

LEWIS ARRESTED ON PERJURY CHARGE;
PLEADS NOT GUILTY; TRIAL BY JURY

Colonel Denison Decides to Place Case in the Hands of Magistrate Kingsford—
Court Adjourns Over Holidays Until Next Week—Some More
Londoners Take the Stand.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Toronto, Oct. 17.—"There is no offense disclosed in that indictment," said Mr. T. C. Robinette, when Tom Lewis was charged with perjury during the investigation into the London bye-election. "The crown must particularize."
"Oh, we will give all particulars," replied Eric Armour.
"I think it will take a small volume," commented Magistrate Denison. "I think I shall get Magistrate Kingsford to try the case, however, as I have heard evidence in the investigation."
Lewis pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by jury.
The question of bail was then raised. "He won't get bail as far as I am concerned. I'm tired of this continual perjury," said the court.
"We had better waive the bail question till we see the Attorney-General," said Mr. Armour.
The case then was adjourned till Monday.

[By Our Own Reporter.]
Toronto, Oct. 16.—"Tom" Lewis, who was said to be the chief witness of the prosecution in the Hyman-Gray election investigation, was placed on the witness stand this afternoon, and after he had been cross-examined at great length by Mr. DuVernet and Magistrate Denison, was, on the request of the prosecution, committed on a charge of committing perjury. No charge was read at the time, but the magistrate explained that a warrant was being made out in the next room.
Lewis was at once arrested and placed in the prisoner's cage, and shortly afterward he was remanded until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning by the magistrate.
Mr. Robinette asked for bail, but the magistrate refused and referred the matter to the crown. Mr. DuVernet also refused.

The magistrate declared he thought Lewis a reckless perjurer.
Mr. Robinette retorted that the magistrate's remarks would be used by the Tories as political capital all over the country at the next election.
"I submit that there has been nothing added which will convict Mr. Lewis of perjury," Mr. Robinette said. "All that has occurred has been contradictions."

Continuing, Mr. Robinette said that the case is a political one, and that knowing it as such the evidence will be sure to be discounted.
The magistrate declared that it was a shame to say that because a man perjured himself in a political case he could not be convicted.

Mr. Robinette explained that he had not said this, but that it was evident to all that there had been a political tinge in all the evidence adduced.

"There's nothing political about me," said the magistrate. "Years ago I took an interest in politics, and the other side spent $25,000 to defeat me. I may say, Mr. Robinette, that at that time I leaned to your side of the fence."
"It was the Conservatives who spent that money, then," Mr. Robinette said. (Laughter.)

Mr. Robinette also pointed out that Lewis' aged father and mother are very ill, and he stated that the prisoner was prepared to give substantial bail.

Magistrate Denison.
The magistrate was obdurate, however, and he left the matter in the hands of the crown. Mr. DuVernet promised to lay the case before the department of justice at once.

Mr. Robinette pointed out that Lewis had done what was fair and manly by returning from the United States and giving himself up.
"It's not fair to treat him this way," Mr. Robinette said.
"I'm sorry for his father and mother," the magistrate said, "but unless the crown consents, I will not give bail."
It is understood that Lewis will plead not guilty when arraigned, and will ask for trial by jury.

"No summary trial for us in this court," Mr. Robinette said, significantly.
Lewis' Evidence.
Lewis' evidence was a flat contradiction of the story of several witnesses that he had promised or given them money in the Dominion bye-election in June, 1905. Also of certain statements made by J. G. Pritchett regarding Lewis' alleged doings in elections of nearly a decade ago.
When he entered the box, Lewis asked that he be sworn again, as he did not wish to be held responsible for the evidence which he had given some time ago, and which was given while he was intoxicated.

Cooked and Served Up Wife.

Marseilles, France, Oct. 17.—The mail advices which reached here today from Indo-China brought another and more revolting story of the doings of King Thant-Thal of Annam, showing that he went to the extent of cannibalism. After killing one of his wives, he caused the body to be cooked and served up for dinner, forcing his servants to eat it under pain of death.
Some of the king's wives were bound and burned with boiling oil, and subjected to other cruelties; while naked women were thrown into the cages of wild beasts, where they were devoured before the king. Finally the French authorities made him a prisoner. He has been adjudged insane by Dr. Dumas, of the French colonial staff.
The royal guard has been disbanded, the palace has been placed under the protection of 150 native soldiers, and the terror-stricken inmates of the palace have been rescued from further suffering. The majority of the latter were women, who bore the marks of revolting tortures. Some of them were terribly mutilated, their faces being slashed and tongues cut out, while others had been suspended by pinchers attached to the fleshy parts of their legs to increase their agonies.

SUBMARINE GOES TO THE BOTTOM, BUT CREW MAY BE RESCUED

Fourteen Imprisoned in Boat
Which Lies Thirty Fathoms Deep.

Paris, Oct. 17.—A feeling of the deepest pessimism prevails at the Ministry of Marine here on account of the disaster to the French submarine boat Lutin, which left Brest, yesterday, for plunging experiments, having on board a crew of 14 men, commanded by Lieut. Phopen, and which was reported last night to have disappeared. The principal hope of floating her in time to save the lives of the imprisoned men seems to rest in the assistance of the Danish salvage steamer Burger Wilhelm, which happened to be off Cape Farina, and which was immediately asked for assistance. She possesses machinery capable of lifting 1,500 tons, but the submarine lies in 30 fathoms of water, and it is pointed out that the submarine boat Farfadet, which sank last summer in the same vicinity, but in only 10 fathoms of water, was nine days at the bottom, and when she was refloated all her crew were dead.

Marine Minister Thomson has ordered two salvage vessels, the Polypheme and the Dromedary, to start immediately from Toulon to the scene of the disaster, and assist the Cyclope, Ishul and Febir, which, with the Burger Wilhelm, are already on the spot. It became known today that the Lutin had on board two supplementary engineers, who had been detailed to watch the diving experiments, but it is not definitely known whether they are included in the fourteen men, which, as announced from Brest last night, went down in the submarine boat under the command of Lieut. Phopen.

YOUTHFUL VANDALS GOES TO JAIL TO BREAK ARC LAMPS
DODGE ALIMONY

London Electric Company Suffer
Severely by Their Lawlessness in Past Fortnight.

Vandalism is rife in London. In fact, City Engineer Graydon declares that there is more of it in this city than in any other city in Canada.

The London Electric Company is suffering greatly at present as the result of the lawless acts of boys.
Today Mr. Graydon received a complaint from Manager Hunt, stating that no less than twelve arc lamps have been destroyed by stone throwing within the past few weeks.

As the lamps cost $23 a piece, it is seen that the company is a heavy loser. A partial list of the lamps reported broken follows:
St. James and Colborne streets.
Chesapeake and Colborne streets.
Maitland and Chesapeake streets.
Wellington and Dundas streets.
Wellington and Regent streets.
Egerton street and the Hamilton road.

Dufferin avenue and William street.
Wellington and St. James streets.
According to the reports made to the city engineer, six lamps were smashed last night, and Mr. Hunt asks the city engineer to notify the police to keep a sharp lookout for the rascals who are doing the damage.

One of the lamps broken was directly across the street from the residence of the chief of police.

BACK FROM CONVENTION

Chief Clark Returned from Firemen's Gathering at Dallas.

Fire Chief Clark returned this morning from Dallas, Texas, where he attended the convention of the Fire Chiefs of America. He was accompanied by Chief Ten Eyck, of Hamilton, who went through to his home town.

Chief Clark has brought back with him a mass of valuable information concerning modern fire fighting, and will make a report shortly to No. 3 committee.

On the third day of the convention the wife of Chief Stag, of Paterson, N. J., who is president of the Fire Chiefs' Association, died suddenly in the Oriental Hotel, where she and her husband were staying, and the sad event cast a pall over the meeting.
Mrs. Stag had attended the convention for 21 years, and was known as an ardent worker for the interests of fire-fighters all over the continent. Death resulted from heart disease.
Washington was selected as the next place of meeting.

LETTER IN BOTTLE

Sails For Nine Hundred Miles in the Atlantic Ocean.

New York, Oct. 17.—Klass Kop, Pz., who lives at Den Hoorn, Island of Texel, Holland, over which young Queen Wilhelmina reigns, is going to get $10 in good American money just as soon as the postal service can carry it to him. The world started it on its way yesterday, at the request of Mr. August Zimmermann, proprietor of the Northwestern Hotel, at Chambers and West streets, who thinks that Klass Kop, Pz., has earned it.

"Mr. Zimmermann dropped over the side of the steamship Groot Kurfurst, while at sea, bound east, on July 21, a bottle containing a request that the finder notify him. On his return to New York a few days ago Mr. Zimmermann found a letter from Mr. Pz. The bottle had drifted more than 900 miles from the track of transatlantic steamers. It was found by a small island at the mouth of the Zuyder Zee and only three or four miles from the mainland. Klass Kop, Pz., picked it up thirty-eight days later. He mailed the letter on Aug. 30, and ought to get Mr. Zimmermann's $10 within two weeks if the mail facilities of Holland are what they should be.

LOOKING INTO THE BANK'S AFFAIRS

Curators to Furnish Report on the Ontario Bank.

THEY MAY DEFER GOVT. ACTION

The Provincial Cabinet Hold a Protracted Meeting to Consider the Situation.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—It will be at least two weeks before anything approaching a definite statement of the losses sustained by the Ontario Bank through the speculations of the late general manager, Mr. Charles McGill, will be forthcoming. The newly-appointed curators, Mr. W. E. Stavert, stated last night that, although he had been kept constantly on the move since his arrival here, he had not as yet had an opportunity of looking into accounts. He had been kept fully engaged in making adjustments and looking into the workings of the branches of the bank. There was, therefore, nothing further that he could add that he would consider of public interest.

It was expected in some quarters that prosecutions might immediately be instituted, but action of this nature may be deferred, pending the findings of the auditors or accountants now engaged on the books, who are working both early and late in an effort to hurry the final report along.
There have been demands made for a full investigation of the proceedings leading up to the wrecking of the bank. The Ontario cabinet held a protracted session yesterday, at which the Ontario Bank crash was considered in all its details, but what course the government intended to pursue Hon. Mr. Whitney and the members of the cabinet refused to disclose.

Curator's Position.

Mr. Stavert, the curator, in the course of a conversation, stated that to the lay mind the manner in which the present proceedings were being conducted would hardly appear clear. When the trouble became acute the Bank of Montreal, on the appeal of the directors of the Ontario Bank, had undertaken to rediscount their loans and guarantee their deposits. They had done this to the extent of over $1,000,000. The Ontario Bank did not lose its corporate existence by this act. It simply said, for example: Here is a branch in Toronto, you take it over and conduct it, as the Ontario Bank does not intend to further carry on the business. There was nothing in the bank act making it obligatory on the Ontario Bank to carry on a banking business if the directors did not deem it advisable to do so. In the case of the Bank of Montreal's action it had become the heaviest creditor of the Ontario Bank, and under the provisions of the bank act, had applied to the Canadian Bankers' Association for the suspension of the bank and the appointment of a curator and advisory board, which course had been adopted. The Ontario Bank could not be regarded as being in liquidation, although later it might go into bankruptcy.

Mr. McGill Felt Hurt.

An injured feeling seemed to pervade the conversation of Mr. Charles McGill, ex-manager of the bank, last night, and he was not desirous of talking for publication.
Asked if he had been assisting the directors in straightening out the affairs of the bank, he said that none of them had been to see him, and he had not been taking any part in the liquidation proceedings. He felt that he had not been fairly treated in the matter, and expressed a disinclination to talk. He was asked if it were true that a pension fund had been established, of which the clerks would reap no benefit after paying into it for many years. He replied that the clerks were not getting the worth of it. They had been liberally treated, and would not lose anything.

The story that there had been a pension fund was not correct, as while such a move was in contemplation, it had never been carried into effect. It was understood that the pension fund had been established, and the question has been debated whether the clerks of the Ontario Bank who have been taken over would be given credit for the time they have served with the defunct institution and allowed to share in the fund of the Bank of Montreal. This was but a minor matter, however, and of little importance in comparison with the situation in which the shareholders found themselves.

Meeting of Cabinet.

The Ontario cabinet held a long session yesterday afternoon, and the greater part of their time was taken up in discussing the Ontario Bank failure. Nearly every member of the cabinet was present. The meeting included: Hon. J. P. Whitney, prime minister; Hon. J. J. Foy, Hon. Col. Matheson, Hon. Dr. Reaume, Hon. Dr. Pyne, Hon. Frank Cochrane, Hon. Nelson Monteith and Hon. Col. Hendrie. Col. Hendrie had only arrived in the city yesterday after a visit of two months in England.

After the meeting every member of the cabinet was practically dumb on the Ontario Bank subject.
"Yes, we discussed the matter," said Mr. Foy. "But I'm not saying anything about it."
"Would the prime minister be able to say what was done?" was asked. "Perhaps he might talk," was the laconic answer.
Mr. Whitney was seen a little later (Continued on Page Eight.)

Warrants Out For Arrest of Ontario Bank Officer

Toronto Dispatch Says Ex-Manager McGill Is About To Be Arrested.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—The arrest of Charles McGill, former general manager of the wrecked Ontario Bank, may be expected at any moment. A warrant was issued this morning for the arrest.

Mr. McGill is charged with falsifying the Government returns regarding current loans in 1905 and 1906. The issuance of the warrant was the result of a conference between Hon. J. J. Foy, attorney-general, Crown Attorney Drayton and James Bicknell, K. C., representing the Bankers' Association.

A summons also has been issued for Mr. G. R. R. Cockburn, president of the bank.

The charge against Mr. Cockburn is that he, as president of the bank, willfully signed false returns of the position of the bank to the Minister of Finance and the Receiver-General. It is now stated the notes under discount in the bank are really over $200,000 less than stated in the returns, while the assets of the bank were padded. The total shortage is believed to be $1,000,000.
It is not improbable that action will be taken against other directors of the bank.

OLD BRIDGE DOWN IN TWO HOURS

Didn't Take Grand Trunk Gang
Long to Remove Wharn-cliffe Structure.

The overhead bridge which has spanned the Wharncliffe road over the Grand Trunk's tracks is a thing of the past.

This morning a large gang of Grand Trunk workmen attacked the structure, and in less than two hours it had disappeared.

The company is hustling the work from all points.

The gully, where the present tracks run, is to be filled in, and a temporary track is being laid at one side on the high ground, on which to run reconstruction cars.

In twenty minutes this morning the men laid 800 feet of the new track.

This is said to be a record in railway construction.

All traffic, street cars included, has been removed from the Wharncliffe until such times as the new subway is completed.

HAVE NO INCOME

Windsor Railwaymen Maintain Their Salaries Should Not Be Assessed.

Windsor, Oct. 17.—About 300 railway employees in Windsor will appeal against the income taxes under the fall assessment. Their contention is that they should not have to pay the tax at all, alleging that they are not receiving incomes at all, but are working by the day, receiving pay only for such days as they work, and that they consequently do not come within the regulation.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE

First Quarter Shows an Increase of Twenty-Seven Millions.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—The first quarter of the present financial year closed with a total aggregate foreign trade for Canada of $150,435,000, being $28,774,470 more than for the same period of 1905. The imports, including coin and bullion, for this period, were $80,141,557, a gain of $12,148,682. Exports of all kinds reached a total of $70,293,443, an improvement of $14,625,797, as against the first three months of the previous fiscal year. Exports of domestic products were $3,312,435 more, the total being $61,983,024. One class of exports showed a falling off, viz., fisheries, amounting to $380,000. The largest increase in exports of domestic products was in minerals and their products, $3,214,322, lumber coming next with a gain of $3,125,346, and agricultural products third with $2,515,621. The total betterment in the classes of exports in which the farmers are mainly interested was $5,729,553. Exports of manufactures were $26,238, ahead of the first three months of 1905.

BADLY POUNDED

SS. Mexico Has Rough Passage From Cuba to New York.

New York, Oct. 17.—Unusually severe weather was experienced by the steamer Mexico, which arrived here from Havana today. Captain Stevens said that from the time the Mexico passed Morro Castle, until she reached New York, there was a succession of heavy gales with high seas. The steamer pitched and rolled violently, and all the passengers were seriously affected. Off Cape Lookout the gale from the north increased to 70 miles an hour, and the great seas pounded the Mexico continuously until after she had passed Sandy Hook.

The Mexico brought among her passengers a number of newspaper correspondents who went to Cuba during the recent revolution.

BY ACCLAMATION.

St. John's, Que., Oct. 15.—At the nomination here today to select a candidate to fill the vacancy in the Dominion House caused by the elevation of Mr. Louis Philippe Demers to the bench, Mr. Joseph Demers, brother of the former member, was elected by acclamation.

THREATENS LIFE,

Demented Young Woman Missing—Authorities Asked to Locate Her.

Chief of Police Williams, of this city, has received a letter from the police authorities in Brantford, asking him to try and locate a young woman by the name of Carrie Young, who mysteriously disappeared from her home there early on Saturday morning.

The letter gave the following description of the missing woman: Age about 20, tall, dark complexion, weight about 145 pounds.

On Friday morning last Miss Young was heard to say that she was tired of life, and purposed ending it all. On Saturday morning she dressed herself in her sister's old clothes, and has not been heard of since.

The missing woman is a sister of Mr. Dyer, of 242 Clarence street, this city, who is very anxious to obtain some information as to her whereabouts.

Miss Young visited her sister in this city in July last, and since then has been troubled with acute nervousness. The girl's parents are in a state of great anxiety, and have notified the police of all the surrounding towns, but so far all search for the daughter has been in vain.

Owing to her threat, it is feared that she may have committed suicide.

CLEEGYMAN'S WIFE DEAD

Passing of Mrs. Ferguson, Former Resident of This City.

A telegram received in the city today announced the death at York, Haldimand County, of Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, wife of Rev. James Ferguson, pastor of the Methodist Church there.

An affection of the heart is supposed to have been the cause of death. Mrs. Ferguson was the eldest daughter of the late William Treblecock, merchant, of this city, and resided here until her marriage. She is survived by her husband, two children, Mary and John, who are attending Toronto University, and two sisters, Mrs. E. J. Liddicoat, and Miss Treblecock, of St. James street, city. The remains will be brought here for interment.

The death of Mrs. Ferguson was not altogether unexpected. When her children were in the city for the funeral, she was able to be about, but her condition became so serious on Saturday last that they were called home. Mr. Ferguson is at present suffering from typhoid fever, and his condition is said to be critical.

The friends of Mrs. Ferguson in this city (where he was once stationed as pastor of the old King Street Methodist Church), and in several Western Ontario towns where he has been stationed, will extend their sympathy.

CANADA AND IRELAND

New York, Oct. 17.—T. P. O'Connor, Irish member of Parliament, returned to this city from a visit to Canada last night.

"I spoke in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto," said Mr. O'Connor, "and I found not only enthusiasm for the cause of Irish freedom, but the Canadians subscribed liberally for our work. Of course, I found some opponents, but Canada, as a whole, is on the side of home rule for Ireland. At the meeting in Ottawa, Sir Wilfrid Laurier sat in the front row, and at the close of my speech, proposed a vote of thanks. He said that every true Canadian was in our favor. Several ministers of the different provinces subscribed, as did Chief Justice of the Dominion Fitzpatrick."

"I expect to sail for home next week, on Wednesday, and my time this week will be taken up in preparation for the mass meeting in Carnegie Hall next Sunday."

"Never since the days of Parnell, did I see such a swelling towards Ireland as there is in this country today. From the President down I have met no American who does not hope that the last hour of Ireland's affliction is at hand. We are going to win, and win soon."

Mr. O'Connor said that two members of Parliament, Messrs. Mary and Kettle, were on their way to this country on the steamship Baltic. They will spend some months on this side, making speeches and organizing branches of the United Irish Society.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 17.

THE LIBERALS OF LONDON.

The Liberals of this city, as a body, are decent, upright citizens, who want pure elections, and would rather lose by fair means than win by foul means. They have no desire to conceal or extenuate offenses committed in the name of the Liberal party. They wish to see their party purged of corruption, the unclean members of their political household utterly cast out. They are not averse to the fiercest light being thrown upon the last or any election in this city, or any methods practiced by professing Liberals. Although the present belated inquiry is irregular and illegal, no attempt has been made to stop it on technical grounds. The highest interests of the Liberal party in London and elsewhere will be served by an honest and thorough exposure of wrongdoing. All that decent Liberals ask is that investigation shall be honest and sincere.

The legal machinery in this Province is in the hands of one party, and Liberals feel and believe that it is being manipulated solely with a view to the advantage of that party, and with no regard for the higher interests of public and political morality which Liberals and Conservatives should cherish in common. It is only too clear that the party in power is prostituting the administration of justice by gratuitous attempts to blacken the reputation of innocent men, because they are prominent in the Liberal councils. The sweat-box and other modes of terrorizing witnesses have been freely employed, and there has been an absolute contempt of the forms of law by attorneys who have virtually taken the law into their own hands.

This is not an isolated case of injustice to the Liberals of London, but one of many. The dice has been loaded against them for 30 years. During all that time they have had to ceaselessly fight against fraud, bribery, perjury, debauchery and the whole brood of electoral wrongs, and a journalistic thuggism without a parallel in any community in this country. No methods have been too devious and underhand, no weapon too foul, for the destruction of the Liberal cause in this one-time stronghold of Toryism. Is it any wonder that Liberals burn with a sense of resentment when they think of the injuries they have had to endure, of their long uphill fight against unscrupulous foes, and then are forced to listen to the pharisees proclaim that all the evil is to be found in the Liberal ranks?

IS THE WORLD BECOMING VULGAR?

Sir William Blake Richmond, a celebrated British academician, complains of the increasing "vulgarization" of the world. Man, he asserted, before a London audience, is becoming vulgarly superficial. His taste is declining, his creative genius is departing. Commerce unloads upon him its flood of undesirable and unlovely objects. He fails to wear tasteful clothes and personally becomes an uninteresting object. As he grows more democratic he loses all desire for individual advancement. He is adding nothing to literature, nothing to art. He is a creature of little thought with a smattering of scattered knowledge and a profound indifference to all that goes to make the world beautiful. Perhaps, says the sorrowful academician, all this vulgarization is the result of our popular education, which stupefies the popular mind with heterogeneous knowledge.

Is not Sir William himself taking a superficial view? "Every ship is romantic except that we sail in." The past is always picturesque. We see it through the haze of history and the medium of the imagination. It is dressed up for us by literature and art. We think of the plumed and armored knights such as gallop through the pages of the Waverley novels; the resplendent costumes of the beaux and belles of yore, not forgetting George the Fourth's pink coat upon which Thackeray descants; the cathedrals and castles, the pageantry and chivalry of feudal times; the works of the old masters. We are apt to get the idea that the color and music are fading out of life. But is it not true that the glamor of the past is largely due to the barbaric extremes of wealth and poverty, and the rigid separation of classes, which are melting away in an age of triumphant democracy? We see only one side of the picture, the pomp and splendor of the ruling and privileged caste, but not the misery of the common people, the sordid and ignorance and vulgarity in which most of them were submerged. Even in the course of a century there has been a tremendous uplift in comfort, morality, humanity and all that makes for enlightenment and happiness.

One is inclined to inquire whether Sir William Richmond has ever read Lecky's "History of European Morals" or other works which deal with the social conditions of the past. The people of today are better clothed, better fed, better housed than their progenitors. As for the esthetic side of life, they are being surrounded as never before by objects of art and beauty, and with opportunities for self-improvement. Free libraries are being showered upon them; pictures and statues are assembled for them in public galleries; they hear the noblest music; they have free schools; they may travel and see the world as their ancestors could not. These are not agencies that are making for the vulgarization, but for culture and refinement. The life of the average man today is richer and fuller and deeper than the life of the average man at any period in the world's history. Better his mind should be "stuffed with heterogeneous knowledge" than remain a blank. There is no reason for Sir William Richmond's pessimism or why his artistic soul should writhe when he looks around him. "The good old times" are a delusion.

The Hon. Walter Scott was dragged into the London election inquiry without a particle of justification. The main object of the procedure is to throw mud at shining marks in the Liberal party.

Some Canadian newspapers are talking as though every citizen of London has his palm out during elections. Happily, the advice of the London Free Press is not generally followed here.

The London Free Press should be hailed before Magistrate Denison for inciting to bribery in the Hyman-Gray election. What does the Attorney-General think about it?

Mr. Girdestone, of Bristol, England, a big shipping man, censures the Dominion Government for not spending more money on the harbor facilities at Montreal. Ye gods! The whole Tory press has been abusing the Government for spending so much.

Newfoundland is perhaps unwisely petulant in refusing courtesies to an American ship; but it is nothing to the selfish stupidity of the United States in alienating the friendship of the island colony. The United States might have had the bulk of the colony's trade, to the exclusion of Canada, but for the narrow protectionist views of the Senate. Newfoundland, like Canada, is now so prosperous that she can afford to snap her finger at her big neighbor. Her destiny is with the Dominion, not the republic.

WHAT LABOR'S M. P.'S COST.

[The Spectator.]

An interesting official statement is made with regard to the finances of the Labor party in Thursday's papers. Each of the 29 M. P.'s qualified to receive benefits from the parliamentary fund is paid £200 a year, and this, with other necessary expenses—percentage of returning officers' fees, salary of a clerk to the whips, etc., and percentage to general fund—bring the total expenditure to £6,290 per annum. Last year's income being only £4,000, the executive announce that they will propose at the next annual conference that payments to the parliamentary fund of the Labor representation committee should be raised from a penny to two pence per member per annum. With an income of £8,000 a margin of £1,500 would be left to meet the further charges of maintenance and returning officers' fees anticipated from the increased representation of labor in Parliament.

UNIVERSITY ENDOWMENTS.

[The Forum.]

Today Harvard's endowment amounts to $18,000,000, that of Chicago $20,000,000, and that of Leland Stanford to possibly twice as much. The annual budgets of at least four of our American universities have passed the million dollar mark, and the annual expenditure of a dozen others amounts to half that sum.

WHAT TIPPING COSTS KING.

[New York Press.]

King Edward disburses a good deal of money in tips every year. Each visit to one of his subjects costs him from $1,000 to $3,000. At shooting parties the game beaters get $15 each and the gamekeepers $25 to $50 each. When he goes abroad he does still better. On the occasion of his recent visit to the Kaiser he gave away nearly $10,000 in this way. When the Czar visited England he left behind a check for $15,000 to be distributed among servants who attended him.

COLOR OF THE BRIDE'S GOWN.

[Church Ecclesiastic.]

It is interesting to note that the choice of white for wedding dresses is comparatively a modern fashion. The Roman brides were yellow, and in the most eastern countries pink is the bridal color. During the middle ages the resplendent brides wore crimson, and most of our Plantagenet and Tudor queens were married in this vivid hue, which is still popular in parts of Brittany, where the bride is usually dressed in crimson brocade. It was Mary Stuart who first changed the color of bridal garments. At her marriage with Francis II. of France, in 1553—which took place not before the altar but before the great doors of Notre Dame—she was gowned in white brocade, with a train of pale blue Persian velvet six yards in length. This innovation caused quite a stir in the fashionable world at that time. It was not, however, till quite the end of the seventeenth century that pure white—the color hitherto worn by royal French widows—became popular for bridal garments in England.

RIDING ASTRIDE.

[London Cable to New York American.]

Riding horseback astride for women has become so much the rage in high society here now that even His Highness Sayaji Rao III, the Gaekwar of Baroda, who recently toured the United States, has ordered a divided skirt for his daughter, the Princess Indira. This order has been given to a fashionable Regent street habit maker.

For the last five years efforts have been made to introduce the divided skirt for women and the mode of riding astride. But, while many women struck out in that direction, it never became "the style" until quite recently, when Lady Castlereagh was seen in Hyde Park astride a horse and in divided skirts. Since that time it has been quite the thing, and now nearly all women are beginning to adopt it. Among others of the nobility who have taken up the mode are Lady Constance Stewart Richardson and the Duchess of Westminster.

The new style of riding has been attacked in the London press, and the press generally, except of course in the fashionable papers, which chronicle only that which society decries.

Riding masters have expressed their disapproval of the new style of horsemanship. They say that the side saddle is not only the safest style of riding, but also the easiest and most comfortable. They point out that the pommels are constructed in such a way that unless a woman faints or absolutely loses all her nerve she cannot fall off.

FORBIDDEN TO EAT IT.

[Boston Herald.]

It happened in a crowded street car. The noted Rabbi Hirsch had arisen to give his seat to a young woman, but before she could take it a burly young fellow slid into it.

The rabbi looked meaningfully at him and, after an uncomfortable silence the young fellow blurted out: "Well, what're you glarin' at me for? Want to eat me, eh?"

"No," calmly replied the rabbi; "I am forbidden to eat you—I am a Jew."

FLOWERS OF SPEECH.

[Pall Mall Gazette.]

At an education meeting the other day a zealous orator reproved his fellow churchmen for having so long been content to "take the crumbs from the dissenters' table lying down."

In a lecture on Oliver Cromwell occurs the statement that "his little finger lay much heavier on the people than the King's lions had ever had."

A correspondent of a religious journal, criticising a gross misstatement, insists on the necessity of "promptly nailing all similar lies to the mast."

A session or two ago an Irish Liberal was reported to have said in the House of Commons that by "letting in the thin end of the wedge of land national-ism the Government were laying on all sides seeds of disease which would in the future bring down the whole edifice upon their heads."

NEWFOUNDLAND'S BETRAYAL.

[Toronto Globe.]

That Newfoundland is discontented and indignant over the terms of the modus vivendi gives grounds for the fear that colonial interests have been sacrificed to international amity. The interests of the colony should be the ruling consideration in all such negotiations and arrangements. Newfoundland has nothing to give away, and nothing to barter that the United States cannot afford to pay for. Friendship, like gold, may be bought too dear.

PURIFIED MENU.

[Brooklyn Life.]

Guest—Waiter, look here; I don't want the bill served with each course. Bring it when I've finished.

Waiter—Beg pardon, sir, but those are not bills, sir; those are certificates the law requires, sir, so you may be sure you are eating exactly what you ordered, sir.

NOT A NEW THING.

[Montreal Herald.]

Hon. George Useless Foster, the gentleman with the vaseline nose, is developing a hot box in his testimony before the insurance commission.

THEY WILL NOT.

[Winnipeg Free Press.]

It is not likely that the people of Canada will be in a hurry to put their trust funds in George E. Foster's care.

THE LAST QUEST.

[La Sonciapensier.]

In the Legend house there was a great dinner. After a while the maid was called, and the mistress said: "Serve the dinner; there is no one else to come except a relation of little importance."

Five minutes afterwards the maid announced in a loud tone:

"The relation of little importance!"

OUT OF DANGER.

[Woman's Home Companion.]

Dr. Whipple, long Bishop of Minnesota, was about to hold religious services near an Indian village in one of the Western States, and before going to the place of the clergical asked the chief who was his host whether it was safe for him to leave his effects unguarded in the lodge.

"Plenty safe," grunted the red man. "No white man in a hundred miles from here."

BULLS OF STATESMEN.

[Westminster Gazette.]

In his speech at Hawick the other day Lord Rosebery made this remark: "As a well-known statesman said on a famous occasion, 'I hear a smile.'" According to the Edinburgh Dispatch, the form was somewhat different from that which Lord Rosebery gave to it. Mr. Gladstone was addressing the House, probably on the Irish question, away back in the eighties. An observation of the right honorable gentleman tickled the fancy of Mr.

Laibouchere. "The honorable gentleman smiles," said the G. O. M. "No," said Mr. Laibouchere, shortly. "I heard him do it," said Mr. Gladstone promptly, and then the whole House was heard to smile. It was in the same debate that an impassioned Irish member declared: "The Government is taking a leap in the dark, compared with which all previous leaps are a mere flea bite," and when the uproar had subsided, Mr. Laibouchere interposed to say that what the honorable member meant to say was a "mere flea leap." Lord Rosebery himself, according to our contemporary, is not above an occasional lapse into a bull. They tell of a recent occasion when he declared that spade-work was necessary lest the wave be lost in space, but doubtless Lord Rosebery would have put it more neatly than that. Mr. Gladstone once declared that "we must not take our stand on the shifting sands of schemes that are hatched from day to day." A well-known member of the Upper House, who not long since played a noteworthy part in ecclesiastical controversies, ended an impressive peroration as follows: "All classes, all creeds, all ranks, Irish member declared: 'The Government is taking a leap in the dark, compared with which all previous leaps are a mere flea bite,' and when the uproar had subsided, Mr. Laibouchere interposed to say that what the honorable member meant to say was a "mere flea leap." A MISSION FULFILLED

Alas! there were no third-class carriages upon the express; she must wait for a later, slower train. It seemed the last straw upon her exhausted frame; and she staggered and turned pale as she retreated to the waiting-room. Two more hours to wait, and then a parliamentary train! If only she had but possessed two or three shillings more in her purse she would have paid the difference, and traveled second-class; but it was nearly empty, and she dared not risk infringing upon the small sum she had put aside for her night's lodging. She dared not even spend more than one or two pence in the refreshment she so sorely needed.

And what if they refused to receive her at the Grange? What if Mrs. Ronaldson were to turn her from the door? Margherita would scarcely have permitted herself to picture possibilities so terrible, but so unlikely, had she not been exhausted by hunger and fatigue; as it was, the demon of doubt and anxiety found an active ally in her condition of unusual weakness. She rejoiced, however, to think how utterly unavailing was Keith's effort to overcome the circumstances which demanded of his wife even that concession to pecuniary shortness; and as she heard him in silence, and appeared to acquiesce, it never entered her head that she would do otherwise. He certainly never dreamed of her making the long and weary journey in close and crowded third-class carriages, or her rare and inefficient meals, of the second-rate inn to which she had made up her mind to go in London. Had he done so, he would have been furious; but Margherita had the unselfish duplicity of a woman in these matters. She knew how Keith's aversion to borrowing had made him ask for but a small sum from his friend Spencer; and how the pride of a gentleman had induced him greatly to understate the real need which Spencer's generosity would have insisted upon relieving more fully.

With a nobility that greatly touched her, Keith had at once brought to her the entire loan, untouched, and placed it in her hands; and when she returned the residue to him, two days afterward, to expend during her absence, he knew not how much had gone in paying small out-standing debts, and making arrangements for the child's future comfort, and how little had been retained in her own purse for the purposes of her journey.

So far, however, Margherita had found her economy of comparatively little annoyance to her. Strong of physique and brave of spirit, long hours and rough company, and even shortness of food, were but minor trials to her; and it was only now, as she tottered toward the waiting-room, that she realized for the first time that it was possible to overdo things, and that, when she despised the body overmuch, the body has a nasty trick of taking its double revenge upon both itself and mind. She was not only weary to death, sick with hunger and sleeplessness; she was also, for the moment, broken in spirit, nervous, and unhappy. Suddenly a figure passed before her, and an exclamation roused her from her dreamy apathy. She had scarcely noticed passers-by; in the early twilight of the winter's evening and owing to her own condition, they were to her "as trees walking"; but, at the sound of the voice beside her, she started and opened her eyes in bewildered consciousness to recognize Gordon Hatherley.

"Why, Mrs. Ronaldson!" he exclaimed, in tones divided between pleasure and astonishment, "is it really you? I had no idea you were in England."

"I have only just arrived," she said, smiling feebly.

"And your husband—he is here?"

"No, I have come over alone—to do some business—for him," she added, hastily.

Hatherley was far too delicate to continue the subject.

"And now you are going on by this train? So am I. I have just returned from a run over to Paris. There is plenty of time before the train starts. May I find you a place now, or would you rather wait here?"

"I am not going on," she faltered, turning crimson. "Not till the next train."

"Not till the next train?" he repeated, amazed. "You have business here? But that is a terribly slow train. Can I get you a cab, then?" he continued, in a disappointed tone. "Can we not have five minutes' talk first?"

"I am going to remain here," she said, turning toward the door of the waiting-room. "I will stay outside if you like. You can talk to me till your train goes. But—but I must get something to eat."

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed, abruptly, "you are going to faint!"

In truth, she had suddenly swayed, and her face was deathly white, as she took the arm he involuntarily stretched out. She caught herself upon the bench and smiled again.

"No, only tired," she said; "I want my night's rest."

"Take some of this," said Gordon, hurriedly, as he poured some cherry brandy from his flask into the cup. "Now, you are safe, and I can be left for a moment, while I get you something to eat."

"Quite sure," she said, smiling up at him. The cordial had already revived her, and sent a faint returning flush into the pale cheeks, but a new terror took possession of her as he turned away.

"I want very little—very little," she said, flushing again deeply; "anything will do."

In a few moments he returned, and offered her his arm. She trembled as she walked beside him to the refreshment room. Why had she been so great a coward to say, "I cannot afford to pay for a meal?" Yet perhaps it had been better for her to hold her tongue after all. This young man, a comparative stranger, though after some fashion an old friend, must not be permitted to guess the circumstances to which Keith's wife had been reduced—not even if the penalty she had to pay for her silence were a purse so reduced in contents that her lodging in town would have to be of third not second-rate order.

But she deceived herself in fancying that she had deceived him; she underrated somewhat the powers of perception possessed by her companion.

Something Gordon Hatherley had divined of the truth—enough to make his pulse beat more quickly, to send the blood to his face, and to bring a sharp pang of mingled pain and indignation to his breast. Good heavens! was she in want? Was she hungry?

Like everyone else, he had heard the outline of the story—perhaps, through Lady Tensdale, a little more than everyone else—of Keith's exasperation, the dark cloud under which his name rested, his father's anger; and his quick eye, resting upon Margherita's severely simple dress, was not slow to guess the reason why Mrs. Keith could not travel by this train. The perception of the truth caused him a thrill of horror, perhaps exaggeratedly sharp. Those who have spent all their lives amid the ease and idleness of the affluent are apt to feel a proportionate dismay when for the first time, the shock falls upon them of realizing a poverty that touches every-day wants, that impinges upon comforts and requirements which have become to them the matter-of-course necessities of life, the habitual concomitants of their position.

So soon as Margherita perceived the well-spread table toward which Hatherley led her, her heart failed her. It was not much, to be sure, but it was the best station fare had to offer, and would, she knew, have to be paid for according to station tariff—in exorbitant charge. Cold chicken, cold ham, grapes, a bottle of wine—She was a brave woman, but she turned sick as she pictured herself alone in London.

Doubled Up With Cramps.

Stomach feels like an infernal machine and you want relief mighty quick. Nothing does the work half so soon as Polson's Nervine. Why it kills the pain instantly. If your bottle is empty get another today. Nervine keeps the doctor bill small because it cures little ills before they grow big. Nothing for indigestion, heartburn and cramps like Polson's Nervine. Large bottles for 25c.

unable to pay for her lodging. Absolute want of food, however, forced her into eating, and as her strength returned, so did her spirits. It might not be as bad as she thought—she should be able to manage something—her ruby ring, perhaps, Keith's engagement ring—ah, it would be a grief to part with that!

Meanwhile Hatherley had seated himself beside her, and shared the meal, chatting the while in his usual agreeable fashion. He asked few questions, but he told her a good deal of general news, and of the affairs of mutual friends; and she, in return, gave him, unasked, particulars of their life in Capri, being reticent only upon the subject of the motive of her present journey.

When she named Keith's occupation he was silent for a moment, but presently answered:

"True, he always had a gift for painting. I remember."

Suddenly she thought herself of his train.

"Ought you not to be off?" she asked. "You will be left behind."

"I mean to be," he replied, calmly. "Did you suppose that I was going to throw away the chance of a good chat with a friend I had not seen for nearly eight months?"

LOCAL OPTION AND THE SOCIAL EVIL.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

As much newspaper comment has been evoked by Magistrate Hunt's remarks at Aylmer, and as he apparently went out of his way to attack local option, it is only fair that the other side of the case should be heard.

Mr. Hunt's remarks concerning local option were uncalculated for and out of place. The case he was investigating was the case of a house licensed to sell liquor. It is a matter of notoriety that the liquor traffic and social evil are so closely connected as to be practically the relationship of cause and effect. Intemperance, which is facilitated by the license system, is generally the cause and encouragement of the other offense. The object and effect of local option is to restrict the liquor traffic, and so to diminish intemperance and lessen attendant evils.

The complaints made before the East Middlesex license commissioners recently, regarding similar offenses, were not directed against unlicensed, but licensed houses. The statement made by the license commissioners of Toronto that rooms were being used for immoral purposes, directly referred to licensed, and not unlicensed houses.

The temperance movement in every phase, including local option work, is a warfare against that evil. It is a battle for purity, for health, for happier homes, for all that makes life richer and better in the best and highest sense. Its advocates may not always be as courageous as they ought to be, but Magistrate Hunt's sneers at them were as unwise as they were unwarranted.

Mr. Hunt's attack was made in the wrong direction. He is totally wrong in his implication that temperance people ought to be expected to act as special detectives and police officers in cases of illegal liquor selling. Inspectors and constables are employed for this work, and while patriotic, private citizens will always assist and co-operate with law enforcing officers, it is not their business to do the work for which these officers are paid. To assume that a man who votes for local option is specially obligated to enforce the liquor law, is as absurd as it would be to argue that an advocate of a high tariff is in duty bound to make himself a detective to prevent smuggling.

What about the magistrate's own position? He states that he has been cognizant of the existence of this evil, that he has seen from ten to thirty rigs tied up to an unlicensed house, knowing that every one carried people there for improper purposes. How is it that he did not call upon the officers of the law to suppress this immorality? Why does he blame private citizens and say no words in criticism of the real delinquents?

As might have been expected several journals have taken up this magisterial deliverance and used it as an argument in favor of licensing the liquor traffic. One paper declares that "local option townships are hotbeds of immorality. Their last state became worse than the first," and says that "the things testified to at the Orwell inquiry at Aylmer are the notorious and flagrant sequences of the attempt to suppress indulgence by coercion." As a matter of fact, the whole exposed iniquity was in a place conducted under the license law, which this selfsame paper supports.

The explanation given is that "these conditions result from the relaxation of official oversight." The license inspector's duties refer to the suppression of liquor selling in the public resorts. Why is there relaxation of official oversight? It is contrary to the law. It is contrary to the wishes and instructions of the Government. An inspector's duty is not merely confined to "public resorts." Even if we were to admit for the sake of argument, the slanderous nonsense that some people talk about increased immorality under local option, we would only admit that law-enforcing officials neglected their duty in those localities, and were striving to bring about and encourage the deplorable conditions which Mr. Hunt declares to be known to him, but which he thinks it is the special duty of private citizens to attack.

Let us be reasonable and fair. The liquor traffic is bad, it is a bad license, and it is bad outside of license. It is bad in the country and it is bad in the town. It ought not to be supported by right-purposed citizens. The Government have repeatedly expressed their desire to see the law enforced, and it is the duty of the regular officials to carry out the instructions which they have received.

The remedy is not in the repeal of local option, nor is it to journalistic or magisterial denunciation of patriotic citizens and excuses for derelict officials. The remedy lies in honest law enforcement, wise co-operation with the officials, and the education of public opinion in favor of both temperance and enforcement of existing laws. Respectfully yours, D. A. McDERMID.

FALL PLANTING
BULBS, SHRUBSSome Helpful Hints Given by Mr. John S. Pearce, Parks
Commissioner.

Parks Superintendent Pearce gives the following useful hints for the fall planting of bulbs, shrubs and trees:

As the season is now at hand for the early ones in the garden, lawn and street planting of trees, a few hints may be of interest to some of the citizens.

Now is the time to get ready and plant your bulbs, such as tulips, narcissus, crocus, snowdrops. A word as to bulbs: Many citizens are not aware or may have forgotten that there are the early and late blooming tulips. By planting some of each you prolong the blooming season to twice the usual length. When room is a consideration they may be planted in the same bed closely together, alternately, and when the early ones are done out on the stems and the late will be about ready to bloom, if not already coming out. But they are better separate. Select your bulbs under the head of early single and late single, being careful to select the varieties which will be the same in fact, all the best catalogues designate this under D. M. T., which means, dwarf, medium, tall. It is most important that you do not plant dwarf and tall in the same bed.

For late blooming, select Byblooms and Bizarres. These have white and yellow ground color, with beautifully feathered and striped markings of crimson, pink, scarlet and other colors. These are very beautiful and interesting to look at and study. Then there are the Gesnerians, Parrots and Darwins, all late blooming. Plant your bulbs pretty close and compact. A small bed closely set has a very much better effect than the same bulbs set in a larger bed. Mass your bulbs as much as possible. For good effect select a combination of colors. A pretty effect in color is to border against the wall of a house or the side of a veranda in three rows, crimson or scarlet, yellow and white, set in the order named, with red next the wall.

Dig beds good and deep, clean out all roots of trees and other growth. Some well-rotted manure, or horse manure is good. Don't use green manure. Rake and smooth well and perfectly, then lay out and plant a good depth, four to five inches and five inches apart each way. To get well down the required depth make a dibble about the same diameter as your largest bulbs. On this nail a cross piece six inches long and five inches from end or point of dibble. Shove this in the depth to the cross bar, then with the thumb and finger press the bulb down firmly to the bottom of this hole. With this little tool you can plant your bulbs both uniform in depth and distance apart. Smooth or rake down nicely and roll or pat firmly with back of spade and your work is done.

When the ground is frozen three or four inches in depth about the first of December, on a patch or covering of four or five inches of straw manure, this keeps the bulbs dormant all winter. In the spring, as soon as they begin to peep through the ground rake this off. Don't neglect this.

Every lover of flowers should have a bed ever so small of narcissus or daffodils. These have been brought to great perfection and beauty the past few years. Plant the same as tulips. Bicolor Horsfieldi is very fine, as are also Principes and Posticus Ornatus. Then a few crocus and snowdrops. These can be planted in the lawn. Scatter indiscriminately with the hand over the ground and plant where they fall using a round small trowel to put them in. A very pretty effect can be had by planting snowdrops between the tulips. The snowdrops flower while the tulips are just on the surface, and when the flowers are over there remains an elegant groundwork of green foliage. Nestling in the grass the crocus and snowdrops look charming. From the 15th to 25th of October is the best time to plant these bulbs. Don't fail to put a few for winter bloom. Put three or four tulips in a 5-inch pot, and ten or twelve crocus or snowdrops.

I had intended to say something about planting trees and shrubs, but my article is now too long, so I will have something to say about these next week.

THE LARGEST LOAD.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 16.—A Duluth dispatch says the steamer Laughlin has loaded 378,000 bushels of wheat, breaking the record of her sister ship, the Jones, last Tuesday of 370,253 bushels. The Laughlin's cargo is undoubtedly the largest wheat cargo ever carried. The Northern Elevator Company made a record in loading the Laughlin, the cargo having been put in at the rate of 1,300 bushels per minute.

Dalhousie, N. B., Oct. 15.—Two children, ages 15 and 8, belonging to Albert Godbout, Nouvelle, Que., were drowned on Saturday evening near McKean's mill, while crossing Stewart's Brook in search of the cows. There was such a heavy freshet after the recent rainstorms that the children were carried away while attempting to wade the river. Other drowning accidents are reported from Bonaventure.

GLUTEN AND CELLULOSE

both enter largely into the composition of a grain of wheat. The object of the scientific miller is to retain as much of the gluten as possible, whilst extracting all the cellulose from the flour.

Gluten is the real strength giver and is contained in the inner "skin" of each grain of wheat. Cellulose is a hard and almost pure white fibre surrounding the gluten and starch cells. It is absolutely indigestible, but its presence in flour cannot be detected except by special chemical tests.

In the milling of "FIVE ROSES" FLOUR, the flour passes through special purifying processes which, although they remove all the cellulose and waste matter, retain all the gluten and nutriment unharmed. Consequently this brand is more nutritive and more economical than ordinary flours.

THE GRAIN BLOCKADE

Railway Construction One Reason for the Lack of Cars.

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—The grain blockade in the west has become so serious as to attract the attention of the boards of trade in Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, and other cities of the west.

Mr. William Whyte has said frankly that the grain is not moving as rapidly as last year, in spite of the increased yield that must be moved. This is said to be due to the use of cars for bringing the westward construction supplies for the various railroads under construction. At Weyburn, Rosthern, Indian Head, Dauphin, Brandon and other points of largest initial shipment of grain the elevators are full, and little more can be received. Much of this grain, which formerly passed through this gateway since the competition of the C. N. R., cuts off via Emerson, and is sent direct to the head of the lakes. This ought to relieve the situation some, but apparently it does not. The boards of trade are urging the railroads to make greater efforts to get the grain out, and apparently the two lines are doing their best, but the blockade is quite general. Navigation is practically closed and the result is most serious for the west, with vast sums tied up which otherwise would have been released for investments.

ROOSEVELT POINTS TO HEARST PERIL

Republican Leaders Aroused to Strenuous Activity.

BIG GUNS TO TAKE THE STUMP

Farmers Up-State Are Said To Be Strong For The Editor Candidate.

Chicago, Oct. 16. — Raymond, of the Tribune, writing his paper from New York, has the following on the political situation in the Empire State. "Probably the best thing that could have happened to Mr. Hughes has been the sudden awakening of the people at the Republican headquarters to the fact that Hearst is not as easy a man as they believed him to be. "President Roosevelt is partially responsible for this sudden change of line. He has sent messages over here within the last day or two to the effect that his information was that Hearst was making more headway throughout the state, as well as in New York city than Chairman Woodruff and his assistants on the state central committee seemed to be aware of.

"Fortunately enough, reports came in from the truly rural districts of the state and of a disquieting character. These reports indicated that a good many Republican farmers seemed to be on the point of voting for Hearst.

Republicans Suddenly Awake. "The Democratic candidate controls not only his own morning paper, which has been circulated freely throughout the state for a year or two, but he also manages an agricultural weekly, and has a sort of Hearst column running in a number of country weeklies which reach almost every county in the state.

"The reports reaching the Republican managers therefore are by no means encouraging. They have suddenly awakened to the idea that this is an off year, and that there is great danger from the over-confidence of Republicans from the decreased registration and from the fact that many Democrats that are really opposed to Hearst will not actually vote against him, but will content themselves with staying away from the polls so as to preserve their party regularity.

"As a result of the scare which has been opportunistically thrown into the Republican managers by the President and other shrewd observers, extraordinary efforts are now being made to bring out the full Republican strength over the state. It is generally the case in an off year that there is a shrinkage in the registration of about 100,000, as compared with that during a presidential year.

Slump in Registration. "The worst of it is that the very class of independent Republicans and Democrats who are now being depended upon to vote against Hearst have not registered.

"Within the last two or three days Hearst and Murphy have completely cemented their alliance. They have compromised on the judicial state and have agreed on a combination of candidates which is thoroughly unfit and which may in the long run hurt Mr. Hearst, a good deal, because of the rottenness of politics here in New York, there always has been something of a sentiment among both parties in favor of a clean and non-partisan judiciary.

"In this respect the Republicans have an immense advantage. They accepted the nomination made for the bench by the lawyers' convention, with a single exception, and that was made in behalf of Judge Roskelly, a Republican now on the bench who has given general satisfaction. The non-partisan character of the nominees for the judiciary put up by the lawyers is shown by the fact that the majority of them were Democrats, and yet the Republicans have endorsed them all, with the single exception noted.

"Murphy insists that he will give

Hearst 90,000 majority in Manhattan and the Bronx. Tammany can accomplish a good deal in the vote getting line when it sets its mind upon it, and now that Mr. Hearst's Independence League has combined on the judiciary and is agreed to withdraw all nominations for congress and the legislature in the Tammany districts, it is practically certain that Hearst will poll a large percentage of the Tammany vote, and to that will be added Mr. Hearst's own peculiar voting on the east and west sides.

"If the situation in Brooklyn was anything like that in New York, Hearst would be assured of a majority in Greater New York, and so large that it would put the Republicans on the defensive and compel them to get out every vote up the state to defeat it.

Hearst-McCurran Feud Bitter. "Apparently, however, the break between Hearst and Pat McCarran is complete. The Independence League nominations for the Brooklyn places have actually been filed at Albany. This is an open declaration of war against McCarran by Hearst. It is not likely the Brooklyn leader will go to the extent of bolting openly, but there are more ways of killing a cat than by choking it to death, and it is not unlikely if Hearst is cut unmercifully by the McCarran Democrats across the river.

"The candidate's attitude in the present fight is a notice to all the Brooklyn regulars that if Hearst is elected governor they will not be on the most favored nation list at Albany. Inasmuch as McCarran and Woodruff managed to get together on the judicial nominations in Kings County, the Democratic leader might expect more consideration at Albany under Hughes, than under Hearst, in any event he is not the kind of a man to forgive open defiance.

"The result is that while Hearst prospects on this side of the river are extremely rosy, in Brooklyn they are the reverse. The greatest surprise of the campaign last year was the carrying of Brooklyn by Hearst. "Remembering the extraordinary way in which Hearst ran in Brooklyn in a community which was supposed to be dead-set against him, the politicians are giving more than usual credence to the stories which are drifting down from the rural districts of the state that Hearst has been capturing a certain percentage of the Republican farmers.

"Within the next week or so, however, the big guns of the national administration will all be thundering in New York. Cannon, Root, Taft, Shaw, Cortelyou, Fairbanks and others are expected to participate in the New York campaign, and it is the intention of the Republican managers to head off the reported gains of Hearst in the country districts by sending through the state the best campaign speakers available in the Republican party."

MUCH GOLD STILL FOUND IN YUKON

Whole of Klondike River From Dawson to Hunker Hill Staked Out.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 16. — The mining industry of the Pacific coast may be said to be on the eve of a great expansion. In the northern fields the Guggenheim interests are the dominating factors, and the works this company intends to undertake will have a material effect on the prosperity of the district. To secure water power was the great problem which the company had to face, and this has been overcome by the projection of a big scheme to connect the Klondike River with the Klondike River by means of a series of ditches and tunnels, and to utilize the power thus derived by the erection of an electric light plant. A dam to be built across Bonanza Creek, above Discovery, will be so planned as to form a lake containing eight miles of shore line. And, besides its size, an interesting feature of this dam is that the cost, with the exception of the pipe line, will represent Yukon labor, Yukon material and Yukon supplies. This dam will provide a steady supply of water, used for hydraulic mining and dredging. A great deal of hydraulic staking has been done this year around Dawson. In fact, the whole of the Klondike River has been staked, from Dawson to Hunker Hill. There is little doubt that before the claims have been operated long they will be acquired by the Guggenheim interests. In view of the number of dredges now operating, and the huge number of claims taken up, it is safe to say the Klondike district will be active two years hence as it was in its palmy days. A great future is predicted for the Klondike district. Much valuable mining work has been done during the past two years, and any instances of hard luck have not been due to absence of the precious metal, but to the expensive methods required to bring about results. Some miners who were confident of the richness of the claims petitioned the government for assistance, and last year the government sent men and machinery into the country to aid in its development. Supplies were sent to Mayo Landing, on the Stuart River, and a road was made from there to Dawson Creek. The country is said to be enormously rich, some of the miners realizing as high as $8 a bucket.

NEWFOUNDLAND WILL NOT SUBMIT

Government to Forward Protest Against Modus Vivendi.

SAY WILL RUIN THE FISHERMEN

Indignation Over Fisheries Arrangement Between Britain and U.S.

at White Head.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 16.—Widespread indignation continues to prevail here, and all over Newfoundland, against the latest sacrifice of the colony's interest under the modus vivendi. It will mean ruin to the fishermen along the west coast, particularly at the Bay of Islands, as under the new arrangement, by the use of purse seines, the fishermen will be prevented from participating in the benefits of the herring fishing even to the limited extent that they did before, when they caught all the herring in nets, and sold them to Americans at prices ranging from $2 to $3.50 per barrel. If the purse seine fishing should be successful the Gloucester crews will be completely independent of a single barrel of herring from them.

There is another feature of the situation that is even more alarming, and that is the purse seine fishing is likely to destroy the herring fishing at the Bay of Islands altogether in a short time, as the shoals of herring caught in the early part of the winter when making for the Humber, which is a comparatively narrow gulf. Under the modus vivendi the Americans have been granted the right to ship Newfoundland fishermen in our own waters, against which the present Government of Sir Robert Bond legislated last year. This is a direct blow to our colonial autonomy, and a complete sacrifice of our rights at the hands of the mother country, and one that our people are determined not to submit to without making the strongest protest.

The subject is the principle topic of discussion on the streets and in the stores and offices today, and the feeling is as strong as it is unanimous that we will not tamely sit down under such a foul violation of national justice. At a church function dinner held at Portugal Cove, near St. John's, his Grace Archbishop Howley, who has always taken a deep interest in the political welfare of Newfoundland, his native country, and who has always been most outspoken in his independence was at stake, sounded the tocsin of alarm that will have its effect throughout the colony. He characterized the modus vivendi as a shameful betrayal of the interests of the people, and said that we should do as our forefathers did in 1857, when the manhood of the country was aroused over a proposed scheme of the British Government to sacrifice the colony to France over the heads of our Government. Then, as in this case, the people were organized, and a petition was set on foot, and public meetings were held. The Legislature was convened, the delegates were sent to Canada, and England, and such a strong protest was made by the colony that the British Government was forced to cancel the obnoxious agreement, and we wrung from the home Government the celebrated "Labouchere despatch."

The people of Newfoundland today were as patriotic and spirited as their forefathers, said the archbishop, and the same course should now be taken if we were to prevent such an invasion of our liberties and our dearest rights from being trampled upon.

Sir E. P. Morris, the minister of justice, who was present at the same function, stated that up to the moment of his speaking the Newfoundland Government had no notice of any modus vivendi being finalized, nor was he aware of the terms of any such measure being finally agreed to. He was not in a position to state the nature of any negotiations that had taken place up to the present, but the public of Newfoundland could rest assured that, as trustees of the interest of the colony, the Government would not permit it to be possible to do in the premises for the best interests of the people. The public would appreciate this when the time was ripe for giving publicity to the facts.

Hon. E. M. Jackman, minister of finance, followed Sir Edward Morris in a speech equally as patriotic and indorsed all that the former had said.

One thing is certain, and that is our people intend to make a fight, and a determined fight, for their rights, and will not consent to be sacrificed on the altar of international expediency. This has happened too often in the past, and has earned for our colony the title of "the sport of historic misfortune."

If the Yankee diplomats can outwit the British Government and win every time on international questions, we are determined that they will not serve us in the same way without protesting all we know how. If all fails, and the home Government will not stay their hands in handing over the herring fishery over to the Connecticut fish merchants, we had a trump card left that will beat the Yankee fishermen at their own game, and that is to equip our local schooners with purse seines and follow the Gloucester men up on the herring grounds. As compared with our men, when it comes to fishing, they are not in it, and our men could easily catch ten barrels of herring to their one. In fact, it is well known that they would not be able to successfully prosecute this fishing at all were it not for the Newfoundland fishermen.

The public are now anxiously awaiting some authoritative pronouncement on the modus vivendi before taking up a course of active opposition. The Evening Telegram, the leading newspaper in St. John's, has taken up the fight in an uncompromising and patriotic manner.

RUNAWAY FATALITY.

FROM THE OLD LAND

English Not Popular in Canada, Says the Yorkshire Post.

London, Oct. 16.—Ernest Terry, in the Yorkshire Post, declares the Government refused him an opportunity to visit Western Canada in order to personally tell the story to the west. He denies antagonism to Canada, and alleges the circulation of glowing accounts by Government agents, which, he says, Germany recently prohibited, and challenges Commissioner Smith to deny there is a house famine in every industrial city in Canada.

Referring to the Barr colony, he says he understands the greatest ambition of the settlers was to see Dr. Barr hanged, drawn and quartered. He reiterates that Englishmen are unpopular, which is not a good sign. Canadians are impatient of criticism of the west. Parkinson, a Frederickton, N. B., immigrant, writes to the Yorkshire Observer that it is evident Mr. Terry did not take much trouble with his report.

Howard Vincent referring to the statement of agents from the Southern States coming to Britain to attempt to divert emigration, says English people are not suited for employment there, and adds, "Moreover, we ought to do all we can to turn the stream of emigration to the colonies. In the last 10 years eight millions of emigrants were allowed to discard British allegiance." At a meeting of the Colonial Continental Church Society at Leeds the Vicar of Leeds said the great flood of emigration, especially to Canada, called for vast help. Rev. James Boyle, district secretary, gave an interesting experience as chaplain on an emigrant steamer, and stated many emigrants would have no church at all in their new homes.

TATTOOED WOMAN ROBBER

Desperate Female Burglars Captured by Police of Paris.

Paris, Oct. 16.—A new sensation in the capture of two female burglars has been enjoyed by Paris. They have recently been making good hauls in the wealthy parts of the city. Plain clothes officers told to watch had their suspicions aroused at the sight of two creatures in long workmen's blouses, with black caps pulled well down to hide the face as much as possible, slinking out of a house. They were carrying odd looking bundles and when questioned one threw aside a set of workmen's tools and made a dash.

After a lively struggle they were secured, and the police were dumfounded to find they had captured two women. One was a big, strapping lass, and her body was tattooed all over with emblems of love, such as hearts pierced with arrows. She was armed with an ugly-looking dagger and a revolver loaded with chewed bullets, a favorite device of the expert French criminal, as the bullet causes a nasty, jagged wound. She had buried her teeth in the neck of one of the detectives before she was finally overpowered.

These two viragos found shelter in a discarded traveling van on the outskirts of the fortifications, and on its being ransacked a great deal of stolen property was discovered and about $125 in money. Their object was to obtain money for two friends undergoing ten years' penal servitude.

LEMIEUX AND BOURASSA.

Quebec, Oct. 16.—Henri Bourassa, M. P. for Labelle, whose break with the Liberal party is now complete, was a speaker at the nomination addresses at Lorette today. The Nationalist leader touched on many questions, and was replied to effectively by Hon. Rudolph Lemieux and Senator Chouquette.

CRISIS OF GIRLHOOD

A TIME OF PAIN AND PERIL

Miss Emma Cole Says that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has Saved Her Life and Made Her Well.

How many lives of beautiful young girls have been sacrificed just as they were ripening into womanhood! How many irregularities or displacements have been developed at this important period, resulting in years of suffering!

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will prepare the system for the coming change and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities.

Miss Emma Cole of Tullahoma, Tenn., writes:

"I want to tell you that I am enjoying better health than I have for years, and I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

"When fourteen years of age I suffered almost constant pain for two or three years. I had soreness and pain in my side, headaches and was dizzy and nervous, and doctors all failed to help me."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking it my health began to improve rapidly, and I think it saved my life. I sincerely hope my experience will be a help to other girls who are passing from girlhood to womanhood, for I know your Compound will do as much for them."

SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

The Y. M. C. A. will hold their annual 'cross-country run tomorrow. The race will be a 5-mile affair. The Y. M. C. A. boys have been in training for several weeks, and some fast going should result.

In addition to the above events, several other local athletic affairs will be pulled off. The Canadian Club 5-mile races, are scheduled for 10 a.m. at Queen's Park. These races are for cups offered by the Canadian Club, the 5-mile event being open to athletic organization, and the 1-mile event to the public and separate schools of the city. Teams of five are to be entered in each event, the first three members of each team across the line to count.

The annual rifle match of the Seventh Regiment will be held at the Cove.

The executive of the O. R. F. U. has granted the Forest City team the privilege of playing Edy, Rau, Black and McMahon in Thursday's game with Dundas. These players will strengthen the team materially, and a great struggle for supremacy is anticipated. One of the largest crowds that ever attended a local football match is looked for.

Tecumseh will take things comparatively easy this week, and expect to jump into the game at Ottawa as fresh as daisies. Querie still walks with a limp, but expects to be all right for Saturday, while it is probable that Fred Graydon will again find a place on the lineup. And it is well to remember that those Indians always win their games by coming from behind in the stretch.—Toronto Telegram.

"Nobody thinks it very strange if the tallenders in baseball turn on the leaders and wallop them. That is because baseball as played by professionals is pretty near an exact science. And even the best ball teams have their off days, you know. So it is with lacrosse. The way things are today, if one team is five per cent below its usual form the other will run up a score on it."—Toronto Telegram.

Sounds as though the Telegram was trying to let the Indians down easy.

The St. Catharines Rugby Club has withdrawn from the junior series of the O. R. F. U. and the remaining two games scheduled in their district will go to Hamilton Y. M. C. A. by default.

There will be several exciting foot-races held in various parts of the country today. Up to date the sole entries are the man with the axe and the turkey.

Young Corbett and Terry McGovern will endeavor to punch holes in each other in a Philadelphia ring tonight. Corbett whipped Terry twice, with two knockouts. Can he repeat? A pretty safe bet on this go is that there will be no knockout registered. The two "hasbeens" won't damage one another very much.

The alleged heavyweight champions, now posing before the public, may safely blow all their care to about wanting to meet Jeffries in the squared circle, as "Jeff" has undoubtedly renounced ring life forever.

The Thistle Bowling Club will hold their annual president-vice-president match tomorrow afternoon. All members are requested to turn out at 2 o'clock sharp.

The Wolsley Barracks Soccer team were bumped to the tune of 1 to 0 last evening by the Normal School.

Rosenben, the greatest sprinter on the American turf, yesterday made a world's record for seven furlongs. The speedy horse covered the distance in 1:22.

It certainly seems that the Forest City Rugby team will have their hands full this week with Dundas here tomorrow, and the Tigers II. at Hamilton on Saturday. However, the boys can be depended on to fight for every foot of ground in the struggles, and the winning team will doubtless be aware that they were in a football game after the final whistle blows.

"Varsity will continue to play Rugby, but the candidates will have to undergo a rigid medical examination in the future.—Toronto Star.

Good idea. "An ounce of prevention is worth a whole cartload of doctors and undertakers."

The Buffalo News, in commenting on Comiskey's present to his White Sox, says: "Smiling Charley Comiskey added a check for $15,000 for the Sox's share of the series, but there hasn't been heard a noise like money falling in the direction of Umpires O'Loughlin and Johnston.

Possibly the umpires made a little extra money selling the pop-bottles which were not thrown at them.

Jake Stahl, manager of the Washington American League ball nine, will coach the Illinois football team. Jake knows the game well.

The latest from San Francisco is to the effect that Jim Jeffries will never fight again unless the San Fernando Valley dries up and the alfalfa burns down to the roots. "This rumor about me fighting again is all wrong," said the champion. "Delaney sprang that about my going back into the ring. He must have got it out of his dream book, for I never led him to it. They must show me something with a better green in it than the long green alfalfa. I've got 160 acres that are bringing from six to seven crops a year, running from two to three tons an acre per crop. I tell you, they have got to show me something very, very good to drag me up to 'Frisco'."

This is only the eighteenth time Jeff has talked this way. His tongue can wag on the same line for a long time yet before he equals Fitzsimmons' "Positively the last," record.

Battling Nelson came near choking to death the other night, after his performance at a Cincinnati theater. Last week Nelson injured his nose while boxing. The surgeon, in dressing the wound, bandaged it up with cotton batting, and this stuff shifted into Nelson's throat while he was eating. The fighting Dane was nearly unconscious when he finally succeeded in extracting the lump of cotton, and the experience has left him in such a weak condition that he was unable to pull off his usual exhibition at the theater the following night.

THE RING.

MELROY BEATS WALCOTT.
Boston, Oct. 17.—Honey Melroy, of Charleston, was given the decision over Joe Walcott, the welter-weight champion, at the end of a fifteen-round bout before the Lincoln A. C. in Chelsea last night. While the bout does not actually settle the welter-weight championship, it generally is conceded to have an important bearing on the possession of the title. Nearly 3,000 people saw the contest. The men were weighed in at 145 pounds. In the first round Walcott scored a knock-down before Melroy had really sized up the colored lad. After that Melroy got in more blows and inflicted more punishment than did Walcott. Melroy tried almost exclusively to land effective body punches.

OBRIEN PUTS TWO OUT.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—Jack O'Brien, of Philadelphia, knocked out two men before the Pacific A. C. here last night. He put out Fred Cooley, his former sparring partner, in three rounds, knocking him down in every round. Cooley landed scarcely a blow. Jim Trimble, a local boxer, succeeded in putting out after nine rounds of fighting. In the terms of the match O'Brien agreed to put each man out inside of ten rounds. Trimble complained of the decision of the referee in counting him out, contending that he was on his feet at the count of ten.

DRAFTING COMMENCES.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 16.—The drafting season for the National Association of Football Clubs opened yesterday. Two hundred and fifty-six cities in the United States and Canada are members of the association, of which John H. Farrell, of this city, is president. He reports the receipt of $64,000 for drafted players up to noon today, at which time the following drafts had been sanctioned:

THEY ADVERTISE THEMSELVES.
Immediately they were offered to the public. The "Farmers' Vegetable Pills" became popular because of the good reports they made for themselves. That reputation has grown, and they now rank among the best medicines for use in attacks of dyspepsia and biliousness, complaints of the liver and kidneys, rheumatism, fever and ague, and the innumerable complications to which these ailments give rise.

TANKARD AND DISTRICT CUP GROUPS ARRANGED BY O. C. A.

Londons and Thistles Placed in Group 3 of Former and Group 6 of Latter.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—The semi-annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association was held this morning at the Queen City Curling Club, and the tankard groupings and district cup competition groupings were discussed.

Milton was changed from group 2 to group No. 1. Fenelon Falls was also added to group No. 1.

Fort Wayne, Ind., made application for membership in the association and were admitted and placed in tankard group No. 6.

Waterloo also sent in an application for membership, which was also granted, and they will play in group 7.

Preston requested that they be transferred from group 7 to group 3. Their request was granted. Palmerston, entered in group 3, sent in a notice of withdrawal, and consequently they were struck out.

District No. 1, of the district cup competition grouping was originally arranged to be played at Toronto.

Newmarket put in a strong plea for a change in their favor. Brampton also requested the play and finally succeeded in securing it.

Scarboro Maple Leafs' application to be changed from district No. 1 to district No. 2 was left to the discretion of the executive. Meaford was added to district No. 3.

Preston requested that they be changed from group No. 4 to group 5, which was granted. The place of play in district No. 4 was changed from Palmerston to Guelph on account of better accommodation. Waterloo and Berlin were changed from district 5 to district 4.

HAS-BEENS COME TOGETHER TONIGHT

McGovern and Young Corbett Fight at Philadelphia—Terry Favorite.

New York, Oct. 16.—Great interest in the McGovern-Corbett fight, which takes place in Philadelphia Wednesday night, is being shown in this city, and when these old-time enemies put up their hands in their third scrap they will carry many thousands of dollars in wagers.

Reports from Corbett's quarters at Stratford, Conn., says the little Denverite was never in better shape. He is being handled by Alex Greggians, the man who put him in shape for his second bout with McGovern.

McGovern has done some very hard work training for the battle, and is as fit as he can be. He looks the Terrible Terry of old and seems tireless when going through his stunts.

McGovern has been training for months, hoping for a fight, and he shows the benefit of his work, both in appearance and action.

Local sporting men who have seen McGovern work, pick him as a sure winner. They figure that Corbett has really not had the time to get to his best form, and that he will not be able to stand the pace set by Terry. On that account McGovern is a 10 to 7

HAVE PURCHASED GREAT STORIES

Two Brilliant Romances To Be Published in the London Advertiser.

The Advertiser has purchased the serial rights to two great stories, both among the popular successes of the year.

One of these is "The Woman in the Alcove," by Anna Katherine Greene, whose works have a larger sale than those of any other woman writer in America. "The Woman in the Alcove" is a thrilling story of love, mystery and tragedy. It will be begun in the middle of next week, when the present serial, "A Mission Fulfilled," is completed, and will be published in daily installments.

The second story is the "Doubloons," by Eden Philpotts and Arnold Bennett, the famous English writers of fiction, who work in collaboration. The "Doubloons" will be published in The Saturday Advertiser only, beginning Nov. 3. Oppenheim's brilliant romance, "The Betrayal," now running in the Saturday Advertiser, will be completed on Oct. 27. The "Doubloons" will prove one of the strongest stories that Advertiser readers have enjoyed.

CANCELED ENGAGEMENT

Grand Management Would Not Allow Musical Comedy To Play Here.

"Will-o'-the-Wisp," an alleged musical comedy, which was traveling on wind, was booked in for the Grand tonight and tomorrow night.

Manager Stewart heard that it was yellow, however, and in order to protect his patrons he went to St. Thomas to witness the production.

In ten minutes he saw enough to make him cancel the London engagement.

The St. Thomastics simply roared "trou" at the effort and the cast, and at the close it appeared as though the crowd was going to put on a mob scene of its own.

Today the company, it is alleged, is in financial straits. The Pere Marquette Railway is holding the baggage car and refuses to yield up the cost of the trip, unless such time as money due it is produced.

It is said the company is made up of sidishow people who were seen at the Toronto and London fairs.

MAD DOG SCARE

There was a mad dog scare in the south end of the city today.

It was reported to Sergt. Birrell that a mad dog was cutting queer capers around the corner of Colborne and Grey streets, and Officer Black was sent to investigate.

The policeman found a canine, which it is said was suffering from distemper, and was taking fits, and it was dispatched by a revolver.

LOOKING INTO THE BANK'S AFFAIRS

and met the question by the following laconic reply:

"You can say that the matter has not escaped the attention of the Government."

"Did you discuss the question this afternoon?" was asked.

"Yes, you can say that."

"Is the Government going to take any steps in the matter?"

"Now, I have only to say that the matter has not escaped the attention of the Government," repeated the prime minister.

Hon. Dr. Pyne was standing near and also replied to the above question, saying that it was not in the information before the Government on the question, it might do something.

To this sentiment the prime minister added an assent.

Beyond these few remarks none of the minister could be induced to say anything about the Government's intentions.

Hon. Col. Matheson, provincial treasurer, stated that the Government's deposit of $75,000 in the Ontario Bank had been formally transferred to the Bank of Montreal.

A Brighter Outlook. "I shall be very much disappointed if the assets of the Ontario Bank do not realize more than 60 or 70 cents on the dollar for shareholders."

The above, the semi-official statement extracted from the remarks of principals, was made today by one of the directors of the Ontario Bank. He added that when the Royal was making its examination they naturally wrote everything down at a low basis, and their summary was ahead of that figure. In addition, one item they put down as worthless has since yielded a sum to the bank of $50,000.

That the outlook for shareholders is distinctly better was also shown by remarks made incidentally today by Geo. R. R. Cockburn, president of the Ontario.

He said that more returns were coming in daily from investments which would place the bank in a better position. In addition, the $1,250,000 already given in the bank shortage, has not as yet been found larger, according to Mr. Cockburn, corroborated by Mr. Stavert, of the Bank of Montreal. The latter said as far as he knows, Charles Mc Gill, former manager, has not made any statement to the bank of his list of investments.

Information gradually leaking out about the affairs of the Ontario Bank has led to a demand in some quarters that the books of the head office of the bank be placed in safe custody.

The books are the evidence on which the responsibilities of the directors will largely be determined, both on the civil and criminal side of the law, and that they should not be left to the custody of the men whose liabilities to shareholders can disclose or fail to disclose.

It is stated that the books disclose entries of loans of large sums for which no securities at all were held, and that these entries have been carried in the books for several years. These entries of loans are believed to be charged against the bank's capital, both local and foreign, but it is claimed that no such indebtedness exists; that such entries merely cover payments made by Mr. McGill for purchases of stocks on margins, and that the accounts were closed out from two to five years ago. The amounts involved are stated variously to be from $700,000 to $800,000.

NEARLY ALL INFANTS are more or less subject to diarrhoea and such complaints while teething, and as this period of their lives is the most critical, mothers should be without a bottle of Dr. J. C. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. This medicine is a specific for such complaints, and is highly spoken of by those who have used it. The proprietors claim it will cure any case of cholera or summer complaint.

The total corralage required for a first-rate man-of-war weighs about 80 tons and exceeds $15,000 in value.

HAMILTON COUPLE COMMIT SUICIDE

Facing Starvation, an Aged Norwegian and His Wife Take Carbolic Acid.

Hamilton, Oct. 16.—Despondent because he was unable to obtain work and his money was all gone, Andrew Envaldser, an aged Norwegian, entered into a suicide pact with his wife last night, and when the police broke into their home on Keith street this morning the old couple were found lying dead side by side, with a carbolic acid bottle on the floor. The old man gave a little girl a note last night to take to Dr. Parry. It was not delivered until today.

"When you are reading this," it said, "we will both be dead."

In another note found in the house were directions to pay some small bills, a pawn ticket for a gold watch, and a note for that purpose, and thanked the neighbors for their kindness when the old couple were facing starvation.

DOUKHOBORS ARE SETTING THE PACE

They Will Use Telephones and Electric Lights in Their Villages.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 17.—Peter Verigin, the well-known Doukhobor leader, who has directed the progress of the Doukhobors since their coming to Western Canada, is on his way to Russia. He intends returning in the spring with a large party of immigrants. Verigin said:

"So much unjust criticism has been aimed at the Doukhobors recently that a true account of their doings is necessary. The past season from April 15 up to Oct. 10, most of our number were employed on construction work on the G. T. P. Every man available whom we could spare was employed on construction work. Macdonald & Macmillan, the well-known contractors, employed no less than 800 men. I do not think, however, we will do any construction work next summer, but will concentrate our energies on our holdings. The past summer we have erected in Verigin a $35,000 roller and flourmill, the first of which is of solid cement on cement piers. We have two brick yards, one in Verigin and one in Swan River, while we manufacture our own cement blocks in Yorkton. Settlers outside of ourselves have seen the satisfaction these cement blocks have given and many of them have ordered them in future construction. We have constructed a spur track ourselves to the yard in Verigin, and this has proved a great convenience. Work on a 50,000-bushel elevator will be commenced in the immediate future. We also intend installing our graded roads in several villages. We had intended using kerosene, but think electricity less expensive. Forty or fifty schools are to be erected, where the young will receive English education. Already five or six schools are operating, but we intend employing lady teachers, as we think the scholars will become more attached to female than male instructors. On Sundays these schools will be used as places where we will worship in our own faith."

The 22 villages of which Verigin is the center, are connected by graded roads built by the Doukhobors themselves, with the Swan River colony, which contains 18 villages, and the Good Spirit Lake colony, which includes seven villages. Harvesting has been considerably delayed by the absence of the men on construction work, but they are now being released from operations will be rushed. The yield from what has already been threshed has proven very satisfactory.

To the question as to the probable repetition of the dissatisfaction which once prevailed, Verigin stated he had no fears. "Our people," he said, "were formerly anxious in mind. They did not know the future the country had in store for them, and naturally were dissatisfied. They are so prosperous now, however, and see that the present prosperity is likely to continue that I have little fears of future trouble."

TITLES COST MUCH

Dowries of Rich Women Who Married Foreigners $200,000,000.

London, Oct. 17.—Most of the world's richest women come from America, a painstaking statistician figures, and the majority of those who take husbands in Europe marry British peers, bringing with them enormous dowries. Some 500 wealthy American girls have married titled foreigners and their total dowry amounts to more than $200,000,000.

The most heavily dowered bride was the Duchess of Roxburgh (nee Goelet), with a fortune of $40,000,000. Others are the Duchess of Marlborough (nee Vanderbilt), $10,000,000; the late Lady Curzon (nee Leiter), $5,000,000; Countess de Castellane (nee Goelet), $5,000,000; Mrs. Verigin, $2,000,000; Lady William Beresford, $2,000,000; Princess Colonna (nee Mackay), $1,000,000; Countess von Larisch, $400,000; and Mrs. Paget, $200,000.

To what extent the British nobility has benefited financially from unions with wealthy American women may be gauged from the fact that since 1840 thirty British peers or eldest sons of peers have married in the United States, while of Americans who are the wives of Englishmen with courtly titles or baronetcies there are 44.

BUOY BOUNDARY ON LAKE ERIE

Line Over Which American Fishermen May Not Come Set by the Cutters.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—The controversy which has been waged between the American and Canadian lake fishermen for the past 20 years has been placed in a different light by a report made to the state department by Capt. E. C. Chapter, commanding the United States revenue cutter Morrill, on the great lakes.

The report shows that the American fishermen have been transgressing a line that they have been treated with the greatest consideration by the Canadian fishing patrol.

Some time ago the American state department considered favorably a plan of settling temporarily the vexed question of fishing rights on Lake Erie by placing a series of buoys in the middle of the lake to define international boundaries.

The Canadian Government cordially accepted this proposition, and Capt. Chapter was instructed to place the buoys.

As it was apprehended that honest differences of opinion as to the location of the boundary line might arise from differences between the automatic logs of the American and Canadian patrol vessels and the use of different charts, Capt. Chapter was instructed to compare notes on these points with Capt. Dunn, of the patrol boat Vigilant.

Under date of Oct. 12 he reports from Erie that he started from that port on the 8th inst on the Morrill, accompanied by Capt. Dunn on the Vigilant to place buoys.

He found that there could be no question of differences in charts, because the Canadian vessel was using the American hydrographic charts, while their logs exactly corresponded, and in the course of several days buoys were placed at intervals of five miles.

Among the sayings for which Emperor William is being severely criticized are his recent remarks to sculptors and painters to whom he had given commissions. He was inspecting the model of a statue he had ordered of his father, the late Emperor Frederick. Supporting the pedestal at either side were two sitting eagles.

"This is wrong," said the Emperor, pointing to the birds. "They should have their pinions spread."

The sculptor dissented. Sitting eagles, he pointed out, have their wings folded. "Prussian eagles," rejoined the Emperor, "are always spread. Make them as I desire or leave the job to others."

The sculptor respectfully left the "job" to others, and a complaining sculptor was speedily found.

Another sculptor had been directed to make a "Marathon runner" in white marble. When the model in plaster was ready the Emperor went to inspect it. "The mouth should be open," said William. "Runners run with their mouths open."

and the character of the buying of the latter was such as to lead to the conclusion that the dividend would be increased tomorrow. So-called good information is, however, rather contradictory on this point, one story being that for political reasons no increase would be made until January, while the other story was that there would be a small increase probably amounting to 1/4 per cent. London houses were heavy buyers of steel common, it being reported that options on a very large block of stock have recently been bought by powerful interests in London and that the sellers of the privileges were protecting themselves in our market. The enthusiasm rather settled down after the first hour, modern conditions setting in. This was due to profits taking by the traders and to absence of commission business. Sales to noon, $88,000.

IT IS GOOD FOR MAN AND BEAST.—Not only is Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil of incomparable value in the treatment of the farmer and stockman but it is very serviceable in the farmyard and on the cattle range, often saving the services of a veterinary surgeon. In injuries to stock and in cases of cough and pains it can be used with good effect.

A writer describes a plague of rabbits in Australia: "A farmer barricaded himself in with miles upon miles of wire fencing solely to keep out the rabbits. They eat their way up to the barriers and in the fight for the green land within the wire they die in myriads. All round the enclosed land they lie in heaps of incredible size, swarms after swarms follow on, and at last the heaps of dead are so high that the late comers make their way over the fence and the farm is ruined."

A remarkable epitaph is on a tombstone in Brighton churchyard in England. It reads: "In memory of Phoebe Hessel, who was born at Stepney in the year 1713. She served for many years as a private soldier in the Fifth Regiment of Foot in different parts of Europe, and in the year 1745 fought under the command of the Duke of Cumberland at the battle of Fontenoy, where she received a bayonet wound in her arm. Her long life, which commenced in the time of Queen Anne, extended to the reign of George IV., by whose munificence she received comfort and support in her later years. She died at Brighton, where she had long resided, December 12, 1821, aged 108 years."

ONEIDA'S WILL GET MONEY.
It has been settled before a doubt that the Oneida Indians are to get $250,000 from the American Government. In return for lands ceded to the American Government in 1851 by the New York Indians, the court of claims was ordered to pay a large sum of money to the different tribes. To prove the Canadian Indians from getting all this money, the Seneca, Onondaga, Cayuga, and Tuscarora tribes filed a claim for $250,000. Mr. A. G. Chisholm, of this city, who has been acting for the Oneidas, says that the Indians, with a few exceptions, have now received their respective shares.

ANNIVERSARY CONCERT.
A special concert marked the anniversary of Askin Street Methodist Sunday school, which was celebrated last night. The attendance was good and the entertainment provided was excellent. Only those belonging to the Sunday school took part in the programme, among them being: Harry Vanstone, Ruby Jones, Ruby Mickleborough, Rold and Reynolds, Miss Nita Rowley, Mr. Perrie, Miss Ella Deacon, and a male quartet, composed of Messrs. Gilmore, Fairley, Harding and Perrie. The programme throughout was very pleasing. Many dialogues and class songs were given, the classes doing their work with great skill, and receiving hearty applause. One exceptionally pleasing number was a patriotic drill by sixteen young ladies. A hoop drill by the girls' class, and the pantomime, "Lead, Kindly Light," were especially fine features.

TO USE TURBINE ENGINES

The United States Navy Follow British in Plans For New Warships.

Washington, Oct. 17.—United States Secretary of the Navy Bonaaparte has received and turned over to the naval construction board a lot of data pertaining to the new British armored cruisers of the Indomitable class, directing special attention to the turbine machinery, and upon the report of the constructors, he will probably base his own recommendations to Congress at the approaching session, relative to the naval construction. The construction board rejected the turbine machinery when last offered, but recent reports touching the performance of the Dreadnaught have inclined them to reverse their judgment, and it is probable that turbine engines will be proposed in the plans for the 20,000-ton battleship to be submitted to Congress at the next session. Details of the construction of the Dreadnaught are coming to light, and they show that the objection to the turbine on the point of maneuvering capacity has been overcome. This was accomplished by equipping the big ship with four separate propeller shafts and with the two great rudders, one behind the other, giving great power of steering. Initiations have been received from some American ship builders that with the experience gained in the recent construction of merchant ships and yachts turbine engines can be considerably reduced.

A SLICK SWINDLE

Bogus German Captain With Troops Plunder German Burgomaster.

Berlin, Oct. 17.—An unique and daring robbery was committed at Coepentick, a small town east of Berlin yesterday. In the uniform of a captain of the Imperial German army, he proceeded to the town hall, where he was returning from a street in Berlin, who were returning from a target practice. He produced a forged cabinet order authorizing him to take command. The men recognized him, and he then ordered them to march to Coepentick. Upon arrival there, he proceeded to the town hall, where he arrested the burgomaster, and the treasurer and took possession of the cash, $1,000. The robber detached several of his men to conduct the prisoners to headquarters in Berlin, and ordered the burgomaster to accompany him to the town hall for half an hour. He rode off alone in the direction of Berlin with the money. The burgomaster and the treasurer were greatly mystified at the meaning of their arrest. Upon their arrival at headquarters in Berlin, the burgomaster and the treasurer were released, but the captain was a fraud, and was immediately discharged. The police and military authorities are without any clue whatever as to his identity.

DOES IT HIDE A ROMANCE?

Costly Gem, a Gift of Kaiser's, Seized by the U. S. Customs.

New York, Oct. 17.—Believed to be the gift of Emperor William of Germany to another titled person, a gold jewel case, studded with diamonds, and embellished with the initial "W." surrounded by the Imperial crown of Germany, is in the hands of the custom officers of the port. Hugo L. Lederer, of this city, who was a passenger on the steamer Deutschland, brought the box with him, and was seized by the customs officers resulted in its seizure.

Lederer stated that while traveling in Austria he stopped at the capital, and made the acquaintance of a woman who appeared to be in somewhat straightened circumstances. She begged him to buy the ticket that showed that the jewel box was in pawn, and he investigated and discovered the costly trinket. The only way he can regain possession of the box is by paying the value appraised by the examiners.

The count wanted to have the latter case decided first.

HOW GREAT RELIC GOT TO LONDON

The Heart of French King Lies Buried With Old Dean Who Swallowed It.

London, Oct. 17.—The fact does not appear in the guide books, nor is the story told in any of the numerous works that have been written about the noblest temple of worship in England; but a friend gives me a weird tale about the heart of Louis XIV., the greatest king of France, being buried in Westminster Abbey. He got the gruesome facts from the late Sir William Harcourt, the Liberal leader, whose widow is an American, the daughter of John Motley, the historian. The Harcourts, it seems, had many French connections, who fled to England for refuge during the French revolution. Among them was a canon of the Cathedral of St. Denis, the royal mausoleum of France, where fifty kings and queens are buried in rows of tombs. When he was about leaving the Harcourt mansion to return to his home across the channel, the canon expressed the gratitude of himself and two or three of his associates who had enjoyed the hospitality of his host and produced from his pocket something that looked like a piece of leather.

"I was in the Cathedral at St. Denis when the royal tombs were broken open by the mob," he said, "and the ashes of the kings were scattered to the winds. This," and he held up the significant-looking object, "is the heart of Louis Quatorze, which was kept in an urn on the top of his sarcophagus. I managed to save it and would like to leave it with you until affairs are entirely tranquil in France."

But the abbe never called for his strange memento. He died of an epidemic shortly after his return to his country, and the Harcourt family found themselves in a dilemma. Not knowing exactly what to do with the relic they concluded to do nothing and await the opportunity of his heart was occasionally brought out for the inspection of visitors. The late Dr. Buckland, while dean of Westminster, was a guest of the mansion on one occasion and asked to see the weird curiosity. He was a very eccentric man, and at that time was very old, and he took the relic in his hand, rubbed it with a wet finger and then for some reason or another placed it in his mouth. The ejaculations of the astonished company seemed to rattle the distinguished prelate and he swallowed the heart while gasping an explanation. The old man fainted when he realized what he had done, and a physician, whom they called, declared that they had better let well enough alone because he could never enough the thing and might throw it off his stomach.

But he never died. He died a few weeks later from senile debility, so the doctor said, but it is entirely probable that the tough old heart of Louis XIV., which had suffered a variety of violent emotions, hastened his end. It was an overdose of heart, and by this strange combination of circumstances the heart of Louis XIV. is now reposing in Westminster Abbey with the body of an English dean for its sepulcher.

Bankrupt, men who cannot pay their debts are not eligible to the British parliament, and, if it becomes insolvent after election they must resign. The act says:

"If a member of the House of Commons is adjudged bankrupt, and the disqualifications arising therefrom are not removed within six months from the date of the order, the court, shall, immediately after the expiration of that time, certify the name of the member to the House of Commons and the House of Representatives shall declare the seat of the member vacant."

Nor can a bankrupt sit or vote in the House of Lords, or in any committee thereof, nor can he be elevated to the peerage, nor can he be elected as a peer. A bankrupt, or one who has been declared bankrupt, is ineligible to be a member of either house of parliament, and, if it becomes insolvent after election they must resign. The act says:

When parliament meets in October it is expected that at least one seat will be declared vacant and a new election ordered. A prominent member of the House of Commons having been involved in bankruptcy proceedings since the adjournment. There was a similar case in the last parliament. One of the Irish members was ordered to "withdraw from this house until his bankruptcy suit had been superseded, or annulled, or until his creditors, proving their debts, shall have been paid or satisfied to the full extent." Mr. H. H. H. was the gentleman's name, vacated his seat, but made a compromise with his creditors and was at once re-elected without opposition.

CHRISTIAN UNION IN CONVENTION

Temperance Reformers From the World Over Are Gathered at the Hub.

Boston, Oct. 17.—From far-away Japan and Australia and from more than 50 other countries in both the eastern and the western hemisphere, thousands of women interested in temperance reform have come to this city to participate in the triennial world's convention of the Woman's Christian Union, which opened here today in Tremont Temple. The convention will come to a close on Sunday night. One of the features will be a welcome banquet to be held in the temple this evening. In the absence of the president of the World's Union, Lady Henry Somerset, of England, the presiding officers at the business sessions will be Mrs. Lillian Stevens, president of the National W. C. T. U., and vice-president of the world's body. There will be meetings devoted to the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union, The Royal Temperance Legion and the White Ribbon Missionaries.

It was arranged that today should be observed as "Devotional Day," beginning with a service at the Park Street Church, and continuing at Miss Elizabeth W. Greenwood, of Brooklyn, N. Y., superintendent of the department of evangelistic work for the world's W. C. T. U. The convention proper will open tomorrow, when the delegates will be welcomed by Governor Guild and Mayor Fitzgerald.

But he never died. He died a few weeks later from senile debility, so the doctor said, but it is entirely probable that the tough old heart of Louis XIV., which had suffered a variety of violent emotions, hastened his end. It was an overdose of heart, and by this strange combination of circumstances the heart of Louis XIV. is now reposing in Westminster Abbey with the body of an English dean for its sepulcher.

ASTOR MAY TAKE A YOUNG BRIDE

William Waldorf Expected to Wed Before Occupying Hever Castle.

London, Oct. 16.—There is a persistent rumor in the neighborhood of Hever Castle that William Waldorf Astor is about to marry. The village and workmen around the old Tudor place are at any rate perfectly convinced that they will shortly witness the homecoming of a young bride.

For some time past Mr. Astor has been seen wandering over the wonderful estate which he has literally transformed, accompanied by a handsome girl belonging to an old Kentish family and many years his junior. He has introduced the young lady to several of his personal friends.

Hever Castle is now ready for occupancy. Mr. Astor of late has been spending week-ends there superintending the great work of restoration and living in the simplest of bungalows commanding a lovely view of the old moat.

At the castle Mr. Astor will occupy the Henry VIII. state chamber, a glorious and regal apartment, but for the present the haunted room will not be furnished. In this room the ghost of Anne Boleyn is said to walk at night.

Mrs. Spender Clay (Pauline Astor), is enchanted with the new old Tudor village and has spent several week-ends in it. The whole estate bristles with notice boards warning people not to trespass and every workman in the neighborhood knows that if he ventures on the sacred inclosure he will be taken into custody by the police.

John Burns, the Labor cabinet minister, is now comfortably settled in his new and larger home in Lavender Gardens. A great deal of fuss was made about his personal removal of his household goods from their humble home in Lavender Hill which he has occupied for so many years, but as a matter of fact it was only his precious books that he moved personally. Burns' books are his greatest treasures. Since his very early days he has collected books which related to the history of England, books of travel and volumes of vital statistics. To this day he can be seen diving into the 3-penny boxes of second-hand bookshelves.

His collection of "blue books," all carefully bound, is unrivaled. They occupy every available inch of space in the house at Lavender Hill, much to the annoyance of Mrs. Burns. Burns did not even occupy the whole house at Lavender Hill. For some years the top floor was tenanted by the widow of a chimney sweep. Now his new house is absolutely arranged that he can put his finger on any "facts" which his opponents may require.

This story sounds American, though it is dug out of the German: "Tobacco smoking," said the traveler, "is so common in Holland that it is impossible to distinguish one person from another in a room full of smokers." "But suppose you want to speak to someone present, how are you to find it out?" "Ah, in such case a waiter is sent around with a pair of bellows, with which he blows away the smoke from the face of every person until the right one is found."
