A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

The date of the various school examinations has been fixed by the Educational Department as follows:— Entrance examinations, June 25th, 26th and 27; Departmental examinations, July 2 to 15, inclusive.

A Lansing woman is suffering from blood-poisoning as a result of a scratch from a lilac twig received while she was reaching into a bush. We publish the item for the discouragement of the numerous ones who have a weakness for looting their neighbors lilac bushes.

A Lansing woman is suffering from blood-poisoning as a result of a scratch from a lilac twig received while she was reaching into a bush. We publish the item for the discouragement of the numerous ones who have a weakness for looting their neighbors lilac bushes.

County Gentleman reports that it is believed the supply of turkeys in the United States will be short this season, this shortage being due to the same cause as the shortage in beef, viz, the high price of feed. Owing to this cause, birds were marketed close last fall and winter, and the number of breeding fowls was consequently limited this spring.

On June 2nd Crossley and Hunter visited the old historic Methodist church on the shores of Hay Bay, built in 1792. The edifice is now used as a store house for machinery. The evangelists sang and spoke to a large audience. The building is still firm and the hope is expressed that the old church will be repaired and retained to Methodism.

Fred Lee Rice, the bank robber, convicted of the murder of Constable Boyd, was sentenced on Monday of last week to be hanged on July 18. Boyd, it will be remembered, was shot a year ago in an attempt of Rice and his companion, John Routledge, to escape from custody while being taken from the court house to the jail in a cab. Jones was fatally shot during the fight and Routledge afterwards committed suicide in jail.

Probably the longest journey that three self-dependent children ever undertook ended at Trail, B.C., last week, when four girls, whose ages ranged from 11 to 14 years, met their mother, after a trip of 6,000 miles, which was started a month previously from Manchester, Eng. Miss Jessie aged 11 years, who carried the purse, was the business manager. Their mother received them with gladness and has expressed her gratitude to the Canadian Pacific Railway and steamship companies.

Board's Dairyman: Some of the American agricultural papers are explaining the growth of the cheese-making industry in Canada by ascribing it to the emigration into the Dominion of a large number of cheese-makers from Europe. This is too small a cause for so large a result. The fact is Canada has not imported near as many cheese-makers as she has exported, and the secret of her progress lies in the simple proposition that the Government has taken hold of the education of her own cheese-makers. Canada has recognized the important fact that dairying is not a work of ignorance and tradition, but rather of scientific inquiry and training.

In a dying condition, A. Dubois, one of the noted trappers of the Gatineau, was brought to the Catholic Hospital at Ottawa on Saturday, horribly lacerated from a fight with a bear. Dubois has successfully trapped over 300 bears in his life, but one has finished him at last. He had evidently lain for twenty-four or thirty-six hours in an unconscious condition when found, and his recovery is impossible. The hind leg of the bear was found in a trap, but the owner of it was nowhere to be seen. Dubois' method was to kill the bear in the trap with an axe. He evidently went to finish this one in the same manner, but the brute must have chewed its leg off and freed itself. Dubois' head was terribly lacerated. His nose was chewed off, his left eye torn out, the left cheek badly chewed, the right arm broken in three places, and the body badly bruised. He is 70 years of age, and the doctors are amazed that he still lives, considering the quantity of blood he must have lost. Later—Dubois died on Monday.

TOPICS OF INTEREST GATHERED FROM FAR AND NEAR FOR REPORTER READERS.

It is said in yachting circles that Sir Thomas Lipton has decided to challenge for the American Cup in 1903. Wm. Fifa, jr., it is stated, will design the boat, which will be built by Denny Bros.

It is definitely settled that there are to be no camps for the rural infantry regiments this year in Canada. Camps of instruction for officers and non-commissioned officers will, however, be held in September. The cavalry and artillery camps will take place as usual. In Ontario the cavalry will assemble at Niagara, and the artillery at Deseronto.

G. N. Bensley, instructor for the Eastern Ontario Dairyman's Association says that a great many cheese factories are wholly unfit to make cheese in and the best rectifier for them that he knows of would be a fire. Many of them are built in sinkholes with curing rooms little better than barns and they tanks just under the window.

The Canadian Tubular Steamship Oil Transportation Company, capital $1,000,000, was incorporated at Trenton, N.J., on Thursday last. The object of the company is to purchase the patent rights in the tubular steamship from F. A. Knapp and to build and operate this type of vessel for the transportation of oil. Incorporators, are Marcus Auerback, Horace S. Gould and K. K. McLaughlin, of Jersey City.

The Atlanta youngsters keep up with the news. A West End mother received the following communication recently. "Dear Mamma—Little Johnnie has been kidnapped and his ransom has been placed at one jar of Jam one quart of Molasses and seven Biscuits. Put the Ransom at the foot of the Sycamore tree in the Lane, an' ask no questions an' you'll find him there when the Jam, an' the Molasses, and the Biscuits are all eat up. Otherwise he will be made to climb a tall tree, and the tree will be cut down with him in it."—Atlanta Constitution.

A hitherto unknown element in milk a ferment has been discovered at a station in the United States, called galactose, which is proving of value in the ripening of cheese. The properties of this ferment are similar to the secretion of the pancreatic organ in the human body. Old cheese is a predigested food, and the digestion is wrought by the galactose. It was found that the galactose would go on working at very low temperatures, temperatures at which bacteria were practically inert. Cheese was put into refrigerators and kept frozen for months. Other cheese was kept just above the freezing point. It was found that the finest cheese is cured at from forty degrees to forty-five degrees F.

Practical cheese manufacturers had maintained that fifty degrees was the lowest temperature at which cheese could be worked without becoming bitter and worthless. The new discovery will, it is believed, revolutionize cheese manufacture, doing away with all churning rooms, the cheese being sent directly to the refrigerator.

ASKING FOR LETTERS.

Canadian Children Asked to Write to English Friends.

Miss Nellie Ware, Burton School, Christchurch, Hants, England, writes saying the scholars in the Burton school are studying about Canada—107 children in that school. They wish Canadian boys and girls to write them telling all they can about this country, its schools, churches, homes, people etc.

They wish to know what games are played at schools in summer and winter, subjects studied, how many holidays, description of locality, what trees grow, occupation of people, what is grown and raised on the farms, what fruit is grown, the price of land per acre to buy, to rent, what wages are paid to men servants, and maid servants, the prices of all kinds of farm stock, what vehicles are used, what social pastimes are engaged in and what countries the people came from and what Toronto, London, Hamilton, Ottawa, Kingston, Winnipeg, Victoria, (K.C.), Montreal and Quebec cities are like. We ask all the boys and girls in these places and in every part of Canada and the United States to write the Burton school, and give them all the information asked for and as much more as you can think of.

BROCKVILLE CHEESE BOARD.

The proceedings at the cheese board on Thursday were marked by a poor attendance a large majority and excellent prices. President Rath got the business going to a good start and it was not long until the keenest competition was shown among the buyers that had a healthy effect in so far as raising the price was concerned, but it was easy to see that the middlemen had fleets of large proportions and they were all anxious to get cheese. The salesmen were onto the fact and held their goods till the price reached a satisfactory figure, when, with three exceptions, all the factories registered were sold.

Mr. Howe put in a vigorous protest against the manner of selling cheese as he and Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Bissell said that the buyers were paying more than they could afford to pay.

Mr. McGregor, Mr. Derbyshire and Murphy also spoke.

Mr. Bourne, a cheese dealer from England, addressed the board. He said that in the old country the Brockville board was noted for two things, viz: high prices and poor weights. The good prices received in Brockville showed good quality and reputation but the dealers felt several of the high prices last year for cheese was owing to the dry hot season in England and pointed out that the conditions this year were reversed, as they had lots of rain and plenty of grass. He suggested that the salesmen dispose of their cheese every week and they would then find the finest Septembers getting a big figure.

On the price reaching 9 1/2 cents the following sales took place: M. H. Bissell, 1,080 white and 416 colored; T. J. Howe, 265 colored; J. Webster, 435 white and 1,223 colored; D. Derbyshire, 250 white and 703 colored; O. E. Earl, 150 white and 373 colored.

Factories from this section which disposed of their offerings at the prevailing price of 9 1/2 cents were Elbe, 80; Farmersville, 100; Greenbush, 80; Glen Buell, 60; Junetown, 50; Mallorytown Union, 100; Oak Leaf, 100; Plum Hollow, 70; Ronan's 60; Spertown, 100; Union Valley, 60.

BASEBALL.

A team composed of the clerks and others of the village played 3 innings of a game of baseball with the High School team on Friday evening last. The teams were quite evenly matched and a good exhibition of ball was put up. The following is the personal of the teams:

VILLAGE—Gairford, Aokland, McIntosh, Brown, White, C. Arnold, Lillie, W. Lee, H. Arnold.

HIGH SCHOOL—F. Barber, B. Jones, Cobey, A. Lee, Borney, Parish, Wright, Coleman, H. Jones.

Following is the score by innings: Village of Athens, . . . . . 2 0 4 — 6
Athens High School, . . . . . 2 2 4 — 8

The teams will finish the game this evening on the H. S. Campus.

The Seaside Rattlers, of Charleston, played the return match with the Athens team on Monday evening last. Only two innings were played but these were sufficient to display the immense superiority of the Athens boys over their opponents as the score will show. Thornhill, who twirled for the visitors, had his offerings swatted all over the field, and the support he got in the field was enough to discourage any pitcher. Cobey was in good shape and held the visitors down to 5 hits. The teams lined up as follows:

CHARLESTON—Square c, Thornhill p, B. White 1b, Berry 2b, D. B. White, 3b, Dr. Lillie ss, Crozier rf, Johnston cf, Green lf.

ATHENS—B. Jones c, Cobey p, Barber 1b, Coleman 2b, H. Jones 3b, Parish ss, Barker rf, Whaley of, Gairford, lf.

Following is the score by innings: Charleston Rattlers, . . . . . 1 1 — 2
Athens, . . . . . 18 2 — 20

The game was cut short by the darkness, Athens being in their second innings with no men out.

GOSSIP FROM QUANT OLD BATH.

By Chante Clair. Chante Clair Talks of Things in the Historical Old Town—The Modes of Paris and the Doings of English Society.

Bath, Eng., May 29.—Of a truth, the "Merry Month of May" is apt to be a month of moods in Old England, and this year it has taken on a very disagreeable mood, and tried to outdo March in its rudeness and boisterousness.

Peopled With Interesting Ghosts, many of whose bones (query, do ghosts have any thing so substantial?) lie under the flagstaffs of the beautiful old Abbey, whose carillon, mellow and sweet, charms our ears all day long.

Flowers and Fruit are here, there and everywhere. Made in velvet, pame or taffetas, cherries, currants or grapes are applied to lace for adorning frocks; roses and Neapolitan violets in mousseline being used similarly.

Roman Promenades and the public gardens and parks are full of leaf and blossom. The neighborhood is most interesting, and splendid coaching trips enable one to get capital bird's-eye views of the surroundings.

Lord Nelson lived for a while in Pierperot street, and also Lord Chesterfield, whose house I see as I write, and what will interest you I know, General Wolfe lived at 5 Trim street, by St. John's Gate, where there are military emblems carved in stone over the doorway.

French painters this year have been most flattering and pleasant in their remarks on present-day dress, of course when it is of past years. It comes in lovely shades, but looks very well in natural tones.

From it "Dick" Sheridan Eloped with his charming innamorata, Elizabeth Linley, the "Fair Maid of Bath," who was sweet and lovely, and a perfect song-bird within. There is, as you probably all know, an exquisite painting by Gainsborough of her and her handsome young brother, Tom Linley, the violinist.

Trust was Stranger Than Fiction, But I must not weary you with reminiscences of "dear dead days," but come back to realities.

Useful Hints. Everyone knows what a long tedious job it is to take the "eyes" out of a pineapple. I have found the process easier if the pineapple is first sliced, then the edges of the slices can readily be trimmed.

Clever Interesting People of both sexes. I suppose Dr. Johnson should head the list, for he was the "doyen," as it were, and managed to draw round him a large circle of people worth knowing.

Straight From Paris by "one who knows." The newest spring frocks have quaint little Quaker capes coming down to the shoulders with a point behind; they are buttoned on each side.

Fair Woman's Neckwear. One of the most fascinating of subjects is that of the summer stock—if you can stand them. To fulfill its requirements the stock should be washable.

Sigh With Envy. He, as master of ceremonies, saw to the etiquette of the water-drinking, kept a watchful eye on "les convenances," and organized the country dancing on the bowling green, to the sound of the haut-boy and fiddle.

Delicate Shades of Pale Rose. sky or pale yellow. The wave-about brims have a light border of Alcacon lace, and the trimming may consist of the white doves nesting in a little row wreath—in ancient Valentino fashion—or else the top and under brim have sprays of berries, for the latter, I may tell you, have a furore in Paris, by, even holly and mistletoe. Then fruit comes in, currants, ripe and unripe, chestnuts in opening prickly pods, or little wild strawberries in trails, and raspberries with velvet leaves.

Things Dangerous. The London Lancet, the great medical authority, says: "Too much bathing is harmful, as it tends to maceration of the superficial part of the epidermis, which is frequently removed, and occasions probably too rapid a proliferation of the cells of the malpighian layer."

is the Newport stock, which is made by joining two bands of insertion with a row of white silk stitching. At the top there is a very narrow band of lace which stands out lower part of the stock is finished by a little ruffle of lace, which lies upon the shoulders like a lace collar. This stock is nicely joined at the neck line and there is no danger that the diplomatic relations of stock and waist will be severed at the neck.

The fanny for making the neck of the gown plain and unfinished by a collar band grows. The very simplest bit of insertion forms the only finish.

With this plain neck there can be worn any kind of neck piece and the gown is capable of a variety of treatment but otherwise possible. This is certainly one of the improvements of the year.

Another innovation is along the slipper line. Let her who has an aching back prepare to ache now. The slipper heels are low and three inches high for them. Many of them sport heels that are nearer four inches tall. These are impossible for the woman with a tiny foot, but the one who wears a five or six shoe can wear them with ease.

MODERATION IN SCOTLAND.

A Scotch parson once preached a long sermon against dram drinking, a vice very prevalent in his parish, and from which report said he was not himself wholly exempt.

"Whatever you do, brethren," said he, "do it in moderation, and abstain from the use of dram-drinking. When you get up, indeed, you may take a dram, and another just before breakfast, and perhaps another after; but dinna be always dram drinking."

"Just when ye start for bed, and when ye're ready to pop into it, and when ye're ready to get up in the night, to tell your prayers, or to say your twa, in the course of the afternoon, just to keep ye fra' drowsing and snoozing; but dinna be always dram-drinking away."

"Afore tea and after tea, and between tea and supper, and before and after supper, is no more than right and good; but let me caution ye against the use of dram-drinking."

Everyone knows what a long tedious job it is to take the "eyes" out of a pineapple. I have found the process easier if the pineapple is first sliced, then the edges of the slices can readily be trimmed.

THE SECRET OF THE GRANGE

All night those few pitiful words rang in my ears. This was Tuesday; we were to leave for Hastings on Thursday, and something told me that it was not intended for me to return to the Grange again. As I lay thinking that night of Blanche Carew and her sad fate, of the bright-haired, brave young soldier who was hastening even then to claim the young girl who might never be his, my own restlessness came strongly over me—something impelled me to lie awake and listen, something whispered to me that I was on the eve of a strange discovery. Then my thoughts turned to the mystery that seemed to be shrouded in the house, and centered in the western wing. "I shall never see those rooms," I said to myself, "after all."

It was a fine, bright night. The moon was shining clear and high, an impulse for which I cannot account urged me to see if by the moonlight I could not discern something of them. It was useless trying, for no one wrong or harm by looking over a few closed up rooms. I hardly liked the idea of slinking about the house like a thief in the night, but an irresistible something urged me on. To this day I cannot account for the impulse that seized me, and which I found myself unable to resist. However, I was not the only one who had chosen in the depth of the night to wander about the Grange. Half to my alarm, I saw old Prudence retiring from the kitchen, with the basket, as before, upon her arm. Yielding to the curiosity of the moment, I followed her through the long corridor past the grand apartments in the front part of the house, down the dim, silent passage that led to the western wing. When she stopped, I stopped; I walked so carefully, so lightly, that no sound of my footsteps reached her ear. She paused for a moment when she came to the door at the end of the passage, and led into the unfrequented rooms. She entered, and it was not without a certain feeling of trepidation that I found myself at last in those mysterious precincts. I began to smile at my own folly as I followed this old woman rapidly and silently. The rooms were bare and empty. They contained nothing but thick layers of dust. I felt ashamed of my unparagonable curiosity, for after all, there was nothing to be seen. At length we came to a narrow flight of stairs at the top of which I saw the door of a room; through the chinks I saw a sparkle of firelight. Prudence unlocked the door and entered the room; she did not fasten the door nor even draw it to, but left it standing wide open. I could see the room quite plainly, and after all there was nothing wonderful in it. A small bedstead, a round table, and a easy chair, a cupboard, the door of which stood open, showing an indescribable melange of crockery, glass and kitchen utensils—such was what met my eyes. The old woman emptied the contents of her basket upon the table; there were tea, bread, and provisions, in fact, enough to last her for a week. To my surprise there was also two or three bottles of wine. I recognized the room at last. I remembered the staircase on the plan, and I knew that the room old Prudence used as her own was but a kind of ante-chamber to the secret and hidden apartments known as "King Charles' rooms," where the "Merric Monarch" had lain concealed so long. My heart almost stood still with fear, for I heard Prudence speaking to some one. At first I thought she had discovered me, but when I had recovered my senses I found that she was using words of endearment and love, such as one might use to children. Then I stepped into the room, resolved to know who was there—who was hidden in that room, and waited upon by her. The panel in the wall was drawn aside, and I saw at last the apartment of which I had thought so much. It was inhabited. I was afraid to move lest I should attract the old woman's attention; but she seemed occupied with her charge, and very gently and very cautiously I made my way right into her room, and stood where I could see all that passed.

WOMAN'S FORTITUDE Severely Tried by Ailments Peculiar to the Sex.

Ordinary Medicine Will Not Cure Because it merely touches the Symptoms—How to Get at the Root of the Trouble.

Behind the veil of her womanly modesty, a fortitude, nearly equal to that which she displayed in the face of time, and continues to suffer in spite of all her efforts, because ordinary medicine is powerless to do good in such cases. Ordinary medicine may give temporary relief—even a purgative may do that—but the one great medical discovery capable of permanently curing and preventing a return of the ailment is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills are not an ordinary medicine; they are not a patent medicine, but the prescription of a regularly practicing physician who used them in his private practice for years before they were given to the public under the name of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are the best medicine for man; the only medicine for woman. Mrs. John McKerr, Chick-N-W-T, says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved me many a dollar in doctors' bills. For some years I was greatly afflicted with ailments that make the life of so many of my sex miserable. I tried many medicines but found no relief until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have made me feel like a new person; the almost continuous suffering I endured has passed away and life no longer seems a burden. I know of a number of other women who have been similarly benefited, and I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills would bring relief to any woman who suffers from female complaints or general prostration.

gallery, from whence I could gain access to any part of the house. A mute feeling of horror, a faint sense when I found it shut. A guest of wind had probably closed it, and the lock could evidently be opened only with a pass-key. I had no such thing, but I had a key. I found myself condemned to spend the rest of the night in one of the empty rooms, where I crouched, fearful almost of my life. A thousand dreadful thoughts came into my mind. What I should be found there, what if, worn out with fatigue and excitement, I fell asleep, and Allan Charlton discovered me!

I went through an agony of fear in those few hours. What if Helena or any of the servants went to my room, and finding me absent, began to search for me! Cold perspiration stood in large drops upon my forehead, my lips trembled and my hands shook with fear. My relief was great beyond words when I saw the morning sunbeams begin to gild the dusty, dirty windows; and presently I heard Prudence coming slowly along the corridor, and suspense was so great I could hardly draw my breath; she unlocked the door and went out, leaving it half open. The moment I thought she was out of sight I went into the room, remembered how I reached my room, but I found myself there at last and the first thing I did was to lock the door, the second to burst into a fit of hysterical weeping—my nerves were overwrought. It was only 6 o'clock, and I lay down to rest for an hour. I knew I had an ordeal before me, and I intended to meet it as bravely as I could, and prepare my plans. The whole matter was so incredible that at times I thought I must have dreamed it. That in this remote nineteenth century a man should venture to hide his burdensome, imbecile wife in his own house; that she should have lived there, for years, perhaps, her presence unnoted and unsuspected; that with this fatal secret upon him, he should try to win one of the fairest and purest girls to his—this I deemed utterly impossible; I could almost have laughed at myself—and yet from the certain evidence of my senses I knew it was true.

As I thought over all that had happened, I wondered at my own stupidity in not suspecting this secret before. Why should Allan Charlton have sought to hide from his child, her mother's portrait? Why should he forget or never to know the face, so that detection should never overtake him from her? Why should he hate the Grange and wish to see it destroyed, when he had arranged not for the secret hidden there that weighed him to the earth, and rendered his home detestable in his sight? I saw it all. Because he feared that if should learn of his existence, these rooms, he prevented me, as he thought, from seeing the plan; because I had expressed a wish to see the western wing, he had arranged to send me with his daughter to Hastings. I little dreamed when I entered Woodleigh Grange so short a time before, that I was to be the means of this discovery.

And above all other thoughts, above all dread, all selfish fear, all the bewilderment as to what I should do next, there was one that I should not forget. I was free to welcome the bright-haired soldier who was hastening home to claim her. Never again could Allan Charlton seek to work his evil, he could her father with tears and prayers beseech her to let him go back to Croome. Without the pain of grieving, the old man by the way, to gadden the latter years of his life, the choice was taken from her; the power of decision no longer rested in her hand. The laws of man and God intervened, and I decided Allan Charlton to go through the mockery of making her his wife. And yet, in my woman's heart, I felt deep pity for the sad, gloomy man whose life-secret had been laid before me. I now understood the cause of his sorrow and his reserve. I saw how his life was blighted and laid waste even in its prime. I felt great pity and great respect for the man that he should lay so cruel a snare for my bright, beautiful Blanche. If Hugh Mostyn knew how the girl he loved had been treated when he was no longer near to watch over her, Allan Charlton would have need to cry for mercy, if the brave young soldier ever suspected his secret.

Then a shudder of fear ran through me as I remembered the duty that lay before me. I must go to him, that stern and gloomy man, and tell him I had discovered the secret he had so carefully preserved. What if, when I told him, he had unveiled him, he killed me in the first hot burst of his fury? Such things had been. But no coward fear must daunt or stop me. Before the sun set that day I would know must know that she was free. At eight o'clock, my usual hour, I descended to the room where Helena and I took our breakfast together. "What have you been doing?" she cried, when I entered. "What has made your face so pale? You look ten years older."

When that girl threw her tender arms around my neck, and laid her glowing face on mine, I almost hated myself for thinking of the listless face, so like hers, that made me shudder as I remembered it. I could understand now why Allan Charlton did not seem to love his child, as some men do. Every time he looked upon her a thrill of sorrow, shame, and remorse must have shaken him. I nerved myself at last. I sent Helena to ask Mr. Charlton if I could see him before he went out. She returned with a message to the effect that I must please be as quick as possible, for he was going directly to the office. I saw a beautiful bouquet of flowers, Miss Wood," said Helena. "They are all white—white heath, white violets, white lilies and roses; and do you know," she added, "I begged him to give me one, and he would not."

I knew he intended them for Blanche—he carried choice flowers to her every day, and I said to myself, as I went to the library, that Allan Charlton would give her no more flowers; she had received the last she would ever have from his hands. I cannot describe the feeling of pity that seized me as I saw him standing, awaiting me. He looked happier than usual; a kind smile lit up his dark face when I entered the room, and he stood still for a moment, knowing that, after he would have heard what I had to say, years had slipped before he smiled so again. I wondered in that one moment, if an executioner, about to carry out the sentence, felt as I felt then. I had to think of Blanche and Hugh Mostyn before I could summon up courage to speak. "You wished to see me," said Mr. Charlton, impatiently, laying down the flowers as he spoke. "May I ask you to be as brief as you can? I have a most particular thing to say to you. You look ill yourself. Let me give you a chair."

"It was well he did so; I could hardly stand. "What did you wish to say to me?" he asked, kindly. "I am come, Mr. Charlton," I said, slowly, "to ask justice, not for the dead, but for the living. I am here to remind you that the will of God and man forbid you to make Blanche Carew your wife."

"Why?" he asked, coldly. "Because your own wife—Helena's—has had for raising a large sum of money by mortgaging his mother—is living still; and you know it, I replied. "Good Heavens!" he cried; "it has come at last!"

"You should thank Heaven that you are saved from a great crime," I said, earnestly. "Have you any excuse for such a shameful deed as deceiving a girl like Blanche Carew by a false marriage while your wife still lives?"

"How dare you speak to me?" he cried, fiercely. "How dare you seek out my secrets, and come here to fling them in my face?" He rose, and made one step toward me. For a moment I feared Allan Charlton, and thought my life was as nothing in the fierce blaze of his wrath; but he should not have sunk again, and he turned from me. "I shall never tell you how I learned it," I said, gently. "I have seen her—seen her face—the poor face, so like and yet so unlike her child's. Your secret may remain your own, Mr. Charlton. I am not here to interfere with your affairs, but to save Blanche Carew." "To save Blanche Carew?" he cried; "to ruin her father. Do you know the wealth I could have lavished on her—the care and love that would have been hers? Do you know that I could have given back to her the home she left a year ago? Do you know that I have poured out the deep love of my heart at her feet?" "I know it all," I replied. "You could have done all this; but you could not have made her your wife; and I am here to save her."

"She loves me!" he cried. (To be Continued.)

folklore of the Past Rich in Proverbs. Relating to the married state. In ages matrimony has been regarded as the chief epoch in the lives of both men and women, and the literature of the past is replete with aphorisms relative to it. All the April brides may look forward to unalloyed bliss, for—Marry in April when you can. Joy for maiden and for man—says the old couplet. "Happy the bride the sun shines on," runs another maxim, but should rain fall on the wedding day the bride may find assured that all her weeping will be done before marriage.

Orange blossoms signify a prosperous life, hence their use in the wedding toilet. So many brides go through the ordeal with the pallor of a white marble that it is curious to recall the adoption of the bridal veil as a shield for the bride's blushes. Before the advent of the modern ceremony that it was a piece of white gauze which the bride wore over her face during the ceremony. Prior to the circulation of money rings were evidence of a man's wealth, hence the bestowal of a ring symbolized the presentation of all the bridegroom's "worldly goods." It was placed upon the third finger because the ancients believed a nerve ran directly from that finger to the heart. Roman brides were pelted with rice and corn in order to insure their prosperity and good luck. The flinging of old shoes after the married pair is symbolical of shaking the dust of the old life from one's feet. The honeymoon is named for the honey which the bride and groom are to give to attendants long ago arose from the custom of presenting gloves to one who did a service of so personal a nature that actual payment was out of the question.

Cheap Labor. In Spain a man who works on a farm receives about twenty-five cents a day. In the vineyards wages range from fourteen cents a day for women and boys to twenty-one cents for unskilled men and to forty-two or fifty-six cents for those upon whose skill the whole responsibility of the raisin crop rests.

Feeding And Managing of Colts.

Many people think that a mare should rest from work for several weeks before foaling. This is not so. If a brood mare has been accustomed to farm work, let her continue at such work until a few days before she is due to foal. Moderate work is not only harmless, but beneficial to mares in foal, provided proper care be taken not to overload them. It is certainly better than keeping them tied up in the stable, or permitting them to run at large in the fields with other horses. In the former case they suffer from want of exercise, and in the latter they are very liable to accidents from racing, playing or fighting with one another. After the foal is dropped the mare should have a few days' rest, not only for her own sake, but that of the foal as well. When the time of foaling approaches the dam should be turned loose in a large box stall or if the weather be mild in a paddock. When the mare is a valuable one, and the prospective foal is looked for with a good deal of interest, it is well to watch her closely, as many valuable foals have been lost, which by a little attention at the right moment might have been saved. About the Best Time for Foaling is the latter part of May, as there is then an abundance of grass, and the heat is not excessive. Autumn colts will do well if carefully watered. Colts born in midsummer—fly time—should be housed during the day and the mare fed green feed. These extra cares are an objectionable feature of the foaling season. For a considerable period before foaling the mare should be fed on soft food such as to keep her bowels open and stimulate the flow of milk. Pure food will have the same effect upon the mare. Wheat bran is particularly desirable, fed in the form of a mash. Oats, clover, hay and carrots are all good, but plenty of good fresh grass is probably the best. All to healthy and abundant nutrition for both mare and foal.

It is of the highest importance that the young horse should start life in full health and vigor, and to this end he should very soon after birth take a good draught of the colostrum or first milk of the dam. Colostrum has a purgative effect, which is necessary in order to cause the bowels to move easily. If it is not accomplished naturally, a gentle purgative of castor oil should be given. If the foal is born in the foetal membranes, it must be liberated at once, or it will suffocate. If the navel cord is not ruptured, it may be tied tightly in two places near together and cut between the cordings, or it may be severed by scraping with a dull knife about two inches from the neck. Colts will bleed to death if the umbilical cord is severed too close to the body, and too soon after the colt is born; careful watching is a better than luck at such times. Foals are very subject to a disease called joint evil, which is Almost Always Fatal and when not actually fatal renders the foal not worth raising. Recent Live Stock Commissioner.

QUESTIONS OF ETIQUETTE.

Please tell me how I should introduce a friend to another. In making an introduction, the man is always taken to the lady to be presented and the formula is, "Miss A. may I present Mr. B?" Where two women or two men are presented the elder is addressed where the difference is marked. A girl presents her friends to her mother, but the mother says, "Allow me to present my daughter, Mrs. Blank." A woman should rise when another woman is presented to her, unless she is much younger than herself. If a man is presented she retains her seat and bows and smiles cordially. Men always shake hands when introduced to each other. Women do so when desiring to show especial friendliness.

Will you kindly inform me if it is correct at any time to wear a black tie with evening dress? A. F. A. According to strict rules, a white tie only should be worn with a full dress suit, unless in case of mourning. When broken in an informal dinner or evening entertainment. Will you please inform me what is the difference between a cottion and a german? R. M. R. There is no difference between a cottion and a german. It is only a question of different names for the same dance.

If a young lady invites a gentleman to take her to a dance, is it customary for him to send her flowers? If the invitation should be to the theatre, is the gentleman supposed to get a carriage and provide for a supper after the play? If so, how elaborate should the supper be? A Constant Reader. It is not necessary for a gentleman to send flowers to a lady who has invited him to go to the theatre with her, nor is it supposed to provide a carriage for her. It is courteous for him to ask her to take supper afterward, but not in the least obligatory, and he certainly should not feel obliged to provide any elaborate supper, but should order according to what his means will allow. Elaborate suppers have quite gone out of fashion by the way.

Will you kindly tell me, at a quiet non-wedding, would it be incorrect for the bride to wear a fancy white dress? Would it be improper for the bridegroom to wear a black waistcoat and frock coat? Does the bridegroom furnish the bouquet for the maid of honor? Any white dress is correct for the bride to wear, provided it is not trimmed with color. A black frock coat and waistcoat, with light trousers, is quite the correct thing for the bridegroom. Yes, the bridegroom is expected to provide the bouquet for the maid of honor, as well as for the bride.

Seized With Cramps, Acute Indigestion.

More Evidence to Prove that Indigestion of the Worst Kind Can be Cured and Cured Permanently by Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills.

More people suffer from indigestion and its accompanying ills such as constipation and deranged kidneys and liver, than from any other chronic disease. The use of digestants presents a relief when the trouble is confined to the stomach, but the most serious form of indigestion is that which affects the intestines, and is attended with constipation, kidney pains and cramps. That Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is the most effective treatment for this dreadfully common affliction is now generally known. Mr. R. Beach, 225 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "About two years ago I became subject to cramps, which were caused, from acute indigestion. I was so bad that I would be laid up for weeks at a time. These attacks came on periodically, and distressed me greatly. I had tried many remedies, but to no avail. I had been entirely prevented a recurrence of my troubles, corrected the derangement of my digestive organs, and made me feel like a different person. You need not lose time and money in experimenting with new and untried medicines. You know that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are backed by almost a life-long experience of the great physician and recipe book author. They have proven their superiority in scores of cases in every community. Ask your friends about them. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box. At all dealers, of Edmansson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

FRONT OF YONGE.

Monday, June 9.

The Flood stone crusher is doing good business on the road between Caintown and Junctown.

Mrs. David Heribson, of Sand Bay, is visiting her uncle, Mr. Orson Gibson, of the Caintown union cheese factory.

Parties wishing to see a 1902 wire fence will do well to take a walk over the division fence between Mr. W. T. Dickey and Mr. J. Leder, of Caintown.

A tramp all the way from Jerusalem found his way to this township last week. He was very hard to please in his red and board. It took three months on the road.

Mr. W. Burnham, of Pleasant Valley, raised a fine barn for Mr. J. Hagerman, of Quabbin, last week. Mr. W. Burnham is an expert in barn building and some of the finest cottages on the St. Lawrence river were erected by said gentleman.

Mr. Samuel Miller, of Jackson City, Michigan, is visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity. S. Miller is the son of the late S. Miller, of Caintown. He left Canada many years ago and settled near Jackson, at which place he has resided for many years. His brother, Henry, lives in Pennsylvania, where he went extensively into the oil business. These men still retain the strong principle of reform, as did their father before them.

As many farmers, this spring, use newspapers to keep the political crowd off the ear, we have been asked as to which side of politics these tipicals adhere and of which paper has this organ putter the greatest dread. To inquire we would just say that while walking on the road by a corn field you will pick up on the road, a paper blown there by the wind, take it up, and fit you are an expert, you will know at once the situation of the corn field.

Made a Difference.

Landlay—I will let this excellent room at reduced rates because there is a woman next door who plays the piano continually.

Applicant—Oh, that won't make any difference. The room is for my nephew, and he is deaf.

Landlay—Ah, in that case I must charge the full price.

Home Information Bureau. Hixon—Between me and my wife we know it all. Dixon—How's that? Hixon—She tells me everything that happens, and I tell her a lot of things that never happened.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE.

Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenbach, heir to the Throne of Holland and Prussian Regent—A steady fellow.

The Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenbach, who is under serious consideration for the regency of Holland during Queen Wilhelmina's illness, is the heir to the Dutch throne and would become king if the young queen should not recover. The grand duke is a very interesting man.

He is a very interesting man, and is very deft. But she is fond of literature and of good music, and, although lack of time and strength have prevented her gaining a practical knowledge of the fine arts, her judgment is well worth taking into account. She is interested in politics, as becomes the wife of a Cabinet Minister, but is still more interested in works of charity, in which she takes a larger share than is compatible with her physical strength.

Sarah Bernhardt recently took out a policy on her life for $100,000 for the benefit of her son, Maurice, and to the various questions asked her by the examiners the following interesting facts were laid bare: The "divine Sarah" was born Oct. 23, 1844. She is 5 feet 6 1/2 inches tall and weighs 130 pounds.

Her full name is Sarah Bernhardt Damala. She owns $100,000 worth of real estate in Paris, and during the theatrical season she earns the tidy sum of $10,000 a week.

The only drink of liquor she drinks is one glass of champagne at dinner, and her principal food is the fresh pressed juice of beef.

Her art occupies practically all her time. When traveling, her staff consists of a female companion, a masseuse, two menservants, and two maids. She never wears stays, and the insurance examiners pronounced her a most excellent risk.

Accepted For. "He looks so grave." "That's because he is buried himself."

On the Links. Miss Shapely (as she misses her drive at the second tee and falls)—Oh, Fred, come and help me up! I know my ankle is turned.

Fred (looking down admiringly)—Yes, and mighty well turned too.

AWAY OUT IN THE COUNTRY.

Away out in the country Where there's no clank and rattle, Where it's eight miles to the railroad And it's three miles to the store, There is no end to the quietude. Men are not contending there For the powers that seem precious To the greedy billiardist.

Away out in the country Surely teamsters do not try To run men down, unless they Fear the crowding on the fly; A schemer isn't waiting Everywhere a man may look To rush in and get his earnings All away by hook or crook.

Away out in the country Where the woods are full of joy, And the hens are cackling loudly At the sunburned farmer's boy, There is never any crowding. There is room out there to spare, And the people aren't breathing Flying rubbish with their air.

Away out in the country Where the water's cool and sweet, And the knife's a useful weapon, When the hungry people eat, There is not the constant jangle, Nor mad clanging that subdues And distracts the city post. When he seeks to court the muse.

Away out in the country And the people keep apprised of All the things their neighbors do, Here said their neighbor did fellow May not hanker to put down The tools the farmer has to use, And move away to town.

MRS. WILLIAM PATERSON.

Wife of the Minister of Customs. Mrs. William Paterson was born in the beautiful but ill-fated city of Johnstown in the Allegheny Mountains, Pennsylvania, but is not on that account a citizen of the republic, for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Davies, were English, and when their daughter was still very young they moved into Canada and took up their residence at Brantford. In 1863 Miss Lucy Clive Davies was married to Mr. Paterson, then a prosperous business man of that city. Mrs. Paterson may be described as domestic in her tastes, and in the womanly art of the needle she is very deft. But she is fond of literature and of good music, and, although lack of time and strength have prevented her gaining a practical knowledge of the fine arts, her judgment is well worth taking into account. She is interested in politics, as becomes the wife of a Cabinet Minister, but is still more interested in works of charity, in which she takes a larger share than is compatible with her physical strength.

Very strange is the insect popularly known as the "praying mantis." Of this insect M. J. H. Vaira, a distinguished French naturalist, made a thorough study. According to him, "the long, pale green wings, like ample sails, its head upraised to heaven its arms folded and crossed on its breast, give it a false resemblance to a man in ecstatic devotion."

A ferocious creature it is, ever bent on carnage, the workshops of various burrowing hymenoptera being its favorite haunts, since there it is almost certain to find prey.

"Posted on some bush near the burrows," says Mr. Vaira in his account of the insect, "it waits patiently until it sees some other insect, probably a spider, returning home. By a sudden rustle of its half open wings it terrifies the approaching insect, which hesitates for a moment, and then as suddenly as a spring the toothed forearms folds back on an arm also toothed, and the insect is grasped between the blades of the double saw in the same manner as the jaws of a wolf trap close on an unfortunate wolf at the instant when it is seizing the bait. Then, without unclosing the deadly machine, the mantis slowly eats its victim."

In Provence this cruel insect is known as "prego Dieou," which means "pray to God."

The Deaf Mute's Story. "The most pathetic story I ever heard," said Senator Hoar once, "was told by Professor Gallaudet. The professor had a favorite pupil, a little deaf mute boy exceptionally bright. Mr. Gallaudet asked him if he knew the story of George Washington and the cherry tree.

"With his nimble fingers the little fellow said he did, and then he proceeded to repeat it. The noiseless gesticulations continued until the boy had informed the professor of the elder Washington's discovery of the mutilated tree and of his quest for the murderer.

"When George's father asked him who backed his favorite cherry tree, signaled the voiceless child, 'George put his hatchet in his left hand—' "Stop," interrupted the professor, "where did you get your authority for saying he took the hatchet in his left hand?"

"Why," responded the boy, "he needed his right hand to tell his father that he cut the tree."

Virus and Venom. The difference between venom and a virus is very marked. Both are poisons and both of organic origin, but a venom is produced in secreting organs, commonly called poison glands, and is introduced into the system by means especially adapted for the purpose, such as stings or fangs. On the other hand, a virus is the result of disease or putrefaction and generally possesses the property of existing in the system into which it is introduced the disease which produced the virus. A virus commonly produces little if any local disturbance. A venom generally causes great pain, often severe inflammation and swelling. Venom has a marked local effect. Virus causes a general disturbance of the system.

An Odd Habit Among Rooks. Among the odd habits of rooks is the way that members of the same rookery have of intermarrying generation after generation. The males always choose their wives from among their neighbors, and if one should be so bold as to bring home to his rookery a bride from a distance the other rooks will invariably refuse to receive her and will force the pair to build some way off. In the neighborhood of big rookeries outlying nests of this kind may always be found.

Fresh Paint Stains. A fresh paint stain on woolen goods will disappear if rubbed against other woolen goods. For instance, if the stain is on the sleeve of a coat rub that garment off and rub the stain against the other sleeve. It will disappear and leave no sign. It is more than applying turpentine and it is as efficacious, but it must be done while the paint is still wet.

Very Legal. "We claim that my client did not run away with the horse, as alleged. The horse was ahead of him all the time, and he simply followed the horse. The Prosecuting Attorney—it amounts to the same thing. He was the accessory after the fact. He is old enough to know better than to follow a bad example."

Something Like It. "Does your son matriculate this year, Mrs. Hammond?" "Why, really, I don't know. I ain't heard anything about matriculation, but he wrote me in his last letter that he had got vaccinated and it took terrible."

Serene Superiority. "Mr. Loftbrow takes himself very seriously," remarked Miss Cayenne. "In what way?" "He asked me if I thought I could be happy with him. As if his presence could make the slightest difference one way or another!"

Its Reason For Being. "What kind of a society is yours?" asked her father. "A secret society," she replied. "But what is its object?" "Oh, just to have secrets from the other girls."

None to Spare. "Beg pardon," said the suspicious looking fellow, meeting Subbubs in a dark street, "but what time have you?" "Just enough to catch my train," replied Subbubs as he hastened on.—Exchange.

Gray Hair

"I have used Anker-Pain-Expeller for over five years and it has kept my hair black and my eyes clear and bright."—Mrs. J. H. Vaira, Billings, Mont.

There is this peculiar thing about Anker-Pain-Expeller—it is a food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn gray, but gradually comes back—all the hair dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too.

If your doctor tells you that you need a tonic, you need Anker-Pain-Expeller. It is a food, not a dye. It is a tonic, not a medicine. It is a natural product, not a chemical compound.

Away out in the country Where the woods are full of joy, And the hens are cackling loudly At the sunburned farmer boy, There is never any crowding, There is room out there to spare, And the people aren't breathing Flying rubbish with their air.

Away out in the country Where the lilacs sweetly blow People don't pay out a dollar To behold a 10-cent show; Men are not looked on with pity, Just because their clothes aren't fit, And the women don't go moaning When the servants up and quit.

Away out in the country Where the water's cool and sweet, And the knife's a useful weapon When the hungry people eat, There is not the constant jangle, Nor mad clanging that sabbines And distracts the city post, When he seeks to court the muse.

Away out in the country Where the funerals are few, And the people keep apprised of All the things their neighbors do, Here and there a queer old fellow May not hanker to put down The tools the farmer has to use, And move away to town.

MRS. WILLIAM PATERSON.

Five Qualities in the Personality of the Wife of the Minister of Customs. Mrs. William Paterson was born in the beautiful but isolated city of Johnstown in the Alleghany Mountains, Pennsylvania, but is not on that account a citizen of the republic, for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Davies, were English, and when their daughter was sixteen years young they moved into Canada and took up their residence at Brantford. In 1863 Miss Lucy Clive Davies was wife of Mr. Paterson, then a prosperous business man of that city. Mrs. Paterson may be described as domestic in her tastes, and in the womanly art of the needle she is very deft. But she is fond of literature and of good music, and, although lack of time and strength have prevented her gaining a practical knowledge of the fine arts, her judgment is well worth taking into account. She is interested in politics, as becomes the wife of a Cabinet Minister, but is still more interested in works of charity, in which she takes a larger share than is compatible with her physical strength.

Bernhardt Paragraphed. Sarah Bernhardt recently took out a policy on her life for $100,000 for the benefit of her son, Maurice, and to the various questions asked her by the examiners the following interesting facts were laid bare: The "divine Sarah" was born Oct. 23, 1844. She is 5 feet 6 1/2 inches tall and weighs 130 pounds. Her full name is Sarah Bernhardt Panama. She owns $100,000 worth of real estate in Paris, and during the theatrical season she earns the tidy sum of $10,000 a week. The only kind of liquor she drinks is one glass of champagne at dinner, and her principal food is the fresh pressed juice of beef.

Accented For. "He looks so grave." "That's because he is buried himself."

Accented For. "He looks so grave." "That's because he is buried himself."

"Prays" as it Freys. Very strange is the insect popularly known as the "praying mantis." Of this insect M. J. H. Fabre, a distinguished French naturalist, made a thorough study. According to him, "the long, pale green wings, like ample veils, its head upreared to heaven, its arms folded and crossed on its breast, give it a false resemblance to a nun in ecstatic devotion." A ferocious creature it is, ever bent on carnage, the workshops of various burrowing hymenoptera being its favorite haunts, since there it is almost certain to find prey. "Posted on some bush near the burrows," says Mr. Fabre in his account of the insect, "it waits patiently until it sees some other insect, probably a sphex, returning home. By a sudden rustle of its half open wings it terrifies the approaching insect, which hesitates for a moment, and then as suddenly as a spring the toothed forearm folds back on an arm also toothed, and the insect is grasped between the blades of the double saw in the same manner as the jaws of a wolf trap close on an unfortunate wolf at the instant when it is seizing the bait. Then, without unclosing the deadly machine, the mantis slowly eats its victim."

The Deaf Mute's Story. "The most pathetic story I ever heard," said Senator Hoar once, "was told by Professor Gallaudet. The professor had a favorite pupil, a little deaf mute boy, exceptionally bright. Mr. Gallaudet asked him if he knew the story of George Washington and the cherry tree. "With his nimble fingers the little fellow said he did, and then he proceeded to repeat it. The noiseless gesticulations continued until the boy had informed the professor of the elder Washington's discovery of the mutilated tree and of his quest for the mutilator. "When George's father asked him who backed his favorite cherry tree," signalled the voiceless child, "George put his hatchet in his left hand—" "Stop!" interrupted the professor, "where did you get your authority for saying he took the hatchet in his left hand?" "Why," responded the boy, "he needed his right hand to tell his father that he cut the tree."

Viruses and Venoms. The difference between venom and a virus is very marked. Both are poisons and both of organic origin, but a venom is produced in secreting organs, commonly called poison glands, and is introduced into the system by means especially adapted for the purpose, such as stings or fangs. On the other hand, a virus is the result of disease or putrefaction and generally possesses the property of exciting in the system which it is introduced the disease which produced the virus. A virus commonly produces little if any local disturbance. A venom generally causes great pain, often severe inflammation and swelling. Venom has a marked local effect. Virus causes a general disturbance of the system.

An Odd Habit Among Rooks. Among the odd habits of rooks is the way that members of the same rookery have of intermarrying generation after generation. The mates always choose their wives from among their own neighbors, and if one should be so bold as to bring home to his rookery a bride from a distance the other rooks will invariably refuse to receive her and will force the pair to build some way off in the neighborhood of big rookeries outlying nests of this kind may always be found.

Fresh Paint Stains. A fresh paint stain on woolen goods will disappear if rubbed against other woolen goods. For instance, if the stain is on the sleeve of a coat take that garment off and rub the stain against the other sleeve. It will disappear and leave no sign. This is easier than applying turpentine and other efficacious, but it must be done while the paint is still wet.

Very Legal. "We claim that my client did not run away with the horse, as alleged. The horse was ahead of him all the time, and he simply followed the horse. The prosecuting attorney—it amounts to the same thing. He was the accessory after the fact. He is old enough to know better than to follow a bad example."

Something Like It. "Does your son matriculate this year, Mrs. Hammonds?" "Why, really, I don't know. I ain't heard anything about matriculation, but he wrote me in his last letter that he had got vaccinated and it took terrible."

Serene Superiority. "Mr. Loftibrow takes himself very seriously," remarked Miss Cayenne. "In what way?" "He asked me if I thought I could be happy with him. As if his presence could make the slightest difference one way or another!"

Its Reason For Being. "What kind of a society is yours?" asked her father. "A secret society," she replied. "But what is its object?" "Oh, just to have secrets from the other girls!"

None to Spare. "Beg pardon," said the suspicious looking fellow, meeting Subbubs in a dark street, "but what time have you?" "Just enough to catch my train," replied Subbubs as he hastened on.—Exchange.

Gray Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over thirty years. It has kept my scalp free from dandruff and has prevented my hair from turning gray."—Mrs. F. J. Brouse, Billings, Mont.

There is this peculiar thing about Ayer's Hair Vigor—it is a hair food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn gray. But gradually the old color comes back,—all the rich, dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too.

IT'S OVER NOW.

It's over now, the shouting's past,
 And we can sleep in peace at last.
 Hands that shook have stopped their shaking,
 Hearts that hoped have started aching.
 The shouts, the yells, the deafening cheers,
 The hoots, the groans, the desecrating jeers,
 The men who vote and do not pray,
 The men who prayed and stayed away;
 Those who won and those who lost,
 Those who bear the brunt of cost;
 The torch that made the evening day
 Then flickered out in dark decay;
 The rocket, hissing eye of light,
 That searched the darkness of the night;
 The hand that got on the biggest toot,
 The rooster who did the loudest toot;
 The man who won and had his say,
 The man who lost and hid away—
 It's over now, the yowling's past,
 And we can sleep in peace at last.
 And those who have a tale of woe,
 The chap who says "I told you so"
 The man who won, the man who's glad
 The chap who's licked most awful bad—
 Soon we'll all be friends again, I mean,
 And we'll never think of the might-have.

RETURNS TO BROCKVILLE.

After an absence from home for over 30 years the Brockville and Elizabethtown Agricultural Fair has decided to do as the prodigal, whose history is given in the great book, when he arrived at the wise conclusion to arise in his manhood and return to his father's house where there was plenty to guarantee comfort. The public vote was taken on the question of Unionville or Brockville on Monday last. The statutes define the qualification of voters to be two years standing as a member. Under it the possible vote was 122. Of this number only 50 embraced the golden privilege and of that number 49 voted Brockville, only one vote being cast for Unionville. But little interest was manifested as to holding it when it was known that the Fifth brothers would all vote Brockville.

The first meeting in connection with the removal will be held in Brockville on June 17th in the council chamber.

MEDAL CONTEST.

The Married Ladies' Medal Contest, held under the auspices of the Y's in the Presbyterian church on Monday evening last was a signal success. The attendance was good and so was the program. Besides the contestants there were, selections, several songs by Mr. Claude Marshall of Toledo, an instrumental solo by Miss Jessie Taplin, and a trombone solo by Mr. Simon Manhardt, all of which were much appreciated. The audience also sang several hymns.

The contestants were called by numbers ranging from 1 to 7, which, being interpreted, read as follows:—
 No. 1—Mrs. Geo. Gainford, Athens;
 No. 2—Mrs. Alex. Green, Athens;
 No. 3—Mrs. B. A. Guire, Wiltsetown;
 No. 4—Mrs. William Towris, Elbe;
 No. 5—Mrs. Wm. Percival, Chantry;
 No. 6—Mrs. George Scott, Addison;
 No. 7—Mrs. W. J. Iaber, Elbe.

All renders their selections in a highly creditable manner, and to the majority of the audience it appeared as if all should get the prize.
 The judges—Mr. C. P. Bishop, Miss A. Lillie, and Rev. G. Wilts—after an absence of about five minutes a nominated contestant No. 4, Mrs. Wm. Towris, as the successful candidate. The announcement was greeted with loud applause, after which Miss Grace Bapell presented the medal on behalf of the Y's. The proceeds will be applied towards reopening the library.

ALMOST A FIRE.

For the first time in over a year the clang of the fire bell rang an alarm of five on Monday last. The wind had been high all day and this added to the excitement for, if a fire had got under control it would be hard fighting to subdue it. The engine and hose were called and it was soon learned that the fire was in the Bullis Stearn Saw Mill. The fire team took the engine up at a lively pace but before the mill was reached the fire had been got under control with pails in the hands of the mill employees and the neighbors. The fire caught in a pile of dry saw dust under the floor of the shingle compartment and must have started from a spark blown from the fire under the boiler as a pipe of the mill had been around that part of the mill, and there was no smoking done by any of the men. The fire got a good start under the floor before being noticed and it was hard to get at it, as the floor was made of two inch plank securely spiked down and there was over a foot of saw dust and day pine shingle shavings under it. With axes and crowbars the floor was torn off, and there being a good supply of water in an overhead tank as well as in the big tank where the legs for cheese box belts are boiled, a perfect deluge of water was poured on with the result that in a few minutes all danger was past. Nearly all the able bodied men and women of the town were present to assist if necessary.

The public are cordially invited to take part in laying the corner stone and share in the dinner provided.

On Wednesday last, E. A. Geiger and Marsh Ripley left Newboro in a skiff to mark out the course for the canoe route on the Rideau, Beverley and Charleston lakes, by putting compass points and white paint spots to mark the course more clear along those points and outlets where tourists are most puzzled and sometimes get lost all together in the maze of islands and bays. They spent a most enjoyable time sailing on the lakes, reaching Lyndhurst at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening and C-Par Park hotel Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, remaining there until Friday morning when they drove to Athens and took the train, Mr. Geiger going to Brockville and Mr. Ripley to Elgin.

The route is correctly described on the margin of the folder which will be sent on application.

Sup't Geiger, of the B. & W. Ry., is receiving many applications daily for his new guide of the lakes, and with the improved hotel accommodation at Portland, Newboro, Chatter's Locks, Jones' Falls and Charleston Lake, the route is becoming very popular.

The Giant's Organ.
 One of the most interesting features of the Giant's causeway is "the giant's organ." This huge "instrument" consists of a group of pillars of various lengths set apart on the side of the main cliff. The larger columns being in the center and the smaller ones tapering off on either side after the fashion of organ pipes admirably sustain the idea which the name "giant's organ"

Odd Drinking Cups.
 When every man got drunk and was proud of it in olden days, much ingenuity was expended in the construction of queer and elaborate drinking vessels, and many such are yet to be found in museums, especially in Germany.

One preserved in a Berlin museum represents Diana mounted on a stag and surrounded by hounds and huntsmen. The cup consists of the hollow body of the silver stag, the head of which is removable. The piece stands fourteen inches high. It was made at Augsburg in 1610. It is also an auto mobile propelled by clockwork concealed in the base.

Trick cups which drenched the uninited were very popular. Another variety contained wine and water in separate compartments. The drinker who did not know how to manage them filled his mouth with water, though the cup was apparently full of wine.

The glass with the fighting bears, in the same museum, belonged to Friedrich Wilhelm I. The bears represent two of his ministers and boon companions.

TWO LETTERS.

They Prove the Permanency of Cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Over Six Years Have Gone by and This Cure Still Stands—Only One of Many Such Cases.

St. Mary's Ferry, N. B., June 1.—Special Mr. Thomas Harrison, of this place, has addressed two significant letters to the Dods Medicine Co., Toronto.

The First One. St. Mary's Ferry, Dec. 18, 1893. Gentlemen:

I feel it my duty to you and to the public at large to tell what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me. About one year ago I began to suffer with severe pains over the region of my kidneys, followed by a very lethargic feeling.

When I lay down it was torture to get up again. This state continued for some time, and all the while I was still getting weaker and losing flesh rapidly.

My appetite was very much impaired, and at last I was obliged to call in a physician.

He gave my sufferings a very learned name, and doctored me for some time, but I did not get any better. I called in several other physicians, but it was all no use, my sufferings got worse all the time until I began to despair of life.

A friend advised me to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I was very skeptical, but was prevailed on to commence a treatment; the first box made me feel some better.

I passed a stone that had formed in the bladder.

I continued the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills until I had used three boxes, and now I believe that I have a radical and complete cure, as it is six months since I used one of the Pills, and have had no symptom or return of the malady.

I know that my cure is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills, as I used no other medicine after commencing their use. Yours truly,

Thomas Harrison.

The Second One. St. Mary's Ferry, N. B., March 24, 1902. Gentlemen:

What I said in 1895 I can at this moment most emphatically substantiate.

I have never had the slightest symptom of a return of my old trouble. Yours truly,

Thomas Harrison.

Disruptive Possibility. "My dear," said Mr. Snuggs to his wife, "suppose we have beefsteak tonight with onions for dinner tonight."

"If I find that beef is no longer when I go to market," replied Mrs. Snuggs, "you may have to put up with beefless onions."

BOTH WERE ELEGANT LIARS.

Milesian Soldier Countered Handsomely Upon His Lieutenant.

Wherever he is placed the native of the Emerald Isle has a ready wit. Not long ago when the first lieutenant of Company D, United States Infantry, was promoted, he warned his succeeding officer of several of the men who were in the habit of asking for leave of absence without having valid excuses.

This company is composed largely of men from the Emerald Isle, and the officers must be ever on the alert to catch up with them. Lieutenant M— had been in command only a few days when he noticed a man applied to him for leave of absence, stating that his wife had written saying she was sick and wished him to come home. Lieutenant M—, remembering his warning, resolved to be very cautious.

Turning over the paper as if searching for a letter, he said: "So your wife is sick? Now, Pat, I must have had a letter from her, and she tells me to let you go home, as you are to break up the furniture and treat her handsomely. So I can't think I shall let you go."

Pat saluted and started to leave the room, but on reaching the door turned and said: "So my wife is sick? Now, Pat, I must have had a letter from her, and she tells me to let you go home, as you are to break up the furniture and treat her handsomely. So I can't think I shall let you go."

"Well, sir, what is after this?" "This," replied Pat, going close to the lieutenant and lowering his voice, "is that my wife is sick and she tells me to let you go home, as you are to break up the furniture and treat her handsomely. So I can't think I shall let you go."

TWO MEN.

A "Little Story" by Dr. Weir Mitchell, in the April Century.

"These ought ye to do, and not to leave the other alone." A pale young man sat down on a bench in the park behind the reservoir on Forty-second street. He put a torn bag of tools under the bench.

A small, red-faced man came behind him. He stooped to steal the bag.

The pale man turned, and said in a slow, throaty whisper, "Drop that. It ain't worth stealing."

The ruddy man said: "Not if you lookin'."

The pale man set the bag at his feet, and said: "It's a poor business you're in."

"You don't look as if you were any better," he sat down. "What's your callin'?"

"I'm an iron-worker; bridge-work."

"Don't look strong enough."

"That's so. I'm just out of Bellevue Hospital; got hurt three months ago."

"I'm just out of hospital, too," he grined.

"What hospital?"

"Sing Sing."

"What for?"

"Yes, not had in winter, either. There's a society helps a fellow after you quit that hospital. Gives you good clothes, too."

"'Cuz you work?"

"Work—good God! I wish they'd get me some."

"You ain't had enough. Go and grab some. Get a short sentence, first crime. Come out, and get looked after by nice ladies."

"My God!"

"Did it they do nothing for you when you got out of that hospital?"

"No! Why the devil should they? I'm only an honest mechanic. Are you goin'?"

"He hit his lowliness."

"Yes, I've got to go after that job. It'll give me time to look about me. Gosh! but you look bad!"

"The ruddy man rose, looked back, jingled the few coins in his pocket, hesitated, and walked away whistling."

The pale man sat still on the bench, staring down at the ragged bag of tools at his feet.

The following verse, composed by Lord Curzon, has been engraved on the brass memorial tablet erected by him in the cathedral at Calcutta in honor of members of the Indian Volunteer contingent who died in South Africa:

Sand as Medicine. There is a man in Brighton, named Begbee, who thinks sand is the only medicine in the world for stomach troubles, says Tit-Bits.

"I was nearly dead," he says, "from dyspepsia 20 years ago, and had lost all faith in medicine. I was willing to take doses of anything. I began by swallowing a teaspoonful of dry sand on going to bed at night, and I soon noticed that I slept better than for years, though my appetite did not increase for a few weeks. I kept on swallowing the sand regularly until I was well. I have used it off and on, however, ever since, and I carry a bottle of dry sand about with me as a tonic."

Would Have Woke Him Up. A good story is told in the St. James' Gazette of an Irishman, more patriotic than clever, who enlisted in one of the smart cavalry regiments. The fencing instructor had experienced rather a difficult job in the matter of explaining to him the various ways of using the sword. "Now," he said, "how would you use the sword if your opponent fainted?" "Bedad," said Pat, with gleaming eyes, "I'd just tickle him with the point to see if he was shamming."

PEACE PROCLAMATION.

The Boers seemed but a feeble people when the war started, yet they cost a great empire much trouble to overcome them.

The bores in a woman's life caused by soap adulteration may seem scarcely worth taking into account; but the women who have overcome them by the use of Sunlight Soap know now how real the bores were.

Try Sunlight Soap, Octagon Bar, and you will realize a relief from boredom like that experienced by the nation on the announcement of peace.

NEGRO PREACHES IN HIS SLEEP.

A somewhat remarkable story came from Saluda county a short time ago about a negro who preached in his sleep. The man's name was Major Perry. The story was brought out of Saluda by an evangelical preacher, who was then on his way out of the State. An effort was made to get confirmation of this unusual case, and finally it was ascertained that Dr. D. M. Crosson, of Leesville, knew Major Perry. Dr. Crosson was written to for information. He was in attendance upon the sessions of the South Colonial Medical Convention, but as soon as he returned sent the following reply to the State: it is a very interesting story of a remarkable case.

Dear Sir:—Replying to your request that I write what I know about Major Perry, the "sleeping negro preacher," will say that I have known him since he was a child, and have been his family physician for eight years. He is really a scientific wonder. He is really a scientific wonder. He is really a scientific wonder.

He preaches every night, except occasionally on Friday Nights, for about fifteen years. When he retires at night and goes to sleep he will read out his text—tell exactly where it can be found, verse and chapter, give it verbatim—and will then begin his sermon. He confines himself closely to his text, and always preaches a good sermon. This is done while he is in his trance, and he can't be waked up until he has finished his sermon. Nearly every time he preaches he has a convulsion and his wife has to rub him and work with him, as it looks as if he would die.

He stops speaking while laboring under this nervous writhing, but will begin his discourse just where he left off when he gets a tack away off and will go on and finish his sermon. He seems to be somewhat excited when he finishes his sermon and wakes up and is unconscious of anything that has transpired. The strange part of it is that he can neither read nor write, so you see he could not prepare his discourses beforehand.

This was no fake, as he has been watched often when alone and he always preaches. I have, together with a number of other physicians, tried to wake him up when in one of his trances, and he can't be waked up until he has finished his sermon.

A man can easily expend some of his knowledge of mental philosophy in the study of this case. This is hypnotism, but it savors of divine inspiration. While in this trance or deep sleep he is unconscious of anything else transpiring around him and his mind is totally unconnected with what has transpired, but it is active and he does his preaching while in this sub-conscious state, but why his sub-conscious mind, a deep mystery.

"Rev. Major Perry," as he is called, is a mulatto of medium size and about 50 years old, has a wife and is the father of about fifteen children. His children are all industrious and he is about the average of his race for industry. He is quiet and has the respect of his whole community for integrity and honor.

He says he does not know anything about his preaching and can't explain anything about it when awake. He says: "I felt called to preach when young, but I resisted the inclination or call. If what people tell me is true about my preaching, it must be of Divine power that I preach, because I resisted the call to the Master's work."

RETURNS TO BROCKVILLE.

After an absence from home for over 30 years the Brockville and Elizabethtown Agricultural Fair has decided to do as the prodigal, whose history is given in the great book, when he arrived at the wise conclusion to arise in his manhood and return to his father's house, where there was plenty to guarantee comfort. The public vote was taken on the question of Unionville or Brockville on Monday last. The statutes define the qualification of voters to be two years standing as a member. Under it the possible vote was 122. Of this number only 50 embraced the golden privilege and of that number 49 voted Brockville, only one vote being cast for Unionville. But little interest was manifested as to holding it when it was known that the Forth brothers would all vote Brockville.

The first meeting in connection with the removal will be held in Brockville on June 17th in the council chamber.

MEDAL CONTEST.

The Married Ladies' Medal Contest, held under the auspices of the Y's in the Presbyterian church on Monday evening last was a signal success. The attendance was good and so was the program. Besides the contest there were selections, several songs by Mr. Claude Marshall of Toledo, an instrumental solo by Miss Jessie Taplin, and a trombone solo by Mr. Simon Manhardt, all of which were much appreciated. The audience also sang several hymns.

The contestants were called by numbers ranging from 1 to 7, which, being interpreted, read as follows:—No. 1—Mrs. Geo. Gainford, Athens; No. 2—Mrs. Alex. Green, Athens; No. 3—Mrs. B. A. Gaire, Wiltstown; No. 4—Mrs. William Tawrisa, Elbe; No. 5—Mrs. Wm. Perival, Chantry; No. 6—Mrs. George Scott, Addison; No. 7—Mrs. W. J. Luber, Elbe. All rendered their selections in a highly creditable manner, and to the surprise of the audience it appeared as if all should get the prize.

The judges—Mr. C. P. Bishop, Miss A. Lillie, and Rev. G. Wiltse—after an absence of about five minutes a nominated contestant No. 4, Mrs. Wm. Tawrisa, as the successful candidate. The announcement was greeted with loud applause, after which Miss Grace Kappell presented the medal on behalf of the Y's. The proceeds will be applied towards re-opening the library.

ALMOST A FIRE.

For the first time in over a year the clang of the fire bell rang an alarm of fire on Monday last. The wind had been high all day and this added to the excitement for, if a fire had got under control, it would be hard fighting to subdue it. The engine and hose reel were called and it was soon learned that the fire was in the Ballis Steam Saw Mill. Pierce's team took the engine up at a lively pace but before the mill was reached the fire had been got under control with pails in the hands of the mill employees and the neighbors.

The fire caught in a pile of dry saw dust under the floor of the shingle compartment and must have started from a spark blown from the fire under the boiler as none of the men had been around that part of the mill, and there was no smoking done by any of the men. The fire got a good start under the floor before being noticed and it was hard to get at it, as the floor was made of two inch plank securely spiked down and there was over a foot of saw dust and day pine shingle shavings under it. With axes and crowbars the floor was torn off, and there being a good supply of water in an overhead tank as well as in the big tank where the logs for cheese box belts are boiled, a perfect deluge of water was poured on with the result that in a few minutes all danger was past. Nearly all the able bodied men and women of the town were present to assist if necessary.

MARKING THE CANOE ROUTE.

On Wednesday last, E. A. Geiger and Marsh Ripley left Newboro in a skiff to mark out the course for the canoe route on the Rideau, Beverley and Charleston lakes, by putting compass points and white paint spots to mark the course into clear along those points and out-lets where tourists are most puzzled and sometimes get lost all together in the maze of islands and bays. They spent a most enjoyable time sailing on the lakes, reaching Lyndhurst at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening and Camp Park hotel Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, remaining there until Friday morning when they drove to Athens and took the train, Mr. Geiger going to Brockville and Mr. Ripley to Elgin.

The route is our very detailed on the margin of the folder which will be sent on application. Supt. Geiger, of the B. & W. Ry. is receiving many applications daily for his new guide of the lakes, and with the in good hotel accommodation at Portland, Newboro, Chaffin's Locks, Jones' Falls and Charleston Lake, the route is becoming very popular.

The Giant's Organ. One of the most interesting features of the Giant's causeway is "the giant's organ." This huge "instrument" consists of a group of pillars of various lengths set apart on the side of the main cliff. The larger columns being in the center and the smaller ones tapering off on either side after the fashion of organ pipes admirably sustain the idea which the name "giant's organ" conveys.

Odd Drinking Caps.

When every man got drunk and was proud of it in olden days, much ingenuity was expended in the construction of queer and elaborate drinking vessels, and many such are yet to be found in museums, especially in Germany. One preserved in a Berlin museum represents Diana mounted on a stag and surrounded by hounds and huntsmen. The cup consists of the hollow body of the silver stag, the head of which is removable. The piece stands fourteen inches high. It was made at Augsburg in 1610. It is also an automobile propelled by clockwork concealed in the base. Trick cups which drenched the uninitiated were very popular. Another variety contained wine and water in separate compartments. The drinker who did not know how to manage them filled his mouth with water, though the cup was apparently full of wine.

The glass with the fighting hares, in the same museum, belonged to Friedrich Wilhelm I. The hares represent two of his ministers and boon companions.

TWO LETTERS.

They Prove the Permanency of Cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Over Six Years Have Gone by and This One Still Stands—Only One of Many Such Cases.

St. Mary's Ferry, N. B., June 1.—(Special).—Mr. Thomas Harrison, of this place, has addressed two significant letters to the Dodd's Medicine Co., Toronto.

The First One. St. Mary's Ferry, Dec. 18, 1895.

Gentlemen: I feel it my duty to you and to the public at large to tell what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me.

About one year ago I began to suffer with severe pain over the region of my kidneys, followed by a very lethargic feeling.

When I lay down it was torture to get up again. This state continued for some time, and all the while I was still getting weaker and losing flesh rapidly.

My appetite was very much impaired, and at last I was obliged to call in a physician.

He gave my sufferings a very learned name and doctored me for some time, but I got no better.

I called in several other physicians, but it was all no use, my sufferings got worse all the time until I began to despair of life.

A friend advised me to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I was very skeptical, but was prevailed on to commence a treatment; the first box made me feel some better.

I passed a stone that had formed in the bladder. I continued the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills until I had used three boxes, and now believe that I have a radical and complete cure, as it is six months since I used any of the Pills, and have had no symptom or return of the malady.

I know that my cure is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills, as I used no other medicine after commencing their use.

Yours truly, Thomas Harrison.

The Second One. St. Mary's Ferry, N. B., March 24, 1902.

Gentlemen: What I said in 1895 can at this moment most emphatically substantiate.

I have never had the slightest symptom of a return of my old trouble. Yours truly, Thomas Harrison.

Disquieting Possibility. "My dear," said Mr. Snuggs to his wife, "suppose we have beefsteak steamed with onions for dinner to-night."

"If I find that beef is no longer when I go to market," replied Mrs. Snuggs, "you may have to put up with beefless onions."

BOTH WERE ELEGANT LIARS.

Milesian Soldier Countered Handsomely. H. Lieutenant.

Wherever he is placed the native of the Emerald Isle has a ready wit. Not long ago when the first lieutenant of Company D, United States Infantry, was promoted, he warned his succeeding officer of several of the men who were in the habit of asking for leave of absence without having valid excuses. This company is composed largely of men from the Emerald Isle, and the officers must be ever on the alert to catch up with them.

Lieutenant M. had in a company made only a few days when one of the men applied to him for leave of absence, stating that his wife had written saying she was sick and wished him to come home. Lieutenant M., remembering his warning, resolved to be very cautious. Turning over the paper as if searching for a letter, he said: "So your wife is sick? Now, Pat, I myself have had a letter from her, and she tells me no; to let you go home, as you get drunk and break up the furniture and treat her shamefully. So I don't think I shall let you go."

Pat smiled and started to leave the room, but on reaching the door turned and said: "Sir, may I say to you—not as an officer—but as man to man?"

"Yes, Pat, what is it?"

"Well, sir, what is my father saying in this?" remarked Pat, going close to the lieutenant and lowering his voice. "That you and I are two of the most elegant liars that the Lord ever made—I'm not a married man."

THE H. BIRKS, Montreal, Que.

TWO MEN.

A "Little Story," by Dr. Weir Mitchell, in the April Century.

"These ought ye to do, and not to look like the others unclean." A pale young man sat down on a bench in the park behind the reservoir on Forty-second street. He put a torn bag of books under the bench. A snarl, repeated under the bench, had him stooped to steal the bag.

The pale man turned, and said in a slow, tired way: "Drop that. It ain't worth stealing."

The ruddy man said: "Not if you lookin'."

The pale man set the bag at his feet. "It's a poor business you're in."

"You don't look as if you was any better," he said down. "What's your callin'?"

"I'm an iron-worker; bridge-work." "Don't look strong enough."

"That's so. I'm just out of Bellevue Hospital, got hurt three months ago."

"I'm just out of hospital, too," he gramed.

"What hospital?"

"What? Jail?"

"Yes, not had in winter, either. There's a society helps a fellow after you quit that hospital. Gives you good clothes, too."

"Clothes? Is that so?"

"Gets you work."

"Work—good God! I wish they'd get me some."

"You ain't had enough. Go and grab somethin'. Get a short sentence, first crime. Come out, and get looked after by nice ladies."

"My God!"

"Did they do nothin' for you when you got out of that hospital?"

"No! Why the devil should they? I'm only an honest mechanic. Are you goin'?"

He felt his loneliness.

"Yes; I've got to go after that job. It'll give me time to look about me. Gosh! but you look bad!"

The ruddy man rose, looked back, jingled the few coins in his pocket, hesitated, and walked away whistling.

The pale man sat still on the bench, staring down at the ragged bag of tools at his feet.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one remedial disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only possible cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietary has such faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

There is a man in Brighton, named Begbee, who thinks sand is the only medicine in the world for stomach troubles.

"I was nearly dead," he says, "from dyspepsia 20 years ago, and had lost all faith in medicine. I was willing to take doses of anything. I began by swallowing a teaspoonful of dry sand on going to bed at night, and I soon noticed that I slept better than for years, though my appetite did not increase for a few weeks. I kept on swallowing the sand regularly until I was well. I have used it off and on, however, ever since, and I carry a bottle of dry sand about with me as a tonic."

NEGRO PREACHES IN HIS SLEEP.

A somewhat remarkable story came from Saluda county a short time ago about a negro who preached in his sleep. The man's name was Major Perry. The story was brought out of Saluda by an evangelical preacher, who was then on his way out of the State.

An effort was made to get confirmation of this unusual case, and finally it was ascertained that Dr. D. M. Crosson, of Leesville, knew Major Perry. Dr. Crosson was written to for information. He was in attendance upon the sessions of the South Colonial Medical Convention, but as soon as he returned sent the following reply to the State; it is a very interesting story of a remarkable case.

Dear Sir,—Replying to your request that I write what I know about Major Perry, the "sleeping negro preacher," will say that I have known Rev. Major Perry for a long time and have been his family physician for eight years. He is really a scientific wonder. He has been preaching every night, except occasionally on Friday nights, for about fifteen years. When he retires at night and goes to sleep he will read out his text—tell exactly where he can be found, verse and chapter, give it word for word—and will then begin his sermon. He confines himself closely to his text, and always preaches a good sermon. This is done while he is in this trance, and he can't be waked up until he has finished his sermon. Nearly every time he preaches he has a convulsion and his wife has to rub him and work with him, as it looks as if he would die.

He stops speaking while laboring under this nervous writing, but will begin his discourse just where he left off when the attack wears off and will go on and finish his sermon. He seems to be somewhat excited when he finishes his sermon and wakes up every night, except occasionally on Friday nights, for about fifteen years. A man can easily expend some of his knowledge of mental philosophy, in the tenets of this case. This is not hypnotism, but it savors of Divine inspiration. While in this trance or deep sleep he is unconscious of anything else transpiring around him and his active mind is totally unconscious of what has transpired, but it is active and he does his preaching while in this sub-conscious state, but why his sub-conscious mind, active upon "sermonizing" alone, is a deep mystery.

Rev. Major Perry, as he is called, is a mulatto of medium size and about 50 years old, has a wife and is the father of about fifteen children. His children are all industrious and he is about the average of his race for industry. He is quiet and has the respect of his whole community for integrity and honor.

He says he does not know anything about his preaching and can't explain anything about it when awake. He says: "I felt called to preach when young, but I resisted the inclination or call. If what people tell me is about my preaching, it must be of Divine power that I preach, because I resisted the call to the Master's work."

A FEW STATISTICS.

Total British Death List Over 20,000—Cost Over $825,000,000.
The war in South Africa began officially on Oct. 11th, 1899, the date set in the Boer ultimatum. Concluded on May 31st, 1902, it therefore continued two years seven months, and 20 days, and has been won by the British at a cost which, in the words of "Oom Paul" Kruger, the Transvaal President, "staggered humanity."
The official British statistics to April 1st of this year give these losses:
Officers. Men.
Total deaths in South Africa 1,020 20,031
Missing and prisoners 381 9,181
Sent home as invalids 2,973 68,311
The British have taken about 37,000 Boer prisoners, and of killed and wounded on that side there are no reliable statistics. Nor are there any statistics as to the money spent by the two Boer Republics. The cost of the war to the British, according to the statement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer in presenting the budget in April last, has been a little over $825,000,000. Britain has had about 280,000 men in the field. The Boer force at the start was estimated at 75,000.

"What is my opinion of Edison's latest?" he said. Why, little Long before Edison, on October 18, 1891, in the distance record race from Paris to Chatellerant, an electric carriage which could go 307 kilometers without being recharged, and the British entered on the climbing contest by going up the Cote de Gastion (nine per cent.) at a speed of forty-eight kilometers an hour."
Nickel Accumulator Patented.
"An far as nickel accumulators are concerned, I took out a patent for them here in 1896.
"Our electric carriages can go easily with a fifty mile radius from the capital, and with a stretch to Fontainebleau, but for longer distances I have manufactured a "mixed" carriage, driven half by electricity and half by essence, which will be seen in work to be described."

PREMIER THANKS COLONIAL TROOPS

The Loyalty of the Colonies Surprised the World. BRITAIN NEVER SO STRONG

Tribute to the Troops in the House of Commons—Mr. Redmond Creates a Row in the House—His Bitter Charges Against Kitchener and Roberts.

London, June 3, 4 a.m.—The announcement of the terms of peace has not affected the general jubilation which has existed since the Government yesterday displayed Gen. Kitchener's message to the end of the war. There were indications last night, but the general public that the end of the war was a great occasion to give thanks and to settle down, and the usual easy holiday-makers from making a triumphal demonstration. There is a general tribute to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain. Next to Gen. Kitchener, everybody credits him with the present achievement. The Graphic says that, while congratulating the Government on the triumphal settlement, it would be unjust not to recognize how large a part Mr. Chamberlain's statesmanship played in securing it. If South Africa is to-day British, it is the Zambesi River to Table Bay the credit is primarily Mr. Chamberlain's. The King and Queen drove amid cheering crowds last evening from Buckingham Palace to the Royal Opera House, where they heard a performance of "Siegfried." When they arrived the auditorium and stage were both in semi-darkness. The continuous music of the music prevented a general triumphal welcome to their Majesties. The King was in excellent spirits. He watched the opera with frequent smiles. Both were unusually delighted. The opinion of the newspapers here is that the terms of peace are substantially those fixed a year ago. All the papers join in congratulating Mr. Chamberlain. The Standard says: "To Mr. Chamberlain, who for three years has been the object of bitter calumny and unmeasured abuse, the country is deeply indebted. In the difficult days which preceded the outbreak of hostilities, when the military situation was at its worst, and in the complicated situation of the last few months, Mr. Chamberlain has exhibited unwavering firmness of judgment and buoyant courage, which put to shame the feeblest of statesmen. The Daily Telegraph says: "The men beyond those who fought it, as it stood prominent—Chamberlain and Milner. The country has an obligation to recognize in grateful and ungrudging terms all that it owes these two men."
The King was the recipient yesterday by a number of telegrams thanking him for the conclusion of peace. Emperor William sent him a cordial congratulatory telegram, and the Emperor of Austria equally warmly congratulated him. In the British colonies telegrams warmly in the same strain.

After he had concluded reading the peace agreement Mr. Balfour proceeded: "There are certain important points I have just read, and which are signed on Saturday night. Therefore it may be convenient if I send a despatch from Lord Kitchener to the Secretary of State for War, dated May 30th, as follows:
"After handing to the Boer delegates a copy of the draft of the agreement I read them a statement and gave them a copy of it, as follows:
"His Majesty's Government must place on record that the terms of the Cape and Natal colonies who have been in rebellion, and who now surrender, will, if they return to their colonies, be determined by the colonial courts, and in accordance with the laws of the colonies, and any British subjects who have joined the enemy will be liable to trial under the laws of British subjects in British Empire to which they belong.
"His Majesty's Government are informed by the Cape Government that their views regarding the terms to be granted to British subjects in Cape Colony now in the field, or who have surrendered or been captured since April 12th, 1902, are as follows:

Punishment Prescribed.
"With regard to the rank and file, they should all after surrender and giving up their arms sign a document before the resident magistrate of the district in which they surrender, acknowledging themselves guilty of high treason, and the punishment to be accorded them. Provided they are not guilty of murder or other crimes, they shall be treated as ordinary courts of the country, or such special courts as may hereafter be constituted, their punishment to be such as the discretion of such court, with the proviso that in no case shall the penalty of death be inflicted.
"His Majesty's Government are of the opinion that the rebels should be dealt with according to the law of that colony."

Repatriation of Prisoners.
"Second—All burghers outside the limits of the Transvaal and Orange River Colony, and all prisoners of war at present outside South Africa, who are burghers, will, on duly declaring their acceptance of the position of subjects of His Majesty, be brought back to their homes so soon as means of transportation can be provided and means of subsistence for a few years assured.
"Third—The burghers so returning will not be deprived of their personal liberty or property.
"Fourth—No proceedings, civil or criminal, will be taken against any burghers surrendering, or so returning, for any acts in connection with the prosecution of the war. The benefits of their amnesty do not extend to certain acts contrary to the usages of war which had been notified by the Commandant-in-Chief to the Boer generals, and which shall be tried by courts-

EDISON'S GREAT PROMISE.

Electric Motor to Cost Half Horse Power.

PARIS MAN CLAIMS PRIORITY.
The New York Herald's European edition publishes the following:
The news that Mr. Edison has solved the great problem of cheap electrical automobiles for long distances was interesting to the Parisian, but the question remains that the "noblest conquest of man" will be seen in the Bois for many a year," said M. Jeanmaire, one of the pioneers of automobilism in France, to a Herald's correspondent.
"if what I read in the Herald about Mr. Edison's new battery is true, it is a marvelous discovery, and one which will make the electric carriage practical and economical.
"Twenty years ago, he continued, I constructed my first electric carriage, and ever since have been seeking to find a light, good wearing accumulator—one which would under 100 kilograms give 100 amperes an hour under 100 volts. I should be enchanted if my idea has been realized.
"Will cheap Road Locomotion.
"Road locomotion will be cheaper by half than horse traction.
"it will not be by thousands, but by millions that electric vaps and carriages will have to be constructed, and it would take fully ten years' output of all the factories now existent to keep up with the demand.
"Leaving M. Jeanmaire, I next called on M. Krieger, the technical director of the Compagnie Parisienne des Voitures Electriques (Propriete Krieger) to ask him how he "sized up" the Edison invention.
The conversation took place by telephone, as Mr. Krieger has few minutes to lose in the twenty-four hours.
