AGRICULTURE

Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY.

Cleanliness of Interest for Our Country Readers.

Cattle in clover need salt. Mincey sort and grade fruit. Look is seldom transmitted. Bones make valuable manure. Teaching is endless repetition.

The Poultry Yard.

Much has been written about the waste of eggs, but little or nothing about the waste of the hen. It is during incubation that eggs are wasted, and this waste is unnecessary.

Rectification of Bones.

A bone from a cow has a quite a luxuriant growth of different from that of a pig. Only dry bones can be ground. Fresh, or green bones, must be pounded or cut, as they cannot easily be ground.

Egg Bound Fowls.

This is caused by obstructions, due to the food being in a fat condition, though it sometimes results from injury in jumping off a high roof. The hen so afflicted should be removed from the male immediately, and given straw upon which to rest, the food to be very light.

Gravel and Lime.

Those who are certain substances under the supposition that they are providing the hen with lime materials for the shells of eggs may resort to oyster shells, limestone, gravel, shell, marble dust, clean shells, mortar, and even lime itself, but first, glass, broken china, etc., are not lime substances.

PARAGRAPHS

On All Subjects of Current Note at Home and Abroad.

Clipped and Condensed for the Readers of The Globe.

A lad while walking cross London Bridge found a small leather bag containing £30,000 in bank notes.

On hearing a clergyman remark that "the world was full of change," Mr. Harrington said she could hardly believe it so little for it is way into her pocket.

Just lately the "Times" was registered for the first time at Stationers' Hall. There are in all seventy proprietors, fully one-third of whom are women.

A man from the far north, who had never seen either ship or sea in his life, had to cross from Kinghorn to Leith on a very stormy day.

The steersman laughed at him, and the Highlander, becoming irritated, seized a handspike and knocked him down.

"By the great guns, sir," said a stout man, looking down from the balcony skirting the upholstery department of a well-known shop, "this is an immense place—huge, simply stupendous!"

"The stores ain't a comparison, No, sir; not a comparison, sir. How much of a stock does this represent?"

"Good! First rate! And how about furniture?"

"Admirable! Take a horse and go right through it, I suppose—furnish it complete, could you—from top to bottom, eh?"

"And lace curtains and tapestries—you keep them?"

"And you know what style is, too—Renaissance, Pompeian, Henry II., and the Louis?"

"No one better than our manager. Perhaps you'd better see him. Mr. X—here one moment!"

"No idea of it," mused the customer. "No idea! Had an impression you had to go to Paris for such things. Good case—everything correct; surprising, really!"

"If you give me an idea," ventured the manager, "about what you require, sir, you know—"

"Ah, yes, I forgot. I want a stick of sealing-wax. Magnificent establishment, sir."

JINGLES OF HUMOR.

A Little Nonsense Gathered for Leisure Moments.

Bobbs: "I couldn't possibly sleep as late as you do. Why, I am out of bed as busy as a bee at five o'clock every morning."

"I say, old fellow, here are the five shillings I borrowed of you last week!"

Tommy: "Yes, I have them, but I have to come in and yawn when visitors are staying too late."

Mr. Stalate: "So your sister keeps you well supplied with pocket money, does she?"

Tommy (pensively): "Oh, yes, I have to come in and yawn when visitors are staying too late."

Young Reporter: "The storm king hurled his torn and tumbled torrents over the ruins of the broken and dismembered edifice."

Old Editor: "What's that? What do you mean, young fellow?"

Young Reporter: "I er—the flood washed away Patrick McDougal's old soap factory."

A bigger some time ago applied for aims at one of a parcel of the anti-begging Society. After it was detailed his manifold sorrows, the inexorable gentleman peremptorily dismissed him.

"You might at least," replied the medicant, with an air of arch dignity, "have returned me grammatically."

The London and Westminster Bank Robbery of £250,000. Last week the banking world of London was greatly startled by the announcement that a bank robbery had taken place in London.

The money stolen consisted of a large parcel of £100,000 bank notes, and £150,000 in gold and silver.

BALLOONING THE PUBLIC.

A year or two since one of the features of an exhibition held in Fredericton, was an advertised balloon ascension, to take place at a certain hour in the afternoon. Large crowds of people were drawn together mostly to witness this wonderful spectacle. After waiting for hours all were kindly informed that a big hole had by some means got into the balloon, so that the gas would not hold on, even if the balloon did. And so it was generally concluded that the whole thing was a "fake." And it is to be hoped that the forthcoming exhibition will keep clear of those enterprising individuals who come from abroad to pull the public, or rather make professions under false pretensions. This same balloon dodge was executed in St. John at the exhibition there this week. On Tuesday it was announced that a balloon would be let off from the exhibition grounds at a certain hour in the afternoon, and thither thousands of people proceeded to view the wonder. Everybody was upon the tip toe of expectation when the hour arrived, but no balloon started skyward. The reason given for failure in keeping the appointment was deficiency of gas—enough could not be got to get in fast enough for a full inflation. And so the crowd hung on until dark, several hours, while the fog enveloped the place in dripping clouds. If all balloons are as backward as this one was in getting its supply then a more satisfactory account of the habits of such animals has yet to be written; but we rather think that if business of the right kind was meant gas would have been let on early enough in the morning for the balloon to have kept its appointment. About 5 o'clock, three hours after time, his majesty began to rise, but he should go too far a stout cord was tied to the car and fastened on the ground. It mounted perhaps fifty or maybe one hundred feet, when the presiding genius in the car threw out a number of dodgers for the multitude to scramble after—some of those dodgers were fastened to a bottle of whiskey—so that said balloon was virtually a whiskey advertisement for some Montreal establishment. If the executive committee of the St. John Exhibition had no better way of drawing a crowd, then, although some of said committee are well known temperance men, after this they must admit that whiskey after all is a good thing in its way, especially in raising funds for exhibition purposes. But then those great public enterprises in St. John are generally managed by the "Boys."

LIBERALS AND TORIES.

We see that the House of Commons voted themselves $500 additional to their sessional allowance, and the motion was supported equally by the opposition, led by Messrs Cartwright, Laurier and Mills, each of whom spoke in its favor. Although the session has been open out to undue length owing to the "boodling investigations" prosecuted by the opposition it is wound up in a boodling sort of way with the concurrence of said opposition—why? because self interest and their pockets were paramount to the interests of the public for which they had all along been contending—or might be not, say their own individual interests, for had they succeeded in upsetting the government they would have gone in and received the benefits in fat salaries offices. Had Messrs Laurier, Cartwright and Mills been poor men, there might have been some excuse for them. Not so. But far worse and beyond all other thoughts, the example set by their leaders must have a pernicious effect upon men of infirm minds and crooked desires. The act in itself is like opening the doors to future attacks upon the treasury, when members think they have claims upon its contents, and it is enough to stagger the public confidence in the dispositions of those who it was felt along had the best interests of the country at heart. By whatever party name known—Liberals or Conservatives—it would seem that they are but men after all, weak men at that, No. 1 being the greatest figure in their arithmetic. And it now becomes a question from this little episode, whether the outs are more to be trusted than the ins, if they had the same favorable opportunities to feather their nests at the public expense.

WHALEBACK STEAMERS.

It is freely admitted that the crossing of the Atlantic by a whaleback steamer carrying a very large cargo of grain marks a new era in the annals of the mercantile marine of the world. The steamer Charles W. Wetmore carried 90,000 bushels of wheat to Liverpool and turned it out in perfect order at its expense in coal consumption only about one-twentieth part of what a steamer like the Teutonic uses, carrying a crew of only twenty-two men. On her return voyage, in ballast, the whaleback consumed but twelve tons of coal per day. As a direct result of this successful voyage a number of new orders have been given for the construction of freight carriers of this class, some of them much larger than any that have yet been built, and it is confidently expected that this kind of vessel will revolutionize the carrying trade of the world.

In Great Britain all the improvements in marine architecture of late years have been in the direction of higher speed, and certainly wonderful results have been attained; but the carrying of merchandise safely and economically is quite as important a branch of marine transportation as the carrying of passengers across the Atlantic at twenty miles or more an hour. The whaleback is a genuine American invention, while the Majestic and Teutonic are only instances of development on lines already laid down.

THE EXHIBITION.

By the time the Globe is again issued the Exhibition will be a thing of the past. From present appearances we think we are safe in predicting the coming show a grand success, and, provided the clerk of the weather looks down upon our city with a pleasant smile, then nothing else will be asked for. Fredericton will be a perfect hum next week, and we trust the many visitors who come here—and they will no doubt number thousands—will leave with a favorable impression of our fair city as well as the exhibition. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 6th, 7th and 8th, are the days and dates, and no one should make any mistakes. So we say, come along and enjoy the fun and live longer. On Tuesday the Exhibition will be formally opened by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor at 12 o'clock in the afternoon. On Wednesday the grand parade of the Uniform Band, Knights of Pythias, with several bands of music, will take place; also the sale of imported government stock on the Fair grounds, and the horse races on the grounds of the Park Association.

LIBERALS AND TORIES.

On Thursday the sale of government stock as well as the horse races will be continued. In the evening the Fredericton firemen will have a torchlight procession and display of fireworks. The wonderful horse races will be an exhibition every day during the Fair as well as an Exhibition of trained dogs.

The extent and desperate nature of the destitution in Russia may be inferred from the fact that starving peasants do not hesitate to attack and plunder convoys of grain, even when well guarded by soldiers, and that mothers deliberately expose their children to the danger of contagious disease, preferring that they should die from sickness rather than be starved to death. The last season is held responsible for this awful state of affairs, but if the peasants of Russia were not systematically despoiled by the government they might be able to withstand the evils of a single crop failure.

THE WATER'S READY EXPLANATION.

"How can you give such a dirty napkin as this?"
"Beg pardon, sir, got folded the wrong way, sir. There sir, how's that, now?"
A sad case of sudden death from excessive joy is reported from Dusseldorf. A girl of fourteen had been promised a visit to the Siegenberg, which is considered one of the most delightful of Rhine excursions. The prospect filled her with so much joy that the excitement produced a strain upon the heart's action, and she fell to the floor and died.

HALIFAX ABLAZE.

Valuable Warehouses Along the Water Front Totally Destroyed.

The Firemen Unable to Cope With the Flames.

Widely Spread North and South With Great Damage.

A most disastrous fire occurred at Halifax, Thursday night last. The fire broke out in Melville's building on Taylor's street, between ten and eleven o'clock, and fanned by a gentle breeze from the north, spread with such rapidity that in a short time Melville's building, Wilton's blacksmith shop, John Taylor & Co.'s fish warehouse (filled with pickled fish) Brookfield Bros.' lumber warehouse and yards, all on Taylor's and Brookfield's wharves, were totally destroyed. Amidst midnight the fire was raging with frightful fury, a quarter of a mile of the harbor front being a vast sea of flame. The flames did all in their power but the fire was unequalled in the place mentioned and under proper management would pay a handsome profit. There is no doubt whatever, that the citizens of Fredericton do not take advantage of the many opportunities given them, and that if a company was formed here and would undertake to boom the town as a summer resort, American citizens would come here in very large numbers. Our beautiful river itself would be a very strong inducement to travellers and therefore if the people here will take hold in earnest and bring the place under the notice of the American public we will get them here.
