CRITICAL TIME OVER VETO NEAR

Lansdowne's Amendment re Home Rule a Clever One SOME DODGED VOTE

Asquith will Move Rejection of Amendments on Bloc and Will State Course Government Will Follow—Neither Side Wants an Election

(Canadian Press)

New York, July 6.—In reference to the vote in the House of Lords last night on Lord Lansdowne's amendment to the veto bill, which was cleverly framed with the object of compelling the government to submit its home rule bill to the electorate to the judgment of the electorate, and which was carried by 133 votes against 43, the London correspondent says the peers who voted in the government lobby were mainly lords created in the last eighteen months, namely, since the Asquith regime began.

Sturdy old fashioned radicals like Lord Wardlaw, a son of the house in St. Stephen, and Lord Courtney, the one time chairman of committee in the House of Commons, sat on the steps of the throne and abstained from taking part in the division. The only crumb of comfort which the government had in the support of the Tory Bishop of Birmingham. The Bishop of Ripon, in the closing hours of the debate, said he did not see the referendum which was advocated by Lord Lansdowne, but preferred it to the veto bill. The Asquith amendment was provided that "no bill affecting the existence of the crown or Protestant succession, or the establishment of a national parliament or body with legislative powers in any portion of the kingdom, or which in the judgment of a joint committee of the two Houses, raises an issue of great gravity, shall receive the royal assent until it has been submitted to the referendum."

When the commons are called upon to consider the lords' amendments, Mr. Asquith will move that the referendum be abolished and it is understood he will at the same time state the advice he is prepared to give the king, in the event of the lords continuing to press the issue.

The lords want to force Mr. Asquith to say he has received the referendum, rather than see the passage "watered," it is believed they will surrender under a plea of loyalty. Neither party is prepared for another general election.

NOT FIRST TIME THAT MAGGIE BECKWITH HAS DISAPPEARED

Once Left Ben Lomond House, Where She Was Employed, and Roamed Woods—Opinion Now is She Will Be Heard From

Maggie Beckwith's disappearance, of Friday last is still a source of mystery baffling to all concerned. There was no trace of her today. However, no fear of foul play is entertained, because it has come to light that this is not the first time that she has given alarm to her relatives by unaccountably leaving the parental roof, and it is thought that in due course she will be heard from.

A. F. Bentley, M. P. E. of St. Martins, arriving here on a business trip, said that he did not regard the matter very seriously. The young woman would probably be heard from an unexpected quarter.

Mrs. Barker, of the Ben Lomond house, said this morning that while working for her some time ago, the Beckwith girl had acted a little strangely at times, but she has learned that the girl had with her her best clothes when she left the city on Friday, or rather when she left her father's, for it is now known that she has left the city. Her father did not know of this until he returned home on Friday last.

Town of Maxville on Grand Trunk in Ontario Nearly Wiped Out by $100,000 Conflagration—Much Lumber Lost

Ottawa, Ont., July 6.—(Canadian Press)—The little town of Maxville, on the Grand Trunk, in Ontario, was nearly wiped out by a fire last night, the loss being in the neighborhood of $100,000, with less than half that amount of insurance.

The village was next to absolutely bare of means of fighting the fire, only a small hand force pump being available. With this and supplemented by a bucket brigade of about seventy men, the fire was fought for five long hours and by excellent work the flames were kept from spreading to greater proportions. The only water available was at the wells in the village, and over each well a woman stood guard, pumping out the water and refilling the buckets as they were passed and re-passed buckets and towards the town.

It was thought that the whole town was doomed. The G. T. R. operator wired Ottawa that the station was burning under his feet, and that he had to cut off communication. All night long and far into this morning the people of the village worked their hardest to keep the fire within bounds. Huge lumber piles and carloads of lumber were burned, blocking the tracks.

London, July 6.—(Canadian Press)—The rumors that Great Britain has ordered any naval movement on account of Moroccan affairs are unfounded. It is understood, however, that the British government, although it has not made yet a formal reply to Germany, has intimated to the German ambassador here that Great Britain did not contemplate without the gravest concern, the possibility of the establishment of a German naval station anywhere on the Moroccan coast.

EXPLOSION OF HER MAGAZINES CAUSE OF WRECK OF MAINE

General Bixby, Chief of Government Engineers, Says Effect Produced Could Not Have Been Made From Without

Washington, D.C., July 6.—The loss of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor was caused by the explosion of her three magazines. No such effect as that produced by the explosion could have been caused by an explosion from without.

Such is the opinion of General William H. Bixby, chief of government engineers, who has returned after a personal inspection of the site of the raising of the Maine. General Bixby said that a portion of the deck over the magazines was blown upward, and laid backward, and that there were numerous conditions of the bulk as it lies on Havana harbor which proved that no explosion from the outside, and the general, could have caused the same result.

"What the primary cause of the explosion was," said General Bixby, "never will be learned."

BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO RECEIVE COMPLAINT

Kingston, Jamaica, July 6.—(Canadian Press)—The captain of the British schooner Tullal Cais, today asked the government's aid in seeking redress from the Washington authorities for the detention of his vessel recently at Key West on the charge of carrying more passengers than the number mentioned in the ship's register. A fine was imposed by the Key West officials and the vessel detained until a bond was given for settlement.

Representations by the Jamaican government resulted in the remission of the fine. The complaint of the skipper will now go to the British ambassador.

The Jamaican government is investigating a report that ex-President Castro of Venezuela has landed on the north side of Jamaica.

NEWS DESPATCHES FROM CITIES OF UNITED STATES MAKE AWFUL TOLL

—Fourteen Deaths in Toronto Yesterday—Auburn, N.Y., Yesterday Showed 115 Above

(Canadian Press)

New York, N. Y., July 6.—The loss of more than 500 lives is to be charged to the great heat wave of July 1st to 5th, 1911.

The torrid tide will be memorable in weather annals for its duration, its long duration, its record breaking temperatures in certain places and the long list of fatalities, which it has caused to be written.

The hundreds of news despatches which come from the North Atlantic seaboard west to the plain states have exchanged during the last four days, accord, according to a careful review this morning, the deaths of 431 persons from the heat and eighty from drowning, a total of 511, incomplete as the record from the fall of many points to report specifically the number of such deaths, it is as serious a showing as is remembered for many years, if not a record.

The number of prostrations is still more difficult to compute, but from the review of the despatches it easily appears that thousands have been seriously overcome by the heat in the big cities.

Albany, N. Y., July 6.—The official mercury climbed to 98 at 3 o'clock yesterday, six degrees lower than the record breaking mark of Tuesday. One death due to heat was reported. A heavy shower from the south, which went around the city late in the afternoon, afforded some measure of relief. Three deaths are reported from the south, which went around the city late in the afternoon, afforded some measure of relief. ## READY TO SEND "K. O." INTO RING WITH WOLGAST

New York, July 6.—(Canadian Press)—Local boxing fans are still discussing the Wolgast-Moran fight of Tuesday. A great many of them had believed that Moran, with his superior skill, could stand off the champion for the twenty rounds of the contest and the Briton's overwhelming and complete defeat was somewhat of a surprise.

Danny Morgan, the manager of Knockout Brown, was not all flattered by the outcome. He still believes his charge can win with Wolgast, and is ready to have him try it.

Chicago, July 6.—Packer McFarland, the Chicago lightweight, is hot on the trail of Ad Wolgast, the lightweight champion. James Goddard, the San Francisco promoter, has wired McFarland a guarantee of $8,000 with a privilege of 30 per cent. of the gross receipts for a twenty round bout with Wolgast on Labor Day in his Colma arena. McFarland says he is willing to fight then but the weight question, which has kept the fighters apart, may again interfere.

San Francisco, July 6.—As to a fight between Ad Wolgast and Packer McFarland, Manager Jones says neither McFarland nor any other lightweight outside of Freddy Welsh can get a match before November. We will let McFarland come in the ring weighing 133 pounds. Three hours before the match," he said. "That is the best we can do."

It is for Freddy Welsh to say whether or not the proposed Wolgast-Welsh match for the lightweight championship of the world takes place in September. Toni Jones had deposited $8,000 making good the champion's end of a $10,000 side bet for which Wolgast already had $1,000 on deposit. This money will remain up until July 10. If it is not covered Wolgast says he will drop Welsh.

THE TIMES' NEW REPORTER

THE RULING PASSION.

A man from Halifax and a St. John man were together in an office this morning. Both were standing, and both had their arms raised in an attitude suggestive of trouble, although they were some distance apart. That they were both talking at once, and with unusual animation indicated that the matter was of more than ordinary importance.

The reporter paused at the threshold. He knew that the West India merchants of St. John were about to send an armed delegation to Ottawa to demand from Sir Richard Cartwright more sailings of the steamers from this port, half of them having been commandeered by the piratical traders of Halifax. He knew also that a Halifax man had once told the St. John reporters that St. John had no more need of a dry dock than Halifax had of an epidemic of early rising. Also that it is the habit of Halifax to say that St. John is not a bad sort of watering place when the harbor is in, and that St. John streets would be all right if they were like the streets of Halifax.

Having this knowledge and observing the belligerent attitude of the two men, the reporter was about to step between them with a remark about the actual mortality due to heat and excitement in this weather, when one of them said to the other:

"Then you play a hybrid game?"

"Well—partly," said the other. "But I never could drive as well with my left as with my right."

"I still put with my left," said the first speaker.

The pair were talking golf, and they are to meet on the links tomorrow or Saturday.

La MARQUISE de FONTENAY

New Premier for Austria Has Risen by His Own Merits—A Social War Between Ladies of Title in the Land of Francis Joseph

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company)

Although Austria is the country in Europe where caste and blue blood play a more important role than anywhere else in the world, yet during the long reign of more than half a century of the venerable Emperor Francis Joseph, his ministers have as ostentatious been chosen from the bourgeoisie, as from the aristocracy.

The present minister of the interior, Baron Gutsch, is a case in point. He is the son of a civil servant of the government, the chief of bureau in one of the state departments in Vienna, who at the close of a long career of nearly fifty years, was granted on his retirement, the third and lowest class of the Order of the Iron Crown, which honored him with the noble title of "baron" to his name.

Baron Gutsch, who had mean while been created a baron by the emperor, and appointed in the House of Lords, went back to his former post as curator of the Theresianum. He became minister of education again in Count Badeni's cabinet, and eventually succeeded Badeni as premier, greatly to the satisfaction of the fair sex of the empire, for he had used his power as minister of public instruction in the Theresianum and in the various universities, and also the right to practice medicine and law. He had likewise obtained a substantial increase in the salaries of the university professors and masters of government schools, thus converting every one of these men into his warm adherents and supporters.

Since then, Baron Gutsch, who resembles in a measure Arthur Balfour, the English premier, being very tall and thin, in fact almost angular, has been on two occasions premier. He is now entering upon his fourth term of office as such. He has a horror of red tape, has always stood aloof from nationalistic agitations, which is rare among the lieges of Emperor Francis Joseph—and has been somewhat unjustly credited with anti-Semitism, owing to his friendship with the late Dr. Lueger, the anti-Semitic leader, who died while occupying the office of Bürgermeister of Vienna, which is generally admitted he would never have attained, without the support of Baron Gutsch.

Let me add that Gutsch is extremely clear-headed, cool, tactful, and adroit, especially in the art of arranging compromises, and this last named art is one that is necessary above all others in Austrian politics, owing to the real animosities of the innumerable nationalistic factions into which the Austrian Parliament is split up. The baron is married to the daughter of a rich manufacturer of the name of Schlumberger, and one of his daughters is married to Count Alexander Zedwitz.

The Late Premier. Baron Blumort, the outgoing Austrian premier, has been appointed to the important and lucrative post of Governor of Lower Austria, which includes the metropolitan district of Vienna, and this has led to the retirement from that office of Count Eric von Kilmannsegg, who has filled the post for twenty-two years, and who has been one of the most conspicuous figures in Austrian life. His long term of governorship had only one brief term of interruption, about 15 years ago, when for several months he filled the role of Premier of Austria, subsequently returning to his governorship. His wife was even a still more notable figure in Viennese life than himself, and has been for the last two decades the chief rival of Princess Pauline Metternich in the matter of the sovereignty of the revels.

At the time when Countess Kilmannsegg first came upon the scene in this connection, the princess was in deep mourning for her husband, and then for her daughter, Countess Waldstein, who died in such a tragic manner. Afterwards the princess herself was prostrated by illness, and when eventually she resumed her sceptre of Queen of the Fetes, she found that she had a competitor in the person of the wife of the governor, who had by virtue of her husband's official position, assumed the leading role in the organization of all the fetes of a charitable nature and otherwise, that endow with so much gaiety and brilliancy the Viennese season.

Vienna gained by the return of Princess Pauline, for a merry war ensued between the two ladies, each having her own set of followers, the bourgeoisie and the aristocratic world gradually flocking around the countess, while the old aristocracy remained true to its allegiance to Princess Pauline.

A Social War. No sooner did Princess Metternich organize some great popular festival with the object of crushing the countess, than the latter immediately devised some still grander public entertainment for the purpose of obliterating in the eyes of the Viennese the success of her rival.

Both women have always been renowned for their talents as amateur actresses. Those of Princess Metternich are famed, with regard to these of the countess, I may say that she surpassed herself at a memorable charity fête at the ministry of foreign affairs when the count was premier. He achieved a tremendous success with a number of comic songs of his own composition, both as regards words and music, which he gave in a burlesque role, while his wife danced, sang and acted, with inimitable grace and chic as a songstress. The countess is a Russian by birth, the daughter of a petty noble of the province of Lublitz, of the district around Kishineff, and by reason of her lack of business of blood and of her foreign origin, has had much to endure at the hands of the aristocratic ladies of the Viennese aristocracy, who attempted to co-shoulder her. Indeed, it was not until the emperor, a year ago, bestowed upon her the rank of lady of the palace, that she acquired a recognized position at court, from which she had until then been barred, in spite of her husband's high office. But she failed however, to receive the order of the star cross, which usually goes with the office of lady of the palace, but for which general qualifications and Roman Catholic faith are indispensable.

HENDERSON & HUNT, 17-19 Charlotte Street

OUR FEELINGS. Every person's feelings have a front door and a side door by which they may be entered. The front door is on the street. Some keep it always open, some keep it latched, some locked, some bolted, with a chain that will let you peep in but not get it, and some nail it up so that nothing can pass its threshold. This front door leads into a passage which opens into an ante-room, and this into the interior apartments. The side door opens at once into the interior apartments. The side door opens at once into the secret chamber. There is almost always one key to the side door. This is carried by the secret chamber, usually a woman's bosom. Fathers, brothers, sisters, and friends often, but by no means invariably, have duplicates of it. The wedding-conveyer is a right to one; alas! if none is given with it. Be very careful to whom you trust one of these.—O. W. Holmes.

CALLING ON HIS YOUNG LADY. He was a quiet, bashful sort of young man. He was calling on a young lady one evening, when her father came into the room with his watch in his hand. It was about half-past nine. "Young man," began the old gentleman, "do you know what time it is?" The bashful youth got up nervously. "Yes, sir," he replied, "it was just going." He went into the hall without any delay and took his hat and coat. The girl's father followed him. At the caller reached for the door knob the old gentleman again asked him if he knew what time it was. "Yes, sir," was the young man's reply. "Good-night!" And he left without waiting to put his coat on. After the door had closed the old gentleman turned to the girl. "What's the matter with that fellow?" he asked. "My watch ran down this afternoon, and I wanted to him to let me the time so that I could set it."

The Evening Chit-Chat By RUTH CAMERON

"PRETTY—yes, I suppose she is. But, do you know, I never can look at her long enough to find out. She's always squirting around so." So a business man commented on a young girl in his office when I asked him if he didn't think she was pretty. I quote the comment to show how some unpleasant little mannerism counteracts great charm. For the girl really is a very pretty girl. And the reason I mention the matter at all is that it seems to me a good many of our young girls have unpleasant little mannerisms like this. I know another girl who has a disagreeable trick of perpetually lifting her hands to her face. Now she rubs her eyes, now she puts her hand to her mouth or passes it across her cheek. This girl is a brilliant girl, an unusually interesting conversationalist and yet I know that her nervous pressure is often dispensed by this habit. Just recently I heard of another girl who was discharged by a rather pugnacious business man from her position as stenographer because she was always taking out her comb and combing up her hair. "She's a good stenographer," he said, "but I want a girl who will arrange her toilet in the privacy of her home, and not in my office." Now, if any one of these girls should chance to read this article I have no fear that she would recognize herself, for the habit in each case had become, I am sure, almost unconscious. But the part that puzzles me, the point I want to bring out is this: The families of those girls could not possibly have been unconscious of these unpleasant little mannerisms, could they? And what were they thinking of to let them go on? What were they doing that they hadn't time to attend to such vital matters? You think "vital" is a pretty strong word for the occasion. I don't. Just think. Beauty and brains and efficiency were each nullified by one foolish, unnecessary little habit that might have been so easily nipped in the bud by a little plain speaking. Of course no outsider can criticize a habit like this without risk of being considered rude and intrusive. But, equally of course, no family can afford not to speak out on such a matter. One of the most important functions of the family, I think, is to give us, when we particularly need it, a chance to "see ourselves as others see us." Nip the unpleasant little mannerism right in the bud. Nip it as gently as possible, even if you cause a little temporary bitterness, nip it thoroughly, and in the end you will win lasting gratitude—or would I be safer in saying, deserve it.

SIR WILFRID'S ATTITUDE

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in his speech at the Constitutional Club banquet in London, made two facts very clear. One was that the trade agreement with the United States was not a treaty and could be terminated at any time.

"I want you to remember that the agreement made with the United States is not a solemn treaty carried out under the strict rules of a protocol, and signed in the first instance by the King. It is simply an arrangement signed by the finance minister of the Dominion and the secretary of state of the United States, under which, if the duties on certain classes of Canadian natural products are reduced or abolished in the United States, a similar course will be adopted with certain goods entering Canada from the United States.

"It is fourteen years since we in Canada introduced the system of preferential tariff to Great Britain—(cheers)—without any conditions—(renewed cheers)—believing in our heart of hearts that the policy was sound economically, and that it was sound politically, and that it was in the best interests of the British Empire.

"Sir Wilfrid, in concluding his address, which was received with great enthusiasm, set out the three purposes of Canada in trade matters. The first was preference for the mother country, the second trade with all other countries, and the third that there should be no matter of trade in any discrimination against the mother country.

PROVINCES WILL BENEFIT In his statement printed in the Times yesterday, Hon. Dr. Pugsley pointed out that there are many lumber products which could not be marketed in England, but which find a natural market in the United States, and it would be a great advantage to our lumbermen to have the duty removed or reduced. With regard to the benefit the farmers would reap from access to the larger market, the minister cited the case of the Anrook farm, whose gets better prices for produce and whose farm sells for more money than those of farmers on the New Brunswick side of the line.

an influx of capital for development purposes. The opponents of reciprocity endeavor to persuade the people of Canada that this market will be flooded by American products. The farmers, lumbermen and fishermen of the lower provinces know better. They have nothing to fear from competition in their own market, and they want the opportunity to take advantage of the larger market that is offered them. It is a natural market, with easy means of water transportation, and it lies at their doors.

IMPERIAL RELATIONS

The Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King went to the root of the matter when in a recent speech he said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier in discussing the relation of the imperial states to each other in regard to treaties, "spoke throughout as a statesman who has had experience in the working out of a federation." The Imperial Conference is still young. The representatives who met there from various parts of the Empire were considering questions of the utmost importance. They were the pathfinders of imperialism. Sir Wilfrid clearly saw that such unity could only subsist with a local autonomy that would prevent friction and dispute. He stood, as Mr. Mackenzie King points out, for ministerial responsibility, whether of the home government or of the government of any of the overseas states. He saw the difficulties in the way of centralization of authority. He would not hamper the home government in important treaty matters where consultation with the other governments might cause delay or embarrassment, but would have consultations between the governments in matters affecting the dominions. In ordinary trade matters, he would not compel one dominion to consult the others concerning what was purely of domestic concern, the responsibility resting entirely upon the government of that dominion, which would not of course sacrifice imperial interests, since these would be ever in the mind of every government that did not court defeat at the hands of the people. Hon. Mackenzie King therefore rightly says that when Sir Wilfrid returns: "The Canadian people will express to him their gratitude for having represented this country with dignity and foresight, and will not hesitate to show how heartily thankful they are that, instead of proceeding to Britain to instruct the public men of the United Kingdom on how an empire should be managed, he has been content to maintain an attitude of dignity throughout, never falling, however, to give to the people of the British Empire, without fear either of active prejudice or of possible misunderstanding, the benefits of a political wisdom begotten of a training and experience of colonial government such as has been accorded to no other statesman who has participated in the deliberations of the present conference."

"I cannot admit the argument that if we are permitted to sell our goods in the United States we shall be compelled to sell our honor or allegiance or our country."—Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

One of the most penetrating remarks about the gatherings in connection with the coronation, says the Montreal Herald, was that of Lord Curzon, who told the Empire Press Union that whereas two years ago they met "as scattered strangers of the parent stock for the first time at the parent hearth," today they were in London "as part of the ordinary business of the nation."

"There is absolutely nothing in the reciprocity agreement to prevent Canada increasing the British preference, or making any agreement which may be open to us at any time, of having reciprocal trade within the empire; or—[and this is important to St. John—] preventing the carrying out of the policy already announced to go into effect when the Transatlantic railway is completed—of limiting the British preference to goods coming direct to a Canadian port."—Hon. William Pugsley.

The gentlemen who say reciprocity will destroy the packing industry in Canada have received another shock. Swift & Co. have bought out a large Toronto concern, and the Toronto World says:—"The decision of Swift & Co. to make Toronto their Canadian headquarters, will have the effect of attracting to this city other packing concerns, and a large number of subsidiary industries which utilize the by-products. This will mean an ultimate investment of millions of capital."

The province of New Brunswick is especially interested in the announcement from Ottawa that a special enquiry by an expert will be made into the fruit growing industry of Canada. The last few years have witnessed a growing interest in the orchard industry of this province, and an authoritative government report will be of great benefit, directing the attention of the world to the fine opportunities for fruit raising in various parts of New Brunswick, especially in the St. John valley. It is stated by Mr. Hubbard that there is more good orchard land in this province than in Nova Scotia. Doubtless the provincial department will see that the Dominion expert is given every opportunity to form the most favorable impression of the opportunities here offered to the fruit farmer.

"If we bend close to see, Just what the threads may be Which filled the quiet hands, Perhaps some strands So golden, or so strong, may lie there still That we our empty hands may fill And even yet Smile through our eyes be wet." (Youth's Companion.)

MILLION-DOLLAR ACTION OVER A MINING CLAIM

Robert Gilmour Leckie, Well Known in Maritime Provinces, Interested

Four Years of Trouble and Litigation Bring Climax in Action Brought in Montreal—Both Sides Seem Willing to Spend Much to Win

The Montreal Gazette publishes the following relative to a million dollar action over a mining claim in which Robert Gilmour Leckie, well known in the maritime provinces, is interested. The Gazette says:—

After nearly four years of trouble and litigation between William Marshall, mining promoter of Toronto, and Robert Gilmour Leckie and the Montreal Trust Company, the matter has come to a climax in an action entered yesterday by Mr. Marshall and the Grey's Siding Development Company, his associate, claiming no less than $1,000,000 damages for alleged breach of contract and failure to deliver title of the Sterling Mine.

The course of these disputes tends to show the rapid fluctuations of mining values in the Ontario silver country. The original option for sale was $250,000. Yet it has given rise to lawsuits to the extent of $1,000,000, and involved costs of easily another $500,000, while the end is yet far from being in sight, although the various actions have run the gamut from the High Court of Ontario and the Superior Court of Quebec to the Privy Council at London and back again.

The mining property is now valued at several millions, and each side to the dispute seems willing to spend a lot of money to establish its claim. The present move is complicated in that while the three years of litigation have rolled on, it is alleged by the plaintiff that "claim jumpers" have staked off sections of the mine, which will make it more difficult still to elucidate the matter. Incidentally it is the first time that the term "claim jumper," has made its appearance in Quebec province litigation, so as to establish its right to a place in the legal dictionary.

In the present million dollar action William Marshall will take against Robert Gilmour Leckie and the Montreal Trust Company to cancel the contract of purchase of the Sterling Mine owing to the alleged recent failure of the defendants to carry out the obligations devolving upon them under the contract, especially their obligation to furnish title to the property, and also for $1,000,000 damages claimed to have been sustained as result of the alleged failure of the defendants to carry out their contract.

A Complicated Process

In the claim set forth by Messrs. Elliott and Davison, who own the mine, it is set up that the Sterling Mine was originally owned by Robert Gilmour Leckie and that by agreement of May 6th, 1908, he gave to William Marshall an option of purchase extending over twelve months, with immediate possession and the right of the option.

At this time the mine was comparatively a prospect, and the purchase price was fixed at $250,000, in several payments, the first of which, it is claimed, fell due on May 6th, 1908. But it is claimed that three days after the original agreement another was made giving an extension of sixty days for the payment of each instalment, the first instalment thus becoming due on July 6th, 1909.

But it is claimed that on April 13th, before the first instalment is alleged to have fallen due, Leckie transferred all his rights in the property to the Montreal Trust Company, and that on the 20th of May following he gave an absolute deed of transfer, without regard to the position of Marshall.

Following registration of these deeds a demand was made upon Marshall for delivery of the property. He refused, and an action to dispossess him followed in the Ontario High Court, in which Marshall resisted the action and set up a counter-claim asking that the contract be declared to be in force and that the other side be ordered to deliver to him the deeds of the property. Marshall meanwhile tendered the first instalment of $27,500, which was paid into court.

The action of Leckie and the Montreal Trust Company to dispossess Marshall was dismissed by the High Court, and his counter claim for the title deeds to the property sustained. This finding was appealed to the Court of Appeal for Ontario and thence to the Privy Council, and the judgment was confirmed by both courts.

Case to Montreal

In the meantime Marshall had assigned his interests in the mine to the Grey Siding Development Company, and they transferred the litigation to their own name, entering an action in the Superior Court here against Leckie and the Montreal Trust Company, for $100,000. This comprised $75,000 for alleged failure to make title within the prescribed time and $25,000 for alleged illegal acts of Leckie. This action is still pending.

Upon the return of the records from the Privy Council in the Ontario action, proceedings were continued to enforce the original judgment, and these have been going on for the past month in Toronto.

Now Marshall and the Grey's Siding Development Company allege that the titles in their original form are not only defective, but that while these years of litigation have been going on, several "claim jumpers" have staked off valuable portions of the property, thereby, it is alleged, rendering it impossible for the original parties to furnish a title to Marshall and his assigns.

It is further claimed that on June 29th last the plaintiffs tendered the defendants at the Royal Trust Company's offices the balance of the purchase price, $230,000, and asked for assurance of the existence of title and for delivery of the title. This title, it being claimed, not being forthcoming, Marshall and the Grey's Siding people entered the present action.

ABSTAINERS FROM LIQUOR MOST EFFICIENT WORKERS

With the increase in the scales of prices for the workers in the various branches of the printing trades that have taken place in recent years foremen of plants are looking more keenly into the habits of the help they hire and giving preference to the total abstainer from alcoholic beverages. That they are justified in so doing is not only evident from their own personal observation, but from the industrial verdicts rendered by scientific investigators. Under the heading of "Facts and Fallacies Concerning Alcohol," the May issue of the Review of Reviews prints a very interesting paper in which the effect of alcohol on the work of printers is dealt with, the following extract from which is of interest to all employers:

John J. Abel, of Johns Hopkins University declares that both science and experience of life have exploded the pernicious theory that alcohol gives any persistent increase of muscular power. It is well understood by all who control large bodies of men engaged in physical labor, that alcohol and effective work are incompatible.

Experience was made with regard to the influence of alcohol on the brain shows similar results.

Eyeposters were used as subjects. It was found that those who had partaken of alcohol made a greater number of errors and worked less rapidly than those who were abstemious. Krapselis has found that this effect lasts as long as twenty-four hours after alcohol has been taken. Curiously enough those who had taken alcohol thought they were doing their work to better advantage than those who had not.

Other experiments have been made upon people, the test being the length of time which was required to memorize twenty-five lines of poetry. Here, when alcohol was taken before breakfast, it was found that the length of time required to memorize was increased 60 per cent. Also, when these individuals were requested to repeat the lines which they had learned, it was found that they did so less readily and made more errors when they had previously taken alcohol than when they were free from the effect of this drug. It is very apparent from such experiments as these that alcohol does not stimulate to mental activity.

A man may forget himself and get away with it, but never when he forgets his library.

I went to the dentist to have a tooth filled. He sorted his tools with an ardent thrill.

He opened my mouth, "All I heard my And bored a large hole down the small of my jaw."

He drilled into fragments my aching backbone And hoisted it out, never heeding my groan.

He worked at the hole, 'till it grew to a cave, A chasm, a canyon. With eagerness grave, He said, "Now I'll fill it." And mixed Some ash and pepper and mortar and hair.

He cooled off my mouth with tabasco and then He filled up that pit with the strength of ten.

He pounded and prodded; he beat and he hammered; he mauled and he stumped; Till the hole he had dug to the foot of my feet, Was filled with a carload of solid concrete.

"It is finished," he said, as he rose from my knees And got down from my collarbone, "Two dollars, please."

Which I paid with a will as I put on my lid For I don't think 'twas much for the work that he did.

—George Fitch, in Peoria Herald-Transcript.

STANLEY IN A CLOUD OF BROWNTAILS

Government Steamer Passes Through Vast Swarm In The Bay

MILLIONS, SAY OFFICERS

Off Lurcher Light and Being Carried Towards Nova Scotia Coast—In Air, on Water, Covering Lightship and Invading Steamer

There are thousands of brown-tail moths off the Nova Scotia coast. They were encountered yesterday in a vast swarm by the government steamer Stanley, Cape Dutton.

While passing the Lurcher lightship yesterday the steamer on her trip to St. John after a cruise along the coast, on matters in connection with her work, was suddenly enveloped in what seemed a white cloud in constant motion, but what in reality was a vast host said to number millions of these little pests, so dangerous to the welfare of the forests of Canada.

On all sides of the ship, on the light itself, on the water, and in the air was presented the remarkable spectacle of what the officers of the ship said were millions of these little pests, so dangerous to the welfare of the forests of Canada. They fluttered about the decks and ranged about on all sides in a thick moving body, and it was some hours before the steamer had passed altogether out of reach of them.

Mr. Root, mate of the steamer, this morning showed a Times reporter about the after deck of the steamer, lying at the Ballast wharf, where he said some fresh paint was being laid, but it was almost impossible to recognize this fact, because of the numerous patches dotted about the floor, which proved on closer inspection to be brown tail moths, which had flown aboard the ship and been caught in the wet paint.

The deck is quite spacious, and yesterday was being covered with a coating of yellow paint, but when the brown-tail moths were encountered it proved of a more substantial nature than "tangle-foot" for their destruction, although it meant that the brush will again have to be applied, as well as the necessity to remove all evidence of the visitors' presence.

Mr. Root said this morning that he had never witnessed anything like the sight of this vast swarm of flying, fluttering moths since the alarming invasion of the army of worms some thirty years ago, when the country was a sufferer to a great extent in the destruction wrought by these little pests. He was quite young at the time, but could distinctly remember having seen a hayfield before and after these army worms had gone through it on their path of depredation. Instead of the field presenting its usual refreshing and pleasing appearance, when the thousands of army worms had trampled through it, what was left was a redoubtable brown color. At that time great alarm was felt on account of the invasions of the pest.

Mr. Root said he would not be afraid to declare that the swarm of moths numbered millions, and if they ever reached the coast, it would mean untold harm to the province. Thousands of them, however, lay dead about the lightship, but when the Stanley had cleared from their view there were still thousands of the insects fluttering gradually towards the coast of Nova Scotia.

THE DEAN WILL TAKE CHARGE IN FIRST STAGES

Wire From Bishop Richardson Relative to The Cathedral Fire

MEETING HERE TODAY

Detailed Report on Situation Presented by Dean Schofield to Cathedral Chapter—Important Meeting of Anglican Board of Missions is Held

At a special meeting of Christ church cathedral, chapter here at 2:30 this afternoon matters in regard to the recent disaster in Fredericton, in which such damage was done to the church, will be carefully considered. Plans for the rebuilding of the cathedral and the raising of the building funds will come up for discussion. Very Rev. Dean Schofield has prepared a report of considerable length, describing minutely the present condition of the building and the plans for rehabilitation. The dean has received a wire from Bishop Richardson entrusting to him the work up to the point of the completion of the plans and specifications by the architect. When this stage is reached, the bishop will give up his holidays and return to take charge of the rebuilding of the cathedral.

The work of clearing away in preparation for the making of the estimates, will be at once proceeded with, and the restoration of the building will be rushed to an early completion.

One of the important meetings of the synod committee and board now being held in the Church of England Institute, Germain street, was that of the board of missions, last night at 8 o'clock. It was reported in a letter from Bishop Richardson that the parish at Dorchester had been filled by the appointment of Rev. M. Robinson from the diocese of Calgary. The mission of Douglas and Bright was filled by the appointment of Rev. J. J. Sprague, coming from the diocese of Rupert's Land. Services will be conducted at other missions during the summer months by divinity students. Arrangements have also been made for several young men to come from England to be trained for ordination. They will be under the supervision of Rev. A. H. Crowfoot, of Hampton, and will eventually attend Kings College, Windsor.

A resolution adopted in regard to the proposed convention of the laymen's missionary movement follows:

Resolved, that this diocesan mission board acknowledges, with gratitude, the work of the laymen's missionary movement and stands ready to co-operate in every way possible with the movement.

The committee appointed to confer with a committee of the men's missionary movement for the purpose of making the second conference of the Church of England as profitable and useful as possible from both spiritual and practical points of view.

The committee appointed is composed of: Hon. J. P. Burhill, of Chatham; Lewis H. Bliss, of St. Mary's; George Raymond, of Norton; Sydney MacMaster, of St. Andrew; T. C. L. Ketchum, of Woodstock; W. W. Jarvis, of St. John; R. W. Hewson, of Moncton.

The synod committee which met this morning were those on the theological study, board of education, standing committee and Bishop Kingdom memorial. The committee on religious instruction in the public schools was to meet at 2 o'clock, the cathedral chapter at 2:30, and the executive committee at 3 this afternoon. The various committees will report to the executive body which they have to offer, the committee for the consolidation of the church act will meet at 8 o'clock tonight.
