords them the opportunity of gratifying. We need forget the 4th resolution it would require a key to unlock, for after applying the clergy reserve funds to the common schools, see resolution 2, there could be no object in having a general Ecclesiastical corporation bill, unless it be for the Lower province and that the Strathroy politicians finding the Roman Catholic party of the Lower Province the steadfast friends of Messrs Hincks & Co., have determined to leave them in the enjoyment and possession of property neither in law or equity as justly sacred to them as the clergy reserves are in this province, to the protestant church, we might dwell at great length on this subject however before dismissing it one question has been asked us are the conservatives of the west riding of Middlesex dead and buried have they any vitality left. There were some good men and true in Metcalf, Adelaide &c where are they, we expect to hear soon of something from them.

RAILROAD REFRESHMENT ROOM.

We were forcibly struck the other day with the difficulty that exists of pleasing every body, from hearing remarks made by a peculiar species of the human genus, who from their cadaverous aspect, shaggy looks and ghost like visage, one would suppose had risen from the tombs, or had escaped from some Calcutta Black Hole. Viz:—That there was nothing fit to eat at the London Station, and that for that nothing they were charged half a dollar! Curiosity, therefore, tempted us to see and judge for ourselves, imagine oursurprise at finding, when the massive covers were removed, Fish, Flesh and Fowl, all hot and well cooked, besides sundry meat-pies, sweet things, and other extras. We confess we never saw in Old England a table better and more substantially supplied, and from the neatness and cleanliness of everything combined with the quantity and quality of the viands, we consider half a dollar very cheap. In a country so fertile of inventions as the United States it is rather a pity some portable patent machine cannot be invented to be used as a travelling companion for supplying the gustatorial wants of these more atoms of humanity offered to above.

BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

We are much gratified to learn that Edward Adams Esq., Ex-mayor has been appointed by the English Board of directors of the Bank of British North America, resident director here. This appointment reflects great credit in this discrimination, and we feel certain that from Mr. Adams' integrity and business habits it will prove most satisfactory to our mercantile community here.

To the Editor of the London Times.

SIR:—

You are respectfully requested to publish the following proceedings in your most valuable journal:—

A preliminary meeting of deligates from various townships in the west riding of Middlesex was convened at Strathroy on Tuesday the 30th inst. for the purpose of taking into consideration the best means for selecting a candidate to be brought forward at the next general election.

The convention composed of respectable deligates from townships of Lobo, Carradock, Ekfrid, Adelaide and Williams, having met, it was moved and seconded,

That T Cook Esq., be appointed chairman, carried.

Archibald Campbell was requested to act as secretary.

The chairman briefly stated the object of the meeting, and after considerable discussion by several gentlemen, respecting the best means to be adopted to accomplish the desired end, it was moved by the Rev. W. Wilkinson, seconded by Mr. P. H. Atwood and

Resolved,—That this convention appoint a committee of three persons to draw up a platform respecting the views of this convention; the committee to consist of the chairman, secretary, and Mr. Adamson, and that the convention adjourn for an hour, carried.

Mr. Wilkinson and Keefer were afterwards added to the Committee.

The committee having taken the matter into consideration, unanimously agreed to the following platform which was brought up for discussion in the meeting, and ultimately adopted without opposition:—

1st. Main Liquor Law.

2nd. Secularization of the Clergy Reserves for common school purposes at the first session of the new parliament.

3rd. The immediate repeal of the sectarian clauses of the Common School Act.

4th. One general ecclesiastical corporation bill, limiting the incomes and powers.

5th. No parliament grants for religious purposes.

6th. Representation based on population irrespective of the division of the province.

7th. Retrenchment in all the departments of the public service.

Moved by Mr. Adamson, seconded by Mr. John Campbell and

Resolved,—That five deligates be appointed by each township to meet in general convention at Strathroy on Wednesday the 21st June next, at 10 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of selecting a fit and proper person as a candidate at the next general election, and that the secretary be requested to correspond with influential parties in the several townships, soliciting them to call public meetings for the election of deligates to said convention, carried.

A vote of thanks having been tendered to the chairman for his efficient conduct, the meeting separated.

ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL,
Secretary.

Strathroy, 31st May, 1854.

The London Vinegar Factory.

To the Editor of the Times.

SIR,—

In the Canadian Free Press of the 1st of June, I noticed a long editorial, "headed," Vinegar factory," and with your permission will reply to it through the medium of your columns.

The subject of this precious document is, Firstly, The Editor of the Free Press "himself" found out this "Vinegar Factory" or shed.

Secondly. That a two story building "had added itself" to the shed.

Thirdly. He saw at the door your humble servant and another specimen of humanity, each with a tumbler of liquor in our hand, and a lot of kegs and barrels scattered about.

Fourthly. He describes the prosperity of London.

Fifthly. Gives sundry receipts for making Port, Madeira, and "Cherry" wines.

Sixthly. He met a load of pickled ham, beef, cheese, &c. on the Godeich road, and cautions the farmers of London, Williams, and Biddulph to beware of them as they were pickled in my vinegar.

Seventhly. He said the country stores and roadside inns are plentifully supplied with adulterated liquors.

Eighthly. He asserts in substance, that what the merchants, grocers and innkeepers, of London sell are adulterated "factious" compounds, falsely called wines, that a bottle of the pure stuff would be a commercial fossil, a natural curiosity, not to be found in London.

What the object of the learned editor of the Free Press is, it is difficult to discover. Does he want to whip the merchants, grocers, innkeepers, on my back, being afraid to attack them direct? Does he wish to convince the public that I manufacture poisonous vinegar? When a writer makes a statement he should either receive his information from one who know it to be correct, and whose testimony is worthy of credit, or he should know it to be true himself.

It appears from the article in the Free Press that the editor has received information from no one but spooks from his own knowledge, and all he knows is what he saw while standing in the street at a considerable distance from the factory. Suppose he was asked, on oath, these questions. Do you know of what ingredients, Mr.—Vinegar is made? I do not! Did you see, taste, or smell it? I saw two tumblers of liquor, but was not sufficiently near to taste or smell it! Did the tumblers contain vinegar? I cannot say! Was the waggon load you met on the Godeich road made at this factory? I do not know! Did you examine it to ascertain whether it was vinegar or liquor, and of what quality? I did not! Have you purchased liquors from all the grocers, and drank wines at all the inns in London? I have not! How then do you know they all sell adulterated factious compounds and that a bottle of the pure stuff would be a commercial fossil? I cannot say!

A lie is an attempt to deceive. The Free Press man has endeavoured to deceive the public by pretending to know that which his own letter proves he does not know. Thus his own story convicts himself.

But I can prove directly, by the certificates of respectable druggists, who have annalized my vinegar that its quality is good harmless, and that it is not made of the ingredients the Free Press asserts; and I can prove by the affidavit of my men, that I did never use (and nobody can prove that I ever have used) logg wood, sugar of lead, coculus indicus, nux vomica, brasie wood, cream of tartar, cockroaches, and thus convicts the article in the Free Press and its author, of what they are. Does the editor imagine his readers will be gratified by his ridiculing my personal appearance, my poverty is my ignorance?

I am accused by him of being a bad grammarian, for having posted on the door "Positive no admittance." I am the more like the learned editor, for in his own article of the same date he writes: The action of the Press is "exceeding simple," incessanty wreaths, "glaring black letters," "harkered," "we laugh in our sleeves"—"we noticed a thing or two"—"factious compounds"—"living running bottles"—"wide awake citizens"—"inscription fastened on with a padlock"—"had added itself," &c. Such palpable errors allow that the great editor of the Canadian Free Press, must either have passed away time in the druggists back yard amongst the barrels he writes about, than the office, or his head must be as muddy as the mixture he describes and with regard to his heart, it must be bad indeed, for he has brought false charges not only against a stranger but also against his own customers and neighbors to injure them in the estimation of the public.

I am sir, yours, &c.

F. THORP.

The certificates appended to the advertisement to be found elsewhere disprove the statement of the use of deleterious matters, and we wish the enterprising manufacturer success.

The Gun Boats for the Fleets.

It is as well perhaps, to remind the public lest an erroneous impression should be created, that Mr. Scott Russell's much vaunted gun boats are propelled by paddle machinery, exposed to the effects of shot and shell, and therefore as vulnerable as the men of war rowing launches, the only difference being that the former are more heavily armed, and, being propelled by steam are of course much faster, although we believe the speed as usual has been exaggerated. On the other hand the new gun-boats building by the Admiralty are to carry guns of the heaviest calibre used in the navy, are to be propelled with screw machinery; so placed as to be altogether out of reach of shot, the machinery being under the water line; they will also have the advantage of being the swiftest steamers in the fleet as well as most formidable gun boats Half a dozen of these are equal to a hundred of the Russian gun-boats, for, as may be easily perceived, they will be much better adapted for War purposes than the paddle wheel gun boats that have been so much puffed off.

To meet however, the requirements, of the war, a class of gun-boats of smaller tonnage and of less horse power machinery, is being constructed—vessels superior in every respect to paddle gun-boats, for they only offer a good target at which to direct a destructive fire.

APPREHENSIONS OF INVASION AT ST. PETERSBURG.

From the London Despatch May 28.

Mr. Frederick Bucknall, a son of Mr. W. Bucknall, of the late eminent Bristol firm of Bucknall and Spark, has just returned from St. Petersburg, where he had been for five years occupying a responsible position in connexion with one of the largest mercantile firms there, and from the accounts which he brings with him it is evident that, in high circles, the possibility of an attack by the combined forces on the capital of Russia is serious y entertained. Amongst the masses in the city a superstitious confidence in the successful issue of the war generally prevails. This is founded on the widely spread belief that the war is a religious one, under aken for religious objects; and it leads to a confidence that, God being with the Em

Russian accounts say that the Turks had evacuated Nicopolis, Turtakai, and Sistowa.

A letter from Bucharest, of the 17th, in the Swedsborg Mercury, says that the Governor-general Baron Budberg, has communicated to the Boyards an order received from the Emperor of Russia, which directs that Lesser Wallachia shall be again occupied, and not only Silistria is oops taken, but likewise Turtakai and Rutschuk. On the frontier of Montenegro, 15,000 Turkish trto be are encamped, and a large camp is to be established at Albania.

THE HOMESTEAD BILL will be passed by Charles Wood, Esq., at New York, on the Evening of June 1854, giving to each of 600 subscribers from 100 feet square to 20 Acres of Land, on the Long Island Rail Road, and but FIFTY miles from New York City.

$43,000 WORTH OF Farms and Building Lots.

100 FARMS

AND

2,000 BUILDING LOTS!!

Will be divided among 600 Subscribers on the Evening of the 30th day of JUNE, 1851.

☞ A large number are already engaged. Many of the Lots near those have been sold from 200 to 500 per cent. advance over the price for which these Lots are now sold; showing that the purchase will be a good investment.

Each subscriber, FOR ONLY $16 pay able in instalment of $2 each will receive FOUR BUILDING LOTS, 25 by 100 feet, lying together, or a FARM of from 2 to 20 acres. These are pleasantly located at LAKELAND, Long Island, where a new Church and School house and a number of private dwellings, stores, workshops and factories, have already been erected, several more are now being built, and an Embankment is effected the coming season.

This is a fine opportunity of getting clear of paying enormous rents in New York and owning a delightful country residence near the city, where the domestic comforts of family circle can be fully realized, and where 25,000 families are said to dwell. 500 farms have lately been sold, and sales are daily being made to individuals who, after careful examination of its location and ascertaining the quality of the soil, are selecting Farms for agricultural purposes, being confident that no land so cheap and calculated to increase so rapidly in value can be had within 50 miles of the city. This land would have been taken up years back, but has been an entailed estate for the last century and consequently locked up for upwards of two hundred years—during which large sums have been made, and where the wild deer roamed at large may now be seen beautiful cottages and cultivated fields waving with the abundant productions of our most fertile soil.

The price at which this land is offered is less than its value for agricultural purposes alone, so that we do not see how any board of investment error can be made to secure a portion of it. This land is well worth the attention of both sellers and speculators, as it affords an opportunity for the safe investment of money. The day is not far distant when all the lands on the line of any railroad or steamboat route, and within fifty miles of New York, will be worth ten times the prices now asked for property in Lakeland.

This is one of the best opportunities now offered to those of small means who are desirous of a home of their own, to purchase one for a mere trifle, also, a few Farms containing each five and ten acres, and upwards, at from $50 to $200 per acre.

☞ All persons wishing to avail themselves of the opportunity now offered to procure a free form of application Building Lots near to Lakeland, can have the same by application, as they are nearly all disposed of. Apply to CHARLES WOOD, 258 Broadway, corner of Fulton street N. Y., where all applications for Lots must be addressed and if required by mail, gratis.

SALE BY AUCTION,

FVALUABLE PROPERTY IN PORT BURWELL.

EDWARD EMERY,

HAS received instruction to submit to public competition,

On Friday, the 14th July next.

at 2 o'clock at his City Auction Rooms, Dundas Street, London, the following valuable property situated in the flourishing town of Port Burwell, viz:

1st. Lot number 18 on the East side of Richmond street, ½ of an acre, having upon it an excellent frame building, comprising a store and dwelling house above, also capital out-buildings and garden. This property was formerly occupied by Mrs. Ann Scott, and is in one of the very best situations for business in Port Burwell.

2nd. Lot number 7, on the east side of Robinson street, containing ½ of an acre, with a good frame dwelling house upon it.

3rd. Lot No. 9, also on the East side of Robinson street, containing ½ of an acre, and with two good Frame houses upon it.

These two last mentioned properties are beautifully situated, and command a fine view of the Harbor and Lake.

TERMS.

One fourth down, or an approved bankable note at 3 months with interest, and the remainder in five equal annual payments with interest upon the unpaid principal. Deed given and Mortgage taken.

This property presents a most favorable opportunity for investment, in one of the most flourishing places in Canada; as it would be difficult to find any situation in which property is more steadily advancing in value, and where there are better openings for business of every kind than in Port Burwell.

Any particulars may be known by application to Wm. Elliot, London.

STEWART'S EMPORIUM OF FASHIONS!

CASH SYSTEM

25 per cent. Cheaper than the Credit System.

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well, but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

His stock will be found to consist of the latest and best materials of Home and Foreign Manufacture, consisting in part of

WEST OF ENGLAND BROAD-CLOTHS

FRENCH GOODS,

SCOTCH TWEEDS,

and a splendid assortment of Silk, Satin and Fancy Vestings, Silk Handkerchiefs, Ties, Gloves of various materials and colors, Shirts, &c., which he is now prepared to sell and make up to order in the latest and most approved English, French or American Styles, at the cost (for cash) ers, at a very small advance on cost (for cash) He has just received the latest fashions from Europe and America, and will continue to receive monthly the very latest styles. He respectfully invites his numerous customers and the public in general to give him a call as early as possible. His workmen will be, as usual, of the first class. The cutting will be done entirely by himself. Ladies habits will receive his particular attention.

☞ Remember! 25 per cent. less than the Credit System.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will, and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaints, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impure state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to commend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. J. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. P. Goodhue, Dr. L. Chessman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Moreano, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Utica, Oneida Co., New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir:—I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1848 I was in the city of New York, and had the Liver disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health. I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class called by the faculty Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, and is characterized by a sense of sinking, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, unstable and at times painless or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and have speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of health, which again invariably follows the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What artificial appendages equal that vivid expression of countenance which the fountains fresh, healthy blood paints on cheeks white with the crimsoned colored blood circulating as it will create hue through the transparent texture of the skin? What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? Let Dr. Halsey's Wine supplies the place of all cosmetics. The use of this excellent wine in a short time creates pure rich blood which, coursing through the veins, penetrates the minutest fibre that verge towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, imparting a delicate, rosy color to the skin and brilliancy of lustre to the eyes.

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, sent to us by her brother residing in Rodgers' street.

NEW YORK, July 7th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister from her youth had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest, about the age of 16 began to cough, which grew to get much worse. For six months previous to commencing with your medicines, she had not been able to get out of the house. Her countenance was pale, emaciated, yellow and sickly. Her face and neck was covered with disagreeable pimples, eyes very much sunken, and her cough increasing. In June last she had the appearance of soon becoming an unhappy victim to consumption. At this time I procured for her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her face symptoms of health appeared, her eyes clear, her face finally became smooth and her complexion very fair. She is now strong and vigorous, and presents the finest example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MAXWELL.

DR. HALSEY'S

GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are coated with pure Gum Arabic, an important invention for which Dr. Halsey has received the 18th Patent ever granted. Secure your Forest Wine Advertised. I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a new man, and continued to use it until entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.
JOHNSON BURKE,
Waverly Hall, N. Y.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause. And therefore delay the use of the remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of sinking, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, unstable and at times painless or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and have speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age: Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

Being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.
