CAPITAL FAMILY RESIDENCES,

in the Town of St. Thomas, County of Elgin

E. EMERY

HAS been favored with instructions from John Wilson, Esq., to submit to Public Competition, at the Town Hall, and on the Premises, if necessary,

On Monday, the 2nd of October, 1854,

At 11 o'clock, a. m., precisely.

The whole of that valuable and beautiful Property known as the Paul Estate, including the splendid and new erected Flouring Mill, Brewery, Family Residences, Store and Store House.

THE LOTS

Are admirably laid out, fronting on spacious streets, and forming some of the most beautiful terraces for Private or Villa Residences that can be desired; commanding some of the finest scenery around St. Thomas, which is celebrated for its beauty and healthy locality. Each lot will contain about ¼ of an acre, varying from fifty to one hundred and fifty feet.

The PARK LOTS contain from 1 to 2 acres each.

THE FLOURING MILL

Which has been recently erected at considerable expense, contains three Run of Stones, with all requisite machinery for doing an extensive business, and its convenience to the Markets will at all times command a large amount of trade.

THE WATER PRIVILEGE

Being beautifully located, and on an excellent stream of water, has not its parallel in the Western Province.

THE FRAME BREWERY

Has also been recently erected, and is on an extensive scale, and capable of doing a good business. These, with the store, &c., are nearly [illegible] rarely to be met with.

THE FRAME [illegible]

Are commodious [illegible] for a good [illegible] family [illegible] with the Subscribers [illegible] and [illegible] water [illegible]

THE FRAME STORE

Is also newly built, and fitted up for a general business, and being on the main road from London [illegible] Port Stanley, and in a line with the flouring mill and brewery, it will command an extensive trade.

Adjoining the store is a large and well built

STORE HOUSE.

Also will be sold at the same time, the Lot nearly opposite the St. Thomas Hotel, and directly west of Dr. Southwick's Drug Store, containing a frontage of 150 feet on Talbot Street.

Also, that splendid business stand opposite Thomas Hodge's new Brick block, containing 100 feet frontage on Talbot Street both of which will be divided into Lots to suit purchasers

Also, four Lots on Pleasant Street, each 50 ft. frontage, and two Lots corner of Centre Pleasant and Walnut Streets, with 50 feet frontage on Centre Street.

The whole of the above property is situated in the rapidly increasing and flourishing Town of St. Thomas, unow the County of Elgin. The town is extending in the direction of this property,—the Court House is already built in the vicinity, and wide excellent streets are laid out in communication with it, and considerable quantity of building lots for building purposes are also purchased

The Railroad Depot will soon be commenced, and eventually the principal part of the town will be in this locality. Its onward course is certain. The London and Port Stanley Railroad, the Southern line of Road will soon be in full operation, and a large amount of money must find its way into the town. The population will rapidly increase, and property of every description will rise in value, and Elgin in a short time will become one of the wealthiest and finest agricultural Counties of the Western Province, and now is the time for parties to invest capital in this part of the town, particularly on the very liberal terms which will be made known the day of sale.

Maps of the property can be seen at the principal hotels and public offices in St. Thomas Port Stanley, London, Ingersoll, Woodstock, Brantford, Hamilton, Toronto, and at the City Auction Mart, London.

STEWART'S
EMPORIUM OF FASHIONS!
CASH SYSTEM
25 per cent. Cheaper than the Credit System.

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well, but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

His stock will be found to consist of the latest and best materials of Home and Foreign Manufacture, consisting in part of

WEST OF ENGLAND BROAD-CLOTHS
FRENCH GOODS,
SCOTCH TWEEDS,

and a splendid assortment of Silk, Satin and Fancy Vestings, Silk Handkerchiefs, Ties, Gloves of various materials and colors, Shirts, &c., which he is now prepared to sell and make up to order in the latest and most approved English, French or American Styles, to suit customers, at a very small advance on cost (for cash).

He has just received the latest fashions from Europe and America, and will continue to receive monthly the very latest styles. He earnestly invites his numerous customers and the public in general to give him a call as early as possible. His workmen will be, as usual, of the first class. The cutting will be done entirely by himself. Ladies' habits will receive his particular attention.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

Door or Coffin Plates Engraved.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties having been more than twenty years before the public. Suffice it to say, having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been benefitted by the experiment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often running in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases by their terrifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE

It is an invalid's remedy for Pulmonic Diseases, Scrofulous, Canal Cracks, the Cancer in its First Stages, Scrofula, Bunis, Frosts, Ulcers, Wounds of every description, Rheumatism, Sore Throat, Asthma, Bronchial Coughs, Sore eyes, Cracked Heels, Spinal and Kidney Complaints, Soreness of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblanes Burns and Scalds, &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. Hitherto, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus diffient, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and pericatly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science as illustrious not practically of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various causes, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Lamination has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Lamination in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

YANKEE DOODLE.

(In the summer of 1775, the British army under command of Abercrombie lay encamped on the east bank of the Hudson River, a little south of the city of Albany, awaiting reinforcements of militia previous to marching upon Ticonderago. During the month of June these raw recruits poured into the camp company after company each man differently armed and equipped and accoutred from his neighbor, and the whole presenting such a spectacle as was never equalled, unless by the regiment of merry Jack Falstaff.)

Their outre appearance furnished great amusement to the British Officers. One Dr. Shackburg, an English surgeon, composed the tune of Yankee Doodle, and arranged it to words which were gravely dedicated to the new recruits. The joke took, and the tune has come down to this day. The original words, which we take from Harper & Moore's Historical Collections, published in 1824, we have not however met with before in many years.)

Father and I went down to the camp,
Along with Captain Goodwin,
Where we saw the men and boys
As thick as hasty pudding.

There was a Captain Washington,
Upon a slapping stallion,
A giving orders to his men,
I guess there was a million.

And then the feathers on his hat,
They looked so tarnal fine.
I wanted peskily to get
To give to my Jemima.

And there they had a swapin gun
As large as log of maple,
On a dearee little cart,
A load for fathers cattle.

And every time they fired it off,
It took a horn of powder—
It made a noise like father's gun,
Only a nation louder.

I went as near to it myself
As Jacobs underpinning
And father went as neer again,
I thought the deuce was in him.

And there I see a little keg,
Its heads were made of leather,
They knock'd upon't with little sticks,
To call the folks together.

And they'd fife away like fun,
And play on cornstalk fiddles,
And some had ribbons red as blood,
All bound about their middles.

The troopers, too, would gallop up,
And line right in our faces,
It scared me almost half to death,
To see them run such races.

Old Uncle Sam came there to change
Some pancakes and some onions,
For lasses cakes to carry home,
To give his wife and young ones.

But I can't tell half I see,
They kept up such a smother;
So I took my hat off—made a bow,
And scampered home to mother

Literature.

The Ruined Potter.

James Fielding was the son of a potter, and bred up to his father's trade, he marriun young—long before he could keep a wife, and with both his parents' consent, rather with their forgiveness, as they could not help themselves for as they said, it was very natral, and he might ha' done worse: 'twar, to be sure, the first time, an' belike he wouldn't do it agen. And so they cordially shook hands with him, and pledg'd the pretty bride in a flagon of old Button, and were both present at the first childs christening. But the cholera came soon afterwards and took away the old man and his wife. This was the opening scene of James Fielding's sufferings, want—pestilence—and death. His wife and himself soon afterwards were both seized with the disorder, and, though they recovered slowly, it was only to find their father and mother, and first born child removed from their once comfortable home to the churchyard, and they themselves with feeble bodies and accumulated debts, which had run on wildly during their sickness. First, James was put into the Jail for the Doctor's bill, and then the landlord distrained for rent and turned them on the world and so they were ruined.

To be in prison, never serves a man, he gets a habit of shifting and shuffling and leaning and talking, and idling, he has the short hand in the pocket walk and the hang down look of a jail companion, he is never a man again.—James Fielding came out of Stafford jail a changed character, more clever, and less capable of work—slantier, but not so refined—prouder, but not more honorable—the edge was taken from the mind and given to the appetites—nevertheless, he was a fond father—for he shortly became one again, and a loving husband to a wife who doated on him. But a thoroughly fallen man seldom rights himself, and bankruptcy is a break up for life in the constitution of successful industry. James Fielding labored, but his toil was fruitless; he found friends, but, one way or other, he let in everybody who had anything to do with him. By degrees, he got, as was natural, a very bad character, and, as is generally the case under such circumstances, without altogether deserving it. He was an unfortunate but not an evil man; and we all know how falling to lies quicken in their descent.

Still, he was a man born to suffer, and to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow.—Men of all countries stations and fortunes, labour—from the serf to the lord, and Fielding's destiny was that of his sex But the gentle and pretty girl whom he had taken from her father's home to comfort and cherish, to keep his fireside clean, and to nurse his little ones around him,—her lot was not cast by God for labor, for toil, and moil and anguish; yet who can tell what arrows of grief pierced that woman's heart during her twelve years apprenticeship to wifedom!

Who shall describe the unwomanly miseries, alas! too common in England, of her daily shifts and struggles, her pigmy gaunt looks her threadbare clothes insufficient to protect her from the winter weather, her hard day-labor, her sharp endurance of hunger, and forgetfulness of her own: her long and catalogue of distresses, compared with which the pains of childbirth and even the death of the child at the breast are nothing, being feminine sufferings.

This poor woe-begone mother stood before good curate Godfrey, one of a noiseless wayfaring body of Christian men, who make little stir beyond their own parish, but are there constantly felt and heard of; the true disciples of the Father of the poor, the world's first teacher of quiet charity.

"He be going fast, indeed he be" said Mary Fielding speaking of the potter who had been some weeks in a low fever. "'Tis hard to the father of one's child'en, I could ha' borne any stroke but thim. Everywhere is a churchyard now—the life is dug out o' me."

"Do not murmur but think of the past. I remember christening some of those children when he and you were full of health and joy. In this journey of life, Mary, there is no hill without a hollow. Your neighbor Susan Jackson will not have to mourn the loss of a husband, for she has never known the love and protection of one; when she goes, she will not leave orphans to grieve for her. But, for all that, Susan is very lonely and destitute and says nobody cares for her."

"Mayhap; but Susan Jackson can't be sorry for what she never had; and poor folk didn't ought so be fanciful. 'Tis me, sir, partin' wi' my husband that should fret."

"But you should remember, Mary, that when James and you were married, it was on the condition James and you were to part one day. We must not forget the ninety-nine favors because the hundredth is not granted The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away."

"Oh, sir, 'tis beautiful to hear ye talk, you always say summut so comfortin', feelin', and sensible like. One is ashamed to grumble afore you, 'tis so selfish an' ill natured."

"But how are the little ones, Mary."

"I can't say much for 'em sir, they be but poorly."

"They have had some food to-day, I hope?"

"'Tis early yet sir." It was past midday.

"But indeed, they have been well."

"Did they eat anything last night before lying down."

"Baby had a sup o' gruel out o' James's cup, and Billy and Jacky and t'other un' had nothing."

"And you?"

"Oh, sir, God be praised I am used to it, ten years is a long prenticeage. 'Tis surprising how the famine feeds itself. An the children cries and him a dyin' drives the thought away from me. I hante got the hard stomach o' hunger, sir; 'tis unfee'in' in a mother."

No wonder she did not feel the gnawings of want, she had passed her being into other existences; she had lost her identity in the wife and the mother.

"Well, well, we must do something for the children Mary."

"Oh, sir, I did na come for that. What I wants is work. You ha' comed unseen us and death many's a time. But, indeed, what I am here for is, afore Jeames goes I wish he could see you sir an' talk wi' you a bit. His mind be strange an uncomfortable like about religion."

"I thought him a believer Mary."

"Mayhap he be; but men tell their wives, what, if they could away like nuh, they could hide from God, an' I heerd him say awful things; he war always so courageous like. Howsomdever his hour be come, and he ha' losed his darin' and he believes jist like a child. I thought, if he could only see you sir."

Mr. Godfrey rang the bell. An aged but notable servant woman came.

"Martha, bring Mrs. Fielding a little warm bread and milk."

"Oh, no, no, sir. 'Tis only my way, what you see in my face, I was alway' palish like, leastways this many a day.

Martha who had promptly obeyed her master returned in a few minutes with a basin.

"There take that gently Mary, it will warm you."

"Will you forgive me, sir? Indeed, I cannot. It ud' choke me. The children, the poor hungry child'en, sir!"

"They shall be thought of."

Mr Godfrey left the room and returned shortly after with his long surtout buttoned closely up and a small parcel in his hand.

"This contains a loaf, Mary—and something else you know what to do with it.

Let me have the ticket when I call, which will be in the course of the evening. Leave me now."

The comforted mother looked on Heaven's minister and then up to Heaven, and passed noiselessly through the small door with faith, hope, and maternal love—the three strong pulses of the heart—to support her. She had the only full and perfect lesson of religion—charity.

But she did not know until she got to the pawnshop, that the poor curate had taken the only force which showed the Indians that their meditated treachery was foreseen and detected, and at once ordered the savage who had dared intimate a resort to force to be instantly taken out and hanged. This order, it appears, was immediately carried into effect, and the body of the Iroquois was buried in the middle of what is now, and always has been, the highway in front of the Chateau St. Louis.

NEWS FROM IRELAND.

POTATO DISEASE.

We regret to learn from accounts by the late mail that the potato blight again prevails to a somewhat alarming extent in Ireland.—The news from different counties seems however to be of a contradictory character.—In some parts the crop is unusually good; in others the disease has infected the potato almost to the core, and thus rendered them wholly unfit for use. An eminent agricultural authority, according to the Times' correspondent, writes in regard to the Midland districts:—

"The potato disease is still making very decided progress upon the leafy system of the plant; and late plants are being afflicted with it according as they arrive at that stage of their growth at which they appear to be specularly susceptible of it; but as yet there is only a small per centage of the tuber affected. Dry, warm weather would have an arrestment tendency, in all probability, to check the virulence to a considerable extent; but as yet we are not in a position to hazard an opinion relative to the ultimate result of that bright crop, which has dealt out blow after blow upon the farming community in Ireland since 1846, and has certainly taught us dearly but experience, to circumscribe its cultivation within safe bounds, and its legitimate limits, while the form not extensive, for as character it stands pre-eminent, requiring the application of manure to produce it; a remunerative producing crop it is the very under cultivation."

The Belfast Mercury speaking of the disease says:

"The magnitude of the crop for 1854 is certainly very much beyond that ever before known in this country. Taking a low average, we would say that the gross value of Ireland's potato lands this season cannot be under £15,000,000 stg. Ulster's area of cultivated soil may be estimated at about 1,300,000 acres, out of a total of 5,500,000 acres in round numbers. From all that we have been able to discover of this season's potato crop in this province, we feel certain that it cannot be under 330,000 acres, while oats extend rather beyond 1,000,000 acres. It would appear that, in highly cultivated lands, and where the seed had been stimulated by rich manure, the old disease has made some progress; not only are the stalks affected, but the tubers exhibit unmistakable symptoms of the old malady. Again where the seed used this season was the produce of potatoes grown last year on a soil precisely similar to that of which it was planted in the present one, failure is found to exist—and what other result could have been expected?"

The Belfast Mercantile Journal writes in a far more desponding tone, and perhaps paints matters in a little too dark light:—

"Whole districts of country, which, ten days since had green and healthy looking potato fields, are now apparently one black and putrid mass, and in too many instances the disease has already attacked the root. We are not alarmists; indeed, our readers well know that our desire is always to keep within the bounds of moderation, but we confess that the universality of our advices from all quarters of Ireland this week has filled us with the most gloomy apprehensions as to the future prospects of this excellent, and we must declare our conviction that the extent of destruction already considerably exceeds that of the last two years; the ground under the crop is happily greatly extended, which will greatly assist in alleviating the distress arising therefrom. Most fortunately, the oat crop promises to be the finest and heaviest we have seen for many years, and considerably in excess of last season, and wheat too, still promises well, notwithstanding the late heavy rains."

The Belfast Whig also writes in a gloomy strain:—

"We regret to say that, having inspected a considerable space of the country within the last few days, we have observed unmistakeable proofs of the potato disease being extensive. On enquiry, our fear as far more than confirmed; and experienced agriculturists assures us that there is no estimating what quantity of the crop may be saved.—The potato fields emit a noisome odour, and, since the rain has recently fallen, this has greatly increased. Fields that a few days ago looked perfectly healthy in fact now show indubitable evidence of having caught the infection."

BOMBARDMENT OF GREYTOWN.

From the London Times.

We have never professed to consider the exercise of protectorate exercised by the British government for a long series of years over the Mosquito coast, as a possession of any practical advantage to the interest or honor of this country, and we learned with great satisfaction, about four years ago, that a treaty had been signed at Washington by Sir Henry Bulwer and Mr. Clayton, the American secretary of State, for the purpose of opening the communication between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans by way of Nicaragua under the joint protection of the maritime power most interested in the prosecution of that undertaking. The spirit of that treaty was perfectly fair and just; and if ever any treaty had been claimed by the United States government in its former relation with the Mosquito Indians, as far back as under the administration of Central America, those claims were, we think, wisely relinquished in exchange for a positive engagement from the United States government that it would co-operate with ourselves in the safety of its which give a peculiar value and importance to that part of the globe—namely, the opening of a secure line of communication between the two oceans, and the establishment of two free ports for all nations at each extremity of the canal. For this purpose the commercial stations at which this trade is carried on, would naturally become important free cities, like the Hanseatic towns of Europe, having no political character or strength, but respected by all the world for their services rendered to the interests of society.

This being the principle which the British government has for some time past proclaimed and acted with reference to the passage of Nicaragua, with the full concurrence of the United States, it is with considerable surprise and regret that we see Greytown, at the San Juan, has recently been attacked and destroyed, by one of the most extraordinary outrages ever committed by the commissioned officers of any civilised State.—The facts, which are at present only known to us through the American Journals, are as follows:—

It appears that a quarrel had taken place on board the San Juan, between one Captain Smith, commander of a small American steamer, and the owner of a bungo, or barge, on the river. The native levelled his piece at Captain Smith but did not fire.

Captain Smith shortly afterwards called for his rifle and coolly shot this unfortunate Indian through the heart. Upon the return of the steamer Greytown, the authorities of that place proceeded not unreasonably, to attempt the capture of the murderer. The Americans, however, resisted the Mayor on the ground that there was no authority in Greytown competent to arrest and try an American citizen. Captain Smith retired on board a steamer in the harbor, and oddly enough, Mr. Boorland, the Minister of the United States in Central America, who was present, thought it consistent with his duty and dignity to take the part of the culprit. A riot ensued, in which Mr. Borland received the fragment of a bottle in his face.

Upon the provocation, the Americans having mdeaunded the assistance of Captain Hollins, of the United States ship-of-war Cyane, that officer proceeded to threaten the place with bombardment unless satisfaction were afforded by the payment of a sum of $24,000 within a few hours.

Greytown was, in fact, a village consisting of about one hundred low huts, thatched with palm leaves, and containing 500 inhabitants, chiefly Jamaica negroes or Mosquito Indians, with a few European traders. Upon Captain Hollins making this threat this mixed population fled to the neighboring woods, and the English residents went on board her Majesty's ship Bermuda, which was unluckily the only British vessel in the harbor, and too small to oppose the American ship.

To the astonishment of every one who witnessed the outrage Captain Hollins' terms not having been complied with, he opened his fire upon this defenceless and abandoned town which was soon in ruins; and its destruction was completed by landing men to set it on fire. The whole of the property contained in the warehouses was left totally destitute.

Greytown is not a British possession; if it had been measures would have been taken to repel so wanton and barbarous attack; but we have at this time no further interests than that which results from the commercial undertakings in which British subjects may be engaged there.

It is impossible, however, to lose sight of the fact, which stands recorded in a solemn treaty, that Great Britain waived and relinquished her rights to the protectorate of the Mosquito Coast and of Greytown, its principal trading station, on the express stipulation with the United States, that they would in conjuction with ourselves, "guarantee the neutrality and security of the passage." The object of the treaty was to promote "the construction of the communication between the two oceans for the benefit of mankind, on equal terms to all, and for the protection of the same." It is certainly a most extraordinary violation of the spirit of that treaty, that an American sloop of war should have presumed, in defence of at least a very doubtful cause to attack and destroy the principal communication which the American Government is expressly bound to maintain and protect. The act of Captain Hollins speaks for itself. It is, indeed, without a parallel in any history with which we are acquainted, for the place was wholly incapable of firing a shot in its defence, and not a man was killed or wounded in the attack and the enterprise was one of mere destruction. The American papers from which we have extracted these details record them with the strongest expression of shame and regret, and we cannot doubt that the public opinion of the enlightened classes of the United States will condemn these proceedings as strongly as the judgement of every other part of the world.

There is, in this case, no war and no provocation to account for, or palliate such a measure. Far from being at war with the States of Central America, the government of the United States has always affected to regard them with peculiar interest; it is an act of violence that would have disgraced a buccaneer. Indeed, considering the species of protection established by the treaty of 1850, and the engagements contracted by the United States towards this country and the whole world, for the security of the passage, this outrage of Captain Hollins is an contempt of the authority of his own government, and a gross breach of faith to every nation which may have mercantile transactions carried on across the Isthmus of Nicaragua.

Lady Franklin.

A few months ago, when the British government abandoned their fruitless search for Sir John Franklin, we thought the long cherished hope of his wife would fade away.

But the result has proved that we were mistaken. Our readers are doubtless aware that she will not accept the pension offered her, and thus acknowledge herself a widow.

Years have rolled into eternity since her husband left her for a perilous voyage, through mysterious, and ice-locked channels, and there is scarcely the faintest shadow of probability that he has escaped the numberless dangers, which threaten the mariner on the Arctic sea. Expeditions have been sent out to discover the lost ones, but all their efforts have been vain. Everybody, save the forlorn and anxious wife, has settled down into the belief that Franklin is dead, yet she still clings with wild and passionate tenacity to the hope that he lives.

There is something very touching in this; though we can see no reasonable ground for it, the heart thrills as we think of such devotion.

We respect her for the spirit which she has manifested, and our sympathy weaves itself round the solitary woman; hoping on in her loneliness and suspense. We like to think of her and other heroines, of whom our sex may be justly proud—of the brave, old Spartan mothers; the Landis's wife, immortalized in the sweet verse of Felicia Hemans, and those, who with lofty courage exchanged the pleasant homes of England for a dreary hut in the wilderness and the hardships of a pioneer life.

It would be well if we would often remember those self-sacrificing women, when we are disheartened at petty trials. When the shades of misfortune begin to deepen, let us not ignobly sink beneath our burden, but go forward with unflinching trust and perform every duty which devolves upon us. Then and not till then shall we perform the true mission of woman.

THE WAR.

The Morning Chronicle says, "by this time the allies have landed in the Crimea, and we shall soon hear of important events."

The Turks are taking the offensive vigorously in Bessabaria, and Schamyl has commenced operations with them in earnest, having arrested the tide of Russian success beyond the Caucasus.

The Sebastopol expedition will consist of 25,000, French and English, and 20,000 Turks.

Austria does not consider the refusal of Russia a casus belli.

Late advices from St. Domingo report the fever to be raging to an alarming extent, but more especially among the shipping.

There is little news of importance from the Baltic.

The fire engines at Odessa have been ordered to be destroyed by the Russians. Gen. Bebutoff has evacuated Bayazlet and blown up the fortress.

A Constantinople dispatch says Schamyl has surprised the Russian army in Georgia, and destroyed 200 villages.

The Duke of Cambridge, Prince Napoleon, and the Rifle, and other regiments have left Constantinople for Varna, Lord Raglan would embark at Varna in the Caradoc on the 2nd, and the expedition was to rendezvous at Baltschick. The troops are represented as being enthusiastic.

The French troops in the Baltic are to return immediately to France.

An Austrian will persevere in supporting the guarantees from Russia, and will await the result of the operations against Sebastopol.

The Russians are making preparations to burn the cities of Odessa, Revel, Brailow, Geldz and Ismail, should they be forced to abandon them.

Russia rejects the proposition of the four Powers.

FRANCE.

From the camp at Boulonge we have a flood of accounts of the manoeuvres of the troops before the Emperor and Prince Albert.

SPAIN.

M. Soule is charged by French and Spanish papers with conniving against the tranquility of Spain. It is said that he is identified with a cabal against General Espatero, and to be connected with sundry attempts at insurrection. The London Times correspondent thinks the proof against him is so strong that he will not return back to Madrid.

HOW EMIGRANTS SUFFER.

(From the New York Tribune September 6)

A PRESENT HORROR.

Many a fair and tender hearted maiden has read and wept over accounts of the terrible abuses and suffering of the African captives or other victims of the atrocious slave trade, without suspecting that scenes nearly as revolting and quite as painful are occurring almost nightly within sight of their own homes. Yes, right here on the Hudson, on the forward decks of our stately and beautiful steamers, there is almost nightly exhibited a spectacle of indecency, constraint, exposure to disease, and positive misery, which well make a mur[illegible] ship to mankind.

The bell rings its last warning; the steam gives its final shriek [illegible] and the boat moves off in grandeur, as it wends its way to Albany. All the [illegible] upper deck are filled, and the promenades are thronged by a lively, laughing, pleasure-seeking crowd, whom the gong will soon summon to their bounteous supper, whence they will return to chat, to read, to saunter, until they shall severally glide away to their several state rooms or cabin berths, and sleep or muse till sunrise welcomes them to Albany. What know these of the sufferings endured, the perils wantonly imposed on that very steamer—perils outvieing those of the middle passage, and sufferings such as demons could scarcely have the heart to devise and inflict?

For there, on the forward deck of that boat shut off by a relentless grating from all shelter hospitality or intercourse except with each other, are huddled together some scores or hundreds of poor emigrants bound for the rich but distant prairies of the West. Most of these are natives of Europe, perhaps just landed on our shores—possibly that day released from shipboard, and having scarcely set foot upon the soil of the New World—but there are often intermingled natives of our city, of the adjacent country of New Jersey or New England, flying from the inexorable and unremitting toil to which the portioneless and simple among crowded population are too generally subjected. They have little money and many children, and they take the cheapest conveyance proffered them, being assured that it is nevertheless decent, comfortable and not unwholesome.

Miserable prevarication! murderous deceit! On reaching the boat at the appointed time, they are not permitted even to go on board at the common gangway, but are roughly ordered to go forward. There the stern reality first breaks upon their bewildered vision—the hard deck no mattress—the open sky is their only covering. But this is not all. Scores after scores of fresh emigrants, reeking with the miasma of long confinement in the steerage during the ocean passage, are pitched upon them until the naked, at which they first revolted as beds, are no longer attainable; they would gladly pay for a chance to rest their weary limbs on the clammy deck, and the men must take turns in standing up through the night.

For the women space is generally made, so that they can sit down and lean their children against them on this side and that, smothering their [illegible]avable mornings so that the youngest may snatch an hour or two of troubled slumber during some part of the weary night. For the inevitable sickness and distress of many there are no preparations; they must vomit as they can. Not even a rough awning—costing, perhaps, fifty dollars—is drawn over them; but the autumn dews fall unintercepted upon mother and babe, sire and son; and when they thunder storms and squalls comes on they have no recourse, but to huddle closer together, if possible, shrink and shiver and suffer.

It is our deliberate judgement that no negro trader in the South would permit a cargo of his human chattles to be carried for a single night with as little regard to their health and comfort—to say nothing of decency—as is regularly evinced in the transportation of free white emigrants (many of them American born) from this city to Albany. We believe it far below the truth to estimate that three thousand human lives are annually sacrificed through the ravages of diarrhœa, dysentrey, cholera, rheumatism and fevers, in consequence of this North river exposure alone. And we call upon our city authorities, either alone or in conjuction with those of Albany, to take instant and effective measures to arrest this wholesale sacrifice of human life and happiness on the alter of the basest avarice, and the most reckless inhumanity.

Progress of Crime in Buffalo

On Tuesday evening last, M. Luther Adams, was enticed out of the way, dragged and probably murdered.—On Wednesday last Mr. J. C. Emigh, of Wisconsin, while resting on his bed, after dinner, at the "Robert Emmet House," in the lower part of the city, was robbed of $226, all the money he had on his person. Fortunately he had friends in the city, or he might have been left destitute of means to return home. On Saturday night a man by the name of Colby was dragged by a notorious sharper and put in the position of certain "know nothing." He then procured a bed for Colby and himself and they went to bed together. In the morning Colby found that his sleeping partner had "vamosed" taking with him all his money and loose change, leaving him only an aching head and foul stomach with which to finish his visit to the city. A man was arrested last evening calling himself Jackson, alis Benson, who was seen with Colby, and is supposed to be the person who slept with him. On his person were found sundry articles which will doubtless lead to his implication in other crimes. Mr. W. Baker recognizes him as the man who was with Luther Adams at his house, and we understand made the arrest himself, taking him to the Police office and causing him to be locked up. He will probably have an examination to day. Coroner Morse held an inquest on the body of a man found in the creek at the foot of Washington street. The person was five feet high had on a blue shirt, stripped cotton under shirt, black cassimere pantaloons, linen drawers and calf skin shoes. On his head were found two cuts two inches long extending through the scalp. No doubt the man was murdered.—Buffalo Republic.

The Churchman (organ of the high church Episcopalians,) published in New York comes out in a strong three column leader, denunciatory of the Know Nothings, and calling upon the good and patriotic of all classes to set their faces against any and all such organizations.

Provincial.

(Hon. F. Hincks to John Wilson Esquire M. P. P.)

QUEBEC, September 14.

My Dear Sir,

I find myself placed in a very painful position, owing to rumors industriously circulated and affecting my personal honor with which your name is mixed up. It is alleged that after having on Friday last called a meeting of the supporter of the ex-ministers, and proposed you as leader of the party with which I had acted, I subsequently consented to support a coalition with Sir Allan McNab's party under the arrangements for which you were personally sacrificed, and that the whole negociations was carried on, and concluded with your knowledge. Such in substance are the allegations of the present opposition. The facts are as follows:—I did propose you as the leader of the ministerial party, at a meeting of that party numerously attended. It is worthy of remark that Mr. Rolph did not attend that meeting though notified, and that Mr. Foley who acts in concert with him, declared that he could not act under you as a leader. Mr. Merritt also opposed your nomination. Both these gentlemen have since gone over to the McDonald-Brown party. My object in proposing you as leader was, that in my opinion you was the only man likely to be able to unite the liberal conservatives who were pledged to secularization, with the Reformers, and thus affect and arrangement by which the affairs of the country could be carried on. I need not assure you, that at the time, I had no idea whatever that Sir Allan McNab, who had been sent for by the governor general as we all knew, would be willing to form a government on the basis of carrying the secularization of the clergy reserves. When I found that Mr. Morin had entered into negociations with Sir Allan McNab for the formation of a new government on the basis of carrying out the measures of the [illegible] ment, and that [illegible] should be [illegible] pressed [illegible]

[illegible] by Sir [illegible] or the circumstances [illegible] acted, but come [illegible] to secularization, and [illegible] public opinion of the country had been unequivocally expressed on that as well as the other questions at issue. It is [illegible] a great sacrifice of feeling for Sir Allan McNab to make, but in the state of parties in the house, I do maintain most unhesitatingly that no government could be formed except by means of a coalition of some kind, and in point of fact, there is no very material differences between the present coalition and any which could be formed under your leadership. It is notorious that the party in the house led by Mr. Dorion of Montreal, and by John S. McDonald and Mr. Brown, does not number more than about 40 in a house of 130, and even had I and all my friends consented with that party on the basis of surrendering to them all the influences of government, we should still have been in a minority. I have conclusive proof that the adherents of Sir Allan McNab and Mr. Morin formed a majority of the House, without a single vote from the ex ministerial party in Upper Canada. It was, however, evident that to secure a really strong and efficient government, a more extended coalition was necessary, and that could not take place between Mr. Morin and his friends and Mr. Dorion and Mr. McDonald, there was no other possible mode in my judgment by which such an Administration could be formed as would ensure confidence both at home and abroad in the stability of the government. I have troubled you with these remarks that you may understand fully my views as to the position of parties when resignation was forced upon me by a section of the Reformers in Upper Canada. My principle object however, is to set myself right before the public as to yourself. When Sir Allan requested an interview with me on Saturday last, and expressed to me his views as to the formation of a coalition government on the basis already referred to, and to which I could not object, I told him frankly, that unless two gentlemen having the full confidence of myself and my friends were included in the administration, as a guarantee to our party throughout the country that the great measures now pending should be carried out, and that the coalition was a bona fide one, based on the adoption of common principles. I did not believe that the new government would command the confidence of the country. This opinion was given to Sir Allan McNab late on Saturday, and he made an appointment to meet me again the next morning, as he had of course to consult his friends.

So far our communication had been strictly confidential, and I had no authority to consult my friends. The next morning Sir Allan McNab informed me that he was prepared to form a government on the basis proposed. And he then authorized me to see my friends, and made another appointment for the evening, when I was to communicate the result. Almost immediately after leaving Sir Allan I quite accidentally met my friend Mr. James Smith, M. P. P. for Victoria, with his brother the member for West Northumberland, and after a few minutes conversation I asked Mr. J. Smith, to accompany me to your lodgings, feeling that in your position I ought to lose no time in consulting you. I was with you within half an hour after my interview with Sir Allan McNab. I entered fully and frankly into the subject in the presence of Mr. Smith, and I find that we both understood you in the same way.—You admitted all the difficulties of your position as a party, you condemned the course of those who had forced the resignation on the government; you said that you could not blame Mr. Morin for forming the coalition with Sir Allan McNab on the proposed basis, but you further declared that there were reasons which would prevent you from joining a party to such an arrangement, and you would go into the opposition, but you added that if any of your friends felt inclined to join the coalition government, you had no objection to their doing so. Such in substance was your communication, and you expressed yourself in similar terms to me yesterday in the presence of our mutual friend Mr. Niles. I subsequently saw other friends, and the result was that the great majority of Upper Canada members of the liberal party who had adhered to the ex-ministers were of opinion that we would not be justified in opposing a government formed on the basis proposed.—It is to be observed that Mr. Foley and Mr. Merritt had separated from our party on your being appointed leader, so that our strength was diminished, though it is still about the one half of the entire liberal party from Upper Canada. It is but justice to Mr. Spence to state that he became convinced that the only reliable mode of obtaining the immediate secularization of the reserves was by supporting the new Government, before he or I had the least idea that that office would be offered to him. He has acted at all events conscientiously, and on the highest public considerations, and if it should turn out hereafter that he has committed an error, all that I can say is that it is shared by many as sincere and disinterested reformers as any that can be found in the ranks of the opposition. While I am sorry to find that after consideration you have determined to separate yourself from me and from those with whom I act I confess that my principal anxiety is to convince the public, now grossly deceived by calumnies of the basest kind, industriously circulated, that I have in all these difficult negociations acted towards you in perfect good faith, and with frankness and sincerity. The opposition leader has declared in the House that I have lost the confidence of the country. I admit the truthe of the statement so far as the votes of Upper Canada are concerned, and so far as they were brought to bear upon the composition of the late administration; but, I emphatically deny that the member for Glengarry has so large an amount of the confidence either of the Upper Canada section of the House or of the country as I have. It must, however, be plain, that having so lost confidence, my duty was to resign; and yet, those who compelled me to do so, and who have destroyed the unity of our party, hold me responsible for the consequences of their own factious conduct.

Having resigned, I maintain that I should have been degraded as a public man, had I gone into opposition to my colleagues from Lower Canada with whom I had acted for years, to whom I was bound by every tie of political confidence and personal friendship, and from whom I was compelled to separate because I could not give them the support necessary to carry out our measures—I should have had to oppose them on factious grounds alone, and because having abandoned them I would not allow them to seek support where it alone could be had to carry out a policy of which I entirely approve—my opinion of the new administration is this: I rely with implicit confidence on the personal honor of Sir Allan McNab, Mr. McDonald, and Mr. Caley to carry out the policy to which they have pledged themselves, and I think they ought to be held justified by their friends for they made a great sacrifice of feeling in order to ensure for the country what is much wanted at such a crisis as this, a stable and efficient government. This is no time to make difficulties. The great measures must be carried—the whisper of factions must be silenced. As to my other colleagues, I feel that I, at all events can promise my support to government, while my valued friends from Lower Canada, together with Messrs. Rose and Spence are members of it. The latter gentleman more especially will, I feel confident, sacrifice there feelings also in joining a coalition government, deserve a generous and cordial support. I have deemed it a duty to trouble you with these remarks, and I am sure you will do me the justice to acknowledge the straightforward frankness and sincerity of your conduct throughout.

I remain,
Very truly yours,
JOHN WILSON.

THE EXHIBITION.

It is to be regretted that want of space prevents us from giving anything like a detailed account of the proceedings of the present week relative to the exhibition; the subject will be dwelt upon more fully in our next issue. As to the weather it was rather hot on Wednesday, but a moderate thunder-storm laid the dust and lessened the heat, so that during the rest of the days the sky was clear and sunny, and the air exhilirating. The city arrangements were excellent and enterprising. The council deserve great praise for their exertions and activity. All building materials were removed from the main thoroughfares and the side walks &c., were well attended to; while several conspicuous streets were nicely levelled. A Police force was prepared and the pensioners placed on duty. Great exertions were also made to have the town lighed with gas. The Fine Grounds.—These were tastefully laid out. Carriage drives were staked out and furnished on each side with the tops of evergreen trees so inserted into the ground as to give the appearance of being rooted. Groups of the same were placed in various parts. There was a lack, however, of benches for the weary. Large tents were prepared for the several departments of manufactures, the fine arts and agricultural products. Sheds were arranged for carriages &c., and convenient pens for sheep, pigs, calves, &c. The larger cattle were tethered in rows at stakes and at the doors. There was no confusion in general arrangements. Suitable refreshment bars were licensed on the ground and there were proper places for the exhibitien. A stream which passes through the ground was dammed up to form a pond, known in London as "Lake [illegible]," which added much to the beauty of the place and furnished an abundant supply of water for the cattle. Numerous flags and ensigns were erected around the enclosure, and at several prominent places, waved gracefully in the breeze. The "Royal Hall" exhibited much taste and attracted great attention; the outside was beautifully decorated with evergreens and flags; within [illegible] the fine arts vied with each other in splendor and preminence. The handiwork of the "[illegible] of creation" was also well represented by the graceful productions of the fair sex. Painting and fancy needlework; highly finished jewelry and nicely embroidered articles—the ornamental and the useful—the natural and the artistic [illegible] themselves in productions of every imaginable style and description, [illegible] and quality.

The articles exhibited were worthy of the Province, and were respectable in number. We cannot to day particularize. London acquitted itself well; Herman Kordes' musical instruments; McBrides and Lowries carriages; Mrs. Leurie's shell and worsted work &c., &c., compared most favorably with anything on the ground—indeed there was nothing to equal De Baines piano mechanique as exhibited by Mr. Kordes. The agricultural department was satisfactory. Cattle numerous and excellent, Horses a fine show. Hogs numerous, some of them mere masses of pork—void of locomotion. Sheep very good. A large assortment of poultry especially Shanghai and Dorkins.—Attendance. The Governor General arrived in town on Wednesday afternoon, and was met by the civic authorities, Firemen and their bands, &c., and proceeded under ornamental arches to the Robinson Hall, from the balcony of which an address was read, and an extemporaneous reply made by His Excellency. Concerning this "address" which was in excessively bad taste, and the reply we shall insert next week. His Excellency delivered a speech the next day on the ground, and took intense interest in examining the Exhibition. The only thing which was noticeable of an untoward nature during the Exhibition, was the cool reception of the Governor; his situation on the balcony at the Robinson Hall was truly embarrassing, for a second or two after his appearance there was not a single shout of welcome, and in his journey through the streets no stranger would have known that other than an ordinary gentleman was passing along all being quiet and significantly tame! Visitors appeared in immense multitudes and every house of public entertainment and private residence was crowded to excess.

PROVINCIAL FAIR.

We delay the issuing of the present number several hours, for the purpose of furnishing our readers with the President's Address, which was delivered this day, on the Exhibition Grounds.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,

It devolves on me, as your President for the present year, to deliver the annual address, before the Agricultural Association of Upper Canada, and this numerous and highly respectable audience. I regret much that this honorable and responsible duty had not fallen into abler hands.

A bountiful Providence has again crowned the labors of the husbandman with abundant success: while we enjoy peace within our borders, we, as well as the inhabitants of the principal cities and towns of America, have to mourn the ravages of an epidemic for the most part confined to the emigrants arriving on our shores, yet many of all classes of our resident population have borne its victims.

Another cause of deep regret must be the war in which the principal nations of Europe are engaged, and which has already resulted in the profuse effusion of human blood. It is nevertheless gratifying to know that the British Flag which has so long "braved the battle and the breeze" is once more untarnished, and in connection with France, sustaining the side of right and justice—and leading the oppressed against the oppressor.

As the gentlemen who have previously occupied the Presidential chair of this Institution, have been those possessing a thorough knowledge of the agriculture of the Province, and all branches connected with it, they have left me but narrow limits upon which to address you at this time, even had my acquaintance with its theory and practice been much more extensive.

The Government has been pleased to grant the usual amount of our annual [illegible] to assist in carrying forward the operations of the Association. The [illegible] an increase to our grant, which they should be awarded in one [illegible]

The Town of London and the Counties of Middlesex and Elgin have set a noble example in contributing for the present year, the handsome sum of £1,000, and I believe that other sections of Canada may follow them in this respect.

The business and profession of the farmer is beginning to assume the commanding position to which it is justly entitled, and I believe that our enlightened young men are fast yielding up their repugnance against it. It is obviously the case that when agriculture, manufactures, and professional men acquire fortunes in their different avocations, they usually retire to farms of greater or less extent. A great proportion of the good men of all ages have followed farming for early life, and to none can the liberties of a country be entrusted with more safety than to its agricultural population; at the same time, it is necessary that the agricultural portion should be fully represented in our Legislative halls.

I beg to quote from a speech of the Hon. William C. Rives, of Virginia, delivered before the New-York State Agricultural Society last autumn, the following statement, viz.:—

"That when, in 1840, the whole population of the United States amounted to a little more than 17,000,000, and the effective force of 4,620,907 was employed in the pursuits of agriculture, manufactures and commerce; of that number, 3,719,951, or 80 4-10 per cent, were engaged in agriculture, 781,745, or 17 1-10, in manufactures, and 117,697, or 2 5-10 per cent, in commerce. Though these proportions may have varied somewhat since, and will doubtless continue to vary, in a greater or less degree, from time to time, yet nothing is more certain, than, that for ages to come, agriculture will be the chosen occupation of a large majority of the republican people of America."

In the following paragraph he goes on to state, "That while agriculture employs, and must long continue to employ, much the largest portion of American labor, it also contributes by its products, much the largest account to the sum of the National income wealth. The whole annual produce of industry of every kind in 1840, has been estimated by a learned and ingenious statist, drawing his conclusions from a document to which I have just referred, (Prof. Tucker, on the progress of the United States,) at the sum total of $1,063,134,736, of which $881,887,367 were derived from agriculture; $239,826,194 from manufactures; and $74,271,068 from commerce, and the balance from mining, the forests, and the fisheries combined."

I think I am safe in saying that the agriculture of the United States has since that time fully kept pace with its commerce, manufactures, and other sources of revenue, from the talent, experience, and research of its great men which have been brought to bear upon it, as well as from the opening up of the Western States, although the influx of the precious metals from California and Australia, will have a tendancy to alter the relative proportion of their revenues.

From a slight review of the census of Canada in 1851, it may be stated that the effective force of Upper Canada amounts to a little more than two hundred and twenty thousand, of which more than one-third are farmers, about one-third are laborers, of which class nearly all will soon be added to our agricultural population, the remaining third includes the liberal professions, the merchants, manufacturers, and all other classes of the community, a large proportion of whom either occupy or own farms.

I have to apologize for quoting from a speech lately made by the American Minister at the Court of St. James, before the Royal Agricultural Society of England. He stated that the Annual products of the United States is:—

"Two million bales of Cotton.
Two hundred million pounds of Tobacco.
Two hundred million pounds of Rice.
One hundred millions bushels of Wheat.
And, Six hundred million bushels Maize or Indian Corn.

The United States contained, according to the census of 1850, a population of more than twenty three millions, [illegible] millions are slaves. We should [illegible] bly of Canada, when we [illegible] that our products [illegible] to a limited [illegible] be almost incredible [illegible] ent the deficiency is in some degree by the quality of [illegible] which is well collect [illegible] and cheaply an article for exportation, in wheat, oats and potatoes we far exceed them in proportion to our numbers, as was shown in the valuable almanac of and most regretted late Hugh Scobie, for the year 1850. To each inhabitant there was grown in the United States in the year 1840, of wheat, 4-95, while 6-62 was the proportion in Canada. For the same year of Oats, 7-21 in the former, to 9-85 in the latter. Potatoes, 6-35 against 15-32 for Canada.

For the year [illegible] quantities stand [illegible]

	Wheat.	Oats.
For the United States, [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
For Canada,	1-6-45	9-75 6-57

Although Upper Canada can boast only of a population of less than a million, who, nevertheless, all participate in the privileges of British freedom, it is confidently expected that we shall this year export twelve million bushels of wheat besides what is required for our own consumption and our other agricultural exports, will also be more than in former years. From the Toronto Almanac of the late Charles Fothingil, I find that Toronto, in 1826, then York, contained only 1,677 inhabitants; in 1839 it had increased to 12,571, and from the census of 1851 I find that it then contained 30,775. Of course it far exceeds the later number at present.

In 1837 London contained but 708 inhabitants in 1850, it had increased to 7,035 being nearly ten fold in twelve years. But the census taken the present year year shows that within the last fifteen years it has increased fifteen fold. The progress of London considering its inland and isloated position, is without a parallel, it having no water communication whatever. The Thames upon which it is situated, furnishes but limited water power for mills, having no canals, and until within a few months no railroads, its rapid advancement has been owing under the blessing of Providence, to the industry and enterprise of its farmers, its merchants, manufacturers and mechanics, its fine agricultural climate, together with its having at an early period of its settlement constructed good roads in every direction.

By referring to the Toronto Almanac of 1849, I think that in 1826 the value of the assessed property of the Upper Province amounted to two millions and a quarter; in 1829 it was more than five millions, in 1848 it was seventeen millions and a half, and again in 1852 it was more than thirty-six million pounds. But I must here remark that between the two last dates, the system of assessment was changed, so that, although the value of taxable property was greatly increased, the increase was not so much as would appear at first sight.

From Mr. Huttens valuable census report I take the liberty of making the following extracts:—

"The population of the United States, according to the census of 1850, and exclusive of territorial additions, was:—

Census of 1840	23,091,183 17,067,453
Increase in ten years	6,023,035 or 35-27 per cent.
Census of Great Britain in 1851,	21,121,967
Census of 1841	18,658,572
Increase in ten years	2,463,595 or 13-37 per cent.
Census of Ireland, 1841	8,163,124
Census of 1851	6,515,794
Decrease in ten years	1,647,330, or 20 per cent.
Census of Upper Canada in 1851	952,004
Census of 1841	465,357
Increase in ten years	486,647, or 104-58 per cent.

From the same source I extract the following statistics of produce and farm stock:—

In Upper Canada there are cultivated:—

Of wheat,	709,383 acres,
producing in 1850,	12,075,003 bushels.
Of Indian corn,	75,049 acres,

The thanks of this association is due to the gentle men of the Press of London to the Mechanics' Institute, to the Fire Companies, and the different bands for their exertions in favor of the Exhibition.

We feel under many obligations to the citizens general y for their generous hospitality to strangers visiting London on this occasion.

The country is greatly indebted to the Great Western Railroad Company for their generosity in transmitting the articles intended for the Exhibition free of charge, and it is gratifying to find that this great undertaking is likely to prove remunerative.

In conclusion we must be thankful to a merciful God, while we acknowledge his kindness in having cast our lot in a land of Gospel light, and liberty, and under a form of Government, which, if properly administered is not inferior to any, that our merchants, as well as the merchants of the nation to which we belong, are trading with all the distant nations of the earth, and the missionary and the gospel are following in their train, wherever Britain and her offspring, have set their foot and unfurled their banners, rivet and religious liberty overspread the land. The fields flow with milk and honey, the arts flourish, education advances, manufactures every where spring into life, and the fields and mines contribute to the comfort and the welfare of mankid. It true to ourselves and the blessing of God be not withdrawn from us we must soon become a great, powerful and religious people.

STEWART'S
EMPORIUM OF FASHIONS!
CASH SYSTEM

25 per cent. Cheaper than the Credit System.

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

His stock will be found to consist of the latest and best materials of Home and Foreign Manufacture, consisting in part of

He has just received the latest fashions from Europe and America, and will continue to receive monthly the very latest styles. He earnestly invites his numerous customers and the public in general to give him a call as early as possible. His workmen will be, as usual, of the first class. MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING TODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties—having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine are before the public, the admits of no dispute in almost every city and village in the United States. There are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

I was about to employ one, when you visited this place and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in three weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent of cure.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE

Of is an infallible remedy for Bowels, Fistulas, Scrofula's, Fresh Sores, Ulcers, Piles, Inflammation, Sudden Rheumatism, Fresh Wounds, Wind Colic of children, Inflammation, Colics and Cuts, Chilblains, Sore eyes, Ringworm, Scurvy, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Sore throat, Diseases of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblains Burns and Scalds, &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is in fact, the vitality of life, and that diseases, in many of its most painful forms are entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus difficult, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid, which has cost the inventor of this remedy, years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily acquiesce of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various causes, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the annexed testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Poetry.

The Bible.

Go fling the gaudy robe aside,
Unbind the jewel from thy hair,
And casting thoughts of earth away;
Oh! maiden, bend thy heart in prayer,
And turn thee to the path of truth,
Then seek the guiding love of heaven,
Counc ls that well may guard thy youth,
And each the love to mortals given.

Let men with impious spirits dare
The sacred word of God to scorn,
And scoffing hopes and comfort there,
From all its blessed precepts turn,
But ne'er should woman weak and frail,
Dare cast her guiding chart aside,
When earthly hopes so often fail,
Where shall she turn on earth beside.

Oh! when the heart is sad and lone,
And wearily the spirit droops,
And blessings perish, one by one,
And pets away our youthful hopes,
Where should the drooping spirit turn;
But to that page of sacred truth,
Where wisdom may true knowledge learn,
And age knows brighter hopes than youth.

Literature.

The Gambler.

(Translated and abridged from the French.)

"A moment later, and the train would have gone without me" said I, as almost breathless with haste I placed myself in the corner of a first class carriage from Versailles to Paris. Soon I began to scrutinize them; and then, as my custom when travelling to amuse myself with fancying some tale or adventure of which they formed the dramatis personoe. Near me sat a pale-looking young man carelessly but el gantly dressed, and so intently reading that even my hurried entrance into the carriage scarcely caused him to lift his eyes from the book. In one corner sat an elderly gentleman, seemingly in that happy state which is between sleeping and waking; his cheeks were wrinkled, his hair was grey and scant, and his thick and bushy eyebrows almost concealed his deepset eyes which from time to time were turned upon the young man a readi g. 'Pshaw" thought I "this is probably an uncle accompanying a thoughtless nephew to town." And then I turned my attention to a young lady who occupied another corner of the carriage. She, too, was pale, and more interesting than handsome. Her dress, though simple, was perfect, and evidently the production of some first-rate artiste. Her whole style proclaimed her at once as belonging to the higher order of society. Her eyes were large and blue, and intellectual; her lips smiling and a small delicate hand grasped a smelling bottle, which she frequently used. Opposite to her lay a small English dog of uncommon beauty, between whom and his mistress frequent looks of affectionate recognition were exchanged. She seemed sickly, and to breathe with difficulty, frequently placing her hand upon her heart, on which occasions I observed she wore a rich and costly bracelet.

Such were my travelling companions, the supposed uncle now slept, now cast vacant looks around him; the thoughtless nephew read on; the lady often sighed; the little dog snored, and I indulged in all the luxury of a day dream, fancying many a strange history connected with those around me. It was evident, as I thought, that they were strangers to each other, and then the lady travelling alone in a first class carriage, her simply but highly finished dress, the gemmed bracelet, her reserved looks, and retiring manners, led me into a wide field of supposition, when I was interrupted by our arrival at our destination. The train stopped, the pale gentleman continued his reading; the lady again sighed and placed her hand upon her heart; the old gentleman kept his seat; none seemed inclined to make the first move; so, slightly bowing to my companions, I left the carriage and soon found myself in possession of a room at my hotel.

Dinner over, I went to the theatre, and from thence, by persuasion of a friend, to a private gambling house; and great was my surprise to find in the ostensible proprietor of the table the same old gentlemen I had met in the railway carriage, and to whom I had assigned the character of a morose old uncle. Very few people were present, and play had not yet begun; and the croupiers or groom porters as they are called in England, were seated on their high stools on either side of the table, in that stolid indifference, which, whether natural or assumed, seems always to mark such men. The old gentleman was seated at one end of the table nervously grasping in his hand a massive snuff-box, while his eyes seemed restlessly to wander between the heaps of gold before him and the door, which, soon opening gave entrance to another of my travelling companions—the young man, the fancied nephew. Although very few people were present play soon began. It was rouge et noir—every sound was hushed, except the voices of the dealers calling the results of the game and the rattling of gold as it was raked from one to the other.

I never play myself, and, since I knew no one among the few gamblers present but my two travelling companions my attention was altogether engrossed by their proceedings.—Indeed the large sums which were lost by the young man, the rouleau after rouleau that he placed upon the table only to be swept from before him, his pale cheek reddened by excitement, and his frequent and deep drawn sighs, most painfully interested me, and then his continual losses, the run of luck that was so evidently against him, and the cessation of all other play but his deeply engrossed me. About one o'clock in the morning he left the room and I had every reason to suppose, without a Napoleon in his pocket. I immediately followed, and, much excited, with my friend repaired to a neighboring coffee-house.

"You seem much excited with what we have seen" said my friend; "and since you cannot conceal the interest you feel in the play, and the evident taste you have for it, I admire you the more that no inducement can tempt you to participate in the game."

"I will never play myself" said I, "though I confess that game deeply interests me, especially such high play as we have just seen. Besides which I was doubly interested since both the keeper of the bank, and the man who lost so much were my silent companions on the railway from Versailles last evening, and more those whom we have seen such keen adversaries in the fight for fortune I absolutely supposed uncle and nephew"

"The young man whom you allude to" replied my friend, "is a colonel in the Russian service, Count Z——, celebrated for his great losses. You know what enormous fortunes the greater part of the Russian nobility are possessed of; but still, from what I hear, I fancy this poor man has not much remaining. He has just come from Naples, where I am afraid to name the sum they say he left behind him. He his an incorrigible gambler, and strange to say his almost invariable bad luck has not taught him wisdom. Who the banker is I do not know; I never saw him here before, though I heard he is a Spaniard, who has joined the concern with a considerable capital. But here comes Monsieur Clement the supposed proprietor of the rooms; let me introduce you; he will tell you the unknown."

The usual compliments being exchanged, Mr. Clement took a seat at our table; and then I heard that the supposed Spaniard was an expatriated Polish officer, and, as it was said of high birth, although he was only known as Captain Carlo. He lived very simply and in great retirement, and it was only the day before that he had, to the astonishment of everybody, proposed to take the bank into his own hands. His evident command of money and the terms he had offered, were such as induced the proprietors to comply with his seemingly strange proposal. It was very late, or rather at an early hour in the morning, that we separated; and I do not know how often I turned in my bed before I could compose myself to sleep. My chamber, too, was small; the night oppressive, and my neighbour in the adjoining room, from whom I was seperated but by a slight connecting door, apparently even more restless than myself. He paced the room incessantly and of cationally I heard the sigh or moan of mental or bodily distress. I suppose it was the wine I had drunk, the excitement I had undergone, and an unwillingness to interfere in that which in no way concerned me, which prevented me from pulling my bell and summoning a servant to my neighbors assistance. At last, however, I fell asleep; and, as may be supposed awoke late in the day, stupid and unrefreshed; and even when I left the room and repaired to the street—and, let me add, it was my first visit to Paris—a something seemed to hang over me, a dread of impending evil, that deprived the novel scenes around me of all their charms, and sent me back to my hotel to a quiet and lonely dinner in my room; and that finished, again alone with my wine, a slight desert, and my wandering thoughts, I fell asleep.

When I awoke, it was night. A candle shone through the crevice of the door leading to the adjoining room, and the conversation of a man and woman greatly excited my curiosity, I will not attempt to palliate the offence of listening to it: I could not help myself or even move or make a noise, so that my neighbors could understand that they might be by-standers. The man's voice was at first soft and entreating; the woman was evidently crying, and the little she said was in short and broken sentences, and so interrupted by convulsive sobs that I could not follow them. I gleaned, however enough to know that she was refusing a request the man was making her; at length, however, resisting by sighs were the only replies; and then his voice had lost its softness and persuasive tones; it became harsh and loud, and imperative, and I plainly heard him.

"Well, madam," said he "you shall repent this obstinacy and your determination to plunge me into hopeless ru

Facts about Guano.

It is scarcely fifteen years since guano was first recommended to the notice of farmers in England and Scotland, as a substitute for farm yard manure, or as an auxiliary. Notwithstanding the incredulity and caution with which the claims were first received, there is now annually an importation of about 150,000 tons into the different ports of Great Britain, which at an average of £10 per ton would amount to an expenditure of one million two hundred thousand pounds sterling or about $5,000,000 dollars on this one foreign ... alone. THE WAR.

The news from the seat of war is generally of an important nature. The allied forces amounting to 75,000 men had left Varna and were on their way to the Crimea.

The Austrian army still remained in the Principalities, while the government of that country was using its most active exertions to prevent a collision with Russia.

There are rumors of new propositions between the respective powers, but nothing definite has transpired.

The correspondent of the London Times writing from Vienna under date of September 8th, says the opinions of the Austrian Government as they have been communicated to its diplomatic agents may be given in a few words. Those are that Austria still looks on the guarantees demanded by the Western Powers as the only basis for a durable peace, and therefore, while she retains her armed neutrality, she neglects no opportunity of urging Russia to accept them. The writer says that the Prussian Government is ever inclined as before to make common cause with the Western Powers, the excuse for going back being, that the Emperor Nicholas has, at the demand of the German Powers, consented to evacuate the Turkish territories, and therefore Prussia does not feel herself called upon to actually interfere in the quarrel between the Western Powers and Russia.

The news from the Baltic is, that no further important movements will be undertaken during the present season.

A Constantinople writer states, that on the 30th, not a solitary English or French vessel remained in port or in the Bosphorus, all having left to place themselves under the orders of the Admiral in the contemplated attack on the Crimea.

Mr. Soule has written a violent letter in reply to the charge of the Madrid Press, of his having participated in recent events.

QUEBEC, Sept. 21, 1854.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr Morin presented the report of the Committee appointed to select the Standing Committees of the House; and the House proceeded to the consideration of the Report.

Mr. Brown objected to the composition of the standing committee on Railroads and Telegraphs, on the grounds that the ministerialists were a large majority of its members and that the Western part of the Province above Toronto, was not fairly represented.

Mr. McDonald complained that there were on the Committee persons who had private interests in certain railroads.

Mr. Rankin took the position that as Ministers were required to obtain a majority on every question before the House, they ought to be allowed a preponderance of their friends on Standing Committees. He, however objected to the absence from the Committee on Railroads and Telegraphs of a fair representation of the Western Counties.

Dr. Clarke took the same view, and said there would be many applications from the West for Railroad Charters, by persons who intended to build them with their own money.

Mr. Scatcherd made some similar remarks.

Mr. Felton in reply to Mr. McDonald's objection to having on the Committee any one interested in railroads, hinted that the member for Glengarry (but without actually mentioning him) was interested in a contract for 50 miles along the Grand Trunk.

Mr Morrison met the objection that had been raised to having any paid officer of a railway company on a Committee, by declaring his perfect willingness to have his name omitted from the Committee.

Mr. Crawford explained that in regard to the pay received from the the Grand Trunk Railway Company by the directors, it was in the nature of a compensation for their time and travelling expenses in coming down to attend meetings of the Board, and that if they did not attend, they received no pay. If the same rule was obtained here that was in operation in England, he might refuse to serve on the Committee, on the ground that he was over sixty years of age.

Mr, Lumsden took the ground that nobody interested in railroads should be on the Committee.

Dr. Ralph objected to the committee principally on the ground that a large portion of the great Western country was not represented in it. He spoke of the tendency to railway consolidation, which showed itself not only in this country and the United States but also in England, as a very dangerous element; and for this reason insisted that the interests hostile to the Grand Trunk, and especially those in favor of the projected railroad from the Niagara frontier to the head of Lake Erie, should be fairly represented on the Committee.

Mr. Marchildon, in French, created much merriment by declaring war upon all railways He said they not only cost more money than they ever did good, but that they frightened the cattle and sometimes killed them—doing more harm than good! In proof of his own great dislike for Railways, he stated that he had purchased a property worth $700, and having learned that a railway was going through or near it, he would be g'ad to sell it for $400.

Mr. Solicitor General Ross contended that the first qualification for a member of a Railway Committee was that he should not be opposed to railways. If any question should come up in the Committee in which any particular member of it was interested, delicacy should dictate to him the propriety of abstaining from voting upon it; and if he should not voluntarily take that course, the committee should see that he got no unfair advantage. The next qualification, in his opinion, was a knowledge of railway business. The objection raised to directers as members of the Railway Committee applied also to stockholders; their interests ran in the same direction, and there was scarcely a member of the house who was not in some way interested in some railway. Directors were generally chosen for the knowledge they had of railways and to exclude them from the Committee would be to reject those best qualified. As to the objection that this or that particular district of the country was not represented, hon. members should remember that they were not the guardians of the interests of a particular section of the public merely, but of the whole country.

Mr. Mackenzie explained why it was that he had voted against the Grand Trunk Railway. He complained of the over representation of the Committee of Lower Canada, and insinuated that it was so framed as to prevent any charter from being granted to a railroad on the front of Lake Erie.

Mr. Solicitor General Ross repeated an explanation made by Mr. Morin, at the commencement, that although there were ten Lower Canadians on the committee to seven Upper Canadians, it was intended to change the Commissioner of Crown Lands for Sir Allan McNab, when the latter shall have been re-elected, so that the numbers shall stand nine to eight.

Mr. Mackenzie contended that if fair play was not shown to Upper Canada there would be in that section of the Province a cry for the repeal of the Union. He also declared in favor of a general railway bill.

Hon. Mr. Morin moved that the Report be amended by adding the names of Mr. Rankin Mr. Clarke, and Mr. Mongenais to the Committee on Railroads, Canals, and Telegraph lines and omitting that of Mr. Morrison of Niagara.

Mr. Brown moved an amendment, that the names of Mr. Rankin, Mr. Sanborn, Mr. Fergusson, and Mr. Mongenais, be added to the said committee, in lieu of Mr. Cartier and Mr. Crawford. Mr. Brown contended that the arguments of the Opposition had not been shaken by the remarks made on the Ministerial side of the House. Of the seventeen members of the committee, eleven were in some way the paid agents of railway companies; that thirteen were ministerialists and only four Opposition

Mr. Chauveau combatted the doctrine that railway directors ought not to be on the committee. In the House of Commons, the members of the standing committee on Railroads abstained from voting on any particular measure in which they were interested. Why not carry the principle into the House and say that no member should vote on a railroad bill in which he is interested? The member for Lambton spoke as if the government had been packing the committee for their own purposes (hear, hear, from Mr. Brown) but it had been selected by a committee appointed by the house, and the member for Lambton had said at the time that it was as fair a committee as could be chosen. (No, no, from Mr. Brown.) The hon. member had said so, but he was always ready to eat up his own words when he found that they told against himself or his friends.

Mr. Dorion of Drummond, replied in French to the remark that the committee was not a tribunal whose decisions were final, but must be passed upon by the house, by saying that what the committee recommended, a majority of its members being supporters of the administration, the House would be sure to adopt.

Mr Smith of Northumberland, had concurred in the remark of the member for Lambton, that the Western country was not fairly represented; but he could not agree with him now that he proposed to leave the whole country between Toronto and Cornwall without a single representative on the committee. He (Mr. S.) was not satisfied with the proportion of members proposed to be given to Upper Canada.

Mr. Cauchon said that the committee contained eight Lower Canadians and nine Upper Canadians; and that when the name of Sir Allan McNab should be substituted for that of the Commissioner of Crown Lands, the committee would be as even as it was last year.

Mr. Jackson said that when he first saw the list he suggested that the name of Mr, Fergusson should be added; but an objection that has since been mentioned by the member for Lambton exists against him; he is the solicitor of the Galt and Guelph Railway.

The amendment was then put and lost.—Yeas 29; Nays 53.

Mr. Morin amendment was then put and carried.—Yeas 53, Nays, 29; and the main amotion as mended was carried.

GOVERNMENT DAYS.

Mr. Morin said that the Government would require two days of the week for the consideration of their measures. Towards the close of the session they might ask three days; but he would not now say what might be required.

Mr. Mackenzie did not object to the Government having two days a week; but he did object that it should not be known what particular day; an irregularity which existed in no other Legislative body.

Mr. Macdonald said the government should allow no other than government measures to be taken up on government days.

Mr Langton hoped the government would accede to the suggestion of the member for Haldimand; and let it be known what particular measure was to come on any particular day.

Mr. Drummond said that the object of the Government was to proceed with the business of the country, and particularly with the great measures. He did not believe that on any great measure the House had ever been taken by surprise; and, since he had been in the government, there never had occurred an instance in which a desire was expressed by the House for the postponment of a measure where the request had been refused. Government, would, he believed, upon all important measures be able to make it known eight or ten days before they were to be brought up on what day they would come on.

THE RECIPROCITY TREATY.

Mr. Drummond rose to move the first reading of a bill to bring our laws into harmony with the Reciprocity Treaty. In 1849, this question became one of considerable interest. There was, some time before that, an agitation in favor of an imposition of a high duty on all the produce of the United States coming in to this country. It was thought by those who favored that movement that the effect would be to give our farmers better prices.—The tide was then flowing from the United States to Canada; but it soon turned and we began to export cattle and produce to the United States. Even after the existing state of things many farmers had grown rich; what then will the position of the farmer be, when 20 per cent is added to all his income.

He believed that the effect of the bill he was about to introduce for the ratification of the Reciprocity Treaty, would be to double the value of all the land in the country in five years. We have had the satisfaction of seeing a much more favorable arrangement than any one expected when the Legislature moved on the question in 1849. He believed that not one man in the eastern townships would have been found to sign the annexation manifesto in 1858, if it had not been for the state of depression in which the country had been placed, not by the government of this country but of that country under which the annexationists wished to place themselves. The government of this country made every effort to induce that of the United States to agree to the conclusion of a treaty on this subject; and for this purpose various embassies were sent from this country to Washington. The hon. Mr. Merritt, who was a member of the government in 1849, introduced the measure, and did all in his power to secure the object now attained. The hon. member for Montreal (Mr. Young) while a member of the government was an ardent advocate of the measure, but now that the treaty is concluded, he insists that it is worthless, because it was not obtained before. Two years in the history of a nation, was but a short space; and in four years the object, in this case, had been obtained. Amid all the scoffs and cheers they encountered, the government never halted in their attempts to secure the conclusions of this Treaty. It was fortunate that the selection of Lord Elgin for this mission had been made. His Lordship was popular with the Senators and everywhere regarded as statesman of high rank. He was not about to pass any eulogium upon the noble lord at the head of the government.—If that noble lord had but recently come here, he (Mr. D.) would not have ventured to say a word; for he was not, like some others, one who worshipped the rising sun. His Excellency was going to leave us. To him it is that we owe the success of this measure. When a dessert is on must be had it was important that Lord Elgin should be on the spot; for if Reciprocity had not been obtained, it would have been lost for ever. His Excellency got the matter through in seven days. He (Mr. D.) would move that the treaty be printed in order that it may be in every member's hand. He then read the schedule of articles, and stated that his first idea was that, as the ratification was a matter of Royal Prerogative, and as we had nothing to do with it, all we had to do was to alter the schedule of the act of 1849; but he afterwards found that the fifth act of the Treaty was liable to be suspended, and he prepared a bill making the necessary alterations—to take effect whenever the Governor General should issue his proclamation; providing the schedule be subject to suspension in accordance with the provisions of treaty. It was his intention to move that the second and third reading of this bill take place to-morrow; in order that it may take effect without the least possible delay. He then read an extract from a dispatch from the Colonial Secretary; to the effect that making of the treaties belongs to the sovereign power but that the Legislatures of the colonies would be required to alter their laws so as to bring them into harmony with the treaty. The bill was then read a first time and ordered for a second reading to-morrow.

The House then adjourned at half past 11.

FRIDAY, Sept. 22.

The proceedings of the day commenced with the ordinary routine business, after which, leave of absence was granted to Mr. Gamble for three weeks—to Mr. Bowes for two weeks—to Mr. Chisholm for two weeks—Mr. Mills ten days, Mr. Yielding the same, Mr. Gould likewise, and Messrs Wilson and Foley for a fortnight. The speaker communicated to the House a letter received by him from the Clerk, representing the necessity of having a second clerk appointed.

Upon motion of Mr. Loranger, Mr. Dorion being placed on the general committee of elections for the present session, was disapproved of.

Mr. Bellingham introduced a Bill to constitute the electoral county of Argenteuil into separate Municipality—to be read a second time on the 26th of October next. Hon. Mr. Chabot made his election to serve for Quebec.

Upon motion of Mr. Poulot it was ordered that the speaker do issue his warrant for a new writ for a member for the county of Bellechasse, in the place of the Hon. Mr. Chabot.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Chabot, the report of the Superintendent for Education in Lower Canada for 1853, was ordered to be printed.

NORMAL SCHOOL FOR LOWER CANADA.

In answer to Mr. Dorion, Hon. Mr. Chauveau stated that the Normal School for Lower Canada would be commenced immediately—that it had not yet been begun because the buildings were not in a fit state, and required repairs, which in their turn would require a grant of money, and also that it had been thought desirable not to commence the school until everything could be done in a regular and complete manner. In order to provide for that regular and complete manner of proceedings he had gone to Upper Canada, and had there instituted inquiries into the best means of conducting such establishments—gathering his information from individual teachers, as well as from religious committees. He had come to the conclusion upon the whole that there must be a separation of the several sects. It was probable that there must be encouragement given to the churches of Rome, of England, and to the other religious societies together.

WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS.

In answer to Mr. Rhodes, Mr. Morin said, that it was the intention of Government to submit papers connected with the withdrawal of the troops from Canada.

He stated in answer to an inquiry by Mr. Brown, that immediately on the Bill passing, 20 members would be elected for six years; 10 for Upper and 10 for Lower Canada—the favored Electoral Districts being fixed by lot; that at the end of two years 20 additional members will be elected for six years; and that at the end of other two years 20 more members would be elected for the same period. From the Lake Superior Journal.

There has been much exploring done this season on the north shore of Lake Superior and Lake Huron, and we understand that many valuable discoveries in the way of copper and silver have been made.

Heretofore explorers have confined themselves to the shores of the lakes, but this year they have ventured further into the interior of the mineral regions, and have been well repaid for their trouble.

Several large and promising veins have been discovered in the regions north of the Bruce Mine, and some new discoveries have been made a hundred miles or more east of that place.

These localities on Lake Huron are well situated for mining and we wish our neighbors every success in the business.

ACCIDENT TO THE PASSPORT.—On Thursday night, this magnificent boat, on her way up from Kingston, met with what had nearly proved a very serious accident. The wind had been blowing a gale all day from the south. When rounding the "Ducks it suddenly shifted to the N. E. causing the boat to careen—at the same time a heavy sea striking her larboard paddles, stove in her bulkhead and part of the bulwarks. The scene at this time was most exciting. An unusually large number of cabin and steerage passengers were on board, and the boat otherwise heavy with freight. Some baggage was washed overboard; one woman was washed over the side, and nearly drowned. By the prompt action of Capt. Hardbottle and the energetic aid of his men, the boat was righted after a delay of about an hour, Captain Hardbottle deserves great praise for his cool determined manner in which he met the difficulty. The boat reached Toronto not long after her usual time next morning. A subscription was entered into for the relief of those who had suffered. Nearly £20 were, we understand, subscribed,—Captain Hardbottle putting down £5 for the owners, and $5 as his own subscribtion.—Dundas Warder.

ATTEMPTS AT ROBBERY.—During the present week several attempts have been made by a gang of Burglars, several houses have been visited by them, but in no one house have they succeeded in their attempts at depredation.—We would warn householders to be on the look out and give them a warm reception whenever they make their appearance.—Brant Courier.

☞ The North American says we regret to learn that a sad accident occurred in the neighborhood of Cayuga on Saturday. It appears that a young lad, son of Mrs. J. Walter, had gone out with the intention of shooting ducks in the marsh near his fathers house. On stepping from the canoe he laid hold of the muzzle of a double barrelled gun to drag it after him when both barrels went off, lodging the contents in his side He staggered from the spot a few yards and fell down dead. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved parents.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last a fine little boy aged two years, the son of Mr. Andrews, Station Master on the Great Western Railway, met with his death through the negligence of a servant. He was playing in the yard adjoining the house and fell into the water and was drowned. The servant had been repeatedly cautioned by Mr. Andrews of the danger of an accident. He has now to mourn the loss of his child in consequence of the negligence of a servant. An inquest was held by Dr. M'Cosh when a verdict of accidental death was returned.—Paris Star.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A man connected with the Great Western Railway was run over last night at the London station by one of the trains, which passed over his body, and the poor fellow, who it was said was intoxicated died shortly afterwards.—Maple leaf.

THE BRICK.—This thrifty and obsequious personage is on the eve of making tracks from Canada. The Aide de Camp of his successor has arrived in Quebec, and has been followed by an instalment of the new viceroys domestic chattles.

"There is small sorrow at our parting saie the old mare to the broken cart; and such will be the exclamation of our Province when she beholds the back of the would be bantling of the burly bully of Bannockburn. Loyal and honest men will breathe more freely when the sanctioner of the thrice infamous rebel-rewarding Bill has ceased to be a cumberer of these shores'—Hamilton Gazette.

THE RECIPROCITY TREATY NOT LAW YET.—According to the proclamation recently issued by the President of the United States, our neighbors naturally inferred that the treaty had gone into effect, inasmuch as the Proclamation enjoined upon all and sundry to conform to it. Such appears not to be the case, however, for the fifth article of the treaty has not been complied with. The New York Herald pronounces it a blunder on the part of the Pierce Administration, and rates the President soundly in consequence.—Spectator.

CARELESS DRIVING.—On Tuesday evening about nine o'clock, as Mr. Clapp of Burford was driving a buggy up the hill towards the Upper Village Mr. Henderson's omnibus came in contact with the front wheel of the buggy, smashing it all to pieces, as well as the shaft. Mr. Clapp was of course precipitated out of the buggy, and received some very severe bruises on the face and other parts of the body. Had the collision taken place a few yards nearer the bridge the consequences might have proved fatal to Mr. Clapp, as there is no protection to save any one from falling over the embankment thirty or forty yards below the bridge. We understand Mr. Clapp intends prosecuting the driver of the omnibus for not keeping his right side of the road.—Maple Leaf.

The Galt and Guelph Railway have petitioned Parliament for leave to extend their road to Owen Sound.

St. Mary's, in the Township of Blanchard, County of Perth, has been declared an Incorporated Village by Proclamation published in the last Official Gazette.

LONDON, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1854

THE ADDRESS TO THE GOVERNOR AND THE REPLY.

The address which was presented to his Excellency upon his arrrival in our city, by the mayor and council was one of the most fulsome and badly devised things of the kind that Radicalism ever enunciated. No one present, indeed, could at the time of its delivery, catch a word of it, so indistinctly was it mumbled over; the Mayor, being as usual, fully charged with the juice of tobacco! Frequently was he besought by members of the crowd to "Spit it out," but he retained the delectable essence to the end of the address with pertinacious tenacity. Reference in that address which has been since published, was unwisely made to the previous visit, which this personification of "dignified neutrality" paid to London; although nothing was said of the demolition of the ornamental arches, or of the showers of rotten eggs which descended on that occasion! Of course this racy and highly suggestive document was replied to in Lord Elgin's peculiar style of egotistic declamation. The vast resources of Canada and the indomitable energy of its inhabitants were all APPROPRIATED on the occasion, and our present prosperity and success were attributed to his wise and unequalled administration of our affairs! But the real cause of our present prosperity appears to be just as perfectly understood by Lord Elgin, as is the subject of "CLEARING the forest," in reference to which he spoke of putting the torch to the stately oak, and girdling the lofty maple!"

Previously to the separation of the crowd a Mr. Moffat, an English M. P., to whom allusion was made by Lord Elgin, seemed anxious to immortalize himself by a speech which he at length succeeded in delivering and in which he brayed forth his own ignorance of our affairs by talking of "desert forests," and of our owing our prosperity to the high personal talents of Lord Elgin. Such twaddle and humbug are most disgusting and are fair specimens of Radical "bunkum." It was through the activity of Councillor Barker that three cheers were in conclusion proposed and heartily given for the Queen, this piece of loyal demonstration having been quite forgotten by our chief civic officer. This speechifying affair was the only badly managed part of the business connected with the exhibition.

THE PROVINCIAL FAIR

We deemed it of more importance last week to lay before our readers the speech of the President of the Provincial Agricultural Society, than to occupy their attention with a lengthened or detailed account of the fair; but we must revert to the subject in our present issue. The whole concern was very creditable to the Province; but things might have been better in some of the departments; for instance swine, generally, were rather large or fat than pure in breed: the peculiarities of the Berkshire, Yorkshire, China, &c. not being distinctly brought out. The machine department was not as well supplied as it should have been from the province at large, and even in some of the most practical and necessary articles of agriculture, viz:—Fences there was a total want of competition; all things, however, considered there was more room for praise than censure in this Provincial display. We clip the following brief and spirited representation of the fowl and implement department from the Paris Maple Leaf:—

"Reader, accompany me in my rambles amongst the booths and pens, and turn with me, on entering to the right, until we reach the south-western corner, where pen upon pen discloses a vast array of Hong Kong, geese, black Spanish fowls, game fowls, Sumatra pheasants, black Java fowls, large Bremen geese, and other fowls, the property of Joseph Lamb. Next come Poland fowls, Poland ducks, black, golden and silver Aylesbury ducks, common do., Muscovy do Cochin China, fowls, white, buff, and black, Shanghaes and Brama pootras, Bantams, feathered and clean leg (a fine lot). Dorkins, black, white and spangled. Pheasants, lots of poultry, (very fine). Large breed fowl and common black Turkeys, white and wild do. Frill pigeons, cinnamon tumblers, almond tumblers, fantails, carrier pigeons, baldhead do., barbs, and nuns, Rabbits, peacocks, Guinea fowls and Shanghaes.

At the back of the pens containing the above were Jersey blue, (a cross apparently between the Black Spanish and Malays). Brama pootras, (a very fine lot). White Dorkins (small), pair of Dominique fowls, black Canton alias Shangae, (very fine breeds), white Poland and black Spanish fowls, very handsome, black Polands, Friezeland alias Frizzled fowls, Bolton greys, Bantams, silver and golden Polands. The display of the feathered tribe was particularly good. A handsome black Newfoundland dog, 20 months old, and a Spaniel of King Charles' breed 12 months old are shown together in a kennel. A seed drill for clover seed, horse rake, corn and turnipe mill, machine for crushing roots, and a model of a roller are exhibited by Rocky of St. Thomas. A well made iron grading plough by Barr & Co', of Norwichville, attracts considerable attention. A model reaping machine, with shifting mower combined, having sickle teeth, by Mr. George Sharpe of St. George. Cultivators, ploughs drill ploughs, levelling box or scraper, reapers, mowing machines, root cutting do. Timothy seed sower, grain drill, and straw cutters from Adkins and Ellsworths' establishment. Three kinds of fanning mills, Crosby's, one from Oxford and the third by our townsman James S. Mitchell, to whom we wish success. Hargar's grain, (patent), potatoe and corn planter, with seed sower attached, plants either in hills or drills by W. Nixon, Grimsby, and is an ingenious machine, (price, $30). Hay rakes and grain drill by Nixon. Weshing machine and churn dombined, R. Lossing, appears to be a well acting machine, and worthy the attention of our housewives. (price $12 complete.) Churn, McCarmick's reapers, mowing machine, cider press, Seymour's patent grain drill, Samon's Cultivator from St. Catharines. Apple and and peach paring, coring, and cutting machine, by E. Hendrie, Michigan—a simple and handy invention, doing its work rapidly and well. (price $24). Threshing machines and separator, by Haggart and Brothers. Cider mill and cheese press, by C. Wolstencrof. Post hole digger, by Helm, jun., Port Hope,—a very effective machine. Potatoe and corn planter, revolving and cutting the potatoe but not planting in hills, and seed drill, by Anderson. Brick making machine, by Parsons, Toronto. Cider mill and cheese press attached, by Coe, Cleveland. Numerous straw cutters, by A. Harris, Mount Vernon. Straw cutters, by H. C. White, Buffalo, Hickok's patent cider mill, ($45,) harrows and horse rake, by J. Harris. We now arrive at the carriage department.—Oak waggon and painted do. by Jas. Kay, Galt—a very inferior display this year. Cutter, 2 horse pleasure carriage, on the suspension principle, patented by Muryatroyd, a trotting buggy on the same principle, by do.; 2 horse pleasure carriage, forming a close carriage, windows being let down from the top, by McBride; also cutter with shifting shafts, by do., and 1 horse pleasure carriage very light and pretty, by do.; 2 horse pleasure carriage by Lowrie & Campbell; sleigh, by Seger & Keely—a heavy looking vehicle; 2 horse pleasure carriage and buggy, by McCulloch; 1 horse buggy, covered, by Todd & Co.; 1 horse pleasure carriage, by Reid & McCulloch; 2 cutters very tastefully got up, and 2 horse pleasure carriage, by Reid & McCulloch; 2 horse pleasure carriage by Williams & Cooper. An omnibus from Prongey's wind-up the display in this department."

Among the most ingenious pieces of mechanism exhibited were Murytroyd's carriage and the the "combination" vehicle. The former is a great improvement in the ordinary axle and clip, and could have been carried out to such an extent. A member of the Committee of Management remarked to me, that they had done the best they could, both as to wisdom in planning and enterprise in perfecting their plans. I replied that I thought they had not spared expense either: which he readily admitted, stating that the laying out the grounds would cost about £750. The location is the very best that could have been found."—Spectator.

"The London, we are happy to say, is nothing undone to make all pleased with its visit. Numerous arches were erected in the streets and the houses were variously decorated.

FAILURE OF AN AMERICAN INSURANCE COMPANY.

The Protection Insurance Company, of Hartford, has suspended payment, on accounut of recent severe losses. We believe that this company has done a large business in Canada, but there have been no fire losses here of consequence, and insurers in Canada will only suffer to the extent of the premiums they have paid. As people are too wise in the habit of confiding Companies, which have their head quarters at the same place, although there may be no connection whatever between them, we consider it proper to state that the Ætna Insurance Company, of which Mr. H. Childs is Agent, has, as the saying is, "its connection with the house opposite,"—while no stability has ever been questioned. Having ourselves insured in the Ætna for years, we can with confidence recommend it, while the following circular will show that, for the future, increased vigilance is to be exercised and additional rates imposed.

A CARD.

ÆTNA INSURANCE COMPANY, }
HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 8, 1854. }

The cessation of this office, notwithstanding the considerable losses of the past two months, is sound—the capital is whole, with a respectable surplus—the Company do not owe a dollar to any Bank or other Institution—there is not a note or acceptance of the Company on its ending in the hands of any individual or other institution—with a large balance in cash in our credit in Bank, and every loss now outstanding will be promptly paid at maturity or before—our investments in Bonds Stocks, and Mortgages exceed Four Hundred and Thirty Thousand dollars, besides large balances due and in course of transmission from Agents.

This brief statement is hastily prepared, but as time is important, we transmit it to you for your information, guidance, and satisfaction—and the assured may rely upon the truth as herein stated, as to our present condition, and feel the value of our policies to be reliable. 490

AYER'S PILLS.

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC.

There has long existed a public demand for an effective purgative Pill which could be relied on as sure and perfectly safe in its operation. This has been prepared to meet that demand, and the extensive trial of it in all parts of this continent has shown with what success it accomplishes the purpose designed. It is easy to make a physical Pill but indeed very difficult to make such an all Pills—one that should have none of the objections, but all the advantages of every other. This has been attempted here, and with what success we would respectfully submit to the public decision. It has been no mean aim for the patient hitherto that almost every purgative medicine is pernicious and dangerous in its effects. Many others pass directly on to the colon, griping pain and confusion in the system as they go, to the injury of the good to be derived from them. Such cases of constipation or piles, unless of inherited or previously existing obstruction or derangement of the bowels, being purely vegetable, are harmless even when taken in excess, and it is better that they should be taken daily to prevent costiveness. Minute directions for use in the several diseases for which they are adapted are given in our Almanac. Among the complaints which they will be found to cure are Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Listlessness, Inactivity of the Liver, Bilious Fever, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side and Loins, Pain in the Stomach, all these arise from some derangement of the action of the Liver, and all of them need some relief that can be relied on. Sick Headache, Dysentery, Humors, Scrofula, and Scrofulous Colds, with soreness of the body, Chest and Limbs, and in short any and every case where a purgative is required.

They have also produced some singularly successful cures in Dropsy, Gout, Gravel, Erysipelas, Neuralgia, Tumors, and in the Heart Pains in the Back, Stomach and Limbs. They should be freely taken in the spring of the year, to purify the blood and prepare the system for its change of season, and in the fall those same effects will be produced by the same means. They promote the natural action of every function of the body, restore the healthful tone of the digestive organs, remove the obstructions which cause pain, and impart vigor to the whole system. Hence an occasional dose is advantageous even when no serious disease exists. Although relieving slight disorders they should never be carried too far, as every purgative medicine reduces the strength when it removes disease. The thousand cases in which they are required cannot be enumerated here, but they confidently believe that the public will find their virtues are once known the public will no longer doubt what remedy to apply when in need of a cathartic medicine.

Being sugar coated they are pleasant to take and being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

STEWART'S EMPORIUM OF FASHIONS!

CASH SYSTEM

25 per cent. Cheaper than the Credit System.

IT is a well known fact that those giving credit (especially in the Tailoring line) are obliged, in order to make their business pay, to charge the well-meaning and good-paying customer with the garments of those who dress well, but never pay.

In order to prevent this injustice being practised on the honest and good-paying customer, the subscriber has adopted the Cash System. He will assure his customers that they will only have to pay for their own garments, and that at the rate of 25 per cent. less than formerly charged under the credit system.

His stock will be found to consist of the latest and best materials of Home and Foreign Manufacture, consisting in part of

SCOTCH TWEEDS,

and a splendid assortment of Silk, Satin and Fancy Vestings, Silk Handkerchiefs, Ties, Gloves of various materials and colors, Shirts, &c., which he is now prepared to sell and make up to order in the latest and most approved English, French or American Styles, to suit customers, at a very small advance on cost (for cash)

He has just received the latest fashions from Europe and America, and will continue to receive monthly the very latest styles. He earnestly invites his numerous customers and the public in general to give him a call as early as possible. His workmen will be, as usual, of the first class. The cutting will be done entirely by himself. Ladies' habits will receive his particular attention.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £60. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Cowpeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phenix Bitters have attained in every quarter of the globe, the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or qualities. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and testing the unfailing accuracy of their operation, Thousands of Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine can be safely left to the public—and of no country is annual every city and village in the United States there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the nervous system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing; often restoring in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases by their purifying influence on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved

LONDON AGENCY.

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favorable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

COMPOUND

CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London C. W. June 16th, 1852.

MESSRS. REXFORD & Co.

Gentlemen—I have received the Sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a delightful as well as a highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavor, in which lies the Essential Medicinal qualities, appear to be largely imbued and well preserved, and as this vegetable tonic is highly beneficial in those forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone in the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with on the continent) your cordial will, I doubt not, form an inestimable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist I feel much pleasure in cordially recommending the Preparation of this valuable tonic, to my professional brethren and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

I am, Gentlemen, Yours, &c.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation joined with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head points or limbs of the body. For Dolorous Nervuous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilipsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Stiffness of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervuous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblanes Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnatism, is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms is entirely owning to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If this, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus difficult, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science, as that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various causes, showing some new effect of these wonderful gyatic, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend the Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Poetry.

Our Ain Folk.

The following was composed by the Rev. Henry Scott Riddell, Minister of Cheviotdale, Roxburgshire, Scotland.

I wish we were hame to our ain folk,
Our kind and our true-hearted ain folk,
Where the gentle are leal, and the simple are weal,
And the hames are the hames o' our ain folk.
We've met wi' the gay and the gude where we've come,
We're canty wi' mony, and mouly wi' some,
But something's a wanting we never can find,
Sin' the day when we left our auld neebours behind.

I wish we were hame to our ain folk
Our kind and our true hearted ain folk;
When daffin and glee wi' the friendly's and free,
Made our hearts ayе sae fond o' our ain folk.
Some tauld us in gowpen's we'd gather the gear,
Sae soon as we cam' to the rich mailens here,
But what's in mailen's, or what is in mirth,
If it's na enjoy'd in the land o' our birth?

Oh, I wish we were hame wi' our ain folk,
Our kind and our true hearted ain folk,
Where maidens and men on the strath and the glen
Still welcom'd us aye to our ain folk.
The Spring had its trials, and Summer its toils,
And Autumn gae wark, ere we gathered its spoils.
But winter repaid a' the toil that we took,
When ilk ane crawl'd crouse at his ain ingle nook.

I wish I were hame to our ain folk'
Our kind and our true hearted ain folk.
But deep are the howes, and heigh are the knowes
That keep us awa frae our ain folk.
The sent at the door where our auld father's sat
To tell o'r the news, and their views, and a' that,
While doon by the kail yard, the burnie row'd clear,
Is mair to my liking than aught that is here.

I wish we were hame to our ain folk,
Our kind an our true hearted ain folk;
Where the wild thistles wave, o'er the beds o' the brave,
And the graves are the graves o' our ain folk,
But happy-gae-lucky, we'll trudge on our way,
Till the arm waxes weak and the haffet grows grey;
And tho' in this warl our ain still we miss,
We'll meet them at last in a warl of bliss,
And then we'll be hame wi' our ain folk
Our kind and our true hearted ain folk;
When yond the moon in the heaven's adoon
And the hames are the hames o' our ain folk.

Gossip About Seamen.

BY A NAVAL OFFICER.

(From Chamber's Edinburgh Journal.)

No men, in my opinion, are less selfish than our seamen, or are more true to their word. When I commanded the Ridemen, we generally refitted at Malta, and were ready for sea before we obtained our portique; so that when the yellow flag came down I used to give two or three days leave to every one who wished to go on shore. There was always a sufficient number willing to remain to take care of the brig. We once came out of the quarantine harbor on a Saturday, when on hearing from the senior officer that our services would not be required for a week, I permitted every one who wished to go on shore. The following morning important despatches arrived, and there was no vessel to take them to the admiral but the Rifleman. The senior officer sent for me and said:—'I know your men are all on leave for two days — when do you think you could get them together?'

'This night,' I replied, 'but I should not like to sail till the morning.' He expressed his surprise at my thinking I could assemble the people so quickly.

'If you could do it,' said he, 'but is it possible?'

'My men, sir,' I replied, 'have never yet failed me. They know that I never ask for exertion or self-denial but when the good of the service requires it.'

I went on board and told the truth to the men that were not on leave, and bade them hunt out their messmates—about eighty seamen and marines—and get them on board by sunset, at eight in the evening all but six had returned, and these sent me the following laconic message: 'Tell the captain he knows he can depend on our word, we will be on board in the morning before the brig is out of the harbor. They came on shore just as we were ready to go out.

When I was 1st Lieutenant of the Queen Charlotte, on our voyage to Algiers, we had on board six or seven smugglers, a class I have always found to be fine stout men, and good sailors. In those days, smugglers were sentenced, as punishment, to serve a certain number of years in the navy, and the others were to put them in chains every night when the ship was at anchor. I proposed to Sir J. Brisbane, however, to put those on their honor, and to treat them like the others. He did so, and promised that if they behaved well, he would endeavour to procure them a remission of their sentence; and this, in fact, was the result for their conduct was so good that the remainder of their sentence; was remitted on the return of the Queen Charlotte to Portsmouth.

During this same voyage, two London thieves were discovered in the ship, with all their implements, dark lanterns, skeleton keys &c. They were put into irons previous to their being punished, and so continued, until the bombardment of Algiers commenced, until some good natured persons released them and the rogues ran to their guns and fought like honest men. After the general thanksgiving for the success of our enterprise, there was a general muster on the quarter-deck, the officers on one side and the ships company on the other, with the two thieves between them Lord Exmouth then addressed the ships crew in the following words; 'These two London thieves I propose to try by a court martial, and they were therefore put into irons; it was not my intention to let them fight with honest men. I will not enquire how they got out of their irons, and reached their guns. They did so; and now you, my lads shall decide their fate. I will try them by a court martial, as I proposed to, or send them to India in the Minden, just as you decide.'

'Dont disgrace us sir,' was the prompt reply: 'send them to India,' and to India they went in the Minden, ticketed as they deserved.

When the action at Algiers was over the best artist could not have done justice to the scene we were leaving behind us. The nine Algerian ships and storehouses were still such a mass of flame, that the Mole, and the part of the town nearest to it, were as light as the most splendidly illuminated ball room; while over the dark green hills around and above the town, a heavy thunder stormwas advancing, the forked lightning rendering the darkness beyond awful. The storm burst upon us just as we had anchored, about nine o'clock, and had gone to our supper of bread and cheese.

At this time as R—— s passed the entering port, towards the place where his cabin had been he saw a young seaman walking to and fro; and after he had passed, it struck him that the young

RUMINATION.

This is the remastication of food by a ruminant animal. Liquid or attenuated food passes at once into the third and fourth stomachs, and is not remasticated; but all other food, particularly such as consists of comparatively dry and solid vegetable matter descends into the rumen, is there slowly macerated, passes by little and little into the second stomach, and is there separated by compression into a liquid and a solid portion, the liquid to pass on to third and fourth stomachs, and the solid to be returned in pellets up the gullet for such remastication as shall reduce it to a pulp, and let it to pass directly re deglut on, into the third and the fourth stomachs. The re mastication is effected while the animal lies at ease, and constitutes what is popularly called "chewing the cud," and takes place only upon matter which nothing short of an oprose process can reduce to perfect pulpiness or liquidity; and the re-gorging which attends it differs widely from the belching or vomiting of a non-ruminant animal, and is as regularly conducted by a specially constituted organism as deglution or absorbtion or secretion or any other ordinary act or function of the animal system.

In order to understand the process of rumination, we must advert to the manner in which the four stomachs communicate with the gullet, and with one another. The gullet is an extensile membranous tube, much more complicated in ruminating quadrupeds than in man, the muscles which surround it being strong, and consisting of two rows of fibres, crossing one another, and running spirally in opposite directions; and these muscles, by their contractions, so powerfully force the morsel of food begun to be swallowed onwards into the inlet of the stomachs, that the process of deglution once commenced cannot be stopped, even by the will of the animal. The gullet enters just where the first, second and third stomachs approach one another, and discharges itself almost equally into the first and second. Connected with it is another organ termed the cud-duct. This is sometimes a grove and sometimes a tube, according to its action; and runs from the termination of the gullet to the third stomach, with the first stomach on the left, and the second on the right, and discharges itself almost equally into the second and the third. All these part, the gullet, the cud-duct, the first, the second, and the third stomachs, not only communicate with one another, but all communicate by a common point, the point where the gullet terminates, where the cud-duct commences; and towards which the three stomachs open or end. Now in the process of returning the macerated food for re mastication, it is the cud-duct, together with the shut termination of the gullet approached to the shut inlet of the manyplies, which forms the pellets. To understand the mechanism by which these are moulded, let it be marked, first, that the cud-duct extends from the termination of the gullet to the inlet of the manyplies—secondly, that when it contracts, it approaches one or other of these apertures—thirdly, that of these two apertures, the termination of the gullet is habitually shut, and the inlet of the manyplies, naturally straight, can be so narrowed as almost to close by its own contraction—and fourthly, that when the first two stomachs, compressed by the abdominal muscles and the midriff, contract, they push in consequence the materials which they contain both against the two apertures opposite to each other, and against the cud-duct opposite to the two stomachs. The two stomachs, in this manner, in proportion as they contract, push the materials contained in them between the margins of the cud duct, and the cud-duct also contracting, causes the two apertures of the gullet and of the manyplies to approach, while the two apertures being closed and brought near together, seize upon a portion of the aliment, and detach it in the form of a pellet. The aperture of the gullet is closed during the act of detaching the pellet, because at that instant the midriff is contracted, and it only opens when the midriff is relaxed: and the aperture of the manyplies is closed, because at that instant the manyplies, as well as other stomachs is contracted. From these circumstances, it is obvious that the pellet must be detached, as it could not other wise be siezed by the two approaching apertures—that the pellet must be round, for this is the form of the cavity formed by the parts of the organ employed in the process,—and that the pellet must be about an inch in diameter, for the cud-duct when contracted in the act of forming the pellet, is about an inch in length. How beautiful a contrivance,—how exquisitely adapted to the structure and wants of the animal—and how minutely and highly illustrative of the all pervading beneficence and skill which everywhere shine out in the works of the Creator!

One important practical lesson suggested by the nature of rumination, is the proper feeding of cows, in order to produce the greatest quantity of milk. If they are fed on very dry food, such as hay, the greater portion of fluids in the blood will be spent in the process of rumination and digestion, and the milk will be scanty; but if they be fed on aliment which abounds in liquid, such as mangel wurtzel or brewer's grains, and distillers wash as in Holland, they will ruminate much less, a less quantity of saliva will be wanted for chewing the cud, and a large proportion will go to the production of milk, though this will be thinner, and not so rich in cream as the milk from drier food. It is questionable whether cows fed wholly on distiller's wash, would ruminate at all any more than calves, which so long as they suck, never ruminate.

Another important practical lesson has reference to the giving of medicines, and is stated as follows by Clater:—

"We may, to a very great extent, send medicine into what stomach we please. We may give it in a ball, and it will fall into the paunch, and thence go the round of all the stomachs; or it may be exhibited in a fluid form, and gently poured down, and the greater part of it passed at once into the third and fourth stomachs. That which is meant to have a speedy action on the constitution or the disease should be given in a fluid form. That also which is particularly disagreeable should be t us given, otherwise it will enter the paunch, and be returned again in the process of rumination, and disgust the animal and, perhaps, cause rumination to cease at once. This would always be a dangerous thing, for the food retained in the paunch would soon begin to ferment, and become a new source of irritation and disease."

A third important practical lesson has reference to the sweating of the domestic ruminants, particularly sheep. Sweat is a production of the fluid portion of the blood, or arises from the same source as the salivary secretion employed in rumination; and hence the flow of it is more to be dreaded in ruminating animals than in others, inasmuch as it greatly diminishes the supply of fluid which ought to be employed in rumination. If sheep are sweating while they ruminate, there will be two evacuations of fluid at the same time, the blood will be dried, and the blood exhausted and heated by the loss, while thirst will supervene, so as to make them drink till they are incommoded, and their temperament altered. Sweating is also hurtful to sheep in other respects; for the fibres of their wool are thereby deprived of a part of their nourishment, which the sweat carries out of their body, while the heat which occasions the sweat causes the wool to grow too rapidly to acquire sufficient consistence. —Genesee Farmer.

NEW WAY OF FATTING PORK.—A Tennessee Farmer has hit upon a plan of fatting hogs where the drouth has cut off the corn, the plan is simply to boil up all the juvanile porkers, and feed them to those of larger growth until they have concentrated the pork family into a compas consistent with the needy supply of bacon. He urges that if cod liver oil will fat pork, hog oil will fat it faster and that by the time one half of the family have eaten the other they will be fit for family use.

This is an idea certainly worth looking after by all who have a surplus of great hogs and small, and no fear for next year.

The plan would not answer in Flemming County, Kentucky, for they have to haul water four to six miles now, and that would bar the boiling. How would it do to feed them raw until after it rains?

Fatting pork upon potatoes, boiled and mashed with corn meal, used to be fashionable in our byhood; but we rather think it is not much practised this year, as potatoes are worth about as much by the pound as the pork would be after it was fatted.

Big potatoes are sold in this city for a dollar a bushel, to make pure wheat bread.

Parliamentary.

QUEBEC, Sept. 30.

Last night after the report left, a discussion that lasted some hours took place, on motion of Mr. Solicitor General Ross, to strike off Mr. Sanfield Macdonald's name from the election committee.

Mr. Carner put the motion in the absence of the Solicitor General, and Messrs Morrison and Chauveau supported it.

Mr. Lemieux and some other members also spoke in favor of it.

Messrs. J. H. Cameron, Powell Stevenson, Langton, McKenzie and others strongly opposed it, as an unnecessary attack both on Mr. Speaker Sicotte and the Ex-Speaker. It was denied on the Ministerial side that any such attack was intended and that the only desire was to obtain an impartial election committee composed of men of equal proportions from both sections of the Province.

A good deal of warmth was manifested during the debate.

The result of the division was a large majority against the measure, namely: Yeas 18 Nays 46.

Two members petitioned against were not allowed to vote, among others two members of the ministry.

A discussion afterwards took place on Mr. Powell's amendment on Mr Camerons writ, ness bill.

Mr. Powell desired to have the provision of the bill extended to the county courts, but this the house negatived on a vote of yeas 21 nays 43

The Port Dalhousie and Thorold Railway Amendment bill was then read a second time.

Also the Criminal Law Amendment Bill of Mr. Cameron was passed through committee.

QUEBEC, Oct. 2.

On motion of Mr. Chabot it was ordered that the house meet on Tuesday at 11 o'clock A. M.

Mr. Powell introduced a bill to amend the assessment laws of Upper Canada in so far as they prejudice the interests of our agriculture.

Mr. Powell introduced a bill to do away with the property qualifications of members of Parliament.

Mr. Cameron introduced a bill to amend the act for the succession of the real property of persons dying intestate.

Mr. Felton moved for a committee on the expenditure incurred in preparing and printing returns to addresses since the union. The motion was principally aimed at Mr. Mackenzie, and he made a sharp attack on Mr Felton in reply.

After some conversation the motion was withdrawn.

Mr. Alleyn introduced a bill to amend the incorporation of the city of Quebec.

Mr Rhodes moved for committee for selling the site and rooms of the late house of assembly.

He withdrew his motion on Mr. Chabot's stating that the government had the subject under consideration.

In answer to Mr. Dufresne, Mr. Cheuveau stated it was the intention of the government to increase the grants to primary schools.

The election committee was sworn.

Parliamentary Library.

The Rev. Dr. Adamson, librarian to the Legislative Council, has presented his yearly report, and from it we glean the following particulars regarding the Provincial Library. It appears that the whole of the works relating to the proceedings of the Legislature, consisting of Parliamentary Law, Imperial and Provincial statutes and Journals, with the history, customs and usages of Parliament, were rescued from the fire which consumed the late Parliamentary buildings in February, 1854; so that the Legislature will experience no difficulty as respects books of reference during the present session. The Bible and Prayer Book which were presented by King George III, to the Legislature of Upper Canada, and which had twice been rescued from destruction by fire, once at Toronto in 1824, and again at Montreal in 1845, unfortunately perished in the flames. A few days previous to the late fire, the library contained 17,000 volumes, and of these 6,319 were saved.—These include broken sets and odd volumes, which, being deducted would leave actually useful and servicable 8,725 volumes. The insurance on the library was £10,000: and its computed value at the time of the fire £11,739 19s 2d. The value of the books saved is assumed to be £6,023 19s 2d, leaving a balance of £5,700, which has been allowed by the insurance officers and is ready for re appropriation as the Legislature may decide. The greater part of the classified catalogue of Books in the library were saved. It was just ready for press at the time the fire occurred. Part of the Records of the Library was also saved. In the present mutilated state of the Library, however, it is not deemed best to publish the catalogues. Many donations have been made, increasing the number of books at present in the library to 9,120. It is to be hoped that it may continue to increase, and that no untoward event will again occur to destroy the precious treasure.—Globe.

Provincial,

A Dark and Bright Side.

Frequently we have alluded to the over crowded condition of the river boats on their upward trips. The poor creatures huddled together on these occasions, can supply themselves with nothing for the support of their wives and children on board, and are consequently on the alert, when they stop at a port for a few minutes, to supply themselves with some articles of food. Under these circumstances, a stray passenger occasionly gets left behind, and a scene of anguish follows, more especially if the unfortunate creature so left has been separated from his beloved wife and family.

One day last week a scene of this kind occurred at Prescott. The steamer Ottawa, we think it was, arrived with a large number of Irish and German emigrants on board. As soon as the vessel touched the wharf, many of these strangers in a strange land, rushed on shore and went in quest of bread, milk, &c. Lot a stranger make his way through the intricasies leading from the Prescott wharves, and ten to one if he can retrace the labrynth without a guide

So it fared with a poor German on the occasion we speak of. The poor man had a wife and family on board, had made his way to the front street in order to make some purchases, and failed to make his way to the wharf till after the boat had left; and then, like Lord Ullan, he was left behind lamenting.

Imagine, if you can, the heart agony of that poor man. His frantic actions indicated something of what he suffered, but as he was unable to utter a word of English he could not make known his lonely situation by words. The forlorn man wept like a child, clasping his hands in dispair, and looking wistfully, with tearful eyes, into the face of every one around, as if appealing for help. He did not appeal in vain. One man's Christian heart quivered and beat in sympathy for the sufferer although several brutes made mock of the poor German's solitary position and his frantic gestures.

The gentleman we alluded to had a horse and buggy at Gillman's. He saw and felt for the poor German. He said nothing to the poor man, because the man could not have understood him, though he had addressed him but he ordered his buggy to be got ready while he kept his eye on the poor German as he ran through the street hopelessly seeking relief, but unable to make the relief he sought for known.

At length the buggy was ready, when a gold badecked gentleman requested a ride to Brockville, as he too, had missed the boat. 'I cant do it,' was the reply, and shortly after the owner, who was in the buggy, started, and followed in the direction taken by the nearly heart broken German.

He overtook the latter, got him into the buggy, started for Brockville, and reached the river here, just as the steamer was being made fast to the wharf.

The German could not speak his thanks in a tongue that could be understood by his friend, but, as soon as he allighted from the buggy, and before he entered the boat, he thrust his hand into his pocket, drew out his purse, and tried to force it with its whole contents into the hands of the gentleman who had done so much for him. Of course it was refused, when the poor fellow took hold of the gentleman's hands, looked into his face, and wept for joy.

The gentleman himself could not refrain from shedding tears; while the action he had performed, we have no doubt, sent a thrill of pleasure through his frame that could not be purchased by all the wealth in the world. God bless him for the performance of so noble an act.

The remembrance of it will encircle a halo of pleasure around his head, ere the portals of death are entered by him.

The distance between Prescott and Brockville, a little over eleven miles, with one horse, drawing a buggy and two heavy men, was run in about fifty minutes. The gentleman who performed this kind action is Andrew Elliott, Esq., of Cornwall. We know he will not thank us for making this incident public, but we do so in order to show an instance of the dark and bright side of life.—Recorder.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—This week, it is our painful duty to record an accident of a distressing nature, which occurred on the Great Western Railway about three miles east of this place, on Saturday evening last, about 7 o'clock. It appears that the unfortunate man, named Richard Cox, Engineer, lately from Bristol England, observed a light on the track and on looking over the side of the locomotive he had slipped and fell off—at the same time the fireman was looking out at the other side of the locomotive, and on crossing the Norwich Road, there was no whistle given, (as was usually the case) the fireman turned round and missed the engineer—he stopped the engine immediately and backed up about two miles where they found the man lying in the ditch, in an insensible state—he was then conveyed to the station, where Dr. Turquand and Dr. Duke were in immediate attendance, they directed him to be conveyed to Mr. Bickle's Hotel, and everything was done for him that medical skill could suggest. The only external injuries observable, were a cut over the left eye, a contusion on the top of his head, and his right arm broken near the shoulder. On Tuesday morning last, hopes were entertained of his recovery, but his internal injuries were more serious than was expected, and about 1 o'clock, the same day, without having uttered a word since the accident, he died, leaving his disconsolate widow and two daughters to mourn his loss. He is said to have been a very intelligent person and maintained an excellent character. Aged 35 years.—Woodstock Sentinel.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT.—On Thursday last while Hiram Thompson, a farmer of East Oxford, was oiling a thrashing machine, the sleeve of his shirt got entangled in the machinery, and drew in his arm grinding it to pieces to within a few inches of the shoulder. He was still living on Tuesday last, although his recovery is dubtful.—Sentinel.

☞ MURDER IN ADJALA.—A man has been lately murdered in the township of Adjala under the following circumstances:—

It appears that a man named Tracy, and two brothers named Reilley, were at a Raising together, and that Tracy, who was partially intoxicated, behaved unbecomingly towards their sister, who is a married woman; the brothers interfered and in the struggle which ensued, a third person advanced and kicked the deceased so violently as to cause his death in a few days. Tracy has, we are told attributed his melancholy and untimely death to the kick which he got as stated above. The parties implicated have made their escape. Apart from the guilt and consequences of murder, it casts a stigma on the locality where it is committed and it is to be regretted that whiskey drinking is, in the majority of cases, directly conducive to this awful crime. Nothing reflects so much credit on any people as their sober and steady habits and it behoves all lovers of their country and kind to condemn the too prevalent habit of grog-drinking.—Toronto Mirror.

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS.—Captain Henry Clement of Plymouth, master of the brig William Hutt, fell from the companion ladder, leading from a steamer into his vessel, and was drowned. He was in company with the mate Pasco Tonkins, who perilled his own life in endeavouring to rescue Capt. Clement, but unfortunately without avail.—Pilot.

A man, name unknown, aged 30 years, apparently a sailor in one of the Upper Canada boats, fell into the canal, near the flour sheds, about nine o'clock on Monday night. John Smith, belonging to the barge Jane heard the splash in the water, and ran to his assistance but the body was not found for an hour after.—Ib.

☞ About four this morning the train on the Brantford and Buffalo road running from Brantford to Buffalo—going at great speed to fetch up time lost waiting for a train on the Great Western ran over a hand car in which were five men. One of these was killed outright, another is not expected to live and the remaining three are badly injured.—Journal & Express.

KEEPING THE FEET WARM.—A grate level with the floor and a low fronted fender would be best adapted to warm the feet. But it is urged against this that the lower the grate the lower the draft across the floor to the fire and consequently, the colder the feet. But it is urged against this that the lower the grate, the lower is the draught of air rushing across the floor to the fire and consequently the colder the feet.

Mrs Partington advises all young people afflicted with preparation of the heart, to apply the caterack of mustard, to draw out the information, and she says she has never known a failure where the advice was strictly followed.

A PARAGRAPH FOR HOUSEWIVES.—Water saturated with lime, produces the same whiteness as alum, the same softness, and the same capacity to retain moisture: while it removes all acidity from dough, and supplies an element needed in the structure of the bones which is deficient in wheat, and still more so in rye. Use 5lbs. of water saturated with lime to 196lbs of flour. No other change is necessary in the process of baking.

But this is not the fault of the fire but of the mode of feeding the fire. If the air be brought by a pipe directly below the, fire, the draught may be adjusted like a furnace.

To make sure of obtaining the greatest possible amount of heat from a fireplace direct to the room, it is essential that the fire should be contained in an absorbent, and not in conducting metal—fire-brick in preference to iron.

The common register stoves of iron, commonly and carelessly set with hollow spaces behind the iron, are the most difficult to light, and the most effective to carry the heat up the chimney. The iron must be thoroughly warmed before the fire can burn well or throw out heat.

Fire-brick absorbs heat, and restains it for a long time gradually giving it out. The conclusion is that, for the purpose of supplying radient heat, with the least heat and least cost and inconvenience, a fire-brick stove, with a funnel top and throttle valve and a pipe from the external air to supply the fuel draught, is the best adapted.

EFFECT OF HEAT ON NAMES. — It seems that names may be effected and even changed by the state of the weather. The late Mr. Suett, the comic actor going once to dine about twelve miles from London, and being able only to get an outside place on the coach arrived in such a bedragged state from an incessant rain, and so muffled up in great coats and handkerchiefs, that his friend inquired, doubtingly. Are you Suett, No, replied the wag, I'm dripping.

INGENIUS TEST.—A Yankee in one of our New England towns, going into the market to buy a mess of sausages, held out a link to Tiger his dog. Tiger rubbed his nose against them, as if to smell a bit, and instantly bristled up and showed his dentals—upon which his master dropped them like a hot potato.

"What's the matter?" demanded the vender of pork. "Do you find fault with my sausages."

"No," replied the Yankee, I have nothing again the sassingers. Only dog wont eat dog, that's all.

☞ Will you have two buffalo's? inquired a stable keeper of a foreigner who was going to try his first sleigh ride." "God grant us," was the reply "I want a horse."

LONDON, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1854

A SLIGHT DASH OF INCONSISTENCY.

A late number of the Hamilton Gazette contains the following pious and vehement exclamations:—

"Thanks be to God that Christianity has at least two honest and stout-hearted champions in the Provincial Legislative Assembly. Whatever be the ultimate fate of the Clergy Reserves it is consolatory to reflect that in a convocation by which morality is regarded as a mere nuisance because it stands in the way of Mammon, and his monster development, Railways—two Anglo-Churchmen come forth to do battle for the rights of the Church.

Canada, after all, is a favored country!—Sodom could only boast of its lot;—we can point to a Morney and a Cameron?"

It most certainly is exceedingly refreshing to know that a few of our statesmen at least, will not bow down before the demoralizing altar of expediency; that even two or three persons have been found who will use no equivocation or disingenuousness on matters of vital importance; but it certainly is a most fearful, degrading and abominable state of things if the immense body of Canadian conservatives have dwindled down to a single pair! Now this will undoubtedly seem to be the case, according to the following biting declarations of the same distinguished oracle:—

Mr. Cameron declared that he was sorry for the position of "Conservative gentlemen" on the Reserves. Well, indeed, might he be sorry! Only reflect upon the never-ending pilfering, which those poor gentlemen are doomed to undergo in history, wanteer be the fate of our endowments!

God can—and we trust God will avert the meditated sin of sacrilege! Nothing short, however, of immediate abolishment of the art of printing can save the memory of the gentlemen in question, from being drained and spit upon till the end of time, by every one who is unencumbered by infidelity and greed!

We do not say that an ex mino, consistent voluntary could without sin, labor and vote for the secularization of the Clergy Reserves. This much, however, we assert that such a one alone could do so, without perpetrating the grossest outrage against common decency! The Methodist man who holds that he is entitled by the Divine Sanction, to indulge in a plurality of wives, less exuisite or dig ist an irreprobation, than the ecalightened Christian, who in defiance of the creed which he professes wallows in the impurities of a harem!

A SECULARISING CONSERVATIVE! Heaven in his mercy shield us from the fathomless infamy of having those ghastly words inscribed upon our tomb stone! More enviable by far, the destiny of the strangled convict, who fills a nameless grave at the bottom of his gibbet?

From the above emphatic assertions it appears evident that our confrere believes that no Conservative can be a secularizer; that at least two members of the House are not secularizers; but that the "Ministers" and the greater portion of their conservative supporters in Parliament are deserving of endless infamy for being prepared to carry out secularizing measures. Under these circumstances it may very naturally be asked what course has our ardent frater pursued with regard to those persons who are to be "pilloryed" and "spit upon" through all time? Has he ever denounced in unmeasured terms the unholy compact? Did he use his best exertions to prevent the return of the chief of those who are to be besmattered with filth, viz:—Sir Allan McNab? By no means! Not a single line ever met our eye in the Gazette calling upon the electors of Hamilton to assist in breaking up a combination so full of deadly horrors! Contrariwise that secularizing Knight was allowed to be re-elected by acclamation, and this same pious politician could exclaim respecting that event, "the excitement precursory to the Hamilton election, if indeed, any there was, has eventuated happily in the return by general acclamation of the gallant Knight of Dundurn to his accustomed seat in Parliament, enhanced by the confidence of the country at large: in calling him to the leadership of the Administration." It certainly seems to us that the Gazette has aided and abetted the men who are to be "pilloryed" for "sacrilege;" and who, being worse than the adulterous Mormons, are to be "defiled and spit upon;" men who are devoid of "common decency" and whose memories are to be "more detestable" than those of strangled convicts!!

If it be a fact that Sir Allan McNab and his Conservative colleagues have accepted office upon the condition that the church property of this Province—for the term "Reserves" is not one of sufficient strength—is to be sacrificed on the altar of licentious expediency, then do we hesitate not to say that their course in this particular is infamously base and dishonest, and that we, in reference to that subject, can be no party to their abominable traffic. So far from wishing them success in their nefarious and unnatural coalition we shall wish them an immediate and disgraceful overthrow! It was upon the supposition that the Conservatives had good and honest reasons for joining the Lower Province portion of the defunct Ministry, and because we could not imagine that the Conservative French (Conservative at least as far as church property is concerned) Would listen to the socialistic clamor of the Pharisaic brawlers, and be a party to robbing the church of God, that we were at all willing to countenance the motley Cabinet in their speculative attempt at governing the Province. we stated at the first that we were willing to try them; and that we would treat them according to their acts, and we still maintain that position They are treated as honorable conservatives until, unhappily, they may be proven degenerate traitors. It is not to be imagined that all virtue and all consistency are shut up in the breasts of Cameron and Murney; we fain hope that the ministry by adjustment mean not "sacrilege," and "profanity," but an honorable, and therefore eventually popular distribution of the funds in question in support of religion. Our views are unchanged with regard to this prominent question. The appropriation of this church property to making of roads and bridges, or to any secular object whatever is nothing short of the most barefaced robbery and sacrilege. Let the government yield to the clamorous few in this particular, and, inasmuch as the faith of the crown is pledged in behalf of the religious appropriation of these lands, there will not be a single acre of ground, obtained originally from the crown, either the property of private individuals or incorporate bodies, but will stand in imminent danger of immediate alienation.

In another point, however, we differ from our Hamilton contemporary; the Strong language he employs to depict the inconsistency of "secularising" conservatives, we cannot fully endorse; for to the shame of our cause be it spoken, there are evidently many in our ranks who would be willing to settle the long vexed question in any way so that it might be at once and forever buried out of sight, and we must confess that the reserves have been so prominently and long before the public, to no purpose except for strife and debate that a mere caption of the subject creates disgust, and that if the long meditated robbery is to be perpetrated, it would be a mercy to have it accomplished at once. We however can be no party to the desecration. If might is to overcome right let it be accomplished by the reformers, unaided by those who profess to be the enemies of spoliation and the friends of established order.

We must be free also to acknowledge that if this vexed question were disposed of, we are of the opinion that old distinctions would be forever removed, the bitter epithet of Tory and Radical would pass away and that Canadian politics would undergo a highly benificial change. Two parties there undoubtedly would and must be; but each would be equally Canadian; for, not being a "fossil," we are not placed in that state of immobility, which would prevent us from advocating beneficial changes and advancement, nor are we so exclusive'y Tory as to suppose that all loyalty is shut up in the conservative ranks.

According to what course of argument our Hamilton contemporary, however, can support a military whom he believes unsound on the reserves, and yet represent a conservative secularizer as being unequal in abomination to anything this side of Pandimonium, our unaided mental optics cannot possibly discern.

ABOMINABLE.

The Brantford Expositor states that a dial olical attempt was made on the night of the 11th inst., to throw off the train from the east; some wrecches having removed a rail from the B & B R R., track. Some of the cars were thrown off from the track, but no personal injury was received. Suspicion rests upon some persons to whom the company were indebted; but no proof has been established against them. The wretch or wretches who could perpetrate such wickedness could scarcely be punished too severely. It is hoped that they will be detected.

DOUGLASS JERROLD'S NEWS BAG.—This weekly paper or magazine has been received. It is got up in small quarto form and contains may excellent articles, it is of a literary character and is embellished, though sparingly, with engravings, It will doubtless be a favourite work.

☞ Through the courtesy of J. Scatcherd, Esq., M.P., we have been furnished with certain parliamentary documents.

☞ WARNING TO JUVENILES.—A boy has lately been sent to Jail in Troy, N. Y., for tearing down printed bills, which had been recently stuck up containing important information. For this wanton gratification of his destructive propensities, the lad in question was incarcerated for four days. An example or two of similar severity would be highly beneficial to some of the "gassoons" of London, who seem to take a savage satisfaction, in thus destroying property not their own, and who, if left unchequed, may proceed from maliciously or wantonly tearing down printed notices, to acts which would eventually bring them to the Penetentiary.

PARIS.

This village is rapidly advancing in prosperity and importance. Having paid it a short visit very lately we were much pleased at the great improvement which have been made there during the last two years. Substantial, lofty, and commodious edifices have been erected, both of a public and private character.

An air of activity and enterprise is exhibited on every hand and calculations are made for the erection of fresh machinery upon the river, which speak well for that thriving place:

Among other improvements it is to be remembered that Paris now issues two very creditable papers, the Star and the Maple Leaf. There are also new mills for grinding plaster and a number of very excellent stores.

There is also a very substantial and excellent Market House and Town Hall; but the style is very remarkable being so strongly ecclesiastical that any stranger, till informed to the contrary, would at once pronounce it a church. It seems strange to find the tower of this costly edifice used perchance for hexters stalls, and its chancel (?) devoted to the dispensing of beef and mutton; but tastes differ, and if the Parisans are satisfied, that is the main thing.

There appears to be an unwise rivalry between the "upper" and "lower" parts of the village, as they are termed, which must be more or less injurious to the growth of the town. An enlightened policy, however, on the part of its Councillors and inhabitants can easily overcome this apparent evil. Between the two parts of the village there is an immensely high point of land, which seems to form an everlasting barrier to the union of the two sections of the village; now enough of this immense pile of solid earth might be removed to admit of a fine broad street from the lower to the upper village, which, in the course of time would be filled up with solid blocks of edifices;

At present little or no difficulty in reference to this cut, seems to interfere there being no costly buildings or improvements in the way; moreover the main street in the lower village might be raised some eight or ten feet higher than it is at present and, thus a long and capital street would be formed highly ornamented to the "united" town.

Paris is surrounded by an excellent agricultural country and when its immense water power is rightly improved it will become a very large town.

MADAME DEVRIES gave a Concert here on Wednesday night. A very respectable audience was present—report speaks correctly of this lady; and her voice, much as it has been extolled, surpassed our expectations. She unites in her singing great clearness strength, melody and taste.

The steamer E. K. Collins, has been burned near Malden, and twenty-three lives lost, on Sunday the 8th instant.

Our Parliament adjourned from the 3rd to the 10th.

The Postmaster-general has been returned by a majority of 337

FAILURE OF AN AMERICAN INSURANCE COMPANY.

The Protection Insurance Company, of Hartford, has suspended payment, on account of recent severe losses. We believe that this company has done a large business in Canada, but they have been no fire losses here of consequence, and insurers in Canada will only suffer to the extent of the premiums they have paid. As people are too often in the habit of confusing Companies, which have their head quarters at the same place, although there may be no connection whatever between them, we consider it proper to state that the Ætna Insurance Company, of which Mr. W. H. Childs is Agent, has, as the saying is, "its connection with the house opposite,"—whole no business has never been questioned. Having ourselves insured in the Ætna for years, we can with confidence recommend it, while the following circular will show that, for the future, increased vigilance is to be exercised and additional rates imposed.

A CARD.

ÆTNA INSURANCE COMPANY,
HARTFORD, CONN., Sept. 8, 1854.

The condition of this office, notwithstanding the considerable losses of the past two months, is such that the capital is whole, with a respectable surplus—the Company do not owe a dollar to any Bank or other Institution—there is not a note or acceptance of the Company outstanding in the hands of any individual or other institution—with a large balance in cash at our credit in Bank, and every loss now outstanding will be promptly paid at maturity or before—our investment in Bonds, Stocks, and Mortgages exceed Four Hundred and Thirty Thousand Dollars, besides large balances due and in course of transmission from Agents.

This brief statement is hastily prepared, but as time is important, we transmit it to you for your information, guidance, and satisfaction—and the assured may rely upon the truth as herein stated, as to our present condition, and feel the value of our policies to be reliable. 490

AYER'S PILLS.
FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC.

This has long existed a public demand for an effective Cathartic Pill which could be relied on as sure and perfect in its operation. This has been prepared to meet that demand, and an extensive trial of its virtues has shown with what success it accomplishes the purposes designed. It is easy to make a physical Pill that will carry to the bowels the drugs it contains, but all the advantages are not always secured. Different parts of the bowels are often differently susceptible to medicines, and it is not always the largest Pill that will produce the most thorough cleansing. We have endeavored in the making of these Pills to attain the most perfect result of which the remedies we employ are capable, and to present a Pill which, while it should be sufficiently searching, would be as mild as is consistent with the proper fulfilment of its office. Many of them produce no pain, and require no confinement from the patient. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use, but it is better that they should be taken discreetly. Minute directions for their use in the several diseases for which they are applicable are given on the box. Among the complaints which they will speedily cure the following are some of the most important: Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Bilious Fever, Fever and Ague, Pestilential Fever, Intermittent Fever, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Pain in the Side and Kidneys, Pain in the Back, Stomach and Bowels, Inflammation of the Liver, Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dropsy, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Ulcers, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scurvy, Coldness of the body, Chills and Fever, Ague, and nearly every case where a purgative medicine is required. Although they are sugar-coated they are purely vegetable, and being entirely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

For minute directions, see the wrapper on the Box.

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Rivers, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Opiclides, Saxhorns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, the second having such a power as that of a human can cause music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune; these Pianos require good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing often removing in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

I was about to employ one, when you visited this place and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in three weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. REDFORD & Co.

Gentlemen—I have received the Sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavor, in which the essential Medicinal qualities appear to be largely imbued and well preserved and as this agreeable tonic is highly beneficial in those forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone in the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with on this continent) your cordial will, I doubt not, form an inestimable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Preparation of this valuable tonic, to my professional brethren, and to the public as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

I am, Gentlemen, Yours, &c.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation This Galvanic Embrocation is noted with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs, Gout, The Dolorous Nervousness and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Neuralgia, Fits Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Sickness of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Childbirth Burns and Scalds, &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wonderous power when it is thus difficult, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various causes, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to say that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Poetry.

THE LABORER AND THE WARRIOR.

H. B. C.

The camp has had its say of song;
The sword, the bayonet, and the plume,
Have crowded out of rhyme too long
The plough, the anvil, and the loom!
Oh, not upon our tented fields,
Are freedom's heroes bred alone;
The training of a workshop yields
More heroes true than war has known.

Who drives the bolt and shapes the steel,
May, with a heart as valiant, smite,
As he who sees a foeman reel,
In blood, before his blow of might!
The skill that conquers space and time,
That graces life, that lightens toil,
May spring from courage as sub lime,
As that which makes a realm its spoil.

Let labor then look up and see
His craft no pitch of honor lacks
The soldiers title yet shall be,
Less honored than the woodman's axe
Let Art his own appointment prize,
Nor deem that gold or outward height,
Can compensate the worth that lies
In taste, that breeds its own delight.

And may the time draw nearer still,
When man this sacred truth shall heed,
That from the thought and from the will
Must all that rises man proceed:
Though pride shall hold her calling low!
For us shall duty make it good;
And we from truth to truth shall go,
Till life and death are understood.

ATHEISM.

BY MRS. L. H. SIGOURNEY.

"The fool hath said in his heart there is no God"

No God, no God! the simple flower
That on the wild is found,
Shrinks as it drinks its cup of dew,
And trembles at the sound;
"No God" astonished echo cries
From out her cavern hoar,
And every wandering bird that flies,
Reproves the Atheist's lore.

The solemn forest lifts its head,
The Almighty to proclaim;
The brooklet on her crystal bed,
Doth leap to praise his name;
High sweeps the deep and vengeful sea,
Along its billow track,
And red Vesuvius opes its mouth,
To hurl the falsehood back.

The palm tree with its princely crest,
The cocoa's leafy shade—
The breadfruit bending to its load—
In yon fair island glade—
The winged seeds, borne by the wind—
The roving sparrows food—
The melon of the desert sands,
Confute the scorner's creed.

"No God" with indignation high
The fervent sun is stirred,
And the pale moon turns paler still,
At such an impious word:
And from their burning thrones, the stars
Look down with angry eye,
That thus a word of dust should mock
Eternal Majesty!

Victoria as a Queen, a Wife, and a Mother.

From the Morning Star.

Victoria, the reigning Queen of Great Britain and Ireland was born at Kensington Palace, May 24th 1819.

Her father was Edward, Duke of Kent, fourth son of George III., her mother was Victoria Maria Louisa, daughter of the Duke of Saxe-Cobourg. Left a widow when her delicate infant was six months old, the duchess of Kent devoted herself to the great purpose of training her daughter to be worthy of the crown which it seemed probable she might wear — Queen Victoria is, therefore, the exponent of female nature rightly cultivated for the highest station a mortal can inherit by birth. The means by which the instruction was perfected and the results to humanity, are studies for the statesman, the philosopher, and the christian.

In our brief sketch we shall only allude to some of the small circumstances, yet really great events, because influencing a mind that was to have a vast influence on other minds. The ordering and training of Queen Victoria was entirely the work of her wise-hearted mother, and chiefly accomplished through female agencies. That her education was of the highest and most perfect order for her station there are ample proofs, it has given to the greatest monarchy in the world, the best sovereign the world contains, the best of her royal line, the best, morally speaking that ever sat on England's throne. More than this, Victoria was trained to perform all her duties, she is an accomplished lady, as perfect in her feminine, as in her Queenly character; a dutiful daughter; a loving wife; a watchful mother; a kind mistress; a generous benefactor: an exemplary Christian. There are no scarlet ingredients, no weak inconsistencies in her conduct. Such uniform adherence to the right and proper, under circumstances where selfish propensities are so often stimulated, and so easily gratified, must be the result of the conscientious principle early and unceasingly cultivated. In this lies the germ of all moral goodness, and the element of all true greatness. From conscientiousness enlightened by the divine precepts, are reduced the virtues of obedience, temperance, truth, justice, mercy, prudence, fidelity, benevolence, and self-control, while the sweet feelings of love hope and faith, whose union and exaltation form the crowning grace of piety, owe the best and holiest charm to the same principle of right. Let us see how the teachings of a mother could thus lead her child in the way of righteousness; whose end is always happiness. Before the birth of this precious child, the Duchess of Kent had shown in the previous circumstances of her life, and particularly in the personal sacrifices and risk she endured when leaving her home in Germany, she hastened to England so that her offspring might be British born—her deep devotion to duty, and that deep devotion to duty which has guided her through every task and trial. The Duchess of Kent nursed her infant at her own bosom; and always attended on the washing and dressings; and as soon as the little girl could sit alone she was placed at a small table beside her mother's at meals, yet never indulged in any except the prescribed simple kind of food. Thus were the sentiments of obedience, temperance, and self-control, early inculcated and brought into daily exercise.

The Duke of Kent died in debt for money borrowed of his friends. The Duchess instructed the little Princess concerning these debts, and encouraged her to lay aside portions of money which might have been expended in the purchase of toys, as a fund to pay these demands against her deceased father.—Thus were awakened and cultivated those noble virtues of justice, fortitude and fidelity, with that filial devotion which is the germ of patriotism. And thus throughout all the arrangements of the first seven years, the wisdom, the simplicity, the conscientiousness of the teacher were moulding the ductile and impressible mind and heart of the pupil to follow after wisdom and to do the right. Love, in her mother's form, was ever round the little princess; the councils and examples of that faithful monitor, like an inspiration, served to lift up the young soul to have hope in God, and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Well it was that the Du

AFFAIRS IN THE CRIMEA.

At Simpheropol, in the Crimea, great preparations are making for the reception of a high personage, probably a Russian Grand Duke.

Since the 24th of August, Prince Menschikoff has been in incessant activity between Perekop and Sebastopol, organizing a levy en masse.

On the 12th a powder magazine exploded at Perekop.

There is said to have been great loss of life on the part of the Russians; two vessels of the allies were also damaged.

ODESSA AGAIN BOMBARDED.

According to a telegraphic dispatch of the 4th from Odessa, eight Anglo French steamers had on that very day placed themselves with their broadsides toward the quarantine harbor.

The Fremden Blatt states that on the 13th all the strand batteries, recently erected at Odessa were totally destroyed by part of the allied fleet.

The bombardment of Odessa, originally announced from Viena as a discredited rumor is reaffirmed in telegraphic dispatches from that capital, a despatch received there from Czernowitz states that on the 13th the town was on fire in three places. A later despatch in the Fremden Blatt, states that it was the strand batteries, and not the town, which the ships of the allied fleets attacked, and that those they completely destroyed. And that those statements the Vienna press must bear the responsibility of.

EVACUATION OF MOLDAVIA BY THE RUSSIANS.

On the 15th Prince Gortschikoff transferred the government to the Moldavian Minister of the Interior, M. Constantine Stourdza. At the same time Baron Budburg remin ed the Council of State that it was their duty to govern according to the existing laws. The evacuation of Moldavia is complete, and the Russian rear guard is crossing the Pruth. The moldavian government has sent commissioners to meet the Austrians who are advancing. The Turks are at Galatz and Barilow, and it is said are advancing on Fokshani. On the 10th ult., the fleet was concentrated at Serpent Island, and was to sail for the Crimea the next day. The Persian ministry at Constantinople has denied the truth of the report as to a rupture between the Porte and Persia.

Since the 9th Anapa has been bombarded by the Equadron under Admiral Lyons.

The main fleet had sailed to Sebastopol, and on its arrival the Russian fleet, which lay outside returned into port.

The Presse states that on the 7th a Russian steamer landed a detatchment of Cossacks at Falatz, who destroyed the magazines of the Danubian Steam Company and seized the supply of coals.

Philippesco, the commander of the Moldavian artillery, has been sent under escort to Russia. The measure has caused general indignation.

The English are said to have captured a Russian express steamer with important despatches on it.

There is not a Russian soldier now either in Wallachia or the Dobrudscha.

Private Andrew Anderson of the 10th company of Sappers and Miners, who so bravely distinguished himself at the seige of Silistra, has been awarded in the name of the Sultan Omar Pacha, who personally presented Anderson with a gold medal for his valuable services.

THE WAR IN THE BALTIC.

Her Majesty's cruisers having towed the French ships and British transports with the troops on board returning back to France out the Baltic returning to their cruising grounds immediately. In the Gulf of Finland and Bothnia a number of Dutch vessels ought to enter the blockaded ports; they were however, speedily intercepted, and Her Majesty's ship Archer sent one, Minima into Memel she is laden with hollands, cheese and miscellaneous produce, and with her cargo was sent home to England for condemnation.

The fleets have entirely left Aland.

THE LANDING IN THE CRIMEA

The following important notification has been forwarded from the War Department :—:

Telegraphic accounts have been received by Her Majesty's Government from Vienna and Constantinople announcing that the allied forces, consisting of 25,000 English, 25,000 French, and 8,000 Turkish troops landed on the 14th at Eupatoria without meeting any resistance, and had commenced marching on Sebastopol."

ITALY

A letter from Venice in the Moniteur, states that important changes have just been made at Trieste in the general command of the navy, and others are about to follow in the civil government of the province. The Archduke Ferdinand Maximilian, brother of the Emperor, has been appointed Commander-in Chief of the Marine. The successor to the Marine, is not yet known.

A letter from Florence states that the reigning Duchess of Parma, for the purpose of attracting capital and facilitating the circulation of it, has just created a bank, the capital of which is divided into shares, some of which her Royal Highness has taken in her own name, and in those of her sons. The Ministers, public functionaries, and other persons of distinction, have followed the example

The Missing Steamship "City of Glasgow."

From the Colonist.

At last, after months of painful suspense, indication of the probable fate of the steamship City of Glasgow, and of the hundreds of unfortunate beings who embarked in her have been brought to light.

Captain McCleary of the bark Mary Morris from Glasgow, arrived at New York on the 29th ult, and reports that on the 18th of August, in lat. 53 26, lon. 16 07. weather very thick at the time, and a heavy sea on, he fell in with the hull of a large vessel, apparently Clyde built, painted black, with a bright red bottom. There were three or four compartments in the hull, and all the wood work was entirely burnt out of her. Some of the men who were sent aloft to look into her perceived she had machinery in her. On the next day Captain McCleary fell in with and took on board a full length female figure head about seven feet in height, with her hands extended, with a wreath upon her head and green stripes on her dress. The figure can be seen on board the Mary Morris at the foot of Pine Street. It was the impression of all on board the bark that the wreck was that of an iron propeller supposed to be the City of Glasgow.

From the circumstances that no other iron vessel has been reported lost, except the steamer Helen Stoman some three years back, appearances favor the belief that the wreck was that of the City of Glasgow, and that the fate of the poor souls on board, though different from that hitherto supposed, was the most awful that can occur among the many disasters incidental to the ocean. Though the proofs are but small to identify the wreck as that of the City of Glasgow, the weather being too unfavorable to make a more thorough examination, still enough may have been seen to guide those to a decision who were acquainted with the unfortunate vessel. Speaking of the figure head, the New York Commercial Advertiser says:—

"It no doubt belonged to the British ship Shannon, an iron ship which was burned at sea in the early part of August, while on her passage from Glasgow to Quebec, and Montreal, the passengers and crew having been rescued and taken off by a vessel to Quebec.

MARINE DISASTERS.—The ship Memph s arrived in New York on Tuesday with the captain, mate and crew of the schooner Morning Star of Halifax, which was unhappily wrecked in a hurricane on September the 11th, and her cargo lost. The brig Clarissa, while on her way from Philadelphia to Boston, was disabled in a storm on the 2nd inst., and but for the timely assistance of a pilot-boat, the crew would undoubtedly have been lost. The Clarissa sunk an hour after her hands left her.

LOSS OF THE "ARCTIC."

NARRATIVE OF THE SECOND IN COMMAND.

Cape Race was leaving N. W. 68 miles. While running on in a very thick fog, we were struck on the starboard bow, about 60 feet abaft of the cutwater by an iron steamer, which made three large holes in the ship, two below the water, one of which was about 5½ feet x 2½ wide, driving the whole of the cutwater and stem of the iron steamer, clear through the Arctic's side. So dense was the fog that the vessel could not be seen a minute before the collision. The helm was put hard starboard the engine was stopped and reversed at full speed, until clear of the other steamer, which occupied a couple of minutes. The iron steamer seemed to be sinking bow first. Capt. Luce (of the Arctic) immediately gave orders to clear the quarter boats which was done, and Mr. Gourly, chief officer, left the Arctic in charge of the starboard boat. The Captain then called to me "hoist up that boat again Mr. Balham,' and beckoned me to go to him, before doing so he told me to go over the boat and ascertain wl at damage had been done. I then found the holes above mentioned. Before informing him of the facts, he gave orders to get sails up, to try and get them round about the vessel, to stop the leak, which was promptly done, but to no advantage, so much of the iron bow which was broken off from the other steamer projecting, that the sails could not be hauled close over the vessels' sides. The Carpenter was then lowered down over the vessels' side and mattresses passed down to him; to try and force them into the holes, but the leak was found to be so far below the water line, that they could not be got in, and every exertion to stop the leak proved unavailing. Captain Luce ordered the ship's head to be kept ahead, which bore N. W. by W. By this time we had lost sight of the chief officers boat, and the other steamer, which we supposed had sunk. We had not been on our course more than four or five minutes, before she, the Arctic, ran over a boat belonging to the other vessel, when all belonging to her perished except one, who caught hold of a rope on our bow. Directly the boat was seen, orders were given to stop the engine, but the chief engineer said it could not be done as the ship was fast sinking. In about thirty minutes all the lower fires were out, and at least three feet of water in the ship fore and aft. By this time the confusion among the passengers was very great, but they used every effort to assist the crew in keeping the deck pumps going, and in lightening the ship forward, for the purpose of endeavoring to get at the leak from the inside, which was found to be useless, and a number of the passengers went into the boats, which were still hanging to the davits. In forty-five minutes after the collision I came up from the fore hold and informed the Captain that the water was level with the lower deck beam, and that it was impossible to get at the leak. I then asked him what he thought would be the fate of the ship, when he said that he believed there was no hope of saving her. He then told me to see to my boats.—On going to those on the port side I found them completely filled with men, women and children, and no possibility of moving them. I then went to the starboard side and ordered two of the crew to lower the guard boat, and asked the captain what were his intentions. He replied that "the ship's fate should be his." I then asked him if he would not allow his son to go, as I intended to take a boat, but he replied that he should share his fate. It was soon discovered that there was no hope of saving the Arctic, and the lady, daughters and son of Mr. E. K Collins, with several ladies, were put on board a boat, and were in the act of being lowered, when the tackle gave way, and all except one lady, who clung to a sailor, were precipitated into the sea and lost! I then jumped into a boat, and was ordered by the Captain to cut away the tackle and drop astern. I did so, and at the same time about twenty persons jumped overboard, of whom eighteen were picked up. We fell in with another boat, which had been lowered from the other side, and relieved her of part of her load, leaving 19 in her, and having 26 in my own boat. The last sight we had of the ship her guards were level with the water, and the surface of the sea was covered with human beings, who had fallen or jumped overboard, and to whom it was impossible to render any assistance, and we soon lost sight of all as the fog was very dense.—I then asked the boats' crew whether they were willing to be governed by me, which was unanimously answered in the affirmative, and I was named Captain of both the boats. We were then 60 miles south of Cape Race. After pulling for forty hours with nothing to guide us but the run of the sea, which I took to be from the south, and in a thick fog which lasted all the time till we reached Broad Cove, some 12 miles north of Cape Race.—We then proceeded by land to Renews which place we reached on Friday. I then took charge of a small schooner which was hired by the Purser and myself, and proceeded immediately in search of the boats and wreck. We cruised round in a strong gale of wind from the N. E. but did not find any trace of the ship or boats. I sent word to Captain Leitch of the City of Philadelphia, acquainting him with the catastrophe, and I am informed that he sent off two vessels which he had occupied about his own ships. Mr. Allan Goderick of Renews, also sent away a vessel on Saturday evening. It is with the greatest regret I have to report that no trace of the Arctic or boats has been found, but as there were many vessels in the neighborhood it is not impossible that many lives have been saved. No doubt however is left in my mind as to the total loss of the Arctic.

(Signed,)
WM. BALHAM.
2nd Officer of the Arctic.

ADDITIONAL ABOUT THE ARCTIC

Halifax, October 11.

We have received Newfoundland dates to the 4th. The French screw steamer Vesta arrived at St. Johns on the 4th with her fore mast and bow shattered to pieces, she being the vessel that came in collision with the ill fated Arctic. She had on board 31 of the Arctic's crew which she picked up at the time of the accident. The Vesta lost 13 of her passengers.—Three of the Arctic's boats have not been heard from; but being life boats, it is supposed they may have been picked up by passenger ships. All the passengers and crew saved, as advised yesterday, left here for Boston in the Europa.

BOSTON, 11th.—A gentleman who arrived here to-day from New York, informs us that there was a report at Fall River this morning that a boat loaded with railroad iron had arrived at Warren R. I., with forty persons picked up from one of the missing boats of the Arctic.

RESCUE OF CAPTAIN LUCE.

It is with great pleasure that we publish the following dispatch from Quebec, announcing the safety of Captain Luce, and some of the passengers and crew of the Arctic. It is to be hoped that we shall hear of many more being rescued by vessels passing at the time of the wreck :

The barque Cambria picked up Captain Luce seven or eight of the passengers, and five of the crew of the Arctic from a raft.

Miscellaneous.

Statistics of Health among Laboring Men.

Persons curious in the matter of statistics will be interested in knowing the results of careful inquiries into the health of laboring men. It appears from a recent publication, that the number of days lost by sickness between the ages of 15 and 16, is 6¼ per annum; between 16 and 26 it is 6¾; between 26 and 36 it is 7; between 31 and 46 it is 8¾; between 46 and 51 it is 10¼; between 51 and 56 it is 13½; between 56 and 61 it is 16½; between 61 and 66 it is 23½; between 66 and 71 it is 39 days. About five years of sickness are experienced from the age of 15 to 85, a period of 70 years. The average time varies as life advances. From 16 to 66, there are about 78 weeks of ill health or one year and a half. It appears further that from 15 to 41, the amount is about one half of what it is from 41 to 66 years of age.—Allowance must be made for difference of business. There are some trades that exhaust the physical system much more rapidly than others. If we remember correctly, shoemaking and tailoring have been proven by statistics to be among the most unhealthy of sedentary occupations, while the life of the farmer is the most conducive, of out-door employments, to animal vigor and protracted existence. But it is important to recollect that in most cases a tolerable degree of health and strength is in our own power. Even where there is an hereditary predisposition to disease a great deal may be done towards regulating our physical condition. We are often surprised to see how much is effected in this way by persons of delicate constitutions. They are generally on the look out for attacks. Every organ is a sentinel to report danger. The weak part, to which disease always tends, is acutely sensitive, and it rarely fails to announce a warning in due time.—Such persons are seldom presumptuous. They do not rush into foolish exposures, and in this way their lives are frequently prolonged beyond the common term of duration. Delicate, but enduring is quite a characteristic of this class of individuals, and hence they often bear more and live longer than those of greater stamina. The history of the celebrated Cornaro is an apt illustration of what may be done by care and prudence. Broken down at a comparatively early age he yet succeeded in repairing his shattered frame and enjoying the honors of a ripe existence. Nature wants to obey the laws of Providence. She is always anxious to spend her full term of years, and not to pay the great debt before it is due. The ordinary lease is three score years and ten, but too many anticipate the ordained limit, and hurry themselves prematurely off the stage of action. The true secret of health and success is, in most cases to control ourselves. If a man will master himself, he will be sure to master his circumstances. Neither business nor pleasure will enslave him. And by this sovereignty over his own nature and its sphere of operations, he will be able to fulfil the purposes of being, and accomplish his earthly destiny.

CISTERNS.—Look well to your cisterns. To any one who has examined the contents of a cistern, it is evident that the water and dirt at the bottom often have a strong stench in them, while the water in the upper part is comparatively sweet and pure. This is owing to the animal matter that settles to the bottom, forming a mass of putrid carion. In rain, river and sea water, there are immense numbers of animals so small as to be invisible to the naked eye. Infuse a little pepper into it to give activity to them, and then examine it with a microscope, and it will be alive with animalcula. They are called infusoria. They are short lived, and from their immense numbers, often form one fourth of the rich mud at the mouths of rivers. So with the mud in the bottom of cisterns.

It is caused principally, by the deposit of this animal matter, and undergoes decomposition, putridity, and produces stench, the same as any other animal matter. Unless it is cleaned out at least once a year, the water becomes the essence of carrion. To say nothing of the unpleasant smell, its use, undoubtedly, is often the cause of sickness and death.—Ohio Farmer.

EXCAVATIONS AT HERCULANEUM.—A letter from Naples says, "the excavations at Herculaneum have recently been continued, and have led to the discovery of two houses facing the sea; but on the whole the results have not been very satisfactory. At Pompeii the excavations, after being long suspended, have been renewed, and have brought to light a bronze statue of Apollo, of a size rather larger than life; they are to be continued with a view of discovering the walls of the city. At Canosa, (Canusium) in Apulia, the excavations of Greek tombs have been continued. These tombs are in the forms of chambers, with columns and paintings, and are found to contain gold ornaments, consisting of bracelets, diadems, earrings and rings, together with arms and vases, on the latter are designs of great beauty, representing on a black ground figures of animals and birds, warriors &c. These vases are supposed by some to be Egyptian, By others Babylonian. At Capua excavations have led to the discovery of a tomb in the form of a chamber, with several paintings of women playing fifes and other figures."

HAZLIT'S MANNER OF COMPOSITION.—The three or four hours a day employed by Hazlitt in composition enabled him to produce an essay for a magazine, one of his most profound and masterly table-talks, in two or three sittings, or a long and brilliant article of 30 or 40 pages for the Edinburgh Review, in about a week. But when he had an entire volume of work in hand, he invariably went into the country to execute it, and almost always to the same spot—a little way-side public house, called the Hut, standing alone, some miles distant from any other house, on Winterslow heath, a barren tract of country on the road to and a few miles from Salisbury. There ensconced in a little wainscoted parlor, looking out over the bare heath to the distant groves of Norman Court, some of the finest essays were written; there, in utter solitude and silence, many of his lenst unhappy days were spent; there, wandering for hours over the bare heath, or wandering through the woods of the above mentioned domain, his shattered frame always gained temporary strength and renovation. When Hazlitt was regularly engaged on any work or article, he wrote at the rate of from ten to fifteen octavo pages at a sitting; and never or very rarely, renewed the sitting on the same day, except when he was at Winterslow; where, having no means of occupation or amusement in the latter part of the day, he used, I believe, habitually, to write after his tea. And doubtless one of his motives for going there when he had any considerable work to get through, was the knowledge that by that means he could persuade himself to work double tides.

AN AMUSING MISTAKE.—It is said that among the passengers which took out Lord Harris to India was a French gentleman, who somehow came to be taken or mistaken for the new governor of Chandernagord. By virtue of this supposition everybody showed him every attention, and this attention and esteem he enjoyed, not only from the company on board, but in a marked degree from the greatest man amongst them — to wit Lord Harris.

At table he usually sat at his lordship's right, and engaged the lion's share of his lordship's conversation. Lord Harris landed at Madras, and our Frenchman went on to Calcutta. Here he went on shore, and was received at the Government house, but only to take charge of the viceregal cuisine, in short, the supposed Governor of Chandernagore proved to be Lord Dalhousies French cook.

THE GREAT BELL OF VIENNA.—For a birthday excursion, I ascended the Tower of St. Stephen, which rises up to the enormous height of 437 feet. About 200 feet above the floor we reached the Cathedral bell, weighing 36,400 pounds. A small family could live conveniently under this immense structure. It is 11 feet high and 20½ feet wide; Eight men are requiued to ring it as the clapper alone weighs 1490 pounds. It was cast in 1711, by the Emperor Joseph I., from 180 Turkish cannon taken by the Austrians. At the height of 520 feet is the clock. In the room with the latter is stationed a man to watch for the breaking out of fires in the city and its suburbs. He takes the angle by means of a fine telescope, and on a chart prepared for the purpose finds the street and the house. The alarm is then given. I ascended to the top of the Tower, but as it inclines three feet from a perpendicular, and trembles at the slighest blow, I did not remain long at so dizzy a height.—Foreign Correspondence.

CHEAP LIGHT.—With respect to the electric light the problem seems to be solved at Paris.—We mentioned a short time since that it was in use to illuminate the works of the Napoleon Docks, which were carried on by night as well as by day and the apparatus was so complete, that for four months the light has been steadily burning. Economy is not its least recommendation, for the cost per night has not been more than 30f., which, as 800 men were employed, gives it 1½ centimes—less than a half penny per man.—Chambers' Journal.

SHORT LETTERS.

The Memphis Eagle gives the following letter from a flat-boatman to his father. He and his brother Bill, had attend a load of corn to New Orleans.

NU ORLEENS, Gune 5.

Deer dad:

Markets is dull, corn mity low and Bill is dead. Your affectionate son.

This is short and to to the purpose. It reminds us of the celebrated correspondence between a stay-at-home mother and her absent son:

Dear John.

Come home. A rolling stone gathers no moss

Your loving Mother.

The answer was not long in coming back and was not long when it did come.

Dear Mother:

Come here. A setting hen never gets fat.

A still shorter letter was the answer given to a gentleman by a lady whom he had offended by his dilatoriness, and, who, for a long time had refused to speak to him. His letter was earnest in its supplication for forgiveness. It concluded with:

"One word from your lips will make me happy.—When and where will you speak it ?"

Her answer was:

"Wednesday, at the altar!"

But the shortest correspondence on record is the one between an American merchant in want of news, and his London agent. The letter ran thus-

Method of Administering Medicines to Horses.

The author almost invariably administers medicine in the form of drench, using a common champagne bottle. Some persons, however, assert that "there is great danger in drenching horses from a bottle; also, that it is very difficult to make them swallow fluid." We never knew of any accident following the use of the bottle, when ordinary caution was observed. There is a space between the canine teeth and grinders where the bottle can be introduced; and if kept in that position while "drenching the horse," it cannot do any harm. Our usual plan is, to stand on the right side of the horse, our back turned toward his body; we then take a firm hold of the lower jaw with the left hand, at the same time moderately elevating the head (not too high,) while with the right we gradually pour down the contents of the bottle.—Time should be taken in the process: and if it is poured down in small quantities at a time, so much the better, the horse will be more likely to swallow it, especially if it shall be made palatable by the addition of a few caraway seeds or a little honey. Horses like children, must be handled in the most gentle manner. They will generally refuse to drink even a little gruel, when any unnecessary severity is resorted to in its administration. They may be coaxed but not forced.

In answer to the second objection, we observe, that there is no more difficulty (not half so much) in administering a drench to a horse, under ordinary circumstances, than there is in giving a ball. To the latter we have great objections. First, in reference to its bulk; secondly, the length of time it takes for the gastric fluids to dissolve it; and lastly, its action is uncertain. Whereas, medicine given in the fluid form, is readily taken up by the lacetals, and operates for good or evil, in much less time. It has also been urged that, when a horse is suffering from disease of the respiratory organs, the additional excitement following the act of drenching is unfavorable to a cure. Unfortunately, we are in a worse predicament when a ball is given, for then the tongue is forcibly drawn out of the mouth, while the hand is passed up to its root, where the ball is deposited. Our own experience in the matter leads us to decide in favor of the bottle. If any further proofs of its utility are wanting, we may mention the fact that one half of our city horsemen are in the habit of administering drink from the bottle without.—Modern Horse Doctor, by Dr. Dadd.

Cheap and Efficient mode of saving Apples.

MR. EDITOR :—I send you a description of a new and interesting method of saving winter apples, which a neighbor, Mr. Amos Chambers, has found out and practised for three seasons with success. It consists in making a large box of inch boards, sufficient to hold several waggon loads, which is lined up with the same material, and nailed to two inch scantling; leaving that space between the outside and inside; the bottom is made of lattices; and the whole rests on the ground upon four-inch scantling. The winter apples are carefully gathered and put into this box, which is placed near the middle of the orchard, in the shade of an apple tree. The top of the box is covered over with boards in the same manner as the sides, with two thicknesses, leaving a space between them—the top course made water-proof, to exclude the rain. It is left in this manner until just before the commencement of hard frost that would be liable to freeze the apples: the box is then banked up with earth a few inches around the bottom, to exclude the air from going under it, the casing of two inches around the box is filled with dry loam or any kind of dry earth, and the top under the roof is also covered to the depth of an inch or two with earth, which effectually excludes the air from the apples; they then freeze up solid, and no rotting takes place, and will be found in excellent condition in the spring; and it is rather surprising that the flavor is not the least injured. The air is left to circulate freely through the latticed bottom—the cover being left on loose, so as only to shed the rain. An opening with a lock up shutter may be made near the top of the box, for the convenience of taking out apples at any time.

The above plan makes it an easy matter to house the apples without removing them from the orchard. Now, I would propose from the above date, that fruit-growers erect a neat and ornamental building in their orchard, or in some convenient place, to be built on the same principle, to be lined up in a similar manner, and the casing filled with earth, or any substance that will exclude air and act as a partial non conductor of heat, with means for ventilating in the fall.

From some cause, there are very few cellars that will preserve apples or other fruit during a Canadian winter. Having tasted of the apples alluded to, I can bear evidence that they have preserved the finest flavor and been kept to the date I am now writing.—There is a difficulty in other methods, in keeping the temperature at a certain point in this changeable climate, which would be otherwise necessary for apples.

Yours respectfully,
T. G. WILSON,

THRESHING GRAIN.—A correspondent of the Southern Planter says: "For the comfort of those who feed threshing machines where there is much dust in the wheat, I will say that it is the experience of my feeder (who has suffered much from dust in his throat) that one small w of oil (which should be the best lamp oil,) when he stops at night will relieve one from all the unpleasant effects of the dust. This is his experience after ten years' practice; and it will give relief to many a suffering poor fellow.

BODY SNATCHING AT TORONTO.—On last Sabbath evening several citizens whilst walking through St. James's Cemetry, were shocked on finding that one of the graves had been opened the previous night and a human body taken away. The coffin had been broken in two and was left lying on the surface of the ground, surrounded by the fragments of the grave clothes, which had been roughly torn off the corpse. We were informed that the corpse was found on Sabbath, tied up in a sack and lying beside a fence adjacent to the burial ground. The body had been interred on Saturday and was that of a female aged 54 years.

BILL FOR RELIEVING CERTAIN GOVERNMENTAL OFFICIALS FROM LABOR ON SUNDAY.

Below will be found the Bill, introduced into Parliament, for the above named purpose. The idea for this arrangement is a good one, and the measure such a one as the country requires. As Christians we honor the Sabbath as a holy day, as a period of rest from physical toil, and consider it necessary for the well being and morality of the Empire. We acknowledge it to be the duty of all men who profess our holy religion to "honor the Sabbath day and keep it Holy." One seventh portion of our time has by the Almighty himself been solemnly set apart for cessation from the usual six days' labor; and we neglect that arrangement at our peril. It has, moreover, by our lawyers been decreed that no business transaction discharged upon the Sabbath is legal or valid. Furthermore, it is the opinion of persons of penetration and research that man requires periodical rest, beyond the natural nocturnal repose, and that one-seventh of his time thus secured from common employment is required to impart that vigor and elasticity which will enable him without danger or despair to accomplish the greatest possible amount of labor throughout the year. These things being taken into consideration it seems manifestly unjust to compel clerks and persons connected with post offices &c., to spend a portion of the day of rest in their usual diurnal occupations, and to oblige them to transact monetary business on that day, which, under most other circumstances would a object them to weighty censure if not to actual punishment. No good reason can be brought forward in favor of these unnecessary and inconsistent desecrations of the Christian Sabbath According to the results of parliamentary investigation on this subject it seems to be the opinion of even business men generally, that the Sunday service of the post office, so far, at least, as the delivery and mailing are concerned may be dispensed with; and business transactions are few and far between which require absolutely Sunday investigation and Sunday labor. There may be extreme cases, as of life and death, in which great and allowable benefits might be conferred on individuals, or perchance upon communities; but then most places of importance are connected with each other by telegraph, and in view of such extreme cases telegraph companies might be compelled by law to hold themselves in readiness to forward such messages which may be deemed by our rulers absolutely necess

THE WEATHER.—After a few cold, stormy days, in which old winter grinned at us in a biting north wind, which drifted with it a slight flurry of snow we are enjoying beautiful weather, bright sunny days with an almost cloudless sky. The forest leaves are assuming those varied and agreeable hues which are the precursors of their approaching fall, and which invariably draw forth the admiration of strangers who visit us. Now is the time for farmers and gardeners to be on the alert to store away their root crops, and to make all necessary arrangements in respect to out-houses. In short this sunny weather warns all to prepare for "a rainy day."

Private despatches supply the rest, viz:—That the Russians under Menschikoff, rallied on the Katsetka on the 23rd and again gave battle to the allies and were defeated, when they retreated to entrenchments behind Sebastipol.

They rallied again on the 24th, but were defeated.

They fled into Sebastipol, which was telegraphed by sea and land.

Fort Constantine blew up and the other forts were stormed.

Other forts were formed.

The Russian fleet taken and many of the ships sunk.

Fort Constantine was invested by sea and land, and after an obstinate defence was carried by storm.

The allies then bombarded the city, and ten of the Russian ships were sunk. The other forts were carried one after another, one hundred guns silenced and two thousand prisoners taken.

The Russian loss, in dead and disabled, is estimated at not less than 18,000, at Sebastipol alone.

Menschikoff, with the shattered remains of his army, retired into a position in the inner harbor, and threatened to fire the town, and blow up the rest of the ships.

The victors demanded his unconditional surrender, and, in the name of humanity, gave him six hours.

The last despatch says, Menschikoff has surrendered and the English and French flags now wave over Sebastipol.

The entrenched camp of the Russian land forces, on the heights of Alma, containing 50,000 men, and numerous artillery and cavalry, was carried at the point of the bayonet after four hours hard fighting.

No general officer of the British was wounded.

Marshal St. Arnaud, and Lord Raglan commanded in person.

General Thomason (French) thought to be fatally wounded, and General Canrattes, wounded in the shoulder.

The second engegement, on the plains of Klampe, lasted several hours and ended in the total defeat of the Russians, who were pursued to the entrenchments before Sebastipol.

Despatches state that the garrison at Sebastipol were offered free withdrawal, but surrendered prisoners of war. The despatches, as to Sebastipol are very conflicting, and one, dated Berlin, 3rd, says a telegraph dispatch has been received from St. Petersburgh to the effect that Menschikoff has telegraphed under date of September 35, that he has withdrawn his troops unmolested from Sebastipol, towards Dokschauer, where he will await reinforcements.

He adds that Sebastipol had not been attacked up to the 26th.

A despatch from Berlin, of the 29th says the return of the French from the Baltic has been countermanded, and a despatch from Kiel dated 2nd, says, the fleet left the harbor that day, to join Napier in the Baltic.

Napier was before Revel on the 23rd.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 30.

It is again asserted that there are 50,000 Russians in the Dobrudscha, and General Luders is constantly receiving reinforcements.

Omar Pasha was only waiting St. Arnaud's orders to attack Bessarabia.

All the arrangements in the Turkish army indicate the intention of a winter campaign.

LAST NIGHTS' REPORT.

Reported for the London Times.

Quebec, Oct. 19,

Last night the debate continued until late, on the Bill to incorporate Massons College.

Mr. Dorion of Montreal, moved in amendment to the effect that the funds of the Corporation should only be appropriated for the purpose of education and the payment of expenses legitimately in connexion therewith.

Mr. Hartman moved in amendment that corporations should not be allowed to hold lands except as were necessary for the actual occupation of the college. Last a mendment lost. Mr. Dorion's motion was then carried and the House adjourned.

To-night (19th). On Motion of Mr. Poulin a select committee of five members was appointed to report, by bill or otherwise, as to the best mode of securing correct reports of the dates of the House.

The following Bills were introduced:—

Mr. Larwill to attach certain lands in Camden to the township of Dawn.

Dr. Church, to provide for the registering of Births, Marriages and deaths in Upper Canada.

Sebastipol has not been taken; the reported destruction of the Russian fleet is false; the blowing up of Fort Constantine false, Surrender of Menschikoff false; Omar Pasha's Dispatch a forgery.

We are gratified to announce to our readers a CATHARTIC PILL, (of which see advertisement in our columns,) from that justly celebrated physician and chemist, Dr. J. C. AYER. His Cherry Pectoral, everywhere known as the best remedy ever offered to the public for Coughs, &c. has prepared them to expect that anything from his laboratory would be worthy of attention. As no one medicine is more universally taken as a Physical Pill, the public will be glad to know of one from such a tried and worthy source. We happen to know and can assure them that this article has intrinsic merit, fully equal to any compound that have ever issued from his Crucibles, and consequently is well worthy a trial whenever such a medicine becomes necessary.—*Racine Com. FOR CONSUMPTION

CERTIFICATES.

A Voice from the Buffalo Christian Advocate.

Dr. James Johnston has invented a medicine called "Canadian Compound and Balsam of Fir Paste," which must be peculiarly useful in alleviating and curing the complaints it is designed for.

Extract from a letter written by the Rev. John E. Robie, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. James Johnston—Dear Sir:—I am willing to bear testimony in favor of your Canadian Balsam of Fir Paste. I believe you have hit upon the right medicine. Your mixture has given me great relief in my hoarseness, and has cured it effectually. I would cheerfully recommend it to all troubled with Coughs, Weak Lungs, &c., &c.

Yours, &c., JOHN E. ROBIE.

Dr. James Johnston—Dear Sir:—We, the undersigned, cordially endorse the statement of the Rev. John E. Robie, of Buffalo, and further, we would say boldly that we consider "Canadian Balsam of Fir Paste" the BEST and SAFEST LUNG AND COUGH MEDICINE now in market. We all have used it, and found it to give immediate relief, and perform a permanent cure, in all cases of Coughs, Colds, &c. We with confidence recommend your unrivalled Balsam to all who are predisposed to Weak Lungs, Coughs, Consumption, &c., &c.

AYER'S PILLS.

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PPHYSIC.

There has long existed a public demand for an effective purgative Pill which could be relied on as sure and perfect in its operation. Ths has been prepared to meet that demand, and an extensive trial of its virtues has conclusively shown with what success it accomplishes the purpose for which it is designed. It is easy to make a physical Pill but not so easy to make the best of all Pills—one that should have none of the objections, but all the advantages of every other. This has been attempted here, and with what success we would respectfully submit to the public decision. It has been an ultimate for the patient hitherto to find almost every purgative medicine so acrimonious and irritating to the bowels. This is not. Many of them produce so much griping pain and revulsion in the system as more than counterbalance the good to be derived from them. These Pills produce no irritation or pain, unless it arises from a previously existing obstruction or derangement of the bowels. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

Their have also produced some singularly successful cures in Rheumatism, Gout, Dropsy, Gravel, Erysipelas, Palpitation of the Heart, Pains in the Back, Stomach and Side. They should be freely taken in the spring of the year, to purify the blood and prepare the system for the change of seasons. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach into healthy action, and restores the appetite and vigor. They purify the blood, and by their stimulant action on the circulatory system, renovate the strength of the body, and restore the wasted or diseased energies of the whole organism. Hence an occasional dose is advantageous even though no serious derangement exists; whereever doing should never be carried too far, as every purgative medicine reduces the strength when taken to excess. The thousand cases in which a physic is required cannot be enumerated here, but they suggest themselves to the reason of every body, and it is confidently believed that pill will answer a better purpose than any thing that has hitherto been available to mankind. When their virtues are once known the public will no longer doubt what remedy to apply when in need of a cathartic medicine.

Being sugar coated they are pleasant to take and being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers.

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM.

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Holloway's Life Pills and Pharma Pitters have attained, in consequence of their extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular description of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the world, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.
In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often in one week in a manner to investigate of these loathsome diseases by its purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and all diseases arising from a disordered liver, stomach or bowels, are conquered by these Pills. Impurities, so fatal to health, are thoroughly purified from the blood, and secretions of every kind, by the use of these Pills, and no one can enjoy good health without occasionally taking a few doses.
Holloway's Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of Sore Legs, Bad Breasts, Old Wounds, Sore Heads, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism, Gout, Tic Doloreux, Sciatica, and Skin Diseases of all descriptions, from whatever cause they may arise. Even the worst cases of Scrofula, Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, are said to be cured by the use of this Ointment, which has never been known to fail in the most obstinate case, after every other means had been tried for years in vain. Glandular swellings and Abscesses, however deep seated, Fistulas, Piles, Eruptions, Tumors, Ulcers, Sores, Burns, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Sciatica, Sore Throats, Erysipelas, Sore Nipples, Skin Diseases, Glandular Swellings, Piles, Fistulas, Wounds, Ulcers, Sores, Burns, Scalds, &c.
It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the two diseases, poverty and ignorance, are much higher than the combined power of all other diseases; and that diseases in many of the most painful forms is entirely owing to the presence of this malignant or Magnetic power to the whole population. Every servant and family should have this wonderful power when it is needed, as it can successfully combat disease, and has been fully and practically attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has not the existence of this remedy, yet not a study and labor.
There is not an individual of any rank or station who has kept pace with the progress of sciences that does not readily approve of the Magnetic or power in various diseases, and the extraordinary American application of this remedy, Galvanic Rings which makes its appearance without the statement of various causes, showing some new effect of these wonderful, fatigueless, or corroborating powers experience or their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in congratulating to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Poetry.

WHAT I LIVE FOR.

BY G. L. BANKS.

I live for those who love me,
Whose hearts are kind and true;
For the Heaven that smiles above me,
And awaits my spirit too:
For all human ties that bind me,
For the task that God assigned me,
For the bright homes left behind me,
And the good that I can do.

I live to learn their story
Who've suffered for my sake;
To emulate their glory,
And follow in their wake:
Bards, patriots, martyrs, sages,
The noble of all ages,
Whose deeds crowd history's pages,
And Time's great volume make.

I live to hold communion
With all that is divine;
To tell there is a union
That links one's heart and mine;
To profit by affliction,
Reap truth from fields of fiction,
Grow wiser from conviction,
And fulfil each grand design.

I live to hail that season,
By gifted minds foretold,
When man shall live by reason,
And not alone by gold,
When man to man united,
And every wrong thing righted,
The whole world shall be lighted
As Eden was of old.

I live for those who love me,
For those who know me true;
For the heaven that smiles above me,
And awaits my spirit too;
For the cause that lacks assistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good that I can do.

Here is a clever parody from Diogenes, on Montgomery's famous poem, "The Common Lot."

THE PAWNBROKER'S COMMON LOT.

Once in the pa my days long past,
I had a watch worth pounds twen'y:
Mo'na, if cense'ess tick thou hast,
That watch resembles thee,

Unknown the man who gave it birth,
Its number and its mark unknown,
Enough I al'ways knew its worth,
Whenever I asked a loan.

In various months throughout the year
Alternate shone it in my breast;
Not so whenever my funds were spare,
The ticket told the rest.

The mounted whip, the flute with keys,
The silver spoons, both large and small,
'Twas known full well I spouted these—
Because I spouted all.

The Chronicles of Clerkenwell,
Genevra's history known no doubt,
Have oft my watch no tale to tell
But this—'tis up the spout.

Literature.

LADY HAMILTON'S YOUTH AND FORTUNES.

In the whole range of fiction there is nothing to surpass the diversified fortunes of Lady Hamilton, who exercised an influence so stern and disastrous on the character of England's greatest naval hero. In Lamartine's Memoirs of Celebrated Characters we find the following:—

"Her only name was Emma, for her father remained always unknown. She was one of the children of love, of crime, of mystery, whom nature delights to overwhelm with gifts in compensation for hereditary claims. Her mother was a poor farmer's servant in the county of Chester. Whether she lost her husband by death, or, like Hagar, had been abandoned by her seducer, she had arrived unknown, and reduced to beggary, at a village in Wales, the Switzerland of England. She carried in her arms a female infant of a few months old.—The bounty of both attracted the simple mountaineers of the village of Hawarden; the stranger picked up a livelihood by working for the farmers and gleaning in the fields. The marked and noble features of the child served to propagate the rumor that her birth was illustrious and mysterious; she was said to be the daughter of Lord Halifax. Nothing afterwards either in fortune or education, gave color to the report. At the age of twelve she was received in a neighboring family as children's servant.

The frequent visits of her master and mistress to London where they resided in the house of their relative the celebrated engraver, Boydell gave her the first idea of the impression her figure produced on the crowd in public places, and a vague presentiment of the high fortune to which her beauty would exalt her.

At sixteen she made her escape from Hawarden, a field too obscure and circumscribed for her expanded dreams, and engaged herself in the household of a respectable tradesman in London.

A lady of superior rank, struck by her appearance in the shop, elevated her to a high position of servitude, almost without employment in an opulent family. Emma gave herself up to the perusal of those fascinating romances which create an imaginary world for the love or ambition of youthful maids: she frequented the theatres, and there imbibed the first inspirations of the genius of dramatic expression, of action, and attitude, which she embodied in a new art, when she became the animated statue of beauty and passion. Being discharged by her mistress for some household negligence, her growing taste for the theatre induced her to seek a situation in the family of one of the managers. The irregularity and freedom of that establishment, the constant intercourse with actors, musicians, and dancers initiated her in the subordinate mechanism of the dramatic art. She was then in the flower of her youth, and the full perfection of her beauty. Her tall and elegant figure equalled in natural grace the studied attitudes of the most practised figurants. Her voice was soft, mellow, and capable of expressing deep tragic emotion.

Her countenance, endowed with susceptibility as delicate and varying as the first feelings of a virgin mind, was, at the same time, pensive and dazzling.

All who saw her at that period of her life agreed in describing her as a resuscitation of Psyche. Purity of soul, transparent through elegance of feature, surrounded her even in her dependent position, with a respect which admiration dared not overleap. She spread fire without being entangled in the flame herself, her innocence found a safeguard in the excess of her beauty. Her first fall was not a descent to vice, but a gliding into imprudence arising from a yielding nature. A young countryman, of the village of Hawarden, son of the farmer who had at first given an asylum to her mother, was seized by a press-gang, and carried in fetters to the fleet at anchor in the Thames. Emma at the entreaty of the prisoner's sister accompanied her to the captain of the ship to implore the liberation of her brother.

Won by the beauty of the fair suppliant, he listened to her prayers and tears, removed her from her low though honest station, overwhelmed her with shameful luxury, furnished a house for her, supplied her with masters in every ornamental accomplishment, boastfully displayed his conquest in public, and left her when the squadron sailed exposed without a safeguard to new seductions. One of his friends, bearing a noble name, and possessed of a large fortune, carried off the faithless Emma to an estate in the country, treated her as his wife, made her the Queen of hunting parties fetes and balls, and, finally, growing tired of her at the end of the season, left her in London, at the mercy of chance, necessity, and crime. Thrown back from this golden cloud on the hard pavement of the metropolis, and depreciated in the eyes, of her former protectors by the publicity of her adventures, Emma was received by night, and in rags, under the care of one of the procuresses, who carry on the trade of seduction.—Accident alone preserved her from infamy. The woman had given her shelter, struck by the natural grace and modesty of her demeanor, and astonished at her overwhelming charms introdu who are, moreover, in the way of understanding from their parliamentary position, better the ins and outs of the principal offices in the State, than those who act in a merely individual capacity, they seem to be best fitted for those offices, and McKenzies' objections seem to be made upon the principle of "sour grapes":

PLACEMEN IN ASSEMBLY.

"Instead of a Free Legislature, the Assembly will soon be a grand collection of very dependent persons, President McNab, (Sir F. Head's general,) $3600; Sol'r. General East, Dunbar Ross, $2400; President Morrisson, Northern railway, $2000; Henry Smith, Solicitor General West, $2400; Chief Com's. Public Works, $2,400; Inspector General Cayley, $3600; Crown Lands Commissioner, Morin £3600; Solicitor of Grand Trunk, Cartier, say $6000; Geo. Crawford, director Grand Trunk, say $8000; Attorney General East, Drummond, $4000; Mr. Turcotte (name of his office forgotten), and a host more of contractors, solicitors, Queen's counsel, &c.—Is it right, is it necessary that any one of these persons should be in the Assembly?"—M'Kenzie's Message.

ROLPH'S MARRIAGE BILL.

This iniquitous affair is again before Parliament. Rolph seems excessively anxious to immortalize himself by a giant stride towards socialism. He is anxious that everything of a serious or religious character should be taken away from the matrimonial bond; and that it be reduced to a kind of Gretna Green affair; or that it should be performed as one would "jump over a broomstick." There is no likelihood of his demoralizing measure being carried, however; the Doctor and his measures being at a discount just now.

JOHN PRINCE AND THE FISHERY.

We are indebted to the energy of Wm. Lyon McKenzie, for a notification of the fact that the late government, of infamous memory, did:

"On the 19th of September, 1852, just after John Prince came down to Quebec to attend the first Session of the last parliament, and when he jumped Jim Crow and became the bully for Lord Elgin's new friends, the Rolphs, Hinckses, Camerons and Rosses; voting just as they pleased; and sung (as I can well remember) whoever they desired to insult, Thomas Amott, deputy Registrar, recorded a lease from Lord Elgin to said Prince, of the lovely tract at the Rondeau, about seven miles long, called Point aux Pins, and granted to him as containing three thousand six hundred acres, or about six square miles of landed territory, in Harwich, Kent County, with the fisheries thereon, and also a water front of 12 miles and upward.

The lease grants to Prince these 8000 acres and the monopoly of the fishery and lake privilege, for thirty-five years, or until January 1888, for "a FISHERY AND FARM."

Rent the first year £5 Our Dollar!

Rent the second year £5 Our Dollar!

Rent the third and fourth, and every future year of the 35, £7 One Dollar, until our Commissioner of Crown Lands shall fix a certain additional rent."

This is another of those iniquitous jobs of which the ex-Ministry were so replete. Their nasty transactions carried on in secret are gradually being brought to the light, and the family compact'sm which they so unblushingly practised is found to be unequalled in our Colonial history. Three thousand six hundred acres with fishing grounds for thirty-five years, at the rent of one dollar a year! That is 'going the whole figure' for plastic John's obedience, with a vengeance! These were the pious individuals who were desirous to legislate against monopolies, and were shocked at God's church having possession of certain lands for beneficial purposes. Verily Radicalism is a queer sort of thing.

LOSS OF THE ARCTIC.

We have continued details relative to the awful catastrophy which has spread gloom and misery into very many families. The dying and the bereaved are victims to that condemnable and demented policy, of making, at any risks, short trips across the Atlantic. A rivalry which is pushed too far between the Collins and Cunard lines of ocean steamers, has induced a spirit of recklessness in which passengers and the public themselves have participated, that has caused the ocean to be ploughed by those splendid vessels with the utmost possible speed, through the blackest darkness and the most impenetrable mists. On, on madly rushes the steamer through foam and mist and uncertainty, freighted with its cargo of human beings, and fears are hushed, if any really exist, by the thought that the "trip will be a short one." Short, indeed, will be many of the trips the Arctic itself being a commencement, if, multiplying as are the vessels on the Atlantic, care be not taken to avoid collision and chance be no more depended upon! If the spirit of the age demands a thirteen m le rate, thro' a fog which is impenetrable, then let arrangements be made to warn approaching vessels of impending danger. The hull of all passenger vessels should be built in several air tight compartments; the steam whistle or bells should be incessantly at work; the strongest and best constructed lights should be placed in most conspicuous positions; a double look out should be in the furthest point possible of access at the bow; and by the means of a wire or rope, communication should be established, of an instantaneous nature, between the 'lookout' and the man at the helm; together with such other arrangements as the ingenuity of seamen and those connected with the management of such vessels, could easily devise. May this fearful catastrophy serve as a warning to all parties who have it in their power to make necessary alterations, not to trust to chance for that which care can prevent!—While writing on this subject we are glad to learn that the Glasgow Steam Ship Company advertise their vessels as being built with "six air-tight compartments;" a most excellent arrangement.

THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

His excellency, the Governor General, has caused to be Gazetted the names of a number of gentlemen who are to form a "Provincial committee to take the necessary steps to insure a fitting representation of the industry and resources of this Province, at the Worlds' Exhibition."—Sir Allan McNab is at the head. It is to be hoped that greater pains will be taken to represent this country at Paris, than was done in reference to the Worlds' Fair at London.

SHEPHERDS AND ABBOTS AUCTION ROOMS

The above mentioned gentlemen are now driving a good business, and are justly celebrated for their tact and fidelity in their important line. As Auctioneers they receive an extended and increasing support, and are well known in the town. We lately examined their establishment and found them extensively supplied with new and elegant musical instruments, imported direct and lately from England, in the shape of Piano Fortes, and the sweet and favorite Harmoniums. These latter instruments are coming into very extensive use, combining as they do, the softness of the Piano and the loud and lofty strains of the organ; suited alike to the church and the drawing room. Having a different "touch" from the melodian and possessing a vastly greater amount of power.

There are, also, some very excellent and rare steel engravings. The public will do well to give these gentlemen a call. Prices low. See Advertisement.

☞ The false report of the fall of Sebastopol, is a most disgraceful affair: a trifling with the sympathies and feelings of the people most unpardonable. It is to be feared that it was a piece of jobbery; but we have not been able to ascertain the real cause, it seems to have originated in the verbal statement of a Tartar courier at Bucharest. The miscreants who would thus circulate abominable falsehoods for mercenary purposes, should be held up to universal execration. They may be ferretted out yet.

NEW BOOKS.

THE GOBLIN SNOB, New York, DeWitt and Davenport, publishers, This is a facetious work, and calculated to bring forth sundry broad grins, and to powerfully provoke the risible faculties of those who admire absurdities, comically expressed, more extravagant than the elongation of Sinbad's nose. It is illustrated with nearly fifty comic engravings. For sale at Gilleans.

PROGRESS AND PREJUDICE.—The Messrs. DeWitt and Davenport, of Nassau Street, New York, deserve great praise and extensive patronage, for their enterprise in the publishing field.—The work before us, "Progress and Prejudice," by Mrs. Gore, is well got up in neat form, with good paper and clear type. The work itself is one well worth reading, and does credit to the celebrated authoress. It is a brilliant and successful attempt "to convey lessons of sound morality, and inculcate ideas of domestic virtue, through the medium of a novel."

The English press is eloquent in praise of this work, as will be seen by the notices which greeted it's first appearance:

"Mrs. Gore has produced nothing more worthy her name and fame than Progress and Prejudice."—Critic.

"In execution of plot, naturalness of incident, facility of invention, and purity of style 'Progress and Prejudice' touches perfection. It is a mind enlarged by varied knowledge of the world, sharpened and polished by refining studies, and rendered prolific by active exercise and well ordered cultivation."—Observer.

To be obtained at Gilleans', Dundas-St.

Mr. Gilleau has now for sale, at a low figure, copies of an excellent steel engraving—the portrait of the Rev. Dr. Duff, the celebrated missionary to India. It will be remembered that this gentleman made the tour of Canada not long since, and that his brilliant missionary speeches gave very great pleasure and satisfaction. The likeness is said to be exceedingly correct, and is certainly well executed on good paper.

ILLUSTRATED SHAKSPEARE.—We have received Nos. 2 and 4 of this excellent work. There is probably, all things considered, not so good an edition of Shakspeare extant, as this Quarto Illustrated. The type is bold and clear, the paper excellent and the plates very creditable. It is published by Martin & Johnson, New York.—Those persons who wish to purchase an elegant edition of the 'Immortal Bard' will do well to examine the one in question.

☞ Mr. Stewart has on hand at his Tailoring Establishment, South side of Dundas street, a splendid assortment of broadcloths, and other articles suitable for fall and winter clothing.—His establishment is well worth visiting and patronizing. Call and see.

☞ VanAernam, the forger, has been sentenced to seven years at hard labor in the Provincial Penitentiary.

☞ The Parliamentary debates have been of late by no means interesting. The detail of the speeches is dry and tedious.

☞ The Kingston Whig, which went latterly with the ex Cabinet, very lately stated that the Clergy Reserve Bill was an unnecessary measure got up in answer to the clamor of the "tag rag and bob-tail" of the Province.

SIR JOHN FRANKLIN and crew, it seems, were starved to death. On Sunday last, the vessels in Toronto harbor had their flags half mast high as a mark of respect and sympathy.

☞ The Chadwick Society is still threatening to disturb the peace in Toronto. The Mayor and public are determined to put it down. This they should do with all possible firmness and dispatch. Such mob-cracy is contrary to the genius of Canada.

☞ The Lord Bishop of Toronto, with his usual vigor, has written a biting letter to Mr. Morin against the intended robbery of the church.

Kohen who murdered his wife in Toronto, has been found guilty.

GREAT WESTERN RAILROAD.—A new train called the Lightning Express was put on this road last Monday.

A. M. Tucker's store in Toronto, has been broken into, and £100 extracted therefrom.

Mr. Ralston, all agent of the highly respectable Publishing and Book selling establishment of Messrs D. Appleton, N. Co., New York, is now making a tour through Canada West, for the purpose of introducing their valuable standard, classical and miscellaneous works. In this laudable undertaking, we wish Mr. R. success.

Referred to the Grand Jury of the Court of Queen's Bench.

Mr. Frank Church presented a certificate signed by Samuel McBride, Esq., Captain of Phœnix Fire Engine Co., No. 2, that he, Church, was a member of said company since June last, and praying to be relieved of the payment of Statute Labor.

Telegraphic.

ARRIVAL OF THE "WASHINGTON."

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.

The Washington arrived last night about 10 o'clock, but did not come up till this morning.

Her news was telegraphed to this city by the Sandy Book telegraph.

The Niagara arrived out on the 6th.

The Russians had sunk seven of the ships of the line, at the mouth of the Harbor.

The bombardment of Sebastopol began on the 17th of October.

Marshal St. Arnaud is dead from natural causes.

General Canrobert is the chief of the French forces.

Molat has nearly been destroyed by fire.

Sebastopol was completely invested, and a body of 500 French and Turkish cavalry was to have left Varna on the 28th.

One thousand Russians, who were escorting a convoy of munitions of war, were taken prisoners, Menschikoff himself narrowly escaped capture.

The garrison of Anapa was burnt by the Russians.

The troops, 15,000 strong, were on their way to Sebastopol.

By telegraph from Vienna, Monday evening, we learn that on the 29th September, between 120 and 130 heavy guns, were disembarked at Balaklava.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 5.

Twenty-six thousand of the allies had taken possession of Cape Chersonese.

It is stated the Russians burnt all the villages they passed through in their flight.

They left about 600 wounded behind.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 9.

The allies had made no attack on Sebastopol up to the 3rd.

They still occupied Balaklava.

PARIS, TUESDAY.

A dispatch from Vienna states that a dispatch from Menschikoff, that day, announced that the allies had established themselves at Balaklava, and Cape Chersonese.

No attack had been made on Sebastopol up to the 3rd Oct.

There is a great concentration of Turkish troops at Matschin.

Omar Pasha begins his operations against the Russians immediately.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Sales of cotton for three days 7000 bales; demand moderate both for trade and export, and prices unchanged.

Flour in moderate demand—western canal 33s; Ohio 35s; holders of Indian Corn pressing on the market. Sales 1s lower; yellow and white 29s; mixed 37s; consols at 95¼ to 95⅜. Money tighter.

☞ THE VERY LATEST. ☜

Arrival of the Niagara.

THREE DAYS LATER.

HALIFAX, Oct. 25th.

The "Niagara," from Liverpool, with dates to the 14th inst., arrived early this morning.

Her advices are three days later than those by the Washington.

The Cleopatra, from Quebec, arrived out on the 12th with the intelligence of the loss of the Arctic, which created great excitement.

The Arabia was telegraphed off Holyhead on the 14th inst.

Although the English papers are full of interesting details of operations in the Crimea, they contain nothing new of a decisive character.

The besiegers had up to the latest dates, made no impression on Sebastopol, although it was totally invested on the south and east, and had three guns playing on the walls.

Menschikoff held the field in the North, and was in daily expectation of being joined by Osten Sachen and Gortschakoff who were at Perekop.

It is confirmed that Menschikoff had sunk seven line of battle ships at the entrance to Sebastipol, as a blockade to the harbor.

France and England had caused Prussia to express her willingness to act with Austria.

The effects produced by recent failures had somewhat subsided.

Flour advanced 1s.

It is feared some lives were lost.

NEW YORK, to-day.

Yesterday morning the Custom House Officers seized on board the Steamer "Washington" $5000 worth of gold watches found upon the persons of two second class passengers who intended smuggling them on shore.

The "Washington Star" says the cost of reclaiming the fugitive slave Burns amounted to $25,000.

DETAILS OF THE NIAGARA'S NEWS.

It is supposed that the siege artillery of the allies was mounted round Sebastipol on the 4th.

The allies reserves had left Varna for the Crimea.

Two French and one English regiments from Malta occupied Perans.

The allied forces were within 1600 yds of the walls and already mounted fifty guns.

Osten Sacken had been at Perekope since the 2nd and expected to join his force with Menschikoff by the 19th.

It is almost certain that no operation will now be attempted on the Baltic.

ASIA.

Ismail had been defeated by Adronitoff who again threatened Kars.

PARIS, Friday.

A private telegraph dispatch from Varna announces that according to Lord Raglan the siege works were successfully advanced, that they would open their fire on the 15th.

☞ The Bill for the Secularization of the Clergy Reserves was read the second time on Wednesday night—majority 95 to 15.

QUEBEC, Oct. 26.

Last night Mr. Merritt withdrew his motion for a committee on banking, at the request of the government, after a long discussion, the chairman of the voting was in favor.

On motion of Mr. Dorin, a committee, composed of Messrs. Hincks, Panet, Scatchard and the mover was appointed to inquire into the facts connected with the Post Master of Brooke and the appointment of a Post Master at Triumph and other places in the county of Lambton, during or immediately after the recent parliamentary elections; also to inquire into the circumstance connected with the issuing of a clerk of the peace in the county of Kent, in June last; also to inquire into a grant of £25 from the public chest in the same month, for certain roads in the county of Lambton; Mr. Brown spoke at some length in support of the motion, and brought charges of gross misconduct against the late ministers, to gain for Mr. Cameron the Lambton election; Mr. Morin objected to all of the latter portion of the motion, but stated that he would agree to the enquiry, before a committee into the charges against the Post Master, he put an amendment to that effect.

Mr. Brown complained that this was an attempt to stifle inquiry.

Attorney General M'Donald said he would and Mr. Brown if he conducted the investigation in a regular manner, a personal debate then followed, in replying Mr. Brown said none of his charges had been denied.

M'Morin's amendment was carried; yeas 51, nays 41.

After a debate a motion of Mr. McKenzie's for a committee on the vote by ballot was lost. The following were introduced.

Mr. Loranger, to continue Laporte Common act. Mr. Yielding, to amend the Masters and Servants act. Mr. Foley in reference to Excised duties. On motion of Mr. Hincks it was ordered that instructions be given to the Committee on Banking, to enquire into the circumstances on which the government accounts was rendered from the bank of Montreal and British North America.

FAILURE OF AN AMERICAN INSURANCE COMPANY.

The Protection Insurance Company, of Hartford, has suspended payment, on account of recent severe losses. We believe that this company has done a large business in Canada, but their have been no fire losses here of consequence, and insurers in Canada will only suffer to the extent of the premiums they have paid. As people are too often in the habit of confusing Companies, which have their head quarters at the same place, although there may be no connection whatever between them, we consider it proper to state that the Ætna Insurance Company, of which Mr. W. H. Childs is Agent, has, as the saying is, "its connection with the house opposite," whilst no stability has never been questioned. Having ourselves insured in the Ætna for years, we can with confidence recommend it, while the following circular will shew that, for the future, increased vigilance is to be exercised and additional rates imposed.

A CARD.

ÆTNA INSURANCE COMPANY,
HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 8, 1854.

The condition of this office, notwithstanding the considerable losses of the past two months, is sound—the capital is whole, with a respectable surplus—the Company do not owe a dollar to any Bank or other Institution—there is not a note or acceptance of the Company outstanding in the hands of any individual or other institution—with a large balance in cash at our credit in Bank, and every loss now outstanding will be promptly paid at maturity or before—our investments in Bonds Stocks, and Mortgages exceed Four Hundred and Thirty Thousand dollars, besides large balances due and in course of transmission from Agent's.

This brief statement is hastily prepared, but as time is important, we transmit it to you for your information, guidance, and satisfaction—and the assured may rely upon the truth as herein stated, as to our present condition, and feel the value of our policies to be reliable. 490

CERTIFICATES.

A Voice from the Buffalo Christian Advocate.

Dr. James Johnston's Balsam of Fir Paste, or "Canadian Compound and Balsam of Fir Paste," will soon be popular, because useful in ascertaining and curing the complaints for which it is recommended.

Extract from a letter written by the Rev. John E. Robie, of Rochester, N. Y.

Dr. James Johnston, Dear Sir,—I am willing to bear testimony to the virtues of your Balsam or Balsam of Fir Paste. I believe it is the best remedy for the relief of Consumption I have ever known. Your excellent medicine has relieved me, and has cured the wife of my son, after every other remedy had failed. I would cheerfully recommend it to all troubled with Coughs, Colds, Lungs, &c. &c.

JOHN E. ROBIE.

Dr. James Johnston.—Dear Sir:—We, the undersigned cheerfully endorse the statement of the Rev. John E. Robie, of Buffalo, and further, we are happy to say, that we have used, and found it to give immediate relief, and perform a permanent cure, in all cases of Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., and cheerfully recommend your invaluable Balsam to all who are predisposed to Weak Lungs, Coughs, Consumption, &c., &c.

AYER'S PILLS.

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC.

These have long existed a public demand for an effective purgative Pill which could be relied on as safe and certain in its operation. To meet this demand and an extensive trial of its virtues has conclusively shown with what success it accomplishes the purpose, we offer it to the public. It is seldom that a Pill can be found to make the best of all. Different that should have some of the objections, but as the advantages of even these are known, a judicious use of them is rendered certain. It has been our aim to produce a Pill that will be perfectly reliable in its composition and uniform in its operation. It has been no ordinate for the patient hitherto that nine in every thousand of medicines in use and introduced to the world have been worthless. This is not to be done so much groping path and revelation in the sick man as to more than counterbalance the good to be derived from their use. These Pills produce no irritation or pain, unless it be such as proceeds from a powerful purgative action, and hence no one need hesitate to take them because he fears suffering. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity, but it is better that any medicine should be taken judiciously. Minute directions are given in the several diseases for which they are recommended, but we deem it sufficient to say here that they operate on the system with more power to expel the disease lurking within it than any medicine with which we are acquainted. Their Purgative properties are exerted to stimulate the several viscera in the derangement of their functions in the various forms of disease which they originate. Thus they produce the remedial effect in Dyspepsia and Indigestion, Liver Complaint, in its various forms, Jaundice, Dysentery, Loss of Appetite, Rheumatism, Gout, Dropsy, Gravel, Erysipelas, Palpitation of the Heart, Pains in the Back, Stomach and Side. They should be freely taken in the spring of the year, to purify the blood and prepare the system for the change of season. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach into healthy action, and restores the appetite and vigor. They purify the blood, and by their stimulant action on the circulatory system, reinvigorate the strength of the body, and restore the vigor of diseased energies of the whole organism. Hence an occasional dose is advantageous even though no serious disease may exist, unnecessary dosing should never be carried too far, as every purgative medicine reduces the strength of him who takes it to excess. The unusual cases in which a physician is required cannot be enumerated here, but they suggest themselves to the reason of every body, and it is confidently believed that no pill will answer a better purpose than this, that has hitherto been available to mankind. When their virtues are once known the public will no longer doubt what remedy to apply when in need of a cathartic medicine.

Being sugar coated they are pleasant to take and being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

For minute directions, see the wrapper on the Box.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune; these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them. It is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public admits of no dispute; in almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.
In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, their operation is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases by their mortifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, must yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

MESSRS. RENFORD & Co.
Gentlemen—I have received the Sample bottle of your Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as valuable preparation. The rich and delicate fragrance and peculiar mild flavour, in which lies the essential Medicinal qualities appear to be largely infused and well preserved, and as this vegetable is one highly beneficial in those forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone in the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with on the Continent,) your cordial will, I doubt not, form an inestimable addition to the Pharmacopeia.
From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Renford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Preparation to the notice of the profession and invalid generally as a safe, valuable, and delightful tonic and cordial.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the hand joints or limbs, Gout, The Dolorous Nervious and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, stiffness of the Joints Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervious Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Childbirth Burns and Scalds, &c.
It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnatism, is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms is caused solely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus difficult, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.
There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effects of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Poetry.

TO MY DEPARTED MOTHER.

Written upon the First Anniversary of her Death.

BY ANSON G. CHESTER.

—Even for the dead I will not bind
My soul to grief; death cannot long divide:
For is it not as if the rose that climbed
My garden wall, had bloomed the other side?
ALICE CAREY.

The hedgerow and the sheltered wood
Were sprinkled o'er with Autumn's crimson wine,
As when upon the foliage of the vine
Ripe clusters shed their blood.

In dun and ceaseless showers
The dry leaves fell—and Heaven's fair brow was swept
By delicate mists, the pilgrim Summer slept.
Born, spent, and tombed in flowers,

There loitered in the air
A melancholy meaning; Death was nigh—
Its emblems at sweet the rain, the hazy sky
Foreboded some despair.

In this most plaintiff time,
O! Mother, worn and grey, the angels came—
Mingling the music of thy blessed name
With their celestial rhyme.

Back to their home they went.
But went not as they came, for thou wert there!
Borne by their pinions through the upper air
Unmurmuring and content.

And when the gates of gold,
That hides the saints behind the glowing bars,
Shut in the heavenly host and shut the stars.
Thy name in heaven was told.

A hand was in thine wn.
Whose loving duties smoothed thy way, of yore;
And our sweet household haunts gone before,
Embraced thee at the throne.

Again the Autumn paints
The woods with beauty and the struggling mist
Invades the sky—nor can my heart resist
Its mournings and complaints.

My stricken soul denies
The offices of friendly lips and hands;
The portrait of a mighty sorrow stands
Before my aching eyes.

How shall my breast endure
The stinging darts of these envenomed arrows?
Call on thy God who counts us more than sparrows
To make his promise sure.

Yet, wherefore do I weep
Since death was bliss to thee? Why should we live
When rest is better? Heaven delights to give
Its wearied beloved sleep.

God keep within my mind,
The glorious deeds thou hast nobly won,
And let my mantle fall upon the son,
Whom thou hast left behind.

And grant that when some other
Of his bright angels seeks my lonely cot,
To call me from the life that suits me not,
I may regain my mother.

LEGAL AND EQUITABLE JOKES.

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

From Household Words.

I am what Sydney Smith called that favorite animal of Whig Governments, a barrister of seven years standing.

Of course I, as a barrister of the rightful amount of standing, mourn over the decline of the profession. In my time, the cheerful evening sittings at the Old Bailey in the City of London have been discontinued; those merry meetings after dinners, where I do not hesitate to say I have seen more wine in two or three hours, and have heard better things said than at any other convivial assemblies of which it has been my good fortune to make one. Lord bless me! When I think of the jolly ordinary mixing his famous salads, the Judges discussing vintages with the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, the leading humorists of the Old Bailey bar, delighting the Aldermen and visitors, and the whole party going socially tack again into the Court, to try a fellow creature perhaps for his or her life, in the genial glow produced by such an entertainment—I say when I think of these departed glories and the commonplace stupidity into which we have fallen, I do not, and I cannot wonder that England is going to ruin.

As my name is not appended to this paper, and therefore I can hardly be suspected by the public of egotism, I will remark that I always had a pretty fair turn for humor. I have a keen enjoyment of a joke. Like those excellent witnesses, the officers of the forty sixth regiment I don't object to its being practical. I like a joke to be legal or equitable, because my tastes are in that direction, but I like it none the worse for being practical. And indeed the best legal and equitable jokes remaining are all of a practical nature.

But I am going on to present a little collection of practical jokes, mere samples of many others happily still left us in law and equity for our innocent amusement. As I never (though I set up for a humorist) tell another man's story as my own, I will name my authority before I conclude.

The great expense of the simplest suit in equity, and the droll laws which force all English subjects into a court of equity for their sole redress, in an immense number of cases, lead at the present day, to a very entertaining class of practical jokes. I mean that ludicrous class in which the joke consists of a man's taking and keeping possession of money or other property to which he even pretends to have no shadow of right, but which he seizes because he knows the whole will be swallowed up in costs if the rightful owner should seek to assert his claim. I will relate a few stories of this kind.

JOKE OF A WITTY TRUSTEE.

A wag, being left trustee under a will by which the testator left a small freehold property to be sold for charitable purposes, sold it and discovered the trust to be illegal. As the fund was too small in amount to bear a suit in equity, [being not above sixty pounds,] he laughed very heartily at the next of kin, pocketed it himself and died.

JOKE AGAINST SOME UNLUCKY CREDITORS.

Certain creditors being left altogether without mention in the will of their deceased debtor brought a suit in equity for a decree to sell his property.

The decree was obtained, but the property realising seven hundred pounds, and the suit costing seven hundred and fifty, these creditors brought their pigs to a fine market, and made much amusement for the Chancery Bar,

JOKES UPON INFANTS.

An application to the Court of Chancery, in a friendly suit where nobody contested anything, to authorise trustees to advance a thousand pounds out of an estate to educate some infants, cost a hundred and three pounds fourteen and six pence, a similar application for the same authority, to the same trustees under the same will, in behalf of some other infants costs the same; twenty similar applications under the same will, for similar powers to the same trustees, in behalf of twenty other infants or set of infants, as their wants arise, will cost each the same.

A poor national schoolmaster insured his life for two hundred pounds, and made a will giving discretionary power to his executors to apply the money for the benefit of his two children while under age, and then to divide it between them. One of the executors doubted, whether under this will after the payment of debts and duty, he could appropriate the principal, [that word not being used in the instrument] to buying the two small children into an orphan asylum.

The sanction of the Court of Chancery would cost at least half the fund; as nothing can be done, and the two small children are to be educated and brought up on four pounds ten a year between them.

JOKE AGAINST MRS. HARRIS.

Mrs. Harris is left the dividends on three thousand pounds stock for her life; the capital on her death to be divided among legatees Mr. Spodger is trustee under the will which so provides for Mrs. Harris. Mr. Spodger one day dies intestate. To Mr. Spodger's effects Mr. B. Spodger and Miss Spodger his brother and sister administer. Miss Spodger takes it into her head that nothing shall ever induce her to have anything to do with Mrs. Harris's trust stock. Mrs. Harris, consequently, unable to receive her dividends petitions the Court of Equity. Court of Equity delivers judgement that it can only order payment of dividends actually due when Mrs. Harris petitions; that no fresh dividends keep on coming due, Mrs. Harris must keep on fresh petitioning, paying for every such application eighteen pounds two and eight pence or thirty per cent on her unfortunate income.

Willmore relates the following excellent morael.

JEST CONCERNING A SEA CAPTAI

Balaklava is a harbor on the south coast of the Crimea, situated seven miles in a direct line from Sebastopol, and 11 miles to the east of Cape Chersonese. It is still, as it was described by Strabo a portus angustointroitu, the mouth being only 30 yards in width but it will contain twelve sail of the line. The site is one of the most beautiful in the, and it derives its name from the Belle Chiave, of the Genoese who founded the little town at the bottom of the haven, and built the fort on the adjoining cliff. The port is formed by a deep inlet or indenture in the rocks, with water sufficient to float the largest ships with perfect security, it is completely protected from every wind, and may be regarded as a dock for all the purposes of disembarkation.

The occupation of this point is, therefore, an occurrence of the utmost advantage, for it enables us to place part of the fleet and transports in perfect safety, to land stores and supplies, to obtain an easy communication with Constantinople and Varna, and all this within seven miles of the place we are about to attack.

The importance of the possession of such a port as Balaklava had not escaped the attention of those officers who first reconnoitred the coast of the Crimea; but the heights which surround and protect it were then strongly occupied by the Russian forces, and it was foreseen that any attempt to land there in the presence of the enemy might be defeated by the superiority of his position.

But those heights and their defences, whatever they may be, must now be in the possession of the allied armies, since they reached Balaklava from the north, and we therefore hold a secure port which is at once accessible by sea and land.

The fact that the allied armies had reached Balaklava from the land side on or before the 26th of September proves to demonstration that the interval between the battle of Alma and their arrival on the southern coast they had forced all the external lines of defence round Sebastopol, and had driven back the Russians successively from the Alma, the Katch, the Balbek and the Techernia, which feeds the harbor of Sebastopol, and further, that they had crossed and occupied the heights separating these vallies from the southern coast.

There is reason to believe, from a despatch received from Odessa, and dated the 29th September, that several successive actions have taken place especially on the 25th and the these dates probably correspond to the days on which the allied forces forced the line of the Balbek and the heights above Balaklava. The movement of the allies has thus precisely realized the plan we had indicated some days before, when we said they might advance across the whole promontory to the southern coast, and so entirely invest the fortress.—Prince Menschikoff has been meanwhile driven to the east of this line of operations, and it is worthy of observation that his army of 50,000 men on the Alma, is now said to be reduced to 20,000. Indeed, so severely is the want of men felt by the Russian Generals, that they are said to have burnt and abandoned Anapa, which is the key to the Circasrian coast, in order to march the garrison of this place into the Crimea; but this part of Lord Stratford's despatch appears to be at least questionable.

Thus far, then, we are arrived at a clear, and, we believe correct conception, of these operations down to the 28th, which must have been triumphantly successful to enable the allied arms in one week to defeat the enemy in a series of actions, and to drive him from several of the strong positions of great natural strength, cutting off Prince Menschikoff and his army altogether from the fortress. It now remains to consider the nature of the movements which would necessarily follow, inasmuch as we are told that the armies were preparing to march without delay upon Sebastopol.

It was already known to us that considerable difference of opinion existed as to the proper mode of attacking this fortress, and that at least one engineer officer was in favor of an attack from the south side. The chief argument in favor of the north side, that as the landing was to be effected there, it seemed more easy to open the attack on that quarter; but this difficulty has been surmounted by landing the troops to the north of the place, and the seige artillery to the south some days later.

The whole strength of Sebastopol lies in its forts, and these forts have undoubtedly been calculated for defence by sea rather than by land.

Under these circumstances, the proverbial military expression, "that a place invested is a place taken," may probably be applied with great justice. Sebastopol must now be effectually invested by land and sea, and much more effectually than if the attack had been begun on the northern side of the harbor, leaving the south coast open for reinforcements or retreat. The plan of the campaign, as we now more clearly understand it, indicates the hand of a master mind, and although the public have been disappointed in that sudden and unlooked for triumph which they had been led to hope they will find that the end will be accomplished with equal certainty by the more efficient operations of regular warfare.

The Fate of Sir John Franklin and his Crew.

The fate of the intrepid Arctic navigator, Sir John Franklin, and his crew, would appear to have now been correctly ascertained. In addition to the intelligence received by telegraph, we re-publish, from the Montreal Herald, of Saturday, the following letter from Dr. Rae, to Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, which was received on Friday afternoon. The narrative is painfully interesting, and will be read with avidity by all. Dr. Rae is a brother of the Messrs. Rae, of Hamilton:

DR. RAE'S LETTER TO SIR GEORGE SIMPSON

YORK FACTORY, 4th Aug. 1854.

MY DEAR SIR GEORGE,—Your several letters, public and private, of dates 15th June, and 1st December, 1853, and 13th and 16th June, 1854, were handed me on the 28th ultimo, on my reaching Churchill, and I rejoiced to learn that your health had benefitted so much by your visit to the north.

Let me now allude to the expedition affairs. I arrived here on 31st ult. with my small party in excellent spirits, but I am sorry to say without having effected our object. At the same time, information has been obtained and articles purchased from the natives, which places the fate of a portion, if not all the then survivors of Sir John Franklin's miserable party beyond a doubt—a fate the most deplorable—Death from starvation, after having had recourse to cannibalism as a means of prolonging life.

I reached my old quarters at Repulse Bay, on the 15th August, and preparations were immediately commenced for wintering. On the 1st September, I explained to the men our position, the stock we had on hand, (not more than 3 months rations,) and the prospects we had of getting more, &c., pointing out all the danger and difficulty of our position. All readily volunteered to remain, and our exertions to collect food and fuel went on with unabated energy. By the end of Sept. 100 deer, 1 musk ox, 53 brace of Ptarmigan, and one seal had been shot, and the nets produced 190 salmon.

Of the larger animals above enumerated, 49 deer and the musk ox were shot by myself, 21 deer by Mistegen, the deer hunter, 14 by one of the men, 9 by Ouligbuck, and 16 by the other four men. The migration of the deer terminated about the middle of October, and 25 more animals were added to our stock.

On the 28th of October, the snow being sufficiently hard for building, we were happy to exchange our cold tents for the more comfortable shelter of the snow house. The winter was very severe, but the temperature in our snow-houses was never so low as in my winter quarters of 1846-7. Up to the 12th of January we had nets set under the ice in the lake, the nets were taken up on that date as they produced nothing.

On the 31st of March my spring journey commenced, but in consequence of gales of winds, deep and soft snow, and foggy weather, we made but very little progress. We did not enter Pelly Bay until the 17th. At this place we met with Esquimaux, one of whom, on being asked if they ever saw white people, replied in the negative, but said that a large party, (at least 40 persons,) had perished from want of food, some 10 or 12 days' journey to the westward. The substance of the information, obtained at various times and from various sources, was as follows:

In the spring of 1850, a party of white men, amounting to about 40, were seen travelling southward over the ice, and dragging a boat with them, by some Esquimaux who were killing seals on the north shore of King William's Land, which is a large island named Kei-ik tak, by the Esquimaux. None of the party could speak the native language intelligibly, but by signs the natives were made to understand that their ships or ship had been crushed by ice, and that the 'whites' were now going to where they expected to find deer to shoot. From the appearance of the men, all of whom, except one officer, looked thin, they were then supposed to be getting short of provisions, and they purchased a small seal from the natives.

At a later date, the same season, but previous to the disruption of the ice, the bodies of about thirty white persons were discovered on the continent, and five on an island near it, about a long day's journey, (say 35 or 40 miles,) to the N. W. of a large stream which can be no other than Back's Great Fish River (named by the Esquimaux, Cutkoo hi-ca-lik,) as its description, and that of the low shore in the neighborhood of Point Ogle and Montreal Island, agree exactly with that of Sir George Back. Some of the bodies had been buried, (probably those of the first victims of famine,) some were in a tent or tents, others under a boat that had been turned over to form a shelter, and several lay scattered about in different directions. Of these found on the island, one was supposed to have been an officer, as he had a telescope strapped over his shoulder and his double-barrelled gun lay underneath him.

From the mutilated state of many of the corpses, and the contents of the kettles, it is evident that our miserable countrymen had been driven to the last resource—cannibalism—as a means of prolonging life.

There appears to have been an abundant stock of ammunition, as the powder was emptied in a heap on the ground by the natives, out of the kegs or cases containing it, and a quantity of ball and shot was found below high water mark, having been left on the ice close to the beach. There must have been a number of watches, telescopes, compasses, guns, (several double-barrelled,) &c., all of which appear to have been broken up, as I saw pieces of these different articles with the Esquimaux, and together with some silver spoons and forks. The articles themselves shall be handed over to the Secretary of the Hon. H. B. Co. on my arrival in London.

None of the Esquimaux with whom I conversed had seen the whites, nor had they ever been at the place where the dead were found, but had their information from those who had been there, and those who had seen the party when alive.

From the head of Pelly Bay—which is a bay, spite of Sir H. Beaufort's opinion to the contrary—I crossed sixty miles of land in a westerly direction, traced the west shore from Castor and Pollux river to Cape Porter of Sir James Rose, and I could have got within 30 or 40 miles of Bellot Strait, but I thought it useless proceeding further as I could not complete the whole.

Never in my former Arctic journeys had I met with such an accumulation of obstacles, Fogs, storms, rough ice, and deep snow we had to fight against. On one occasion we were 4½ days unable to get a glimpse of the sun, or unable to make out its position in the heavens. This, on a level coast, where the compass was of little or no use, was perplexing in the extreme.

The weather was much finer on our return journey than when outward bound, and our loads being lighter, our day's marches were nearly double the distance, and we arrived at Repulse Bay, on the 26th May, without accident, except in one instance, in which one of the party lost a toe from a frost bite.

The commencement of spring was very fine, but June and July were colder. We were unable to get out of the bay until the 6th of Aug.

Our progress along the coast as far as Cape Fullerton, was much impeded by ice; but on getting to the southward of the cape we had clear water, and saw no ice afterwards.

The conduct of the men, I am happy to say was, generally speaking, good; and we had not a single case of sickness all the time of our absence.

Being anxious to send to Red River by the first boats, I write in haste and briefly, but shall have the pleasure of sending a more detailed account by some future opportunity.

With the utmost respect,

I have the honor to be,

Your very ob'dt serv't.,

JOHN RAE.

Repulse Bay, July, 1854.

Awful Disclosure.

The Buffalo Republican of Friday says that a rumor has been current in that city for several days, that the schooner Robert Willis, which disappeared suddenly from Lake Michigan about a year since, was taken and scuttled by the Mormons of Beaver Island, and her Captain and crew massacred. At the time that the schooner disappeared, she was on her way from this city to Buffalo with a cargo of wheat, and was last seen by the schooner Lansing, on the 22d of November, off Sheboygan, bound up the Lake in a very heavy, north east gale.

The news of her capture, &c., is said to have been received through a Mormon who escaped from the community at Beaver Island and who has made oath to the facts above stated.

It is also said that the U. S. steamer Michigan has been sent to the island to look into the affair.—Chicago Dem.

Symptoms of a Long War.

Two notices were issued on Saturday at the navy victualling office, Somerset house, which tend to show that the government are looking to a much greater prolongation of hostilities than we at first anticipated. In addition to a very large store already provided, the commissioners announce that they are ready to receive tenders for 24,000 tierces and 12,000 barrels of beef, and 36,000 tierces and 20,000 barrels of pork, to be delivered in three portions, not later than the 3d of April next, at Deptford, Gosport, Portsmouth and Haulbowline. The commissioners are also providing against the rigor of a long winter in the northern hemisphere by calling for a supply of 10,000 pairs of worsted mits for the navy, to be delivered within two months.

The conditions for the supply of military stores have not been promulgated as yet, but it is understood that they will be on a very large scale, instructions have been issued to the commissariat officials to use the utmost despatch.

The Cost of the War.

From the London Times.

We trust it is, as yet, decidedly premature to think of reviewing the campaign of 1854. The great enterprise of all, in fact, that to which half our preparations have been subservient, is but just commenced; and on its results must mainly depend the opinion to be formed of the year's achievements. Nevertheless, there are useful deductions to be drawn from the experience already gained; and, if the reader will recollect that just at this time last autumn, the question of peace or war hung trembling in the scales of destiny, he may follow perhaps with some interest a few observations on the events which a year has produced.

It must, we think, in the first place, be acknowledged that war has turned out a less momentous thing than was anticipated—a less absorbing subject, a less engrossing element in the affairs of our daily life. This remark may seem ill timed, perhaps, at a moment when the event of so mighty an expedition as that against Sebastopol is anxiously expected, but we believe our view of the case may still be sustained.

It may be imagined that the whole current of our thoughts, no less than the whole course of our politics, would be changed by transition from a state of peace to a state of war. The present generation had such little experience of hostilities, and the rupture of a forty years' tranquility had come to be regarded as so improbable a contingency, that we found it difficult to measure the consequences of such an event. The predictions of statesmen—even those most warlike in their views—represented the results of war as almost incalculable; and the nation, in the midst of a resolute enthusiasm, accepted the alternative of an appeal to arms, under an impression of enormous and indefinite obligation.—We think we may now appeal to the experience of the public in confirmation of our opinion that these apprehensions have not altogether been realised. Far be it from us to insinuate that war is not a most solemn duty, or a most terrible evil—the news of the next few days may be only too likely to prove as much—but it has certainly not operated hitherto with any great effect on the ordinary pursuits of our national life. Excepting, indeed, in a sharpened appetite for news, it would be hard to detect much difference between the public feeling now, and the public feeling last year.

We go about our work and our pleasure with precisely the same diligence and security.

We even travel where we will with unabated confidence, nor has any roving Englishman, we believe, been exposed to harm, except two or three who were pleased to walk over a Russian frontier into a Russian custom house.

Our military spectacles are, if possible, fewer even than usual, for the simple reason that all the soldiers are out of the country.—Our national defences are unthought of, we neither hear nor see anything of war but by report, and as far as our immediate tranquility is concerned, the scene of hostilities seems as effectually removed as if it were laid in Burmah.

That the course of legislation suffered somewhat from the war, is not to be denied, but we suspect that this pretext, like all such scape goats, was made to carry more burden than its own.

The explanation of these circumstances is to be found in the most assuring of the facts disclosed by the war—that we are fairly superior to our enemy. The defensive resources of Russia may prove very considerable, but for offensive action against a power like England, she is substantially impotent. At a few weeks notice we can effectually seal up her ports and her outlets, and the only remaining question is, whether we can crack her fleets in their shell.

Through the greater part of this year we resolved this point in the negative; but the destruction of Boomersund furnished evidence to the contrary, and we can commence another campaign with a perfect confidence that great fortifications can offer no longer resistance to the batteries of our squadrons. A year's experience, therefore, has taught us, first, that we have nothing to fear from Russia; and, next, that Russia may have much to fear from us. Unless, indeed, through some great and improbable disaster at sea, there seems to be no reasonable ground for apprehension that the realities of war will be brought home to our shores.

Nor can it be said, we think, that the exigencies of a European struggle have as yet made themselves severely felt by any pressure upon the resources of the nation. In point of fact, the war has chiefly been maintained by an extraordinary income tax of 7d in the pound. This, it is true, is a heavy impost upon precarious earnings, and concentrates the main burden of the crisis upon the shoulders of a particular class of contributors. Still, an income tax of less than six per cent. is not a large tax for a time of war while, in other respects, our finances are as easy as in times of profound peace. As to commercial interests in general, they have suffered no kind of derangement whatever; our progress continues unabated, and, it has even been argued with some plausibility, that we have, in certain respects, been gainers by the war. In addition to these considerations it has been shown that, owing to an impending diminution in the charge of the public debt, we should be able for a considerable period to support the war, at the present rate of expenditure, without any immediate strain upon our resources, or any eventual augmentation of the national burdens. Upon the whole, therefore, it really seems as if we might continue operations until the Czar was likely to tire of them with something very much like impunity to ourselves.

Sebastopol.

The port of Sebastopol consists of a bay running in a south easterly direction, about four miles long, and a mile wide at the entrance, diminishing to 400 yards at the end where the "Tchernaia Retchea," or Black River empties itself. The average depth is about eight fathoms, the bottom being composed of mud in the centre, and gravel at the sides. On the southern coast of this bay, are the commercial, military, and careening harbors; the quarantine harbor being on the side the entrance. All these take a southerly direction and have deep water.

The military harbor is the largest, being about one mile and a half long, by 400 yards wide, and is completely land locked on every side. Here it is that the Black Sea fleet is moored in the winter; the largest ships being able to lie with all their stores on board, close to the quays. The small harbor which contains the naval arsenal, and docks, is on the eastern side of the military harbor, near the entrance.

The port is defended at the south by six principal batteries and fortresses, each mounting from 50 to 190 guns; and the north by four, having from 18 to 120 pieces each; and besides these, there are many smaller batteries.

The fortresses are built on the casement a very strong principle, three of them having three tiers of guns, and a fourth two tiers. Fort St. Nicholas is the largest, and mounts about 190 guns. It is built of white limestone; a fine sound stone, which becomes hard, and is very durable, the same material being used for all the other forts. Between every two casements are furnaces for heating shot red hot. The calibre of the guns is eight inches, capable of throwing shell, or sixty eight pound solid shot.

There were, originally, not more than 850 pieces of artillery defending the port towards the sea, and of these about 350 could be concentrated on a ship entering the bay. Other batteries, however, are said to have been since built. Sebastopol is admirably adapted by nature for a strong position towards the sea and this has been fully taken advantage of to render it one of the most formidable fortified places which could be imagined.

Details of the Battle of Alma; great loss of the 23rd Regiment.

There was a very brief synopsis of this last week.

MARSEILLES, Oct. 6.

The Fury, which left Constantinople on the 27th, has arrived.

Up to the 25th there had been no further fighting in the Crimea.

The 23rd Regiment lost all its officers but three, of whom Captain Bell was the senior. Colonel Airalie was killed while attempting to plant a standard on the heights of Alma. General Brown had a horse killed under him.

Another despatch says:—"On the 10th September there was a skirmish between English and Russian cavalry. Six English were wounded, and 25 Russians killed. After the victory of the 20th the Russians were pursued towards Sebastopol.

On the 23rd September the allies advanced to Asturia, eight miles from Sebastopol.—The Russians had sunk four of their vessels of the line at the entrance of the port of Sebastopol.

The English fleet near Sebastopol were continually firing shells and balls.

PARIS, Oct. 6.

The Moniteur announces the occupation of Balaklava, of which the allies have already made a considerable place.

The allied armies were in communication with the fleets.

A safe and practicable road leads to Sebastopol.

The allies were now firmly established in the Crimea.

The various columns of the army had to cross several rivers in succession, in order to turn the Gulf of Sebastopol, and enter the mountain country, before they could arrive at Balaklava.

Menschikoff had been driven to a distance with the wreck of his army.

MARSEILLES, Oct 6—9 A. M.

The Fury brings news from Constantinople of the 27th.

Sebastopol was commanded by the allied army.

The Russian naval division had made an unsuccessful endeavor to push out with 14 sail.

In the battle of the Alma the Russians defended the heights with 100 guns, yet the allies carried the summit.

The want of cavalry was much felt in the pursuit.

It appears from the accounts which have reached the French government, that the battle was fought within a very short distance of the sea coast.

The French army, consisting of either three or four divisions, occupied the right and was consequently nearest the sea. The English occupied the centre and the Turks the left.

The French army being nearest the sea, fully one half of it was protected by the fire from the steamers, so that the extreme right and centre of the French line did not suffer much.

The French division which suffered most was on the left of the French line and next the English.

I was commanded by General Thomasson, who was desperately wounded, and who is said to have since died of his wounds.

The brunt of the battle fell upon our countrymen, who have not only had the post of honor, but have been the greatest sufferers.

The main charge must have been a tremendous one.

It seems that, although the Russians were posted on the opposite side of a deep ravine, and on the top of a steep and difficult bank, where they had deliberately taken up their position, and where they were protected by their artillery, the whole of the English army and the left wing stormed this formidable position and carried it.

Every military man knows what a desperate affair such an attack is, and the little we yet know of the storming of the heights of the Alma, leaves no doubt that it will be recorded in our annals as one of the most glorious exploits of our brave countrymen.

From a Russian source we learn that in the battle on the 20th, on the Alma, Marshal Arnaud could not command the allies in consequence of a severe attack of sudden indisposition, which prevented his mounting on horseback; consequently Lord Raglan alone commanded the allies in person, who, it is said, are imbued with an unbounded confidence in the military talents and superior acquirements of their English commander in chief. The losses of the Russians in the first battle are stated to be—one general, two colonels fifty-three officers, and 2,800 men killed; General Ciotomutoff, 86 officers, and 3,000 men wounded.

These data are from a Russian source, as is also the report that Prince Menschikoff commanded the Russian forces in person, on the 20th, and that he, together with his entire staff, narrowly escaped being taken prisoners during the engagement.

The following reliable intelligence relative to the battle of the Alma has been received: The Turks on the left wing, the English in the centre, and the French on the right wing did their work in such a masterly manner, that the Russians never had a chance. The news that the English were at first repulsed is not confirmed.

The Clergy Reserves Bill.

The Bill differs materially from the Telegraphic account of its provisions. After reciting its various acts on the subject, the Preamble and enacting clauses are as follows:

And whereas it it expedient to alter in certain particulars the provisions of the Act thirdly above cited 3 & 4 Vict. Chap. 93, touching the matters subjected by the Act last above cited to the control of the Legislature of this Province: Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council, and of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and intituled, an Act to reunite the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, and for the Government of Canada, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, as follows:

1. The monies arising from the Clergy Reserves in Upper Canada, shall continue to form a separate fund, which shall be called the Upper Canada Municipalities Fund, and the monies arising from the Clergy Reserves in Lower Canada shall continue to form a separate Fund which shall be called the lower Canada Municipalities Fund:

The Municipalities Fund for each section of the Province respectively, shall consist of all monies arising from the sale of Clergy Reserves in that section of the Province, whether now funded or invested either in the United Kingdom or in this Province, or remaining uninvested, or hereafter to arise from such sales, the interest and Dividends of the monies forming part of said Fund, the interest upon sales of Clergy Reserves in that section of the Province, on credit, and rents, issues and profits arising from Clergy Reserves therein demised or to be demised for any term of years, and other casual and periodical incomings arising from Clergy Reserves therein, after deducting therefrom the actual and necessary expenses attending the sales of the said Clergy Reserves and of managing the same and the Funds aforesaid; and the monies forming the said Funds, shall be paid into the hands of the Receiver General and shall be by him applied to the purposes hereinafter mentioned, under the authority of this act, or any General or Special Order or Orders to be made by the Governor in Council.

2. The annual stipends or allowances which had been before the passing of the act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom last cited in the Preamble of this act, assigned or given to the Clergy of the Churches of England and Scotland, or to any other religious bodies or denominations of Christians in either sections of the Province, and chargeable under the act of the said Parliament on the Clergy Reserves in such section, (and to which the faith of the Crown is pledged,) shall, during the natural lives or incumbencies of the parties now receiving the same be the first charge on the Municipalities Fund for that Section of the Province, and shall be paid out of the same in preference to all other charges or expenses whatever:—Provided always, that in any case where such annual allowance as aforesaid is payable, not to an individual but to a religious body or denomination, such allowance shall continue to be payable during years next after the passing of this Act, and no longer.

3. And whereas it is desirable to remove all semblance of connection between Church and State and to effect an entire and final disposition of all matters, claims and interests arising out of the Clergy Reserves by a speedy a distribution of their proceeds as may be: Be it therefore enacted, that the Governor in Council may, whenever he may deem it expedient, with the consent of the parties or bodies severally interested, commute such annual stipend or stipends, allowance or allowances, for the value thereof, to be calculated at the rate of six per cent. per annum, upon the probable life of each individual, or upon average not exceeding years' purchase, on the lives of all the incumbents so entitled belonging to the same religious denomination; and in case of religious bodies, at years purchase; and such commutation shall be paid accordingly out of that one of the Municipalities Funds upon which such stipends or allowances are respectively made chargeable by this Act.

4. So long as any such stipend or allowance shall be chargeable upon either of the said Municipalities Funds, a portion of such fund producing annually interest sufficient to pay every such stipend or allowance then chargeable there on, shall be retained by the Receiver General and appropriated for that purpose, and if not already invested shall be by him invested in public British securities or in any Provincial Debentures or Securities, which, under the act to establish freedom of banking or any act amending the same, may be accepted by the Receiver General in exchange for registered bank notes, as the Governor in Council shall from time to time direct; and the Receiver General, being thereunto authorized by order of the Governor in Council, shall have full power to dispose of any securities in which such monies are or shall be invested, and to invest the proceeds in any other such securities as aforesaid, or to apply them to the payment of the commutation aforesaid.

5. The amount of the Municipalities Fund in and for either section of the Province remaining unexpended and unappropriated under the foregoing provisions of this Act, on the 31st day of December in each year, shall, by the Receiver General, be apportioned equitably among the several county and city municipalities to the same section of the Province, in proportion to the population of such municipalities respectively according to the then last census made either under the Act to provide more effectually for taking a more periodical census of the Province, or any other Act under which Census may be legally taken at the Municipalities in either section of the Province; and the portion thereof coming to each Municipality shall be paid over by the Receiver General to the Treasurer, Chamberlain or other officer having the legal custody of the monies of such municipality, without other authority than this act, and shall make part of the General Funds of the municipality, and be a payable to any purpose to which such funds are applicable:—Provided always, that if at the time when such payment is to be made, any sum of money shall be payable by any such Municipality to the Receiver General, or otherwise whatever, and shall be overdue, he may retain in his hands in satisfaction or part satisfaction thereof, the sum which would otherwise be payable to such Municipality, or so much thereof as may be equal to the sum so payable by him by the Municipality and overdue, and shall deliver to the treasurer, chamberlain or other officer as aforesaid, a discharge in favor of the municipality for a sum equal to that so retained by him; and for the purposes of this section, each municipality into which any county in Lower Canada may be at the time divided and each union of counties for municipal purposes in Upper or Lower Canada, shall be taken to be a county municipality.

6. So much of the act thirdly cited in the Preamble of this Act as limits the quantity of lands forming part of the Clergy Reserves which may be sold in any one year without the previous approbation in writing of one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and so much of the said act as makes any appropriation of any monies forming part of the Clergy Reserves Fund, or arising from the sale of Clergy Reserves, other than such as is made by this Act, shall be and so much of the said Act is hereby repealed.

7. Any lands which may have been, under the authority of the acts hereinbefore cited, or any of them, accepted in exchange for lands originally forming part of the Clergy Reserves in any part of the Province, shall be deemed to be Clergy Reserves for all the purposes of this act..

THE EVIDENCE.

The first witness sworn was

G. T. Nutter: was the conductor of the Mail Express going West on the 26th Oct. Left the Falls at 2 p. m—arrived at Chatham in safety at 4. 20 A. M., on Friday 27th Oct. After he left Chatham, at about 14 miles distant, he heard a crash and a scream. The lights were put out, everything was in total darkness, and he heard one of his men calling on him for assistance. A great fog prevailed at the time, the seat on which he was sitting gave way and the screams became terrific. He took hold of John Martin, the brakesman, who called him, and laid him on a seat. He was killed. This was at 5. 11 A. M. It was so dark that you could not recognize the face of the person to whom you might be talking. The train, he thought, was not going over 25 miles per hour. He came along slowly. Had told the engineer, that as it was foggy and as they could not make their connection with Detroit trains, to go slowly.—This was done as a measure of precaution, and their instructions were to that effect from Mr. Brydges. Witness here detailed the causes which led to the train being late.

After the collision on getting out of the cars he saw the fireman—saw him lying in the ditch by the light of the engine fire, the fireman could not speak. Mr. Skeele of St. Louis came up and he helped him to build some fires which was done with the fragments of the cars. I saw by the light, other people lying in the water at the side of the track. Asked W. Coll, one of the brakesmen, the cause of the accident, who replied,

LONDON, FRIDAY, NOV'R. 3, 1854.

A WORD TO OUR CITY FATHERS.

Too much can scarcely be said in admiration of the position and site of this our "finest city" of London. In the centre of a large and fertile portion of country, which, as a whole, is probably unsurpassed in Canada, it forms a needed and fully situated market for the demand and increasing population, who are, with much enterprise, cultivating the soil and settling every lot in the surrounding townships. It is not in the possession of very extensive water-power, nor is it situated on the Lake shore, and so possession of a harbor, yet in these days of steam, by a sufficient machinery can be set in motion for every requisite local purpose, and perhaps the same motive power—steam—may be, for extensive business, as profitable as water privileges.—And as to its being inland, it is at a sufficient distance from the surrounding ports to form a desired "store-house," and to become the seat of Railroad operations, for everything connected with the Depot. There will be the point of junction of the most important railroads in Canada West, and probably the seat of mechanical operations for each particular line. Thus, too the farmers will always be located to London for many miles around: the stopping places which may be established hereafter, for the reception of grain, never being able to cope with London in the matter of local market for variety of articles and abundance of supply. By a wise and an enlightened policy, our roads are being gravelled to the utmost bounds of the county so that in a very few years, the same enterprise prevailing, from every point the rural population will be enabled the whole year round to reach our town. Again steps are being taken to secure to London an immense traffic in another way. It is gratifying to permanent residents of London to witness the erection of solid and spacious edifices intended for wholesale stores. Several of these are now carried on with a degree of enterprise and with an amount of stock not exceeded, perhaps in Hamilton or Toronto. Among the number of establishments of this kind we shall on the present occasion mention but two, although there are others which deserve our notice and shall hereafter receive it, viz: that of Messrs. A. Hope & Co., and the Messrs. Kerr's. McKenzie & Co. This line of business will attract and secure the office and custom of country store keepers for many miles around, for what advantage would the retailer derive from visiting Hamilton or Toronto, if he can find the same variety, the same cheapness and the same liberality so near his own door?

There is also every facility and requisite here for rendering London a large city. Our clay cannot be surpassed for goodness of quality for bricks, indeed with care there can be little doubt that for "foundation" purposes a combination might be formed of certain kinds of our blue clay and quicksand, which, when exposed to heat would vitrify and become as durable as stone.—But in an adjacent township, there is an unlimited supply of most excellent stone, which, when the road is completed and rendered solid, can be obtained here for all needed purposes. There is also a fine supply of building timber within convenient distance; and lime and sand—sand of the very best quality—can be procured in any quantities.

If we examine the face of the ground upon which London is built, we shall also find a natural provision for an immense city and a dense population. The soil sandy and dry, the surface elevated and gently undulating, mud can scarcely ever be known here, and a cheerful variety can be maintained, at once ornamental and beneficial. The sand is not of that jejune character as to be incapable of vegetable production, for, on the contrary, it yields, with kindly treatment a grateful return, and is well suited to gardening purposes. At the same time it is underlaid with a stratum of quicksand, which yields an exhaustless supply of most excellent water.

The site of the town is very large, and the enterprise of individuals whose estates joined the old limits of the town, has removed all barriers to its further extension. The streets are, for the most part, well laid out and the general plan of the town is good. There seems to be bright prospects for London becoming one of the largest and most agreeable cities in Canada; for, another thing which we should have mentioned there is no locality in Canada West more favorably situated for country residences than the suburbs and adjacent country of London, the scenery being picturesque and the climate exceedingly salubrious.

Caution, however, and enterprise are required at the hands of those who, at the present time have the charge of our affairs. The old and new surveys do not agree very well with each others at best, and care should be taken to prevent, if possible, any still further irregularities. There are some offensive intrusions upon the streets in the new survey, unseemly "jogs" in the line, for instance, one end of the street not corresponding with the other, the side being in a line with the centre of the other part. Also there are several projections of lots into the streets which look ridiculous, absurd and puerile, one piece which has fallen under our notice not more than two rods wide, extending at the corner of a street, almost into the centre of the New Survey! This is the time to "buy up" these irregularities and to enforce general uniformity. Comparatively small sums now expended in that way would save the outlay of tens of thousands at a more advanced period of our age. It is a reproach to us to let such gross and unsightly irregularities prevail in our young forest city; while our prototype—London Senior—is, and has been for years, buying up whole blocks of buildings and even whole streets of a narrow description, at an enormous rate for the purpose of forming wide streets for the health and beauty of the town.—The names of those councillors or other civic officers will be honored, who, at this early stage of our existence, shall carry out an enlightened policy in this particular.

There is, probably, not a valuable brick building yet in the way of the proper line of corporation streets in London, at any rate they must be very few, there are certainly no blocks of buildings.

Another demanded arrangement, especially in the new survey, is the setting out of shade trees At present the northern part of our town looks very much like a fallow, over which the fire from the brush pile or log heap had run and destroyed, in its course every green thing. Uniformity should be secured in this. If parties are themselves to have the privilege of setting out shade trees upon a certain number of feet in front of their lots, the time should be specified for planting the trees, and the kind of fence prescribed to be erected for their security. It would not be wise to increase our taxes too suddenly or exhorbitantly, for we advocate economy, but a proper commencement for shade trees should be made, and something laid out each year for the beautifying of the city; and the improvement of its health in this particular; above all, uniformity can be and should be at once secured. Some of the present fences put up in front of lots to secure shade trees in the new survey, look very much like pig pens, or coops for geese!

Another very important arrangement which should be made at as early a date as possible, is that for public squares or parks. In the cities of the old world where brick and mortar occupy, in such masses the ground, parks, squares, terraces, promenades and pleasure grounds are nevertheless secured for the public; but here, at present we have no such arrangement; street after street strikes the eye in broad and monotonous succession, but no oasis in this extended desert of bricks, is provided or secured for future generations. Something should be done in this way and a splendid opportunity will be presented in the military grounds if they come with in reach, as is anticipated, of our corporation. Let no contracted, selfish policy guide our city authorities in this particular.

We have yet several suggestions to make, respecting the improvements of this town; but we have said enough for the present!

Too much praise cannot be given to the council of this town, for the enterprising and liberal spirit; their general proceedings are good, and their measures comprehensive, but there is need of still farther exertions to add to, and secure the go-ally appearance of our young city, and to save unnecessary expense in the time to come.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Steps are being taken to alter the condition of the Legislative Council; such steps are certainly very necessary, for truly it is at present a most sorry affair. The original intention, doubtless, was to render it a breakwater against any torrents of crude legislation, which the popular branch, urged by excitement, might suddenly drive forward. Good service might in this way have been done to the State; but the just expired Ministry so completely destroyed its character as an independent branch of the legislature, by packing it with their own creatures to carry the iniquitous Rebel Bill that they have rendered it almost a nullity. They, by that act established a bad precedent placing it in the power of any succeeding government to proceed in like manner, so that if any measure going through the lower House was likely to be retarded in the upper, all that would be necessary would be to search out a few ultra individuals, of any rank, and convert them into honorables, and the wishes of the ministry would be at once accomplished. Various suggestions are made to alter this state of things and to restore it to its intended purpose. The elective principle is proposed to be introduced for the filling up of vacances of the Upper House, as is the case in the Lower; but this, if found necessary of introduction, must be most carefully managed, for if it be pushed too far, the Legislative Council will be but an extension of the House of Assembly, and therefore an unnecessary burden to the country. If rendered elective, it must be so arranged that its time of duration must exceed that assigned to the nation, if not its legislation would be a farce—a mere echo of the voice of the Assembly. In lieu of appointment by the Crown, election for life would probably come the nearest to securing the necessary independence. The country is interested deeply in this matter, and it is to be trusted that the people's money may not be wasted in mere elocution or declamation; but that the present Ministry, by enlightened legislation, will place the Legislative Council in a situation of independent efficiency.

THE WAR.

Much anxiety is now experienced relative to news from the war. The contradiction of the taking of Sebastopol, which we gave in a late number, was certainly annoying; but then we feel confident that the announcement of the fall of Sebastopol was a prediction which will be very shortly fulfilled, if that stronghold is not now already in the hands of the allies. That the Czar will be completely humbled and forced to terms, there can now be no doubt; perhaps the present campaign will itself bring him to his senses.—Should he, however, madly determine to continue the struggle, next years' operations will enable the allies to march, at an early period, into the very heart of Russia, and reduce the haughty autocrat to just such terms as his enemies see fit to dictate. Having experience now in regard to the nature of the enemy, the geography of the country, and the sure effects of well arranged and determined efforts in reference to Russia's strongest holds; there is every probability that the next year's campaign will lead the invading army to enact the same scenes which were presented by the French, under the first Napoleon; but at an earlier season of the year, and with provision to secure their safe return to the sea. There is every probability, the wise preparations on the part of England for a protracted war notwithstanding, that during the approaching winter, arrangements will be made to settle the affair, in which the Czar will be allowed the satisfaction of some show of power and direction, for unless perfectly demented, he must see by this time that if things are pushed much further, he will shortly have to yield to such terms as the allies may dictate nolens volens.

THE RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

A most awful accident occurred on the G. W. Railroad, 33½ miles east of Windsor, on Friday morning last, the 27th ult. at 5 11 a. m. The Express train, going west, run into a gravel train running east and killed, in a most horrible manner, 48 passengers, and wounded upwards of 50! The gravel train was recklessly put upon the track, at a time when the Express was known to be due!

The gravel is drawn by contract and the company provides motive power for the trains, a grasping spirit, therefore, on the part of those having the gravel, led to this sanguinary result. This wholesale butchery is revolting to an extreme and is disgraceful to all parties, and a reproach to the Province. The unavoidable absence of the editor, this week, till yesterday, prevents him from remarks; we will revert to this subject in our next issue. In the mean time the public must be furnished with the most satisfactory information as to such shocking results. There can be no security unless the COMPANY be themselves responsible for every thing that is done on the road; there must be no impersum in imperio; no excuse for contracts or subletting of jobs; no guess work; no contingency respecting the drowsiness of a single overburdened individual at a switch. The travelling public must be rendered safe from all contingencies, as far as human exertion, ingenuity and precaution can render them, or the road will be a curse. Blood is upon the escutcheon of our Western Railway Company; years of the most careful attention will scarcely efface it; fresh stains of like magnitude would render it a terror, and draw down the malediction of the populace.

We give elsewhere, the details of the evidence presented before the jury at Chatham. The residue shall appear next week.

☞ A Public Meeting was held in the Firemen's Hall on Friday last, to take steps to raise a subscription in favor of the widows and orphans of those who are, or may be, slain in fighting our battles with Russia. A committee was formed and satisfactory resolutions passed. This is a good move and reflects credit upon the heads and hearts of those whose loyalty and sympathy devised this arrangement.

☞ The Maddern Family are here. Their Concerts come off this and to-morrow evenings.—They have given great satisfaction wherever they have performed. The press speaks well of them. See Advertisement.

☞ The claims of the settlers on Indian lands on the Grand River are being again pressed.

☞ The Detroit Tribune states that 20 persons were killed on the Lake Shore Railroad, Ohio, on Friday night last.

☞ The proceedings of the Synod will be published in our next issue.

☞ Two persons, named Jas. Batt and Wm. Corry were drowned in Burlington Bay, Hamilton, on Wednesday last.

☞ Arrangements are proposed for furnishing the town sufficiently with water. The should be carried out to that h.

☞ The N. Y. Crystal Palace is closed.

☞ The names of the watches who are supposed to have murdered Mr. Nelles, at Cayahuga, are Mounson, Townsend and Paterson.

☞ It is rumored that Maumee city, Ohio, has been destroyed by fire.

OR,

WATERPROOF, ANTI-CONSUMPTIVE

CORK SOLES!

MANUFACTURED BY

Harcourt, Bradley, & Co.,

44 MARKET ST., MANCHESTER,

Principal Warehouse, 102 Wood Street, Cheapside, London, England. American Establishments, 38 Ann Street & 102 Nassau Street, New-York U. S.

The Hydromagen is a valuable discovery for protecting the feet from damp and cold, and therefore a preventative of many Lung diseases without any doubt whatever. The Hydromagen is in the form of a sole, and worn inside the boot or shoe. Its medicated character, is a powerful antidote to disease.

For Gentlemen it will be found agreeable, warm, and healthy, to wear in the coldest or rainiest weather, as the feet cannot become wet if the Hydromagen is inserted. Ladies may wear the lightest soled boots or shoes, in the most inclement weather with impunity; while consumption, so prevalent among the young of our country may be thwarted by their general adoption. They entirely supercede overshoes, and the latter cause the feet to perspire in a very unhealthy manner, and besides are not dangerous to wear to pedestrians in icy weather, like india rubbers. While the latter cause the feet to look extremely large, the Hydromagen, being merely a thin slice of cork prepared, peculiarly placed inside, does not increase the size of the boot, or make the foot appear untidy. To children they are extremely valuable, as they may engage in exercise with confident and healthy effects. Their expense is so slight as to scarce need mention; besides, those who patronize them will find their yearly doctor's bill much diminish thereby.

As the Hydromagen is becoming more known its sale is increasing to an almost credible extent. Last year in London, Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Glasgow, Leeds, Dublin, Paris, Antwerp, Hamburgh and Berlin, our sales reached 1,732,456 pairs of Cork Soles. This year the number will far surpass that.

Ask the Factory their opinion of their value as a preventative for Corns, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumptions.

SIR ASTLEY COOPER, BART.

THE EMINENT MEDICAL PRACTITIONER, HAS LEFT A VALUABLE LEGACY TO THE WORLD IN HIS

Great Preventative of Consumption!

UNFAILING CURE FOR ALL PULMONARY DISEASES,

WITHOUT THE USE OF MEDICINE

Sir A. C., Bart., introduced and advised the use of the Medicated

FUR CHEST PROTECTOR

To all persons of all ages and conditions, as a certain and a safe shield against those fearful diseases, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Colds, and other affections of the Lungs, which rise from the exposed state of the chest, according to fashion, and the continual changes of our climate.

"The Protector" is simply a chemically prepared fur, lined with silk and padded, which, suspended from the neck, covers the chest in so agreeable a manner that, once worn, it becomes a necessity and a comfort.

"The Protector," although but recently introduced into America is making rapid progress through the United States, the Canadas, South America, and the West Indies. It has for a long time been a staple article in England and on the continent of Europe, while it has grown in many countries to a position of an article of dress.

To demonstrate these facts enquire of any English resident in your vicinity of his knowledge of the beneficial effects of wearing the Protector, WITHOUT HAVING RECOURSE TO DOCTORING of any kind. The cost of wearing these articles is a mere trifle, and one will last some years. No one who values the health of himself or his family will be without them. The Hospitals in this country are not alone recommending them, but rapidly introducing them. Harcourt Bradley & Co., of London and Manchester, England, were originally entrusted with the manufacture of the Protectors, by the lamented Dr. Cooper, and continue to manufacture according to his original instructions, and therefore would recommend those who would wear "The Protectors," to see to their being genuine.

Remember this is a staple article and no patent medicine.

DR J. JOHNSTON'S BALSAM OF FIR PASTE.

FOR CONSUMPTION

IN ITS EARLY STAGES,

Coughs, Colds, Croup, Asthma,

LIVER COMPLAINT, &c. &c.

CERTIFICATES.

A Voice from the Buffalo Christian Advocate.

Dr. James Johnston has invented a medicine called "Canadian Compound and Balsam of Fir Paste," which must be popular, because useful in alleviating and curing the complaints it is designed for.

Extract from a letter written by the Rev. John E. Robie, of Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. James Johnston—Dear Sir:—I am willing to bear testimony in favor of your Canadian Balsam of Fir Paste. I believe you have hit upon the right medicine. Your Balsam of Paste acts charmingly on my hoarseness, and has cured it effectually. I would cheerfully recommend it to all troubled with Coughs, Weak Lungs, &c., &c.

Yours, &c., JOHN E. ROBIE.

Dr. James Johnston—Dear Sir:—We, the undersigned, cheerfully endorse the statement of the Rev. John E. Robie, of Buffalo; and further, we would say boldly that we consider your "Canadian Balsam of Fir Paste" the BEST and SURE LING AND COUGH MEDICINE now in use. ...as we all have used it, and found it to give immediate relief, and perform a permanent cure, in all cases of Coughs, Colds, &c. We with confidence recommend your unrivalled Balsam to all who are predisposed to Weak Lungs, Coughs, Consumptions, &c., &c.

BEWARE OF SPURIOUS IMITATIONS AND COUNTERFEITS!

As the celebrity of my Balsam has already excited the cupidity of some unprincipled persons to manufacture and put out an imitation. Be sure to inquire for Canadian Balsam, as there are none genuine unless bearing the fac simile of my signature

AYER'S PILLS.

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PPHYSIC.

There has long existed a public demand for an effective purgative Pill which could be relied on as sure and perfectly safe in its operation. This has been prepared to meet that demand, and an extensive trial of its virtues has conclusively shown with what success it accomplishes the purpose designed. It is easy to make a physical Pill but not so easy to make the best of all Pills—one that would have none of the objections, but all the advantages of every other. This has been attempted here, and with what success we would respectfully submit to the public decision. It has been an object for the patient hitherto that almost every purgative medicine is nauseous and irritating to the bowels. This is not. Many of them produce so much griping pain and revulsion in the system as to more than counterbalance the good to be derived from them. These Pills produce no irritation or pain, unless it arises from a previously existing obstruction or derangement of the bowels. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity, but it is better that any medicine should be taken judiciously. Minute directions for their use in the several diseases for which they are applicable are given on the box. Among the complaints which have been speedily cured by them we may mention Liver Complaint, in its various forms of Jaundice, Indigestion, Languor and Loss of Appetite, Listlessness, Irritability, Bilious Headache, Bilious Fever, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side and Loins, for in truth, all these are but the consequences of diseased action of the Liver. As a purgative, they afford prompt and sure relief in Costiveness, Piles, Colic, Dysentery, Humors, Scrofula, and Scurvy, Colds, with soreness of the body, Ulcers and impurity of the blood; in short, any and every case where a purgative is required.

They have also produced some singularly successful cures in Rheumatism, Gout, Dropsy, Gravel, Erysipelas, Palpitation of the Heart, Pains in the Back, Stomach and Side. They should be freely taken in the spring of the year, to purify the blood and prepare the system for the change of seasons. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach into healthy action, and restores the appetite and vigor. They purify the blood, and by their stimulant action on the circulatory system, renovate the strength of the body, and restore the wasted or diseased energies of the whole organism. Hence an occasional dose is advantageous even though no serious derangement exists; unnecessary dosing should never be carried too far, as every purgative medicine reduces the strength when taken in excess. The diseased cases in which a physic is required cannot be enumerated here, but they suggest themselves to the reason of every body, and it is confidently believed the pill will answer a better purpose than anything that has hitherto been available to mankind. When their virtues are once known the public will no longer doubt what remedy to apply when in need of a cathartic medicine.

Being sugar wrapped they are pleasant to take and being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

For minute directions, see the wrapper on the Box.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kind of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for those proprietors to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public admits of no dispute. It is known every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Sores or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing often removing in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

London C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. REDFORD & CO.

Gentlemen—I have received the Sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as a highly palatable preparation. The aromatic principle and peculiar bitter flavour in which lies the essential Medicinal qualities appear to be largely infused and well preserved; and as this vegetable tonic is highly beneficial in the various forms of Dyspepsia from debility or want of tone in the digestive organs. (the form most frequently met with on the continent) your cordial will, I doubt not, form an invaluable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Redford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutist, I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Preparation of this valuable tonic to my professional brethren and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

I am, Gentlemen, Yours, &c.,

GEORGE HOLMES,

Surgeon, &c.

DR. SHERWOODS Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs, (gout, Tic Doloreux Nervousness and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, stiffness of the Joints Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors General Debility, Deficiency of diseases, Childrens Burns and Scalds, &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus difficult, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly reccommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Poetry.

HYMN OF THE ALLIED ARMIES.

Long may our union be
Firm, fast, and nobly free
Guarding the world.
Shielding the weak from wrong:
Nations, from the oppression strong
Dastard hands of each despot's throng:
Our flag unfurled
Hurza!

Should tyrants dare oppose,
England and France as foes,
Let them beware.
No sword of ours shall rest,
No cannon's mouth be hushed,
Till every tyrants crushed,
Despots beware.
Hurza!

Onward press to glory,
Tho' our beds be gory,
Blessings we'll leave.
Allied in strength and cause,
No arm shall seek to pause,
No cannon cease its roars,
No tyrant breath.
Hurza!

Napoleon and Wellington
Have led our ranks, and won:
So will we now.
Tho' their sun of life is set.
Their courage's among us yet,
Their laurels let no despot get,
From either brow.
Hurza!

Fight like lions of old,
Swoop like eagles bold,
Down on your foe.
Nought but what's holy save,
Let each tyrant have a grave,
At each despots servile slave
Strike a blow.
Hurza!

Make despotism quake,
Make mountains echoes make,
Vive l'empereur.
Make all earth resound the cry,
Make each tyrant yield or die:
We fight to conquer, not to fly.
Reign Victoria!
Hurza!

Literature,

OLE BULL AND THE BARBER.

The announcement that Ole Bull was to give a concert recalled to mind a circumstance that is still to have occurred here some years ago—probably on the occasion of his first concert in Lowell. The writer, who is known to us, intimates that the anecdote was related to him by no less a personage than the violinist himself, and that he has, to the best of his recollection, used the exact words of the narrator.

We had finished dinner and taken seats on the piazza of the hotel, when the conversation naturally turned upon the music—the universal genius of the Italians, and afterwards upon the peculiar genius which many negroes possess for playing the violin. Ole Bull was now in his happiest mood. A smile was on his countenance. "Yes" said he "those dark fellows, indeed always like good music and bad music, too. They are singular people and think of it as you may, I am persuaded many of them have white souls, however black their skins, for they are easily charmed by the harmonies of music, as by the sweetest Syren's voice. I always love the soul which responds with gratefulness to the sound of music."

"Did you ever hear, he went on to say how I nonplused a Lowell barber?"

I replied in the negative,

"Well be patient for a moment and I will tell you.

You know when I am journeying, I like to go sometimes incog., for 'tis very disagreeable to have the good people whispering about me, that's Ole Bull, the man that you see there with the white hat on, and then to have them mysterious-ly gazing me in the face. So I went to Lowell incog., and while there found it necessary to patronize a barber; so presently seeing a candystickpole I put for it, as the Yankees say.

As I went up to the shop musical sounds fell thick and fast on my ear. I opened the door. The music ceased. The barber bowed most gracefully—laid down his instrument but instanter I observed pray friend do not let me interrupt you, play out the tune—'tis very fine sir—very fine; and then, if you please, you may shave me as clean as a mirror, and at your own price.

Ebony seemed delighted with the compliment. His beautiful white teeth, a splendid set of ivory,—shone dazzlingly, and his full large eye laughingly lit up as bright as the light on Eddystone, and a good natur d smile danced on his cheek, in time, as he fantastically threw his bow. Beautiful. Beautiful. That's a Polka, said I verdantly.

'No, sar; dat's gwine ober de mountin; If you please I will gib you some owiginal variations dis time.' So he sawed through it again. I exclaimed that's excellent! Be so kind as to touch that last strain again. He did so. That's grand I love that! Pray let me hear that again.'

So he agonized Gwine ober de mountin once more, and then, like some Paglioni, laid down the gentle, harmonious, charming thing and his bow beside it carefully.

'That's grand I once more said, I love that,' and then, at his request, I tried my hand, most awkwardly indeed, making the most horrible discords.

'This is an excellent violin' said I, 'for what will you sell it?'

'Yes massar, dis am superior tone instrument, do massar ting for to get de high notes jes hark, and he struck off The last rose of Summer.

When he had finished, I observed to him, why you don't call that high?' He tried again he capped the climax. I rather reproved him—told him that I believed I could do better myself.

'De fiddle den am yours if you does it!'

'But shave me first and then I'll try!' But said he, you am to give me fifty dollars if you doesn't.

Very well. I was barbered in half a trice.

Ebony then smiled pleasantly, proudly handing me his violin, I made one ofmy grand flourishes with the bow, and now commenced on his last piece. The last Rose of Summer. Of course I could do no better than to make a few awful blunders, but soon improving, I drew my bow more gently, and blended the notes most harmoniously. The barber's face changed. The smile suddenly d eappeared. His eyes were fast enlarging. The amazed barber stood before me transfixed. I stopped abruptly but still he stood there motionless.

After a few moments he recovered himself and then the first time for ten minutes he looked me full in the face. He attempted to speak; but was unable. I waited a while and he tried again, and faintly faltered out —'De——de——de——fid——dle am won! Who de——de——deb——ble am you great massar?' I could but smile, and said, I am as you have discovered, a violinist, and hail from the old world, and (pointing to his instrument) now learn its divine and hitherto unknown power.

Bowing, I left the shop, but the barber followed, observed the direction I took, and stopped. He eyed me until I turned the next corner and with a look so full of strangeness and awe that I am fully convinced he believed me possessed of Satanic agency."

A THEATRICAL GUY.

We find stated in an old number of the Dublin University Magazine that a certain quasi theatrical genius, named Joe Goold, who was once proprietor of Albemarle Hotel, London, was one of the greatest wits and practical jokers of his time. Cooper, the actor, once bet him a trifling wager that nothing could disturb his equanimity on the stage. Joe, hearing that Cooper was about to take his benefit at Dover, instantly hurried down there and entered the theatre about the second drama in which Cooper was playing the principal part, to the great delight of the seaport people, who were much delighted with his splendid mouthing and teapot like attitude. The upper range of boxes were empty, and up to them Goold ascended, and pulling out a long telescope, fixed its focus directly on Cooper, who was in the middle of a long tragic speech. As he concluded it, Goold for an instant dropped his glass, and exclaimed in a patronizing voice, "Bravo, Cooper!" This drew the attention of the whole house, to the strange gentleman in the slips, who, again coolly taking up his long telescope, began once more to follow every movement of the actor, who naturally felt horrified and confused at finding an observer of the k neck. Physiologists or anatomists must decide the rest. Another was lying on his back with the same expression, and his arms raised in a similar attitude, the Minie musket still grasped in his hands uncharged.—Another lay in a perfect arch, his head resting on one part of the ground, and his feet on the other, but the back raised high above it.—Many men without legs or arms were trying to crawl down to the waterside. Some of the dead lay with a calm, placid smile on their face, as though they were in some delicious dream.

Of the Russians, one thing was remarkable. The prisoners are generally coarse, sullen, and unintelligent looking men. Death had ennobled those who fell, for the expression of their faces was altogether different. The wounded might have envied those who seemed to have passed away so peacefully.

The soldiers are all shaven cleanly on the chin and cheek; only the moustache is left, and the hair is cropped as close to the head as possible. The latter is a very convenient mode of wearing the hair in these parts of the world. The officers (those of superior rank excepted) are barely distinguishable from the men, so far as uniform is concerned, but the Generals wore sashes and gold epaulettes. The subalterns wore merely a lace shoulderstrap, instead of the cloth one of the privates. Most of them spoke French, and the entreaties of the wounded to be taken along with us as the officers moved up the hill were touching in the extreme. The poor fellows had a notion that our men would murder them if the eye of the officers was removed from them. An old General, who sat smiling and bowing on a bank with his leg broken by a round shot, seemed principally concerned for the loss of his gold snuff box. This, I believe has since been restored to him.

The men say they were badly handled, and had no good General to direct them. The officers displayed great gallantry, and the men fought with a dogged courage, characteristic of the Russian infantry, but they were utterly deficient in élan and dash. I am not quite sure the names I sent you per last list of the Generals commanding, was correct, but I believe it to be so now.—Our loss is 2,196 killed and wounded; of the French, between 1,300 and 1,400. The enemy have lost upwards of 6,000. Had we had but a little brigade of cavalry more, we might have converted the retreat into an utter route, and taken 5,000 prisoners, guns, and standards, as trophies of our victory. The troops bivouacked on the field, not far from the scene of our triumphs. The Rifles (2nd battalion) were in front as usual. The cavalry skirted round the country and fell back at night on their main bodies in advance of Bulganac.

The tents of Lord Raglan's head-quarters were pitched on a flat close to the bridge, and on the left of the hill on which were lying the rank of the killed and wounded. The officers and gentlemen who were with his lordship on that memorable day were, as far as I have been able to ascertain, Lord Burghersh, Col. Somerset, Lieut. Curzon, A. D. C., Lieut. Drummond, R.N., acting as naval A. D. C., who rode close to his lordship throughout the day on a little pony; Colonel Steele, Mr. Calthorpe, Deputy Judge-Advocate; Colonel Wetherall, M. Vico, Chief d'Escadron; Mr. Kinglake, Captain Wagman, Lieut. McDonald, 93rd Provost Marshal, Brigadier-General Strangways, Captain Gage, Capt. Adye, Brigadier-General Tylden (since dead of cholera) and staff, Lieut. Ewart, Sir John Burgoyne and staff, Lieut. Stopford, R. E., A.D.C., Capt. Burke, 88th Regiment, A.D.C. and Lieut. Nasmyth, extra A.D.C. Brigadier-General Escourt, Lieut. de Morel, Lieut. Teesdale, (wounded) Mr Filder, Commissary-General; Mr. Lesslie, Life Guards, (wounded); Dr. Prendergast(Dr. Elliott, Veterinary Surgeon Stockley, Colonel Airey, Quarter-master General; Drs. Hall and Brumbeck, Captain Kingscote, Lieut. Calthorpe, Captain Nolan, Capt. Sankey, Capt. Wetherall, Captain Woodford, Major Blane, Captain Weare [wounded.]

The army halted the whole of this day.—They were busy collecting the wounded, bringing in prisoners, and burying the dead. The wounded who were able to bear the journey were sent down on arabas to the shore, about three miles distant and sent on board ships.

(FROM A MEDICAL OFFICER.)

Her Majesty's ship ——, at anchor off the fort of Sebastopol,
September 25.

For the past two days I have been literally in a sea of blood, as I have been employed attending to the wounded Russians on the battle-field of Alma. No description I could give would realize the horrors of war—the dead, the dying, horses, guns, carriages, pele mele, headless trunks, bodies minus arms and legs, mutilations of every sort and kind, that my blood almost freezes at the recollection. Every available hut was improvised into an operating theatre, and under every disadvantage we performed the most formidable surgical operations. You may judge how expeditiously we had to get through things when I mention that I extracted 23 balls in less than three hours. Dressing could not think of the operation. Our surgical labours were readily known by the number of legs and arms strewn around the scene of our labours. Indeed, I cannot liken the field of the two days after the fight to anything better than an abattoir. My assistant (a compressing fellow was the first passer-by, and when his services failed him I had to wait until some one else came up, not much for the result of my amputations, as directly one was concluded I threw him on a bed of hay or straw, and left him to his melioratrix natura. In the redoubts the Russian dead lay literally heaped on each other. Nearly all the balls I extracted were Minie ones. They say there were 70,000 Russians on the heights. They held the most formidable position an army could occupy; but the bulldog courage of the Britons overcame everything, and in five hours were masters of every commanding position, the Russian hosts were in full retreat. No one knows the Russian loss. I counted, full, more than 100 Russians dead in less than two acres, and the wounded were beyond my calculation. Their supplications, as I passed them, were most affecting; when I had relieved one, there were 20 unintelligible supplications from those around me to give them my surgical aid. Our soldiers behaved in the most humane manner toward the wounded. I wish I could say as much for the Turks. The latter attacked the retreating Russian army, and those who were not killed by their fire they bayonetted, and to my own knowledge, for many successive days after the action, to attend to the wounded, and when they left there were many of the enemy still inoperated upon. We have driven them to-day a line-of-battle ship, to look after the rest, but I fear death will have carried off many of them. The Russians (about 50,000 soldiers) we left in with 900 wounded Russian soldiers.

The battle was fought in sight of the whole fleet. Nothing could be more exciting than to see the successive charges of our infantry. If we had had 2,000 cavalry, we should have made prisoners of the whole Russian army, and all their guns would have fallen to us. With the means we had we did wonders. I have now and then picked up the shape of muskets, swords, helmets, &c., and in a few days I hope to add to them considerably from the spoil of Sebastopol. A letter I took from the pocket of a Russian officer I sent to Admiral, thinking it might contain some information, but the interpreter has discovered it is only a love-letter from the mistress of one of the officers, assuring him a speedy return to her embrace, and a quick return to her arms. This I am, however, will not be realized; he was shot through the heart. All the Russian soldiers wore long boots, which our blue-jackets prize, and each man took a pair. The mode of measuring was somewhat novel. The sailors sat down and placed the soles of their shoes in opposition with those of the dead, when, if the length corresponded, the Muscovite was speedily unbooted. The Turkish troops were very busy pillaging the dead; an occupation which most of us were employed in, more or less. I did not, however, come across any tables in my explorations. We, however, shall have grand "looting" at Sebastopol, when my China experience may avail me. This is a horrible way to talk, and, no doubt, will shock you much; but it is one of the concomitants of grim war, and, perhaps, one of the most agreeable. We have found the peasantry very useful, and they willingly come forward with their waggons, which we hire for the transport of baggage, stores, &c. They are for the most part drawn by bullocks, but there are many drawn by dromedaries. The Russians burnt everything on our road.

September 28.—I resume my unconnected yarn to say that we are in possession of everything south of the town, and lit up the lighthouses last night. The enemy had men stationed in all the public buildings, to set fire to them directly we reach the citadel. This measure will, I suppose, only spare us the trouble of doing it. The Russians have sunk three line-of-battle ships and some frigates in the narrow channel leading to the harbour, to prevent our ships getting in. Our only chance now of co-operating with the army will be for us to attack the outer forts.

FRANCE.

Lord Cowley, the English Ambassador at Paris, has by order of his Government, addressed the following letter of condolence on the death of Marshal St. Arnaud, to the French Minister of Foreign affairs:—

Paris, Oct, 10, 1854.

Monsieur le Ministre—Her Majesty's principal Secretary of the State for Foreign Affairs, has invited me to convey as promptly as possible, to the Emperor, the expression of the deep regret with which the Queen's Government has received the news of the death of Marshal St. Arnaud.
The Government of Her Majesty is desirous of offering to his Imperial Majesty and to the French nation, its condolence on the mournful event that has deprived the Emperor and France of the services of a General so brave and so eminent.
If anything can sweeten the bitterness of the regret which the French Government and the nation must feel at such a loss, and which regret England shares, it is the thought, although itself a sad one, that the last moments of the Marshal were made illustrious by the splendor of a victory that will remain eternally glorious in the military annals of the two countries.
While begging your Excellency to be the interpreter of these sentiments to the Emperor, I confide in your permitting me to add the expression of my personal regret. To know him was to like him, for the courteous affability of his private life was not less remarkable than his intrepid firmness on the field of battle.
I embrace this opportunity, &c.,
Cowley.

The following despatch has been received from Marseilles:—

"The coffin containing the body of Marshal St. Arnaud has been conveyed to the cathedral. To-morrow it will leave for Paris by a special train. Madame St. Arnaud, the Marquis de Trazeynis, and General Youssouff have accompanied the Mashal to France. All the authorities of the city, the bishop, the garrison and an immense crowd of the inhabitants have rendered to Marshal St. Arnaud the funeral honors reserved to Generals-in-Chief."

The Moniteur publishes a decree, ordering that, in consideration of the brilliant services of Marshal de St. Arnaud, his funeral ceremony shall be performed at the expense of the State, in the Church of the Invalides.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN LOCKPORT.

GREATER PART OF THE CITY DESTROYED.

Lockport, Nov. 2.

A destructive fire is now raging here. At present it is impossible to give particulars, as no one can tell what the extent of the damage will be, or how far the destruction of property will extend.
Mr. Jackson's boarding house, the Congregational Church, and other buildings are in flames, and the fire is extending all over the north part of the town.

Not one Woman nor Child Saved!

The New York Express denounces in eloquent and feeling terms the conduct of a portion of those on board the Artic. It says:—

"According to the statement of one of the saved, (Captain Grand) no sooner was the ship found to be sinking, than two of the quarter boats were taken possession of by the second and fourth officers and crew, another boat (making the third) was taken possession of by the engineers, supplied with provisions, water, &c In this last boat it seems there were but eight or nine persons. It could safely have accommodated many more, but revolvers were drawn by those on board against those who were striving and struggling to get on board. In that fearful struggle were many helpless women and children, but their pitiful appeals for life were unheeded by the robust cowards who had stolen the boat, and turned their backs upon those whom it was their duty to preserve—or at least to endeavour to preserve.
Oh! what a manly spectacle that must have been! Hardy rough handed, broad-shouldered, strong framed men accustomed to a business, too, the constant hazard of which one would naturally think deadens in some degree everything like personal fear—men like those treacherously deserting feeble and delicate women and shutting their ears to the cries of little children, that should have touched hearts of adamant. It is enough to make us all ashamed of humanity, and envy the better nature of the beast in the field. Not one woman saved! Not one child!—at least we have at the moment we write this no assurance of the fact.
The circumstances connected with the loss of the British steamer Birkenhead on the coast of Africa, not many months since, are still fresh in the memories of all. The steamer struck on a hidden rock, and stove a plank at the bows and went to the bottom, we believe, in half an hour's time. there was a regiment of troops on board. As soon as the alarm was given and it became apparent that the ships' fate was sealed the roll of the drum called the soldiers to arms on the upper deck. The call order was promptly obeyed, though every gallant heart there knew that it was his death summons. There they stood as in battle array, a motionless mass of brave men, men who were men indeed. The ship was every moment going down, but there were no traitors, no deserters, no cravens there. The women and children were all, or nearly all, saved: thrr were no boats for the troops, but there was no panic, no blanched, pale quivering lips among them. Down went the ship and down went that heroic band shoulder to shoulder firing a feu de joie as they sank beneath the waves. Men like these never perish; their bodies may be given to the fishes of the sea, but their memories are, as they ought to be—immortal.

Interesting details of the Battle of the Alma.

(FROM A PRIVATE ARTILLERYMAN,)

"Heights of Alma Sept 21."

"My Dear ——,

This is the day after the battle, and I feel grateful that I am spared to write you a short but imperfect account of our operations since landing in the Crimea.
We landed on the 17th, the greater part of our infantry regiments having done so the previous evening, at a place near Eudatoria, and on the 19th made a days march towards Sebastipol, On coming towards the end of our march, a party of Russian Cossacks appeared above the brow of a hill on our front; our cavalry, Skelton's battery, and a troop of horse artillery charged upa little fighting took place and they bolted leaving a few dead behind, we lost one man and one or two wounded.
Next morning—that is the 20th, we were early astir, as we knew the enemy was strong on our front, but did not advance far during the morning.
In front of our position, extending some distance, was a long low hill, an about a further back, a range of high hills. As there was reason to suppose them to be in force behind the first rise, we made a very cautious advance, until a column of Russian infantry appeared above the crest of it when we moved on in earnest, and they retreated in double time, and joined their columns on the high hill in front.
When we saw the strong position they occupied, we made up our minc for a bit of warm work, but did not in the least anticipate such a very warm reception as they had prepared for us. At the foot of this hill runs a town of about a mile's length, and between the town and the hill a river of moderate depth and width, on the opposite side of which the Russians were posted. Now was the time, we were about to make a rush across, when, all of a sudden, the town, which had been deserted and filled with straw, blazed out in fifty places—the Russians had fired it to raise a smoke in front of us; and before we had recovered from our surprise at this manœuvre there came from all points, and along the front of the hill, a perfect shower of 18, 24, and 36 shot.
The villians had completely fortified the whole face with garrison guns from Sebastopol.
After an instant's thought the greater part of our infantry was sent back out of range and French and British artillery to the front into action and the battle had begun,]
Our shrapnel shells walked in more sharply, and for about three hours we kept hard at it, until they slackened their fire, and we moved to the rear to repair damages.
Our battery had been lost; ——shot through the head; H the same, a man named G head knocked off; B shot through; this was all of our battery killed.
Corporal R. leg broken; he is doing well and is not likely to lose the limb; A, R. one arm and both hands gone; G lost a leg, W both legs broken, and one or two slightly wounded.
Our buttery has suffered more than any other.
After we had repaired damages we went at it again, but they had gained a footingon the top of the hill and were advancing in gallant style. Our infantry had also advanced nearly up to the batteries, amid great slaughter on both sides, so that their fire was taken off us and our batteries dashed through the river and up the hill after them as hard as they could. Our lads, I mean the 2nd Brigade of Infantry charged up the muzzles of their guns and cayonetted them in their own batteries. The rest of the battle was on our side; the world against a China orange, in fact they bolted we charged over the brow of the hill and saw them in full cut. Our battery was now on level ground and the only one up, we galloped a few hundred yards forwards and gave them a farewell round from our guns, in time to open a line through the last of their retreating columns, so that B battery has got the honor of the first and last shot in the action. We have taken some handsome brass guns which are to be embarked for England. I don't know how many prisoners we have, we have not lost one prisoner. I went over the field this morning, it was dreadful to look at the thousands of killed and wounded stretched on the ground. There are at least six Russians to one of ours including our French comrades The scamps made sure of not being shifted for a month at least. I hear that Prince Menschikoff told them he should have us all prisoners in a short time, as it was impossible for us to take possession of the hill or even to cross the river in the face of their heavy guns. What does he think of it now, and what will he think when we knock at Sebastopol in a day or two? Our army are all employed in taking upwounded and burying dead We attend to the Russians aswell as ourown. Jack N—— is all right, he was sent on duty away from the camp, and could not write, as we had only two hours' warning that letters would be sent to day. He is quite well and desires to be remembered to Mrs N——, and the children, and to be remembered to you; like me he is annoyed at their being no means of sending you both some cash. No pay has been given this month, and will not until we are again settled for a day or two, and no means of sending home what we have for you upon us. Kiss my baby a thousand times.—I thought much of you all in the battle. God bless you all.
G. P.

Balaklava, Sept 28.

"My Dear ——, I again take the opportunity of writing to let you know how we are getting on here. I trust you and baby are quite well as I am happy to say is the case with me at present. After having rested a day or two at Alma, and put our wounded on board ship and buried our dead, we again made an advance, without seeing anything of the enemy until the 25th, when we made a forced march to a place called Toulka, a large barrack in the centre of a dense wood. It appears the Russians were collecting a strong force at this place to come upon our rear while we were engaged in the siege operation at Sebastopol, but Lord Raglan had information of their plans, and sent our division forward, and we came upon them rather unexpectedly. They fired a few shots and hen cut in all directions.
Our horse artillery came into action and fired after them, and the Scotch Greys dismounted and followed them into the bush, and I believe shot down a great number of them. We found their dinners in the coppers but it was rather too strong for English stomachs, so we did not eat it,
We captured a general officer's bagg age, a great number of waggons laden with flour bacon ane some waggons of powder.
The flour and bacon we took as much as we thought proper of, on our guns; the baggage also plundered; the waggons we destroyed and blew up the powder.
I have a Russian officer's uniform which I will if possible bring home with me if I live. On the 26th we came to this place, and took a strong fort and about 600 or 700 prisoners.
Yesterday we advanced up to Sebastopolto summon the garrison to surrender, but they say the won't go,
We returned to our ground again, and are now busy getting siege guns ashore, for out they must come, they cannot be allowed to remain in comfortable quarters now while we lie out in the open air, especially as the heights are getting very cold now
This is a beautiful country, Since we landed we have been surrounded with vineyards and orcchards: every description of fruit is now ripe—grapes, peaches, apples pears, almonds and vegetables in abundancer Many of our men killed themselves by making a too free use of them.
As we approach the towns and villages the the inhabitants desert them, and as soon as we come to a halt our men disperse through them in search of plunder, and such a scene you could not imagine as is to be seen here in a few minutes.
Thousands of men loaded with chairstables sofas, chests of drawers, pier-glass, geese ducks cabbages fowls, in fact everything that can be imagined.
Lord Raglan thanked us for winning on the 20th in a stunning manner.
Pray write as soon as you get this. That God may protect you and my child is the fervent prayer of your loving husband.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Mr Cartier moved the second reading of the Bill to amend the Grand Trunk Railway Act. He stated that the company desired to complete the amalgamation that had taken place under the authority of the Act 16 Vic., chap. 39; also to complete the lease of the American portion of the Portland Road.—This last was desirable, so as to secure to the company the control, as it were, of this mouth of the road. The Company also desired the power to make branch lanes or the accommodation of the country through which the road passed.
Mr. Fournier said a [illegible] which the reporter could not [illegible] tier replied:
Mr. F[illegible]

[illegible] such a power was extraordinary. [illegible] House was asked to ratify all the agreements of the Directors and all their doings, without knowing what they were.
Mr Cartier said they would all be laid before the Railway Committee, and they will be printed if the House desires.
Mr. Brown said that was so far well, and went on to read other clauses of the Bill, on which he commented. He particularly objected to that which gave the government the power of extending the time for the fulfilment of the contract, and taunted Mr. Hincks with his former statements of the enormous wealth of the contractors, and the short time in which they would build the road.
Mr. Hincks.—They did not expect a Russian war.
Mr. Brown.—They ought to have been prepared for every contingency. He did think that government ought to have the power of preventing the contractors to suspend most important parts of the road at their convenience. Another clause he much objected to was that which altered the manner of giving to the company provincial debentures for work done. He thought the first act ought to be adhered to in this respect. The bill proposed to substitute a charge on the whole work, instead of special charges on the several works, as the basis on which to pay provincial debentures. That he contended, would have the effect of jeopardizing the Upper Canada portions of the road, or giving the company the plea to ask for more aid from the province. He believed that about £700,000 of provincial debentures had already been paid.
Mr. Rincks was amazed at such a statement. The amount of money advanced to the Grand Trunk Company on account of provincial debentures was only £310,000, while they had expended nearly £3,000,000 on the different works.
Mr. Brown—Can you give any reliable figures for that statement?
Mr. Hincks—Yes—now; and he read the following statement:

Expended on the Quebec and
Trois Pistoles Section	£	165,350
Do. Montreal and Toronto do.	.	1,190,063
Do. Toronto and Sarnia do.	.	576,758
Do. Victoria Bridge do.	.	107,020
Do. Quebec and Richmond do.		169,521
		£2,209,722
Do. on account of Portland,		787,000
Stg.		£2,996,722

This was the total expenditure to the present time, making, as he had stated, nearly £3,000,000 stg. He added that the amount of debentures issued by the agents of the Government was £288,300.
Mr. Brown continued to read over clauses of the bill to which he took objection, and dwelt particularly on that with reference to the temporary use of lands. He would not, however, oppose the second reading of the bill, but let it go before the Railway Committee.
Mr. Cauchon could not agree with all the clauses of the bill.
Mr. Hincks said the tone, the manner, and speech of the member for Lambton showed that he entertained feelings of extraordinary rancor towards the Grand Trunk Company; that Company had met with more hostility in this House than any other, and really was not placed on such good terms as the Great Western Railway Company. The hon. member for Lambton has actually carried his rancorous feelings so far as to boast—yes to boast—that the Grand Trunk Contractors should suffer this in their undertaking.
Mr. Brown rose to order—It was not proposed to identify him.
Mr. Hincks (interrupting) said, he would say the Globe newspaper had rejoiced over the Grand Trunk contractors losing on their contracts. He thought that manifested [illegible] against contractors. It must be patent to the House and the country that extraordinary [illegible] which was in the way of this undertaking, it was impossible to foresee, and the Company ought to be met with every indulgence instead of having more difficulties thrown in their way. Here the hon. member mentioned that the contractors were now suffering enormous loss from the desertion of men on the Quebec and Richmond portion of the line, which was completed with the exception of some bridges that they could not get them to finish. Except for that delay, that section of the road would be opened before this time. The contractors had every interest to get the road finished as soon as possible. Allusion had been made to the talked-of seven million loan from the Imperial Government to make a road between Quebec and Halifax. He had no hesitation in saying that if we had obtained that loan for such a purpose it would have been ruin to the province. The calculation was to the portion between Toronto and Quebec, out of the surplus that would remain of the seven million after completing the road between Quebec and Halifax; and that calculation was founded on estimates that he had now no hesitation in saying were a mistake, and the Province would have been ruined; as things have turned out since, if it had gone into the scheme. As to the remarks of the hon. member for Lambton, in relation to his former statements respecting the wealth of the contractors, he had never stated that they were going to build the road out of their private means; but he had stated that their credit was such that the fact of their taking the work in hands would be a guarantee for securing money for its completion in the London market. He still adhered to that view of the case; and he believed that as things have since turned out, a Canadian company would not have been able to obtain money at all for the undertaking. He believed that if his hon. friends (Messrs. Galt and Holton) were present, they would confirm that statement. With respect to members of the government being directors of the Grand Trunk company, he did not believe that the Company cared about having them; and that might be altered if the house thought it desirable.—The object of making members of the government directors in the first place, was to secure the interests of the Province, not to advance those of the company. With respect to the bill before the house, he had never read it, but he thought from the clauses read by Mr. Brown that it should require some amendments.
Mr. Roblin said the work was being proceeded with as rapidly as possible in Upper Canada.
After some further remarks from other members, the motion was carried, and the bill referred to the Railroad committee.
The House then adjourned.

Quebec, Oct. 24.

CLERGY RESERVES.

Attorney General Macdonald rose to move the second reading of the Clergy Reserves Bill, and explained to the House the nature of the clauses contained therein, to the same effect, as upon previous occasions.
Mr. Robinson—If he refrained from making any remarks upon the bill at the present stage, it was not because he agreed with the bill, for he should oppose it.
Mr. Speaker put the question upon the second reading, when, after a brief silence
Mr. Murney rose and asked:
Was it possible that the day had arrived in this country when a great question like this could be allowed tacitly to pass a second reading without hon. members getting up to say one word in advocation of those principles, which they professed to have adhered to during their lives. That this question would pass, he thought there was no longer a doubt but there was no finality about it. An Imperial Statute of 1791 should be as sacred in the eyes of Colonists as an Imperial Statute of 1853, or one of 1840, as sacred as one of 1853. The power of Legislation cannot upset a fixed principle, or permit us to turn right into wrong. This had been a vexed question, and if persons wished to assume the responsibility of settling it, let it be settled, but there was no settlement to be had of the question. If they chose to set forth a certain fund for incumbents, that very fund, would as much raise an agitation in the country hereafter, as the great question has done on former occasions. He had been very much astonished to hear hon. members action of taking the ground that he did, upon personal motives, and opposition to certain members of the administration (hear! hear!) Now he was only opposed to them upon principle, and he would [illegible] measure in its every stage, whi[illegible] an opportunity of raising his [illegible] it.
Mr. Powell moved to refer [illegible] the vote of the people at a [illegible]
Mr. Bower would vo[illegible] against the principles and details of the Bill.
Mr. Dorion, Montreal, could not agree in that principle of the Bill which separated the funds of Upper and Lower Canada. He was opposed to some of the details.
Mr. Larwill was surprised that the intelligence of the Ministry could have ever prompted them to the introduction of this bill.—It was a dark subject.
Mr. Brown had from the first expressed his strong objections to the bill, but thought that some measure could be framed which would settle the matter at once. The essential point which he desired to obtain was, the extinguishment of the whole fund at once, and throwing it into the consolidated revenue.—Then, if the Clergy are willing to take the Debentures of the Province, surely they would be willing to take the solemn pledge of the country, that they should be paid out of the consolidated revenue. There should be no objection to such a course. It was the desire of his side of the house to get a bill that would be a final one, and give satisfaction to the country; but he thought that the bill, as it now stood, would not be agreeable to the country.
Mr. Rhodes—As it did not appear to be the desire of the house to go into debate on the second reading of the bill, he was disposed to bow to that feeling, but he wished to state, that he was entirely opposed to the bill—its clauses were unjust to the people of that part of Canada which he (Mr. B.) represented.
Mr. Langton did not think it was advisable to postpone all discussion until the House went into committee. If there was any objection by hon. members to the passing of the bill, they should state it now. Until it was ascertained that the details of the bill were correct, it could not be determined that the principle had been carried out. There was one portion of the bill to which he must dissent, viz.: that there is no provision made for bringing the fund in question to a speedy end instehd of merely appropriating the interest from year to year. The principal will have to be appropriated yearly, and at the death of the last incumbent there will be the end of the fund. He agreed with the hon. member for Lambton, and he believed every hon. member would be of the same opinion, that it would be advisable, if they could, to get rid of this special fund, and make all the annuities of the present incumbents chargeable upon the consolidated revenue. He did not know whether the Attorney General's interpretation of the Imperial Act was correct, and that they were obliged to keep up that special fund or not. He agreed with the Attorney general, that the Crown Lands or Clergy Reserves should not be resumed or bought. The greatest objection that he had to this bill, as he had to that of the late Administration, was, the recognition of the bill, of religious bodies. He contended that it was foreign to the whole principles of the bill, and those involved in the Imperial Act. If a religious body had a right to receive a certain portion of this fund—the body never dying—it would be a perpetual payment; but if you confine that right to one individual, upon his death, the right would cease. In order to arrive, therefore, at any commutation with any body, the rights of individuals must be ascertained. He agreed in commuting with the individuals, and if the name of religious bodies were left out, no difficulty would be encountered.
Mr. Gamble was opposed altogether to the bill, in principle and detail. It was the intention of the first Constitutional Act of this Province to set apart a certain portion of the lands therein known as "Clergy Reserves," for the support and maintenance of a Protestant Clergy for all time to come. He did not believe that it was originally intended to apply these lands towards the benefit of any other denomination than the Church of England. But that opinion had been over-ruled in England. He felt himself to be a descendant of those who were born in this country, member for Simcoe; but he regretted the taunts that they had thrown out to members for Lower Canada. These gentlemen must remember that this question was not agitated by the Catholics of Lower Canada—that was forced upon them by the protestants of Upper Canada.
He had often stated that if the Protestants of Upper Canada had not sent an overwhelming majority in favor of secularization he, for one, would never have voted for it, and he believed that that was the opinion also of others in his position.
The Lower Canadian Lands were different and were granted by the King of France and the grant was ratified by Great Britain, more for the promotion of education than the support of religion; and that grant could not now be taken away. It was threatened that the Lower Canada tithes would be taken away; but they were not in any manner a state endowment, and only affected Catholic proprietors.
Mr. Papin said he would vote for the second reading of the bill, as he was in favor of its principle; but he would vote against the third reading unless the details were altered materially.
Mr. Ferres wished to put the question of Lower Canada Church property on its proper footing, with respect to the power of the Legislature to interfere with it; and read from the seminary ordinance to the effect that it might be altered by the Legislature at any time.
Mr. Marchilden spoke in favor of secularization.
Mr. Freeman at some length contended that there could be no vested rights in the Reserves because no grant was ever yet made.
Capt Rhodes moved an adjournment which was lost.
Mr. Powell moved another amendment in the midst of all sorts of noises, which he called most indecent
Mr. Bowes supported the motion and Mr. Larwill opposed it.
It was lost.
Mr. O'Farrell had some remarks to make. He did not see how gentlemen from Lower Canada, returned by constituences like his, could support secularization. He was sure their constituents could never approve of it. This House ought not to presume to settle the question, seeing that it it was not elected under the new franchise, and that a hundred thousand of the electors of Canada had been deprived of all voice in its return. The passing of the bill before the House would be to destroy confidence in the sacredness of vested rights, and cause this country to be looked upon in England in the light of one of the repudiating States of the American Union, and it would utterly ruin our credit there.
He should vote for the amendment, and against the second reading of this bill, for he had no desire to have his name among those of the pledge breakers.
Mr. Gamble's amendment was put and lost
The main motion was put and carried.

"The Great Western Railway.

"The citizens of Detroit looked forward to the completion of the Great Western Railway with no ordinary degree of interest. Every inducement they could offer was held out to have the work performed as speedily as possible. When it was finished they regarded it with great satisfaction, as the means of speedy communication between this city and the east during the winter months. It is now nine months since the first passenger train passed over the track. The events of that period have convinced the friends of the road at this place that there is a radical defect in its management. This is a disagreeable truth, but it cannot be concealed. At first various excuses were made for the numerous causes of complaint. It was plausibly said the railway has been hastily completed, and put in running order to gratify travelling public and the citizens of Detroit should come with comely all defects. We were impressed with such statements, and [illegible] reasonable. The [illegible] the present Chief Justice [illegible] Queen. (Cries of oh! oh!) Yes, [illegible] hoped that her Majesty would so exercise her prerogative. The act of 1840 was considered a finality, as it was a compromise, and should be held to be final.
Here the hon. member went on to speak at some length on the evils that would be likely to arise from leaving religion, in Upper Canada to be supported by the voluntary system. He concluded by saying that he did not think the House fairly represented the Province on this subject.
Mr. Cauchon said he regretted the amendment contained, if not a preamble, reasons which many would object to affirm, who would be desirous to support the substantive resolution.
Mr. Biggar did not agree with the argument of those who supported the Clergy Reserves; and did not think that the unsearchable riches of the cause of Christ could be increased or promoted by keeping these reserves which had for so many years caused ill-feeling, turmoil and agitation. He avowed himself a strong advocate of the voluntary system.
Mr. Solicitor General Smith, as one of the converts to secularization, would say a few words, in reply to some of the attacks that had been made upon his position and that of his honorable friends around him. He did not think that the hon. member for North Hastings understood the subject.
In 1791 there was an act passed by the Imperial Parliament which laid aside or reserved one seventh of the land of the Province for the support of a Protestant clergy; but no appropriation of those lands had ever been made. They were only laid aside or reserved with a view to future appropriation. He had always voted against disturbing the act of 1840, which he has looked upon as a finality. The case however was altered now seeing that the Imperial Parliament had repealed it and turned over the question to the people of Canada to be adjusted by themselves.
Mr. Gamble said the Imperial act had not been repealed.
Mr. Smith—Well it is so far repealed that the question has been referred back to this country for settlement, and that can now only be done in accordance with the wishes of the people. There was no doubt that the majority of the people of Upper Canada were in favor of secularization, and that it could not be avoided. As to the appropriation of them he also believed that the majority of the people of Upper Canada were in favor of the mode proposed by the bill. Large quantities of land were already laid aside for the support of education. He regretted the appeal that had been made by the hon. member from Simcoe to hon. gentlemen from Lower Canada.
Mr. Murney indignantly replied to the taunt of the Solicitor General, that he did not understand the question.
That hon. gentleman was not ashamed to avow to the house, that he was a convert, but he did not say of how long standing. He did not say ho was a convert of only 6 weeks or 2 months; and that the cause of his conversion, if not gold, was office and its emoluments.
He felt pain at having to make that statement, for he remembered the time that he had battled with him, side by side and year after year, in the defence of the cause which the hon. member had now abandoned. He understood the act of 1791 as well as the hon. Solicitor General, and he there asserted that it was as good and sacred an act as could be passed by King, Lords and Commons. In 1840, another act was passed—a compromise act—and that he also looked upon as sacred. Unlike the hon. Solicitor General,—was not prepared to support one day, that which on another day he had called a [illegible] and sacrilege. He prayed gentlemen from Lower Canada not to deceive themselves as to what agitation would spread from Upper to Lower Canada.
Mr. Cartier could not but admire the feeling manifested by the hon. member who had just sat down, as well as that of the hon. member for Simcoe; but he regretted the taunts that they had thrown out to members for Lower Canada. These gentlemen must remember that this question was not agitated by the Catholics of Lower Canada—that was forced upon them by the protestants of Upper Canada.
He had often stated that if the Protestants of Upper Canada had not sent an overwhelming majority in favor of secularization he, for one, would never have voted for it, and he believed that that was the opinion also of others in his position.
The Lower Canadian Lands were different and were granted by the King of France and the grant was ratified by Great Britain, more for the promotion of education than the support of religion; and that grant could not now be taken away. It was threatened that the Lower Canada tithes would be taken away; but they were not in any manner a state endowment, and only affected Catholic proprietors.
Mr. Papin said he would vote for the second reading of the bill, as he was in favor of its principle; but he would vote against the third reading unless the details were altered materially.
Mr. Ferres wished to put the question of Lower Canada Church property on its proper footing, with respect to the power of the Legislature to interfere with it; and read from the seminary ordinance to the effect that it might be altered by the Legislature at any time.
Mr. Marchilden spoke in favor of secularization.
Mr. Freeman at some length contended that there could be no vested rights in the Reserves because no grant was ever yet made.
Capt Rhodes moved an adjournment which was lost.
Mr. Powell moved another amendment in the midst of all sorts of noises, which he called most indecent
Mr. Bowes supported the motion and Mr. Larwill opposed it.
It was lost.
Mr. O'Farrell had some remarks to make. He did not see how gentlemen from Lower Canada, returned by constituences like his, could support secularization. He was sure their constituents could never approve of it. This House ought not to presume to settle the question, seeing that it it was not elected under the new franchise, and that a hundred thousand of the electors of Canada had been deprived of all voice in its return. The passing of the bill before the House would be to destroy confidence in the sacredness of vested rights, and cause this country to be looked upon in England in the light of one of the repudiating States of the American Union, and it would utterly ruin our credit there.
He should vote for the amendment, and against the second reading of this bill, for he had no desire to have his name among those of the pledge bre

Church in Canada—robbed as she has been of her most sacred rights and property—may so order all things connected with her efficiency, "upon the best and surest foundations, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may, through her instrumentality, be established among us for all generations!"

THE MINISTRY.

It is now very evident that the Conservatives are anxious to have the business of the country pushed vigorously forward. They have gone, we think, madly forward in the Reserve Bill; have brought on the tapis the Seignorial Tenure Bill; have made arrangements for the Legislative Council Bill, and have halted not in reference to private and general measures, not even excepting the period—omitting only the short time consumed in the Saguenay trip—occupied in their appeal to their constituents, for re-election as Ministers of the Crown. In respect to activity and business integrity, Sir Allan and his colleagues have shown themselves vastly superior to their predecessors, who used to talk and not act spontaneously, unless for their own individual benefit. But now that the Radicals are in opposition, is their conduct any better than heretofore? Are they now actuated by an honest and laudable desire to advance the interests of the Province, by promoting useful measures and co-operating for the general good? By no means! Their course has been most factious and unreasonable! Not a single measure has been proposed by the Ministry but has met with their most determined opposition. How different was the conduct of the Conservatives, when in the position of Hincks and his chiselling confreres. Heartily did they assist in all things useful, and even showed themselves ready to proceed to more liberal measures than he Hincks ministerialists concocted. Such was the case, it is known, with the very important subject of retrenchment—a matter much harped upon by the Rolph, Mackenzie, Hincks' school, but always allowed to end in smoke. The country, however, are noting the conduct of these designing demagogues, and it is pretty evident that their days are fully numbered, with regard to governing or misgoverning the Province. Indeed, some of them are apparently sinking rapidly into oblivion. Where, for instance, is our late Post Master General? of that distinguished Statesman, it may indeed be said,

"O no, we never mention him!"
His name is never heard!"

And the lion, or rather the hyena, Hincks, is now rarely spoken of; while on the other hand, the present Ministry are gaining strength daily, and are becoming exceedingly popular. They have, indeed, a strong party, and carry their measures with a high hand. If the abominable and senseless crusade against church property can be carried on to its premeditated consummation, if the consciences of the old defenders of Protestantism can be rendered so elastic as to perpetrate this nefarious job, and finally consign the whole affair to destruction, they will secure to themselves lasting infamy; yet it must be confessed by all, their general activity and enterprise, will ensure them the confidence of the major portion of the Province and retain them in their seats; for if, on the one hand, it is boasted Toryism is dead, it is evident, on the other, that Radical-Republicanism is also defunct, and that moderate Conservatism is in accordance with the views and feelings of the intelligent portion of our inhabitants.

SUNDAY LABOR.

In addition to the desecration of the day of rest by government officials it appears Sunday is made a time for earning the usual dimes and dollars by our city Barbers, a regular business being then driven by them. This matter has been brought before the Council, who were petitioned to form a By-Law against this profanation. The petition was lost; for this simple reason that all Sunday labor, except that authorized by act of Parliament, is an infraction of our law; and because there is already a By-Law formed which would meet the case. The law against Sunday labor, undoubtedly, should be strictly enforced. It seems absurd to petition Parliament in favor of fresh laws for "keeping holy the Sabbath," while those which now exist, in this instance, are allowed to be a dead letter.

ARSON.

In consequence of the very numerous fires which have occurred in various parts of the Province, many of which seem to be inexplicable of satisfactory explanation, as to their origin, and are feared to be the work of incendiaries, the Fire Companies feel so heavy a demand upon them, that unless conflagrations are less numerous, increased per centage on the insurances must be the result. To prevent this, if possible, steps are being taken to have every fire traced as carefully as it can be to its real cause, by petitioning the Parliament to establish a court of enquiry, and responsible officials whose duty it shall be thus to examine and report upon every fire. This is a wise arrangement, and if it can be carried out, which it doubtless will be, many a fiendish wretch will be consigned to the Penitentiary, who otherwise would be allowed to go Scot free.—While writing on this point, it is to be remembered that a By-Law exists for establishing a guard, or vigilance body, for the protection of our town in particular, why do not some spirited persons see that its provisions are attended to? In pursuance of the object mentioned, a meeting of the Fire Insurance Companies was held at the office of the Equitable Insurance Company here, on Thursday the 2nd inst. W. W. Street, Esquire, chairman, D. McDonald, Esq., Secretary. A Circular, emanating from Montreal, meeting the case, was read; and the following Resolutions were passed:

Proposed by Mr. Hughes, seconded by Mr. Abbott, that the draft of petition, now presented to the meeting, be adopted and circulated by the agents, for signature, in the town of London.—Carried.

Proposed by Mr. Abbott, seconded by Mr Ledyard, that Mr. H. C. Hughes be requested to prepare the necessary petitions in accordance with the foregoing resolutions. Carried.

Proposed by Mr. H. C. Hughes, seconded by Mr. Ledyard, that Mr. Abbott be requested to lay the petition before the Mayor and Council, for approval at their next meeting. Carried.

THE GREAT WESTERN ACCIDENT.

The verdict of the Grand Jury in this fatal affair is given in another column. That verdict cannot afford general satisfaction. The foreman equally with the conductor and engineer, appears to have been reckless and culpable. The company are dealt with far to mildly. Subalterns should not be made scape-goats for principals.—The Coroner's Jury speak out far more boldly and satisfactorily. The following is said of them:

"The Jury, at 10 p. m., agreed upon a verdict of manslaughter against Twitchell, the conductor of the gravel train, and in the second degree against Kettlewell, the engine driver, censuring the Great Western Railway Company for not having a watchman, in their employment stationed at the gravel siding, instead of one employed by the contractor."

That puts the thing in the right light. The safety of the travelling public should not be placed in the hands of contractors, the company should see to that.

We insert elsewhere the remarks of the Detroit Advertiser which are moderate, truthful and manly. It is a source of grief to us to be obliged to state that our Detroit confrere gives utterance to sentiments similar to our own. There is most evidently, and has been bad management in this road, and it is falling into great disrepute. It is stated a government commission will immediately investigate the whole affair; may such be the case! There must be a change. Two things should be done as soon as possible. First, the entire management of the whole road, including trains of every sort, and officials of every degree must be in the hands of the company, who are, through their officials, to be responsible to the public. And secondly, a double track must be laid down. The amount of business which might be done, and the public safety, demand this. Till a change in the management be effected, there will be no confidence in the com. any entertained by the public; till there be a double track, the painful suggestion will continually present itself, that collisions, equally frightful with that of Baptiste Creek, may take place.

PET BANKS.

Since the discussion in the House of Assembly of what is called the Pet Bank system, we are more fully established in the belief that it seems impossible to divert human nature of its innate selfishness, or, to convince prejudiced men of the reasonable fairness of any measures not founded upon the data of their own furnishing.

The late discussion shows both these. The late administration with all its faults and may be defalcations, certainly, in our opinion, did not only what was fair, but almost everything it could honorably have done respecting the government act. It issued a circular to the different banks requiring a statement of the conditions or terms upon which those institutions would receive the deposits of the Government and afford it the (accommodation so to speak) which it might require.

The Bank of Montreal, and Bank of British North America, (in whose behalf this Crusade appears to have been got up) both stated they had declined having anything to do with the government account, or that they had no proposals to make respecting the government proposition.

The Bank of Upper Canada alone making proposals respecting it, and to which the late Inspector General (with all his faults) we think wisely acceded and at once closed an arrangement with the Bank of Upper Canada accordingly—and because the Bank has been enabled through its own good management to make it advantageous to the Institution, and, as a matter of course to increase its accommodation to its numerous customers and friends, it is assailed by the disappointed managers of the other Banking Institutions, (through their friends in Parliament) as a favorable Bank.

This kind of warfare is to say the least a disgraceful one, and furnishes strong grounds for assuming that the present crusade is started for the purpose of covering up a want of forethought and judgement which in our opinion is justly attributable to the managers of those institutions. But we are very much mistaken if the public or its representatives in Parliament are to be deceived by such a transparent veil thrown over mismanavement, or coerced into an act of flagrant injustice to the Bank of Upper Canada.

We do not make those remarks as the apologist of the Bank of Upper Canada, (for in this business it needs none). but as the defenders only of those institutions who afford the greatest amount of assistance to the legitimate industry of the Country, and, without fear of contradiction, we affirm that there is not a banking institution in Western Canada which has afforded that industry the same facilities. In short it has long been considered the farmers industrial Bank—and a kind of pioneer in the wilderness, and we believe that the representatives of Western Canada will receive very little thanks from their constituents if they fail to support an act of common justice towards the B. U. C. in the contemplated Bank enquiry to be made.

We are at the same time pleased to see that the subject of banking is to have a parliamentary enquiry, as we are among those who have long been convinced that the Banking facilities of Canada are by no means equal to the necessities of the Country.

Its increased Industry and Commerce require such an investigation, and we sincerely hope that its results will show that the present government is fully alive to this all important subject.

We are amongst those who hold it to be the imperative duty of all governments to watch the progress of Industry and commerce, and to furnish their several subjects with a sound and sufficiently abundant and circulating medium to represent the wants of that industry which from time immemorial has been wisely considered the wealth of a nation.

Macallister the Wizard.

This celebrated magician is to be in London on Tuesday the 14th inst., and will be accompanied by Madame Macallister. Their performances will afford a rich treat to our inhabitants. In proof of the success of this gentleman we give the following from the Montreal Herald of a late date. For further particulars see advertisement.

"MACALLISTER THE WIZARD.—For the last three evenings this world renowned magician has been crowding the Theatre to repletion to witness his extraordinary performances; hundreds left disappointed, unable to obtain admission. It is too late to enter into a detailed account of his most attractive and varied entertainment; suffice it to say that the whole audience seemed gratified beyond description at the numerous, elegant, and mysterious feats presented by this accomplished magician, by far the most perfect that has ever visited our city. The concluding feat, by Madame Macallister, of sleeping in the air, sent the spectators to their homes lost in conjecture and amazement. These entertainments are destined from their vast superiority, to run for many nights to come; and those who wish to obtain seats must go to the Theatre early, or most undoubtedly they will be shut out."

WATER, WATER!

From the interest which is manifested, and the steps which are taken, our city will soon have a Water Company; and if proper care be used in its formation, restrictions and requirements, the wants of all, in so far as the cooling beverage, Adam's Ale, is concerned, will be bountifully supplied; for after all—as the learned would declare, "aritan men udor," which means, as a very erudite friend of ours maketh assertion, "the pump is better than the bottle!"

☞ It will be seen by referring to our Town Council minutes, that Mr. Robert Gunn applied for assistance from that body for a poor Norwegian immigrant and his family who are in distressed circumstances; and that relief, to a small amount, was promptly given. This speaks well for both the applicant and the Council. The blessing of those who were ready to perish—strangers in a strange land—will rest upon Mr. Gunn and upon our enlightened Council!—This action should serve as a hint to the benevolent. Go and search out these children of affliction and minister—good Samaritan like—to their, perhaps, continued wants, and the God of mercy will return your Christian liberality ten-fold into your bosom!

"We understand that Kettlewell and Twitchell, the Engineer and Conductor of the gravel train which caused the recent fatal accident on the Great Western Railway, will not be tried at the present assizes for the United Counties of Lambton and Kent, it having been deemed advisable to postpone the trial on account of the excitement prevailing in Chatham.

It is said that Twitchell has made his escape, and is no where to be found.

☞ Douglass Jerold's Newsbag is laid upon our table each week. This work is deserving of patronage, showing as it does, much care and taste in its selections, and first rate talent in its original articles.

☞ The Snow Drop is a literary work well suited to the capacity of youth, and containing useful information and interesting matter for all. It is a Canadian work, published in Montreal.—Price $1 per annum.

☞ The Genesee Farmer is regularly received and is found to maintain its character as a first rate Agricultural serial.

☞ The report that 20 persons were killed lately, on the Lake Shore Railroad, Ohio, is contradicted.

☞ Geo. Macbeth and T. Scatcherd, Esqs. still continue to furnish us with full supplies of Parliamentary papers, for which we are much obliged.

☞ Patrick Pine, the watchman, is said to have stated, under oath, that he told the conductor of the gravel train that the express train had not passed, and that he received from him the reply to go to h—l; if this be true the watchman is exculpated.

FIRE.—On Thursday morning last, about 2 o'clock, the frame block of buildings owned by Mr. Darch, in Dundas Street, took fire, and in a very short time were completely consumed. It seems not to be distinctly known how the fire originated. There was no insurance on the buildings; some of the stock was insured, but the loss was considerable. It was well the fire spread no further, for there are lots of shingled roofs and wooden eave troughs close at hand, and also some highly inflammable wooden buildings in the rear of the brick blocks. The following are the names of the parties who suffered: Mr. Darch, saddler; Rorke and Tucker, shoemakers; Mosley and Hall, barbers; Jno. Pocock, shoemaker; Jno. Orange, tailor; Wm. Works, barber; Robert Bryantan flour dealer. The Fire and Hook and Ladder Companies nobly did their duty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4th.

MY DEAR SIR.—I have the pleasure to inform you that a circular will be issued in a few days to admit into the United States, from Canada, all the articles enumerated in the late treaty, under the same conditions, and with the same object as was expressed in the late circular, in regard to fish from the coast provinces.

C. CUSHING.

The new Governor, Sir E. Head, arrived at Montreal a little before 8, in the steamer John Munn. Lady Head, the Misses Head and Miss Murphy accompanied him. They were met on the wharf by the commandant of the garrison; by Colonel Horndyke, R. A., and Lieut.-Colonel Irving, A. D. C., and Capt. Hamilton, Military Secy. Owing to the clearness of the night the steamer arrived in port earlier than usual; notwithstanding this a large concourse of people assembled at the wharf. No public demonstration was got up, from the date of the arrival of his excellency not being previously known.

MACALLISTER.

HIS extraordinary Professor of the CABALISTIC ART is engaged by Mr. MALONE RAYMOND to appear, with all his NECROMANTIC WONDERS, at the HXCHANGE HALL for SIX NIGHTS, commencing TUESDAY Nov. 14, and following Evenings. A large sum is secured to him to visit this City.

This great and fortunate Magician was born in the land of Burns, but in early youth visited the Continent of Europe, where for some years past he has practised the art of "Conjuration and Mighty Magic," and has not only acquired wealth but high professional renown.

Madame MACALLISTER is an Italian by birth, educated in Paris, highly born, and daughter of one of Napoleon's celebrated officers, and has become an able adjunct to her husband in his various and bewildering feats of Necromancy. Very recently, in Spain, the performances of the Wizard and his Lady were the fashion for a whole season.

Her Majesty the Queen had a splendid Pavilion erected for them in her Palace at Madrid, where their Soirees were honored nightly by the presence of the Royal household, as well as by crowds of the Spanish nobility and gentry. Several splendid diamonds were presented to the Wizard and his Lady by Her Majesty.

Italy, France, Cuba, Germany, Portugal, America, &c., have been visited by these great Artists, the different languages of which countries they speak fluently.

They are accompanied by J. M. WESTON, Esq. their Secretary, and attended by servants and numerous assistants.

THE HYDROMAGEN,

WATERPROOF, ANTI-CONSUMPTIVE

CORK SOLES!

MANUFACTURED BY

Harcourt, Bradley, & Co.,

44 MARKET ST., MANCHESTER,

Principal Warehouse, 102 Wood Street, Cheapside London, England. American Establishments, 38 Ann Street & 102 Nassau Street, New-York U. S.

The Hydromagen is a valuable discovery for protecting the feet from damp and cold, and therefore a preventative of many Lung diseases without any doctoring whatever. The Hydromagen is in the form of a sole, and worn inside the boot or shoe. Its medicated character, is a powerful antidote to disease.

For Gentlemen it will be found agreeable, warm, and healthy, to wear in the coldest or rainiest weather, as the feet cannot become wet if the Hydromagen is inserted. Ladies may wear the lightest soled boots or shoes, in the most inclement weather with impunity; while consumption, so prevalent among the young of our country may be thwarted by their general adoption. They entirely supercede over-shoes, as the latter cause the feet to perspire in a very unhealthy manner; and, besides are not dangerous wear to pedestrians in icy weather, like india rubbers. While the latter cause the feet to look extremely large, the Hydromagen, being merely a thin slice of cork prepared, peculiarly placed inside, does not increase the size of the boot, or make the foot appear untidy. To children they are extremely valuable, as they may engage in exercise with comfort and healthy effects. Their expense is so slight as to scarce need mention; besides, those who patronize them will find their yearly doctor's bill much diminish thereby.

As the Hydromagen is becoming more known, its sale is increasing to an almost incredible extent. Last year in London, Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Glasgow, Leeds, Dublin, Paris, Antwerp, Hamburg, and Berlin, our sales reached 1,732,450 pairs of Cork Soles. This year the number will far surpass that.

Ask the Faculty their opinion of their value as a preventative for COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, and CONSUMPTION.

☞ THE CHEST. ☜

SIR ASTLEY COOPER, BART,

THE EMINENT MEDICAL PRACTITIONER, HAS LEFT A VALUABLE LEGACY TO THE WORLD IN HIS Great Preventative of Consumption!

AND

UNFAILING CURE FOR ALL PULMONARY DISEASES,

WITHOUT THE USE OF MEDICINE

Sir A. C., Bart, introduced and advised the use of the Medicated

FOR CHEST PROTECTOR

To all persons of all ages and conditions, as a certain and a safe shield against those fearful diseases, Consumption, Bronchite, Asthma, Coughs, Colds, and other affections of the Lungs, which rise from the exposed state of the chest, according to fashion, and the continual changes of our climate.

"The Protector" is simply a chemically prepared fur, lined with silk and padded, which, suspended from the neck, covers the chest in so agreeable a manner that, once worn, it becomes a necessity and a comfort.

"The Protector," although but recently introduced into America is making rapid progress through the United States, the Canadas, South America, and the West Indies. It has for a long time been a staple article in England and on the continent of Europe, while it has grown in many countries to a position of an article of dress.

To demonstrate these facts enquire of any English resident in your vicinity of his knowledge of the beneficial effects of wearing the Protector, WITHOUT HAVING RECOURSE TO DOCTORING of any kind. The cost of wearing these articles is a mere trifle, and one will last some years. No one who values the health of himself or his family will be without them. The Hospitals in this country are not alone recommending them, but rapidly introducing them. Harcourt, Bradley & Co., of London and Manchester, England, were originally entrusted with the manufacture of the Protectors, by the lamented Dr. Cooper, and continue to manufacture according to his original instructions, and therefore would recommend those who would wear "The Protectors," to see to their being genuine.

Remember this is a staple article and no patent medicine.

AYER'S PILLS.

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PPHYSIC.

There has long existed a public demand for an effective purgative Pill which could be relied on as sure and perfectly safe in its operation. This has been prepared to meet that demand, and extensive trial of its virtues has conclusively shown with what success it accomplishes the purpose designed. It is easy to make a physical Pill, but not so easy to make the best of all Pills—one that should have none of the objections, but all the advantages of every other. This has been attempted here, and what success we would respectfully submit to the public decision. It has been our endeavor to make the purest, best and most effectual pill that our knowledge of medicine could produce, so much gripping pain and revulsion in the system as to more than counterbalance the good to be derived from them. These Pills produce no irritation or pain, unless it arises from a previously existing obstruction or derangement of the bowels. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity, but it is better that any medicine should be taken judiciously. Minute directions for their use in the several diseases for which they are applicable are given on the box. Among the compplaints which have been specially cured by them we may mention Liver Complaint, in its various forms of Jaundice, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Lassitude, Languor and Low Spirits, Irritability, Bilious Headache, Bilious Fever, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side and Loins, for in truth all these are but the consequences of diseased action of the Liver. As an aperient, they afford prompt and sure relief in Costiveness, Piles, Obstructions, Dysentry, Humors, Scorfula, and Scurvey, Colds, with soreness of the body, Ulcers and impurity of the blood. In short, any and every case where a purgative is required.

They have also produced some singularly successful cures in Rheumatism, Gout, Dropsy, Gravel, Erysipelas, Palpitation of the Heart, Pains in the Back, Stomach and Side. They should be freely taken in the spring of the year, to purify the blood and prepare the system for the change of season. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach into healthy action, and restores the appetite and vigor. They purify the blood, and by their stimulant action on the circulatory system, reinstate the strength of the body, and restore the wasted or diseased energies of the whole organism. Hence an occasional dose to advantageous even though no serious derangement exists. Unnecessary dosing should never be carried too far, as every purgative medicine reduces the strength when taken to excess. The thousand cases in which a physic is required cannot be enumerated here, but they suggest themselves to the reason of every body, and it is confidently believed that all will answer a better purpose than anything that has hitherto been available to mankind. When their virtues are once known the public will no longer doubt what remedy to apply when in need of a cathartic medicine.

Being sugar wrapped they are pleasant to take and being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

For minute directions, see the wrapper on the Box.

DR. J. JOHNSTON'S BALSAM OF FIR PASTE

FOR CONSUMPTION

IN ITS EARLY STAGES,

Coughs, Colds, Croup, Asthma,

LIVER COMPLAINT, &c. &c.

CERTIFICATES.

A Voice from the Buffalo Christian Advocate.

Dr. James Johnston has invented a medicine called "Canadian Compound Pectoral Balsam of Fir Paste," which must be popular, because useful in alleviating and curing the complaints it is designed for.

Extract from a letter written by the Rev. John E. Robie, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. James Johnston—Dear Sir:—I am willing to bear testony in favor of your Canadian Balsam of Fir Paste. I believe you have hit upon the right medicine. Your invaluable Paste acts charmingly on my hoarseness, and has cured it effectually. I would cheerfully recommend it to all troubled with Coughs, Weak Lungs, &c., &c.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN E. ROBIE.

Dr. James Johnston—Dear Sir:—We, the undersigned, cheerfully endorse the statement of the Rev. John E. Robie, of Buffalo; and further, we would say boldly that we consider your "Canadian Balsam of Fir Paste" the BEST and SAFEST LUNG AND COUGH MEDICINE now in market, as we all have used it, and found it to give immediate relief, and perform a permanent cure, in all cases of Coughs, Colds, &c. We with confidence recommend your unrivalled Balsam to all who are predisposed to Weak Lungs, Coughs, Consumption, &c., &c.

BEWARE OF SPURIOUS IMITATIONS AND COUNTERFEITS!

As the celebrity of my Balsam has already excited the cupidity of some unprincipled persons to manufacture and put out an imitation. Be sure to inquire for Canadian Balsam, as there are none genuine unless bearing the fac simile of my signature

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Nunns, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties; having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best regulating medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases, by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

London C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. REXFORD & Co.

Gentlemen—I have received the Sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as a highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavor, in which lies the essential Medicinal qualities appear to be largely infused and well preserved, and as this vegetable tonic is highly beneficial in these forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone in the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with on the continent) your cordial will, I doubt not, form an unstimable addition to our Pharmacopeias.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Preparation of this valuable tonic, to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs, Gout, Tic Doloreux Nervuous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilipsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, stiffness of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervuous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chiblance Burns and Scalds, &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that diseases in many of its most painful forms is entirely owning to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus difficult, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of sciences that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of the beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to say New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

INDIAN NAMES.

BY MRS. SIGOURNEY.

"How can the red man be forgotten, while so many of our states and territories, rivers and lakes are designated by their names."

Ye say they all have passed away,
That noble race and brave,
That their bright canoes have vanished,
From off the crested wave;
That mid the forest where they roamed
There rings no hunter's shout;
But their name is on your waters,
Ye may not wash it out.

Yes, where Ontario's billow
Like Ocean's surge is curled,
Where strong Niagara's thunders wake
The echo of the world;
Where red Missouri bringeth
Rich tribute of the west,
And Rappahannock sweetly sleeps,
On green Virginia's breast.

Ye say their cone like cabins,
That clustered o'er the vale,
Have disappeared like withered leaves
Before the Autumn gale;
But their memory liveth on your hills,
Their baptism on your shore,
Your eternal rivers speak,
Their dialect of yore.

Old Massachusetts wears it
Within her lordly crown,
And broad Ohio bears it
Amid his roaring renown;
Connecticut hath wreathed it
With her quiet foliage waves,
And bold Kentucky breathed it hoarse
Through all her sucient caves.

Wachuset hides their lingering voice
Within his rocky heart,
And Alleghany graves its tone
Throughout his lofty chart.
Monadnock on his forehead hoar
Doth seal the sacred trust,
Your mountains build their monument,
Though you give the winds their dust.

FROM THE SPANISH OF IGLESIAS.

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

Alexis calls me cruel;
The rifled crags that hold
The gaihered dree of winter,
He says are not more cold.

When e'en the very blossoms
Around the fountain's brim
And forest walks are witness,
The love I bear to him.

I would that I could utter
My feelings without shame,
And tell him how I love him,
Nor wrong my virgin fame.

Alas! to seize the moment
When the heart inclines to heart,
And press a suit with passion,
Is not a woman's part.

Into one comes to gather,
The roses where they stand,
They take among their foliage,
They cannot seek his hand.

Literature.

The Belief of Superstition connected with Odd Numbers.

The idea of virtue in odd numbers is very ancient. Virgil mentions it in his eighth Eclogue, where many spells and charms then practised are recorded. The whole subject is a curious one, and would make an interesting work if all the opinions in regard to it were given.

Country women hold it an indispensable rule to use an odd number of eggs in setting a hen. Falstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" permits himself to be entrapped a third time and remarks—"This is the third time. I hope good luck lies in odd numbers, either in nativity chance or death." It is a common belief at the present day in this country, that when thirteen persons meet in a room, one of them will die within a year. This superstition is supposed to have arisen from the paschal supper.

The seventh son of a seventh son is counted an infallible doctor, and the number seven by the way is the most curious of all.

The seventh day was appointed as one of rest, and the seventh year was directed to be a sabbath of rest for all things.

At the end of seven times seven years commenced the grand jubilee.

Pharaoh's dream foretold seven years of plenty, and seven years of famine.

Under the Jewish law a man was commanded to forgive his enemies seven times; and under the Christian dispensation seventy times seven.

When Jericho was taken they encompassed the city seven times.

Elisha sends Naaman to wash in Jordan seven times.

Elijah, on the top of Carmel, sends his servant to look seven times for rain.

Solomon was seven years building the temple, at the dedication of which he feasted seven days.

The children of Israel ate unleavened bread seven days.

David, in bringing up the ark, offered seven bullocks and seven rams.

The apostles chose seven deacons, and some inquiring person, who has investigated this subject to a nicety, states that the Saviour spoke seven times from the cross, on which he remained seven hours; that he afterwards appeared seven times, and in seven times seven days, sent the Holy Ghost.

The number nine is regarded with more or less superstition, particularly in connection with seven. Augustus Cæsar was overjoyed when he passed his sixty-third year, because he considered it the climacteric one, and that then he was to live a long life. This is nine times seven, and is said to bring great changes in the life of man. The whole belief in anything of this kind may be grossly superstitious, and yet we are not prepared to say that it is.

Story of a Courtship.

The following interesting sketch of country courtship, is extracted from Mrs. Ann R. Stephens' Fashion and Famine, recently published:—

"Come, come," said Mrs. Gray, "you have been moping long enough nephew, forgetting manners and everything else. Here are the apples waiting, and no one to hand them around, for when I once got settled in the easy chair" here the good woman gave a smiling survey of her ample person, which certainly overflowed the chair at every point, leaving all but a ridge in the back, and the curving arms quite invisible—"it isn't a very easy thing to get up again. Now, bustle about, and while we old women rest ourselves you and Julia, there, can try your luck at apple seeds.

"I remember the first time I ever surmised Mr. Grey had taken a notion to me was once when we were an apple cutting together down in Maine.

Somehow Mr. Gray got in my neighborhood when we were arranged around the great basket of apples. I felt my cheeks burn the minute he drew his seat close to mine, and took his jack knife to begin to work. He pared, and I quartered. I never looked up but once and then his cheek was redder than mine, and he held the jack knife terrible unsteady. By-and-by he got a noble great apple yellow and as smooth as a baby's cheek. I was looking at his hands sidewise, from under my lashes, and saw that he pared it carefully as if every round was a strip of gold. At last he cut it off at the seed end and the soft wrings fell down over his wrist and took the apple from his fingers.

"Now," said he in a whisper, bending his head a little and raising the apple peel carefully with his right hand, I'm just as sure that this will be the first letter of the name I love, as I am that we are alive." He began swiftly whirling the apple peel round his head, the company were all busy with one another and I was the only person who saw the yellow links quivering round his head, once, twice, thrice.

Then he held it still a moment, and sat looking right into my eyes. I held my breath, and so did he.

"Now," says he, and his breath came out with a quiver, "What if it should be your name?"

I did not answer, and we both looked at the same time. Sure enough it was a letter S. No pen ever made one more beautifully.

"Just as I expected says he," and his eyes grew bright as diamonds, just as I expected? That was all he said.

"And what answer did you make him aunt" asked Robert Ogilvie, who had been listening with a flushed face, "what did you say?"

"I did not speak a word, but quartered on just as fast as I could.

By-and by he stuck the point of his knife into an apple, it was a red skin I remember, and cut as smooth as a ribbon.

I shouldn't wonder if that dropped into a letter G. says Mr. Gray, suppose you try it."

Well I took the red apple skin, and whirled it three times around my head, and down it went on the floor, curled up into the nicest G you ever set eyes on.

paign in the Baltic may, and must be, therefore considered as finished.

A private letter from an officer in command of one of the vessels in the Baltic, gives the following:

All the small steamers are on their way home from the Baltic, including the Wrangler. The whole of the French fleet are on their way home.

Napier with the screw line of battle ships, has moved from Nargen to Baro Sound, to watch the Helsingfors fleet; Admiral Martin with a small steam squadron among the Aland Islands and in the Gulf of Bothnia.

WINTER IN THE BALTIC.

Ice formed along the shores, closing the ports, and extending over entire bays and gulfs, is the grand peculiarity of the winter. Its formation in latitudes corresponding to those of our own seas, which display no tendency to solidity in the most rigorous season, is due to the exclusion from the Baltic of the warmer water of the ocean, to the free exposure of its basin to the cold of the polar zone, to its slender depth and comparative freshness, for fresh water congeals at a higher temperature than salt.

Historical memoranda upon the state of the weather for a thousand years back, published at Vienna in the last century, compiled from old chroniclers, supply the following details:

In 1269, the Cattegat was frozen between Norway and Jutland.

In 1282, one sheet of ice extended between Norway and Jutland, so that travellers passed with ease.

In 1323, was so severe that both horse and foot passengers travelled over from Denmark to Dubeck and Dantzic. Communication was maintained for six weeks, and places of refreshment were established upon the road.

In 1340, the sea was frozen over, and passable from Stralsund to Denmark.

In 1402, the Baltic was quite frozen over from Pomerania to Denmark.

In 1408, there was one of the coldest winters ever remembered. The whole sea between Cottland and Oland was frozen over, and between Norway and Denmark, so that wolves driven from their forests came over the ice into Jutland.

In 1523, both the North Sea and the Baltic were frozen over. Travellers passed on foot from Luleck to Dantzic, and from Mecklenburg to Denmark.

In 1460, the Baltic was frozen, and both horse and foot passengers crossed the ice from Denmark to Sweden.

In 1548, the winter was very cold and protracted. Between Denmark and Rostock sledges drawn by horses or oxen travelled over the ice.

In more recent times, 1653, Charles V. of Sweden crossed with the Beltz upon the ice, with his whole army, horse, foot, baggage, and artillery. Charles was on his way from Holstein to the attack of Copenhagen and passed the great Belt by the Island of Langeland, Laland and Falster. His ablest officers endeavored to dissuade him from the undertaking; but though hazardous, it was performed in safety, and compelled the Danes to conclude the peace of Roeskilde. In a similar manner, during the war between Russia and Swedan in 1809, Barclay de Tolley led a Russian army to Finland across the Gulf of Bothnia, at the narrowest part, called the Quarken, forty miles wide. But the enterprize is not likely to be repeated, owing to the difficulty and peril with which it was attended.

ANECDOTES FROM THE ALMA.

Two days after the battle, the regiments were formed up in square, and the general order of Lord Raglan, praising them for the undaunted courage they had displayed on the bloody field of the 20th, read to them. At the same time the French began moving along our front to take up a position to the left, and the vivas and cheers which were exchanged between the armies, were beyond description. It was a moment of general enthusiasm, and the two armies looked like great masses of waving caps and shakos.

Afterwards the Duke called all the officers of his division together, and speaking in a warm, straightforward manner, thanked them for the support he had received while storming the redout at Alma. As the Fusilier Guards had suffered most, and as their colours had been an especial mark, he thanked and mentioned by name the ensigns who carried them—the Hon. Mr. Lindsey and Mr. Thistlewaite.

Mr. Lindsay bore the Queen's colors, which received twenty-one shot through it, and the staff was broken in his hand by a grape shot. The regimental color carried by Mr. Thistlethwaite had twenty four rifle and musket balls through it.

How the bearers escaped uninjured appears almost miraculous. So deadly and concentrated was the fire to which the brigade of guards was exposed, that at one time it seemed impossible that they could deploy under it from open column into line. Yet the officers were perfectly cool—ordered the movement, and the men obeyed as if on parade. The Guards carried the redoubt, and lost seventeen officers killed and wounded.—Only three officers in the whole brigade escaped entirely untouched. All the others were either wounded, slightly contused by spent bullets, or shot through their bearskin caps and clothes.

The colors of the 7th regiment were, for a short time left upon the field under the batteries. This was by no means the fault of the gallant 7th. Literally there was no one to bring them off. Every one who advanced for the purpose fell either dead or mortally wounded beside them. The 7th having lost half its strength from the fire of the battery on its flank, was compelled to fall back to reform. Then for a time the colors remained upon the field until the arrival of the Guards made a diversion, when Captain Pearson, Sir George Brown's aide-de-camp, rode in and took the standard from the hands of a sergeant who was mortally wounded. No enemy's hand had yet touched them, though they had a very narrow escape.

The Guards and Highlanders suffered most in coming through the vineyard, yet they would never have broken their ranks but for one temptation—the large clusters of grapes. These, to men parched with thirst, and who had not even seen vegetables for three weeks were irresistable; so for that, and for that only, the men turned slightly aside to pull them as they passed. It appears ridiculous, but it is literally true, that the men charged up the heights under a most murderous fire, with their Minies in one hand and a huge bunch of grapes which they were stuffing into their mouths with the other. The officers were similarly employed. As the Duke led on his division, for a moment all thought he was killed. He was completely hidden in the smoke of some cannon, and a 24 pounder passed close by his head. Sir Colin Campbell, much to their dissatisfaction, would not let the Highlanders fire a single shot until they had arrived within 30 feet of the enemy. Then their murderous discharges carried all before them. By not firing, the bonnie Scots were enabled to advance with such rapidity that the enemy's cannon had hardly time to get their range before they were out of it again. Consequently their loss was but slight compared to that of other brigades.—Lord Raglan was so pleased with this proof of Sir Colin's experience and generalship in saving his men, that he rode up on the field of battle, and shaking him warmly by the hand, asked him what he could do for him?—Sir Colin acknowledged the thanks, asked his lordship's permission to wear the Highland feather bonnet for the rest of the campaign, instead of the general's cocked hat. Of course the permission was instantly given, and Sir Colin appeared the next morning in the bonnet of waving plume, to the intense delight of the Highlanders, who went into ecstacies of cheers whenever he came among them.

When the light division was compelled to retire, in order to reform their ranks, out of which they had lost 1001 men and officers, the major, one ensign, and 8 or 10 men of the 95th remained with the colors upon the ground. The major joined his small force to the ranks of the Guards, and obtaining permission charged up to the redoubt with them, and then, proceeded to join his division, the 2nd. Some of the escapes appeared extraordinary. Many of the officers and men had the ornaments of their caps and uniforms shot away, and many had slight grazes along the temples and head, some eight or ten shots were found flattened on the little breast plates fixed on the cross-belts, others embedded in the bullion of the epaulettes.

The French suffered severely as they climbed the hill to turn the enemy's flank. As the Zouaves approached, misled by their red fezzes and peculiar dress, rushed down upon them, shouting "Turco! Turco!" expecting an easy victory. They were miserably deceived. The Zouaves halted, deployed into line, gave one tremendous volley, and then charged with the bayonet, driving the enemy back with fearful slaughter.

The redoubt attacked by the French, made slight resistance; for our allies, under cover of a fire from the fleet, got their guns up by an easy road, and threw shell into it. When it was stormed, the first who attempted to scale the stone wall which protected it were all killed. A French lieutenant, however, succeeded in fastening his handkerchief to a slight projection of one of the scaffold poles (for the work, which was intended for a regular stone fort was unfinished), and so swung himself on to the parapet with the tri color in his hand. Though fiercely attacked and wounded in many places with bullets and bayonets, he succeeded in maintaining his post and his standard until assistance arrived when the work was captured.

For this service the lieutenant, whose name we unfortunately have not heard, is to be made a lieut.-col.

A letter was found upon Lieut. Poitovin, the French officer mentioned in the despatch of Marshal St. Arnaud, as having been shot while planting the French flag on the telegraph tower. It was addressed to his sister, and gave an account of the landing in the Crimea, and the events prior to the battle.—"I will write again," he concluded, "from Sebastopol or from the entrenchment." At the bottom of the letter, which is now a relic for the family of the writer, in the blank which he had left to add further details, is written this simple and affecting postscript:

Mademoiselle.—It is with the deepest grief that I write these few lines, which are to announce to you the loss of a brother, who three days ago wrote to you the above letter. This worthy friend was taken from us in the battle of the 20th, while filling the glorious functions of porte-drapeau. If the regrets which he leaves among all the officers and soldiers of the 30th can alleviate any part of the grief which that death will cause to his family, I am happy to have a good part in it.

A friend who loved him,
A. BRIGNON.

I beg pardon for opening your letter in order to introduce into it my sad news.

Among the many daring exploits of the intrepid men by whose energy and unshaken courage the allied armies have been carried to the heights of the Alma, we have not heard of an instance which surpassed in cool daring the conduct of Lieutenants Lindsey and Thistlethwaite, of the Scots Fusilier Guards. The Queen's color being carried by the former, and the regimental color by the latter gentleman. At the moment before the heights were gained, and when the deadly struggle raged so fiercely as to make it almost impossible to tell friend from foe, the two lieutenants became separated from their batallion, and found themselves with the four serjeants whose duty it was to support them, attacked by a body of Russians, whose commanding officer had led them against the colors. A desperate conflict ensued, the four serjeants quickly fell under a shower of bullets. The Queen's color carried by Mr. Lindsey, was torn into stripes, being pierced by a cloud of balls. The staff was shot in two; still the gallant officers persevered, and succeeded in cutting their way through the enemy who surrounded them. They were ably assisted, and at the right moment, by Captain Drummond, the adjutant of the regiment, whose horse was, at that moment, shot under him. Capt. Drummond, seeing the danger to which the colors were exposed, rushed to the relief, and, with a revolver pistol, shot three of the assailants. The successful bearers escaped almost miraculously, and succeeded in planting their colors on the heights, which had been then but just won from the Russians, Mr. Lindsey having actually climbed the steep face of the hill with the aid of the broken staff, while he exultingly waved what remained of it, with her Majesty's colors over his head.

Neither this gallant gentleman, nor his equally distinguished companion, Mr. Thistlethwaite, were hurt.

Colonel Haygarth's escapes were also a very singular instance of the chances of the battle field.

When he received his first wound, he was in such extreme close quarters with the enemy that his shoulder, which was shot through was burned by the discharge of a Russian musket. While lying on the field, close to the river's bank, which he had just ascended and in an unconscious state, another shot fractured his leg, and in the struggle produced by this concussion, he rolled over and down the bank into the stream of the Alma. The sudden shock and the coldness of the water staunched the blood, which was flowing from the arteries of the shoulder, and so saved his life, although, in scrambling out of the water, he received another wound from a ball which grazed his head.

Colonel Steele, Lord Raglan's military secretary, was for some time supposed to have fallen.

Lord Raglan, in the heat of the fight, ordered him to ride to the brigade of Guards and give the order to advance, intending, of course, that the order being given, he should return to his place with the staff.

The moment was, however, too exciting for the hot blood of the military secretary, and having given the order of his chief, he rushed forward himself with his old batallion and did not again present himself to Lord Raglan until he came to announce that the field was won, and to ask forgiveness for the breach of orders, of which he had been guilty in joining the brilliant charge of the Guards which so largely aided in gaining the splendid victory.

THE SCENE AT SEBASTOPOL.

From the Daily News.

The centre of interest is in Sebastopol, upon which Frenchmen and Englishmen are looking down through every kind of eye-glass that can be got hold of. The barracks, the forts, the batteries, the ships moored and placed so as to form improvised floating batteries, look grim and imposing.

Few soldiers are seen stirring about, some of the forts look quite deserted; but no one doubts that the men are there, ready to make their presence known as they are wanted. To sea-ward the huge ships of war hull on the tide, rising and falling with the long ground swell, seeming to nod significantly with their masts at the doomed fortress: a few steamers are tripping about, tensing the Russian gunners; the transports and most of the large steamers are at Balaklava, or the bays around Cape Chersonese.

Along the cliffs, stiff silent sentries stand, or tread their short allotted space. Sick men look sadly on the world without, restless and feverish, fretting at the compulsory inaction. Officers of high rank, pressed with the burden of responsibility, pore with contracted brows over charts or plans, or reconnoitre hill plain or fortress.

The Russians who hold the field where are they. That is indeed a mystery. A mist as thick as that which rested on the extremities of the bridge seen in Mirza's vision, fills up that part of the picture which has been presented to the mind's eye. Rumors are vague and contradictory. Some will have it that the Russian troops fallen in with between the Balbek and Tchernaya were the rearguard of a numerous division sent from Sebastopol to strengthen the garrison,

Then Osten Sacken is said to be hurrying from Perekop, to join the Prince with a corps of all numbers from 5,000 up to 40,000.

Lastly, the hundred tongues and trumpet of rumor endow Menschikoff himself with the attribute of ubiquity. He is in Sebastopol, he is at Batschi Serai, he is at Simpheropol, lastly he is dancing about the Crimea like a pea on a drum head. And at times are heard the stern deep boom of the cannon, the hiss of the flying shell, or the shattering noise of its explosion.

Amid these sights and sounds, gaiety predominates, for there is a bracing freshness in the harvest breeze, and man is ever cheerful when exerting all his powers to bring about some definite result.

But they are all ominous of a coming day of deeper and more concentrated interest, when, amid the deafening roar of death's engines, under canopies of smoke, the serried files shall storm the breached walls.

ARRIVAL OF THE "AMERICA."

HALIFAX, Nov. 9.

The steamship America, from Liverpool, 20th ult., arrived here at 3½.

The Collin's steamship "Atlantic" arrived off Holyhead at noon, on Weenesday November 25th, but could not enter the Mersey until 3 o'clock.

The "St. Louis", sailed from Southampton for New York on the 25th ult.

The screw steamship "Alps" arrived at Kingstown, Ireland; on the 23rd, with troops from Halifax, and reached Liverpool on the 25th.

The London Times says, "We are informed, that the American Minister at Madrid, was refused permission to pass through France on his return from England to Spain.

The London Morning Post announcing semi-officially, the acquisition of Samina, says it amounts virtually, if not absolutely to the annexation of St. Domingo.

The acquisition by the United States of so important a point in the West Indies, a position threatening on either hand the Spanish island of Cuba and Porto Rico, and so directly affecting the British West Indian possessions cannot be received with indifference.

A letter from the Hague 21st, mentioning the departure of Mr. Gibson for America says he took with him the result of the Conference of the American Ministers at Ostend.

The British fleet will leave the Baltic about the end of November, returning in squadrons to Portsmouth, Sheerness, Plymouth, and Cork.

Five floating batteries and twenty gun boats, drawing about four feet of water each, are building in England, for spring operations.

An expedition is to be sent out next spring, to bring home the remains of Sir John Franklin's party. Dr. Rae will have the command.

THE WAR.

SEBASTOPOL NOT YET TAKEN.

The latest advices show that 20 days elapsed between the departure of the besieging armies from Balaklava, and their opening fire upon Sebastopol,

Both the French and English had their batteries ready on the 15th.

On the 17th, fire was opened upon the place both from land and sea.

The bombardment continued till night.

Russian loss 500 killed and wounded.

Admiral Rumuloff was killed,

The Russian fortifications suffered very little.

On the 18th the bombardment was resumed by the allied batteries only.

When the mail left Constantinople, five steamers had left Balaklava with men wounded in repelling a great sortie of the Russians.

Generals Raglan and Canrobert had formally summoned Sebastopol to surrender, and requested women and children and sick to be sent away, and flags to be hoisted upon the hospitals.

So far as known, the Russian army is concentrating on the Upper Baloc, and numbers 45,000.

The allied army is divided into a siege army and an army of observation.

On the 5th and 11th, the garrison at Sebastopol made sorties, and destroyed some small works.

On the evening of the 5th a convoy of 4000 Russians succeeded in entering Sebastopol.

The allies now number 110,000, and 8,000 additional French were ready to embark from from Marseilles on the 21st, and 8,000 Turks from Varna.

Letters of the 12th say that the allies have 300 gun batteries, and after a few days fire will attempt to storm the garrison, which is estimated at 40,000.

Altogether the prospects of the speedy fall of Sebastopol is not so favorable to the allies.

Admiral Machimoff, who commanded at Sinope, is Commandant at Sebastopol, he had published an address, saying, that he will defend it to the last, and any one is welcome to shoot him if he don't.

Advices from Constantinople of the 13th say that the Russians had retaken Eupatoria, and that the English garrison, with 500 killed had retired with the loss of one gun—but this is denied by the English papers.

An allied force is sent under General Bosque and Ahmet Pasha, to Perekop, to prevent the advance of the Russians.

Affairs look black between Russia and Austria.

A great Council of War was held at Vienna, the Emperor presided.

It is reported that Austria summoned Russia to withdraw from the frontier of Gallacia.

The whole Austrian army is to be put on a war footing on the 26th.

The garrison at Vienna has orders to be ready for marching on 48 hours' notice.

Russia meantime continues to menace Austria.

The Czar has gone to Warsaw.

Little doubt is entertained that ere long there will be actual hostilities.

TREBIZONDE, Oct. 9.

The Abasia Chiefs have refused to receive Schamyl's envoy.

Hr Pacha has consequently cut off all communication with the coast of Abasia.

PARIS, Friday.

There is no confirmation of the entry of the Austrians into the Dobrudscha. It is therefore doubted.

Sir John Burgoyne, on thv 4th, fixed the sites of batteries which will destroy the Russian shipping.

A Russian war steamer has been captured by the fleet.

The Moniteur of this morning contains an account of a victory over the Russians near Gumri. They lost their baggage and 30 guns, and a Russian General was killed.

PRUSSIA.

Austria has returned an answer to the last despatch of the Prussian Government, entreating that Austria will adhere inflexibly to her policy expressed in the note of the 30th September last.

The action which Prussia would take was looked for anxiously by Great Britain.

FRANCE.

The Emperor has written a letter of condolence to Madame St. Arnaud, and bestows a pension of 20,000 fs. upon her as a national recompense.

The whole camp of the South is to embark for the east.

SPAIN.

Mr. Soule's return to Madrid has caused quite an excitement, and a clamor was being made to induce the Spanish Government to solicit his recall:

Queen Isabella has abandoned the idea of abdicating.

Corbrera is in Paris.

The Legitimates are preparing for a movement.

AUSTRIA.

Austria has just concluded an immense financial operation, by which she has transferred to a company of capitalists, represented by Messrs. Andre of Paris, Sina and Eskeles of Vienna, all the railroads constructed and worked by the Government in Hungary and Bohemia.

The company pays 200,000,000 francs, on which the Government guarantees five per cent.

CHINA.

Canton, 9th September was still besieged, and the distress of the besieged was great.

The insurgents yet hold Shanghai.

THE VERY LATEST.

The operations of the besiegers continued and their fire was effectually answered.

Visit of the Emperor and Empress of France to England.

The Paris, French, correspondent of the Chronicle thus writes:—I understand from what appears excellent authority, that the talked of visit of the Emperor and Empress of the French to England will take place in the course of the month of November, but I have not heard that the precise day is fixed. I understand that it is expected that Queen Victoria and Prince Albert will return the visit about the middle of May next, then her Majesty will not only be able to see the French Exhibition, which will then be open, but see Paris in all its glory, with the immense improvements now going on, in a state of completion. It is almost needless to say that this exchange of visits is of immense importance. They must not be looked on simply as an exchange of civilities between the sovereigns of the two great countries. They are a great political event and will do much to cement the alliance which has already been so cordially entered into between the people of both countries.

IRELAND.

The Queen has sent £100 to the Sailor's Home at Queenstown.

It is calculated by the Derby Standard that the value of the Agricultural produce of Ireland for 1854 will be fully £10,000,000 above that of 1853.

The people of Wexford are about to give a banquet to their distinguished fellow-townsman, Capt. McClure, the discoverer of the North West Passage.

A large firm in the corn trade in Dublin, has suspended payment, the liabilities being estimated at about £30,000.

Rumors are current in reference to other establishments.

A child aged 3 years, belonging to a woman named Henry, died near Toome, Ireland, a few days ago from intoxication! The grand mother, mother and aunt of the child were all drunk at the same time.

The people of Cork have been the first in the field to respond to the call for the formation of a patriotic fund for the relief of the widows and orphans of the soldiers who gloriously fell in the campaign of the East with Russia.

In the King's County, several men entered the house of a lady and administered a severe thrashing to a servant man. One of the women servants was so frightened that she died the day following.

The Northern Whig of Tuesday states that the cholera, still continues its ravages in the Belfast Lunatic Asylum, six more deaths having occurred, making 14 fatal cases since the outbreak of the disease, on the 1st inst., out of 28 persons attacked.

The inquiry into the circumstances of the recent attempt to overthrow the railway train at Trillick, terminated in a verdict of wilful murder against Hugh Harkin, John Moran, William Flannigan, Rody Murphy, William Harkin, Francis McMahon and against Patrick Lynch as accessory before the act was committed.

United States.

TREATY WITH RUSSIA.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.—A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas a convention between the United States of America and his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russians was concluded and signed by their respective Plenipotentiaries at Washington, on the 22nd day of July last; which convention being in the English and French languages, is, word for word, as follows:

The United States of America and his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russians, equally animated with a desire to maintain, and to preserve from all harm, the relations of good understanding which have at all times so happily subsisted between themselves, as also between the inhabitants of their respective States, have mutually agreed to perpetuate, by means of a formal convention, the principles of the right of neutrals at sea, which they recognize as indispensable conditions of all freedom of navigation and maratime trade. For this purpose, the President of the United States has conferred full powers on William L. Marcy, Secretary of State of the United States; and his Majesty, the Emperor of all the Russians, has conferred like powers on Mr. Elward de Stoeckl, Counsellor of State, Knight of the order of Ste. Anne, of the 2nd class, of St. Stanislaus, of the 4th class, and of the Iron Crown of Austria, of the 2nd class, his Majesty's Charge d'Affaires near the Governments of the United States; and said Plenipotentiaries, after having exchanged their Full Powers, found in good and due form, have concluded and signed the following articles:

Art. 1. The two high contracting parties recognize as permanent and immutable the following principles, to wit:

1st. That free ships make free goods—that is to say, that the effects or goods belonging to subjects of a power or State at war are free from capture and confiscation when found on board of neutral vessels, with the exception of Articles contraband of war.

2nd. That the property of neutrals on board an enemy's vessel is not subject to confiscation, unless the same be contraband of war. They engage to apply these principles to the commerce and navigation of all such powers and states as shall consent to adopt them on their part as permanent and immutable.

Art. 2. The two high contracting parties reserve to themselves to come to an ulterior understanding, as circumstances may require, with regard to the application and extension to be given, if there be any cause for it, to the principles laid down in the first article.—But they declare from this time that they will take the stipulations contained in said article 1st as a rule, whenever it shall become a question, to judge of the rights of neutrality.

Art. 3. It is agreed by the high contracting parties that all nations which shall, or may consent to accede to the rules of the first article of this Convention, by a formal declaration stipulating to observe them, shall enjoy the rights resulting from such accession as they shall be enjoyed and observed by the two powers signing this convention. They shall mutually communicate to each other the results of the steps which may be taken on the subject.

Art. 4. The present convention shall be approved and ratified by the President of the United States of America, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate of said States, and by His Majesty, the Emperor of all the Russians, and the ratification of the same shall be exchanged at Washington within the period of seven months, counting from this day, or sooner, if possible.

In faith whereof, the respective Plenipotentiaries have signed the present Convention in duplicate, and thereunto affixed the seal of their arms.

ANOTHER RAILWAY MASSACRE.

BETWEEN 30 AND 40 PERSONS INJURED.

A fearful accident occurred on the Rock Island Railroad, on Wednesday night last. The following report is furnished by Telegraph:

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.

The Passenger Train for Rock Island which left Chicago at 11 o'clock on Wednesday night, broke the axletree of the engine. Near the Minnesota station a horse jumped on the track, throwing off the train, breaking the ribs of the engineer, and killing or wounding from 30 to 40 first-class passengers. The citizens of Joliet are rendering all the assistance in their power, to the wounded and dying. The physicians represent that at least a dozen of the scalded will die during the day.

The sufferers have all been removed to a large stone building on Scott Street.

At Joliet the employees of the road are using every effort to alleviate their sufferings. When the engine was thrown off the track, the two forward passenger cars were hurled on top of it, and the steam escaping it was driven with tremendous force through the dense mass of human beings, who were packed closely in the wreck of the cars.

The engineer, Wm. G. Brown, is fearfully scalded. His brother, acting as fireman had his legs broken.

A gentleman named Carpenter, from Poughkeepsie, burned and scalded; J. W. Albion, do., Monroe Co., Ohio, Sarah Albion do., Mrs. Cox, Washington Co., Iowa, severely injured; Catharine Laughlan, do. do.; Margaret Laughlan, Gettysburg, Pa., severely injured. Many others injured whose names we could not ascertain. The whole number seriously injured is said to be over 40. The conductor, Van Burkel, escaped injury. Several of the scalded were insensible, and others were writhing in their agonies at 10 A. M.

She communicated with the steamship "Golden Gate," which was detained at San Francisco till 4 P. M. to enable merchants to answer letters per "Golden Age."

She reached Panama on the 6th inst.

The Steamer "Falcon" from Havanna, with the New Orleans mails and passengers arrived at Aspinwall on the 1st, and was to sail the same day on her return.

The steamship "Yankee Blade," which left San Francisco on the 30th Sept. for Panama was wrecked the following day.

She had on board 800 passengers, besides crew and firemen.

She struck on a reef of rocks off Point Arguillo, fifteen miles above Point Conception.

About 150 lives, and all the specie on board $153,000 were lost.

The ship was a total wreck, and in a day or two was broken up and washed to pieces.

A fog hung upon the coast and the captain supposed the ship to be 20 miles from land when she struck.

Some of the passengers were rescued by the steamer "Goliah, between San Francisco and San Diego.

The following are all the names of the lost; given in San Francisco papers; 4 children of Mrs. Longton; Mrs. Brennan and child; Mrs. Sumner and child; Mrs. Smith and child; wife of Mr. Smith of Smith Bros. & Co. Mr. Moore and child; Frank Mitchell.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

From the Washington Star.

Below we present the readers of the Star with two letters from the far West, bearing on a recent discovery which bids fair to be of more importance in the arts and sciences than any other similar event occurring in our country since the discovery of gold in California. It is hardly necessary to add that gum arabic is an article entering largely into use in the arts and medicinal preparations of the day.

We have, at the Star office, a small portion of the specimen forwarded to the Indian Bureau, which, if it differs from the gum arabic imported from the East, differs so slightly as to be beyond the discrimination of aught but chemical analysis. We cannot doubt, with the specimens in our possession, the entire truth of the statements of the letters hereto appended. We have to invite the scientific who may be curious in the matter, to visit the Star office and there behold, with their own eyes the genuine gum arabic, which, as these letters inform us is to be had on our western plains.

The following are the letters in question:—

FORT SMITH, Oct. 20.

SIR:—I have the honor to bring to your notice a recent discovery of a valuable substitute for gum arabic, discovered by Dr. G. G. Shumard.

The enclosed specimens done up in a tin box of gum mezquite being for samples and sent for your inspection and us.

Upon diluting one ounce of this gum in two ounces of cold water I had a fine glutinous paste, which I have used in sealing envelopes and other packages. I have also caused it to be mixed with starch in the application to linen, and in both instances, have no hesitation in saying that it is equal to the article of which it must soon become a popular substitute. In this form the Indian Department, you will perceive, is permitted the privilege of its first official use. It will be seen that its adhesive or glutinous qualities cannot be excelled as I have sealed up the box with it and will use it on the outward envelope.

Should this gum prove as valuable in form of mucilaginous preparations for the sick, as in two cases to which I have subjected it, and should it command one-half the present prices paid for gum arabic, the gathering of it would afford employment for, and support of, thousands of the wild Indians on the plains, and with encouragement it will become a valuable article of traffic on the Western frontier.

The difference in shade and colour of the various specimens will be accounted for in Dr. Shumard's note herewith inclosed, and to which I beg leave to refer you for further particulars.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
T. S. DREW,
Superintendent &c.

Hon. George W. Manypenny,
Commissioner Indian Affairs.

FORT SMITH, Oct. 18, 1854.

SIR:—I cheerfully comply with your request to furnish, for use of the Indian Department, a short description of the Gum Mesquite, discovered during our recent expedition to the head waters of the big Wachita and Brazoz rivers.

This gum, for which I propose the name of Gum mesquite, is believed to occur in inexhaustible quantities and will no doubt prove a valuable source of revenue to the state of Texas, New Mexico, and the adjacent Indian Territory, besides affording employment to the different tribes of Indians now roving upon the plains, many of whom would no doubt be glad to gather and deliver it to the different frontier posts for a very small compensation.

The mezquite tree, from which this gum is obtained, is by far the most abundant tree of the Plains, covering thousands of miles of the surface, and always flourishes most luxuriantly in elevated and dry regions. The gum exudes spontaneously in a semi fluid state from the bark of the trunk and branches, and soon hardens by exposure to the atmosphere, forming more or less variously coloured masses, weighing, each, from a few grains to several ounces. These soon bleach, and whiten upon exposure in the sun, finally becoming nearly colorless, semi-transparent, and often filled with minute fissures. Specimens collected from the trunks of trees, were generally found to be less pure, and more highly coloured than when obtained from the branches.

The gum may be collected during the months of July, August and September; the most favorable period for that purpose, is in the latter part of August, when it may be obtained in the greatest abundance and with but little trouble. The quantity yielded by each tree I found to vary from an ounce to three pounds; but incisions in the bark not only greatly facilitated its exudation, but causes the tree to yield a much greater amount. As it is, a good hand will probably be able to collect from ten to twenty pounds in a day. Were incisions resorted to, probably double the amount may be obtained.

I have thus presented a few of the leading facts connected with this interesting discovery. Should you desire still farther information upon the subject, it will give me great pleasure to furnish it.

I am, with much respect,
Your obedient servant,
GEO. G. SHUMARD.

To Hon. Thos. S. Drew,
Superintendent Indian Agency.

Provincial,

Fire at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Nov 11.

Last night at 1 o'clock, a fire broke out in the rear of the Checkered Store, corner of Princess and Bagot Streets. The wind was blowing a gale at the time and the flames spread with rapidity, destroying the buildings occupied by Messrs. Sullivan, Checkered Store, Critterford, Hamlan and others, with the back stores of Messrs. Delany, Bowes.—St. Peter's Church also fell a prey to the flames. Most of the buildings were covered by Insurance.

Hardly had this fire been checked, when at about 4 o'clock, another broke out in what was formerly known as St. Georges Assembly Room—a large wooden building off Wellington Street, which, with other wooden buildings formed the corner of Wellington and Barret Streets which were soon destroyed. The wind continued strong in the Northerly direction, which soon spread the flames across the street to Meagher's Buildings, which, with two of the Store-house owned by Mrs. Benson, were soon consumed. The flames continued to spread until 3 or 4 buildings on Ridout street were destroyed.

A large number of families are rendered houseless and many others suffer by their goods having been carried away into the streets in the rain which was falling at the time.

The steamer Prince Albert, also took fire at Shaw's wharf, but it was soon got under.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE.

PATENTS OF INVENTION.

QUEBEC, Nov. 3, 1854

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to grant Letters Patent of Invention for a period of fourteen years, from the date thereof, to the following persons, viz:

Robert E. Stephens, of the Town of Sydenham, in the County of Grey, Gentleman, for "An improved Bedstead"—(Dated 20th October, 1854.)

John H. Gatiss, of the Township of Barton, in the County of Wentworth, Mineralogist, for "A Central Discharge Water Wheel,"—(dated 28th October, 1854.)

Henry Charles Lindo, of the City of Quebec, Chemist, for "A new and useful process of depriving hides and skins of the hair, wool, fur, or bristles, preparatory to being tanned."—dated 23rd October, 1854.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

A lad named John Hunter, was brought before Captain Armstrong at the instance of the Great Western Railway, accused of having wilfully turned a switch leading from the main track to the Freight Wharehouse, on Thursday last, at half-past 12 in the afternoon, whereby considerable damage to life and property might have been caused, if the Engine driver of any locomotive on that part of the line at that time, or the switchman had not discovered it.

It was proved by George Woolburn, the ordinary switchman at that place, and by T. Gray, car inspector, that this lad was employed at the Locomotive Shops, and that during his dinner hour, with one of his companions, he had turned the handle of the Switch shortly after an engine had passed, to see how it would act. Woodburn, who was at that time about 100 yards from the points, observed that they were reversed, and at the same time saw the prisoner and another boy run away from the spot and hide themselves under some cars. Gray pursued them and detained them in the timekeeper's office until a Constable, who was sent for, arrested him.

The Magistrate, on referring to the Company's Act, regretted that he had no summary jurisdiction in the matter, the only remedy being by indictment for a misdemeanor. The depositions, being, however, taken, the Magistrate remanded the prisoner in order to take the opinion of the Attorney General upon the subject.—Banner.

Questions to be Answered.

A correspondent of the Portland State of Maine, propounds the following queries to be answered by the Great Western Railway Company:

No. 1. Has the Superintendent of a gravel pit the right to dispatch a train over the road at midnight, without lights?

No. 2. Has the Engineer the right to run slow when there is suspicion of danger?

No. 3. Does the General Manager of the road know what power is delegated to his subs?

No. 4. Is not the Company responsible for the employment of switch men who fall asleep, or give false information to engine drivers?

No. 5. Are candles placed in tubes, (and gone out at that) sufficient lights for safety on a railroad train?

No. 6. Is the engine driver the man who should regulate the running of the train?

No. 7. Should not a delay of eight hours make men a little cautious?

No. 8. Would a proper regard for the safety of travellers permit the running of gravel trains during the night?

HORRIBLE DEATH.

Yesterday afternoon a young man by the name of Strong, foreman in the Machine Shop of the B. B. and G. Railway Co., in attempting to put a belt on a shaft while it was in motion, was caught by the belt and whirled round with the shaft at a most fearful velocity. It is said that the shaft must have made at least two hundred revolutions before the engine could be stopped. When he was removed it was found that his bones were all literally broken in pieces, and his body reduced to a mere shapeless mass by striking at every revolution against the joists over the shaft. He must have been killed at the first revolution.

It is somewhat remarkable that about two weeks ago he was caught by the machinery in the same way, but fortunately, just at the moment the shaft stopped. He was about 22 years of age, and a native of Vermont.—Brant Herald.

Another Murder.

Scarcely has ten days elapsed since we were called to record a barbarous murder committed in the neighborhood of Cayuga, the perpetrators of which have yet eluded the officers of the law. A similar duty is again imposed upon us to day. A person of the name of Charles Richards was brutally murdered on Friday last at Port Robinson. The particulars have not reached us, but from the accuracy with which the murderers are described, we infer that in this instance they cannot escape the just vengance of the law. No doubt, we think can now remain of the fact of this portion of the Province being at present infested by a lawless gang of ruffians, bent upon robbery and murder. Enough has certainly transpired within the last few days to warrant our Sheriffs and Municipal authorities to adopt the most stringent measures for ridding the Province of these human butchers and so endeavor by every possible means to secure the murderers of the unfortunate Nellis and Richards. The following is the description given by the St. Catharines Post of the supposed murderers of Richards. Let the press pass it round:—

"One, low sized, had on a red flannel shirt, which was supposed never to have been washed, dark figured vest, black Kossuth hat, a little bare on the fore part of the head supposed to have on a black coat, 5 feet, 4 inches. The other murderer, a long, slim person, with a fancy flannel shirt, bound with a pink ribbon. He had dark long hair, was long featured, supposed to be 18 or 20 years of age. Height 5 feet six, are both supposed to belong to the Cayuga gang."—Dundas Warder.

ACCIDENT.—On the evening of Friday last as Mr. Lidgate and Mr. Henderson, two highly respectable inhabitants of this township, were walking on the east pier awaiting the arrival of the boat, the former by some mischance lost his footing, fell into the lake and was drowned.—Cobourg Star.

Gibson, who made his escape from gaol, has not yet been heard from. If he have a particle of generosity in his composition he will send the jailor a lock of his hair.—Ib.

...ber of men will be immediately employed to clean and fumigate her, and thus avoid the danger of typhus, which generally arises in such conditions. Two transports were towed by the Columbo, and their state was nearly as bad.

THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

This subject is deservedly receiving the attention of the present government; yet nothing of a definite nature has been accomplished. The peripatetating system seems at present, thanks to the good taste of the province at large, to be at a discount. There is a disposition now to stop the menagerie-like arrangement and to have a permanent locality chosen for the deliberations of our statesmen. It must be admitted, however, that caution should be employed in settling this very important subject, for if hastily accomplished the effects might be disastrous. For instance, a position might be chosen which would suit the two provinces, Upper and Lower Canada, for a capital which would not at all, perhaps, be considered eligible should the union of all the North American British colonies take place. And then again Toronto has doubtless made arrangements for enjoying the privilege of the assembled wisdom of the country for the next four years. On the expectation a number of private individuals have doubtless laid out much cash for stock, &c., and no very sudden act of the government should be allowed to cripple enterprise even of a private character. It is to be hoped, however, that even the present session will not be allowed to pass over without the most searching enquiries relative to our future capital.

☞ The commutation clause of the Clergy Reserve bill has passed, the House being in committee of the whole, by a large majority. The Ministry show their strength by the readiness with which their measures are consummated, or pushed forward, by the House at large. This commutation clause was violently opposed by Brown and the Clear Grit party; but although every attempt at evasion which his ingenuity could invent, in shape of amendment was made, the most signal failure followed. We may now congratulate the country upon the prospect of having this long agitated question as satisfactorily and speedily settled as the circumstances of the case can possibly admit. Some regard is paid to common decency in securing the present incumbents to whom the faith of the government has been so solemnly pledged. The bitter, levelling, persecuting spirit of the ultra Radicals will at once and completely—if they actually, after years of unimproved opportunity, moved in the matter at all—tear from the church, even to the production of much individual suffering, every vestige and particle of her just and lawful property. The Ministry, though grievously in error in following the voice of the rabble instead of the commandments of God, really wish to conserve as much as possible of the funds arising from this property for religious uses, as a bill for secularization, will at all allow; and hence the determination to allow the clergy to commute their stipends so as to place the matter forever out of the hands of the government.

One thing, however, is now very certain which is that the days of demagogueism are ended, and there will be no more Radical Bunkum speeches concerning the Clergy Reserves! For many years these political adventurers used this subject merely as a means to forward their own interests and to place themselves in office. The Conservatives are in earnest; they believe—at least so they say—that the subject has been so much handled that secularization cannot be prevented; and hence their determination to produce a section of finality. Soon, according to all human probability, this property will be swept away, & then as far as the Reserve demagogue is concerned, it may be said

"Othello's occupation is no more."

ANOTHER COLLISION.

With the deepest regret, mingled, we must add, with indignation, we have to record another collision on the Great Western Railroad. "The Lightning" express train, going west, on Friday afternoon, was delayed about an hour and a half in consequence of a freight train breaking down. After this it proceeded towards Chatham, travelling at the rate of 20 miles an hour, and at about 7 ran into the freight-train, which had been permitted to run, upon the risk of a telegraph message to Thamesville: about a mile and a half from which place the engineer of the freight-train, who was suspicious and on the look out, heard the express coming, and immediately reversed his engine, but was overtaken and run

The platforms of the passenger cars were nearly all smashed, the locomotive of the freight train was disabled, and one man was thrown out on to a sand bank. Fortunately, and almost miraculously, no lives were lost. The Spectator says that the freight-train was travelling under the superintending director, who was then in Chatham. We shall be glad to see this officially contradicted. Another bloody scene might have been exhibited. This trusting to telegraph messages will not do, as at present managed. If the telegraph is to be used for such purposes, there must be more offices, and more persons made acquainted with irregularities; and, above all, impressed with the sending officer, of seeing the fact that the message sent has been duly received and circulated among the proper officials. These collisions are ruining the road, and will cause persons really favourably disposed towards the company to use most industriously their pens and influence against it.

☞ "London, C. W., Is again doing itself honor. We find that she has been the first place in Upper Canada to commence a systematic subscription for the Widows and Orphans of our Crimean comrades who have fallen on the field." Old Countryman.

A fire occurred at St. Catherines on Monday last, supposed to be the work of an incendiary; fortunately no damage was done.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

An indignation meeting was held at Woodstock on the 10th inst, at which very strong language was used in the resolution passed condemnatory of the Company's officers and employees; and representing the road as failing in its general business to give any satisfaction. This is certainly a very rash course of procedure, as will be at once perceive when it is remembered that the government has issued a commission to investigate, not only the cause of the Bayfield Creek affair but also of every other accident which has occurred since the opening of the road. Until that commission fully and formally deliver their report, it is premature to pass condemnatory resolutions. It is to be hoped that the closest enquiries will be made respecting the accident above alluded to, and of all other of cognate results.

MRS. MOODIES NEW BOOK.

"Life in the Clearings." This very interesting and highly-instructive work is now published and is for sale at Mr. Gilleans. This work will doubtless have a large circulation, for aside from the deserved celebrity of the talented authoress, the subjects treated of are highly illustrative of Canadian life and manners, and the description of our scenery and country generally exceedingly correct. If such works as this of Mrs. Moodie's could be placed in the hands of the people of England, they would shortly cease to look upon Canada as a place of Bears and drifted snows; and would know it to be a country worthy of their best attention. This book is also very valuable to the immigrant, placing within the reach of the new settler most valuable information and hints relative to daily affairs in this his new home. To females it will be found very valuable.

The book is neatly got up in good print, and on very fair paper.

CORD WOOD.

Those of our subscribers who are indebted to us and have cord wood for sale, will confer a favor by bringing in, at their earliest convenience, some cord wood which is required for the office, and for which we will allow cash price. Very many of our subscribers have not paid for a long time back, and we take this opportunity to request them to attend to their accounts; for everything just now is exceedingly high, connected with the working of a printing establishment.

MILITIA

A commission has been appointed by the government to report upon the best means to be adopted for the reorganization of the militia.—This is a needed piece of business for, since the withdrawal of the Imperial troops, we have made no arrangement to defend our Province in case of any filibustering attack or sudden disturbance.

DOGS.

Some of our cotemporaries in distant towns complain bitterly of the depredations of swine which are continually prowling about, and disturbing the peace of the inhabitants. We have lots of those long nosed quadrupeds in London, and suffer somewhat from their perigrinations; but for the number and variety of canine animals we can match any town in Canada. We have dogs small, and dogs large, from the insignificant cur to the huge Newfoundland; dogs in fact of 'high and low degree' and of every variety of temper and voice imagineable. After nightfall, it is a task requiring some considerable nerve to traverse the suburbs, and every one should consider himself fortunate who escapes in a dark night, from a long walk with unbitten shins! There are far too many dogs here; the tax should be higher and more carefully collected.

THE WEATHER.

We have had, lately, some indication of winter. The silvery snow has covered the ground with its white mantle, and "clouds and storms" and the "northern blast" has caused us to perceive that nature is indeed humbled; and that summer has fled and gone. On account of the high price of provisions and of firewood, it is to be feared that the poor will suffer much during the coming winter months; and charitable individuals and benevolent societies must be prepared for active exertions. Arrangements should be made at the earliest possible date to introduce coal into our city, by which the very high and rising price of cordwood can be kept within reasonable bounds.

ROWDYISM.

Some turbulent devotees to whiskey and to folly have taken into their heads of late, in emerging from their midnight orgies, to exhibit their asinine propensities by destroying property, removing barrels, fixtures, &c., and by other silly pieces of abomination, to make "night hideous." It is to be hoped that their career will not be a long one; but that arrangements may be immediately made to nab them, and convey them to the common jail, or otherwise to inflict condign punishment upon them, with a view to drive them from that demission and puerile inconsistency which thus cause them to "exalt the brute and sink the man!"

FERGUSON'S SALOON.

By reference to our advertising columns, it will be found that a new Saloon has been just opened next door to the new City Hall, and immediately under the Times office. Mr. Ferguson has taken great pains to fit up, in good style, his saloon, and we believe he is very favorably known already, as a most excellent purveyor in things substantial and delicious. Give him a call.

THE CHILD'S PAPER.

The November number of this useful little pictorial paper has been received; the remarkable cheapness of this serial, and the deep toned piety which pervades its pages, should recommend it to all persons who have the guardianship of children.

VERANDAHS.—It will be seen by reference to the proceedings of the town council, that steps are to be taken to investigate the subject of verandahs. It is to be trusted that a good deal of interest will be manifested by the merchants and others of this town on this subject. As things now stand, these additions are both unsightly and unsafe. In case of fire they would be very dangerous, and apt to communicate with the main buildings. If it is necessary for them to remain, by all means let there be something like uniformity.

☞ Something should be done to prevent parties building, or being about to build, from taking up too large a portion of the streets. In some instances the street is monopolized, and more than half its width is pressed into the service!—This is absurd. Limits should be defined as to the width for lying down building materials

GAS.—Our city at length is lighted with gas in the principal streets. The stores have been furnished with it for some time past, but the streets were not lighted till this week. This is a great improvement.

OXEN FOR SALE.—A pair of large fat oxen for sale. Enquire at this office.

The Fifth of November was publicly signalized in several parts of the Province by the Orange Societies who repaired to church, and by their peaceable processions, commemorated the time when bloody persecution sought to rob Protestant England of her ablest champions.

The by-law was then read the third time and passed.

Mr. Blair moved, seconded by Mr. Green, that the committee appointed to meet the London and Westminster Water Works Company, be allowed one week more to make their report to this council. Carried.

Leonard gave notice that he will, at the next meeting, bring forward a resolution for their consideration, in reference to the best mode of arranging or disposing of the verandahs in the business streets of the town.

Mr. Leonard moved, seconded by Mr. McClary that the councillors of St. Patrick's ward wait upon Mr. Carden and make some arrangements about the platform in front of his house, as it projects so far on the side walk that it renders it inconvenient and some times dangerous for people walking on the side walk. Carried.

Mr. Andrew McClure, applied verbally in reference to rowdyism in the streets at night, and praying the council to take some steps to put a stop to such conduct, either by the establishment of a vigilant night watch, or such other means as they may deem proper.

Mr. Blair moved, seconded by Mr. Moffat, that so much of the rule of order of this council as has reference to a councillors speaking but once on any question brought up for discussion, be and the same is hereby rescinded.

Laid over to next meeting of Council.

To the Editor of the London C. W. Times.

THE NEW YORK & BUFFALO RAILWAY.

Sir,—How absolutely ridiculous is that everlasting expression, namely, "go ahead," which is ever upon the tongue and perpetually flowing from the lips of those unworthy sons who are considered to be the legal offspring of Brother Jonathan. The educational, moral, and spiritual perfection to which Jonathan has tutored the family stands unenvied by the sons and daughters of Britain. We do not envy the freedom which Jonathan's sons enjoy in the use of the knife. There is something in connection with this practice which goes far to show that, notwithstanding the mercantile position which America holds among the several trading nations of the world, her domestic habits approach nearer to barbarism than to civilization. It is greatly to be deplored that her statesmen, and some of them are men of genius and of letters, while looking askance and rather covetously at Cuba and snarlingly at Alma and Sebastopol, should permit fraud, roguery, and imposition to be exercised unrestrictedly upon strangers. Very few emigrants settle in or pass through the United States of America without being, according to a rather familiar phraseology, "shaved," or, according to an easier and a more comprehensive expression, "duped," and this is done in the very presence of the authority whose duty should be to prevent it. American liberty ends in tyranny, for there is no liberty so obnoxious or condemnable as that liberty is which permits one man to fearlessly steal another or plunder him of his property. To use an expression which is rather familiar upon the "turf," namely, it is a hundred to one, if an emigrant can pass through the States without being either plundered of his money or baggage, and this is mainly occasioned by those not to be trusted emigration agents and their minions, who infest New York and the several depots in connection with boats and railways. It is anything but creditable, and reflects strongly upon the shareholders, that the directors of railway companies should tolerate those agents and their servants to be constantly skulking about the luggage and clinging to the pocket of strangers travelling upon their lines. It is through the medium of these agents that the writer of this article has lost the entire stock of his luggage. The act or manner in which the box was lost is so enveloped in mystery that it is difficult to decide how to proceed in recovering the same. At Albany the writer was distinctly told that the car in which the luggage was put was perfectly right for Hamilton. The fact that cheques were not granted at the Albany depot seems rather singular; be this as it may, some six men, apparently in the employ of the railway company, and who seemed to be very officious, placed the box in a car and stated that it was right for Hamilton, If these men were in the employ of the railway company, they are most certainly ignorant as to the nature of their duty; and if they be not, the directors are deplorably to blame for the manner in which the depots of their line are managed. Now, when the train arrived at Lockport and the box was discovered to be missing, and on the attention of the baggage-master being called to the fact, he rather carelessly observed, "the box is lost, or," says he, "it may have gone on to Buffalo; you had better take a car and go on after it." This latter advice, if it had been acted upon, would without question have ended in something like what is usually termed in the old country, "a wild goose chase," or it might, most probably, have borne closely upon the American "go ahead system." The treatment which English, Irish, and Scotchmen are subject to in the States is anything but creditable to Brother Jonathan, and the universal conclusion which the majority of travellers arrive at after their having received a little experience is this, "to avoid the States in travelling to Canada," therefore it would doubtless prove an act of considerable importance in point of comfort and pounds, shillings, and pence, or in dollars and cents, if parties travelling to any part of Canada, either Upper or Lower, would just make up their minds in the old country to come by way of Quebec, and have no connection in any shape or form with those booking offices, which are established in Liverpool and other seaport towns, to secure inland transit.

I remain,
Yours most respectfully, T.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

Arrival of the "Asia."

NEW YORK, NOV. 16.

The "Asia" left Liverpool at 11 o'clock on the morning of the 4th inst., and reached her dock shortly after 9 this morning. She brings 144 passengers.

FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

The following telegraphic despatch was received from Lord Stratford de Redcliffe shortly before the "Asia's" departure:—

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 28, Midnight.—The capture of Balaklava on the evening of the 26th confirms in a great measure the information brought this morning by a French ship. It appears that the Russians attacked the forts in the vicinity of Balaklava on the 25th, their number being about 30,000. The attack was unexpected. The Cossacks preceded the infantry. To resist them at first there were Ottoman troops and Scots; the Turks gave way, and even left their guns, which being seized by the Russians were turned against them. The Scotch remained firm in their position. Reinforcements arrived, and the Russians were obliged to yield. The Russians remained, nevertheless, masters of two forts, from which they fired on the allies. Three regiments of the English light cavalry charged immensely.

The French took part in the affair with admirable bravery, and the next day their position was attacked by a body of 8,000 Russians, as well from the side of the town as from Balaklava. They repulsed the enemy with great slaughter.

The loss of the Russians must have been very great. It is affirmed that the fire of the batteries of the town had much slackened, and, according to the reports of the wounded officers, some of whom had arrived at Bayakere, the belief is continued that Sebastopol would soon be in the hands of the allies.

Among the number of killed and wounded there are none of the general officers.

Up to the 28th of Oct. the siege and bombardment of of Sebastopol was going on with regularity and success; and the loss of life in the town was so great that the air was said to be tainted by the number of unburied dead.

Admiral Nachikoff had been killed by a bomb shell.

The loss of the Allies is comparatively small; and Lord Raglan was said to be favorable to a prolonged bombardment, in preference to an immediate assault.

The Weiner Ailing publishes the following:

BESSARABIA, Oct. 29.

On the 25th, General Liprando attacked the detached camp of the English, and took the four redoubts which protected their position.

The assailants also took 11 guns; at the same time such a powerful cavalry attack was made, that it probably cost the English half their light cavalry. Lord Cardigan who commanded, escaped with difficulty.

Lord Dunkillen was taken prisoner.

Greek accounts from Odessa confirm this, and say that the English cavalry lost 500 men.

The British were said to be within 250 yards of the Russian works, but the French works were not strong enough, and had been much injured. A deserter stated that the Russian loss had been very great.

The French division from Trians had passed the Bosphorus as a reinforcement to the besieging army.

Menschikoff reports officially the loss of the Russians at Alma to be 4,500, and that Fort Constantine had been much damaged, and bastion No. 3, had 33 guns dismounted.

Contradictory rumors were current regarding the progress of negotiations, and Austria will not certainly, unless compelled to, come to an open rupture with Russia, until she is confident of the support of Prussia and the German powers. There is talk of a note from Count Nesselrode, stating that Russia is prepared for all contingencies, and will, under all circumstances, maintain the traditional policy in the East.

No local news, of importance, from England.

Smith O'Brien returned in the last Indian Mail Steamer, and left at Gibraltar. He will probably take up his residence in Spain or France.

The Paris Correspondent of the London Times says:—

"I am informed that the French Government have in their possession positive evidence of the participation of Mr. Soule in some vast plan for revolutionizing nearly the whole of Europe, and it is even added that those plans occupied the attention of the diplomatic congress recently held at Ostend.

The United States Minister of Paris, had an interview with the Minister of Foreign Affairs on the subject of Mr. Soule's exclusion from France. M. D'Lhuys assured him that there were good reasons for the conduct of the French authorities, and that they should be forthcoming when necessary. In the meantime, Mr. Mason might refer to his Government. Mr. M. is said to have had an interview with the Emperor on the following day, but it did not appear to have been satisfactory to Mr. Mason.

A MASTER PIECE-OUT-DONE.—We have lately supposed AYER'S Cherry Pectoral was the Ultima Thule in its line, and that nothing had been or would be invented which could surpass it in its fine points of excellence as a medicine. But we are confidently assured by those competent to judge on the subject, that Dr. Ayer's new Pills excel in high medical artistry even that widely celebrated embodiment of his skill. He has succeeded in making them not only pleasant to take but powerful to cure the large class of complaints which require a purgative remedy.—Lancaster Argus, Ky.

VEGETABLE

PULMONARY BALSAM

A Safe and Effectual Cure for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Asthma, Incipient Consumption, &c.

THIS Medicine operates by producing a free and copious expectoration, and by imparting vigor to the absorbant vessels, changing them from a diseased to a healthy action. Hundreds of cases might be recorded of persons who have been consigned to the grave by their medical attendants, and by the use of this valuable remedy are now in the enjoyment of perfect health.

DOSE—One teaspoonful from 3 to 6 times per day, or oftener if the cough is severe.

Price, 75 Cents per Bottle.

Prepared, Wholesale and Retail, at the ECLECTIC MEDICAL DISPENSARY, Dundas St., London, C. W.

London, 15th Sept., 1854.

Dr. W. J. KERMOTT,
Dear Sir,

Being informed that you are preparing your Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam, in order that the Public at large may appreciate its virtues, I cheerfully submit to you the following statement of facts; use them as you think proper.

In the Autumn of 1852, my eldest son was attacked with pain in the chest, shoulders, and side, accompanied with a very severe cough. We used every means within our power, employed the most skilful Physicians, and after their vain attempts had recourse to some of the most popular nostrums for the cure of Consumption, but all to no purpose, he gradually grew worse. In 1853 he became so feeble and emaciated as to be obliged to keep his bed, his feet and legs became swollen, perspired profusely at nights, expectorated dark fetid corruption, had chills and fever alternately, in fact, all who knew or saw him pronounced him in the last stage of consumption, and a victim for the grave. At his own request we sent for you, but without the slightest hope of receiving any benefit; still, as you flattered him with a hope, he commenced using your Balsam, and after taking some half dozen Bottles began slowly to recover, till in three months' time he was restored to perfect health. One year has elapsed since the cure was effected, and he is still hale and sound.

Ever grateful, I am, dear Sir,
Yours respectfully,
JAMES DICKENSON.

Harcourt, Bradley, & Co.,

44 MARKET ST., MANCHESTER.

The Hydromagen is a valuable discovery for protecting the feet from damp and cold, and therefore a preventative of many Lung diseases without any doctoring whatever. The Hydromagen is in the form of a sole, and worn inside the boot or shoe. Its medicated character, is a powerful antidote to disease.

For Gentlemen it will be found agreeable, warm, and healthy, to wear in the coldest or rainiest weather, as the feet cannot become wet if the Hydromagen is inserted. Ladies may wear the lightest soled boots or shoes, in the most inclement weather with impunity; while consumption, so prevalent among the young of our country may be thwarted by their general adoption They entirely supercede over-shoes, as the latter cause the feet to perspire in a very unhealthy manner; and, besides are not dangerous wear to pedestrians in icy weather, like india rubbers. While the latter cause the feet to look extremely large, the Hydromagen, being merely a thin slice of cork prepared, peculiarly placed inside, does not increase the size of the boot, or make the foot appear untidy. To children they are extremely valuable, as they may engage in exercise with comfort and healthy effects, Their expense is so slight as to scarce need mention; besides, those who patronize them will find their yearly doctor's bill much diminish thereby.

As the Hydromagen is becoming more known, its sale is increasing to an almost incredible extent. Last year in London, Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Glasgow, Leeds, Dublin, Paris, Antwerp, Hamburg, and Berlin, our sales reached 1,732,450 pairs of Cork Soles. This year the number will far surpass that.

Ask the Faculty their opinion of their value as a preventative for COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHIT'S ASTHMA, and CONSUMPTION.

☞ THE CHEST. ☜

SIR ASTLEY COOPER, BART,

THE EMINENT MEDICAL PRACTITIONER, HAS LEFT A VALUABLE LEGACY TO THE WORLD IN HIS Great Preventative of Consumption!

AND

UNFAILING CURE FOR ALL PULMONARY DISEASES, WITHOUT THE USE OF MEDICINE

Sir A. C., Bart., introduced and advised the use of the Medicated

FUR CHEST PROTECTOR

To all persons of all ages and conditions, as a certain and a safe shield against those fearful diseases, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Colds, and other afflictions of the Lungs, which rise from the exposed state of the chest, according to fashion, and the continual changes of our climate.

"The Protector" is simply a chemically prepared fur, lined with silk and padded, which, suspended from the neck, covers the chest in so agreeable a manner that, once worn, it becomes a necessity and a comfort.

"The Protector," although but recently introduced into America is making rapid progress through the United States, the Canadas, South America, and the West Indies. It has for a long time been a staple article in England and on the continent of Europe, while it has grown in many countries to a position of an article of dress.

To demonstrate these facts enquire of any English resident in your vicinity of his knowledge of the beneficial effects of wearing the Protector, WITHOUT HAVING RECOURSE TO DOCTORING of any kind. The cost of wearing these articles is a mere trifle, and one will last some years. No one who values the health of himself or his family will be without them. The Hospitals in this country are not alone recommending them, but rapidly introducing them. Harcourt, Bradley & Co., of London and Manchester, England, were originally entrusted with the manufacture of the Protectors, by the lamented Dr. Cooper, and continue to manufacture according to his original instructions, and therefore would recommend those who would wear "The Protectors," to see to their being genuine.

Remember this is a staple article and no patent medicine.

THE HYDROMAGEN,

OR WATERPROOF, ANTI-CONSUMPTIVE

CORK SOLES,

MANUFACTURED BY

HARCOURT, BRADLEY & CO.,

44 Market Street, Manchester.

Principal Warehouse, 102 Wood Street, Cheapside, London, England. American Establishments, 38 Ann Street, and 102 Nassau Street, New York, U. S.

THE HYDROMAGEN is a valuable discovery for protecting the feet from damp or cold, and therefore a preventative of many Lung diseases, without any doctoring whatever. The Hydromagen is in the form of a sole, and worn inside the boot or shoe. Its medicated character is a powerful antidote to disease.

For Gentlemen it will be found agreeable, warm, and healthy, to wear in the coldest or rainiest weather, as the foot cannot become wet if the Hydromagen is inserted. Ladies may wear the lightest soled shoes in the most inclement weather with impunity; while Consumption, so prevalent among the young of our country, may be thwarted by their general adoption. They entirely supersede over-shoes, as the latter cause the feet to perspire in a very unhealthy manner; and, besides, are not dangerous to wear, to pedestrians, in icy weather, like india rubbers. While the latter cause the feet to appear extremely large, the Hydromagen, being a mere thin slice of cork prepared, peculiarly placed inside, does not increase the size of the boot, or cause the foot to appear untidy. To Children they are extremely valuable, as they may engage in exercise with comfort and healthy effects. Their expense is so slight as to scarce need mention; besides, those who patronize them will find their yearly doctor's bill much diminished thereby.

As the Hydromagen is becoming more known, its sale is increasing to an almost unlimited extent. Last year, in London, Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Glasgow, Leeds, Dublin, Paris, Antwerp, Hamburgh, and Berlin, our sales reached 1,732,450 pairs of Cork Soles. This year the number will far surpass that.

Ask the Faculty their opinion of their value as a preventative for COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, and CONSUMPTION.

MEN'S SIZE, per pair, 35 CENTS.

BOYS' & MISSES' do. 25 do.

NOTICE.—From the Retail Prices we make a very liberal allowance to Jobbers and Wholesalers, so that any storekeeper may make a fine profit on their sale, while they are an article that may be kept in any store, among any class of goods.

THE CHEST.

SIR ASTLEY COOPER, BART., M. D.

THE EMINENT MEDICAL PRACTITIONER, HAS LEFT A VALUABLE LEGACY TO THE WORLD IN HIS

Great Preventative of Consumption,

AND

Unfailing Cure for Pulmonary Diseases,

WITHOUT THE USE OF MEDICINE.

Sir A. C. Bart., invented and advised the use of the

MEDICATED FUR CHEST PROTECTOR.

TO all persons of all ages and conditions, as a certain and a safe shield against those fearful diseases, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Colds, and other afflictions of the Lungs, which arise from the exposed state of the chest, according to fashion, and the continual changes of our climate.

"The Protecter" is simply a chemically prepared fur, lined with silk and padded, which, suspended from the neck, covers the chest in so agreeable a manner that, once worn, it becomes a necessity and a comfort.

"The Protecter," although but recently introduced into America, is making rapid progress through the United States, the Canadas, South America, and the West Indies. It has for a long time been a staple article in England and on the continent of Europe, while it has grown in many countries to the position of an article of dress.

To demonstrate these facts, enquire of any English resident in your vicinity of his knowledge of the beneficial effects of wearing the Protector, WITHOUT RECOURSE TO DOCTORING of any kind.—The cost of wearing these articles is a mere trifle, and one will last some years. No one who values the health of himself or his family will be without them. The Hospitals in this country are not alone recommending them, but rapidly introducing them. Harcourt, Bradley & Co., of London and Manchester, England, were originally entrusted with the manufacture of the Protectors, by the lamented Dr. Cooper, and continue to manufacture according to his original instructions, and therefore recommend those who would wear "The Protectors," to see to their being genuine.

Remember this is a staple article, and no patent medicine.

The great popularity which Morfat's Life Pills and Vegetable Bitters have attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular account of their medicinal virtues or properties. Suffice it to say, that they have been used in every quarter of the globe, and have established for themselves a character unknown before the public, either of a medicine or a family aperient. Three Millions of persons who have been restored to health by their use, can testify to their efficacy in the most distressing cases of indigestion, and in purifying the system renovated.
In cases of Scrofula, Dropsy, Asthma or Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Gout, Erysipelas, Liver Complaint, Fits, Female Irregularities, Piles, Fever and Ague, Consumption, Bilious Complaints, Colics, Stone, Worms, Dysentery, Head-ache, Sea Sickness, Sore Throat, Indigestion, Impurity of the Blood, Dropsy, Debility, Loss of Appetite, Nervousness, Lowness of Spirits, Coughs, Colds, Decay, Dimness of Sight, Giddiness, Languor, Drowsiness, Dizziness, Weakness, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Female Complaints, Habitual Costiveness, Inflammation, Impurities of the Blood, Fever of all kinds, Fits, Spasms, Stone and Gravel, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Limbs, Shortness of Breath, Secret Unnatural Discharges, Rheumatism, Scurvy, Dropsy, Tetter or Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Bad Legs, Bad Breasts, Piles, Coco Bay, Barbadoes Leg, Yaws, Mercurial Diseases, Fever and Ague, Fevers of all kinds, Inflammation of the Bowels, Consumption, Decay, Dimness of Sight, Nervousness, Lowness of Spirits ourse, and we are devoured by insect's of [illegible] gar description which in former da[illegible] associated with paupers, and the other[illegible] ribes belonging to the large body of the u[illegible] ressed; but in this respect the British offic[illegible] has descended from his high estate; and whe[illegible] we remember him in all the pride of gold and red cloth,it would be difficult to recognise him in the tatterred object seated by the bivouac fire, smoking his pipe contentedly and dreaming of home and happier days. That young gentleman Norval (he of the Grampian hills,) who longed to follow to the field some warlike lord, would, I suspect, be satisfied with a short trial of our work, and be glad to return to feed his father's flocks. The commissariat are at their tricks. We have been in the habit of getting our tea and sugar regularly served, which were great luxuries; but this morning they have served out green coffee-beans. How do they expect men in a campaign like this to roast and grind coffee? Of course they are thrown away. If they would serve out tobacco it would be highly appreciated by the men, as, in their present state, it is highly necessary. A great misfortune befel me the other day, having laid down to sleep for a short time my tobacco pouch was stolen out during my next sleep, a fellow officer slightly placed seven sticks of tobacco under my head, and I was myself again.

From the Times Correspondent.

October, 14th.

It is now eighteen days since our army by land and sea forced march upon Balaklava, established its magnificient position on the heights which envelope Sebastopol on the north side from the sea to the Tchernaya—eighteen days have elapsed since our troops took those heights, and in conjunction with the French troops proceeded to invest the town as elderly as its extent would allow them to perform that operation.

The public must not be indignant when they are told that, up to this moment not a British or French gun has replied to the fire of the enemy, and that the Russians have employed the interval in throwing up earthworks trenches and batteries, to cover the south side of the town, which have made it almost, if not al ogether, as formidable as the opposite side of the creek, on which the town is situated, and has gone far to neutralize the advantages we have gained by our masterly flank movement from the Belbek to Balaklava, and which promises to increase, very considerably the difficulties and dangers of the siege.

The Vienna Presse of the 24th has received from its correspondent at Odessa the following communication:

Odessa, October, 15th.

Although the Russians are protected by the hilly nature of the country where they are staying, they have made an entre-ched camp to the south-east of Bakschiserai, and as soon as more reinforcements arrive, intend forming an entrenched camp on the upper part of the Baibok river.

The Russian report expresses the hope that Sebastopol will not be easily taken by the allies, should detached works, or even the town itself fall into the hands of the enemy, this would in no wise involve the capture of the forts,

Such is Menschikoff's view who adds that the destruction of the allied army stands in prospective the moment the sirens of the Black Sea put an end to all communication with the Turkish territory.

A Letter from a Wounded Soldier.

Scutari Barracks, Constantinople Turkey.

October, 9. 185-

My dear Father and Mother,

I wrote to you on the 1st of this month: I hope you received my letter right. I hardly know what I said in it, for my side was so painful that I almost lost my memory, But my dear mother thanks be to God I am getting much better: my breast is almost healed up, and I hope, that, in a few days I shall be all right, and shall soon join my regiment again, but I am now between 300 and 400 miles from them. I do not like this place of an hospital.

There were about 2,000 wounded men, and I am sorry to say are dying very fast: it gives me the horrors when I look around my self but, dear friends, you have to join a of it. We have that men die very fast at Sebastopol that is where my regiment is. I am afraid they are suffering very much as they have got no tents, not so much as a bo th to shelter them. I assure you it gave me a tying up, hard marching; we had plenty of food served out to us, but no means of cooking it. We have got a great number of Russian soldiers here that we picked up on the battle field,—We treat them just the same as if they belonged to ourselves; poor fellows they are so pleased when we do anything for them. We do not understand their talk we make each other understand by motion. We took a Russian General. He told us he thought the English were men on the field of battle, but he said we were more like devils. He could speak English very well, but the poor man died of his wounds the other day. We have several Russian officers here prisoners they all seem very cheerful. All the inhabitants of Russia were kindly treated by the British wherever we went to, and will treat them for everything we had of them. Provisions very cheap, but we are afraid to eat, as the cholera was so bad. We have not had any vegetables since we left old England. I do not know if we shall go for winter quarters as we are into the last engagement I was not the least afraid! when the air seems [illegible] shells, and everything around [illegible] all in a blaze, and men falling on [illegible] of you, I thought no more of it than [illegible] of a field day in London. But when I got shot down, and came to myself again then I thought of home and my poor wife and I wished she had been with me.

I did not know where I was nor what was the matter with me for a few minutes. I first got on my hands and knees but could not get any higher. I then looked round myself and saw the blood running down my coat, I unbuttoned it, and squeezed my breast and the shot slipped out, but the pain was so great I almost fainted. After the battle was over one our captains came by and gave me a draught of brandy and water and that put a new life into me.

He took my kit off my back and helped me over the brow of the hill where our regiment had drove the enemy; but where I fell for about three acres round the soldiers lay as thick as sheep would in a sheep fold.

My dear mother when we left this place in June to go up the country, all the women that came out with us had to stop here and it was a wonderful meeting when we landed; some of them found their husbands all shot to pieces and some all cut to pieces, and some board trey were killed. There is a good English lady here, she sends all sorts of fruit for the wounded. We have a clergyman here who domes round to the rooms to read prayers.

You would not know me if you saw me, for I am so sunburnt.

State Elections.

The great struggle is over; and the Whigs have triumphed in all the States except New York. Anti Slavery and Temperance have carried the day in three out of four States; while New York has given an overwhelming victory against the Whigs. In this State the Know Nothings have in all probability come off victorious. The Whig candidate for Governor, Myron H. Clark, is nowhere; ditto Brownson the Hard shell candidate.—The victory lies between Seymour and Ullman (Know-Nothing) probably the former is probably elected.

The Whigs of New York are completely cheap fallen, and the Buffalo Express thus consoles himself over the disaster.

"The political storm—its fountains have been broken up—Salt river is rising, and our craft is ready for a trip up or down that delightful stream, as circumstances seem to demand. We labored zealously for the success of the Whig state ticket. We have been guilted in our efforts by considerations of political party duty, be the success of our labors [illegible] shared the [illegible] city is left to share the mortification of defeat.

IRELAND.

Mr. Trollope, son of the celebrated novelist, and who for so many years was connected with the Post-office department in Cork, has been appointed surveyor of Belfast Post-office district.

The great county demonstration of Kilkenny in support of tenant right took place on Sunday at Callan.

The Earl of Dungarvin has purchased Mr. Bland's island, near Sneem, county Kerry, on which he intends to erect a marine castle.

The Nation announces that the "Catholic University" was to be opened on Friday the 3rd, without any ceremonial, in the absence of Archbishop Cullen, who has left for Rome; but that at the close of the session, the form of conferring degrees and honours by virtue of a bull to be obtained from the Pope would most probably be gone through.

Mr. Sergeant O'Brien was, on Saturday last, elected M.P. for Limerick, in place of Mr. Potter, deceased. There was no contest.

An official communication has been received by the Registrar of Queen's College, Belfast, to the effect that students of the Queen's College who have taken the degree of A. B. at the Queen's University, in Ireland, will be admitted as candidates for orders in the church of England and Ireland, after an attendance of one year at St. Aidan's College, Birkenhead, which is under the direction of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Cork was visited by a severe storm from the south on Friday night, the 27th ult. Several houses were stripped of the slates, a few chimneys were blown down, and an old house tenanted by several poor people was entirely demolished, a boy, aged 14 years, being killed by the catastrophe. The river was flooded to a great extent.

Private David Shaw, 92nd Highlanders, the confessed murderer of several Americans, and who was to be discharged from the service with ignominy at the expiration of the sentence awarded him by a court-martial, is to be retained in custody, in the gaol at Belfast, till the result of the investigation of the facts of the case by the American consul shall have been made known.

A marriage is on the tapis between John Irwine Whitty, Esq., LL.D., civil engineer, of Henrietta Street, Dublin, and the Countess Adelaide de Losina. The Ven. Archdeacon Whitty, of Kilfenora, is to perform the happy ceremony.

The Belfast papers describe several casualties along the northern coast, caused by the gale of Friday night and Saturday morning.

The Killaloe fly-boat, which leaves Limerick daily for Killaloe, sunk on Wednesday last near O'Brien's bridge, where the passengers escaped in shallow water. The bottom literally fell out of the boat, without previous warning.

The Belfast Mercantile Journal says that there appears to be a deficient stock of foreign wheat all over Ireland, and that the stocks of Indian corn, which were tolerably heavy a few mon ths since, have since been materially reduced.

The Rev. Father Keefe, Mr. Sergeant Shee's great clerical antagonist, has been forbidden by ecclesiastical authority henceforward to take any part whatever in political affairs. An appeal is to be made to the holy see against this decision of Dr. Walsh, the Roman Catholic bishop.

DEADLY SCENE.—A Roman Catholic priest, one of the "Redemptorist Fathers," was lecturing to a crowded assemblage in South Parish Chapel, Cork, on Wednesday the 25th ult., when a sudden crash was heard, occasioned by the breaking of a form on which persons were standing. A cry was raised that the galleries of the chapel were falling, a tremendous rush to the doors took place, and many persons received very serious injuries by being trampled under foot by those behind them. Ten persons, who had been nearly suffocated and otherwise hurt, were carried to the South Infirmary.

Mr. Smith O'Brien.—Among the passengers between Malta and Gibraltar by the Candia, which has just arrived from the Indian mail, was Mr. Smith O'Brien, returned from transportation. He arrived from Australia via Madras. He was a first-class passenger on board the Candia, and entered into familiar conversation with those on board on every topic except politics. He looked careworn. He was obliged to leave the Candia at Gibraltar, as he was prohibited by terms of his pardon from visiting the United Kingdom. It was believed that he purposed visiting some part of Italy. He appeared sad on leaving the steamer: and, while wishing good bye to those who were bound for England, he remarked that he scarcely knew what countryman to call himself.

The ribband of the order of St. Patrick, vacant by the death of Lord Ormonde, has, it appears, been offered to the Marquis of Londonderry, and declined. The Northern Whig which makes this announcement, "is not aware of the reason that induced his lordship to refuse this distinguishing honor," and truly adds, that "it could not have been conferred upon a more popular Irish nobleman."

It is said that there are now upwards of twenty ladies belonging to religious orders in various parts of Ireland assembled in Dublin preparatory to departure on their mission to the seat of war. Among them are two sisters of Mr. G. O. Higgins, one of the members for Mayo.

Agriculture.

STORING POTATOES.

The following results obtained by my plan of storing may prove useful. 1. Twelve sackfuls of potatoes, lifted October 25th, 1853, stored with lime being placed in small bundles in the middle of each sack. Tubers all preserved, whereas some of the same potatoes, stored without lime, were much affected. 2. Fifty bushels of potatoes, dug up towards the end of October, were pitted with three bushels of quick lime, the latter being placed at the bottom of the pit, and covered over with a thick layer of grass. On opening the pit it was found that the diseased tubers did not amount to more than two dozen. Tubers stored in the ordinary way, in pits without lime, were almost entirely destroyed by disease. 3. 4. 5. Potatoes stored with and without lime quite untouched by the disease. 6. Roots stored in a large chest or box with lime, and the latter being placed in a small clothes basket, and covered over with faggots. On opening the box the tubers were found quite healthy, while some that had been kept in the cellar without lime, were much diseased. 7. Twenty bushels of the tubers were placed in a large bin with three bushels of lime, the latter forming a stratum at the bottom, and covered over with a thick layer of coarse cinders. At the end of three months the roots were found to be quite sound, while another lot which had been put into another bin without lime were very much diseased. 8. Potatoes housed in sacks, one or two large lumps being put into each sack. Tubers quite dry, and all preserved. 9. Potatoes first dried by exposure on a gravel walk to the heat of the sun, and then stored away in large boxes with lime, all healthy. Tubers housed in their natural condition became diseased. 10. Potatoes housed with lime, all healthy. 11. Same result. 12. Several bushels of potatoes were pitted with lime, and when examined, at the expiration of several months, were found to remain untouced by the disease. Roots pitted without lime became quite rotten. 13. Two or three hundred bushels of potatoes were divided into four equal lots.—Three of these were pitted with lime, the other in the ordinary way. In the first of the three lots stored with lime, the lime was placed at the bottom of the pit, with the proper precautions; in the second it was thrown into a conical heap in the centre of the tubers; and in the third and last, it was placed on the top of the potatoes, being separated from the latter by a layer of brushwood &c. On examining the tubers at the end of some months those in the first pit were found to be much diseased, while those contained in the other three were nearly healthy. "The best result," says this correspondent, "I am disposed to think was obtained by placing the lime on the top of the tubers, and this is the plan I intend to follow.—Gardener's Chronicle.

Variety of Food Necessary.

It is in vegetable as in animal life; a mother crams her child exclusively with arrow-root—it becomes fat, truly, but alas! it is rickety, and gets its teeth very slowly and with difficulty. Mamma is ignorant, or never thinks, that her off-spring cannot make bone—or, what is the same thing, phosphate of lime, the principle bulk of bone, out of starch. It does its best: and were it not for a little milk and bread, perhaps now and then a little meat and soup, it would have no bones and teeth at all. Farmers keep poultry; and what is true of fowls is true of cabbage, a turnip, or an ear of wheat. If we mix with the food of fowls a sufficient quantity of egg-shells or chalk, which they eat greedily, they will lay many [illegible] before. A well bred fowl is disposed to lay a vast number of eggs but cannot do so without the materials for the shell, however nourishing in other respects her food may be. A fowl with the best will in the world, not finding any lime in the soil, nor mortar from walls, nor calcarous matter in her food, is incapacitated from laying any eggs at all. Let farmers lay such facts as these, which are matters of common observation to heart, and transfer the analogy, as they may do, to the habits of plants which which are as truly alive, and answer as closely to every injudicious treatment, as their own horse.

How to Keep Fat Stock.—Good hay is not only the basis of fattening, if you feed in winter, but all you need for wintering stock which is in good order in the fall. A skilful farmer can make healthy cattle grow all winter by taxing his ingenuity to see how much good hay he can manage to get them to eat; and this is the great secret of keeping stock. He who attempts the experiment as very many do, of trying to winter cattle on the least possible quantity of hay, will find himself, in the end, in very much the condition of the economist who tried to see with how little the salt he could winter his pork. When warm weather came, however, to his great astonishment he had not only lost his salt, but his pork.

Provincial.

The World's Exhibition at Paris.

The committee appointed at the meeting of the commissioners, held on the 31st ult., report, that, in order to secure a successful representation of the Province of Canada at the Exhibition, authority should be given to the Commissioners to purchase such articles as they deem essential to that object. They also express the opinion that any attempt to reduce voluntary efforts, by means of local fairs, would be fruitless. The likewise recommend the appointment of an Executive Committee, to be composed of twenty-one members, fifteen of whom should be in a position to give their attendance at Quebec: two resident at or near Montreal; the remainder to be gentlemen specially connected with the industrial resources of Upper Canada; and they further make the following recommendations:

While the committee are of opinion that it is unnecessary for them to enter into any detailed exhibition of their views regarding the Executive Committee, which can best be determined by that body after appointment, they desire to call especial attention to the importance of securing the publication of a work fully illustrative of the Province of Canada in its various points of view, to be accompanied by a map, exhibiting the geographical features of the country, and having a table showing the several routes to the great fields of emigration on this continent, the continent, the cost of transport, &c—such work to be distributed gratuitously at the Exhibition, and to be published in the English, French and German languages, for circulation in different parts of Europe.

They suggest, for the consideration of the Executive, that competition should be invited for such work, by the offer of one or more adequate prizes.

It has not fallen within the province of this committee to enter into the consideration of the means which will be required to effect the objects contemplated by the commission.

They entertain no doubt, however, that such a sum as will suffice to carry out efficiently the plan which they have suggested above, will be expended to the advantage and to the best interests of the Province.

The executive committee is composed of the following gentlemen:

The Honorables T. McKay, N. F. Belleau F. Hincks, and J. Young; and Messrs. Gamble, Langton, Cartier, Tache, Stevenson, Brown, Rhodes, and Dorion, M. P. P.'s; Sir Cusack Roney, Mr. Street, Mr. E. W. Thomson, Mr. Hallowell, Mr. Archambault, Assomption, Mr. Matthie, Mr. Legare, Artist, Mr. R. L. Dennison and Mr. Leeming.

The committee made the following recommendations in their report:

That Local Committees be organized in the chief towns of each county in Upper and Lower Canada, and that they should consist of all members of either branch of the Legislature, all members of the commission latterly appointed by His Excellency the Governor General, all Wardens, Mayors, Reeves, the Professors of Incorporated Colleges, the Presidents and Secretaries of Agricultural Societies, and Presidents of Mechanics' Institutes or other scientific bodies. The committees should have power to add to their number, and it is hoped that in each locality some one or more of the classes indicated will at once organize a local committee, the secretary of which should put himself into communication with the Secretary of the executive committee, and give him all the information in his power as to the employment of the people in his locality. Where any special manufacture is carried on, it should be noticed, and accompanied with any propositions which may be made for its illustration.

For reasons which will be explained elsewhere, it is proposed that at Montreal and Toronto there should be central local committees, and as the duties of these committees will be much more laborious and responsible, they should be organised in a different manner.

It is proposed that until further arrangements can be made, the resident members of the executive committee should correspond with the secretary, and that they should submit, with as little delay as possible, the names of such gentlemen as may be eligible for serving on the central committees.

The committee being of opinion that voluntary effort is not to be relied on, have obtained the sanction of the commissioners to the principle of paying for all articles sent to the Paris Exhibition, but at the same time they propose that the contributors should receive all prizes or honors which may be awarded to the articles sent by them, and recommend that all who have received prizes or honorable mention at the London Exhibition in 1851, or the New York Exhibition of 1853, and all who have received first prizes at either of the Provincial Exhibitions of Upper and Lower Canada in 1853 and 1854, should be invited to send propositions to the Local Committees stating whether they will send specimens of their products and manufactures for Exhibition to Montreal or Toronto, on or before 1st February next, payment to be made for such articles at the fair wholesale market price, to be decided in case of dispute by the judges at the local exhibition.

The whole public are invited to compete at the local exhibitions, at Montreal and Toronto, and any successful competitor will have his contribution purchased on the same terms as those furnished by the classes already described. The Executive Committee do not bind themselves to send to the Paris Exhibition any of the articles which they engage to purchase. They must be guided by circumstances such as the extent of the contribution, the quantity of space allotted, &c. The articles not sent, will of course, be resold on account of the commission. It is recommended that all the contributions be sent to to Montreal or Toronto, where they will be delivered free of expense to the central committee at each place, and exhibited to the public at a small admission price. Jurors will be appointed to aid the committee in determining on the articles to be sent to Paris, but no prizes will be awarded.

The following is the circular to be addressed to each person who has gained a prize at the London or New York Exhibitions:

Sir,—I have the honor to enclose a copy of the report of the executive committee of the commission appointed to secure a representation of Canadian Industry at the Great Paris Exhibition to be held next year; and as under the regulations which have been adopted, you are entitled to become a contributor, I have to request that you will, with as little delay as possible, furnish me with the following information:

1st. Whether you will undertake to be a contributor on the condition of delivering your contributions at Montreal or Toronto on or before the 1st of February next, to be paid therefor at the market value.

2nd. What you would propose to contribute in order to illustrate your particular branch of industry as efficiently as possible, and what department of that branch you especially excel in. The object of this enquiry is that, in case several manufacturers or mechanics in the same branch may be contributors, each should have assigned to him the especial department in which he most excels.

3rd. Furnish an estimate of the probable cost of each article delivered at Montreal or Toronto.

You will please head your proposition thus

Proposition of A. B. to contribute to class ——, to sub-committee.

You will see, by reference to the Appendix to the report, the number of the class and of the sub-committee having charge of that class.

Railroad Meeting.

In accordance with the Requisition addressed to H. Glass, Esq., Warden of the County, and with the notice issued by him thereon, a public meeting of the inhabitants of the county was held in the court house, on Monday, the 6th inst., at 3 o'clock, p.m. for the purpose of taking into consideration the aspect of Railroad matters, in so far as the inhabitants of this county are concerned.

On motion, H. Glass, Esq., was called to the chair—and J. R. Gemmill appointed secretary.

The chairman then explained the nature of the meeting, and the authority by which it had been called.

The following Resolutions were then introduced and carried unanimously:

1. Moved by George Hyde, Esq., seconded by W. P. Vidal, Esq., and Resolved—"That the early extension of the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railways to Port Sarnia, is essential to the completeness of both, while their completion would, at the same time, only be the realization of the well grounded expectations of the inhabitants of this county, through which it has been understood both were designed to pass."

Captain Hyde, in moving this Resolution, made a few exceedingly pertinent remarks, shewing the vast utility which one, or both of these lines would be to the county, and animadverting upon the dilatory and procrastinating policy which had been pursued by both companies, in reference to the matter, and of which the inhabitants of the county had good reason to complain.

2. Moved by Capt. Wright, seconded by Wm. Carrick, Esq., and Resolved—"That the people of this part of the Province, knowing that these companies have been for years past empowered by the Provincial Parliament to extend their respective lines to Port Sarnia, and believing that both companies intended to avail themselves of the rights and privileges conferred upon them in this respect now learn, with deep regret, that the said companies have mutually agreed either totally to abandon such extension, or to postpone the same indefinitely."

3. Moved by J. P. Davis, Esq., seconded by Froome Talfourd, Esq., and Resolved,—"That this meeting do petition the Provincial Parliament to charter a company, independent of either the Grand Trunk or Great Western Companies, with power to construct a line of Railway to intersect either or both of these lines, at a proper point or points, on fair and just terms of connection,—unless these companies will guarantee the completion of their respective lines within a given time."

Mr. Davis, on moving this Resolution entered at some length upon the history of the G. W. Railway Company—the different charters and extensions of privileges which had from time to time been granted to it, and the dallying and deceitful policy which the company had latterly adopted. He did not believe they had any serious intention of extending their line to this place, at the time they commenced to work upon it, but that the main object was, either to induce the G. T. Co. to give up action altogether in reference to that line, or to induce said company to buy up the interest of the G. W. Co., out and out. The G. W. Co. have never moved an inch in carrying out the intention of the charter, till the G. T. began to take action in the matter; and then there was a bit of show-off got up for the purpose of decoying their opponents into an arrangement.—Now, it was indeed said—an arrangement had been made between them, but of what nature, they both took especial care to keep secret. It what therefore only right that they should be brought to account, and if they decline going on with the work, let them step aside and make way for a company that will fulfil the original intention. We have already waited long enough—been too long tampered with—and he had good reason to believe that if an independent company were chetered, there would be no difficulty in procuring the necessary funds to construct the work forthwith. A charter of incorporation was, however, in the first place necessary, and the adoption of measures to procure this, was the principal object of the meeting; he therefore recommended the immediate adoption of resolutions, and a petition to the Provincial Parliament, on the subject.

5. Moved by James Flintoft, Esq., seconded by Mr. Geo. Stevenson, and Resolved—That the following petition to the Legislative Assembly be adopted by this meeting, and transmitted without delay to the proper quarter, viz:

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada, in Parliament Assembled:

The memorial of the inhabitants of the County of Lambton—Respectfully Sheweth:

That about seventeen years ago the Great Western Railway Company applied for, and obtained authority from Parliament, to construct a branch Railway connecting Port Sarnia with their main line; and that the said Company have, ever since that time, continually opposed the granting of a charter, authorizing any other party to build a road over any part of the country lying between London and the St. Clair river, on the ground that the granting of such charter would interfere with its vested rights.

That about three years ago the G. T. Co. obtained authority from Parliament to extend the Toronto and Guelph Railway to Port Sarnia.

That the G. W. Co. never did anything towards the making of their line to Sarnia, until the G. T. succeeded in getting the above right: That some time after that event, both of said companies proceeded to make their respective surveys—obtained the rights of way—and otherwise evinced their intention of proceeding with the construction of their respective lines; and your Memorialists, after long and patient expectation relieved that this fine portion of the Province would soon have the benefit of Railway communication. But, to their extreme disappointment and regret, they were informed some months ago, that these two companies had mutually agreed to suspend all work on said roads until after the month of January, A. A. 1856; and they were also informed that the said Companies have further mutually agreed to unite in opposing any application by other parties, for an independent charter to make a Railroad over that part of the country.

Your memorialists consider the suspension, by said companies, as a breach of faith with the country, and as deeply injurious to the best interests of this part of Canada.

Your memorialists are given to understand that said companies are each of them making applications to Parliament for relief, and for extended powers respectively; at the same time that your memorialists are unwilling to do any act hostile to either of those enterprises, they cannot help feeling that, after their having patiently submitted for such a length of time to the want of a Railway, in the hope that these two great companies would faithfully carry out their implied engagements to construct their respective lines as inferred from their applications to, and grants from the Legislature, your memorialists must, in self-defence, appeal to Parliament, as the only court which has the power to afford your memorialists relief.

Your memorialists therefore, while protesting that they are not actuated by any feeling of hostility to those companies, most respectfully pray that no further extension of power be granted by Parliament to either of said companies, unless upon a guaranty that they will complete their respective lines within a specified and reasonable time. And in case they fail in giving such guaranty, that such failure be considered as an abandonment of their respective charters to that extent; and that a charter be given to an independent company, to construct such lines, with such other relief as to your Honorable House may seem meet to be extended to this part of Canada, in the premises; and your memorialists will, as in duty bound, ever pray.

Dated at Port Sarnia, in the county of Lambton, this sixth day of November, A.D. 1854, and signed on behalf of the inhabitants of said county, at a public meeting assembled, by the chairman and secretary of said meeting.

6. Moved by P. T. Poussett, Esq., seconded by Dr. Bucke, and

Resolved,—"That the following gentlemen be appointed a committee for carrying out the objects of this meeting, (five to form a quorum) namely: W. Carrick, A. Fisher, J. Porter, J. F. Davis, Geo. Hyde, H. Glass, P. T. Poussett, Geo. Stevenson, John Mackenzie, F. Talfourd, A. Vidal, Robert Sym, Co'. Wright, J. R. Gemmill, J. D. Eccles, W. Watson, (Brooke,) A. P. Toulmin, J. H. Johnson, H. M. Carroll, (Warwick,) Nah. Eastman, Wm. Boylan, and J. Dobbyn, Esquires."

A vote of thanks having been given to the chairman for his able conduct in the chair—it was moved that the proceedings of the meeting be published—after which, the meeting adjourned.

HENRY GLASS, Chairman.
J. R. GEMMILL, Secretary.

TO THE PUBLIC

Parties interested in the Banking Office of Hiram Johnson, and the Farmers' Joint Stock Banking Co., are hereby notified that N. Case and James Wadsworth have agreed to accept the Trust necessary for a final adjustment of the affairs of these Institutions, and that the entire assests of the same, with ample Real Estate for the satisfaction of every claim, will be placed in their hands as soon as the requisite papers can be prepared for that purpose.

All Creditors will receive early notice from the Trustees when their several claims can be presented.

The Bank of Circleville, Ohio.
The Exchange Bank of Buffalo N. Y
The Canal Bank, Cleaveland Ohio
The Woodbury Bank, Woodbury Con thrown out at the Suffolk Bank.

Seven more Indiana Banks under protest, viz:—

Wayne Bank, Logansport, State Stock Bank of Indiana, Peru, Upper Wabash Bank, Wabash, Perry County Bank, Canton, Steuben County Bank, Angola, Traders' Bank, Terre Haute, Great Western Bank.

Matters look gloomily, and failures continue. The Western Banks continue to be in a very ricketty condition. The excitement in Cincinnati, consequent on the recent failures, is very great, as the following will show:

Cincinnati, Nov., 15.

The closing of the Mechanics' and Traders' Bank has caused an increase to the excitement already prevailing here, and commercial matters are now worse than ever. Gold is eight per cent. premium, and there is a large amount of money offering outside, in small lots, by parties who are afraid to hold it, and more relief is found in this way than when the funds were in the bankers' hands. The proposal to re-having failed, we are now near the end of our difficulties it is to be hoped.

The notes of the Mechanic's and Traders' Bank are received on deposit, the other branches of the State Bank being bound for their redemption.

The Mechanics' and Traders' Bank of this city, a branch of the State Bank of Ohio failed this morning.

The house went into committee on the 20th clause of the Grand Trunk Railway bill, and after a long debate rose and reported progress at 2 o'clock this morning.

Speech of the Hon. J. F. Cameron, in Parliament, on the Clergy Reserves.

Hon. Mr. Cameron said, at the beginning of the Session he had an opportunity of expressing his sentiments on the subject of the Clergy Reserve secularization, and on that occasion he went at considerable length into the circumstances connected with the Reserves and their history, from the time of the act of 1791 down to the present hour. The second reading of the bill having been carried by a large majority, and the principle of secularization having been thereby confirmed, it was his intention to move such instructions to the committee as would recognize some right and principle on the part of the Legislature, with regard to those churches whose patrimony they were now about to take away. The first of those instructions was, that certain words in this bill should be struck out; words which he could hardly understand how the honorable gentlemen on the treasury benches could have ever allowed to have been introduced into their measure. He alluded to the words "that it was desirable to remove all semblance of connection between Church and State." The introduction of these words appeared to him to have taken place with the view of depriving the country, as it were, of its religious character, and to proclaim aloud to the people that there is no act of necessity for Christian education and religion out of land, but which he held it to be the duty of the Legislature to inculcate. He would therefore move that those words be struck out, and there must be many honorable gentlemen from Lower Canada who thought with him. In the debate which took place a few nights previous upon the subject of "Religious Holidays," the honorable gentlemen on the treasury benches, they believed, had to be their opinion that such holidays were originally intended to be set by the Church and State, and yet now, to his surprise, him and others turned round and held that the words which he (Mr. C.) moves to strike out, should be introduced in this bill. It really seemed to him to be depriving the community of all religious character, and which is made worse by the Legislature now declaring, that they do not desire any semblance between Church and State to remain. The Constitutional Act of 1791 gave to the Legislature of Canada, under certain restrictions, power to vary and repeal, from time to time, as they may think proper, the provisions contained in that statute, which appropriated these lands for the support and maintenance of a Protestant clergy in all time to come. Another act was passed in England, in the reign of George IV., providing for the sale of 600,000 acres of the Clergy Reserves, and in that statute, as well as in the former one, the lands were declared to the same particular purposes. In the 3rd and 4th Victoria, cap. 7, the act under which the reserves had been lately administered, the same objects were found kept in view with regard to the persons who would be entitled to the funds. He wished to call attention to the second resolution of his amendment. He (Mr. C.) would not hesitate to declare that according to the 7th and 8th of Geo. IV. cap. 62, appropriating the 600,000 acres, this Legislature had not the power to deal with one penny of their proceeds, and that there was not a provision of that act repealed; the act of the Imperial Parliament, passed last session, which gave to this Legislature the power to deal with this property, referred to the 41st of 3rd and 4th Vict., cap. 78, but it did not repeal one clause of 7th and 8th Geo. IV, cap. 62. Therefore his first resolution provided, that the lands which have been sold and appropriated under that statute, shall continue to be distributed in the manner directed, namely, two-thirds to the Church of England, and one-third to the Church of Scotland, and that was the principle embodied in his second resolution which could be taken up and acted upon, and it was entirely different from anything contained in the commutation scheme of the administration. The third resolution had reference to the lands sold under the 3rd and 4th Victoria, cap. 78, and any change which the Legislature might make from the original appropriation would be a great infraction of wrong upon the country. Therefore, the position which he assumed was that the proceeds which have been invested of the 600,000 acres, under the act of George IV., cap. 62, should remain and be distributed as heretofore, and that those lands sold under the act of 3rd and 4th Vict. cap. 78, also should be placed precisely in the same position, leaving the government to deal with the instalments, rents &c., which have not been paid, and with the million of acres which remain, no part of which have been sold, and which he (Mr. C.) thought would be much more than sufficient to divide among the municipalities and to apply for the purposes of general education, without taking from the churches and religious bodies the small pittances which they receive. Under the act of 1791, no power was given to the Legislature to deal with any of these lands other than in the way prescribed. The moment that these lands were sold, and the proceeds invested for the purposes specified, the power of the Legislature ceased, and they could not vary, repeal, or make any appropriation of those funds. There could be no application made to them, except that directed by the statute, namely, for the support and maintenance of a Protestant clergy in the province in which the reserves are situated, and for no other purpose whatever. In the 7th and 8th, George IV., cap. 62, precisely the same or even stronger words were made use of than appear in the act of 1791. In the 3rd and 4th Victoria, cap. 78, the same language is used, and also in the statute passed during the last session of Parliament. The last imperial act which gave to the Legislature power to deal with the reserves did not refer to the act 7th and 8th, George IV, chap. 62; and the proceeds of lands sold under that statute could not therefore be touched. He He (Mr. C.) contended that there is no provision of law to enable the Legislature to deal with those lands sold under the act of 7 and 8, George IV., chap. 78, and that the provisions of that act remain intact. He would therefore move that the dispositions of the property under that act should be kept up as they were before, namely, two-thirds to the Church of England, and one-third to the Church of Scotland. When honorable gentlemen of the Roman Catholic Church in that house told him that that which had been appropriated for religion should not be secularized or touched by the hands of the profane, he would ask them to remember that those lands are already sold, the proceeds are invested, and the British Parliament has said that they shall be reserved for the purpose of supporting and maintaining a Protestant clergy in Canada; and he would tell those gentlemen who thus exclaimed about as they valued their own church, not to deal with the Protestant Church in a different spirit to what they would be dealt with themselves. The parties in favour of whom these provisions were made had rights given to them by an act of parliament, and they conscientiously believed that the proceeds of the lands ought lawfully to be applied for the maintenance of religious faith and worship; and they called upon the Roman Catholics, by all that was dear to them in their faith and religion, not to interfere with them (the parties to whom the rights were given) by opposing the substances of that which he (Mr. C.) had set forth in the instructions which he intended for the committee to consider. The secularisers had said that they knew the condition of the Church of England better than the Church did. The Church was no doubt obliged to them for that. He would like to know how the poor clergymen down at Gaspe and the Magdalen Islands were to be supported if the pittance given to the Church of England were taken away. A certain member the other night in the house said that the clergy of the Church of England were fattening on corruption. Fattening on corruption, indeed! fattening upon the pittance of £170 a year. Why he (Mr. C.) would unhesitatingly assert, that there was more corruption in one day's existence in the government, than in a hundred years of all the clergy. And it was from those God-fearing, self-denying men that the secularisers would take away their small pittance, their largest income being £170 a year. The Church of England held that their clergy were entitled to

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

This stupendous work, admirably calculated, if it had been pushed through to a vigorous conclusion, to excite the admiration of the world, seems destined to "drag its slow length along" if not to be consigned to utter oblivion. Incensed at the unnecessary delay on the part of the Grand Trunk company in continuing the Provincial through line to Port Sarnia, and at the neglect of the Great Western company to carry on to completion their branch to that point; the inhabitants of that place have already taken steps to secure another road altogether independent of either the Grand Trunk or the Great Western. The Resolutions passed at a meeting held for that purpose in Port Sarnia, are to be found in another column. The enterprising inhabitants of that rising town deserve great praise for their spirited proceedings. The country at large and the inhabitants of Port Sarnia in particular, were led to believe that a railroad would have been completed to that western extremity of our province before the present time; but all have been doomed to disappointment. Great preparations were made to push on, apparently, both lines, and much rivalry even at one time, existed between the two companies. Survey's were made in various directions, spots were examined for the requisite buildings, various routes were "underbrushed" in the woods, and on one line the timber was cut away and the ground logged, and the grading, also, was actually commenced. Promise upon promise was made, and that too almost officially, for the Hon. Malcolm Cameron boldly declared, both at the time of and after his land sale, that the two lines would be speedily finished to that point. In view of this apparently certain arrangement, the inhabitants of that section of country purchased village property to a large extent, and entered into arrangements by building, &c., to extend their business to a degree which the usual state of things would by no means justify. After waiting patiently for a considerable length of time, it was discovered that the Great Western were slackening their operations, and finally that a total cessation of proceedings took place altogether upon that important branch. Intimation was then given that in all probability the two lines would unite and that they would together complete one route which would receive the combined traffic of the eastern portions of the Grand Trunk and the Great Western lines. After another tedious period of "slumbering and sleeping" it was rumored that both roads would stand in abeyance until such times as it might suit the caprice or interests of the companies, the interests of the public being completely disregarded, to push on their promised undertakings. A railroad is much needed for that section of country, the local influence of Detroit and of the inhabitants at the South should not be permitted to deprive the people of this promised improvement, nor should any company be allowed to monopolize travel, to the injury of any section, by abandoning a line or part of a line which incorporated or recognized in their charter. Determined to suffer no longer from the delay of these companies, the people of Port Sarnia are now attempting to build a road themselves, and we should not be surprised if they should manage to do so in a much shorter period than the two companies in question have taken to survey and locate their respective lines. In the mean time our Sarnia friends have doubtless discovered that it has been formally announced by Mr. Hincks in the House that the Sarnia route has been abandoned for five years! Murder! "what a falling off is there." Nor is this all but hints, terrible and significant, were given by the same authority that the entire line will be carefully left to "ruin and decay" unless the Provincial Parliament render "immediately available" the whole of the aid which it promised! Think of that ye land speculators and house speculators of Port Sarnia, and bestir yourselves accordingly! We cannot for a moment, however, imagine that the Great Western Company will give up the early completion of their branch to the foot of the lake. Treaty with the Grand Trunk is now out of the question; that company, it seems, may be considered indeed very near its dissolution; for the government will meet its widest wishes, is utterly out of the question. This Grand Trunk affair has been blown up into an immense bubble, it has glittered and appeared beautiful in the sunshine of prosperity; but the first breath of adversity in the shape of stringency in money matters, which has struck it seems likely to scatter it to the four winds of heaven. The whole of this mammoth business has been badly managed. Amounts of almost incredible value of the people's money have been expended in long harangues, and in devising and carrying into detail plans for accomplishing the work; the government identified itself with the company and the faith of the country was thus pledged to its execution; offices were opened in all parts of the province; the most gigantic contracts were formed; and a good deal of superfluous conduct, withal, exhibited towards other companies; the most noted English Railroad contractors were obtained and furnished with most excellent chances of making money, and everything done which "the pomp and circumstance" of official influence could effect; and then, after all this parade, expense and useless excitement, Mr. Hincks, the chief performer in this absurd drama coolly informs the house a large portion of the route must at any rate stand in abeyance for five years, and that the whole will probably have to stop unless every iota of the governmental aid be immediately extended! The whole of this disgraceful business is fraught with instruction, and will doubtless serve as a warning to us of Canada in all future time. It is evident that a work of such magnitude as the Grand Trunk Line should not hastily be taken in hand. Nothing of the kind should be done without the hearty co-operation of the people—the great mass of intelligent business men. These know the wants of the Province, and will ever be found ready to aid in carrying out any improvement of moment and importance. For the government to dabble in affairs of the kind before they have been duly petitioned and requested so to do by the country generally, or the section of country immediately interested in the undertaking, is to open up the way to all sorts of jobbery, and personal intrigue, and to render it a political monopoly. Again much injury may be done by assuming responsibility, where there have not been the closest calculations made with regard to the capability of the party sought to be secured, as to competency and safety. In the case before us, to what has the Government became pledged? To, apparently a mere ens et preterea nihil, a mere name, a shadow! A company seeking and obtaining the security of the Province, stopping their work for five years and talking of abandoning their undertaking altogether, is preposterous to an extreme. In short the people themselves are abundantly able to build their own railroads, with such extraneous assistance as well directed enterprise will always receive, without Governmental security or Government paid officers to oversee the details of their business. Hungry speculators and greedy office seekers swarm like bees around governmental officials who have works of vast magnitude under their control, and the flood gates of Corruption and political intrigue are at once thrown open. Let the government foster enterprise and secure the public from the imposition and unchecked monopolies of incorporated companies, and as the wants of the country increase, railroads and every other improvement will be pushed vigorously forward; and we shall be saved the humiliation of having begun to build, and not as a country being able to finish. If the whole of the undertaking of the Grand Trunk should fall at once into the hands of our people, every requisite section of that undertaking would be completed at an early period, with a saving to the province of all the expense attending treaties with "high contracting" English houses, and hungry governmental officials.

NORMAL SCHOOL.—We clip the following from our contemporary the church:

CHURCH NORMAL AND MODEL SCHOOL.

We are gratified to learn that a Normal and Model School has been opened in London, C. W., under the supervision of the Rev. M. M. Dillon, with the sanction of his Lordship the Bishop of Toronto. The preparations are complete for the reception of young persons of either sex to be trained as School Teachers, without any charge except for such books as they may require; and these will be furnished at a very reduced price. Mr. Ballantyne, under whose superintendance the whole will be carried on, is eminently qualified for the task, which out of pure love he has undertaken.

No doubt a school of the kind mentioned above would be a most excellent establishment and if rightly conducted would be productive of much good. We should like to understand more about it. Our old friend Mr. Dillon would, doubtless, be eminently successful in an undertaking of this kind; his indefatigable industry and perseverance rendering him admirably fit for grasping and overcoming any difficulties which, in such an arduous undertaking, might stand in the way.

THE GREAT WESTERN.

It is our sincere desire to aid and assist this company in carrying on their operations, both on account of the road being a bona fide Canadian work, and also because the public generally are greatly benefitted by well-conducted railroad lines. At the same time we shall always fearlessly condemn any course pursued by that company which is calculated to endanger the public safety, or to cause unnecessary inconvenience to travellers. For some length of time the enterprise of the company was praiseworthy, and they reaped a rich harvest of satisfaction and reward; it must be admitted, however, that the enterprise has not kept pace with the support which has been extended to them; and that the Americans, whom we of Canada were always apt and accustomed to blame for lethargicality and carelessness in railroad and steamboat matters, have had too much cause for crowding their columns with articles headed perhaps in flaring characters, "The Greatest Railroad Massacre in America on the Great Western of Canada"; or for stating "the Canadian road is the worst managed line in America." It cannot be concealed, whatever paid writers may state to the contrary, that there is in Canada, to go no further, very much dissatisfaction experienced relative to the Great Western; and it is evident that the only way to restore the company to that state of popularity which it deserves is to exhibit careful and good management both in reference to the safety of travellers and to general enterprise. We insert the following remarks from the Hamilton Journal and Express upon the subject of advertising. The company owe it both to the press and to the public to patronize the journals of the country through which their line passes. Many of the papers who now, from a condemnable and protracted policy, are neglected in reference to business matters, in the time of the company's prosperity fought hard for its interests for years, many of them, indeed, long after it was, through unexpected delay, pronounced a "great humbug." By withdrawing their advertisements relative to time-tables and necessary information affecting the public, the Great Western Company do not exhibit the spirit of the age, or the enterprise of hard-working mechanics! It is due to the public that the company's time-tables should be published in the old leading papers of the province, at any rate; nor should the number of papers generally be small that they should select to convey a statement of their arrangements to settlers remote and distant. A company driving a business exceedingly complicated and extensive deserves great consideration and forbearance from the public and from journalists, providing that company is using all the means within its power to accommodate and to meet the wants of the community, but if a sordid, grasping, contracted, apathetic, or reckless spirit be cherished by that company censure becomes a duty and want of confidence a natural event. This "take-out-or-advertisement" spirit is desperately contemptible, and proves a disposition which might thus be expressed—"If the public don't know our arrangements let them go down to our office and find them out, and be thankful that we let them travel at all"! Query—Will Canadians allow such condemnable inattention and carelessness long to exist?

"But of all the mistakes which have been made we can hardly conceive of one more serious or more silly than the discontinuance of advertising the time of the arrival and departure of trains. This is certainly the last point at which we ever heard of a railway company, or in fact any business party, commencing retrenchment. The sagacious managers of one of the greatest lines of railway in America have decided not to publish their time-table in any paper or papers in the country through which the road passes. This is certainly a new stroke of policy, if nothing more. The public ought certainly to be exceedingly obliged to the company for thus kindly relieving them in glorious ignorance of the time of the trains starting. The falling-off in the receipts of the road we attribute much more to this cause than we do to the recent accident. It is the experience of all successful business men that advertising is one of the surest means of securing a large business. We contend that the public have a right to demand that the time tables should be published. They have the moral right and the right of universal custom, if they have not the legal. And the company which refuses this, to accommodate those upon whom they depend for their patronage is certainly deserving of universal censure. There are some other matters of mismanagement to which our time prevents us from referring at present, but which we will take occasion to recur to anon.—Journal and Express.

THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW.—We have received the October number of this British periodical from our enterprising neighbor Mr. Andrews, successor to Mr. Graham. The contents are:—The Olin Religion; character, condition and prospects of the Greek people; Rajah Brooke; History, its use and meaning; Women in France, Madame de Sable; the Sphere and duties of Government; the rise and progress of diplomacy; the Crystal Palace, and contemporary literature. Mr. Andrews has constantly on hand a full supply of the British Magazines. • A new list of subscribers is now being made up These Magazines and Reviews need only to be known to be taken by all persons desirous of posting himself up in the affairs of the world. These works offered to the Canadian public are the American reprints of Messrs. Leonard, Scott & Co., of New York, and are furnished at a low rate, American Postage Free.

FARMERS GUIDE.—One copy of this very excellent Agricultural work—the best production of the kind extant, and which should find its way to every intelligent farmer's library—is for sale at this office.

THE GENESEE FARMER for November lies before us and is filled with matter highly interesting to the farmer and horticulturist, Rochester, N. Y. Price 2s. 6d.

MACLEAR'S ALMANAC.—Mr. Gillean has presented us with a copy of this unequalled almanac. It is for sale at his book Store at the usually low rate. This is the continuation of the celebrated "Scobies Almanac" Under these circumstances it is sufficient to state that it is equal to its predecessors to ensure it a general circulation.

☞ The Niagara Chronicle and Niagara Mail are now thrown into one journal under the name of the Niagara Mail.

AMERICAN BANKS.—We give elsewhere a notice relative to the Farmers & Mechanics' Joint Stock Bank of Buffalo; and also a statement respecting several Western Banks. Things are in a bad state across the lines, relative to these institutions. We of Canada have frequently been denominated "slow," but it will be found that, in banking matters especially, we can boast of being, through all difficulties and under all circumstances, enviably "sure."

TAYLOR'S LECTURE came off with great eclat. The weather was most unfavorable, the street being very muddy yet he had a very fair audience, who were much delighted with his eloquence.

Sebastopol was not yet taken, the siege was proceeding slowly but surely.

Anxiety was intense in England and France.

BALTIMORE, NOV. 23.

W. H. Martin, who has been principal post master in this city for the last 20 years has been detected in robbing letters passed through his hands of the money they contained. He was detected by the agency of a decoy letter, and on his house being searched the letter and the money it contained was found. His salary was $1,000 per annum. His house being furnished most extravantly and living in a manner and style which he did not afford excited the suspicion that these depredations has probably been going on for several years.

Considerable feeling has been excited here with regard to the escape of a novice from the Catholic Sisterhood at Emmit's Bay, named Josephine Blankley. She escaped at 3 o'clock on the night of the 19th. She is the daughter of Joseph Blankley, of Norfolk, a Protestant. It is reported that she wished to dissolve her connexion with the Sisterhood and her desire to return home. She wrote a letter to her father which was destroyed before her eyes, and she was compelled to write another in a different strain, declaring the satisfaction she felt in being where she was. This letter deceived her father as to the real facts of the case; and all his letters to his daughter were, consequently, handed to her unopened.

Aware she was a prisoner, she determined to escape and finally succeeded in doing so by climbing through a window sash in the place of her confinement, she then walked 10 miles to Creedstown, where she communicated with her father, who then came for her.

A MASTER PIECE OUT-DONE.—We have lately supposed AYER'S Cherry Pectoral was the Ultima Thule in its line, and that nothing had been or would be invented which could surpass it in its fine points of excellence as a medicine. But we are confidently assured by those competent to judge on the subject, that Dr. Ayer's new Pills excel in high medical artistry even that widely celebrated embodiment of his skill. He has succeeded in making them not only pleasant to take but powerful to cure the large class of complaints which require a purgative remedy.—Lancaster Argus, Ky.

Dr. J. W. Kermott's
VEGETABLE
PULMONARY BALSAM

A Safe and Effectual Cure for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Asthma, Incipient Consumption, &c.

THIS Medicine operates by producing a free and copious expectoration, and by imparting vigor to the absorbant vessels, changing them from a diseased to a healthy action. Hundreds of cases might be recorded of persons who have been consigned to the grave by their medical attendants, and by the use of this valuable remedy are now in the enjoyment of perfect health.

DOSE—One teaspoonful from 3 to 6 times per day, or oftener if the cough is severe.

Price, 75 Cents per Bottle.

Prepared, Wholesale and Retail, at the ECLECTIC MEDICAL DISPENSARY, Dundas St., London, C. W.

London, 15th Sept., 1854.

Dr. W. J. KERMOTT,

Dear Sir,

Being informed that you are preparing your Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam, in order that the Public at large may appreciate its virtues, I cheerfully submit to you the following statement of facts; use them as you think proper.

In the Autumn of 1852, my eldest son was attacked with pain in the chest, shoulders, and side, accompanied with a very severe cough. We used every means within our power, employed the most skilful Physicians, and after their vain attempts had recourse to some of the most popular Nostrums for the cure of Consumption, but all to no purpose, he gradually grew worse. In 1853 he became so feeble and emaciated as to be obliged to keep his bed, his feet and legs became swollen, perspired profusely at nights, expectorated dark fetid corruption, had chills and fever alternately, in fact all who knew or saw him pronounced him in the last stage of consumption, and a victim for the grave. At his own request we sent for you, but without the slightest hope of receiving any benefit; still, as you flattered him with a hope he commenced using your Balsam, and after taking some half dozen Bottles began slowly to recover, till in three months' time he was restored to perfect health. One year has elapsed since the cure was effected, and he is still hale and sound.

Ever grateful, I am, dear Sir,

Yours respectfully,
JAMES DICKENSON.

CORK SOLES!

Harcourt, Bradley, & Co.

44 MARKET ST., MANCHESTER,

Principal Warehouse, 102 Wood Street, Cheapside, London, England. American Establishments, 28 Ann Street & 102 Nassau Street, New-York U. S.

The Hydromagen is a valuable discovery for protecting the feet from damp and cold, and therefore a preventative of many lung diseases without any doctoring whatever. The Hydromagen is in the form of a sole, and worn inside the boot or shoe. Its medicated character, is a powerful antidote to disease.

For Gentlemen it will be found agreeable, warm, and healthy, to wear in the coldest or rainiest weather, as the feet cannot become wet if the Hydromagen is inserted. Ladies may wear the lightest soled boots or shoes, in the most inclement weather with impunity; while consumption, so prevalent among the young of our country may be thwarted by their general adoption. They entirely supercede overshoes, as the latter cause the feet to perspire in a very unhealthy manner; overshoes are not dangerous wear to pedestrians in dry weather, like india rubbers. While the latter cause the feet to look extremely large, the Hydromagen, being merely a thin slice of cork prepared, peculiarly placed inside, does not increase the size of the boot, or make the foot appear untidy. To children they are extremely valuable, as they may engage in exercise with comfort and healthy effects. Their expence is so slight as to scarce need mention; besides, those who patronize them will find their yearly doctor's bill much diminish thereby.

As the Hydromagen is becoming more known, its sale is increasing to an almost incredible extent. Last year in London, Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Glasgow, Leeds, Dublin, Paris, Antwerp, Hamburg, and Berlin, our sales reached 1,732,450 pairs of Cork Soles. This year the number will far surpass that.

Ask the Faculty their opinion of their value as a preventative for COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, and CONSUMPTION.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and THE FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of

Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy colour of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the CONSTITUTION.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects, invalids (even by their physicians considered incurable) have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. Their remedies are unlike any other. Their unusual properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver, and kidneys which create the fluids and supply the impurities of the blood. The Wine and Pills never weaken, but give strength and ammunition to both body and mind.

The great success and good effects produced have done for the sick and afflicted what a thousand tongues could not express. Hundreds of the most respectable families have adopted them as the only medicines of the kind, and the purity and integrity have obtained for it the good word of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. I. A. STANLEY

a celebrated physician in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 15th 1853, declares that as all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of consumption, fevers and scrofulous affections which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great benefit of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Smallman, Dr. L. Berryman, Dr. Charlton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Morgan, and others.

CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London C. W. June 13th, 1852.

MESSRS. RAYMOND & CO.—Gentlemen,—I have received the Sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as a highly palatable preparation. The aromatic flavour of the Camomile flowers is preserved in a remarkable degree, and the combination appears to be largely assisted and well preserved, and as this regard is home is highly beneficial in the forms of disease for which it is recommended, or whatever is in the digestive organs, the combination is not often met with on the continent. Your cordial will, I doubt not, form an acceptable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rayford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public admits of no doubt, to almost every city and village in the United States there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing diseases and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of the most loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

DR. SOERAVOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This is a powerful remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all diseases of a nervous character, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Pains in the head, joints or muscles, Gout, Tic Doloureux, Numbness and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Neuralgia of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Affections of the mucous membrane, Debility, Locked Jaw, Contraction of muscles, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds, &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, both the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that diseases of many of its most painful forms is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its slightly imperfect use. It does, when readily supply this wondrous power in a form as available as any one especially points for disease, and has been fully and practically attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who does not pace with the greatest of relief that does not readily appreciate of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which notices its effects without the most unequivocal testimonials, showing more new effect of these wonderful elements, or communicating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a portion of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend the Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the highest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

FAREWELL.

Farewell!—I'll sigh my last adieu,
My last attentions pay;
I'll once one longing, lingering view,
And so depart me away.
The agony of despair o'erwhirlwind
The spring thus from thee,
Reckless of duty both demand
The sacrifice from me.

Farewell!—The word strikes dreadly
Upon my listening ear;
Its sound's recall to memory
The joys we've shared here.
The pre'se note it sadly sighs
Of sorrows to ensue;
It snaps the cord that fondly ties,
My aching heart to you.

Farewell!—and since I must depart
To regions far away—
Although the dictates of my heart,
Would urge a longer stay;
Believe me when I'm far from thee,
Thy love shall be the guide,
That will direct my destiny
Through life's eventful tide.

Farewell!—but deem me not unkind,
Nor think me insecure,
When mournfully we call to mind
The vows we breathed before.
Remember those were happy hours,
When mought but sunshine be med;
Remember now that darkness lowers,
Where former sunshine gleamed.

Farewell!—be happy—do not deign
To waste a thought on me;
If e'er that thought should cause a pain,
Where happiness should be—
And if my form should e'er intrude
Upon your dreams—disp'el
Your slumbers—think you wildly viewed
A spectre—ere thee well!

Death of Little Mary Morgan.

"Father, Father," the clear earnest voice of Mary Morgan was heard calling.

"I'm coming dear" answered Mr. Morgan.

"Come quick, father, won't you."

"Yes love."

And Morgan got up and dressed himself, but with unsteady hands, and every sign of nervous prostration.

In a little while, with the assistance of his wife he was ready, and came tottering into the room where Mary was lying.

"Oh, father" what a light broke over her countenance—"I've been waiting for you so long. I thought you were never going to wake up. Kiss me, father."

"What can I do for you, Mary?" asked Morgan, tenderly, as he laid his face down upon the pillow beside her.

"Nothing, father. I don't wish for anything. I only wanted to see you."

"I'm here now, love."

"Dear father!" How earnestly, yet tenderly she spoke, laying her small hand upon his face. "You have always been good to me, father."

"Oh! no. I've never been good to anybody," sobbed the weak, broken spirited man, as he raised himself from the pillow.

How deeply touched was Mrs Slade, as she sat, the silent witness of this scene.

"You have'nt been good to yourself, father, but you have always been good to us."

"Don't Mary, don't say anything about that," interposed Morgan. "Say that I have been very bad, very wicked. Oh, Mary, dear, I wish I was as good as you are, I'd like to die then, and go right away from this evil world, I wish there was no liquor to drink, no taverns, no bar-rooms. Oh, dear, oh, dear, I wish I was dead."

And the weak trembling man laid his face again on the pillow beside his child and sobbed aloud.

What an oppressive silence reigned for a time through the room

"Father," said Mary "I want to tell you something."

"What is it Mary."

"There will be nobody to go for you father."

The child's lips now quivered and tears filled her eyes.

"Don't talk about that Mary. I'm not going out in the evening any more till you get well. Don't you remember that I promised,"

"But father"

"What dear?"

"I'm going away to leave you and mother."

"Oh, no—no—no—Mary don't say that," the poor man's voice was broken—"don't say that! We can't let you go dear."

"God has called me,"

The child's voice had a solemn tone, and her eyes turned reverently upward.

"I wish he would call me. Oh I wish he would call me!" groaned Morgan hiding his face in his hands. "What shall I do when you are gone?"

"Father!" Mary spoke calmly again—"You are not ready to go yet. God will let you live here longer that you may get ready."

"How can I get ready without you to help me Mary, my angel child,"

"Have'nt I tried to help you, father, oh, so many times."

"Yes—yes—you've always tried."

"But it wasn't any use, you would always go to the tavern, it seemed almost as if you couldn't help it."

Morgan groaned in spirit.

"Maybe I can help you better, father, after I die. I love you so much I am sure God will let me come to you and stay with you always and be your angel. Don't you think he will mother."

But Mrs. Morgan's heart was too full, she did not even try to answer.

"Father, I dreamed something about you while I slept to-day."

Mary again turned to her father.

"What was it dear,"

"I thought it was night and that I was still sick, You promised not to go out again until I was well. But you did go out and I thought you went over to Mr. Slade's tavern. When I knew this I felt as strong as if I was well and I got up, dressed myself and went out after you.

But I had'nt got far before I met Mr. Slade's great bull dog Nero; and he growled at me so dreadfully that I was frightened and ran back home. Then I started again, and went away round by Mr. Mason's. But there was Nero in the road and this time he caught my dress in his mouth and tore a great piece out of the shirt. I ran back again, and he chased me all the way home. Just as I got to the door, I looked around, and there was Mr. Slade setting Nero on me. As soon as I saw Mr. Slade, though he looked at me very wicked, I lost all my fear, and turning around I passed Nero, who slowed his teeth and growled as fiercely as ever, but didn't touch me. Mr. Slade tried to touch me, but I didn't mind him, and kept right on until I came to the tavern, and there you stood in the door. And you were dressed so nice. You had on a new hat and a new coat and your boots were new and polished just like Judge Hammond's.

I said "Oh father is this you."

And then you took me up in your arms and kissed me. The sight of the Sickle and Sheaf was taken down, and over the door I now read your name.

O, I was so glad, and I awoke; and then I cried to myself, for

...the latter way to dispose of the ... statement of the last three or four ... to treat them all as fabulous or as ... exaggerated, and to rest upon ... that which bears the latest date, and apparently the surest mark of authenticity, viz., the despatch of Prince Menschikoff, written from Sebastopol on the 27th ult., "when nothing important had occurred."—This contradiction, for such it is, of all the reported successes of the Russians on the 23rd, 24th, and 25th, is confirmed to as late as the last day quoted, by the intelligence derived through the Trent, which arrived at Varna on the 26th, to the effect that the bombardment had been vigorously prosecuted on the preceding day. The apparent candour with which the despatch describing the first day's bombardment acknowledged a loss of 5000 men on the part of the besieged had subtracted for later Russian reports a degree of credit to which, as it now plainly appears, they were not entitled. What has become of the successful sortie said to have been made upon the French lines—taking redoubts and spiking 18 pieces of artillery? Is it to be supposed that the brilliant achievement, if ever accomplished, should not be a second time mentioned, or can it be supposed that Menschikoff would have wrote his last despatch would regard as unimportant the success...ful ... sally, the repulse of the British light cavalry, with the loss of half its number, within 48 hours before he was writing. The explosion of Lipranli might, indeed, have been unknown to Menschikoff on the 27th ult., as one Russian account affirms, it was performed at Eupatoria for Eupatoria is 40 or 50 miles from Sebastopol. But what then becomes of the British entrenched camp, the redoubts, heavy ordnance, and the light cavalry of the British, none of which were at Eupatoria? We may therefore confidently dismiss all the Russian reports that go beyond the fact of the continuance of the siege operations, without according to them, even from the incidental advantages—truly or falsely—claimed for the besieged. We know, then, the fortress has been cannonaded for no less than ten days; and we have it upon the confession of Menschikoff himself that the first day cost the besieged at least 500 men; but it is manifest that this loss must have been steadily advancing in its rate, as the allies approached nearer and nearer to the object of attack; the artillery would act with a more deadly effect, the defences would afford less perfect shelter, and the men would sink under the effect of more labour necessary for repairing the damaged works in addition to their ordinary military duties. There is, therefore, little difficulty in believing the report of the Trent that the fire of the besieged had become feeble, or another report which asserts that the number of the dead had fermented a pestilence in the doomed city. The siege had on the 27th continued ten days. At the rate of 500 a-day, the first day's rate, the mortality would amount to 5000 dead at the end of the decade; but, for reasons already assigned, it is plain that the rate of daily mortality must have progressively increased, and making allowances for that increase and for some suppression of the truth in the acknowledgment of only 500 lost on the first day, it is surely not extravagant to assume that the loss of the garrison up to the 27th could fall little short of ten or twelve thousand. This cannot last long. That possibly lay in his power to make good roads, as it would be to his interest to display skill as a road maker, so as to gain for himself the approbation and applause of the public. But on the other hand, put a man in the same position, at a certain per centage upon all moneys expended in the construction of roads &c., and the public, governed by his judgment, in the management of the same. What would be the result of such a proceeding? I may here venture to say, that it is very natural for most men placed in such a position to do a great deal for themselves, and very little for public, or at least to do as little permanent work as possible, this is so palpable that it needs no other demonstration than this; scrutinize the present system of road making &c., in this town, after which if I am not much mistaken, public opinion will coincide with that of mine.

The system of road making which I am about to describe for public opinion, is simple in its construction, comparatively cheap, and I may say well adapted for this country, if carried out under proper directions. I may here remark, that as a datum for my present purpose, I am assuming a road way to be 30 feet in width, exclusive of side drains, and foot paths. In the first place it is requisite in preparing the surface of a road for a good foundation, if it be wet and elastic, to render it non-elastic by whatever means is best adapted to overcome the cause. The foundation should consist of rough loose set pavement, of any description of stones that can be most readily procured, [illegible] feet from the [illegible] ce to be 4 inches, and at 15 fe[illegible] be set with flat boulders [illegible] lengthwise across the road, and in some should be more than five inches broad on its face. The irregularities of the upper part of the pavement should be broken off, and all the interstices should be filled with stone chips, firmly wedged in so that when the pavement is finished, there may be a convexity of 4 inches in the breadth of 15 feet from the centre, the middle 18 feet of pavement should be coated with broken stones or good hard gravel stones, from 1 to 1½ inches in size, to the depth of 6 inches. Four of these 6 inches to be first put on, and worked in by carriages and horses, care being taken to rake in the ruts until the surface becomes firm and consolidated, after which the remaining 2 inches are to be put on. The paved space on each side of the 18 feet should be coated with broken stones, or well cleansed gravel, up to the side drains or foot paths, as the case may be, so as to make the whole convexity of the road 6 inches to the sides of it, if broken stones are used, the whole should be covered with an inch and a half in depth of good gravel, freed from clay or earth. After a road is thus made, it is very necessary that it should be kept in a good state of repair, a road should be put in a complete state of repair towards the latter end of autumn of each year, to preserve it from being broken up during the winter, by laying on thin coatings of new materials at a time, and when the ground is wet, they will soon be worked into the surface without being crushed into powder, all ruts and hollows should be filled up as soon as they appear the side channels should be continually kept clean and free from obstruction.

A road should be scraped from time to time, so as never to have half an inch of mud upon it; mud should not be scraped into, or allowed to remain in the side channels, so as to stop the running of the water in them, as mud and water will wear a road surprisingly fast, and should not in any one instance (if good be the object) be allowed to remain upon them for any length of time. Good tools are indispensable in keeping a road in repair, as also first rate men, that know how to make use of them, and should be furnished by the public; to the person in charge, But there is this to be said of the person in charge, that if he be an inexperienced man in road making, &c., neither good tools, nor good workmen will be of much service, as he will frustrate both by his bad management.

I might have entered more fully into the details of this system of roadmaking, &c., but am afraid that I have already trespassed on your time and space, for which I offer an apology, and hope that the little information I may have stated, may be found of sufficient utility for public discussion.

I am, Sir, your obd't serv't,
W. P.
A PRACTICAL ROAD MAKER.

To the Editor of the Times.

LONDON, Nov. 25, 1854.

SIR,—I beg leave, through you, to call public attention to a system of road making and repairing, which in my humble opinion would be found far preferable to the one at the present time adopted in this town, and which would in a few years be the means of having good roads, at a considerable less cost than the one in practice.—But before entering on the system of road making, &c., I beg to make a few remarks on the present system of road making and repairing in this town and vicinity.

For the last six months I have had an opportunity of witnessing the manner in which the streets in this town are being gravled and gravelled, and which, I may say, forms the topics of discourse amongst those, who know anything of road making, &c., and not without good foundation for it, considering the manner in which the public moneys are being laid out, or I may say, thrown to the winds, for it is but little better than doing so, in my opinion, as well as that of others, at whose request I write this letter.

In the first place, I will direct public attention to Dundas-st. Consider the amount of money that has been expended upon it within the last two years, which is not less than £1,000, and look at it in its present state, almost impassable, and from what cause? bad management, of course, or it might by this time have been a good permanent road, free from the obnoxious filth with which it is now covered to the depth of six or eight inches, which acts as a nuisance to the health of those parties whose occupation or business it is to reside near, and to have constantly in sight nothing less than a mud hole. For my part I would rather it would appear that the principal part of the town was totally disregarded as to improvement, by come to the conclusion that there must be bad management in public [illegible] that public funds were extravagantly squandered on improvements; but when, on inquiry, there is obtained that there has been a large amount of money expended on this street yearly, who could then come to the conclusion he would not conceive, in his own mind, that the [illegible] were misguided by the person or persons in charge of public works; and such is the case in my opinion, much to be regretted.

In the next place I will endeavor to throw a little light on a specimen of road engineering, on Talbot Street, a portion of which is being graded and gravelled at the present time, from Dundas to King Street, and also a portion of York Street, from Richmond Street eastward, both of which have been excavated for the purpose of main sewers, and have but very recently been completed, and at present are in a very inconsolidated state, and almost a foot deep in mud, both of which are very unfavorable for good permanent road making, and should be suspended until in proper condition for such a purpose. Yet, it appears the public, or rather the town council are very much misguided as to which is really the best mode, and most economical plan to adopt in such cases. I cannot but think for one moment, that if they had a proper plan laid before them, showing the almost useless expenditure on these streets, in their unfavorable conditions, and bad system of road making, that they would still persist in scattering the public money to the winds, as any man with common sense must be aware that putting gravel on streets that are as soft, and as muddy as a clay hole must be a great absurdity as well as that of wasting the public funds to very little purpose. It is not to be supposed that the town councillors are practical road makers, or that they have had any experience in such matters, but they have an engineer who is or ought to be their guide in works connected with his calling, and who ought to take into consideration the benefits likely to be conferred upon the public in the prosecution of his duties, and not to lead the council into errors, which are every day becoming more manifest, and for which the council has to suffer public censure.

As a remedy for this existing evil, I would suggest to the public, that in future they appoint a supervisor to take charge of road making, and at a yearly salary, whose services be dispensed with at a months notice, if he was found to be incapable of performing his duties. By adopting such a plan, the public would have the satisfaction of seeing the supervisor doing all

Arrival of the Baltic.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.

The Baltic arrived at midnight, last night, and reached her dock at 9 this morning.

She brings 148 passengers.

She left Liverpool at 2 p. m. on the 15th.

The Africa arrived at Liverpool on the 12th.

WAR NEWS EXCITING.

The most profound anxiety prevails.

Raglan and Cardigan had sent the most urgent demands for reinforcements, and great haste was made to meet them.

Two first class frigates, for immediate service, were engaged and others wanted.

The Alps sailed on the 11th for London.

The East Indiamen would go to Kingston on the 16th, and various others immediately, to embark troops.

The disastrous results of the 25th were confirmed, though it is not so bad as at first reported, it was all owing to the misconstruction of an order from the commander in chief. Lord Cardigan rode a light horse over a plain a mile and a half in length, exposed to a cross fire from the Russian artillery. The attempt was madness, and the result, out of 617 only 198 escaped, and they would have been destroyed but for the magnificent charge of the heavy dragoons, and the brave stand of the highlanders, which redeemed the day. After the action, it was resolved by the allies to abandon their position at Balaklava, and retire to the hills overlooking the town, in which case head quarters would have been established at Donoldover or Cherson.

Advices, however, of the 26th, state that it was decided to retain Balaklava.

Despatches from Menschikoff sent to Berlin, in cypher, states that on the 4th of Nov. mucharty was made in the old [illegible] less [illegible] on to storm.

Napier reinforced by [illegible] schikoff, had attacked the [illegible] 800 men. This is doubted, that a practicable breach was [illegible] on the same day.

Gen. Canrobert's official report of the battle of the 26th, is published in the Moniteur of the 14th, he says the Russian army has been reinforced from the Danube, as well as by the Reserves of the southern provinces, and animated by the presence of the Grand Dukes, Michael and Nicholas, attacked the right and English position before Sebastopol, the English arms sustained the attack with remarkable firmness, headed by a portion of Gen. Sebi's division, as well as by the troops nearest the English position; finally the enemy, who outnumbered our forces, beat a retreat with a loss of from 8,000 to 9,000 men, at the same time Foley was forced to encounter a sortie made by the garrison, and under his direction the enemy were repulsed with a loss of 1000 killed, this brilliant day which was not got without a great loss to the allies, shows another feat of the allied arms.

The siege goes on with regularity.

(Signed,) CANROBERT.

ENGLAND.

Advices of the 10th from Bucharest state that on the 9th, Menschikoff attacked the English position, but the allies obtained a decided victory, their were severe losses on both sides.

The English took many hundred prisoners.

Gens. Butler, Adams, Beaton, Torners, and also Brown were wounded.

The English official account had not as yet arrived.

Menschikoff reports under date of 15th Nov. that he made two sorties which resulted in the capture of one of the enemy's batteries, the guns of which they spiked. There was great loss on both sides—the second sortie was completely successful, the Russians spiked 15 guns immediately; the French infantry pursued the retiring Russians and attempted to storm the arsenal, but was driven back with great slaughter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.

The Africa arrived at 5 o'clock this afternoon, with dates to the 18th.

No late news from the seat of war. A pause seems to have ensued in the fighting before Sebastopol. Both British and Russians say that the siege progresses with regularity. Both parties are in want of reinforcements, the besiegers more than the besieged! The Russians began to be short of ammunition.

The rapid reduction by battles and disease of the allied forces to 50,000 men, had caused much alarm in France and England, and strenuous efforts are making to send reinforcements, winter was setting in, and the fleet had suffered some distress from gales.

Typhus fever had broken out in Sebastopol from the number of unburied dead.

Conflagrations were constantly occurring from red-hot shot, and water was becoming scarce.

The Russians were preparing for street fighting; posting cannon to sweep the streets, fortifying cellars, &c.

The English official despatch of the action of the 5th, is as follows:

"CAMP, Nov. 6.—The enemy, with immense force, attacked yesterday, at the dawn of morning, the right of the English position before Sebastopol, which was defended by the second division and the brigade of the Fusilier Guards, the 4th division, part of the third, and subsequently by the division of Gen. Bosquet, and other corps of the French army, which, by their gallant conduct, contributed essentially to the decided success of the day. Gen. Canrobert immediately came to the spot, and gave me the support of his assistance and excellent counsel. The battle was extremely obstinate, and it was not until afternoon that the enemy was definitely repulsed and forced to retreat, leaving the field of battle covered with dead, and several hundred prisoners. The enemy far exceeded those opposed to us at Alma.

RAGLAN.

The great hospital was set on fire by the shells and burned to the ground, with its inmates of 2000 sick.

A Vienna despatch of the 11th says that a despatch from Balaklava reports that another great battle has been fought. The Russians are said to have lost 9000 men, the loss of the allies was also great, but they remained masters of the field.

A Turkish 80 gun ship and a frigate were lost in a gale.

A Safe and Effectual Cure for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Asthma, Incipient Consumption, &c.

THIS Medicine operates by producing a free and copious expectoration, and by imparting vigor to the absorbant vessels, changing them from a diseased to a healthy action. Hundreds of cases might be recorded of persons who have been consigned to the grave by their medical attendants, and by the use of this valuable remedy are now in the enjoyment of perfect health.

Dose—One teaspoonful from 3 to 6 times per day, or oftener if the cough is severe.

Price, 75 Cents per Bottle.

Prepared, Wholesale and Retail, at the ECLECTIC MEDICAL DISPENSARY, Dundas St., London, C. W.

London, 15th Sept., 1854.

D. W. J. KERMOTT,
Dear Sir,

Being informed that you are preparing your Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam, in order that the Public at large may appreciate its virtues, I cheerfully submit to you the following statement of facts; use them as you think proper.

In the Autumn of 1852, my eldest son was attacked with pain in the chest, shoulders, and side, accompanied with a very severe cough. We used every means within our power, employed the most skilful Physicians, and after their vain attempts had recourse to some of the most popular nostrums for the cure of Consumption, but all to no purpose, he gradually grew worse. In 1853 he became so feeble and emaciated as to be obliged to keep his bed, his feet and legs became swollen, perspired profusely at nights, expectorated dark fœtid corruption, had chills and fever alternately, in fact all who knew or saw him pronounced him in the last stage of consumption, and a victim to the grave. At his own request we sent for you, but without the slightest hope of receiving any benefit; still, as you lived near us, with a hope, he commenced using your Balsam, and after taking some half a dozen Bottles began slowly to recover, till in three months' time he was restored to perfect health. One year has elapsed since the cure was effected, and he is still hale and sound.

Ever grateful, I am, dear Sir,
Yours respectfully,
JAMES DUCKINSON.

All kinds of musical instruments, from a Piano Forte down to a fife.

Strings of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The Pianos are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the Melodians, manufactured by Prince & Co. Pianos and Melodians sold as cheap and on as favorable terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Makers themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Bacon & Raven, Gilbert, Gale etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upward to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophicleides, Sax horns, Trombones, Cornopeans, Bugles, Post horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stoddart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pians require a good tuner, 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, they may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy colour of the Skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Dyspepsia, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Attacks, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines were known in the province, yet thousands have experienced their good effects, in cases given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. Facts in such cases are matter my others. Their combined properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver, and kidneys which secrete the bloods, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never weaken, but give strength and invigorate by both body and mind.

The great success in good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted have induced thousands to recommend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favour of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. I. A. STANLEY

a celebrated physician in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 1st 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections which it cured in the most incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and Pills, and prescribed it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. L. Coleman, Dr. L. Chesebrough, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Mackay, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Barker, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

NEW YORK, July—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the best of Medicine. It has done for me in two weeks what three physicians failed to do in many years. In 1841 I became the victim of the direful disease and Nervous Affections, which daily grew on and grounded me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medicine and medical advice, during the last two years I was so ill as not to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business as I supposed for life; in a week I had so nearly recovered. My confidence was of that short order which 'matters smile,' and the business a failure! Seeing your Forest Wine advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and after the second bottle nearly cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this. Yours &c.,

JOHNSON BURKE.
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, Wasting of the Body, &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause, and I feel sure that the use of the proper remedy in the first stages would prevent much after misery. These diseases are very often characterized by a sense of weakness, or entire exhaustion, after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, unsuitable, and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart, or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in the cases of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an immediate and brief specific, and, for nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are invaluable according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

These debility and weakness accompany the highest perfection of health which again naturally follows the PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD. What additional argument can be required to induce a consciousness of such evidence from health? What pearls can compare with the crimson blood exploring its brilliant hues through the transparent texture of the skin? What cheek can vie in beauty with that which glows in the rich health and perfect vigor of the female form? Let the blessings of health be your study, and Dr. Halsey's Wine supply the means of its attainment. The use of this excellent Wine in a short time renders the whole system, coursing through the veins, penetrates the minute ultimate and verge termini for supply of the skin causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, and a rich and lovely complexion and beautiful expression to the eyes. THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In recommending the above facts Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady on most respectable standing in society, and to me by her brother residing in this city.

New York, July 5th 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister from the south had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest, attended with a cough. About the age of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to coming on she had been confined to her bed and took all to get out of the house. Her countenance was greatly emaciated, voice and cough. Her face and neck were covered with a dry, peculiar pimply eruption, and a constant cough increasing. In fact, she long every appearance of soon terminating in unhappy decline and premature grave. At this time I prevailed on her to make use of your Forest Wine and Pills, which since commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved in health, and by the use of them. Her best symptom of recovery was uncommonly good appetite, her face finally becoming smooth and her cheeks rosy. Her cough left her, and her health she is now strong and vigorous, and presents the finest example of health I ever witnessed.

DR. HALSEY'S

GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principles as the Forest Wine to which it is an important subject. They are coated with pure Gum Arabic an important invention for which Dr. Halsey has received the only patent ever granted on Pills by the Government of the United States.

Dr. Halsey's Forest Wine and Gum-coated Forest Pills unite in accomplishing the same good end, the PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THE RENOVATION AND RESTORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.

The life principle of man is the blood—no sooner are those organs of the stomach which receive the blood cleansed of morbid matter and receive its healthy action by the use of the Forest Pills, and pure rich blood needs to flow in the veins, by the use of the Forest Wine, than disease begins to vanish, and the glad harbingers of health return. This is the principle on which is founded these great medicines, and by which nearly all diseases are cured.

The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles, with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One Dollar per Bottle, or Six Bottles for Five Dollars. Gum-coated Forest Pills, 25c. per Box.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy colour of the Skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Dyspepsia, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Attacks, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines were known in the province, yet thousands have experienced their good effects, in cases given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. Facts in such cases are matter my others. Their combined properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver, and kidneys which secrete the bloods, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never weaken, but give strength and invigorate by both body and mind.

The great success in good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted have induced thousands to recommend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favour of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. I. A. STANLEY

a celebrated physician in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 1st 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills, at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections which it cured in the most incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and Pills, and prescribed it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. L. Coleman, Dr. L. Chesebrough, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Mackay, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Barker, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

NEW YORK, July—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the best of Medicine. It has done for me in two weeks what three physicians failed to do in many years. In 1841 I became the victim of the direful disease and Nervous Affections, which daily grew on and grounded me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medicine and medical advice, during the last two years I was so ill as not to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business as I supposed for life; in a week I had so nearly recovered. My confidence was of that short order which 'matters smile,' and the business a failure! Seeing your Forest Wine advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and after the second bottle nearly cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this. Yours &c.,

JOHNSON BURKE.
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, Wasting of the Body, &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause, and I feel sure that the use of the proper remedy in the first stages would prevent much after misery. These diseases are very often characterized by a sense of weakness, or entire exhaustion, after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, unsuitable, and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart, or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in the cases of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an immediate and brief specific, and, for nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are invaluable according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

These debility and weakness accompany the highest perfection of health which again naturally follows the PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD. What additional argument can be required to induce a consciousness of such evidence from health? What pearls can compare with the crimson blood exploring its brilliant hues through the transparent texture of the skin? What cheek can vie in beauty with that which glows in the rich health and perfect vigor of the female form? Let the blessings of health be your study, and Dr. Halsey's Wine supply the means of its attainment. The use of this excellent Wine in a short time renders the whole system, coursing through the veins, penetrates the minute ultimate and verge termini for supply of the skin causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, and a rich and lovely complexion and beautiful expression to the eyes. THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In recommending the above facts Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady on most respectable standing in society, and to me by her brother residing in this city.

New York, July 5th 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister from the south had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest, attended with a cough. About the age of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to coming on she had been confined to her bed and took all to get out of the house. Her countenance was greatly emaciated, voice and cough. Her face and neck were covered with a dry, peculiar pimply eruption, and a constant cough increasing. In fact, she long every appearance of soon terminating in unhappy decline and premature grave. At this time I prevailed on her to make use of your Forest Wine and Pills, which since commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved in health, and by the use of them. Her best symptom of recovery was uncommonly good appetite, her face finally becoming smooth and her cheeks rosy. Her cough left her, and her health she is now strong and vigorous, and presents the finest example of health I ever witnessed.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters has attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it necessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicines now before the public, stands of itself in no need of puffing. Every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing—often curing in a few days the worst vestige of those loathsome diseases by their magical effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, whether chronic seated in the head joints or limbs, Gout, Tic Doloreux, Nervousness and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Weakness of the Joints Lumbago, Neuralgia, Acrimous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Childbirth Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wonderful power when it is thus difficult, we can successfully remove bad disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which does not the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science as that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful galvanic, or corroborating previous experience in their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Poetry.

Home and Despair.

BY MARY FRANCES BYLES.

The two went out for a walk one day.
But they couldn't keep long together;
For despair till soon had commenced her tune,
Of grumbling about the weather.
But hope roamed still over heath and hill,
And low to herself kept humming,
"Though the why, be dear, I have sought to fear,
There's a better time a-coming."

Despair sat down in a lonely glen,
And she looked both lean and lazy;
And "let us eat that they who chanced that way,
Declared that she had gone crazy.
But Hope went dressed in her very best,
And her soft sweet voice kept humming,
"Though fortune frown I am not cast down,
There's a better time a-coming."

The sun came out but Despair in doubt,
Expected a storm in a minute;
And so she went in her discontent,
Bowed down with needless sorrow.
But Hope was gay through the live-long day
And with merry tones kept humming,
"Though the sun may set, I will never forget,
There's a better time a-coming."

The storm cloud came and Despair the same
Was greatly distressed—bewail'd,
The sun she say, had re ar'd,
And she couldn't live without it.
Hope felt the storm, but her heart was warm,
And her voice with the winds kept humming,
"Fear no harm, and no alarm,
There's a better time a-coming."

A sad, my friend, until life shall end,
Why will Despair deem frightful,
In a light more true, with a higher view,
Will seem mine Hope delightful.
Then let us hasten to this same despair,
And invite as Hope keeps humming,
And through life's brief, let us think for all
There's a better time a-coming.

Sow the Seed.

BY C. H.

"Blessed are they that sow beside all waters."—Isaiah xx, 20.

Sow the seed beside all waters;
Scatter with a lavish hand.
Though your sweet sees not the springing,
Shall obey Christ's last command.

Though the soil seemed parched and barren,
Though the clouds withhold their rain,
Yet shall God the harvest gather
In abundance from the plain.

Sow in tears with joy the reapers
Shall the harvest gather in.
Bear the glorious sheaves to heaven,
Gathered from the fields of sin.

Sow the seed beside all waters!
Where sorrow's tide's streamlet runs,
Let your Saviour's name be hallowed
They shall mingle into one.

By our daily paths of duty,
Where our common lot is cast,
In their void and star light beauty,
Many streams are rushing past.

Sow the seed beside these waters,
Oh! it is a holy trust
That is kept for precious heaven—
Thine to conquer with the just.

Literature.

THE ELOPEMENT.

BY THE AUTHORESS OF "TALES OF THE HEATH," "JUVENILE TRAVELLER," ETC.

It was one of those intense sultry mornings so common to a North American summer the thermometer varying from ninety—six to one hundred and twenty Fahrenheit, that Frederick Delmar, in his little bark canoe, crossed the river Richlieu, to seek, in the woods on the opposite shore, that shelter from the overpowering rays of the sun, which was denied upon the "little Isle aux Noix," where, with his regiment he was quartered.

The young ensign, for he had scarcely attained his twentieth year, accompanied by his faithful dog and early friend, Linn, had risen with the dawn and taking with him some biscuits and a volume of Byron, set out with the intention of exploring the woods on the opposite shore, which, from its rich shade, variegated and brilliant foliage, held out to those who would escape the enervating effects of heat, to which all are exposed on the before named island where the bird can scarcely find a tree on which to build its nest, or the lamb shelter from the storm.

Frederick Delmar was the son of a British officer, who had served with honor during many a campaign; had fought his country's battles; had gained laurels of distinction, and had gained the rank of major, previous to quitting a service to which a long life had been devoted.

This meritorious officer had sustained a disappointment which cast a shadow over his fondest hopes.

Early in life he had formed a matrimonial alliance with one whose surpassing virtues and rich mind amply compensated for the want of fortune.

Their marriage had been consummated two years, each of which increased their happiness by a birth of a child; the eldest a promising boy, and the second a lovely girl; but scarcely had they returned thanks for the last blessing, when the angel of death snatched the mother from her off-spring, and bereaved the agonized husband of his treasured wife.—What pen can portray the feelings of the husband the deepest felt sorrow of such a moment!

For a season the Major was inconsolable, but as reason regained its empire he reflected on the assurance that the ways of Providence although inscrutable, are evergoided by wisdom, that, in our greatest calamities we have much cause to be thankful, the chastening hand from which they flow is ever directed by mercy!

While he deplored his irreparable loss, he knew that for wise purpose it had been ordained, and pressing the innocent pledges of their mutual love to his aching heart, he offered up a silent prayer of thanksgiving to that God who had yet spared him such blessings, to the care of which he vowed his future life should be devoted; and never did parent more faithfully fulfil the duties which so imperatively devolved upon him.

A few years had glided on when Frederick was placed at a public school and duly prepared to enter that profession in which his father had gained so much honor, and for which nature seemed so truly to have designed him for she had given him an undaunted spirit, a generous and benevolent heart and a mind capable of all that is noble in man.

Matilda, for so the little girl had been named, was a pretty, interesting, intelligent child. Being a perfect resemblance to her mother, it is no wonder she gained a complete ascendancy over the affections and feelings of her remaining parent.

To him she became a being whom to look upon was to love, who would find sympathy in every heart and succour in every arm.—How often as he gazed upon her intelligent eye, removing with his fingers the auburn ringlets from her snowy brow, upon which he would imprint the warm kiss of paternal love exclaiming: "My darling Matilda! sweet image of your sainted mother, to supply her place in my lacerated heart. Heaven has in mercy sent you, as a source from which I shall derive my greatest earthly comfort.—Your brother's profession will necessarily call him from me, his pursuits, his intercourse with the world, blended with the promotion of his prospects, must lead to other connections, and although they will not rob me of that portion of my boy's affections which nature has so strongly implanted, yet they will in a great measure, deprive me of that tender intercourse and sweet sympathy, so grateful to a parent's heart, and which my darling girl will have it in her power to bestow, 'tis the balm that alone will heal my wounded spirit, 'it dropeth like the gentle dew from heaven,' affording the unction of consolation to my wounded soul, and the hope of my declining years."

Although the Major would frequently indulge in such a rhapsody when alone with his Matilda, he was not morally Foreign.

Attack on Sebastopol.

We resume the interesting account of the proceedings from our last number.

Oct. 19.

All through last night the French have been incessantly at work, and though it was not thought possible they could be ready so soon, have repaired their batteries and again opened fire this morning. The enemy have also made a fresh battery on a most commanding position, and repaired and replaced their guns in the redoubt, in front of the Redan wall which we blew up on the 17th. The fire this morning, therefore, seems hotter than ever. So hot is their continued fire and so commanding are their positions, that I much fear we shall do but little good while we continue battering. The Flagstaff Battery and Fenian Battery, which flank and command the French lines, never ceased for a minute all this day. About eleven o'clock a shell from the latter entered one of the magazines in a French battery, blowing it up with a terrible explosion. Most of the men in the work were killed, and many of the guns dismounted. Owing to this accident, and the terrible storm of shot and shell, most of the French works were again silenced before 2 o'clock.

Scaling ladders and other necessaries for an assault have come in to-night. Most of our officers imagine that the attempt will be made to-morrow, but in this they are over sanguine, as such an all important step would require the perfection of arrangement and detail which will of course take time. Orders have been received that the town is to be fired on to morrow with shell.

October, 21.

The allies have continued the fight with redoubled vigour to day. During last night the French not only repaired their works but in order to attack with more destructive effect advanced one strong battery about 200 yards nearer the enemy. The Russians had some suspicions of this work being in progress, and between twelve and one last night made a sortie for the purpose of destroying it. Our allies received notice of an extended attack through a deserter, and were, therefore, in readiness. Directly the enemy were heard advancing to the work, a heavy cannonade of shell, grape and canister was opened on them from the French batteries, and spread death throughout their ranks. A perfect panic appears to have seized them on finding that we were prepared. Judging from the confused sounds, here made no attempt to advance but, after an irregular fire of musketry, hastily retreated. The French had only two or three casualties, but the enemy sustained a rather severe loss. A similar attack was made at the same time upon our position at Balaklava but the garrison at our redoubts at that place were perfectly prepared, and as our picquets fell back received the enemy with a smart cannonade, which compelled a full retreat. Every gun in the English lines has been kept vigorously at work. Five or six of our longest range through sticks and rockets into the town, while the rest poured forth round shot on to the earth works. All the batteries continue their range perfectly, and fire with terrible accuracy. Before 2 o'clock to-day Sebastopol was on fire in five or six places. Five more guns were dismounted [illegible] earthworks, and three from [illegible] ing batteries, have [illegible] more successful [illegible] at night now, as that [illegible] changes [illegible] d early in the [illegible] we [illegible] ing [illegible] ed [illegible] ing [illegible] ed [illegible] ing [illegible] ed

[The following statements are from the gentleman who exhibited the mammoth cheese at the late Provincial Exhibition; it will be perused with interest by our readers.—Ed. Times.

To the Editor of the Times.

Sir,

Having been solicited through Mr. Lefroy, to answer some questions relative to the dairy business, I very readily send with pleasure these, with permission through your columns.

1st. There are 55 acres in the farm set apart principally for the dairy.

2nd. I keep 102 cows.

3rd. I prefer the Ayershire and our common breed for butter and cheese, and the Durhams and Devons for beef. The reason why I prefer the former is, they winter much better, and come out fat in the spring, while the other breeds require more care, and are not generally as good; there are, however, exceptions.

4th. What kind of grass seed in pasture? The best kind I have found is a stationary pasture, that comes in of itself, after new land has been seeded 3 to 5 years. The grasses are white clover and sweet grass and some call it Indian grass. They require to be fed down somewhat in June, as that the sweet grass does not go to seed, and during the year it will send a third more feed than grass sowed after many years plowing, and produces much better cheese in quantity and quality. For mowing land I prefer breaking very frequently, once in two or three years. The seeds sown when laid down depend on the sun; I use red clover and timothy, sometimes red top on low ground. Clover often kills out the third year; but if you wish to have the clover continue seed it down again very early in the spring without plowing, drag it over a little with a light drag.

5th. How long does cheese making last? Eight months in the year. Last year I made from 95 cows 18 tons; this year I do not know how much, probably from 19 to 20 tons. During the summer months a large quantity of milk from each cow, 20 quarts per day, is night and morning.

6th. Winter management? I keep about 20 together in the winter, for them one week cutting hay alone or in timothy and clover and oat straw cut and mixed together, with some sweet turnips or ruthabagas. Some I stable, some I keep under long open sheds, some I feed at hay-stacks adjacent to the building that they can go in when they choose; and I had forgot to say I sometimes feed them on millet, which makes excellent food for cows, when about half thrashed, and will yield 4 tons to the acre equal to as good a timothy or better.

7th. Hands employed for dairy purposes? I put any men, but three women, average price per week, seven shillings York; two men employed during the summer, and five or six in haying and harvest time. These hands assist in milking cows. Two boys from 12 to 15 years of age, for driving cows and milking; I pay their victuals and clothes only.

8th. Prices obtained for the last 6 years? The 4 first years from 8 to 10 dollars per hundred. The two last years from 11 to 12½ dollars per hundred. I am not inclined to increase my farm at this place, for it is sufficiently large to keep 100 cows, and that is sufficient for one dairy. I may buy in for farms for other purposes, and I have one near Ingersoll; but I hardly think tenants would make dairy business profitable, for it is a great science, and requires the strictest attention; they can very easily lose all or a part of their cheese by not understanding it. I have a chime for breaking the curd instead of breaking it by hand, with five knives attached to the handle. I have also a grinder that I use for the last process. I can grind a hundred weight in 3 minutes, and in the old way of chopping it would take an hour. The average yield my cheese are one hundred pounds, but I make them from 30 to 140 lbs. I making very large ones I prepare for every day for cleaning and weighing in the morning, so I get a sufficient quantity. The whey principally drains out in the vats at the time which makes it very firm, and then I grind it over again and mix it well and put it into the press. In forming those large ones I use a machine of wood and iron, which cost $20 something cannot be described without a drawing; and those I make from 30 to 140 lbs. are simply formed in a hoop

[illegible] instruments from a Piano Forte down to a fife.

Strings of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be [illegible] wise, and carefully selected Music Store.

The Pianos are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the Melodians, manufactured by Prince & Co. Pianos and Melodians sold as cheap and on as favorable terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Makers themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Bacon & Raven, Gilbert, Gale etc. A second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophicleide, Sax horns, Trombones, Cornopeans, Bugles, Post horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the maker's name, be able to detect the difference between a Stoddart a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner, 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, they may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to offer him a pamphlet analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin in the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases by the purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative powers. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

London C. W. June 18th, 1852.

Messrs. REYNOLDS & Co.
Gentlemen—I have received the Sample bottle of your Compound Camomile Cordial, and have found it a beneficial & highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavor, in which lies the essential Medicinal qualities appear to be largely infused and it is a pleasant and safe remedy in the hands of the Profession in those forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone in the digestive organs, into which a large proportion of the diseases to which the human system is exposed originate and flourish. I consider it a valuable addition to our Pharmacopœia.
From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical chemist I feel the greatest confidence in recommending his Preparation of his valuable tonic to my professional friends, and to the public as a safe, pure and invigorating cordial.

DR. SHERWOODS Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs, Gout, Tic Doloreux Nervousness and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Affections of the Joints Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblanes Burns and Scalds &c.
It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. It then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus difficult, we can successfully eradicate disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.
There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend the Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

Poetry.

WINTER.
BY ELIZA COOK.

Winter is coming! who hears? who cares?
Not the wealthy and proud. I know;
"Let it come!" they cry, "what matter to us
How chilly the blast may blow?"

"We'll feast and carouse in our lordly halls,
The goblet of wine we'll drain,
We'll mock at the wind with shouts of mirth,
And music's echoing strain.

"Little care we for the biting frost,
While the fire gives forth its blaze,
What to us is the dreary wintry night,
While we dance in the dazzling lights?"

'Tis thus the rich of the land will talk;
But think not they're prompted great,
That the harrowing stories ye laugh at within,
Fall bleak on the poor at your gate!

They have blood in their veins are pure as thine,
But nought to quicken its flow.—
They have limbs that feel the whistling gale,
And shrink from the driving snow,

Winter is coming, on think ye great,
On the roofless naked and old.
Deal with them kindly as man with man,
And spare them a tithe of your gold.

Literature.

THE ELOPEMENT.
BY THE AUTHORESS OF "TALES OF THE HEATH," "JEVENILE TRAVELLER," ETC.

Charles Lisle had doubtless fallen desperately in love with the fair daughter of his host whose sensitive heart did not allow her long to remain insensible to the inspiring passion, she listened to the warm protestations of her lover, who, changing his disposition with a right hand round the vista of his future prospects, possessed of an ardent mind and fervent imagination.

Lisle indulged in the most fascinating views of future happiness and glory, to which Matilda listened with a fascination resembling enchantment.

Memory could not present to her any moment of her life, that had been fraught with such pure, such entire, such unalloyed felicity, as she had experienced in the society of her beloved ensign, to think of any future operation was quite impossible; her heart which she believed could not err in its dictates pointed out the impossibility of living without him, nor could she imagine that her father, who had never opposed her wishes, however trifling, would on a matter of so vast importance to her happiness offer the least obstacle to the request Lisle was about to make in soliciting the hand of his daughter, when he would be assured that her future felicity entirely depended upon his consent.

The young soldier, however, was not quite so sanguine; he foresaw there might be many difficulties to surmount, one, not the least of the number was that he had no fortune. And could the pay of an ensign afford to support a wife in the comfort and respectability to which he had ever been accustomed? Alas! that was impossible. It was almost equally impossible that he could solicit from the Major a loan, for which in reality he could hold out no pledge, or security of being able to repay it. What could he therefore expect but a positive refusal, which must annihilate all his hopes, and destroy that phantom of happiness which, like an ignis-fatuous, was leading him into an abyss of painful and contending struggles.

Lisle told his fair mistress that it was impossible to make application to her father on the subject of their marriage—every day's news brought to his imagination fresh difficulties which could not be surmounted, and to which he was sure the Major could never be prevailed upon to yield.

There is, therefore, my dear Matilda, but one road to our happiness, which is immediate elopement—the marriage once over your father will no longer contend with what he cannot prevent, but, upon your supplication will forgive and bless our union."

"I would rather ask his consent myself Lisle," replied the trembling girl. "I never committed any act of importance without his knowledge, and I am sure he will not refuse anything on which my happiness so much depends."

"Alas! my beloved Matilda" continued Lisle," you do not see the insurmountable difficulties which would present themselves to your father's imagination, and which would certainly urge him to oppose our union; but the marriage once over, the natural affection of his heart towards you, his darling child, would prompt him to pardon and receive you to his paternal bosom, whose feelings are too pure and generous to engender any resentment—then we will together throw ourselves at his feet, our mutual tears and prayers will move, I am sure prove unavailing;—if you consent to my proposal dearest, you make me the happiest man upon, but your refusal will at once condemn me to misery, and banish me from your presence forever. Yes, my Matilda, for ever! Can you consent to never see me more or will you become my happy bride, my darling wife"

The last appeal, and the energetic manner in which it was expressed had the desired effect. With a fevered pulse, tearful eye, and trembling hand, the agitated girl bent her forehead on the palpitating breast of her lover, and sobbed aloud: "O, yes, dearest Lisle, I must and will be your wife! Although I feel the most painful reluctance in becoming so without the consent of my dear and kind father, but, should he be a little angry at first, he surely will soon forgive and restore me to his love, for, dear as the happiness of my husband will ever be to me, the displeasure of that excellent parent would be overwhelming: I could not, I think exist, knowing that I had inflicted an irrecoverable wound in his generous and noble heart."

The eloquent protestations of love from Lisle quickly dispelled all gloomy apprehensions on the part of Matilda, who, having once given her consent, offered no opposition to the preparations suggested by the young ensign, to effect their immediate elopement.

A few days subsequent to this arrangement the Major dined with his late brother officers at their mess, to meet some persons of distinction who were to be at the party that day. This was too favourable an opportunity for Lisle to let pass; he could not consistently absent himself from the dinner table but no sooner was the cloth removed than he contrived to make his escape, having previously engaged with Matilda to meet him at the end of the shrubbery, in the front from the residence of Captain Brown, where he had a post chaise in readiness to convey them on the route towards Gretna, Green, where so many had tied the irrevocable knot, which, to their sorrow could never be unloosed.

It must be confessed that it was with a trembling and a somewhat irresolute step that Matilda quitted her father's roof, before doing which she rivetted for a few seconds into his study, and there in the fervor of her heart breathed a prayer for the happiness of that parent whom she was about secretly to desert and who, for her sake, had lived a life of almost perfect recumbent, forsaking the world, its allurements and pleasures. Looking only for the reward in this life, which her happiness and society could afford him, mingled with feelings the most consolatory to his own heart, that he had religiously and conscientiously discharged his parental duties and that in the most kind and affectionate manner.—Alas! how great the disappointment to his cherished hopes remains to be shown.

Upon the table in her father's study Matilda had left a note, addressed to that beloved parent, to explain the cause of her absence, and to claim pardon for the undutiful act that had ever cast a blemish on her life. She intreated him to pardon, and to permit her to return to that home which would ever be dearer to her than any other spot upon earth. Having performed what she considered would be an amelioration to the act she was about to commit, she turned and quitted the apartment but with painful emotion, her eyes bathed with tears, her limbs trembling with an agitation that almost forbade their use, and frequently obliged her to cling to some article of furniture for support.

In a state of mind approaching the most painful indecis on, if, even at the eleventh hour, she should yield all her hopes of future happiness to a sense of duty towards her beloved parent, and her kind brother, the latter of whom she had never forgotten in her struggle of feeling. Her tearful eye rested on a clock which stood over the study, and saw that the appointed hour for meeting had with in five minutes expired. She had no longer time for consideration, her affection for her betrothed surmounted every other impulse, forgot all in the moment. She snatched up a little parcel containing a trifling change of apparel, and throwing on her bonnet and cloak, hastened through the most retired walks to the spot of assignation, where Lisle had

Sir Archibald Alison on the War.

We have been much gratified by the perusal of a speech delivered recently at Glasgow by the eminent historian Sir Archibald Alison. The subject was one which found a response in every heart, viz: the raising of subscriptions for the relief of the widows and orphans of those gallant men who have fallen in the contest with Russia. He said, I am sure nothing more is needed than the announcement of that object, to recommend it to such a meeting as that which I now address; and I feel assured that Glasgow, on this great national and interesting occasion will not forfeit that high name which she has always gained when objects of national importance or suffering were to be administered to. The Queen has appealed to her subjects on this occasion, and has herself headed the subscription, appealing on the ground which she well knew would be responded to—the justice and the necessity of war. (Cheers.) While we are engaged in a contest with one of the greatest and most powerful empires in the world, we have the satisfaction of thinking that we avoided the contest as long as it could be done with safety—that we did not draw the sword till it was evident that it could not be kept in the scabbard without dishonour.—(Cheers.) If we had allowed that great Power which already overshadows all the east of Europe, to go on for another quarter of a century as it has done for the last century and a half, allowing up kingdom after kingdom, province after province, harbour after harbour, fortress after fortress, it is easy to see that the time is not far distant when the danger would roll to our own shores, when our independence and liberty would be menaced, not as now, by an enemy of seventy millions but by an enemy having alliances of one hundred and forty millions; and ere long we would be compelled to fight in defence of our homes and hearths on our own shores, and possibly the fate which is now befalling Sebastopol would be our own, and we should be seeing our streets obstructed by dead bodies unburied, as well as the air tainted by corpses around us. (Cheers.)—As such was the necessity of the war into which we have been reluctantly driven by the magnitude of the danger which threatened not less our national independance than the fortune and happiness of every individual in the community, it surely is not with us good reason that the Queen reckoned upon the patriotism of her subjects at home who are protected by the valor of their brethren abroad, to provide for the losses which war may occasion. (Cheers.) Eight months have hardly elapsed since the heart of the country beat responsive to the military music of regiments departing from this city as well another, and already in that short period of less than eight months, the warm anticipations of all have been realized. The arms of England, Scotland and Ireland have sustained their ancient well earned reputation, and our streets have resounded with the note of triumph and exultation at the renewed glories of our arms. (Cheers.) Well all have distinguished themselves—while England, Scotland and Ireland have been animated only by the generous rivalry, which shall best discharge its duties, and maintain their high archives of military fame, it might be invidious to speak of any particular; but in this country, and in this city, I may be allowed to say, that the Scotch Regiments have not degenerated from their ancient character—(loud cheers)—that in the very first action which occurred, when our soldiers went into battle aim at all of whom had never seen a shot fired in anger—when for the first time they were called upon to charge, the Highland brigade on the left of the Guards took part in the decisive charge on the height of Alma. (Renewed cheering.) And already, this very day, we see through the dimness of our telegraphic intelligence that the Scotch, in a moment of difficulty, have well sustained their ancien reputation; for when the Turkish army was thrown into confusion by the overwhelming Russian attack, and lost the redoubt entrusted to them the Scotch Regiments stood firm. It was they who gained time for succor to come up, and when succor came up and turned the fate of the contest, it was headed by our Scotch Greys, and the 4th Dragoon Guards (immense cheering.)—Well did Napier lead on the field of Waterloo, "C'a terrible cheaux gris comme il brillent." (renewed cheers.) And I assure that when the official despatches come, it will be found that that noble regiment has well sustained the reputation which began at Blenheim, and was rendered more illustrious at Waterloo. (Renewed cheers.) And in the same telegraphic despatch we read that our gallant allies have maintained their world wide reputation tha Sebastopol will henceforth be numbered with Copenhagen and Algiers, and that the Agamemnon led the European host as gallantly as ever did the king of men at the siege of Troy.—(Cheers.) There are many of our older citizens who will remember another subscription as I do, many will recollect that subscription for the sufferers from Waterloo amounting in a short time to £500,000. I trust that this subscription will amount to double that sum, for the resources of the country are now more than double what they then were, and the necessity of the case was more than triple what it was then. The country has increased more than half in population since that time—the wealth is more than triple—so that £500,000 then would not be more than £1,500,000 now. And in the necessity of the case is considered, it is still more trying. Great as was the battle of Waterloo—pacific as was the blood thereupon shed, it was yet the last battle of a great and sanguinary and momentary contest. The Temple of Janus was shut when the cannon of Waterloo ceased to resound; but we are met today to provide assistance not for those who suffered from a battle that terminates a struggle of twenty years; but one that commences a struggle in a war that may last for twenty years. And let us recollect how great the obligation which lies upon us to animate the spirit of our soldiers and our population, in a contest of which no man can see the limit. Suppose Sebastopol is taken,—that to-morrow we get the intelligence of its downfall, what will follow probably but a winter campaign in the Crimea or the South of Turkey, and what then will be the fate of our gallant soldiers? How truly then will their condition be described by the words of the Poet—

Oh! winds of winter, list ye there,
To many a deep and dying groan;
Or start ye demons of the midnight air,
At shrieks and thunder louder than your own?

Alas! even your unhallowed breath
Will spare the victims fallen low
But man will ask no truce to death,
No bounds to human woe.

Music is the magnitude and difficulty of the contest on which we are entering, we yet have great sources of consolation, we enter into the struggle with a population a half greater, and resources three times what we had before. And what is most important too we enter on it not alone, but with a great, gallant, and powerful nation standing by our side, which we have learned to respect, and which has learned to respect us on many a well-debated field. (Great cheering.)—There is a beautiful expression of the French historian of the Revolution applicable to our relation to our gallant allies.—How often would enemies the most direct rate be appeased if they could meet and reach other's hearts." The English and French have met and reached each other's hearts; they have met under the shadow of the tent; and each nation has seen in the other the strongest respect, the highest admiration of the qualities for which they are distinguished, and may last while ever they have glorious of national enmity and animosity. (Cheers.) And this alliance is not the less firm and full of promise that it is found on the respect gained a opposition. The respect of the English and French for each other is not of recent origin. Our contests for a century and a half were founded less on motive apprehension, than on a feeling of military honor. They more nearly resembled those contests in the tournament, when the Knights contended for the prize of honor and beauty; and so strongly prevalent felt that in the Peninsular war it pervaded all ranks of the army; and it is illustrated in the fact, as any of the officers will tell you, that the outposts never fired on each other, that they often met in friendly intercourse, that they often shared the soldiers' meal, and even shared the soldiers' bed, without either party requiring their duty in the field. And on the memorable field of Talavera, when the two armies wearied with slaughter, reposed on the banks of the same stream, the foemen drank in peace out of the same fountain, held their hands across the water and shook hands, and laid the foundation in blood and carnage of that mutual respect and good feeling now realized in defence of the liberties of Europe (Great cheering). And now, like the Douglass and Percy, together they may feel confident against the world in arms. (Loud cheers.) When such are the feelings of two great and gallant nations for each other, nothing is wanting but a common ground and a common object to which their united efforts may be directed; and that ground has been found in the struggle for the independence of Europe, and that object of common sympathy in repelling the usurpation of the Emperor of Russia. Gentlemen, we are not met on this occasion to do an act of charity; we are not met to acknowledge and discharge a debt; a debt of honor which must be paid. Let it not be said it is a debt of the Government; it is a debt of the people, and they feel and discharge it as such. [Cheers.] If discharged by the Government it would lose half its usefulness by losing all its grace. (Loud cheers.) We have all read in some of those eloquent and graphic accounts of the battle of the Alma, written by private soldiers, but which any professional writer might envy—[loud cheers.]—that nothing cheers them so much in their hardships as in reading our English papers and receiving news from home. They are cheered amidst all the hardships and dangers of war by seeing that their countrymen sympathize, that they exult at their valour and mourn at their sufferings.

What then will be their feelings when they read on the rented field, or amidst the mournful and trying scenes of the hospitals, accounts of this and similar meetings held in their behalf; when they see that those for whom they have shed their blood are not unmindful of the obligation which they have incurred; that they will show their gratitude in words as well as deeds; that their widows will not be comfortless, if their children are orphans they will be adopted by their country. [Cheers.] Let us hope that from this meeting will arise a spirit which shall penetrate every town and village and hamlet of the land; and that from the "blue hills which they have loved so well" shall descend a mingled stream of enthusiasm and gratitude which shall render our defenders, as they deserve to be invincible. (Enthusiastic cheers.) I rejoice to think that, on this occasion, the subscriptions are munificently entered upon. You have hear that the Corporation has subscribed £500, and I understand that the firm of the Messrs. Baird subscribed the same sum. The Messrs. Napier have subscribed £200 and their workmen the same. Several others have subscribed with equal munificence, and I trust I shall hear a realization of that which the Messrs. Napier's subscription promises, viz: a sum of all ranks and parties, from the most opulent, in defence of that common object which must appeal to the hearts of every generation of men [cheers.]—Ib.

China.

From the Correspondent of the Times.

Hong Kong, Sept. 27.

The mail of the 9th of August arrived here on the 19th inst., one of the quickest passages on record.

We have but meagre news to report this month, the principal matter of interest is the departure, since the 11th inst., of the three Plenipotentiaries for Shanghai—His Excellency Sir John Bowring as Mons. Bourboulon in Her Majesty's steamer Rattler on the 15th, and His Excellency Mr McLane in the Powhatan on the 20th. The arrangement of the duty question, and the revision of the treaty, it is said, will occupy their immediate attention. Any attempt to proceed to the Peiho would be attended with loss of time and difficulty, owing to the north-east monsoon having set in.

Political affairs at Canton have again assumed a threatening aspect. The rebels are in force a little distance from the city, and fighting going forward, and also down the river. Pashan continues in possession of the rebels. There appears to prospect of amendment in the present state of affairs.

There is no trade except in rice. Teas do not come down, and the two weeks' loading find difficulty in completing their cargoes. Piracies on the river are frequent and the mail boat was seized a few days ago and all the letters carried off.

Our dates from Shanghai are of the 13th inst.

We have no news of a political nature to report.

Shipments of tea and silk going forward, and the latter advancing in price.

No demand for imports.

Freights falling from an over supply of shipping.

Nothing heard of the British Admiral since he sailed from Woosung on the 25th, supposed for Japan; and no reports about the Russian squadron.

Our dates from Nonchan are to the 16th.

All was quiet and the export of tea going on freely.

His Excellency Sir John Bowring's late visit has not been attended with the expected success.

The Mandarins make great difficulties in the settlement for ground for which the natives ask extravagant prices.

We earn from Amoy under date the 21st inst. that the insurgents were collecting near them.

The Government had lately been successful in dispersing a body of them in the interior.

Trade was going on actively, and the city was quiet.

Around Namoa the rebels were in force harassing the town and the small villages in the neighborhood.

Pirates are swarming and very bold on the coast, and no attempt made to keep them down.

A merchant ship of 400 tons bound to Foochow, was recently attacked three times by them, and escaped by running before the wind.

There is constant apprehension of some fearful tragedy taking place.

The sickness in the garrison continues, but is slightly on the decrease.

In harbor, Her Majesty's ship Spartan and United States sloop Macedonia.

THE LATE EUROPEAN NEWS.

The London Correspondent of the N. Y. Times, thus comments on the late news from the Crimea:

The news from the Crimea for the past few days is of the most disastrous character. It produced the deepest and most painful impression on the public mind. Curses of the ministry of Lord Aberdeen and of the Austrian alliance are heard everywhere. Ministers are in a state of the greatest alarm. The people are calling for the assembling of Parliament, but ministers shrink from meeting a Legislature on it there is better news from the seat of war. The belief, however is prevailing that, unless the army in the Crimea is largely reinforced or the loss of a day it will be exterminated. Lord Raglan has sent the most urgent demands for reinforcements. I fear they may arrive too late. The Russians are swarming into the Crimea, and the courage with which they fight has surprised, all especially after Omar Pacha on the Danube. That General's Danubian campaign is only beginning to be appreciated. It is growing in brightness in contrast with the failure of the Allies in the Crimea.

There are among military men serious doubts of the capacity of the allied commanders. They are losing more men before Sebastopol by their slow operations than they would have lost had they carried the place by assault before the Russians recovered from the defeat at Alma, and were strengthened by Liprandi's and Luder's reinforcements. I have heard some old veterans laugh at the helplessness of the fleets, and at Lord Raglan's idea of taking marines to man the batteries on shore. They say Lord Nelson with such a fleet would have sunk the Russian ships in the harbor long ago.

The blame however, of the unfortunate turn which the war has taken, is thrown upon the ministers, and should Austria prove treacherous, and the Crimea expedition end in the ruin of the allied army, popular revolution in both France and England may be the consequence. The French press and people are silenced, but Louis Napoleon, I have reason to know, is losing ground rapidly. If Sebastopol is not taken, look out for stirring news—another revolution in Paris, a republic and a return of the exiled Orleans.

REINFORCEMENTS.

That the army in the Crimea ought to be reinforced will be doubted by no one who considers the ordinary wear and tear of war. What we fear is, that the reinforcements may not be worthy of the occasion, and equal to the emergency. Let us look at this matter for a moment from a merely selfish point of view, and regard the question as it concerns the interests of "those gentlemen of England who live at home at ease." If not as a belligerent at any rate as a commercial nation, we are deeply interested that the war into which we are plunged should as soon as possible be brought to a victorious conclusion. Any amount of success some years hence, will be dearly purchased by the immediate waste of our treasure, the distraction of the public mind from the course of progress and improvement, and the imminent peril of lighting up a conflagration which may involve the whole world in flames.

To succeed at Sebastopol is effectually to stop the onward march of Russia to the South and roll back to the Caucasus and the Dnieper the tide of invasion which so lately threats not to meet on the shores of the Hellespont, after sweeping over Mount Haemus on the one hand, and mount Taurus on the other. To fail is to lose the fruit of an enterprise hitherto the boldest and most fortunate the world has yet seen, to expose our army to serious peril, to lower the reputation of our own arms, and to raise the prestige which already sheds an exaggerated lustre over the name of Russia. Granting that our present force by land and sea is equal to the reduction of Sebastopol, which we fully believe, we have much more to do before we can assure our position as a footing in the Crimea, and the advanced period of the season may compel that promptitude of action which is forced to redeem irretrievable loss by a lavish expenditure of human life. Under such circumstances, it is better to do too much than too little, and we should have less reason to regret sending 10,000 men too many to the Crimea, than a single man too few.—Ib.

CRITICAL POSITION OF THE ALLIES.

In the present position of affairs in the Crimea attention is due to the operations of General Liprandi. This General, at the head of the field army of the Russians, is evidently charged with attacking the allies in their own position, and of achieving, if possible, such successes as would compel us to raise the siege of Sebastopol, and provide for our own security. It is now clear that the combat of the 26th which cost us such deplorable loss of life, was the first movement in this direction. Prince Menschikoff, in reporting the results to his Imperial master, expressly says, "Our offensive operations commenced to-day"—words which plainly indicate the commencement of a regularly concerted scheme of action. It is upon this scheme, in fact, that the hope of the Russians now mainly rests. Though the operations of the siege as shown in Lord Raglan's despatch of the 18th, are attended with difficulties of the most extraordinary character, little doubt seems to have been felt in any quarter but that Sebastopol must eventually fall, unless relieved by an army from without.

The only hope of safety for the besieged consists in the development of the besieging forces our trenches can be kept open and our artillery in full play, shot and shell will do their work, but if our own position is forced, or turned, Sebastopol may obtain a respite. A to Russians have a large order of troops disposable and the moment our fire is completely open, they possess every facility for executing the plan attributed to, and the duty seems to have been confided to General Liprandi. His operations, therefore, means something more considerable than a mere diversion, their object being nothing less than the expulsion of the allies from their camp before the place, nor is it improbable, as one of the latest reports announces, that a battle will be fought with the Russian number Liprandi, before Sebastopol is stormed."—Ib.

GROWTH OF THE WAR.

Every week adds to the probabilities that the war on which we have entered will gradually involve other nations, until it is transformed into a European war, and the primary object for which it was undertaken is lost amid the conflicting and varied interests which will be imperceptibly introduced.—Grave difficulties will require to be encountered very speedily, and it is not to our advantage that these should, in the meantime, be passed over with indifference. Russia is almost unassailable unless on her sea coast. Austria is a bad ally, but we suppose her friendship is now unavoidable. To all appearances she will speedily cast off her neutrality, and range herself on the side of England and France, but the result of this will complicate matters still further, and eventually leave in the various states of Germany being compelled to choose a side in the great and arduous conflict.

These parties who expect that the Emperor of Russia will speedily succumb under the influence of defeat are under a great mistake. They forget his dignified position as well as his imperious temper. The history of the various conquests which his predecessors have gained without even experiencing any permanent disaster, is deeply rooted in his memory, and he will not consent to be the first to submit of the long line of successful rulers who have extended the empire to its present enlarged boundaries. To yield would be too humbling a position for him to occupy. To fight to the last he is fully determined. Depreciatory as the attempts have been to represent him as impoverished and possessing an empty treasury, so far as the war has hitherto been conducted, there has been no evidence of diminished resources, nor inefficiency of means. We have taken his products as usual and paid for them with the exception, that our transactions in place of being direct, have been conducted through Prussian merchants, and shipped from Prussian seaports. Though the trade in the Baltic may have been annihilated, it still has been carried on as usual in another direction and with as great a profit, considering that Russian produce of all descriptions has been so much enhanced in value.

It must be apparent to most that we cannot have a brief war, and that the probabilities of its continuance are becoming everyday stronger. The war clouds are darkening all around us, and as the horizon becomes more and more outspread with them we cannot reasonably expect a speedy return of peace. It appears to partake of the elements of an Irish row, where the combatants, who at first are single and alone, are both speedily joined by others, until all become interested in its result. Eventually it must result in giving a severe blow to the domination of Russia, and while depriving her of power will also restrain her from all future attempts at aggrandisement, which she pursued so perseveringly for the last two centuries.—Glasgow Examiner, Nov. 4

Meeting of Congress.

Congress met yesterday. Mr. Cass was elected President of the Senate pro tem.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The following is a synopsis of the message:

The President surveys the condition of the country, and finds reason for thankfulness in almost everything. Foreign affairs next engage his attention; he leaves transAtlantic nations to regulate their affairs, but demands exemption from annoying interference, he sees no reason why other States expanding their territories should look with jealousy on our expansion. He next dwells on our rights as neutrals, and states what has been done in the matter, with Russia, Prussia has renunciated Privateering, which the President advises Congress not to grant; nations with but small navies cannot give up that right against large nations with powerful fleets. The President then recites the history of the British Reciprocity Treaty, and recommends rescinding duties on fish.—That the boundary line between the United States and Great Britain in the Mosquito Country be settled. A Commission is recommended to run it. We have also difficulties with the Hudson's Bay and Puget Sound Companies. Next the San Francisco Consular difficulty with the French is dwelt upon. Then the Soule difficult, and Correspondence thereon, is set forth briefly, and kindly towards France. Spain is handled tenderly. Not a single word is said of Cuba. The Black Warrior affair negotiations are going on, and the President hopes for an arrangement of all difficulties, with the new Ministry. The President thinks Denmark should have notice of an end to the existing treaty. The Japan expedition and treaty is briefly alluded to. Forays on Mexico from San Francisco are spoken of in a condemnatory way. Our claims upon Mexico are numerous and pressing; but the embarrassment of the Government forbids anything at present. He is anxious to maintain friendly relations with Mexico. The La Plata is open by treaty, but not the Amazon. He hopes Brazil will agree to open that River. Travel for our people through Central America is very important for us to keep unobstructed and free. The difficulty about the construction of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty is briefly alluded to. Mr. Buchanan has not yet found it possible to bring the negotiations to a termination. The Greytown business is dwelt upon at more length; the people there are spoken of as adventurers, repudiating control of any Government. The conduct of Minister Borland and Capt. Hollins is vindicated. He expresses assemblages receive hard hits. The President adds that the firing into and burning of the town have been subjects of complaint by foreign nations. He says nothing of paying damages next session on the Fijiniere. The receipts next year are to exceed expenditure £15,000,000—surplus revenue to be used in reducing the public debt. The annual revenue exceeds by millions the amount needed for a prudent administration of Government.—Renews a recommendation for a reduction of duties on imports, and recommends laws of a more stringent character for the preservation of Government records and papers. He urges an increase of military forces on the Indian frontiers, particularly for the protection of overland emigrants to California; said increase to consist of four regiments of Infantry and Rangers, and one regiment of Artillery. Also recommends an increase of payment of officers of the army. The attention of Congress is invited to a recommendation in the Secretary of the Navy for more ample provision for the discipline and improvement of the Navy. He calls attention to an increase of the Navy. Marine steamers of the past year are dwelt on, and he suggests an arrangement to encourage a better class of seamen to enter the merchant service; laws for the better discipline of the same are also requested. The expenditure of the Post Office Department is found to exceed the receipts by nearly $3,000,000. He next exhorts Congress to be cautious in voting grants of land for Railroad purposes; thinks it better to leave the Railroad schemes to private enterprise, and co-operation of individual states. Reforms in the judiciary are necessary. In conclusion, the President enjoins Congress to bear in mind the necessity of being prepared for every emergency. Emphasis is laid on the importance of maintaining foreign relations and the cultivation of friendship with foreign powers, refraining from interfering with domestic affairs of foreign nations.

Sir John Franklin and his Crew Found.

ALBANY, Sunday Evening.

The Lake Superior Morning News of the 27th ult., says: "By private letters we learn that the bodies of Sir John Franklin and part of his crew have been found by Dr. Kane's Exploring Expedition, perfectly preserved. From our authority we have every reason to believe it to be true."

BUFFALO, Dec. 5.

Schooner R. R. Johnson, loaded with wheat, ran ashore yesterday.

The Fairport broke in two and went down with all hands, eight in number.

ACCIDENT ON ROCK ISLAND RAILROAD.—The regular train which left the city at 11 o'clock on Tuesday evening, came in collision at Blue Island station with the passenger train on the Chicago and Mississippi Railroad, one hour and 12 o'clock on Tuesday night. Were it not for the presence of mind of a switch tender who saw the down train approaching at tremendous speed, and who consequently did not turn off the up train as usual, the consequences might have been fearful. As it was, the trains came together and the locomotives were badly smashed.—The cars, being unlocked by the shock, were not damaged. The engineers of both trains are missing.—Chicago Democrat.

Destructive Conflagration.

Yesterday afternoon, between two and three o'clock, a fire broke out in the engine room of the Propeller Invincible, which belongs to the Buffalo and Brantford Railway, and which was lying alongside of the Frontier Mills at Black Rock, the fire spread with fearful rapidity, and in a few minutes the boat was enveloped in flames from stem to stern. The fire communicated to the Frontier Mills. The propeller was then cut loose from her moorings, and floated down the river—a sheet of raging fire. She took direction for the Canada side, and when she had reached a point on that shore about a mile and a half below the landing, she burned to the water's edge and sunk, nearly a total loss. She was valued at some $30,000, and insured for $20,000.

The fire in the mill spread rapidly throughout its various stories, and before aid could be obtained it was entirely consumed, together with some 6,000 bushels of wheat. The flour in the mill was principally saved. The mill was owned by Harvey Ely, Esq., of Rochester. It had been leased and worked by M. Barnum, Esq., during the last season and up to the present time. The mill is valued at some $40,000, and we learn is well insured. Our firemen were on the ground as early as possible, but not in time to save property. The loss of the Propeller is a serious one to the Buffalo and Brantford Railroad Company, but its place will be promptly filled with a craft that will run over the waters of the Road for the present.—Buffalo Exp

CHIEF JUSTICE ROBINSON.—On the 21st ult. the Benchers of Upper Canada, headed by the Hon. R. Baldwin, presented an address of congratulation to Sir John Beverly Robinson, Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, on his receiving the honor of baronetage. Congratulations were also offered to Mr. Justice Draper and the hon. Robert Baldwin, on their receiving the Companionship of the order of the Bath at the hands of Her Majesty.

Cheap Ice House.

The following plan of a cheap and convenient ice house—one which every farmer can afford to have—was furnished to the Rural New Yorker, by Mr. E. Mabee, of Onondaga county.

Make a box eight feet square, by nailing hemlock plank, which are two inches thick on to hemlock scantling. Let one side of the box be seven feet high, and the side directly opposite ten feet high. This gives a roof eight feet long, with a slant of three feet. It is well to have the roof boards extend over the sides of the box. Double boarding with hemlock make a sufficient roof. Set this box on the top of the ground, in a dry and shady place where no surface water will accumulate.—No planks are needed on the bottom of the box, but sawdust must be placed on the ground inside the box, to the depth of one foot, and over this place loose boards for the ice to lie upon. Cut the cakes of ice two feet square, and build a tower of ice six feet square in the centre of your box, (or ice-house we will now call it it,) by laying the cakes compactly together, and filling all crevices with sawdust, as you proceed.

We have now a six feet cubic ice, with a space of one foot all around between the ice and planks. Fill the space with sawdust, and cover the ice three inches deep with the same, and you have ice enough secured to last a family through the season. The upper three feet of the side which is ten feet high should not be boarded up, but left for ventilation, and a place of access to the ice, and this aperture may be enlarged as convenience may require while using the ice, and for more conveniently filling in. About 800 feet of lumber will be required, and the mere trouble in the use of tools can make it. Fresh sawdust is best, but it may be used a second winter. The dust can easily be washed off at the time of using.

Provincial,

Departure of Lord Elgin.

The following is the reported speech of Lord Elgin delivered by him in presence of 6 or 700 persons, assembled at a Farewell entertainment at Spencer Wood.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—I am not now about to give a toast, for since I have resided at Spencer Wood, I have made it an invariable rule not to propose toasts after supper, a course from which, on the present occasion, I see no reason to depart, but before I drink to you all the bumper which I hold in my hands, I would wish to address you a few words,—these cannot, I regret to say, be in the strain I have hitherto been wont to employ, or in that which best befits a scene of festivity like the present, for my heart is heavy! feeling that I this night stand before you for the last time in my official capacity. It is, I assure you, with feelings of sorrow that I part from all of you whom I have met so often in this lovely residence, and which I have been so long accustomed to look upon as my home. Indeed at one time I began to think I had made some great mistake in the course I had taken as regards leaving Canada;—it was the sultry day last June, when from my return from England I landed at the Cove lying below, for it being Sunday I was unwilling to proceed through the city, and was riding up the hill I met the people in this place and received their kind salutations, and as I drove through the surrounding avenues, every tree whereof seemed familiar to me, I did then think that perhaps I had done wrong—I thought then that I should like much to live not far from you, but on one never spot which had also been my home—Quebec, and from its Pointe à Pizon, for there on a Summer's day I love to sit and watch the shipping on the bosom of the river, to see the ships sailing on the hills which cross the banks on either side, and to gaze on the Laurentine mountains, which stretch away in the far distance. I have endeavored, ladies and Gentlemen, in the meetings at times I have gathered together at Spencer Wood, that I might consider that of responsible should on this ground at least be on equal terms. I have endeavored during my administration faithfully to do only to all and to give no one—There may, however, under these circumstances say all I would, but this much I may state, without breach of delicacy or decorum, that many years ago, when I was younger than I am now, I learned to look upon Sir Edmund Head with great respect, and that I know him to be a gentleman of high character and ability. In the future he may, and most probably will, meet with his difficulties as I have, but were there none to encounter the career would not be one worthy of his position. I now, ladies and gentlemen, shall drain this glass to its last drop, and say with sorrow—Farewell—God bless you all.

After the manifestations of feeling which greeted this beautiful speech, (so imperfectly we fear reported by us,) had subsided, Sir Edmund Head briefly said that although the Governor General had made it his rule not to give toasts after supper, he should be obliged to begin by an act of insubordination which would be to propose the health of Lord Elgin himself. He said that succeeding the noble lord, he can see before them under a great disadvantage, for he could scarcely hope to have the same field open to him.

This toast was received with immense enthusiasm and drunk with all the honors, Lord Elgin in reply saying that he was indebted to Sir Edmund for having provoked so gratifying a response to his appeal.

An adjournment was made to the Ball room where dancing was prosecuted with renewed vigor.

Mr. Turcotte, M. P. P., subsequently in the Ball Room, spoke in French expressing the deep regret which his compatriotes entertained at the approaching departure of Lord Elgin.

The guests now paid their adieu and wended their way homewards.

☞ It is supposed that a vessel name unknown, has been destroyed by fire on Lake Huron, near Goderich. The Huron Signal of the 30th ult., says:—"We are informed by a gentleman, who arrived here yesterday from Kincardine, that when at Pine River, about 22 miles north of Goderich, at about 12 o'clock p. m. on Monday last, he, in company with several other persons, saw a vessel on fire, apparently but a few miles from the shore. Our informant thinks from the fierceness of the flames and the rapidity with which the vessel was destroyed, that she must have been laden with whiskey. She sank in about thirty or 40 minutes after the flames were first seen. The wind was blowing in shore at the time and the lake was exceedingly rough.

A HINT FOR THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.—The loss of life and the many injuries resulting from carelessness and mismanagement on the part of those having charge of Railroads, within the past year, is awakening the attention of the public; and suggestions are being made as to the proper means of preventing such occurrences. It should be made a penal offence on the part of the directors, and superintendent of a railway and the conductor of a train, to suffer an accident causing loss of life in their line. The burthen of disproving negligence should rest upon them; in all cases of accident the law should presume mismanagement.

At first sight it may seem harsh and oppressive to throw the burden of proving diligence attention and proper care on the companies and their employees: But, after all, the knowledge of what has been done to make the running of the trains safe, and the lives of passengers secure from danger, is confined almost entirely to the directors superintendents and agents of those companies. The proofs is in their hands, while the injured passengers have no means of knowing what has been done, or what has been neglected. The safety of the travelling public seems to demand some change in the law.—Buffalo Express.

ACCIDENT.—William Brass a young man employed on the Hamilton and Toronto railway, about six miles from this city was killed on Friday by portion of an embankment falling upon him, an inquest was held by Coroner Bull.

Navigation.

Most of the boats on the Lake are now laid up for the winter, and those that are running can with difficulty ply between the respective ports with safety. The Peerless left Toronto for Niagara on Monday last, and had to return again without being able to enter the river, so furious was the storm.

ARRIVAL OF THE "UNION."

ANOTHER BATTLE FOUGHT.

New York, Dec. 9th, 1854.

The U. S. Steam-ship Union, Capt. Adamson, arrived last night at 10 o'clock bringing 4 days later news from Europe having left Havre on the 21st ult., and Southampton on the 22nd.

The U. S. Steamer Washington arrived off Cowes on her way to Bremen on the 19th.—The Cunard Steamer Niagara, from Boston and Halifax reached Liverpool on the same day.

WAR NEWS.

The despatch of reinforcements to the seat of war continued without interruption.

Every available steamship was taken up by Government for the purpose, and it is stated in the London Times that the British Government is now paying at the rate of 3 millions of pounds sterling per annum, for the charter of steamers alone, besides the cost of fuel.

The alarm in England seems to be subsiding as to the position of the allied armies in the Crimea.

A winter campaign in the Crimea will evidently take place, and wooden barracks for 20,000 men are being shipped by the British Government.

A despatch from Balaklava of the 7th Nov. received in Vienna states that reinforcements were arriving at the rate of 6,000 men per day and both armies had completed their third parrallels, which were connected together by means of a trench.

The allies were obliged to form counter mines.

The Russian news state that the allies having received considerable reinforcements on the 6th, 7th, and 8th, made a demonstration against the left flank of the Russians.

The latter retired from the plateau to the right bank of the Schernaun.

Prince Gortschakoff, the garrison of Kichenoff had marched to Odessa.

Prince Paskiewitch has ordered another corps of 20,000 men to the Crimea.

A despatch from Prince Menschikoff Sebastopol Nov. 12, states that at that date the bombardment continued.

The allies he said had not advanced in their operations since the 8th, and were still fortifying their lines on the rear of Balaklava.

General Liprandi was wounded on the 5th.

Further details of the battle of the 5th of November, called the battle of Inkerman, have been received by the arrival of the steamer Telemaque, at Marseilles.

They state that the attacking force of the Russians was 35,000.

The batteries were taken and retaken several times.

At noon the Russians made a sortie from Sebastopol against the French position, but were repulsed.

They were repulsed ultimately towards Kerman, after a bloody battle which lasted 8 hours.

Their loss was 9,000 killed and wounded.

General Canrobert was wounded. The English loss was very great: 38 officers were killed and 95 wounded, and 2 missing: 442 rank and file killed and 760 wounded, and 136 missing. The French had 1 general killed and 2 wounded; 11 officers killed and 41 wounded.

The Russians it is said fired on the wounded as well as on the detachments sent out to bury the dead on the 7th.

The Russians were pouring in in large masses from the North, and reinforcements were required.

The French accounts state that everything was prepared for the assault, but the allies had determined to postpone it until the arrival of reinforcements.

Prince Napoleon had left the camp owing to the state of his health.

The Duke of Cambridge was slightly wounded.

A despatch from Vienna states that the Russian General Gortschakoff had intimated to the Austrian Cabinet that Russia is willing to negotiate peace on the basis of the four guarantees.

Lord Raglan has been raised to the rank of Field Marshal. The regularity of promotion for distinguished merit has been carried into effect.

Lord Palmerston has arrived in Paris and has had daily interviews with the Emperor. Lord Dudley Stuart arrived at Stockholm Nov. 17th.

A despatch from Hamburg states that a Russian squadron of 14 steamers had made a reconnoissance as far as Dagoe, without encountering any war ships of the allies.

The London Times says, we have advices from Odessa, but they announce nothing new from the Crimea. It was concluded that up to the 14th nothing had occurred.

Menschikoff writing on the 19th, reports that the besiegers works were suspended, and their bombardment had almost ceased entirely on the 18th.

Napoleon's letter to the French troops in the Crimea, says, a powerful diversion is to be made in Bessarabia.

The main body of the British fleet was at Kiel on the 18th.

Cunard New York steamers were taken up by the government for war purposes.

Only the Boston Steamers will run during the winter. The Collins line has changed the day of departure to Saturday. The Pacific however, left on her regular day.

LONDON, FRIDAY, DEC'R. 15, 1854.

THE CLERGY RESERVES.

The measure for consummating the robbery of God's church, which will be a standing disgrace to the province, is now nearly completed; and the State is what Toronto University is—made to be a godless institution. A wretched pittance is indeed doled out in the shape of annual payments to present incumbents; but this arrangement is but the semblance of decency to hide, if possible, the frightful act of previous spoliation. To the endless shame of conservative churchmen, the robbery of the church has been completed; a belief, however, that this disposition of a matter which has agitated Canada for years would be final, induced very many who grieved at the very idea of such an act of violence, to feel thankful that rabid agitation in reference to religion, at least in Upper Canada, was at an end. The commutation clause was one that was assented to, as far as principle was concerned, by every Radical or Reformer who spoke or wrote upon the subject in public. But now, after the most ultra measures have been adopted concerning this church property, ere a nemenies of peace and prosperity are overcoming to move heaven and earth to prevent this matter from being even now set at rest, and are striving to commence an unholy crusade against the vestiges of that property which was given entire to the Church. Such men as George Brown and Wm. Lyon McKenzie would break faith with the venerable gentlemen, many of whom came to Canada years ago under the auspices and solemn pledges of the Government for their stipends and came in their old age upon the voluntary principle among a people unaccustomed to such arrangements. It is perfectly astonishing and disgusting to witness the base conduct of these persons in reference to this religious persecution, for it amounts to nothing else now. For years it was said, we care nothing about the amount of money which it takes to support your clergy from these lands, it is the principle of the thing in which we are concerned; it is with us a matter of conscience, for we do not believe that any one church should have the dominancy over the rest. Separate the Episcopal church from the State and our warfare is at an end. This has been done most completely, but the violence of the agitators continues. Formerly the Governor-General was the patron to the Rectories, and all the Rectors were appointed by the Crown; but to remove all scruples of conscience, and to show that the Church was not dependent upon the State for parochial arrangements, the Clergy besought and obtained her with the Church Society to become the patron; so that in this particular the State has no more to do with the appointment of the Church of England Ministers than it has with those of the Presbyterian or any other denomination. Yet the agitation against the Rectories never stopped until it was agreed that a court of chancery should, if possible, demand the church of these lands which were alienated and imposed when wild land was no such expence as now in Canada.

So, with regard to the payment of mortgages, if it was said "these can in no degree to settle all present demands and claims, make it but plain that there shall not been per, centre of such payments and we ask no more." The clergy, very much ought to have been sacredly kept for religious purposes, and which would have screened to every township in Canada or more settled settlings, has been unhesitatingly taken away and a possibility of future claimants upon it even can remove it, this whole thing, in fact, is completely secularized, and yet, after all this, the wretched demagogues, the destroyers of the peace of Canada, wish to actually deprive the bona fide laborers of his hire, and to rob the aged minister of the cross of his poor annual income. May the curse of God not rest upon Canada for the unholy conduct of these robbers of churches! The people of Canada will, however, not yield to the clamours of the designing demagogues of 1854. Enough of unprincipled agitation was enue of the town is large enough to meet the outlay. Local business demands a more penetrating and calculating consideration and attention than commercial companies, or a commercial establishment needs, and unless the income be so arranged as to exceed the outlay, bankruptcy is almost certain to ensue. One of the greatest bonds calculated to be of importance to the town and corporation is the journalistic publication of quarterly, half-yearly, and yearly returns showing the gross and net amounts of the local revenue, together with an explicit statement of the expenditure, both with respect to salaries and the usual details. The fact that a civil or town engineer receives a "per centage" upon the amount "of money" expended "upon the streets" seems rather impolitic. It is, however, difficult to decide how this "town engineer" relished the crossing on foot any of the streets in London before the present fall of snow. The apparently neglected state of the streets certainly had a direct tendency to impress on the mind of any stranger visiting London unfavourable opinions as to the efficiency of the corporation, more particularly the slovenly appearance of Richmond-street. Let every man be satisfied with the qualifications of the candidates before he records his vote

Yours truly, T.

To the Editor of the London, C.W., Times.

THE CLOSING OF STORES.

SIR,—I wish to call the attention of the public to a great evil which some of the storekeepers of London have of late fallen into, namely, the keeping of their stores open until 8 and half past every night during the week excepting Saturday, when it is nine, ten, or half-past before business stops, and the average rate of hours per week is something like 87. This is too bad, for it does not give young men the least chance for mental improvement or recreation. If storekeepers would come to a friendly understanding about closing their stores at a certain hour every night, excepting Saturday, it would be of great benefit to all parties connected with business. Half-past six or seven o'clock is long enough for stores to be kept open. There is plenty of time during the day to do business, and it is all nonsense to suppose that stores are kept open until a late hour every night for the convenience of the public.

Yours, &c., H.

At a meeting held in the 6th Ward at Mr. Pannell's on Friday evening the 1st of December, and an adjourned meeting held at Mr. Starr's on Friday evening the 8th, for the purpose of nominating fit and proper persons to represent the above ward in the city council for the coming year, the following persons were proposed and carried: Mr. John Harding, Mr. Walsh, and Mr. Thomas Peel for aldermen, and Mr. Paul Phipps and Mr. Wm. Green for councillors. Other gentlemen were named, some of whom declined and some were rejected.

To the Editor of the London, C.W., Times.

SIR,—I perceive in the Free Press, issued this morning, that I am charged with defeating the Bill for the consolidation of the town's debt introduced into the House of Assembly by Mr. Wilson, and that my motive for doing so was malice and revenge.

I would merely express to the Editor my thanks for the honor he has indirectly conferred upon me, for until he published it to the world I was not aware that I possessed so much influence in the legislation of the country. I will at present just state, for the edification of the eminent gentleman, that he has found a mare's nest, and is tempted to hatch up a conspiracy before his time; and it would have been well if he had waited until he had some correct information upon the subject, and not continue to furnish his readers with additional evidence of his lamentable ignorance on matters of history. When the proper time arrives I shall show to the inhabitants of the town that I simply did my duty.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

THOS. C. DIXON.

London, 14th Dec., 1854.

☞ Ferguson's Saloon has some splendid oysters just now. Mr. Ferguson will be popular in the line of business, for he spares no pains to cater to his customers everything that is excellent, and in the most obliging manner. Underneath the "Times" office.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.—There is much need of increased exertions in favor of Sunday schools. The number of boys found loafing about on Sunday is grievous. Last Sunday we were informed, a most every vehicle passing in the streets was attacked by these young vagrants with snow-balls. Such young lads should be sought out and invited to Sunday schools, for these are the characters for whom their benefits were intended to a much greater degree than the seldom of school members who generally get the benefit of God with their parents.

ACCIDENT.—Two children were run over in Dundas-street one day this week and one of them was very badly injured. It is well for all bearers, especially during sleighing, to bear in mind the provision of the following clause, viz., 15th Vic., cap. 189, sec. 6, and thereby to avoid accidents and punishment:

"That any person riding or driving on the highways, as aforesaid, shall, on meeting or overtaking any person or persons on foot, carefully pass the same by giving them a portion of the track."

RISLEY'S RIVER THAMES.—By advertisement it will be seen that this splendid panorama is to be exhibited for a few evenings next week, at which time bona fide golden gifts will be distributed. There will be no humbug or chance for dissatisfaction in the distribution of the gifts. A gentleman will be elected by the audience to receive and call out the number of each ticket, and a little child will hand them out.

A new fire-engine called "the Rescue" was brought into London on Monday last.

VERASPANS.—These four things are not fit for the weight of snow which rests on them after a heavy fall. Several in Dundas-street were smashed this week. If they are not made stronger some lives may be lost, or serious personal injuries be received through them.

☞ On Monday evening the anniversary meeting of the Wesleyan Missionary Society will be held at the Methodist church, Northstreet.

On Tuesday the 19th a Bazaar will be held at the Royal Exchange by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church, and a tea meeting in the evening.

Several ministers will speak on these occasions.

STEAMER ACRUNDO.—We learn by private information that the steamer "Miller," from Montreal, ran aground on Point Iroquois rapids. A steamer and tug-boat had to be used to release her from her dangerous position. Amount of injury not stated.

ANGEL GABRIEL.—By the courtesy of a friend we have been favoured with a late number of the N. Y. Canadian, in which we learn that J. S. Orr is still holding forth to the people. He was to speak in the Tabernacle on Wednesday the 24th inst. That extraordinary character speaks thus of himself: "In the Canadas I have been arrested 6 times—in Toronto twice; London, twice; Montreal, once; Cornwall, once; and in Fredrickton, New Brunswick, once; and by the lousy hypocrites, the officials, in Charlestown, Mass., fined $76 68 last August. Previous to my departure from America for the West Indies, I intend once more to deliver an address in Boston and Philadelphia, as I am about to do here on the 7th of December, in the Broadway Tabernacle.

ARRIVAL OF THE "PACIFIC."

NEW YORK, December 13.

The Pacific arrived at eleven o'clock this morning.

Markets were unchanged. Ohio flour held at 44s.

THE WAR.

Nothing decisive has taken place since the 17th. Both parties are bringing up reinforcements, and a great battle is expected.

The Pacific left Liverpool on the 30th at 7 o'clock. The Arabia arrived out on the 28th. The Pacific brings 144 passengers.

The Niagara left Liverpool on the 25th with the 54th Regiment of infantry, and a few companies of the 56th, and of artillery for the Crimea.

The next news will possibly come by the Sarah Sands, viz. Portland.

News from the East says, since the battle of the 5th of November, no incidents of importance has occurred. The Russians were the attacking force. Both sides claim victory.

The report of another battle on the 13th is discredited. The reinforcements to preserve the very existence of the allies, has caused at last, 30,000 men to be now in position before Sebastopol.

Russian reinforcements are also augmenting, and another great battle or series of battles must follow before the fate of Sebastopol is decided.

The London Times of the 25th publishes the following brief announcement, from Constantinople to Semlin by courier, thence from Vienna by telegraph:—

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 16.

On the 8th, the Russians attacked the French lines but were repulsed. Loss great on both sides. The Russians have received further reinforcements.

There is dubitation to the reality of the battle. It was only an affair of outposts.—According to the Russian account, nothing had occurred up to the 15th. Menschikoff informs the emperor that the damage done by the fire of the besiegers is speedily repaired, and that the garrison is in good condition.—He admits, however, that his losses have been very great.

The allies are fortifying their right flank very strongly.

Rumor says the two French divisions are to be added to the army on the Danube. The Russians continue on the Pruth and their patrols on the Turkish bank.

The blockade of Odessa is renewed. The Russians are fortifying it by sea and land.—Saliman Pash was commanded the Turkish troops in the trenches has been degraded to the rank of a private.

The Czar's son have returned to Ketchenoff.

The Hospodar of Wallachia has announced that a free exportation of corn will be permitted next spring from the Danubian Principalities.

Count Orloff is in the confidence of the Czar, and is on a tour through Switzerland and Italy.

Mahmoud Pasha the Turkish minister of marine is banished.

The navigation of the Gulf of Finland is still open—but little ice from Sweaborg to Cronstadt.

The British fleet was at Kiel.

Between the 9th and 13th, 23,000 additional troops left Constantinople for the Crimea.

10,000 Turk and 6500 Egyptians had also taken their departure. The Journal of Constantinople, say the 40,000 more Turks will be shipped without speed. The reinforcements despatched from France and England were beginning to arrive.

12,000 men had landed from the steamer Queen of the Sails, and other steamers must have been near their destination when the mail left.

A terrible storm occurred on the Ægian and Black Seas on the night of the 14th.—The minarets of the Mosque of the Sultan Achmet, at Constantinople, were blown down.

At the mouth of the river Katscha, twelve transports belonging to the allies were wrecked and the crew left into the hands of the Russians.

Two steamers and a screw frigate, were driven ashore but were got off. The weather continued stormy the 19th, and the Russian accounts say but the allies lost more than twenty five gunboats and ships of war. An Egyptian three decker, the Mufti Mogheh, went down in the storm of the 19th, with Admiral Assim Pasha, and 700 men as previously recorded.

A despatch from Vienna, dated 6th, says it is now privately affirmed that Austria has accepted with a slight alteration, the proposition contained in the Prussian note of the 15th.

It was reported at Kiel on the 23rd, on the strength of a letter, that about the 10th or 12th a portion of the Russian fleet left Helsingfors and engaged two Baltic convoys in the Gulf of Finland. The departure of the British fleet was by the proposed 1st Dec. 4th.

The allied generals have demanded an explanation from Menschikoff respecting the order said to have been issued by him to give no quarter. A Russian general who gave orders to this merciless effect, was attacked by his own men and killed. The wounded, has been taken prisoner and hanged.

The following is a verbatim copy of the order conveyed by Captain Anson to Lord Lucan, and by the Earl of Cardigan, the misunderstanding of which caused the brilliant but disastrous charge of light cavalry:

"Lord Raglan wishes the cavalry to advance rapidly to the front, and try to prevent the enemy carrying off the guns. A troop of the horse artillery may accompany them.

The diplomatists of Russia, Austria, Prussia and the lesser german states are very active.—England and France are taking a higher tone than hitherto, and has notified Austria a dilatoriness, and the German States, that they no longer recognise the four powers, but intend to hold the Czar and dictate their own terms of peace.

Medicate Inhalation.

A NEW METHOD.

A MOST WONDERFUL Discovery has recently been made by Dr. CURTIS, for the cure of Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis Coughs, Colds, and all Lung Complaints, by Medicated Inhalation. Dieter CURTISS' HYGEAN, or INHALING HYGEAN VAPOR and CHERRY SYRUP, has accomplished the most wonderful cures of Asthma and Consumption in the city of New York and vicinity, for a few months past, ever known to man. It is producing an impression on Diseases of the Lungs never before witnessed by the medical profession. [See certificates in hands of Agents.

The Inhaler is worn on the breast under the linen, without the least inconvenience, the heat of the body being sufficient to evaporate the fluid—supplying the lungs constantly with a healing and agreeable vapor, passing into all the air-cells and passages of the lungs that could possibly be reached by any other medicine. Here is a case of

ASTHMA CURED.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., December 20th, 1853.

For about eight years I have been severely afflicted with the Asthma, for the last two years I have suffered beyond all my powers of description; months at a time I have not been able to sleep in a bed, nor what few I could sitting in my chair. My difficulty of breathing, and my sufferings, were so great at times, that for hours together my friends expected each hour would be my last. During the past six years I have had the advice and attendance of some of the most permanent physicians, but have received no permanent benefit, and until recently, but little. At length had the good fortune to procure Dr. Curtis's Hygean or Inhaling Hygean Vapor and Cherry Syrup. At the time I first obtained it, I was suffering under one of my most violent attacks, and was in great distress, almost suffocating for want of breath. In less than ten minutes from the time I applied the Inhaler and took a teaspoonful of the Cherry Syrup I received in a great measure from the difficulty of breathing, and had my sufferings, were so great at times, that for hours together my friends expected each hour would be my last. During the past six years I have had the advice and attendance of some of the most permanent physicians, but have received no permanent benefit, and until recently, but little. At length had the good fortune to procure Dr. Curtis's Hygean or Inhaling Hygean Vapor and Cherry Syrup. At the time I first obtained it, I was suffering under one of my most violent attacks, and was in great distress, almost suffocating for want of breath. In less than ten minutes from the time I applied the Inhaler and took a teaspoonful of the Cherry Syrup I received in a great measure from the difficulty of breathing, and had my sufferings relieved. I have since continued it with the greatest possible benefit, and am now comparatively well. God only knows the amount of suffering this medicine has relieved me from. My advice to the suffering is—TRY IT.

MARGARET EASTON.

CONSUMPTION CURED

NEW YORK, Dec. 27th, 1853.

I came to New York in the ship Telegraph; my native place is St. John New Brunswick, where I reared and educated a good deal of me, which was frequently mixed with blood, but pain in my left side was very weak and emaciated. My friends and physicians pronounced my case consumption, and beyond the reach of medicine. I accidentally heard of Dr. Curtis's Hygean, or Inhaling Hygean Vapor and Cherry Syrup, and procured a package, which I certainly believe was the means of saving my life. Soon after receiving the Inhaler and Syrup, I felt relief from the pressure on my lungs, and after a while the disease made its appearance upon the surface under the Inhaler. I took the Cherry Syrup as directed, and continued to do so, my cough gradually growing better, until it entirely left me, and I now consider myself cured. I would wear the Inhaler as the use of it is rather pleasant, and believing it is preventing anything and prevents the lungs I feel unwilling at present to dispense with it.

He begs leave to state that everything connected with the disposal of these gifts will be perfectly fair and just, no tickets being received but those of such as are connected with him. The Exhibition will be on the same scale that patronized by Mr. Mechie, and he feels assured that no one will have cause to complain.

The Gifts may be seen in the Window of Messrs. Wyckoff Brothers, in Dundas Street, any day previous to the Drawing, where tickets can be procured. No ticket will be sold at the door. Performance to commence at 8 o'clock precisely. Reserved seats reserved for Ladies. Tickets 50 Cents all over the House.

London, Dec. 14th, 1854.

SOLD OUT.

HAVING sold my Fanning Mill business to Marvel Beaton & Co. I take this method of notifying those still indebted to me, that I wish to close my business at that line as soon as possible, and must require prompt payment of all notes when due. Those living in the vicinity of London or who have opportunity of sending there, will find Mr. B. Manvel at the old stand to whom payment can be made. Parties that are called upon and not expect but one call, for if not paid then they must expect to settle with the Clerk of the Court. Money may be sent by mail and at my risk if properly directed and marked Money Letter. Those sending so will get their notes if paid in full by return post. The parties to whom I have sold will continue the business at the old Stand and having been several years in my employ their experience will enable them to make as good an article as can be produced. This they are determined to do, and I would bespeak for them the same generous patronage which has been accorded to me.

Prepared, Wholesale and Retail, at the ECLECTIC MEDICAL DISPENSARY, Dundas St., London, C. W.

London, 15th Sept., 1854.

Dr. W. J. KERMOTT.

Dear Sir,

Being informed that you are preparing your Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam, in order that the Public at large may appreciate its virtues, I do cheerfully submit to you the following statement of facts; use them as you think proper.

In the Autumn of 1852, my eldest son was attacked with pain in the chest, shoulders, and side, accompanied with a very severe cough. We used every means within our power, employed the most skilful Physicians, and after their vain attempts had recourse to one of the most popular nostrums for the cure of Consumption, but all to no purpose, he gradually grew worse. In 1853 he became so feeble and emaciated as to be obliged to keep his bed, his feet and legs became swollen, perspired profusely at night, expectorated dark fetid corruption, had chills and fever alternately, in fact, all who knew or saw him pronounced him in the last stage of consumption, and a victim for the grave. At his own request we sent for you, but without the slightest hope of receiving any benefit; still, as you flattered him with a hope, he commenced using your Balsam, and after taking some half dozen Bottles began slowly to recover, till in three months' time he was restored to perfect health. One year has elapsed since the cure was effected, and he is still hale and sound.

Ever grateful, I am, dear Sir,

Yours respectfully,

JAMES DICKENSON.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron & Raven, Gilbert, Gale etc. A second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.
Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Cornopeans, Bugles, Post horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.
Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.
In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stoddart & Dunham or a Chickering to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.
As regards keeping in tune: these Pians require a good tuner, 2 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, they may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

THE FOREST WINE.
THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy colour of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Nightsweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill-health and impaired state of the Constitution.
But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the people, yet thousands have experienced their goodness, in cases given over by their physicians as incurable have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. Their medicines are unlike any other. Their wonderful properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver, and kidneys which receive the fluids, and expel the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never weaken, but give strength and animation to both body and mind.
The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted have induced thousands to recommend them to their friends and neighbours. Individuals of the highest respectability have voluntarily testified to the world in favour of their extraordinary virtues.
DR. I. A. STANTON,
a well known physician in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 19, 1853, mentions that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills in the cure of the many severe cases of constitutional debility and infectious affections, which it cured in an incredible manner. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommend it in numerous instances, are the celebrated Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Mercein, and others.
TESTIMONY
Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York.
DR. G. W. HALSEY.—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has cured for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1848 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep house entirely, and at times gave up business in consequence of my ill health. I had not nearly all hopes of recovery. My constant ware of that classic under which nature sinks and the distress I suffered, seeing your Forest Wine advertised, constrained to give it a trial and before finishing the first bottle I felt like a different person and was able to enter business again. I entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.
Yours &c.
JOHNSON BURKE,
Waverly Place, N. Y.
General Debility, Emaciation or Wasting of the Body, &c.
Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being aware that a few bottles will cause and therefore delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes confirmed. These disorders are very often characterized by a sense of sinking or some exhaustion, other evening. Some experience sluggishness, lassitude and a loss of relish for the enjoyment of the countenance, palpitation of the heart, or like symptoms.
The excellent effects which have every attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills in every case of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have reported to these medicines as the ultimate cause of their ill health. For nervous diseases nay debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions in the label.
TO THE LADIES.
True beauty and loveliness accompany the higher perfection of health, which again invariably follows the PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD. What attributes upon earth equal that sweet expression of countenance which emanates from health? What paints can compare with the roseate colour of the cheek, rendering it fairer than although the transparent texture of the skin. What charms are more captivating than those of nature in her highest perfection? Let the Ladies of Western Canada try the Forest Wine. Do not a glass of good wine in a short time create pure, rich blood, which, circulating through the veins, penetrates the minutest fibre in the body, imparting to the surface of the skin a healthy pimples and splotches find no place, but instead, a clear color in the cheek and brilliant expression in the eyes.
THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.
Innumerable evidences of these facts, I have, but many reasons prevent their publication. I refer to persons of the highest standing in society, whose names are familiar to residing in Rutchester.
Rochester, New York, July 7th 1849.
DR. G. W. HALSEY.
My sister from her youth had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of a pain in her side, which increased with every attempt at exercise, and finally confined her entirely to her bed. Her symptoms were those of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, &c. She was attended by the most eminent Physicians in this city, but all to no purpose. She gradually grew worse, and was given up by her friends to die. In this state of affairs I procured a bottle of your Forest Wine and Pills, which were commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of relief were a free coughing up of the phlegm, which had accumulated in her throat, and which she was unable to raise. Her recovery was unquestionably good up till the last family becoming known, and her friends say. Her cough left her altogether. She is now strong and vigorous, and perfectly well. She is truly grateful for the benefit she has derived from the use of your Forest Wine and Pills, and considers them a sovereign remedy for all diseases of the kind. Yours, &c.
JOHN S. MAXWELL.

GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS.
Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are coated with pure Gum Arabic, an important invention for which Dr. Halsey has received the only gold medal ever awarded to Pills by the Government of the United States.
Dr. Halsey's Forest Wine and Gum-coated Forest Pills unite in accomplishing the same great end, the PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THE RENOVATION AND RESTORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.
The life principle of man is the blood—in whose absence those organs of the stomach which receive the blood cleansed of unhealthy matter and become in a healthy state by the use of the Forest Pills, and pure rich blood made to flow in the veins by the use of the Forest Wine thus diseases originate, diminish, and strength and energy of body return. Thus is the principle on which is founded these great medicines, and by which nearly all diseases are cured.
The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One Dollar per Bottle, or Six Bottles for Five Dollars. Gum-coated Forest Pills, 25c. per Box.

AYER'S PILLS.
FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC.
THERE has long existed a place reserved for an effective purgative Pill which could be relied on as sure and perfectly safe in its operation. This has been prepared to meet that demand, and the unbounded confidence in its virtues has conclusively shown with what success it accomplishes the purpose designed. It is easy to make a physical pill, but not so easy to make the best of all pills—one that should have none of the objections and all the advantages of every other. This has been attempted here, and with what success we would present with confidence to the public. It is an active purgative, but in its combination is such that it arrests the progress of disease in the system as to more than counterbalance the good to be derived from them. These Pills produce no irritation or pain, unless a portion of some drastic cathartic is contained in the composition or derangement of the bowels. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity. But it is better that very moderate doses should be taken judiciously. Minute directions for their use in the several diseases for which they are applicable are given on the box. Among the complaints which have been speedily cured by them we can mention Liver Complaint, in its various forms of Jaundice, Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Loss of Appetite, Dysentery, Irritability, Bilious Headache, Bilious Fever, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side and Loins, for in truth all these are but the consequences of diseased action of the liver. As an aperient, they afford prompt and safe relief in Costiveness, Piles, Cholic, Dysentery, Humor, Scrofula and Scurvy, Colds, with soreness of the body, fevers and impurity of the blood; in short, any and every case where a purge is required.
They have also produced some singularly successful cures in Rheumatism, Gout, Dropsy, Gravel, Erysipelas, Palpitation of the Heart, Pains in the Back, Stomach, and Side. They should be freely taken in the spring of the year, to purify the blood and prepare the system for the change of seasons. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach into healthy action, promotes the appetite and vigor. They purify the blood, and by their stimulating action on the circulatory system, renovate the strength of the body, and restore the wasted or diseased energies of the whole organism. Here an occasional dose is advantageous even though no serious derangement exists; unnecessary dosing should never be carried too far, as every purgative medicine reduces the strength when taken to excess. The thousand cases in which a physic is required cannot be enumerated here, but they suggest themselves to the reason of every body, and it is confidently believed this pill will answer a better purpose than anything that has hitherto been available to mankind. When their virtues are once known the public will no longer doubt what remedy to apply when in need of a cathartic medicine.
Being sugar-wrapped, they are pleasant to take, and being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
For minute directions, see the wrapper on the Box.

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a portion for a multitude of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having for more than twenty years before the public, and with the unbiased testimonies of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. It is almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to the efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every particle of that loathsome disease, by their mild purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short in all diseases, from pride to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

London C. W. June 18th, 1852.

Messrs. Redfern & Co.

Gentlemen—I have received the Sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as a highly palatable preparation. The aromatic ingredients and tonic or bitter flavor in which it is essencet at Medicinal qualities appear to be largely infused and well preserved, and as this urgently desirable tonic is highly beneficial in all those cases of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone in the digestive organs. (the form most frequently met with on the continent) your cordial will, I doubt not, form an unexceptionable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From my knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a pharmaceutical chemist, I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his preparation of this valuable tonic to my professional brethren and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

LONDON AGENCY.

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favorable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in the Company are not subjected to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution—the capital stock of this Company being an unquestionable security to the insured in cases of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire in Montreal in 1852—has practically shown to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life risks taken on favorable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:

Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to two-thirds of its net amount—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportions by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premiums, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America to the North of 35 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

DR. SHERWOODS' Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the heart joints or limbs, Gout, The lancinating Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Tic, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Affections of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervious Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Childhood Burns and Scalds, &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it has flown, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining Magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of Science or that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in curious diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficent use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

From the London Times.

We crowned the hard won heights at length,
Baptised in flame and fire,
We saw the foemens sullen strength,
That grimly made retire,

Saw close at hand, then saw more far
Beneath the battle smoke,
The ridges of his shattered war,
That broke and ever broke.

But one, an English household's pride,
Dear many ways to me,
Who climbed the death path by my side,
I sought, but could not see.

Last seen, what time our foremost rank
That iron tempest tore,
He touched he scaled the rampart's bank,
Seen then, and seen no more.

One friend to aid, I measured back
With him that pathway dread:
No fear to wander from our track,
Its landmarks, English dead.

Light thickened, but our search was crowned:
As we too well divined;
And after briefest quest we found
What we most feared to find.

His bosom with one death-shot riven,
The warrior-boy lay low
His face was turned unto the heaven,
His feet unto the foe.

As he had fallen upon the plain,
Inviolate he lay;
No ruffian spoiler's hand profane
Has touched that noble clay.

And precious things he still retained,
Which by one distant breath,
Loved tokens of the loved, had gained
A worth beyond all worth.

I treasured those for them, who yet
Knew not their mighty woe;
I softly sealed his eyes, and set
One kiss upon his brow.

A decent grave we scooped him, where
Less thickly lay the dead,
And decently composed him there,
Within that narrow bed.

And, comforted, I praised the grace,
Which him had led to be
And early seeker of that face
Which he should early see.

THE ELOPEMENT.

BY THE AUTHORESS OF "TALES OF THE HEATH," "JUVENILE TRAVELLER," ETC.

Nearly an hour had elapsed before the major could be aroused from the state of stupor into which he had fallen, to one of consciousness. When he opened his eyes he found his medical attendant and Captain Brown, administering such restoratives as the case required.

"I have had a fearful dream," he said, his countenance pale as death, and his eyes glassy and distorted. "I thought Matilda had deserted me, but thank God it was only a dream. Where is she?—Call her to me, that I may press her to my palpitating heart and feel reassured that I am not robbed of my darling child".

"Be composed, my good friend," said the worthy doctor, "your daughter is at present absent, but she will return soon; here is a letter" taking up that which had been left by Matilda on the table, "it appears to be the writing of the young lady, and doubtless will remove your fears, and also the mystery of her absence."

The major snatched the letter with impatience, and breaking the seal read a confirmation of the facts. Dashing it from him he exclaimed:

"Forgive her! No never! Nor the rascal who has betrayed my confidence, and robbed me of my dearest earthly treasure my child. May the the bitter cup of poverty be his sweetest draught. From me he shall never inherit one shilling."

This was uttered in a vehemence and violence of manner which never betrayed itself in the major before while his countenance bore ample testimony of the powerful and contending motions which raged within. He again sank upon the sofa, wished his friends good night, and upon the captain proposing to despatch messengers after the fugitives he answered:

"No, no, they have wilfully chosen their own path, let them abide by it."

No persuasion could make the major for several days leave the room or make the slightest alteration in his dress. Yet not a sound like complaint or even reproach ever escaped him. Since the fatal evening of her elopement Matilda's name had never been mentioned by him, except on one occasion when a letter addressed to her father arrived, entreating his forgiveness and permission to see him; all of which was positively refused, with a peremptory order that she would never dare to address him more.

An event so decided, and so unexpected to the young couple cast a dense shadow over their prospects; the elysium through which they had floated was doomed to a sudden change, in the bright meridian of their hopes a cloud came and turned all to gloom, their short day dream of happiness was blighted by severe disappointment, and the rugged path of life for the first time appeared before them, they saw objects with more truth than before, they saw also that they had nothing to depend upon but their own exertions.

Lisle, at the time of his absence, had obtained only a day's leave of absence from the colonel of his regiment, upon his return, he found his situation in the corps widely different from what he had left it.

Friends whom his pleasing manners and amiable disposition had gained were now decidedly opposed to him, and with his name was coupled one voice, that of disapprobation for every officer considered that his conduct had been highly censurable.

The worthy major they all revered, and all deeply lamented the dishonorable act which had plunged him into such dire affliction—Under such circumstances, Lisle found that it would be necessary for him to leave his regiment, he, therefore, determined to sell out, and, as there was not a shadow of hope that Major Delmar would ever deviate from his rash vow of never seeing his daughter again, and of withholding from her every expectation of fortune, he resolved to leave the country altogether, and with the proceeds of his commission emigrate to Canada, there buy a portion of land and commence farmer.

This was a sad crisis for poor Matilda, who was about to quit, perhaps forever, the soil of her birth, to be seperated by the wide expanse of ocean from a loved father and fond brother, without the privilege of bidding them adieu, or the flattering hope of ever seeing them more. It was a reflection too torturing to be borne, her physical strength yielded to its influence, she was thrown upon a bed of sickness where she remained in a very precarious state for some weeks.

Had she known the extent of her fathers suffering it is probable she would never have recovered; but that pang was carefully concealed from her, and she was led to suppose, that the beloved individual for whom she so deeply mourned, was in good health although unrelentingly determined not to see her more.

As soon as she became convalescent, Lisle determined to hurry her away, he knew that the melancholy consequences that might ensue, should the real state of her parents grief be made known to her. His grief now assumed a more melancholy character; his dress was neglected, his hair was dishevelled; his vital energies crushed, grief had fixed its empire on his mind—his heart was broken and in a few weeks after Matilda sailed for America he died,

The only short interval in which his senses were perfectly collected after Matilda's departure, were devoted to making his will by which he left all he possessed, with the exception of a few legacies, to his son, who subsequently attained a commission in his father's regiment.

By command of his father Frederick Delmar had not seen his sister, or communicated with her from the period of her marriage, although he had not failed to sympathize deeply in all that concerned her, his naturally cheerful and lively disposition, were more the gloom of sorrow, his mind was like a troubled sea "tossed to and fro" seeking pleasure but finding none, save such as solitude or some favorite author afforded.

He longed to discover the retreat of his sister, but all the information he could gain respecting her was that she had embarked for North America.

About two years after Frederick had entered the service a circumstance presented itself which held out the prospect that the wish nearest his heart would speedily be realised. The regiment to which he belonged was ordered to Canada, from the moment this information reached him he began to resuscitate.

"I shall now," he mentally exclaimed "discover the retreat of my beloved Matilda, and in contributing to her happiness increase my own."

As a voyage across the Atlantic in a transport ship, crowded with soldiers seldom affords anything very interesting or amusing, especially when divested of such incidents as shipwreck storm or mutiny, neither of which occurred in the passage of our young friend, we will pass over that monotonous part of his life and meet him again at Quebec.—Here with his regiment he was stationed, during which period he was not idle in making enquiries in quest of the beloved individual whom he so anxiously sought. He advertised in the public journals visited the Upper Province and many new settlements, but his enquiries, anxiously as they were made proved fruitless: and Frederick returned to his quarters dispirited and broken-hearted.

their tents at the first glimpse of daylight.

It must be observed that Sir De Lacey Evans had long been aware of the insecurity of this portion of our position, and had repeatedly pointed it out to those whose duty it was to guard the dangers which threatened us. It was the only ground where we were exposed to surprise, for a number of ravines and unequal curves in the slope of the hill toward the valley, lead up to the crest and summits against the adverse side of which our right flank was resting without guns, intrenchments, abattis, or outlying defence of any kind. Every one admitted the truth of the representations addressed to the authorities on this subject: but indolence, or a sense of false security, and an overweening confidence, led to indifference and procrastination. A battery was thrown up with sand bags and gabions and fascines, on the slope of the hill over Inkermann on the East, but no guns were mounted there, for Sir De Lacey Evans thought that two guns in such a position, without any works to support them, would only invite attack and capture.

In the action of the 26th of October the enemy tried their strength on almost the very spot selected by them this morning, but it may now be considered that they merely made a reconnoissance en force on that occasion, and hat they were waiting for reinforcements to assault the position where it was vulnerable, and where they might speculate with some certainty on the effects of a surprise of a sleeping camp on a winter's morning. Although the arrangements of Sir De Lacey Evans on repulsing the sortie were, as Lord Raglan declare "as perfect that they could not fail to insure success," it was evident that a larger force than the Russians employed would have forced him to retire from his ground, or to fight a battle in defence of it with the aid of the other divisions of the army, and yet nothing was done. No effort was made to entrench the lines, to cast up a single shovel of earth, to cut down the brushwood, or form an abattis. It was thought "not to be necessary."

A heavy responsibility rests on those whose neglect enabled the enemy to attack us where we were least prepared for it, and whose indifference led them to despise precautions, which, taken in time, might have saved us many valuable lives, and have trebled the loss of the enemy, had they been bold enough to have assaulted us behind intrenchments. We have nothing to rejoice over, and almost everything to deplore, in the battle of Inkermann. We have defeated the enemy indeed, but have not advanced a step nearer toward the citadel of Sebastopol. We have abashed, humiliated and routed an enemy strong in numbers, in fanaticism and in dogged, resolute courage, and animated by the presence of a man whom they believed to be God's Vicegerent on earth; but we have suffered a fearful loss, and we are not in a position to part with one man. England must give us more men. She must be prodigal of her sons, as she is of her money and of her ships, and as they have been of their lives in her service.

It was a little after 5 o'clock this morning when Brigadier General Codrington in accordance with his usual habit, visited the outlaying pickits of his own brigade of the Light Division. It was reported to him that "all was well," and the General entered into some conversation with Capt. Pretyman, of the 33rd Regiment, who was on duty on the ground, in the course of which it was remarked that it would not be at all surprising if the Russians availed themselves of the gloom of the morning to make an attack on our position, calculating on the effects of the rain in disarming our vigilance and spoiling our weapons. The Brigadier, who has proved a most excellent, cool, and brave officer, turned his pony round at last, and retraced his steps through the brushwood towards his lines. He had only proceeded a few paces when a sharp rattle of musketry was heard down the hill and on the left of the pickets of the Light Division. It was here that the pickets of the Second Brvouac were stationed.

Gen. Codrington at once turned his horse's head in the direction of the firing, and in a few moments galloped back to turn out his division. The Russians were advancing in force upon us! Their gray greatcoats rendered them almost inviable even when exposed at hand. The pickets of the second division had scarcely made out the advancing line of Infantry, who were scrambling up the steep sides of the hill through a drizzling shower of rain, when they were forced to retreat by a close sharp volley of musketry, and were driven up toward the brow of the hill, contesting every step of it, and firing as long as they had a round of ammunition on the Russian advance. The pickets of the Light Division were assailed soon afterward, and were also obliged to retreat and fall back on their main body, and it was evident that a very strong sortie had been made upon the right of the position of the allied armies, with the object of forcing them to raise the siege, and, if possible, of driving them into the sea.

About the same time that the advance of the Russians on our right flank took place, a demonstration was made by the cavalry artillery, and a few infantry in the valley against Balaklava, to divert the attention of the French on the heights above, and to occupy the Highland Brigade and Marines, but only an interchange of a few harmless rounds of cannon and musketry took place, and the enemy contented themselves with drawing up their cavalry in order of battle, supported by field artillery at the neck of the valley, in readiness to sweep over the heights and cut our retreating troops to pieces should the assault on our right be successful. A Semaphore post had been erected on the heights over Inkermann in communication with another on the hill over their position, from which the intelligence of our defeat was to be conveyed to the Cavalry General, and the news would have been made known in Sebastopol by similar means, in order to encourage the garrison to a general sortie along their front.

A steamer with very heavy shell-guns and mortars was sent up by night to the head of the creek at Inkermann, and caused much injury throughout the day by the enormous shells she pitched right over the hill on our rear. Everything that could be done to bind victory to their eagles—if they have any—was done by the Russian Generals. The presence of their Grand Duke, Michael Nicholavitch, who told them that the Czar had issued orders that every Frenchman and Englishman was to be driven into the sea ere the year closed, cheered the common soldier, who regarded the son of the Emperor as an emanation of the Divine presence. They had abundance of a coarser and more material stimulus, which was found in their canteens and flasks; and, above all, the priests of the Greek Catholic Church "blessed" them ere they went forth upon their mission, and assured them of the aid and protection of the Most High. A mass was said for the army and the joys of heaven were freely offered to those who might fall in the holy fight, and the favors of the Emperor were largely promised to those who might survive the bullets of a heretical enemy.

The men in our camps had just begun a struggle with the rain in endeavoring to light their fires for breakfast, when the alarm was given that the Russians were advancing in force. Brigadier General Pennefather, to whom the illness of Sir De Lacey Evans had given for the time the command of the second division, at once got the troops under arms. One brigade, under Brigadier General Adams, consisting of the 41st, 47th and 49th regiments, was pushed on the brow of the hill to check the advance of the enemy by the road through the brushwood from the valley. The other brigade, (Brigadier General Pennefather's own,) consisting of the 30th, 55th, and 95th regiments, was led to operate on their flank. They were at once met with a tremendous fire of shell and round shot from guns, which the enemy had posted on the high grounds in advance of our right, and it was soon found that the Russians had brought up at least forty pieces of heavy artillery to bear upon us.

Meantime the alarm had spread through the camps. Sir George Cathcart, with the greatest promptitude, turned out as many of his divisions as were not employed in the trenches, and led the portions of the 20th, 21st, 45th, 57th, 63d, and 68th regiments which were available against the enemy, directing them to the left of the ground occupied by the columns of the Second Division. It was intended that one brigade, under Brigadier General Torrens, should move in support of the brigade under Brigadier General Goldie: but it was soon found that the enemy were in such strength that the whole force of the division, which consisted of only 2,200 men, must be vigorously used to repel them. Sir George Brown had rushed up to the front with his brave fellows of the Light Division—the remainder of the 7th Fusiliers, 19th, 23d, 33d, 77th, and 88th Regiments, under Brigadiers Codrington and Buller. As they began to move across the ground of the 2nd Division, they were at once brought under fire by an unseen enemy. The gloomy darkness of the morning was unchanged. Showers of rain fell through the fogs, and turned the ground into a clammy soil, like a newly ploughed field, and the Russians, who had no doubt, taken the bearings of the ground ere they placed there guns, fired at random indeed, but with too much effect on our advancing columns. While all the army was thus in motion the Duke of Cambridge was not behind hand in bringing up the Guards under Brigadier Bentinck—all of his division now left with him, as the Highlanders are under Sir Colin Campbell at Balaklava. These splendid troops, with the greatest rapidity and ardor, rushed to the front on the right of the Second Division, and gained the summit of the hills, toward which two columns of the Russians were struggling in the closest order of which the nature of the ground would admit. The Third Division, under Sir R. England, was got under arms, as a reserve and one portion of it, comprising the 50th, part of the 28th and 4th regiments, were engaged with the enemy ere the fight was over.

And now commence the bloodiest struggle ever witnessed since war cursed the earth.—It has been doubted by military historians if any enemy have ever withstood a charge with the bayonet, but here the bayonet was often the only weapon employed in conflicts of the most obstinate and deadly character. We have been prone to believe that no foe could ever withstand the British soldier wielding his favorite weapon, and that at Maida alone did the enemy ever cross bayonets with him, but at the battle of Inkermann not only did we charge in vain—not only were desperate encounters between masses of men maintained with the bayonet alone—but we were obliged to resist bayonet to bayonet with the Russian infantry again and again, as they charged us with incredible fury and determination.

The battle of Inkermann admits of no description. It was a series of dreadful deeds of daring, of sanguinary hand-to-hand fights, of despairing rallies of desperate assaults, of men mowed down by the musketry in glens and valleys, in brushwood glades and remote dells, hidden from all human eyes, and from which the conquerors, Russians or British, only issued to engage fresh foes, till our old supremacy, so rudely assailed, was triumphantly asserted, and the battalions of the Czar gave way before our steady courage and the chivalrous fire of France. No one however placed, could have witnessed even a small portion of the doings of this eventful day, for the vapours, fog, and drizzling mist obscured the ground where the struggle took place, to such an extent as to render it impossible to see what was going on at the distance of a few yards. Besides this the irregular nature of the ground, the rapid fall of the hill toward Inkermann, where the deadliest fight took place, would have prevented one under the most favorable circumstances seeing more than a very insignificant and detailed piece of the terrible fight.

It was 6 o'clock when all the headquarter camp was roused by roll after roll of musketry on the right, and by the sharp report of field guns. Lord Raglan was soon informed that the enemy were advancing in force and soon after 7 o'clock he rode toward the scene of action, followed by his staff, accompanied by Sir John Burgoyne, Brigadier-General Strangways, R. A., and several aides de camp. As they approached the volume of sound, the steady, unceasing thunder of gun and rifle, and musket told that the engagement was at its height. The shells of the Russians, thrown with great precision, burst so thickly among the troops, that the noise resembled continuous discharges of cannon, and the massive fragments inflicting death on every side. One of the first things the Russians did, when a break in the fog enabled them to see the camp of the Second Division, was to open fire on the tents with round shot and large shell, and tent after tent was blown down, torn to pieces, or sent into the air, while the men engaged in camp duties and the unhappy horses tethered up in the lines were killed or mutilated.

Col. Gambier was at once ordered to get up two heavy guns, (eighteen-pounders) on the rising ground, and reply to a fire which our light guns were utterly inadequate to meet. As he was engaged in this duty, and was exerting himself with Capt. D'Aguilar, to urge forward, Col. Gambier was severely, but not dangerously wounded, and was obliged to retire.—His place was taken by Lieut. Colonel Dickson, and the conduct of that officer, in directing the fire of those two pieces, which had the most marked effect in deciding the fate of the day, was such as to deserve the thanks of every man engaged in that bloody fray. But long ere these guns had been brought up, there had been a great slaughter of the enemy, and a heavy loss of our own men. Our generals could not see where to go. They could not tell where the enemy were—from what side they were coming, nor where they were coming to. In darkness, gloom and rain they had to lead our lines through thick, scrubby bushes and thorny brakes, which broke our ranks and irritated the men, wounded by an enemy whose position was indicated by the rattle of musketry, and the rush of ball and shell.

Sir George Cathcart, seeing his men disorderly by the fire of a large column of Russian infantry which was outflanking them, while portions of the various regiments composing his division were maintaining an unequal struggle with an overwhelming force, rode down into the ravine in which they were engaged, to rally them. He perceived at the same time that the Russians had actually gained possession of a portion of the hill in rear of one flank of his division, but still his stout heart never failed him for a moment.—He rode at their head encouraging them, and when a cry arose that the ammunition was failing, he said cooly: "Have you not got your bayonets?"

As he led on his men, it was observed that another body of men had gained the top of the hill behind them, on the right, but it was impossible to tell whether they were friends or foes. A deadly volley was poured into our scattered regiments. Sir George cheered them, and led them back over the hill, but a flight of bullets passed where he rode, and he fell from his horse close to the Russian columns.—The men had to fight their way through a host of enemies, and lost fearfully. They were surrounded and bayoneted on all sides, won their desperate way up the hill with diminished ranks and a loss of near five hundred men. Sir George Cathcart's body was afterwards recognised, [with a bullet wound in the head and three bayonet wounds in the body. In this struggle, where the Russians fought with the greatest ferocity and bayoneted the wounded as they fell, Col. Sway, of the 63d, a most gallant officer, Lieut. Dowling, 20th, Major Wynne, 78th, and other officers, whose names will be found in the Gazette, met their death, and Brigadier Goldie (of the 57th Regiment) received the wound of which he has since died. The conflict on the right was equally uncertain.

In the Light Division, the 88th so far into the front that they were surrounded and put into utter confusion, when four companies of the 77th under Major Straton, charged the Russians broke them, and relieved their comrades.

The fight had not long commenced before it was evident that the Russians had received orders to fire at all mounted officers. Sir George Brown was hit by a shot which went through his arm and struck by his side. I saw with regret the pale and sternly composed face as his body was borne by me on the litter early in the day, his white hair flickering in the breeze, for I knew we had lost a good soldier that day.

Further to the right, a contest, the like of which perhaps never took place before, was going on between the Guards and dense columns of Russian infantry of five times their number. The Guards had charged them and driven them back, when they perceived that the Russians had outflanked them. They were out of ammunition too. They were uncertain whether they were friends or foes in the rear. They had no support, no reserve, and they were fighting with an enemy who stoutly contested every inch of ground, when the corps of another Russian column appeared on their right, far in their rear. Then a fearful mitraille was poured into them, and volleys of rifle and musketry. The Guards were broken they had lost 14 officers, who fell in the field; they had left one half of their number on the ground, and they retired along the lower road of the valley. They were soon reinforced and speedily avenged their loss. The French advanced about 10 o'clock and turned the flank of the enemy.

The second division, in the centre of the line, were hardly pressed. The 41st regiment in particular were exposed to a terrible fire, and the 95th were in the middle of such disorganizing volleys that they only mustered sixty-four men when paraded at two o'clock. In fact the whole division numbered only 300 men when assembled by Major Eman in the rear of their camp after the battle. The regiments did not take their colors into the battle but the officers nevertheless were picked off wherever they went, and it did not require the color staff to indicate their presence.—Our ambulances were soon filled and ere 9 o'clock they were busily engaged in carrying men all covered with blood and groaning to the rear of the camp.

At 6½ o'clock Lord Raglan and his staff were assembled on a knoll, in the vain hope of getting a glimpse of the battle which raged below them. Here Gen. Strangways was mortally wounded and I am told that he met with his death in the following way: A shell came right in among the staff—it exploded in Captain Somerset's horse, ripping him open, a portion of the shell tore off the leather overalls of Captain Somerset's trousers it then struck down Captain Gordon's horse and killed him at once, and then blew away Gen. Strangways' leg, so that it hung by a shred of flesh and a bit of cloth from the skin. The poor old General never moved a muscle of his face. He said merely, in a gentle voice, "Will any one be kind enough to lift me off my horse?" He was taken down, and his life's blood ebbed fast, and at last he was carried to the rear. But the gallant old man had not sufficient strength to undergo an operation, and in two hours he had sunk to rest leaving behind him a memory which will ever be held dear by every officer and man in the army.

The fight about the battery to which I have alluded in a former part of my letter was most sanguinary. It was found there was no bastion quette to stand upon, and that the men inside could not fire upon the enemy. The Russians advanced mass after mass of infantry. As fast as one column was broken and repulsed another took its place. For three long hours 8,500 British infantry contended against at last four times their number, when it was that at times they were forced to retire. But they came to the charge again. The admirable devotion of the officers, who knew they were special objects of attack, can never be too highly praised. Nor can the courage and steadiness of the few men who were left to follow them in this sanguinary assault on the enemy be sufficiently admired. At one time the Russians succeeded in getting up to the gunsof Captain Woodhouse's and of Captain Turner's batteries in the gloom of the morning.

Uncertain whether they were friends or foes, our artillerymen hesitated to fire. The Russians charged them suddenly, bore all resistance down before them, drove away or bayonetted the gunners and succeeded in spiking some of the guns. Their columns gained the hill and for a few moments the fate of the day trembled in the balance, but Adam's brigade Pennefather's brigade and the Light Division made another desperate charge, while Dixon's guns swept their columns, and the Guards, with undiminished valor and steadiness, though with a sadly decreased front pushed on again to meet their bitter enemies. The rolling of musketry, the clash of steel, the pounding of the guns were deafening, and the Russians, as they charged up the heights yelled like demons. They advanced, beleaguered again hailed, and received a close and deadly fire which they returned—but the Minie is the king of weapons—Inkerman proved it.

The regiments of the Fourth Division and the Marines, armed with the old and much beloaded Brown Bess, could do nothing with their thin line of fire against the massive multitudes of the Muscovite infantry, but the volleys of the Minie cleft them like the hand of a Destroying Angel, and they fell like leaves in Autumn before them. About ten o'clock a boly of French infantry appeared on our right, a joyful sight to our struggling regiments. The Zouaves came on at the pas de charge.

The French artillery had already began to play with deadly effect on the Russians right wing. Three battalions of the Chasseurs d'Orleans rushed by, the light of battle on their faces. They were accompanied by a battalion of Chasseurs Indigenes—the Arab Sepoys of Algiers. The trumpets sounded above the din of battle and when we watched their eager advance right on the flank of the enemy, we knew that the battle was won. Assailed in front by our men—broken in several places by the impetuosity of our charge, renewed again and again—attacked by the French infantry on their right and by artillery all along the lines, the Russians began to retire and at 12 o'clock they were driven pell mell down the hill toward the valley where pursuit would have been madness as the roads were all covered by their artillery. They left mounds of dead behind them. Long are they fled the Chasseurs d'Afrique charged them about brilliantly over the ground difficult and broken as it was and inflicted great loss on them, while the effect of this rapid attack aided by the advance of our troops secured our guns which were only spiked with wood and were soon rendered fit for service.

Our own cavalry, the remnant of the Light Brigade, were moved into a position where it was hoped they might be of service, but they were not strong enough to attempt anything and while they were drawn up they lost several horses and some men. One officer Cornet Cleveland, was struck by a piece of shell in the side and has since expired.

There are now only two officers left with the fragment of the 17th Lancers—Capt. Godfrey Morgan and Cornet George Wombwell. At 12 o'clock the battle of Inkerman seemed to have been, but the day, which had cleared up for an hour previously so as to enable us to see the enemy and meet him again became obscured. Rain and fog set in and as we could not pursue the Russians, who were retiring under the shelter of their guns, we had formed in front of our lines, and were holding the battle field so stoutly contested, when the enemy taking advantage of our quietude, again advanced, while their guns opened a tremendous fire upon us.

General Canrobert, who never quitted Lord Raglan for much of the earlier part of the day at once directed the French to advance and outflank the enemy. In his efforts he was most ably seconded by General Bosquet, whose devotion was noble. Nearly all his mounted escort was down beside and behind him.

At 1 o'clock the Russians were again retiring. At 1 40 Dickson's two guns smashed their artillery and they limbered up, leaving five tumbrels and one gun carriage on the field.

NOVEMBER 6.

Two hundred Russian prisoners were badly wounded and several of them died during the night.

A council was held to-day at Lord Raglen's where Gen. Canrobert, Gen. Bosquet, and Sir E. Lyons assisted which lasted several hours.

I have no time to add more. We must have men at once and abundance of them.

THE WAR.

SEBASTOPOL.

The Constitutionnel publishes the following journal of the siege operations of the French on the 1st and 2nd instant:—

"Nov. 1—The return of fine weather has enabled us to carry on the siege operations with the greatest possible rapidity, notwithstanding the difficulties of the ground, which would discourage any troops but our's. Eleven batteries opened their fire this morning. They were all cut in the rock by means of petards, which will give you an idea of the obstacles we have to surmount. A new battery of fifteen guns, at our extreme right, worked by sailors, is doing wonders, and has silenced the Mat Bastion. On the left we are not so successful. Shortly after nightfall, with the moon at its full, the third parallel was opened at about 180 yards from the Mat Bastion. This line of approach is seldom opened until the fire of the place is completely subdued. Generally it is under cover that this important trench from which the columns march to the assault, is dug. Here we have been more enterprising. It was under the fire of a formidable artillery, and without any protection, that our engineers undertook and executed one of the most critical of siege operations. But the siege of Sebastopol is different from all those hitherto recorded, and the attack and defence are not conducted according to the ordinary rules of war. No fortress ever reckoned so great a number of guns or so numerous a personnel of artillerists, and the besiegers are 800 leagues distant from their arsenals.

Nov. 2—Last night we were beginning to believe the enemy to be somewhat discouraged, but in a short time we had proof of the contrary. At four o'clock in the morning their batteries opened a terrible fire, equal to any since the commencement. But what was the result of this great uproar? No hing but a few slight wounds in men of the working parties, and some damage to our embrasures. It is, nevertheless, very annoying to be thus cannonaded, and to be forced every moment to take shelter under a parapet, in order to escape the explosion of a shell. Were furn their fire with interest, we demolish their batteries, we blow up their powder magazines. An immense heap of shells exploded yesterday in the Flagstaff Bastion. Every night, however, the Russians repair with incredible tenacity the disasters of the preceding day, and there will be no end to the resistance until we make them feel the points of our bayonets. You can teach a Russian soldier to load and point a gun like an Englishman or a Frenchman, but I defy you to give him that elan of the Zouaves, or that intelligent and admirable sang froid of an English column advancing to the assault. However, we shall be better able to judge in a few days."

The Peculiarities of the Siege of Sebastopol.

From the London Times Nov., 17.

Sebastopol is not invested. The peculiar position of the Town, combined with the limited strength of the allied armies, rendered it impossible to surround the place so as to cut off its communications with the interior, and the north side is left open. The consequence is there is no limitation of resources on the part of the besieged; on the contrary it is rather the besieging army which has stood in the predicament for, whereas the allied forces have been greatly diminished by the casualities incidents to their operations, the garrison has received accession of strength from without. Provisions, too, and in quite a war may have been imported with equal facility though so extraordinary, in this respect, were the resources of Sebastopol itself, additions could not have been required.

It is next to be remarked that the Russians at Sebastopol are by no means in a position of a garrison inferior in number to the attacking forces, but relying upon the protection of artificial defences against which the besiegers advance. They are encamped to the south of the town in very strong entrenchments, and are armed, and Lord Raglan's dispatch says, "with an apparently unlimited number of heavy guns, amply provided with gunners and ammunition." They have raised batteries against our batteries, and earthworks against our earth works; they return shot for shot and so far were we from establishing an advantage in this respect that on the second day of the cannonade their fire was superior to our own. Their front of defence, instead of representing a confined space, exposed to all the concentrated fire of the attack, is actually, as Lord Raglan describes it, "more extended" than our own, and they, the besieged force, are thus in the possession of the advantages ordinarily enjoyed by the besiegers.

In point of fact, there really would be little exaggeration in saying that one of the armies in the Crimea is as effectually "besieged" as the other. Both have their communications open, the Russians by land, and the Allies by sea; both have their strong positions, the Russians before Sebastopol the Allies on the heights of Balaklava, and as far as operations have hitherto proceeded, it would be hard to say which party seemed to be the assailants and which the defenders. We are battering the works of the Russians, but they are battering ours; and, whereas we have not yet regularly assaulted their lines, they have attacked ours in such force as to occasion most sanguinary conflicts. The enterprise, in short, is not a siege, but a campaign. We have effected a lodgement on Russian territory, and we are encountering the armies which the Russians bring successively against us. One army, representing the garrison of Sebastopol, is encamped under its walls behind earth works like our own, and is stronger than we are in artillery.—Another is posted on our flank or rear, and has made at least one attempt on our position. Fortunately although we want many of the advantages of the Russian territory that we are enabled to repulse the attack of any enemy numerically superior to ourselves.

Death of Lord Fitzgibbon—Cruelty to the Russians.

Lord Fitzgibbon's death is now quite certain. The poor young fellow had been seen by his men as they retreated, pursued by the Russians sitting up, though very severely wounded, and it was hoped he might be still alive. A dead body supposed to be his was brought in, but it was subsequently ascertained that it was a mistake. The Russians stripped our dead. Their lancers were seen stirring our wounded as they lay on the field. This is credibly affirmed by many witnesses of the horrible deed.

There is a rumor that the cause of our disaster is being closely investigated by the authorities, that it does not appear that poor Captain Nolan was so much to blame, as was first supposed by those who did not know his strict character as an officer and a soldier.

Of the seventeen great London breweries, the house of Truman, Hanbury, Buxton, & Company stood last year at the top of the list, having consumed 140,000 quarters of malt, and paid to the excise £180,000, or enough to build two ninety-gun ships, at the usual cost of a thousand pounds a gun.

ELOPEMENT OF A MARRIED LADY.—A rumor has been afloat in Manchester during the last few days, that a married lady named Mothershead, residing in Charter Street, had eloped with a dashing Irishman who went to lodge at the husband's house, taking with her a considerable amount of her husband's money.—Through the assistance of the telegraph, the husband caused his wife to be detained with her paramour at Liverpool until he went down and secured his money, when he left her to proceed wheresoever she may please with the Hibernian, who had represented that he, like the rest of his country men, was of noble descent, and that he had moreover, "estate" at or near Dublin.—Manchester Weekly Advertiser.

THEATRICALS AT ST. PETERSBURG.—It has been intimated to those French actors and actresses who are upon the Czar's pension list that their pensions will be regularly paid, notwithstanding the war. This magnanimity will doubtless be accepted by the artistes without wounding their patriotic feelings. Apropos of the stage, the theatrical season in St. Petersburg is intended to be unusually brilliant; Lablache, Mdlle de Lagrange, and Madame Tedesco have been engaged for the Italian opera at enormous salaries. Overtures were made to Alboni, but previous engagements have compelled her to decline them. All the rich people in St. Petersburg will be compelled to go frequently to the theatres, in order to prove to the Russian public that the state of foreign affairs affords no ground for alarm, and to second the false confidence which Nicholas himself makes it a duty to inspire by showing himself daily in the streets with a jaunty gait and a forced smile.

A few words on the squadrons may not be uninteresting. The French squadron, composed almost entirely of sailing vessels, experienced many difficulties of navigation, but overcame them with much skill. "It is commanded (I here quote the words of my informant) by a very superior officer, Admiral Parseval, an excellent seaman, a distinguished warrior, an excellent man of the world, and an eminent politician. The whole of the operations have been judiciously planned, well executed, and useful. The officers and crews are excellent. The admiral is much respected by the English, who look upon him as a thorough sailor and a perfect gentleman. The English squadron is magnificent; 13 screw ships of the line and nine frigates (screw), of the most consummate beauty, exclusive of the rest. The captains are men of great distinction in every respect. The staffs and crews are numerically weak in proportion." Some strictures are then passed on Admiral Napier, and remarks made on his career which it would be useless to repeat, but from which it would appear that no great opinion exists in either squadron of the capacity of the gallant Admiral.

Provincial,

Marine News.

The following is from the Toronto Colonist.

"We regret to learn that the schooner Potomac of Oswego went ashore a short distance below Port Dalhousie, during the terrible snow storm on Munday last. The captain and one of the hands was drowned in attempting to effect a landing in a small boat. The remainder of the crew seven men with a woman were saved on Tuesday after remaining twenty four hours on the wreck. They suffered terrible hardships, the vessel being one mass of ice. We believe those who were saved, owe their lives to the gallantry of the men, of the "Weiland," steamer, with some hands belonging to vessels in port who put out the life boat of the Weiland, at great risk and succeeded in rescuing the survivors, when every hope seemed to have taken flight.

A schooner from Toronto also ran ashore at the Twenty: all hands saved.

There is another ashore at the Four Mile Creek, but owing to the severity of the gale, no boat, at our last advices, had been able to reach her.

PORT BURWELL.—This little town is progressing rapidly: new buildings are springing up in every direction as if by magic,

Lunatic Asylum.

This Institution must be very badly managed; if we may judge from the following Presentment of a Grand Jury in Toronto:—

The Inquest have visited the Lunatic Asylum and the Gaol, and with regard to the former they beg to present,—

1st. That the mode of conveying the patients to the Asylum and that of confining them previously, is not consistent with the feelings of humanity and sympathy for those unfortunate beings that they are pre-eminently entitled to in this age of enlightened Christianity. We saw several patients with sore limbs produced by the cords used in confining them.

2nd. We think that it is highly improper and injurious to the health of the patients to use any portion of the main building as a laundry.

3rd. We found persons in the Asylum whose cases were unsuited for the place. We would particularly refer to a little child six years old, from Hamilton, and a decrepid old woman from Bytown, with several others, and we think that the house of Industry would be a more suitable place for them.

5th. We observed with regret that there are convicts and other criminals as patients in the Asylum, and that the conduct of some of them is such as to produce very injurious effects upon other patients. One particular case is that of a colored man, and there are several others. We think it decidedly wrong to make a prison of the Asylum.

5th. We beg to call attention to the overcrowded state of the building, which is not sufficiently spacious for the numbers confined with in its walls. There are nearly 500 patients and we think that if the proposed wings were erected, there would be little enough accomodation.

6th. We observe that the ground attached to the building is in a very damp and unwholesome state, and recommended that the system of pile draining should be adopted to remedy an evil that we think has much more influence upon the health of the patients than is generally supposed.

In concluding this part of our Presentment we would respectfully suggest that we think that the sum obtained from the Lunatic Asylum tax is sufficient to cover the cost of the improvements that are so imperatively necessary. We have great pleasure in according our testimony to the manner in which the arduous and important duties of the medical Superintendent, Mr. Workman are performed so far as we could judge from observation and enquiry among the more intelligent patients.

GOLD IN VERMONT.—A bona fide discovery of gold has recently been made in the south part of Stowe, about a mile from the northerly line of Waterbury. The Freeman says the discovery was made as early as August last, by a returned Californian, while fishing in a brook. Having bought the farm, he made known his discovery, dug and washed out a small quantity from the banks and permitted visitors to do the same, as a matter of curiosity. One pailful of earth produced 37 cents worth of gold.—The owner thinks from the experiments he has made, that the diggings will prove as rich as the average of diggings in California. It is also stated that gold has been found in the north part of the same town, by another returned Californian on the stream coming from Mansfield Mountain.

WHEAT IN CALIFORNIA.—At the State Agricultural Exhibition, which closed a few days since, the premium on wheat was awarded to the cultivator of a field which yielded eighty two and a half bushels to the acre. A ten acre field, within a few miles of this city produced six hundred and seventy bushels, or sixty seven bushels to the acre.—Throughout the entire State the average yield of wheat per acre, the present year, will not fall short of forty bushels; and the barley crop will average over fifty bushels to the acre. This latter grain, I would state, is extensively used in California, and forms the principal food for the horses and mules.

SHOCKING CONFESSION.—It is said that Byron, alias McDonald, who was recently convicted through the skill and finesse of Detective officer Pinkerton, of this city, of an attempt to throw the cars off the track of the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad, with the intention of robbing the mail, and who was, for this offence sentenced to the Michigan Penitentiary for life, has since his imprisonment made disclosures and confessions that he and Napier, his companion in crime, robbed the mail on the Michigan Central Road, some fifteen months since, at the intersecting point of the two roads. He stated that in order to reach the mails he crawled over the dead and wounded. Napier has escaped to England.—Chicago Tribune.

Eighteen years among the Indians.

From the Macoupin, Illinois Statesman.

We were visited a few days ago, by a man by the name of Joseph Earney, who says that he is in search of a son, whom he supposes to live near Alton. He made his escape on the fifth of May last, from the Flat Head Indians, near the head of the Flat Head River in Oregon. He stated that he had been with this tribe of Indians eighteen years. We listened for some length of time to his history many portions of which are truly thrilling. He was taken prisoner in 1836 on the Upper Missouri River, while in the employment of a Fur Company. He is a native of France, and speaks English but poorly; but we give what he communicated to us as nearly as possible.

He was in company with a man by the name of John R Bertson, both of whom were captured. They attempted to defend themselves, and killed two Indians, but they were overpowered—there being 25 Indians to contend with. They were secured hand and foot, and placed on ponies, and started to the north eastward, and travelled five weeks, when they came to the hunting ground of the tribe where they were given up to the chief who shook hands with them, and manifested much joy at their capture. They were unbound and confined in a hut, where they were fed, but not allowed to escape. The chief offered them His daughters if they would marry and remain with his tribe. Finding escape utterly impossible for the time being, the terms were accepted and the marriage took place. The fruits of this marriage was two children, both of which are still alive, a daughter and a son, both of which he left with the tribe. Two years ago Robertson attempted to escape, but was retaken scalped, and burned alive, leaving three children with the tribe. Seven years ago Barney attempted to escape, but was recaptured and would have been put to death but for the interposition of his wife, who was the daughter of the chief. During the time of his captivity, Barney states that he was engaged with his tribe in three battles—two with the Black Feet, and one with a tribe the name of which we do not know—In one of which he says over seventy Black Feet were killed.

The most of the time of his captivity he lived on the head of the Columbia River, and at times as far up as the head of Flat Head River. During these eighteen years he saw neither salt, bread, potatoes, coffee, tea, or anything of the kind: living upon the meat of the moose, deer, skunk, rattlesnake, turkey, prairie hens, &c. At the time he made his escape he was near Lake Superior, about sixty miles from a trading post of the American Fur Company. The chief (his father-in-law) was a doctor, and on the 15th of May left, and while he was gone Barney succeeded in making all the Indians dead drunk with the whiskey which had just been received, giving one and a half pint to each Indian. After they were asleep he took his bow and arrow, tomahawk, pipe, two and a half pounds of tobacco, flint and steel, and two pounds of meat, being all there was in the hut. He started and travelled all night, having his dog along; the next morning he killed his dog, to prevent his returning to give a clue to his track.

About 11 o'clock the same day, when about 35 miles, he was overhauled by his father-in-laws dog, which he killed with his bow and arrow, and carried his carcass away from his path, and then concealed himself in the brush; while he was thus concealed the chief passed him; as he passed the chief muttered to himself, "I will pass this mountain, and I at the foot of it take the left hand."

Overhearing this Barney availed himself of the information. Following the chief to the foot of the mountain, he found, sure enough, he had taken the left hand road, which he ascertained by the tracks of his ponies. He continued his journey to the east until about two hours before daylight next morning, when he sat down, fatigued and hungry; after daylight he killed a rattlesnake, which he roasted and ate for his breakfast. He kept on the same direction, when about five o'clock he was overhauled by another of his father in law's dogs, which he killed immediately and passed on. On the next day he was overhauled by another dog belonging to the tribe, which he dispatched in the same manner as the others; after which he proceeded without molestation, travelling for four days without daring to build a fire in the daytime. He was seven weeks travelling before he came to any tribe of Indians, during which time he spent one week in despair, not travelling or expecting ever to reach a habitation of white men.

At the end of the above time he came to a tribe which he called the Tomahawks. He was kindly treated by them. For fear of being taken again, he assured them that he belonged to the Flat Heads, and was in search of two crazy Indians who had made their escape. After asking some questions in English concerning the "crazy Indians," and after nine miles travel he came to the Missouri river. He made a raft of logs and crossed over. Travelling due east, he continued his journey nine weeks before he arrived at White Lake, in Minnesota, during which he subsisted on game killed with his bow and arrow. He remained at that place three days, and sold his accoutrements for clothing, and then made his way for this state. He arrived here in this state.

Barney is a man of considerable intelligence and has a vivid recollection of all that passed during his captivity. He seems familiar with Indian life, and gives some of their signs for determining courses, cures for diseases, &c. He would like to see his children, but would rather forgo the pleasure than go back and live with the tribe. He was married soon after he came to the country, and lived in Oswego county N. Y., where his wife died; after which he was employed by the Fur Co. He is 63 years old but still appears active and hardy. He describes the country he has visited as the handsomest he ever saw. Truly he has seen the "elephant," and if his story is correct, he can tell of more trials, sorrows, tribulations and adventures, than any one now living.

Agriculture.

Habits of Insects.

Small as the subject may appear to persons whose minds have not been turned in that direction, the study of insect life and of the habits and character of the numerous varieties and families of insects which infest our fruit-trees, farms, and gardens, and when once entered upon leads to a kind of knowledge which may be turned to practical account in the management of the farm or garden.

The insects injurious to vegetation are some of them so destructive in their habits as to be a great pest to the farmer. To guard against their ravages and prevent the serious injury if not the total destruction of our crops, requires in some instances a full knowledge of the habits and of the laws of insect life, a knowledge which very few farmers possess.

A few men in this country have directed their attention to these subjects, and have given the world the benefit of their researches. Prominent among these is Dr. Harris of Massachusets, whose book is regarded as a standard work upon insects, a work from which a vast amount of practical information may be gained.

To show the intimate knowledge which may be acquired of the habits of the insects which infest our orchards and gardens, we copy from Dr. Harris's work the following account of the Aphis or plant dance, and of the intimacy subsisting between it and the ant.—New York Farmer.

"The Genus to which plant-lice belong is called aphis, from a Greek word which signifies to exhaust. The following are the principal characteristics by which they may be distinguished from other insects.

"Their bodies are short, oval, and soft, and are furnished at the hinder extremity with two little tubes, knobs, or pores, from which exude almost constantly minute drops of a fluid as sweet as honey; their heads are small, their beaks are very long and tubular, their eyes are globular, but they have not eyes; their antennæ are long and usually taper toward the extremity, and their legs are also very long and slender, and there are only two joints in their feet. Their upper are nearly twice as large as their lower wings, are longer than the body, which is gradually widened towards the extremity, and is nearly triangular

LONDON, CANADA WEST, TIMES & GENERAL ADVERTISER

To the Editor of the London, C.W., Times.

THE BRITISH ARMY AND THE AMERICAN EDITORS.

Sir,—The commanders of the British army in the Crimea seem as if they had very few friends connected with the editorial department of English and American newspapers. The former may, however, be excused, under the plea that their editorial statements are intended more pointedly for the ministry than to disparage the skill, valor, and courage of the British soldier.

The American editors and their "private correspondents" are so well known to the reading community that their journalistic effusions receive the same amount of credence as is usually bestowed upon Prince Menschikoff's military reports as to the result of battles, the number killed, wounded, and made prisoners.

The New York Tribune has already announced to the world the "Total defeat and ruin of the British army," and upon the authority of "a private correspondent," who is doubtless one of the penny-a liners who spin out long yarns for the public, we are informed of the result of supposed battles, finished off by a few strokes of the pen. Something in this style:—"By telegraphic despatch we are put in possession of further details of the battle fought on the — between the Russ ans and the allied forces. On this occasion the English lost about 800 killed, as many wounded, and a large number made prisoners. The French did not suffer quite as much, &c.' The apparent anxiety which is exhibited in the columns of the Tribune as to the destiny of the allied forces goes far to prove the mental depravity of the American editors. In connection with this and other New York papers, there are "private correspondents" who, judging by the nature of their mental effusions, possess secret and extraordinary means in obtaining intelligence from the seat of war. In fact, some of them write as if they did so in front of battles and in the midst of bayonets, muskets, powder and bullets, and from the trenches which surround Sebastopol. However, I have every reason to suppose that these "private correspondents" are more cunning than brave, and that their mental productions emanate from a retired attic situated in some of the back streets of New York. The independent and hostile tone which the American journals assume towards England and France does betimes create impressions on nervous systems something in the same way as a cowardly and angry dog does which in times of danger sneaks to the kennel, and then, under cover, sets up a howl of defiance.

I think, however, we may rest content as to the destiny of the British troops in the Crimea. The English soldier has not yet lost his valour, skill, and fixed determination to conquer or to die. The energies of the British nation have not been extinguished by the present encounter with the Russian army. Reports follow reports, and the main purport of them is that England's army have unfortunately encountered an antagonist too strong to be conquered through the limited means which Britain possesses to supply "food for Russian powder." At the House Guards there are no less than 1200 names enrolled for commissions, and the usual number, during times of peace, seldom exceeded 200. The rate of enlistment, at the present time, is some thing like 1000 men per day, independent of the numerous volunteers from the Militia force. In looking over the official despatches to and from the Crimean army, I find that Lord Raglan speaks of the soldiers and commissioned officers in the highest terms of praise, and that Lords Cardigan and Lucan are recommended to the notice of His Grace the Duke of Newcastle and to Her Majesty for their valour, courage, and skill upon the field of battle. It is only a few weeks since that the New York Tribune announced to the world that Lord Cardigan had been deprived of his commission.

It is impossible to stop the promulgation of these erroneous and false statements in the American papers, and the only course which can be pursued with any degree of confidence is to correct them. There is one portion of the official despatches sent to the commander-in-chief, by her Majesty's secretary at war, which is decidedly deserving of notice. In the year 1812 the late Duke of Wellington had an occasion to speak and to express an opinion respecting the commissioned officers who fought under him during the Peninsular wars, and in speaking of Lord Raglan he distinctly observed that "he would be an ornament to his country." The services which his lordship has rendered in England's conquests and to the military history of his country entitles him to the opinion expressed 40 years ago by the conqueror of Waterloo.

Yours truly, T.

DEATH BY DROWNING.—By referring to our advertising columns it will be seen that Mr. H Kordes of this city advertises for the finding of the body of his son who was drowned last week in the Thames river. This melancholy accident took place while the lad was skating on the ice. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved and heartbroken parents, and need not urge our readers, so many of them who can be of service, to use their best exertions to enable the parents to recover the lifeless corpse of their lost one, thereby enabling them to shed over it the tear of affection and to consign it to a Christian burial.

NEWSPAPER POSTAGES.—This subject was brought before the House not long since, and from the tone of the remarks it is probable that the postage on newspapers will shortly be entirely removed; this will be a benefit to society, for the press is the defender of the peoples' rights and should be perfectly unfettered in all its efforts to diffuse useful knowledge and to circulate needed information and general news.

CHRISTMAS.

In accordance with a common rule among printers, there will be no paper issued next week. Printers require occasionally some recreation as well as all other men; their business is very confining and wearing, and it is but right they should be allowed to enjoy their selves during the holidays.

We take this opportunity to wish our subscribers a merry Christmas! Great cause, indeed, have we all to be thankful at this period. No country in the world enjoys to a greater extent the blessings of religious freedom than Canada. The sublime advent to earth of Him who was to redeem our whole race is celebrated at the Christmas festival; of Him whose life of charity and whose sacrificial death upon the cross has opened the gate of heaven to all believers and rescued us from endless woe. The religion which Christ established elevates us to true dignity, and bestows the richest blessings which can rest on man. To the fullest extent all the blessings of the Gospel are ours.

Peace also, as far as our own land is concerned, is our happy lot; prosperity and health dwell with us; ours is a clear sky, a bracing atmosphere, and a country calculated to reward industry, enterprise, and exertion; ours are wholesome laws, a happy union with Britain—the most enlightened empire on earth—and a good government.

All things considered, we have great cause for gratitude. May our hearts ascend in praise of Him who "with his Son will freely give us all things."

Yet there are, even in Canada, some objects of misery, suffering, and want; search them out! Despise not the poor; while the good things of prosperity crowd the domestic and the festive board, let active charity convey comfort to the icy hut and scanty board of the widow, the orphan, and the stranger!

Kind readers, in heartfelt hilarity, domestic comfort, self-rewarded benevolence, and unostentatious piety, we wish you all a merry Christmas!

☞ THE TIMES.—This number commences a new volume. We trust that our patrons will send in their back subscriptions. Most of our subscribers are greatly in our debt. The newspaper business is expensive to carry on, and it is to be hoped that arrears will be paid up forthwith.

East Brant Election Commission drags its slow length along, but will terminate this day at 4 o'clock. Mr. Christie closed his case, with the exception of five votes, on Monday, when Mr. McKenzie entered upon his defence. The patience of the learned Commissioner, Judge Harrison, must have been severely tested by the illegitimate sons with which the voters have been brought up. His Honor has got through about 110 cases, 40 yet remain to be heard; all these, it is not likely, will come up to-day.—Mapid Leaf.

NEW DISCOVERY.

DOCTOR CURTIS'S newly discovered method of Inhalation is attracting a good deal of attention throughout the country, wherever his new method has been tested. It is certainly a common-sense principle, and an easy, pleasant, and direct application to the diseased part. We believe in the efficacy of this treatment from having witnessed its beneficial results in more cases than one of diseased lungs, and we are persuaded that in recommending it to the afflicted we are aiding in the dissemination of a principle, and entirely new application of the same, which is capable of affording more relief to the suffering, and holds out a more cheering and well-founded hope of recovery to those who are laboring under diseases of the lungs, than any ever before discovered. It is destined we think, to produce an entire revolution in the treatment of all such diseases.

We have heretofore almost invariably refused to publish or notice patent medicines, and shall continue the same course in regard to them, unless we have the most positive and reliable proof in regard to their usefulness.—The reader will find in our paper the advertisement of "Medicated Inhalation."—or. Curtis's newly discovered method referred to above—which contains more real, truthful, sensible and convincing evidence of its value as a medicine, that we have ever before seen crowded in so small a space. We bespeak for it the earnest attention of the afflicted and their friends, and will say of our own knowledge, that we know it to be good. Our wife has used it with decided success in an annoying cough of several years' standing, and an old and valued friend has found relief from it in a case of bronchitis, where all else failed But these are trifles when compared with those certified to in the advertisement, and satisfactorily so to us, before we would consent to even publish the advertisement, which by the bye, is the only medical advertisement we have ever yet published.—Ed.

OPENING OF THE QUEBEC AND RICHMOND RAILWAY.—This road was opened on the 27th ult., as advertised. The Montreal Gazette says:

"A small party, consisting of the members of the press and officers of the company, left Montreal at half past nine o'clock, and Longueuil at 10 o'clock, and went speedily on to Richmond, arriving shortly after noon. The Montreal party were met soon after their arrival by another party, numbering among them Sir Etienne and Lady Taché, and others who had come over the new road from Point Levi. An excellent lunch was provided here, to which ample justice was done, and the success of the road and the health of Sir Etienne and Lady Taché was drunk in the usual way. It was impossible to examine the road or the bridges as we passed over them, but, with the exception of a few miles (six we are told), not far from Richmond, on which the ballasting is not yet completed, it seemed in a good condition for a new road, and the means of communication between Longueuil and Point Levi, within ten or twelve hours, may be looked upon as certain during the ensuing winter. This is no small convenience to the travelling and business community.

A BY-LAW

For the Election of Directors of the St. Mary' and London Proof Line Junction Road Company.

WHEREAS a Meeting of the Board of Directors of the St. Mary's and London Proof Line Junction Road Company could not conveniently be had in sufficient time to adopt a By-law, and give the notice of three successive weeks required by law for holding the general meeting of the stockholders of the said company, for election of Directors, on the second Monday in December: And whereas it is provided by the Statute the 16th Victoria, chapter 190, section 13, "That if the annual election of Directors for any such company shall for any cause not take place at the time appointed, such company shall not thereby be dissolved, but the directors thereof, for the time being, shall in that case continue to serve until another election of directors shall be held, and such other election shall in such case be held at such time, within one month thereafter, as shall be provided for by any by-law to be passed by the Directors of such company for that purpose."

It is therefore hereby enacted by the Board of Directors of the St. Mary's and London Proof Line Junction Road Company that a General Meeting of the Stockholders in the said company shall be held at the Inn of William Frank, in the Fifteenth Concession of the Township of London, at the hour of Twelve o'clock, noon, on Thursday the Eleventh day of January, 1855, for the purpose of electing five directors, of which time and place of meeting due notice shall be given by hand-bills, and by advertisement in one or more of the newspapers published in the Town of London, for at least three successive weeks previous to the said meeting. That the stockholders present at such meeting shall appoint, from amongst themselves, a chairman, secretary, and three scrutineers, and the said stockholders present being duly qualified, and others by proxy, shall then vote by ballot, the chairman, if required, to have a casting vote.

It is further enacted that all former By-laws or election of Directors are hereby repeal'd.

Dr. J. W. Kermott's VEGETABLE PULMONARY BALSAM

A Safe and Effectual Cure for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Asthma, Incipient Consumption, &c.

THIS Medicine operates by producing a free and copious expectoration, and by imparting vigor to the absorbant vessels, changing them from a diseased to a healthy action. Hundreds of cases might be recorded of persons who have been consigned to the grave by their medical attendants, and by the use of this valuable remedy are now in the enjoyment of perfect health.

DOSE—One teaspoonful from 3 to 6 times per day, or oftener if the cough is severe.

Price, 75 Cents per Bottle.

Prepared, Wholesale and Retail, at the ECLECTIC MEDICAL DISPENSARY, Dundas St., London, C. W.

London, 15th Sept., 1854.

Dr. W. J. KERMOTT,

Dear Sir,

Being informed that you are preparing your Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam, in order that the Public at large may appreciate its virtues, I cheerfully submit to you the following statement of facts; use them as you think proper.

In the Autumn of 1852, my eldest son was attacked with pain in the chest, shoulders, and side, accompanied with a very severe cough. We used every means within our power, employed the most skilful Physicians, and after their vain attempts had recourse to some of the most popular nostrums for the cure of Consumption, but all to no purpose, he gradually grew worse. In 1853 he became so feeble and emaciated as to be obliged to keep his bed, his feet and legs became swollen, perspired profusely at night's, expectorated dark fetid corruption, had chills and fever alternately, in fact, all who knew or saw him pronounced him in the last stage of consumption, and a victim for the grave. At his own request we sent for you, but without the slightest hope of receiving any benefit; still, as you flattered him with a hope, he commenced using your Balsam, and after taking some half dozen Bottles began slowly to recover, till in three months' time he was restored to perfect health. One year has elapsed since the cure was effected, and he is still hale and sound.

Ever grateful, I am, dear Sir,

Yours respectfully,

JAMES DICKENSON.

Medicated Inhalation. NEW METHOD.

A MOST WONDERFUL Discovery has recently been made by Dr. CURTIS, for the cure of Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and all Lung Complaints, by Medicated Inhalation. Doctor CURTISS' HYGEAN, or INHALING HYGEAN VAPOR and CHERRY SYRUP, has accomplished the most wonderful cures of Asthma and Consumption in the city of New York and vicinity, for a few months past, ever known to man. It is producing an impression on Diseases of the Lungs never before witnessed by the medical profession. [See certificates in hands of Agents.

The Inhaler is worn on the breast under the linen, without the least inconvenience, the breat of the body being sufficient to evaporate the fluid—supplying the lungs constantly with a healing and agreeable vapor, passing into all the air-cells and passages of the lungs that cannot possibly be reached by any other medicine. Here is a case of

ASTHMA CURED.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., December 20th, 1852.

"For about eight years I have been severely afflicted with the Asthma, for the last two years I have suffered beyond all my powers of description; months at a time I have not been able to sleep on a bed getting what rest I could sitting in my chair. My difficulty of breathing, and my sufferings, were so great at times, that for hours together my friends expected each hour would be my last. During the past six years I have had the aid and attendance of some of the most permanent physicians, but have received no permanent benefit, and but little relief. Last length had the good fortune to procure Dr. Curtis's Hygean or Inhaling Hygean Vapor and Cherry Syrup. At the time I first obtained it, I was suffering under one of my most violent attacks, and was in great distress, almost suffocating for want of breath. In less than ten minutes from the time I applied the Inhaler and took a teaspoonful of the Cherry Syrup, I was relieved in a great measure from the difficulty of breathing, and had a comfortable night. I have since continued it with the greatest possible benefit, and am now comparatively well. God only knows the amount of suffering this medicine has relieved me from. My advice to the suffering is—TRY IT.

MARGARET EASTON.

CONSUMPTION CURED

NEW YORK, Dec. 27th, 1853.

I came to New York in the ship Telegraph; my native place is St. John, New Brunswick, when I reached this city my health was very poor; had a very bad cough, raised a good deal of matter, which was frequently mixed with blood; had pain in my left side, and was very weak and emaciated. My friends and physicians pronounced my case consumption, and beyond the reach of medicine. I accidentally heard of Dr. Curtis's Hygean, or Inhaling Hygean Vapor and Cherry Syrup, and obtained a package, which I verily believe was the means of saving my life. Soon after wearing the Inhaler, I found it relieved the pressure on my lungs, and after a while the disease made its appearance upon the surface under the Inhaler. I took the Cherry Syrup as directed, and continued to do so; my cough gradually growing better, until it entirely left me, and I now consider myself cured. I still wear the Inhaler, as the use of it is rather pleasant, and believing it strengthening and purifying to the lungs I feel unwilling at present to dispense with it.

The Pianos are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the Melodians, manufactured by Prince & Co. Pianos and Melodians sold as cheap and on as favorable terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Makers themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron & Raven, Gilbert, Gale etc. A few second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand on assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophicides, Saxhorns, Trombones, Cornopeans, Bugles, Post horns, etc, which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes won't just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stoddart, a Dunham or a Chickering to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, tiny, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner, 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, they may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of

Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Gonstitutional Acidity, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy colour of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the CONSTITUTION.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any others. Their two-fold properties act directly on the organs of the stomach, liver, and kidneys which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never weaken, but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted have induced thousands to recommend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favour of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. I. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine, and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. Gooselman, Dr. Clemens, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Martin, Dr. J. M. Moreau, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1849 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since, until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill health. I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class under which "nature sinks and life becomes a burthen." Seeing your Forest Wine advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business again, entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours, &c.,
JOHNSON BURKE,
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, Wasting of the Body, &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace it to any particular cause and therefore delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. Here disorders are very often characterized by a sense of sinking or entire exhaustion, after exercise. Some experience a dizziness, dissolute and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart, or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in this class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an ultimatum and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the bowl.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of health which upon investigation is found in the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What artificial appendages equal that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What paints can compare with the crimson-colored blood coming to brilliant complexion through the transparent texture of the skin? What cheeks are more captivating than those of maidens in the highest perfection? Let the Wine supply the place of all cosmetics. The invigorating excellent wine in a short time creates pure, rich blood, which, passing through the veins penetrates the minute pores of the first verge towards the surface of the skin carrying all unhealthy principles and blotches to the surface, leaving a clear, rosy color to the skin and brilliancy expressive in the eyes.

TONIC IN NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts I have by my many testimonials. The following is from a lady of the most respectable standing in society, sent to me by her familiar residing in Buffalo (before).

NEW YORK, June 20th, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—

My sister Sarah has been very ill health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest, attended with a cough. About the age of 16 she began to get much worse. For six months she was constantly using various medicines she had not been able to get out of the house. Her countenance was greatly changed, pale and sickly. Her face and neck were covered with disagreeable pimples, eyes very much sunken, and her cough increasing. In short she bore every appearance of soon departing an unhappy state to consumption. At this time I procured for her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her first symptom of recovery was uncommonly good appetite, her face finally becoming smooth and her cheeks rosy. Her cough left her altogether. She is now strong and vigorous, and presents the finest example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MANVILLE.

GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS,

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are coated with pure Gum Arabic, an important invention, for which Dr. Halsey has received the only patent ever granted on Pills by the Government of the United States.

Dr. Halsey's Forest Wine and Gum-coated Forest Pills unite in accomplishing the same great work, the PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THE RENOVATION AND RESTORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.

The first principle of man is the blood,—no sooner are those organs of the stomach which secrete the blood cleansed of morbid matter and restored to healthy action by the use of the Forest Pills, and pure rich blood made to flow in the veins by the use of the Forest Wine, than disease begins to vanish, and strength and energy of body return. This is the principle on which it operates as a great medicine, and by which nearly all diseases are cured.

The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One Dollar per Bottle, or Six Bottles for Five Dollars. Gum-coated Forest Pills, 25c. per Box.

AYER'S PILLS.

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC.

THERE has long existed a public demand for an effective purgative Pill which could be relied on as sure and perfectly safe in its operation. This has been prepared to meet that demand, and an extensive trial of its virtues has conclusively shown with what success it accomplishes the purpose designed. It is easy to make a physical pill, but not so easy to make the best of all Pills—one that will have none of the objections, but all the advantages of every other. This has been attempted here, and with what success we would respectfully submit to the public decision. It has been well nigh unsafe for the patient sufferer that almost every purgative medicine is acrimonious and irritating to the bowels. This is not. Many of them produce so much griping pain and revulsion in the system as to more than counterbalance the good to be derived from them. These Pills produce no irritation or pain, unless it arises from a previously existing obstruction or derangement of the bowels. Being purely veg

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter upon a panegyric or analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases, by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Gentlemen:—I have received the Sample bottle of your Compound Camomile Cordial, and consider it a most valuable and wonderful preparation. The aromatic and the fragrance and peculiar bitter flavor, in which are the essential Medicinal qualities appear to be largely retained and will render it a most valuable remedy in the hands of a Doctor in these forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or weakness of the digestive organs. The form of compound must insure its preservation in any climate, and I should feel it a valuable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, he has very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist. I therefore have much pleasure in recommending his Preparations not only as valuable to the professional gentleman, but to the public as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

DR. W. J. KERMOTT,

Dear Sir,

Being informed that you are preparing your Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam, in order that the Public at large may appreciate its virtues, I cheerfully submit to you the following statement of facts; use them as you think proper.

In the Autumn of 1852, my eldest son was attacked with pain in the chest, shoulders, and side, accompanied with a very severe cough. We used every means within our power, employed the most skilful Physicians, and after their vain attempts had recourse to some of the most popular nostrums for the cure of Consumption, but all to no purpose, he gradually grew worse. In 1853 he became so feeble and emaciated as to be obliged to keep his bed, his feet and legs became swollen, perspired profusely at nights, expectorated dark fœtid corruption, had chills and fever alternately, in fact, all who knew or saw him pronounced him in the last stage of consumption, and a victim for the grave. At his own request we sent for you, but without the slightest hope of receiving any benefit; still, as you first held out a hope, he commenced taking your Balsam, and after taking some half dozen Bottles began slowly to recover, till in three months' time he was restored to perfect health. One year has elapsed since the cure was effected, and he is still hale and sound.

Ever grateful, I am, dear Sir,

Yours respectfully,

JAMES DICKENSON.

CORK SOLES!

The Hydromagen is a valuable discovery for protecting the feet from damp and cold, and therefore a preventative of many Lung diseases without any doctoring whatever. The Hydromagen is in the form of a sole, and worn inside the boot or shoe. Its medicated character, is a powerful antidote to disease.

For Gentlemen it will be found agreeable, warm, and healthy, to wear in the coldest or rainiest weather, as the feet cannot become wet if the Hydromagen is inserted. Ladies may wear the lightest soled boots or shoes, in the most inclement weather with impunity, while consumption, so prevalent among the young of our country may be thwarted by their general adoption. They entirely supercede over-shoes, as the latter cause the feet to perspire in a very unhealthy manner, and, besides are not dang-rous wear to pedestrians in wet weather, like those in rubber. While the latter cause the feet to look extremely large, the Hydromagen, being merely a thickness of cork prepared, peculiarly placed inside, does not increase the size of the boot, or make the foot appear untidy. To children they are extremely valuable, as they may engage in exercise with comfort and healthy effects. Their expense is so slight as to scarce be worth mentioning, besides those who patronize them will and their yearly doctor bill much diminish thereby.

As the Hydromagen is becoming more known, its sale is increasing to an almost incredible extent. Last year in London, Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Glasgow, Leeds, Dublin, Paris, Antwerp, Hamburg, and Berlin, our sales reached 1,732,400 pairs of Cork Soles. This year the number will far surpass that.

Ask the Faculty their opinion of its use cause as a preventative for Corns, Colds, Insomnia, Asthma, and Consumption.

Medicated Inhalation.

NEW METHOD.

A MOST WONDERFUL Discovery has recently been made by DR. CURTIS, for the cure of Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and all Lung Complaints, by Medicated Inhalation. These CURTISS' HYGEAN, or INHALING HYGEAN VAPOR and CHERRY SYRUP, has never failed in the most wonderful cures of Asthma and Consumption in the city of New York and vicinity, for a few months past, even known as incurable by the most eminent of the medical profession. Those confidence in Dr. Curtis's Medicine is warrant the latter, none the less than that of the patient, the best is to be had by being confined to regulating and purifying the blood, and by the use of this Inhaling Vapor, which is performed by the patient breathing through the mouth, and the nostrils closed, the medicine is inhaled into the lungs, and the whole system is purified by the blood being purified by the lungs.

ASTHMA CURED.

[illegible] NEW YORK, [illegible] 1852.

For several years I was afflicted with that terrible disease, Asthma, for the last two years I was confined to my room the greater part of the time, unable to lie down in bed, and for months together was obliged to sit in a chair, and could get no rest day or night, my cough was incessant, and my sufferings were severe. I was induced to try Dr. Curtis's Hygean or Inhaling Hygean Vapor and Cherry Syrup. At the time I first obtained it, I was suffering under one of my most violent attacks, and was in such distress, almost suffocating for want of breath. In less than 10 minutes from the time I applied the Inhaler, and took a teaspoonful of the Cherry Syrup, I found relief in a great measure from the difficulty of breathing, and had a comfortable night. I have since continued it with the greatest possible benefit, and am now entirely recovered well. God only knows the amount of suffering this medicine has relieved me from. My advice to the afflicted is—TRY IT.

MARGARET EASTON.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27th, 1853.

I came to New York in the ship Telegraph, my native place is St. John New Brunswick, where I resided till within a month was I left that place, I was attended by a good deal of medical skill, which I consulted frequently, but got no relief, but on the contrary, gradually grew worse, and continued to do so, every month increasing in severity, until I arrived in this city, when I was induced to try Curtis's Hygean or Inhaling Hygean Vapor and Cherry Syrup, which I verily believe was the means of saving my life. Soon after wearing the Inhaler I found it relieved the pressure on my lungs, and after a while the Cough made its appearance upon the use of the Inhaler. I took the Cherry Syrup as directed, and continued to do so, every month, gradually growing better, until I entirely left the city, and am now perfectly cured. I am wear the Inhaler, as the use of it is rather pleasant, and strengthening it strengthening and purifying to the lungs, I recommending at present to any person afflicted.

Poetry.

WHAT MAY BE OURS.

Thou that dost plan, indeed,
For weary mere precious than rich gems or gold,
Learn how to seek it ere thy heart grows old!
And take this for the creed:
Not who love us, but whom we love are our
Stronghold: those know thy yet undreamed of power.

Be thine no doubting mind!
More than thine eager hands can grasp,
More than thine outstretched arms can clasp,
Thou needest, and shalt find.
Thy treasure shall be countless and unknown,
For, all it loves, the heart doth make its own
And distance shall not limit thy deep love,
If from the human flowers that flourish
there
Some wandering chance, like Noah's gentle dove,
To thee a token of their bloom to bear,
Far off their home may be,
Beneath the glory of an eastern sky,
Or where bright isles amid blue waters rise
And flowing may it never be,
The ocean that sets their spirits earthly alone,
But oh! it thus can but bore them they are there.
Yes! Come or joy, or shine to prize!
To weep for—if dark years
Should dim the light that on them lies—
But thou wilt watch by tears!

And as within the heart of flowers,
Drink whence all good, all truth, all beauty
flows;
For Love the adoptive spirit was not given
To find all worlds on earth, and seek for more in heaven.

THE COLONISTS AND THE WAR.

Nova Scotia has voted £2000 to a parliamentary grant in the Patriotic Fund, and it has sent the following pr ems lines from a colonel heroine, which do but express the sentiment of the wife generally in the country. It is addressed by an emigrant lady to her military lover.

Long, I see thee, on Crimea's heights,
The soldiers Road I see daily!
The grave of old heroic fights
Upon their shoes revives again!

And well I discern the spirit
The eagle wings in mockery
The Northern Despotic iron rule,
Directs the battery's death-like fire!

And with it dreams, let's travelly,
My belief then the German Czar,
And most I believe, doomed to defeat
Even yet may make the proud Czar!

Oh! fight and theme-liberty and
The gallant Russ's not may die,
And so they will but every acre
We gauge them in a mortal sin.

A single sword may turn the scale,
A single arm may save the State,
One—Heaven will send a Saviour yet,
Though late, though late!

Talk not of love, resign my hand,
The time for love may come again,
When love is not a deadly bane!

There's blood upon the ball room floor,
And in the lamps he comes fire,
Through the cold attack he
Like ballad wolves the hunter's

Shall they shame you then
If we soon enough on shore
But should they for us, oppose
The women will do much more.

From soldiering seems the most remote,
Where precious hours are idly spent,
Were once exhausted, learn you to
If not enlisted in it yourself and you

Go where the brave sinews and sinew,
Like a stormed labours nobly dare,
Where nightly sounds the Cossack's yell—
Where unconquered, a man you

Talk not of love. My hand is yours!
And, if you bid me name the day
'Tis that on which you quit our shores
To mingle in the glorious fray.

THE TURKISH CO-OPERATION.

The Paris Monitour has the following regarding the diversion which Omar Pacha is to effect in the Crimea.

"We have made known the resolution of the Sultan to send to the Crimea, under the orders of Omar Pacha, a corps, destined to second the operations of the General-in-chief, by means of an important diversion in the rear of the Russian army.

The news we receive under the date of the 25th ult. from Constantinople announces that a ministerial letter, addressed to the Ottoman generalissimo, enjoins him to hasten in the embarkation of the Ottoman troops and to prepair immediately in person to the allied generals, in order to concert with them his future movements.

THE BLACK SEA.

Two Turkish commanders who behaved cowardly at Balaklava on the 25th October, have been publicly degraded at Constantinople and transported for seven years with hard labour.

The Levant mail steamer which left Constantinople on the 25th of December, brings the following intelligence:—

The Duke of Cambridge is much better and will probably return to England.

General Montebello has left for France.

Admiral Dundas and Admiral Hamelin are at Constantinople on their way home.

Admiral Lyons and Brunt are at present in command of the fleets.

The Ganges arrived at Toulon on Tuesday the 2nd inst.

She left Constantinople on the 25th ultimo.

At the last dates from the Crimea, eighteen Turkish battalions had already landed at Eupatoria.

As soon as the thirty thousand men shall have been completed the allies will resume their operations.

The besiegers had in part opened their fire.

The weather has become better and the communication by sea regular.

The St. Louis as well as other vessels had sailed from France.

In consequence of the extension of the siege lines of the allies, the communications and the transport of provisions had become very difficult between Sebastopol and the Russian army posted near Bala Chva.

The Duke of Cambridge, who has received a visit from the Sultan, is it is said to return to England.

Lord Cardigan has already set for London.

A clerk in one of our mercantile stores observed to a friend the other day, "Easy times now-a-days, very little work to do. Our firm don't advertise."

AUTOGRAPH LETTER OF THE QUEEN.

HER MAJESTY'S ANXIETY ABOUT THE WOUNDED IN THE CRIMEA.

The Morning Post publishes the following letter addressed by her Most Gracious Majesty to Mrs. Sidney Herbert, and through her to Mrs. Herbert, by whom it was translated to Miss Nightengale:

"Windsor Castle, Dec. 6, 1854.

"Would you tell Mrs. Herbert, that I begged she would let me see frequently the accounts she receives from Miss Nightengale of Mr. Bracebridge's. I hear no details from the wounded, though I see many from officers who are near about the battlefield, and naturally the former must interest me more than any one.

Let Mrs. Herbert also know that I wish Miss Nightengale and the ladies would tell the poor noble wounded and sick men, that we never take a warmer interest, feels more their sufferings, admires their courage, than those that their Queen.

They hold right dear thinks of her beloved troops," adds the Prince. Beg Mrs. Herbert to communicate these my words to those ladies, as I am sure sympathy is much valued by those noble fellows.

OFFICIAL DESPATCH FROM THE ALLIED CAMP.

Marshal Vaillant, French Minister of War, has received the following report dated December 29th, 1854, from General Canrobert.

"Marshal to Marseilles.

"The mud weather has been prolonged until now, so as to give but little relief in the way of improvement.

We nevertheless continue as much as possible the work of enclosing the place with our trenches, although the rains make the movement of vehicles difficult, all the siege works are growing to completeness and consolidation.

The two armies reciprocally assist each other. To the English army I am indebted for conveyances, by water, of nearly all the cavalry at my disposal in the Crimea, and on my part I have placed at Lord Raglan's disposal sumpter horses for removing his sick to Balaklava and teams for the conveyance of his supplies.

From the Bank Note and Commercial Reporter.

The panic is over—hard times are most over—money is easier—banks are safer—confidence is better—shining is lighter and times brighter. Stocks are better—discounts cheaper—shaving softer, and defaulters more scarce. There is a decided improvement.—We are in the beginning of an expansion.

The Lewis County Bank turns out to be a perfect swindle, and Stanton and Wilcox, who pocketed all the assets, have failed.

The Stark Bank, Vt., is selling at 50 cents on the dollar.

The Ship-Builders' Bank, Maine, is in a dubious state; we are at a loss what to pay for its notes.

The Merchants' Bank Burlington, Vt., will fail—mark what we say.

The Indiana Stock Banks are crystalizing; it is doubtful what their "turn up" will be.

The Auditor of Illinois refuses to give up any of the securities of a Bank unless 90 per cent of the circulation is returned; this is wrong; he should encourage the Banks to reduce their circulation, gradually. The State Treasurer of Michigan has sold the securities of the Government Stock Bank, but makes no dividend to the bill holders. What has he done with the money? We suspect there's a nigger in that fence.

The State Treasurer of New Jersey has made no move towards selling the securities of the Merchant's Bank, Bridgeton, and the Wheat Growers bank.

These State officers, we fear will find that there is something due to the unfortunate holders of broken bank money. Prompt action on the part of State officers is an essential part of the security under the Free Banking system. However, we brokers are benefitted by their delays, holders get out of patience, and sell at great shavos. We hope there will be no over-issues or defaulters among the State officers. This hanging by the gills indicates something, and suspicion will take to itself wings.

Answers to Correspondents.

There is not a spark of vitality in any part of this institution, and there is no possible chance of its being resuscitated in this generation. It is as entirely destitute of "assets," as an empty barrel with the head stove in. The sum total of its "metallic basis" would not make a German silver jews-harp. Instead of its bills being worth anything, we should think it would be a damage to a man to hold them. According to the report of the cashier, the redeeming agents in this city, Messrs. Stanton and Wilcox, owe the Bank some two hundred thousand dollars, but according to the statement of these gentlemen they have "offsets" for nearly if not the whole of the amount, and possibly the balance might be in their favor. But, however that may be, Stanton & Wilcox have just failed themselves, so there is no hope from that quarter. Both ends have collapsed, and there is no middle.—The Stockholders are individually liable, but unfortunately there are no Stockholders who are worth anything. To sum up the poets the concern "is as dead as a Dutch herring."—ib.

The Bank of Fapierville, Illinois, has recommenced business under favorable auspices, and its issues have been restored again to public confidence and general circulation. —Chicago Journal.

It is said that there are now in the City of New York 60,000 able bodied men out of employment—that 60,000 women, accustomed to earn their own livelihood, and in many instances to support families by their unaided efforts, h ve no employment, and that 10,000 children, accustomed to earn their own livelihood, and in many cases to aid materially, if not altogether to support dependent relations, are also out of employment.

GENERAL SCOTT'S OPINION OF THE WAR.

Correspondence of the Charleston Mercury.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan 8th, 1855.

I had recently the pleasure of hearing the criticism of General Scott on the war in the Crimea. I look upon Scott as one of the great captains of the age and I listened with great interest to his ideas. He says the allies have committed a great blunder in delaying the attack upon Sevastopol as long as they did that immediatly after the raising of the siege of Silistria they should have attacked Sevastopol, at which time there was a comparatively small force in the Crimea; that the allies cannot take Sevastopol unless they receive reinforcements, giving them a superiority of force to the extent of from thirty to fifty per cent; that the Russian regular soldiers are the best troops in the world for defence; they never fly, but perish, unless ordered to retreat. He thinks the Allies labour under a great disadvantage in having two commanding generals: that the road to victory is through unity of design. The inference that I would draw from General Scott's idea is, that Sevastopol will not be taken, for I doubt whether the Allies can throw in such a preponderance of force as necessary. The General further said that the allies could not reembark now without immense loss of men and all the materials of war in camp, except the weapons in their hands.

EMIGRATION TO CANADA.—The total number of emigrants arrived at Quebec during the year 1854 was 53,183. The number of paupers was 3, 421; these received on landing £3,271 17s sterling. Included in the latter number, 28 were natives of England, 2,971 of Ireland and 422 from Germany During the passage of the entire emigration there were 487 deaths.

SERAH SANDS.—We have already announced the fact of the Serah Sands having put into Queenstown, in a damaged state. Mr. J. S. Sanborn, a young gentleman of Portland, who had taken passage in the Sarah Sands, writes to his friends as follows:

"COAST OF IRELAND, Dec. 24, 1854.

"On the morning of the 7th December, we left Liverpool with beautiful weather. The next day the wind came ahead, blowing fresh, and by Sunday night, the 10th, blew a terrific gale, which lasted six days with scarcely an hour's cessation. Monday and Tuesday it seemed as though nothing could withstand it. One house was carried off deck, bulwarks fore and aft store, and figure-head carried away;—There was hardly a dry spot in the ship. The ship behaved beautifully—none could have ridden it out any better. So say the Captain and passengers.—The women on board were dreadfully frightened. The wind continued fresh from the wrong direction, and we made but little headway for nearly fourteen days—and as we were getting short of coal to risk it as far as St. John, the Captain reluctantly decided to turn back, after getting 1000 miles on our way. The ship was fully able to proceed, if we had coal.

Wednesday, 27th.—We are now lying in Cork harbor. Everything is as green as in September with you, and the scenery is most delightful. But such a city of poverty as Cork, I never saw. You know nothing of it in the States.

We most likely shall get away by the 30th. I do not object to the putting back at all, for I have enjoyed many rich scenes here. We had a fine Concert on board one night. This is a beautiful place.

Yours, in haste."

The Sarah Sands sailed from Cork on 1st instant and arrived at Portland yesterday forenoon. We understand that she leaves for Liverpool on the 6th or February.—Pilot.

BED BURNT TO DEATH.—It is feared that a boy who was in bed on board the steamer Queen City, when she caught fire, must have been burnt to death. He has not been seen since, and his disappearance cannot be accounted for, except on the fatal supposition that he must have come to his death in the vessel. —[Leader.

A VIGILANT MAYOR.—The Rochester Union says that the Mayor of that city has given orders for the arrest of skates which may be found traversing the icy sidewalks of the city. That is, he has directed his officers to seize all boys whom they may find skating about the streets, lay them down, pull off their skates, and bring the latter articles to the police office, A bushel or two of skates had been brought in at last accounts.

Steamer "Queen City."

BURNED TO THE WATER'S EDGE.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.

We regret to announce the entire destruction by fire of the steamer "Queen City," which has been running for some time on the Hamilton route. About 9 o'clock last evening, as the boat was lying at the Queen's Wharf, flames were discovered proceeding from the engine room. The Captain and crew were all on board, but they speedily discovered that all their efforts to extinguish the fire would be useless, and they turned their attention to the saving of the cargo.

The Steamers Chief Justice and Welland were moored astern of the Queen City, and were for some time in danger, as quickly as possible they were cut loose and moved from the neighbourhood. The flames continued to spread and even extended to the wharf, so as to cause some alarm for the safety of the Peerless Mayflower, and some schooners which were moved on the other side; but after some delay the Queen was shoved off from her berth, and suffered to drift to the eastward, where she came in contact with the ice opposite the Railroad, there she burnt to the water's edge.

The Queen City was owned by M. W. Brown, Esq., of Hamilton. She was worth about £4,000, and is said to have been fully insured. She had on board about 10 tons of goods for the ports between this pla and Hamilton, principally Dry Goods and Groceries, only about one-quarter of which was saved.—Globe.

CHANGES IN THE MINISTRY.

Messrs. Morin, Chabot, and Chaveau, retire from the Government, Mr. Cauchon takes the Commissionership of Crown Lands. Mr. Lemieux the Board of Works, and Messrs. Morin and Badgley the vacant Judgships."

The effect of thechanges will be thus n.

The Hon. P. J. O. Chauveau, late Provincial Secretary, is succeeded by Mr. G. E. Cartier.

The Hon. A. N. Morin, late Commissioner of Crown Lands, is succeeded by Mr. Jos. Cauchon.

And the Hon. Messrs. A. N. Morin, and Badgely, go on the Lower Canada Bench, in lieu of Hon. Judge Panet, deceased, and Hon. Judge Roland, resigned.

The changes in the ministry will tend to strengthen it much in the confidence of the Country. Mr. Cauchon is well known in this Province, and has a reputation for business talents and integrity which has won for him the confidence and respect of the French Canadians of Lower Canada. Mr. Cartier and Mr. Lemieux are also experienced and talented members of the Legislative Assembly. The judicial appointments ought to give satisfaction. In Mr. Badgeley the Lower Canada Bench receives a gentleman of high legal attainments and character.—

LONDON, FRIDAY, FEB'RY. 2, 1855.

Report Relative to the Great Western Railroad.

At a meeting of the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex, in December, 1854, Messrs. Elliott, Moore, and Fraser, having been appointed a committee to report to the Council as to the management of the Great Western Railroad, submitted the following report, which was adopted by the Council:—

COMMITTEE ROOM, Dec. 15, 1854.

Your committee appointed to consider the fittest course for the council to adopt at this time, in reference to the management of the Great Western Railroad, beg to report:—

That, considering as they do that the management of the road is unsatisfactory and inefficient, they are, nevertheless, of opinion that any action on the part of the municipal directors here towards effecting a change in the management, without the co-operation and aid of the English stockholders, is likely to be ineffectual; and your committee cannot but feel that to place the road under a proper and efficient state of management must be a matter as much to be desired by the English stockholders as by the stockholders and public in Canada, as all are equally interested in the success and satisfactory result of work. Accordingly, your committee recommend that this council do appeal to the English stockholders on the subject, through their chairman, Mr. Laing, in the hope that their intervention may be obtained towards placing the management of the road on a more satisfactory footing; and, in accordance with this view, they suggest the adoption of the following memorial to the English stockholders, through Mr. Laing, on the subject.

To Samuel P. Laing, Esquire, Chairman of the Stockholders of the Great Western Railroad of Canada, resident in England.

The municipal council of the County of Middlesex, in the Province of Canada, beg to address to you the following appeal, in the hope that it may lead to some decided action on the part of the English stockholders in procuring an improvement in the management of the Great Western Railroad in this Province.

And, first, this council would state, that as the holders of stock in that railroad to the amount of twenty-five thousand pounds, and, moreover, as representing a municipality greatly affected by its successful operation, they are deeply interested in it.

It was, therefore, with exultation that they hailed the completion of the great work, now nearly twelve months ago. Every one could foretell the profitableness of the line, and anticipated its successful operation. Shortly after the trains began to run, however, dissatisfaction was expressed. But as this feeling did not then appear to rest upon any good foundation, but rather to arise from causes which were unavoidable upon a new line, this council was satisfied to remain in the expectation that in a short time the management of the road would become matured, and all reasonable ground for complaint would disappear.

Soon, however, the occurrence of numerous accidents began to shake the confidence of this council in the management of the work. One accident occurred after another, until at last the awful calamity took place at Baptiste Creek, with the circumstances of which you will doubtless be familiar. By that accident more than fifty persons have been deprived of life, and many more irremediably maimed and injured. Had there been ordinary care and intelligence displayed in the control of the line, the council might have viewed this calamity, awful as it was, as but one of those accidents which will occasionally occur in all human transactions, in spite of every attention. But this council would refer to a report of the evidence, adduced before the jury at the coroner's inquest, upon that sad occasion, and they feel satisfied that no other conclusion can be come to than that to which they have arrived, namely, that to allow contractors in their discretion to use the line of railroad for their ballast cars, without any further security for the safety of the passengers on the line than the loose opinions of irresponsible people, as to whether the passenger trains had passed or not, was an instance of gross carelessness and mismanagement. Yet such, this council believe, were the facts elicited upon the inquiry referred to. And, unfortunately, this has not been the only accident arising, as the council believe, from the utter want of due attention and care in the management of this line; many other accidents have occurred—several of them attended with loss of life—making, in fact, a list of railroad calamities, it is believed, both as regards loss of life and destruction to locomotives and cars, unparalleled on any other line of railroad during the same period, on this or any other part of the globe.

Deeply impressed, then, with the conviction that the great work has failed not only to realize the anticipations that were formed of its success, but even to come up to the most reasonable expectations, the council venture thus to address you, because they are aware that the proxies of the English stockholders are all powerful in directing the management of the line; and they hope and trust that a natural regard for its successful operation will induce some decisive action to put things on a different footing.

It is true that this council is represented by one director, but he is only one amongst many; and, moreover, it is impossible, even for the combined efforts of the municipal directors of Canada, from occasional hurried visits to Hamilton, where the directorship meetings are held, to effect that change in the management of the line, which can only be accomplished by those who have the immediate and practical control of it.

This council are unwilling to attribute the mismanagement of the line to any particular individual or individuals, in the absence of that positive testimony which is essential to fix the culpability. But when they consider the loss of life, the numbers that have been wounded, the destruction of engines and cars, the sinking confidence in the line, not only on the part of the inhabitants of Canada, but also of the people of the neighbouring United States, upon whose support the success of the line is so greatly dependant, and the depreciated value of the stock, this council are compelled to state, that they have no confidence in the practical skill or ability which the managing directorship of this line of railroad is conducted; on the contrary, every day's experience seems but to indicate the want of those qualifications which are indispensably requisite to ensure its success.

This council, therefore, as representing the interests of the stockholders of the municipality of the County of Middlesex, in this Province, do earnestly solicit, through you, the action of the English stockholders in putting this line of railroad under a better and more efficient supervision than has hitherto been exercised over it.

It has been stated that the unfortunate results which have occurred in connection with this line of railroad, are attributable to the inefficiency of subordinate employees. But this council are of opinion that one of the principal qualifications for a manager to possess is the capacity to select suitable subordinates. And this council is well assured that they are procurable. It would be strange, indeed, if upon a continent where railways abound, as in North America, and where they are generally so successful, the Great Western Railroad should, alone, have this peculiarity about it, namely, that suitable subordinates could not be procured for it.

In conclusion, this council beg to represent to the English stockholders, that their confidence in the line as a profitable investment, under suitable management, is unshaken. They feel that nothing but a thorough, vigilant, and practical management of it is necessary to insure its success. And they earnestly call upon the English stockholders to use their preponderating influence in effecting such a change therein as will secure that success, to which, by every natural advantage, the great work is so well and so surely entitled.

THE POST MASTER-GENERAL.

Among other efforts which the opposition press have made of late to injure our present Ministry the attacks upon the Hon. Mr. Spence are most contemptible. That gentleman has used his very best exertions since assuming the arduous duties of his responsible office to carry out and render satisfactory our postal system. The enterprise, activity, and perseverance of our Post Master General are really praiseworthy, and no pains seem to be spared by him to remove every abuse or evil which may have existed in postal matters.

Not being able to make any capital out of his public conduct, the enemies of the Coalition Ministry turn their attention to his public speeches! Strong animadversions have been made upon some statements of Mr. Spence, which were delivered at the dinner given to him by his constituents not long since. Because he gave utterance to the following sentence, which contains the truth, "The Ministry have done more for Canada in a few weeks towards consolidating her future peace and prosperity, than was ever before done within the walls of the Legislature," the ultra-Radicals would almost hew him to pieces. The days of ultraism and excitement, however, are, at least for the present, over, and the Hon. Robert Spence may pity the ill-temper of his unprincipled opponents, and defy their attacks.

ERRATUM.—In "Citizen's" letter of last week, the word "co-operation of Jew money dealers," should read corporation of Jew money dealers.

CARLYLE. Friend Ayer:—In this age of quacks charlatans, and mere windy, gaseous pretenders to heal, who blow at every street corner, and in the face and ears of all men, their loud, blaring Jericho trumpets and other noisy boisterous wind instruments of marvellously twisted brass, in, such a woefully sham-ridden epoch as this, I say, it is comforting, nay, even cheering to the earnest well-wisher of his race to know there has arrived in this world a genuine Physician—to light once more upon something besides mere Sangrados and Don Mercurial Jalaps, with their phlebotomies, poisons, and warm water.

Your Cathartic Pills and Cherry Pectoral carry us forward to Halcyon days—to millenial Pharmacopoeas, when Science, deep diving down into the principles of things, shall, with infinite cunning, bring out the genuine Elixir Vitae: for of a truth there is manifestly enough somewhat of that same Life Essence in your subtle vegetable distillations and compounds.

You realise to us the visions of those painfullies smoke-dried Alchymists—bootless seekers—dreamers among retorts and crucibles, touching the Quintessential hidden Virtue of the Universe, which should antidote distemper, and break for man the Wheel of Time.

We find the following paragraph in a late number of the Dublin Daily Express, which we transfer with pleasure to our columns, inasmuch as the gentlemen mentioned are all near relatives of Dr. Hobbs, who resides now in our good city. —Ed. of the Times.

"A MILITARY FAMILY.—The last Gazette contains the name of Mr. Frederick Fitz-William Hobbs, M.D., who has purchased an ensigncy without purchase in the 55th Regiment. This young gentleman and his four brothers are at present in the service of her Majesty. The eldest is a Captain in the 21st (Royal North British Fusiliers, another is a Lieutenant in the Ceylon Rifles; the fourth is a Lieutenant in the 30th Foot, and the fifth and youngest will in a few days wear the Queen's cloth. These young officers are the sons of the late Captain Hobbs, of Greenhills, in the King's County, who at a very early age received his commission in the 92nd Highlanders, of which corps his brother-in-law, the late General Lamont, was Colonel. They are, indeed, as Wellington once remarked of a distinguished Scottish clan, 'a family of soldiers.'"

TOWN COUNCIL.

FIREMEN'S HALL, Monday, Jan. 29, 1855.

His Worship the Mayor in the Chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read.

PRESENT:

Messrs. Carling, Barker, Gunn, McBride, Glass, McGee, R. Smith, Lester, Peel, Glen, Carter, Wells, Schram, Daniells, Clegg, Moffat, F. Smith, Wheeler, Blair, Abernethy, Darby, Thipps, Kermott.

Councillor Blair would wish to know if any fees were to be attached to any of the City officers salaries.

Aldermen Barker said there were fees for issuing Licenses; the Treasurer received all so some fees.

It was understood that there were no fees of consequence attached to any of the offices.

A written communication was read from Benjamin Jarman for the office of chimney sweep and Fire Inspector.

Written communication from John Carefor relative to improper assessment.

Petition from A. McFarland praying for a reduction in license for theatrical performances.

Report of the committee on the Tank built by Mr. Shelton.

Account of James Elliot for £9 15s. for work done in the Firemen's Hall.

Written application from Dr. John Wasless to be appointed Coroner.

His Worship the Mayor stated that the Sheriff and Mr. Ridout had called on him to state that there were two destitute women in the jail who were not insane, and consequently could not be sent to the Provincial Lunatic Asylum; and that as there was no provision for such cases they could not remain in the County jail

Alderman Barker wished to know if the sum of £50 was not available for contingencies.

The Mayor explained that at the time of the Provincial Show two persons had been taken up and held to bail in the sum of £50 that as they never appeared to answer the charges against them the sum in question was in hand. The Sheriff had no objection for our applying to Government for permission to expend this for the benefit of the poor.

Alderman Daniels stated that instructions had already been given for that money to be sent at once to the Government and he was surprised that it had not been sent, it could not legally be detained by the Council.

The Mayor stated that if there were no objections, he would at once apply to the Government for the claimed permission. To this there was no objection raised—His Worship also stated that there were four orphan children who had been publicly supported ever since last August, and that some immediate steps should be taken to provide permanently for these cases, and others.

Alderman Schram thought the High Bailiff should find a place for these destitute persons, and that the council should pay a certain sum for them.

Alderman Barker stated that Montreal, Toronto and other cities, got sums of money from the Government, and that we should apply for and obtain similar grants as we ebhshrave received any. As to the women and children now under consideration they must be supported. Some system should be adopted which would meet all such cases. He was aware that large sums had been annually spent but without any definite plan. Nearly all the fines and the sum of £119 out of the Town Fund had been thus expended last year. These cases will multiply. All monies should be accounted for and put in responsible persons hands for distribution. There was a great want of organization. In some cases unworthy persons have been assisted. If a committee were appointed to look after these things everything would be much better. He thought a tax should be levied. We are allowed by law to levy a penny in the pound. If the sum thus realized were given to a committee all cases of extreme distress could be met.

Alderman Darby thought there should be a House of Refuge provided, and a committee appointed; that by so doing a great saving would be effected in the end.

His Worship the Mayor thought a special committee should be at once appointed to attend to the present cases.

Councillor McBride said it would take time to establish a system, and that these persons want immediate aid; that Mr. Ridout had stated his readiness to support one of the objects of charity for 6 months, if a place of residence could be found—something must be done at once.

Councillor Blair would like to know who examined those persons as to their sanity.—A competent Doctor should be employed by this council for such purposes. If they were insane they should go to the Asylum. One of the women was said to be intemperate, if so the Sheriff should keep her confined.

Councillor Glass had seen these destitute persons in the jail when on the Grand Jury. He thought there should be a sick ward in connxion with the jail.

Alderman Darby stated as to the persons being intemperate we are not bound to support drunkards. The constables should attend to such characters.

Alderman Schram thought if the woman in question got intoxicated, she should be brought up and fined or sentenced to 30 days imprisonment in the jail. They had no right to appropriate the city funds to drunkards.

Alderman Barker still urged the appropriation of a certain sum, and the appointment of a committee. All sorts of abuses would exist until we have a system. The county will not aid in making a House of Refuge, and unless this lax mode of procedure were abandoned people would flock to the city for relief from all the surrounding country.

Alderman Magee concurred with Mr. Barker in his remarks. He thought an individual should be selected from each Ward in the city, or seven persons for this business. That they should give to the poor provisions, fuel, &c., and not money. Drunkards will spend the money thus obtained in liquor and leave their families in misery.

Alderman Moffat moved, seconded by Councillor F. Smith that the sum of $20 be placed in the hands of the High Bailiff for the support of the individuals now under consideration.

Alderman Barker did not wish to oppose the motion but still urged the appointment of a committee.

Councillor Blair thought if persons were selected for this business some members of the council should be chosen or there would be no end to the expense. Alderman Schram thought it was best to name a committee of three from the council and start them with £50 in hand.

Alderman Daniells moved, seconded by Councillor F. Smith, that Messrs. Glass, Kermott, McBride, Schram, Blair, Glen and Daniells, be a committee to report upon the method to be adopted to relieve the poor of thecity of London and that in the mean time thesum of £5 be placed in their hands to defray the expenses of those now destitute—carried.

Dr. Wanless was then appointed Coroner.

CHIMNEY-SWEEP.

Councillor Glass thought that as the sweep was sometimes annoyed there should be a By-Law passed to protect him.

Councillor Glen thought that the city for the same reason should have a By-Law to protect it.

Alderman Magee would like to know what the duties of the sweep are.

Councillor Blair thought the sweep should be made also inspector of chimneys.

Ald Barker thought a Fire Inspector should certainly be appointed, there were probably more fires from Stove Pipes and Chimneys than all causes put together.

Ald. Schram would support such an appointment.

Ald. Moffatt thought the sweep should be fined 5s if a chimney took fire within a certain number of days after it had been swept.

Benjamin Jarman was appointed Chimney sweep and Fire Inspector.

In reference to Ald, Daniell's enquiry concerning the Port Stanley Railroad

Ald. Barker remarked that the work was not discontinued but merely restricted in consequence of the Directors not getting the repayment of the loan to the County Council of Middlesex.

The work would be pushed forward again so soon as they could negotiate a loan for £25,000 worth of Debentures, as to the interest it had been paid and there was also a sum of £1,000 due to the company by the city.

Ald. Daniell had been informed that the work had been discontinued and the men discharged.

His Worship the Mayor stated that the company were some time ago restricted to an expenditure of £2000 a month.

He was informed by the President to say that the estimate for the current month was equal to the restricted sum. They were getting out timber, &c.

Ald. Barker said there was no order given to stop the work, and that if it were discontinued it was at the contractors own option. The work was began on the first of April last. During the summer £5000 per month had been expended. He supposed there never had been a railroad in the world more punctual in its payments and their average expenditure had been £3000 a month.

They first received £20,000 from the county of Elgin and £50,000 from the Town of London; there was considerable private stock.

The Contractors had agreed to take 3-10 of bond of the company. Only a part was to be paid in cash up to the 1st of Dec. they had paid every month punctually.

They were not able to pay the December estimate from not having been paid the loan of £5,000 by the County of Middlesex. For this stoppage the contractors took umbrage and could suspend the work altogether. The Contractors had treated the company very badly. The company find it difficult to sell the debentures without loss. The contractors, however, would rather stop the work altogether. The provision of the contract was that the company could increase or decrease its monthly estimate. The contractors wanted to break the contract, they thought they had a bad bargain but they will have to keep on.

The road will do their duty and seek the interest of this town. The road must be built. We have in hand £25,000 County Middlesex Debentures—and £29,000 of other

The cause of the difficulty was the great competition of 1853. The contractors agreed to take 30 per cent in the Company's bonds, but now, after agreement was signed and sealed they wanted them to pay £90 in cash and only £10 in bonds. The Company will act honorably. The work must be done and the quicker they do it the better.

Councillor R. Smith thought time should be given the contractors; it was usual to decrease the monthly amount of work in the winter.

Ald. Daniell. How much is due from the Company to the road contractors.

Ald. Barker—About £4000 to the contractors, which will be immediately paid.

Ald. Carling wished to bring on his motion relative to a Police Magistrate.

It was ruled that the motion could not now be brought forward, as Ald. Carling was not present at the time he named for its consideration.

Ald. Carling gave notice that he will bring this motion forward at the next meeting of council.

COMMITTEE ON POLICE REPORT.

Ald. Daniell, as chairman of the committee, read the following report:

"The committee on police beg to report to the common council, that in their opinion it is necessary to employ an efficient police force in the city of London for the protection of property, the prevention of crime, and the preservation of the public peace. That the committee are satisfied that proper men cannot be had for situations so responsible without paying them for their services, and they recommend that the high bailiff be paid £75, the high constable £62, and each of the constables £50 per annum, over and above all fees collected or received by them in the discharge of their duty. That the committee recommend the employment of seven constables, between the ages of 21 and 35 years, besides the high bailiff and chief constable, and that the high bailiff, or in case of his absence or sickness, the chief constable shall have the charge and management of the constables.

"That the duty of the police shall be to preserve the public peace throughout the city, and report all violations of the by-laws, report all suspicious persons and places, arrest offenders, and guard the city both by night and day; that they shall also see that all nuisances are speedily abated and the market regulations strictly enforced, and that the several duties that have heretofore appertained to the office of inspector shall be discharged by them. That at least two of the constables shall patrol the city every night, and on each morning shall report the particulars of the previous night, which report, with the constable's name, shall be written by the high bailiff or high constable in a book to be kept for that purpose. That the police shall attend at all fires, and render assistance in protecting property from injury.

"That the constables shall be obliged to attend promptly to the order of the high bailiff and chief constable on all occasions, and it shall be the duty of those officers to report any of the constables who shall neglect or refuse to perform their duty, or who shall be guilty of any misconduct. And that the high bailiff and chief constable shall be responsible for the proper performance of the duties imposed upon the men under their charge.

"Your committee cannot too strongly urge upon the Council the necessity of selecting active, sober, and intelligent men for constables; as the city increases in population no no doubt will crime increase, and it is very important to have men who are capable of discharging properly the several duties required of them. The use of intoxicating liquors should be strictly prohibited, and its use by any of these selected should be a sufficient cause for their dismissal. Your committee consider that the example set by a well regulated body of police to the public produces good results of itself, and crime is often prevented from the mere apprehension on the mind of the criminal of such men, when on the other hand if persons are selected of indolent and careless habits it acts as an encouragement for the commission of offences, from the belief among offenders that they will escape detection.

"JAMES DANIELL, Chairman."

Considerable discussion took place as to whether the Policemen should wear uniform; it was finally agreed that they should not, but that they should be designated by a badge on their breast containing a crown and their number.

Moved by Alderman. Barker, seconded by Alderman Schram that the Report be adopted—carried.

The Report of the Committee on the Tank stated that Mr. Sutton had not satisfactorily made it, and that he be not paid till the tank was finished according to contract.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE presented the following report:—

"Your committee have the honor to report that there is now due to contractors and others the sum of £9,612, which must be met immediately, or suits will no doubt be entered against the Council.

To meet the above sum there is now due:

Taxes which will be collected, say within 3 months,	£6,000	0	0
Cash on hand,	1,054	0	0
License payable within 3 months,	1,000	0	0
Market Fees, Stall Rents, and rent of Buildings,	225	0	0
Deficiency,	1,333	0	0
Amount,	£9,612	0	0

"The course your committee would recommend is to endeavour to borrow $5,000 from one of the Banks, with a promise that the same shall be repaid out of the first taxes collected, which would give much assistence to the Corporation untill other revenues would become available.

"We would also recommend that all parties to whom the City is indebted shall be immediately notified with, and checks issued to them, and that the Collector be ordered to return his roll, with the names of all defaulters on the first of March next, showing the amounts due by each, whether due for taxes, stall rents, or otherwise; and would also recommend that the block of Land granted by the Goverament for a burial ground be sold, as it is no longer required by the Corporation, other grounds having been purchased in lieu therefore in a more suitable place, and that the Mayor be requested to apply immediately, to the Governor in Council for the requisite authority.

Your Committee also regret to find that a large amount is due from former years, which ought to be put in suit forthwith, and we would also recommend that all bills in future should be laid before the Finance Committee for their examination and approval before being submitted to the Auditors.

"All of which is most respectfully submitted

GEORGE G. MAGEE,
Chairman."

Ald. Barker explained the cause of the deficiency, in their inability to sell the debentures.

Councillor Blair would like to know if anything had been done about selling the debentures.

Ald. Barker saw no probability of selling them yet, but thought the Bank of Montreal would accommodate them.

Ald. Daniells hoped that if a loan were effected the terms of that loan should be expressed and clearly defined.

Ald. Barker thought that all the contractors should be paid at once.

Ald. Daniells thought the Banks should loan us money as a corporation and not as individuals. The Report was then adopted.

By Laws and rules. No report yet sent in.

Committee on Licences reported. Referred back to the Committee.

BELL RINGER.

Henry Ewd was appointed to this duty with a salary of £40 per annum.

HIGH BAILIFF.

There were two applicants for this office, viz:—Mr. Vanvalkenburg, and William Oakley.

Mr. Vanvalkenburg was then appointed High Bailiff the votes standing 13 to 9.

Ald Daniell moved; Coun. Peel seconded, that William O'Reilley be appointed Chief Constable.—Carried.

POLICEMEN.

A large number of persons who were applicants for these offices were present.

Ald McGee insisted that all those applicants for offices should be made to sign their names; how could they properly discharge their duties or serve legal papers unless they could write and we should know this.

Ald Barker thought that if writing is to be a test for office we should begin at home, and no man should be admitted a Councillor unless he could write a first rate hand, his competency to be decided by some one appointed by Government.

The following persons were chosen for policemen.

Michael Kennedy was appointed Pound-Keeper.

The Posting of Bills was given to Mr. Williams.

Moved by Coun McBride, seconded by Coun. Gunn, that a book be provided for standing committees in which they shall enter minutes of their proceedings. Carried.

Coun. Smith moved, seconded by Ald. Moffat, that the clerk procure certificates of firemen who have served seven years.—Carried.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CHURCH SOCIETY AT DELAWARE, HELD ON 23RD ULT. IN CHRIST CHURCH, DELAWARE.

We have much pleasure in calling attention to the following item of religious intelligence. The Report and statement of the proceedings cannot fail to awaken a deep interest in every person who is friendly to the cause of our holy religion. There was a very numerous and respectable concourse of people present at the meeting where the following resolutions were adopted, and the greatest interest in the proceedings was evinced by all, although there were but few public speakers present. The venerable missionary—the Rev. R. Flood, A.M.—must be cheered in his arduous duties by this additional testimony, that his people are rooted and grounded in the faith, and are feelingly alive to the necessity of increased exertions for the support of their church.

The committee of the Delaware and Caradoc Church Association, in presenting their brief report to the members of this association, would remark, that although the subscriptions and quarterly collections have not been much less than those of the preceding year, yet they have every reason to believe from past experience that steady advances will be made in proportion to the growth and prosperity of this settlement.

Hitherto contributions have been made to this association, with few exceptions, by the stated members of the congregation attending this church, who also have been contributing toward their minister's salary by pew rent.

Now, your committee are of opinion that since the majority of the population of this Province have decided by their suffrages at the hustings during the past year that endowments from the Crown for the support and advancement of

☞ We learn by telegraph from Port Elgin, that the Engine House and Machine Shop of the Buffalo, Brantford and Goderich Railroad was burned, together with five locomotives this morning. Loss estimated at $50,000; supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Loss severely felt by the Co.—British Standard.

HAMILTON POST-OFFICE ROBBERY.—On the further examination of the three supposed robbers, Thompson, Johnson, and Boddy, on Saturday, the first was committed for trial, the second remanded till to-day, and the third discharged, there being no evidence further than his having been in bad company.—Colonist of 30th.

County Council.

WEDNESDAY, Janv. 24, 1855.

COUNTY SOLICITOR.—Mr. Craik moved, seconded by Mr. Rogers, that John Wilson, Esq., be appointed Solicitor for this county.

In amendment, Mr. Campbell moved, seconded by Mr. Moyle, that W. Elliott, Esq., be appointed Solicitor for the county.

In further amendment, Mr. Frank moved, seconded by Mr. Walters, that J. Scatchard, Esq., be appointed Solicitor for the county. Both amendments being lost, the original motion was put, and carried by the casting vote of the Warden.

PETITIONS FROM MOSA.—Mr. Archer brought up a petition from certain inhabitants of the township of Mosa; which was read, and referred to the Board of Road Directors.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.—The Committee on Public Improvements presented a Report; which was read, and referred to a committee of the whole council.

After the Council resumed, the Chairman of Committee, Mr. Frank, reported the adoption of the Report with amendment; and submitted it for the the adoption of the Council.—(Received and adopted.)

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON IMPROVEMENTS.

The Committee on Public Improvements beg leave to report that the following Roads be introduced to the favourable consideration of your honourable body, viz.:—The line of road in the Township of Ekfrid on the line between Lots 12 and 13 from the River Thames, west to the old Town line of Adelaide, till it intersects the Curry Road.

Your Committee would further recommend the continuation of the Curry Road from the line between the 4th and 5th Concessions of Adelaide to the Sarnia Road, thence to the Town line of Williams, known as the West Williams Road.

Your Committee would beg further to report that they had under deliberation the petition of Andrew Miniely and others of the Township of Adelaide, praying, among other things, that your honourable body would appropriate a portion of the County funds for opening the County Line between the Township of Adelaide in the said County of Middlesex, and the Township of Warwick in the County of Lambton; and your Committee would request that the Warden and Clerk communicate with the Warden and Clerk of the County of Lambton, for the purpose of ascertaining from the said County whether the County of Lambton is desirous of assisting in opening the said Road.

Your Committee would further report that they cannot report favourably upon Town Line between Lobo and London for the present.

Your Committee would beg further to report, that considering the pressure of the Money Market, as well as the large liabilities of the County, they would, upon this most mature deliberation, recommend that no roads be assumed by your honourable body for the present time, but that when the financial state of the County admits, that the roads recommended above be assumed as County Roads.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

MICHAEL CAMPBELL, Chairman.

Committee Room, January 24, 1855.

AMENDMENT OF MUNICIPAL ACT.—Mr. Moyle moved, seconded by Mr. McIntyre, that this Council take into consideration the propriety of petitioning the Legislature to consolidate the Municipal Acts; and that this Council do resolve itself into committee of the whole for that purpose.—(Carried.)

COMMITTEE ON MUNICIPAL ACT.—Mr. Craik moved, seconded by Mr. McFarlane, that a special committee be appointed, consisting of Messrs. Moyle and Campbell, with the assistance of the Clerk, in reference to the necessity of consolidating the Municipal Act, and amending the same.—(Carried.)

On motion of Mr. Campbell, seconded by Mr. Rogers, the Warden and Mr. Craik were added to the above committee.

The Council adjourned.

THURSDAY, Janv. 25, 1855.

CAPITAL STOCK OF P. S. R. CO.—The President of the Port Stanley Railway Company appeared before the Council, praying them to take into consideration the propriety of raising the amount of their subscription to the Capital Stock of the said Company under the Consolidated Municipal Loan Fund Act.

The Council adjourned.

FRIDAY, Janv. 26, 1855.

REPORT OF ROAD DIRECTORS.—The Board of Road Directors presented a Report; which was read, and referred to a committee of the whole council.

After the Council resumed, Chairman of Committee, Mr. Campbell, reported the adoption of the Report of Road Directors, as amended; and submitted it for the the adoption of the Council.—(Received and adopted.)

REPORT OF ROAD DIRECTORS.

Your Board of Road Directors beg leave to report that after a careful investigation of the amount of labour performed as stated in detail by the County Engineer, your Board would recommend that the several contractors be paid one-half or the whole of the several amounts due them by the County, if the County funds will permit, with per centage, in proportion to the amount of work done, if an amicable arrangement can be come to with the contractor or contractors.

Your Board beg to state, as to the petition of the Municipal Council of the Township of Mosa, praying for the Hagarty Road, as assumed by your Council in 1853, be carried into effect, and that the Hagarty Road, as now under contract, remain as it is until an arrangement can be come to with the contractor or contractors.

Your Board would further state that the petition of Colin McKinnon and others of the Township of Ekfrid, praying for the Old Curry Road, as originally assumed by your Council, to be carried into effect. That it is the opinion of your Board, that from the fact of that Road, if improved as prayed for, would exceed nearly double of the original appropriation, therefore recommend the Curry Road, now under contract, to be completed as soon as circumstances will permit.

Your Board is of the opinion that so soon as the County is in a position to advance the public improvements now under contract be carried on to completion, and that all roads most likely to prove paying ones be so far completed as soon as possible to enable the County to levy Tolls thereon.

Your Board are of the opinion, in reference to a lease owned by one James Bruce, in the Township of Westminster, who claims pay for the loss of said horse be referred to your County Engineer for investigation.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

H. CLENCH, Chairman.

Committee Room, January 26, 1855.

CONTRACTORS' CLAIMS.—Mr. McFarlane moved, seconded by Mr. Frank, that the contractors present their claims to the Board of Road Directors, for damages, &c.; and if the Board do not admit of such claims, that they appoint an arbitrator and the contractors another, whose decision shall be final; and in the event of the arbitrators not agreeing, an umpire shall be chosen; and that said arbitration shall take place in one month.—(Carried.)

CAPITAL STOCK P. S. R. Co.—Mr. Moyle moved, seconded by Mr. Miller, that it is expedient at present to bring before the several municipalities, of this county, the propriety of raising the amount of the subscription to the Port Stanley Railway Company, under the Consolidated Municipal Loan Fund Act.—(Carried.)

CONTRACTORS' CLAIMS.—Mr. McFarlane part, seconded by Mr. Craik, that as some former this Council have an idea that the tlement solution relative to effecting a set- strued to in the contractors, may be con- that the contractors have suetained damages, this Council will not agree to any claims in regard to damages until such time as the same can be proved clearly to their satisfaction; and in case this Council has to appoint an arbitrator, that John Wilson, Esq., be appointed.—Carried unanimously.)

FINANCE REPORT.—The committee on Finance presented a Report; which was referred to a committee of the whole council.

After the Council resumed, the Chairman of Committee, Mr. Archer, reported the adoption of the Report of the Committee, without amendment.—(Received and adopted.)

To the Warden and Council of the County of Middlesex.

The Standing Committee on Finance taking into consideration the improper statements and misrepresentations that are afloat with respect to the Financial affairs of this County deem it their duty to make a fair statement of its Finances in detail.

Your Committe find that the Debentures sold under By-Law 29, amount to £44,172 15s., realized in Cash £37,736 11 6; some having been sold to pay more than 10 per cent per annum to the purchaser, and some not more than 7½, which under the present state of the Money Market, your Committee think highly satisfactory.

There yet remains to be disposed of £55,828 which from the best information we have been able to obtain, we think will realize £45,000 which may be disposed of as follows. Estimated sum required to meet expenses until December next:—

Leaving a balance of £13,306 12 10 to complete the improvements now in progress.

Your Committee find the sum of £5000 now in the Treasury available to pay the contractors in part, which they recommend should be done in proportion to their claims, and we have great hopes of paying them in three weeks all their claims except the percentage.

We also recommend that the sum of £2000 be paid the Port Stanley Railroad Company on that liquidation of the Debt due them by this County.

Your Committee would again call the attention of the Council to the enormous expense incurred by repairs of Gaol and Court House which exceeds the appropriation by £851 14 4, including the sum of £450 which Mr. Leather estimates will be required, and we find that Mr. Leather alone has received since June last the sum of £150 as Salary.

Your Committee recommend that the several County Officers shall receive the following sums for their services.

Warden £75 a year, and £2 for each attendance at Hamilton as Railway Director, Treasurer £150 and all fees to be funded. Clerk £150.

REPORT ON AMENDMENT OF MUNICIPAL ACT.—The Committee appointed to suggest amendments to the Municipal Act, presented their Report; which was read, and referred to a committee of the council.

After the Council resumed, the Chairman of Committee, Mr. Archer, reported the adoption of the Report of the Committee, without amendment.—(Received and adopted.)

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON AMENDMENTS TO MUNICIPAL ACT.

Your Committee appointed to suggest amendments to the Municipal Council Act, and Assessment act beg to report.

That in their opinion it would conduce to the better working of these acts, were the following amendments made.

1. That the County Council should have the sole controul of County property, and the auditing of all accounts chargeable against the County before the payment of the same. This amendment is absolutely necessary to present the embarrassment of the financial affairs of the County, by the expenditure of large sums of money without the knowledge or consent of the County Council, who are required to raise the money.
2. That County Councils have the same power of adjudging imprisonment for infringement of their by-laws, as is given to Township Municipalities.
3. That power be given to the County Council to order the sale of lands of absentees for amount of taxes, at shorter periods than five years.
4. That County Councils have the same power as Incorporated Road Companies to enforce arbitrations for Lands taken for Roads.
5. That the inconsistency between the Municipal Act and the Assessment Act, as regards the commutation of Statute Labour be removed, by authorizing Municipal Corporations to levy any sum not over 5s per day for such labour.
6. That Township Councils have the power to assess for the support of indigent parties without the written requisition of the majority of the inhabitants.
7. That pound-keepers be required, in cases where the owners of impounded horses oxen or cows, are unknown, to advertise the same in the public papers of the County.
8. That personal property be assessed at its real value in the same way that freehold property is.
9. That the whole of the Municipal Acts be consolidated.

Your Committee would further recommend that a petition to the Legislature praying that the above amendments be made, be drawn up and forwarded to John Wilson Esq. M. P. P., and William Niles Esq., M. P. P. for presentation.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THE INDIAN WAR.

It will be seen from the following extract from the New York Courier that there is some danger of an Indian war taking place. Perhaps this war would not be quite the thing for President Pierce whose public belligerent propensities would have led him rather to attack Spain or France than those who reside in wigwams.

However ambitious people are sometimes annoyed at the paltry turns of Dame Fortune against them.

The mighty Republic has been for some years past allowing—we were going to say employing—vast numbers of its surplus, or reckless, restless population in fillibustering and sympathizing movements, and have not gained to themselves much honor or distinction thereby.

Here in the Indian War if it really comes on will be a fine chance for the exhibition of courage, patriotism, and aggressive enterprise! These may cause a great deal of trouble yet to the subjects—or rather "feller citizens" of President Pierce:

"Affairs on our Western frontier look threatening. A special message from the President, together with a letter from the Secretary of War and extracts from communications by Indian agents to the War department, were, as announced by our telegraphic despatches, laid before Congress on Thursday last.

The secretary states that the intelligence received from officers on the frontier and through the Department of the interior from Indian agents and other sources, shows that the Indians of the Western praries and mountains are in a hostile and defiant attitude; that several of those tribes have entered into a union for the purpose of making war upon the palo-faces during the approaching spring and summer, and that these tribes can bring into the field from four to six or eight thousand warriors."

(FROM OUR EXTRA OF TUESDAY.)

HALIFAX, to-day.

Africa arrived at Halifax this morning, and has arrived at Liverpool, and her advices had imparted an upward tendency to the cotton market; and prices closed at a slight advance. Sales of the week foot up 50,000 bales. The Manchester advices are without improvement.

BREAD STUFFS.—Markets closed on Friday at 6d advance over rates current at the sailing of the Pacific.

INDIAN CORN had also improved during the week, and closed at 6d per quarter advance.

CONSOLS closed at 91¾. The war news is entirely unimportant. Nothing of a decisive character had occurred before Sebastopol, and the state of affairs was wholly unchanged. Negotiations were still in progress; but nothing is certainly known respecting them.

FURTHER BY THE "AFRICA."

The Union sailed from Southampton on the 10th for New York.

There is a remarkable scarcity of intelligence in respect to the progress of the siege or the negotiations. Hopes are entertained that the negotiations may lead to peace; but there are equal apprehensions that they may fail, and that the war will assume a greater magnitude. The policy of the Allied Powers will probably be to protract the negotiations, in hopes that in the meantime the fall of Sebastopol will happen to influence the decisions.

One of the rumours says that Russia has again expressed a readiness to renounce the exclusive protectorate, and evinces a strong desire to establish peace.

Austria also shows a desire for peace, but will, however, formally insist on Russia's accepting such conditions as the welfare of Europe demands; but will hesitate to conclude an offensive alliance with England and France until it is exactly known what will satisfy the powers. The object evidently is to prevent Austria taking an active participation in the war.

FURTHER FROM BERLIN & VIENNA.

Sardinia is reported to undertake to send 15,000 men, recruited from all Italy, to aid the Allies in the East. The reason assigned is for want of an outside enterprise to engage their attention. The Italians are growing restless. The Senates of Lubec and Hamburg have issued edicts forbidding foreign enlistment.

Bremin and Machenburg will also prohibit enlistment.

THE CRIMEA.—The latest news is to the 18th. Omar Pasha was at the camp. He considered Reinforcements continue to reach the Allies, and over 1,000 Imperial French Guards and English are at sea on their way.

Lord Raglan has sent to India for the 20th Hussars.

The Turks in the Crimea are to be made up to 60,000 before the end of January.

Russian reinforcements are arriving by forced marches through Bessarabia.

The weather is frosty, and the roads are passable, although snow had fallen. The frozen ground retarded the works of the besiegers.

ILLUSTRATED SHAKSPEARE.

Numbers eight and nine of "The Quarto Shakspeare Illustrated" now lie before us. No. eight has a portrait in character of Mr. Hackett as Falstaff. The reading matter is "Much ado about Nothing. No. nine is prefaced with a representation of Miss Julia Dean [illegible] trice in the above play; the reading matter [illegible] notes on Much ado about Nothing and the commencement of Love's Labour Lost.

The plates and general appearance of these numbers are equal to the specimen issues which were circulated; and are very excellent. Probably this is the best edition of Shakspeare extant. For clear print, good paper, and, apparently, very correct representation of the text, this publication would do honour to any publishing house in the world.

Published by Martin & Johnson, New York; and sold by John P. Johnson, Toronto. Price 25 cents a number.

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE.—This very excellent monthly for January has been received. The contents are: The Conduct of the War; Civilisation: The Canons; Education; Zaidee, a Romance—Part II.; Rural Economy of Great Britain and Ireland; Mr. Thackeray and his Novels; Peace and Patriotism; A Letter to Tremona; The Story of the Campaign, Part II., written in a tent in the Crimea. This well-known literary magazine is unusually attractive just now from the articles and comments on the war. This best of monthlies should be taken by all persons who have a taste for reading and the means to spare to purchase it. The Messrs. Leonard, Scott, & Co. issue reprints of this and the other great English magazines and reviews at a very low rate. Price of Blackwood only $3,00 a-year.

NORTH BRITISH REVIEW.

Mr. Andrews, of this city, has furnished us with a copy of the November number of this British periodical.

CONTENTS: The Wonders of the Shore; Popular Education in Scotland; Milman's History of Latin Christianity; The insoluble Problem; Kaye's Life of Lord Metcalfe; Sir H. Holland on Mental Physiology, Electro Biology, &c. Annotated Edition of English Poets—William Cowper: Progress and Prospects of the War.

This magazine is in the interest of the Free Church; but it takes a wide range in the walks of literature, and is by no means strictly confined to religious questions and publications. By perusing this work the views and cast of thought of persons of the school of politics to which the Scottish members of the Free Church generally belong can be ascertained and satisfactorily discerned. This magazine ranks among the very best in the old country. For sale by Mr. Andrews, Dundas-street.

THE CANADIAN ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE is the name of a very neat monthly paper which is published at Toronto. It purports to give a succinct account of everything of interest; all official notices, &c., which take place in this and the neighbouring dioceses. We have been acquainted with this work ever since it first made its appearance, and can recommend it to those who want to know what is going on in church matters. Price 2s 6d a-year.

The Council proceedings will be found in another column.

There was a much better spirit evinced last Monday evening than at the preceding meeting. Factious opposition there was none, and the business of the evening was well conducted. There was some confusion in the proceedings in a few instances, arising from the want of previous preparation and arrangement. The Reports were not good, bearing evidence of haste, and lacking originality and ingenuity. The Report on Police was very common-place. No recommendation was embodied in it relative to uniformity of dress; or the mode of selecting from the candidates. The report on licenses was compiled without careful reference having been made to the statute. The mode adopted, also, for choosing the policemen was not good. There was something almost indelicate in causing a number of men to come forward publicly and to stand huddled together like slaves in a Southern market, to be examined as to their age, appearance, &c. The manner of selecting them was withal unsatisfactory and uncertain, and productive of unnecessary delay. A much better plan would have been to have appointed a committee of two or three, furnished with explicit directions as to the required age, personal appearance, constitution, height, habits, capability, &c. &c., of candidates; and then a selection might have been made of a most satisfactory nature in, perhaps, every respect, which selection could have been ratified by a vote in council.

But there was a disposition to push business forward, and we wish not to find fault.

The conduct of the spectators was also much better than at the preceding meeting, especially in the early part of the evening. There was, however, a great deal of heavy tramping and running up and down stairs. Indeed, if such incessant marching to and fro is to be kept up it would be well to cover the floor of the room with sawdust; or, if a contract for thrashing grain could be entered into by the Council, a heavy business in that line might be carried on, for almost any quantity of sheaves laid upon the floor would be kicked into smithereens before the hour of midnight arrived; the only risk would be that, as moaning would be out of the question, large quantities of the grain thus thrashed might not, towards the close of the protracted debates, be summarily disposed of by the thrashers, thus taking the gold off the gingerbread!

In sober language, however, there is altogether too much noise allowed among the crowd who assemble to hear the proceedings of the Council. The city council is a very important body; and should receive every mark of decent respect. The members of that body are the representatives of some ten or twelve thousand human beings; among whom are the intelligent, refined, and learned; they are chosen to deliberate upon the best interests of the city; and their position is a very honourable one. The most aristocratic person in Canada would not be disgraced by a seat at our municipal board. Nor is any one, even of liberal attainments, to feel himself at all demeaned because honest and deserving mechanics are chosen to civic honours. The peculiar glory of our empire is, that talent and fidelity are respected; and that the highest offices are open to the deserving and persevering of the humblest class.

With becoming dignity, therefore, should the Council, through their mayor, enforce respectful stillness and decent attention among those who choose to be present at any of their deliberative meetings.

THE MINISTRY & THEIR OPPONENTS.

Most disgusting is the course of the opponents of the present ministry; without any regular plan, or properly digested policy, they seem resolved to turn their attention to the acts of the present Government for no other purpose than to oppose them! The conduct of the ultra-Reform party is most inconsistent and unpatriotic. During the long reign of the Reformers, Conservatives were never found offering factious opposition, but were ever ready to co-operate in all useful and needed measures; but although the Conservatives have been in power but a few months, and that in conjunction with the moderate Reformers, the Browns, Mackenzies, and others of like stamp, spare no pains to endeavour to torture every act of the Cabinet and its friends into one of inconsistency and error. One thing seems to have given mortal offence to these immaculate statesmen, viz., the late release of the Legislative Council; because, forsooth, a majority of our new "lords" are of the conservative school. A greater piece of absurdity and bare-faced impudence cannot be found than this objection to the selections made. It is well known that, from the intrigues of the ultra-Radicals, the Legislative Council has been so leavened with men after their own heart, that nothing could be carried on by a working government until that body was relieved from its rabidly ultra character. The ebullients of such proceedings as those now complained of, unhappily, too often occurred under the defunct administration. The Rebel Bill never could have been carried but by a Radical addition to the number of the council.

Despite, however, the silly clamours which are raised, the ministry is increasing in influence and public favour. The late charges will have a tendency to strengthen the hands of the Government, and we congratulate the country upon the prospect of a long confirmation of what Canada for years required but could not obtain—a working moderately conservative Ministry.

THE LONDON AND PORT STANLEY RAILROAD.

We are happy to state, from the most authentic information, that this much-needed and favorably situated road is likely to be completed at a very early date. Some little disappointment has been experienced in consequence of the cash, which the directors loaned to the county of Middlesex, not having been refunded; and there was a slight curtailment of the work made during the last month; but all will be right in a few days. The grading is nearly all done, and most of the other work is in a satisfactory state of advancement.

There has been already expended upon the work, for right of way, materials, and labour about £100,000, which is half the estimated cost of the road. The work which has been done is of the most substantial kind, and reflects great credit upon the very enterprising contractors, Messrs. Pierson, Case, & Co., who are men of experience and of sufficient ability to carry on the work to the best advantage.

With the means that the company will have available there is every prospect of the work being pushed vigorously forward, and of the road being completed during the present year.

THE JOURNAL OF EDUCATION for December, which is the end of Vol. 7, and contains an index for the volume. There is a deal of information and valuable reading in this monthly. Those who are enamoured of our "national" system of education, indeed, could scarcely dispense with this able exponent of its principles and details; persons of different views will hold it, however, in but small estimation.

PORTRAIT PAINTING.

With regard to the statements concerning Ald. Barker's proceedings in the Council which have appeared in the Times, we fully endorse the declaration of our cotemporary, the Free Press, with a few slight alterations, viz., that "in our studio the lines are traced just as they appear; and if the picture is a little too truthful to be pleasant—a little too (flowing) to appear lovely (to persons unskilful to Mr. Barker) the fault does not lie with ourselves."

As to the ill-natured remarks respecting want of candour, we are not accustomed to impute unworthy motives to others, and therefore are not at all affected by discourteous insinuations.

The Times is an independent journal, being under the restraint of no person or clique whatever; and will commend merit and frown upon improper conduct exhibited publicly in a soldier or a lawyer, a gentleman or a mechanic, a peasant or a prince.

☞ "In the last issue of the Times we observe a statement to the effect that the Free Press is a joint-stock concern, and that the largest shareholder is a member of the Corporation."—Free Press. The Times never made such a statement; these are the words referred to by our cotemporary. "Now it is to be remembered that that gentleman (Mr. Daniells) is said to be the principal stockholder of the Free Press." This report is still current; but if the rumour be proven incorrect, we shall be happy to make the amende honorable. The public really have no more to do with the knowledge of who owns a printing-office than they have with the knowledge of who owns the mill where their flour is ground: the quality of the article in both cases being the only matter of concernment. It was in reference to a public act that Mr. Daniells' name was mentioned in conjunction with the Free Press, and we still contend that if that gentleman be the principal proprietor of that establishment, the pertinacity with which he insisted to be on the committee for printing was indecorous and suspicious.

PATRIOTIC FUND.—We shall with pleasure insert in the next number all the names we can procure of the parties who have subscribed to this fund.

PATRIOTIC FUND.—In every part of the Province great exertions are being made to augment this fund. Large sums of cash are being raised in almost every conceivable way; by municipal grants; by public subscriptions; private contributions; concerts, &c., &c. The most satisfactory evidence is given that the war is popular in Canada.

THE annual meeting of the Colonial Bible Society was held on Wednesday evening in the Wesleyan Methodist chapel on Northeast-st. Alderman Sifter was in the chair. The colonial agent, the Rev. L. Taylor, delivered a long and deeply interesting speech. Several other gentlemen also addressed the meeting. There was a large attendance, and the interest taken in the proceedings was very great.

LYONS'S KATHAIRON.

For Preserving, Restoring, Cleansing, and Beautifying the Hair, alleviating Nervous Headache, and Curing Eruptive Diseases of the Skin. Its reputation, co extensive with the civilization of the globe, makes all praise superfluous, all exaggeration impossible; and since its discovery has found no substitute to compete its incontested—its incontestable superiority. Physicians and Chemists,—honorable citizens from all professions of life,—the leading Journals of Europe and America,—Ladies who have used it upon their dressing-tables, and Mothers in Nurseries,—in fact, its million patrons everywhere, from plebeians to kings, pronounce it the most pleasing and effective article either as a Medicinal or Toilet preparation ever produced. Do not fail to give it a trial. Price but 25 cents.

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction books for all kinds of instrumental Music, as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of musical instruments, from a Piano Forte down to a fife.

Strings of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The Pianos are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the Melodians, manufactured by Prince & Co. Pianos and Melodians sold as cheap and on as favorable terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Makers themselves.

Besides those Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron & Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upward to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Cornopeans, Bugles, Post horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stoddart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stoddart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner, 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, they may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

HERMAN KORDES.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy colour of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Disorders, General Ill Health and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects, invisible given over by their physicians as incurable have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their two-fold properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys which secrete the filthy and impure matter from the blood. The Wine and Pills never weaken, but give strength and animation to both body and mind.

The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted have induced thousands to recommend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of the highest integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favour of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. L. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills; at the same time relating several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine and recommended it in numerous companies, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. L. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Clinton, Dr. White, Brooklyn, Dr. Marsh, Dr. J. M. Morrison, and others.

TESTIMONY

of Mr. John W. Brooks, a highly respectable citizen of Waterloo County, New York.

DR. C. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir,—I esteem the Forest Wine as the best of remedies. I was confined to my bed two weeks with three physicians tended to do us many years. In 1850 I became the victim of the Bright disease and Asthma, which terminated in Dropsy. I took your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had worked several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time, and part my business in consequence of my ill health. I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that kind under which nature sinks and life becomes a burden. Seeing your Forest Wine advertised, I concluded to get it at first, and before finishing the third bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to go to my business. I was entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this. Yours, &c.

JOHNSON HORE,
Waterloo Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, Wasting of the Body, &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without being able to trace the cause of disease, and therefore delay the use of the proper remedy until the disease becomes constitutional. These diseases are always attended with a torpid state of the liver, or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sluggishness, lassitude, and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart, or like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the Forest Wine and Pills, in every species of nervous debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in these class of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an exhilirant and been speedily cured. For nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills will have an astonishing and beneficial effect.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompany the higher perfection of health, which again invariably follows the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What artificial appendages (spell that vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What cosmetic can compare with the crimson-coloured blood exciting its brilliant course through the transparent texture of the skin? What is more lovely than the delicate bloom that nature has implanted in her fairest daughters? Let Dr. Halsey's Wine supply the deficiency through impurity of blood. The use of this excellent wine in a few days will give a pure, rich blood, which, coursing through the veins, penetrates the minutest fibres that lead towards the surface of the skin, causing all unhealthy appearances to disappear, imparting a vivid color to the skin and brilliant expression to the eyes.

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In corroboration of these facts Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a lady of most respectable standing in society, and is by her brother residing in Ratchets-street.

NEW YORK, JULY 7TH, 1849.

DR. C. W. HALSEY—

My sister from her youth had been in very delicate health, confirming frequently of weakness of the chest, attended with a cough. About the age of 18 she began to get much worse. For six months previous to commencing with your medicines she had not been able to get out of the house. Her countenance was greatly emaciated, yellow and sickly. Her face and neck were covered with disagreeable pimples, eyes very much sunken, and her cough increasing. In fine, she bore every appearance of becoming an unhappy victim to consumption. About the time I procured for her some of your Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her first symptoms of recovery was uncommonly good appetite, her face finally becoming smooth, and her cheeks rose. Her cough left her altogether. She is now strong and vigorous, and presents the most example of health I ever witnessed.

JOHN S. MAXWELL.

DR. HALSEY'S
GUM-COATED FOREST PILLS.

Manufactured on the same principle as the Forest Wine to which it is an important adjunct. They are coated with pure Gum Arabic, an important invention, for which Dr. Halsey has received the only patent ever granted on Pills by the Government of the United States.

Dr. Halsey's Forest Wine and Gum-coated Forest Pills unite in accomplishing the same great end, the PURIFICATION OF THE BLOOD, THE RENOVATION AND RESTORATION OF THE STOMACH AND BOWELS.

The idea principle of man is the blood,—no sooner are those organs of the stomach which secrete the blood cleansed of morbid matter and restored to healthy action by the use of the Forest Pills, and pure rich blood made to flow in the veins, by the use of the Forest Wine, than disease begins to vanish, and strength and energy of body return. This is the principle on which is founded these great medicines, and by which nearly all diseases are cured.

The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles, with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One Dollar per Bottle, or Six Bottles for Five Dollars. Gum-coated Forest Pills, 25c. per Box.
