COMPOUND
CAMOMILL FLOWERS.
Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada,

London, C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. REKFORD & CO.

Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and pleasant taste, appears to be largely misused and well preserved, and as this vegetable tonic is highly productive in those forms of dyspepsia originating in debility of Wasted tone of the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with on the continent), your cordial will I doubt not, form an unobtrusive addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutist, I cannot feel it a pleasure to confidently recommending his Preparations of this valuable Tonic to my professional freinds and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial,

I am, Gentlemen Yours &c.,

HEALH, WEALTH, AND BEAUY.
DR. HERCY,
German Eclectic Physician,
WILL arrive September 30, 1852, be in attendance every month as follows:—Shannon—Norton's hotel, 15th and 16th. Lundas—Kennedy's hotel, 17th and 18th. Ingersoll—Bodwell's hotel, 19 and 20th. Embro—Lowell's Hotel, 21st and 22nd. Woodstock—Paris—Bradford's Hotel, 23rd and 24th—Smith mont. Woodstock—Hack's hotel, 26th and 27th. Ingersoll—Spittal's Hotel, 28th. London—Granville's hotel, 29th and 30th.

Dr. H. will pay particular attention to Cancers, Ulcers, Syphyloid Sores, Sore Legs, Sand on Cutaneous Diseases. He practices upon reform principles, using nothing but Vegetable Medicines, which sustains the vitality of the system instead of reducing it, as the potash by the old school of practice which is too often the case when Mercurials are given. Calomel, Arsenic, Antimony the Acids and other mineral poisons are used as remedial agents. It is a well-established fact that they cause more sickness and DEATH than the diseases they are supposed to Cure.

Dr. H. will direct his attention to the lingering diseases which are usually destroying the constitution, in spite of every medicine—a pain also in the head, pain in the side and shoulders, numbness of the limbs, pain in the bowels, irregular appetite, costiveness, diarrhœa, coughing in the case. Female irregularities, and all diseases of a delicate nature, may be insisted to him, without a betrayal of that confidence which should always exist between the physician and physician.

Persons wishing to consult with Dr. Hercy can do so free of charge, and be sure of making him a visit. Attends at the above named place punctually. Charges 50 cents, most moderate.

Dr. Hercy fully understands the German method of observing and practicing the Art of Medicine as an integrity of the Creator.

N. B.—A Dr. is authorized to act in his absence.

DR SHERWOOD'S Genuine Restorative. This Genuine Restorative is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the bowel points or limbs Gout, Dyspepsia, Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Stiffness, of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, Acteon Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Cutaneous Eruptions and Scrofula &c.

It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the deficiency of this fluid in the frame or Motive Power in healthy proportions. It then, we can readily supply this wondrous power which it is thus deficient, we can successfully combat that disease and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery, of combining magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in curing diseases, and more to speak of a medicine prized either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various eminent Physicians using some new select of these wonderful agents, or combining previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in stating to the public that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of whom he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and perseverance.

W. C. SWEETS
CELEBRATED FAMILY MEDICINES

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,
Cures all Pains, Cramps, Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague, in the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head ache, &c.

INVATO CHINESE BALSAM,
Cures Sore Throat, Stomach Colds, Cholic, Pains &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam, for my family, which has done me much good. I have found it a sure cure for Scarlet Fever, and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in other cases, we are fully satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family. Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine to keep.

Respectfully yours,
Rochester, March 23rd 1852. JOHN LOTT.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.
Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Face is
SWEET'S KING OF OILS.
It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application. Cures all Cuts and Sores, Piles, Chilblains, Tooth Ache, Blisters and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.

Try it, you will not regret it.

TO W. C SWEET.

DEAR SIR—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the past eight years, I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure, except by the knife, and they would be very dangerous and painful. I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with the same result as many others. I followed your directions, and in the course of three weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

JOHN PERRY.
Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing he took one bottle of the above disease and cure.

SILAS WOOD—Keeper of the Wilson Hotel.
LUTHER WILSON—Merchant.

Thousands of Testimonies of the above character as furnished.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for Pell-Evil, Fistulas, Scratches, Sand-cracks, Old Sores with Proud Formed, Sadd le-galls, Wind balls or any other description of Inflammation, Cuts and Cuts, Colic-Gripes, Sawney, Cracked heels Spavins and Bruises, Lameness or Weakness of the Joints, Contraction of the Muscles, External Poisons, Burns and Scalds, Horn Distemper in Cattle, Hoof-Ail, Black-Hoof &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL REASONABLE CASES.

Facts are stubborn things. The medicine is not surpassed by any as yet known for the above diseases. It has cured, more of Pell-Evil, Fistula, Sweeny Shoulders, than any other Medicine ever prepared for the diseases of horses and Cattle—no Gurgling Oil excepted. As names and numerous flowery certificates from no part of the region of country, we publish but a few from the many thousands we have in possession; but suffice to say ying in knowing.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned have for years used and seen use Sweet's Black Oils for horses and can safely recommend it to the public as superior preparation for sore throats, galls, cuts, bruises, Mud-fever, and indeed every kind of hurt we thought much of by those who have used it. We have used many preparations for horses but we give the preference unhesitatingly to Sweet's Hair Oils. We cordially advise every horse owner to keep a bottle of the above Oils on hand, for its timely use will save time and money.

LONDON AGENCY,
MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premiums. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution—the capital stock of this company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever promptly and liberally settle the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal, in 1852—has proclaimed abroad to the inhabitants of British America, that this office which is almost every city and village in the United States, this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may rest assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:

1st Insurance of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to two-thirds of the net annual—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportion by two branches, and the exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages also ed to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premium, to reside in any part of Europe, or in any place in North America, to the North of 44 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and recross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or sailing vessels of recognized character. To pass to and from any part of Europe to any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass by and from any part of North America which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississippi River.

Further information, regarding the advantages of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

PUBLIC EXECUTION OF WILLIAM CATING.

From the N. Y. Tribune.

The public execution of William Cating for the murder of Daniel O'Brien, aged 9 years, and Mary O'Brien, aged 11 years, children of Timothy O'Brien, took place at Hakensack, N. J., on the 20th inst., in the presence of over two thousand spectators—men, women and children. It will be remembered that the murder took place in Washington township, Bergen Co., on the 21st day of December last. The prisoner was tried at Hackensack, on the 21st and 22nd days of April last. He was then sentenced to be hung on the 28th day of June; but a respite was recently granted, in order to bring his case before the Court of Pardons, on the plea of insanity. But the result was not favorable to the prisoner; the Court of Pardons refused to commute his punishment to imprisonment for life, and yesterday he was hanged.

The gallows had been erected at the west end of the court house, in the jail yard, and in full view of those who might occupy the green in front of the court house, or the houses about it. The instrument of death consisted of a frame 11 feet high, above a platform, and 8 feet in length. The platform was 8 feet square and 3 feet high from the ground, and accessible by steps in the rear. It was built of oak, and was strongly braced, furnished with pullies, and a weight of 190 lbs., which fell in a box case, that allowed it to fall below the surface of the ground. The weight of Cating was but about 115 lbs, so that the weight attached to the rope was maple. During the morning a number of children were about the gallows, inspecting its construction, and trying the rope about each other's neck.

Sheriff Tehune read the death warrant to Cating on Wednesday, but he did not seem to be unusually affected by it. He stated that he was formerly a Catholic, but for 20 years he had been a Protestant; and did not want a Catholic priest to attend him.

At about 8 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Warner, of the Reformed Dutch Church, who has principally attended upon Cating, and Rev. Mr. Adams, of the M. E. Church, came into the culprit's cell, to converse with him, and have religious exercises. Cating was much agitated, and his fortitude had evidently failed considerably. He sat up in a chair, and was constantly clasping his hands, frequently repeating to those around him, especially the clergy an Ijailors, 'Leaving this world, leaving this world; yes; yes; yes; yes; leaving this world; yes; yes; my blessings on you; a thousand blessings on you; leaving this world; &c. Mr. Warner read the 51st Psalm. After some further conversation with him, the hymn commencing as follows was sung:

> There is a fountain filled with blood,
> Drawn from Emanuel's veins;
> And sinners plunged beneath that flood,
> Lose all their guilty stains.

Prayer was offered by Rev Mr. Adams, during which the culprit kneeled and clasped his hands. There was further singing and prayer, and the prisoner was urged to repentance and to the exercise of faith in the Savior. The prisoner gave no very promising evidence of a change of heart; but he manifested inexpressible anxiety for his future welfare. He maintained to the last his purpose not to shake hands with O'Brien and his wife, and it was thought best not to go contrary to his wishes in that respect.

While these exercises were going on within the cell of the doomed, preparations were progressing without. Fifteen or twenty constables collected in and about the Court House, with their badges and staves of office, to assist the Sheriff in keeping order.—At 10½ o'clock the Independent Highwood Guard, Capt. Hatfield mustering 36 men, arrived in stages, from Hoboken. When Cating heard the drum it startled him, he raised his eyes and moved his lips in prayer. At 11 o'clock the doomed man was attired for execution. His dress consisted of a white surtout with a broad collar, and white pants, trimmed with black riboons, tied in a bow at his neck, waist, wrist and ankles. After he was dressed they all engaged in silent prayer—his lips moving silently as his eyes glanced quickly about upon those around him.

Sheriff Orsef, Deputy Sheriff Simpson and Assistant Marshall Horton were present, and inspected the preparations of death.—At 11½ o'clock, Sheriff Terhune, wearing the chapeau and sword, entered the cell and said, "The time has come Billy, for you to go into the presence of the Lord." Much agitated, the prisoner arose and his arms were pinioned, and the black cap was placed upon his head. The Deputy afterward remarked that when he plabed the cap upon his head, his hand rested upon the culprit's shoulder and his flesh was quivering upon his frame. The procession then formed and marched through the yard to the gallows in the following order: —The Sheriff, the Clergy, Deputies, and the culprit supported by ex-Keeper Dawson and the present Keeper, Mr. Van Saun. The fences and buildings in the neighborhood were covered with people besides the hundreds on the green, and as the prisoner appeared there was a murmur through the multitude. The prisoner ascended the platform with a rather firm step, although most dumb with fear. Prayer was offered in a solemn and impressive manner by Rev. Mr. Warner. The prisoner said nothing. Those around him shook hands with him, the black cap was drawn over his head; the spectators near the gallows recoiled from it; the Sheriff drew his sword at 11½ o'clock, as the signal, the cord was cut, and, instantly the culprit's body was swinging to and fro in the view of the assemblage. As the body was jerked up, piercing shrieks from female spectators rent the air. The body hung for half an hour, and when it was cut down the countenance looked natural, not being discolored. It was placed in a neat coffin for interment on the County farm, where the paupers are buried.

HORRIBLE CASE OF SUICIDE.

The following horrible details, we find in our American exchanges. On the arrival of the express train from New York, at the New Rochelle depot, a gentleman, respectably attired, started up the road with his hands folded and head drooped, as if labering under a depression of spirits. After he had proceeded a short distance he halted between the tracks of the railroad, and stood as though he was waiting the arrival of the train. The engineer and brakesman saw him, and presumed that he would keep clear of the train, but on its approach he threw himself right across the track, in front of the locomotive, the whole train passing over him literally smashing him to pieces. A gold watch and chain also smashed to atoms were found on his person. We learn that the unfortunate man's name was Franklin C. Gray, aged about 45 years, a wealthy merchant of San Francisco, California, where he was Alderman for two years, and highly respected. He had an income of $36,000 which he received regularly in monthly remittances of $3,000. He brought letters of credit from Cook, Palmer & Co., of San Francisco, about fifteen months ago. Has since been residing a portion of the time in Washington, where he married a young, beautiful, and highly accomplished lady. He recently purchased a house in New York, in the fifth avenue, for their occupancy, which he fitted up in the most magnificent style. Last week while laboring under an aberration of mind, he disposed of his house and furniture at a sacrifice of $7,000 or $8,000. He advertised his furniture for sale; and on persons going there, they found that he had sent for a furniture broker and had it all taken away. We have said that the body was "literally smashed to pieces." If this statement be literally understood, it will convey some idea of the appearance which the body presents. Never has it been our lot to behold such a spectacle. The head, neck and shoulders are completely ground off. Not a piece of the skull to be found larger than a penny. Both arms, and the right leg and foot have shared a similar one. The vertebræ is broken in several places, and the left foot smashed to pieces. The brains, are mangled flesh and intestines lay scattered in all directions. Here was a broken leg, while there lay a part of a hand or some other portion of that human frame in which life and spirit beamed a minute ago.

The Escape of Patrick O'Donohue from Van Dieman's Land.

In our report of the passengers arrived by the Northern Light yesterday, we briefly mentioned Mr. Patrick O'Donohue, one of the Irishmen who was convicted of treason with Meagher, O'Brien and others, and banished, by the British government, to the penal colony of Van Dieman's Land. Mr. O'Donohue has furnished the press with a narrative of his escape, so profuse that we could not reproduce it in full without excluding other and important matter. We therefore condense his statement. It appears that Mr. O'Donohue went on board a steamer at Launceston, at 8 o'clock on the 29th of December last, and was concealed in a part of the vessel which the police failed to penetrate after a vigilant search. He says:

O'N. placed us in his berth, where I lay until 4 o'clock, and was then removed to the engine room, and at 7½ o'clock, O'N. led me through the furnace room to the receptable used for holding the coals consumed by the furnaces. It was adjoining the furnaces but partitioned off with sheet iron. In the centre of this was an aperture or trap-door, underneath. The cavity, surrounded everywhere with burning flames, was selected as the apartment that I was to occupy. I pushed forward into the first chamber on hands and feet. O'N. having forced the trap door he launched me into the cavern beneath it.—He then closed the trap door, and directly filled the entire space with coals. I was then ensconsed in a compartment about seven feet in length, three in width, and two in height; and by its formation I was obliged to lie in a recumbent posture. It being lined on all sides with sheet iron, when the furnaces came to blaze in full strength, the heat and want of air became insupportable. I dreaded instant death by suffocation or apoplexy. The ordeal now was terribly tedious. After about an hour, O'N., dreading fatal consequences, caused water to be pumped into my dungeon, by means of an opening in the ship's keel. I was then placed between the two great elements, fire and water, saturated from head to foot with water, while the fire raged all around me.

The police search occupied two hours, after which O'N. opened the trap door, and helped me into the coal recess, from whence he brought me into the engine room. I was greatly exhausted but soon rallied.

Thus ended the police search at Launceston, but, on reaching George's Town Heads, being 40 miles down the river, O'N. informed me that I should again conceal myself in the same place that I had just been in, as the search in George's Town for prisoners was even more rigorous than at Launceston.—The anticipation of the second life or death ordeal, made me very uncomfortable, and I looked forward to it with much anxiety.—Having arrived at George's Town, I was again removed to the fiery dungeon, where I was kept three hours, while search was made and my escape was indeed very narrow, for the place set apart for coals over my head was searched closely by the police constables.

On releasing me from this purgatorial recess a second time, I was considerably weakened. On putting my head through the trap door, it closed half way upon me, and in a hurried effort of poor O'N. to disintangle me, I narrowly escaped.

I was again placed in O'N's. berth, where I remained from Monday evening until Wednesday at noon, when we reached Melbourne wharf. On arriving at Williamstown harbor the previous night, there was a strict police search; but I lay undiscovered in my berth. Immediately on casting anchor at Melbourne on Wednesday the 22d December, Messrs. J. L. B. and D.—three gentlemen who knew of my contemplated escape—came aboard, and it was determined that I should walk ashore just as I was, dressed in an old blue trowsers and check shirt, black and greasy, and haggard as any fireman could look. The quay was crowded with people, and among them a large sprinkling of police and detectives, horse and foot. My friends stepped ashore and carelessly walked on. I followed in their steps, and in a few minutes they entered a friend's house, where I also entered.

It was 2 o'clock in the day, very hot, the thermometer being 103 in the shade. My friends returned to Melbourne, and I remained on Friday morning the 24th of December, Sir. P. C. and Mr. Fitz, of Melbourne, having visited and consulted with me on the previous evening, it was deemed advisable, for my better security, to remove a long distance from Melbourne, to a secluded and remote part of the forest bordering on the seashore; and that I should remain there until a vessel was procured to convey me to America. A part of Port Phillip headland, on one of the solitary beaches of Hobson's Bay was, therefore, selected as my rendezvous for the present.

Mr. Donohue then relates the particulars of his journey to the said solitary beach.—Here he was taken seriously ill, and, he continues—

On Thursday morning, the 30th of December, I was very bad indeed, when a man arrived at six o'clock after travelling from Melbourne. He handed me a letter. It was from my Melbourne friends, who required my immediate presence in that city. The letter informed me that Mr. D. had arrived from Launceston, and that he had arranged with the captain of the Earl of Lincoln for my embarkation at 3 o'clock on the morning of the 31st ult., and that the vessel would sail for South America in an hour afterwards. I crawled out of my bed and was scarcely able to stand. I dressed myself, and mounted on a horse, and proceeded on my journey with my new acquaintance. Connor Kileen was the name of my guide. The distance was ninety miles, he bear was intense, and I was scarcely able to sit in the saddle.

We never tasted food, except a leg and a wing of a wild duck; nor drink, except muddy hot water from the creek, during our journey, which we accomplished by two o'clock, on the morning of Friday the 31st. We only stopped fifteen minutes during the entire journey, and did not interchange ten words.

I took a farewell adieu of Mrs. Fitz—— and D. L. C. G. and myself mounted a vehicle and drove to a beach opposite Williamstown harbor, about three miles from Melbourne. We there procured a boat and pulled away for the Earl of Lincoln, which lay a long way out in the harbor. It blew a gale of hot wind quite distressing—

We reached the ship about 4 o'clock in the morning—the captain was absent, and no one could tell where. Mr. D. and Charles D. returned to Melbourne. Mr. John L. and another gentleman remained four hours with me—they then went ashore in search of the captain. I was then alone in a state of great anxiety and continued illness.

The first and second mates and the doctor seemed disagreeable fellows, and the entire crew were in confusion and disorder. At 6 o'clock in the evening the captain came on board—he was quite drunk. He immediately asked me if I had my "police clearance?" I answered in the negative, and inquired of him if the ship's agent had not received £40 for my passage to Callao, and if he had not received himself one hundred and fifty pounds for procuring my clearance or stowing me away? He replied in the affirmative, but stated his inability to obtain a clearance.

I was now placed in a sad position, for the rumor had spread that I had escaped from Van Dieman's Land, and the police were on the alert in pursuit of me; and if betrayed, they might readily have arrested me on board. It was the last day of the year 1852; and the captain and his officers being all Welshmen, they finished the old year and ushered in the new with drunkenness, singing, swearing and blackguarding. I slept none, and in the morning, being New Year's day 1853, requested the Captain to go to Melbourne and carry a letter to my friend O.S., telling him of my dilemma. He undertook the commission, and proceeded in his own gig boat.—While he was away G. D. came on board to bid me good bye, thinking all was then arranged for my sailing. He presented me with a purse of one hundred sovereigns, which he told me he was authorized to hand me by my Melbourne friends. On telling him of my unfortunate predicament, he went ashore in pursuit of the captain.

Two hours afterwards the captain returned in his boat, accompanied by D. in another boat. The captain was again half drunk and had never delivered my letter, nor made any further progress in the matter. Mr. D. considered it imprudent to continue any longer on board, whereupon I demanded of the captain to deliver up the one hundred and fifty pounds paid to him, which, after slight hesitation, he gave up, but declared the other forty pounds forfeited—and D. entered his boat.

But here an awkward occurrence arose—the boatmen wanted to call to a Melbourne steamer which lay alongside the Great Britain steamer, discharging into the latter passengers and baggage. All remonstrances and entreaty were useless; they pulled across the harbor, and we got on board the Melbourne steamer. It was crowded with policemen searching every crevice I wore a blue monkey jacket and sou'wester, and passed unnoticed. We were detained two hours in this situation, when the Melbourne steamer got under way, and we returned to the city. We arrived at the city wharf at 5 o'clock, and proceeded through the public streets on foot to the H——ll——. The hazard of arrest which I had undergone during the last 36 hours was great indeed; and all present prospects of escape seemed frustrated.

Mr. O'Donohue made another attempt to induce the Welsh Captain to take him on board as "an able seaman"; but the captain finally refused. Mr. O'D. then went to the house of Mr. P., 18 miles from Melbourne, where he remained from the 4th to the 8th of January. On the 10th he took passage in a sailing packet from Melbourne to Port Jackson, where he arrived on the 21st. He was kindly harbored by his friends until the 8th of February, where he succeeded in obtaining a passage to Tahiti, in the cutter Oberon, for £400—a bribe extorted by the sordid Englishmen—and his friends, "with generous munificence, paid the exhorbitant demand." The Oberon reached Tahiti on the 3rd of April, and Mr. O'Donohue, now travelling under the assumed name of John Thompson, was very kindly received by Captain Kelly, the American consul, who procured him a passage to San Francisco in the American barque Otranto. Mr. O'Donohue's narrative is interspersed with numerous poetical quotations, and is highly characteristic. In justification of his violation of parole, he says:—

I was reduced by the organized system of cruelty enforced against me, even in violation of the penal statutes in force in Van Dieman's Land—contrary to all the recognized usages in relation to the worst class of convicted criminals—and in total and reckless disregard of every vestige of humanity, honor and good faith. We concluded, therefore, that I stood before God and man absolved from the moral and honorable responsibility originally implied and understood by the parole, entered upon by myself and the other State prisoners, and without any hesitation my escape was fixed upon."

A Collision.

On the arrival of the Queen City here on Saturday morning we learned that a collision had taken place by the St. Lawrence striking her while on their regular trips. We give in another column the telegraphic report, which differs considerably from the account given by the Queen City, the latter, however is sustained by an examination of the boat as she lies at the dock having her guards repaired.

The Queen City was on her regular course for Detroit, off Fairport, when the St. Lawrence was seen about five or six miles distant on her way to Buffalo. Orders were given by the officers in charge of the Queen City, to the steersmen to port his helm, that is to say, to turn his boat more out into the lake. This was done. But it was seen that the St. Lawrence still came in a straight direction for them. Orders were given to port the helm still more, til the Queen City had her course so much altered that her bows pointed nearly due north. It was then found that the St. Lawrence was altering her course in the same direction, too late to get clear of her—when orders were given to back water, which was done just before the collision took place. The Queen City received the stroke on her larboard bow, just where the arch enters the deck, and one of the strongest places about the boat. She suffered no harm except the crushing of her guards and tearing away a portion of her railing. The position of the damage bears witness to the truth of the story, and the fact that the Queen City suffered so little, shows that she could not have much, if any, headway on at the time the boats met or the impetus of her own weight would have crushed her timbers in. The St. Lawrence had her stem twisted off and her bow timbers started, the natural consequence of her long sharp model. Immediately efforts were made to prevent the effects of the disaster and sails, mattrasses, blankets &c., were put in requisition to stop the opening through which the water was pouring very fast. After some time it was found that by keeping one of her pumps going the water could be kept down, and the St. Lawrence started for Buffalo, and the Queer City, at the request of the passengers and officers of the St. Lawrence, kept her company for some two hours, when the former once more shaped her course for Detroit, where she arrived on Saturday morning.

The collision appears to be about as stupid and unnecessary as anything of the kind we have ever heard of. The night was clear and calm, the officers of both vessels are said to have seen each other's boat distinctly, at a sufficient distance to afford ample room to pass and if each followed the law of the road and kept to the right, or put their helms hard-a-port, there would have been no collision.—Such are the facts as we gather them from those who were on the Queen City. Those who want to hear the other side we refer to the telegraphic report.

In coming out of the Sandusky harbor the St. Lawrence ran foul of the Bay City and tore away a portion of the latter's upper works. Everybody who knows Captain Atwood is pretty well aware that he is not the man to put his boat in the way of another needlessly. The Bay City, however, with the loss of some planks and stanchions, was none the worse for her collision.

RAILWAY TESTIMONIAL.—We had the pleasure, on Thursday evening, of attending, at the City Hotel, the presentation of a massive service of plate to Mr. Benedict, and Mr. Spaulding, late chief and associate engineers on the Great Western Railway. A numerous company had been invited by Mr. Benedict's professional friends, among whom we noticed the Honorable the Inspector General, Sir Allan McNab, the Solicitor General W. H. Dickson, Esq., of Niagara, Dr. Hamilton of West Flamboro', and the Mayor of Brantford. The testimonial was got up by the engineers on the Great Western Railroad, and the plate, which was made after a design by one of the donors, at an expense of upwards of £200, was rich and beautiful in the extreme. The presentation was made by Mr. Babbitt, who read an address, which served to show the company the high opinion entertained of Messrs. Benedict and Spaulding, in the profession, as well as their sterling qualities as men. The reply made by Mr. Benedict was conceived in equally good taste, and elicited frequent expressions of applause from the inmates of the crowded room. —Spectator.

THE ROMAN HATTERS IN TROUBLE.—The Pope's government has proscribed a certain form of hats, now quite common to Rome, and which are believed to have a political meaning. The police proceeded to the hat stores and seized all the hats of this peculiar shape. They did more, for as they passed along the streets, if they saw a person wearing one of the proscribed chapeaus, they seized it, leaving the owner to proceed bare-headed to his home.

SUDDEN DEATH.—On Friday Evening last, Mr. Hughes, Merchant of Ingersoll, died very suddenly at the City Hotel, in this City. The death of the deceased is attributed to the too free use of iced water.— our. & Express.

FOUR BOYS AT A BIRTH.—The Boston Courier says:—A woman in Dutton, N. H., recently became the mother of four live, bouncing boys, at a single birth. At the latest advices, the whole crowd were doing not only as well as could be expected, but rather better.

Suddenly Acquired Wealth..

To the astonishment of the world the Canadian ministry are becoming individually wealthy. Men who were in embarassed circumstances, hardly knowing how to get a note discounted, in the winter, are now rolling in wealth, buying lands and houses in every direction, discarding their antiquated vehicles for new ones, and dining like princes. Of course, this sudden wealth is not the saving of the minister's necessities. How then comes this wealth! The public have a right to know how it is that those entrusted with the management of their monies contrive to aggrandize and enrich themselves, as much as the Manager of a bank has some right to know how some teller or accountant with a limited income manages to live in as much style as a lord No man has a right to use an accidental position to the public disadvantage and for his own gain. Ex-Railway King Hudson, became immensely wealthy by taking advantage of certain crisis' in the money market, which in some measure he had the power of creating. But his mode of obtaining wealth having been at last discovered, the very rich member of Parliament and Director of Railway Companies was disgraced and compelled partially to disgorge. We do not say that any member (or members) of the Government of this Province has been following in the path of Hudson but this cannot be denied—money is being obtained, more rapidly by people who were not very long ago in the jaws of debt, than is strictly speaking consistent with honesty. Government banking and Government financing seems to have been with a view to originate interest of late. Advantage has been taken of the erection of the Upper Canada into a Government Bank or Bank of Canada, ministers apparently using the funds at pleasure for their individual benefit. A Railroad Stock falls suddenly, and ministers immediately step in and with cash borrowed from some bank buy up some thousands of pounds worth. It might be said ministers having caused railway stock to fall, to purchase at the low rate, and having immediately afterwards taken steps to make railway stock rise, sell out, realizing a handsome consideration in recompense for the manoeuvre. Such staggering may be honest. If it was so in Hudson's case, it must be so in the case of any body doing in this province that which Hudson very clearly and unblushingly did in England, elevating himself from the condition of a bankrupt hos er to that of a great capitalist. But the obtainment of sudden wealth is not peculiar to one minister. There are ministers who now deriving advantages from the banks, can purchase immense tracts of territory and sell again without loss of time at a considerable and telling profit. These ministers, it is most remarkable, were also exceedingly poor before they hit upon the knack of making money.—Quebec Morning Chronicle.

FLOUR IN EUROPE.—Flour has risen considerably in Paris, and the stock is much reduced. Prices are higher there than in London. England has been receiving a supply of French wheat for the last three years, to the extent of 1,600 000 or 2,000,000 quarters. That source of supply is exhausted, and France is taking back large quantities. The continent has been drained of corn, and much more cannot be expected thence. The consumption in England is very great; more wheat was imported into England in June, (namely, 525,236 quarters) than has ever been imported during a single month, except on two occasions—since the repeal of the corn law—and in addition to this large quantity of wheat, 341,064 cwt of flour were imported. The rising prices show that the large quantity was but to be expected, and the political proceedings of Russia threaten the supplies from Odessa. There is a prospect of a deficient and late harvest in England, and diminished supplies from other ports except from Canada and the United States.—London Daily News.

TWELFTH OF JULY IN KINCARDINE.—The anniversary of the 'Battle of the Boyne' was celebrated in Kincardine on the 12th inst., in a manner highly creditable to the inhabitants of that section of the country. The members of No. 288 met at their Lodge Room at 8 o'clock, a. m, and after proceeded in silent procession to a large store house erected on the beach, where divine service was performed by the Rev. Alex. Smith, B. W. Minister, to a large and respectable congregation not only of Orangemen, but protestants of every denomination, whose feeling of gratitude were thus probably manifested for the Blessings conferred on mankind in general by the happy event which gave birth to such denominations.

Although the room was of very extensive area, some gentlemen found it necessary to give way for the accommodation of that sex whose presence, on all such occasions, produce effects the most happy and cheering.

The procession returned to the Lodge Room in the same orderly and sedate manner it had left, preceded by their splendid banner, after the transaction of some business, it was reformed and, attended with music, marched a considerable distance out on the Durham Line On their return they found a very excellent dinner awaiting them at the house of Mr. Walker, whose happy tact for accommodation has won for him the esteem of all parties.

After dinner (at which about 75 sat down) they returned to the Lodge Room, where, after the usual toasts, they separated at an early hour, thus proving, if proof is wanting, that Protestants can celebrate the 'Battle of the Boyne' and be free from all charges of even a desire to offend.—Huron Signal.

GOOD.—It is often said there is no wit like bought wit, and this the people along the shores that lie near the fishing ground off the St. Lawrence and Newfoundland, are beginning to realize. They could not catch the fish themselves, for they had neither the vessels, nor the men, nor the capital necessary to invest in the business; but they were reaping a good harvest every fishing season from the amount of money which Yankee enterprise and liberality put in their hands, for the articles which the crews of the fishing smacks needed, and which they preferred to buy from the Blue-noses, to taking large stores of provisions from their own ports at a greater distance. The stringent measures pursued by the navy sent to guard the coast, and preserve the fish, has cut off the annual supplies of the people who thrive on the trade made by the Americans. A captain of one of the fishing fleet writes to Boston that, 'most if not all the people at St. John's Island, Cape Breton, and the Gut of Canso, who formerly petitioned for official vessels to drive off the Americans, are now signing petitions to have the restrictions removed, as formerly the American fishing vessels were means of affording them considerable business, while now their own fisheries are destroyed, and they will soon be in a starving condition, and be obliged to call upon the Government for pecuniary aid.'

CHILD TORN BY A BEAR.—An unfortunate accident occurred on Friday evening last, near Yorkville. Mr. J. Berriman, Butcher, some time since purchased a bear, which he kept chained in a back yard. Mrs. Berriman on Friday evening was giving it some food, when a little boy 8 or 10 years of age, a child of one of the neighbours came into the yard, and before she was aware approached too near the animal. The bear grasped the child in its paws, and on Mrs. Berriman or some one else attempting to extricate him from his perilous situation, the bear made a stroke with its paw which tore and lacerated very much the skin and flesh of one of the child's legs. He was immediately conveyed to the Hospital and it is feared the limb will have to be amputated. Mr. Berriman, we are informed, intends immediately to shoot the animal to prevent the recurrence of any further accident of the kind.

THE HARVEST—The hay crop is nearly all under shelter, and a great proportion of the Rye is already cut. Wheat is fast ripening, and wheat harvest as commenced. The continued dry weather has brought on harvest early. Spring grain has suffered very materialy from the drought. Late shown wheat has been considerable injured with the weevil. Farmers would find it to their advantage to show early varieties of wheat, as they, are much more likely to escape injury.—Picton Sun

Shocking Murder in Missouri.

THE MURDERER BURNED AT THE STAKE.

A negro man, says the Boonville Observer, belonging to A. France, of Heath's creek, Pettis county, Missouri, who murdered the wife of John Rains, living in the same neighborhood, was burned at the stake, in or near Georgetown, on the 13th inst. The circumstances attending this murder, so far as we can learn, were as follows:—

The negro man, aged nineteen or twenty, visited Mr. Rains' house on Sunday morning the 3rd of July, while Rains was absent at meeting, for the diabolical purpose—according to his own confession—of committing a rape upon the person of Mrs. Rains. The consequence was that this lady, within a few weeks of confinement, was brutally murdered with a club; the negro attempted to kill her oldest boy, and fancied he had killed him, fearing, as he said, that he would tell on him—and two younger children were sadly bruised, and thrown in a fence corner, because, as the negro said, they annoyed him "by crying about their mother."

When Rains returned home he found his wife dead, and his eldest boy so badly bruised that it was thought he could not recover; but he distinctly told his father who it was had committed the outrage. This demon in human shape was immediately apprehended for trial, but the citizens took possession of him to burn him immediately, and delayed the execution only to ascertain the motives of such a villanous outrage.

The negro said at first, as we understand, it was not him that committed the murder, but his brother, and next admitting his guilt, said he was instigated to the act by his young master. His young master was immediately taken into custody, but he was released because the negro exculpated him from the charge, admitting that it grew out of his intention to commit a rape.

The only excuse which can be offered for the awful perpetration of burning this negro, is the nature of the offence, and the frequent attempts of late years, of negroes to rape white women—several instances of which have occurred in this country—and the impression among the community that it required such an example to protect them from the repetition of similar outrages. The negro's crime was horrid indeed; but his punishment will be regarded by many as cruel, if not barbarous.

Had it been a white man, instead of a negro, there is no doubt but what he would have shared a similar fate.

Ministerial Retrenchment and Economy.

Our excellent co-temporary, the 'United Empire' has furnished his readers and the Province generally, with an item of news, illustrative of the unblushing effrontery and reckless extravagance of the Reform government, which now disgraces our country. Every person has been fully aware, for a long time back, that the Ministry of the day, regardless of everything but outward grasping crimes, which might endanger their retention of office, have been fruitful in their inventions and prompt in their secret actions, to enrich themselves and their immediate partizans; but very few members of the community could possibly have imagined that the turpitude and peculation of the clique could have led them into such depths of crime as the transaction pointed out by our brother so clearly establishes against them. Honest men of all shades of politics will pause upon and consider with astonishment the defectiveness of the system with all its boasted "responsibility," under which these drones can accomplish their nefarious designs; and will be moved with honest indignation towards these "defendants" who, for a precarious livelihood, can connive at their unequalled and disgraceful plans and practices. It is true that this self-same clique are just now seeking, in their preambulating excursions, to dazzle the eyes and bewilder the minds of their adherents, by costly dinners provided through the direct instrumentality, if not actually by funds placed by them at their disposal, of their paid subordinates; yet this artificial halo cannot prevent the just proportions of truth being clearly discovered by those who are not partially demented by the hallucinations of party absorption. Unsophisticated minds will penetrate beyond the mists of assertion, ingenuity and eloquence and will grasp at facts, and their effects upon the community. If it be found that persons, professing every desire to carry out retrenchment and economy, are actually pursuing a course completely at variance with those principles, no excitement or pageantry can cause honest minds from shrinking with aversion from hypocrisy so detestable and conduct so inexcusable. It must be admitted that persons entrusted with our State affairs, are morally and legally bound to husband our resources, and to economize for the people; much more, is this the case when a party and their representatives profess to exist but for the very purpose of following out the principles of retrenchment to their utmost limit, in opposition to a party accused of wastefulness or inattention. This is precisely the position assumed by the present Ministry—let us consider their practice. We are well acquainted with many of their former acts; we have now for our consideration one just recently brought to light.—It appears that in the formation of the Beauharnois canal, certain losses were sustained by the inhabitants on the line of the works by the depredations of the workmen, chiefly in articles of fruit, vegetables and such things A complaint was made to the government by these "habitants." and compensation demanded. An investigation was instituted, and a report made to Mr. Killally, then at the head of the Board of Works, in 1843, Mr. Killally advised that these claims ought not, all things considered, to be met. The following sensible remarks were made by that gentleman to the Governor in Council:

"Similar trespass has taken place on the line of the Welland Canal—the parties suffering have been obliged to use all diligence in the watching and protection of their properties, but in no case have they thought of applying for compensation to government—whatever principle is adopted at one work, must be also acted upon at the other.

From the very nature of the trespass which has taken place at Beauharnois from time to time, since the work commenced, it is now utterly impossible to make even an approximating estimate to the amount thereof, and after the fullest consideration of the case, I can come but to the one conclusion, that it would be highly inexpedient to open a door for the receiving and paying of the numberless vague, undefined, and in many instances, unfounded claims, which assuredly would be poured in, and by so doing, hold out encouragement to the establishment of a regular system of similar annual demands progressingly increasing in amount, as I am convinced they would be."

The claims of these individuals, however, were persisted in with much pertinacity, and at length were favorably regarded by the government. At length, after much trouble and investigation it was agreed upon to place £1600 in the hands of W. Shanley, Esq., to settle with these claimants in toto for "all past and future damage." The wishes and orders of the government were attended to and fulfilled, and Mr. Shanley remarked: "I took much pains to free the government from all just liabilities on that Canal, and know that I did so." We give the sequel in the words of the 'United Empire,' with the votes thereon in Parliament:

"Now, to the utter astonishment of every independent and honest man in Parliament, or who was overlooking its proceedings during the recent session, the astounding fact leaked out, and the writer of this article dragged it into daylight—that "Four thousand and two hundred pounds of the people's money of this province, had been secretly, clandestinely paid by the present Ministry to these very habitans, in addition to the £1600 paid them by Mr. Shanley. And what is more, when the few independent men in the House, asked the Government the reasons for paying this money, their constitutional, their moral, request was voted down by the following traitors, not only to our common freedom, but to our common manhood.

NAYS.—Cameron, Cartier, Chabot, Chapais Solicitor General Cheaveau, Christie of Wentworth, Attorney General Drummond, Dumouli, Fergusson, Gouin, Hartman, Hincks, Laurin, Lemieux, Marchildon, Morgenzie, Morin, Poulin, Attorney General Richards, Rose, Sicotte, Tache, Tessier, Turcotte, Valois, Varin, Viger, White, Wright of East Riding of York, and Young.—30.

The following were those who voted for it:

YEAS:—Messrs. Badgley, Brown, Burnham, Cauchon, Crawford, Dixon, Langton, Macdonald of Kingston, Mackenzie, McDougall, Murney, Ridout, Robinson, Seymour, Shaw, Smith of Frontenac, Stevenson, Street Terrill, and Wright of West Riding of York —20.

There is Retrenchment and Economy with a vengeance! "Four thousand and two hundred Pounds of the public money" paid by Hincks and his confreres, merely to buy up the French influence, and thus secure the spoils of office to the latest possible period. And these are the men who unblushingly stand before an enlightened Canadian community, as the champions of Retrenchment, Economy and Reform and Progress! Their dark and secret deeds are gradually being dragged into light, and their true character, policy and conduct will shortly be fully understood. Compared with their Conservative opponents their conduct is most reprehensible. Never did the old Tory family compact concoct, in our early days, when population was sparse and regular organization, almost impossible for political and Provincial purposes, anything half so flagitious, even compared with present circumstances, as this abominable waste of the public funds. The fact is now most plain, the Radicals have completely sold themselves to the French, the price they are to pay is as yet unknown; but the instalments already discovered as having been paid, shows that the sum might be enormous. How long will the Province submit to such abominable misrule and corruption! It cannot possibly be long. The days of the present ministry are numbered.

Trimming.

We have, with regret, for some time past, witnessed the unsteady course in politics pursued by Mr. Vansittart of Woodstock. He is evidently a "trimmer"; "loose fish" is not exactly the appellation for this aspirant for Parliamentary honors. He was long and favorably known as a staunch conservative, and at a general election was even accused, and indeed taken before the House to answer the charge of allowing his feelings and predilections to sway his mind in favor of the Conservatives, while acting in the capacity of Returning Officer. An unwarrantable and savage persecution of that gentleman on the part of the friends of Mr. Hincks, led the people of the section of country of which he is resident, to welcome him home upon his return from his trial, as a person deserving their sympathy as an honest man, and of their confidence as a Conservative. It was predicted then that he would be enabled on account of his noble firmness on that occasion, to represent, at no very distant date, the very constituency in which the cause of his persecution had arisen. It was never then dreamed that he would in any way politically fraternize with Hincks and his supporters, or covet the favor of his savage opponents—for his malignancy fully termed the "Hyena"—by drinking the health of the "Hon. Francis Hincks" at a public dinner! Yet such has been the case Furthermore, rumor with her busy tongue represents the same Vansittart to so far forget his position as a Conservative, as to be ready to support Mr. Hincks in his future political career; and that even if another candidate be selected for the constituency in which he has most influence, he will support that candidate. If these things be true, the conduct of that gentleman is most disgraceful. If they are not true, the most emphatic denial should be given to reports so deeply calculated to injure not only the political character of Mr. Vansittart, but the Conservative cause generally. We shall carefully and earnestly look for a satisfactory reply.

Mr. Vansittart.

Having occasion to refer to some old papers, we have stumbled upon the reply of this erratic gentleman, accepting the invitation of the conservatives of London to a dinner in 1849, in consequence of the treatment received by him at the hands of the Radical Ministry. It is couched in these words:—

WOODSTOCK, 15th March, 1849.

"GENTLEMEN,—I accept with unfeigned gratification, the honor that you offer me. It is a matter of joyous satisfaction indeed, to find that my character, which has been made a public commodity, is not esteemed, by my countrymen, a bad bargain, and that in the discharge of an arduous public duty, whatever difference of opinion may exist, as to the precise manner in which I interpreted it, yet the honest verdict of a generous people is spontaneously recorded in favor of my integrity. From my heart, I thank you gentlemen for contributing to this verdict, and have the honor to name Wednesday, the 21st instant, for this dinner to which you so kindly invite me.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your faithful and ob'dt serv't
JNO. GEO. VANSITTART.

To ————.

From the above it appears that Mr. Vansittart felt strongly that he had acted an upright and honorable part, in conducting the elections of 1847-8, which resulted in his dismissal from the affairs of Inspector of Licenses, and issuer of marriage Licenses, &c., and having so felt, he must surely have been overcome with that indignation which springs up spontaneously in every right minded bosom upon the infliction of wrong and degradation, at the hands of a revengeful ministry, whose justice and fair play would have accorded him an honorable acquittal! Stung, as he must have been, with the tyrannical and revengeful spirit which characterized the conduct of Mr. Hincks and his associates, the question naturally arises:—what has caused Mr. Vansittart to give in his adhesion to the party who so recently trampled him into the dust, and to become the toady of the man whom he so recently opposed for the representation of Oxford? Has Mr. Hincks changed his principles? No! But Mr. Vansittart, for the love of office or the hope of pelf, has changed his, if he ever promised them! Dr. Rolph recently described him, at a public dinner, as a hermaphrodite reformer, by both parties he is now better known than trusted, and he may rest assured that he will find himself looked upon with as much suspicion by the Reformers, as he is with contempt by the Conservative party.

Our Common Schools.

The public examination of the Common Schools of this town was held last week on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. We were not present because an invitation was not extended to us by the very radical managers of those institutions. We say radical because so excessively radical are they that the advertisement notifying the public of these examinations, has never been published in any paper save the Free Press. We did not expect that Mr

READING ROOM.

The Register in the Reading Room has been kept written up. During the year, the room has been visited by 121 strangers, (many of them persons of distinction.) Your Board regret that on examining the Register Book they find that by some person or persons unknown, it has been greatly disfigured by articles written in it quite foreign to the subject for which the book is kept.

FINANCES.

Not the least important part of your Board's duties is the management of the funds of the Association.

The Board have no hesitation in presenting the Financial Report as correct in every essential particular, and they do this with the more pleasure and satisfaction, from being able to state that the liabilities of the association are less than could possibly have been anticipated when they assumed the management of its affairs. So much is this the case, that after a careful examination of our income, and of the heavy expenditure necessarily to keep up the Institution in a respectable condition we can confidently anticipate that next year the receipts will more than cover the disbursements. That freedom from debt is essential to our well-being as a Library Association all will admit, and we cannot resign our trust without congratulating you that so desirable a position has been obtained, (a small amount excepted.)

RE O.T.

Mr. Hall, Superintendent or Librarian of the Association, whose zealous and efficient discharge of his duties cannot have been unobserved by the members generally, and has been such as to merit our unqualified commendation.

Such, Gentlemen, is our report, and we would now resign into your hands the trust committed to us, in the hope that our successors may meet with fewer difficulties than we have had to encounter.

Under careful management may not anticipate much prosperity to the Mercantile Library Association of London. That its career may be one of usefulness and pleasure, and that next year's Report may show that it occupies a still higher position amongst the Institutions of our country, and that when this modern London shall have become a venerable City. May this and the Mechanic's Institution be amongst the most prosperous and time honored of them all is our earnest hope.

TRANSATLANTIC SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH.—To day we learn from Europe that final steps are taken for extending the telegraph across the Atlantic, and uniting two hemispheres in its magic circle. An English Company is receiving proposals for the manufacture of the cable; some of the strongest firms in the king dom off r to manuf cture the article for £300,000, while other bids run as high as £800,000. The contracts are to be closed forthwith in order to aff ct the connexion at the earliest day.

The distance between Galway and British America varies slightly from 1660 to 1 a. Galway is already connected with London and all the Great European towns by telegraph lines. A Company in New Brunswick has undertaken to extend the wires which now reach from New York to Halifax, as far as Cape Race, so as to leave nothing but the submarine line to be finished. Can it be finished? Is it practicable, with all the objections duly weighed—currents, icebergs, variable temperatures, whales, and what not—is the balance of probabilities in favour of the scheme? The British Company certainly thinks so—two year's safe working of the line between the south Foreland and Sangate doubtless forming the nucleus of conviction.

ARRIVAL OF THE MEDEA.

BOSTON, July 30, 1853.

The British steamship Medea arrived here this morning, it is supposed with despatches concerning the fishery question.

A desperate encounter took place last night between the New Harbor Police and the river thieves who have been boarding and robbing vessels at the wharves, wearing masks. The robbers were seen leaving the vessel in a boat, and were pursued and captured. They afterwards escaped, and were recaptured after a desperate encounter with firearms—the robbers firing firearms and the police returning the fire, without effect.

The robbers were armed with six barrelled revolvers.

Each robber had several gold watches which they had stolen.

The property stolen from the brig Mary Wilder, on Tuesday night, was effected while the Captain was put to sleep with Chloroform.

WASHINGTON, August 1.

George M. Saunders has been appointed Consul at London, and will sail about the 1st. St. John, New Brunswick, papers of the 20th ultimo, state that fires were raging in the woods at Shediac, and that they had already destroyed a large quantity of valuable timber. The hay crop throughout the Province would be light.

NEW ORLEANS, June 30.

Deaths during the last 24 hours, 154, of which 126 were from yellow fever.

THE WAR QUESTION.

The question of peace or war in Europe, remained undecided on the sailing of the Asia, on the 16th ultimo. Nothing new had been disclosed with regard to the subject except a certainty of what was before merely reported, though on good authority. England and France have offered to mediate, and if their offer is refused we may expect they will seek for some other middle term to offer to the Czar. Bent on maintaining peace they are at any cost, and that the Czar is bent on war is not so clear. His latter manifestoes have carefully left the door open for compromise, and there is little doubt something can be devised on which all parties will agree. The probability of war is not increased by the intelligence of the Asia.—American.

DIED.

Of Consumption, at 1 o'clock this morning, at the residence of his father, Mr. John O'Brien, corner of Bathurst and Talbot Streets, EDWARD O'BRIEN, aged 23 years and 6 months, deeply regretted by a large circle of sorrowing friends, by whom he was much esteemed for his many excellent qualities.

NEW PIANO-FORTE AND MUSIC Establishment,

KING-ST., THREE DOORS WEST OF YONGE-ST.,

TORONTO, C. W.

MESSRS. SMALL & PAIGE, Importers and dealers in Music and Musical Instruments, etc., beg to announce that they have opened their new ware-room (situated as above,) and will constantly have on hand, both Wholesale and Retail, every article of Musical Merchandize of various qualities and prices. They would particularly solicit an inspection of their new style of

Grand Square Piano-Fortes,

from the manufactories of Collard & Collard, London; and Linnard & Weber, Philadelphia.

Messrs. S. & P. have also on hand, a large stock of New York and Boston Piano-Fortes, of excellent quality, which they can warrant in all respects, and especially in regard to their keeping in tune. They will also retain the same softness and sweetness of tone for a number of years, without ever acquiring that metallic, hard and wiry tone which many instruments, of otherwise good reputation, are apt to have.

Their piano Fortes are carefully selected by one of the Firm, "Mr. R. G. Paige, Professor of Music, Organist of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto," whose professional experience enables him to judge of the qualities of an instrument. They can, therefore, fully guarantee every instrument purchased of them

Brass and Wooden Instruments, for Military, Amateur and Quadrille Bands.

Likewise, every description of Stringed and Wooden Instruments necessary for a complete Orchestra.

Violin strings of a very superior quality, which they warrant cannot be surpassed.

Messrs. S. & P. are also the sole Agents for the sale of Warren's celebrated

Harmoniums & Melodeons.

The newest and most fashionable Music can always be procured at their Establishment.

Classical Sacred Music—consisting of all the celebrated Oratorios; also, church music.

Second hand Piano Fortes Bought, Sold and taken in Exchange; Piano-Fortes tuned, repaired and for hire.

Music for Military Bands, Italian, French and German Operas.

The newest and most popular Ballads.

Instruction Books for every musical instrument; Vocal instruction books of the best masters.

The latest and most fashionable dance music of all kinds.

Polkas, Schottiches, Galopes, Mazurkas, &c., &c., &c.

Piano-Forte music by all the great masters.

The newest French, German, Italian and English publications received weekly.

Proposed By-Law.

To authorize the issuing of Debentures, to raise by way of Loan, the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Pounds.

WHEREAS it is expedient to raise by way of Loan, the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Pounds, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of erecting a Town Hall in the Township of Delaware, by issuing Debentures for the same, payable in ten years from and after the 25th day of November, 1853, with interest payable half-yearly; and, for the payment of the said Debentures and the interest thereon, it will be necessary to raise annually, by a special rate, the sum of £22 8s 9d for each of the ten years from 1853 to 1862 inclusive; and whereas the whole of the taxable real and personal property of the Township, according to the Assessment Roll for the year 1852, amounted to the sum of £59,876 10s.; and whereas the annual rate of one ninth of a penny in the pound upon the whole of the said taxable property is required as a special rate, to be levied, during the next ten years, for payment of said loan and interest, 12 Vict., cap. 61, sec. 177. Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, by virtue and authority of the Upper Canada Municipal Corporation Act, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same, that it shall be lawful, from and after the passing of this By-law, for the Reeve of the Township of Delaware, and he is hereby authorized and required to raise, by way of loan, the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Pounds from any person or persons, or body corporate, on the credit of the Municipality, and to issue Debentures for the same, payable as follows, viz., the sum of £25 on the 25th day of November, 1854; £25 on 25th Nov., 1855; £30 on 25th Nov., 1858; £35 on 25th Nov., 1860; and £35 on £25th Nov., 1862. And be it further enacted that the said Debentures shall have Coupons attached for the payment of the interest thereon, payable half-yearly on the 25th day of May and the 25th day of November in each year; and such Debentures and Coupons shall be signed by the Reeve, and countersigned by the Treasurer of the said Township, and shall be made payable at such place or places as the Reeve may think proper. And be it further enacted, that the special rate of one-ninth of a penny in the pound, shall be raised, levied and collected, over and above and in addition to all other rates, for each of the ten years from 1853 to 1862 inclusive, upon all the taxable property of the said Township, for the purpose of paying the said sum of One Hundred and Fifty Pounds, with the Interest thereon; and the proceeds of such special rate, so to be raised, levied and collected, shall be applied solely to the payment of said Debentures and interest thereon, until such Debentures and interest thereof shall be fully paid and discharged. And be it further enacted that this By-Law shall be in force and take effect from and after the 3rd day of October, Eighteen Hundred and Fifty-three.

NOTICE.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-Law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the Township of Delaware, at Montgomery's Hotel in the Village of Delaware, on the 3rd day of October next, at the hour at 12 noon, at which time and place the Members of the said Municipality are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

Proposed By-Law.

To authorize the issuing of Debentures, to raise by way of Loan, the sum of Two Hundred Pounds.

Whereas it was resolved by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, at its sitting on the 6th June, 1853, on application of the School Trustees of the second School Section of that Township, to raise the sum of Two Hundred Pounds for the purpose of defraying the expenses of erecting a School House in said Section; and whereas it is expedient to raise that sum by way of loan, by issuing Debentures for the same, payable in ten years from and after the 25th day of November, 1853, with interest payable half-yearly; and for the payment of the said Debentures, with interest thereon, it will be necessary to raise annually, by a special rate upon the taxable property within said School Section, the sum of £29 16s 9d for each of the ten years from 1853 to 1862 inclusive; and whereas the whole of the taxable, real and personal property of the said School Section, according to the Assessment Roll of the Township for the year 1852 amounted to the sum of £13,630 15s 0d; and whereas the annual rate of sixteen thirtieths of a penny in the pound upon the whole of said taxable property, is required as a special rate, to be levied during the next ten years, for payment the said loan and interest, 12 Vic., cap 81, sec. 177. Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, in Council assembled, by virtue and authority of the Upper Canada Municipal Corporation Act, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same, that it shall be lawful from and after the passing of this By-Law, for the Reeve of the Township of Delaware, and he is hereby authorized and required to raise, by way of loan, the sum of Two Hundred Pounds, from any person or persons or body corporate, on the credit of the Municipality, and to issue Debentures for the same payable as follows, viz., the sum of £30 on the 25th day of Nov., 1854; £35 on 25th Nov., 1856; £40 on 25th Nov., 1858; £45 on 25th Nov., 1860; and £50 on the 25th Nov., 1862. And be it further enacted, that the said Debentures shall have coupons attached, for the payment of the interest thereon, payable half-yearly on the 25th day of May and the 25th day of November in each year; and such Debentures and Coupons shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, and shall be made payable at such place or places as the Reeve may think proper. And be it further enacted, that the special rate of sixteen-thirtieth of a penny in the pound shall be raised, levied and collected over and above, and in addition to all other rates for each of the ten years from 1853 to 1862 inclusive, upon all the taxable property of the second school section of the said Township, for the purpose of paying the said sum of Two Hundred Pounds, with the interest thereon; and the proceeds of such special rate, so to be raised, levied and collected, shall be applied solely to the payment of said Debentures and interest thereon, until such Debentures and interest thereof shall be fully paid and discharged. And be it further enacted that this By-Law shall be in force and take effect from and after the 3rd day of October, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Three.

Piano Forte, Melodeons, &c

WE would respectfully invite attention to our stock of Piano Fortes from the celebrated Manufactories of Messrs. Boardman & Gray, Hallet, Davis & Co., Bacon and Raven, and others. These instruments possess a classic order of tone which first few makers attain, and the makers or our warrant, is a sufficient guarantee of their durability.

The immense celebrity which the Dolc Campana Attachment has attained, surpasses anything heretofore known in the "Musical World," it is considered as much a requisite to a perfect Piano Forte as the soft Pedal has heretofore been. Unlike other attachments, this does not injure the tone or durability of the instrument and the additional expense is but trifling, costing but forty dollars for a six, and fifty dollars for a seven octave.

The question is frequently asked, can this Attachment be applied to any Piano? It can be applied to any of Boardman & Gray's finished since its invention, but to no other. This, of itself, is sufficient reason why all should see Boardman & Gray's Pianos before purchasing. ☞ Old Pianos taken in exchange.

IMPROVED MELODIONS.

The great demand for these instruments has induced us to obtain the sole wholesale and retail Agency of one of the best Manufactories in the United States, Messrs. Bishop & Child, of Cincinnati, the senior partner being one of the most experienced workmen in the country, having commenced with the inventor soon after the invention. We shall keep a full supply on hand both for retailing and wholesaling, and advise all to see Bishop & Child's IMPROVED MELODEONS, before purchasing.

London, July 6th, 1853.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Town Council of the Town of London to take stock in the London and Port Stanley Railroad Company to the amount of twenty five thousand pounds.

WHEREAS "the Railway clauses consolidation act," declares that it shall apply to every Railway which shall by any act which shall thereafter be passed be authorized to be constructed, and whereas an act of the parliament of this province passed in the thirteenth year of her Majesty's reign, entitled "an act to incorporate the London and Port Stanley Railway Company" authorises the said company to make and complete a Railway to be called 'The London and Port Stanley Railway,' and whereas also the 'Railway clauses consolidation act' provides that Municipal Corporations in this Province may subscribe for any number of shares in the capital stock of, or lend to, or guarantee to the payment of any sum of money borrowed by the company from any corporation or person, or indorse or guarantee the payment of any debenture to be issued by the company for the money by them borrowed, and shall have power to assess and levy from time to time upon the whole rateable property of the Municipality a sufficient sum for them to discharge the debt or engagements contracted and that no Municipal Corporations shall subscribe for stock or incur any debt or liability under that act or the special act unless and until a By-law to that effect shall have been duly made and adopted with the consent first had of, a majority of the qualified electors of the Municipality, to be ascertained in such manner as shall be determined by the said By law, after public advertisements thereof containing a copy of such proposed By law, inserted at least four times in each newspaper printed within the limits of the municipality. And whereas the Town Council of the Town of London, as one of the Municipal Corporations therein intended by and with the consent first had and obtained of a majority of the qualified electors of the Town of London, present at a meeting duly called for that purpose by a public advertisement containing a copy of this By-law inserted at least four times in each newspaper within the limits of the Town of London, in the manner by the said act provided and held at the Town Hall in the Town of London, on Saturday the Twentieth day of August in the Year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, have agreed to subscribe for one thousand shares in the capital Stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, upon the conditions that the debentures hereinafter mentioned shall be taken at par by the said company for said stock.

Be it therefore enacted by the Town Council of the Town of London in Council assembled, under and by virtue of the Upper Canada Municipal Corporations' act of 1849 and by and with such consent of a majority of the qualified electors of the said Town so obtained as aforesaid, that the Mayor of the Town of London be and he is hereby authorized and empowered to subscribe for and in the name and on the behalf of the Town Council of the Town of London for one thousand shares in the capital stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company upon the condition above recited.

Second.—And be it further enacted, That the Mayor of the Town of London for the time being shall have power and he is hereby authorized and required from time to time to issue debentures for the said Town Council in payment for the said stock in sums of not less than twenty-five pounds each in the same proportions and at the same times as the calls upon the Stock shall be made answerable in the case of other shareholders.

Third.—And be it further enacted, That the said Debentures shall bear interest from the dates thereof respectively at the rate of six per cent per annum, which interest shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of the Town of London half yearly on the first day of June and the first day of December, and they shall be signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the treasurer of the Town, and shall have coupons attached to each for the said interest with the signature or initials of the Mayor and treasurer thereto, and the said Debenture shall be payable Twenty year after their date and issued with a promise that the Town Council may redeem them at any time after five years, if they shall desire to do so.

Fourth.—And be it further enacted, That for payment of the said debentures so given for the said stock and the half yearly interest thereon, there shall be levied and raised upon the whole rateable property both real and personal within the Town of London, a special rate in each year over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatever, as follows that is to say.

In each year after the present year 1853 until and including the year 1872, a rate of nine pence halfpenny in the pound upon the rateable property of the Town.

In the year 1873 the sum of fourteen shillings in the pound upon all rateable property in the Town, to pay the Interest on the debentures for that year and the said debentures, provided always that if the whole of said debentures should not become payable in that year, then so much of said rate of fourteen shillings shall only be levied and raised as shall be sufficient to pay the Interest and such part or amount of debentures as shall become due in that year, and the residue of said rate together with so much of a further rate of nine pence half penny in the pound upon the rateable property for the next succeeding year and every succeeding year until the said debentures and the Interest thereon shall be fully paid.

Fifth.—And be it further enacted, That the Town Council of the Town of London shall not at any time before the said debentures are fully satisfied, sell or dispose of the said shares or any of them except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating the said debentures or otherwise securing the due payment thereof, and provided always that until the whole of the said debenures shall issue there shall be so levied and raised in each and every year for the payment of the debentures actually issued, a portion only of the said rates hereby settled to be levied and realised bearing such proportion to the rates hereoebefore settled, as the debentures actually issued shall bear to the full amount authorispidi o be issued.

Sixth.—And be it further enacted, That any overplus of amount collected in any year that shall remain after paying the Interest of the said debentures shall be either funded or forthwith applied to the liquidation of the said debentures, as shall also all proceeds of sales of any of the said stock, and all dividends and monies received and profits that shall at any time accrue, or come to the Town Council of the Town of London in respecting said Stock.

Seventh.—And be it further enacted, That the consent of the majority of the qualified electors of the Town of London to the Town Council of the Town of London subscribing for one thousand shares in the capital stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, shall be ascertained at a public meeting to be held in the Town Hall in the Town of London, on Saturday the twentieth day of August, in the year of our Lord, 1853, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at which hour the Mayor of the Town of London, if he be then present, or in his absence the Reeve of the Town of London shall take the chair and call the meeting to be there held to order, and the said Mayor or Reeve shall then submit to the electors then and there present the question, shall the Town Council of the Town of London subscribe for one thousand shares in the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, according to the provisions of the Railway clauses consolidation act or not.

Eight.—And be it further enacted, That this By Law shall be inserted four times in each newspaper, printed within the Town of London, previous to the twentieth day of August next.

NOTICE.

A MEETING of the Electors of the Municipality of the Town of London will be held at the Town Hall, on Saturday the twentieth day of August now next ensuing, at the hour of two o'clock, P. M., to take into consideration the propriety of passing the above By-Law.

London C. W. June 18th, 1852.

Messrs. BEDFORD & Co.
Gentlemen—I have received the ample outfit of your Compound Camomile Cordial Plant, consider it a treasure as well as highly painstable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar odor discernible in the Medicine, as well as in Medicated Confections appears to be largely imbued and well preserved, and as the vegetable base is highly beneficial in those forms of dyspepsia depending on debility of Natural tone of the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with in the continent), your cordial and Tolonic and, form an inestimable addition to your Patent medicines.
From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending the Proprietary of this valuable Tonic to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, indeed, the vitality of life, and that diseases in many of its most painful forms is entirely owing to the loss of this vitality, and that the use of Magnetic power in its various forms, restores the vitality in due proportions. It is now successfully supply this wonderous power which it is found is in fact, the only successful remedy that can be relied on, for it has been tried and perfectly attested in the most wonderful scientific discovery of enlightening human feeling on this with that which has cost the interest of this Continent, millions of dollars and time.
There is not a single general Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science but does not readily approve of the Magnetic Fluid as the only remedy, and many are secretly in medical journals either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of vast successful cures which are the effect of these agents. Therefore any correspondent professes experience of their treatment.
The practice of the Galvanic Enlightener has great preponderating advantages over that of nearly all the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Enlightener in their practice, and from many of them he received the kindest testimonials of approval and confidence and the same time, with little trouble either to themselves or their pedagogues.

In the mechanic's hall we noticed a fire proof safe, exhibited by Mr. T. A. Ambridge and manufactured by John E. Wilder, Boston It is alleged to be an improvement on the old patent, the filling being as hard as adamant, and the safe perfectly free from damp. As a proof of the good qualities of this safe, the exhibitor was awarded a diploma.

THURSDAY.—Thursday was the principal day of the exhibition week. Our city was crowded to excess during the previous nights by thousands of anxious and expectant visitors, who flocked in as the various stages and boats arrived. The hotels and other houses of public entertainment, were filled to overflowing, yet we believe all found accommodation. The morning was most serene with a stiff breeze from the north west, which quickly dispersed the clouds that had gathered over-head. The street leading to the show yard was one continuous stream of human beings all wending their way to the exhibition. The entrances, although very large, were found not to be sufficient to admit the hundreds of applicants, but this was soon remedied by displacing a few boards.

The number of single tickets disposed of during the day amounted to upwards of 21,000. This immense number together with the members, Exhibitors, those who purchased badges and vehicles, were amply accommodated in the commodious grounds. A more interesting spectacle could scarcely be witnessed—han a glance at the show yard about noon. A larger collection of persons has seldom congregated in Canada, which speaks much for the good taste of our population and the high estimation in which agricultural and scientific pursuit sare held by the people. The Floral Hall had to be closed several times to prevent confusion from the crowds seeking admittance.

FRIDAY was the last of the exhibition days but not the least attractive. The day was equally fine with its predecessor and the show yard was well thronged with visitors. The prizes were awarded in the afternoon, and the annual address delivered on the ground. We are unable from want of space to give the address in to-day's issue, but it shall appear in our next.

We have been requested to intimate that the Secretary and Treasurer of the Provincial Agricultural Association will be found at their offices on the Show Ground, on Monday morning at 9 o'clock, when they will be prepared to pay any demand for Premiums, or otherwise, against the Association.

AMUSEMENTS.

FIRST EVENING—TUESDAY.

The subject of attraction on Tuesday evening, was the Grand Concert in the Mechanic's Institute, given in behalf of the building fund of Christ's Church. The performers were the elite in the musical world of Toronto, and successfully did they acquit themselves. The audience was large—to say the least, three were about 700 present—which speaks well for the good taste of the people of Hamilton, in preferring this edifying and most pleasing kind of amusement. Most cordial thanks are due to the ladies and gentlemen of Toronto, who so kindly volunteered their services on this occasion, and also to that delightful flutist, J. McCarroll, Esq., of Port Credit—a modern Orpheus—whose sweet melodies imparted a kind of enchantment and charmed the whole soul and body. Time and space forbid at this time any lengthened remarks upon this most brilliant entertainment, suffice it to say, that the programme was, on the whole, well selected, consisting chiefly of pieces from Flotow, Crouch, Costa, Beltini, Mazari, Donizetti and interspersed with sweet little ballads from Rooke, Loder, Thos. Moore and Lover. The performers to whom we are much indebted, were Mr. and Mrs. Paige and daughter, Mrs John Beverly Robinson, Messrs. Jules Hecht, J. D. Humphreys, J. McCarroll and the Messrs. O'Hara.

In the City Hall, were the members of the Hamilton Independent Fire Brigade, whose judicious care and chance in obtaining the most pleasing amusements are well known and appreciated. On this evening they had secured the services of Mr. Plunkett and his well selected and trained troupe. The Drama was well sustained and received with continued marks of approbation. The principal persons in Mr. Plunkett's troupe, are Mrs. Plunkett, Mademoiselle Therese the accomplished Danseuse, from the principal foreign theatres, M. Schmidt, from the Academy Royal, Paris, and Monsieur St. Ory, the well established Hamilton favorite. Several Overtures were well discoursed by the Dundas Amateur Band.

Mr. Nickinson's new Theatre, the Metropolitan, was well attended this evening. The cast was a happy one; the impersonations evinced not only talent but much careful study. Where all did so well, perhaps it would be unfair to individualize, yet we think it not more than justice to mention Miss C. Nickinson; her perfect ease, combined with a suavity of manner, while acquiring herself of her portion of the play, drew forth the encomiums of all present.

WEDNESDAY.—The Ladies' Bazaar in behalf of Christ's Church having been closed at 6, the ladies and the larger number of visitors refreshed themselves for an hour or two, and then with a few hundreds of strangers and citizens, attended the Grand Sacred Concert given in behalf, also, of Christ's Church. The names of the distinguished vocalists who were engaged in the concert of the previous evening, were also engaged in this, with the addition of the choir of Christ's church. We did not attend, but hear on all sides, that the attendance was very large

At the Metropolitan Theatre the audience was crowded, to witness the spirited acting of Mr. Nickinson and his company. On this evening the admirable comedy of "Satan in Paris" was produced, with Miss C. Nickinson as the "mysterious stranger." Her impersonations of the character she assumed were admirable, and were greeted with loud and frequent plaudits. "The happy man," was selected as the afterpiece.

Mr. Plunkett, and company occupied the City Hall, and were assisted by the various bands which had entered for the Firemen's prizes; the hall was well filled, and the different performers duly appreciated.

THURSDAY.—THE GRAND BALL.—This evening was distinguished by one of the largest and best conducted Balls that ever was held in Western Canada. No pains or expense was spared by the committee in making suitable arrangements and obtaining everything that could please the taste of the visitors to the city of Hamilton. The Ball was kept up to a late hour, and nothing marred the brilliancy of the evening. The Hamilton will long be remembered on account of this meeting, where so much pleasure and good feeling prevailed, where merry hearts and laughing eyes were to be seen on every side. Many a word said there in joke, was meant in reality, and we will not be surprised to hear of many instances when the happy reality will soon take place. The number supposed to have been at the Ball on Thursday evening is 800. At the breaking up, many found themselves minus their hats and bonnets which caused some little confusion.

The Metropolitan, as usual, was well filled and the pieces produced attracted much gratification to the audience.

THE PROCESSION.—On the occasion of the Toronto Firemen visiting the exhibition, it was deemed but an act of courtesy by our Brigade to meet them on their arrival at the wharf, and escort them to the show ground. The services of the Hamilton Independent Artillery Company were kindly lent to take part in the procession. The Engine House on East-market street, was chosen as the place of assemblage, and accordingly as the appointed time approached, our firemen with their showy dresses were to be seen repairing to the place of rendezvous. The Artillery Company under command of H. W. Ireland, Esq. was also punctually on hand with their gun All being assembled the procession was formed:—a band being placed at either end and in the centre. It then moved up King-st. as far as James-st., where it turned and proceeded to the wharf. The Artillery company stationed themselves on an adjoining height, where they planted their gun and prepared to give the visitors a hearty salute, after waiting a few minutes the boat hove in sight, bearing crowds upon its deck; on its nearing the wharf the heavy gun of the Artillery boomed forth, when nought was again to be heard save the stamping of busy feet and the stirring notes of the various bands. On the landing of the Toronto visitors the procession again formed, and moved up James-st as far as the market when it turned and wended its way up York-st. to the Show Ground. On arriving there, the Artillery fired twenty one rounds in rapid succession. This pleasant and joyous scene was now concluded and the firemen dispersed, each one for himself, in forcing his way through a crowded show yard, to witness the innumerable attractions that were collected together on this interesting occasion.

HOW THE AGRICULTURAL BUREAU IS REPRESENTED.—At the Agricultural meeting held in the City Hall, Hamilton, on Thursday evening last, Dr. Rolph, though placarded to make a speech, dissolved as usual. The papers wonder that he did so. The wonder would have been, had he done otherwise.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

The following is a translation of the second manifesto of the Porte. The document is dated September 6:

"OFFICIAL DECLARATION OF THE SUBLIME PORTE.

"We have already notified to the nation that the government of his Majesty the Sultan had protested in the usual form against the Russian invasion of the Moldo-Wallachian principalities, and had at the same time submitted to the Great Powers a memorandum setting forth all the circumstances of this act.

"More lately, the governments of England, France, Austria and Prussia, with a sincere desire of conciliating the governments in adverse position, drew up a project of arrangement, and submitted it to them simultaneously. The news of the acceptance by his Majesty the Emperor of Russia reached Belgrade by telegraph, and thence was forwarded by a special messenger to Constantinople.

"This eagerness and solicitude on the part of the Great Powers is a mark of their well know friendship towards the Porte, and they have, no doubt, used all their efforts to maintain the principles of right, as regards the sovereignty, independence, and integrity of the Ottoman Empire. It has been laid down that the text of the assurances contained in a note drawn up by the Porte at the time of Prince Menchikoff's departure from Constantinople, but which remained without effect in consequence of its rejection by the Russian embassy, was taken as the basis of the arrangement proposed by the Four Great Powers; and that the evacuation of the Moldo-Wallachian provinces, and the sending of an ambassador to St. Petersburgh was to follow its adoption.

"Therein have not been considered in conformity with the particular considerations of the government of his Majesty the Sultan, as well as with the views of settlement which he has always entertained; and as his Majesty the Sultan has always acted with most scrupulous care and attention in this important question, involving the maintenance of his sacred rights, it is surely, also, the duty of his faithful servants, and an obligation imposed by their functions, to act in a manner conformable with his intentions. Hence it is solely with the vital object of preserving intact his rights and independence, that such important preparations have been continued for several months.

"It has been consequently communicated to the representatives of the Four Powers that the Porte's assent to the new project is impossible, and that the solution of the question depends absolutely on the admission of the explanations given by the Sultan's government, as well as on the solid and formal assurances demanded of the Four Great Powers.

"His Majesty the Emperor of Austria has transmitted an autograph letter respecting the arrangement in question, and his Majesty the Sultan has forwarded an answer, explaining the real and positive state of things.

"Such being the actual position of the question, the aspect it may hereafter assume will not be known till the arrival of an answer to these communications. The Porte, meanwhile, in waiting the result, will maintain, conformably with the resolution unanimously adopted, her armed attitude. (Signed &c.")

ODESSA, Sept. 13.

RUSSIA.—Owing to the incessant arrival of wheat in immense quantities from the interior, prices have gone down very considerably. The magazines do not suffice to contain the supplies.

Prince Menchikoff held a grand review of the fleet a few days ago. It numbers fifty vessels, reckoning all above the size of a gun boat. A number of Greek sailors have been enrolled.

The army corps of General Luders has received considerable reinforcements. Very many regiments are encamped on the Dniester, and 8 Bessarabian swarms with troops.

The cholera has broken out in a very decided manner, and makes numerous victims. A five days' quarantine has been established at Sebastopol for vessels coming from Constantinople, coming from Sebastopol to take ship at Odessa, or on the Danube.

A new levy of the Don Cossacks is announced.

ST. PETERSBURGH, Sept. 15.

THE DANUBE.—The march of fresh troops into the principalities is to go on until the addition reaches 40,000. The troops lately encamped at Bucharest are ordered to ascend the Danube as far as Calefat.

VIENNA, Sept. 20.

AUSTRIA.—Today the Hungarian deputation presented presented the crown of St. Stephen, with the other regalia of their nation, to the Emperor. The deputation, which was headed by the Archduke Albrecht, was composed of the Cardinal Prince Primate of Hungary, Prince Paul Esterhazy, Count Francis Zichy, Count F. Palffy, Count Louis Szechenyi, and Count John Keglevich. It was noticed that in mentioning Hungary the Emperor spoke of it in the old ante-Schwarzenberg style as a kingdom.

West Indies.

A good deal of excitement has prevailed in the West India Islands, subsequent to the receipt of the intelligence of the intention of the Imperial Government to withdraw the troops from the West Indies, and also of the intention of the Government to reduce the Ordnance and Commissariat Establishments. It is feared that many of the Islands in their present distressed circumstances, will find great difficulty—even should it be practicable—to provide the necessary forces for their own protection. They will all, more or less, feel the loss of the expenditure to which the proposed arrangements will lead.

The fever had somewhat abated its virulence at St. Vincent, and had appeared in Trinidad, in the Detachment of 69th Regiment at St. James' Barracks. It was raging at Antigua with great malignity. A few cases had been treated in the Hospital at Demerara, where the Vervain was successfully tried as a remedy, and proved to be a good protective (or, as it is called, prophylactic) as well as a febrifuge. Another protective, mentioned in the St. Vincent papers, against its attacks, is a tablespoonful of powdered charcoal dissolved in water

We regret to hear that several cases of the prevailing epidemic (malignant fever) have appeared among the men of the 34th Regiment, now in garrison at St. Jean's, Trinidad."

At Barbadoes the country was looking beautiful and green and the young cane crops were particularly promising. The first quarter's revenue under the new Trade Act has amounted to a sum much in excess of the customs' duties received the same quarter in former years.

At Tobago and Granada the weather had been wet and delayed the reaping of the crops, and perhaps to diminish its yield, but to improve the promise and appearance of the cane. At Tobago, the House of Assembly had passed an act to authorize the borrowing of £10,000 from Government for the promotion of immigration, which should be from Madeira, in preference to India and of families from Barbadoes, if there was any means of prevailing with them to settle in Tobago; among the inducements to which is mentioned the facilities they would have at Tobago of improving their circumstances and obtaining a more comfortable subsistance than in their native country.

The Note of Vienna evidently satisfies all the exigencies of the situation, as is clear from its being accepted by the mediating powers. If it be definitly rejected by Turkey in the text which Russia had not without hesitation adopted, and the Czar should maintain that text, what will be the result? Europe in that case must observe events and wait, not to abandon Turkey to the fatal contingencies towards which she seems pleased to precipitate herself, but not to interfere unless the cause of European right should be again placed at stake. The Western nations, we may be persuaded, will not allow Russia to gain possession of Constantinople, to conquer any portion of the Ottoman territory, or to impose upon the Sultan conditions incompatible with his sovereignty. But if Europe is fully resolved to maintain the perfect integrity of the Ottoman Empire, it will not blindly involve itself in quarrels for words or phrases it will not, without a motive, engage its responsibility without reason and without object.

The "strongest support" which we are offering to Turkey, resolves itself into a determination candidly announced for the benefit not only of Turkey but of Russia—that if the modifications are refused, and she dare to defend herself, we may very strenuously and consistently abandon her. Beyond the press, and beyond even the ministry, there is a power which is answerable for this climax of poltroonery—the power of a jealous but incapable democracy. It may or may not be true that Lord Aberdeen solicited from Mr. Cobden the support of a "peace agitation" in favor of his policy; but it is true that he and almost all his colleagues have not the courage to take one patriotic resolve in defiance both of the platform and the Stock Exchange. It is now that the generous section of the Democrats themselves feel the want of that high spirit of the gentleman of England which they combined to outclamor, lampoon and sequester. "The whirligig of Time," as the clown has it, "brings in its revenges." But they are melancholy and humiliating to them and to all of us. We behold the peace of Europe and the balance of Empire at the mercy of demi savage and fanatical hordes. We see the first tracing of the first hostile parallel as against our Indian dominion; and waiting, while Aberdeen is sipping his candle, our only compensation is the intervention of his plans for aggrandizing the power of that very democracy which has made us so weak and him so contemptible.

China.

We have dates from China, by way of San Francisco, to July 21—ten days later than our previous advices.

A messenger had arrived at Canton with a letter from the Rebel Chief at Nankin to a missionary. The messenger gave the following information:

"The long haired brethren," he says "are between 4,00 and 5,000; the fighting men, from thirty to forty thousand, while the entire host, men, women and children in Nankin and its vicinity, is estimated at a hundred thousand. The plunder they have taken has been immense, and as there is no want of money among them, numbers are expected to flock to their camp; their purpose being to remain at Nakin until they can muster 90,000 fighting men, of whom 60,000 will be left to defend and retain that position, and 30,000 be marched on Pekin."—China Mail.

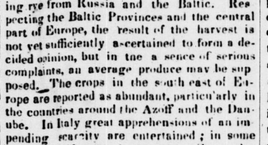
We have since heard that an army, in three divisions, had actually been marching from Nankin for Pekin; but on its becoming known that the Imperialists were collecting a large force at the former city, the insurgent forces were recalled. The Manjarians at Canton have been busy forwarding reinforcements of men and munitions of war by sea; and we are informed that about 600,000 pieces of gunpowder, and 2,000 trained soldiers, (by of whom can cast cannon, have already been sent. But their destination may be Amoy, and it may be they are identical with the force of the Bogue Admiral noticed under the head Amoy

Sixty-two men were executed at Canton under a strong guard on the morning of the 4th; but we know not whether they were insurgents taken in the field, or part of a band of vagabonds who recently laid a plan to fire the Provincial Treasurer's official residence. An accomplice disclosed the plot and six men were seized on the premises with arms and gunpowder.

By the way of Amoy we learn that commotions have broken out in the island of Formosa. So soon as the news has reached that place that Amoy had been taken by the insurgents, mussulman mobs broke out among the quadrants of the southern portion of the island. That was soon followed by an open endeavor to displace the Chinese officials; however, the endeavor is so far as was ineffectual, and the Mandarins, after great exertions, succeeded in putting down the disturbance. The Formosans have always been a disorderly set, very many of the inhabitants of the island never having submitted to the government of the Emperor of China, but have always maintained an almost independent attitude to each of the successive dynasties that have governed the Chinese Empire. It was believed however, that the Mandarins would be made, and that they would have to seek safety in flight. Large quantities of rice are exported from Formosa and the want of the usual supplies from that quarter is likely to produce want and distress on the opposite Chinese shores, which tend further to embarrass the officers of the Imperial government there.

WEST INDIA MONEY.—It is stated in American papers that, by royal proclamation gold coins of the United States shall circulate and be received in the British West India colonies, as of the full value, and equivalent to current money of the United Kingdom at the following rates, that is to say:—The eagle at the rate of forty-one shillings sterling. The half eagle at the rate of twenty shillings and six pence sterling. The gold dollar at the rate of four shillings and one penny. And in all payments to be made in these colonies, tender and payment in the said coins, or either of them, at the respective rates afore-said, shall be deemed and taken to be a lawful tender, in the same manner, as if each tender had been made in the current coin of the United Kingdom.

Agricultural Society.



THE Williams Branch Agricultural Society, held their Show a Carlisle, Township of Williams, on Tuesday the 20th of September, 1853. and the following Stock was shown for exhibition, at the usual place:

There were 84 horses, 103 horned cattle, 115 sheep, 16 pigs, 6 bags of wheat, 8 kegs of butter and a very superior number of fat cattle worthy of inspection.

The London circular of Mr. George Dornbusch enters more minutely into the probable results of the harvest on the European continent:

"Abroad the corn crops are variously reported. Sweden is said to have a poor harvest in prospect, and is now largely importing rye from Russia and the Baltic. Respecting the Baltic Provinces and the central part of Europe, the result of the harvest is not yet sufficiently ascertained to form a decided opinion, but in the absence of serious complaints, an average produce may be supposed. The crops in the south east of Europe are reported as abundant, particularly in the countries around the Azoff and the Danube. In Italy great apprehensions of an impending scarcity are entertained; in some parts not half a crop is expected. Spain also complains of short crops. In France the produce of this year's wheat crop is estimated at one-fourth less than an average, one-fourth crop is equal to three months' consumption, but considering that the quality of this year's wheat is generally very superior, and that the short quantity of this grain is somewhat compensated by the abundance of barley, oats and rye, the deficiency in the crops of France, it is estimated, is reduced thereby to 1 6 th (two months' consumption,) and taking into account the stock of old corn on hand, the whole deficiency is by this calculation reduced to 1 12th (one months' consumption. Only half the population of France (the town-) consumes pure wheaten bread; 54,000,000 hect. (18,000,000 qrs) are estimated to be annually required for this purpose; the supposed deficiency 1/4 reduced to 1 12th would be equal to 4,500,000 hect. (1,500,000 qrs.) This year the harvest is fully a fortnight later than an average: the stocks are now so much smaller than usual at this season, and as farmers are busy with field work, the markets are scantily supplied with grain, and this explains the present animated demand in France for ready foreign corn. America—In the United States the greater part of the crops is said to be secured, on the whole, in excellent order; the yield is satisfactory, and the quality is said to be the finest for many years past. From the north of Europe large quantities of corn have reached our shores. From ports east of Gibraltar, 93 corn laden vessels were reported to have arrived off the coast from the 10th to the 16th of August, and 66 wheat laden vessels (of which 26 were for London) and eight vessels of oats have passed the Sound and Great Belt, bound for British ports, from the 13th August inclusive."

London Times.

LONDON, FRIDAY, OCT'R. 21. 1853

The trade of Breadstuff.—Prospects of another 1847.

Such is the heading of an article in the N. Y. Herald, and which we feel justified in giving to our readers:—

"The rise of breadstuffs in England is a notable fact. Genesee Ohio and Western Canal flour were selling at 31s. and 31s. and 3d., and wheat was quoted in Mark lane at 55s. to 58s. per quarter. Flour has risen nearly one hundred per cent. in many parts of France. In Belgium the duty of 1850 on corn has been suspended. Sweden, hitherto an exporter, has been competing with the English and French purchasers in the Baltic, and large cargoes of corn have been imported into the Swedish ports. Add to this that freights have risen so high at Odessa, as almost to amount to prohibition; that the navigation in the Danube is interrupted: that the occupation of large sections of the growing country in the south east of Europe by the forces of Russia and Turkey have checked both agricultural and commercial operations, and the alarming nature of the approaching crisis, will be seen with tolerable distinctness.

"A second 1847 is, in fact, clearly foreshadowed. In that year, as most of our readers recollect, the failure of the crops in the British Isles, caused an unusual exportation of wheat—nearly 20,000 000 quarters from this country. Breadstuffs rose to fabulous prices—speculation knew no limits—and, as invariable the case on such occasions, the re-action in the commercial pause, accompanied by disastrous failures both here and in Great Britain.

"Our present circumstances are not precisely and exactly to those of 1847. Then scarcity was confined to the British Isles; and large supplies of wheat were sent from the Baltic, Belgium, France, Italy and the Levant, to England. Now, the failure of the crops is expected to be general; and the countries whose competition led to our ruin in 1847, are actually our customers. We shall be required to supply all Europe with bread. This very important distinction between the two periods should be carefully borne in mind.

"At the same time the old commercial plan of anticipating on this side of the water, and exaggerating a rise in breadstuffs in Europe, was never more finely exemplified than in our market to-day. Three months ago, Ohio flour sold at $4 50, to $4 75, when our English advices reported sales in London, at 21s. to 23s. A month later Ohio was worth $4 87, to $5, on London advices of 23s. 6d. to 25s. Thirty days ago it sold here at $5 12½ to $5 37½ on London advices of 27s. 6d. to 28s. Now we hear of sales in London at 31s. and we suppose that holders would not care about selling here under $6 50 to $6 75. The careful reader will see how exactly every rise is reacted upon, and even anticipated by our dealers, and how small a margin is left for profit to the shipper. Should the excitement in Europe continue, it is more than probable that flour will sell here at even higher rates than it could fetch in Mark Lane.

"Our merchants know their own business better than we do, and if they choose to make the fortunes of our corn growers, we shall not be the men to complain; but it does seem to us that under no possible combination of circumstances can a trade be prosecuted on this principle—a principle more closely allied to gambling than anything else, or lead to any other result than ultimate ruin and loss. It may be prosperous for awhile. Those who purchased flour here at $5 may now make $1 50 a barrel by selling it on the spot, or more by sending it to London. Shipments at present may pay, but a time must come when the European markets will take a turn, and the worst of that event will be, that it will fall like a thunder clap on people who encouraged by vast profits, have invested larger and still larger sums in the traffic, and for whom, even a small loss will be probably ruinous. Eighteen hundred and forty-seven is not so long ago that its calamities can have been forgotten. Let our merchants bear them in mind, lest folly and thirst for gain should lead to their repetition."

We now give, also, a short paragraph from an old country paper, fully corroborating the views of the former:

"Nearly all the products of the soil in France, as well as throughout the Continent, have this year been attacked with disease—The deficiency of bread-stuffs is becoming more and more every felt, while the wine is worse and dearer than ever before, and every kind of fruit is tainted with a malady similar to that which has devastated the vineyards. M. Alexander Weill, a Jew converted to Catholicism, attributes these diseases to the non-observance of the precepts of Moses, who ordained that the soil should be left fallow during every seventh year, as God rested on the seventh day."

We could quote other authorities equally deserving credit, but believe it will be admitted, generally, without them that the crops throughout Europe are immensely deficient. Dreading famine and in order to partially avert the calamity from themselves it possible, the French Government it appears has purchased secretly in the English and other markets, large quantities of Breadstuffs. Before the sailing of the Africa, French agents purchasing in the English markets raised the price of Bread-tuff- 20 per cent. The London Times also states "that the supply of corn for the present year is relatively smaller than the demand, while the demand is unusually increasing by a high rate of wages, and by the general prosperity of the country." Hence the prospect of a scarcity if not a famine. The Toronto Colonist seems to think that high prices will rage here, but says we are blessed with "a most abundant crop." The surplus of which is estimated at 4 million bushels over that of former years, besides the quality superior. The New York Herald estimates "the deficiency to require the importation of the enormous quantity of Eighteen millions of quarters before the harvest of 1854. In France the deficiency is estimated at one-fourth. In a large section of Italy not half a crop is expected; Spain also complains of a deficiency, and Sweden has so poor a harvest in prospect that she is now largely importing from the Baltic. This is a matter of deep interest both to Europe and America; the European Governments are alive to the danger, France has materially relaxed her Corn Laws, the Pope and King of Naples have prohibited the exportation of grain from their Dominions altogether, the only granaries for supplying this deficiency are the Levant and the United States, the former from the difficulty of inland transmission affords only a limited supply. In 1847 we exported to Great Britain about 70 per cent. more than Russia, Turkey, Spain and Egypt combined. In 1847 our whole export of wheat and wheat and wheat flour amounted to less than two millions of quarters, and we are told by the Brokers' Magazine of London that Eighteen millions of quarter will be required to meet the deficiency in England alone. In 1847 every other wheat growing country with the exception of Greece and Portugal, had wheat to spare, and exported more or less to the extreme. France exported to England in 1847: 197,250 quarters, and more, by her own calculation, she will require, before the next harvest, one-and-a-half million quarters from abroad, here let us to our own supplies, our whole crop for 1849 according to the census of 1850, amounted to 100,503,899 bushels, allowing our wheat crop this year to be 120,000,000, it will fall amount to less than Nineteen millions of quarters, that is to say, one entire crop is less than the estimated deficiency of France and England alone; but our own people must first be fed, and therefore we can only spare the surplus. The average yield of wheat in England and Wales is about 28 bushels per acre, in France 15, In the United States the best lands yield 30 bushels or more. The yearly average of the wheat crop between Great Britain and Ireland is larger than that of the United States and of France, or nearly twice as large, and yet more, the inhabitants of both Countries consume more wheat in proportion to their numbers, than the people of the United States; we cultivate and use other grains to much larger extent; they rely mainly up on wheat, and if their our supply of that is in any way very materially reduced, we cannot do very much towards making good the deficiency," we have endeavored lately to collect what information was available, and hope it may prove useful and instructive.—Farmers had better hold over or wheat will be high.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.—In presenting our readers with the account of the last Provincial Show, we intend, from want of space, not offering any observation, but one, and that one we cannot avoid, introducing the Bureau of Agriculture, where, were its "Dessolving views," truly the county gets a large return from the official head, for his pay, truly, no party, but Reformers, so called, could have devised so ingenious a simcure. The farce of buying maps, and discovering other means of scattering the public funds, may be gratifying to the recipients, but how Agricultural knowledge is to be disseminated, is another question, and we ask our readers what part did the Bureau of Agriculture take in the recent Show, we have not heard even, whether the dissecting knowledge of its head was ever tested.

THE ORANGE DISPUTE.

IMPORTANT DECISION OF THE GRAND LODGE OF IRELAND.

We are authorised to state, that Mr. Gowan, Grand Master of Canada, has received a Letter from the Right Honourable the Earl of Enniskillen, Grand Master of Ireland, dated "Florence Court, the 28th September," acknowledging the receipt of Mr. Gowan's letter, enclosing the Report of the Grand Lodge of British North America; and stating that his Lordship would have another reply, but that he wished to see if an application for a Grand Warrant, would be made by the followers of Mr. Benjamin.—The Noble Lord states, that up to the date of his letter (28th September) no such application had been received; and that if it had, it would not be granted.

His Lordship's letter is couched in the most friendly term, and contains advice and suggestions worthy of the exalted position which he holds amongst the Orangemen of the Empire.—Patriot.

London Independent Light Infantry.

Our readers are, perhaps, not aware that a new Volunteer Company, designated as the London Independent Light Infantry, has been constituted by order of Government, of recent date, and that our respected fellow Townsman Wm. Parker, Esq., has been appointed as Captain, Commanding the same, as also, Mr. Pannell as 1st Lieut., and other persons highly qualified from their former services in the British Army—to render great efficiency towards the organization and discipline of the corps alluded to.

On Monday last a most respectable muster of the Company took place on the flats near Mr. Fowler's residence, for the first time. Sundry tents were erected, and a Picnic of the highest order was relished by the Gentlemen assembled; provided for the occasion at the personal expense of Captain Barker. We perceive several Officers belonging to the other Independent Companies present. Captain Smyth, on our volunteer force—McDowell and Patterson of the Lodes and Murray of the Artillery. Neat and appropriate Speeches were interchanged between the parties, and not a single word or otherwise occurred to mar the hilarity of this most pleasant of gatherings.

Her Majesty the Queen. Prince Albert and the Royal family.

The Administrators of the Provincial Government and Commander in Chief, &c.

Proposed by Captain Smyth, "The health of Captain Barker, Officers and men of the Light Infantry,"—which was responded to in a neat and expressive speech from Captain Barker. "A Welcome—Captain Smyth and the Volunteer Rifle...

Lieut. Murray and the Volunteer Artillery together with numerous other toasts which elicited great applause.

"PROSPERITY TO THE LIGHT INFANTRY."

☞ The expected Breve will, it is said, take place on the 9th of November, next.

Obituary.

At Bedford Manse, Allon, Scotland, on the 3rd September, ultimo, the Reverend William Fraser, minister of the second United Presbyterian Congregation of that town, departed this life. Mr. Fraser has left not only an attached and exemplary flock, to whom he ministered for nearly half a century, but also a wide circle of relatives and friends, to mourn a departure, which, to himself, can only have been gain. His memory will long continue to be gratefully cherished, by reason of the many amiable and benignant graces with which his character was mellowed and adorned, and of the vigor and efficiency that marked the progress of his ministry, till within about a year of his decease. He was the third son of the late Rev. John Fraser, of Auchtermuchty; and, by the maternal side, he was a great grandson of the Reverend Ralph Erskine, one of the celebrated Founders of the late Secession Church of Scotland.

"Why should our tears in sorrow flow,
When God recalls his own—
And bids them leave a world of woe,
For an immortal crown?"

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

TO Authorize the Municipal Council of the United Counties of Middlesex and Elgin to subscribe for One Thousand Shares in the Stock of the London and Port Stanley Railroad Company.

Whereas the Municipal Council of the United Counties of Middlesex and Elgin are authorized to subscribe for any number of shares in the London and Port Stanley Railroad Company, by a By-law to that effect duly made and adopted, with the consent first had of a majority of the qualified electors of the said municipality, to be ascertained in such manner as shall be determined by the said By-law, after public advertisement thereof, containing a copy of such proposed By-law inserted at least four times in each newspaper printed within the limits of said municipality, and to issue debentures payable at such times, and with or without Interest as the said Council may deem meet.

And whereas the said Council, by and with the consent first had and obtained of the qualified electors of the said United Counties of Middlesex and Elgin, to be ascertained in the manner and form provided by the said By-law, as provided for by statute, have agreed to subscribe for One Thousand Shares in the Capital Stock of the said London and Port Stanley Railroad Company, upon the condition that the debentures hereinafter mentioned shall be received and taken at par by the said Company for said Stock.

Be it therefore enacted, that the Municipal Council of the United Counties of Middlesex and Elgin, in Council assembled, by and with such consent so obtained as aforesaid, that the County Warden be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe for, and in name and on behalf the said Council, for One Thousand Shares of Stock of the Company aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, that the Warden of the said United Counties, or in the event of a dissolution of the said United Counties, the Warden of the County of Middlesex shall have full power, and is hereby required from time to time to issue debentures in payment of said stock, in sums not less than Twenty-Five Pounds each, and in the same proportions, and at the same times that the calls upon the Stock shall be made payable in the case of other shareholders.

And be it further enacted, that the said debentures shall be payable in twenty years from the date, and shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent, per annum, payable half-yearly at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall be signed by the Warden and Treasurer of the said United Counties, or in the event of a dissolution of said United Counties, then by the Warden and Treasurer for the time being of the County of Middlesex, and said debentures shall have coupons attached thereunto for the interest aforesaid, which shall have thereto the signature or initials of the Warden and Treasurer as above provided, but the said debentures shall be issued with a proviso, that they may be redeemable by the County Council at any time after five years from date, at their discretion.

And be it further enacted, that for the payment of the said debentures, and for the half-yearly interest thereon, there shall be levied and raised upon the whole rateable property in the said United Counties of Middlesex and Elgin, as a special rate in each and every year, over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the sum of one-sixth of a penny in the pound, until the debenture issued and the interest thereon shall have been fully satisfied.

And be it further enacted, that the County Council aforesaid shall not at any time hereafter, before the said debentures shall be fully paid on, sell or dispose of the said shares or any of them, except for the purpose of buying in or liquidating said debentures, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof; and provided always, that until the whole of the said debentures shall be issued, there shall be so levied and raised as aforesaid, in each and every year, for the payment of the debentures actually issued, a portion only the said rate hereby authorized to be levied and raised, bearing such proportion to the rates herein before stated as the debentures actually issued shall bear to the whole amount authorized to be issued.

And be it further enacted, that the consent of the majority of the qualified electors of the United Counties of Middlesex and Elgin to the Municipal Council of the said United Counties subscribing for One Thousand Shares in the Capital Stock of the London and Port Stanley Railroad Company, shall be ascertained at a public meeting to be held at the Court House, in the Town of London, on Saturday the Fifth day of November, 1853, at the hour of Twelve o'Clock noon of said day, at which time and place the Warden of the said United Counties, if he be then present, or in his absence, such person as the meeting may appoint shall take the Chair, and call the meeting to be then and there held to order, and the said Chairman shall then submit to the Electors present, the question, shall the Municipal Council of the United Counties of Middlesex and Elgin subscribe for One Thousand Shares in the London and Port Stanley Railroad Company, according to the provisions of the Statute in that behalf, or not.

NOTICE.

A PUBLIC MEETING of the Electors of the United Counties of the Middlesex and Elgin, will be held at the Court House, in the Town of London, on Saturday the 5th day of November next, at the hour of Twelve o'Clock noon, to take into consideration the propriety of passing the above By-Law.

WM. NILES,
Warden, U. C. M. & E.

London, 30th Sept., 1853.

☞ All papers published in the United Counties of Middlesex and Elgin are requested to publish the above proposed By-law and Notice four times, prior to the day of meeting, and send copies of papers to the office of the County Clerk.

NOTICE.

PROPOSED BY-LAW.

To authorise the issuing of Debentures to raise by way of loan the sum of Two Hundred Pounds.

WHEREAS, it was resolved by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, at its sitting on the 6th June, 1853, on application from the School Trustees of the second school section of that township, to raise the sum of Two Hundred Pounds for the purpose of defraying the expense of erecting a School House in the said section; and whereas it is expedient to raise that sum by way of loan, by issuing debentures for the same, payable in ten years from the passing hereof with interest, payable half-yearly; and for the payment of the said debentures and interest thereon, it will be necessary to raise annually, by a special rate upon the taxable property within the said school section, the sum of £30 8 for each of the ten years from 1854 to 1863 inclusive; and, whereas the whole of the taxable, real, and personal property of the said school section, according to the assessment roll of the Township for the year 1853, amounted to the sum of £14,948, 10s. 0d., and, whereas the annual rate of one half-penny in the pound upon the whole of the said taxable property is required as a special rate to be levid during the next ten years for payment of the said loan and interest, 12 Victoria, Cap. 81, Sec. 177. Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, in council assembled, by virtue and authority of the Upper Canada Municipal Corporation Act, and it is hereby enacted, by authority of the same, that it shall be lawful, from and after the passing of this By-Law, for the Reeve of the Township of Delaware, and he is hereby authorized and required, to raise, by way of loan, the sum of Two Hundred Pounds, from any person or persons, or body corporate, on the credit of the Municipality, and to issue Debentures for the same, payable as follows, viz:—The sum of £30, payable on the 8th January, 18.6; £35, one the 8th January, 1858; £40 on the 8th January, 1860; £45 on the 8th January, 1862; and £50 on the 8th January, 1864. And be it further enacted that the said Debentures shall have Coupons attached for the payment of the interest thereon, payable half-yearly, on the 8th day of July, and the 8th day of January, in each year; and such Debentures and Coupons shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, and shall be made payable at such place as the Reeve may think proper. And be it further enacted, that the special rate of one half penny in the pound shall be raised, levied and collected, over and above, and in addition to, all other rates, for each of the ten years from 1854 to 1863 inclusive, upon all the taxable property of the second school section of the said Township, for the purpose of paying the said sum of Two Hundred Pounds, and the interest thereon; and the proceeds of such special rate shall be applied solely to the payment of said debentures and interest thereon; until such debentures and the interest thereof shall be fully paid and discharged. And be it further enacted that this By-law shall be in force and take effect from and after the seventh day of January, One thousand eight hundred and fifty four.

Notice.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-Law to be taken into consideration by the Township Council of the Township of Delaware, in the County of Middlesex, at Montgomery's Tavern in said Township, on Saturday the 7th day of January next, at the hour of 12 noon, at which time and place the members of the said Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophichides, Sax horns, Trombones, Cornpeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

NEW PIANO-FORTE AND MUSIC Establishment,

KING-ST., THREE DOORS WEST OF YONGE-ST.,

TORONTO, C. W.

MESSRS. SMALL & PAIGE, Importers and dealers in Music and Musical Instruments, etc., beg to announce that they have opened their new ware-room (situated as above,) and will constantly have on hand, both Wholesale and Retail, every article of Musical Merchandize of various qualities and prices. They would particularly solicit an inspection of their new style of

Grand Square Piano-Fortes,

from the manufactories of Collard & Collard, London; and Linnard & Weber, Philadelphia.

Messrs S. & P. have also on hand, a large stock of New York and Boston Piano-Fortes, of excellent quality, which they can warrant in all respects, and especially in regard to their keeping in tune. They will also retain the same softness and sweetness of tone for a number of years, without ever acquiring that metallic, hard and wiry tone which many instruments, of otherwise good reputation, are apt to have.

Their piano Fortes are carefully selected by one of the Firm, "Mr. R. G. Paige, Professor of Music, Organist of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto," whose professional experience enables him to judge of the qualities of an instrument. They can, therefore, fully guarantee every instrument purchased of them

Brass and Wooden Instruments, for Military, Amateur and Quadrille Bands.

Likewise, every description of Stringed and Wooden Instruments necessary for a complete Orchestra.

Violin strings of a very superior quality, which they warrant cannot be surpassed.

THE decided success that the above named BAKING POWDERS has met with since their (recent introduction into the Western part of Canada, has induced the subscriber to make extended preparations for the more extensive manufacture of them. It is quite useless to "puff them" as they on trial will speak for themselves. They have been truly termed—"Lightning" for the effect they produce in pastry wonderful. They not only materially assist in making delicious light and white Bread, Biscuit and other Pastry but the conduce greatly to the speed of Baking. A trial will satisfy all,—they also come cheap, for they are only 7½ cy. per package, and they contain more than and Powder put up, and take a less quantity.

CLARENDON,

THE SUBSCRIBER, having leased this well-known House for a term of years, would announce to the public that it has undergone extensive improvements and repairs—has been refurnished in the highest style of modern elegance, and is now prepared, in all respects, for the reception and convenience of guests.

The location of this House is central and commanding—being in the very heart of the city, upon the principal street, contiguous to each Railroad Depot, Lake Erie, &c., and affording the finest view of Buffalo and the adjacent country, that can be had in the city.

It will ever be the purpose of the proprietor to provide the comforts of a pleasant home, in behalf of all who may favor him with their patronage. He trusts that the same generosity which was accorded him as commander of the Steamers London, Canada, May Flower and Empire State, may also be extended to him in his new vocation.

COMPOUND

CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London, C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. RESPESS & Co.

Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful article with all its pleasing requirements. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter in your, in which both these sentiments are combined, appear to be particularly suited to medicinal purposes, as the excellent tone is highly beneficial in their forms of dyspepsia depending on debility, or wanting some other digestive organs. One form in particular I would call on the community, your cordial will, I doubt not, form an invaluable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutist, I feel much pleasure in cordially recommending his Preparations, the valuable Tonic to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

HEALTH, WEALTH, AND BEAUTY.

DR. BEL.

German Eclectic Physician,

WILL, after September 30, 1852, be at undermentioned days of each month as follows:—Hamilton—Nortin's Hotel, 15th and 16th. Dundas—Kennedy's Hotel, 17th and 18th. Guelph—Platt's Hotel, 19 and 20th. Galt—Lowell's Hotel, 21st and 22nd—until noon. Paris—Hadlow's Hotel, 23rd, 24th, and 25th—until noon. Woodstock—Hack's Hotel, 26th, and 27th. Ingersoll—Spurr's Hotel, 28th. London—Bennett's Hotel, 29th and 30th.

Dr. Bel will pay pay particular attention to Cancers, Ulcers, Scaled Necks, Sore Eyes, and all Cutaneous Diseases. He purifies the blood to such a degree as to prevent the most Vegetable Medicines, which sustain the vitality of the system, instead of reducing the patient to the brink of the grave, which is too often the case when mineral poisons are given. Calomel, Arsenic, Antimony, the Rusk and Lead, should never be used as remedial agents. A long established fact that they cause more sickness and death than the Diseases they are supposed to Cure.

Dr. B. withdraws his attention from all chronic diseases which are silently destroying the constitution, the tongue which are—a pain and dizziness to the head, pain in the side and shoulders, numbness of the limbs, pain in the bowels, irregular appetite, costiveness buzzing and ringing in the ears. Female irregularities, and all diseases of a delicate nature, may be trusted to him, without a betrayal of that confidence which should always exist between the patient and physician.

Persons wishing to consult with Dr. Bel can do so free of charge, and be sure of finding him Every Month at the time and place above mentioned. Charges for Medicine moderate.

B. Bel fully understands the German method of destroying and locating Diseases in an inspection of the Urine.

A. B.—AGUE warranted to be CURED.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Emigrentum. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs: Gout, Tic Dolureux, Neuras and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spasms and Hip Complaints, Stiffness, of the Joints, Lumbago, Scrofula, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds &c.

In this or generally admitted, by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, is, in fact, the vitality of life and that disease, most of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wonderful power when it is thus deficient, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

This is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agentsor corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE BALSAMS,

Cures all Pains, Strains, Numbness, Head-Ache, Ague, in the Face, Asthma, Tooth and Head-Ache, &c. &c.

HIYATO CHINESE BALSAM,

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Choler, Pains &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done more than words can tell, I have not words to express the good effects I have received from it, and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—as we have tried it in a number of instances. I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Respectfully yours, JOHN DOTY.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.

Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application. Cures all External Sores, Piles, Chilblains, tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases. Man's flesh is heir to.

Try it; you will not regret it,

TO W. C. SWEET.

DEAR SIR,—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted the best Physicians, and could get no relief until I submitted to the knife, and they would have charged me a high price. I applied to your agent, and got a bottle of your Balsam, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, which is more than I can effectually say of most. I am now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure. JOHN PERRY.

Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry; and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.

CHEST EXPANDER EXERCISE.

Messrs. R. & J. Macindoe Robertson. BEGS respectfully to announce to the Ladies and Gentlemen of London, that they will resume their Classes for the above accomplishments, about the end of December, particulars of which will be given in due time.

London, 29th Nov. 1853. 51-3in

The great popularity which Mortain's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases, by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Fire and Life Insurance!

Royal Insurance Company.

CAPITAL £2,000,000. STERLING.

Or Ten Million Dollars with a very large margins.

HEAD OFFICES.

Royal Insurance Buildings, Liverpool; and 29, Lombard Street, London, England.

LONDON AGENCY,

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favorable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to any liability beyond the amount of their premium, nor required to become parties to any deed of settlement, nor to contribute to the payment of losses which may happen to themselves or others—as they depend upon the uncertain fund for contribution—the capital stock of the Company, which is guaranteed by the assets in the market in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will promptly and liberally adjust and pay the amount of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal in 1852—is too practically known to the inhabitants of British America, to require that this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the undersigned has every confidence in submitting to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:

1st Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the insured, (amounting to twenty-five per cent annually—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportion by two branches, and exemption of the insured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premium, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any of the United States, to the North of 25 degrees of North America, but not to the westward of the Mississip River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and recross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to any other part thereof, from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of North America, nor to the Westward of the Mississipi River.

Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

JOHN JENNINGS.

London, Nov. 14,

mancies with English Fellows! (eh?,) and introduce as safety-valves the Thirty-nine Articles of England? Really, we are inclined to follow in the wake of Principal Cunningham of the "Frees," for once; who, in one of his speeches "wi' his Scotch heart, warmin' at the sicht o' the tartan," exclaimed, to the amazement of his sanctified "Free"-men and "Free"-ladies,

"Scots wha hae, wi' Wallace bled, &c."
"See approach proud Edward's power, &c."
"Caledonia on wi' me, &c."
"Let us do, or Die!"

We do not know whether the Principal of the "Frees" recited the whole Scottish Ballad! But, where, we again ask, are,—or what rather is the worth of the "Act of Union," and Presbyterian Scotland's "Act of Security,"—if such gratuitous indignities are to be thrown with impunity, by a British Cabinet, at those Presbyterian Judicatories which her Majesty herself, ere she received the Crown of the British Empire, swore she would honor and defend? What Scottish thanks will be due to her, for all her Balmoral and Holyrood visits,—if those visits are to be put forth only as blinds, or as a Scotchman would say,—as "glaumer for a body's een" to keep out of sight the gradual work that is going on for Scotland's eventual and utter degradation;—not only in those assaults that are being made on her National Universities and Presbyterian Church, but also, in that most deplorable state of defencelessness in which her coasts and castles of strength are left, in such critical times as the present!—Who knows what the secret and ultimate designs of the French Emperor and the Russian Czar may be? How many months ago is it since the British people, and Cabinet too, were frightened almost out of their senses, by the rumor, that, while Russia was preparing her naval armaments on the Baltic, France was equipping hers at Toulon, with a view to make a "coup d'etat" in concert on the United Kingdom? "Nous verrons." May be, "Le jour viendra," sooner than Lord Palmerston, or Lord John Russell, with all their perspicacity, are anticipating! Scotchmen are sometimes guilty of "nursing their wrath." Who knows how long the "entente cordiale" between the British Lion and the French Eagle may continue? Is not the lion lagging already, far behind the eagle? Only let Louis Napoleon's military staff get fairly esconced at Constantinople—his soldiers multiplied at Rome—his fleet fairly developed in the Black Sea,—opposite Naples,—at Toulon, and in the Bay of Biscay,—while Russia is strong on the Baltic; and where are the obligations that will bind the man, who mounted the imperial throne over the massacred and mangled bodies of his own innocent and defenceless Parisians! Every body knows that he would swim through oceans of plighted faith and broken oaths, could he only regain the laurels that were lost by his Uncle on the plains of Waterloo. And should Scotland, through England's apathy, share in any national humiliation: will she not afterwards rise in her "micht," and vindicate her insulted and stolen rights?

Let me tell you, Sir, that such men as the chivalric Eglinton and the famous Alison, do not, any more than the Edinburgh Presbytery, like to see "Punch" sitting in his metropolitan chair, either grinning or "laughter" at them! For perhaps you are not aware, Sir, that the said funny personage has helped the "Scottish Rights" Trumpeters to a truly national Petition. I send it herewith, if you can spare a niche for it, for the amusement of your readers, during those frosty evenings.

But as to the Presbytery of Edinburgh, Sir: what, pray, are the duties, which the National Clergy of Scotland are set to perform? Are those duties spiritual, or are they carnal? Are not Scotland's Clergy her spiritual guardians and guides? And, had she a Cabinet and a Parliament of her own, as in the days of John Knox, would her Secretary of State dare to visit them with so gratuitous an indignity? Nay, Sir, her Clergy have spoken, with a "Fas" and "procul esto aliquid," not to Secretaries merely, but to Queens, in "days of yore." Has not immemorial custom dictated to the Presbytery of Edinburgh, just the very course precisely, which they lately adopted, in suggesting most respectfully to an inadvertent Cabinet, the imminent necessity there was for a day of National fasting, prayer, and humiliation, in view of the approaching advent both of pestilence and war? One can scarcely divest his mind of the idea, that Lord Palmerston, when he dictated the Cabinet's response, imagined the Presbytery of Edinburgh to be a band of scavengers, who should duty it was, before they themselves prayed or asked others to unite with them in humble confession and fervent supplication, to set to work with their shovels, wheel-barrows, brooms, and lime-wash, and purify all the dirty closes, vennals, and back-purlieus in the Cowgate, and the Canongate, and the Saint Mary's Wynds "o' Auld Reekie!"

Only read the insulting terms in which the audacious Secretary lectures this venerable and metropolitan Judicatory of Scotland's National Presbyterian Church; and you will not wonder, that those bosoms, in which still dwells the spirit of the Scottish Covenanter, were stirred with blended astonishment, grief, and shame, that, in defiance of all Acts of Union and Security, an English Home Secretary should aim his haughty missives at the venerable brows of Scotland's Clergy.

"The maker of the Universe has established certain laws of Nature for the planet in which we live, and the weal or woe of mankind depends on the observance or the neglect of those laws. One of those laws connects health with the absence of those gaseous exhalations which proceed from over-crowded human beings, or from decomposing substances, whether animal or vegetable; and those same laws render sickness the most inevitable consequence of exposure to those noxious influences. * * * * *

"Those persons with whom it rested to purify towns and cities, and to prevent or remove the causes of disease, have not been sufficiently active in regard to such matters. Lord Palmerston would, therefore, suggest that the best course which the people of this country (Presbyterian Scotland, eh?)—can pursue to deserve, that the further progress of the Cholera should "be stayed," will be to employ the interval that will lapse between the present time and the beginning of next spring, in planning and executing measures, by which those portions of their towns and cities which are inhabited by the poorest classes, and which, from the nature of things, must most need purification and improvement, may be freed from those causes and sources of contagion, which, if allowed to remain, will infallibly breed pestilence, and be fruitful in death, in spite of all the prayers and fastings of a united, but inactive (Scotland, eh!) nation. When man has done his utmost for his own safety, then is the time to invoke the blessing of Heaven to give effect to his exertions."

It must be manifest from the above brilliant brochure, to the veriest Tyro in either Presbyterian or Episcopalian Divinity, that Lord Palmerston is a more proficient expert in making foreign despatches, and bulletins of foreign news, than in the practical arcana of the Milanese Bishop Ambrose's "prima, media, et ultima;" or, in the lessons of devotional experience bequeathed to us in "Boston's Four-fold State." More than this, his veteran Lordship seems to have forgotten—if he ever learned it from a pious mother, or an Anglican Bishop—that there is such a counsel in the Holy Bible of Him who is "Te, Maker of the Universe," as—"praying always with all prayer and supplication, with thankfe giving, &c."—and perhaps, he may have attained to a higher wisdom than that inculcatedin the "Heavenly" oracles, and—forgetting that He who has given him his Bible, if he happens to possess such a counsellor, is a Sovereign who has established laws of grace, as well as laws of nature,—he may have lapsed into an insalvteriency as to the divine rules, that "them that honor God, he will honor,"—that prayer on the part of Queens, Home Secretaries, and National Communities, is an acknowledgment of His sovereignty, by which he is glorified, and with which he is well-pleased; and through which, for the sake of his dear Son, he has often seen it meet "to stay the plague," (Numb. XVI, 46, 48,) and to "scatter the people that delight in war," (Ps. LXVIII, 30.)

We are not surprised, that the members of the Reverend Judicatory were filled with "astonishment" and "grief," while this graceless production was being read. No wonder than the Rev. Dr. Clark said—"I totally dissent from the doctrines contained in that paper, * * *

It is the first time, and I hope it will be the last, that any Secretary of State has ever made any communication of this kind to any Presbytery."

No wonder that the meek and graceful Dr. Muir of St. Stephen's should have added—"There can be only one sentiment of unmingled pity and regret entertained by us, that such a Document should ever emanate from a professedly Christian Government." And no wonder, that it was unanimously Resolved,—by the gratuitously insulted Scottish Presbytery:—That their Record should remain unsullied by its profaneness,—while it should be kept "in retentis, ad futuram rei memoriam."

To obedient Servt.

Russia and Turkey.

The Russian Shores of the Black Sea, in the Autumn of 1852, with a Voyage down the Volga and a Tour through the Country of the Don Cossacks.

BY LAURENCE OLIPHANT.

(Blackwood.)

The excitement of the hour gives importance to a work like this. When every eye has been turned towards the east, anxious to catch the first flashes of a war, the theatre of which is so vast and the end of which is uncertain—when the ugly affrite "six squab on every quartern loaf"—an interest at once dramatic and social attaches itself to all utterances of the press, by which doubt is cleared away, ignorance dispelled and truth produced.

Mr. Oliphant—known to our readers as the author of "A Journey to Nepaul"—is a traveller of the sober, inquisitive and useful, rather than the sentimental and descriptive school. He indulges in no rhapsodies—we infer that he has few illusions. His tones are grey, and his landscapes those of the daguerreotype: nature reproduced with her outlines correct, and with the loss of much local color. He may be taken as a pretty safe guide through a part of Russia little travers-ed by his countrymen—the line of the Volga between Nijni Novgorod and Dubovka, and the Cossack stepped between that town and the Crimea; while his observations of Sevastopol, Odessa, and other vaunted places of the Black Sea strike us as equally trustworthy. Mr. Oliphant agrees with Custine, DeHell, and our own writers as to the extent and depth of Russian corruption. From the prince on the steps of the throne to the post-boy, almost every man will, he says, lie and take bribes. Our author says:

"Nothing bears looking into in Russia, from a metropolis to a police office; in either case a slight acquaintanceship is sufficient; and first impressions should never be dispelled by a too minute inspection. No statement should be questioned, however preposterous, where the credit of the country is involved; and no assertion refuted upon, even though it be a gratuitous piece of information—such as, that there is a diligence in the next town, or an inn, in the next street."

The habit of falsehood—which a fashionable mot describes as "the vice of civilization," but which is rather the vice of the slave and the savage—has its root in the social habits of the people. Mr. Oliphant, speaking of the lower classes says:

"Whatever may be the morals of the peasantry, in remote districts, those living in the towns and villages on the Volga are more degraded in their habits than any other people amongst whom I have travelled; and they can hardly be said to disregard, since they have never been acquainted with, the ordinary decencies of life. What better result can indeed be expected from a system by which the upper classes are wealthy in proportion to the number of serfs possessed by each proprietor? The rapid increase of the population is no less an object with the private serf owner, than the extensive consumption of ardent spirits is desired by the government. Thus each vice is privileged with especial patronage. Marriage, in the Russian sense of the term, are consummated at an early age, and arranged by the steward without consulting the parties—the lord's approval alone being necessary—and the price of a family ranges from £25 to £40. Our captain had taken his wife on a lease of five years, the rent for that term amounting to fifty rubles, with privilege of renewal at the expiration of it."

In a country where the prince, the scholar and the soldier are as much the slaves of a superior will as the poorest peasant—how is it possible for the manlier virtues—the habit of self-respect, of uniform truth-speaking, of personal honesty—to grow into even a local characteristic. Here is a little incident, occurring last year, at so important a place as Sevastopol, calculated to throw searching and sudden light into the organism of the Russian service:

"When we returned to Sevastopol not long afterwards, we heard that the Emperor had left the military portion of the community a reminiscence that was calculated to produce a deep impression. He had scarcely terminated his flying visit, and the smoke of the steamer by which he returned to Odessa still hung upon the horizon, when, in a smothered whisper, one soldier confided to another that their ranks had received an addition; and when he returned to Sevastopol, it was said that the late Governor in a significant white costume, was employed with the rest of the gang upon the streets he had a fortnight before rolled proudly through, with all the pomp and circumstance befitting his high position. No dilatory trial had reduced him to the condition in which he now appeared before the inhabitants of his late government. The fiat had gone forth, and the general commanding became the convict sweeping. I was very anxious to discover what crime had been deemed worthy of so severe a punishment, but upon no two occasions was the same reason assigned, so it was very clear that nobody knew; and probably no one found it more difficult than the sufferer himself to single out the particular misdemeanor for which he was disgraced. The general opinion seemed to be that the unfortunate man had been lulled into security in his remote province, and, fancying himself unnoticed in this distant corner of the empire, had neglected to practise that customary caution, in the appropriation of his bribes and other perquisites, which is the first qualification of a man in an elevated position in Russia."

Passing from the miserable governor of Sebastopol to the town itself, we notice an interesting bit of information, since it is quite "on the cards" that our blue jackets may be set to take possession of the Crimea. Mr. Oliphant says:

"Nothing can be more formidable than the appearance of Sebastopol from the seaward. Upon a future occasion we visited it in a steamer, and found that at one point we were commanded by twelve hundred pieces of artillery; fortunately for a hostile fleet, we did not then know that these were all embedded in earth, and, truly, and correckly denominate the Quee's Scotch. BURGESS.

Many of our readers may, probably, be ignorant of what the heading of this article means—we therefore tell them, in the sense we apply it, it is the name of a Canal now making to connect the two great Lakes, Huron and Superior, the boundaries of Canada and the States are near, and the canal could have been made either on the Canadian or American side, it so happens that it is nearly completed on the American side; and when five Bills, at different times, were introduced into the Provincial Parliament for constructing it on the Canadian side, and when these five Bills were violently opposed and thrown out by the influence of Mr. Hincks, the Head of the Canadian Responsible Government; we may justly enquire what could have induced him to adopt such a course. Several letters have appeared from time to time in the North American, stating that Mr. Hincks, as a British subject, is one of a Company of Contractors, to whom the United States Government have granted 750,000 acres of land as the consideration for their finding money to construct a ship canal on the American side of the Sault, and that influenced thereby, he, a Minister of the Canadian Government, opposed the construction of a canal on the Canadian side by a Canadian Company, and so let the key of Lake Superior pass into the hands of an adverse power. Such is the charge. Now, read the reply to a defence of Mr. Hincks in the Hamilton Canadian, by the writer of the Rough Notes:

"When I travelled from this to the "Sault," I dreamed not of Mr. Hincks, nor did I hear his name mentioned by any one, in any way in connection with anything else. It was only upon my arrival there, I and others heard openly and publicly, asserted, the alligations respecting Mr. Hincks contained in my "rough notes," No. 5. I heard it publicly stated, not by a man whom "nobody" knows, but one of high standing and great respectability, in his own country, the United States. The "rumor" was not the growth of Canadian soil—but was wafted to us from the American shores—from the Americans, who certainly could have no motive in calumniating Francis Hincks. It came from parties who, perhaps, knew more about the manner in which their Canal was pushed forward, than any Canadian possibly could do. Is there a Reformer who would not have done as I have done, when he heard it at a public table, boasted of that they had stopped the British canal, by buying the Premier of Canada—when he heard such a remark as this—"the Canadians had better pay to the Hon. Francis Hincks $200,000, and get him to job no more' they will make money by it."

We might safely stop here and leave the matter with our readers, but we wish, before so doing, to tell them there is such a thing as misprision of treason; mal-administration of such high officers, as are in public trust and employment, comes under that head of offences, "contempts against the prerogative may also be by preferring the interests of a foreign potentate to those of their own, or doing, or receiving anything that may create an undue influence in favor of such extrinsic power. See Blackstone, book 4, chapt. 9. We rejoice at the independence of the press, which has, with the exception of the paid supporters of the Hincks Cabinet, denounces in no measured terms such flagitious conduct. The day, we trust, is dawning when public men will be judged by their deeds and not by their words. We conclude this article by an extract from our watchful contemporary the British Canadian:

"From its commencement the grand policy of the Hincks ministry to overwhelm if possible the mass of the people with an idea of its own superlative value and importance. Unfortunately for the ministry, but fortunately for Canada, such a bolus, in the compounding and mixture of which the legal-chemical-clerical-scientific and politico philosophic Doctor Rolph has had a hand, cannot be swallowed by the people. True may be, it is true, and, in fact, there are instances of the capacious gullet of men in power being sufficiently elastic to enable them to gulp even a false oath, whilst at the same moment they have had their left hand on the pocket of their unmentionables, fearing that the plunder in question should rise up in judgment before them, ere they had time to retire to the solitude of their chamber and there to supplicate the Deity to forgive them their trespass!!

By a slap-dash, reckless policy, in which he has been supported by the weakness of mind, and the wants of two thirds of the House of Assembly, and three-fourths of the constituency of Canada, Mr. Hincks has placed himself in a position of great danger both to himself and the Province To himself, by the chance of his being suddenly hurled from power, ere he has time to mature his grand diabolical scheme of princely aggrandizement; and to the Province, because, in such an event, the affairs of Government, it is much to be feared, would be found in such a state of derangement and confusion, from the circumstance of everything, however unimportant, having been made to pass through the Inspector General's Office, that his successor or the Parliament might be reduced to the strange necessity of recalling him to the office, but not to fill it, were it only to explain his own accounts!!!

In the blind devotedness to things as they are, the people of Canada have unquestionably shut their eyes to such things which might be, were they only willing to give a helping hand in aid of their accomplishment. The true happiness and well-being of a nation is materially dependent upon those elements of the mind which embrace the general range of duties falling within the different arrangements which the people have in all ages adopted as the basis of society. If, therefore, the Canadians are resolved upon overlooking the scandalous deformity which the present government exhibits, and if they have an appetite for what is impure, and are so far in love with corruption, that no reasoning can abate their passion, then let them give their countenance and support to Mr. Hincks and his confederates: but in so doing, let them not hereafter, when they are fast in the mire, or caught in a trap, and grinning with lacerating and unendurable pain—let them not then fall back upon and calumniate that honest portion of the press which has done its duty to the utmost in endeavoring to guard them against an error fatal and foreseen; and let them not complain of "sour grapes" or candor"?! For the supply of that want it is useless to apply to Mr. John George Bowes, since his lamentable deficiency of that desirable article is sufficiently attested by a vote of the City Council, and consequently it would be fruitless to attempt a search for it in his partner-ship job shop!

Opening of the Great Western Railway

Thursday the 15th of December, 1853, will ever be remembered as a memorable day in London. At an early hour, Dundas street presented a very animated appearance, the greatest taste was displayed by the citizens in their novel design of placing across the street, both straight and angularly, different colored carpets, cloths, flannels and other materials, blending the colors and suspending sundry devices, and flags with "Welcome to the Directors of the Great Western Railway," "Clear the track for the Iron Horse," "Welcome to our guests," &c., besides two arches, tastefully decorated in Dundas street, with appropriate mottoes, and one at the Railway Station House. The joy bells rung a merry peal, and seldom have we seen so much satisfaction and joy as were exhibited on the countenances of all both old and young. At about three o'clock the train came along, on its arrival it was greeted by hundreds, who were waiting with anxiety to give our guests a round of cheers. The arrangements reflect great credit on the Mayor and authorities: having formed in the following order, the procession proceeded as by programme:

The Procession formed at the Railroad Passenger Depot, at 2 o'clock, P. M. And after the Cars arrived, proceeded up Richmond Street to Dundas Street, to the Court House Square, when an address was delivered to the Directors of the Road, by His Worship the Mayor, of which, the following is a copy:—

The Mayor, Town Council and inhabitants of the Town of London, beg, on this occasion, to tender to the President, Managing Director, and Directors of the Great Western Railway Company, their cordial congratulations on your arrival to this town by R.R. which will tend to improve our increasing prosperity and will be the means of extending that general intelligence and energy of which rapid and frequent intercommunication with almost every portion of this continent cannot fail to ensure.

We have on many occasions sympathised with you in the difficulties you met with at the commencement and during the progress of the undertaking and have viewed with pleasure the energy and perseverance which you have displayed in prosecuting the enterprise to a successful termination.

So far as our means would admit we cordially cooperated with you and now look back with pride to the day when we, as a Municipality became Stockholders in the Great Western Rail. way and lent to the works our fullest assistance. In tendering to you and others the hospitalities of our Town on this auspicious occasion we trust you will experience enjoyment in your visit and carry away with you a pleasing remembrance of this your first trip to London by Railway.

To which the following answer was given by the Mayor of Hamilton:

To His Worship the Mayor, the Council, and Inhabitants of London. It affords the Directors of the Great Western Railway Company the most sincere pleasure to meet the Corporation and Inhabitants of this most enterprising and deservedly flourishing Town on this auspicious occasion. The completion of a work so important as this portion of the Great Western Railway, in a country comparatively new, must be a matter of congratulation to the whole community but the opening of this road to your Town is doubly interesting to those who not only received your sympathy when struggling to commence operations on the line but who by the early aid of London and the other municipalities interested, were greatly assisted in establishing confidence in the undertaking which has led to its successful completion.

The Directors and the Friends of the Line who were cheer'd on at an early stage of their enterprise by the encouragement and Hospitalities of you Town cannot fail to experience gratification and enjoyment from the generous and liberal reception they have now met with and must retain pleasing recollections of this most important occasion, and in festivities in which they join with so much pleasure. I beg to thank you most warmly on the part of the other Directors and myself, for your kind attention, and I sincerely trust that all our most sanguine anticipations of the best benefit which this work is to confer on your rapidly rising Town and productive District may be fully realized.

After which all parties separated until dinner, which took place at the Exchange Buildings about 7 o'clock, 250 about sat down to dinner, the room was tastefully decorated.—His Worship, the Mayor, presided at the centre table, supported by Mr. Harris, Chairman of the Line, on his right, the Mayor of Hamilton, Judge, McQueen, &c., and on his left by C. J. Brydges, Esq., Managing Director, H.C.R. Becher, Esq., Solicitor to the Company, Mr. Zimmerman, &c., at the other three tables, Mr. Morrill, McCrowan Wilson, and Mr. Murray Anderson presided, Messrs. Barker, Daniell, Holmes and Schram as vice-Chairmen after the cloth was removed the health of Her Majesty was given by the Mayor and responded to with the most lively bursts of loyality, after which Captain Pulleston sung a very appropriate song, which was encored, the next toast was Prince Albert, which was loudly cheered; after which an appropriate song was sung, by R. Street, Esq., the next toast was the President of the United States. Mr. Clarke, on being called on, said he thanked them for the enthusiastic manner in which it had been received, and said, we have here to night citizens of the United States and Canada, all descendants of that good old mother country, which afforded all members of the human family the rights of churches and schools, the people of both countries possessed the same energies, pursued the same great objects, in fact, wherever the Anglo Saxon blood was found, the true principles of liberty existed, and his country, the United States, derived their idea of liberty, which they so fondly cherished from that dear old mother country. The next toast was the Administrator of the Province, General Rowan, who, as an officer and gentleman deserved well of Canada. This toast was responded to by Major Graham, who was inaudible where we sat.—Mr. Daniell next gave, the Executive Council which was responded to by the Solicitor General, who stated the pleasure he experienced at witnessing the great improvement which had taken place between Hamilton and London since last he visited it, and alluded to the short space of 3½ hours being only required to perform the journey from Hamilton, instead of 19 hours as before. Crowan Wilson next gave the President of the Great Western Railway; Mr. Harris who regretted it did not fall to abler hands to reply, he stated the satisfaction he experienced at the joyful countenances along the line from Hamilton to London, and mentioned meeting of a farmer at Ingersoll, who regretted having sold his wheat, as if he had kept it till the railway had opened, he would have made £30 or £40 more of it. Murray Anderson next gave, C. J. Bridges, Esq. [Sir Allan McNab's health was given and received with great eclat.]

C. J. Bridges, Esq., felt greatly obliged by the kind manner in which his health had been given and responded to, he alluded to the great pleasure he experienced in visiting this part of the country, the great improvements going on in London, and the splendid Agricultural county surrounding it he thanked them for the many acts of kindess he had received at their hands on all former occasions, and expressed himself approbation of the display made by the citizens on this occasion and also the very hospitable entertainment they had partaken of, he alluded to the fact of his not becoming a director until recently and after a great deal of labor and much trouble had been borne by the old Directors, he greatly regretted the absence of Mr. J. D. Clarke, the Chief Engineer, to whom the company were greatly indebted, for his ability, skill and perseverance; they also paid a high compliment to all the assistant Engineers, and their staff as likewise to the contractors who, working night and day, overcame every obstacle and enabled them that day to hold the promise of opening the Line, he also took that opportunity to contradict certain false reports, by stating that he never wrote any anonymous or private letters to any persons reflecting upon the Grand Trunk Railway, either here or in England, he had no objection to any line of Railway, but sincerely trusted that all lines constructing in the Province might arrive at the happy conclusion which the Great Western had that day, nor had he in any way interfered with any line, except when he considered that it interfered with the vested rights of his own. He felt he had trespassed too long on the time, but any trouble or uneasiness he had received on any former occasions, was fully counterbalanced by the splendid reception he had met with that day.

Mr. Morrill next gave the Directors of the G. W. Railway. Mr. Tiffany thanked them and said no municipality had made such a handsome display as London, and he felt sure the Toronto people liked the way, so anxious were they to pay respect to the opening of the Line; he alluded to its being 18 years since the line of Railway was first spoken of, and then it was called the London and Gore, but in 1847, being the Great Western, he alluded to the handsome amount of stock taken in it by London, and the county of Middlesex of £25,000, each making £50,000 which gave great confidence to the undertaking, both in Canada and at home.

Mr. Barker next proposed the Municipalities, being Stock holders of the G. W. Railway and expressed a hope that the same liberality would characterize them in taking stock in the Port Stanley Line, as in the Great Western. The Mayor of Hamilton, the Reeve of Oxford, and Mr. Holmes severally returned thanks.

Mr. Schram next gave the working machinery, the resident engineers. Mr Burrows was loudly called on from all parts of the room; he responded in a neat and appropriate speech, which was loudly cheered, and concluded by giving the health of the contractors, which Mr. Clarke responded to first, and then Mr. Zimmerman.

After which the Mayor's health was given and drank with all the honors. His Worship thanked them for the honor they conferred on him and said it afforded him some gratification if he succeeded in being of any service, in any way to the town; he regretted the absence of Mr. Niles, the Warden of the County, who was prevented by illness from attending.

The health of the working men and some other toasts were given and drunk, after which the party broke up at 11½ o'clock, highly gratified at the days proceedings.

We forgot to mention the very creditable turn out of the Fire Companies, and the hospitable reception given by the Phœnix Company to the Woodstock Brass Band on its arrival here. All the Fire Companies were gratified by a trip on the cars to Ingersoll and back again on Friday. The guests and members of the company took their departure at 11½ o'clock a procession having been formed from the Court House, previous to which his Worship the Mayor, complimented the Fire Companies on their orderly and decorous conduct throughout this gala time; on arriving at the Station House three hearty cheers were given previous to the departure of the train.—The City Marshalls also added considerably to the procession, as well from their caparisoned steeds as the order they maintained. We understand a train will arrive on Tuesday evening, after which the regular train will daily start from London, but not having the time table cannot give the time at present.

The English shareholders will be surprized to learn that the 15th and 16th of December were milder than the English weather, no frost, no snow, everything presenting the appearance of spring, rather than the commencement of winter. When will our English friends believe that we are not enveloped in perpetual snow, there is as much difference between the winter in London and Montreal as there is between England and Siberia.

Russia.

The same uncertainty appears to characterize all the reports from the East as previously, whether the Austrian government, having the command of the telegraphic communications may wish to give everything a Russian coloring, or the Times (the unprincipled organ of the Aberdeen Cabinet) persist in running down Turkey, in order to elevate the importance of Russia; this fact at least has been established, that success has followed the Turkish arms hitherto, both in Europe and Asia.

The last reports also state that fresh negotiations have been set on foot, and it is very likely, before the time arrives for the spring campaign, peace may have been established. We strongly recommend the perusal of a very able article in Blackwood's, of November, which concludes: "If Russia now gives way, she would manifestly have done so four months ago, had England then shown herself determined to oppose her aggressions, but the political predilections and illegitimate manœuvres of the Premier, and the feebleness and incapacity of the present Foreign Secretary, have prolonged the crisis and encouraged Russia, and if war occurs at their door it will lie—the sole compensation being that they have at last shown themselves in their true colors, and utterly disgusted the country in whose government they have been ill-advisedly permitted to share."

The latest by the Europa, and which has been confirmed by the Humboldt, is that the Russians have collected 40,000 or 45,000 men around the Turkish position at Oltenitza. The Ottoman force had retired to the right bank of the Danube In retiring, Omer Pacha has certainly fully established his reputation as a skilful commander, as it would have been an act of the utmost recklessness for 18,000 or 20,000 men to oppose 40,000 or 45,000 when they have a safe retreat, into which it is impossible for the Russian fore to follow them, as the Ottoman troops have the entire command of the river. It is currently repeated that the Russian troops are being reinforced by 50,000 or 60,000 men, and the Turkish by a still larger force; but it is believed that the contest will not be decided as much by large numbers, as by skill and courage, in which the Turks have certainly showed themselves superior to the Russians. The Turkish commander has taken up his position in an angle between the Danube and the sea, which is certainly impregnable to the Russians, even if the Emperor were to pour the whole military force of his Empire into Moldavia and Wallachia. The Sultan has decided in making Adrianople his head quarters in the Spring, and has commenced the necessary preparations for the Imperial cortege.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Breadstuffs—Transactions are to a fair extent but a reduction of 1d. on wheat and 6d. a 1s. on flour, and 1s. on corn has occurred. Richardson and Son quote Western Canal Flour 30s. a 30s. 6d. Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Ohio, 30s. 6d. a 31s. Eastern white wheat 10s. a 10s. 5d. Red and mixed 9s. 4d. a 9s. 10d. White Indian Corn 46s. a 46s. 3d. Yellow 45s. a 46s. Pork market unchanged. Cotton steady, sales 5 days, 20,000 bales, of which 5000 were taken by speculators. London money market unchanged. Consols 95 a 95¼ for money and account.

ENGLAND.

Parliament is further prorogued till Jan. 3rd Little British news except the reported treaty between Britain and France to guarantee the integrity of the Turkish Empire, leaving it to the option of Austria and Prussia to join in.

The Golden Age came into contact with the wharf wall at Liverpool, slightly damaging her bowsprit. She will be delayed two days. The English Admiral was on his way to take command of the British fleet in the Bosphorus. Nothing occurred along the Danube. There were strong rumours of an armistic. The allied fleets were at Dryeos. The French fleet had entered the Black Sea to keep open the port of Circassia. The accounts of the repulse of the Russians from before the fortresses of St. Nichols, five times are confirmed. Two Russian ships of war were lost in the Black Sea.

It is reported contrary to former advices that Dost Mahommed is hostile to the Russians, as are all the Mahommedans of Russia. The retreat of Omer Pacha appears not to have been anticipated by the Russians. The letter signed Gortschakoff's combinations. The letter appears to be in complete ignorance as to the Turkish movements who are expected by the Russians to make their appearance at any moment and at any point on the left side of the Danube. The Russians appear not to have adopted any definite plan of operation. They remain encamped at Oltenitza, Bondechty and Negoyeschti.

Prince Paskiewitsh was some time since requested to have taken the command in chief of the Danubian Provinces, but little fighting has occurred since last accounts. The Russians attacked Fort Pintesha but were beaten off. Pantcha is the last Turkish fortress on the Danube. In Paris it is the general impression that a battle would be fought on or after the 23rd, in the locality between Krajova and Kalafat, but with such little value to this.

From Vienna, 26th, rumour some of a Turkish detachment having been attacked by the Russians at Tshitze on Serbo Bosniare frontier and repulsed with loss of both sides of 500 men, but another despatch says the difficulties between the Porte and Servia are settled. The Turks are to garrison the Towns on the frontier and the Servia contingent of 12,000 will join the army on the Danube.

The Captain of a merchant vessel, arriving at Constantinople on the 10th Nov., reported having met a Russian fleet four days before near the Bosphorus, sailing eastward. Soon after he fell in with the Turkish fleet sailing the same way, and he was of opinion they would not continue their course long without collision.

From Odessa, Nov. 13, it is stated that a portion of a Russian fleet, consisting of thirteen ships of the line, and five frigates, and several steamers, had sailed from Cronstadt.

The number of ships lost in the Black Sea had on board 10,000 men, of whom 1,400 perished. The rest were picked up by the Turks, and sent prisoners to Constantinople.

Some Polish officers of distinction have taken part with the Turks, and others are about to do the same.

France and probablo England also, consider the Porte justified in using all means at its disposal, and for this reason the Poles are welcomed to the Ottoman ranks.

The Turkish Admirality have provided a special depot for the refitting of the English and French steamers.

A Cabinet Council met at London on Saturday, Nov. 26, and was in session 4 hours.

(BETWEEN)

LAWRENCE LAWRASON, Plaintiff,

—AND—

RACHEL ANN WILSON, an Infant, by CHARLES JONES, her Guardian Defendant.

PURSUANT to the decree made in this cause, dated the twenty-first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two, and to the order for sale also made in this cause, dated the twenty-sixth day of August, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three—With the approbation of James Shanley, Esq., one of the Masters of this Court. There will be sold by PUBLIC AUCTION, at the Chambers of the said Master, in the Exchange Buildings, Ridout Street, town of London, before the said Master, by Edward Emery, Auctioneer, on Thursday the twenty-sixth day of January next, at the hour of twelve o'clock, noon, that portion of the north-westerly quarter of Lot number ten on the south side of Dundas Street, in the town of London adjoining, to the Eastward, the premises now occupied by Mr. George G. Magee, having a frontage, on Dundas Street, of twenty-four feet, and running to the rere of the said North-westerly quarter, parallel to Richmond Street, ninety-seven feet and three inches together with a common right of way, ten feet wide, leading from the rere of the premises, so to be sold, along the Southern limit of that part occupied by Mr. Magee, to Richmond Street.

The biddings to be made at so much per foot, on the frontage. One-tenth of the purchase money to be paid by way of deposit, to the Solicitor, for the vendor (the plaintiff) at time of sale, the residue at the time of the execution of the conveyance. The plaintiff to be at liberty to make one bidding at the sale by putting under a sealed cover, previous to the commencement of the sale, and delivering to the Auctioneer, a note in writing, mentioning the sum which he shall so bid, and in case no person or persons shall bid a higher sum than the sum mentioned in such note, the Auctioneer is to declare the plaintiff the best purchaser of the said Lot so to be sold. No person shall advance less than £1 at any bidding under £20, nor less than 10s. at any bidding over £20, and no person shall retract his bidding.

Printed conditions of sale, and a plan of the premises are to be seen at any time before the day of sale, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., at the chambers of the said Master.

J. SHANLY.

Dated 1st December, 1853.

The printed conditions can also be obtained at the offices of Messrs. Becher & Hutchinson, Solicitors for the plaintiff, Ridout Street, and of Mr. Elliot for the the Defendant, Dundas Street.

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE. STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, everything which can may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Continent, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favorable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. A second hand Pianos, from £25 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophicleides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Piccolos, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mell

PROPOSED BY-LAW.

To authorize the issuing of Debentures to raise by way of loan the sum of Two Hundred Pounds.

WHEREAS, it was resolved by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, at its sitting on the 6th June, 1853, on application from the School Trustees of the second school section of that township, to raise the sum of Two Hundred Pounds for the purpose of defraying the expense of erecting a School House in the said section; and whereas it is expedient to raise that sum by way of loan, by issuing debentures for the same, payable in ten years from the passing hereof with interest, payable half-yearly; and for the payment of the said debentures and interest thereon, it will be necessary to raise annually, by a special rate upon the taxable property within the said school section, the sum of £30 8 for each of the ten years from 1854 to 1863 inclusive; and, whereas the whole of the taxable, real, and personal property of the said school section, according to the assessment roll of the Township for the year 1853, amounted to the sum of £14,948, 10s. 0d., and, whereas the annual rate of one half-penny in the pound upon the whole of the said taxable property is required as a special rate to be levid during the next ten years for payment of the said loan and interest, 12 Victoria, Cap. 81, Sec. 177. Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, in council assembled, by virtue and authority of the Upper Canada Municipal Corporation Act, and it is hereby enacted, by authority of the same, that it shall be lawful, from and after the passing of this By-Law, for the Reeve of the Township of Delaware, and he is hereby authorised and required, to raise, by way of loan, the sum of Two Hundred Pounds, from any person or persons, or body corporate, on the credit of the Municipality, and to issue Debentures for the same, payable as follows, viz:—The sum of £30, payable on the 8th January, 1856; £35, one the 8th January, 1858; £40 on the 8th January, 1860; £45 on the 8th January, 1862; and £50 on the 8th January, 1864. And be it further enacted that the said Debentures shall have Coupons attached for the payment of the interest thereon, payable half-yearly, on the 8th day of July, and the 8th day of January, in each year; and such Debentures and Coupons shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, and shall be made payable at such place as the Reeve may think proper. And be it further enacted, that that the special rate of one half-penny in the pound shall be raised, levied and collected, over and above, and in addition to, all other rates, for each of the ten years from 1854 to 1863 inclusive, upon all the taxable property of the second school section of the said Township, for the purpose of paying the said sum of Two Hundred Pounds, and the interest thereon; and the proceeds of such special rate shall be applied solely to the payment of said debentures and interest thereon; until such debentures and the interest thereof shall be fully paid and discharged. And be it further enacted that this By-Law shall be in force and take effect from and after the seventh day of January, One thousand eight hundred and fifty four.

Notice.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-Law to be taken into consideration by the Township Council of the Township of Delaware, in the County of Middlesex, at Montgomery's Tavern in said Township, on Saturday the 7th day of January next, at the hour of 12 noon, at which time and place the members of the said Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

MESSRS. SMALL & PAIGE, Importers and dealers in Music and Musical Instruments, etc., beg to announce that they have opened their new ware-room (situated as above,) and will constantly have on hand, both Wholesale and Retail, every article of Musical Merchandize of various qualities and prices. They would particularly solicit an inspection of their new style of

Grand Square Piano-Fortes,

from the manufactories of Collard & Collard, London; and Linnard & Weber, Philadelphia.

Messrs S. & P. have also on hand, a large stock of New York and Boston Piano-Fortes, of excellent quality, which they can warrant in all respects, and especially in regard to their keeping in tune. They will also retain the same softness and sweetness of tone for a number of years, without ever acquiring that metallic, hard and tinny tone which many instruments, of otherwise good reputation, are apt to have.

Their piano Fortes are carefully selected by one of the Firm, "Mr. R. G. Paige, Professor of Music, Organist of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto," whose professional experience enables him to judge of the qualities of an instrument. They can, therefore, fully guarantee every instrument purchased of them

Brass and Wooden Instruments, for Military, Amateur and Quadrille Bands.

Likewise, every description of Stringed and Wooden Instruments necessary for a complete Orchestra.

Piano Forte, Melodeons, &c.

WE would respectfully invite attention to our stock of Piano Fortes from the celebrated Manufactories of Messrs Boardman & Gray, Hallet, Davis & Co., Bacon and Raven, and others. These instruments possess a classic order of tone which but few makers attain, and the makers or our warrant, is a sufficient guarantee of their durability.

The immense celebrity which the Dolc Campana Attachment has attained, surpasses anything heretofore known in the "Musical World," it is considered as much a requisite to a perfect Piano Forte as the soft Pedal has heretofore been. Unlike other attachments, this does not injure the tone or durability of the instrument and the additional expense is but trifling, costing but forty dollars for a six, and fifty dollars for a seven octave.

The question is frequently asked, can this Attachment be applied to any Piano? It can be applied to any of Boardman & Gray's finished since its invention, but to no other. This, of itself, is sufficient reason why all should see Boardman & Gray's Pianos before purchasing. ☞ Old Pianos taken in exchange.

IMPROVED MELODIONS.

The great demand for these Instruments has induced us to obtain the sole wholesale and retail Agency of one of the best Manufactories in the United States, Messrs. Bishop & Child, of Cincinnati, the senior partner being one of the most experienced workmen in the country, having commenced with the inventor soon after the invention. We shall keep a full supply on hand both for retailing and wholesaling, and advise all to see Bishop & Child's Improved Melodeon, before purchasing.

Brantford—Hotel, 28th. London—Bennett's Hotel, 29th and 30th.

DR. B. will pay pay particular attention to Cancers, Ulcers, Scrofula Sores, Sore Eyes, and all Cutaneous Diseases. He practices upon reform principles, using nothing but Vegetable Medicines, which sustain the vitality of the system, instead of reducing the patient to the brink of the grave, which is too often the case when mineral poisons are given. Calomel, Arsenic Antimony the knife and Lancet, should never be used, except in cases of the well-established fact that they cause more sickness and death than the Diseases they are supposed to Cure.

Dr. B. would call the attention of the afflicted to the cases which are silently destroying the constitution, the symptoms of which are—a pain and dizziness in the head, pain in the side and shoulders, numbness of the limbs, pain in the bowels, irregular appetite, costiveness buzzing and singing in the ears. Female irregularities, and all diseases of a delicate nature, may be trusted to him, without a betrayal of that confidence which should always exist between the patient and physician.

Persons wishing to consult with Dr. Bell can do so free of charge, and the sure of finding him Every Month, in the time and place above mentioned. Charges for Medicine moderate.

Dr. Bell fully understands the German method of deserving and locating Diseases in an inspection of the Urine.

DR SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs Gout, Tic Doloreux, Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Stiffness, of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific that Galvanism or Magnetism, in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of containing magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

BAKING ESTABLISHMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 15, 1853.

BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence there have been false reports, taking the advantage of Mr. Gornatt, my uncle, compelling him, through false swearing, to pay my debts, as partner, which he never was. There were parties who certainly wrote to Sidelowdy, through evil designs and animosity, which they held against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my baking business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of any former dealers of mine and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and despatch on the shortest notice.

London, C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. RENFORD & CO.

GENTLEMEN,—I have received the sample bottle of your Compound Camomile Cordial, and consider it a beautiful and well made article, and a great improvement upon the usual mode of administering camomile, which is very disagreeable; your Compound appears to be largely infused, and well preserved, and as this vegetable tonic is highly recommended in cases of debility, and in the first stages of consumption, where debility or wasted tone of the digestive organs, the form most frequently met with on the continent, your cordial will, I think find, ere long, an unchangeable admission to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his character, I can speak in the highest terms as a Physician and Chemist, and I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending his Professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial,

I am, Gentlemen Yours &c.

HEALTH, WEALTH, AND BEAUTY.

DR. BELL

German Eclectic Physician.

WILL, after September 30th, be prepared to attend to every month at the following places:—Hamilton, at Gregory's Hotel, 15th and 16th. Dundas—Kennedy's Hotel, 17th and 18th. Toronto—Parks' Hotel, 19 and 20th. Colborne—Dolsen's Hotel, 21st and 22nd—until noon. Paris—Bousford's Hotel, 23rd, 24th, and 25th—until noon. Woodstock—Hack's Hotel, 26th, 27th, and 28th—until noon. Brantford—Hotel, 28th. London—Bennett's Hotel, 29th and 30th.

DR. B. will pay pay particular attention to Cancers, Ulcers, Scrofula Sores, Sore Eyes, and all Cutaneous Diseases. He practices upon reform principles, using nothing but Vegetable Medicines, which sustain the vitality of the system, instead of reducing the patient to the brink of the grave, which is too often the case when mineral poisons are given. Calomel, Arsenic Antimony the knife and Lancet, should never be used, except in cases of the well-established fact that they cause more sickness and death than the Diseases they are supposed to Cure.

Dr. B. would call the attention of the afflicted to the cases which are silently destroying the constitution, the symptoms of which are—a pain and dizziness in the head, pain in the side and shoulders, numbness of the limbs, pain in the bowels, irregular appetite, costiveness buzzing and singing in the ears. Female irregularities, and all diseases of a delicate nature, may be trusted to him, without a betrayal of that confidence which should always exist between the patient and physician.

Persons wishing to consult with Dr. Bell can do so free of charge, and the sure of finding him Every Month, in the time and place above mentioned. Charges for Medicine moderate.

Dr. Bell fully understands the German method of deserving and locating Diseases in an inspection of the Urine.

N. B.—AGUE warranted to be CURED.

DR SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs Gout, Tic Doloreux, Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Stiffness, of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific that Galvanism or Magnetism, in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of containing magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,

Cures all Pains, Cramps, Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague in the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head Ache, &c.

SWEET'S CHINESE BALSAM.

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Cholic, Pains, &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done me more good than any medicine I ever used in a case of Scarlet Fever, and as soon as the child was taken with a sore throat and it effected a cure immediately—I have also used it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it my duty to recommend it.

Respectfully yours, JOHN DOTY.

Rochester, March 23rd, 1852.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.

Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application.—Cures all Ulcerated Sores, Felons, Chilblains, Tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases Mankind is heir to.

Try it; you will not regret it,

TO W. C. SWEET.

DEAR SIR,—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Fever and Ague Sore, close to the rectum—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure, only by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price. I was induced to supply one, when your friend Doty placed and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

JOHN PERRY.

Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.

SILAS WOOD—Keeper of the Wilson Hotel.

LUTHER WILSON—Merchant.

Thousands of Testimonies of the above character as furnished.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for Poll-Evil, Fistulas, Scratches, Sand-Cracks, Old Sores with Pores Formed, Saddle-Boils, Fresh Wounds, Wind Galls of every description, Rheumatism, Colks and Cuts, Collar-galls, Sweeny, Cracked heels, Spavins and Bruises, Lameness or Weakness of the Joints, contraction of the Muscles, External Poisons, Burns and Scalds, Horn Distemper in Cattle, Hoof-Ail, Black-Hoof, &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL REASONABLE CASES.

Facts are stubborn things. The [illegible]ine is not surpassed by any as yet known for the [illegible]ve diseases. It has cured, more of Poll-Evil, Fistula, Sweeny Shoulders, than any other Medicine prepared for those diseases of horses and Cattle—no Gargling Oil excepted. As names and numerous flowery certificates from in part of the ingredients of this medicine, we publish but a few from the many thousands we have in possession; but suffice to say ying in knowing.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned, have for years used and seen used Sweet's Black Oil for horses and can safely recommend it to the public as a superior preparation for scratches, galls, cuts, bruises, Mud-fever, and sores of every kind. It is thought much of by those who have used it. We have used many preparations for horses, [illegible] we give the preference unhesitatingly to Sweet's Black Oils. We would advise every horse owner to keep a bottle of the above Oils on hand, for its timely use will save time and money.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have obtained in every quarter of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their excellent virtues or properties having been more than twenty years before the public, and having attained the confidence of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public admits of no dispute. In a manufacturing city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system new life and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing. They either remove entirely every vestige of those loathsome diseases, by their purifying effects, or the Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short all diseases, soon yield to their curative powers. They should be taken without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Remittances can be made by Bank Notes, Bankers Drafts Gold Dust, or any Saleable Goods.

The Shares being payable to bearer, no attest or attachment whatever is allowed from the prizes. For the accommodation of holders, the prizes will be paid in cash at their option at London, Frankfort, Paris or at any other commercial place in the world, immediately after the drawing is concluded. The proceedings of the drawing will be performed in the PRESENCE OF THE PUBLIC, under the superintendence of the GOVERNMENT AUTHORITIES, who as soon as the legal formalities are over, will publish the lists.

The result will likewise, immediately after the drawing, be advert

A nugget of 17 ounces weight has also been obtained at this place.

Some important discoveries had been made at Balzara; three parties had gone down 150 feet and come upon gold in great abundance; they took out in one day 112 lbs. in weight. This shows the advantage of deep sinking.

At Burrangdon, situated at the confluence of Marquarrie and Cudegang, the yield is from 1 to 11 oz. to the tin-dish, and no blacks, the gold of a quality corresponding with that of Paul Phillip. People are flocking there rapidly from the Pountag, although the Big Oakey has attracted its share, having late turned out some rich prizes. In the Goulburn districts the miners are doing well, and the success of some Californians at Rocky River, by inducing equal energy in others will no doubt bring about great results during the summer season.

An Act

To provide for the safety of Her Majesty's subjects and others in the Highways in the Upper Canada, and to regulate the Travelling thereon.

WHEREAS, it has been found that the Laws now in force in Upper Canada for the regulation of travelling on the Highways therein, are inadequate to the protection of Her Majesty's subjects and others, and to the prevention of the numerous and fatal accidents which have so repeatedly occurred, and it is therefore expedient to amend the same: Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and intituled, An Act to re-unite the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, and for the Government of Canada, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, that so much of any act or law now in force in Upper Canada, as may be inconsistent with the enactments hereinafter made, shall be repealed by the passing of this Act.

II. And whereas it is expedient to make better provision for the regulation of travelling on the said Highways, be it therefore enacted, that all persons travelling on the Highways of Upper Canada, whether in charge of stage coaches, wagons, carriages, sleighs, carioles, or any other vehicle to which oxen, horses, or any other animal or animals shall be attached, or on horseback, shall, when meeting each other on the said highways, turn out to the right hand from the centre of the said Road, and give to each other one-half said Road.

And be it enacted, That if, from the extreme weight of any load, the driver thereof shall find it impracticable so to turn to the right hand as aforesaid, by reason of the centre ruts or waymark on the said Road, he shall, on meeting any coach, waggon, carriage, sleigh, cariole or other vehicle as aforesaid, immediately stop, and if required to do so, shall assist the person or persons so meeting to pass without damage.

IV. And be it enacted, That every person travelling with any vehicle, or on horseback as aforesaid, when overtaken by any vehicle or horseman travelling at greater speed, shall quietly turn out to the right, giving one-half the road to the person so overtaking him, or if unable to turn out as aforesaid, the person so overtaken shall stop and allow the other to pass, giving assistance if required or necessary to effect such passing.

V. And be it enacted, That every person in charge of any stage coach, waggon, carriage, sleigh, cariole or other vehicle, horse or animal, who shall be unable to ride or drive the same with care, through drunkenness, shall, upon due proof thereof, be liable to the penalties imposed by this Act.

VI. And be it enacted, That any person riding or driving on the Highways aforesaid, shall, on meeting or overtaking any person or persons on foot, carefully pass the same by giving them a portion of the track or carriage-way.

VII. And be it enacted, That all racing or furious driving upon any Highway in Upper Canada shall be unlawful, and the person or persons so racing or furiously driving, or shouting and using blasphemous or indecent language, shall, on due proof thereof, be liable to the penalties imposed by this Act.

VIII. And be it enacted, That any person or persons riding or driving any carriage, horse or other animal, over any Bridge above the length of thirty feet, at any pace faster than a walk, shall be liable to the penalties imposed by this Act: and no beast of this effect shall be placed upon such Bridges by the municipality in which the same shall be situate.

IX. And be it enacted, That no person shall leave any horse, team or animal, upon any Highway, whether travelling or standing, unless it be properly secured, or some person shall be travelling with or in charge of the same.

X. And be it enacted, That every person driving in a sleigh, either, cariole, or other vehicle on runners in the winter season, shall have no less than three Bells attached to each horse harnessed thereto; and if there be but one horse, not less than six Bells shall be attached thereto.

XI. And be it enacted, That for any violation of any of the preceding Sections of this Act, duly proved upon the oath of one credible witness before any Justice of the Peace, the offender shall incur a fine of not less than Twenty Shillings nor more than Five Pounds in the discretion of the said Justice, with cost to be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattels—and on failure to levy the same by such distress and sale, the offender shall be imprisoned in the Common Gaol of the County in which the offence was committed, or in the County where the offender may be tried and convicted for a period of not less than three days nor more than one month, at the discretion of the said Justice: Provided always, that the said fine and imprisonment shall be no bar to the recovery of damages by the injured party before any Court of competent jurisdiction.

XII. And be it enacted, That all fines collected under the provisions of this Act shall be paid to the Treasurer or Chamberlain of the Township Town or City, where the offence was committed, to be expended on the Public Roads or Streets within such Township, Town or City.

XIII. And be it enacted, That the Clerk of each and every Municipality shall cause a sufficient number of copies of this Act to be printed from time to time after the passing thereof, and send to every inn-keeper within his Municipality two copies of the same; and the said inn-keeper shall exhibit one of such copies publicly in his Bar-room for the space of six months next after the receipt thereof.

XIV. And be it enacted, That all convictions under this Act shall be subject to appeal in the same manner as other summary convictions before Justices of the Peace.

XV. And be it enacted, That this Act shall apply only to Upper Canada.

Municipal Elections.

The approaching Municipal Elections require our consideration. The time will soon arrive when we must determine who shall rule for the ensuing year. It behoves the people to think about who among them are the best qualified to elevate to posts of honor and responsibility. The people have important interests at stake, they must exercise judgment in the choice of men who are to guard their interests. We want to see [illegible] promoted, but we do not want an [illegible]ditary. We must have men [illegible] our present circumstances [illegible]ds with their dwelling [illegible]ments have al[illegible]n of town [illegible]f safe

What Christmas is, as We Grow Older.

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

Time was, with most of us, when Christmas-day encircling all our limited world like a magic ring, left nothing out for us to miss or seek; bound together all our home enjoyments, affections, and hopes; grouped every thing and every one around the Christmas fire; and made the little picture shining in our bright young eyes, complete.

Time came, perhaps, all so soon! when our thoughts overleaped that narrow boundary; when there was some one (very dear, we thought then, very beautiful, and absolutely perfect) wanting to the fulness of our happiness; when we were wanting (oh we thought so, which did just as well) at the Christmas hearth by which that some one sat; and when we intertwined with every wreath and garland of our life that some one's name.

That was the time for the bright visionary Christmasses which have long arisen from us to show faintly, after summer rain, in the palest edges of the rainbow! That was the time for the beautiful enjoyment of the things that were to be, and never were, and yet the things that were so real in our resolute hope that it would be hard to say, now, what realities achieved since, have been stronger!

What! Did that Christmas never really come when we and the peerless pearl who was our young choice were required, after the happiest of totally impossible marriages, by the two united families previously at daggers-drawn on our account? When brother-and-sister-in-law who had always been rather cool to us before our relationship was thoroughly effected, perfectly doted on us, and when fathers and mothers overwhelmed us with unlimited incomes? Was that Christmas dinner never really eaten, after which we arose, and generally as eloquently rendered honor to our late rival, present in the company, then and there exchanging friendship and forgiveness, and sounding an attachment, not to be surpassed in Greek or Roman story, which subsisted until death? Has that same rival long ceased to care for the same priceless pearl, and married for money, and become unurious? Above all, do we really know, now, that we should probably have been miserable if we had won and worn the pearl and that we are better without her?

That Christmas when we had recently achieved so much fame; when we had been carried in triumph somewhere, for doing something great and good; when he had put a bold constraint on a modest name, and arrived and were received at home in a shower of tears of joy; is it possible that that Christmas has not come yet?

And is our life here, at the best, as constituted that, pausing as we advance at such a not-seeable mile-stone in the track as this great birth-day, we look back on the things that never were, as naturally and fully as gravely as on the things that have been and are gone? Have been and still are? If it be so, and so it seems to be, must we come to the conclusion, that life is little better than a dream, and little worth the love and striving that we crowd into it?

No! In: such miscalled philosophy foon us, dear Reader, on Christmas-day! Nearer and closer to our hearts be the Christmas spirit, which is the spirit of active usefulness, perseverance, cheerful discharge of duty, kindness and forbearance! It is in the last virtues especially, that we are, or should be, strengthened by the accomplished vision of their youth; for who shall say that they are not its references to deal gently even with the implacable nothings of the earth!

Therefore, as we are now about to take more thankful that the circle of our Christmas associations and of the lessons that they bring, expands! Let us welcome every one of them, and summon them to take their places by the Christmas hearth.

Welcome, old alsparations, glittering creatures of an ardent fancy, to your shelter underneath the holly! We know you, and have known you yet. Welcome, all projects and old loves, however fleeting, to your nooks among the steadier lights that burn around us. Welcome, all that was ever real to our hearts; and for the earnestness that made you real, thanks to Heaven! Do we build no Christmas castles in the clouds now? Let our thoughts, flattering like benefits among the stars of this season, bear witness! Before this bay, there stretches out a Future, brighter than we ever looked on in our old romantic time, but bright with honor and with truth. Around this little head on which the sunny curls lie heaped, the graces sport, as poetry, as surely, as when there was no mythic within the couch of Time to skew away the curls of our Youth, never, never, and this is the shadow which Rome claimed for her Pontiff that sits on her throne, then that any Clergy of this Church so established should have ministered to the interests of Rome, should have adopted more or less her principles, her doctrines, her practices, argues some great sophistness, some dereliction of duty upon the part of some one within that Church. (Loud cheers.) Either her Bishops, the overseers of the clergy, have been remiss; or else another party—(and I charge you now)—the Laity have been remiss; or else both Bishops and Laity have been remiss; and the Church of England owes a great debt to the British community, which can only be discharged by a newly awakened vigilance, by an unflinching, but at the same time kindly, look in upon the face, even to my's face? By Christmas day we do forgive him! If the injury be such one as may admit of such companionship, let him come here and take his place. If otherwise, unhappily, let him go hence, assured that we will never injure nor accuse him.

On this day, we shut out nothing!

"Pause, says a low voice, "Nothing? Think!"

"On Christmas-day we will shut out from our fireside, nothing."

Not the shadow of a vast city where the withered leaves are lying deep?" the voice replies. "Not the shadow that darkens the whole globe? Not the shadow of the City of the Dead?"

Not even that. Of all days in the year, we will turn our faces towards that city upon Christmas day, and from its silent hearts bring those we loved, amongus. City of the Dead, in the blessed name wherein we are gathered together at this time, and in the Presence that is among us according to the promise, we will receive and not dismiss, thy people who are dear to us!

Yes. We can look upon these children-angels that alight, so solemnly, so beautifully, among the living children by the fire, and can bear to think how they departed from us. Entertaining angels unawares, as the Patriarchs did, the playful children are unconscious of their guests; but the Angels of God are not strangers to us, and from one favorite nook, as if there were a tempting of that child away.

Among the celestial figures there is one, a poor mis-shapen boy on earth, of a glorious beauty now, of whom his dying mother said it grieved her much to leave him here, alone, for so many years as it was likely would elapse before he came to her—being such a little child. But he went quickly, and was laid upon her breast, and in her hands she leads him.

There was a gallant boy, who fell, far away, upon a burning sand beneath a burning sun, and said, "Tell them at home, with my last love, how much I could have wished to kiss them once, but that I died contented and had done my duty!" Or there was another, over whom they read the words, "Therefore we commit his body to the deep!" and so consigned him to the lonely ocean, and sailed on. Or there was another who lay down to his rest in the dark shadow of great forests, and, on earth, awoke no more. O shall they not from sun and sea, and forest, be brought home at such a time!

There was a dear girl—almost a woman—never to be one—who made a mourning Christmas in a house of joy, and went her trackless way to the silent City. Do we recollect her, worn out, faintly whispering what could not be heard, and [illegible] into that last sleep for weariness? Oh! [illegible]ch her now! O look upon her beauty her changeless youth, her happiness!—Jairus' wat recalled to life, to [illegible], has heard the same voice [illegible]ever?"

Welcome everything! Welcome, alike what has been, and what never was, and what we hope may be, to your shelter underneath the holly, to your places round the Christmas fire, where what is suffering kindly in our mind, to your children

LAWRENCE LAWRASON, Plaintiff,

—AND—

RACHEL ANN WILSON, an Infant, by CHARLES JONES, her Guardian Defendant.

PURSUANT to the decree made in this cause, dated the twenty-first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two, and to the order for sale also made in this cause, dated the twenty-sixth day of August, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three.—With the approbation of James Shanley, Esq., one of the Masters of this Court. There will be sold by PUBLIC AUCTION, at the Chambers of the said Master, in the Exchange Buildings, Ridout Street, town of London, before the said Master, by Edward Emery, Auctioneer, on Thursday the twenty-sixth day of January next, at the hour of twelve o'clock, noon, that portion of the north-westerly quarter of Lot number ten on the south side of Dundas Street, in the town of London adjoining, to the Eastward, the premises now occupied by Mr. George G. Magee, having a frontage, on Dundas Street, of twenty-four feet, and running to the rere of the said North-westerly quarter, parallel to Richmond Street, ninety-seven feet and three inches together with a common right of way, ten feet wide, leading from the rere of the premises, so to be sold, along the Southern limit of that part occupied by Mr. Magee, to Richmond Street.

The biddings to be made at so much per foot, on the frontage. One-tenth of the purchase money to be paid by way of deposit, to the Solicitor, for the vendor (the plaintiff) at time of sale, the residue at the time of the execution of the conveyance. The plaintiff to be at liberty to make one bidding at the sale by putting under a sealed cover previous to the commencement of the sale, and delivering to the Auctioneer, a note in writing, mentioning the sum which he shall so bid, which case no person or persons shall bid a higher sum than the sum mentioned in such note, the Auctioneer is to declare the plaintiff the actual purchaser of the said Lot to be sold. No person shall advance less than £1 at any bidding under £20, nor less than 10s. at any bidding over £20, and no person shall retract his bidding.

Printed conditions of sale, and a plan of the premises are to be seen at any time before the day of sale, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., at the chambers of the said Master.

J. SHANLY.

Dated 1st December, 1853.

The printed conditions can also be obtained at the offices of Messrs. Becher & Hamilton, Solicitors for the plaintiff, Ridout Street, and of Mr. Elliot for the the Defendant, Dundas Street.

INFORMATION WANTED.

OF JOHN E. GERNAUT, who left his widowed mother in Dunwich, without her knowledge. He is about 15 years old, tall for his age, light complexion, sandy hair, dark blue eyes, and wore, when he left home, a blue sailor coat, black pants, black cloth cap, red and white comforter, and one boot cut on the top of the foot. His Mother wishes him to write to write to her or come home; he left home Nov. 22d, 1853, any person giving information to his mother or at the Times Office, will confer a great favor.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham. Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

MUSICAL GIFTS,

FOR 1854,

100 Pianos for the

PEOPLE.

AMERICAN AND CALIFORNIAN QUADRILLES,

will issue, immediately, the work being now in press, 100,000 BOOKS, containing all Jullien's popular and fashionable music, to be called JULLIEN'S MUSIC FOR THE MILLION. PRICE ONE DOLLAR.

The work will be beautifully printed, on fine paper, with an exquisitely Illuminated Title Page, and a correct portrait of the great composer and conductor, M. JULLIEN.—The object of the Subscriber in so greatly reducing the price of his copy-right edition of M. Jullien's popular Music, is to create a diversion in favor of GOOD MUSIC, against that wretched class of bad music, with which the country is flooded, to the destruction of all that to good and pure in the musical art. The music contained in this book, if bought in single pieces, would cost six dollars, or just six times the cost of Jullien's Book for the Million. In order to carry out this design, and to afford a further inducement to the purchasers of Jullien's music for the Million, the Subscriber will distribute among them ONE HUNDRED PIANOS, made by the best manufacturers in the country, fully guaranteed and classified as follows:—

Five superior Rose Wood Pianos, each $150; five elegant do. each, $400; ten superior do. each, $350; 20 excellent do. each, $300; thirty beautiful do. each $250; thirty fine do. each, $225.

The season of friendly gifts being at hand an opportunity in every way so so favorable should be attended to at once. The earliest Subscribers will receive the first copies of the Book; the edition being so enormous, that much time will be needed to produce the whole. A numbered receipt will be given or sent with each book. The Subscriber refers with pleasure to the perfect success of his, Jollie's musical Gifts of 1851 & 2, and the entire satisfaction of all who subscribed at that period, is the surest guarantee that every engagement will be carried out, and in the free distribution of the Piano Fortes, there will be no infringement of the law. The books are now open and Subscriptions will be received at the Store of the Subscriber. All letters post-paid, including orders for the "Jullien Book," will be attended to promptly, Price, one dollar each.

County of Middlesex.

IN open Court of general Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Middlesex, held by adjournment at the Court House, in the town of London, on Saturday, the 10th day of December, 1853, it was ordered that the following divisions, for holding the several Division Courts in the County of Middlesex, be established as follows:—

No 1.—That Division Number One shall consist of the Town of London, with all that part of the Township of London, lying west of the north branch of the River Thames, from the north or rear part of the said township to the line between the Fourth and Fifth Concessions of the same, and all that part of the Township of Westminster lying north of the Commissioners' Road, from the line between lots numbers seven and eight, to the line between lots numbers thirty-six and thirty-seven in the same.

No 2.—That Division Number Two shall be composed of the Township of Lobo, and all that part of the Township of Williams, east of the Centre Road.

No 3.—That Division Number Three shall be composed of all that part of the Township of Westminster, lying west of the line between lots numbers seven and eight in the first and second concessions, and between lots numbers five and six to the rear of the said township.

No 4.—That Division Number Four shall be composed of the whole of the Township of North Dorchester, and that part of the Township of Westminster lying east of a line between lots numbers seven and eight, in the first and second concessions, and between lots number five and six, to the rear of said township.

No 5.—That Division Number Five shall be composed of the township of Mose, and that portion of the township of Ekfrid, lying westerly from the River Thames, and of the line between lots number twelve and thirteen until it shall intersect the allowance for road between the second and third concessions, north of the Longwoods Road, and also the remainder of the said township north of the line between the second and third concessions before mentioned.

No 6.—That Division Number Six shall be composed of the Township of Delaware, and that portion of the Township of Caradoc, lying south of the line between the fourth and fifth concessions, together with all that portion of the Township of Ekfrid lying south of the line between lots number twelve and thirteen in said township.

No 7.—That Division Number Seven shall be composed of the Township of Caradoc, not attached to the Township of Delaware, the Township of Metcalfe, the Township of Adelaide, and all that part of the Township of Williams west of the Centre Road in said township.

No 8.—That Division Number Eight shall be composed of the Township of Nissouri West, and all that part of the Township of London lying east of the north branch of the River Thames, from the north or rear part of said township to the line between the fourth and fifth concessions of the same.

PROPOSED BY-LAW.

To authorise the issuing of Debentures to raise by way of loan the sum of Two Hundred Pounds.

WHEREAS, it was resolved by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, at its sitting on the 6th June, 1853, on application from the School Trustees of the second school section of that township, to raise the sum of Two Hundred Pounds for the purpose of defraying the expense of erecting a School House in the said section; and whereas it is expedient to raise that sum by way of loan, by issuing debentures for the same, payable in ten years from the passing hereof with interest, payable half-yearly; and for the payment of the said debentures and interest thereon, it will be necessary to raise annually, by a special rate upon the taxable property within the said school section, the sum of £30 8 for each of the ten years from 1854 to 1863 inclusive; and, whereas the whole of the taxable, real, and personal property of the said school section, according to the assessment roll of the Township for the year 1853, amounted to the sum of £14,948, 10s. 0d., and, whereas the annual rate of one half-penny in the pound upon the whole of the said taxable property is required as a special rate to be levid during the next ten years for payment of the said loan and interest, 12 Victoria, Cap. 81, Sec. 177. Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, in council assembled, by virtue and authority of the Upper Canada Municipal Corporation Act, and it is hereby enacted, by authority of the same, that it shall be lawful, from and after the passing of this By-Law, for the Reeve of the Township of Delaware, and he is hereby authorised and required, to raise, by way of loan, the sum of Two Hundred Pounds, from any person or persons, or body corporate, on the credit of the Municipality, and to issue Debentures for the same, payable as follows, viz:—The sum of £30, payable on the 8th January, 1856; £35, one the 8th January, 1858; £40 on the 8th January, 1860; £45 on the 8th January, 1862; and £50 on the 8th January, 1864. And be it further enacted that the said Debentures shall have Coupons attached for the payment of the interest thereon, payable half-yearly, on the 8th day of July, and the 8th day of January, in each year; and such Debentures and Coupons shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, and shall be made payable at such place as the Reeve may think proper. And be it further enacted, that the special rate of one half-penny in the pound shall be raised, levied and collected, over and above, and in addition to, all other rates, for each of the ten years from 1854 to 1863 inclusive, upon all the taxable property of the second schoool section of the said Township, for the purpose of paying the said sum of Two Hundred Pounds, and the interest thereon; and the proceeds of such special rate shall be applied solely to the payment of said debentures and interest thereon; until such debentures and the interest thereof shall be fully paid and discharged. And be it further enacted that this By-Law shall be in force and take effect from and after the seventh day of January, One thousand eight hundred and fifty four.

Notice.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-Law to be taken into consideration by the Township Council of the Township of Delaware, in the County of Middlesex, at Montgomery's Tavern in said Township, on Saturday the 7th day of January next, at the hour of 12 noon, at which time and place the members of the said Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

MESSRS. SMALL & PAIGE, Importers and dealers in Music and Musical Instruments, etc., beg to announce that they have opened their new ware-room (situated as above,) and will constantly have on hand, both Wholesale and Retail, every article of Musical Merchandize of various qualities and prices. They would particularly solicit an inspection of their new style of

Grand Square Piano-Fortes,

from the manufactories of Collard & Collard, London; and Linnard & Weber, Philadelphia.

Messrs S. & P. have also on hand, a large stock of New York and Boston Piano-Fortes, of excellent quality, which they can warrant in all respects, and especially in regard to their keeping in tune. They will also retain the same softness and sweetness of tore for a number of years, without ever acquiring that metallic, hard and wiry tone which many instruments, of otherwise good reputation, are apt to have.

Their piano Fortes are carefully selected by one of the Firm, "Mr. R. G. Paige, Professor of Music, Organist of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto," whose professional experience enables him to judge of the qualities of an instrument. They can, therefore, fully guarantee every instrument purchased of them

Brass and Wooden Instruments, for Military, Amateur and Quadrille Bands.

Likewise, every description of Stringed and Wooden Instruments necessary for a complete Orchestra.

Violin strings of a very superior quality, which they warrant cannot be surpassed.

Piano Forte, Melodeons, &c

WE would respectfully invite attention to our stock of Piano Fortes from the celebrated Manufactories of Messrs. Boardman & Gray, Hallet, Davis & Co., Bacon and Raven, and others. These instruments possess a classic order of tone which but few makers attain, and the makers or our warrant, is a sufficient guarantee of their durability.

The immense celebrity which the Dolce Campasa Attachment has attained, surpasses anything heretofore known in the "Musical World," it is considered as much a requisite to a perfect Piano Forte as the soft Pedal has heretofore been. Unlike other attachments, this does not injure the tone or durability of the instrument and the additional expense is but trifling, costing but forty dollars for a six, and fifty dollars for a seven octave.

The question is frequently asked, can this Attachment be applied to any Piano? It can be applied to any of Boardman & Gray's finished since its invention, but to no other. This, of itself, is sufficient reason why all should see Boardman & Gray's Pianos before purchasing. ☞ Old Pianos taken in exchange.

IMPROVED MELODIONS.

The great demand for these instruments has induced us to obtain the sole wholesale and retail Agency of one of the best Manufactories in the United States, Messrs. Bishop & Child, of Cincinnati, the senior partner basing one of the most experienced workmen in the country, having commenced with the inventor soon after the invention. We shall keep a full supply on hand both for retailing and wholesaling, and advise all to see Bishop & Child's Improved Melodeon, before purchasing.

CLARENDON,

THE SUBSCRIBER, having leased this well-known House for a term of years, would announce to the public that it has undergone extensive improvements and repairs—has been refurnished in the highest style of modern elegance, and is now prepared, in all respects, for the reception and convenience of guests.

The location of this House is central and commanding—being in the very heart of the city, upon the principal street, contiguous to each Railroad Depot, Lake Erie, &c., and affording the finest view of Buffalo and the adjacent country, that can be had in the city.

It will ever be the purpose of the proprietor to provide the comforts of a pleasant home, in behalf of all who may favor him with their patronage. He trusts that the same generosity which was accorded him as commander of the Steamers London, Canada, May Flower and Empire State, may also be extended to him in his new vocation.

BAKING ESTABLISHMENT.

London, Nov. 15, 1853.

I BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence there have been false reports, taking the advantage of Mr. Garnatt, my uncle, compelling him, through false swearing to pay my debts, as partner, which he never was. There were parties who certainly swore to falsehoods, through evil designs and animosity, which they held against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my baking business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and despatch, on the shortest notice.

London, C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. RAYMOND & Co.
Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful article, both as to flavor and appearance, it being fragrant and peculiar in character, at which time I consulted Medical gentlemen as to the propriety of using it, and they pronounced it a valuable medicine. I have also handed in those testimonials of its virtues which I have received, and I doubt not, from the high character of the gentlemen that their names will be a sufficient guarantee to the public of its genuine worth. I should not, however, be doing justice to myself, as well as to the public, as a druggist, were I not to say that I have used it in a number of instances. I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best selling Fever and Ague remedy I have ever handled, and we have traded it as

LONDON CANADA WEST, TIMES AND GENERAL ADVERTISER

The Sandwich Islands.

The High and Mighty King KAMEHAMA the Third, Lord of the Sandwich Islands, has fallen into the hands of a "smart man," Jonathon by name, who desires to reign in his stead. By arguments, to which even crowned heads have sometimes proved themselves to be sensible, his MAJESTY seems to have been persuaded that it would have been good for him to abdicate in favor of the United States of America, and to forego the obedience and tribute of his enlightened subjects and retire into private life, leaving his hereditary domain at the mercy of Stars, Stripes, and Custom House Officers.

Hog long he and his present lieges might be suffered to breathe the vital air of their native country, or to gather the fruits of its soil, after the completion of such an arrangement, would be what politicians significantly term, only a question of time. The dealings of the American Government with the aborigines of its own continent explain what they intend by fraternizing with uncivilized tribes. Fraterculus gigantum has been indeed a dangerous relation in all ages of the world. We are not without an inkling of what it means, even in this integral branch of the United Kingdom. Let King KAMEHAMA only try it. The time may come when he shall have squandered the price of his abdication, smoked away all the tobacco, consumed all the fire-water, and scattered abroad all the glass beads and toys, for which he is now itching to barter away his birthright and the rights of his people. He will then probably feel a disposition to resume his previous position and thus create a casus belli which will be considered an excuse for exterminating the whole race.

Such is the usual proceeding of the States towards the original possessors of the American soil. After cheating and deluding their confiding ignorance into an iniquitous contract, they lie by for the first plausable opportunity to fall upon and drive their miserable dupes into the wilderness and the sea. It is not likely that a more generous or honorable treatment will be adopted in the case of these remote and helpless islanders.

The Governments of France and England disapprove of this contemplated annexation. No credit is due to one or the other for magnanimous or disinterested motives in opposing it; but their trade is threatened to be made tributary to American tariffs and exactions, should the owners of the island give up its seignory to a rival commercial power. A solar remonstrance has therefore been jointly addressed by the representatives of these European Courts to his august Majesty KAMEHAMA, adjuring him by the "Hawaiian Constitution" and the faith of treaties, not to sell out.

The document is drawn up in a tone of ludicrous formality. It "respectfully intimates to his Majesty" a suspicion of what his going on, and of the co-operation of certain "high official functionaries of Honolulu" in the denationalizing scheme. It appeals to solemn treaties, and with the most diplomatic gravity refers his Majesty to "VATTEL and other writers on international law," who can satisfy him that he has no right to transfer his sovereignty to any other power.

This is written to his most barefooted and tattooed Majesty, who knows as much about VATTEL as the mad in the moon; but it is written at the United States, whose commissioner replies to it, in a "yarn" of considerable toughness and prolixity. The gentleman named Sarcrance, to vindicate his talent for annexation, "can perceive nothing very extraordinary in the respect remonstrated against." France and England may enjoy the privileges of the most favored nation all the same under the Yankee as under the KAMEHAMA dynasty. "The right to cede or acquire territory, or unite two independent nations by compact," Mr. SARCRANCE insists upon as among "the jura gentium: and he refers to the annexation of Algiers by France, and of Caffraria and the Punjaub by England, as precedents: adding his conviction, that "annexation by voluntary consent cannot be more illegal or reprehensible than annexation by conquest. But whether it be done by one process or the other, the United States can have no colonies." Whatever territory they acquire must become an integral portion of the Union.

These are big words of Mr. LUTHER SEVERANCE, who admits, however, that he has no authority to state what may be the intentions of his Government, or what terms it may be disposed to accept. Nevertheless, he has no doubt that, if terms shall be offered, "they will be frankly received, and duly considered."

Vendition Extraordinary.

The following jeu de 'esprit, which we copy from the Quebec Mercury, is one of the happiest satires on Ministerial Corruption:—

BY AUCTION,

Upon a writ or non inspiciendo issued out of the High Court of Parliament and on Appeal to the People, the following articles, which will be sold at an early day, of which due notice will be given.

☞ Payment will be taken in Toronto Railroad Bonds, if endorsed by Mr. Bowes, or in Grand Trunk Shares if held bona fide.

☞ Government employees are forbidden to purchase unless they can show written authority.

☞ The lead of the "PILOT," the leather of the "LEADER," and the old coat of the "CHRONICLE," will be received at half price.

LOT NO. 1.—The dancing pumps of the President, by which he proved that his heels could save his head.

2.—An original due bill for two pence given by the Inspector General in 1855, in change for a seven pence half-penny and two sheets of foolscap

3.—A model of a battery at St. Thomas to mow down the 32nd Regiment on the march.

4.—A view of the island at Toronto, with Osgoode Hall in the distance, painted in mud.—This picture is only fit for bachelors.

5.—A fish's Head dying of plethora.

6.—A tear of repentence shed by Mr. M., over the 92 resolutions, a genuine relique, worth more than the bones of St. Anthony.

7.—A copper given in charity by Mr. Morris.

8.—A Letter from a Cabinet Minister, in which one word is spelt correctly, and marked "Private."

9—Three drops of Protestant blood kept as a trophy from the murders at Montreal.

10.—A beef-steak and brandy-bottle, printed in family canvass.

11.—The Caoutchouc Conscience of a Cabinet Minister who occasionally lectured at temperance meetings and goes to bed fuddled. The doctor's recipe for morning headache will be sold with the foregoing lot if desired by the purchaser.

The Official Stock-jobbers.

The examination of witnesses in the Court of chancery in reference to the lost £10,000 brought to light a great number of facts, in the absence of which it would have been impossible to fathom the depths of infamy that underlie every part of this extraordinary case.

The principal feature of one day's evidence, was the complete disproof of the alleged necessity for the £10,000 loan, as it is falsely called. The real loan was only 50,000, and the immediate, urgent necessity for this, to meet the City's liabilities, was the pretence upon which the City Council was induced to sanction the Hincks-Bowes scheme of a Consolidated Bill for issuing £100,000 of Debentures payable in England, with sinking fund for the whole amount, &c., &c.—From the evidence of Mr. Cawthra and the admissions of the Chamberlain, it now appears that the only necessity for such a consolidation Bill, was to enable Messrs. Hincks and Bowes to pocket £10,000! The only claims against the City of any amount, about to fall due, were £20,000 to Mr. Cawthra, £10,000 to the B. A. Assurance Company, and about 5 or £6,000 in debentures, the greater portion of which, we understand, were also held by Mr. Cawthra. There were also a few thousand pounds of small notes in circulation, which it was thought desirable to call in. Mr. Cawthra swore that he had repeatedly proposed to the Mayor and another of the Finance Committee, to extend the time for repayment of his loan five or ten years which would have been exactly equivalent to a new loan of £20,000 at par, payable here instead of London, and therefore saving to the City all loss for exchange, commission, interest on advance payments, &c., &c. The Mayor would not listen to such a proposition, hardly treated Mr. Cawthra—who has been a most indulgent creditor of the City for years—with civility, and never communicated his offer to the Council! The reason is obvious. To have accepted this offer, would have deprived him of his pretence for the so-called £10,000 loan, by which he and his partner Hincks expected to pocket £10,000! We can hardly doubt that Mr. Hincks was made aware of this offer, and if he was, he must be held guilty of conspiring to defraud the city of the advantages of Mr. Cawthra's proposal. We find then, that as to £20,000 of the City debt, there was no necessity for a new loan. As to the 5 or £6,000 of small Debentures stated by the Chamberlain to be over due, there was no pressure, for they were mostly in the hands of Mr. Cawthra, and he was not in want of money, a fact that the Mayor well new. Then, as to the £10,000 of the Assurance Company. It does not appear that a loan was needed to pay off this sum for the Company was not dissatisfied with the investment. They reluctantly accepted payment according to the Chamberlain's statement, when it was offered, and only on condition that they could invest elsewhere. These facts contradict the pretence that a loan was necessary in respect to, say, £35,000 of the City debt. But we are told of a few thousand pounds in small notes, that required to be called in. Will any man pretend that a loan of £20,000 was necessary for such a purpose? If Mr. Cawthra's evidence, and the Chamberlain's statements, be true, it is clear that no such loan was wanted to pay the £20,000 and the £10,000. Then for what purpose was it? Admitting, that a small loan was desirable, we find that it could have been made without a £100,000 Consolidation Bill, or the loss and inconvenience of sterling Debentures payable in London. It was proved through the Chamberlain that an offer from Messrs. Crawford and Haggarty was before the Council at the very time the Hincks Bowes proposition was before it, to loan £25,000 to the City at par, (less the amount of their costs, which we learn, would not have exceeded 1½ or 2 per cent) and to take 20 years debentures payable here! It can easily be demonstrated that this would have been financially, a much better operation pro tanto, than that of the jobbers. This sum would have paid off all the pressing liabilities of the City, even including the Assurance Company's £10,000. Mr. Cawthra's offer was either kept secret, or the Finance Committee persuaded to reject it, in order that Mr. Hincks & Bowes might get through their Consolidation Bill to convert the Debentures purchased by them at 20 per cent. discount, into Debentures of an entirely different character, worth par, or nearly so, and all this at the expense of the taxpayers of Toronto. The evidence of Wednesday left the case in the extraordinary position we have just described, without any prospect of improvement. Further investigations can only bring out additional instances of misrepresentation, artifice, and corruption. The backbone of the case has been established. We now know that a huge Megatherium of Fraud has been discovered, and may therefore expect every bone the diggers throw up, to fit appropriately into some part of the great skeleton.

We advise our City readers especially to study carefully the evidence, and in view of the important fact, which in our opinion is conclusively established by that evidence, viz:: that no £100,000 or even £50,000 loan was needed: that a loan of £20,000 was offered at par, and another of £25,000 at about 95½ by parties in this country, which would undoubtedly have been a better bargain for the City than the Hincks-Bowes chisel, let them ask themselves whether their Mayor has done his duty, has honestly executed the important trusts committed to him? And let the electors of the province ask themselves whether the Inspector General was discharging his duty, when he entered into partnership with the Mayor? If the partaker be as bad as the thief, it will not merely be imagined, that of two thieves, proved to have entered into partnership before the theft, one can be less guilty than the other.—North American.

General Observations on Fashions for 1853.

The preparations for the winter balls and soirees are already apparent in the number of new and rich ribbons which have made their appearance. Many of these new ribbons have gold and silver tastefully interwoven in patterns composed of flowers of every line. The skilful combination of gold and silver renders these ribbons admirably well adapted for headdresses during the winter season. One of the most elegant and distinguished ribbons has been composed of blue cherry velvet ribbon figured with silver and flowers. The ribbon, which was rather wide, was dispersed in a point which diverged over the hair on the left side of the head. To this point were attached two bows of the same ribbon with very short ends. From the centre of the bows issued silver sprays, which imparted great brilliancy to the headdress. Some of the new headdresses consist of junctions of white or black tulle, ornamented with embroidery in gold, pearls and velvet applications.

Dresses of black silk have recently been very much worn. They are trimmed with flounces, more or less richly ornamented with braid or velvet. Two or three rows of black velvet ribbon one above the other, are very generally placed at the edge of the flounces of black silk dresses.—Ornaments of velvet of an open-work arabesque design, or of the pa'm-leaf pattern are rich, the latter being sometimes large enough to cover the whole flounce. Trimmings of black velvet are very effective on a dress of plain violet or dark blue silk. Trimmings of violet, dark green, and dark blue velvet are employed to ornament black silk flounces. It should be borne in mind, that flounces ornamented with velvet trimmings require very little fulness.

Among the new dresses may be mentioned some of gray and steel-color silk, having flounces bordered by a band of plush woven with silk.—This plush is often of a deeper tint than that of the silk composing the dress, and it is frequently figured. A dress of green silk, just completed, flounces edged with bands of plush ornamented with spots, in black maroon, and brown.

We must not omit to mention a very elegant dress which has just been made up. It consists of dark blue silk, and is without flounces, but the skirt is ornamented with twelve horizontal rows of black velvet foliage. The corsage has a basque set up at each side, and is open in front, the opening being filled up by rows of velvet trimmings and bows of black velvet. The sleeves are slashed, having two openings, the one above and the other under the elbow, and the edges of those openings are united by travetses, or horizontal rows of velvet and bows of velvet ribbon.

Black velvet will, this winter, certainly hold its wonted place among the favorite materials for dresses. Some black velvet dresses are made with the skirt quite plain, the corsage and sleeves being edged with braid figured with velvet. One however, has the front of the skirt ornamented with palm leaves embroidered with bright green silk. These leaves are of graduated sizes, the smallest being nearest to the waist. The embroidery of palm leaves is carried up the front of the corsage, which is close and high at the throat. The sleeves are of the mousquetaire form, having revers or turned-up cuffs, entirely covered with embroidered palm leaves. The dress we have just described has been made for a lady of rank, and is intended to be worn in the carriage or in negligé home costume.

It appears probable that close corsages will be more prevalent during the winter months than they have been for some time past. The open corsage has had so long a reign, that a reaction of fashion in favor of an opposite form may be looked for.—Lady's Newspaper.

Canadian Trust and Loan Company.

We have received a copy of the reports and accounts to the 30th September last, issued by the Directors of the Trust and Loan Company of Upper Canada, preparatory to the meeting call'd for the 15th instant. The receipts for the six months amount to £11 951 11s. 10d., and the disbursements, including interest on debenture bonds issued by the company, to £6 502 14s. 3d., leaving a balance of profit of £5,448 17s. 7d., which, added to that brought forward from March last leaves a total balance at credit of revenue of £7,793 16s. 2d. The Directors recommend that out of this sum a dividend of 7 per cent. free of income tax, be declared on the £5 paid-up shares of the company for the six months ending at the same date on those of the new issue; that a sum of £866 13s. 4d., being equal in amount to the excess over 6 per cent. paid to the shareholders, be put to the reserve fund, in accordance with the charter, and that £200 be carried to the preliminary expenses account. There will then remain the sum of £2,210 9s. 6d. to the credit of revenue for the next half year. The 25,000 new shares, the issue of which was authorised at the last general meeting, have been entirely subscribed for and paid up. The capital stock of the company consists, therefore, of £50,000 share, and the amount called up is £200,000. The investments of the company in Canada are stated to amount to £398,450 (currency.) This large sum has been placed on Mortgage in rather less than two years, notwith standing the delays inseparable from the early stages of a business which consists in loans on real estate, requiring the examination of titles, a close valuation of properties, and the execution of deeds. The whole amount is lent at eight per cent., with the exception of the Montreal Corporation Fire Loan at six per cent.

The Directors proceed to observe:—"The fundamental principle of the company's operations, which is to make loans only on real estate, of at least double the value of the sum advanced, and the stringency of the regulations, which have been laid down to prevent excessive or speculative valuations, afford a high degree of security against losses on any of the company's investments; and the directors have the fullest confidence in every loan which has been made. The interest due on the mortgages has been paid with great regularity; the number of investments is steadily increasing; and there is a considerable amount of applications on hand. Towards meeting these investments, the company has borrowed, on debenture bonds, the sum of £193,600. The principle limiting the sum to be borrowed on debentures which was established by the shareholders of a former meeting, and which the board recomend should be strictly adhered to, is, that it should never exceed, as a maximum, this part of the company's share capital not called up. This rule, white it will secure the shareholders against all poss ble risk of being hereafter drawn into an excessive extension of their engagements, will, at the same time, have the effect of making the security presented to the holders of the debentures abundant and unquestionable, so as to entitle the company to obtain money on the most favorable terms."

With regard to the prosperity of Canada it is observed:—"The continued progress of Canada, indicated by all accounts from that colony, must be highly satisfactory to the shareholders. By increasing the value of real estate, it enlarges, at the same time, the margin of security on which loans have been made; and by opening the field for profitable enterprise, it keeps up the demand for capital, which it is the business of the company to supply; and as this progress is not the result of speculative excitement, but is the natural effect of wider cultivation in an agricultural country, it may be hoped that it will not be followed by reaction."—Liverpool Chronicle.

With the foregoing there are seventeen cannon for throwing large stone-shot.

The main body of the Turkish Fleet lay at Buyukdere. There were also some Egyptian vessels of war there. The Turkish and Egyptian vessels carried together 2,000 guns. There were eight ships of the line, seven frigates, eight corvettes, nine brigs, and eight or ten steamers. Two divisions sailed out into the Black Sea on a cruise.

That modern Indian Prince, Capt. Sadlier, the Englishman—had returned on the 21st Nov., with the exception of one frigate which was detached from the other vessels in a gale. This division was from the Bosphorus eighteen days. The Russians were undoubtedly indebted for the success they met in this first naval engagement since the declaration of war.

The Turks are bad sailors, as is shown by the act that of the squadron under Captain Slade none were to any mean became sick when they got out of the Strait. They are unaccustomed to stormy seas; but he the great part of the time in the Bosphorus, a gentle stream. The fighting qualities of the Turks on ship-board are sufficiently proved by the recent battle, notwithstanding they suffered a terrible reverse.

The Woodstock British American and Western Progress.

We copy from the Hamilton Spectator the following well merited remarks on the "Fusion:"

"NEWSPAPER CHANGES.—The Woodstock British American and Western Progress are to be united, and will cordially support a Ministry that has few friends but renegades left. The American has, of course, been sunk to the lowest depths of political degradation, and the union may temporarily avert the fate which too surely awaits it; but what the Poogress has to gain by such a connection, we are unable to conjecture. The announcement of the new combination contains a paragraph which we are unable fully to comprehend:—

"Mr. Vansittart, the proprietor of this paper, respectfully asks from his friends a continuance of their support and confidence: and as far as his own reputation has contributed to the latter, he has the pleasure to assure them it will continue to deserve the same share of confidence.'

To whom does the erratic gentleman look for 'a continuance of support and confidence,' the old friends, whom he betrayed or deserted; or the new allies, by whom he has yet to be tried before much confidence can be created? In either case, the allusion is not over happy. And what, again, does our contemporary mean by boasting of support and confidence in one breath, and admitting in another that "the business has not hitherto been found too abundant for our own wants?" The American, which recently deserted its party and abjured its principles, asserts that it has been deserted in turn "by its most efficient hands,' and that in consequence the new arrangement became very important. No doubt of it: but if the "most efficient hands." have embarked in an opposition paper, the prospect for the civil concern looks as gloomy as the countenance of the loss of talent and enterprise appears verdant."

We regret want of space forbids our inserting the editorial of this political movement production. Those who have read or taken part in the political transactions of the County of Oxford, during the last few years, will probably view with disgust another instance of political transgression, and another proof of the wise saying of a great English Statesman, "Every man has his price." We admit vast injury is done to Conservatism by desertion, and Conservative principles have suffered more in England from the treachery of traitors in its camp, than from the best directed efforts and most unscrupulous attacks of its enemies; but we generally find some excuse some Judas like expediency advanced to palliate the desertion, on the present occasion we look in vain, insult has been added to injury, "The importance of united action in supporting the course of material progress and constitutional reform in Canada" is urged as the grounds for union, and "rendering more effectual service to the public interest." to further these ends they will "assist in upholding the present Government." They next proceed with the enumeration of all the services done by the present Government, and attribute unreservedly the prosperity of Canada to their herculean labors and unparchasable integrity, and then wind up by saying "under these circumstances we say that the present Government of Canada is entitled to the support and confidence of every true lover of his country." It is the duty of an indepeudent press to denounce corruption and profligacy whenever it exists, and by whomsoever practised, whether the culprit be a Draper, Baldwin or Hincks, the acts of public men in their public capacity are public property, and we appeal to our readers whether the charges which from time to time have appeared in our columns, and which, in this issue, we selected from papers of various political hues, are sufficient to annihilate the statement of this new combination of the tottering cabinet, more especially as our contemporary goes on to say, "it is not the men who form the Minisry, but their principles and policy that we uphold," and moderately add "so long as they continue to administer public affairs in accordance with the true principles of constitutional reform, we shall continue to support them, and no longer;" as to the following passage—"we shall the more earnestly do so because we are satisfied that so long as we can consistently support Mr. Hincks's administration we shall be best aiding the material advancement of Canada," it must have originated in that forgiving disposition which suggests "if a man smite thee on one ear, turn to him the other." We congratulate the men of Oxford on this new exponent of their principles, we congratulate them on their partnerships in the Toronto £10,000 shave and pine timber job, Cumultus aliis, and conclude by a well written article from the Picton Gazette which we especially direct attention to:—

SAVE US FROM OUR FRIENDS!
THE SAULT STE. MARIE JOB!

"Divers and sundry of the friends and allies of the Inspector General, have from time to time made the most strenuous efforts to prove that worthy was not any shape interested in the American Sault Ste. Marie Canal Company. First, we have the letter of Mr. Harvey, alleging that "to the best of his knowledge"—the dear innocent—Mr. Hincks was spotless; secondly, we had the assertion of Combination Tiffany that bar-room chat at Detroit was the sole basis for supposing that he was not spotless; and thirdly we have the confident assertion of all the organ grinders, big and little, that Mr. Hincks was not a contractor in the American Company; and would not be a contaactor, because, forsooth, the Canal, on its completion, was to be handed over to the American Goverut, by which it was kept up toll free. "Mark, how a plain tale puts him in shame." The Chicago Tribune, a paper published in the vicinity of the work, from an ignorance of the direct bearing of the question, lets the cat out of the bag thus:

'Some of the Canada papers are charging Mr. Hincks, one of the ministers of the State, with opposing and defeating the construction of a Ship Canal on the Canada side, from Lake Huron to Superior, because he is one of the stockholders in the American Company. The British Canadian censures Mr. H. without stent. Our Canadian friends seems to be ignorant of the FACT that though Mr. Hincks may be one of the company engaged in building the canal on the American side, he has no interest in it as a revenue paying work. HE IS MERELY ONE OF A BODY OF CONTRACTORS WHO GET PAY FOR THEIR WORK IN WILD LAND.'

"Merely one of a body of contractors, who get pay for their work in wild lands"—why that was exactly the charge made by the North American, after the Treaty was approved. The presumption is that these contractors, when they agreed to take these wild lands from the State of Michigan, at $1¼ per acre, felt perfectly confident that they would make a profit by the risen value of those lands; and therefore, as private individuals, they were bound to resist the commencement of a work on the Canadian side, which might induce the Government of Michigan to defer the work, and keep the wild lands in its own possession. The opinion which Mr. Bowes entertained of Mr. Hincks' morality, seems to have been shared in by other people. At all events, we find that, as Francis Hincks, he is "one of a company of contractors," and we know that as a Member for Oxford, and Prime Minister of Canada, he resisted the project for a Canadian Canal."

Municipal Elections.

On Monday last, in addition to its being observed as an holiday (new year day falling on Sunday) the excitement of the municipal elections enlivened our Town, which was continued until Tuesday evening, when the result of the elections were as follows:—

St. Andrew's Ward selected the old members: Messrs. M. Holmes, Hyman, and Cousins, and Mr. Wilson as Inspector.

In St. Patrick's Ward, in consequence of the resignation of Mr. Adams, and his subsequent consent to allow himself to be nominated, caused by a numerous signed requisition, and a wish generally expressed by his former colleagues that he should not desert them until all the improvements now progressing shall be completed. A sharp contest resulted in placing two of the old members in again and substituting Leonard in place of Oliver. See Poll.

This Ward covers nearly three times the area of any other Ward in the Town, and the number of votes recorded exceeded those of former years by upwards of 100 per cent., so much for the increase of the Ward.

In St. David's Ward, the three former members retired—Messrs. Daniels, Schram, and Scanlan, in their place were elected Messrs. Moffat, Blair, and Clegg.

☞ From the great space occupied by the Letter of "Alacris" and which we were requested to publish previous to the meeting of the Presbytery at Hamilton, we are reluctantly obliged to omit many matters until our next.

The last news from the seat of war we append. After three important engagements the Russian forces in Asia have been repulsed from Sohlis, and driven upon Askan. Selim Pasha had stormed the fortress of Kars. The fortified place of Akaska is also mentioned as having been taken by his troops. The Russians had made an unsuccessful attack upon Abdi Pasha's intrenched camp at Bajazid, and on the 17th November the Czar's troops were again defeated in another attempt to retake the fort of St. Nicholas. The Turks have also taken Akhal-tzi, the capital of the Pashalic and most of the Pashalic of the same. The Captain Pasha entertained the arrivals and officers of the British and French fleets on board his own ship, the Mahmoud.

Communications.

To the Editor of the London Times.

Sir,—I beg to inform you that the Annual Election of Township Councillor, for St David's Ward, Township of London, County of Middlesex, took place on Monday and Tuesday the 2nd. and 3rd. days of January, 1854. The persons who were proposed as eligible candidates to represent this Ward were George Robson, and Henry D. O'Neil, Esqrs., and your correspondent, who declined the honor. The Election was zealously contested by both parties, and when the Poll closed on the eveuing of the first day, Mr. O'Neil was 10 ahead of his opponent. The following morning at 10 o'clock, the Poll opened and continued so till 4 P. M., at which time George Robson, Esq., was elected Councillor by a majority of six.

The Election was well and honorably contested, and it is with a feeling of sincere pleasure that I record my gratitude to the inhabitants of St. David's Ward, for the respect they showed to me and all concerned, by the regularity and good order they mdintained.

Presbyterian Church Polity,—Union of Provincial Presbyterians.

No. III.

Sir,—It is my design in this communication, to aim at the removal of a mass of ignorance and prejudice that prevail, both in this Province, and in the United Kingdom,—respecting the position, principles, and polity of what we shall call, for the sake of brevity, the "Scottish Church" in Canada,—but whose proper style and title, is—"The Presbyterian Church of Canada, in connexion with the Church of Scotland."

Nothing is more common than for this Church to be represented in the Newspapers of the day, as a State-Church, and its Clergy as a State-paid Clergy: or, in the more vulgar language of some, as "State-Paupers"! It is also manifest from verbiage which passes current in certain Journals and Periodicals, that an idea is abroad, that she forms an integral part of the Church of Scotland, —that she is subject to, and has a voice in, the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland,—and, that she is, therefore, responsible for, as being art and part, all that may be regarded as imperfect or amiss, in the said National Church. The dissemination and belief of such egregiously erroneous ideas, have tended not a little, to give a coloring of justness and propriety to the breach that was effected in this Church; when, in 1844, a number of ministers and parts of Congregations seceded from her bosom, and organized what is known as the "Free Church" of Canada, in connexion with the Free Church of Scotland,—or, as set forth by themselves—"the Presbyterian Church of Canada;" which, it will be observed, is precisely the style and title of the Church originally organized, after dropping the descriptive clause—"in connexion with the Church of Scotland"

We are strong in the opinion,—an opinion which is shared in with us by multitudes,—that if origin, principles, doctrines, polity and practice, were, without prejudice or error, narrowly scrutinized; it would be boldly apparent, that no sufficient or scriptural reason exists, why those two Churches, and the United Presbyterian Church in this Province, should continue separate organizations—wasting their energies on petty guerrilla skirmishes between themselves,—instead of uniting their several forces for the strengthening, purifying, and extending of the kingdom of Him who is ONE, who, as Rev. Dr. John Brown would say, is ONE morally as well as numerically—and, in reference to whom, and to whose Church, an Apostle enquires—"Is Christ divided?"

We think that we have shown, abundantly and conclusively, in a former letter, that, in those revenues donated out of the personal and hereditary property of a British Monarch, for the "maintenance and support of a Protestant Clergy in Canada," there is but a display, on a large and magnificent scale, of that very "Voluntary Principle," which is so zealously contended for, by the large majority of the United Presbyterians, both in this Colony, and in Scotland: and that no reasonable objection, therefore, can be brought up, from their ranks, against union, on the ground that the voluntary principle would be invaded or sacrificed, by the ministers of all the three denominations when united, receiving their equal share of the annual produce of this voluntary though Royal gift. We are the more confident in our opinion here, when we reflect, that it is accordant with the principles and practices of the United Presbyterian Synod,—at least, while it was the United Associate Synod—to pray the Executive Council through its Minister or Committee of Correspondence, to give free grants of the Public Lands for the purpose of erecting Churches and manses thereon, and freely to accept and appropriate such Land Endowments, when given. While the prerogatives, the privileges, the personal revenues, and the religious responsibilities of Royalty, remain what they are, and what they have been for centuries back, in all the civilized portions of the globe; we confess it to be utterly incomprehensible to us, why those revenues should be first stigmatized as the rightful property of the Canadian Public for any purposes they may think fit, and then be repudiated as being a State Endowment to certain favorite religious sects;—unless it be, that the voluntaryism of the CANADAN Presbyterians, has one law for the Sovereign, and another for the subject: and that the Sovereign, even although he is a Christian and a Protestant himself, has neither right, duty, nor responsibility, as touching the maintenance and extension of his Divine Redeemer's Kingdom! Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, we think, has just as good a right, out of her own personal and hereditary revenues; and Her Royal Consort, Prince Albert, out of his, to build and endow a Church, or institute a fund for the support of Protestant missionaries in the Highland's of Scotland, or among the retiring forests of Upper Canada, as she or he has to purchase the estate of Balmoral, and build on it a Royal Mansion House! Who can gainsay it? Not, surely, the "U. P." Voluntaries themselves,—though possibly Mr. Lesslie, whose Examiner they employ as their organ, might object to it,—and why?—just because his own voluntaryism is of a more radical and sweeping character than theirs; and he belongs, we believe, avowedly, to a class thus described in the North American of the 2d Dec., viz:—"Many staunch voluntaries hold it altogether Unchristian, that Ministers should receive ANY remuneration for their labors in the Gospel." Of course, he does not, so far as we are aware, advocate this principle of his, and of his religious fraternity, in the Examiner; of which he is the Proprietor. For this would never do for the Voluntary Ministers with their people, who support and write for the Examiner; and he obviously prefers their subscriptions, to the few pounds currency in which all his expectations from the Hincks cabinet advertisements, have hitherto resulted! It is an awkward thing, however, and quite a ludicrous one too, when an Editor's chair is split up into two stools! and he has to steady himself so adroitly, atween the two—Hincks on the one part and the immediate secularizers on the opposite part—that he momentarily is in the most imminent danger of performing a somerset between them! Better, perhaps, bid adieu to the hope of an additional "£6 or £7," and cling fast to the secularizing subscribers. True, the REPUTATION! —(O! tempora, O! mores!)—OF HIS JOURNAL! may be sacrificed in either case;—but, in the latter case, the "remuneration" may be the larger; and his principal task as a writer, will be to point Secedes' abuse on the innocent pate of the Rev. Dr. Skinner;—who never—never, in the remotest degree,—either injured, or provoked him;—and who—never even lifted a pen in self-vindication, until six long months had elapsed, of the most truthless and reckless abuse! But, really, after those fearful volleys of Billingsgate missiles, now flying between the North American on the one side, and the Examiner on the other; discretion may be the "better part of valor," and dictate a dignified standing aloof from the frenzied combatants! Yet, for the illumination of the Glasgow Chronicle, and our other old friends of the Secession in Scotland;—we subjoin, in a note, a specimen of the abusive tactics of the Rev. Doctor's two principal assailants.*

With the views we have expressed, we cannot, in good conscience, refuse and renounce funds for the support of Protestant ministers and missionaries, which we hold to be sacred, in the using been scripturally acquired. As little could we have united with a Synod like that of the United Presbyterian Synod of Canada, which has proclaimed it as accordant with its "well known principles," to wage war against the gift of Voluntaryism as exercised by a sovereign out of his own funds. And this is the more incomprehensible to us, why those revenues should be first stigmatized as the rightful property of the Canadian Public for any purposes they may think fit, and then be repudiated as being a State Endowment to certain favorite religious sects;—unless it be, that the voluntaryism of the CANADAN Presbyterians, has one law for the Sovereign, and another for the subject; and that the Sovereign, even although he is a Christian and a Protestant himself, has neither right, duty, nor responsibility, as touching the maintenance and extension of his Divine Redeemer's Kingdom! Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, we think, has just as good a right, out of her own personal and hereditary revenues; and Her Royal Consort, Prince Albert, out of his, to build and endow a Church, or institute a fund for the support of Protestant missionaries in the Highlands of Scotland, or among the retiring forests of Upper Canada, as she or he has to purchase the estate of Balmoral, and build on it a Royal Mansion House! Who can gainsay it? Not, surely, the "U. P." Voluntaries themselves,—though possibly Mr. Lesslie, whose Examiner they employ as their organ, might object to it,—and why?—just because his own voluntaryism is of a more radical and sweeping character than theirs; and he belongs, we believe, avowedly, to a class thus described in the North American of the 2d Dec., viz:—"Many staunch voluntaries hold it altogether Unchristian, that Ministers should receive ANY remuneration for their labors in the Gospel." Of course, he does not, so far as we are aware, advocate this principle of his, and of his religious fraternity, in the Examiner; of which he is the Proprietor. For this would never do for the Voluntary Ministers with their people, who support and write for the Examiner; and he obviously prefers their subscriptions, to the few pounds currency in which all his expectations from the Hincks cabinet advertisements, have hitherto resulted! It is an awkward thing, however, and quite a ludicrous one too, when an Editor's chair is split up into two stools! and he has to steady himself so adroitly, atween the two—Hincks on the one part and the immediate secularizers on the opposite part—that he momentarily is in the most imminent danger of performing a somerset between them! Better, perhaps, bid adieu to the hope of an additional "£6 or £7," and cling fast to the secularizing subscribers. True, the REPUTATION! —(O! tempora, O! mores!)—OF HIS JOURNAL! may be sacrificed in either case;—but, in the latter case, the "remuneration" may be the larger; and his principal task as a writer, will be to point Secedes' abuse on the innocent pate of the Rev. Yet, for the illumination of the Glasgow Chronicle, and our other old friends of the Secession in Scotland;—we subjoin, in a note, a specimen of the abusive tactics of the Rev. Doctor's two principal assailants.*

Still more, the idea is by no means an uncommon one, that the "Scottish Synod" in Canada, is in some form or other, dependant upon, or controlled by, the Judicatories of the Church of Scotland. The idea is altogether at variance with the fact. The Scottish Synod was first constituted in Canada in 1831. The nature of its constitution is to be learned from its Acts then, from the minutes of its proceedings since, and specially from its Declaratory (not enacting) Act of Independence, passed in 1847, and publicly read to every minister or probationer for his approval, before he is admitted to a seat in any of its Courts It is by all these collated; and not by isolated clauses and disunited links, that the polity, principles, and independence of the Synod, are to be judged of. It is by these, and only by these, that its ministers and members are bound to one another. These are the stipulated terms of the ecclesiastical organization, and its social compact; —and, we have yet to learn, that one attempt has been made, either through the arbitrary rulings of a packed majority, or Star-Chamber Committees—(something very similar to which crept, on the Jenning's case, into the last Synod of the "U. P.s") to try or to judge any one by aught, but by that constitution within whose limits, and only within whose limits, both its ministers and people are voluntarily and socially bound together.

According to this constitution, the Scottish Synod of Canada

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO, PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham. Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

JULLIE'S MUSICAL GIFTS, FOR 1854,

100 Pianos for the

PEOPLE.

will issue, immediately, the work being now in press, 100,000 BOOKS, containing all Jullien's popular and fashionable music, to be called JULLIEN'S MUSIC FOR THE MILLION. PRICE ONE DOLLAR.

The work will be beautifully printed, on fine paper, with an exquisitely Illuminated Title Page, and a correct portrait of the great composer and conductor, M. JULLIEN.—The object of the Subscriber in so greatly reducing the price of his copy-right edition of M. Jullien's popular Music, is to create a diversion in favor of GOOD MUSIC, against that wretched class of bad music, with which the country is flooded, to the destruction of all that is good and pure in the musical art. The music contained in this book, if bought in single pieces, would cost six dollars, or just six times the cost of Jullien's Book for the Million. In order to carry out this design, and to afford a further inducement to the purchasers of Jullien's music for the Million, the Subscriber will distribute among them ONE HUNDRED PIANOS, made by the best manufacturers in the country, fully guaranteed and classified as follows:—

Five superior Rose Wood Pianos, each $450; five elegant do. each, $400; ten superior do. each, $350; 20 excellent do. each, $300; thirty beautiful do. each $250; thirty fine do. each, $225.

The season of friendly gifts being at hand an opportunity in every way so as favorable should be attended to at once. The earliest Subscribers will receive the first copies of the Book, the edition being so enormous, that much time will be needed to produce the whole. A numbered receipt will be given or sent with each book. The Subscriber refers with pleasure to the perfect success of his, Jullie's musical Gifts of 1851 & 2, and the entire satisfaction of all who subscribed at that period, is the surest guarantee that every engagement will be carried out, and in the free distribution of the Piano Fortes, there will be no infringement of the law. The books are now open and Subscriptions will be received at the Store of the Subscriber. All letters post-paid, including orders for the "Jullien Book," will be attended to promptly, Price, one dollar each.

DIVISION COURTS

PROPOSED BY-LAW.

To authorize the issuing of Debentures to raise by way of loan the sum of Two Hundred Pounds.

WHEREAS, it was resolved by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, at its sitting on the 6th June, 1853, on application from the School Trustees of the second school section of that township, to raise the sum of Two Hundred Pounds for the purpose of defraying the expense of erecting a School House in the said section; and whereas it is expedient to raise that sum by way of loan, by issuing debentures for the same, payable in ten years from the passing hereof with interest, payable half-yearly; and for the payment of the said debentures and interest thereon, it will be necessary to raise annually, by a special rate upon the taxable property within the said school section, the sum of £30 8 for each of the ten years from 1854 to 1863 inclusive; and, whereas the whole of the taxable, real, and personal property of the said school section, according to the assessment roll of the Township for the year 1853, amounted to the sum of £14,948, 10s, 0d., and, whereas the annual rate of one half-penny in the pound upon the whole of the said taxable property is required as a special rate to be levid during the next ten years for payment of the said loan and interest, 12 Victoria, Cap. 81, Sec. 177. Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the Township of Delaware, in council assembled, by virtue and authority of the Upper Canada Municipal Corporation Act, and it is hereby enacted, by authority of the same, that it shall be lawful, from and after the passing of this By-Law, for the Reeve of the Township of Delaware, and he is hereby authorised and required, to raise, by way of loan, the sum of Two Hundred Pounds, from any person or persons, or body corporate, on the credit of the Municipality, and to issue Debentures for the same, payable as follows, viz:—The sum of £30, payable on the 8th January, 1856; £35, one the 8th January, 1858; £40 on the 8th January, 1860; £45 on the 8th January, 1863; and £50 on the 8th January, 1864. And be it further enacted that the said Debentures shall have Coupons attached for the payment of the interest thereon, payable half-yearly, on the 8th day of July, and the 8th day of January, in each year; and such Debentures and Coupons shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, and shall be made payable at such place as the Reeve may think proper. And be it further enacted, that the special rate of one half-penny in the pound shall be raised, levied and collected, ever and above, and in addition to, all other rates, for each of the ten years from 1854 to 1863 inclusive, upon all the taxable property of the second school section of the said Township, for the purpose of paying the said sum of Two Hundred Pounds, and the interest thereon; and the proceeds of such special rate shall be applied solely to the payment of said debentures and interest thereon; until such debentures and the interest thereof shall be fully paid and discharged. And be it further enacted that this By-Law shall be in force and take effect from and after the seventh day of January, One thousand eight hundred and fifty four.

Notice.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-Law to be taken into consideration by the Township Council of the Township of Delaware, in the County of Middlesex, at Montgomery's Tavern in said Township, on Saturday the 7th day of January next, at the hour of 12 noon, at which time and place the members of the said Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

NEW PIANO-ROFTE AND MUSIC Establisment,

KING-ST., THREE DOORS WEST OF YONGE-ST.,

TORONTO, C. W.

MESSRS. SMALL & PAIGE, Importers and dealers in Music and Musical Instruments, etc., beg to announce that they have opened their new ware-room (situated as above,) and will constantly have on hand, both Wholesale and Retail, every article of Musical Merchandize of various qualities and prices. They would particularly solicit an inspection of their new style of Grand Square Piano-Fortes.

from the manufactories of Collard & Collard, London; and Linnard & Weber, Philadelphia.

Messrs S. & P. have also on hand, a large stock of New York and Boston Piano-Fortes, of excellent quality, which they can warrant in all respects, and especially in regard to their keeping in tune. They will also retain the same softness and sweetness of tone for a number of years, without ever acquiring that metallic, hard and wiry tone which many instruments, of otherwise good reputation, are apt to have.

Their piano Fortes are carefully selected by one of the Firm, "Mr. R. G. Paige, Professor of Music, Organist of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto," whose professional experience enables him to judge of the qualities of an instrument. They can, therefore, fully guarantee every instrument purchased of them

Brass and Wooden Instruments, for Military, Amateur and Quadrille Bands.

Likewise, every description of Stringed and Wooden Instruments necessary for a complete Orchestra.

Violin strings of a very superior quality, which they warrant cannot be surpassed.

Harmoniums & Melodeons.

Piano Forte, Melodeons, &c.

WE would respectfully invite attention to our stock of Piano Fortes from the celebrated Manufactories of Messrs. Boardman & Gray, Hallet, Davis & Co., Bacon and Raven, and others. These instruments possess a classic order of tone which but few makers attain, and the makers or our warrant, is a sufficient guarantee of their durability.

The immense celebrity which the Dolc Campana Attachment has attained, surpasses anything heretofore known in the "Musical World," it is considered as much a requisite to a perfect Piano Forte as the soft Pedal has heretofore been. Unlike other attachments, this does not injure the tone or durability of the instrument and the additional expense is but trifling, costing but forty dollars for a six, and fifty dollars for a seven octave.

The question is frequently asked, can this Attachment be applied to any Piano? It can be applied to any of Boardman & Gray's finished since its invention, but to no other. This, of itself, is sufficient reason why all should see Boardman & Gray's Pianos before purchasing. ☞ Old Pianos taken in exchange.

IMPROVED MELODIONS.

The great demand for these instruments has induced us to obtain the sole wholesale and retail Agency of one of the best Manufactories in the United States, Messrs. Bishop & Child, of Cincinnati, the senior partner being one of the most experienced workmen in the country, having commenced with the inventor soon after the invention. We shall keep a full supply on hand both for retailing and wholesaling, and advise all to see BISHOP & CHILD'S IMPROVED MELODEON, before purchasing.

LONDON CANADA WEST, TIMES AND GENERAL ADVERTISER.

Singular occurrence at Portsmouth.

THE AUTHORITY OF THE QUEEN DEFIED BY A RUSSIAN OFFICER.—The public have been informed that the Russian frigates Aurora and Navarin have been allowed to enter Portsmouth harbor for purposes of repair. Some little time ago some of the sailors belonging to those ships, not relishing the service in which they had been compulsorily engaged, determined to take advantage of the immunity afforded to them by the laws of our free country, and to leave the service of the Czar. Accordingly, six of them having contrived to get on shore at Portsmouth, proceeded towards London, and had nearly reached Guildford when they were overtaken by an officer of the Russian frigate Aurora, accompanied by an English Inspector of police, and were by them brought back by Railway to Portsmouth. Here they were placed on board the English ship Victorious that vessel having been placed at the disposal of the captain of the Aurora, for the accommodation of himself and his crew, during the execution of the repairs required by their frigate the Aurora. The deserters thus brought back were confined on board the Victorious, and, as it is asserted, were submitted there, by the Russian officers, to severe corporal punishment. These infractions of the law of England became known in London. Persons proceeded to Portsmouth to ascertain the circumstances of the case, and on their instructions an affidavit was made in due form, and a writ of habeas corpus was issued by Mr. Justice Wrightman, directed to Rear-Admiral Martin, the Admiral Superintendent of Dockyard at Portsmouth, and as such commanding all the ships in ordinary in the harbor; to Captain Edward Hinton Scott, the captain of the guard ship of the ordinary; to Captain Ivan Nikolajewitsz Lzlemetiew, commanding the Russian frigate, Aurora, and to any other person having the custody of the sailors in question (their names being set out at length), commanding them in the name of the Queen of England to have the bodies of the said sailors immediately before the Lord Chief Justice of England. On this writ being served on Rear Admiral Martin, he declined to obey it until he had communicated with the Admiralty. Captain Scott, being absent on leave, could not be served, but the writ was served upon Commander William Warsfold, officiating for Captain Saott, in his absence. The officers answer was that he would consult the officer commanding in chief at Portsmouth. The writ was next taken to the captain of the Aurora. The Russian declined receiving it (although its nature was fully explained to him), except through the Russian Ambassador or Consul. The consul being absent, the vice-consul was waited on and his assistance requested, but he positively refused to interfere, alleging the absence of his superior as his excuse. The writ was then again taken on board the Aurora, but the person bearing it was refused access to the captain, and not allowed to come on board; and when it was tendered to the lieutenant who appeared at the gangway, that officer declined receiving it. The bearer then, as he went down the side of the ship, placed it through one of the port-holes, but the lieutenant, having perceived this, took the writ up and threw it from the ship, and it fell into a boat alongside. There were witnesses ready to attest all these facts. It now remains to be seen whether Russian officers can, with impunity, while in this country, and whilst on board, not of their own ships, but of British man of war, despise the authority of the Queen of this realm, delegated to the judges of the land. Also whether the Queen's uniform can exempt Rear-Admiral Martin and other naval officers of Portsmouth who are concerned.

PORTSMOUTH, Monday.—Th. writ, we hear, has been submitted to and placed in the hands of the Board of Admiralty, who will, as a matter of course, consult the crown law officers as to future proceedings. Some Polish officers have been in this Port for some days past, picking up foreigners, measuring them, and providing them with tickets and money. We understand a great number of them have been got together, and will proceed to Constantinople via Southampton, in one of the Peninsular and Oriental steam packets. The writ in question upon the Russian officer in command of the Alpopa may be in some way connected with this demonstration. The Russian corvette, Navarin, has had all the fore part of her copper stripped off to-day, and commenced caulking. How she kept afloat is a mystery; her old caulking came out in rags with the copper from the seams like rotten paper; and as to the caulking irons, they went clean into the head at the first blow, to the astonishment of our caulkers, who imagined they should find their irons on the inside of the vessel. We will vouch for it that four times the quantity of oakum will be required over and above that of our own ships, and if these vessels now in our dockyard are specimens of the general condition of the Russian fleet, they will be annihilated at the first broadside from either French or English line of battle ships.—London Paper.

Receipts for the Million.

Women in this country are too idle or too stupid to cook anything which requires trouble, otherwise there are many things entirely wasted which would make a wholesome meal:—

Savoury Rice.—Put 1 lb. of rice into 3 quarts of boiling water, let it simmer for 20 minutes, then skim the water, and add 1 oz. of hogs lard, and a little salt and all-spice; let it simmer gently over the fire, closely covered, for an hour and a quarter, when it will be fit for use. It will produce rather more than 8 lbs. of savoury rice, which, if purchased at a moderate price, will not cost quite 1d. a pound.

Baked Rice Pudding.—Put ½ lb of rice into 3 quarts of skim milk, and add 2 oz. of treacle, or a little pepper and salt, and bake it. It will make nearly 4 lbs of pudding, and will cost about 1d. a pound. If East Indian rice is used, it should be previously soaked for a few hours in water.

Boiled Rice Pudding.—Boil 1 lb. of rice in a pudding bag, so loose as to be capable of holding five times the quantity. It will produce 5 lb. of solid pudding, and may be eaten with treacle. It will cost about ½d. a pound.

Macaroni Rice.—Put ½ lb. of rice in 5 pints of cold water, and boil it gently for 2 hours, by which time it will be of the consistence of thick paste; then add 2 pints of skim milk, and 2 oz. of strong Cheshire cheese grated pretty fine; add a little pepper and salt, and boil the whole very gently for another hour. It will produce 9 lbs. of macaroni rice, and will cost not quite 1d. a pound.

Rice and Barley Porridge.—Put 1 lb. of rice and 1 lb of Scotch barley into 2 gallons of water, and boil them very gently for four hours over a slow fire; then add 4 oz. of treacle and 1 oz. of salt, and let the whole simmer for half-an-hour more. It will produce 15 lbs. in weight, and will cost rather more than ½d. a pound.

Sweet Rice.—Put 1 lb. of rice in 5 pints of cold water and boil it gently for two hours, by which time it will be of the consistency of thick paste; then add two pints of skim milk and 4 oz. of treacle, and boil the whole very gently for another hour. It will produce 9 lbs. of sweet pudding, and will cost rather more than 1d. a pound.

Where no milk is to be had, the first, third and fifth receipts are recommended; where there is plenty of milk the second receipt is recommended; and where there is little skim milk to be obtained the cottager is recommended to try the fourth and sixth. By means of these receipts those of the poorer classes who earn but a few shillings a week are able to be furnished daily with a cheap, good and wholesome meal.—London Times.

SERIOUS STREET ROW AT STRATFORD.—On last Monday afternoon a large party of Scotch and Irish, who had come to Stratford to celebrate the Christmas, concluded the celebration by engaging in a general fight in the main street to the serious disturbance of the peace of our usually quiet town, and the great alarm of the inhabitants. As is usual in such cases, it is difficult to learn which party commenced the melee, one party stoutly declaring it was the Irish, and the other that it was the Scotch. The Sheriff, who arrived shortly after the commencement of the fight, endeavored to arrest some of the parties but was knocked down and otherwise maltreated. The constables looked on, not daring to interfere; although there is no doubt that if they had acted with proper spirit and determination, they would have obtained assistance, and the greater part of the rioters been secured. Shortly after the Sheriff was knocked down, Justices McCulloch and Daly arrived, and the ringleaders of the Scotch party were arrested and sent to jail. A loaded pistol was picked up near the field of operations, showing that some person had come well prepared for mischief. The remainder of the rioters separated with the intention, as they said, of going home, but the fight was resumed lower down the street, and two Irishmen were stabbed, one of them only escaping with his life by the knife glancing off a rib near the region of the heart. An intellectual attempt was made by the magistrates to secure more of the rioters, but owing to the darkness and confusion they all escaped. On Wednesday, Roderick Murray, Hugh Calder and John Macqueen, three of the Scotchmen, were arrested.—One of the witnesses stated that the row commenced by the Scotch drinking an offensive toast in Gaelic, reflecting, as he supposed, upon the Irish. The parties were committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions, but were admitted to bail. We believe that it is the intention of the magistrates to arrest immediately the leaders of the Irish party, so that equal justice may be meted out to both.—Perth News.

An Irish gentleman meeting his nephew, who told him he had just been entered at College, replied, "I am extremely happy to hear it. Make the most of your time and abilities; and I hope to live and hear you preach my funeral sermon."

Military Position of Sinope.

The position and military importance of Sinope is thus illustrated in the Debats:

The town of Sinope is situated in Anatolia, on the southern shore of the Black Sea, half-way between Constantinople and Trebizond, and about a hundred leagues from each of these places. It has a population of from 8,000 to 10,000 inhabitants. The town is built on the isthmus of a peninsula, which runs out into the sea in the form of a promontory. It is the most northerly point of this immense coast. The port extends to the east of the town, but as it is not enclosed by any moles it can only be considered as an open roadstead. This roadstead is defended by batteries and by the castle of the town, a large massive construction raised in the time of the Greek emperors. To the westward of the Peninsula is another anchorage, called Ak-Liman, or the White Port. The importance of Sinope consists in its naval, arsenal and building yard, the only one in Turkey besides that at Constantinople. Ships of the line and frigates are built there; the oak cut on the surrounding mountains is very hard, and the vessels built at Sinope are considered the best in the Turkish fleet. The engineers are for the most part foreigners in the service of Turkey, and the workmen are Greeks of the country, who are paid from 10 to 12 sous a day. The fortifications of the port are incomplete, and in a bad state. In 1808, at the time of the attempt of Admiral Duckworth on Constantinople, then defended by General Sebastiani, the French Ambassador, that officer, comprehending the importance of Sinope, sent two French officers and two sub-officers to improve the fortifications.—Their first care was to erect a battery at the point of the promontory, in such a position as to be able to command both sides of the peninsula and the entrance of the roadstead. They afterwards traced out several other works of defence, some of which were never executed, and the others were not kept in repair any more than the ancient fortifications. Thus the place remained without receiving any repairs for 40 years, and those which had been lately commenced had not received the last development. The Russians in 1807 made an attack on Trebizond by sea, but were repulsed, but as they had never attempted anything against Sinope the Turks persuaded themselves they had nothing to fear, and they have just been roughly punished for their carelessness. It may be readily conceived that six ships of the line with their heavy broadsides suddenly appearing in the roadstead could soon knock to pieces such old and dilapidated ramparts. It has not been a sea-fight, since the Turkish vessels were all at anchor in the port. It appears according to the despatches that it is there that they were sunk by an irresistible superior fire, to which the Turkish batteries were not in a state to reply for any length of time. The cannonade, we are told, only lasted an hour and that space of time was sufficient to destroy the vessels, ten of which were vessels of war and three transports. If the war is to continue actively next year in Europe and in Asia, it will become a matter of great importance for the Turks to rebuild the fortifications of Sinope on the principle of modern art, and to put that place in security, not only against a coup de main like the present, but also in a state to maintain a regular siege. If the Russians were to take possession of Sinope, which they could readily do in its present wrecched and unprotected condition, they might make it a place impregnable against the Turks, and convert it into a kind of Gibraltar on the Turkish coast of the Black Sea. Established in a position of this kind, which would enable them to land a considerable body of troops, they would be even in check all the centre of Asia Minor and cut off the communication between Constantinople and the Erzeroum. The Turkish army of Armenia would then have not only to oppose the enemy on the side of Georgia, but it would have another army in its rear, and the Ottoman government would be obliged to organize a second army in Asia Minor. These considerations cannot escape the notice of the European military officers, who give strategetic advice to the Ottoman generals. The town of Sinope is built with the materials of the old Greek city, a colony of the Milesians. Sinope was the birth-place of Diogenes, and the capital of Mithridates. Lucullus took possession of it in the year 71 before Christ. The houses and fortifications present a multitude of ancient ruins confusedly heaped together. There may be seen Greek and Paphlagonian inscriptions, busts and military statues. Travellers mention having seen an entire statue, placed head downwards in the walls of the castle.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

APPREHENSION OF THE SETTLERS—PROBABLE RENEWAL OF THE CAFFIR WAR.

By the arrival of the Victoria Steamship in England, we have information from the Cape of Good Hope to the 9th ult.

The principal subject of interest was the pending fate of the Orange River Sovereignty, where Sir George Clerk, with plenary powers, was obtaining information regarding its future disposal. Great fears are entertained by the colonists that the Government will withdraw British protection, in which case they expect their farms will be taken into the hand of the Boers. Many of these farms were taken from the disloyal in 1848, and given to those who supported the Queen's authority, and the present holders think they ought to be supported in those possessions which have been stocked and improved under that impression.

The fear appears to be grounded for a conviction that after the Caffres have got in their crops they will take the first opportunity to resume hostilities. Within them are a number of Hottentots, deserters from the levies and Cape Mounted Rifles, who retain their carbines. These persons are occasionally hired by traders to cultivate land over the Kei. Having no fixed employment they live chiefly by robbery, and when the Caffres have a supply of ammunition, will readily join them in any predatory movement.

Weight of Different Kinds of Firewood.—

The following table shows the relative weight of different kinds of fire-wood, in a dry and seasoned state. Assuming the cost of cartage from the place of production to the place of consumption to be proportionate to the weight; and taking 5*l* as the cost of cartage for the heaviest description of wood the second column will show the relative cost of cartage for the different kinds:

	Lbs in a cord.	Cost of cartage.
1 Shell-bkck Hickory	4469	$1 00
2 Common Walnut	4221	0 97
3 White Oak	3821	0 81
4 White Ash	3420	0 77
5 Swamp Whortleberry	3361	0 75
6 Surub-Oak	3338	0 74
7 Apple Tree	3115	0 70
8 Red Oak	3063	0 69
9 Black Oak	3102	0 66
10 White Beech	2936	0 65
11 Black Birch	2845	0 63
12 Yellow Oak	2818	0 60
13 White Elm	2692	0 58
14 Maple	2903	0 54
15 Buttonwood	2449	0 52
16 Spanish Oak	2791	0 51
17 White Birch	2369	0 48
18 Pitch Pine	1904	0 42
19 White Pine	2368	0 42
20 Lombardy Poplar	1774	0 40

Maple is known to be the best description of wood for fuel, and to command the highest price. It has also the advantage of weighing only 2,663 lbs. a cord against 4,469 in hickory; and therefore the cost of cartage measured by the relative weight would be only about half as much in maple as in hickory. The bad economy of bringing green wood to market is shown by the fact that each cord in that state contains 1,443 lbs. of water. This Additional carriage serves no useful purpose; but, on the contrary, green wood is much less valuable for burning than dry.

A Good Example.

The following extracts from the Gentleman's Magazine will show the decided course adopted by the British Government in a former instance, of Grand-Ducal and Popish effrontery.

"While the Rev. Basil Kennet was chaplain to the English factory at Leghorn, though they exercised their religion with the utmost caution and privacy, he met with great opposition from the Papists, and was in great danger of the Inquisition. They had given secret orders to apprehend him, and hurry him off to Pisa, and to dispose of him in the severest manner. Upon notice of this design Dr. Newton, the English Envoy at Florence, interposed his offices at that Court, but could obtain no other answer than that he might send for the English preacher, and keep him in his own family as his domestic chaplain, otherwise, he must take the consequence; for, in religious matters, the Court of the Inquisition was superior to all civil powers. The Envoy communicated this answer to the Earl of Sunderland, then Principal Secretary of State for our ever to-be-remembered Queen Anne the Great. In Her Majesty's name, he immediately returned the following directions: 'Sir—Yours of the 16th and 24th I received. In answer to which I have laid the whole affair before Her Majesty, who has commanded me to tell the Grand Duke and his ministers, in Her Majesty's name, that if there be any molestation given to her chaplain residing at Leghorn, she shall look upon it as an affront done to herself and the nation, a breach of the peace, and a violation of the laws of nations; and shall, by her fleets and armies, which will be all the year in the Mediterranean Sea, not only demand, but take satisfaction for any such injury offered; and that the priest of the Grand Duke's Minister here, and all frequenters of his chapel, must expect the same treatment. And if they talk of the Pope or the Court of Rome, you must cut the matter short by telling them, Her Majesty has nothing to do with other independent princes and states. And this you must do in the most forcible manner possible. SUNDERLAND.' As soon as this letter was communicated by the Envoy to the Grand Duke, the contents were immediately imparted to the Pope and his cardinals, who so well understood the arguments of fleets and armies, that Mr. Kennet escaped their intended fury, and continued for several years to officiate as a minister of the Church of England, in a large room set apart for a chapel in the Consul's house.

☞ The advocates of the Maine Liquor Law would gain valuable information and instruction from the perusal of a very able article upon "Narcotics," &c. in Blackwood's Magazine of November. We there learn that, in all those countries, where the law of Mahommed prevails, and where the use of fermented liquors is prohibited, stimulants, more dangerous than even the bad spirits of this country are in general use; opium, preparations of hemp, &c., &c., when indulged to degrade man both mentally and physically far more than wine or whiskey. And, it will always be found that, when a government endeavors to interfere with and check feelings and tastes with which it has no right to meddle, the passions dammed up for a time, will soon find an outlet, and burst forth with greater fury than ever.

THE LAW OF EVIDENCE.

To the Editor of the Globe

"SIR,—Our law regulating the admission of testimony in Courts of Justice has undergone several alterations during the last few years, and a considerable improvement in his department has doubtless been effected. But, very inconsistently, the Legislature, after recognizing what appears to be the correct principle upon which the proceeding of the Courts should be conducted in this respect—namely, not to exclude any testimony upon the ground of interest or of crime—has just stopped short at the very point which it should have passed; and it is with a view of directing some share of public attention to this inconsistency that these remarks are offered.

Previous to the year 1849 the testimony of a witness was precluded upon several grounds; thus if he had been convicted of an infamous crime, or if interested in the event of the suit—whether as one of the parties to it or not, his testimony was not receivable. However, the opinion had begun both in England and this country to gain ground, that a more sensible course to adopt was not to prohibit the testimony of a witness upon these grounds, but to allow it to be given notwithstanding that the witness might have been convicted of crime or might be interested in the suit, although these circumstances might afford suitable matter for a jury to consider in estimating the degree of credit that ought to be attached to his evidence.

Accordingly in 1849 the 12th. Vic., chap. 70, was passed, which truly recites that "whereas the inquiry after truth in Courts of Justice is often obstructed by incapacity created by the present law, and it is desirable that full information as to the facts in issue both in criminal and civil cases should be laid before the persons who are appointed to decide upon them, and that such persons should exercise their judgment on the credit of the witness adduced, and on the truth of the matter they proceeds to enact that no person thereafter shall be excluded by reason of incapacity or crime or interest from giving evidence, but it provides that the testimony of the plaintiffs or defendants themselves shall not be receivable.

Next we had the 14th and 15th Vict., chap. 66, passed in 1851—which refers to the preceding Act, and then after reciting that "whereas it is expedient that in no case should there be any presumption of any person being entitled to evidence" proceeds to repeal the provision in the former Act by which the testimony of the plaintiffs and defendants was excluded. However, this statute was so badly and doubtfully expressed that our judges of the Courts of Common Law and of the Courts of Chancery, are said to have construed it differently; nevertheless, the effect of it was that the testimony of both plaintiff and defendant was received in our Courts of Common Law.

In 1852, however, the 15th Vict., chap. 19 was passed, by which after reciting that "whereas the inquiry after truth in Courts of Justice is often obstructed by incapacities created by law, and it is desirable that full information as to the facts in issue both in criminal and in civil cases should be laid before the persons who are appointed to decide upon them, &c. &c." It is, nevertheless, by a strange inconsistency enacted, that the testimony of plaintiffs and defendants, themselves shall be excluded; and it is to the absurdity of this enactment that I wish particularly to refer.

The inquiry after truth to which these statutes refer, is undoubtedly the great object of judicial investigation; and whether that inquiry be instituted in courts of justice or out of them, the same practical common sense rules which experience dictates will equally apply.

Now, if a sensible man were called in to inquire into a dispute between two neighbors with a view of settling it, what course would be the most likely to adopt? Undoubtedly to hear first the statements of the parties themselves; and very probably after hearing these statements he would be enabled to give a decision without further inquiry.

The very first plan which a plain man, acting as an arbitrator, would think of adopting in order to arrange a difference between two parties, would be to interrogate the disputants themselves.

The law of England has arrived at this rational point. Both plaintiff and defendant are permitted to give their evidence; and although the probability of interest warping the testimony, and the demeanor of the witness, are ill subjects for the consideration of the jury in estimating the degree of credit which should be attached to the evidence, yet all the evidence is freely received.

And in a late remarkable case in England, "Smith alias Provis against Smith," where the plaintiff brought his action to obtain a very valuable property, and endeavored to support his case by many false, though ingenious devices; and on the third day appeared personally to support his own case,—this it was, that under the searching examination of Sir Fred. Thesiger, his complicated villany was detected.

What was the cause of the departure in our Legislature from English precedent, and the suggestions of common sense, I know not. It has been said that our Judges disliked this innovation upon their ancient practice, because it often rendered their best testimony more conflicting, increased their labor, and gave an opportunity for the commission of perjury. But our present statute recognises the "inquiry after truth" to be the all-important matter, and therefore the conflict of the testimony, or the increased labor of the Judges, furnishes no sound argument for the present practice, and as for the opportunity for perjury, it might be said that all judicial investigation furnishes opportunities for it; for if the varying and conflicting testimony of different witnesses was not receivable at all, there would be no perjury.

We will suppose that A pays B £100, which he had previously owed him, but omits to take a receipt. No one is present but themselves, and there is no possibility of any other evidence. B relying upon this state of things, sues A for the money. Now, how is A prove the payment?—The advocates of the present system will say let him call B; but if B has previously denied payment, he will scarcely hesitate to support his statement by an oath. Whereas if A were permitted to testify for himself, this very circumstance would probably deter his antagonist from instituting proceedings at all. Such cases as this vary perhaps in the circumstances, but similar in principle, constantly occur. The most cruel injustice is very frequently inflicted, and all we hear is the wretched pea of the encouragement to perjury and the increased difficulty of deciding upon the opposing testimony, as at Judges are to decide by a kind of mechanical rule—the great thing being to get through their work quickly, without any regard to the real merits.

The ingenuity of lawyers is constantly at work to discover some means, so that the suit may be brought or defended in some other name than that of the real plaintiff or defendant, in order that their testimony may not be excluded.

The fact is, that this is a plain question, which it is not requisite that either judges or lawyers should be particularly called upon to decide. Public opinion in England was too strong for the continuance of the old system. Popular writers unconnected with the law by profession, ventured to denounce it as absurd; and no one has done so in a manner more interesting or convincing than Mr. Dickens himself. And it is to be hoped that another session of our Parliament will not be permitted to pass without ending our vacillating legislation on this head, by making this department of the law of evidence consistent with common sense, and in unison with British precedent.

THE ARMY.—It would appear that that the authorities are bent upon making a considerable reduction in the number of troops at present forming the Irish establishment. Several stations in the western and northern districts are to be shorn of their proportion of military; and a local paper announces that the important town of Clonmel, the capital of Tipperary, is no longer to be head quarters for even one regiment of infantry. The Artillery Brigade had been already withdrawn from that Garrison, and the 9th Regiment of Infantry is about to be replaced there by the depot of the 25th foot.

LONDON AND PORT STANLEY RAILROAD—The By-law authorising St. Thomas to subscribe for £8,500 of stock in this road, was submitted to the electors on Saturday last, the Reeve in the chair, when, after some discussion, a division took place, when a large majority appeared in favor of subscribing for the stock. A poll having been demanded, was granted by the chairman, and at the close the numbers were, for taking the stock, 63, against it, 20. This amount, together with private subscriptions, will make the total amount subscribed in St. Thomas for this road upwards of £10,000.—St. Thomas Standard.

☞ The New York Herald of the 4th. inst. says:—

"The swine harvest of the West promises an abundant yield. We are informed that three hundred and twenty-six thousand hogs have already been received at Cincinnatti, being only thirty-five thousand short of the whole number last year. They were quoted in that city yesterday at $4 70 and $4 90 per hundred pounds, while at Louisville they were selling at only $4 25. In the latter part of the day mess pork was held at $12 25 in Louisville. A private despatch states that about three hundred and fifty thousand hogs have been killed. While upon the subject, we will remark that we have in type a large amount of statistical and other information relative to the commerce of this port curing the past year, which we shall publish to-morrow."

Convocation of Parliament.

The Parliament of Canada, by a proclamation in the official Gazette, is convoked on the 8th of February next, but only pro forma, not for despatch of business.

This is not exactly in accordance with the answer of the Governor General to the address of Mr. Brown last session. This address was passed by the House, after an assurance by the Ministry that the Governor would convoke parliament at any period of the year that a majority should think the most convenient. The promise was made to avoid action being taken by the House itself to fix the time of its own session; and, after a long discussion, the beginning of February was voted by the majority to be the most convenient time for meeting. The House was given to understand by the Governor that its request should be attended to.

Unless for some good cause we cannot suppose that the request of the House would be treated with disrespect, and we therefore expect, that either satisfactory explanations will be given for delay, or parliament be called for despatch of business before the month of February will elapse the latter, it is said, will be the case.

As far as regards the abstract merits of a fixed time for the meeting of Parliament, no doubt can exist of its great utility. In England the practice of calling the Legislature at a particular period is almost as certain as in the United States, where it is fixed by Law; and in Canada it should not be tolerated that the weaknesses or exigencies of Ministers, should be urged as a reason why they should abuse public convenience, by putting off the evil day till the last moment, as we have seen has been the case for a number of years past.

A BRICK MAKING MACHINE.—The London correspondent of the Philadelphia North American says:—"Among the new inventions in this great age of Railway and town extension is one which is considered to be of importance. It is a new brick making machine. It was exhibited with success a few days since, and is calculated to turn out in a day, of ten hours, 12,000 bricks. It is an improvement upon all that has yet appeared. The improvement consists in the construction of moulding orifices or dies having rotating sides formed by vertical rollers, instead of having fixed sides as heretofore. These rollers rotate while the clay is delivered through the die, thus producing and preserving a sharpness and neatness in the edges of the brick previously unattainable. The machine prepares the clay and makes the bricks at one and the same time. One of the leading features is a continuous delivery. The machine is worked by one horse; there is a man to feed the machines, and two boys to clear off bricks at the sides. The clay, after coming out horizontally in a solid oblong mass, is cut up into a brick of the required dimensions by means of equi distant wires placed on one side and worked so as to divide at one stroke. By the ordinary process, 5,000 per day can be made by a pallet moulder, but he requires the assistance of five hands and a horse, and must work from four in the morning to sundown, on the long summer days, to accomplish it. The machine, in the same number of hours would make 20,000 bricks."

The London Standard contains the following in reference to the disaster at Sinope, which if it prove correct, leaves the Russians but little to boast of in their victory, and reduces the Turkish loss considerably.

Up to the present time the only specific accounts of the disaster at Sinope have reached this country through Russian channels. At length, however, we learn that intelligence of the event had reached Constantinople; but though a calamity was acknowledged, there prevailed there great and strange uncertainty as to its nature and extent. In the first place, there seems to have existed a very general ignorance of the presence of any considerable naval Turkish squadron at Sinope, or of the existence of any such squadron likely to have recently entered that harbour. At this remote distance such ignorance would not be surprising, but that it could prevail at Constantinople, not 300 miles distant from Sinope, seem to be matter of astonishment. Be this, however as it may, the variety of versions of the affair at the Turkish capital is remarkable; according to some statements its the only vessels at Sinope were old condemned hulks, of no value; one ring to offset this with the exception of one ship which the Russians attempted to bring away but were obliged to abandon, merely transport, emptied of their troops and stores, at the approach of the enemy as incapable of resistance, and defended only by a hurriedly erected and armed fort; the captured ship being commanded by an officer called Osman, whose dignity of Pacha is denied, and who is by this latter report reduced to the rank of a simple captain. We give these representations as they have reached us, merely observing that they derive some probability from the circumstance that the Turkish fleet said to have been destroyed was never heard of until its destruction was announced, and that the Russians, after their alleged decisive victory, made no attempt to establish themselves at Sinope. It is not, however, to be concealed that the reverse at Sinope, whatever its amount, has produced much anxiety in the Council of the Sultan. The British and French ministers have been applied to for the efficient service of the combined fleets now idle in the Bosphorus; and it is understood that four frigates—two British and two French have been in consequence sent into the Euxine.

The Grammar Schools of Canada will be materially affected by an act which will come into operation on the first of January next:—Vic., chap. 186. By this Act, Grammar and Union Schools may be united. By the ninth section, the Trustees shall meet on the first Wednesday of January to organize themselves under this Act. By the eleventh section they shall meet on the first Wednesday in February for the transaction of business—to elect a Chairman, Secretary, and Treasurer, and to remove, if they see fit, the present Master and other Teachers of the County Grammar Schools; and, all Masters appointed under the Act, must be either graduates of some University, or College, or have a certificate of qualification from a Committee of Examiners, one of whom shall be the head Master of the Normal School. We perceive by some of our Provincial exchanges that in some places the present Trustees have assumed to themselves the powers which the Act gives only to those who shall be appointed under the Act in January next, and are advertising for competent masters to be subject to an examination in January, 1854; and this, although no vacancies may exist. This is clearly outstepping their powers, and such a step, we think, is clearly premature, until after the February meeting.

PATENT MANURE FILTER.—It is stated that Mr. Dargan and Sir M. Barrington are making arrangements for the purification of the Dublin sewerage by Bardwell's patent which consists substantially of a filtering process, by which the water is made to pass through iron, scorial, charcoal, and sand, which not only impounds the dissolved matter, but is said to deprive the water, itself of much, if not all, of its offensiveness. The chief value of the process is said to consist in its producing a good marketable manure from the matter retained by the filter.

BUSINESS DONE IN TORONTO.—We are informed that Ross, Mitchell & Co., last year, sold goods, value three million of dollars—that McMaster does the next largest business in extent—that Shaw, Turnbull & Co., turn over a great deal of cash in the course of twelve months—that Mayor Bowes' business (we don't mean his city shaving business) is a very good one—and that Mr. McMurrich's share of the profit of his firm for 1853, was at least £5,000.—Message.

Cheap Telegraphing in England.

A movement has been made in England in the direction of cheap Telegraphing which we are glad to learn. The old rates of Telegraphing there were so high, as to confine its advantages to comparatively few individuals. Now, matters have changed, and we understand, from our exchanges, that the expense is so far reduced, as to put to shame the charges exacted by companies in this country. An association has been registered in England, called the Universal Electric Telegraph Company, with a capital of £1,300,000, and the list of Directors published in the London Economist, embraces many of the leading mercantile houses in Great Britain. The object of the company is, to afford throughout the United Kingdom, greatly increased telegraphic communication at a very reduced rate. They have about 800 stations; an uniform rate of six pence per message, not exceeding 20 words, to any of the stations. For each additional word beyond the 20, one half-penny is to be charged. For this reasonable tariff, the company promises messages shall be sent with the most perfect accuracy. The instruments used by the company are a recent patent of Mr. J. W. Wilkins.

Erie Railroad War.

The following which we extract from the British Colonist, deserves especial attention. To a country like Canada, where slavery is, happily, unknown, and would not be tolerated; the remarks of Mr. Boice will receive the contempt they so well merit. The superficial views now taken of everything, has an apt exemplification in the "Land of Liberty," so called, and leads us to consider liberty and justice as two different things. The baneful effect of pandering to a lawless mob, is exhibited by the members from the state of Pennsylvania, attempting to palliate the conduct of the rioters, and clearly shows how little security there is for property in a country composed of so many different interests and where the political existence of the rulers are dependent upon the frail echo of the oi Polloi, but the most vicious part is yet to be seen where the impartial Mayor of Erie is sel

PROPOSED BY-LAW.

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the time the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid annually, to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster, That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on behalf of the said Council for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say: That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached to them coupons with the signatures or initials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Seventh day of April, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham. Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Coupeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune; these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

BRITISH AMERICAN FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

OF MONTREAL,

Office No. 103, Notre Dame Street.

OFFICERS:

HENRY T. STRONG, Esq., President.
J. H. PHILLIPS, Esq., Sec'y. & Manager.

DIRECTORS:

A.A. DORRION, Esq. — J.G. BIBAUD, Esq. M.D.
A.T. STRONG, Esq. — J. DOUTRE, Esq.
A. M'DONALD, Esq. — W. HENDERSON, Esq.
J.H. PHILLIPS, Esq. — P. COOPER, Esq.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual prorection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age: Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly;—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0

0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universaly adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London, C. W. June 18th 1852.

MESSRS. RAYMOND & CO.

Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottle of your Compound Camomile Cordial, and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavour, on which depends the essential medicinal qualities, appears to be largely infused and well preserved; and as this vegetable tonic is highly beneficial in those forms of Dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone of the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with on the continent), your cordial will, I doubt not, form an invaluable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in unhesitatingly recommending the Preparation of this valuable Tonic to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

BAKING ESTABLISHMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 15, 1853.

I BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence there have been false reports, taking the advantage of Mr. Garratt, my uncle, compelling him, through false swearing, to pay my debts, as partner, which he never was. These were parties who certainly swore to falsehoods, through evil designs and malignity, which they held against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my baking business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and dexterity on the shortest notice.

HEALTH, WEALTH, AND BEAUTY.

German Eclectic Physician,

WILL, after September 30 1852, be in attendance every month as follows:—Hamilton—Norton's Hotel, 15th and 16th. Dundas—Kennedy's Hotel, 17th and 18th. Guelph—Platt's Hotel, 19 and 20th. Galt—Lowell's Hotel, 21st and 22nd—until noon. Paris—Braddock's Hotel, 23rd, 24th, and 25th—until noon. Woodstock—Hall's Hotel, 26th and 27th. Ingersoll—Spurr's Hotel, 28th. London—Hamlett's Hotel, 29th and 30th.

Dr. R. will pay particular attention to Cancers, Ulcers, Scrofula, Nervous Affections, Sore Eyes, and all Chronic Diseases. He practices upon reform principles, using nothing but Vegetable Medicines, which sustain the vitality of the system, instead of reducing the patient to the brink of the grave, which is too often the case when mineral poisons are given. Calomel, Arsenic, Antimony, the Knife and Lancet, should never be used as remedial agents. He has a well-established fact that they cause more sickness and DEATH than the Diseases they are supposed to Cure.

Dr. R. will direct his attention to those lingering diseases which are silently destroying the constitution, the symptoms of which are—a pain and dizziness in the head, pain in the side and shoulders, numbness of the limbs, pain in the bowels, irregular appetite, continuous buzzing and singing in the ears. Female irregularities, and all diseases of a delicate nature, may be trusted to him, without a betrayal of that confidence which should always exist between the patient and physician.

Persons wishing to consult with Dr. Bell can do so free of charge, and be sure of finding him Every Month at the time and place above mentioned. Charges for Medicine moderate.

Dr. Bell fully understands the German method of deserving and locating Diseases by an inspection of the Urine.

N. B.—AGUE warranted to be CURED.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, seated in the head joints or limbs: Gout, Tic Doloreux, Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spinal and Hip Complaints, Stiffness, of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diseases, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism is, in fact the vitality of life and that disease, in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the absence of this Galvanic or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. If then, we can readily supply this wonderous power when it is thus deficient, we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining magnetism or Galvanism with a fluid which has cost the inventor of this remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

CELEBRATED FAMILY MEDICINES

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,

Cures all Pains, Cramps, Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague, in the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head Ache, &c,

ENYATO CHINESE BALSAM,

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Cholic, Pains, &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them much good. I have first used it in a case of Scarlett Fever, and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Mr. Sweet's residence is in Rochester, State of New York. JOHN POTY.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.

Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no letter.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application.—Cures all Ulcerated Sores, Piles, Chilblains, tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases. Mank's Bessis is their Oil.

Try it: you will not regret it.

TO W. C. SWEET.

Dear Sir—I was about to employ one, who boasted of his superior cures in Physicians, and a Doctor, who offered to forward to me to try the Kinde, and they would have charged me a high price. I was about to employ one, when a friend recommended this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure. JOHN PERRY.

Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.

SILAS WOOD—Keeper of the Wilson Hotel.
LUTHER WILSON—Merchant.

Thousands of Testimonies of the above character as furnished.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for Pell-Evil, Fistulas, Scratches, Sand-Cracks, Old Sores with Pines Formed, Subble-Heels Fresh Wounds, Wind Galls of every description, Rheumatism, Colds, Coughs, Collar-galls, Sweeny, Cracked heels, Sprains and Bruises, Lameness or Weakness in the Joints, contraction of the Muscles, Internal Poisons, Burns and Scalds, Horn Distemper in Cattle, Hoof-Ail, Black-Hoof, &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL REASONABLE CASES.

Facts are stubborn things. The medicine is not surpassed by any as yet known for the above diseases. It is composed of Pell-Evil, Fistula, Scratches, and Sand-Cracks, than any other Medicine prepared for these diseases of the human and Cattle—no Gargling Oil excepted. As names and numerous flowery certificates from no part of the inventor of this medicine, we publish but a few from the many thousands we have in possession; but suffice to say ying in knowing.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned, have for years used and seen used Sweet's Black Oils for horses and can safely recommend it to the public as a superior preparation for scratches, galls, cuts, bruises, Mud-fever, and all diseases of every kind. It is thought much of by those who have used it. We have used many preparations for horses, but we gave the preference unhesitatingly to Sweet's Black Oils. We would advise every horse owner to keep a bottle of the above Oils on hand for its timely use will save time and money.

LONDON AGENCY,

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon any uncertain fund or contributions—the capital stock of this company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by the promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal, in 1852—has practically shown to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole would under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:—

1. GUARANTEE.

☞ Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to four-fifth's of its net amount—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportions by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premiums, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 33 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS AND PHŒNIX BITTERS

OFFICE 335 BROADWAY N. Y.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have shown, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their properties. Suffice it to say, that having been more than twenty years before the public and having the united testimony of more than Fifty Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy and Eruptions of the skin, the operation of Moffat's Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. In Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their invincible properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Poetry.

The Triple Alliance.

Upon a bank, mayhap of fog—
For in the vapors something flitting them—
Three sisters sat, and cat and dog
Ne'er hissed and snarled like two among them.

The other on the cold green grass,
Lolled wondering at the unwonted quarrel,
And whence it rose, or what it was,
Few knew, from Osborne to Balmoral.

The each had arms, each had her knight,
And each by Majesty favored;
Their jealous lovers thought the fight
To her of some advantage savored.

"Go forth, my knight, and conquer," cried
The lady's mate, who sunk on heather,
Her shawl with varied ribbons tied—
Her plaid with beryls clasped together.

"Go forth, expose that greedy maid,
Who lately had thee wear my thistle;
I like it well, for it is said
But in my service sole to bristle."

Forth sprung the knight—"My lady's claim!
For her against all charms countening;
I brave that bright imperious dame.
So lovely, were she less commanding.

Nought crave I from those folds of lace,
Nought from that crown her brow arraying;
But equal power and equal place,
With her there with that shamrock playing.

About her throne we have no feud—
But we've no harbor worth a farthing—
No, not a—would—be—Hayward—
Where rank was unacknowledged, merely Because he still delighted
In name, tho' not in action clearly.

Of all she owns and all she earns,
Poor Cinderella still may boast,
For yet full many a spirit burns,
Her sister's crushing power to stifle.

Oh! where the godmother but nigh,
Might her hard sisters meet defiance,
She comes! the Fairy Industry
Now waves the wand of self-reliance.

She comes! away with her reproach
The nibbling mice turn working horses!
The pumpkin's to a coach—
To use shall her concealed resources.

And she is rare! in bright array
Shall stand admired above her fellows,
The proud exacting girl give way,
The selfish one be more than jealous.

Ere long shall they her power perceive,
And all reluctant give attendance.
Even at the throne where she shall grieve
Her heart and hand to independence.

God save the Queen, her crown alone
The regal link that binds must unite;
God save the Queen, fair Erin's own,
Who can't refuse what heaven resigned her.

Electro-Biology and Mesmerism.

FROM THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW.

'What are we to believe?' as to Mesmerism, Electro-Biology, Odylism, Table-Turning, and (we are almost ashamed to be obliged to add) Spirit-Rapping and Table-Talking, is a question which most persons have asked themselves during the last few years, and to which the answers have varied with the amount of information possessed by the respondent, with his previous habits of thought, with his love of the marvelous, or his desire to bring everything to the test of sober sense. And thus an ascending series is formed, of which the base is composed of those utter sceptics who discredit the genuineness of all the asserted phenomena, maintaining that none but fools or knaves could uphold such nonsense; whilst it culminates in that assemblage of thorough-going believers, who find nothing too hard for 'spiritual agency, and who recognise in the wondrous revelations of a clairvoyante, and in the dispersion of a tumor—in the communications of departed spirits with their surviving friends, and in the rotation of a table—in the induction of profound insensibility during the performance of a severe operation, and in the oscillations of a suspended button—in the subjugation of the actions of one individual to the will of another, and the flexure of a hazel twig—in everything, in short, great and small, which they cannot otherwise explain—the manifestations of some occult power to be ranked among the cosmical forces, but not to be indentified with any one of those.

To the class of arnest and rigorous inquirers, whom the true philosopher, whatever be his pursuit, welcomes as his most valuable coadjutors, the Mesmerits and their allies have ever shown a decided repugnance. 'All or nothing' seems to be the motto of the latter, who act as if a rational explanation of any one of their marvels were a thing to be deprecated. In order to reconcile this discouraging treatment with their professions of readiness to court investigation, they have had recourse to the hypothesis, that, just as a damp atmosphere around an electrical machine prevents a high state of electric tension, the presence of even a candid sceptic weakens the mesmeric force: and this, not merely when he manifests his incredulity by his language, his tones or his looks, but when he keeps if concealed beneath the semblance of existence.

It is to be attributed to the difficulties which honest investigators longe ncountered, through being treated as antagonists by most of those to whom they might naturally have looked for assistance, that they have until recently done little to enlighten the public. So long as they could not make up their own minds, it was neither prudent nor right that they should attempt to guide the opinions of others; and the discreet silence which best became them, was only broken by an occasional intithation from some of our medical authorities of the direction their researches were taking.

Recent events, however, have worked a great change. The obstacles, which beset the inquiry, whilst Mesmerism alone was in question, have been overcome by the introduction of methods, in which a large number of the phenomena can be developed, without even the semblance of that exertion of power by one person over another, which was always the most suspicious feature in the Mesmeric system. The first important step was made by Mr. Braid, a surgeon in Manchester; who discovered about thirteen years since, that a state of coma passing into somnambulism (to which he gave the adpropriate designation of Hypnotism,) can be induced in numerous individuals, of all ranks, ages and temperaments; and that the phenomena of this state are so essentially the same with those of the (so-called) Mesmeric somnambulism, as to afford the most valuable assistance in the analysis of the real nature of the latter. In both the somnambulist appelrs to be incapable of controlling his ideas, his feelings or his actions; and is entirely amenable to the will of another, who may govern the course of his thoughts at his own pleasure, and oblige him to execute any command. The clue to the marvel was soon found by Mr. Braid, in the concentrated operation of that principle of suggestion which has long been known to pyschologists; and under the guidance of this idea, he has subsequently followed up the investigation with great intelligence, making no mystery of his proceedings, but courting investigation in every possible way.

In the course of his researches, Mr. Braid discovered that a kindred mental condition may occasionally be superinduced upon the waking state, without any one's even being aware of some few seconds, upon any object whatever. We ourselves witnessed a remarkable series of experiments, at least se

The Division Courts.

In the address of Mr. McKenzie, a newly appointed County Court Judge, to the Magistrates in Quarter Session at Kingston, we find the following passage. The new remedy which is given for Assault and Battery, by the Act of last Session, may often be found more satisfactory than a fine :—

An act of last session, which was introduced into Parliament by Mr. Justice Richards, amended the Act of 1850, and extended the jurisdiction of the Division Court to all personal actions, where the debt or damages claimed shall not be more than ten pounds, with certain exceptions, namely, Actions of ejectment, actions for malicious prosecutions, libel, slander, criminal conversation, execution, breach of promise of marriage &c.

By the Act of 1853, actions for assaults and batteries, false imprisonments, misfeasance and nonfeasances of various descriptions, may be brought in the Division Court, where parties do not intend to claim more than ten pounds damages. Assault and batteries, from a propensity to fight, or to resent real or imaginary injuries, often take place. Instead of going to a magistrate to have parties fined, I would recommend persons feeling themselves agrieved, for the future, to seek remedy in the Division Court; for it frequently happens that a man who has sustained some bodily injury, if he goes to the magistrate for redress, that the only satisfaction given is a small fine imposed on the offender, which is paid to the County Treasurer for County purposes. A large amount of costs find their way into the pockets of the Justice and the constable, and the injured party receives nothing but trouble and annoyance for his pains. Now, by instituting proceedings in the Division Court, the party injured is entitled to reasonable compensation, and the expenses attending the suit are trifling.

New kind of Threshing Machine.

Zimmerman's threshing machine, is in some respects different from those heretofore described. It has been received since we noticed the other machines, and what is more singular, it comes from Virginia. The most noticeable thing about it at first view is the plain, substantial manner in which it is built. It has a spiked cylinder, 30 inches long, 18 inches diameter, made of six wooden bars, with 13 spikes to each. The concave has 45 teeth, which are moveable so as to allow part to be taken out. The cylinder is 4 feet above the ground and edge of the feed apron six feet, rendering it necessary for the feeder to stand on a platform, which are suspended by ropes. The fanning mill is placed under the cylinder. The straw is fed on a level board twelve feet long, three feet three inches wide, hinged full of holes, and carried back to the fanning mill, the grain falls through, is all shaken out of the straw while it is on its carrier, and the straw is thrown off. The grain is forced up, blowing back into the screen all chaff and light grains, so that none but clear wheat enter the bag. This thresher is simple in its construction, and looks as though it would do what a number of good men have certified. It possesses a decided advantage for use at the South, over those of a more complicated character. It is held at a reasonable price. For the size suitable to six horses, $175. This is 18 feet long, 3½ feet wide, and 6½ feet high.—New York Exhibitor.

The Pope in America.

Murder will out; the cloven foot will show itself; hide away your dead Polonius where you please, the world shall still "nose him in the lobby." In America, the pope is a very quiet old gentleman, fond of a little picturesque ceremonial, but harmless and urbane; somewhat shown in his costume, and lackadaisical in speech and manners perhaps—altogether a mild-spoken, ostentatious and failed personage, as much out of his proper place, in the go-a-head city of New York, as was Chateaubriand among the Choctaws or Joana Southcote in Regent Street. Still, he is here. Not that he finds much foot on the other shores of the Atlantic, under the shade of the "Stars and Stripes;" for the native American laughs good-humouredly (he can afford it so easily!) at the ancient gentleman's grand air and dusty ermine; and he can only keep up a scanty following out of the swarms of Irish who perpetually arrive at the Castle-garden. Nevertheless, the old gentleman has teeth; and though he carefully preserves them from the public sight, showing only a rosy lip (stained with blood it may be!) from which the honey drop comes, and the odor of spring's, still the ugly fang—the panther's incisor—is sometimes seen by accident or mistake. It was so a few days ago. Some new bishop had been taking the oath of obedience to the old gentleman: it was said that these oaths contained nothing contrary to American laws,—and the copies of them sent to the journals bore out this remark. People who were sending telegraphs to Canada or New Orleans, or starting for the Mississippi, the Gulf of Mexico or San Francisco—read the oath—winked at the folly—and launched the lightning or pursued their journey in the fiery car, as the case might be, as profoundly indifferent and contemptuous of the old gentleman and his mumery as they would have been at the tricks of Mumbo Jumbo, in the middle of Broadway. And so the mummy went on, until a lynx-eyed Argus of the press found out that the printed oath was not the oath sworn, but a false version of it. Old Ben reminds us of the old truth, "that the devil can equivocate as well as a shop-keeper!" so, it appears, can popes and pope's nuncio. Archbishop Hughes, and the mob of minor dignitaries. One of the choice passages sworn, but not printed, ran thus:—"I swear to persecute and make war upon, with all my might, heretics, schismatics, and rebels, against my said master or his successors." The American law says there shall be no "persecution for religion's sake in that country;" the bishops swear then that they will break the law. And what say Americans to this? Many laugh again louder and deeper, and send out ships to open Japan and find new ocean routes, or launch the electric current, or ride on the wings of the air from shore to shore, giving the subject not another thought. Others make grave faces, knit their brows and clinch their hands, and talk of rolling back the tide of Italian guile upon Europe. Fears there are—reasonable fears, that goaded by the insult and wrong so often done across the Atlantic by the Irish priests, America will lose her hand on the Irish emigrant and refuse him those political rights and franchises which she now confers. If she did so, who would blame her?

☞ Scarcely a day passes that does not bring to light some fresh instance of Ministerial jobbing, speculation or peculation. We have had the Toronto Ten Thousand Pound job,—the Grand Trunk Debenture job of Fifty Thousand Pounds,—the Timber License job,—the Sault Ste. Marie Job,—the Red Fine job,—the Point Levy job,—the Ten Thousand Pounds Court House Debenture job,—and the Essex Clergy Reserve job of Mr. Cameron, with a host of others too numerous to mention. In these performances the Ministers have themselves pledged the leading characters and gathered the nuggets, and when the heads of departments thus use their official position—their official power—and their official information for their personal advantage, of course they must be silent when the subordinates in their offices venture on the same slippery path and enter on a little speculation on their own account. That such has been the case in some of the public departments, we have, for some time, had reason to believe, but whether with master or with man the difficulty of getting at any positive evidence of such delinquencies is so great, that proof of the fact can seldom be given. We have however, been on the watch for some time, and we believe we can now lay before the public something like evidence of such a practice in the following letter which has fallen into our hands. We have taken care to satisfy ourselves of its genuineness, and that the writer is one of those hangers on of the Government who are ever to be seen prowling about the Government offices without any ostensible business there, but in reality and for a consideration to do sub rosa, what the officials themselves cannot safely meddle in. For obvious reasons we suppress the names of the writer and of the party to whom it is addressed:—

MAN LOVES—WITH A SAVING CLAUSE.—An Old Naid, who confesses to thirty five says:—"She doesn't believe—not a bit of it—in the nonsense that man talk about breaking their hearts! It's her firm belief there never was a man yet who broke his heart—or if there was, that he broke it as a lobster breaks his claws, another one shooting up very quickly in its place."

"WHO'S DAT A KNOCKING AT DE DOOR?"—Alfred de Musset's proverb tells us very positively that "Il faut qu'une Porte soit ouverte, ou fermée." The Emperor Nicholas seems to be of the same opinion, and he is now trying with all his might and main, both on land and water, to have the Porte shut up as quick as he can. We hope he will only succeed in having the Porte slammed in his face.

Roman Catholic journals are often parading names of persons who have recently joined their communion; but it may be stated with safety, that where one unites with the Church of Rome one hundred leave it. A church in Brussels, which less than a dozen years ago only numbered twenty members, now contains one thousand, the greater part of whom were once Romanists. Many members of this Protestant Church are holding small meetings among themselves for worship, and are seeking to bring other of their former co-religionists under the influence of the [illegible]

Irish Encumbered Estates Commission.

The work of the Encumbered Estates Act is one of the largest transactions, and one of the most summary processes, ever attempted in a time of peace, and from purely friendly motives. It is a confiscation without its injustice, its wantonness, its impolicy, and its sting. The huge dimensions of the measure, the estates, the acres, the proprietors over whom it extended, and the marvellous accord and facility of its execution, excite the admiration of all who know anything of Irish property and its endless entanglements. The proceedings of this efficacious court are before us in a series of tables, the figures of which attest at once the boldness and the foresight of the scheme. In the short space of four years—that is, from the 21st of October, 1849, to the same day, 1853—there have been lodged no less than 2,922 petitions for the application of the Act. The total produce of the sales have been £10,430,483; the number of lots sold in various manners has been 5,809; their aggregate rental, £729,337, besides £93,613 in the shape of rent charges of various denominations; the total number of acres, 1,691,702; and the purchasers, 4,214. All this has been done in a space of time which is often found barely to suffice for the conveyance of a single property in this comparatively unmvolved country. This army of buyers and sellers has been satisfied, this territory has changed hands, this chaos has been converted into something like order, within four short years.—"There are," we are told in a note to the tables, "1,600 boxes of title deeds deposited in the Record office, containing upwards of 100,000 documents and muniments of title." What an antiquity of trouble, what a prescription of impossibility do those figures denote! A hundred thousand documents and muniments of title! Surely, when the work is done, this mountain of spent and refuse legality will be committed to the flames like the books of the sorcerers. Let them no longer burden the earth, and crush the energies and intellect of man. Nature itself is our guide, and instructs us to dissipate and destroy that which we can no longer hold together for any good purpose. Why should not the relics of Irish insolvency be consigned to the grave, or scattered to the elements, like nobler matter, when its life is out and its work is done?

On looking further into the details of the several tables, perhaps the first reflection that will generally present itself is the regular working of what has been often described as an irregular measure. In the table giving the number of petitions lodged per month during the four years that the two Acts have been in operation, it is very true that the first twelvemonth shows the highest figures; but for the three succeeding years the monthly figure is still very high, the average being considerably more than a petition a day. Indeed, looking to the very last dates, there seems little reason to doubt that, for years to come, as long as this remedy is open, there will always be found people ready to seek its aid. Thus in June and July, the last months of the first Act, there were as many as 99 petitions; and no sooner was it renewed on Nov. 15th, de vo to the several provinces and various descriptions of property. It has not been confined chiefly to districts of notorious poverty, or exclusively to land. The total for Leinster is £2,768,210; for Connaught, £2,218,762; for Munster, £3,270,286; and for Ulster, £2,173,202. Now, it is true that the first and last of these sums bear much less proportion to the wealth of Leinster and Ulster than the other sums do to the comparative poverty of Connaught and Munster still, it was hardly anticipated that such generally well-to-do provinces as the former would take such a large benefit of the Act. This is still more remarkable when we come to the cities, where it is evident that the estates taken into the Court must have consisted rather of houses than of land. Thus, for the city of Dublin alone we find £2,490,570. For the town of Belfast, £283,905. Again, on the first suggestion o the measure, it was described as a species of forced and even fraudulent sale under distress, by which English land-jobbers were to rush upon Ireland and possess themselves of its soil on their own terms. Indeed, some of the advocates of the measure favored this idea by making much of the English capital and Scotch industry that was now to pour into the land. These anticipations have been signally disappointed. Out of the £10,430,483 produced by the sales, only £1,779,608 is set down to English, Scotch and foreign purchasers; while out of the 4,214 individual purchasers only 181 were English and Scotch. Thus, the Irish themselves have been the foremost and chief to seek the end of the Act, and they have done so from no other motive than the simple one of extricating themselves and their estates from hopeless embarrassment.

Why cannot a court which has answered so well be invested with a more permanent and extensive jurisdiction? Its power appears not so much in the amount of the sales as in good price, and the number of wealthy merchants, gentlemen and farmers substituted for squireens and cotters, or the sum of money realised, as in the number of chancery suits it has suddenly cut short in a green old age. It has extinguished nine suits more than fifty years old, ten others more than forty, thirty-nine others over thirty, ninety-seven others over twenty, 256 others over ten, and 583 others more than three years old. Altogether, 974 suits in Chancery have disappeared in this court, and probably some hundred thousands pounds a-year rescued from the abyss of litigation. Yet, there are no complaints at all events, on the part of the suitors. Nobody appeals to the public on behalf of his rights, rudely extinguished by this tyrannic arbitrator. Nobody mourns the cessation of a correspondence familiar as the handwriting of brothers and wives that informed him, month after month, of gleams of hope, of steps to be taken, of hostilities to be met, and bills to be paid. It is true that many an imaginary estate is now among the things that have been. The nominal owner of Castle Rackrent no more enjoys that airy rank; but then ho knows what he has, and, though his present pittance in the funds is barely a tenth of what he once thought his own, yet he gets his interest half-yearly, he is not shot at when he goes for it, nor is he obliged to hand over nine-tenths of it to a relentless mortgagee. A small certainty is a good beginning, whereas a burdened and disputed inheritance is always on its last legs, keeping woole families in perpetual insolvency and discredit. It is Young Ireland that the Encumbered Estates Act has given us, and as it continues in operation, we trust to see more of the breed; farmers with money to work their land, and landlords who can afford to let the farmer get a living out of it.

Protocols.

From the Perth Standard.

Mr. Hincks has "told us his mind" upon the Reserve Question, in a letter to a Radical chum, Stephen Richards, Esq., a Toronto lawyer, and brother of the fortunate Judge. We have no objection of course to Radical Cabinet councillors telling all about their Cabinet affairs to the Cheroes of "Leather and Literature," or any members of the "Black Brigade," if they see fit and know no better. And marking such letters "private" and yet telling the party receiving them, he may do what he likes with them, is only one of those Hibernianisms for which we can forgive any Milesian, even Mr. Hincks. But some ideas in this letter are really worth noting, considering whence they came.

Mr. Hincks mounts his stilts upon the subject of Ministerial Responsibility, and rates his brother Rads who have squabbled with him soundly, for daring to have any opinions at all, seeing they had no responsibility.

And he says, the "members of the Government have their public character staked upon the issue." Now we deny this. Ministers are by no means to be white-washed, because they may happen to please (though they will be troubled to do that), all the hungry expectants, whose mouths water for slices of the Church lands.—The "public character" of Mr. Hincks and company (if not already gone) may with much more truth be said to be staked upon the result of certain enquiries into a few public frauds. The idea of a man talking of "public character," in the face of the evidence lately given in a certain case in Chancery, is rather too good.

And the Hyena actually dares to indulge in a snarl at the opposition of the Conservatives to the Rebel Bill. "In 1849 the minority were so clearly in the wrong, that the sysympathies of all lovers of freedom throughout the world were against them," saith the veracious Francis. Now that's a bouncer! "They received," he adds, "little sympathy from British Statesmen." Did they not? What do you call the opposition in the Lords and Commons? And what say you to the fact, there full admitted, that the Bill would not have passed had not Lord Elgin most improperly prejudged the question, which was an imperial one, and thus the vote was only not nay, because nay would have been a vote of want of confidence in Lord Elgin and through him in Earl Grey?

It is really sturnge that the Inspector-General cannot tell a knot of Radicals that he intends the Reserve question for another election disbecause it would then serve a purpose, without in the same breath slandering a set of men without whose loyal efforts "this Canada" might have been now no part of the real of England.

The Maine Liquor Law.

From the Quebec Chronicle.

The advocates of the Maine Liquor Law would gain valuable information and instruction from the perusal of a very able article upon "Narcotic's, &c." in Blackwood's Magasine of November. We there learn, that, in all those countries, where the law of Mahomed prevails, and where the use of fermented liquors is prohibited, stimulants, more dangerous than even the bad spirits of this country are in general ure; opium, preparations of hemp, &c., &c., when indulged to degrade man both mentally and physically far more than wine or whiskey. And, it will always be found that, when a government endeavors to interfere with and check feelings and tastes with which it has no right to meddle, the passions dammed up for a time, will soon find an outlet, and burst forth with greater fury than ever.

History has furnished us with many instances of the fatal consequences that result from this meddling spirit.

A Parliament that had murdered its King, determined to extend its patronage only to those whose claim to sanctity was thoroughly established. Now this in itself was all very proper; but the consequence was, that every one assumed (at least externally) the garb of sanctity, thus adding the crime of hypocrisy to his other vices. We all know what followed—again the boiling passions of years were free from restraint, and swept before them in their irresistible rush every vestige of decency, and have left an indelible blot upon the history of our country. Numerous incidents might be added of the evil consequences of Legislatures interfering in matters which unquestionably ought not to be under their controul.

We much fear that the strict prohibition by law of the sale of fermented liquors, will largely increase the consumption of opium in those states where that law prevails.

Should the use of opium become general on this continent, the evils we now deplore, the drunkenness that is so frequent among us, would be exchanged for evils a thousand times more dreadful, and intoxication a thousand times more terrible. Moral compulsion we believe to be the most efficacious, the only agent for overcoming such vices. No despot would have dared to pass such a law as the Maine Liquor Law. But the affair became ridiculous, when a similar law was tried to be forced upon the people of this country, by those who were daily seen quaffing pots of porter, some of these gentlemen occasionally enjoyed an after process, only employed in extreme cases, called "being tucked up."

Our American brethren, though some time domesticated on this continent, have still the Anglo Saxon partiality for fermented liquors, and certainly if the gratification of them is denied in one form, they will try to find it in another.

PERSIA.—The following is given from the Bombay Gazette as the substance of a private Persian letter, dated Isapham, Sept. 29:—"All Persia is thrown into a state of surprise and anxiety by the disappearance of his Majesty the King of Persia from Teheran, with 30,000 cavalry, 1000 pieces of cannon, and 30,000 camels loaded with ammunition. We are completely at a loss to conjecture the object of the expedition or the place of its destination. Some surmise that his majesty has hastened to co-operate with Turkey against the lawless aggressions of Russia, while others with better reason are of a different opinion. Persia's uniting with Russia in the present crisis would at once excite the animosity of the Soonnees (as all the Turks belong to that sect), and a religious war might be the upshot.

A communication from Berlin says:—It is credibly asserted that the Shah of Persia has declared war against England, as well as against Turkey, at the instigation of Russia. This statement must be received with caution.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Debats says the rupture of Diplomatic relations between Persia and England is officially confirmed and that Persia has concluded a treaty of alliance offensive and defensive with Russia against Turkey.

The Chief Justice of the Common Pleas.

(From the Examiner.)

In the Court of Common Pleas, on Wednesday, the Lord Chief Justice Jervis was safely delivered of a whole litter of jests, which, we are happy to add, did extremely well, being welcomed with shouts of laughter. The Chief Justice is what is termed in the classical language of play-bills, a screamer. He is a perfect Momus on the bench.

The plaintiff in the action, Smith v. the Australian Navigation Company, was stating the hardships he suffered in his passage home on board the the Melbourne from bad accommodation and worse fare; and amongst other instances declared he could not touch the pork, as it was green when cut up. This so tickled the learned wag on the bench, that he could not contain himself, and interposed the facetious remark:

The Chief Justice. It had, perhaps, come from the Emerald Isle.—(laughter.)

Witness continued—He could not bear the smell of the preserved meats. The moment a tin was opened he was obliged to leave the room.

The C. J.—That was cuddy accommodation. The second joke seems to have alarmed the court, for there was no laughter; it was, indeed, no laughing matter, and becoming serious.

But presently the C. J. broke out again. An other witness deposed:

As complained to the steward that the beef had the hair on it, and he was told it was buffalo hump, and they ought to charge for it.

Upon which quoth the C. J.:

Like the egg with a chicken in it.

The facetious ti having so strongly seized the Chief Justice, there was nothing he could not turn to jest, and the court was well nigh convulsed with his next pleasantry:

Mrs. Morgan Examined—She came home with her husband. The beef was not eatable, for a woman particularly, they could not get their teeth into it.

The C. J.—Why for a woman? Oh, they can't bite so hard as the men—(laughter.)

The Latin writer says, that there is nothing sillier than a silly laugh, but we deny it, for a because it would then serve a purpose, without in sillier thing a fortiori must be the attempt to raise a silly laugh by a silly attempt at jocularity.—Crooker rhymes with joker, says Goldsmith's "Good-natured-man;" and alliteration, perhaps as potent as rhyme, jokes Jervis with jest, joke and jocularity.

THE GOOD OLD DRINKING DAYS.—When every Jack had his Gill.

Eccentricities of the British Lion.

No one can forget the virulence with which Napoleon III. was habitually slandered in the British journals, while his position on the French throne continued to be precarious; and the fulsome adulation which now reaches him from the same quarters, is tolerably perceptible. Mr. D'Israeli, in the Press, makes this sarcastic comment upon so surprising a revolution:

"Amid the strange vicissitudes of the life of the Emperor of the French, none afford a more startling contrast than the tone and temper in which he is viewed by the court, the government, and the people of this country at the present moment, and the spirit in which his name and conduct were considered by them less than a year ago. Less than a year ago the most considerate deavors to interfere with and check feelings and tastes with which it has no right to meddle, the passions dammed up for a time, will soon find an outlet, and burst forth with greater fury than ever.

History has furnished us with many instances of the fatal consequences that result from this meddling spirit.

A Parliament that had murdered its King, determined to extend its patronage only to those whose claim to sanctity was thoroughly established. Now this in itself was all very proper; but the consequence was, that every one assumed (at least externally) the garb of sanctity, thus adding the crime of hypocrisy to his other vices. We all know what followed—again the boiling passions of years were free from restraint, and swept before them in their irresistible rush every vestige of decency, and have left an indelible blot upon the history of our country. Numerous incidents might be added of the evil consequences of Legislatures interfering in matters which unquestionably ought not to be under their controul.

We much fear that the strict prohibition by law of the sale of fermented liquors, will largely increase the consumption of opium in those states where that law prevails.

Should the use of opium become general on this continent, the evils we now deplore, the drunkenness that is so frequent among us, would be exchanged for evils a thousand times more dreadful, and intoxication a thousand times more terrible. Moral compulsion we believe to be the most efficacious, the only agent for overcoming such vices. No despot would have dared to pass such a law as the Maine Liquor Law. The Russo-Turkish War.

The following note does much honor to the Turkish government, and will no doubt be appreciated by the commercial community:

Note of the Sublime Porte, to his Excellency, the Austrian Internuncio, dated the 52nd Safer, (November 23):—

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's Note, dated the 9th of this month, by which you have informed me that the Turkish ports, shall be stopped and considered as good prizes. The sentiments of conciliation and moderation of my august and sovereign, known as they are to all the world are a sufficient guarantee that he will never consent to such a measure; and I believe I may at once express the hope that your Excellency, with the fairness which characterizes you, will consider, as we do, that the report of such a declaration is but a malevolent invention. The notification which has in reality been addressed to Russian merchants contains nothing more than the notice that they are to quit the Ottoman ports in fifteen days.

Before the Note of his Excellency could have been communicated, the Grand Admiral had already inquired in what manner he should act towards those who did not conform themselves to that notice, and he received orders to submit all cases of that kind to the Sublime Porte, in a supposition that a prolongation of the delay might be referred to serious causes.

The Sublime Porte knows too well how the Russian authorities in Moldavia and Wallachia have molested and vexed the Ottoman merchants and ships, by ordering them to quit the Principalities in 48 hours; nevertheless the Imperial Government reflecting that the present war is carried on only between the two governments, and that commerce out not to suffer from it, will never depart from the system of moderation which it has adopted; and it will be always disposed to accord to Russian vessels all possible facilities which do not occasion prejudice to the rights and it terests of its own subjects. In conformity with those principles, and in virtue of an imperial decree, the Ottoman authorities have been ordered, not only to afford to Russian merchant ships which from good cause may prolong their stay in a Turkish port all tee time that may be necessary for them, but also, in case when Russian ships, passing from an Ottoman port to the Black Sea, or the Mediterranean, may be constrained, not by commercial causes, but by contrary winds, to take shelter in any other Turkish port, to receive them amicably until the weather changes; and also to afford them every assistance of which they may be in need. As relates to the commerce with Europe, the Imperial Government will never permit any impediment to be offered to it, considering that, in consequence of the scarcity of corn, now so severely felt, every facility should be afforded to it. Considering, moreover, that Russian ships about to carry grain to the Black Sea, or the Mediterranean are at this moment either laden or not yet so, and on account of the short distance they have yet to go, a very long term is not necessary for them, they shall have granted to them a further term of 45 days, during which they shall be enabled to effect, without any obstacle, the entry of the Bosphorus on coming into the Black Sea, and going out of the Dardanelles.

Lastly, as regards Russian merchant ships which are on the coast of Europe or Africa, or on the ocean with cargoes belonging to merchants of friendly countries, we believe that a term of three months will be sufficient for them to return by the Dardanelles into the Black Sea; and instructions to this affect have been sent to the officers commanding the two straits. Orders have, in like manner, been given to the officers in command of ships of war not by any means to molest during that period the merchant ships under the British flag.

The Sublime Porte does not doubt that the foregoing is conformable with the desire expressed by your Excellency, and also to the interests of those above mentioned.

I have the honor, &c.,

RESCHID.

REASONS FOR MARRYING.—Dr. Southey, in Espriella's Letters, gives a new mode of marriage and divorce, as in use in Bristol until 1832:—

"The qualification for voting differs at different places. At Bristol a freeman, a daughter conveys it by marriage. Women enter into the heat of party even more eagerly than men; and when the mob is more than usually mischievous, are sure to be at the head of it. In one election for that city, which was violently disputed, it was common for the same woman to marry several men. The mode of divorce was, as soon as the ceremony was over and the parties came out of church, they went into a churchyard, and shaking hands over a grave, cried, 'Now, death do us part;'—away then went the man with his new qualification to vote, and the woman to qualify another husband at another church."

HANDSOME MEN.—Fancy Fern, a correspondent of the Boston Olive Branch, thus replied to an individual who said somebody was not calculated to win a lady's heart because he was not handsome: "Begging your pardon, Solomon, that's a great mistake? It is quite unessential that a man should be handsome. Let him pray the gods in the first place to make him a gentleman; a gentleman at home as well as abroad. Let him stipulate for a fine figure and courtly manner, leave it to their discretion after that to shape his eyes nose and mouth, provided they don't make them perfectly hideous. Save us from your plaid paisted oorder invested, big cravated, moustached, colonge sprinkled, bejewelled, brainless exquisite, give us a well informed, plainly-dressed self possessed masculine; perfectly at home upon all subjects, foreign and domestic; neither cringing to the great, nor opposing to the little who puts one hand to his sword and the other on his heart when a woman's name is mentioned; who saised no blush on the cheek of humble innocence who holds in contempt no living thing that God has made who can pity the weak and erring without a parisaical reviling; who can argue without loss of temper and dignity, who scorns a bribe or an oath; who has an arm for trembling age, a smile for prattling infancy, and a strong brave heart for the opposed and defenceless. But a "pretty man; a pink end white- Sir Brainless?" the united work of a tailor, hatter, shoemaker and perfumer! Heaven save the mark Woman know better!

The Salmon Manufactory on the Tay.

The ponds for this purpose are situated on the river bank near Storemountfield, the spawning boxes being 16 feet above the summer level of the river. The water which supplies the ponds is taken from Storemountfield lade (but owing to the impurity of the Tay during spates, a supply is also to be taken from a neighbouring spring), by a pipe with a valve into a filtering pond; from thence it is carried by a canal along the upper end of the spawning boxes, through which it runs. These boxes are 84 feet long by one foot six inches broad, and three feet deep. They are placed with a fall of six inches, so as to allow the water to flow freely through them, and are partly filled—first, with a layer of fine gravel, next coarser, and lastly, with stones somewhat coarser than road metal. In distributing the ova, it is gradually poured out of the vessel which holds it, at the upper end of the box. The water flowing downwards carries it amongst the stones, under which it settles down, and by gently applying a few buckets of water at the upper end of the boxes the ova is taken down and distributed equally amongst the gravel. When the young fry are in a proper state they are allowed to escape into a pond situated at a foot lower than the boxes, where they will be fed and allowed to remain until such time as they are in a fit state to be turned into the river. This pond is not yet made, but will be finished by the time the fry are hatched. Great care has been taken to prevent any animal entering with the water that would prey upon the young fish. Mr. Ramsbottom, from Clitheroe (who has experimented successfully for the Messrs. Ashworth on the Lough Corrib waters, in Ireland), has the sole management of the Tay ponds. Saturday was a remarkably fine day for the season, and we were privileged in being present at the operation of stripping the fish. When we arrived Mr. R. had already got about 15,000 ova in round tin cans, and he showed us an oval-shaped tin box with a lid, which contained a small male fish swimming in water, which he said was waiting for his mate; presently the net was shot in the Tay at the mouth of the Almond, when two fine female fish, ripe for spawning, from 18 to 20 lbs. weight, along with a small male fish, were caught. Mr. R. having taken the large female in his left hand, drew his fingers firmly down both sides of the belly of the fish, when the ova flowed in a stream into the tin box formerly mentioned, in which there was a few inches of water; the fish was instantly returned to the river, and after a short time sailed off as if nothing had happened to it. After the ova had been washed, by the water being poured on and off—care being taken never to allow it to be exposed to the air—the male fish was brought forth and at this time had been in the river under the fold of the net) and manipulated in the same manner as the female—only a small portion of the melt being required. On the melt being shed, a slight change was seen to take place in the colour of the ova, which became paler. Water was again poured on and off, when the operation was complete. The ova was then poured into round cans and carried [illegible] turned white, instead of being a fine salmon colour. Mr. R. said they were barren ova. In the month of March the fry will have burst their shell, when we hope to report further.

Disasters on the Lakes During the present year.

The Buffalo Express of yesterday occupies two columns of a list of the disasters on the lakes during the past year, made up by Mr. Rounds, agent for the North Western Insurance Company. During the year there have been two hundred and sixty-six disasters, of these nineteen occurred in April, thirty in May, seventeen in June, eleven in July, twenty-eight in August, 30 in September, 39 in October, 8 in November and 12 in December. Six steamers, two propellers and 30 sail vessels were a total loss for the season entirely. The number of accidents exceeds those of last year by 27, while the loss of property is less by £118,586. The great decrease in loss of life and property by collision shows a very gratifying result of the first years operations of the new law, relating to vessels propelled by steam, and the improved system of lights. With but one exception, (the steamer Ogdensburgh Wave on Lake Ontario—no lives have been lost on any of the regular passage steamers by any accident whatever.

The loss by collision in 1852 was $261,950, and loss of do 206, while that of 1853, is of life 81 and of property by collision only $55,828—in some instances the amount of loss as above stated has been under of estimate, but great care and pains have been taken to procure in each case the opinion of competent men who were most familiar with the circumstances, and in one or two instances sufficient information could not be obtained to form any estimation of amount of loss.

HINTS TO LADIES.—Men of sense—I speak not of boys of eighteen to five-and-twenty, during their age of delustability—men who are worth the trouble of falling in love with, and the fuss and the fuss and inconvenience of being married to, and to whom one might, after some inward conflicts and a course, perhaps of fasting and of humiliation, submit to those ill-contrived vows of obedience which are contracted at the altar—such men want no dolls for their companions; and women who would suit such men are just as capable of loving fervently, deeply as the Ringletins full of song and sentiment—cannot tie her boot-strings. Fanny if she has to lace her boots, never in her life brushed out her beautiful hat—would prick her delicate fingers with pinkinsewing but who can work harder than a factory girl upon a lamb's wool shepherdess, dance like a dervise at Almack's, ride like a fox-hunter, and whilst every breath of air gives her cold in her father's gloomy county house, and she cannot think how people can endure the climate, she can go out to dinner parties in February and March, with an inch of sleeve and half a quarter of bodice.—Mrs. Thompson.

VEGETABLE PEARS.—We are indebted to Dr. Holland for some vegetables quite new to us, called Vegetable Pears. They were raised on the plantation of Mr. Comton, on Oyster Creek, and are about the size and shape of very large pears. We understand they are a tropical production being brought from Havanna. The pear is planted in the ground, and produces a vine of most luxuriant growth, running a great distance and requires some support to keep it from the ground. It is said to make an excellent arbor. The fruit grows pendant from the vines like gourds, and is nearly white. This vegetable is boiled whole, and then sliced and eaten with butter, the taste resembling that of green peas. It is said to be very prolific, two or three vines yielding enough to supply a common family.—Galveston Texas.

QUEBEC, September 15, 1853.

Dear Sir,—An unusual heavy press of business prevented my earlier replying to your letter of the former date, and now hasten to reply to yours of the 4th, handed me yesterday.

To tell you the truth, I am somewhat tired of giving lists of Locations, &c., but if you can find any one who will PAY for each vacant Lot as a location I give, I AM OPEN TO BUSINESS. In the meantime I send you the list of all the war losses unpaid. I have had much trouble to get up a complete list, and hope you may at last be a little successful.

Yours in haste to arve Post,

To————, Esq.,
Toronto, C. W.

Accompanying this letter is a long list of the war claims still unsettled, and the names of the parties entitled thereto, with the amount awarded to be paid to them annexed. Here then is a valuable field for speculative gentlemen from Malcolm Cameron to Francis Hincks—and as it would be a thousand pities that so much valuable information should be lost to the public, it might not be a bad speculation on our part were we to declare like the writer of this letter, that WE ARE OPEN TO BUSINESS with any one who will PAY. Really these are not times to give information for nothing, and it would not be fair for us to spoil the market on these official speculators, our price will therefore be high.

But badinage apart, it is melancholy to think that official corruption pervades all from the highest to the lowest in some of our Government offices; and here is a clear case of a willingness to disclose official secrets by a man who for "PAY" is "OPEN TO BUSINESS."

Gems from Punch.

Clergymen in the Farce of "Turning the Tables."

Table turning seems to be turning the heads of the parsons, and Spirit Rapping is likely to give a rap to certain Reverends which they will not speedily recover from. We confess to some experience in the practice of Spirit Rapping in connection with Tables, but the spirits employed in rapping have always been in tumblers of one kind or another. We have frequently suspected Satanic agency in some portion of our furniture, particularly in a quantity of cheap stuff which we purchased at a furniture mart, and which is scarcely worth the rap we have bestowed on it. We are in possession of a round table which is subject to fits of groaning and creaking, with an occasional tendency to the splitting of its sides, as if in very mockery of merriment. We must confess that the refractory table has been occasionally a good deal put upon.

The Clerical Table Turners seem to imagine that the Satanic Agency is confined to a particular kind of furniture, but our own opinion is, that we are just as likely to find the "old gentleman" in the chair, as in any other portion of our moveables. We do not see why the presence of the evil one should be confined to the work of the cabinet-maker or the carpenter, and indeed there are several articles of hardware which appear to be liable to visitations from invisible beings. Our own stock of crockery is undoubtedly exposed to such contingencies, for we now and then find an amount of breakage which, if our servants are to be believed, has not been pone by any earthly agency.

Government Appointments.

We have latterly observed a great deal of growling about the Legal appointments which have been made in the new counties. We are free to admit that we know not how to reconcile this seeming contradiction, viz: that while the Legal Jurisdiction of the county judge is almost every year increasing the [illegible] certainly places the qualification of Mr. Wilkes, the new appointment for Grey, at a very low point. But all these former appointments become comparatively insignificant, compared with the new Sheriff of Ontario; we present our readers with the remarks of the Intelligencer, and the facts which have justified them. Can a Ministry be sunk lower, but we beg pardon, a Ministry is a misnomer a political banditti might suit better. We sincerely trust that at the meeting of the Provincial Parliament, these gross acts may form matter for enquiry, and the test of independence or subservency, attach to each candidate for future Parliamentary honors by the votes:

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Quebec, 27th December, 1853.

His Excellency, the Administrator of the Government, has been pleased to make the following appointment, viz:

"Nelson Gilbert Reynolds, Esquire, to be Sheriff of the County of Ontario."

Notwithstanding the jobbing in Debentures and Canal speculations, we were hardly prepared for the above, and must confess that we were surprised when on our table our eyes gazed upon the Gazette containing the appointment of Nelson Gilbert Reynolds, to the Shrievalty of Ontario. Had the Ministry raked the Province from Gaspe to Sandwich, they could not have made a more corrupt appointment, but being regardless of consequences, when it is necessary to shelve one who stands in the way of the party, they do not hesitate to heap honors upon public defaulters, and those who have been dismissed from every office of trust which they ever held, and before we close, we shall shew that this appointment is one of them, and then leave it to the people of Ontario to say whether they will be satisfied with the selection of officers, which a corrupt and base ministry has made for them.

It may not be known at a distance, that there is no little strife among certain parties here, respecting the Registry office, which is expected shortly to become vacant, and that certain letters have appeared in the Radical papers, commendatory of the Government for appointing a relative of the Hon. John Ross to the office, which letters have been attributed, how true we know not, to the newly made sheriff, who be it remembered, was a candidate for the office, and also that a bitter and sarcastic letter has appeared in the Leader, the Government organ, in answer to these letters, giving reasons why Mr. Reynolds should not receive an appointment

Orangeism in Dorchester

On Monday Evening the 16th. instant, the Brethren of L. O. L. 152, met in their splendid new Hall; and after the general business had been gone through, it was unanimously resolved, that the Lodge should be called Harrietsville Lodge, in honor of the Lady of the Right Worshipful Companion, in command of the Royal Scarlet Chapter for the Co. of Middlesex, and worshipful Master of No. 152; in whose house the Lodge meetings were held for upwards of five years; and now has given them a free deed of the land on which the Hall stands.

The Lodge being duly closed, Mrs. McMillan, and several other Ladies, were introduced bearing a magnificent Bible, when Mrs. McMillan came forward, and in a very feeling and christian manner and stated that believing our Institution, to be founded on Truth, herself, and other, ladies, favorable to our noble cause, presented, what they considered, though not the most costly, yet, in their opinion, the best and most suitable gift they could possibly present us with, namely, the BIBLE, which she now had the honor to present in the name of the Ladies of Dorchester.

The R. W. K. Companion John McMillan, then came forward, and fully explained the nature of our Association, and clearly proved that the noble donors of the the Bible, were correct in believing that our Institution was founded on truth. That we took that precious volume, and it only, for our rule of faith, our motto and our guide, and concluded a very eloquent address by refering to history, to show Boyne, to establish our Loyal Association, and leave to us those British Protestants' privileges which we now enjoy, and which under the blessing of Providence we expect to hand down, unimpaired, to our posterity, and that if occasion required, we were to come forward as one man and shed the last drop of our blood in defence of the Truth, which he stated that even in Dorchester, where the name of an Orangeman was not known about six years ago, he felt proud to say, he could now boast of a splendid Hall, and a noble set of fellows to meet in it, a large number of whom belongs to the Royal Scarlet, the highest degree in the Society, and in the name of the Lodge returned his most sincere thanks to the truly Loyal Protestant Ladies, for their highly valued and religious gift.—Com.

The British Quarterlies AND BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE.

LEONARD SCOTT & Co., New York, continue to Re-publish the following British Periodicals, viz:—

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW, (Conserv'e)
2.
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW, (Whig.)
3.
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW, (Free Church.)
4.
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW, (Liberal.)
5.
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE, (Tory.)

THE present critical state of European affairs will render these publications unusually interesting during the year 1854.—They will occupy a middle ground between the hastily written news-items, crude speculations, and flying rumors of the daily Journal, and the ponderous Tome of the future historian, written after the living interest and excitement of the great political events of the time shall have passed away. It is to these periodicals that readers must look for the only really intelligible and reliable history of current events, and as such, in addition to their well-established literary, scientific, and theological character, we urge them upon the consideration of the reading public.

Arrangements are in progress for the receipt of early sheets from the British Publishers, by which we shall be able to place all our reprints in the hands of Subscribers, about as soon as they can be furnished with the Foreign Copies. Although this will involve a very large outlay on our part, we shall continue to furnish the Periodicals at the same low rates as heretofore, viz:

	Per ann.
For any one of the four reviews	$3 00
" two " "	5 00
" three " "	7 00
For all four of the Reviews	8 00
For Blackwood's Magazine	3 00
For Blackwood and three reviews	9 00
For Blackwood and the four Reviews	10 00

Payments to be made in all cases in advance. Money current in the State where issued will be received at par.

Remittances and communications should always be addressed, post-paid, to the Publishers,

Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Cenopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Benefits.
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0

0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and [illegible]

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid annually, to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in paymedt of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached o them coupons with the signatures or nitials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Seventh day of April, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

London, Nov. 15, 1853.

BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence there have been false reports, taking the advantage of Mr. Garratt, my uncle, compelling him, though false swearing to pay my debts, as partner, which he never was. There were parties who certainly swore to falsehoods, through evil designs and animosity, which they could against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my baking business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and despatch, on the shortest notice.

COMPOUND CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London, C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. RAYCOX & Co.,

Gentlemen,—I have received the sample bottle of your "Compound Camomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and pure taste of the camomile flower in the cordial renders it a most agreeable appetizer to be largely imbibed and well preserved; and as the vegetable tonic is highly beneficial in those forms of dyspepsia originating in debility of the stomach and tone of the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with in the continent), your cordial will, I should not, form an unsuitable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel justified in confidently recommending the Preparation of this valuable Tonic to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

I am, Gentlemen, Yours &c.

LONDON AGENCY,

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution—the capital stock of this company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal in 1852—has practically shown to the inhabitants of British America the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:—

1st—Guarantee of a ample capital, moderate premiums, large participation of profits by the insured—amounting to seventy per cent net amount—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportion by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

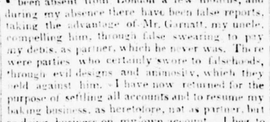
Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premium, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 38 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississip River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and recross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another—or from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississpi River.



Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

Comfort and Relief for the Afflicted.

NO ONE MEDICINE FOR ALL DISEASES.

W. C. SWEET'S CELEBRATED FAMILY MEDICINES

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,

Cures all Pains, Cramps, Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague, in the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head Ache, &c.

HIYATO CHINESE BALSAM,

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Cholic, Pains &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them much good. I have first used it in a case of Scarlett Fever, and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it relieved it in a cure immediately, and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore, I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Respectfully yours, JOHN DOTY.

Rochester, March 23rd, 1852.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.

Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application.—Cures all Ulcerated Sores, Piles, Chilblains, tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases. Much relief in brief time.

Try it; you will not regret it,

TO W. C SWEET.

DEAR SIR,—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure except by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price. I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your Sweet's King of Oils, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

JOHN PERRY.

Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 5, 1852.

I humbly certify, that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.

SILAS WOOD—Keeper of the Wilson Hotel.

LUTHER WILSON—Merchant.

Thousands of Testimonies of the above character as furnished.

GUN MAKER,

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Morfat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the unqualified testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public, admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases, by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Poetry.

☞ Many staunch voluntaries hold it altogether unchristian, that Ministers should receive any remuneration for their labors in the Gospel.—North American.

Song of the Voluntary System in America.

From the American Puritan Recorder.

As the parson sat at his books one day,
A rap at his door heard he;
The Parish Collector had called to pay
The Society's quarter fee.
A hundred dollars, and fifty more,
Were counted the parson's due,
Though small sum this, for half a score
To victual and clothe and shoe.

But the day had come, and for youthful sport
The parsonage ne'er displayed
A day like that, when his scant support
Was about to be promptly paid.
The children danced and giggled and grinned,
And wriggled like eels in oil;
And smiles broke forth on the visage thinned
By fasting, and tears, and toil.

The Parish Collector sat him down,
And out of his pocket took
The tithes he'd gathered about the town,
Crammed into his pocket book;—
It was not much of a cram, at that,
Though honey and milk indeed—
Not milk enough for a starving cat,
Nor honey enough for need.

But such as it was, without much risk,
The Collector poured it out:
He spread it round on the parson's desk,
And scattered it all about;—
But little of shining gold was there,
And less from the silver mine,
And bank bills—they were exceeding rare!
Alas! for the poor divine.

First came a note for a little sum,
Which the poor man late had given
To a rich parishioner, near his home,
Whom he hoped to meet in heaven,—
Ten dollars was all—not much I know—
But an order followed the note,
With butcher's bill, and a bill or so
For butter and bread, to boot.

The doctor had drawn for his small amount,
The grocer had filed his claim,
And all intended their bills should count,
Whenever his pay-day came.
The good collector reckoned them up;
The minister stood aghast!
'Twas a bitter drug in his brimming cup,
To think he had lived so fast.

Who knows what pain the parson endures,
As the good man hands them over,
And says with a hem, "Sir, these are yours,
And they should have been paid before;
For a scandal it is to religion, Sir,
Which the world can never forget,
When a man of ease like a minister
Is unable to pay his debt.

"And here, besides, is a lot of cash,
Three tyes and a lusty ten;
Your daughters in satins now may dash,
And your boys dress up like men.
But allow me to say, good Parson Gay,
You'd better just lay aside
A little of this for a rainy day,
By a walk instead of Foreign Intelligence.

The Catastrophe at Sinope.

The Augsburg Gazette gives some perfectly satisfactory information on this subject. Immediately after the arrival of the Egyptian fleet in the Bosphorus it was arranged at Constantinople that the allied fleets were to enter the Black Sea, and the Porte formed the adventurous project of wresting the Crimea from the Russians. The plan was not long concealed; and, in consequence of positive information received, some troops originally intended to form part of the army in the Danubian Principalities were sent by General Luders to the Crimea. The united fleets did not enter the Black Sea, and the Porte, being obliged to relinquish its original plan, resolved to send the material of war and the money which had been prepared for the expedition to some Circassian port. The armaments were kept as secret as possible, and the fleet, consisting of two squadrons, which was to convey the artillery, ammunition, &c., to the mountaineers, was placed under the command of Osman Pacha a resolute man and a good seaman. The latter left on the 11th of November, and at the same time the allied fleet sailed into the Black Sea in order to attract the attention of the Russian Admiral, and to mask Osman Pasha's expedition.—

After cruising eighteen days without seeing a single Russian sail, the Turkish fleet returned to the Bosphorus under the impression that the fear of meeting the Anglo-French fleet had induced Prince Menschikoff to remain quiet in the port of Sebastopol. The Russian Admiral must, however, have been exactly informed of what was intended, for without troubling himself about the main fleet, he had Osman Pacha's movements carefully observed. The latter, by means of his steamers, soon became aware that the enemy was on his traces, and he therefore made for shelter in the roads of Sinope. The Russians had, however, resolved to strike a heavy blow, and on the 29th of November the squadron was destroyed. The news, of course, made a great impression on the war party in the Divan, but a still greater one on the officers of the French and English fleets, who felt that every battle which had struck the Turkish flag had increased the moral and the courage of the allied fleets, which, almost at the same time that the catastrophe took place, had got up a mock fight for the edification of the inhabitants of Constantinople.

THE DISASTER AT SINOPE.

The following is an accurate list of the Turkish squadron under Osman Pacha, which was destroyed in Sinope Bay by the Russians, Nov. 30, 1853:

Nessamieh (flag) 60 guns and 600 men, was fired by the enemy and blew up after action.

Nasrik, ship, 62 guns, 600 men, was blown up half-an-hour after action, a legend.

Nessim, mano-of-war, 52 guns, 500 men, was burnt the next day by enemy.

Kaid, mano-of-war-ship, 50 guns, 500 men, was burnt the next day by enemy.

Dimiat (Egyptian), 54 guns, 500 men, was burnt and blown up during action.

Anadoli Ofeer, frigate, 60 guns, 500 men, was burnt next day after enemy trying to tow her out.

Fatshi Hak, mano-of-war-ship, 50 guns, 500 men was burnt the next day by enemy.

Fairi Marbout, mano-of-war-ship, 20 guns, 250 men, was burnt the next day by enemy.

Gul Sefit, mano-of-war-ship, 24 guns, 200 men, was burnt, fouling the English brig Howard and destroying her.

Nedjet Jessian, mano-of-war-ship, 24 guns, 200 men, on shore, sideways and afloat.

E. Kegli, steamer, 4 guns, 160 men, was burnt the next day by enemy.

Taif, steamer, 10 guns, 300 men, escaped when action began and reached Constantinople.

According to investigations made at Sinope by the captain and officers of her Majesty's steamer Vesuvius, the Turkish fleet, at anchor in the bay, consisted of eight vessels of war, and seven armed steamers, all fully manned with fighting men. The fleet of the Russians was the Navish frigate, whose captain, Ali Bey, being incensed with boarding by a large three-decked ship, and having abandoned all hope of successful resistance, with desperate devotion blew up his vessel. At the end of the above period of the destruction of the Turkish fleet was left in a state of total wreck. Some of the vessels were burnt by the enemy's red hot shot; others by themselves, and the others, whose sides were literally beaten in by the enormous weight of the Russian metal, slipped their cables, and, with the exception of two, drifted on shore. The Russians now manned their yards, and cheered in honor of their bloody victory. Having done this, they immediately re-commenced firing upon the Turkish steamers, from which a feeble cheering for mercy still remained with unequal fortitude, and did not cease until they had completed the work of destruction and butchery. The support showed the Turks by the half battleships was identical, only inferior in the magnitudes of their guns, and not from their being inferior in courage. Their Admiral Nachimoff, consisted of three three-decked ships, two frigates and four steamers. The English steamer Retribution and French Mogador brought down 270 wounded and about 400 men and officers who had escaped unhurt to the shore. The Turks estimate their loss at 3,000 killed.

The English view of compulsory Sobriety

From the Times.

In a country where everything finds its level, there are not many projects that can be pronounced utterly impracticable. There is nothing politically impossible in an arbitrary clause—nothing, physically, in a Railroad to Calcutta; nor, as far as we know, in an electric cable from Galway to New York. But there now lies before us the account of a scheme which does more than whose beyond the range of British possibilities. It is the "First Report of the Executive Committee of the United Kingdom Alliance to procure the total and immediate legislative suppression of the Traffic in all Intoxicating Liquors as Beverages." Our readers will excuse the quotation of so lengthy a title.

It is necessary to state in this instance, as a certain wordiness is the uniform characteristic of these moral extravagances. The drunkard has his drawl, the puritan his whine, and the teetotaller, and others of his class, have their long stream of watery prose, tackling so resolutely that you never know when you have got to the last drop. We have perused the whole report, and have arrived at a loss to conceive its contents, except that the bulk is considerably swollen by the titles of the share or affiliated institutions.—There is the "Anti-Liquor Traffic Enactment," in the Province of New Brunswick; there is "The Canadian Prohibitory Liquor Law League;" there is "The Maine Liquor Law League of Scotland," besides the old Temperance Societies, all of them rejoicing in sesquipedalian titles. These sober societies are content with pledges and moral agencies. They confess, however, to have failed.—In Ireland, for example, there is more drinking than ever, and the distilleries cannot supply the thirsty population. So, the gentlemen whose names are affixed, to the report before us have combined to press upon Parliament the total and immediate closing of all public houses, gindrinks, and beershops, and a prohibition of the traffic altogether, except for what they are pleased to call "medicinal purposes." As a beverage, the smallest beer is to be utterly interdicted. The harvestman or the "navvy" is not to be permitted to ask for his ale or his pint of porter, unless he comes armed with a certificate from an authorized physician that his health is of so peculiar a nature as to require that degree of artificial stimulus. Nay, more, the number of officers charged with the distribution of the medicine is to be but small—only one or two in a town, and they are to be closely watched, lest they should close their patients too largely. Policemen and detectives are to guard the approach to the spirit or malt-liquor dispensary, to see that the unhappy sufferers are duly restricted to their quarter-pint draughts of brown stout or their dessert-spoonfuls of brandy. It is contemplated that the English people—that, for example, the two millions of people in this metropolis—will quietly submit to this new phase of coercion, and draw their porter in phials across the counter of a druggist's shop, after a proper exhibition of "permits" by the constituted authorities.

We ought to know something about the British people, and we know nothing about them if they will ever consent to such an anti-liquor thraldom as this, or obey it, if passed. They will laugh at the hypocrisy of their medical certificates—the distinction between intoxicating liquors as a drug and as a beverage. Half the ladies upon town are taking porter or pale ale by the pint; and, as half the doctors in the kingdom prescribe porter and pale ale, it is quite as easy to advise to this effect as not. It all depends upon the choice of an adviser. We every day watch folk to see the question of a glass or two more fully, carefully, and discriminately discussed. It is bitter to have done, for instance, about a young lady, assuming that she is fainting and liable to decrease—we can take a pint of strong ale or a dozen glasses of wine a day without the mental as well as the physical constitution. If, however, it is to be a matter of advice, we beg to suggest a very uniform rule for our invalidish young ladies. But, how such a rule is to be enforced in the face of money and all kinds of persuasion, we are at a loss to understand. Then, what is to be done with a gentleman's wine cellar? He wants a little wine for his stomach's sake," and to assist also the digestion and the spirits of his friends; so he sends his usual order to his wine-merchant, sufficient, perhaps, for a whole year's festivities on a genial scale! Must the order be vised by a medical officer? Must the applicant undergo a medical examination before a temperance board, and must his friends also present themselves at his house with wine glasses and licenses to drink on the premises? We cannot see how the prohibition is to work without the alternative of placing every gentleman's cellar and dining room under the surveillance of the police, or allowing to the luxurious and wealthy a most unfair advantage over the industrious poor. The report does not tell us how the Maine Liquor Law works in Maine itself upon the wealthier classes. It only tells of the immense decrease of "crime," that is of the robberies and other outrages. What we want to know is, not the effect of shutting up gin-shops and tippling houses, but the working of the prohibition upon gentlemen and ladies with plenty of money in their pockets, commodious cellars, and kind-hearted family physicians, and themselves fond of good living. If, too, as we have observed, the report had gone a little into the physical bearings of the question, instead of dwelling on the progress of the cause all over the world, we should have been a little more advanced towards our own practice at least. After all, the authorities triumphantly paraded for our guidance are neither very winning nor very overpowering. Passing over Maine, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin, as well as some provinces of British America, we cannot think the cause very much aided by the fact that at Buenos Ayres no liquor —so we are assured—can be sold in public; that in the Sandwich Islands a prohibitory Liquor Law is part of the permanent constitution of society; that in Madagascar a Maine Law is engrafted on the Constitution, and by an edict from the Throne the use of intoxicating wine is even forbidden in the Sacrament; and that even the much maligned King of Dahomey, in Western Africa, sagaciously refuses to sanction a traffic in strong drinks. His Majesty's reasons, it seems to be thought, are derived from the experience of negroes, and with the cautious spirit of the breeder, he is not disposed to allow his people to be degraded and destroyed by strong drink. This we can understand, but we don't see how the example of the Royal slave-breeder applies to the free people of this country.

The report appeals to the failure of all attempts to regulate the sale of drinks, and the comparatively small success of voluntary associations, to prove the necessity of legislation. But what if legislation should be attempted and fail? What a tremendous reaction would ensue from an unsuccessful attempt to deny beer, spirits and wine, not merely to the tippler and the sot, but to gentlemen at ladies and hard-working men? Millions of pounds are spent, and how much sweeter will those fortive draughts be when they are vicious, spirituous, or strong of the malt! After a short and not very effectual prohibition, with what increased zest will thirsty souls rush to the bar and swallow the draughts that will then burn with illegality, and quaff the scent that will then be the more delicious for having been tasted by stealth! The law once obtained, we tremble for the inevitable repeal. But such a law is utterly impossible in this land of liberty. It is the inalienable birthright of every Briton to make a fool or a beast of himself as much as he pleases, so long as it does not directly interfere with the safety, comfort and morals of others. To be sure, evidences of such folly and vice meet us at every turn in society. Our agricultural laborers and thirsty dominion have entailed a load of debt; so to pay that debt and keep ourselves still in sighting form, we must tax malt liquor, spirits and wine. This tax has a peculiarly heavy one we are now beholding less, and have been drinking less for ever since the war, than we should have done otherwise; and the consequence is a diminished revenue, a diminished expenditure, and a general depression. This is a very legitimate sort of check on our indulging too recklessly, like that, indeed, felt by the drunkard, who, finding himself at his money's end, can drink no more. But to have returned from the world, and to have returned from the world, and to have returned from the world, and

"Our representative Sir Allan McNab" and "the Press," were afterwards given, but the late hour at which the proceedings terminated, precludes us from doing justice to them.

The dinner given by the Mayor and Corporation in our next.

ARRIVAL OF THE "NIAGARA."

Halifax, Jan. 23rd, 1854.

The Royal Mail steamer Niagara arrived from Liverpool 4th carried en route for Boston this morning.

Reports unusually heavy weather during her passage which has been prolonged for sixteen days.

Great Britan, France, and Belgium had been visited with the heaviest snow storms experienced for many years past, and apprehensions entertained of floods from melting snow and rain.

The Atlantic arrived out on the 5th, at 2 P. M.

The screw steamer Indus, Dec. 17th, arrived at Liverpool on the 1st inst.

Intelligence from Constantinople and St. Petersburg continues to be as contradictory as ever.

The latest rumors are of a character to leave the estimation of the public mind scarcely any hopes that the Czar will accept the last proposition of the Western Powers, and this view of the matter is almost unanimously entertained at Constantinople, as a natural consequence of the greatly increased probabilities of a general European war.

The English Stocks and Breadstuffs' markets have been greatly excited, and consols closed Friday at a decline of ¼ per cent on the day.

Breadstuffs throughout Great Britain have been more excited than at any previous time since the great famine, and prices have largely advanced.

The advance on flour for the week is quoted by some respectable Houses at 3s per bbl, None quote the actual advance at less than 2s; wheat has also advanced almost beyond precedent, ranging from 10d a 12d per bushel, of 70lbs; market for Indian corn less excited than flour and wheat, but prices have advanced since the sailing of the Europa from 1s 6da 2s per quarter of 480 lbs.

Cotton market continues very firm at previous quotations, with transactions to the extent of 30,000 bales, for the week ending January 6th.

Provision Market continued quiet and without material change in the prices.

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM.

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham. Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclides, Sax horns, Trombones, Coupeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and permanency to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly;—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 7 6	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0

0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the time the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid annually, to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in paymedt of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached to them coupons with the signatures or initials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Seventh day of April, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

London, C. W. June 18th, 1852.

MESSRS. RENNOX & CO.

Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottle of your Compound Camomile Flowers, and have given it a fair trial, which I am happy to say has proved highly satisfactory. It is a most delightful and well as agreeable tonic in lately beneficial in those forms of dyspepsia depending on debility or want of tone of the digestive organs; the form of which I have met with during the past year, I will, I doubt not, form an invaluable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

From the high knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in confidently recommending its Proprietal Stores, and as deserving both the confidence and patronage of the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Cutaneous Embrocation. This Cutaneous Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute or chronic, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains or Bruises, Contracted Nerves and Sore Throats, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spasms and Hip Complaints, Stiffness of the Joints, Lumbago, Scrofula, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Secretions, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific, that the intellectual power called Calculation or Magnetism is, in fact, the vitality of life, and that disease, in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the deficiency or absence of that vitality or life power in its healthy proportions. If then we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient, we can also as readily control disease and thus has been truly and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining magnetism or galvanism with a fluid which does contain no vestige of this remedy, safe certainly and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience of their beneficial use. The inventor of the Cutaneous Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Pain in or Tumor, close to the rectum, I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure, except by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price. I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, and the instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Bottles was effectually cured. It is now three months since the cure, and I consider it to be a permanent cure.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for Pelle-Fixit, Fistulas Salt-Rheum, Canker, Old Sores with Fistulous Sinuses, Sadder-Boils, Fresh Wounds, Wind Galls of every description, Rheumatism, Caked and Cute, Collar-galls, Spavin, Tired and Inflamed Iberia Spinal and Bone Abscesses or Weakness of the Joints, contraction of the Muscles, External Poisons Burns and Scalds, Horn Distemper in Cattle, Hoof-Ail, Black-Head &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL REASONABLE CASES.

Directions are simple and plain. The medicine is not surpassed by any as yet known for the above diseases. It has cured more of Bell-Fixit Fistula Sweeny Shoulders, than any other Medicine prepared for these diseases of the bones and Joints and Lungs Oil Cake &c. As many and numerous thereto certificates from, as part of the medicine of this medicine, we publish but a few from the many thousands we have in possession, but silence to say in knowing.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned have for years used and recommended Sweet's Infallible Oil of Horses, and can with confidence refer to the public as a superior preparation for sore Backs, galls, bruises, Mud-fever, and sores of every kind. It is thought superior to those who have used it. We have used many preparations for horses but we give the preference unto standing to Sweet's Black Oil. We would say to all horse owners, that we have used it in our stables, and on hand for its timely use will save time and money. E. W. Stephens, Mayor, St. Catharines C. W.

LONDON AGENCY,

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons insured in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution—the capital stock of this company being an unquestionable security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal, in 1852—has practically shewn to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence refer you to the parties that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:

1.—Guarantee of a ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to twenty-four per cent amounts—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportions by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives Assured with this company in Canada.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premium, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 38 degrees of North latitude, but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and recross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another—or from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 35 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississippi River.

Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

GUN MAKER,

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures performed by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties having been more than sufficiently proved by the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them. It is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public admits of no dispute. In a country city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, effecting in a few days the complete expulsion of the most inveterate diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Piles &c. as a short course all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Poetry.

Battle Song.

BY ROBERT GILFILLAN.

Like thunders loud the war-drum comes
Deep rolling on the wind;
While battle spears, in bright array,
Like lightning gleam behind!

Come freemen then, with lance and shield,
And hearts of valor brave,
Hark! freedom's voice is on the gale,
'Tis—Victory or a grave!

No nerveless hand shall wield a brand;
For doubly sinew'd strung
Is every arm, by vengeance stern,
Or song of freedom sung!

As red leaves fall upon the blast,
When winds are tempest high;
So slaves shall fall before the free;
Awake the battle cry!

'Tis not a time for a lady's bower,
When 'gainst the free and fair,
With vaunting shout, dark foemen come
Our liberties to dare!

Yet soon each lady shall her knight
A laurell'd hero see!
A tyrant's sword with vassal bond
Shall never match the free!

The Rose of Sharon.

Go, warrior, pluck the laurel bough,
And bind it round thy reeking brow;
Be sons of pleasure, blithely twine
A chaplet of the purple vine;
And beauty call each bleshing flower
That ever decked the sylvan bower.
No wreath is bright, no garland fair,
Unless sweet Sharon's Rose be there.

The laurel branch will droop and die,
The vine its purple fruit deny,
The wreath which smiling beauty twined,
Will leave no lingering bud behind;
For beauty's wreath and beauty's bloom,
In vain would shun the withering tomb,
Where nought is bright and nought is fair,
Unless the Rose of Sharon's there.

Electro-Biology and Mesmerism.

FROM THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW.

We are entirely repudiate the doctrine that the will of the operator directly controls the senses of his 'subject,' as we reject the dogma that it immediately directs his muscular movements—we have shown that it operates on the latter, not immediately but 'mediately,' through the mind of the 'subject' himself; and we hold the same to be the case in regard to the alteration of his perceptions. We can be ignorant of the fact that we frequently experience sensations, which originating in our own sensorium, instead of being called forth by impressions made by external objects upon their appropriate organs of sense, are originated as subjective. The ringing in the ears, the flashes of light before the eyes, the nauseous tastes or disagreeable odours connected with preventing the true savor of everything that is tasted or smelled, the feeling of cutaneous irritation excited by the simple mention of the ingredients of our bills, are familiar examples. We may cite, as parallel phenomena, those renewals of past sensations, which are often excited, and will for ever continue to be excited from the mental presence of the object, by the mere force of mental association. Thus, it is by no means uncommon for those who suffer acutely from seasickness, to experience nausea at the mere sight of an agitated ocean, especially if a wave-tossed vessel be within view; and a like feeling, we are assured, has been produced by the sight of a toy, in which the motion of a ship was imitated with sedulous fidelity. We have ever known a case in which a lady, who witnessed the departure of for a friend by sea, on a stormy day, was affected with an actual paroxysm of sea-sickness. Such facts are so familiar as to have become proverbial; for the common phrase, 'it makes me sick to think of it,' is nothing else than the expression of a physical feeling excited by mental association. There are few persons indeed who have not experienced the vivid return of sensations, pleasurable or painful, when the appropriate mental state had been renewed. A Roman Catholic, who had gone to confession for the first time, when a boy, with his mouth full of the taste of a particular kind of sweet cake to which he had been indulging rather immoderately, was sent on the same errand for a dozen years or more, without the distinct recurrence of the same flavor.

It is obvious, then, that visual, auditory, gustative, olfactory, or other perceptions may be excited in the mind, not merely by impressions made upon the corresponding organs of sense, but also by ideas with which the mind becomes possessed through other channels. And applying this principle (fully recognised by every scientific physiologist) to the case before us, we shall see that it affords the key which unlocks the whole of this part of the biological mystery.—For when the 'subject' is assured, whilst drinking a glass of water, that it is coffee or porter, this assurance, taking firm possession of his consciousness, produces the very same effect upon it, as would be induced by the actual contact of the liquid in question with his tongue and palate. He tastes it, so to speak, with his mind, though he does not taste it with his tongue; and it is the mental, not the bodily impression, that constitutes the actual perception. This false perception is not contradicted by the inconsistent impression transmitted from the organ of sense; because it is characteristic of the biologised condition, that the mind of the 'subject,' being entirely possessed by the idea which may chance to be before it at the time, can entertain no other, and is incapable, therefore, of bringing it to the test of experience. It is a mere question of the relative strength of the two suggestions—that conveyed by the assurances of the hypnotiser, and that derived from the 'subjects' own sensory impression. The latter, as we have seen, may prevail in the first instance, and may yet be overcome by the augmented force which the former will derive from vehement repetition.

It may strengthen the belief in the truth of this explanation to add a few more instances, in which, under ordinary circumstances, our sensory impressions are determined by the ideas with which our consciousness may be possessed at the time. Most persons have heard of the exclamation of Dr. Pearson,—'Bless me how heavy it is!' when he first poised upon his finger the globule of potassium produced by the battery of Sir H. Davy; his preconception of the association between metallic lustre and high specific gravity, leading him to attribute to this new body a character which the test of the balance determined to be the opposite of the fact. So Professor Bennet mentions a case of supposed child-murder in Scotland, in which, when the coffin was exhumed, the Procurator-fiscal, who attended with the medical men to examine the body, declared that he already perceived the odour of decomposition which made him feel faint, and withdrew in consequence; yet, on opening the coffin, it was found to be empty; and it afterwards turned out that no child had been born, and consequently no murder committed. Another case, related by Prof. Bennett upon an authority which we know to be trustworthy, is yet more remarkable, as showing, beyond a doubt, the reality and intensity of pains, which had their origin in a mental delusion, and not in a physical lesion. A butcher, who had a shop in the market-place at Edinburgh, in trying to hang up a heavy piece of meat upon a hook above his head, lost his footing in such a manner that his arm was caught upon the hook. On being taken down and carried into the house of a neighboring surgeon, he expressed himself as labouring under the most acute agony; and the paleness of his countenance, and the almost entire absence of pulse at the wrist, were unmistakeable indications of the reality of his torture. His arm could not be moved without causing excessive pain, and he frequently cried out while the sleeve of his coat was being cut off; yet when the arm was exposed, it was found quite uninjured, the hook having only penetrated the cloth of the sleeve, and the skin being scarcely even grazed!

Those, moreover, who are familiar with hypochondriacal states, have constant opportunities of noticing how disordered sensations, referred to a particular region, are created by the determination of the patient to believe in the existence of disease; yet more, the constant direction of the attention to its supposed seat has a tendency to alter the organic action of the part, and thus to induce real disease in the stead of that which was at first imaginary. The subject has been most ably treated by Sir H. Holland; whose chapter 'On the Effects of Attention on Bodily Organs,' embodies the results of his large medical experience, interpreted by the most advanced principles of physiological science.

It is only necessary to glance at some of the most familiar features of insanity, to be satisfied that the strangest perversions of the perceptions of sense exhibited by the biologised 'subject' have their counterparts in those morbid states, in which the mind is possessed, not transiently but enduringly, by some dominant idea. The lunatic who supposes himself to be a sovereign prince, looks upon the place of his confinement as his palace, believes his keepers to be his obsequious officers, and his fellow-patients to be his obedient subjects; the plainest fare is converted into a banquet of the choicest dainties; and the most homely dress into royal apparel. Now and then, perhaps, a gleam of common sense will enable him to see things in a truer light, and he may be sensible of some inconsistency between his real and his imaginary circumstances; and it is curious that this should be often limited, as in the case of the biologised 'subject,' to some particular class of sensory impressions. Thus, a patient confined in a Scotch pauper lunatic asylum, after dictating upon the imaginary splendors of his regal state, confessed that there was one thing which he could not quite comprehend—that all his food tasted of oatmeal!

Passing now to the more purely psychical phenomena of the biological condition, we find that even such of these as are most extraordinary are readily explained on the same principle. The mental acuteness, the power of controlling the memory of his 'subject;' and tells him that he cannot remember his own name, the first letter of the alphabet, or something equally familiar.—The 'subject' exhibits a puzzled and somewhat vacant aspect, and confesses that he is baffled. Nothing is more intelligible when we call to mind that the very simplest act of determinate recollection involves a voluntary change in the direction of our thought, from the area which may occupy the consciousness at the moment, towards that which we desire to recall. But the biologised 'subject' is unable to escape from the notion infused into him by the operator, and the most familiar thing is consequently as much beyond the reach of his mental apprehension as a banknote of a hundred pounds, offered him as a reward for his successful recall, would be beyond the grasp of his hands, if he has been possessed by the conviction that he cannot use them for the purpose. In fact, there is a complete parallelism between his bodily and mental state: the will being temporarily withdrawn from control over both alike.

So, again, the loss of the sense of personal identity, or the actual change of personality, which the biologised operator asserts that he is able to induce, is to be referred to the same cause. Mr. A is repeatedly assured that he is Mr. B., or Mrs. C., is brought by repeated assertion to the belief that she is Dr. D.; and they are in inexplicable of correcting this alleged perversion, because the organ of personality is dependent upon memory, and they can recollect nothing when forbidden to do so. It is not by any means in all 'subjects,' that we meet with a capability of thus being affected; there are many whose ordinary course of thought and feeling can be entirely directed by external suggestions, who set definitely charge to their own personality, but when the transformation is made (and we have noticed that it is most readily brought about in individuals who have been habitually disposed to project themselves into characters that have strongly excited their interest in works of fiction) it is usually complete; and nothing can be more remarkable than the assumption of the tone, manner, habits of thought, forms of expression, and other characteristics peculiarities of the individual whose personality the 'subject' has been made to adopt. No one who heard it could forget the intensity of the declamatorial tone, in which a lady thus metamorphosed into the worthy clergymen on whose ministry she attended replied to the matrimonial counsels of the physician to whom, in her clerical character, she had been led to give a long detail of her hypochondriacal symptoms—'as wife for a dying man, doctor!' Intentional mimicry could never have approached the exactness of the imitation which the fair 'subject' was possessed, that she herself experienced all the discomforts whose detail she had doubtless frequently heard from the real sufferer.

It is almost superfluous to remark that the precise counterpart of this condition is one of the most common forms of insanity. Every large asylum contains patients who imagine themselves to be kings, queens, princes, lords, bishops, or the like; nay, the metamorphosis may proceed to yet greater extremes, the lunatic persisting that he is the Holy Ghost, Jesus Christ, or even the Eternal Father. Nothing can well dispossess him of this conviction; because whilst his reason remains under the domination of this idea, all the arguments that can be employed are to his apprehension entirely irrelevant. Even in the ordinary experience of life, we meet with individuals who are possessed by notions scarcely less absurd, from which they cannot be driven by any appeals to their common sense, simply because the dominant idea presents itself to their consciousness with greater force than does any other that can be brought before it. Of this there have been abundant illustrations during the last few months, in the vain endeavors of enlightened men to subvert the baseless vagaries of 'spiritual influence' by the heavy artillery of scientific facts.

From what has been said of the unchecked operation of the principle of suggestion in the biological condition, it might easily be anticipated that the thoughts of the 'subject' may be directed into any channel, by appropriate hints; and descriptions be called forth by leading questions, of any scene which the operator chooses. This 'mental travelling,' as it has been called, is not accomplished with equal readiness on the part of every 'sub speech; a preacher will address an imaginary congregation with such pathos as deeply to move his real auditors; a musician will draw forth most enchanting harmonies from his accustomed instrument; a poet will improvise a torrent of verses; a mimic will keep the spectators in a roar of laughter. The reasoning process may be carried on with remarkable accuracy; so that the conclusion may be quite sound, if the data have been correct. But the usual defect of the intellectual operations is, that, owing to their very intensity, the attention is drawn off from the considerations which ought to modify them; and thus it happens that the result is often palpably inconsistent with the teachings of ordinary experience, which, if they present themselves to the consciousness at all, are not perceived by it with sufficient vividness for the exercise of their due corrective influence.

State of Affairs in Austria.

The Vienna correspondent of the Times gives the following account of the state of things in Vienna, Austrian Italy, and Hungary:

VIENNA, Dec. 21.—As our papers never venture to discuss any matter which could be displeasing to the authorities, a stranger in the city would suppose that everything was progressing most unsatisfactorily; but such is not in reality the case. Circumstances, trifling in themselves, remind us that the after pains of the revolution are still felt. A familiar face every now and then disappears from the streets, and on enquiring what has become of the missing individual, we learn that he has been arrested for political offences. Dr. Shassl, a well known physician, is now under trial on suspicion, as it is said, of having been in connection with some of Kossuth's relatives. Another medical man, a Dr. Salter, who, if my memory does not deceive me, was the medical attendant of the late Duke of Coburgh-Kohary, has also recently been arrested. It will give you some idea of the credulity of the Vienna public when you learn that the cause generally assigned for his imprisonment, that he not long since had given Mazzini shelter during two nights. The probability is, that he stands accused of having carried on a criminal correspondence with the before-mentioned incorrigible disturber of the public peace. It is also rumored that papers found in Dr. Salter's possession have led to the arrest of three other persons, one of whom is assistant physician at an hospital. Of Italy the people hear as little as if it were on the other side of the equator; but the disaffection is as great there as ever. Arrests continually take place, and Este has not lost its reputation for being to the Venetian province what Tyburn formerly was to London. It is not more than three or four days since the Wiener Zeitung informed us that some 15 or 16 persons had been shot or hanged at Este. It may appear to be an unfeeling remark, but the truth is, that so much blood has been just daily shed in Austria since the year 1849 that the execution of half a score of human beings has ceased to create any great sensation. The military authorities are more sparing of life in Hungary than they were about a year ago; but things are not going on as could be wished in that country. It is true that the rubber bands have been broken up, or partially so; but the new system of taxation is not well suited to the peculiar circumstances of the people. Let us take the land tax, for example. An acre of land in Austrian Proper may be worth £70 or £80, but although the same quantity of land in Esztergonie is not worth £8 in Hungary, the tax levied is as heavy in one province as in the other. The Hungarian landed proprietor must, therefore, long as the means of communication are so imperfect there is no chance of our being able to exchange our obligations to the state. If we grow corn, we have no means of sending it to market, and if we sell our timber it must rot where it is. A person of rank, who possesses vast forests in Hungary, yesterday assured me that it was impossible to make both ends meet. As the assertion excited some slight symptoms of incredulity, the following explanation was given:—"The tax is levied on the soil, and not on what it produces.—The superficies of the estate is taken, and no regard is taken to its capabilities. Now, I possess some square miles of ground, covered with sporadic timber, for which the tax must be paid, although I cannot sell a single tree. If Government would accept payment in kind, or issue the promised bonds of indemnification, we might manage to keep our heads above water, but as it is, we are daily getting more and more into the clutches of the usurer. As to the present nobles or gentry who cultivate their own little bit of land, they are either already ruined or in a fair way to be so. The peasants, who it might reasonably be supposed would be grateful to Government for their emancipation, grumble as much as their betters. Another evil is, that the new institutions require such a host of employes that the nett revenue is far less than it might be if the thing were better managed. The country swarms with employes, who are, in general, disconcerted, because, being for the most part bohemians and Germans, they cannot converse with the majority of persons with whom they are brought in contact. As estate, the juridical and political business of which was in olden times managed by two persons, has now 13 employes. Of course, the exciseman, superintendent, &c., are included.

(COMMUNICATED BY OUR TURNING TABLE.)

[As the curtain rises the Ministers are variously occupied. Lord John Russell, who holds none of the offices, is searching those of Cicero for a quotation to tag to his new Reform Bill Speech. Mr. Gladstone, in deep thought, is instinctively drawing figures, and putting "nought" to each. Sir John Graham is smilingly perusing a letter inscription in a Lindley Murray Album he is going to send to Mr. Berna Osborne. The Duke of Argyll is trying all the chairs in turn, and thinking how well he could fill every one. The Chancellor is waiting until somebody shall take notice of him. Lord Aberdeen is smoking a cigar.

Lord Granville.—My gentlemen and lords. (A laugh from Sir C. Wood, who usually laughs.) Thank you, Wood; you are a good audience, and deserve a better one than you generally get. (Sir C. Wood will not laugh this time.) Now, shall we proceed to the consideration of this Eastern question.

Lord Palmerston (quietly).—Well, perhaps, it is almost time.

Lord Clarendon.—You all know the state of things from the papers, and I have no more information in my office than they have; indeed not quite so much. So, now, what is to be done?

Lord Aberdeen.—My lords, give us a good thing. I dinna ken that rightly, but my fancy is that I've just hit upon a plan——

All (impatiently).—Don't Aberdeen, please! There's a time for all things. Don't interrupt business.

Lord Clarendon.—As Foreign Secretary I presume I am expected to propose some course. I continue to be of opinion that a communication should at once be framed for transmission to Vienna, by virtue of which negotiations would assume a specific aspect, which would in due course tend to their adopting a certain direction, and this, followed, as it would undoubtedly be, by their presenting a determinate and recognizable basis, would ultimately eventuate into relations of a temporarily, if not permanent character. That is my frank and simple opinion.

Sir J. Graham (gently).—And, if I might inquire, with all diffidence, what do you propose, Clarendon to say in that communication.

Lord Carendon (hastily).—Say—oh! Of course. Say—why—there is—I mean—that is—why I suppose that is what a Cabinet Council meets to determine. I merely submit the diplomatic initiative!

Mr. Gladstone (dubiously).—The diplomatic initiative! A remarkably good phrase, that. Don't be surprised if you hear that again.

Lord Palmerston.—Again!—It means——

Mr. Gladstone.—Ah! Don't spoil a good thing. I may have three meanings.

Lord Panmure (aside to him).—No, I'm blest if it may, it Carendon said it, or one either. It belongs to the true no meanings that puzzle more than A's.

Mr. Gladstone.—Do not be severe. Where is all the responsibility of our temple qui on dicta? Never be sarcastic. You never hear me sarcastic at least when I can help myself in any other way.

The Duke of Argyll (rising).—I am really surprised that any difficulty can be felt upon so subject. Logically and practically, it is as clear as the day; and Reid-ition implies a shallowness which I regret to impute but am unable to ignore. The Russians must be got out of Turkey. (Sits down.)

Lord Palmerston.—Egad! we've all been saying that ever since they got in.

Lord Aberdeen.—Nay, gin ye'd hearken, I'm just to hit upon a plan——

All.—Don't, Aberdeen, please!

Lord Granville.—Cranworth you have never once proposed anything for this Eastern question. That is not fair. Everybody should put his shoulder to the wheel. Come, do something for us.

Lord Cranworth (quite pleased at being addressed).—Really I don't know. Yet way, if Russia were amenable to any—to the Court of Chancery—I might have granted a ne exeat regno against the Russian army; but you see it is too late for that, because they are already out of the kingdom and into Turkey. So I don't see how I can interfere. An injunction to restrain them from committing waste and cutting down Turks might be of some avail.

Lord Palmerston.—Yes; if it were served properly, that is with well-served cannon. Very good, indeed my dear Chancellor! The best thing I have heard yet.

Lord Cranworth (flushing).—You flatter me.

Lord Palmerston.—I never flatter anybody—except your dear chilly-deadly Dudley Stuart. (Earnestly.) I say, I can't think what this Council was called for. What in the world have we to talk about? If we are to stand for five minutes after Parliament meets, not five minutes ought to be lost now.

Lord Aberdeen.—Just so: and gin ye'll hearken——

All (angrily).—Aberdeen do hold your tongue!

Lord Palmerston.—I am not Premier, I am not Foreign Secretary. I'm nobody, of course. But I know what the people want, and what they'll have—if not from you from your successors. Order up every ship into the Black Sea, and let them begin battering and blazing, and let Europe see that you are in earnest. And as for arms, them declare herself. She will declare for Russia, and the very next boat ought to see Kossuth and Mazzini dashing at his two flanks, and Clarendon hurling them on. Then up with the Poles!

Lord John Russell.—I beg to state most distinctly that I see it.

Lord Palmerston.—You! Of course you do, and so does Gladstone, and so does Graham, who never sees anything until it's quite convenient to him. Well, then, what have we to talk about? If we are to stand for five minutes after Parliament meets, not five minutes ought to be lost now.

Lord Aberdeen.—Nay, gin ye'd hearken, I'm just to hit upon a plan——

All (angrily).—Aberdeen do hold your tongue!

Lord Palmerston.—I am not Premier, I am not Foreign Secretary. I'm nobody, of course. But I know what the people want, and what they'll have—if not from you from your successors. Order up every ship into the Black Sea, and let them begin battering and blazing, and let Europe see that you are in earnest. And as for arms, them declare herself. She will declare for Russia, and the very next boat ought to see Kossuth and Mazzini dashing at his two flanks, and Clarendon hurling them on. Then up with the Poles!

Lord John Russell.—I beg to state most distinctly that I see it.

Lord Palmerston (excited).—O, it's all very well; but you're humouring and disordering his go as to run a war, and, by Jupiter! you must fight it though. No time to be nice about your tools now—Red Indians or Red Republicans—it's all one; and thank Providence for every extra inch of steel you can get down on your side. It's a horrible mess, but Aberdeen has done it for you, and if every map of Europe becomes waste paper in a year, Europe knows whom to thank.

Lord Aberdeen.—But gin ye'll listen now, I've just hit upon a plan——

All (outrageously).—Ah! Bah!

[The Council breaks up as the curtain falls.]

Firman of the Sultan,

GRANTED IN FAVOR OF HIS PROTESTANT SUBJECTS.

Most honored vizier, illustrious counsellor maintainer of the good order of the world, director of public affairs, wish wisdom and judgement, accomplisher of the important transactions of mankind with intelligence and good sense, consolidator of the edifice of empire and glory, endowed by the Most High with abundant gifts, and Mouchir, at this time, of my gate of felicity, my Vizer Mehemed Pacha, may God be the place to preserve him long in exalted dignity.

Let it be known on receipt of this my noble rescript, that:

Whereas, those of my Christian subjects who have embraced the Protestant faith, have suffered inconveniences and difficulties, in consequence of that not having been hitherto placed under a separate and especial president, and in consequence of the Patriarchs and Archbishops of their old creeds, which, they have abandoned, not being judicially able to administer justice.

3d. Gen Rowan, Her Majesty's Representative at this juncture.

And, in necessary accordance with my imperial solicitude and benevolence towards all classes of my subjects, it is contrary to my imperial pleasure that any class of them should be exposed to trouble. And whereas, by reason of their faith, the aforesaid Protestants form a separate community. It is in consequence of my royal pleasure that measures be taken for the more full purpose of containing the administration of their affairs, so that they may live in peace, quiet and security. And then a trustworthy person, chosen by themselves to a among their own number, be appointed with the title of "Agent of the Protestants," to be attached to the Department of the Minister of Police. It shall be the duty of the agent to take charge of the registrar of the members of the community and whereas is to be kept at the police department. The agent is to give herein I bring pride this. all supplications for passports and marriage licenses, and on those specified as to the community which are to come before the Sublime Porte, or any other department, are to be made under the official seal of the agency. To present novel and unjust rights have been especially granted and is not from any Imperial change very to practice of the same introduction. Hence it is for a once established Moushir shall carry into execution, conformably with the expectations given—As however, the assessment of taxes and the delivery of passports are subject to suspicion, therefore, then shall not permit anything to be done in contravention thereto. Then shall be of suffer any tax or haratch to be required of the Protestants for marriage licenses or for legislation. Then shall be exacted from, like into the other communities of the empire, every facility and required assistance be afforded them in all matters concerning their ecclesiastic and places of worship. Thou shalt not permit any interference old a secret, on the part of any other community, with their rights or with their rights or religious concerns, nor, in short, with any of their affairs, either secular or religious, in any manner whatsoever; in order that they may be excluded to exercise the usages of their faith in security. Thou shalt not suffer them to be molested one iota in these or in any other matters; and thou shalt be careful and attentive to maintain them in the desired quiet and security. They are to be permitted to make those representations to the Sublime Porte which it may be necessary to make regarding their affairs, through their agent, and be registered in the proper quarter and shall cause it to be communicated in the possession of the aforesaid suspect, and thou shalt be certain that the high powers hereinabove be carried into execution.—Thus be it known unto thee, giving full credence to the Imperial signet. Done in the second decade in the sacred month of Moharrem, in the year of the Hegira 1264, at Constantinople the well guarded.

The Bedini Excitement in New Orleans.

PREPARATIONS FOR A RIOT AND BLOODSHED.

From the New Orleans Crescent, January 6.

We little dreamt when we wrote our notice of the Bedini riots in Cincinnati, to awake in the morning and find the fences and black walls of this gay and good hearted city plastered with fiery red placards, exhorting, in four different languages, our people to give Carditnal Bedini, when he shall next week arrive here, the same sort of welcome which the brewers of London gave to Haynau.

The English portion (if English it can be called) of this lawless document is literally as follows:

SIGNOR BEDINI, THE BUTCHER OF BOLOGNA!

Is coming to this city next week. We have received here General Lafayette, Kossuth, Kinkel, and other heroes for freedom with unequaled enthusiasm; the escape of Francis Meagher, O'Brien, Smith and O'Connor, those patriots of green Ireland from a tyrannic prison, has been greeted with the utmost joyces; Bedini, the tiger, who is guilty of the murder of hundreds of the patriots, their wives and children in Italy, who ordered that Ugo Bassi, the patriotic Catholic priest be scalped before he was executed, will this abominable servant of despots receive the same honors as the hero and freedom, or will he followed the action of the Brewers of London against Haynau!

Then comes, in French, the subjoined appeal to the passions of that nation:

SIGN BEDINI, HORROR! HORROR!

Arrival of the monster Bedini!—of the assassin of Bologne—of the hangman of Ugo Bassi!

What has this Bedini done? What has he done! He scalped Ugo Bassi! He skinned his hands! After that punishment he caused him to be strangled. He assassinated women and children! This is the monster who is walking in triumph through our towns as if to brave us, as if to say to us, "Let the true friends of liberty should be treated." Men who have hearts, friends of humanity, freemen, will you suffer this insulter of the people, this audacious wretch, to profane our soil? No! You will treat him as men treat a wild beast. The people of London chastised Haynau—the people of New Orleans will chastise Bedini.

Next comes, in Italian, the following:

ITALIANS!

The renegade, my Lord Bedini, the assassin of Ugo the Bassi, the betrayer of liberties of Italy, is about to arrive in New Orleans, Italians, receive him as is fit. Do your duty.

Then follows a libelinflamatory exhortation in the language of Germany, and addressing to her usually good and kindly people, in hope of stirring them up to trample upon our laws and the lives of all such good citizens as will defend those laws to the death:

LORD CARDINAL BEDINI, THE BUTCHER OF BOLOGNA.

This wild beast, who as Papal Legate in Bologna, suffered to be murdered with cruel est tortures, hundreds of men, women and children of the republican party, who allowed the head and hands of the patriot Ugo Bassi to be skinned before he was beheaded, is travelling about in the United States, and will, in the course of the coming week, exhibit himself in New Orleans. The fiste of the brewers of London gave to Master Haynau, the hyena of Brescia, a proper token of their sympathy; shall not the same honor be awarded here to Master Bedini?"

Provincial.

Dinner at the Hall of the Mechanics' Institute.

The dinner given by the Mayor and Corporation of the City, took place at the Hall of the Mechanics' Institute. The hour named in the invitation was six, but the train with the Detroit Chiefs and Milwaukie guests did not arrive until half-past seven, and the dinner was in consequence served at eight o'clock. It was provided by Mr. Davidson of the City Hotel, and embraced everything which this most abundant of seasons could furnish, in proof of which, it is only necessary to mention that, some time previous the host had despatched a messenger to Chicago, who, at instances to purchase, regardless of expense, any thing in the shape of game to be procured from the Far West. The wines, we fear tempted many of our Michigan friends, who had taken advantage of the occasion, to satisfy themselves of the progress which the Canadians are making toward the Main Line now working so satisfactorily in their own State.

The beautiful and spacious Hall of the Institute was comfortably filled, about three fourths of the company consisting of invited guests from the United States.

The chair was filled by his honour the Mayor, and the Vice chairs by Aldermen Clarke, Sadlier and Magill, and Councillor Sphoge. The Rochester brass band was in attendance, and contributed greatly toward the pleasure of the entertainment.

On removal of the cloth, the following toasts were proposed in their order:

1. "The Queen." Drank with immense enthusiasm. Band:—"God save the Queen."

2. "The Chief Magistrate of the neighboring Republic." Band:—"Hail Columbia."

Judge Whipple, Chief Justice of Michigan, in responding made some humorous remarks in reference to the Bedini affair. Alluding to a sketch at the end of the bill, he said, he responded with all his heart to the sentiment inscribed over it—Success to the Great Western Railway. It was worthy the people—Indian Yankees of their progress. The Great Western will be the great thoroughfare from the East and West. He knew, for the time when all rest returns would be required, should either be for one day when two days of autumn house officers would assemble at Englishman landing in America. He tendered his profoundest thanks for the hospitality received by himself and countrymen. The work of the Great Western had been done well, and he wished the enterprise all success.

3. "Gen Rowan, Her Majesty's Representative at this juncture."

2nd. "The President and Directors of the Great Western Railway."

Mr. Hatch, President of the Company, desired to apologize for his inability to respond to the toast in adequate terms. He could only express his deep gratification on behalf of the Company and Directors for the compliment paid them.—In three years 228 miles of railway had been completed—a work worthy of an older country—but it had been done. It only remained for the people of Canada to respond as was that spoke for itself.

The Chairman said the present had been thought a fitting opportunity of bringing together on neighbours from the other side, the occasion being one in which all were alike interested. He then gave—

4th. "Our Guests."

Mr. Meeks, of Chicago, replied—he did so with feeling. After this reception he would "swear." He made a very laughable speech; and con lubes and much applause. We could not catch his remarks, owing to the noise and confusion.

The Hon. J. Hillyer Cameron, on behalf of the Canadian guests, responded in a strain of eloquence worthy the occasion. He was followed by Councillor Hall, who was no ordinary occasion when there were and here there a of the greatest Republic the world ever saw, and of contributed to work in the British Crown in this city, the ground Railways in Canada—the city which had adopted for its motto, the words "La Vance" to celebrate the opening of a work which would in the two countries be a link not exceeded. A few years ago Detroit was a small city, and he was so pitiably entertained recently, surrounded by the warm hands of welcome that they and this were united by the iron bands of peace. And these were not the days when Europe was shaken to the centre that many of the same bonds the same energy—the Iron men of industry and the free republic use of allied conquered. The patriotism which had been built the American continent, in England should in such a struggle, stand aloof—do so she. He concluded by repeating his assurance of thanks for the honor done.

From the Vice-Chair—Ald. Sadlier said the toast he had to propose would be felt, he believe, with pleasure. Those who know anything of the road knew that the work was difficulting that was anticipated. American capitalists and contractors, and had thus been the means of inducing English capitalists to do so also. He would give—

5. "The English and American Stockholders in the Great Western Railway."

Mr. Sykes, in rising to respond to this toast regretted that no one more competent was present to reply on the part of the English stockholders. He could say on their behalf, that they were so highly gratified to hear of the demonstration on the road in its early stages had much to contend with, but it had successfully surmounted all difficulties. It was patriotic y though the assistance of the capitalists on this side that the road had been opened on this day.—He believed that the prospects of the Great Western promised ample remuneration for the money invested in it. The great hospitalities had been received by the English stockholders during their visit. He returned thanks on all the kindness that had been tendered them in all it had been brought in contact with in his business avocations. He was glad to

"The Mayor and Corporation of Detroit."

Mr. Lothrope would not emulate the man who would not respond for his home. It would not an Anglo Saxon heart that would be unmoved by such a reception as this. The speaker alluded to the early settlement of Michigan in a most eloquent manner. Detroit was never disgraced but once, but he promised as "a Yankee boy," it should never happen again. It was under the American flag. (Great Cheering.) Detroit was happy to be connected with Hamilton. There was nothing to divide her and her people from these broad Provinces, save a division of forms. We speak the same language—of the same stock—in the same achievements we claim an inheritance. Both had learned the same principles of Constitutional liberty.—He would pledge that Jonathan should never be behind John Bull in the progress of constitutional liberty. In alluding to the Great Western, he guessed the Directors had not calculated their profits—they had not opened their road yet—they did not profess to do it. He very humorously alluded to the invasion of Yankees. If they wish to stop the invasion they must tear up these rat s—but he hoped they never would have a disposition to do so. One gentleman talked about pigs running round with forks in their backs—he (Mr. L.) could inform them that no less than 6,000 hogs, which had the knives in them bellies, waited transport down the Great Western Railway. In 72 hours the traveller would reach New Orleans from New York by the Great Western. All may congratulate themselves on this occasion. He would propose—

"Canada and the States, may good will flowing from this intercourse ripen into more intimate, social and commercial union."

Alderman McGill, of Hamilton replied in a very appropriate speech. The British empire, he said had been the pioneer of civilization. He concluded by proposing

"The British Empire."

Mr. Councillor Sphon said he had to propose a toast which would probably be responded to with as much enthusiasm as any other. The Press had effected much, and by it and the railway system had progressed. He would give

"The Press and the Railway enterprise."

Mr. Clapp, of the Buffalo Express, had been called upon, but unexpectedly. He happened to belong to the "Press gang," but he could not see why he should be thus persecuted; as, however, the proposition he was connected with was mentioned, he was ready to stand up for it. Although he lived a little out of the way, he was placed in the position of the sympathetic boy—who asked his companion why he crept at another boys' funeral—he said it was not his funeral. So it was with him (Mr. Clapp) in regard to the Great Western—he wished it all success. Now that we have met to celebrate each other's interests, why should we not meet in friendship and kindness? The Great Western has shown what Canada can do. He would propose—

"Success to the Great Western Railway."

Judge Whipple proposed

"The State of Wisconsin."

Mr. Rufus Gunn, from Wisconsin, responded to the sentiment. He gave

"Our Canadian neighbors; our nearest and dearest foreign relations."

Chief Justice Williams of Iowa responded to the sentiment of Iowa, the youngest and most Westerly City of the American Union. He said he had got into the crowd accidentally, but he discovered he had fallen into good company. In Yankee parlance, "he found himself fairly on the track." He gave a sentiment complimentary to the City of Hamilton.

Alderman Carpenter responded.

Several other brief speeches were delivered, but the confusion was so great that it was impossible to follow the speakers. The company broke up about 2 o'clock this morning.—Hamilton Spectator.

London Times.

LONDON, FRIDAY, FEBY. 3, 1854.

Russia.

We give below an extract from the London Spectator upon a subject that has latterly occupied the attention of the English Press, viz: the interference by Prince Albert in State affairs and more especially in the Foreign Policy. We make no observations on it, but hope that the same good sense which has characterized his conduct may not now forsake him:—

"Irritated and angry, the public seeks for some probable cause of the anti-English conduct of Ministers, and conjecturally finds it in German influences. Although still without any knowledge to justify even suspicion, the public is now seriously impressed with the fear that there is something wrong 'at court;' and of course there are not wanting those who can feed that desire for certainty which is always born of suspense. Stories are industriously in the papers, and in conversation, to make out a case. The most distinct example of these tales we find in the following, which we especially seeks to reflect the popular feeling of the day. It is there said, in the form of an interrogation, 'that at the audiences of Cabinet Ministers with her Majesty there is usually another distinguished party present,—that 'the Foreign Minister of England is obliged to canvass all his measures in the presence of one who is not a member of the Cabinet, but who is in constant and confidential communication with all foreign courts, with the single exception of that of France.' This insinuation is coupled with another emphatic assertion in the same journal, that it has in its possession the means of proving that Lord Palmerston's resignation, just announced to the public on Friday, was known in Berlin and Vienna early on Thursday. When insinuations of this kind were first levelled at Prince Albert, we wholly disbelieved them, on the ground of that excellent sense which he had shown, and in nothing more, it was understood, than in discreetly abstaining from political interference; but it would be a breach of duty not to mention that these representations are generally current, and that they are beginning to obtain a too general belief. The passage in the Queen's speech on the Prince's abilities, was probably inserted with all his heart to the sentiment inscribed over it—Success to the Great Western Railway. It was worthy the people—Indian Yankees of their progress. The Great Western will be the great thoroughfare from the East and West. The honeymoon, for the time when all rest returns would be required, should either be for one day when two days of autumn house officers would assemble at Englishman landing in America. County Council.

Monday, January 23, 1854.

Members present:—

Mr. Scatchard was unanimously elected Warden: Mr. John Brown was elected an Auditor; and Charles Monsarrat, Esq. Auditor by the Warden: Mr. Wm. Barker, reeve; Mr. Murray Anderson, deputy. London Township. William Moore, reeve: Wm. Elliott, deputy.

Westminster, E. Ellwood, reeve; P. McClary, deputy.

Nissouri, J. Scatchard, reeve: no deputy.

Williams, — Frazer, reeve; — Mott, deputy.

Mosa, Wm. Spartling, reeve: no deputy.

Lobo, — McKellar, reeve.

Adelaide, H. Dell.

Metcalfe, Thomas Moyle.

Delaware, S. B. Tindl.

Caradoc, H. Cleach.

Elfield, G. S. Smith.

North Dorchester, — Craig, reeve; Wm. H. Niles, deputy.

Mr. McClary, seconded by Mr. Elwood, moved that the thanks of this Council are hereby given to Wm. Niles, Esq., our late Warden, for the action he has taken with regard to the voting of a sum of money by the Directors of the G. W. Railroad, to Sir Allan McNab, for certain services alleged to have been performed by him for said Railroad Company. While we are willing to give all credit to that gentleman, for the active part he has taken in furthering the interests of the company. We deprecate the policy of Railroad Companies in placing their Directors and Officers in a position to be associate Directors in the manner lately attempted in this case, and give our sincere thanks to the late worthy Warden for the prompt action he took in thwarting the same, as well as for the many services he has rendered to the County during the long period he has held that honorable office.

In amendment, Wm. Elliott, Esq., moved, seconded by Mr. Moore, that this Council approve of the action of the late Warden in opposing the grant of a large sum of money, and also a pension to Sir Allan McNab, for services which he is stated to have performed on behalf of the Great Western Railway, inasmuch as the nature of these services has not been sufficiently specified, to authorize any such appropriation of the Railway funds or stock;—which was lost on a division. The original motion was then put and carried.

Messrs. Elliott, Moyle, Anderson, Niles and Dell, were appointed a standing committee on finance.

Messrs. Barker, Moore, Scatchard, McClary, Smith, Toule and Fraser, were appointed a select committee on Roads and Bridges, also a board of Road Directors for the present year.

Mr. McClary, seconded by Mr. Moore, moved that if at any time during the present year, the Warden be unable to attend to his duties as a Director of the G. W. Railroad, he be authorized to nominate any gentleman of the County Council to take his place. Carried.

Tuesday.

Mr Moore moved seconded by Wm. Elliott, Esq., moved that the thanks of this Council be tendered to the late Auditor, Council Clerk in consideration of the services rendered by them to the County of Middlesex Agricultural Society, two lots of Land, in the Town of London, that the Directors of the said County of Middlesex Agricultural Society, be empowered to rent or otherwise dispose of said Land as they may deem expedient for the benefit of the Society. Carried.

The Council was put in committee of the whole on the appointment of three Trustees for the Grammar School of the County.

Mr. Anderson in the chair.

The chairman reported the names of the following gentlemen as Trustees of the County Grammar School, viz: Messrs. Clarke, Skinner and Elliott—and submitted them to the adoption of the Council, on the question of receiving the Report. Mr. Barker, seconded by Mr. Niles, moved in amendment that Messrs. Clarke, Skinner and Kerr, be appointed the Trustees of the Grammar School.

Mr. Moore, seconded by Mr. Elwood, moved in amendment that Messrs. Clarke, Elliot and Daniells be the Trustees, which was lost.

The Report of the committee as amended by Mr. Barker, was then put, and carried by a majority of one.

Mr. Barker, seconded by Mr. Anderson, moves that this council are in favor of the Free School system, being extended to the County Grammar Schools.

In amendment, Mr. Elliott, seconded by Mr. Moyle, moves that the question of Free School education, according to the usual meaning of the term, is not involved in the support of the Grammar School, entirely by taxation of the people of this county, and that it is not desirable that the people of this county should be taxed in order to afford gratuitous instruction in classical Liberties in the Grammar School of the town of London. Carried.

The School Trustees for the County Grammar School, retire thus: 1st, Mr. Skinner, 2nd, Mr. Kerr, 3rd, Mr. Clarke.

The petition from Delaware was referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Mr. Elwood seconded by Mr. McClary, moved that a delegation ascertain from the county council of Elgin how much Stock they will take in the Port Stanley Railroad.

Messrs. Barker and Niles were appointed.

The following gentlemen were appointed local superintendents:

Rev. C. Brough, London, J. B. Widow, Metcalfe, Alex. Strathy, Westminster, Rev. JJ. Skinner, Whitis Rev. M. Wilkenson, Lobo, R. P. Tooth, Adelaide, Rev. M. Flood, Delaware, C. Hardy, Nissouri W. Arch. Campbell, Caradoc, R. W. Kerr, Dorch'r N Rev. M. Sutherland, Ekfrid, Arch. Currin, Mosa.

Wednesday.

The consideration of the Port Stanley Railroad postponed.

Messrs. Elliott, Barker, Moyle, McClary, and Craig were appointed a select committee on education.

Messrs. Barker, Moore, McClary, Clench and the Warden, were appointed a Board of Road Directors for the present year, former appointments being first rescinded.

Messrs. Sparling, Dell, Towle, Craig, Frazer, McKellar and Smith, were appointed a committee of public improvements.

Thursday.

Council engaged in public improvements.

Nothing interesting.

Friday.

The Council were engaged in matters of finance, and Mr. Barker moved, seconded by Mr. Clench, that it will tend to facilitate the business of the Council, were a correct map or plan, showing all the Roads and Bridges, furnished to them, and authorizing the Board of Road Directors to offer £100 for obtaining the same, and that a competent engineer be employed who shall receive the above sum, on the condition that he furnishes, at least, one hundred copies to be distributed amongst the several municipalities.—Carried.

Saturday.

Mr. Elliott moved and Mr. Barker seconded, that the Legislature be petitioned to amend the London and Port Stanley Railroad Act, by increasing the control of the municipalities who have taken Stock therein, in the directorship, and that accordingly this council do petition the Legislature to amend the act by making the Board of each municipality, taking stock therein to the ex cut of £5000, one of the Directors, and that a municipality taking stock therein exceeding £25,000 be entitled to two directors, and that the private stockholders be represented by at least two Directors. Carried.

Mr. Moyle seconded, Mr. Dill moved that the engineer be directed to perform what is necessary on the Roads previous to contract being entered into, in the order in which the roads have been assumed by the council, lost on a division.

Mr. Barker moved, seconded by Mr. Moore, that that the salary of the County Engineer be at the rate of 20s. a day, when actively employed, this sum to include carriage hire and that the sum of £75 be allowed him for carriage hire for the year 1853. Carried.

Mr. Elliott moved, seconded by Mr. Moore, that the Clerk be directed to write to the Managing Director of the Great Western Railway Company, calling the attention of the Company to the necessity of thus preserving in their original usefulness and safety, all new Public Roads in this county intersected by their railway, particularly to call their attention to the dangerous state of the Bridge erected at the crossing of the Wharncliff highway. Carried.

Mr. Clark moved, seconded by Mr. Barker that the clerk do notify Mr. John Beattie to repair Westminster Bridge, agreeably to the conditions of agreement between the County Council and said John Beattie, and in the event of Mr. Beattie refusing to comply with said notification, that the Warden be instructed to take action against Mr. Beattie.

Reports in our next.

Post Office Department.

It may well be asked who has charge of this Department, and whether the country is too poor to pay the Postmaster General, or is so far behind in intelligence as not to be able to supply a man of ordinary capacity to discharge the duties attached to the situation, here we are at London where a person leaving New York by the ordinary mode of travel can arrive the following evening after his departure from thence or in 36 hours while the Mail which arrived at New York on the 23rd or 24th cannot find its way here until the night of the 30th or morning of the 31st; while the next mail will be despatched at the 31st being of the post bag, and under all monotony enlivened by revelations of wanting facts and lets me likely ones, and certain discussions by the town collected to raise still further our high moral Government in Public estimation.

St. Patrick's Ward.

At a meeting held at Mr James McDowell's, Jan ary 28, 1854, for the purpose of considering the propriety of Messrs. Hynman & Cousins, resigning their seats in the Council, Mr. Robert Green was appointed chairman, and Mr. P. G. Norris, Secretary.

That Messrs. Hynman and Cousins be requested to resume their seats in the Council.

To which an amendment was moved by John Craig and seconded by Wm. Johnston, that this meeting approve of the resignation of Messrs. Cousins and Hynman under the circumstances, believing as we do that Mr. Holmes has acted the part of a man void of principal by receiving the appointment of Mayor, after voluntarily pledging himself, as he did, to support E. Adams, Esq. Carried unanimously.

The original resolution was lost, there being only two hands held up for it.

Moved by James Graham and seconded by John Jennings,

That the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Times, with the request to have the same copied in all the other papers in the town. Carried.

The above resolution fully justifies the remarks we have made on Mr. Holmes conduct, and we should be glad to know where the Mayor of London can be found, we should suggest a reward for finding him.—ED. TIMES.

INQUEST.—An inquest was held by Dr. Wanless, coroner, on the body of Ann Burr, who, according to the evidence submitted, in company with some others, had had a glass of beer each at the Cove Inn, on the night previous, and who on proceeding towards town, insisted on going down the steps at the side of the Bridge crossing the Great Western Railroad track, the first step is steep, and it was supposed she had not known that circumstance, for she was precipitated to a depth of some 20 or 30 feet, she was found, with her head and face severely injured, and insensible. She was carried to the Cove Inn, and lived but a few hours. Verdict from injuries of head caused accidentally.

Great Bargain of Land.

A novel mode of advertising Land at a low figure has been resorted to in Southwold. Mr. William Crowder, who has the misfortune to have a wife differing from him in religion, intending to change his residence, received the following notice, which we extract from the St. Thomas Standard, and publish it verbatum et literatum;

William Crowder

we have borne with our insults offered to our church and people on account of your family, and while you allow them to enjoy their home you are safe as far as regards us leaving it with God to punish the Heretick as he may think best. but should you persist in seling the House from over your wifes head contrary to her wish draging her from the chapel the only place where she Can take comfort, our vengeance shall follow you, and before one year passes you will regret what you have done, we give you this warning that you may Save yourself from ruin, we have also given timely notice to King that he may know what to expect should he come here. WO, be unto you both if you heed it not. the cause of GOD demands, it will come, this is not to frighten only, but to save your family from destruction

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kind of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING SIDDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favorable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Opbicli es, Sax horns, Trombones, Cornpeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few word regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, is the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of a tone, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, rich and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune; these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual proportion. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0

0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 103, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid annually, to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in paymedt of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or tials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Seventh day of April, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

BAKING ESTABLISHMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 15, 1852.

I BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence have had the best reports, about the advantages of Mr. Gurney's new self-raising flour. Having had the experience of the last year in the business, I am now prepared to supply the public with the best of Bread, Biscuits, Pastry, &c. &c. at the shortest notice. I do not intend to employ any agents, but will serve parties who certainly prefer to Wholesale, though evil designs and unfriendly advice they did against me. I have now returned for the purpose of serving all customers and re-commencing baking business, as heretofore, and as particular, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall exert to the baking business with every attention and fill orders with promptness and despatch on the shortest notice.

CANADIAN BLOOMERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

London C. W. June 15th, 1852.

Messrs. Reynolds & Co.

Gentlemen—I have received the sample bottles of your Compound Canadian Cordial, and although in a hasty manner, I have tried it on a number of patients, and its fragrance and peculiar taste flavour, which is very essential to Medicinal qualities, appears to be largely diluted and well preserved, and in one instance I have a single bottle left in those instances of importance depending on the ability or want of tone of the digestive organs, the form most frequently met with on the continent, your cordial will indeed be found, to meet our medical requirements in Canada.

I therefore have much pleasure in recommending its Preparation to my fellow practitioners, and to the public as a safe and invigorating cordial.

DR. STURWOOD'S Galvanic Rubrefacient. This Galvanic Embrocation is used with positive and permanent success in all cases of Rheumatism, acute chronic, seated in the head, joints or limbs. Sore, Tic Doloureux, nervous and Sick Headache, Paraysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Weakness of the limbs, Spasms and Hip Complaints, Chilblains, of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, nervous Tremors, General Debility Deficiency of Diseases, Asthma, Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism, to infuse the vitality of life, and that disease in many of its painful forms is entirely owing to the absence of this subtle, or Magnetic power in its healthy proportions. It then, we can safely, supply this wondrous power, when it is labia deficient, we can more safely commend, and we have been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining magnetism or life action with a fluid which has not the tendency of other nostrums and kind.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal extant in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases having come under their notice, wonderful cures, of corresponding persons experience of their beneficial use. The new Art of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in being able to state that a majority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

HYATO CHINESE BALSAM.

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Cholic, Pains &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them much good. I take the first opportunity in case of Scarlet Fever, and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it relieved a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Respectfully yours. JOHN DOTY.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application.—Cures all Unrelated Sores, Piles, Chilblains, Scald Feet Blisters and many other diseases Mustang Oil is heir!!

Try it; you will not regret it.

TO W. C SWEET.

DEAR SIR—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years I have been troubled with a fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure, only by the knife, and they would have charged me a high price. I was about to employ one, when you visited this place and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

JOHN PERRY.

Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I hereby certify, that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.

THE UNEQUALLED MEDICINE.

It is an invaluable remedy for Pole-Evil, Fistula, Scratches, Sand-cracks, Old Sores with Pipes Formed, Solder-Boils, Fresh Wounds, Wind Galls of every description, Inflammation, Colds and Coughs, Chap-grass, Sweeny, Cracked heels, Spavins and Bruises, Lameness or Weakness of the Joints, contraction of the Muscles, External Poisons, Burns and Scalds, Horn Distemper in Cattle, Hoose-Ail, Hip-a-Hoof &c.

WARRANTED IN ALL REASONABLE CASES.

Facts are stubborn things. The medicine is not surpassed by any as yet known for the above diseases. It has cured more of Poll-Evil, Fistula, Sweeny Shoulders, than any other Medicine prepared for the purpose, farmers and horses and Cattle are buying Oil of Sweet. As nuisance and numerous flowery certificates from any part of the necessities of this medicine, we publish but a few from the many thousands we have in possession, but suffice to say ying in knowing.

CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned, have for years used and sold Sweet's Family Curative Liniment, and can safely recommend it to the purchaser, supposing preparation for sealing galls cuts, bruises Muscle-sore, and sores of every kind. It is the original mark, by those who have used it. We have used many Liniments for our horses, but have found none to give the satisfaction for cuts, galls, &c. as Sweet's Liniment, which will be found on application, to be one of the most choice selections ever offered for sale in London.

LONDON C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have acquired in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular description of their medicine virtues or powers. Having been more than twenty years before the public and having the united testimony of more than Ten Millions of persons who have been benefited to the enjoyment of perfect health by them it is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public needs no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dropsy, Dropsy, Piles, and in short in fact all diseases, can be cured in the shortest time by the use of these pills, and no person should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Poetry.

ANNA.

BY PITE ADAM.

Of all the names belonging to dear woman
It seems to me that Anna's the most common;
Yet notwithstanding this, upon my life,
Anna's the name I wish for in a wife.
When through the world I look abroad, I find
That Annas differ much in form and mind;
And, for one Anna whom I could adore,
I find a dozen vixens, ayes, and more,
We all agree that no one but a goose
Would patiently submit to Ann-a-buse;
And certainly there's not a greater pest
In this sad world of ours, than Ann-a-rest.
Then Ann-a-pothecary is quite too physical,
And Ann-a-rotis is by far too quzzical.
There's Ann-a-clorney wastes a deal of paper,
And Ann-a-gyss is an eternal gaper.
The former, too, of these is thought litigious;
And Ann-a-cipid is much too religious.
I never yet up face of mountain went,
Without most loudly cursing Ann-a-scend.
Then Ann-a-stronomer looks far too high
For such an humble personage as I.
Yet, though I say I'm humble, you must know
That Ann-a-prentice is as much to low.

Here let me finish this unpleasant stricture,
And view the better side of Anna's picture.
Now, of this name a few there are 'twould seem,
Who certainly these faults in part redeem,
All should thoughts I scorn, but yet I'm told
Whoe'er get Ann-a-nnuity gets gold.
In matters of importance I'd consult
No foolish, giddy, girl, but Ann-a-lyst.
In times of danger, too, I should rely Upon the friendly aid of Ann-a-lly.
In Ann-a-ssembly there is a great variety,
Which, in a wife, you know, prevents satiety.
I understand that even the fair sex quarrel
About the form and make of Ann-a-spanyl.
Soldiers are always fond of Ann-a-ssault,
But fonder still, it seems, of Ann-a-bivy.
Then Ann-a-ccuser loves the forest glade,
And Ann-a-nemone the modest shade.
I'll pledge my honor, too, as I'm a sinner
That Ann-a-ssurance eats well at dinner.
So, after all, I am obliged to state
That the good qualities preponderate:
All human happiness is but a toy,
There is no pleasure without Ann-a-bloy.

Electro-Biology and Mesmerism.

FROM THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW.

In this form of Somnambulism, there is usually as complete an insensibility, as in ordinary sleep, to all external impressions, excepting such as fall in with the existing current of ideas. No ordinary sights or sounds, odours or tastes, pricks, pinches &c., make themselves felt; and yet, if anything is addressed to the somnambulist which is in harmony with the notion that occupies his mind at the time, he may take cognisance of it, and interweave it with his web of thought, which may receive a new color therefrom. A case is cited by Dr. Carpenter, of a young lady who when at school frequently began to talk after having been asleep an hour or two; her ideas at most always ran upon the events of her previous day, and, if one mixed in question she would give a very coherent account of them, frequently disclosing her own secret feelings and those of her school-fellows, and expressing great sentience for the former, whilst she seemed to dictate about making known the latter. To all ordinary sounds, however, she was perfectly insensible. A loud noise would awake her, but was never perceived in the sleep-talking state, and if the interlocutor addressed to her any observations that did not fall in with her train of thought, they were completely disregarded. By a little attention, however, she might be led to converse about any subject if a transition was made from one to another by means of leading questions.

It is an important and distinctive feature of the somnambulic state, that neither the trains of thought which have passed through the mind, nor the actions which have resulted from them, are remembered when the subject awakes; or if any recollection of them should be preserved, they are retraced only as passages of an ordinary dream. Both the trains of thought, and the events of a former somnambulic state, are nevertheless frequently remembered, on its renewal, with the utmost vividness, even at a distant interval; and of this interval, however long it may have been, there seems to be no sort of consciousness. The same thing happens, but more rarely, in ordinary dreaming, the sleeper sometimes recollecting a previous dream, and even carrying on the thread of a circumstance which marks the close affinity of this form of dream to that of somnambulism, since it is only when the idea of the sleeper possesses the fixity and congruity characteristic of the latter, that it shows a tendency to recurrence. The following incident, which recently happened, is a good exemplification of the 'acted dream,' and of the continuity of the impression from one occasion to another:—A servant-maid, rather given to somnambulism, missed one of her combs; and on making the most diligent search, was unable to find it. One morning, however, she awoke with the comb in her hair, so that there can be little doubt that she had put it away on a previous night, without preserving any recollection of the circumstance when she was awake; and that she had recovered it when the remembrance of its hiding-place was brought to her mind by the recurrence of the state in which it had been secreted.

Many of the most characteristic features of this species of Somnambulism are presented by a case which is narrated by Dr. Carpenter as occurring within his own experience. The subject of it was a young lady of highly nervous temperament: and the affection occurred in the course of a long illness, in which all the severest forms of hysterical disorder had successively presented themselves. The state of Somnambulism usually supervened upon the waking state; instead of growing as is commonly the case, out of sleep:—

'In this condition her ideas were at first entirely fixed upon one subject, the death of her only brother, which had occurred some years previously. To this brother she had been very strongly attached; she had nursed him in his last illness; and it was, perhaps, the return of the anniversary of his death, about the time when the somnambulism first occurred, that gave to her thoughts in that particular direction. She talked constantly of him, retraced all the circumstances of his illness, and was unconscious of anything that what said to her which had not reference to this subject. On one occasion she mistook her sister's husband for her lost brother; imagined that he was come from heaven to visit her; and kept up a long conversation with him under this impression. This conversation was perfectly rational on her side, allowance being made for the fundamental errors of her data.—Thus she begged her supposed brother to pray with her; and on his repeating the Lord's Prayer, she interrupted him after the sentence, "forgive us our trespasses," with the remark, "But you need not pray thus; your sins are already forgiven." Although her eyes were open, she recognised no one in this state, not even her own sister, who, it should be mentioned, had not been at home at the time of her brother's last illness.

'On another occasion it happened that, when she passed into this condition, her sister, who was present, was wearing a locket containing some of their deceased brother's hair. As soon as she perceived this locket, she made a violent snatch at it, and would not be satisfied until she had got it into her own possession, when she began to talk to it in the most endearing and even extravagant terms. Her feelings were so strongly excited on this subject, that it was judged prudent to check them; and as she was inaccessible to all entreaties for the relinquishment of the locket, force was employed to obtain it from her. She was so determined, however, not to give it up, and was so angry at the gentle violence used, that it was found necessary to abandon the attempt; and having become calmer, after a time, she passed off into ordinary sleep. Before going to sleep, however, she placed the locket under her pillow, remarking, "Now I have hid it safe," and they should not take it from me." On awaking in the morning, she had not the slightest consciousness of what had passed; but the impression of the excited feelings still remained: for she remarked to her sister, "I cannot tell what it is that makes me feel so; but every time that S—— comes near me I have a kind of shuddering sensation;" the individual named being a servant, whose constant attention to her had given rise to a feeling of strong attachment on the side of the invalid, but who had been the chief actor in the scene of the previous evening. This feeling wore off in the course of a day or two.

'A few days afterwards, the somnambulism again recurred; and the patient being upon her bed at the time, immediately began to search for the locket under pillow. In consequence of its having been removed in the interval (in order that she might not, by accidentally finding it there, be led to inquire into the cause of its presence, of which it was thought better to keep her in ignorance,) she was unable to find it: at which she expressed great disappointment, and continued searching for it, with the remark, "It must be there; I put it there myself a few minutes ago, and no one can have taken it away." In this state the presence of S—— renewed her previous feelings of anger; and it was only by sending S—— out of the room, that she could be calmed and induced to sleep.

'This patient was the subject of many subsequent attacks, in every one of which the anger against S—— revived; until the current of thought changed, no longer running exclusively upon what related to her brother, but becoming capable of direction by suggestions of various kinds, perceived to her mind, either in conversation, or more directly, through the several organs of sense.'

Here, then, we perceive the complete limitation of the consciousness to the one train of ideas which was immediately connected with the object of strong affection. Her recognition of the locket which her sister wore, when she did not recognise the wearer, was extremely curious; and Dr. Carpenter remarks, may be explained in two modes, each of them in accordance with the known laws of somnambulism. Either the concentration of her thoughts caused her to remember only that which was immediately connected with her brother, or she may have been directed to the locket by the sense of smell which is frequently exalted in the somnambulistic state to a remarkable degree, enabling the somnambulist to find out the owner of a ring or a glove amongst a number of by-standers, with as much facility as the best trained hound. The continuity of the train of thought from one fit to the next was strongly marked in this instance; and the prolongation of the emotional excitement throughout the interval, without any loss of intensity, is a feature of peculiar interest, as showing that some organic impression must have been left by the mental operations of the somnambulistic state, which the waking consciousness could not tr

...ecting the subject to gaze fixedly at their eyes, which is just like looking at a shilling in the hand, or at Mr. Braid's lancet-case. In fact we have seen a young lady biologized either by staring at her own fingers or at the eyes of the operator; and her rapport with the operator was the same in both cases. Other mesmerisers employ certain strokings and waftings of the hand, termed 'passes;' and these have a two-fold effect, serving to produce the monotony of impression which is favorable to the access of the sleep, and to direct the thoughts towards any part upon which it may be intended to act.

(Department Circular.)

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

Quebec 1st January, 1854.

REDUCTION OF POSTAGE CHARGE ON NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICAL PUBLICATION.

Commencing on and from the 1st February, 1854, Newspapers and Periodical Publications will be subject to the following Regulations and Charges when transmitted through the Post in this Province:—

1. The Postage charge on Canadian Newspapers will be—

When published 6 times a week, 8s. 0d. per annum,

Ditto	" 3	4s 0d.	Ditto
Ditto	twice "	2s 8d.	Ditto
Ditto	once "	1s 4d.	Ditto

And these rates are to be paid Quarterly in advance.

2. At the beginning of each Post Office Quarter, Postmasters will require the Subscribers receiving Newspapers regularly through their Office to pay their Quarter's Postage thereon in advance.

3. Publishers may, if they see fit, make this Prepayment on behalf of their subscribers at the Offices where the papers are posted; and, in that case, the publishing Postmaster must be careful to stamp such papers as prepaid, for the information of the receiving Post Masters.

4. These rates of charge will also apply to papers published in the United States, addressed to subscribers in this province.

5. The postage on what are called transient papers, that is, papers sent from the Office of publication to actual subscribers, will remain 1d. each Paper, as at present, to be collected on delivery, or prepaid, at the option of the sender. Such Prepaid transient papers must be marked as such by the sending Postmaster.

6. Newspapers to and from the Lower Provinces. Newspapers sent to Subscribers in the United States from Office of Publication in Canada, and exchange Newspapers, will continue to be exempt from Postage charge.

7. The regulations respecting the transmission of Newspapers to and from the United Kingdom remain unaltered.

8. On Magazines and other Periodical Publications, the Postage charge will be as follows:—

When issued in Monthly Parts and weighing not more than 1 ounce.....0s. 4d. per annum.

When weighing over 1 oz. and not exceeding 4 do.....1s. 0d. per annum.

When weighing over 4 oz.....2s. 0d. do

When issued more or less frequently than once a month, the charge to be in like proportion—thus, on a weekly Periodical less than 1 oz. in weight, charge will be 4d. per Quarter.

These charges are to be collected at delivery as with the newspapers.

9. Transient Periodical Publications are to be charged 1d. per oz., which may be collected either by the sending or receiving Postmaster; if by the former, the packet must be marked as Prepaid.

10. When the Quarterly payment in advance of the Postage on Newspapers and Periodical Publications is refused, such Papers and Periodical matter, viz., 1d. each on Newspapers, and 1d. per oz. on Periodicals.

11. No entry is to made by postmasters in their Letter Bills or monthly sheets of any Postage collected or to be collected on Newspapers or Collected on Newspapers or Periodicals—nor will it be necessary to mark the Postage upon any Newspaper or Periodical, but it will be the duty of every Postmaster to keep an exact amount of all the Newspapers and Periodical Postage collected by him in each Quarter, stating separately the amount received by him out of Postage to accrue on the Quarter by Subscribers to Newspapers and Periodical Publications delivered at his Office; of "Collections on Unpaid transient papers and Periodicals received during the Quarter;" of "Postage on Transient Papers and Periodicals sent Prepaid from his Office," and where Newspapers and Periodicals are published the Postmaster will moreover have to state the amounts received from the Publishers on Papers, &c., sent by them prepaid to their Subscribers.

12. In the Quarterly Newspaper account, the Postmaster will enter by name the Newspapers, &c., which come regularly to Subscribers through the Office, the frequency of the Publication, the number or Subscribers to each, and her or their amount of Postage collected for the Quarter; thus:—

British Whig, daily, 50 copies	£1 0 0
New York, Herald, daily, 4 copies	0 8 0
On transient newspapers and periodicals delivered	0 6 6
On transient newspapers and periodicals sent prepaid	0 2 6
	£1 17 0

13. When making out the Quarterly Account Current of his Office, a Postmaster is to charge himself therein immediately beneath the entry of Letter Postage, with the amount of Newspaper and periodical postage collected upon the Quarterly Newspaper Account, which is to accompany the Account Current; and, in exchanging the Commission, the Postmaster will add the entry of Newspaper Postage to the other items constituting the gross Postage collected at his Office.

14. Forms of Account Current and Quarterly Newspaper Account adapted to these Regulations will be transmitted to Postmasters previous to the separation of the current Quarter.

15. As these Regulations take effect on the 1st February next, Postmasters will on that day call upon the Subscribers to Newspapers and Periodicals delivered through their respective offices to pay the Postage thereon in accordance with the foregoing rates, in advance, for the two months ending 31st March next, viz:—

For a daily Paper	1s. 4d.
For tri-weekly Paper	0s. 8d. &c., &c.

And on the 1st April for a full Quarter, and thereafter in like manner for a full Quarter on the 1st day of each Post Office Quarterly period.

16. When a Newspaper, &c., commences to arrive, for a Subscriber, in the course of a Quarter, the Postage is to be paid in advance to the end of the Quarter in proportion to the time to elapse; thus, a daily Paper received for one month only will be liable to a charge of 8d Postage.

17. As Postmasters are directed and authorised to collect these charges from regular Subscribers in advance, they will be held strictly accountable for the same.

18. When a newspaper or periodical is refused or not called for, the Publisher is to be promptly informed of the fact, by the transmission of the ordinary Form of Notice furnished to Postmasters for the purpose.

19. All undelivered Newspapers and Periodicals are to be sent in with the Dead Letter Returns to the Post Office Department; and as such Papers will bear no Postage charge, Postmasters will not give to claim any credit upon them in their Dead Letter Accounts.

Periodicals Publications, exclusively devoted to the promotion of Science, Education, Temperance, or of Agricultural instruction, are to pass through the Post entirely free of Postage charge.

Foreign Intelligence.

Naval force of England.

From the Times, January 6.

In the present state of affairs abroad it becomes a matter of general interest to the people of this country to ascertain, as far as possible, the condition of the effective naval forces at our disposal; and, from the increased activity which has been visible for some time past in the dockyards, we have no doubt that the Admiralty will be prepared to meet with the utmost promptitude all the demands made upon the service. We understand that it is the intention of the Government to raise the number of seamen and marines for the current year to 53,000 men, which is an increase of about 8,000 on the number voted for last year, and a further addition to the 5,000 men raised under the orders of Lord Derby's Administration. The total increase in the navy since 1852 may therefore be estimated at about 13,000 men. Of the force now to be raised for the service of the fleet 38,000 will be seamen and boys, and 15,500 marines. The unabated demand for ships and seamen in the merchant service, which is attributable to the extraordinary increase of our exports and imports, may render it a work of some difficulty summarily to raise so large an additional force, but on the other hand, the improved condition of the seamen under the last regulations of the navy, the chance of prize money, and the call of the country are additional incumbents to volunteer for the service. A large proportion of our seafaring men are always abroad, and probably not more than 20,000 seamen, except those serving in the navy, are at any one moment in England. Some time must therefore elapse before the demands of the service are known to the class of men whom they most concern; but the manner in which 5,000 additional seamen have been raised in the past year, without any extraordinary stimulus, warrants the belief that the sailors of England will not be wanting to the flag of their country.

The present moment is remarkable for other reasons in the annals of the naval service, since it is destined to witness the transformation of the fleet into a steam navy. No one of the tens of thousands who were present at the naval review at Spithead could doubt the expediency and necessity of the application of steam power to the largest ships. Already on that occasion a considerable squadron of line of battle ships moved by screw propellers were collected; but this force has since been largely increased, and our readers will pursue with interest a list of the line of battle ships and frigates now afloat and moved by this powerful mechanism:

	Guns.	H p.		Guns.	H p.
Duke of Wing'n	180	700	Western Squadron.
Royal George	120	400	Devonport.
St. Jean d'Acre	101	600	Western Squadron.
Agamemnon	90	600	Bosphorus.
Caesar	90	400	Not in commission.
Cressy	80	400	Sheerness.
James Watt	90	600	Not in commission.
Majestic	80	400	Not in commission.
Nile	90	590	Not in commission
Princess Royal	90	400	Portsmouth.
Sanspareil	70	350	Boso'rus.
Ajax	58	450	Cork.
Benheim	60	550	Guardship(P'sm'th)
Hogue	60	450	Ditto (Devonp rt.)
Edinburgh	58	450	Ditto (Portsmouth)
Arrogant	47	350	Western Squadron.
Imperious	50	360	Western Squadron.
Amphion	34	300	do do
Hortio	24	250	Guardship(Sheer'ss)
Tribune	50	300	Western Squadron
Dauntless	24	580	Portsmouth
Highflier	21	250	Mediterranean
Eurydus	50	400

The above are all screw steamships; but to these may be added the following, among the more powerful paddle-wheel steamers now afloat:—

	Guns.	H.p.
Terrible	21	800 Bosphorus.
Sidon	22	560 do
Odin	16	560 Western Squadron.
Retribution	28	400 Bosphorus.
Valorous	16	400 Western Squadron.
Furious	16	400 Bosphorus.
Leopard	18	560 Portsmouth.
Magicienne	16	400 Devonport.
Penelope	16	650 West coast of Africa.

We omit vessels of an inferior class, and those we have named all deserve to be ranked as powerful frigates.

In addition to these lists the following screw steamships are building, and will probably be afloat in a few months:—

	Guns.	Horse power.
Royal Albert	120	400
Marlborough	120
Conqueror	100
Orion	90	600
Repulse	90	600
Hannibal	90	450
Algiers	90	450
Exmouth	90	400
Hero	90
Forte	50
Chesapeake	30
Curacoi	50	350
San Fiorenzo	50

It appears from these returns that setting aside the whole sailing fleet of England, we have at present afloat 41 screw line-of-battle ships, soon to be increased to 20, 5 guard ships with auxiliary screw powers, and 7 frigates fitted with screw propellers, which may be considered (with one or two exceptions) the finest vessels ever launched of their class. Of these screw line-of-battle ships, only two (the Sanspareil and the Agamemnon) are in the Turkish waters, and the former of these two vessels does not, we fear, altogether answer to her name. The greater number of those already in commission belong to those in Admiral Corry's division, which is termed by the Admiralty the Western Squadron, though it may be considered to be on an experimental cruise; and four are still waiting for commission. So that, independent of the British squadron now in the Bosphorus, that portion of the fleet which is not in the Mediterranean consists of an equal number of newer and more powerful ships than those under the command of Admiral Dundas. This result is already creditable to the Admiralty, and it has been accomplished within the last few months on what is still a peace establishment. Among those politicians who distinguished themselves at an early period of the dispute now pending in the East by loudly recommending a prompt appeal to arms, there may be some who will perceive with satisfaction that we are far better prepared to meet such an emergency at the present time, than we were last spring. At that time the Baltic was open, our naval resources were not collected, and our coasts were comparatively undefended. We have now had time to prepare against the danger. Our armaments, indeed, are still of a very limited character, and cannot, compared to the stupendulous exertions of the Emperor of Russia, who has set the whole army of his empire in motion, has 40 line-of-battle ships in commission, has raised four millions and a half of money from the country, and commenced operations on a scale worthy of the campaign of Moscow. But no one will complain that Great Britain has been less violent and precipitate in her demonstrations of hostility, partly from her reluctance to surrender the last hopes of peace, and partly from a just confidence in that power which has never yet failed her. The admiralty has constructed a fleet of magnificent ships, armed with all that modern science has done for navigation. We trust that young, able, and energetic officers will be selected to command them; and we venture to affirm that, with good ships, good officers, and good treatment, the blue jackets will not fail to do their part in their country's battles.

The Rise in Breadstuffs.

For the last six months, breadstuffs have been gradually rising in price in Europe.—The current rate for flour in January 1853 in the Liverpool market was about 30s as spring opened, it declined, to 26s. and 27s., and after remaining stationary for some time has been increasing ever since. In October, the average was about 24s.; in December about 36s.; and now in January, 44s. appear to be near the mark. The short crop of 1853 was probably sufficient to account for the increase of price up to December, but the extraordinary rise since, of nearly six shillings in a few days, can only be owing to the expectation of war.

In order to show the greatness of the alteration in price, we have prepared a comparative statement of prices in the month of January of the last six years, at various places:

Two years ago, flour was worth less than one half its present value in the Toronto and New York markets, and the increase in Liverpool is but little less. The highest actual quotation we can find during the famine time consequent on the failure of the potato crop in 1846, is 42s in Liverpool, although transactions were said to have taken place at 44s. That was in May, 1847, at which time sales of flour were made in Toronto at 35s. The combination, of a short crop in Europe and the prospect of war have sufficied to carry the price as high as did the failures, or the potatoes, and it is the opinion of the best authorities upon the subject, that should the war continue, as seems certain, the present rates will fully maintained if not increased. Seven shillings and six pence as high as did the failure of the potatoes, and it is the opinion of the best authorities upon the subject, that should the war continue, as seems certain, the present rates will be fully maintained, if not increased. Seven shillings and sixpence a bushel for wheat and seven dollars a barrel for flour, with a proportionate rate for other articles would make the Canadian farmer far too great a man to be spoken to by ordinary people. A year or two of such a price would have a most important effect upon the condition of the province. The exports of vegetable food during 1853, have probably not been less than one million and three quarters currency, and in 1854, they will in all likelihood advance to two millions and a half.

There is said to be a considerable quantity of wheat yet in the hands of the farmers, particularly in the back townships. They have got full prices for other articles and appear to be inclined to herd their grain. They can hardly hope for more than 7s 6d per bushel, and we suppose that an influx from the backwoods may be expected immediately.

Admiralty Register of Wrecks for the Year 1854.

From the Life Boat Journal.

The Blue Book under the above title, which is annually presented to parliament, has just been published for the year 1852. It comes at an appropriate time. Wintry gales, long nights, and lee shores are the fit accompaniments for so fearful a record of wreck and devastation. In running the eye down the column of casualties, we light upon 12 lives lost, 15 lost, 36 lost, 45 lost, 75 lost, 100 lost, "all lost," "all drowned." Could it be credited, were it not for the official accounts, with the authority for each case appended, that 1,115 wrecks, with a loss of 920 lives, occurred on the coasts, and within the seas of the United Kingdom in the single year of 1852? Yet so it is. Of this number 534 were total wrecks, the remainder stranded and damaged so as to require to discharge cargo. With the present number of the Life Boat Journal, is also presented a wreck chart of the British Isles, showing all the casualties to shipping which occurred in the seas and on the shores of the United Kingdom in the year 1852, amounting to the fearful number of 1,115 wrecks. Let the reader pause a moment and cast a careful look at the chart. Each black dot in the sable border which surrounds the shores signifies a wreck, in 533 cases a total wreck, and in all other cases such an amount of damage as to require the vessel to discharge her cargo to repair. The number of lives lost, as far as ascertained, although doubtless many are not recorded, is 930. Reflect for a moment on the vast amount of misery that this loss of life must entail on surviving relatives and friends bereaved by this fearful visitation, independently of the loss of life to the unfortunate sufferers themselves, and ask yourself the question, "Have I not the power to prevent to some extent the recurrence to similar distress?"

From the summary attached to the register we learn that the casualties in each month were as follows:—January, 156; February, 77; March, 32; April, 44; May, 41; June, 29; July, 18; August, 42; September, 85; October, 164; November, 189; December, 264—total, 1,115.

Of these 464 occurred on the east coast of Great Britain, 158 on the south coast, 235 on the west coast, 128 wrecks stranded on the coast of Ireland, 5 were cast on shore at Scilly, 9 at the Channel Islands, 18 on the Orkneys and Shetland, and 18 at the Isle of Man; the remaining 80 occurred in the surrounding seas. The gales of January caused 126 casualties, as shown above; they proceeded during the whole month and the early part of February; the spring, summer, and autumn, were moderate; but on the 25th October an easterly gale began, that in six days strewed the coast with 102 wrecks. Strong breezes and a short but moderate weather were followed by gales of ordinary force at this period of the year, but on the 24th of December a heavy storm from the south west burst over the country, and continued to the end of the year with such violence that, by the 26th, there was scarcely a vessel in the neighborhood of the British Islands left at sea; some had found safety by their running into port, while of others the returns show a list of 183 casualties, of which 102 were total wrecks, making a daily average of 5.40 wrecks during this awful and destructive gale.

The whole loss of life during the year, as far as has been ascertained, amounts to 924. Of these 103 were lost in the Amazon, destroyed by fire on the 4th of January, at about ninety miles from the Lands End; 13 in the Celtic Nile, wrecked on the 6th of January, near the Hawk Lighthouse, Wexford, owing to the neglect of the dilatory Pilots; 12 in the Jolly Bachelor, wrecked January 27, on the Arran Isles, near Galway; 13 in the Arrow, wrecked March 23, at the Seven Heads, near Kinsale; 72 in the Meade, wrecked September 24, on the Arklow Banks; 10 in the Ernesto, wrecked Oct. 27, near Boscastle, Cornwall; 14 in the Minerva, wrecked November 11, near the Bar of Drobeda; 15 in the Ocean Queen, wrecked December 26, at Margate; 12 in the Haggerston iron screw collier, lost in the gale of December 27, off Filly; 30 in the Lilly, stranded December 28, in the Sound of the Isle of Man, when her cargo ignited and she blew up; 19 in the Alcibiades, wrecked December 28, in Ballyteigue Bay, Wexford; add 19 in the Broad Oak, wrecked December 29, in Dunlough Bay, Skibbereen; the remainder were lost in smaller numbers on the coast, or in vessels that foundered in the adjoining seas; making in all 920.

Now, if a simple railway accident had occurred and a single soul had lost his life, a coroner's inquest would have been held, the whole would have been carefully looked into and published in every newspaper in the United Kingdom, and if any unconscious of neglect on the part of the railway company or their officials a heavy fine would have been imposed. How different is the case of losses by shipwreck. Is not a sailor's life as valuable as that of a stoker? Why, then, such a difference? are 920 seafaring men to perish, and many of them, as we see by the register, from neglect, or other causes within control, and no notice to be taken of them? We must have a re-coronation; we have before advocated such an appointment in the pages of this journal, and we repeat our convict on that that would be one of the most effectual means of diminishing the number of shipwrecks.

LATEST NEWS FROM CHINA.—The news from China is important. At Canton, and in its immediate vicinity all was quiet. Advices from Shanghai are to the 28th November. The reinforcements of the Imperial naval force induced the combined fleets to make a general attack on the city on the 10th of November. They succeeded in capturing two of the insurgent fleet, purchased from foreigners, and several junks, but were vigorously repelled, by the enemy on the land side and with great loss. Being unsuccessful in their land attack and unable to capture the batteries on shore the crews of the Imperial junks landed up the river, and commenced pillaging the neighborhood and setting fire to the houses, which led to the destruction of a considerable portion of the south eastern suburbs. Much valuable property was secured and carried off, after which the force retired, and no important attack has since been made.

From Amoy the most melancholy accounts have been received involving an amount of bloodshed that is calculated to strike terror into the hardest heart. The Imperialists having retaken the place, marked their success by slaying in cold blood nearly 1000 persons, few of whom took any part in the late movement. The streets and wharves of Amoy literally streamed with human blood not shed in any warlike operations, but done in a savage revenge. The villages around Amoy were made to contribute to the monster executions. Whole villages were threatened with death, unless they gave up all who took part in or sympathised with the insurgents, and as a consequence of this brutal demand the poor, weak, unoffensive, and defenceless villagers were surrendered up as victims to satiate the mandarins' thirst for blood. On the subject of the present position and prospects of the country, the Friend of China is of opinion that "the Tartar dynasty is now at its last gasp; and if at the next Chinese year will not unwarrantably be called as of Hung tsiu tsiuen, the Prince of Peace. Trade at Canton had somewhat improved.

At a church in Scotland two candidates offered to preach whose names were Adam and Low. The latter preached in the morning, and took for his text, "Adam where art thou?" He made an excellent discourse. In the afternoon, Mr. Adam preached upon the words, "Lo, here am I?" The impromptu gained the appointment.

Great Snow Storm in England.

Owing to the storm which has prevailed over a great portion of the country, we are without our usual advices from all parts north of Crewe, while from Ireland our despatches are now two days in arrear. The Manchester and Liverpool papers of yesterday, from the same cause, have not come to hand, nor have the London papers reached those towns, the mails being detained at Crewe. The telegraphic despatch from our Manchester correspondent, which is given below, will give a faint idea of the obstructions to railway communication caused by the snow along the the lines in the populous manufacturing districts of Lancashire and Yorkshire. It is currently stated that any longer continuance of the present inclement weather will entail the alarming probability of a failure in the supply of gas for the metropoliis. The condition of the river below London-bridge is now such that the colliers in the Pool cannot discharge their cargoes, the barges being in almost every instance frozen in, or so jammed up as to render it impossible to carry on the ordinary operations. The directors of several of the leading gas companies met yesterday for the purpose of determining what was best to be done under the circumstances. No decision was arrived at, and the only hope seems to be that the severity of the weather may moderate. The price of coals, we need scarcely add, is almost fabulous.

MANCHESTER, Jan 4.—There is no express train from here to London to-night, as the line is closed by snow. No London papers have arrived in Manchester to-day. The train which should have brought them, is embedded in the snow between Crewe and Stafford, nor has any train arrived here from Birmingham or London since the early mail this morning. Several trains from the south and west are stopped at Crewe. There has been no communication from Manchester to parts London beyond Stockport. On the Lancashire and Yorkshire lines passenger trains are embedded at Middleton, and another beyond Rochdale. All traffic on the Bolton line is stopped, and the East Lancashire line is blocked up beyond Bury. The traffic on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire line is stopped at Guide bridge; and three luggage trains are embedded in snow at Glossop, on the Stockport, and one on the Stalebridge branch. The North Staffordshire line is blocked up at Macclesfield. The snow in some places on the line is said to be sixteen feet deep. In many places in Manchester it is a yard deep. The snow fell all day, with fierce wind from North East by East, but ceased to snow about eight at night, and the wind fell at ten. Several accidents reported. Particulars not known. Prospect of a thaw.

DONCASTER, JAN. 4.—The trains on the line of the Great Northern are all snow bound in eight feet deep between Retford and Newark, and the line has been impassable all day and night. The Midland and Lincolnshire traffic are also snow bound, and the line impassable.

A CRICKETING PARADOX.—Any 11 can make a score.

Why do we know that Cleopatra did not wear pockets? Because she put her wiper in her bosom.

PROPER DIGNITY.—Stand no sauce from any servant but your cook.

HINT TO THE HOARD.—If you desire to be released from a rash promise of marriage, breathe vows of love continually after eating onions.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR LADY'S GROOM.—As bridegroom, a young man is preferred who has no character to produce from any last place.

FALLACY OF APPEARANCES.—At the richest dessert, after the most sumptuous dinner, it may be often observed that the fattest and jolliest-looking men are given to pine.

LEGAL.—The proverb says, "A fool keeps his own counsel;" and Brieflese says, "He only wishes some fool would keep him."

NATURAL HISTORY FOR BOARDING SCHOOLS.—A young lady who had heard that there were eggnets in the Thames went up to Richmond in a steamer, expecting to see some seals.

QUERIES TO WHICH WE PAUSE FOR A REPLY.—Is any account of the dome of St Paul's to be found in the Doomesday Book at the British Museum?—If "Day breaks," as the almanacs prophecy, will that affect himself only, or will the bankruptcy extend to the firm of "Day and Martin?"

HOW TO PUT OUT AN EVENING PARTY.—Sift card-rack for more respectable acquaintances. Frame invitations with lace borders. Sweep drawing room quite clean, and shoot rubbish into back bed-room. Map out an artificial parterre on the floor with chalk. Sow seed for seed cake. Gather mustard for sandwiches. Beat about the bush for gooseberries, and put them in tarlet, to come up as champagne. Order in old man from greengrocers and put Berlin bags on his hands for gloves. Buy slip for new dress, and gather flowers in the Burlington Arcade for your hair. Put the young twigs in their beds, but the elderly plants stick in library with cards. Lay traps for rich young men. Plant your company in rooms and couples, and set musicians in full glow in corner of drawing-room. When they are a little faint, water them with sherry. Hang wall flowers round the room. Dig for compliments, and run up a flirtation wherever you can fasten one. Above all, nail a husband, or else your plot will be without its greatest ornament and centre.

POP GOES THE QUESTION.—"Pop goes the question," has often led people a pretty dance. It is a pop that has always been exceedingly popular, and it is revived from time to time as much from necessity as fashion. The step is a very decided one; but though usually regarded as difficult, yet a little boldness and address is all that is required to make the gentlemen a rapid proficient. The steps are taken as follows:—Gentleman advances and bows to lady: chasse to lady's side; hands across; balances, and set (on a chair); Lady (makes) advances, and retreats, (into herself;) gentleman follows (up his advantage), and balance (on the chair); lady's chain (of endearments); cavalier sue! (set to work) right and left (with small talk); heads round (with excitement); down the middle and up again (with prepared speeches); gentleman takes lady's hand; lady withdraws it; poussette; right and left; hands across; gentleman drops on one knee, and turns the lady (to his purpose); grand round (of arm (about the waist.) Pop goes the question! This step is generally concluded by the figures joining hands, and uniting in a ring. The usual finale to the step is childish in the extreme.

Gavazzi Riots.

A perusal of the following extract from the Quebec Mercury, will naturally suggest to our readers two questions—first, what is the use of a government; and secondly, if it be admitted that there is any use in one, and that no country can be ruled without one—where is the Canadian Government, or is there such a thing in Canada? Now we believe every one who has read, or travelled, or used the ordinary reasoning faculties given him by his Maker, will readily admit that no country can retain its nationality and hold together without a governing power; and furthermore, that the same authority vested in a parent, as recognised in the patriarchal form of government, and successively vested in other Rulers, viz: of affording protection to life and property, forms the very essence of a government. Now we know that if we had to derive our opinion even from hearsay, that there has been, and is, a certain "Cabal" or body of adventurers calling themselves a government in this Country, and furthermore professing to be a responsible government. We may well ask what does their responsibility consist in, and to whom are they responsible, has their responsibility been tested in the unfortunate murder of from 20 to 30 individuals last June, for attending a lecture delivered by an Italian Ecclesiastic. The murder cannot be denied, the dead bodies of the victims have been identified; we have nothing to do here with any other fact than that those persons came by their death by some set of violence, and the parties who were guilty of that violence have escaped. Sham proceedings were resorted to in order to blindfold the public, and the guilty are shielded from justice; laws are inoperative if they cannot be made to reach the criminals, and the law advisers of the Crown are equally guilty, whether they fail to prosecute where crime has been committed, or if, when they prosecute, the prosecution fails to the ground from legal blundering. If the ends of justice had been the motive power of the public prosecutor he could, where excitement and high political and religious rancor prevailed, such as to render an impartial jury not easily to be obtained, have changed the venue and had the trial taken place in a locality free from such. Here we make no charge against the verdict, we believe there was no intention "to demolish Chalmer's Church," and on that issue we agree; but, that there was an intention to demolish those who were in the church, we believe to be quite another matter, and we ask why an indictment was not preferred for riot and assault. Now, that might not suit men who exist on sufferance; they dare not convict their allies. Gavazzi, who had a perfect right to lecture upon any subject which was not treasonable, irreligious, or immoral, was obnoxious to certain supporters of the Government, and therefore he must be banished. The laws are to be set aside, to be a dead letter. The Attorney General Drummond, confessed "that if he lectured the authorities could not protect him." What were the consequences, Brittons felt they lived in a land of freedom, and they resolved to protect him and themselves and they determined he should lecture. The consequence we need not recapitulate, but the blood of the victims proclaim who are the guilty parties. It may suit the ministerial press to advocate the abolition of Grand Jurors, to cry up all that has been presented to the public, and the mighty efforts of the chief law advisers of the Crown to punish the delinquents and vindicate the integrity of the law; but Upper Canada, at least, can see through the flimsy pretext, and can appreciate the motive which guided the executive in all their attempts. But we trust that a committee will be appointed at the meeting of Parliament, to sift the matter thoroughly, and make an example of the guilty parties. We will not enlarge, but request our readers attention to the extract we give, first expressing our sympathies for those whose fathers, brothers, or husbands, have fallen victims to the anarchy created, engendered and fostered by an impotent executive:—

LAST ACT OF THE DRAMA.

Yesterday the great farce of the government prosecution for the Gavazzi riots came to a termination, by the acquittal of the prisoners under the direction of the Court to the jury.

Last night at about eight o'clock a procession of nearly two thousand persons marched through the Upper Town, stopped at the houses of the counsel engaged in the defence of the parties accused of riot, whom they loudly cheered, and burned Gavazzi in effigy, on St. Paul's Market, with much shouting, and firing of guns. The conduct of the people beyond these manifestations of joy and exultation, seems to have been quite peaceable and good humored, and it is to hoped the ill feeling engendered by recent events and which we trust is now expiring will shortly be no more; but the conduct of the government in reference to the riots is a matter which challenges the most serious enquiry.

Firstly then we will consider of the acquittal. It is clear that the Jury were bound by their oaths to return the verdict they did any other any other verdict would have been a perjured and illegal finding on their part, the indictment charged the defendants with the felonious offence of riotously beginning to demolish Chalmers-Church. As the evidence was wholly insufficient to establish the charge, it was obviously incumbent on the Judges to direct an acquittal of the accused. The question now remains whose fault was it that the prosecution was undertaken for so silly an object? It is unnecessary here to observe that Justices of the Peace are not expected to be endowed with legal lore, and the Crown Officers are.

Now at the period of the 6th of June last, Parliament happened to be in session in the city of Quebec, and it was contended that the Cabinet should pretend to do something, though that Parliament not been in session the sympathy of the government with the attack upon Chalmer's Church would doubtless have been so boldly avowed as it was sincerely felt. So that the something might appear to be in progress, a commission was named consisting of Messrs. Symes, J. P., and McCallum, to investigate the matter. Fifteen communists existed for riot and tumult as a misdemeanor, for riotously beginning to demolish &c., a felony; the third charge against the defendants was that of cutting and wounding Parish with intent to murder him, also a felony. Now on the first of these charges the only one in which a conviction, or any likelihood of a conviction being obtained, was that of riot and tumult. So the government laid no bill of indictment for that misdemeanor, neither did the Crown officers lay any bill for the cutting and wounding, but substituted for a bill for attempt to murder Gavazzi, a misdemeanor, in place of it.

Thus they abandon their strongest case and shew that they were acting advisedly, and not in the least misled by the magistracy, as their scribes may have the lessiness to pretend: inasmuch as they substitute one charge for another in reference to the third commitment mentioned.

As the charges on which the defendants were committed, depended on the doctrine that in riot all the criminals are guilty of the act of one, it followed that acquittal of the riot would be a clean "bill of health for the attempt to murder, the cutting and wounding and all the rest of it, also as the greater includes the lesser an acquittal for a riot amounting to felony, would include acquittal for a mere tumult; and as in felony the prisoners would be entitled to challenge twenty of the panel peremptorily, but not in misdemeanor. It is clear that the advantages of an indictment for the greater crime were all on the side of defence. So the government determined to prevent conviction for a crime that was committed ingenously, prosecute the defendants for a crime which had not been committed. It is as if a man were to be tried for stealing a pair of boots because there was some reason to suspect him of stealing a pocket handkerchief, only with this difference, acquitted of the boots he might still suffer for the handkerchief; but acquitted for the riot and demolishing, &c., as these men are, is an acquittal of every charge brought as part of the riot, and confines the redress of any person assaulted on the occasion merely to the individual actually given the blow. Thus have Lewis Drummond & Co., taken care of the interests of Justice!!

Municipal Elections.

At the request of some of our subscribers we insert the address of Edward Adams Esq., to his supporters on the occasion of his resignation, not for the object of attracting the attention of those resident about here, but for the purpose of removing the false impression entertained by many members of the Press, who have studiously endeavored to represent it as a great Reform Triumph, truly the old adage is verified "Save me from my Friends." We confess we never entertained so mean an opinion of reformers before, but if Mr. Holmes be presented as the model we only trust for the sake of the country to be ruled by Reformers, that the class from which he has been selected may be nearly extinct, and that nearly for presentation to the society for discountenancing vice, he may be presented as the Rara Avis of the extinct morality of a former period:

TO THE MUNICIPAL ELECTORS OF ST. PATRICK'S WARD!

GENTLEMEN:—Having tendered my resignation to the Council, so soon after my Election as Councillor, I feel it my duty to explain to you the circumstances which caused me to take such a step, and my reasons for resigning.

You are aware of my having declined the numerously and respectably signed Requisition, which was presented to me early in December, requesting me to allow myself to be put in nomination at the next election as Councillor for this Ward, and of my having refused it on the grounds that my business required the whole of my time and attention.

On the evening of the 25th December, Messrs. Holmes, Hyman, Anderson, Meredith and myself, were at the American Hotel, arranging some business connected with the Railway Celebration; on this occasion, these gentlemen pressed me to stand again as Councillor, and promised me their support and influence to re-elect me Mayor. On explaining to them that that the office occupied too much of my time, and that I could not do it, and my own business the justice they required; they met me with arguments of the necessity that a number of the members of the late Council should be returned to carry out some improvements which had been commenced, and to settle up business which it was not in their power to close before retiring from office—by solicitations that I would remain with them—by promises to assist me as Mayor, in appointing a Police Magistrate to relieve me of Magisterial duties; and to see that a competent Clerk for the Council should be chosen, as Mr. Farley was about retiring; after some time I left them, declining to act. On the following Monday morning, when leaving by the cars for Hamilton, Mr. Holmes came to me and stated that he had been deputed by the above Gentlemen to see me, and request me to stand as Councillor, recapitulating the promises made to me on Saturday evening. I replied to Mr. Holmes that I would leave the matter in his hands and that he might inform my friends in St. Patrick's Ward, that I would serve if elected. After these assurances from Mr. Holmes, and hearing of his pledges to me through others. I was surprised at his coming to me on the next Friday, and requesting me to release him from the pledge he had made to support me as Mayor; in order that he might be elected to the office. This I most decidedly refused. On the following day a friend called on me and said that he had met Mr. Daniell and Mr. Barker at Mr. Holmes' office, that they had been endeavoring to convince him that Mr. Holmes would be justified in revoking his pledge to me; and at their request, he came to say that they had expressed such regard for me that they would be sorry to see me defeated in election as Mayor, and would advise me to resign. Judging that Mr. Holmes would be more honorable than to break a pledge to which there was so many respectable witnesses, I determined on maintaining my position. Arriving at my room on the next Monday, I was informed that Mr. Holmes had called and left word that he wished to see me immediately at his office; on going there he asked me into his inner office and said that having reflected on his conduct in requesting me to release him from my pledge after he had urged me to become a candidate for the Council, he felt that he had done me an injustice, and had been induced to act through the advice of evil and designing men, that as a man and a christian he deemed it necessary to make an acknowledgment, and asked me to forgive and forget what had passed. I frankly did so, and shook hands with him. This letter circumstance I can fully corroborate by reference to Mr. Henry Matthewson,

REQUISITION.

To John Scatcherd, Esq., Warden, County Middlesex.

We, the undersigned qualified electors of the Municipality, and Freeholders in the County of Middlesex, request that you will call a public meeting of the qualified electors of the said Municipality, to be held at the Town of London, to take into consideration the propriety of the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex taking Stock in the London and Port Stanley Railroad Company, to the amount of £25,000, according to the following by-law:

PROPOSED BY-LAW, to authorise the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex, to subscribe for One Thousand Shares in the Capital Stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company.

Robert Craik,	M. Anderson,	Wm. Barker
Wm Moore	W. H. Niles,	W. Elliott
Donald Fraser	G. Ellwood,	S. M. Toole
Peter MacClary	Thomas Moyle	Lewis Mott
William Sparling	Hiram Dell	G. J. Smith,
	Holcroft Clench.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex, by and with the consent of a majority of the qualified electors of the County of Middlesex, at a meeting called for that purpose by the Warden of said County, at the request of ten electors of said County, by public advertisement, containing a copy of this by-law, as provided for by statute, have agreed to subscribe for one thousand shares in the capital stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, upon the condition that the debentures hereinafter mentioned, shall be taken at par by the said company for the said stock, and that the said company shall provide for all interest on said debentures, during the construction of the work. And whereas it is expedient to issue debentures to the amount of twenty-five thousand pounds, payable as hereinafter mentioned, for the purpose of paying for one thousand shares of stock so agreed to be subscribed for as aforesaid. And it will require the sum of two thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, to be raised annually as a special rate for the payment of said debentures and interest, as the same shall become payable according to this by-law.

And whereas the whole amount to be rated on property of the County of Middlesex, for the year A. D. 1853, according to the assessment returns of the same on that day, was £2,915,061, and it will require the annual rate of 35 100 of a penny in the pound upon such rateable property, as a special rate for the payment of the said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of the said debentures, as the same shall become payable according to this by-law.

First—Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex, by and with the consent of the majority of the qualified electors of the said Municipality, so obtained as aforesaid, that the Warden of the said county be, and he is hereby authorised and empowered to subscribe for and in the name, and on the behalf of the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex for one thousand shares in the capital stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, upon the condition above mentioned.

Second—And be it further enacted that the Warden, for the time being, is hereby authorised and required to issue debentures, as hereinafter, in payment for the said stock, in sums not less than £25 each.

Third—And be it further enacted that the debentures shall be under the seal of the corporation, and shall bear interest from the dates thereof respectively, at the rate of six per cent per annum, which interest shall be payable at the office of the treasurer of the county half-yearly, on the first day of July and first day of December in each year, and shall be signed by the Warden, and countersigned by the treasurer, and shall have coupons attached to each for the said interest, with the signatures or initials of the Warden and treasurer thereto, and the said debentures shall be made payable at the County Treasurers office on the first day of March, 1874, and be issued with a proviso, that the Municipal Council of the County may redeem them at any time after five years, if they shall desire to do so.

Fourth—And be it further enacted that, for the payment of the said debentures as given for the said stock, and the half-yearly interest thereon, there shall be levied upon the whole rateable property within the said county, in each year, a special rate of 35 100 of a penny in the pound over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, until the said debentures and the interest thereon shall be all paid.

Fifth—And be it further enacted that the said Municipal Council shall not, at any time before the said debentures are fully satisfied, sell or dispose of the said shares or any of them, except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating the said debentures or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

Sixth—And be it further enacted that the consent of the qualified electors of the County of Middlesex, to the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex, subscribing for one thousand shares in the capital stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, be ascertained at a public meeting, to be held at the Court House, in the town of London, on Friday the 10th day of March, 1854, at noon, at which hour the Warden, if he be then present, or in his absence the Reeve of the town of London, shall take the chair, and call the meeting to the there held to order, and the said Warden or Reeve shall then submit to the electors, then and there present, the question—shall the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex subscribe for one thousand shares in the stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, according to the provisions of this by-law—and said it be adopted?

Seventh—And be it further enacted, that this by-law shall come into operation and take effect on the eleventh day of March 1854.

In compliance with the above request, I hereby call a meeting of the qualified electors of the county of Middlesex, for the purpose aforesaid, to be held at the Court House in the town of London on Friday, the 10th day of March next, at Noon.

JOHN SCATCHERD, Warden.

MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT.

South side of Dundas Street opposite Messrs. Raymond & Rowland, Furriers,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold on Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophicleides, Sax horns, Trombones, Conopeans, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

Office No. 103, Notre Dame Street.

OFFICERS:

Henry T. Strong, Esq., President.
J. H. Phillips Esq. Sec'y. & Manager.

DIRECTORS:

A. A. Dorion, Esq. — J. G. Bibaud, Esq. M.D.
C. F. Strong, Esq. — J. Doutre, Esq.
A. McDonald, Esq. — W. Henderson, Esq.
H. Phillips, Esq. — P. Cooper, Esq.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by the assent accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Workingmen and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitled to a vote in the election of officers and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perfectly to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid to each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 5 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0
Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment
0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £15 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that it's principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are cordially invited to call at the office, No. 103, Dundas-St. and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

County of Middlesex.

IN open Court of general Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Middlesex, held by adjournment at the Court House, in the town of London, on Saturday, the tenth day of December, 1853, it was ordered that the following divisions, for holding the several Division Courts in the County of Middlesex, be established as follows:—

No 1.—That Division Number One shall consist of the Town of London, with all that part of the Township of London, lying west of the north branch of the River Thames, from the north or rear part of the said township, to the line between the Fourth and Fifth Concessions of the same, and all that part of the Township of Westminster lying north of the Commissioners' Road, from the line between lots numbers seven and eight, to the line between lots numbers thirty-six and thirty-seven in the same.

No 2.—That Division Number Two shall be composed of the Township of London, and all that part of the Township of Williams, east of the Centre Road.

No 3.—That Division Number Three shall be composed of all that part of the Township of Westminster, lying west of the line between lots numbers seven and eight in the first and second concessions, and between lots numbers five and six to the rear of said township.

No 4.—That Division Number Four shall be composed of the whole of the Township of North Dorchester, and that part of the Township of Westminster lying east of a line between lots numbers seven and eight, in the first and second concessions, and between lots number five and six, to the rear of said township.

No 5.—That Division Number Five shall be composed of the township of Mosa, and that portion of the township of Ekfird, lying westerly from the River Thames, and of the line between lots number twelve and thirteen until it shall intersect the allowance for road between the second and third concessions, north of the Longwoods Road, and also the remainder of the said township north of the line between the second and third concessions before mentioned.

No 6.—That Division Number Six shall be composed of the Township of Delaware, and that portion of the Township of Caradoc, lying south of the line between the fourth and fifth concessions, together with all that portion of the Township of Ekfird lying south of the line between lots number twelve and thirteen in said township.

No 7.—That Division Number Seven shall be composed of the Township of Caradoc, not attached to the Township of Delaware, the Township of Metcalfe, the Township of Adelaide, and all that part of the Township of Williams west of the Centre Road in said township.

No 8.—That Division Number Eight shall be composed of the Township of Nissouri West, and all that part of the Township of London lying east of the north branch of the River Thames, from the north or rear part of said township to the line between the fourth and fifth concessions of the same.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid annually, to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on behalf of the said council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company on the following terms that is to say That the Debentures to be issued as herein provided, for the payment of said shares taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares Debentures for sums of twenty five pound each, and not exceeding on the whole sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pound and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stock holders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached to them coupons with the signatures of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That until the said Debentures and the interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Seventh day of April, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty Four

London, Nov. 10, 1852.

BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence there have been repairs, taking the advantage of Mr. Goodfellow's store, connecting him, though I also wanting to pay my debts as far as I can, which he never was. To re-new parties who certainly wrote to Goodwin, through well designs and arrogance, that's the cry against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my baking business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and dispatch on the shortest notice.

CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

Patronized and Recommended by the most eminent Medical Practitioners in Canada.

Messrs. Reynolds & Co.

Gentlemen,—I have received the ample bottle of your Compound Camomile Pills, and consider it a beautiful article in this age of quackish preparation. The aromatic flavor of the Camomile Flowers is preserved in the pills in a medical state, and is very agreeable to the taste, and will be highly relished by persons of delicate stomach. The pills are certainly more efficacious than any other pills I have ever taken, and I believe it to be a remedial cure.

LONDON AGENCY,

MR ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. Persons interested in this Company are not subject to be called on to make good losses which may happen to themselves or others—nor do they depend upon an uncertain fund or contribution-star capital stock of this company being an ample guarantee for security to the assured in case of loss or damage by fire. The company will ever distinguish itself by its promptness in the settlement of claims. The liberal settlement of losses incurred by the great fire at Montreal in 1850—thus practically shown to the inhabitants of British America, the character which this company has ever maintained throughout the whole world under this head. It will only be necessary to add that the Agent at London, can with confidence announce to the public that they may feel assured that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages held out by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:

Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participation of profits by the assured—annuating to twenty-five per annum—small charge for insurance—reduction expenses of the office being borne in due proportion by two branches, and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to Lives insured with this company in Canada.

J. B. MERRIL.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assuring for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premiums, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the South of 53 degrees of North latitude, and not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and recross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another—and from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 33 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississippi River.

Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them such good. I have first used it in a case of Scarlet Fever and as soon as the child was taken. I applied the Balsam to the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and since have tried it in a number of instances. I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It hasperformed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application.—Cures all Ulcerated Sores Piles, Chilblains, tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.

Try it; you will not regret it,

TO W. C SWEET.

DEAR SIR.—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years I have been troubled with a Distressing Tumor, close to the rectum—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure except by the knife, and they would have a big job.

I was about to employ one when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions—and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent cure.

ENGRAVED BY

JOHN GURD

GUN MAKER,

LONDON C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters has attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a partial analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties—having been more than twenty years before the public and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them. It is believed that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public admits of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are many who are ready to testify to their efficacy in removing disease and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing often removing in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Hint and Hypothesis.

FROM PUNCH.

Suppose a young Foreigner crosses the sea,
In a vessel with Mammon not quite overladen,
And, coming to England the good luck hath he
To win the kind heart of a true English maiden.

Suppose that her hand goes the way of her heart,
And friends who have loved her from childhood right dearly,
Settle, gladly, on him, from all charges apart,
An income—we'll say thirty-thousand pounds yearly.

Suppose they invite him to banquet and fete,
Exhibition, review, every sight you can mention;
Present him with jewels, and pictures, and plate,
And load him, in fact, with all kinds of attention.

Suppose that they take him to lay a first stone,
And are eager to offer him trowel and hammer:
And when he makes speeches, they honor the tone,
Applaud the good sense, and forget the bad grammar.

Suppose all is done that the best friends can do,
From punctilious politeness to punctual payday,
In part, that he pleased them all round at first view,
In part for the love which they bear to his Lady.

Now suppose that his wife has a trust of her own,
Conferred by her Guardian, not much of a burden,
Responsible, though, to that Guardian alone,
Like the place Mr. Jarndyce bestowed on Dame Durden.

That so wisely and well she administers rule,
Understanding her work, both in letter and spirit,
That her Guardian (suppose that his name is John Bull,)
Would flout the best man who should question her merit.

Now, if her young spouse, who has drawn such a prize,
Behaves like a tramp the first years of their union,
And even takes pains, by a graceful device,
To bring her and her neighbors in closer communion.

If he joins, like a man, in the sports of her friends,
Goes shooting, and fishing, and hunting, and yachting,
And comes out so well that the prejudice ends,
That favorites he grows with the high and the low,
(With person and sense, and accomplishment gifted,)
But suppose that—talked over by people we know—
He lets us observe that his tactics are shifted

That he meddles in matters which one might believe
His former good taste would enjoin him to eschewing,
While, concerning some others, he ought to perceive
A graver objection to do what he's doing.

That he talks to his wife on her Guardians concerns,
Over which she should have unrestricted dominion,
And is oftentimes greatly displeased when he learns
She has done any business without his opinion.

That when she's disposed, at the urgent desire
Of her Guardian, to order some hostile proceedings,
He seeks to dissuade her because it appears,
Some friends of his own wish to settle the pleadings.

That he's losing the name he so quickly acquired
By a gentleman's highminded scorn of disguises,
Giving up the frank bearing old Bull so admired,
For mysteries the hearty old fellow despises.

Supposing all this—or a portion at least—
Mr. Punch, who knows neither to fear nor to flatter,
Believes that the wind will set strong from the East
The day John Bull Jarndyce gets wind of the matter.

Electro-Biology and Mesmerism.

FROM THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW.

All the ordinary methods of the Mesmerist, then, may be considered to operate in the same manner as when practised by those who employ them merely as means to fix the attention of the 'subject.' The question of magnetic or other dynamical force, which is the fundamental article in the mesmeric creed, must, therefore, be decided, for quite a different kind of evidence is—namely, that which should demonstrate that either the somnambulistic state, or some other characteristic phenomenon, could be induced, without the consciousness on the part of the subject that any agency was being exerted. Now, we must own that all the evidence yet adduced to prove the affirmative of this position, appears to us to be utterly wanting in conclusiveness. It is far more difficult than most persons who have not studied the phenomena are aware, to guard against sources of fallacy, arising out of the guesses at which the 'sensitives' are marvellously ready, and their alertness in taking advantage of the unconscious intimations of what is expected. So far as our own experience has enabled us to bring this question to the test, it has gone most completely to negative the existence of such a power: for we have found that mesmerizers, who asserted that they could send particular individuals to sleep, or affect them in other ways, by an effort of 'silent will,' have altogether failed, when the subjects were kept from any suspicion that the will was being exercised; whilst, on the other hand, we are cognisant of numerous cases in which 'sensitive' patients have gone to sleep, under the impression that they were being mesmerised from a distance, when the supposed mesmeriser was not even thinking of them.

But, it is asserted, the existence of some such influence is proved by the peculiar rapport between the mesmeriser and his 'subject,' which is not manifested towards any other individuals, save such as may be placed en rapport with the 'subject' by the mesmeriser. Nothing is more easy, however, than to explain this on our principle of 'dominant ideas.' If the mind of the 'subject' be so yielded up to that of the mesmeriser, as to receive any impression which the latter suggests to it, the notion of such a peculiar relation is as easily communicable as any other. Hence the commands of the mesmeriser meet with a response which those of no one else can produce. In fact, other persons usually seem to be unheard by the somnambule, simply because they are not related to the dominant impression—a phenomenon of which, as we have seen, natural somnambulism presents frequent examples. Moreover, as individuals have brought themselves, by the habit of obedience, into complete subjection to the will of some second person, even in the waking state, without any mesmeric influence whatever, it is not at all difficult to understand how such a habit of attending to the operator, and to him alone, should be peculiarly developed in a state in which the mind has lost its self-directing power, and is the recipient of external impressions. The same explanation applies to the other phenomena of this rapport, such as its establishment with any bystander by his joining hands with the mesmeriser and the somnambule. It is because the somnambule is previously possessed with the idea that this new voice will thus be audible to her, and that she must obey its behests, that it produces the same effects as that of the mesmeriser had previously done. The history of Mesmerism affords abundant evidence in support of our position, for the rapport was not discovered until long after the practice of the arts had come into vogue, having been unknown to Mesmer and his immediate disciples; and its phenomena have only acquired constancy and fixity, in proportion as its laws have been announced and received. Several mesmerisers, who have begun to experiment for themselves without any knowledge of what they were to expect, have produced a great variety of remarkable phenomena, and yet have never detected this rapport, though they have obtained immediate evidence of it, when once the idea has been put into their own minds, and thence transferred into those of their 'subjects.' In all the experiments we have witnessed, which seemed to indicate its existence, the previous idea had either been present, or it had obviously been suggested by the methods employed to induce the mesmeric somnambulism, whilst in a large number of other cases in which the subjects were not among the abettors of the mesmeric seances, their consciousness was not confined to the mesmeriser, or to those whom he placed en rapport with them, but was equally extended to all nation of what was expected, is taken into account, it cannot be deemed unlikely that it was communicated, however unintentionally, even in the cases which at first seemed exceptional; nor must it be forgotten, that when the mind is in a state of concentrated attention upon a particular object, circumstances, which would pass unnoticed by others, have a powerful suggestive influence on the performer.

Foreign Intelligence.

Cobden and Bright with the Feathers off.

A complete history of the anti-corn law agitation, with its episodes, is yet to be written, and will probably so remain. The fathers of the League are, we suspect, not the only ones who would be plucked in the course of such a work, and fortunately for some great reputations posthumous daw-plucking is an employment congenial but to few minds. A quarrel occurring in good time has, however, resulted in the denudation of Messrs Cobden and Bright and some others of their colleagues, at a fortunate crisis for the public weal. We shall probably hear no more of the Peace Society after the exposure of its apostles and prophets which this lucky falling out has accomplished, by means of the publication of "Cobdenic policy the infernal enemy of England: the Peace Society—its combativeness: Mr. Cobden—his secretiveness. By Alexander Somerville, 'one who has whistled at the plow.'"

Mr. Somerville, was it appears, the literary Mephistopheles of the League agitation; the inventor and writer of its mauvaisian and enormous lies; the collector of facts and purveyor of arguments for "the man of unadorned eloquence;" the puffer of all the grenouilla perenne in that most mischievous farce. Mr. Somerville did his work effectively, but then came the dull hour of the account, and a poor £50 was all that the Jackall could secure out of the spoil. We have not seen Mr. Somerville's book, but the following notice of it in the Spectator will give our readers, as it has given us, some notion of its contents:—

"The great blot on the Cobden escutcheon is, that he is a man who has taken money, and taken it for services which public opinion and the practice of gentlemen consider should be gratuitously performed. Mr. Hume, if we are not mistaken, declined even a present of plate for some parliamentary duty, on the ground of the impropriety. The broad fact, however, is patent. The question as regards, the Cobdenic Policy is, whether Mr. Cobden originated his own testimonial: which Mr. Somerville affirms that he did, using Ms. S. as a cat's paw—

"Having repeated his d sire to see me, and I having business to settle with the League, I went to Manchester, well knowing from experience that something special to be written about was required when such excessive meticulousness of flattery had been applied.

At Manchester, Mr. Frederick Cobden was sent to take me in a cab to Richard's house. When closeted with the latter, he told me how much he had suffered in business by devotion to the League, how greatly mistaken people were who called him a rich man; how his father died leaving a family unprovided for, and that the charge of them all devolved on him, and that whatever the country might do for him (a testimonia was then whispered) it would fall short of what he had lost by serving the country; and so forth.

"I did not mistake the purpose of his repeating all this now, he having on several occasions introduced the subject before. I asked if I might be communicating that he intended to retire from Parliament—(he showed me the manuscript of his retiring address)—and something about his losses in trade by devotion to public business, and so disabuse the public as to his personal wealth. He said he could trust to my discretion in putting those facts to a proper use.

"I put them to the use intended; sent them to London; from whence they went into nearly every provincial new spaper in the Kingdom—Protectionist as well as Free trade, and stimulated, as designed, the public to get up a liberal fund as a testimonial.

About £9,000, were collected. The expenses were heavy; but so far as I was concerned, my pen and newspaper influence then and after were given freely to the object, I not expecting, nor receiving payment to the amount of a penny."

According to Mr. Somerville, he too was the means of bringing before the public the unrivalled Mr. Brown of Liverpool, M. P. from South Lancashire. To answer electioneering purposes, it was requisite that the ire of the merchant prince should be brought before the world; that indignation was ignorant of both. Mr. Somerville accordingly drew up a sketch from materials furnished by Mr. Brown himself. It very briefly specified the career of William Brown "to the uttermost end of the earth;" a celebrity which Mr. Brown could never of himself have attained, as Mr. Somerville says, and which it is probable even the biography might not have reached had it entirely trusted to its own interest. It is curious to add, that Mr. Sommerville never touched a penny more either for the Cobden memorial or the article on Brown. The gratitude of the merchant Prince went no further than 'shaking hands or nodding in the street.' (Page 61.)

"There is little that is remarkable in the attack upon the Peace people, beyond a red hot description of 'friendly tyranny at Rochdale;' which has Bright's, Mr. Sommerville intimates have turned into a priest borough. John Bright, however, seem rather more of a favorite than Richard Cobden: the writer had less to do with John'."

The English and French Fleets.

The London Times gives the subjoined imposing recapitulation of the combined naval forces at the entrance of the Euxine:—

"The strength of the combined English and French fleets now in the Bosphorus amounts to 41 sail, including eleven battle ships, frigates, steamers. Of those the French and English have each three first rate ships; we have seven line of battle ships (including the Agamemnon) to five French two deckers, the French 90-gun screw-ship Napoleon having, unfortunately, been sent to Toulon for repairs. Each fleet has or will soon have, 11 paddle wheel steamers. The Sanspareil (English) and the Charlemagne (French) two steamers auxiliary steam power. In addition to this powerful fleet, there are in the Bosphorus at least seven Turkish and Egyptian line-of battle ships, frigates and steamers; so that the combined force may be taken at about 60 sail. From the large amount of steam-power, the weight of guns, the size of these ships in proportion to their rating, and the perfection to which naval gunnery has now been carried both in the English and French navies, this is, beyond doubt, the finest naval armament ever sent to sea, though it might, if necessary, be powerfully augmented by the first-class steamships and frigates which form Admiral Corry's squadron now at Lisbon. These vessels are however, probably reserved as the nucleus of the North Sea fleet in the spring. The best understanding prevails between the English and French officers, and the signal books of the two squadrons have been exchanged with an arrangement that, in sailing order, the French squadron will form the weather and the English the port line."

A letter from Malta of the 24th states that the English house, to which the two vessels which were sunk at Sinope belonged, has sent to demand an indemnity from the Russian government. The claimants state that their vessels were on a distant part of the roadstead with the English flag flying at their mastshead, and that they were sunk intentionally by the Russian ships.

The Prussian Gazette says that the Czar has ordered the whole armed force of the empire to be put into a state ready for active service. If this be true, it would seem that the Northern Autocrat has no very confident anticipations of a peaceful settlement of the difference between him and the Sultan.

The Observer states, that the Russian Government has given notice to several commercial gentlemen and engineers, interested in Russian railways, that it is not intended to proceed at present with these undertakings. In fact the works are about to be suspended, and all the men and money required for their construction will be devoted to carrying on the war

The Turkish War.

The Defeat and Dreadful Loss of the Russians at Citale—Further Accounts of the Battle.

We have further accounts of the battle of Citale, confirming the the Turkish successes: It appears that the Russians were concentrating a force at Citale, in order to attack Kalefat on the 19th, but on the 7th fifteen thousand Turks marched out of Kalefat, attacked and stormed Citale, had a conflict with the Russians in the field on the 7th, and renewed the battle on the 8th, ending in the evening with the total discomfiture of the Russians, who confess to 4,000 killed, and their generals, Anrep and Teimout, wounded. On the 9th, the Turks having remained over night on the field beyond Citale, attacked the reserve of the Russians, and drove them back upon Krajova, with the loss of cannon, and immense slaughter on both sides. On the 10th the Turks having raised the Russian fortifications, returned to Kalefat. The above victories were officially announced to the French and British embassies.

Letters from Trebizonde of the 6th December, say that Schamyl had organized a Polish rifle regiment, 1,200 strong. He has plenty of provisions and ammunition, and is organising an army at Daghestan. The Hungarians and Poles who had been waiting at Constantinople for a employment were shipped on the 2nd of January for the army in Asia. Klapka declined an Asian command, but offers to serve in Europe. On the 5th, January the whole of the allied fleet were in the Black Sea.

Two ships had been sent with the following note to the Russian Government at Sabastopol, conformably with the orders of the British and French Governments:—

The British squadron, in concert with that of France, is on the point of appearing in the Black Sea. The object of this movement is to protect the Ottoman territory from aggression or hostile acts. We apprise you thereof, with a view to prevent all collision, leading to disturb the amicable relations between our governments, which we are desirous of preserving and which, no doubt, yours are equally anxious to maintain. To this end we should feel happy to learn that you animated by these intentions, had deemed it expedient to give the requisite instructions to the Admiral commanding the Russian forces in the Black Sea, so as to obviate any occurrences calculated to endanger peace.

(Signed) Redcliffe.
Baraguay D'Hilliers.

It was first intended to send a portion of the fleet only into the Black Sea but a rumor was current that the whole of the Russian fleet had sailed from Sebastopol and consequently the whole of the allied fleet went. It was further rumored that Russian ships of war was were off Ezeroun, probably expecting to intercept the Turkish convoy, (which was under the protection of the allies,) carrying 15,000 men for Asia. Merchantmen at Constantinople the 9th report not having seen the fleets; they are consequently supposed to have sailed towards Batoum, where, it is surmised the Russians have also gone. Ar and Sebastopol and the coast of Crimea the Russians are erecting batteries, and have extinguished all the lighthouses.

On the 31st of December, the Porte made the following modifications to the note of the four powers:—First—Instead of evacuating the principalities as soon as possible, say within fifteen or twenty days after the acceptance of Russia. Second—The renewal of treaties to be with special references to the integrity and independence of Turkey. The Porte will meliorate her admiralty system alone and spontaneously. On the receipt of this at Vienna the English, French Austrian and Prussian representatives met, and drew up a protocol stating that the Porte's terms were good and satisfactory. They were immediately sent off by courier to St. Petersburg where they would arrive about the 19th. The Porte's demand is that the note shall be definitely accepted or rejected within forty days from the date of the Czar's letter of acceptance. This demand is on its way to St. Petersburg.

On the 12th of January, the British and French Ministers at St. Petersburg also communicated to the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs the entry of the allied fleet into the Black Sea. The Czar's reply was not known when the Arabian sailed, and all Europe was anxiously awaiting it, as indications had already transpired that he would at once withdraw his ambassadors from France and England and formally declare war. Nothing else is looked for.

The Late Lord Plunket.

The Standard thus alludes to the late deceased nobleman:—We do not wish to conceal the bias derived from the admirable conduct of the reverend prelate who honors the title of his father's memory by bearing his name; but apart from this, our estimate of Lord Plunket is respectful, and even elevated. During his sixty years of active life Lord Plunket was unquestionably the greatest Irishman of the political party to which unfortunately, as we must think, he was, from his outset associated. In and in the judgment of others incomparably better qualified than ourselves, he was beyond dispute the first orator of his time in his party, perhaps in any party, except, it may be, Mr. Pitt, in either the Irish or Imperial House of Commons. Learned, energetical, severe yet plain, temperate and persuasive, his eloquence approached more nearly to the great models bequeathed to us by Greece, than, perhaps, any public speaker of the last or present generation, fully justifying his own account of the sources from which he sought instruction—the logic of Aristotle, the essays of Locke, and above all the speeches of Demosthenes. It was not that the eloquence of Lord Plunket was different from it, was directly opposed to what is, with some justice, disparagingly called "Irish eloquence." In any speech that ever passed his lips one may look in vain for the ludicrous pathos of Grattan or Curran, or need we say the blazing rising of O'Connell. All was simple, neat, rational, and yet most irresistably forcible—the address of a man of genius directed to men of sense.

Hog Packing in the West.

We give the below estimates of the packing at four or five points on the Mississippi river for the seasons of 1852-'53-'54. Where the packing was not concluded, estimates were made to cover all contingencies:

	1852 '53:	1852 '54.
Davenport, Iowa	4,500	3,000
Hampton	none	2,000
Rock Island	1,500	3,000
Muscatine	14,000	12,000
Port Louis	1,200	1,000
New Boston	5,800	4,500
Kehlsburg	2,800	3,000
Monmouth	9,000	8,500
Quincies	5,300	4,000
Burlington	12,000	11,000
Port Fracison	4,500	4,000
Pantoose	2,000	none.
Keokuk	13,000	10,000
Ha milton	3,800	none.
Total	78,400	66,000
Decrease, in hogs	12,500

It is now pretty well ascertained that that the crop of 1853-'54 will little, if any, exceed that of 1852-'53.

The St. Louis News gives the following additional information:—Returns begin to come in, and, as stated some time since, there will be, beyond question a decrease in the number of hogs packed on the entire river. The season has closed at Beardstown with 14,000 short of last year. At Peoria the deficiency will be from 12,000 to 13,000. Pekin it is thought, may have a slight excess over last season. Springfield will fall short 3,000 to 4,000 head. Lacon has an increase. Naples, Copperas Creek, Meredosia, and other points, will have no increase, but at several there will be a falling off. The entire deficiency in numbers on the whole river and through the adjacent country is estimated at from 50,000 to 80,000 head. The increase in weight will be from 10 to 12 per cent., some think as much as 15. The Upper Mississippi and Illinois river together will fall 100,000 to 120,000 head short of last season.

On the contrary, the Cincinnatti Price Current of the 1st, says:—"For two or three weeks past there has been a growing impression that the crop of hogs will be little, if any, larger than last year, and that the demand from England must be heavy in consequence of the war movements. For the former opinion there is certainly no good ground; and with reference to the latter, the advices from Europe to the latest date do not indicate any movement excepting Lard, and this was caused mainly by the high price and anticipated scarcity of tallow.

The receipts of hogs during the week has been	9,993
Previously reported	387,030

The Burnt Buildings at Quebec.

Few buildings on this continent possess greater charms for the antiquary and the historian than the Parliament House at Quebec. It was situated on the first clearance made by Champlain, in 1608, and some of the stones of the foundation were used to construct the fort he built there as a protection against the Indians. Soon afterwards, finding a more appropriate site on a more lofty portion of the heights of Quebec, the military authorities abandoned it, and the site was taken by the church, and the Bishop's Palace was erected thereon. A portion of that palace stood on Wednesday morning, before the fire. It was a magnificent building for the place and the age. Though unfinished, French travellers state that it compared favorably with Bishops' Palaces in France.—From private reasons however, the earlier prelates made but little use of it; the celebrated Bishop de Laval lived in the seminary, and Bishop de Saint Valier took up his abode in the general hospital.

When the Intendant's palace was burnt in 1718, Intendant Begon transferred his pantos to the Bishop's palace. At the conquest, the building and its site were preserved to the Roman Catholic Church, and some ecclesiastics occupied it till 1792 The Bishops palace was then taken as a house of meeting for the legislative council and Assembly, and an annual grant of £1,000 was paid to the Bishop for the use thereof. The change of occupants led to a change of name, and the old familiar title 'Palaise de l'Eveque' gradually droped into oblivion. Until 1838 the 'Parliament House', as it was called during this century, was the scene of all the parliamentary debates and conflicts which illustrate the history of Lower Canada. Within those walls it was that Louis Joseph Papineau gained his fame; that the two Stuarts—James and Andrew—earned the reputation which now hallows their memory.

In 1836 the chateau, which was the residence of the Governor, was burnt. The Parliament House, being the only public building in the city that was not occupied by troops, was appropriated to the use of the Governors. It was from thence that Lord Durham launched his thunderbolts, and in its halls that he wielded sway. From 1838 when the constitution was suspended, and the Parliament of Lower Canada abolished, to 1852, when the Parliament of the United Province of Canada was convened at Quebec, the Parliament House enjoyed fourteen years of ignoble repose. It was refuge of city councillors, municipal officers, and a variety of semi-public semi-private institutions, for which it served the purpose of a sort of fumbling-hostital.

In 1852, the seat of Government being transferred to Quebec, extensive repairs were made to the Parliament House. A new facade had been erected many years previous, at an expense of £64,000; on this occasion a much larger sum was expended in completing the southern wing, and fitting up the building for the reception of the two Houses of Parliament. Competent judges paid high compliments to the architect on the completion of his task The legislative council chamber was pronounced to be the finest hall of the kind on this continent not excepting the Senate of Washington. The library was especially admired. Mr Fairbault had spent twelve months in Europe in purchasing a collection of works, to replace those burnt at the fire at Montreal in 1849; and no expense had been spared to make it a choice and complete. The collection of works on the history of Canada was, it is believed, unrivalled. The new building—for nothing of the old save the walls was preserved—was opened in 1852. It has thus served the public 18 months.

Mr. Gowan's Apostacy.

From the Hallibnrand Independent.

In stances of political rotting are continually occurring; speculative politicians, money hunting, and power hunting adventurers, are constantly going over to the camp of Hincks and Co., or uniting in closer alliance with those Honorable gentlemen. One of the most conspicuous of these renegades, is Ogle R. Gowan Esqr. who, since his unsuccessful sole proposition of self immolation, has openly avowed himself an adherent of the government, and proclaimed it to be his opinion that Mr. Hincks and a few of his confreres are the only men in the Province capable of conducting the affairs thereof. Another evidence of the firm compact which some individuals are cementing between themselves and the government, exists in the case of Mr. John G. Vanstitart, who has lately amalgamated his newspaper The British Australian, with the Western Progress the organ of Mr. Hincks in Oxford, the new Journal coming out under the title of the British Australian and Western Progress Gazette.

We do not look upon conversions like these, as either triumphs or defeats of any principle whatever; we do not, as Reformists, glory in the addition of such gentlemen to our ranks, nor do we believe that the attachment they have evinced for so called reformers, is any proof that the principles of Reform have gained ground, even in our own country. Neither do we believe, that Mr. Gowan's expressions of regard for the Ministry, have been called forth by the circumstance of their having grown more conservative in their views or policy. On the contrary, we look upon this occurrence as a sign of the knavery and dishonesty which now exists in an alarming extent among our politicians and public men. We need only look at the recent political changes of Mr. Gowan, and many others, to see that principles are nothing as pretences to be convinced that conscientious convictions have had little influence in determining the course they would pursue. Of Mr. Vanstitart, it is unnecessary to say anything, his actions were duly discussed by the press throughout the Province, at the time when he was expected to have been in the van of the party of Mr. Hincks: of Mr. Gowan however, we would say a few words; he has long been known to be a very unscrupulous and unprincipled politician; he has long been distrusted by nearly all the respectable and honest members of the Reform party, and he was by some in power, considered a tool, who could be relied on to carry out their dirty work, and who would betray his party for place. Strange, is the delight he seems to take in the mud from the straw, or dirt of the mire, which he has blown into the noses of the ministry, shows us that the same hand which blew hard, will in its turn probable, blow in the same direction, as that class or politicians who resemble him as to character, may be regarded as the type. It is not he alone, who regards his former position as a mere stepping stone to some high office, and who looks upon the present men in the Province; nearly the whole of these speculative characters, who, looking at politics merely as a trade, dabble in them for their own private advantage, seem similar, with the same idea, and the sentiments put forth by Mr. Gowan, are but a proof of the feelings which pervade the whole body. A separation between the Grits, and the chaff are is about to be commencing in this Province [ephemeral and selfish politicians of all parties appear to be forgetting their differences but banding themselves together. Although they may have fought under opposite colors and with the universal feeling of detestation for each other, they appear determined to doff their borrowed garb, abandon the standards to which their interests have attached them, and unite under one common banner, for the purpose of enriching and aggrandising themselves. One great effect of this will be to consolidate the people more, and who are not then friends will evidently be enemies. Let them hoist their flag colors, for now which they are invited to enlist under leaders who promise them power and pay, they eagerly flock to their standard thus proving that the desire of private advantage and emolument was the master passion in all of them, and that they were, in heart the same, although some having greater delicacy than others, in their avowals, and others, bitter and uncompromising Tories.

A Parallel.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXAMINER.

Sir,—The characters and the policy of Philip of Macedon and of Nicholas of Russia bear a very striking resemblance. Both stealthily sought their ends by bribery, and by pretending to take a great interest in the prosperity of those people whom it was their object to ruin and enslave.—Philip took Olynthus, and the Emperor of Russia seeks to reduce Constantinople. Both sought to gain their ends under the mask of religion.—Philip claimed to be trustee of the sacred Temple of Apollo at Delphi. Nicholas asserts a right to the Holy Shrines of Jerusalem, as supreme head of the Orthodox Christian Faith. There was "a sacred war" in both cases. A Phocian ploughshare passed over some little strip of land said to belong to Apollo, and Philip took the field to avenge the cause of the "God of the Silver Bow." A Turkish firman is thought to press hard upon some "Grœculus" in the Archipelago, and Nicholas immediately takes the helm in the Black Sea to teach Musulmen Christianity at Sinope as champion of the orthodox faith.

Philip had his "Io Pæans" on his gold bought victories; Nicholas has his "Te Deums" to celebrate the successes of the Black Flag in the Black Sea.

Philip held possession of the rich corn growing provinces of South-Eastern Europe. The Emperor Nicholas holds them now. Philip hated Athens because it was a free state. Nicholas hates England for the same reason. The Athenian government was lethargic and treacherous, and did not boldly meet the encroachments of the son of Amyntas. The British government has seemed to be spell-bound from activity and duty, by some secret influence, and has not vigorously withstood the violation of existing treaties by the son of Paul.

Philip was assassinated, and Alexander succeeded him. The Emperor Nicholas still lives, but his father Paul was assassinated, and Alexander succeeded him.

The subjugation of Greece led to the conquest of India by the King of Macedon. The subjugation of Turkey by the Emperor of Russia will enable him to attain the same result.

The Macedonian empire became too unwieldly to survive the existence of one man. The Russian empire is at present as unwieldy as it can be, and most probably will have the same fate.

The Macedonian empire was succeeded by that of Rome, and those ancient masters of the world the Romans, are still represented in Christendom by the successor of St. Peter at Rome, and by the successor of Charlemagne upon the Imperial throne of France.

The religion of Philip was a Pagan usurpation—the religion of Nicholas is a Christian sham.

In this modern crusade England will have to remember that it was German treachery which imprisoned her beloved sovereign, the lion hearted Richard in an Austrian bastile. Austrian influence at the court of Great Britain must be continually withstood, or else the British fleet will be kept loitering at anchor, and the British navy will become like Sinbad the Sailor when bestridden by the Old Man of the Sea. Foreign courts require to be civilly reminded that the naval supremacy of England is essentially Protestant in its character. It commenced under Henry the Eighth; it resisted Papal aggression under Queen Elizabeth; it proudly extended its sway under Oliver Cromwell, and if it had not been Protestant, William the Third would never have been permitted to land at Torbay.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servant,
J. B.

John Mitchell.

Deeply do we regret the waning popularity of this Irish Exile, but more deeply do we regret its cause. That John Mitchell should have declared in favor of the slave institutions of the United States, and when he was scarcely domiciled in the city of New York, and so soon after his escape from English bondage, is to us a matter utterly inexplicable. Can it be that this is the same John Mitchell that once denounced in terrific language the English government for keeping his countrymen in political bondage—that flung bold defiance in the teeth of England, and dared her might and tyranny to crush him—that raised is country men to rebellion, and brought Ireland to the brink of a civil war! This the same John Mitchell that, exulting in his country's emancipation from foreign rulers, waved the green flag of Irish independence in the free air of heaven, and struck for liberty or death! Is this that same John Mitchell that now spins his honor and patriotism—that now insults the Irish national character, by vowing that liberty is for the white, not for the black! Mitchell, Mitchell, how art thou fallen! How has thy fine gold become dim! What thing hast thou to come! Where is it that Lord has learned the lessons of slavery? Is it that hast dost fall in love with thy dog on fetters or must the spirit been so very shattered so very mortified and subdued, that thou deserest the slavery of millions to bolster up thine own? Miserable Man—Irishman—Parias—what demon has possessed thee? Oh, but it is astonishing to witness so many debasements of a great intellect—it is exceedingly humiliating to Ireland to see that one whom she raised to the dignity of a patriot, sink to the degrading level of a southern slave driver! What this oil, act thou under the influence of some horrid dream? Awake, man, and behold God's bright sun shining upon you—walk, no menacles clank about your ancles—look around you and all about—you inhale an atmosphere of freedom—you are amongst a free people Wealth, fame, greatness are before you; dash not ruthlessly the cup from your lips—the next of fered you may contain poison. Seat yourself John Mitchell, at your desk, and sweep away, even by a withering condemnation of yourself, the cruel stigma you have attached to Irish patriotism. Do so at once. Irish genius, like Sterne's Recording angel, may blot a tear upon your crime and efface it forever.—[King ston Herald

LONDON, FRIDAY, FEB'Y 17, 1854.

Politics in Municipal Councils

We are gratified to find some of our contemporaries of the Press denounce the vicious principle introduced into some Municipals Councils, of making them Political Debating Societies. That of the United Counties of York and Peel, and one farther west, have taken up the Clergy Reserve question, and have been indulging their oratorial powers in venting forth an unmeaning mass of words. Very few, probably, of these Solons, are aware that each and every of them hold their land under the same title, viz.: from the Crown, as the Clergy Reserves are held, and that the same power, unconstitutionally exercised, can take away every acre of the Talbot Property and every rood of ground ever granted by the Crown upon which their houses of worship are in many places erected. We rejoice to say our County Council have kept free from political discussions. Men returned for a particular purpose, and paid for doing a particular business only, have no right to deviate from it. And we trust municipal bodies will, at length, understand that aspirants for Parliamentary power, have another place to exercise their predilections for political notoriety in, without interrupting the useful purpose for which the guardians of our public buildings, roads, and other public improvements are selected for.

☞ The County of York, wherein flourishes the thriving metropolic of Western Canada, has lately taken a huge stride towards immortality, through the aid of its municipal representatives. The County Council proposes to settle the Clergy Reserve question! Mr. Hincks not requiring an assembled Parliament just at present, for any particular purposes of his own, postpones the meeting sine die, preferring to "financier" during vacation, when awkward questions are only asked through the press, and need not be answered. So for the nonce we are without any assembled wisdom at Quebec In this emergency, the patres conscripti of the four ridings, must considerately step forward, and propose to cut the gordian knot of the Reserve controversy. One member insists on immediate secularization, while the Warden, J. Gamble, M. P. P., by the by, suggests that every man's vote should be taken through the Province, just as we "test the question" of a plank road, or anything of the kind in a Township! The idea is more strange than original. It is "the way they do in the States;" but even there, let such a proposition be made respecting the Trinity endowment of New York, or Yale College, and it would be scouted as more than usually agrarian But we have not much fault to find with the speeches of the sages of the classic shores of the Humber and the Don—we care not to criticise productions that were as much out of place as would have been a lecture from Miss Lucy Stone, or an address from a deputation of the Amazons of Erie. We need hardly explain that Mr Hartman, in Council was just the orator we formerly knew, as the Hartman of Parliament.

Besides the trifling question we just referred to, the reader will not be surprised to learn that the same areopagus took into grave consideration the "Maine licker law," as we understand the Post Master General decrees it to be called, and one member cast a learned doubt on a recent decision of C. J. Robinson! When any every hard question comes before Parliament, which that assembly (as may be very likely) is incompetent to decide, the speaker need but telegraph to Toronto a short message, such as "York your's wanted," and the hint will be at once taken—a solemn meeting will be convened, and a little question, such as a Reciprocity Bill, disposed of as an hour. Or, lest any decision, such as that of the Chief Justice above alluded to, should be unadvisedly promulgated as sound law, the warden and council can be consulted by the Bench, with much profit, on all knotty points—this should be particularly attended to in the £10,000 case.

The York Council will, of course, not omit to settle the Russian question, at its present sitting. —British Standard, Perth.

The Mails.

In common with many of our contemporaries of the Press, we have to complain of the gross neglect of the head of the Post Office Department, in the discharge of the duties of his office. Whether the ignorance displayed by him as the head of the Bureau of Agriculture, or the knavery exhibited by him as President of the Council, may have induced the Inspector General to pursue the novel mode of giving him a trial in every Government Department, in order to see if he was qualified for any. We cannot say, or on the assumption that he must necessarily possess talent and abilities for the discharge of some public office, the experiment had been made to find out where and for what that talent was adapted. We bear our testimony to that of others, that the sooner the man of letters gets another move, the better for the Province.—Here we are in London, without Toronto papers until two or three days after their publication; sometimes Thursday's papers coming before Wednesday's; sometimes 3 papers of consecutive dates coming together, in fact all sorts of irregularity are justly complained of. The public pay a salary to the Post Master General for giving, individual, his time to the duties of his office, but we find in the Perth Standard that he has been lecturing on "the Maine Law," we give the extract:—

"The Hon. Mr. Cameron on the Maine Law and the Representation of Lanark.—Mr. Cameron delivered his promised lecture in the district school-house, on Saturday evening last. The room was crowded throughout, there being three or four hundred persons present. The gentleman did not confine himself strictly to the question of prohibition or no prohibition of the Maine Law, his remarks embraced a wider range; he went over the old ground which has been so often travelled by temperance lectures—"the baneful influences of alcohol—and the rest was partly personal and partly political. Bonnie the country of the Lowlands and the Highlands! The people were thankful for the lecture, and the Lecturer was thankful for the kindness of the audience. Perth or Canada—we suppose its name! Lanark, forsooth! Or, perhaps, both in one name! Lanark thinks the gauge of Lanark are one!"

We also give another extract from the Journal, giving a report of the speech of the Hon. Mr. Cameron:—

"The Hon. Mr. Cameron, in addressing the meeting, said he was sorry to see so few present, but he supposed the reason was that the people were busy at their spring work. He would be most happy to hear any objections to the Maine Liquor Law, and would endeavour to answer them. He would be glad, however, if they would confine themselves to the question, and not bring up the Clergy Reserves, Rebellion Losses, or Rebellion, for he had no more to do with them than the man in the moon. He would be glad to hear the opinion of the meeting on the subject of the Maine Liquor Law, and would endeavour to answer any objections that might be made to it. He would not detain the meeting by any lengthy remarks, but would simply say that he was in favor of the Maine Liquor Law, and would vote for it in the House. He would be glad to hear any objections that might be made to it, and would endeavour to answer them ed as Deputy County Master; Brother Richard Baker, Secretary; Brother Benjamin Higgins, Treasurer; and Brother J. W. Kerr, Catechist, County Chaplain, and Brother John McMillan, County Proxy.

It was proposed and seconded, that the proceedings of the meeting should be sent to the "Protestant" of Brantford, and the "Times" of London, requesting publication.

It was proposed and seconded that the next County Meeting will be held in the Orange Hall, Lodge 152, Dorchester.

After Lecture, seriously and beautifully given, the meeting closed in the regular manner.

Some refreshments were then brought in, and though the brethren separated at 8 o'clk, to allow of members from a distance to return, yet the feast was enlivened by some chaste and lively speeches by different members.

THE SEASON OF COLDS.—Colds generally come into fashion when concerts and evening parties begin. They are very prevalent during the Opera season. Perhaps Italian singers are more subject to colds than anybody else: and, generally, the larger the salaries they receive, the more frequently they are attacked. In fact, music and catarrh seem to be intimately connected together, for it has been noticed that a young lady, who has been perfectly well the minute before, catches cold immediately she touches a piece of music.—There must be something in the air which don't agree with them. The season for colds mostly ends when the fashionable season closes.

The Canadian Colonist received yesterday, says that the Quebec Court House will be converted for the time being into a Legislative Hall, placed at the disposal of the Government by the Corporation, will be used as a Court Room in the meantime."

ARRIVAL OF THE AFRICA.

BRITISH FLEET IN TAGUS ORDERED TO SEA.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.

The steamship Africa arrived below last night and anchored on account of fog; resumes this morning. The fog still continues dense. The following news is received from Sandy Hook.

The screw steamer from New York arrived out on the 26th ult., which had been chartered by Consul Hathorne to convey home the rescued passengers from the Ran Francisco; was to sail from Liverpool on the 30th.

The Turkish war.—There is but little change as to the Turkish war by the arrival. The Czar's ultimatum is still evasive. He does not regard the entry of the allied fleet into the Black Sea as a declaration of war, and is not now expected to send a reply to the Vienna note until the middle of February. He has, however, appointed Count Orloff to visit the courts of Vienna, Berlin, Paris and London to explain on what terms he really will treat. It is thought by all that his object is to gain delay.

There is a doubtful rumor that Count Parrien has succeeded Nesselrode as Chancellor.

A quiet tone is observable in the Russian organs, but the appearance of peace are not to be trusted.

On the Danube, ostentatious preparations were making by the Russians to attack Kalafat, although they admit that it will cost them 10,000 men.

Omar Pasha continues to fall on the Russians wherever opportunity occurs, fifty inches being to fight. There have been several successful skirmishes of importance.

It is asserted in private letters that the Russians had taken the field before the Prut. The Russian bulletin says that all the troops are in winter quarters.

The fleets were both seen part at Sinope and part near Constantinople are reported to have sailed for Varna.

The Russian Squadron was off the sea of Azoph.

Servia is much agitated by the intrigues of the Russian Consul General at Belgrade.

Liverpool, Saturday. Nothing of real news comes to hand this morning by mail or telegraph.

A Vienna despatch hints that good news has reached the Austrian Government from St Petersburg.

The Shah of Persia has definitely promised to act peaceably towards Turkey.

SPAIN.—The Austrian Government has ordered 40,000 troops in great haste to Hungary; it is not yet known what is going on there.

Dost Mahomed was at Cabul.

ENGLAND.—There is no news of importance from France or England.

The British fleet on the Tagus was ordered to sea.

The Brazilian mail steamer Oyeda was ashore near Hasboeuf.

The steamer Petrel, formerly of the line between New York and Bermuda, was burnt in the Clyde on the 6th.

JOLLIE'S MUSICAL GIFTS,

FOR 1854,

100 Pianos for the

PEOPLE.

will issue, immediately, the work being now in press, 100,000 BOOKS, containing all Jullien's popular and fashionable music, to be called JULLIEN'S MUSIC FOR THE MILLION. PRICE ONE DOLLAR.

The work will be beautifully printed, on fine paper, with an exquisitely Illuminate Title Page, and a correct portrait of the great composer and conductor, M. JULLIEN.—The object of the Subscriber in so greatly reducing the price of his copy-right edition of M. Jullien's popular Music, is to create a diversion in favor of GOOD MUSIC, against that wretched class of bad music, with which the country is flooded, to the destruction of all that is good and pure in the musical art. The music contained in this book, if bought in single pieces, would cost six dollars, or just six times the cost of Jullien's Book for the Million. In order to carry out this design, and to afford a further inducement to the purchasers of Jullien's music for the Million, the Subscriber will distribute among them ONE HUNDRED PIANOS, made by the best manufacturers in the country, fully guaranteed and classified as follows:—

Five superior Rose Wood Pianos, each $450; five elegant do. each, $400; ten superior do. each, $350; 20 excellent do. each, $300; thirty beautiful do. each $250; thirty fine do. each, $225.

The season of friendly gifts being at hand an opportunity in every way so favorable should be attended to at once. The earliest Subscribers will receive the first copies of the Book, the edition being so enormous, that much time will be required to produce the whole. A numbered receipt will be given or sent with each book. The Subscriber refers with pleasure to the perfect success of his Jullie's musical Gifts of 1851 & 2, and the entire satisfaction of all who subscribed at that period, is the surest guarantee that every engagement will be carried out, and in the free distribution of the Piano Fortes, there will be no infringement of the law. The books are now open and Subscriptions will be received at the Store of the Subscriber. All letters post-paid, including orders for the "Jullien Book," will be attended to promptly. Price, one dollar each.

BRITISH AMERICAN FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

OF MONTREAL.

Office No. 103, Notre Dame Street.

OFFICERS:

HENRY T. STRONG, Esq. President.
J. H. PHILLIPS, Esq. Sec'y. & Manager.

DIRECTORS:

A. A. DORION, Esq. | J. G. BOURGEAU, Esq. M. D.
A. T. STRONG, Esq. | J. DOUTRE, Esq.
A. M'DONALD, Esq. | W. HENDERSON, Esq.
C. H. PHILLIPS, Esq. | P. COOPER, Esq.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitled to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0
Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment
0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 103, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

County of Middlesex.

IN open Court at general Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Middlesex held by adjournment at the Court House, in the town of London, on Saturday, the tenth day of December, 1853, it was ordered that the following divisions, for holding the several Division Courts in the County of Middlesex, be established as follows:—

No. 1.—That Division Number One shall consist of the Town of London, with all that part of the Township of London lying west of the north branch of the River Thames, from the north or rear part of the said township, to the line between the Fourth and Fifth Concessions of the same, and all that part of the Township of Westminster lying north of the Commissioners' Road, from the line between lots numbers seven and eight, to the line between lots numbers thirty-six and thirty-seven in the same.

No. 2.—That Division Number Two shall be composed of the Township of Lobo, and all that part of the Township of Williams, east of the Centre Road.

No. 3.—That Division Number Three shall be composed of all that part of the Township of Westminster, lying west of the line between lots numbers seven and eight in the first and second concessions, and between lots numbers five and six to the rear of said township.

No. 4.—That Division Number Four shall be composed of the whole of the Township of North Dorchester, and that part of the Township of Westminster lying east of a line between lots numbers seven and eight, in the first and second concessions, and between lots number five and six, to the rear of said township.

No. 5.—That Division Number Five shall be composed of the township of Mosa, and that portion of the township of Ekfrid, lying westerly from the River Thames, and of the line between lots number twelve and thirteen until it shall intersect the allowance for road between the second and third concessions of the Longwoods Road, and also the remainder of the said township north of the line between the second and third concessions hereinbefore mentioned.

No. 6.—That Division Number Six shall be composed of the Township of Delaware, and that portion of the Township of Caradoc, lying south of the line between the fourth and fifth concessions, together with all that portion of the Township of Ekfrid lying south of the line between lots number twelve and thirteen in the said township.

No. 7.—That Division Number Seven shall be composed of the Township of Caradoc, not situated in the Township of Delaware, the Township of Metcalfe, the Township of Adelaide, and all that part of the Township of Williams west of the Centre Road in said township.

No. 8.—That Division Number Eight shall be composed of the Township of Nissouri West, and all that part of the Township of London lying east of the north branch of the River Thames, from the north or rear part of said township to the line between the fourth and fifth concessions of the same.

PROPOSED BY-LAW.

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company" and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272,000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid annually, to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company" on the following terms, that is to say That the Debentures to be issued shall be reimbursable provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or initials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of paying in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Seventh day of April, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,

Cures all Pains, Cramps, Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague, on the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head Ache, &c;

HIYATO CHINESE BALSAM.

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Choler, Pains &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done it much good. I have first used it in a case of Scarlet Fever, and as soon as the child was taken I applied the Balsam on the throat and it relieved a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Respectfully yours.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.

Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country, than any other external application—Cures all Scrofula Sores, Piles, Chilblains, tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.

Try it: you will not regret it.

TO W. C SWEET.

DEAR SIR,—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Pistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure, except by the knife, and this would be followed by a high price.

I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions, and every complaint is now entirely removed. I have used two bottles of it, and none of the disagreeable operations, (the form most frequently used when curing this complaint), your cordial with the blood, forms an unmistakable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

I consider I know how possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and have every reason to say Pharmaceutical chemist, I feel much pleasure in cordially recommending the Preparations this valuable Tonic to my professional brethren and to the public as a desagreeable and invigorating cordial.

I am, Gentlemen Yours &c.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Galvanic Elaboration. This Galvanic Elaboration is used with positive and permanent success in the cure of Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Nervousness and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spleen and Hysterics, Pains, Spasms, Sciatica, of the Joints, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Debauchery of Diseases, Weakness, Barrenness and Nervous Debility.

It is now generally admitted by the learned and scientific that the most genuine power called Galvanism or Magnetism is, under the vitality of life, and that deficiency in many of its most powerful forms is entirely owing to the absence of this vital agency. Medicine has failed to apply it in sufficient proportions. It then, we can only supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient we can successfully counteract disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining magnetism or life, arising with a fluid which has cost the inventor of the remedy years of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of this Magnetic power in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of various cases, showing some new effect of these wonderful agents, or corroborating previous experience on their beneficial use. The invention of the Galvanic Embrocation has great pleasure in giving aide to many a minority of the most distinguished physicians of New York constantly recommend this Embrocation in their practice, and from many of them he has received the kindest testimonials of approval and recommendation.

GUN MAKER,

LONDON, C. W.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained to, in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues—it is sufficient to say, having been more than twenty years before the public, and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is believed that they are now the most valuable and popular medicine now before the public admitted of no dispute. In almost every city and village in the United States there are many who are ready to bear testimony to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Dropsy, Sores or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often causing in a few days every vestige of these loathsome diseases to disappear. Dying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short to set all diseases at defiance, the proprietor feels no hesitancy in recommending them as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

Poetry.

Jock o' Aberdeen to Nick o' Roosha.

("O, come to the West, love!")

O, go to the East, Nick, ay, go there for me:
I've smoothed your way for you, I think you'll agree
Go, topple ANNE from his Ottoman throne,
And Turkey and Greece shall in time be your own;
And gladly I'll witness your empire increased
By all you can steal, or annex, in the East.

The North is the quarter whose hint I obey;
My heart, like the needle, points ever that way.
They call me your tool, they may call me so still,
While I live to accomplish your Majesty's will,
And loyalty list to each word that comes forth
From my pattern and idol, the Czar of the North.

The South hath St. Peter's (permit me to state
That I hate the Red Lady with Calvinist hate,)
But the name hath a charm, quite distinct from the pile—
It belongs to the city that lives in your smile;
And there is not a name to my tympanum sweeter
Than the Burgh's that is called from the Cossack St. Peter.

Then go to the East, Nick, and get what you can:
Trample down the vile Moslem, the Porte, and Divan.
If with vigour and cunning your measures you blend
Small chance for the French in a certain "French lake;"
And smaller that England shall, after a while,
Keep her road to the East, by the banks of the Nile.

And when the Greek cross to Sophia shall shine,
When Turkey, and Greece, and the Islands are thine,
When Egypt is yours, you "unparalleled man,"
And England is trembling for fair Hindostan,
I know you'll remember your "Aberdeen Jock,"
Who muzzled the Lion and crippled the Cock.

The Value of a Moment.

At every motion of our breath,
Life trembles on the brink of death.
A taper—flame that outward turns
While downward to the dust it burns.

A moment usher'd us to breath,
Heirs of the countionwealth of earth;
Moment by moment, years are past,
And one ere long will be our last.

Twixt that, long-fled which gave us light,
And that which soon shall end in night,
There is a point no eye can see,
Yet on it hangs eternity.

This is that moment—who shall tell
Whether it leads to heaven or hell?
This is that moment, as we choose,
The immortal soul we save or loose.

Time past and time to come are not,
There present is our only lot;
O God, henceforth our hearts incline
To seek no other love but thine!

Electro-Biology and Mesmerism.

FROM THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW.

It is admitted by Von Reichenbach that the attractive force which draws the hand to the magnet, cannot draw the magnet to the hand: the magnet though poised on a delicate balance, remaining unmoved by the solicitations of a hand placed beneath it. Surely this fact alone ought to have convinced him, that the force which keeps the hand of the 'sensitive' in contact with the magnet, has nothing in common with the physical forces, whose action is invariably reciprocal; but that it must be generated solely within the living body which exhibits the movement. Whatever may be his merits as a chemist, he has shown his utter incompetency for the conduct of an inquiry which is essentially physiological and psychological; and we are compelled to say that the public sanction which Professor Gregory has given to Von Reichenbach's assertions, proves that he too is chargeable with the same want of philosophical discrimination, and that his own recorded experiences on the subject must consequently be put aside as of little account.

Von Reichenbach never gained any large 'following' in this country, for to repeat his experiments, it is necessary to find 'subjects' of peculiar susceptibility, which are not always to be obtained. The first form under which the phenomena of 'expectant attention' manifested themselves, was a much more popular one; and it served alike to fill up the hiatus in time between Odylism and Electro-Biology; and to connect these two pseudo sciences in the minds of their votaries, by the link of a common causative force. If a ring, button, or any other small body be suspended by a string from the end of the finger, it will speedily begin to oscillate with a pendulum-like movement, and its oscillations will often take a definite direction. In our schoolboy days there was a prevalent belief that a button so held would strike the hours of the day or night against the side of a glass tumbler.—This certainly was the case in a large proportion of the instances in which we witnessed the experiment; but it is scarcely possible now to avoid seeing, that the influence which determined the number of the strokes was really in the mind of the experimenter; since the division of the day into hours is purely artificial, and cannot be supposed to have any other relation with the oscillations of the button, than that which it derives from the mental anticipation of a certain result. The subject was again brought up, about four years since, in another form, by Dr. Herbert Mayo, who investigated it with a great appearance of scientific precision. Beginning with a gold ring, and then proceeding to other bodies, he came to the conclusion that 'a fragment of anything, of any shape, suspended by a silk or cotton thread, the end of which is wound round the first joint either of the forefinger or the thumb,' would answer the purpose; though he finally gave the preference to a flat piece of shell-lac. To this he gave the name of 'Odometer,' having almost from the commencement assumed that the oscillations were dependent upon the 'odyle' of Von Reichenbach, whose system he had already emb

Progress of Russia.

In our dealings with Russia we must consider that we have to do with a power of whose policy the settled principle is to keep in view the conquest of the world. The time is come when the adherence to that principle makes Russia really formidable to the present liberties of Europe. The Russia of the present day is not the Russia of Peter the Great. We have no longer to consider it a remote and comparatively powerless state. Not even the history of Roman conquest records anything like the progress of Russia within the last 100 years. Lord Brougham, in his "Political Philosophy," gives a striking sketch of its territorial extension since the days of Peter; and since this was written the conquests of Russia have been further advanced.

"The progress," writes Lord Brougham, in 1841, "the progress made in all directions by Russia, since the end of the 17th century—that is, since the accession of Peter I.—may be represented to the mind by considering the space over which she has spread herself, and the number of subjects she has gained. Her conquests from Sweden are more extensive than what remains of that ancient kingdom: they stretch through 15 degrees of latitude. Her conquests from Turkey extend through 20 degrees of longitude. Her conquests from Persia extend through 8 degrees of longitude; and her conquests from Tartary through more than 35 degrees; whilst of Poland she has acquired by the successive partitions a territory of between 10,000 and 11,000 square miles, with a population of between 7 and 8 millions, besides all she had formerly obtained in Courland and the Ukraine. Her frontier has been advanced towards the west (that is into Europe) 700 miles, on the South towards Constantinople, 800 miles; towards India, 10,000 miles.—Her subjects have been increased from 15,000,000 to nearly 60,000,000, and has the greater portion of her dominions is in circumstances which tend to retard the natural progress of population if we suppose the people of the old territory to have doubled in a century, she will appear to have now as many new subjects as inhabit the dominions which Peter succeeded to.

Great, however, as has been the advance of Russian territorial dominion, her advance in political influence has been more amazing still. Little more than a century ago, without power, and almost without a name in the European family of nations, Russia now decides an influences over the politics of Europe compared with which that of any other country is utterly insignificant. The trembling dynasties of the continent look up to the Czar as their protector, we are told: the cause of European Conservatism rests upon his support. Against an outbreak of revolutionary violence the prestige of his power is we are assured, our only safety; and Europe must honour his lawless sneers, rather than run the risk of disturbing that prestige. The star of England pales before him, and British statesmen ask their ingenuity and exhaust their meanness in devising methods of averting a collision with his might. In defiance of the opinion of the civilized world he has seized on unoffending countries, violated treaties and trampled upon rights. The great nations of the west look on and murmur, but dare not resent, and Europe treasures up the memory of some grim observations at Olmutz and humbly begs his imperial majesty will be graciously pleased to be merciful and kind.

Oh! for one British statesman who would represent the traditions of old England as faithfully as Russian princes do those of their barbarous dynasty; one who would make the thunder of our broadside tell at Sebastopol that while England has a ship or a man, the liberties of Europe shall not be sacrificed without a struggle, to the ambition of the Russians, or the cowardice and the necessities of the corrupt and worn out despotisms which look upon his military power for support.

The man who will read the extract we have made, from Lord Brougham and reflect upon Russia as it is; and as formerly was, will no longer regard the project of the universal dominion of the Muscovite autocrat as a dream.—Morning Herald.

Affairs in the East.

INTERESTING DETAILS FROM THE DANUBE.

The Medical Wochenschrift of the 11th January brings some interesting details from the Lower Danube:—

All the reports current to this time have concurred in stating that the Russian forces were too small and too deficient, particularly in cavalry and ordnance, to venture an attack upon our entrenched positions at Kalafat; the very urgent requests, however, made by the chief physician to transmit expeditiously all kinds of hospital requisites, and to dispatch some more experienced physicians seem to indicate that several skirmishes of note have taken place near Kalafat. Happily, on the 7th inst., three new physicians, most French, arrived at Rutschuk. This enabled us to despatch 9 of our old experienced, and acclimated surgeons to Widdin and Kalafat. Having received from Varna great quantities of necessaries for the use of hospitals, we have latterly been able more than ever to take care of our sick. The fuel sent hither was not only sufficient for hospitals and camp stations, but even to watch but very merry fires. There is an abundance of provender of all kinds. Kalafat, in particular, is well provided with poultry and calves. We have very good cheese, superior potatoes, and excellent ham, in abundance. It is a pity that neither the Turks nor Egyptians will accustom themselves to cook and ham—the more so as beef is chiefly reserved for the invalids. The Wallachs us readily bring provisions to market. Everything is paid for in ready money, chiefly in Austrian silver, zwanzigers and gulbins of jessanas. The want of good water is particularly felt at Kalafat, bread at all times is very little eaten in the country; and the cakes of maize are like maize polenta—a very unpalateable food for our troops.—Wine is freely drunk in spite of Mahomet's command's and it is certainly better than the brandy distilled from plums, which the troops very often get in large allowances, and at improper times. Since the night of the 9th, our posts have been placed in a large semicircle round Kalafat, from Negoe and Belotshitza, Kerand and Amfor. The highest station up stream is at the lakes of Plomnitza, whence the wounded (157) have been brought in for the last two days and carried to Widdin. The field near Cetate, particularly between Funtine, Bunbul, Karaule, Cartujsle and Plenatza, was covered with dead and wounded, so that in the course of 36 hours, 374 dead and 533 wounded have been picked up there. The wounds are generally severe, the shot wounds preponderating over those caused by cuts and thrusts. On the whole we count since the 30th of December above 1,300 men between dead, wounded and missing. Only part of the head quarters has been transferred to Widdin. The troops have latterly fought with the utmost bravery, and, in many cases, would rather be cut to pieces than surrender. So they did at Cetate and Fatima Magliari, near Skriputs, where the preservation of ammunition cars, pieces of ordnance, and standards was at stake. A good many officers are native Turks, mostly formed in the military Colleges of Vienna, Berlin, Paris, or Constantinople, and are noble hearted and talented men. It is therefore the more to be regretted that the eye of the beholder meets with instances of the barbarities of former ages. Amongst these, ranks chiefly the hideous custom of cutting off ears and noses, which, in spite of the severe laws threatening the offenders, is still being practised by some of the irregulars, mostly Albanese or Arnaoots. At Cetate, one of these savages bore as it were a necklace of ears, nose, a forfeit which his soles had severely to atone for. New troops are constantly arriving at Widdin. If the report spread to day be true, the five are more from Constantinople, are destined to navigate up the St. George's Channel, and then to turn to Moldavia and Bessara, so as completely to cut off the retreat of our enemies to Bissarabia and Moldavia. Omer Pasha is the man to imagine and execute a similar plan.

Prince Gortschakoff. General In-Chief of the Russian Forces.

The names of Prince Menchikoff and Prince Gortschakoff stand out at this moment in bold relief in Russian cotemporary history; and yet it is doubtful whether the public would ever have had the hard necessity of pronouncing them, if the battalions of the Russian empire had not been arrayed against Turkey. Certainly the name of Menchikoff is of no recent date. The reader of Russian history could not fail to have his attention arrested by the exploits of the first Prince Menchikoff, in the reign of Peter the great; or to be struck by the great talents to which he owed his rise, not by the ignominy of his fall. In tracing the career of Prince Gortschakoff there is an absence of that ancestral fame which renders the deeds of the present Russian plenipotentiary more memorable; and our sketch of the commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, will, therefore, necessarily be confined within smaller limits.

Of the actual date of the birth of Prince Gortschakoff we have not a record; but we believe it to have been later than the year 1792, and before the year 1798. In the year 1828 we find him serving in the artillery of the Imperial Guards; in 1829 he was nominated to the staff of the Kralewski Corps and he served with it in Silistria and at Schumla in that year. Of course we do not pretend to enter into a history of the war as it raged at the time between the Russians and the Turks. We confine ourselves to that portion with which Prince Gortschakoff was connected. Reschid Pacha, the Grand Vizier, being at that time in force at Shumla, the Governor of Silistria, menaced by the Russians applied to him for assistance. Reschid created a diversion by an attack elsewhere, in the course of which the Turkes showed a bravery quit equal to that which has lately excited so much surprise.—General Dubitsch was compelled to march from Silistria on the 5th of June with Count Pahlen's corps, to reinforce General Roth, while General Krassofsky was left to continue the beleaguerment of Silistria. Prince Gortschakoff was with his corps, and took part in the artillery operations. It was not until the 30th of June that, breaches, having been made, the commander of the fortress offered a capitulation, and at last the Pacha and his garrison suffered ted as prisoners of war. The siege had lasted six weeks, and the Russians had 1,270 men killed or wounded. No sooner was the reduction of Silistria accomplished, than General Krassofsky's corps was ordered to Shumla; but the could not bring up his last men till the 15th July. Of Gortschakoff we find no special mention in the despatches; but he was actively engaged in all these operations, the object of which was to engage the attention of Reschid Pacha while Dubitsch passed with the strength of his army across the Balkans. We find one engagement, when the Turks attacked Krassofsky's corps, near Marasch, unsuccessfully. The last named General accomplished the object of his chief in having engaged the attention of the Vizier and yet kept up a communication with the main Russian army. Very shortly after, the treaty of Adrianople put an end to the war.

Prince Gortschakoff remained on the staff of the artillery, and in connection with Krassofsky's corps until 1834 when he was called upon to take part in the war in Poland. He was at this time one of the chief staff officers of Count Pahlen. For his services during the campaign, he was made Lieutenant-General. As Commander-in-Chief of the Concentrated Artillery he distinguished himself on various places during the campaign. At Gorlitz the artillery were called more into play than they had hitherto been. Count Pahlen had been compelled to retreat before the Polish troops, when, by the concentration of a tremendous artillery force, the battle was turned once more in favor of the Russians. The artillery were under the command of Prince Gortschakoff. In the subsequent operations, during the advance upon Warsaw, Prince Gortschakoff distinguished himself in an affair at Ostrolenka, which sustained for a long time the fire of his artillery till the Poles were compelled to abandon it in flames. While the Russians subsequently crossed the river, Prince Gortschakoff protected the bridge with his artillery. Ultimately he succeeded in maintaining the bridge, although the Poles claimed the victory on the days which our operations. Dembrsen was suddenly taken off by the cholera, and was succeeded by Marshal Paskewitch, who continued the movements on Wilna.

This capital was at length invested, and on the 6th September capitulated to the Russian General Prince Gortschakoff distinguished himself during the siege, in which his office as Commander of Artillery rendered him a most important agent as Generalissimo Chief. After the retreat of Count Soll he was put on the staff of the active army. In 1843 he was promoted to the rank of General of Artillery; and in 1849 was made military Governor of Warsaw, which post he still continues to hold. He served in the Hungarian war of 1849, in which he took an important part, in the same year he was appointed to act as Polish Land and Danubian branch of the service as in Poland and the Danubian Provinces. In 1852 he represented Russia at the funeral of the Duke of Wellington.

On the occupation of the Danubian Provinces, during the present year, Prince Gortschakoff was appointed to the chief command of the Imperial forces. When he entered Wallachia he published, under superior orders a proclamation, to the effect that his royal master had no design of conquest; and that the inhabitants would be in every way protected in their independence. Whether this was believed by him at the time we know not; but events soon showed that the Russian commander either had never intended to fulfil his promises, or that the power to do so had been taken from him by the necessities of war. The next act of Prince Gortschakoff that in any way denoted his character, was his celebrated appeal to the fanaticism of the Russians, ending with the memorable words, "Mort aux Payens!" The reader will not have forgotten, either, his reply to Omar Pacha, when desired by that chief to evacuate the Principalities. "I have no orders," said he, "either to commence hostilities, to conclude peace, or to evacuate the Principalities."

Prince Gortschakoff has gradually risen from a comparatively subordinate rank in the artillery to very high posts. He is Aide-Camp General, General of Artillery, and Chief d'Etat Major of the active army. Besides being Military Governor of Warsaw, he is also the foremost member of the Council of Administration of the kingdom of Poland; and in the absence of Prince Paskewitsch-Eriwan, as the Namestnik, or Lieutenant-General of the Kingdom it is his privilege to preside at the deliberations of the Council.

An elder brother of Prince Gortschakoff served in Germany and France, held a command in Deutsch's army which went to Chalons, and was in 1833, named Governor-General of Western Siberia. A younger brother has distinguished himself in the diplomatic service. He was chief secretary of Legation at London in 1824; and was afterwards at Florence, Vienna, and Stuttgard. At the latter place he negotiated the marriage between the Grand Duchess Olga and the Crown Prince of Wurtemburg.

SCENE OF THE ACTION—GALLANTRY OF THE TURKS.

Very shortly after, the treaty of Adrianople put an end to the war.

Prince Gortschakoff remained on the staff of the artillery, and in connection with Krassofsky's corps until 1834 when he was called upon to take part in the war in Poland. He was at this time one of the chief staff officers of Count Pahlen. For his services during the campaign, he was made Lieutenant-General. As Commander-in-Chief of the Concentrated Artillery he distinguished himself on various places during the campaign. At Gorlitz the artillery were called more into play than they had hitherto been. Count Pahlen had been compelled to retreat before the Polish troops, when, by the concentration of a tremendous artillery force, the battle was turned once more in favor of the Russians. The artillery were under the command of Prince Gortschakoff. In the subsequent operations, during the advance upon Warsaw, Prince Gortschakoff distinguished himself in an affair at Ostrolenka, which sustained for a long time the fire of his artillery till the Poles were compelled to abandon it in flames. While the Russians subsequently crossed the river, Prince Gortschakoff protected the bridge with his artillery. Ultimately he succeeded in maintaining the bridge, although the Poles claimed the victory on the days which our operations. Dembrsen was suddenly taken off by the cholera, and was succeeded by Marshal Paskewitch, who continued the movements on Wilna.

This capital was at length invested, and on the 6th September capitulated to the Russian General Prince Gortschakoff distinguished himself during the siege, in which his office as Commander of Artillery rendered him a most important agent as Generalissimo Chief. After the retreat of Count Soll he was put on the staff of the active army. In 1843 he was promoted to the rank of General of Artillery; and in 1849 was made military Governor of Warsaw, which post he still continues to hold. He served in the Hungarian war of 1849, in which he took an important part, in the same year he was appointed to act as Polish Land and Danubian branch of the service as in Poland and the Danubian Provinces. In 1852 he represented Russia at the funeral of the Duke of Wellington.

On the occupation of the Danubian Provinces, during the present year, Prince Gortschakoff was appointed to the chief command of the Imperial forces. When he entered Wallachia he published, under superior orders a proclamation, to the effect that his royal master had no design of conquest; and that the inhabitants would be in every way protected in their independence. Whether this was believed by him at the time we know not; but events soon showed that the Russian commander either had never intended to fulfil his promises, or that the power to do so had been taken from him by the necessities of war. The next act of Prince Gortschakoff that in any way denoted his character, was his celebrated appeal to the fanaticism of the Russians, ending with the memorable words, "Mort aux Payens!" The reader will not have forgotten, either, his reply to Omar Pacha, when desired by that chief to evacuate the Principalities. "I have no orders," said he, "either to commence hostilities, to conclude peace, or to evacuate the Principalities."

Prince Gortschakoff has gradually risen from a comparatively subordinate rank in the artillery to very high posts. He is Aide-Camp General, General of Artillery, and Chief d'Etat Major of the active army. Besides being Military Governor of Warsaw, he is also the foremost member of the Council of Administration of the kingdom of Poland; and in the absence of Prince Paskewitsch-Eriwan, as the Namestnik, or Lieutenant-General of the Kingdom it is his privilege to preside at the deliberations of the Council.

An elder brother of Prince Gortschakoff served in Germany and France, held a command in Deutsch's army which went to Chalons, and was in 1833, named Governor-General of Western Siberia. A younger brother has distinguished himself in the diplomatic service. He was chief secretary of Legation at London in 1824; and was afterwards at Florence, Vienna, and Stuttgard. At the latter place he negotiated the marriage between the Grand Duchess Olga and the Crown Prince of Wurtemburg.

The case of Mr. John Sadlier.

From The Press.

The squeamish affectation of purity exhibited by the Peelites must have received a deadly shock in hearing that what is, though "my dear Duke of Newcastle's" friend, Mr. Sadlier, had rolled himself along with the other members of the "coalition." For those were the gentlemen whose delicate notions of personal honour were so exquisitely sensative to official scandals! Your pukes have always the most reason for hiding their peccadilloes decently consumed, "so that they like Figs in" The Revals," "they may be fit for table, but it hints their conscience to be found out."

We really should like to see the face of the Peelites when they found that "our Mr. John Sadlier" was so exposed. There were the dolt that looked so stunned at rejected election struggles! And now one of their own followers—a caught chandelier in the very effect Lazarus as that stain electioneering annals! It reminds us of the difference between the shepherd at the temperance meeting and the same reverend gentleman imbibing his pine-apple rum in the bar at the Marquis of Granby. Or, to take a metaphor from "monastic institutions," these Peelite and tory expectations detected at their Sadlerism must have resembled a party of monks of Lay Teppe convicted of gorging beefsteaks in the dark.

Nor will any amount of their "Oxford logic" discover them from Sadlerism. It was the very pivot of their policy last spring. In Sadlerism the Duke of Newcastle sank all his political stock! By Sadlerism the handful of Peelers obtained per" liamentary members, before whom, in an evil hour for them name, degenerate Sadlerism would stand their ground. By Sadlerism the coalition struck their colors. By Sadlerism the coalition was glutted—the sword of state put under the hands of an imbecile parliament—the policy of the Czar made predominant, and the cause of political purity set at nought.

The arts by which the intolerants who have produced such imperial results at length to entire parliament cannot be two widely known. Failing in fraud on the score of a Drawing Sadlerism nuisance, even the "Times" could not stand it. Failing in with a gag; plotted to strike a timid genius as a security; baffled in doing so, set on a Roman Catholic priest to extract the confession that he had fingers of its tallowing to her; though yet no proofs reciprocate from a dying father eye; instructed with of miserable execution for Sadlerism, and even one hand and mutilating the surviving corpse of the one hand in the other, degenerate Sadlerism would stand the Court of Exchequer and a Star Chamber to suppress the public report of its infamous enormities!

We will not in this place allude to the incidents of the trial further than to say that the jury found their verdict without hesitation, against the testimony of the ex-lord of the Treasury. He swore that he was not cognizant of any conspiracy. But why did he not know of it? The intriguing priest gave the lion into Sadlier's own hand, by his own admission. Sadlier gave that document thus dangerously obtained to the Attorney-General of Ireland; and in the absence of Prince Paskiewitsch-Eriwan, as the Namestnik, or Lieutenant-General of the Kingdom it is his privilege to preside at the deliberations of the Council.

The following letter from the Augsburg Gazette gives an account of the recent battle at Citale:—

Krajova, Lesser Wallachia, Jan. 8, 1854.

It is but six days that I have been in Krajova. Your letter desiring me to inform you exactly and truly of everything that might happen at the seat of war I received six weeks since when in this country; but I had no idea that Lesser Wallachia was likely to become the scene of such important events. My station was founded on the former Russo-Turkish wars, in which the Russians always made the principle attacks on their enemy in the neighborhood of Giurgevo, and so down the river to the Gut of Sulina are employed in the artillery operations. It was not until the 30th of June that, breaches, having been made, the commander of the fortress offered a capitulation, and at last the Pacha and his garrison suffered ted as prisoners of war. The siege had lasted six weeks, and the Russians had 1,270 men killed or wounded. No sooner was the reduction of Silistria accomplished, than General Krassofsky's corps was ordered to Shumla; but the could not bring up his last men till the 15th July. Of Gortschakoff we find no special mention in the despatches; but he was actively engaged in all these operations, the object of which was to engage the attention of Reschid Pacha while Dubitsch passed with the strength of his army across the Balkans. REQUISITION.

To John Scatchard, Esq., Warden, County Middlesex

We, the undersigned qualified electors of the Municipality, and Freeholders in the County of Middlesex, request that you will call a public meeting of the qualified electors of the said Municipality, to be held at the Town of London, to take into consideration the propriety of the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex taking Stock in the London and Port Stanley Railroad Company, to the amount of £25,000, according to the following by-law:

PROPOSED BY-LAW, to authorise the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex, to subscribe for One Thousand Shares in the Capital Stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company.

Robert Craik,	M. Anderson,	Wm. Barker
Wm Moore	W. H. Niles,	W. Elliott
Donald Fraser	G. Ellwood,	S. M. Toole
Peter MacClary	Thomas Moyle	Lewis Mott
William Spalding	Hiram Dell	G. J. Smith,
	Holcrot Clench.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex, by and with the consent of a majority of the qualified electors of the County of Middlesex, at a meeting called for that purpose by the Warden of said County, at the request of ten electors of said County, by public advertisement, containing a copy of this by-law, as provided for by statute, have agreed to subscribe for one thousand shares in the capital stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, upon the condition that the debentures hereinafter mentioned, shall be taken at par by the said company for the said stock, and that the said company shall provide for all interest on said debentures, during the construction of the work. And whereas it is expedient to issue debentures to the amount of twenty-five thousand pounds, payable as hereinafter mentioned, for the purpose of paying for one thousand shares of stock so agreed to be subscribed for as aforesaid. And it will require the sum of two thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds, to be raised annually as a special rate for the payment of said debentures and interest, as the same shall become payable according to this by-law.

And whereas the whole amount of rateable property of the County of Middlesex, for the year A. d. 1853, according to the assessment returns of the same for that rate, was £1,912,061, and it will require the annual rate of 35 100 of a penny in the pound upon such rateable property, as a special rate for the payment of the said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of the said debentures, as the same shall become payable according to this by-law.

First—Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex, by and with the consent of the majority of the qualified electors of the said Municipality, so obtained as aforesaid, that the warden of the said county be, and he is hereby authorized and empowered to subscribe for and in the name, and on the behalf of the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex for one thousand shares in the capital stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, upon the condition above mentioned.

Second—And be it further enacted that the Warden, for the time being, is hereby authorised and required to issue debentures, as aforesaid, in payment for the said stock, in sums not less than £25 each.

Third—And be it further enacted that the debentures shall be under the seal of the corporation, and shall bear interest from the dates thereof respectively, at the rate of six per cent annum, which interest shall be payable at the office of the treasurer of the county half-yearly, on the first day of July and first day of December in each year, and shall be signed by the Warden, and countersigned by the treasurer, and shall have coupons attached to each for the said interest, with the signatures or initials of the Warden and treasurer thereto, and the said debentures shall be made payable at the County Treasurers office on the tenth day of March, 1874, and be issued with a proviso, that the Municipal Council of the county may redeem them at any time after five years, if they shall desire to do so.

Fourth.—And be it further enacted that, for the payment of the said debentures so given for the said stock, and the half-yearly interest thereon, there shall be levied upon the whole rateable property within the said county, in each year, a special rate of 35-100 of a penny in the pound over and above and in addition to all other rates whatever, until the said debentures and the interest thereon shall be fully paid.

Fifth.—And be it further enacted that the said Municipal Council shall not, at any time before the said debentures are fully satisfied, sell or dispose of the said shares or any of them, except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating the said debentures or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

Sixth.—And be it further enacted that the consent of the qualified electors of the County of Middlesex, to the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex, subscribing for one thousand shares in the capital stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company be ascertained at a public meeting, to be held at the Court House, in the town of London, on Friday the 10th day of March, 1854, at noon, at which hour the Warden, if he be then present, or in his absence the Reeve of the town of London, shall take the chair, and call the meeting to be there held to order, and the said Warden or Reeve shall then submit to the electors, then and there present, the question—shall the Municipal Council of the County of Middlesex subscribe for one thousand shares in the stock of the London and Port Stanley Railway Company, according to the provisions of this by-law—and shall it be adopted?

Seventh.—And be it further enacted, that this by-law shall come into operation and take effect on the eleventh day of March, 1854.

In compliance with the above request, I hereby call a meeting of the qualified electors of the county of Middlesex, for the purpose aforesaid, to be held at the Court House in the town of London on Friday, the 10th day of March next, at Noon.

JOHN SCATCHERD, Warden.
February 2, 1854.

NOTICE.

THE above is a true copy of a proposed By-Law, to be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the county of Middlesex, on the 11th day of March, 1854, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Court House, in the town of London, at which time and place the members of said council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kind of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM,

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favorable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham. Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Tuned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of very superior Brass Instruments, for the formation and use of Bands, as Ophiclier, Sax horns, Trombones, Companas, Bugles, Post horns, French horns, etc., which will be sold low, and on very favorable terms.

Mr. Kordes would just say a few words regarding the Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, in the first place, they are warranted to keep good and sound in all their parts, for any number of years, provided they receive good treatment.

In the second place, any person having such a thing as what is called an ear for music, will, without looking at the makers name, be able to detect the difference between a Stodart, a Dunham or a Chickering, to a Piano from any other maker, without exception; the woody, wiry, harsh kind of sound, so predominant in other instruments, is changed into a mellow, sweet, full and brilliant tone in the Pianos of the above three makers.

As regards keeping in tune: these Pianos require a good tuner 3 times in 12 months and decent treatment, they never require more than this, may, however, sometimes require less. Care and attention is all they need.

THE Subscriber having secured the copy right of the only correct edition of M. Jullien's Music, including the will issue, immediately, the work being now in press, 100,000 BOOKS, containing all Jullien's popular and fashionable music, to be called JULLIEN'S MUSIC FOR THE MILLION. PRICE ONE DOLLAR.

The work will be beautifully printed, on fine paper, with an exquisitely Illuminated Title-Page, and a correct portrait of the great composer and conductor, M. JULLIEN.—The object of the Subscriber in so greatly reducing the price of his copy-right edition of M. Jullien's popular Music, is to create a diversion in favor of GOOD MUSIC, against that wretched class of bad music, with which the country is flooded, to the destruction of all that is good and pure in the musical art. The music contained in this book, if bought in single pieces, would cost six dollars, or just six times the cost of Jullien's Book for the Million. In order to carry out this design, and to afford a further inducement to the purchasers of Jullien's music for the Million, the Subscriber will distribute among them ONE HUNDRED PIANOS, made by the best manufacturers in the country, fully guaranteed and classified as follows:—

Five superior Rose Wood Pianos, each $450; five elegant do. each, $400; ten superior do. each, $350; 20 excellent do. each, $300; thirty beautiful do. each $250; thirty fine do. each $225.

The occasion of friendly gifts being at hand an opportunity in every way so favorable should be attended to at once. The richest Subscribers will receive the first copies of the Book, the edition being so enormous, that much time will be needed to produce the whole. A numbered receipt will be given or sent with each book. The Subscriber refers with pleasure to the perfect success of his, Jollie's musical Gifts of 1851 & 2, and the entire satisfaction of all who subscribed at that period, is the surest guarantee that every engagement will be carried out, and in the free distribution of the Piano Fortes, there will be no infringement of the law. The books are now open and Subscriptions will be received at the Store of the Subscriber. All letters post-paid, including orders for the "Jullien Book," will be attended to promptly. Price, one dollar each.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Working-men and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan, each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0
Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment	Yearly Payment.
0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

County of Middlesex.

IN open Court of general Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Middlesex, held by adjournment at the Court House, in the town of London, on Saturday, the tenth day of December, 1853, it was ordered that the following divisions, for holding the several Division Courts in the County of Middlesex, be established as follows:—

No 1.—That Division Number One shall consist of the Town of London, with all that part of the Township of London, lying west of the north branch of the River Thames, from the north or rear part of the said township, to the line between the Fourth and Fifth Concessions of the same, and all that part of the Township of Westminster lying north of the Commissioners' Road, from the line between lots numbers seven and eight, to the line between lots numbers thirty-six and thirty-seven in the same.

No 2.—That Division Number Two shall be composed of the Township of Lobo, and all that part of the Township of Williams, east of the Centre Road.

No 3.—That Division Number Three shall be composed of all that part of the Township of Westminster, lying west of the line between lots numbers seven and eight in the first and second concessions, and between lots numbers five and six to the rear of the said township.

No 4.—That Division Number Four shall be composed of the whole of the Township of North Dorchester, and that part of the Township of Westminster lying east of a line between lots numbers seven and eight, in the first and second concessions, and between lots number five and six, to the rear of said township.

No 5.—That Division Number Five shall be composed of the township of Mosa, and that portion of the township of Ekfrid, lying westerly from the River Thames, and of the line between lots number twelve and thirteen until it shall intersect the allowance for road between the second and third concessions, north of the Longwoods Road, and also the remainder of the said township north of the line between the second and third concessions before mentioned.

No 6.—That Division Number Six shall be composed of the Township of Delaware, and that portion of the Township of Caradoc, lying south of the line between the fourth and fifth concessions, together with all that portion of the Township of Ekfrid lying south of the line between lots number twelve and thirteen in the said township.

No 7.—That Division Number Seven shall be composed of the Township of Caradoc, not attached to the Township of Delaware, the Township of Metcalfe, the Township of Adelaide, and all that part of the Township of Williams west of the Centre Road in said township.

No 8.—That Division Number Eight shall be composed of the Township of Nissouri West, and all that part of the Township of London lying east of the north branch of the River Thames, from the north or rear part of said township to the line between the Fourth and Fifth Concessions of the same.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid annually, to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms that is to say That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stock holders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or fials of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By-Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Seventh day of April, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

Comfort and Relief for the Afflicted.

NO ONE MEDICINE FOR ALL DISEASES.

W. C. SWEETS CELEBRATED FAMILY MEDICINES

SWEET'S FAMILY CURATIVE LINAMENT,

Cures all Pains, Cramps; Numbness, Weak Joints, Ague, in the Face, Nervous Tooth and Head Ache, &c;

SIVATO CHINESE BALSAM,

Cures Sore Throat, Stomach, Colds, Choice, Pains &c.

Mr. Sweet—This is to certify that I have used one bottle of your Chinese Balsam in my family, which has done them much good. I have first used it in a case of Scarlet Fever, and as soon as the child was taken, I applied the Balsam on the throat and it effected a cure immediately—and as we have tried it in a number of instances, I am satisfied that it is an infallible remedy. It is certainly the best thing I ever used in my family! Therefore I consider it a very valuable medicine.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN DOTY.

Rochester, March 23rd, 1852.

Sweet's Infallible Eye Water.

Warranted to cure sore, inflamed or weak Eyes. Try it. There is no better.

One of the best preparations for the Human Flesh is

SWEET'S KING OF OILS.

It has performed more wonderful cures in this country than any other external application. In all Inflammed Sores, Piles, Chilblains, tender Feet, Blisters and many other diseases Man's flesh is heir to.

Try it: you will not regret it,

TO W. C. SWEET.

DEAR SIR.—A sense of duty impels me to forward to you the following certificate:—

For the last eight years, I have been troubled with a Fistula or Tumor, close to the rectum.—I had consulted Physicians, all of whom told me there was no cure except by the knife, and they would not guarantee a high price.

I was about to employ one, when you visited this place, and gave me a bottle of your KING OF OILS, with instructions how to use it. I followed your directions implicitly, and in Three Weeks was effectually cured. It is now five months since the cure, and I believe it to be a permanent one.

JOHN PERRY.

Wilson, Niagara County New York. June 8, 1852.

I humbly certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Perry, and knowing to the fact of the above disease and cure.

BAKING ESTABLISHMET.

LONDON, Nov. 15, 1853.

BEG leave to inform the public that I have been absent from London a few months, and during my absence there have been false reports, taking the advantage of Mr. Garratt, my uncle, carrying on the business, through false swearing to pay my debts, &c. parties which he never was. The were parties who certainly swore to falsehoods, through evil designs and animosity, which they held against him. I have now returned for the purpose of settling all accounts and to resume my baking business, as heretofore, not as partner, but as doing business on my own account. I beg to solicit the patronage of my former customers and the public at large, as I shall attend to the baking business with every attention and all orders with promptness and despatch on the shortest notice.

COMPOUND

CAMOMILE FLOWERS.

London, C. W. June 18th, 1852.

GENTLEMEN—I have received the sample bottle of your Compound Camomile Pills, and consider it a beautiful article, of an agreeable palatable preparation. The aromatic fragrance and peculiar bitter flavour, in which the essential principles of that plant appears to be largely mixed and well preserved, are of the greatest importance, and must be beneficial in those impaired Dyspepsias depending on debility or want of tone in the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with) as the camomile is one of the most useful bitters and forms an invaluable addition to our Pharmacopœia.

I consider the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel most justified in confidently recommending his Pills, particularly to the notice of the Medical Profession, as a valuable remedy and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating cordial.

I am, Gentlemen Yours &c.

DR. SHERWOOD'S Universal Embrocation. This Galvanic Embrocation is one of the most positive and permanent sources in all cases of Rheumatism, or acute, or chronic, and that too in the most painful forms. It relieves Neuralgia, Nervous and Sick Headache, Paralysis, Fits, Epilepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Spasms and Hysterics, Lumbago, Sprains, Stiffness of the Joints, Tremblings, Neuralgia, Nervous Tremors, General Debility, Deficiency of Diuresis, Chilblains, Burns and Scalds &c.

It is now generally admitted, by the learned and scientific, that the mysterious power called Galvanism or Magnetism is, indeed the vitality of life and that disease in many of its most painful forms, is entirely owing to the deficiency of this principle in the body, and that in healthy proportions. It is then we can readily supply this wondrous power when it is thus deficient we can successfully combat disease, and this has been fully and perfectly attained by the most wonderful scientific discovery of combining magnetism or fluid action with a fluid which has cost the inventor the labour of the research of study and labor.

There is not an intelligent Physician who has kept pace with the progress of science that does not readily approve of the Magnetic powers in various diseases, and there is scarcely a medical journal either in this country or Europe which makes its appearance without the statement of two or three cases showing some new effect or hitherto unknown agents or combinations positions experience of their beneficial use. The proprietor of the Galvanic Embrocation has for several years been in possession of the above valuable discovery, and has only been induced to offer it to the public at this time, from the solicitations of numerous friends, who have witnessed its effects in their own families, and in their practice, and from the fact that a considerable portion of the community are unacquainted with the use of Galvanic or Magnetic fluid, and are consequently deprived of their benefits.

The proprietor has received numerous testimonials of the most unquestionable character, but deems it unnecessary to publish them, as he is confident that the Embrocation will recommend itself to all who use it.

Prepared and sold wholesale and retail by the proprietor, DR. SHERWOOD, No. 177 Broadway, New York.

Sold also by Agents throughout the United States and Canada.

Price 50 cents per bottle.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcers, Scurvy or Eruptions of the skin, the operation of the Life Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of those loathsome diseases by their purifying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles, and in short most all diseases, more or less, require the purifying properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved.

The great popularity which Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters have attained in consequence of the extraordinary cures effected by their use, renders it unnecessary for the proprietor to enter into a particular analysis of their medicinal virtues or properties. Having been more than twenty years before the public and having the united testimony of more than Three Millions of persons who have been restored to the enjoyment of perfect health by them, it is beleived that their reputation as the best vegetable medicine now before the public admits of no doubt. In almost every city and village in the United States, there are none who can not testify to their efficacy in removing disease, and giving to the whole system renewed vigor and health.

MR. ALEXANDER MACDONALD, Agent.

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent for the above Company, for the Town of London and surrounding country, begs to inform the public that he is prepared to receive orders for insurance on the most favourable terms.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Fire Insurances will be effected at moderate rates of premium. The premiums in this Company are not subject to those large losses which may happen in other offices, as it is confined to the risks of such property only as is considered safe by the assured of the most respectable standing. The Company will also insure against loss or damage by the settlement of buildings, &c. which has proved so disastrous throughout the whole of the United States during the year 1852—this practically shown by the Directors of this Company in the character which they have established throughout the whole of the United States and Canada. It will only be necessary to add that the Capital, Assets, and entire responsible resources of the Company are ample to meet all claims that may accrue, and that every legitimate claim will be immediately settled without reference to England.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

Life Risks taken on favourable terms. The important advantages afforded by the company in this branch, will include the following, viz:

1. Guarantee of an ample capital, moderate premiums, large participations of profits by the assured—amounting to two-thirds of the net amount—small charge for management—the expenses of the office being borne in due proportion by two branches and exemption of the assured from the liability of partnership.

Additional advantages offered to lives assured with this company will be shown.

1. RESIDENCE.

Persons assured for the whole term of life will have permission, without the payment of any extra premium, to reside in any part of Europe; or in any place in North America, to the North of 38 degrees of North latitude; but not to the westward of the Mississippi River.

2. VOYAGES.

They will also be allowed, without any extra charge, to cross and re-cross the Atlantic ocean in steamers or first-class sailing vessels. To pass from any part of Europe to another—or from any part of North America to another, within the limits above specified; also to pass to and from, but not to reside in any place which shall not be further south than 38 degrees of north latitude, but not to the Westward of the Mississippi River.

Further information, regarding the standing of the above Company, may be obtained at the Agent's office, Dundas Street, where Fire and Life Assurances may be effected.

the prevalence of the former, as of the latter, must be accounted as indicative of something essentially wrong in our previous condition: especially when it is recollected that this last delusion has taken a firm hold, not merely of ignorant men and silly women, but of well-instructed, sober-minded persons, by whose judgments on ordinary subjects we should set the greatest store. There can be no question then that Prof. Faraday was right in the hint he so modestly gave, that the unfavorable predisposition arises from a radical defect in our system of education; and we shall briefly endeavor to point out where the defect lies.

The study of Human Nature—physical, intellectual, moral and spiritual—is by far too much neglected in our educational arrangements. That the preservation of corporeal health is in a great degree dependent upon the observance of the rules dictated by physiological science, and that a general knowledge of the structure and functions of man's body is really worth his possessing, for its own sake, is gradually coming to be generally acknowledged. We would urge, however, that an acquaintance with the constitution of his mind is not one whit the less desirable for the right development of its powers, and for the preservation of its health. We have seen in the various phenomena we have been discussing how largely the Will is concerned in all those higher exercises of the reasoning powers, even upon the most common-place subjects, by which our conduct ought to be governed; and how important it is that the automatic tendencies, of whatever nature, should be entirely subjugated by it. We are satisfied, from extensive observation, that in a large proportion of cases of Insanity, the disorder is mainly attributable to the want of acquirement, in early life, of proper volitional control over the current of thought: so that the mind cannot free itself from the tyranny of any propensity or idea, which once acquires an undue predominance. The deficiency of power to repel the fascinations of some attractive delusion that appeals to the vanity, to the love of the marvellous, or to some other receptive predisposition, by employing the reason to strip of its specious disguise and expose its latent absurdities, really proceeds from a want of the same kind, the supply of which ought to be one of the prominent objects of educational culture in every grade.

In all ages, the 'possession' of men's minds by dominant ideas has been most complete, when these ideas have been religious aberrations. The origin of such aberrations has uniformly lain in the preference given to the feelings over the judgment, in the inordinate indulgence of emotional excitement, without adequate control on the part of the rational will. No one, who is as yet untainted by kindred sentiments, can read the productions of Mr. Godfrey and Mr. Gibson, without perceiving that they have abandoned their sober judgment, if ever they possessed any, to the tyranny of their abhorrence of Papal aggression and their dread of Satanic agency, as completely as the bigotised 'suajet' gives up the guidance of his thoughts to the direction of the operator. This is in fact, the most melancholy part of the whole affair; since they thus place themselves beyond the pale of any appeals to their reasoning faculty, and lead others into the same position. Such persons are no more to be argued with, than are insane patients. They cannot assent to any proposition which they fancy to be in the least inconsistent with their preposessions; and the evidence of their own feelings is to them the highest attainable truth. It is not to these we address ourselves—Ephraim is joined to his idols; let him alone'—but we would save from this pseudo religious pestilence those who are yet unharmed by it, and who may find themselves unexpectedly smitten by its baleful poison. If any further warning be required, it is to be drawn from the fact, that many of the victims of these delusions have become the subjects of actual insanity. Mr. Gibson himself confesses to have heard of one such case, which might, he admits, have been caused by excitement, though, he adds, 'I think it more probable that a spirit entered in and took possession.' What kind of spirits they are, which thus take possession of credulous and excitable minds, we hope that we have made sufficiently plain. They are Dominant Ideas.

Foreign Intelligence.

The Imperial Parliament.

HOUSE OF LORDS, TUESDAY, JANUARY, 31.

The address in answer to the Royal Speech was moved by the Earl of Carnarvon, and seconded by the Earl of Ducie.

The Marquis of Clanricade rejoiced that no amendment was to be moved to the address, but though he himself concurred with topics recommended in the Royal Speech to the attention of Parliament, he could not help condemning the foreign policy of the Government; they had not adopted a straightforward policy worthy of this Country.

The Earl of Clarendon said he admitted that the policy of Government had been dictated to the preservation of peace, and that Russia had shown an aggressive disposition, but they had acted in perfect union with France, and the fleets had been ordered to protect not only the Ottoman territory but the Ottoman flag. He regretted war, but Russia had been placed in a position which proved to the whole world that she was the aggressor. He reserved, however, all details until the papers had been produced.

The Earl of Malmesbury complained that the Royal Speech made no reference to Austria or Prussia.

Earl Grey was not sure we had any interest in supporting Turkey; if we had, he was not convinced that we ought not to have interfered earlier, but if we were on the eve of war, he hoped it would be carried on with vigor. He recommended the employment of young officers, and suggested that if war was impending, it would be inexpedient to bring in a Reform Bill, when Parliament was discussing war measures.

The Earl of Derby commenced by alluding to university reform, and expressed a hope that in measures about to be introduced they would be of an able character. He referred to the Eastern question, and contended that the Emperor of Russia had great cause to complain of the Government, for they had led him to believe that no vigorous measures of warfare would be adopted against him and that there was no cordial union with France. He hoped, however, if there was to be war, it would be carried on vigorously, and that the unanimity of the house would not be interrupted by the introduction of a new Reform Bill. He hoped, however, that measure for the suppression of intimidation would be brought in. He also asked for explanations as to the resignations and return to office of Lord Palmerston.

The Earl of Aberdeen defended himself from the charge of being a tool and instrument of Russia, and then replied at some length to Lord Derby. He declined giving any explanation as to the cause of the resignation of Lord Palmerston, observing that it was a mere misunderstanding which was easily reconcilable. He then briefly denied the imputations on Prince Albert, and said they had just as much foundation as there was being a Russian or an Austrian.

Lord Hardinge denied the truth of the alleged interference of Prince Albert with the patronage of the Horse Guards.

The Earl of Derby gave similar testimony during his term of office, and after a few words from Lord Cambell and the Earl of Hardwicke, the addresses were agreed to.

☞ The reception given to the Queen was marked by the usual demonstrations of loyalty, but Prince Albert, owing to the rumours of his unconstitutional interference with foreign government, was saluted with some few hisses, but they were few, and from some of the lowest rabble. I am almost happy to say his conduct was fully vindicated in the House of Lords, by the Earl of Aberdeen, and in the House of Commons by Lord John Russell. It may be well on this occasion to remark, that all the Sovereigns of England, on the accession of Queen Victoria, had a Private Secretary, who was necessarily cognizant of the proceedings of Ministers—as in the case of Lord Palmerston, both before and after her marriage; and when he quitted office, he advised her to consult Prince Albert, of whose talent and judgment he has left a very flattering testimonial, which Lord Aberdeen read to the House of Lords. The Prince therefore, is to be considered Private Secretary to the Queen. As to the charge of the Prince writing privately on public matters to Lord Westmoreland, our Ambassador at Vienna, that was refuted by a letter from his Lordship, which also was read. Lord Hardinge, Commander in Chief, exonerated the Prince from any interference at the Horse Guards, though he contended that the Prince had a right to offer suggestions to him as the Colonel of a Regiment, and as a field Marshal in the British Army. The Prince had suggested the encampment at Chobham, which took place last year, but he never had influenced any promotion in the service.—Moreover, the Duke of Wellington had strongly urged his Royal Higness to succeed him as Commander-in-Chief, which he had declined. In fact, the vindication was full, honorable, and most satisfactory to all parties in both Houses of the Legislature, and the facts disclosed will only raise him still higher in the opinion of the people.

Troops for Foreign Service.

From the London Herald of Feb. 8.

Our Dublin Correspondent says that the military recruiting on a grand scale is to be commenced forthwith in Ireland, for the first time since the conclusion of Napoleon's wars. According to an ancient custom, which has been in the present instance adhered to, the Quartermaster-General has applied to the Lord Mayor of Dublin for permission to the recruiting parties to carry out their duties within his precincts—a form which was, of course, at once complied with; and we may expect to see the city traversed daily by parties with fifes and drums and gay fluttering ribbons. The full wing list of the regiments under orders to proceed to Constantinople with the dates at which they are directed to hold themselves in readiness to embark, appears in the Dublin Mail of Monday night:—

It is intended early in the ensuing month that a camp, consisting of 30,000 English Militia, shall be formed at Chobham, or such other place as the General in command of the army shall deem fit.

The War.

ENGLISH NAVAL AND MILITARY PREPARATIONS.

The following is from the Times of the 8th:—"The notes of preparation are heard on all sides, and in a few weeks the Emperor of all the Russias will find himself everywhere face to face with an indignant antagonist, that antagonist being little less than the whole civilised world. We need not refer to the vast preparations reported from the other side of the Channel; for France will be only too ready to beat us in the race of honor. Our own army is immediately to be augmented by 11,000 men. The Navy all at is already the most powerful ever possessed by England. Seamen are coming in rapidly, attracted partly by the improved condition of the service, partly by the prospect of prize money at the breaking out of the war.—Coastguards, to the number of 1,500, are immediately to be embarked as a nucleus for the crews of the newly commissioned ships. They are admirably adapted for this purpose, being trained seamen, and the more necessary now, as good hands are apt to be slow to join a raw and incomplete crew, in which there is plenty of hard work, and that not of the most agreeable kind. By the time the Baltic is free, and the ice is already breaking up, the strongest fleet its waters ever bore will shut up the Russian at its northern outlet as effectually as he is now closed in the Black Sea. The command is, we believe, to be given to Sir Charles Napier, and under him we shall have Captain, now Admiral Chads, of the Excellent, who has done so much to bring naval gunnery to its present perfection. At the next council, perhaps today, a proclamation will be issued against manufacturing or supplying arms, ammunition, and ships of war to the enemy, with a warning that such will be seized by the British Government."

The ports are busy with preparations. On Friday morning the Plymouth division of Marines, consisting in all of about 700 rank and file, under command of Colonel Corytan, were inspected at Stonehouse, by Admiral Dundas, and Assistant Adjutant General Wesley. Colonel Fortescue Graham was field officer of the day, and the men having been placed at a double distance, the gallant Admiral and Colonel Wesley closely examined the front and rear rank of every company and the condition of their arms, accoutrements and clothing. The recruits who have recently joined were also drawn up for observation, and the reduced complement for service on board the James Watt 91, Captain George Elliott, consisting of one captain, two subalterns, two sergeants, two corporals, two drummers, and 113 privates, were inspected separately after the departure of the main body. The Marine Artillery, under command of Captain Ayles, went through their exercise in presence of Admiral Dundas, who subsequently examined the books of the division, the medical stores and general accomodation. The present strength of the Plymouth Division is 2,220, of whom 1,520 are afloat.

Latest news from Constantinople, date 29th January, announces a change in the Turkish Cabinet, Mehemmed Ali, the Sultan's brother-in-law, having retired. He was at the head of the war party, but was more zealous than skilfull. This had given rise to a stock jobbing report that Turkey would yield to Russia, but it is simply absurd. The people would take off the Sultan's head if he made any submission, nor is he inclined to play any such craven part. We also learn that both the Admirals in the black Sea called a Council of their officers, the result of which was that all the large steamers of both fleets were ordered to convoy a number of Turkish transports, which were first to convoy reinforcements to Varna, and then to proceed to Batoum. There is also an account from Vienna, of the 7th Feb., stating that a smart affair took place near Giurgevo, between the Turks and Russians. The loss on either side was considerable. It appears that 3000 Turks crossed the Danube, routed the Russian outposts, and attacked the town, after which they retired.

A French squadron has left Brest for Africa, to take on board a first division of 10,000 men who have already been organized by General Pelissier. At L'Orient some new cannon balls have been manufactured, called "Boulletts Asphyxiants." They are hollow and filled with a composition which stifles those among whom they fall.

THE NAVY.

PORTSMOUTH, Feb. 9.

An order has been issued directing all Greenwich pensioners under sixty years of age, to [illegible] Canada Co., Niagara and Canada, and from the Australian Co. the Victoria.

It is reported that Lord Raglan is to have the command, that the Duke of Cambridge and General Evans and Brotherton are to have appointments.

Advices from Kniagora state that bad weather alone prevented the Russians from attacking Kniefat. The invading army have made a movement in advance, but active operations would not begin till March.

The French Government continues war preparations with great activity. The Brest fleet is ordered to sea.

It is reported that a severe conflict took place on the 12th at Togani with great loss to both sides. The Turks returned to Kalefat.

It is confidently announced that a manifesto signed by Nesselrode is expected shortly at Vienna, in which the Czar records his final determination.

A camp of 40,000 men has been formed on the sea of Marmora near Constantinople. General Guyon has commenced operations in Asia against the Russians. Kalefat is invested by 60,000 Russian troops. The Czar has given orders to every effort to drive the Turks out of Lower Wallachia without delay.

Consols on the 14th Feb. closed heavy at 91¾ a 91¾ for money. Radetsky has issued a proclamation to arrest all persons spreading false reports. There is much commotion in Italy.

Lord John Russell stated in the House that arrangements were made between the English and French Governments as to the course to be taken by the combined fleets; that the Government has reason to be satisfied with the result of Count Orloff's mission to Austria, the object of which was to secure the neutrality of Austria in case of war, but at failed.

VIENNA, Feb. 1st.

Details of a naval fight at Kinburn on the 5th have reached us. 800 Turks with 9 guns and 4 sailing vessels, crossed the Danube early in the morning, and landed near the quarantine buildings, arranging themselves in line of battle. Two battalions of Russians opened a murderous fire which lasted three hours, forcing the Turks to retreat to Rutzchuk. The Russians also suffered.

TREBIZOND, Feb. 7th.

Schamyl with 10,000 men was marching against Zamatalia an important military position.

PARIS, Feb. 14th.

Bourse very firm. A report that the Emperor of Austria has declared that he will make common cause with the Western Powers if the Czar crosses the Danube, caused an important rise in the funds—Three's closing at 69f. 75c., Fours and a half, 99f. 75c.

REMOVAL.

We forgot, in our last, to mention that we have removed the office to Richmond Street, next door to the new Town Hall and contiguous to the market, where we shall be glad to see our friends.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 5.

In consequence of being run out of Paper, last weeks issue has been unavoidably postponed until this day; we received a Telegraph message from Hamilton on Thursday morning last, to say the Paper was sent by the Express Train on that day, but no Paper arrived until Monday; and on Friday the Telegraph wire being down we had no remedy, and trust our Subscribers will make allowance for the delay.

☞ We have at different times urged, in the columns of this paper, the Union of the British North American Colonies. Several other papers in the Province have also reciprocated our views; but now one of the Colonies, and that one not the least important, (Nova Scotia,) has actually had the subject brought before its Legislature, we give the extract to our readers:

"THE UNION OF THE COLONIES.—In the Nova Scotia Legislature on Tuesday last, the Hon. J. W. Johnson moved a resolution, to be laid before the House, for the Union of the British North American Colonies. In the course of his speech he said:—

The motion I am about to make, Mr. Speaker, will I am sure, commend itself to the feelings of this House. The Hon. Provincial Secretary told us yesterday it was the duty of Nova Scotians to boast, and if we may look to the report he yesterday brought in—we well know how to do that. To my mind, Sir, it is of infinitely more importance that we should have something to boast of, if we can elevate our positions, improve our resources, consolidate our strength and give to us that which we now earnestly yearn for—something of nationality—shall we refuse to avail ourselves of the opportunity. Let us blow our trumpets as loudly as we please—still little Nova Scotia must remain just as she is; nay, New Brunswick and even Canada must be to a certain extent limited and controlled in their progress whilst they remain without national character, influence or position. Ever since I first contemplated this subject under the auspices of a man of extended talent and sagacious mind—I allude to Lord Durham—my eyes have been steadfastly fixed upon the period when it could be accomplished, and I now believe that a movement in that direction, though commenced by the smallest and least influential of the three Provinces, may produce results favorable to its speedy accomplishment."

The Hon. Provincial Secretary, in supporting the motion, remarked:

"I can only say as an individual member of the House that nothing would give me greater pleasure than to engage in the discussion of his exceedingly interesting question propounded in the resolution just moved. Sir, I almost hailed that motion, as something clearer, more elevated, more exciting, (I speak in the rational and proper sense of the term,) than some of the discussions in which we have been engaged. I quite agree with the hon. and learned member for Annapolis the British North American Provinces have the extent: their population is rapidly increasing, they possess the natural resources necessary for the creation of a great nation; cheerfully will I then engage in discussing the measure contemplated by him. And, Sir, let me say to him that the conflicts of faction here, will never do us the honor or confer on us the blessings which we may expect from the opening up of the wide and expanded field. Again, then, Sir, I will gladly engage with him in that discussion."

By reference to the Report on the Colonies, and that truly useful book of reference, Scobie's Almanac, the growing importance of Nova Scotia and our other British American Colonies, will be apparent, they have been by no means backward but are sharing with us the general improvement characteristic of the past two years.

Canada Hotels.

Such is the heading of an article in the International Journal commenting upon an extract taken from a New York Paper. Our contempory has taken up the defence of our Hotels right manfully, and we only regret want of space prevents our giving the entire article; the extract from the New York paper, referred to, is as follows:

"CANADA HOTELS.—The editor of the Utica (N. Y.) Herald, who attended the recent opening of the Great Western Railroad, speaks of Canadian hotel accommodation after this wise:

The hotels of Canada are, as a general thing, of the most discouraging denomination. We stopped at the second best in London, a city of several thousand inhabitants. The floors were all innocent of carpets. Neither the invention of gas or camphene had yet been heard of. The hotel was illuminated by a lot of unsnuffed tallow candles in tin sticks, about the size of an ordinary dripping-pan.

A lot of plethoric, big-bellied waiters, with heavy ox-like boots, moved about the house as if they were somnambulists, and might, each and all, have been first cousins of the Seven Sleepers. The Clerk at the bar would have done for an English chancery-solicitor. Eating at such a house was out of the question. There was an abundance of food, but it was innocent of cooking. The meat set before us looked as if it had just seen the fire—nothing more. Even the fish we eat—or tried to eat—was raw. And yet our Canadian friends who sat beside us pronounced the viands superb, and the house a 'crack one.'

For the residents of London, no refutation is necessary, as the falsehood of the charge is established by the fact, that any person dare to stop at the hotel answering the above description, might remain in the streets all night, but an injury is none so far as those preparing to travel is concerned, few people wish to visit a strange country with bad hotels, and therefore we feel called on to say to those at a distance, that in no part of America can more comfortable accommodation or better entertainment be attained than in London, Ingersoll, Woodstock and Hamilton, and going west, Detroit, across the boundary, will afford most comfortable accommodation. Some harmless slanderer going through the country, perhaps after being restrained by the Maine Law in Michigan, imbibes freely on landing in Canada, and under that influence, sees things through a distempered medium, and perhaps, in consequence, refused admission in some of our respectable hotels, vents his spleen by a fictitious composition, such as we referred to.

Grand Trunk Railway.

The Globe and some other papers have been rather industrious in making it appear that the Grand Trunk Railway was a bubble; having expressed our opinion before, against the connection of the Ministry with Railroad matters, also the Prospectus and map of the Grand Trunk; still as advocates of Railroads, we always supported the undertaking, we need not recapitulate our arguments now, but give the extract from the Old Countryman:

"We have much pleasure in publishing the first two weeks traffic Returns of this important Railroad.

We hope the statement will convince our many friend, the Globe, that he is quite mistake in his apparent notion that this Railroad is mere Myths. It is a Great Fact, and is destined to work a most important social revolution among us, the value and extent of which it is difficult to realize. A traffic return at the rate of nearly £100,000 sterling, per annum, in the first fortnight is not a bad omen of future success. The business of this NATION can no longer be carried on by crazy stages and lumbering schooners.

Inquest.

Complaint having been made to Dr. Wanless, Coroner, on Friday last, that the death of Bridget Mahar, happened on the Great Western Railroad, a fortnight ago, under very suspicious circumstances, and that she was buried in the Roman Catholic burying ground.

A Warrant was granted by the Coroner to exhume the body, and a Jury summoned to hold an inquest.

Dr. McKenzie was called upon to make a post mortem examination. There was a white like depression across the throat, of about ¼ an inch broad and extending between the angles of the lower jaw, in the midst of suggillation, which extended all over the forepart of the body. The face was swollen, and blood in small quantities oozed from the mouth, the lungs were very much engorged with blood, Brain &c. normal.

The other evidence went to show that on the 11th. inst. she was found dead in her own house, on a bed where a child had slept, with her feet on the floor, her face buried in the bed and her head covered with the bedclothes. Her husband slept in another bed with three children. She had been in her usual state of health the evening before.—One of the witnesses stated that her body smelt strongly of liquor. The Jury, a very respectable one, with Mr. Anson Strong as foreman concluded that she had been in liquor, had became insensible, and got suffocated. The white depression on the neck was accounted for by the deceased having a very tight collar on her shirt.

Verdict—death by suffocation.

☞ We have to acknowledge the receipt of a New York Paper of the 1st, and Detroit paper of the 2nd, which Mr. Beddome, agent for the Express Co, at London, obligingly left at our office yesterday evening, for which we feel much obliged Church Society.

The Anniversary Meeting of this Society was held in the School Room, London, on Thursday evening the 23rd. The chair was taken by the Rev. Charles Brough, after the meeting was opened by prayer, Rev. Mr. Cronyn having read the Report, the chairman called on the Rev. Mr. Broomer, who rose to move its adoption.

I could have wished that resolution to be submitted to this respectable meeting had been placed in the hands of one of my senior brethren, or some of your influential laymen, but I shall look upon it, (the adoption of the report,) as merely preliminary to the business of the meeting. I consider, however, that it is not only a matter of good taste, but right feeling to give expression to the sentiment embodied in the latter part of this resolution at this stage of our proceedings, viz: our thankfulness to Almighty God for the success which this Report makes known to us. It is, Sir, I think, a feeling which can never be too strongly impressed upon our minds, that however good the cause in which we are engaged, or however good the instrumentality employed to further that cause, it depends altogether on the feelings of God whether, or not, we shall succeed, but when we have been engaged in the line of duty, and have been made to see, by a long and continued course of prosperity, that the blessing of God is with us, this should not only be cause of thankfulness, but should be a motive to increased exertion in the work which we have in hand—this resolution then must commend itself to the cordial approval of every one present, for the simple reason that it enunciates a great scriptural truth, "That except the Lord build the house, their labor is but lost that build it." If ever there was a cause which from its inherent goodness, might be supposed to sustain itself, that cause was the gospel of Christ, in its first promulgation—if there was instrumentality well fitted to accomplish its object—that instrumentality was surely the apostles, who were inspired by God himself, and yet was find an apostle declaring, that a Paul may plant and an Apollos water, but it is God only that gives the increase. When we look, Sir, to the many destitute places in this diocese, when we know that there is township after township where there are many members of our communion in which there is neither church nor minister, nor any public ordinance of religion, we must see that on us, who are in the enjoyment of these privileges, must rest the heavy responsibility, as far as we have the power of relieving it, how long this state of things shall continue.—Crippled as the church is, in this country, she had no alternative but to make an appeal to her own members to come forward, and by their voluntary contributions, enable her to meet the many calls that are made upon her, and we have reason to thank God that that appeal has not been made in vain, and that the amount subscribed to this Society for the past year, bears a favorable comparison with that reported by the society for propogating the gospel, for many years after its formation.

We have reason then to hope, that in consequence of the great prosperity, which in God's good providence this country has been blessed with, during the past year, that there will be a corresponding liberality shown to the claims of this Society, so that through its means the church may be enabled, in some measure, keep pace with the spiritual destitution which so widely prevails.

Rev. Mr. Dewar of Sandwich seconded it:

The report must commend itself. If successful, that success is derived from God, and to him must be ascribed the praise, he was a stranger amongst them, he had come 125 miles by the Iron Horse, and all along the line he heard of nothing but the vast increase of property, the splendid Brick Buildings springing up through the country, and in the towns, but he saw no new churches, no places to preach the word of God, no places to seek the blessings of the Almighty on our increasing prosperity, forgetting that righteousness exalteth a nation.

Rev. Mr. Palmer moved the second resolution: "That the objects for the promotion of which the Church Society is incorporated, are such as must commend themselves to the cordial approval of every member of the church, seeing that they may all be comprehended under the one head—the diffusion and establishment in this Province of pure and undefiled religion as taught by our Reformed Church—and therefore that it is the duty of all the members of our communion to give the society their zealous co-operation and support."

The object of this scriptural meeting once a year, is to hear the report, and again formally adopt it. The object in view is to spread the glorious gospel, and send forth the truths it contains, we should not be ashamed of that church professing in which a Ridley and a Latimer were enabled to bear testimony at the stake for the truth as it is Jesus, half and half support is as useless it is even dangerous an active energetic support should be afforded, our time is short here and to be useful we should exert ourselves in our day and generation."

Rev. Mr. Jessop seconded it: "The church society is confederated under one head, the motto of the present age is 'onward.' We are pioneers, the population in ten years more must be more than double, that church most pure in its doctrine is the Protestant Church, which stand out against all error, and its teaching makes men better citizens, give the Bible to a discontented emigrant, teach him the doctrines of the Church of Christ, and he will prove its efficacy in his conduct, a small chamber in Jerusalem, where twelve illiterate men assembled, sent forth the gospel to the most remote parts of the world though this meeting is small, shall not we do likewise, and contribute our exertions, remember the vast ocean is made up of small drops, and from small beginning flow great results."

The third Resolution. "That the duty incumbent on the members of the church, to support the Church Society is now becoming more imperative, inasmuch as the Church of England in Canada is under God, almost wholly dependant on the voluntary contributions of her people, and inasmuch as, contrary to every feeling of justice and sound policy, it is proposed to deprive her of the small endowment secured to her by the solemn settlement of the Clergy Reserves question in 1840."

Moved by Rev. Mr. Bettridge, "he protested against two meetings on the same day. The voluntary principle is not contrary to the word of God—nor can it be sustained by the word of God—St. Paul says, "they who preach the gospel should live by the gospel," "the laborer is worthy of his hire," but we find 2 cor. 11 c. v. 7, 8 and 9, where he says, "he robbed other churches, taking wages of them to do you service;" this was because of the pride and self-will of the Corinthians; the Apostle would not be shackled or restricted in his preaching, hence his resolve to be independent of them, and not to be compromised in his freedom. Again, 2 Thess. 3 c. 7th and following verses. He would not object to the voluntary principle if the world was Christian, but how few of those who profess or call themselves Christians practice the self-denying principle, how many clergymen lie down at night, pondering on the scanty pittance doled out to them, from the voluntary principle, and awake in the morning after uneasy slumbers to a consciousness of their unsupplied wants. The duty of every Government is to aim at perfection, therefore an acquaintance with God and his ordinances are necessary to attain that perfection. The Church of England, since 1840, got only her share of the Reserve fund, and as she only occupies the same position as all the other Churches, under that arrangement she cannot be considered any longer a state church, at present the Bishop has five or six missions vacant, which under the present arrangement pending the intended secularization, he is unable to fill up, having no funds, a young missionary, north of Woodstock, has 16 stations, consisting of congregations varying from 20 to 50 members each, and on being asked what they paid him, replied nothing, this mission is supported from the Reserves, and if they are taken away, it must drop. Compare England with endowments having 18,000 clergymen diffusing the word of God to all nations in all languages, and supporting missions with the United States where the voluntary principle prevails, and where, in many parts of the Union, there are no clergymen to officiate in the churches; he thought and believed a reaction had commenced in this country and he had no doubt that if the matter was fairly stated, few advocates would be found for secularization."

Seconded by Mr. Lawrason. 4th Resolution "That this meeting desires to express the deep feelings of interest and satisfaction with which it contemplates the course taken by the Clergy and Laity of this diocese, under the Presidency of their venerable Bishop, in resolving themselves into a diocese Synod, convened as the meeting is, that it is essential to the welfare of the Colonial Church, that both Clergy and Laity should have a full participation in the management of her affairs."

Moved by the Rev. Mr. Cronyn. "The church for a long time in this country, was in its non Age, declaring themselves a Synod was an important step, inasmuch as its liberty of action was impeded by not having any ecclesiastical courts, the Synod did not however, enact any canons or regulations not from doubting its power to do so, but from a difference of opinion existing between the two great parties in England, and until that difference was arranged, considered it more prudent to suspend any action of the two classes of clergy in this country, one is perfectly independent of the Bishop, while the other is equally under his control. Our present venerable Bishop is more like a father to his clergy, and therefore as long as he is spared, we have no fear, but we cannot answer for his successor. The laity should feel that they are a part of the church and an influential part and they knowing that, should exert themselves to further the resolution. Mr Lesley seconded it.

Fifth resolution. That the proposal of the Bishop of this Diocese, in his recent pastoral letter, with a view to the subdivision of the diocese into four, and the raising an Episcopal fund for the endowment of the proposed new diocese, is one which the Ministry believes will, if carried out, greatly conduce to the welfare of the Church and that it awaits with much interest the further action which may be taken in relation to the same.

Proposed by Rev. Mr. Evans. Who stated that a Baptist Minister received no other education than what he had at his Sunday School at Simcoe, the division of the Diocese, he exemplified by an anecdote of the owner of a French vineyard who had two daughters, to each of whom he gave 8 acres out of his fifteen in their marriage, retaining but 7 for himself, which from increased labor and care being expended on it, produced more than the 15 acres before, so the diminished area of the Bishopric, might lead to similar results.

Rev. Mr. Ellwood seconded it. And referred to his being 45 miles on one side and 50 on the other, from any clergyman.

The last resolution the 7th. Appointing the officers was proposed by the Rev. Mr. Grain and seconded by Rev. Mr. Flood, after which the meeting terminated with prayer.

Church Society.

We give, elsewhere, an abridged account of the several speeches made at the last Anniversary of the London Church Society. The Report has not been left at our office, nor are we able to procure it at present, in consequence of the absence of the Secretary. But a fact referred to at the meeting, we wish to draw the attention of our readers to, viz: a portion of her majesty's coronation oath:

Archbishop or Bishop. "Will you, to the utmost of your power, maintain the Laws of God, the true profession of the Gospel, and the Protestant Reformed Religion, as established by Law, and will you preserve unto the Bishops and Clergy of this realm, and to the churches committed to their charge, all such rights and privileges as by law do, or shall appertain unto them or any of them, &c., all this I promise to do."

After this, the King or Queen, laying his or her hand upon the Holy Gospels, shall say, "The things which I have heretofore promised, I will perform and keep, so help me God, and then shall kiss the Book. Query, if we consider Canada a part of the realm of England, and we cannot believe that any will deny it, we have the guarantee of the Sovereign ratified by oath, even only we need only refer here to the original settlement of this country by retired officers who commenced their halfpay for Land, and who being members of the Protestant Church, settled here, secure in the administration of its clergy, the U. E. Loyalist the same unhesitatingly say, a contract was made with those settlers, and that a binding one, we may go further even, the oath says, "do or shall appertain unto them." Here, even acquired prescriptive is placed in the same scale, the permission afforded by the act of the Imperial Parliament to the Provincial one, is surely in keeping with the dastardly conduct of an unprincipled cabinet, who resort to any expedient to postpone the evil day, but should it be applied to the church property take place here, by an act of the Provincial Parliament, will the Duke of Newcastle dare to advise his sovereign to give her assent to such a Bill, unless, like another Judas, he wishes to betray her, and forbid a sin his well known fractarianism, look forward to absolution for his crime.

P. S.—We hope, in our next, to give details of the meeting for raising an Episcopal fund.

Provincial.

Progress of the Grand Trunk Railway.

From the Cornwall Freeholder.

We learn that Messrs. Chaffey and Wm. Elliott, of Matilda, have taken the contract for the construction of that portion of the Grand Trunk Railroad, extending from Charleyville, (terminus of the Messrs McDonald's contract—and the western extremity of the township of Osnabruck) to the village of Cathcart, township of Matilda, a distance of 24 miles. From whence to Brockville about 31 miles is contracted for by Andrew Elliott Esq., of the same town. In the hands of the enterprising individuals named, there is no fear but the work will be pushed to completion with great vigor; so that the company will have, at an early day, a portion of the road built and in full operation, whereby the business of the country will be immediately promoted—as from Perth to Montreal, both in the fall and spring of the year the traffic is impeded by obstructions to navigation not experienced elsewhere, viz., the early and late closing and opening of the St. Lawrence Canals, from the effects of the weather, besides the obstructions caused by breaches in these canals, so severely felt during the past season. We likewise learn that Mr. John McDonald's, (of the Glen) has contracted with the Messrs. Macdonald to do the grubbing and grading of that portion of the road extending from this town, eastward to Summertown; and that the works will be commenced immediately and pushed ahead with the utmost despatch. It is also stated that Mr. John McDonald, brother to D. W. & D. C. Macdonnell, Esqrs., has taken the preparation of that portion of the Messrs Macdonald's contract extending eastward from Cornwall to Dickinson's Landing; from which place to Charlesville has been let to Messrs. S. Ault and Geo. I. Dickson, in fact, it is stated, on good authority, that arrangements have been made, or on the eve of completition, by the Messrs. Macdonald Chaffey and W. Elliott, for the immediate commencement of the construction of the whole line of the Grand Trunk Railroad from Montreal to Brockville. The State of Main says that 30 to 50 miles of track have been laid upon the Richmond branch of this road. Much of the material for the iron bridges has passed through Portland, and those who saw the cargo of the Adelaide Cooper after it was unloaded from ship, could readily understand the manner in which the Batiscan bridge was put together No less than 17,000 tons of rails are shipped or engaged for the coming spring for the Grand Trunk Railroad, to be laid down the present year in Canada. The prompt payment of the interest scrip, issued three years ago, due on the first instant, and the payment of the three per cent. semi-annual dividend, on the entire stock of the Atlantic and St. Lawrence Railroad, in January by the Grand Trunk Railway, has had a decided effect on the stock since the middle of December, it has advanced 7 per cent. and the stock is rapidly disappearing from the market, and is being bought up for permanent investment.

Of the progress of the Western section, the Galt Reporter says:

"Upwards of a hundred railway laborers have passed through Galt during the week on their way to labor on the Grand Trunk Railway between Stratford and St. Mary's. Their families are following in rapid succession. Twenty passengers were forwarded on the Queen's Arms Hotel here on Tuesday. Messrs. Gzowski & Co. are pressing the execution of the line between Toronto and Stratford with vigor, and a considerable quantity has been accomplished. Engineers are now engaged in carrying the line through Stratford to St. Mary's, and sub-contractors for that section of the work have secured for 500 men to proceed with the work forthwith. The Stratford station is to be the Lynch property, and the company have secured 10 acres for that purpose.

Meeting of the Middlesex Agricultural Society.

A general meeting of this Society was held on Friday last for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year.

The President, J. B. Askin, Esq., took the chair, and read the Report of the last year, when it was resolved unanimously that the Report be adopted, signed by the President, and sent to the Board of Agriculture.

(The Report will be found in our advertising columns.)

W. Niles, Esq., moved, seconded by J. Siles, Esq., that E. W. Thompson, R. L. Dennison, Sheriff Ruttan, and John Barland, Esqrs., be nominated by the Society as members of the Provincial Board of Agriculture, and that the resolution be at once trans-mitted by the Secretary to the Board of Agriculture at Toronto, which was carried.

Mr. Cowley moved, seconded by W. Niles, Esq., that J. B. Askin, Esq., be President for the ensuing year. Carried.

T. C. Dixon, Esq., M. P. P., and John Scatcherd, Esq., were then nominated as 1st and 2nd Presidents.

Upon motion, John F. Harris, Esq., was appointed Secretary, and Joseph Franklin, Esq., as Treasurer for the ensuing year.

The following gentlemen were then named by the meeting as Directors:

Edward Emery, Esq.,	Wm. Elliott, Esq.
Wm. Beattie, "	Robert Robson, "
Wm. Moore, "	Roger Smith, "
	Wm. Barker, Esq.

Wm. Elliott moved, seconded by T. C. Dixon, that, "The thanks of this Society be, and the same is hereby given to the Secretary and Treasurer, (James Farley and John Stiles,

All persons who, being patriotically disposed during the last Rebellion in Canada, or who aided and abetted in the attempt to expel the Brethers from it, or gave any active assistance or even countenance to any of the burnings, murders, and other unconstitutional means resorted to in order to attain the desirable end in view, and who, from the unparalleled amount of labor devolving on the Responsible Government, have been hitherto overlooked, are requested to furnish forthwith to the Home Office, Quebec, particulars of their services, with particulars from some well known Rebel Chieftain, endorsed by W. L. Mackenzie, and their claims shall be immediately looked into. From the lowering appearance of the Political Horizon, slight apprehensions are entertained that a change is near at hand, therefore an early application is strongly recommended. Few administrative appointments are still vacant, and recognizing the truth of the old adage, "set a rogue to watch a rogue," such characters would be found very useful in carrying out the benevolent and honest purposes designed by the Ministry of the peoples choice.

P. S.—Whoever dropped the above will excuse our publishing it, as we are not so selfish as to keep such interesting news to ourselves.

THE TEN THOUSAND POUND JOB.—At a meeting of the city council in Toronto, held on the 13th inst., it was resolved, on motion of Mr. Alderman Morrison, that the petition of the plaintiffs in the £10,000 case (namely to make the corporation of that city the Plaintiffs) be granted. This shows pretty conclusively the opinion entertained of this transaction by the new Council.

TO INSURE HEALTH FOR CHILDREN.—Give them plenty of milk; plenty of flannel; plenty of air; and let them have plenty of sleep; and they will seldom, if ever, ail any thing. That is, milk is the best diet; they must be warmly clothed; must be much out of doors; and must always be allowed to sleep on till they awaken of their own accord.

The Markets.

Many complaints have been made of our Market Notes, by Farmers, who, seeing high prices, crowd their produce into Town, and the result is, the market being glutted, a corresponding fall takes place, and the greatest difference exists between the prices of one day and another. We give the prices as last handed to us by the Clerk of the Market.

N. Y., MARKETS—BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.

FLOUR.—Market again easier for Western and State flour. Quotation somewhat irregular, this being the last day of the month contracts are fewer, and efforts have been made to depress prices. The Middlesex Agricultural Society's Report.

THE Board of Directors for the Agricultural Society, of the County of Middlesex, beg to submit the following Report.

In reporting upon the transactions of the Society for the past year, the Board of Directors feel called upon to remark, that the provisions of the Statute passed in the late Parliamentary Session of 1853, (for the regulation of the Agricultural operations of the Province,) have received its most careful consideration. Yet the short time which has elapsed for testing its practicability and usefulness has not been sufficient for carrying out the whole of its provisions, and more especially those contained in the 24th clause; some of which would require an amount of Talent, Time and Funds, that at present your Board has not the power to command.

It is with unqualified pleasure, however, your Board is enabled to state that the wisdom and liberality of the Provincial Legislature, exhibited in the introduction of the Consolidated Act, has in the course of the year, been fully verified, as will be shown by the Schedules attached to this report.

In Schedule No. 1, as reported by the Secretary, it will be seen that the names of the Subscribers remain nearly the same as for the year 1852; but a number of members on the list being left out, reducing the amount of £53 7s 6d, against that of the previous year numbering 150 members, and realizing £56, thus shewing in the year just expired, a small increase over 1852 of £8 12s 6d.

In Schedule No. 2, it is shown that £141 17s. 6d. has been paid at the County Exhibitions for premiums, which, with the sum of £244 15s. paid to the several Township Societies, makes a total of £386 12s. 6d. awarded in the County as an encouraging agent to Agricultural enterprise and improvements.

In Schedule No. 3 being the Treasurer's account current, it will be seen that the total income of the Society has been, for the past year £451 5s. 6d. Total outlay £451 5s. 6d., leaving a balance in the hands of the Treasurer of £14 19s. 6d. to be carried to the credit of the next Board.

In bringing these facts and figures before the Society, your Board feel it an imperative duty to state, that the increase is attributable to the Contributions received from the new Township Societies of Lobo, Caradoc and Delaware, together with the increased exertions of the Township of Metcalfe, it having contributed £13 13s. 9d. more for the last year than the previous one.

Your Board feels itself equally called upon to state, that there has been a decrease of £20 15s. 6d. arising from the Town ships of London, Westminster, Adelaide and Williams.

From the above statements, it is conclusively shown that the influences of the Society's operations has been most encouraging and effective, in developing the energies of the Agriculturists in the heart of the county. And it is to be hoped that the further extension of information, science and intelligence, through the operations of your Society may influence the remaining Townships of the County, (which as yet, have shown no proof of an elevated position in Agricultural pursuits,) to follow in the path which leads to wealth and honor.

Your Board may still further remark, that the statistical Tables of Agriculture recently published, places the County of Middlesex in a position second to none in the rising country, with respect to the extent and value of its Agricultural productions. In 1852, a year ago, we estimated the value of those products for the United County at £11,876,.

If such were the farming interests last year what may we not say of them now? Surely a proportion of cancelled may be added to the value of the above, making the almost incredible amount of £12,000, the annual worth of the Agricultural skill and industry of Middlesex and Elgin at this moment, and this, be it remembered, has been derived from a large portion of what was forty years ago, an unbroken wilderness.

If such results as your Board has stated, have already been realized, what may we not expect when we reflect upon the highly remunerative prices now obtained for the products of Agriculture.

The farming interests of this county stand in a commanding position, and if the Agriculturists are true to themselves, in exhibiting and developing their resources with energy and perseverance, they will have the proud satisfaction of ranking amongst those, whose vocation is to carry out, and show that the exuberance of Providence has not been lavished upon an idle or powerless race.

In conclusion, your Board would especially and with all earnestness, call the attention of the Society, to that all important exhibition to take place in London on the 28th day of September next, an event which ought, and no doubt will engage all the energies of every member of this association, in stirring to maintain its credit and efficiency.

It has ever been the boast of your representatives at the various Provincial Exhibitions, that you were not only able to accomplish everything which could be realized in any other part of the Province, but to surpass, in many particulars, whatever has been achieved elsewhere. Your board would therefore most earnestly enjoin upon you to spare no pains or efforts to effect a most decisive triumph over all competition, at the approaching trial for Agricultural merit. And that you may succeed in your efforts is the ardent and sincere wish of those who have watched over your interests for the year now expired.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

President,

WHERE may be had SHEET MUSIC of every description. Instruction Books for all kinds of Instrumental Music, &c., as cheap as can be had in Toronto, Boston or New York.

All kinds of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, from a PIANO PORTE down to a FIFE.

STRINGS of all kinds and of superior quality; in short, every thing which can or may be found in a well and carefully selected Music Store.

The PIANOS are made by the following celebrated Gentlemen, viz:

CHICKERING STODDART & DUNHAM.

Acknowledged to be the best on this part of the Globe, as are the MELODIANS, manufactured by PRINCE & CO. PIANOS and MELODIANS sold as Cheap and on as favourable Terms as they can be procured in Toronto, or from the Maker's themselves.

Besides these Pianos of Chickering, Stodart & Dunham, Mr. Kordes keeps constantly on hand Pianos of other good makers, such as Baron and Raven, Gilbert, Gale, etc. Also second hand Pianos, from £10 upwards to £50. Old Pianos taken in exchange, and a liberal allowance made. Pianos Toned and repaired. All orders from a distance promptly attended to.

Mr. Kordes has constantly on hand an assortment of

PEOPLE.

will issue, immediately, the work being now in press, 100,000 BOOKS, containing all Jullien's popular and fashionable music, to be called JULLIEN'S MUSIC FOR THE MILLION. PRICE ONE DOLLAR.

The work will be beautifully printed, on fine paper, with an exquisitely Illuminated Title Page, and a correct portrait of the great composer and conductor, M. JULLIEN.—The object of the Subscriber in so greatly reducing the price of his copy-right edition of M. Jullien's popular Music, is to create a diversion in favor of GOOD MUSIC, against that wretched class of bad music, with which the country is flooded, to the destruction of all that is good and pure in the musical art. The music contained in this book, if bought in single pieces, would cost six dollars, or just six times the cost of Jullien's Book for the Million. In order to carry out this design, and to afford a further inducement to the purchasers of Jullien's music for the Million, the Subscriber will distribute among them ONE HUNDRED PIANOS, made by the best manufacturers in the country, fully guaranteed and classified as follows:—

Five superior Rose Wood Pianos, each @150; five elegant do. each, @100; ten superior do. each, @350; 20 excellent do. each, @300; thirty beautiful do. each @250; thirty fine do. each, @225.

The season of friendly gifts being at hand an opportunity in every way so favorable should be attended to at once. The earliest Subscribers will receive the first copies of the Book, the edition being so enormous, that much time will be needed to produce the whole. A numbered receipt will be given or sent with each book. The Subscriber refers with pleasure to the perfect success of his, Jullie's musical Gifts of 1851 & 2, and the entire satisfaction of all who subscribed at that period, is the surest guarantee that every engagement will be carried out, and in the free distribution of the Piano Fortes, there will be no infringement of the law. The books are now open and Subscriptions will be received at the Store of the Subscriber. All letters post-paid, including orders for the "Jullien Book," will be attended to promptly. Price, one dollar each.

THIS INSTITUTION is purely a Benevolent one, organized for the purpose of affording effectual pecuniary relief to members who may become disabled by disease or accident—composed of Merchants, Mechanics, Farmers, Workingmen and others, associated for mutual protection. It is established on the purely mutual plan; each member being entitle to a vote in the election of officers, and to participate in the benefits. The rates of annual payment are the same as adopted by similar institutions in England, and experience demonstrates that they will give stability and perpetuity to any institution adopting them.

The following Table shows the amount of benefit paid each member under 50 years of age:

Yearly payments to secure in Sickness, or during incapacity for Labor, the following sums weekly:—

Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Ben'fits	Weekly Benefits.
£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d	£ s d
0 10 0	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 10 0	2 0 0

0 15 0	1 2 6	1 10 0	2 5 0	3 0 0

In addition to the above rates, an admission fee of ten shillings will be charged the first year, to be paid upon making application. Those over 50 to be charged 25 per cent extra. Females admitted as well as males. A funeral benefit of £10 will be granted by the Society, upon payment of five shillings annually.

It being the only institution of the kind in the Province, the Manager would particularly call the attention of the public to it, believing that its principles need only to be generally understood to be universally adopted. The public are respectfully invited to call at the office, No. 13, Dundas-St., and get a copy of the Monthly Monitor (gratuitous) a large and elegant paper published by the Society, containing Prospectus, Constitution and Regulations, and every information relative to the British American Friendly Society.

PROPOSED BY-LAW,

To authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster to subscribe for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of "The Victoria Bridge Company."

WHEREAS it is expedient to subscribe on the conditions hereinafter mentioned, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company,' and to issue Debentures in payment of the same. And Whereas, for the payment of said Debentures and the Interest thereon at the times the same shall become payable, as hereinafter provided, it will be necessary to raise annually over and above and in addition to all other rates whatsoever the several special rates as indicated in the Schedule annexed to this By-Law and forming a part thereof. And whereas, the amount of the whole rateable property in the said Township was, according to the Assessment Returns for the same for 1853, £272 000, and it will require the several rates in the pound mentioned in the Schedule aforesaid to be levied as a special rate upon the whole rateable property in the said Township for the payment of said interest, and for the creation of a sinking fund for the payment of the principal of said Debentures as the same shall become payable.

Be it therefore enacted, by the Municipal Council of the Township of Westminster. That the Reeve of said Township be and he is hereby authorized to subscribe in the name and on the behalf of the said Council, for Fifty Shares in the Capital Stock of 'The Victoria Bridge Company' on the following terms, that is to say That the Debentures to be issued as hereinafter provided, for the payment of said shares, be taken at par by said Company, that the bridge proposed to be erected be a toll bridge, and that it be constructed with substantial stone abutments.

And be it further enacted, That the Reeve be authorized, and he is hereby required to issue, in payment of said shares, Debentures for sums of twenty-five pounds each, and not exceeding on the whole the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and in the same proportions and at the same times that calls upon the Stock shall be payable in the case of other Stockholders.

And be it further enacted, That said Debentures shall be signed by the Reeve and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Township, shall be payable in two, four, six, eight, and ten years, shall bear Interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, viz., on the first day of January and on the first day of July in each year, at the office of the County Treasurer, and shall have attached them coupons with the signatures or facsimiles of the Reeve and Township Treasurer, for the Interest aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, That over and above, and in addition to all other rates whatsoever, the special rates enumerated in the Schedule appended to this By-Law, shall in the years mentioned in said Schedule, be raised, levied and collected upon all the rateable property of the said Township of Westminster for the purpose of satisfying or discharging said Debentures and the Interest thereon.

And be it further enacted, That, until the said Debentures and the Interest thereon shall have been fully paid, it shall not be lawful for said Council to sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of the said Shares or any part thereof except for the purpose of bringing in or liquidating said Debentures and Interest, or otherwise securing the due payment thereof.

And be it further enacted, That this By Law shall come into operation, and have full force and effect from and after Saturday the Tenth day of June, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-Four.

THE FOREST WINE.

THIS excellent MEDICAL WINE and the FOREST PILLS are fast gaining the good will and becoming the favorite medicine of the people, and known as a most effectual remedy in the cure of Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver Complaint, Asthma, Piles, Obstinate Headache, Pimples, Blotches and unhealthy color of the skin, Jaundice, Ague and Fever, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Complaints incident only to Females, Languishing Weakness, Night Sweats, Nervous Disorders, Bilious Distempers, General Ill Health, and impaired state of the Constitution.

But a short time has elapsed since these great and good medicines have been made known to the public, yet thousands have experienced their good effects. Invalids given over by their physicians as incurable, have been restored to sound and vigorous health by their use. These medicines are unlike any other. Their wonderful properties act directly on those organs of the stomach, liver and kidneys, which secrete the fluids, and separate the impurities from the blood. The Wine and Pills never Weaken but give strength and sustain both body and mind. The great amount of good these medicines have done for the sick and afflicted, have induced thousands to commend them to their friends and the public. Individuals of tested integrity have voluntarily testified to the world in favor of their extraordinary virtues.

DR. G. A. STANLEY,

a celebrated physician, in a letter from Princeton, New Jersey, dated Nov. 16, 1849, declares that in all his experience he had never seen anything to compare with the Forest Wine and Pills at the same time retaining several cases of constitutional debility and scrofulous affections, which it cured in an incredible short time. Among the members of the Medical Faculty of New York, who have witnessed the great results of the Forest Wine and recommended it in numerous complaints, will be found the names of the celebrated Dr. M. T. Goodman, Dr. L. Cheesman, Dr. Chilton, Dr. Wm. Brown, Dr. Marvin, Dr. J. M. Morenno, and others.

TESTIMONY

Of Mr. Johnson Burke, a highly respectable citizen of Waverly Place, New York:

DR G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: I esteem the Forest Wine as the King of Medicines. It has done for me in five weeks what three physicians failed to do in as many years. In 1848 I became the victim of the Heart disease and Nervous Affections, which have been growing on me ever since until I procured your Forest Wine and Pills, although I had wasted several hundred dollars for medical attendance. During the last two years I was obliged to keep my house nearly all the time and gave up business in consequence of my ill-health. I had lost nearly all hopes of recovery. My complaint was of that class where their nostrums soon fail life becomes a burthen.—Seeing your Forest Wine Advertised, I concluded to give it a trial, and before finishing the second bottle I felt like a different person, and was able to resume business again entirely cured by taking five bottles. For the benefit of those afflicted with similar complaints you are at liberty to publish this.

Yours &c.
JOHNSON BURKE.
Waverly Place, N. Y.

General Debility, Emaciation, wasting of the Body &c.

Many persons are afflicted with some one of the above complaints without knowing what is the true particular cause. And therefore bear the name of the general debility, or disease, or constitutional. These disorders are often characterized by a sense of sinking or entire exhaustion after exercise. Some experience sensations of nausea and at times paleness or flushing of the countenance, palpitation of the heart are like symptoms.

The excellent effects which have ever attended the use of the Forest Wine and Pills, in every species of debility, is conclusive evidence of its happy results in the case of disorders. Many have resorted to these medicines as an instrument and have speedily cured. In nervous disorders and debility the Wine and Pills are taken according to the directions on the label.

TO THE LADIES.

True beauty and loveliness accompanies the highest perfection of health, which again invariably follows the FOREST STAFF OF THE BLOOD. What unlimited superlatives equal the vivid expression of countenance which emanates from health? What plants can compare with the diamond of the cheek? Nothing but blood roots can through the transparent texture of the skin. What charms are more captivating than those of nature, to her bosom adorned? The Wine and Pills of Dr. Halsey's compound are the fountain of complexion. The use of this extract will soon make its color appear pure, rich blood, which, coursing through the veins, gives a glow to the maiden cheek that verges towards the surface of the skin, causing an admirable pimples and blotches to disappear, imparting a lovely beauty to the whole and without exposing what it covers.

THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

In compounding of these facts, Dr. Halsey has many testimonials. The following is from a well known physician residing in society, and is to be by her brother residing in Rutgers street.

NEW YORK, July 7th, 1849

DR G. W. HALSEY—

Sir: Mrs. Bonn for years had been in very delicate health, possessing especially of weakness of the chest and nervous system, and for the last 18 she was in a languid manner. For her months previous to commencing with your medicine she had not been able to get out of the house. Her appetite was gone, and she was emaciated, feeble and unable to walk. Her pain and more was great. Her cough was distressing. Her friends had given her up to die. Her physician had pronounced her disease consumption, and that she could not live. Before I had finished the first bottle I found a change for the better, and before I had finished the second bottle I found myself entirely relieved of my cough, and my health was restored. This is the principle on which is founded the most wonderful cures and by which nearly all diseases are cured.

The Forest Wine is put up in large square bottles, with Dr. Halsey's name blown in the glass. One bottle or a bottle and a half or Five Dollars. Guaranteed to cure or Five Dollars per box.

The Middlesex Agricultural Society's Report.

THE Board of Directors for the Agricultural Society, of the County of Middlesex, beg to submit the following report:

In deposing upon the transactions of the Society for the past year, the Board of Directors feel called upon to remark, that the provisions of the Statute passed in the late Parliamentary Session of 1853, (for the regulation of the Agricultural operations of the Province,) have received its most cordial concurrence. Yet the short time which has elapsed for testing its merits in carrying out the whole of its provisions, more especially those contained in the 20th clause, some of which would require an amount of Talent, Time and Funds, that at present your Board has not the power to command.

But with the experience of the past season, your Board is enabled to state, that the wisdom and success of those practical measures are embodied in the provisions of the former Act, has in the course of the year, been fully verified, as will be shown by the School Returns attached to this report.

In Schedule No. 1, as reported by the Secretary, it will be seen that the names of the Subscribers to the Society for the year 1853, is 144, the number of members on the list being 144, producing the amount of £48 5s. 0d., against that of the previous year numbering 150 members, and realizing £50, thus shewing in the year just expired, a small increase over 1852 of £2 5s. 0d.

In Schedule No. 2, it is shown that £141 17s. 6d. has been paid at the County Exhibitions for premiums, which with the sum of £218 17s 6 paid to the several Township Societies, make a total of £360 12s. 0d., awarded in the County as an encouragement to Agricultural enterprise and Improvements.

In Schedule No. 3 being the Treasurer's account current, it will be seen that the total income of the Societies has been, for the past year £461 5s. 9d. Total outlay £445 10s. 0d., leaving a balance in the hands of the Treasurer of £14 15s. 9d. to be carried to the credit of the next Board.

In bringing these facts and figures before the Society, your board feel it an imperative duty to state, that the increase is attributable to the amounts received from the new Township Societies of Lobo, Caradoc and Delaware, together with the increased exertions of the Township of Metcalfe, it having contributed £13 13s. 9d. more for the last year than the previous one.

Your Board feels itself equally called upon to state, that there has been a decrease of £20 16s. 0d. arising from the Townships of London, Westminster, Adelaide and Williams.

From the above statements, it is conclusively shown that the influences of the Society's operations has been most encouraging and effective in developing the energies of the Agriculturists in the heart of the country. And it is to be hoped that the further extension of information, science and industry, through the operations of your Society, may influence the remaining Townships of the County, (which, as yet, have shown no proof of an elevated position in Agricultural pursuits,) to follow in the path which leads to wealth and honor.

Your Board may still further remark that the statistical Tables of Agriculture recently published, places the County of Middlesex in a position second to none in our rising country, with respect to the extent and value of its Agricultural productions. In 1852, a year ago, we estimated the value of those products for the United Counties at £5,14,856.

If such were the farming interests last year, what may we not say of them now? Surely a proportion of one-third may be added to the value of the above, making the almost incredible amount of £8[illegible],908, the annual worth of the Agricultural skill and industry of Middlesex and Elgin at this moment, and this, be it remembered, has been derived from a large portion of what was forty years ago, an unbroken wilderness.

If such results as your Board has stated, have already been realized, what may we not expect when we reflect upon the highly remunerative prices now obtained for the products of Agriculture.

The farming interests of this county stand in a commanding position, and if the Agriculturists are true to themselves, in exhibiting and developing their resources with energy and perseverance, they will have the good satisfaction of raising amongst those, whose vocation is to carry out, and show that the exhaustion of Providence has not been lavished upon an idle or powerless race.

In conclusion, your Board would especially, and with all earnestness, call the attention of the Society, to that all important exhibition to take place in London on the 26th day of September next, an event which ought, and no doubt will engage all the energies of every member of this association, in striving to maintain its credit and efficiency.

It has ever been the boast of your representatives at the various Provincial Exhibitions, that you were not only able to accomplish everything which could be realized in any other part of the Province, but to surpass, in many particulars, whatever has been achieved elsewhere. Your board would therefore most earnestly enjoin upon you to spare no pains or efforts to effect a most decisive triumph over all competition, at the approaching trial for Agricultural merit. And that you may succeed in your efforts is the ardent and sincere wish of those who have watched over your interests for the year now expired.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. B. ASKIN,
President,
A. S.

SCHAMYL, THE CIRCASSIAN LEADER.

In the staff of Abdi Pasha, is Schamyl, the Circassian, the most remarkable and desperate man with whom the Russians will have to contend. The following biographical details of this man, who has now for many years successfully withstood the onslaught of the Russian armies in the Caucasus, and who has just been placed by the Sultan in a position where his talents will be more fully developed, will, no doubt be read with interest. It is derived from a source worthy of credit.

The first time we hear of Schamyl in 1832. In that year a devout Mussleman, Kasi-Mallah held a chief command in the bands of Leghians, Tchetchentzes, and other tribes, of the eastern chain and the steppes abutting on the Caspian and traversed by the Koisu. Kasi Mallah's reputation for sanctity was greater than which he acquired for the military qualities, although a dashing leader, and individually one of the bravest of the brave. He was brought to bay in 1833 by General Rosen, at a place called Gumri. Encircled on all sides, almost the last scrap of food devoured, nothing remained in the opinion of Kasi-Mallah, and about thirty of his most zealous disciples, but to hew or themselves a path through the Russian bayonets, to freedom. This resolution finally taken, they suddenly emerged from their fastness they could no longer hold, and burst upon the Russian troops with the shock of an avalanche, and the furious, discordant yells of a troop of madmen. For one or two brief moments, it seemed that they must escape, so far through the belea guering circle of their foes did they clear their desperate way, before the mostly recoiling ranks reclosed around them and they fell by twos and threes, wildly fighting to the last, riddled by musket balls and bayonet stabs. Kasi-Mallah "died with his hand upon his beard and a last prayer murmuring from his lips," and his pupils perished with him, all save one, and he the bravest and the bravest and fiercest of them all, who broke through the encircling of the bayonets dashed at headlong speed past the more distant lines of running fire unharmed—soared suddenly up as he reached the angle of a mountain gorge, into which he knew none dared to follow, shook his red scimiter, and hurled a defiant execration in the faces of his baffled foes, and the next moment, with the shout of "Allah! Allah!" dissappeared in the dark mountain pass.

This fortunate horseman was Schamyl, the future Iman (preacher) the prophet soldier of the Caucasus, whose escape, as just described, many of his followers to this day firmly believe was due to the direct interposition of the angel Gabriel! Schamyl, who is one of the dark-haired, dark-eyed portly Tartar race of Tschetchentzes, was born at Tschirsei, a place of about three thousand inhabitants; and after his escape from Gumri, he employed several years in preambulating the mountains of the Leegh an chain, preaching wherever he went, with fervid eloquence, upon the sacred duty devolved by God upon all true believers to extirpate the intrusive infidel, and the paradisal rewards which death in so high and holy a cause must infallibly insure. This prophet-call, as it was deemed, to battle from the cupolas and minarets of the sublime and towering Alps, gradually kindled the latent fanaticism of the mountaineers to a flame which soon communicated itself to the dwellers in the cities and steppes of Daghistan, and the adjacent valleys and plains. The story of Schamyl's miraculous escape from General Rosen, by favor of the archangel Gabriel, was repeated from mouth to mouth with endless variations and additions—his daring skill and success as a soldier confirmed the illusion of a credulous bigotry, and he gradually drew around his standard, and bent to his sway, the multitude of rugged warriors whose swords have inscribed so many victories, upon the backs of Russian armies, and to this hour present an invincible front to their dismayed and practically discomfited adversaries.

Many well authenticated instances of his daring are related. One or two of these may interest the reader at this juncture:—In 1838 Schamyl found himself surrounded by General Grabbe and twelve thousand veteran Russian troops, at Achulko, a kind of mud encampment perched upon the top of a rock on the bank of the Koisu. The position of this place was abandoned after the loss of fifteen hundred men, but Schamyl had soon a deadlier foe than General Grabbe and his army to contend with—hunger; hunger, verging upon famine, come before a week had passed. This was known in the Russian camp, and the place having been strictly invested on all sides, it was certain that surrender could not be long delayed. On the last day of August General Grabbe learned from an emaciated Leeghian, whom his soldiers had caught attempting to pass the blockading lines, that not a particle of food was left in Achulko, that Schamyl Bey proposes to escape that very night with one or two chosen comrades by means of a rope lowered down the face of the rock to the Koisu; and Achulko, he added, would be surrendered immediately afterwards. A strict watch was immediately ordered to be kept at the indicated spot, and directions were given to awaken the General at whatever hour of the night the capture of the redoubted Schamyl might be effected.

Just before dawn, one—two—three men were seen to cautiously descend by a rope let down on the river side, as predicted, who were of course instantly secured and hurried off to the General's tent. One of the captives admitted, in the flurry of the surprise, as was supposed, that he was Schamyl; and this was confirmed by the Leeghian, through whose information the important prize had been secured. Gen. Grabbe was delighted, and an estafette was forthwith dispatched with the tidings that the notorious rebel, Schamyl Bey, had been caught, and ordered to be shot out of hand. Whilst all this was going on, the rope which had been quietly drawn up again was once more lowered, and this time only one man descended by it, who reached the river unobserved, leapt upon a raft that just at that critical moment swept by, and the too hastily exultant Russian General was aroused to a knowledge of the trick that had been played him by the shouts of "Schamyl! Schamyl!" from the mud walls of Achulko, in exulting reply to the waving of a small green flag, by the true Schamyl, as he swept down the swift Koisu in the dawning sunligh, presently to find himself amid hills and amongst friends, that would render successful pursuit, if attempted, impossible. Achulko surrendered at discretion, the huts were burned, and General Grabbe retraced his steps in a very angry mood, which a daring attempt on his rearguard by the ubiquitous and indefatigable Schamyl, at the head of a large body of horse exasperated to fury. The Iman was beaten off with some difficulty, and the victorious General's march was silently resumed and concluded without further molestation.

SWEDEN AND DENMARK.—The 'Dag bladen,' a Danish journal, states that Russia has refused to recognise the declaration of neutrality, and has on the contrary, insisted that Sweden and Norway shall keep their ports against the belligerent powers. The Swedish government has, says this journal, replied by a refusal, and the Danish government has done the same. —Large Armaments are being prepared in Norway and Sweden.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The new reform bill introduced into the House of Commons on the 13th February by Lord John Russel, in an able an effective speech, which was received with general satisfaction and applause. The following is an outline of the bill:—

There are 19 boroughs, having 300 electors or order, and under 5000 inhabitants, returning one member to parliament —These are to be wholly disfranchised.

There are thirty-six boroughs returning two members each, and which have less than 500 electors, and under 10,000 inhabitants.—These are to have one member only.

Here is at once anamount of 65 members to be disposed of; and Lord John Russell declares thad he thinks the "balance of representation" with respect to agricultural and commercial constituencies ought to be preserved.

He proposes to divide the West Riding of Yorkshire and the Southern division of Lancashire into two districts, giving two members to each, and thus increasing the present representatives of each county by four.

He proposes to increase the representatives of every town and city having a population of 100,000 and upward to three. —Electors in these places are to vote for two candidates only, and the third to be the party who shall obtain the next greatest number of votes. The third party will thus be the representative of the minority.

London is to be exempted from these arrangements, but Kensington and Chelsea are to be formed into one borough, returning two members.

Birkenhead, Stately-Bridge and Bromley are to be constituted boroughs, and to have one member each.

The inns of Court are to return two members, and the University of London one.

The following new franchises are proposed to be created:

All persons in the receipt of £100 a year salary, payable half yearly or quarterly.

Parties having £10 a year from the funds bank, or East India stocks.

Parties paying £40 a year income tax or the assessed taxes.

Graduates of any University in Great Britain.

Depositors having not less than £50 in any savings bank, for not less than three years.

Occupiers of houses of not less value than £10 in counties, to have votes in those counties.

Finally, to enfranchise the working classes, whom he declared to have been neglected in the reform act of 1832, Lord John proposes to confer the suffrage on all [illegible] paying over £6 10s. yearly rent.

[illegible] parties must have resided two [illegible] years before they shall be placed on the registry, and two years and ten months before they shall have the privilege of voting.

This proposition was received with disapprobation, and Mr. Hume denounced that portion of the new scheme as unfair and illusory.

INDIA AND CHINA.

The news from Burmah is [illegible] favorable, Captain Latter, the deputy commissioner at Prome, and the most active of the frontier politicals, has been assassinated. Since the detection of the conspiracy at Rangoon he had been very active in collecting information regarding the plans of the war at Ava, a service for which his intimate knowledge of the Burmese language and character peculiarly fitted him.

He had given orders that the sentries should allow his spies, who were usually disguised as women, to pass unquestioned at all hours; and in consequence of such orders the assassins who entered Captain Latters quarter, disguised as women, on the night of the 8th, were allowed to pass unmolested. He was murdered when he was asleep, and so quietly did the assassins effect their object, that it was not until the next morning that his dead body was found in his bed pierced with three dagger wounds, one in the neck, one in the right side, and one in the heart. His death must have been instantaneous. A woman's scarf was thrown over the corpse (an indignity, according to Burmese estimation,) and the murderers effected their escape so consciously that the precise time they left Captain Latter's quarters is unknown.

ARRIVAL OF THE NASHVILLE.

The news by the 'Nashville' is of a highly important character.

It details the enormous military and naval preparations going on under the auspices of both England and France for attacking Russia in the Baltic as well as in the Black Sea. A British contingent of 10,000 men were to sail on the 18th, for Malta, there to rendezvous and be held in readiness for military operations for the protection of Constantinople.—Thirty-six British ships of the line and frigates, with ten or twelve French men of-war of the largest class, were to assemble in the Downs on the 6th March for service in the Baltic.

In all the dockyards and arsenals of England and France the greatest activity prevailed.

The French Ocean squadron under Admiral Bruart, had reached Algiers, and was embarking a division of the African army, amounting to 12,000 men, after which it was to set sail for Toulon where an English squadron and transports were to meet it, and take on board 30,000 French troops. Both squadrons, with an army of 42,000 men, would then proceed to the Levant, enter the Dardannelles, and disembark the troops at Silviri, near Rodosto, on the sea of Marmora—a spot fixed upon as the best for the protection of the Bosphorus and Dardannelles.

It appears, however, that notwithstanding these extensive and tremendous preparations for war, fresh negotiations for peace were actually in progress, and that an autograph letter had been written by the Emperor Louis Napoleon, (with the consent of the British cabinet,) to the Emperor of Russia, proposing a fresh basis of negotiations. A reply to this proposition was expected to reach Paris by the 22nd of February, and some persons professed themselves sanguine that these new efforts to preserve the tranquility of the world would not be unsuccessful. Others (and these the majority of the English people,) thought that the Czar would be glad at any price to gain time so as to strike his meditated blow at the Turks on the Danube, before any assistance could reach that point from the Western Powers.—Generally great disgust at the prospect of any further negotiations was expressed, and a wish was generally entertained that war should at once be declared, and such measures taken as should speedily bring the Emperor of Russia to his senses, by means of a succession of vigorous operations against Sebastopool, Odessa, Cronstadt and St. Petersburgh.

According to the latest accounts, the British and French fleets were still at anchor in Beycos Bay. A telegraphic dispatch from Constantinople affirms that the moment it was known that the English and French squadrons had returned to the Bosphorus, a division of the Russian fleet darted out, as before reported, and proceeded to attack Fort St Nicholas, which had been taken by the Turks, and after bombarding for five hours they were forced to retire. This news caused the greatest sensation at Constantinople and a conference of Ambassadors was held, at which it was determined that cruisers should be permanently kept in the Black Sea to prevent the repetition of a similar event. A fresh convoy of troops and stores for Batoum was to leave Constantinople, escorted by detachments from the French and British fleets, on the 2nd February.

THE LETTER OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO THE CZAR.

PALACE OF THE TUILERIES, Jan. 29, 1854.

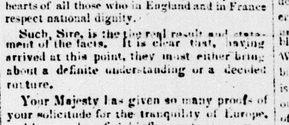
SIRE:—The difference which has arisen between you Majesty and the Ottoman Porte has assumed such a grave aspect, that I think it right myself to explain directly to your Majesty the part which France has taken in this question and the means which suggest themselves to me in order to avoid the dangers which menaces the tranquility of Europe.

The note which your Majesty has just sent to my Government, and to that of Queen Victoria, endeavors to prove that it was the system of pressure adopted from the commencement by the two maritime Powers which alone involved the question in bitterness. On the contrary, according to my view, the matter would have continued a cabinet question if the occupation of the two Principalities had not suddenly transferred it from the region of discussion to that of fact.—Nevertheless, although your Majesty's troops had entered Wallachia, we advised the Porte not to consider that occupation as a warlike act, thus proving our extreme desire for conciliation. After I had consulted with England, Austria, and Prussia, I proposed to your Majesty a note, designed to give satisfaction to all. Your Majesty accepted it. We had hardly however, been informed of this good news, when your Minister, by explanatory commentaries, destroyed all the conciliatory effects of it, and thus prevented us from insisting at Constantinople upon its pure and simple adoption. The Porte, for its own part, suggested some modifications in the note, to which the representatives of the four Powers at Vienna were not indisposed to agree. They were not, however, agreed to by your Majesty. It was then that the Porte, wounded in its dignity, its independence threatened, and being compelled to raise an army to oppose that of your Majesty, preferred to declare war rather than remain in a state of uncertainty and humility The Porte had claimed our support; the cause of the Porte appeared to us to be a just one, and the English and French squadrons were ordered to the Bosphorus.

Our attitude in reference to Turkey was that of a protector, but it was passive. We did not incite her to war. We uncessingly addressed to the ears of the Sultan the advice of peace and moderation, persuaded that this was the best mode of coming to an agreement, and the four Powers consulted together again, and submitted to your Majesty some other propositions. Your Majesty, on your part, exhibiting the calmness which arises from the consciousness of strength, contented yourself with repulsing from the left bank of the Danube, as in Asia, the attacks of the Turks; and, with the moderation worthy of the chief of a great empire, your Majesty declared that you would act on the defensive. Up to that period, then, we were, I may say, interested spectators, but simply spectators of the dispute, when the affair of Sinope compelled us to take a more decisive part.—France and England had not though: it necessary to send troops to the assistance of Turkey. Their flags, therefore, were not engaged in the conflicts which took place on land. But at sea it was very different.—There were at the entrance to the Bosphorus 3,000 guns, the existence of which proclaimed loudly to Turkey that the two leading war time Powers would not allow her to be attacked by sea.

The affair at Sinope was for us as painful as it was unexpected; for it matters to us little whether or not the Turks wished to convey munitions of war to the Russian territory. In fact, this in ships attacked Turkish vessels in the waters of Turkey while these vessels were riding quietly at anchor in a Turkish port. The Turkish vessels were destroyed in spite of the assurance that there was no wish to commence an aggressive war, and in spite of the vicinity of our squadrons. It was no longer our policy which received a check, it was our military honor. The sound of the cannon shot at Sinope reverbrated painfully in the hearts of all those who in England and in France respect national dignity.

Such, Sire, is the [illegible] real result and statement of the facts. It is clear that, having arrived at this point, they must either bring about a definite understanding or a decided rupture.



Your Majesty has given so many proofs of your solicitude for the tranquility of Europe, and by your beneficial influence has so powerfully arrested the spirit of disorder, that I cannot doubt as to the course you will take in the alternative which presents itself to your choice.—Should your Majesty be as desirous as myself of a pacific conclusion, what would be more simple than to declare that an armistice shall now be signed, that things shall resume their diplomatic course, that all hostilities shall cease, and that the belligerent forces shall return from the places motives of war have led them?

Thus the Russian troops would abandon the Principalities, and our squadrons the Black Sea. Your Majesty preferring to treat directly with Turkey, might appoint an ambassador, who could negotiate with a plenipotentiary of the sultan a convention which might be submitted to a conference of the Four Powers. Let your Majesty adopt this plan, upon which the Queen of England and myself are perfectly agreed, and tranquility will be re-established and the world satisfied. There is nothing in the plan which is unworthy of your Majesty—nothing which can wound your honor; but if, from a motive difficult to understand, your Majesty should refuse this proposal, then France, as well as England, will be compelled to leave to fate of arms and the chances of war that which might be decided by reason and justice.

Let not your majesty think that the least animosity can enter my heart. I feel no other sentiments than those expressed by your Majesty yourself in your letter of the 17th of January, 1853, in which you write—"Our relations ought to be sincerely amicable, based as they are upon the same intentions—the maintainance of order, the love of peace, respect for treaties, and reciprocal feeling." This programme is worthy of the sovereign who traced it, and I do not hesitate to declare that I remain faithful to it.

I beg your Majesty to believe in the sincerity of my sentiments, that I am, Sire, your Majesty's good friend,

NAPOLEON.

London Times.

LONDON, FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1854

To Our Subscribers.

In the present issue we think it better to do things by halves, than not at all. A large supply of paper was ordered the early part of last week and only a sufficiency arrived last Monday for the previous weeks issue, and for a half sheet this week; we resorted to the telegraph and could get no satisfaction beyond the one fact that the paper was all sent by the Train, but to this day none has come. Our contemporary the Free Press was unable to oblige us, and we had no alternative but to adopt the course we have, and trust the present very imperfect postage and railroad arrangements will plead our excuse.

☞ No English mail arrived here since last Tuesday week, consequently we are unable to give much old country news. From the telegraph, we learn that breadstuffs are rising at Liverpool. Troops have already embarked for the East, and the British force is to consist of 30,000 men. Regiments are all raised to 1000 men each and a most enthusiastic spirit for war exists throughout England. No certain news from the seat of war.

The Present Crisis.

Our contemporaries, of the honest portion of the Press, perhaps it might be better to say the independent portion, exult in the near prospect of a dissolution of the present Provincial Parliament, in consequence of the Ministerial acts presenting an aspect so monstrous as to be calculated to excite nothing but disgust and indignation The Owen Sound Reform paper reports a meeting where a resolution was unanimously passed to support no one who was favorable to the present government. A government which, if it survives the present Session, is the very utmost that may be apprehended; but, in the meantime, the good sense of the reflective portion of the community must be aroused to a sense of the existing evils. All that is worthless and vile in the country, the infidels, the profligates, the ruffians of every grade and color, the Anbubaiarum Collegiæ Pharmoparolæ, know well the importance of keeping those men in office, who may serve as a screen to their designs, and they will exert themselves to prevent the precious piece of patch work, denominated a government, from falling to pieces, until they have got every valuable institution, not exactly to their minds, upon an inclined plane, when it will be easy for to reduce them to a level that will no longer offend their extreme chartist predilections. They have been excited and stimulated by success and can always largely avail themselves of the credulity of their dupes and the wickedness of their retainers; only let them carry on the government of the country, by means of the men at present in power, who must be their humble slaves and such an initiation will have been given to measures for securing and extending the triumph of corruption that nothing can prevail against it, until a political chaos has been produced in which—

——"everything includes itself in power,
Power into will, will into appetite;
And appetite, an universal wolf,
Doth make, perforce, an universal prey,
And lust eats up itself."

Such, and such alone, can be the consummation of the existing state of things; if no combination can be formed against it; that such a combination may be formed, and is forming, we feel perfectly assured. The Jacobins were always a Minority in France, in point of numbers, a contemptible Minority, but they were restless, energetic, unscrupulous and persevering, and they therefore found it no difficult matter to over master the scattered and dispirited partizans of Loyalty and virtue, their measures were all prompt, startling and decisive, and the battle was fought and won before their adversaries were prepared to enter into the conflict; so it will be with us, if, by a timely and an extensive organization, the anti-Ministerial party do not take care to excite, throughout the country, a spirit of vigorous and determined resistance to that system of profligacy and corruption branding the Ministerial acts. It will not do to cry "Oh! oh!" as the enemy is dealing his deadly blows! that would only excite the derision of our formidable foe. No, we must enter on our defence with an energy somewhat proportioned to that by which we are assailed, if we would be saved, nothing short of a regulated, extensive, systematic opposition, based according to the various modes of hostility adopted by our assailants, can afford us any chance of escape from our present dangers. We are engaged with an enemy schooled and disciplined in the science of defunction, and who at present occupies a position which enables him to act against us with great advantage; an enemy who hates religion much more than we love it, and under whose banner we must expect to see congregated had men of every description, together with no small number of sincere, but erring individuals, whose narrow minds, or whose scanty information renders them obnoxious to delusion, who really imagine that they are furthering great ends for the benefit, when they are unhesitatingly instrumental in doing [illegible] mischief, to the cause of order and good.—We have to work with different materials, none but men embued with a sacred regard for what is valuable in our social system, will enter into our ranks, and according to their various degrees of light and intelligence, they will make various estimates of the precise degree in which the measures in progress are mischievous or fatal, in the support of some of them, they may be disposed to go a certain length, and their very honesty and intelligence may lead to a difference of opinion, that must render steady and well concerted resistance difficult, if not hopeless. Now all these things are against us, and we repeat it, if means be not taken to provide against the inconvenience and destructions which they may occasion; we may as well at once quietly succumb to those who are "wiser in their generation," and whose measures are not more wickedly conceived, than they are skillfully conducted, we must, therefore, if we would succeed, imitate our adversaries in the system, and the enemy of their combination. We shall revert to this subject again.

The Lunatic Asylum—Toronto.

When a recent act was passed with reference to this institution, we protested against some of its provisions. The notorious Dr. Rolph being a principal actor, was quite sufficient to justify a sharp look out on our part, and if we recollect aright, one of the principal grounds of objection to Dr. Scott, who was then the medical superintendant was non residence, our vigilant contemporary, the British Canadian, now declares that Dr. Aiken, the present medical superintendant, does not reside, and furthermore that the said Dr. Aiken is partner with Dr. Rolph, Oh! shame, where is thy blush, oh! superlative Reformer, are these your notions of Reform, can you thus dare to trifle with an act of Parliament, can you thus degrade the executive still lower, by depriving an individual of his situation to create a place for your own partner, and can you dare openly to sanction that very partners doing exactly what his predecessor was turned out of office for doing, that law-makers should be law-breakers is reserved for Canada.

Hear the British Canadian:—

"The act of the last Session brought in by Dr. Rolph, and for his purposes, adopts this principle of residence, and the 4th section of the act, 16 Vic. c. 188 enacts "that the governor may appoint during pleasure, a Medical superintendent "who shall reside in the Asylum." Now the present Medical Superintendent "does not reside," Dr. Aiken, the partner of Dr. Rolph, is his assistant, and he also is non-resident, so that here a compulsory clause of the act which Dr. Rolph himself pressed through the Legislature, is violated in the person of Dr. Rolph's own medical partner.

But there is another object contemplated by this Bill, which it will behoove the people of Canada at once to look to. There is no family, however wealthy and happy, that it may not please the Almighty to afflict with insanity some member of it, and in hopeless cases how often does such an institution become the abode of the sufferer for his or her better personal safety or that of their friends. We will suppose the case of the father of a young family being thus hopelessly afflicted and placed within its walls, and that at the time of his affliction he is possessed of land or money, the income from which is the means of supporting his afflicted wife and children: then the Bursar of the College, under the 10th clause, may make demand of the sum chargeable for the maintenance of the Lunatic, and if not paid, and that "such property shall, in the opinion of the Bursar be more than sufficient to maintain the family (if any) of such Lunatic it shall be lawful for the said Bursar to take possession of such property or so much thereof as he may think necessary to pay or secure the payment of the sum due or to become due for the support and maintenance of the Lunatic in the Asylum, and he shall have full power over and be competent to manage and appropriate take or recover possession of, lease, mortgage, sell and convey all or any part of such property in the name of such Lunatic or as his Committee under this act," provided however that before any sale and conveyance of any real property of such Lunatic, the Bursar shall report the case with the terms of the proposed sale to the county Judge of the county within which the property is situated for his approval and "such sale and conveyance so approved shall be valid and binding upon the Lunatic and his heirs."

So then under this clause if the bereaved wife and children of the Lunatic have in the opinion of the Bursar of the Asylum one dollar a year more than sufficient for their support and maintenance the Bursar may take, not the surplus beyond their wants, but the whole means of the family and mortgage or sell the same to satisfy any demand not only for the past but even the future maintenance of the Lunatic!!!

Suppose, for instance, that whilst our present ministers are indulging their speculative propensities, one of them had official knowledge of matters that must enhance the value of the property of a Lunatic, who is in the Asylum The wife and children are in the enjoyment of that property, and it forms their sole means of subsistence. Well, the speculating minister, suppose Malcolm himself desires to have it, he writes a letter marked 'Private' to his 'dear McCurdy,' who be remembered was lately appointed Bursar of the Asylum. The Bursar takes the hint. In his opinion the family have "more than sufficient to maintain them," he takes possession, sells the property to his patron Malcolm, and as a matter of form, goes before the county judge who takes the Bursars' word that all is right, marks his approval, the sale is made, and the law says 'such sale and conveyance, so approved shall be valid and binding upon the Lunatic and his heirs,' the purchaser then goes to take possession, and this may be the first notice the unfortunate family have of the dealings with their sole means of subsistence, for the law does not require that any formal notice of sale be given to the family of the Lunatic, and the Bursar having full power to contract for the sale in private, it may be over the bottle, perhaps in his cups!

But this is not the worst, under the 7th clause, if any three of the Licentiates of Dr. Rolph's or any other School of Medicine, sign a certificate verified by the Reeve of the Township, or incorporated village, or the Mayor of the city, or incorporated town, that they consider any individual a Lunatic "such certificate shall be sufficient authority to any person, to convey the Lunatic to the said asylum, and to the authorities of the asylum to detain him therein—". Now if Malcolm Cameron should take a fancy to one of Francis Hinck's recent purchases, and submit the evidence of that ministers acts in the Ten Thousand Pounds affair, to three of Dr. Rolph's Medical Licentiates, they could have little hesitation in certifying that a man in his position, doing such an act was insane, and many a township Reeve, would back the certificate. Thereupon Malcolm might consign Francis to his "dear McCurdy," and then over the bottle of wine, or flask of water, as the case might be, strike a bargain for the property of his friend Francis Hincks.

But really, this matter is too serious, the powers of this act are too formidable to be trusted to any man, much less to this McCurdy, and we do hope to see some restrictive enactments brought in at an early day to protect the families of Lunatics from official or other rapacity.

A further word of comment on our part is unnecessary, one act more atrocious than another is continually brought to light, and those men who call themselves the ministry of the people, the responsible government of Canada, will soon from the corruption within, fall to pieces, and no longer pollute the councils of the province by their contamination.

Fairs.

We have recently drawn attention to the comparative productiveness of Canada, for farming purposes, over the States, and also to the annually increasing value of all agricultural produce here, and the facility with which cash can now be obtained, for every species of farming stock. One great want still exists, there are no established Fairs for the sale of cattle, for instance, if there was an annual horse fair for the west established, persons would attend from all parts of the country and the States, as purchasers, facilitated to do so by steam and railroads; cattle fairs also could be held at times and places most convenient, we should have, as it were, a Paisley sale fair every fall, and the breeder of cattle and sheep need not be ashamed to contribute. If these remarks will stir up any of our farmer readers, we shall be happy to insert their suggestions.

Episcopal Fund.

We give, elsewhere, an account of the recent meeting held in London, for raising an Episcopal Fund for endowing a Bishopric in the western portion of Canada. We cannot conceive that any objection will be raised, save the desire of keeping the pockets hermetically sealed. The democrats cannot allege that it is an aristocratic move, as Bishops exist in the neighboring States, and when they are not objected to in so thorough a Republican country, and where so great a jealousy exists as to high names, we may safely infer no objection can be raised here. A Bishop can also act as Rector or Curate, in fact all the functions of a clergyman can be discharged by a Bishop, hence an additional clergyman is gained, we need not allude to the benefit of having a head over a body of clergymen, so far asunder and so far removed from Toronto, the present residence of the Bishop; union is strength, and in no case is that more necessary than in the means to be taken for the dissemination of the true gospel, and in guarding the orthodoxy of the Clergy from those dangerous schisms which now so unhappily exist at home, and which we sincerely trust may find no favor here.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the London Times.

MARCH 8th, 1854.

SIR,—From reading in your journal of last week some pertinent remarks on on a paragraph taken from a New York paper, on Canadian Hotels; agreeing in your remarks, I am induced to trespass on your attention for a few moments There is one town in Canada West, an exception, which boasts of no hotels, and which I should like the travelling people to be aware of, lest Canada, so celebrated for hospitality, should be disgraced by Sarnia, for such is the place where their high mightinesses the brainless councillors of the Municipality, stubborn as donkeys with their assenine propensities, fully developed by their acts have succeeded in placing under By-Law passed by these Sapient Canerarians, "for this is the Seat of the Coon," to prohibit the sale of Liquors in all taverns, caused the tavern-keepers immediately to close, and the result was, we poor devils of travellers were huddled into the street, bag and baggage, and being denied a place to lay our heads in, were forced to throw ourselves on Brother Jonathans hospitality, whose territory was fortunately not far off; it certainly seems strange, that a few ignorent men, whose hatred to King Alcohol constitutes their sole capacity for municipal duties, have passed a by-law at variance with the laws of the land, interfering with the general license law, and depriving travellers of their legitimate shelter; hoping the press will expose this unwarrantable act and draw public sympathy to the ill used tavern keepers, whom the learned council require to pay licenses, but deprive them of the means of making the money which their license authorized them to do.

Yours truly,
VACUUS VIATOR.

Meeting to Adopt Means to Secure an Episcopal Fund.

On Thursday, the 23rd ult., after divine service in St. Paul's Church, in this town, an adjournment took place to the school-house connected with the church. The rooms were not filled, as it should have been on so important occasion. Still, a respectable number of our townspeople were present, and some of the leading parishioners from the country. The clergy present, were Messrs. Ellwood, Goderich; Palmer, Guelph; Evans, Simcoe; Bettridge, Woodstock; Revill, Ingersoll; Foquite, Zorra; Jessop, Port Burwell; Caulfield, St. Thomas; Gunn, Zone; Lampman, Perth; Flood, Delaware; Dewan, Windsor; Hayward, London; Brough, London Township; and the rector of St. Paul's.

Mr. Cronyn, president, opened the proceedings by a few appropriate remarks, after which he read a letter from our venerable bishop, couched in the kindest and most liberal language, and showing that not only his own desire, but that of the authorities at home, was to consult, to the fullest extent, the clergy and laity of Canada, as to all future creations to the episcopal see. The chairman also read a pastoral letter of the bishop, in 1851, showing that his mind had been for years maturing a plan to secure for this Province a proper episcopal supervision, and a permanent fund, to support the future bishops respectably. He then read the following, from the resolutions of the synod, in October last:—

"That it is expedient that an episcopal fund be forthwith commenced, and that the amount contributed for that purpose, within the limits of the proposed dioceses respectively, together with a moiety of whatever may be contributed by the then remaining dioceses of Toronto, be reserved for the maintenance of the bishops of the new sees.—That one of the four annual special collections be made for that purpose throughout the diocese, and that the Lord Bishop of Toronto be requested, by pastoral letter, or otherwise, to invite contributions from the members of the church generally, towards carrying out this important object."

Upon which the bishop remarks in his pastoral letter of January last:—

"The third resolution of the synod, recommending the commencing of an episcopal fund, for the proposed new dioceses, is of the greatest importance, and deserves our best consideration. Let it, however, be borne in mind, that the few hints I venture to offer, to the different committees which may be appointed to carry it out, are merely in the way of suggestion, which they can alter and modify, as may seem best calculated to attain the object in view.

"In the printed minutes of the synod, I find that the resolution, as second, overlooks an amendment which I mentioned at the time, namely, that each of the sees should collect for itself and this, because Toronto must soon become vacant; and in the face of such a contingency, the mode of appropriating the contributions pointed out would neither be just nor satisfactory to the donors. This I have already discovered to be the fact; the church members in the portion likely to be left to form the new dioceses of Toronto, do not think it right to deprive themselves of the means of filling up the vacancy, as soon as possible after it may happen.

"To avoid any difficulty, it seems more equitable that each of three proposed dioceses should have its own separate episcopal fund, and this mode of proceeding I recommend with the more readiness, because I feel a strong assurance that a moderate provision may be obtained for them respectively, without any great sacrifice on the part of our people.

"To provide a reasonable endowment for those three bishoprics, will require about £250,000, or £40,000, sterling, a sum that may be raised without any great difficulty, by the members of the church in Upper Canada, if we make them fully alive to the vast importance of the measure, and satisfactorily prove that it will lay a sure foundation for the church of God in Canada West, for all time to come, and also provide for her rapid increase.

"Assuming that we are one fourth of the population of the Province, or diocese of Toronto, an assumption fully sustained by the last census, we number 250,000; and allowing five for each family, we have only 50,000 families, so that, if each family on an average, were to contribute £1, we shall have £50,000, or the sum required. Some families may not be able to give one pound, small as the sum is, but any such deficiency would be more than made up by the members who are willing and able to give more. Again, from the most accurate information that can be obtained, the assessed value of property in Upper Canada exceeds £30,000,000, of which the members of the church enjoy one third, or £12,000,000, and were they to contribute a donation of one penny in the pound, for one year only, it would produce the amount required.

"Let the rural deans in each of the proposed dioceses, call a meeting of the clergy and lay delegates of the last synod, and let them also invite as many in favor of the intelligent laity to attend as may be found convenient, to consult together as to the best method of raising the required funds; for unless we all act with untiring zeal and perseverance, and with a right mindedness, so that no grown-up church member male or female, shall be passed over, we cannot anticipate a very favorable result.

"Let such meeting appoint a committee of general management, the rural dean, when present, to be chairman; with as many of clergy and laity as may be deemed sufficient, but with power to add to their numbers. This committee to recommend public meeting in all the townships within their bounds, each of which they should send an efficient deputation, at which township meetings, local committees should be formed, to visit every family within the same.

"Such is the general outline which I now submit to your consideration, for the division of Western Canada into four bishoprics. It is surely an enterprise of deep interest and surpassing usefulness, and will be highly creditable to the diocese of Toronto, so recently established, and yet struggling with serious difficulties. The boldness of the conception, which has few equals in the history of the Church of God, will be sustained by the vigor which we shall employ in its realization, nor can it fail to attract the good will and sympathy of the whole of our own communion, for it is, indeed, worthy of the blessings and prayers of all who desire the extension of the Lord's Kingdom.

"In conclusion, my brethren, let us remember that this diocese has spoken through he synod, for the first time, and requires of us certain services, which all admit are essential to the well being and progress of the church. We are therefore on our trial, and on our obedient and religious action, her rise or decline, in a great measure depends. If we labor with hearty good will, then will she flourish and extend on every side, but if we become lukewarm and remiss, and remain apathetic, instead of being active, our church will be thrown from the high position which it now occupies. Our responsibility is fearfully great, but make it a labor of love, springing from a true faith in our Saviour, and we have nothing to fear."
