Merchants can get their Bill Heads, Letter Heads, etc., printed at this office for very little more than they generally pay for the paper, and it helps to advertise their business. Call and see samples and get prices.

The recent heavy rainfall has caused the wells of the town to receive a great amount of surface water and sewage. People should be cautious how they use it for drinking and culinary purposes, as it is too frequently a source of disease and kindred ailments. Those who intend putting in town water should call on Saunders & Son, the sanitary plumbers, who put in first-class work at low prices.

THEY DON'T TOR THE MARK.—The Goderich lacrosse club feel very proud of their victory over Lucknow on the 26th; but wait till they meet our boys, and then their stock will be below par.—Clinton News Item. The Junior Hurons have been trying to arrange a match with "our boys" ever since the 26th, but when it comes to actual play "our boys" are missing. If it's a game they are after they can be accommodated in Goderich any time.

SAW THE POINT AT LAST.—The facility with which some people see the point of a joke as compared with others was finely illustrated at the Royal Arcanum Banquet when Judge Toms got off one of his somewhat deep humorisms. About half of those present saw the point at once and of course roared. The other half seemed at sea for a little while, when it came to them as well and there was a second roar. Some people need to have an interpretation accompanying every joke before they can comprehend the same.—Berlin News.

HE GOT THE HAT.—A certain gentleman in town answered a puzzle advertisement in a Montreal newspaper recently. The prize for a correct answer was to be a silk hat. His answer appeared to be correct, for in due time a hat arrived—a silk hat too—but it was an old timer and looked as if it had been worn in an Orange procession in his grandfather's time. The recipient is in a quandary, and will neither wear nor sell the hat.

A NICE LAW SUIT.—M. C. Cameron and J. R. Shannon, M. D., are the lessees of the exclusive right to fish in Sharpe's Creek. Certain persons in Seaford, Goderich and Clinton have persisted in poaching on this preserve. The lessees have brought an action against some of these poachers, and have asked the Court of Chancery for an injunction to restrain them from further trespassing. The lessees are bound to punish all who invade their legal rights.

RECEIVED AN APPOINTMENT.—The Globe has the following in reference to the appointment of Hon. A. M. Ross to the clerkship of the County Court of York, vacant owing to the death of the late Walter Mackenzie. The many friends of the Treasurer will be glad to know that on his retirement from public life recognition is thus made of the signal services he has rendered the Province in the management of her finances for the past seven years. The position he takes has a fair annual remuneration attached to it, about half the amount suggested by the one or two journals that have been discussing the appointment, but it is to be remembered that when Mr. Ross became a member of the Mowat Administration in 1883 he surrendered two highly honorable and well paid positions, viz., the county treasurership of Huron and the management of the Bank of Commerce at Goderich. It is safe to say that had he held back from the turmoil and uncertainties of political life, and retained these positions, he would have been better off financially than he finds himself to-day, after seven years' hard work in the service of the Province. No one will grudge the bestowal of an office which demands the unremitting attention of a man of good ability upon one who may fairly be said to have sacrificed his business prospects in accepting the position he has for seven years filled so ably, and which he is now about to resign. The heartiest respect of those who have known him officially or personally will accompany Mr. Ross into private life.

A communication from the Deputy-Minister of Marine was read, referring to previous correspondence in reference to the repairing of the docks, and enclosing an extract from a report on the condition of the docks by O. P. St. John, steamboat inspector, dated May 10th, 1890, from which it appears that the wharf needs considerable repair.

The letter asked if the repairs would be attended to without delay.

CHAPTER XX.

"And so she's really going to marry Mr. Van Antwerp?" said Mrs. Buxton to Mrs. Waldron a few days later in the month of sunshine and roses.

With one shriek of warning and terror she being visible—but it was the picture of a black upon the silver sea beyond.

When she rapped, three or four young cavaliers were at the gate chatting with Mrs. Waldron, and the picture was passed from hand to hand, exciting varied comment. It was a simple carte de visite, of the style once spoken of as vignette—only the head and shoulders being visible—but it was the picture of a black upon the silver sea beyond.

So he turns away, and she still stands at the foot of the staircase, watching him uneasily. He has aged greatly in the past few months. She is shocked to see how thin, how flinty, nervous, irritable he has become. As he moves towards the doorway she notes how thin his cheek has grown, and wonders at the resolution in his movements when he reaches the broad piazza.

Mr. Hayne stopped in some surprise when hailed, greeted Mrs. Waldron warmly and bowed courteously to Mrs. Buxton, who was watching him narrowly. "Want to see a picture of the man you ought to go and perforce?" asked Webster, with that lofty indifference which youngsters have to the ravages of the tender passion on subjects other than themselves.

"To whom do you refer?" asked Hayne, smiling gravely, and little imagining what was in store for him. "This," said Webster, holding out the card. Hayne took it, gave one glance, started, seized it with both hands, studied it eagerly, while his own face rapidly paled, then looked up with quick, searching eyes.

"Who is this?" he asked. "The man who's engaged to Miss Travers—Mr. Van Antwerp." "This—this—Mr. Van Antwerp?" exclaimed Hayne, his face white as a sheet. "Here, take it, Royce!"

But Royce did not answer. A gorgeous moonlight is bathing the Jersey coast in sparkling silver. The tumbling billows come thundering in to the shining strand, and sending their hissing, seething, whirling waters, all shimmer and radiance, to the very feet of the groups of spectators. There are hundreds of people scattered here and there along the shingle, and among the groups a pale faced young man in tweed traveling suit has made his way to a point where he can command a view of all the passers by. It is nearly 11 o'clock before they begin to break up and seek the broad corridors of the brilliantly lighted hotel. A great military band of nearly forty pieces is playing superbly at intervals, and every now and then, as some stirring martial strains come thrilling through the air, a young girl in a group near at hand beats time with her pretty foot and seems to quiver with the influence of the soldier melodies. A tall, dark eyed, dark haired man bends devotedly over her, but he, too, seems to rise to his full height at times, and there is something in the carriage and the people that tells that soldier songs have thrilled his veins ere now. And this man the young traveler in gray watches as though his eyes were fascinated. Standing in the shade of a little summer house, he never ceases his scrutiny of the group that follows. The sands are soon deserted; the great piazzas are emptied of their promenaders; the halls and corridors are still patronized by the few belated chaperons and their giddy charges. The music loving girl has gone away to her room, and her aunt, the third member of the group that so chained the attention of the young man in gray, lingers for a moment to exchange a few words with their cavalier. He seems in need of consolation. "Don't be so downhearted, Mr. Van Antwerp. It is very early in the summer, and you have the whole season before you." "No, Mr. Hayne, it is very different from last year. I cannot explain it, but I know there has been a change. I feel as—as if used to in my old, wild days when a change of luck was coming. It's like the gambler's superstition, but I cannot shake it off. Something told me she was lost to me when you boarded that Pacific express last February. I was a fool ever to have let her go."

"Is she still so determined?" "I cannot shake her resolution. She says that at the end of the year's time originally agreed upon she will keep her promise; but she will listen to no earlier marriage. I have about given up all hope. Something again—that fearful something I cannot shake off—tells me that my only chance lay in getting her to go with me this month. Once abroad with her, I could make her happy; but—"

He breaks off irresolutely, looking about him in the strange, hunted manner which she has noted once or twice already. "You are all unstrung, Mr. Van Antwerp. Why not go to bed and try and sleep? You will be so much brighter to-morrow." "I cannot sleep. But don't let me keep you. I'll go out and smoke a cigar. Good night, Mrs. Rayner. Whatever comes of it all, I shall not forget your kindness."

So he turns away, and she still stands at the foot of the staircase, watching him uneasily. He has aged greatly in the past few months. She is shocked to see how thin, how flinty, nervous, irritable he has become. As he moves towards the doorway she notes how thin his cheek has grown, and wonders at the resolution in his movements when he reaches the broad piazza. He stands there an instant, the massive doorway forming a frame for a picture in silhouette, his tall, spare figure thrown black upon the silver sea beyond. He looks up and down the deserted galleries, fumbles in his pockets for his cigar case, bites off with nervous clip the end of a huge "Regalia," strikes a light, and before the flame is half applied to his weed throws it away, then turns sharply and strides off of sight towards the office.

Another instant, and, as though in pursuit, a second figure, erect, soldierly, with quick and bounding step strides across the glittering moon streak, and Mrs. Rayner's heart stands still. Only for an instant, though. She has seen and recognized Lawrence Hayne. Concealed from them he is following Mr. Van Antwerp, and there can be but one purpose in his coming here—Nellie. But what can he want with her—her right-lover? She springs from the lower step on which she has been standing, runs across the tessellated floor, and stops short in the doorway, gazing after the other figure. She is startled to find them close at hand—one, Van Antwerp, close to the railing, facing towards her, his features ghastly in the moonlight, his left hand resting, and supporting him, on one of the tall wooden pillars; the other, Hayne, with white clinching fists, advancing upon him. Above the low boom and roar of the surf she distinctly hears the clear tenor ring of his voice in the tone of command she last heard under the shadows of the Rockies, two thousand miles away.

"Halt!" No wonder a gentleman in civil life looks amazed at so peremptory a summons from a total stranger. In his high indignation he will not strike the impatient subaltern to earth? As a well bred woman it occurs to her that she ought to rush out and avert hostilities by introducing them or something; but she has no time to act. The next words she simply take her breath away. "Sergeant Gower, I arrest you as a deserter and thief! You deserted from F. troop, 4th Cavalry, at Battle Butte!"

She sees the fearful gleam on the dark man's face; there is a sudden spring, a clinch, a strain to and fro of two forms—one tall, black, skinned, the other light, lithe, agile and trained; muttered curse, panting breath, and then, sure as the tall man is being borne backward against the rail. She sees the dark arm suddenly relax its grasp of the gray form and disappear an instant. Then there it comes again, and with it a gleam of steel. With one shriek of warning and terror she springs towards them—just in time. Van Antwerp, alias Gower, springs to his feet, leaps over the balcony rail and disappears in the depths below. It is a descent of not more than ten feet to the sands beyond the dark passage that underlies the piazza, but he has gone down into the space beneath the steps, gains his way to the space beneath the piazza, no trace of the fugitive can be found.

Nor does Mr. Van Antwerp appear at breakfast on the following morning, nor again to any person known to this story. An officer of the 4th Cavalry, ascending a portion of the following winter in Paris, writes that he met him face to face one day in the galleries of the Louvre. Being in civilian costume, of course, and much changed in appearance since he was a youth in the straps of a second lieutenant, it was possible for him to take a good look at the man he had not seen since he won the chevron of a dashing sergeant in the Battle Butte campaign. "He has grown almost white," wrote the lieutenant, "and I'm told he has abandoned his business in New York and never will return to the United States."

Rayner, too, has grown gray. A telegram from his wife summoned him to the seaside from Washington the day after this strange adventure of hers. He found her somewhat prostrate, his clerical-in-law very pale and quiet, and the clerics of the hotel unable to account for the disappearance of Mr. Van Antwerp. "I don't like to eat sour apples," said a little boy. "They make my teeth feel so embarrassed."

Occasional doses of a good cathartic like Burdock Pills are necessary to keep the blood pure and the body healthy. 1 There are spiders as small as a grain of sand, and they spin a thread so fine that it takes four thousand of them to make a human hair.

Enrich the blood by the use of Millburn's Beef, Iron and Wine, which supplies the necessary blood building material. 1m. Tommy: "Pa, may I ask you a question?" "Certainly, my child." Tommy: "Well, where is the wind when it doesn't blow?"

Why allow your life to be made miserable by buzzing insects when Wilson's Fly Pads will annihilate them and give you peace. Try them. Sold by all druggists. 1m. "Pa, is a lambkin a little lamb?" "Yes, my boy." "And a manikin a little man?" "Yes, my boy. I suppose the forty winks you take every night after supper is a napkin, isn't it?"

Wilson's Fly Pads Slaughter House Flies in millions. They are safe, efficient and effectual. 1m. Clean Wits. One morning mamma was dressing a chicken for the next day's dinner, and grandma called Willie to come in and stay with her. "O, no," he said, "I want to stay and see mamma dress," and then, with a twinkle in his eye—"no, undress this chicken."

Billiousness and Acid Stomach. Having used your Burdock Blood Bitters successfully for some time past for my complaint, biliousness and acid stomach, I have never found it equal. 2 THOS. W. STROTT, St. Thomas, Ont.

A Boy's Valerian. An Indian boy who was obliged to leave school to go to work, made a little farewell speech, in which he said: "It makes me feel very sorry when I think my absence." Another boy prayed that he might walk "more circumspectly before the world."

Practical Pointers. As a simple, natural laxative, stomachic, blood, brain and nerve tonic, when taken as directed, the value of Burdock Blood Bitters cannot be over-estimated, while as a cure for constipation, indigestion, liver diseases, impure blood, sleeplessness, nervous and sick headache, it is the best that money can buy.

ODDS AND ENDS. A Little Senseless, Now and Then, is Better than the Wisest of Men. "So dark and yet so light," as the man said about his short ton of coal.

The extreme depth of misery is a small boy with a new pair of boots and no mud puddle. There are many indications of worms, but Dr. Low's Worm Syrup meets them in every case successfully. 1m.

"I don't like to eat sour apples," said a little boy. "They make my teeth feel so embarrassed." Occasional doses of a good cathartic like Burdock Pills are necessary to keep the blood pure and the body healthy. 1 There are spiders as small as a grain of sand, and they spin a thread so fine that it takes four thousand of them to make a human hair.

Enrich the blood by the use of Millburn's Beef, Iron and Wine, which supplies the necessary blood building material. 1m. Tommy: "Pa, may I ask you a question?" "Certainly, my child." Tommy: "Well, where is the wind when it doesn't blow?"

Why allow your life to be made miserable by buzzing insects when Wilson's Fly Pads will annihilate them and give you peace. Try them. Sold by all druggists. 1m. "Pa, is a lambkin a little lamb?" "Yes, my boy." "And a manikin a little man?" "Yes, my boy. I suppose the forty winks you take every night after supper is a napkin, isn't it?"

Wilson's Fly Pads Slaughter House Flies in millions. They are safe, efficient and effectual. 1m. Clean Wits. One morning mamma was dressing a chicken for the next day's dinner, and grandma called Willie to come in and stay with her. "O, no," he said, "I want to stay and see mamma dress," and then, with a twinkle in his eye—"no, undress this chicken."

Billiousness and Acid Stomach. Having used your Burdock Blood Bitters successfully for some time past for my complaint, biliousness and acid stomach, I have never found it equal. 2 THOS. W. STROTT, St. Thomas, Ont.

A Boy's Valerian. An Indian boy who was obliged to leave school to go to work, made a little farewell speech, in which he said: "It makes me feel very sorry when I think my absence." Another boy prayed that he might walk "more circumspectly before the world."

Beauty of Person. Some excellent people take serious exception to Grant Allen's remark that, being a man, he took it for granted that the first business of a girl was to be pretty. Now, it may be that Mr. Allen is not so far out of the way after all. It is certainly the duty of every woman, and man, too, to be as good looking as possible, because beauty gives pleasure to other people. Beauty of person is the expression of something corresponding to it in the mind and soul, and is to be prized accordingly. True beauty comes from the cultivation of the higher graces of the mind and soul, as well as the care of the body, and cannot exist without this. A dried up old professor who knows forty languages, and yet is weak eyed, lank haired, stoop shouldered and dyspeptic, is as far from being a perfectly developed man as the prize fighter. Of the two the prize fighter is far the more agreeable object to look at. The Greeks were nearer right than we think when they gave physical culture so high a place. So, girls and women of all ages, be as beautiful as you can. Make yourselves handsome by physical exercise, by intellectual work and by cultivating a sweet temper and generous, kindly spirit to all mankind.

A. D. White and Coeducation. Ex-President White, of Cornell, is enthusiastically in favor of coeducation and athletic exercises. Coeducation makes women more womanly and men more manly, he says. And sunshine, fresh air and vigorous physical exercises are more important for girls than for boys even, because "co-ed" girls students in their zeal for study are apt to neglect their bodies. In his judgment no girl should be permitted to take a college course unless she also took a proper system of regular exercise in a gymnasium or elsewhere.

Tricks of Mamma. To illustrate how the little tricks of mamma are copied and become the fashion, it is told of a debutante of several seasons ago who speedily became a pronounced belle that at her first appearance in society, out of sheer embarrassment, she invariably stood with her hands clasped. Before she ceased to resort to this peculiar method of relief her reign became established, and all the girls of her set, recognizing her supremacy, quickly copied her example.

A child may be suffocated by a bad attack of Croup. Wilson's Wild Cherry gives immediate relief and quickly cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Cold in the Head, Bronchitis and similar diseases. Get a bottle and keep it in the house, it may save your child's life as it has done in many cases. It is so pleasant that children take it like syrup. For Coughs and Colds in adults it has no equal. Get the genuine in white wrappers. 1m.

He's Had Enough. "Willie Johnson," said the teacher, "if you have four doughnuts, and your mother were to give you four more, how many would you have?" Willie twisted the corners of his jacket, moved his lips, and tried to think, but he couldn't. "Don't count 'em up," said the teacher; "tell me right off." "I should have— a—a—a—" "Well, how many?" "Hub—I sh'd have 'nough, I guess," said Willie, grinning broadly.

THE "V.S." COLUMN. A boy named John Hickey, thirteen years of age, died in the hospital at New Brunswick, N. J., of lockjaw, brought on by the use of cigarettes.

Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, testifies that the late Dr. Livingston was a total abstainer from intoxicating beverages during his residence in Africa; and that he himself, during three and one half years' sojourn in that torrid climate, did not drink tea, tobacco, or any of the spirituous liquors and was nine months in the wildest parts of Africa without a symptom of disease.—Canada Citizen.

The Age of Understanding. BY KATHIE MOORE. "I am anxious to have my boy sign temperance pledge, but I do not think it right to let him do so until he understands the nature of a vow," said a fond mother. "At what age do you think he will understand it?" "At eight or nine, I should think," she replied.

And in the meanwhile the little fellow may learn to like the taste of wine or cider. Children are never safe away from home, and some kind neighbor, in mistaken kindness, of course, may lead this little one's feet into paths of evil by giving him a taste of wine or cider. "That is true," answered the mother; and the next Sunday her four-year-old boy signed the pledge in the Sabbath school.

Some weeks later, when I was again visiting the mother, her little boy came in from his play. He had been spending an hour with a neighbor. "Mamma," he said, in his sweet, baby way, "it isn't beer that Mr. Martin drinks out of her bottle; it is cider." "How do you know that?" asked his mamma. "She told me so. I said, 'Mrs. Martin, is that beer you are drinking out of the beer bottle?' and she said, 'No, Tommy, that is cider,' and then after awhile she said, 'Will you have some cider, Tommy?' and I said, 'No, thank you, Mrs. Martin, I don't drink cider.'"

The mother smiled. "She knew, now, that her boy could understand, and that with the pleasant fumes of cider about him he could keep his pledge. As soon as children can understand what drunkenness is and what truth is, they can understand and keep a pledge. Let the little children sign the pledge, the earlier the better, so that the taste for these tempting drinks may never be stumbling block in the walk of life.—Union Signal.

An Astonished Bunch Man. Chief Justice Bassey, of New Jersey, who prides himself on the rural character of his dress and appearance, while on a recent visit to New York City, was one afternoon standing on the steps of a prominent hotel when he was accosted by a perfect stranger, whom he at once sized up as a confidence operator. "It has been a long time since we met," said the newcomer in an affable manner. "Yes," said the Chief Justice, musingly, "quite a long time."

"Are you enjoying yourself as usual?" asked the man, evidently feeling for an opportunity to run in his little game. "Yes, as usual," answered the Chief Justice, with a sunny smile. "Still in the same old business, eh?" "Yes; still in the same old business." "What business is it? It's been a long time since I've seen you that I declare I've quite forgotten."

The Chief Justice's eyes sparkled merrily, as he replied, with an assumption of innocence which would have done no discredit to a first-class actor: "Sending rogues to jail!" The confidence man stared at him and then suddenly shot off down the street, while the Chief Justice looked after him with the innocence and benevolence of a Jersey farmer totally ignorant of city wiles and deceptions.

A Novel Occupation. A New York dentist employs a lady assistant at a salary of $50 a week and a commission for every customer, who goes from house to house and cleans teeth. She is young and pretty, attractively dressed, and, while self-assured, she is a lady in all that the name implies. She has taken a course of medical dietary, and knows enough about the work to cap a nerve, soothe a violent toothache, put a temporary filling in a cavity requiring immediate attention, remove a child's tooth and insert waxes to loosen the little molar and incisors that need straightening. In a hand sachel she carries material for that purpose, besides a supply of drugs, purple stone, and the like for cleaning the teeth. Ordinarily she charges 50 cents to put a set of teeth in order, but the mouths of a small family are looked into for a couple of dollars. "For a long time I had no appetite, was restless at night, and very much debilitated. After taking two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my strength and appetite returned and my health was completely restored."—D. M. Fisher, Oswego, N.Y.

DEATH IN THE STORM.

A TORONTO WORKMAN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Malton County Visited by a Tornado—The Elements do Great Damage in the States—A Tent Shattered 2000 People Blown Down—Loss of Life.

Toronto, June 12.—John Hamilton, an employe of the rolling mills at Swansea, was struck dead by lightning, while returning from his day's work in the Lake Shore road. About 5 1/2 o'clock several of the workmen from the mills were caught in the heavy thunder shower. John Hamilton, who was some distance ahead of the others, took shelter under a tree opposite the front of Howard Lake. W. Stickle, No. 1 Ligar place, and D. Kent, 1430 Queen-street west, also made for the tree, while Hamilton from his refuge stood laughing at the wetting the two were getting. Suddenly there was a flash of blinding light and a terrible crash. Stickle and Kent stopped short in terror and then ran forward to Hamilton, who lay with his hands outstretched as if clutching at the tree for support.

Stickle raised his head, but the poor man had been instantly killed. No mark of any kind disfigured the body, and but for a rent in his trousers, probably done by the tree, the clothes were not marked at all. On the side of the tree opposite to the portion under which the victim stood a large branch was split off.

The deceased was 32 years of age and arrived in Toronto from Kent, England, six months ago. He was employed in what is called the "scrap gang" in the mills, and his salary was not large but he was left alone among comparative strangers with no means of support. He is prostrated with grief. The deceased was a member of St. George's Society in England, but as yet no funeral arrangements have been made.

A TORNADO IN HALTON.

Farm Buildings Wrecked and Fences Destroyed—A Child's Arm Broken.

Milton, June 11.—A tornado passed about a mile north of town at 2 1/2 this afternoon, wrecking Wm. Center's barn in Egesing, the dwelling, sheds and barn of Malcolm in his trousers, probably done by the tree, the clothes were not marked at all. On the side of the tree opposite to the portion under which the victim stood a large branch was split off.

A Child's Close Call.

BRACEBRIDGE, June 11.—During a heavy thunder storm this afternoon the house of William Ross was struck by lightning, wrecking the house badly. A child lying asleep upstairs had a narrow escape from falling bricks from a chimney when he was thrown all over the room, about a dozen falling on the bed where the child lay, but fortunately all the inmates escaped injury.

The Illinois Cyclone.

JOLIET, Ill., June 11.—The damage done by the cyclone at Channahon last night was slight. Two houses were blown down. The occupants escaped unhurt. Five children were thrown all over the room, about a dozen falling on the bed where the child lay, but fortunately all the inmates escaped injury.

A Circus Tent Blown Over.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., June 11.—Two thousand persons were in a tent south of Jacksonville listening to a concert to-day, when a storm sprang up and the tent blew over on the crowd. A scene of mad confusion ensued, the poles and heavy canvas crushing many to the ground. Quite a number of persons were injured, most seriously being Mrs. Musgrave, wife of the pastor of Grace M. E. Church, hurt about the spine; Miss Alderson of Chapin, skull fractured.

Destruction in Iowa.

WAPELLA, Ia., June 11.—A cyclone last night destroyed the fair ground exhibition hall and tore to pieces residences of Mrs. Biggs, S. Bryant and O. W. Ives. All the inmates of the houses were injured more or less, though none fatally.

A Fatal Bolt.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 11.—Morgan Lewis was killed and another person injured by lightning near Oliphant to-day.

Heavy Losses in Pennsylvania.

CARLEISLE, Pa., June 11.—A severe hail and wind storm, which did much damage to the crops, was experienced in the Cumberland valley this evening. Hail fell in large quantities. Reports from the surrounding country state the damage was heavy.

New York in Darkness.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Lightning struck the Manhattan Electric Light Co's works to-night and caused a fire which did $40,000 damage. Many switchboards and dynamos were destroyed. A large section of the upper part of the city will now be in darkness until Saturday.

THEY WENT WITHOUT MUSIC.

Because British Troops Wouldn't Look Well Under the Stars and Stripes.

KINGSTON, June 11.—By special permission of the Government the American steamer St. Lawrence was permitted to call at Canadian ports to-day without calling at American ports alternately. This was to accompany the excursion for the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters. The band of "A's" Battery was engaged by the Mayor to accompany the excursion, but when Col. Cotton observed that the boat was flying the Stars and Stripes he refused to allow the bandmen to go on board on the ground that it would not look well to see British troops in uniform on a steamer carrying the United States flag. The captain refused to haul down the banner and the excursion had to forego its musical attraction.

Long on Wheat, Short on Cash.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Robert Warren & Co., one of the oldest houses in the grain trade, has failed. Liabilities supposed to be quite heavy. The firm has been "long" on wheat and provisions, and the recent heavy depreciation in value drove them to the wall.

THE STRYCHNINE ROUTE.

Farmer Lawrence of Marmora Deliberately Takes His Own Life.

MARMORA, June 11.—Thomas Lawrence of Marmora township visited this village Saturday and sold about $20 worth of goods, purchased necessaries for his family and returned home, about eight miles north, arriving at 9 o'clock. He retired for the night and complaining of a headache told his wife he would take some salts. He arose and deliberately took a dose of strychnine which, it is believed, he had purchased for the purpose. He was dead in 15 minutes. After taking the deadly drug he asked for vinegar. As there was none in the house he asked for coal oil. The deceased was about 32 years of age and apparently enjoyed good health. His wife is an invalid and with her two small children are in reduced circumstances. Lawrence has several times told his wife that he meant to take his own life.

Coroner Dr. Jones upon becoming acquainted with the facts decided that an inquest was not necessary.

BELLEVILLE, June 11.—Davis, the murderer executed next week, wept when told of the suicide of his friend Lawrence.

NO CHARGE TO MAKE.

Cowles Declines to Prosecute Hale for Shooting Him.

MONTREAL, June 11.—The condition of Cowles continues to improve and his recovery is only a matter of a week or two. To-day the hospital physicians pronounced him well enough to make his deposition and Judge Desnoyers proceeded to the hospital for that purpose. The only persons admitted were the counsel for the defence, the judge and his secretary. Remaining in the waiting-room were Mr. Hale, the assessor, Judge Ingersoll and the detectives. Mr. Hale, Mr. Cowles and the chief of the Montreal police were present.

When asked what he had to say Mr. Cowles answered that he had no statement to make and declined to make any charge. Judge Desnoyers was in a quandary and took till tomorrow to consider the matter, when it is probable Hale will be discharged from custody.

Another Side to the Story.

BELLEVILLE, N. J., June 11.—A reporter called at the home of Miss Clara Lumschloss' parents here yesterday afternoon. The door was opened by Miss Belle, a young and pretty sister of Clara's. When the errand girl explained Miss Lumschloss said: "We have nothing to say at present, but when the proper time comes a statement will be made. You may have noticed that in all the newspaper accounts there has been but one side of the story given. One should not judge until he has heard both sides."

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Opening of the Presbyterian Supreme Court at the Capital.

OTTAWA, June 11.—A large audience gathered in Bank-street Church this evening, the occasion being the assembling of the members of the Supreme Court of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Principal Grant, the retiring moderator, preached an admirable sermon on Hebrews xii. 1-3.

28. Therefore receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear.

During the delivery of the discourse commendatory reference was made to Lincoln's newly elected representative and to circumstances connected with the re-election. These elicited audible expressions of admiration from various parts of the house.

As predicted yesterday Dr. Laing of Dundas was chosen to succeed Dr. Grant in the moderatorship. He was conducted to the chair by Messrs. Burson of St. Catharines and Johnston of Fredrickton, his mover and seconder. The new moderator expressed thanks and craved indulgence and assistance from the court.

Acknowledgment was made by the retiring moderator of correspondence from Her Majesty the Queen and from His Excellency the Governor-General in reply to addresses from the last assembly. After a few routine arrangements had been made the assembly adjourned to meet upon regular work to-morrow morning.

BAPTISTS IN COUNCIL.

The Midland Counties' Association at Galt—Encouraging Reports.

GALT, June 11.—The Midland Counties' Association of the Baptist Church is in session here. Last night an able opening sermon was preached by Rev. D. G. McDonald of Stratford. This morning Rev. J. L. Gilmour, B.A., of Orangeville, delivered the annual sermon from John xii. 31. The discourse was a clear exposition of the passages. At the close of the sermon Rev. J. L. Gilmour was elected moderator and R. D. Warren clerk.

In the afternoon reports from the churches were heard. They were of an exceedingly encouraging character. Mr. D. Warren gave the report on the condition of the churches. Number of churches reported 21; membership 2028; added during the year 175; raised for missions $257; increase over last year $1257; raised for all purposes $32,444; contributions per member $16.

To-night addresses were given on "Education" by representatives of Woodstock College and McMaster Hall. The association continues in session to-morrow.

Reformed Presbyterians.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Reformed Presbyterian Synod adopted a resolution condemning secret societies, including college societies, and laid over the report of the committee on divorce until the next synod. The report permits divorce for adultery and willful desertion only. The report of the committee on tobacco was finally adopted, the third recommendation being amended to request elders and members engaged in the tobacco traffic to withdraw from it.

A Bad Outlook for These Suspects.

PETERBORO, June 11.—Mr. H. R. Patterson, the Lakeside jeweler, has returned from Prescott, where he identified about $100 worth of the jewelry found on the burglars under arrest as his. The five suspects arrested are to be tried on a charge of burglary at Prescott, after which they will probably be brought here and placed on trial in connection with the Lakeside burglary.

The C. & G. T.'s Kick Succeeds.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Chairman Blanchard of the Central Traffic Association had a long conference with Traffic Manager Reeve of the Chicago & Grand Trunk to-day, the result of which was the Grand Trunk official consented to remain in the association. The right of that road to protect its differential rate on dressed beef shipments will hereafter be recognized.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Care of shrubbery. Straggling shoots of shrubbery should be clipped about June, or a little later. One may preach against formality and artificial outlines, but the majority of people are pleased with nicely rounded or conical specimens, whether singly or in groups. As a little short, well-rotted manure should be annually dug into the flower-beds, it will cause a strong growth, especially in clematis, consequently the tops should be frequently clipped. There is wide difference between beds so treated and those permitted to grow at will. If the beds are in regular design the shears should frequently be used to shape the outlines. If dry, bring hose and sprinkler into requisition, as plants set thickly in beds rapidly absorb moisture from the soil.

Worth Repeating. The way to grow grapes is to let all the bunches grow that you can. I know for I tried it once. Now I pinch off all but two bunches on a cane and see to it that there are not too many canes. Where more than one cane grows from a bud the extra are broken off soon after they start. On my soil I never get too little wood. Variety, soil and age of vine will determine the best mode of summer pruning. Rose bugs will crawl through a very small hole. Bags to protect grapes from their ravages must be pinned tight around the stem or cane, otherwise they will get in and devour the young fruit. I bag mine as soon as they bloom.—Farm Journal.

Fast-Walking Horses. Get a fast walker if you are buying a horse; second, train any colt in breaking to stop lively. Who, speaking from practical experience, can tell the best way to teach a young horse to have a rapid-walking gait? Plenty can tell how to teach them to trot or run fast; but nine-tenths of the work of horses is done on the walk.—Prairie Farmer.

A Gardener's Friend. I have four or five toads in my greenhouse, and they are so tame I can do anything with them; they will feed from my hand. Toads are the greatest friends the gardener has, as they eat woodlice, slugs and lots of other insects that so infect the greenhouse. I would not have one of mine hurt in any way if I knew it. I watched one the other day and saw him catch and eat five or six woodlice in about two minutes.—English Gardening Illustrated.

Tree Culture. Trees and plants growing naturally in low, boggy spots are not necessarily restricted to such conditions, but frequently succeed much better where the land is well drained. The alleged necessity for transplanting trees into similar soils is therefore untenable. A pine or fir, if unmoistened, forms one straight leading shoot, and this feature contributes largely to the tree's beauty. Should any accident happen to it, two, three, or even more terminals will result, to the sacrifice of symmetry. But by removing all but one of these shoots, the specimen regains its attractive conical outline.

Teach Love of Leaves. A simple yet effective way of saving the trees which should adorn our landscape would be to teach children in the public schools to respect and preserve the leaves and shoots of the shrubs, vines and other plants planted as ornament or shelter in the school-grounds. We have here large schools with but narrow playgrounds; yet, after a talk to the little ones on the nature and uses of leaves and trees by the principal, and after they found that he cared for them, they began to care, too, and it was a beautiful thing and a fine tribute to the teacher to see how safe the little vines and plants remained all the season in ground beaten bare and hard by hundreds of rushing feet. The same care is noted in German and Austrian school-grounds, where the classes often meet around some plant or bed to observe how a detail from their number proceeds in planting or grafting, or training, and in two years' experience in American schools one teacher found a tendency to vandalism among plants soon banished by the interest, easily excited, and the lessons, of such evident usefulness, and which aid rather than detract from the book-lessons.—A Farmer-Teacher.

Insect-Destroyers. Tobacco smoke will kill the green fly on roses, but when out of doors tobacco dust, which is cheap, will answer every purpose and is far more readily applied. But for striped-cucumber beetles, and the blue fly-beetles, I doubt its efficacy; besides, a fellow would have a good time "covering and smoking" an acre of such plants in the morning "while we wait dew."—A. S. Fuller.

Seed Production Weakening. A small apple full of seeds, or a puny bunch of grapes with many seeds, makes a greater drain on the tree or vine than a large, juicy fruit consisting more of flesh or pulp than seed. For, as in the animal kingdom, the production of progeny weakens the parent, and the rarer elements go into the seeds that are to yield it. Grapevines are much given to overbearing, and the way to grow sour grapes is to let all the bunches grow that set. After having pruned at least half the wood away in October or November, we pick off half the bunches in May. This year, however, the 10-degree of March 7 thinned more than we want on all vines left up on the trellises. There will be, however, many foot-plate-coming bunches to be got rid of.

The Calla Lily. This is properly the time when callas should rest from blooming. For the benefit of enterprising individuals who ignore the fact that all plants need periods of rest, and make vain attempts to force callas to bloom twice a year, we copy the following from the Housewife: "My callas don't bloom, is the cry from many quarters. What is the matter? We cannot say positively, but can say truly the calla wants water like a mill, heat like a furnace, food like an army, and absolute rest during summer. In its native habitat it is in water a foot or more in depth, in broad open sunlight, in soil as rich as decayed vegetation, and make it. Soon after the flowering season is over the water subside; and the soil in which they grow becomes as hot and dry as it is possible for it to get in the tropics." It

THE HOME CIRCLE. "Buty First, Pleasure Afterwards." "A disagreeable old saw," did you say? Perhaps it does seem so when the pleasure is very inviting and the duty very irksome by contrast; and yet I doubt if any one ever made a success of life who turned the "old saw," and tried to make "pleasure first" the rule. It is said that a rich man, who was poor when a boy, was asked how he became rich. He replied: "My father taught me never to play until my work was finished, and never to spend money until I had earned it. If I had but one hour's work in a day, I must do that first; after that I was allowed to play. Then I could play with more pleasure than if I had an unfinished task. I formed the habit of doing everything in time. It soon became easy to do so."

Beware of the First Glass. The secret of being sober, and of keeping sober, is to avoid the first glass. If you determine not to take the first glass nobody can make you take the second. All the drunkenness in the world began with the first glass, and often at the family table; it is generally there that boys and girls have their first temptation. Before you take the first glass, you are perfectly sober, but not quite afterwards; and the second and third are farther moved from perfect sobriety.

Business Training. It takes a sound body to make a sound mind. Work is not vulgar. So long as the brain needs the juices of the body, so long will hard work be the fundamental element in the development of the mind. Business is eminently fit for a man of genius, and to earn a livelihood is the best way to sharpen one's wit. Besides, business affairs offer better opportunities at present than the so-called professions. Therefore our youth should be thoroughly and practically trained for business, in order that they may succeed and become a credit to whatever calling they may adopt. At the same time they should be educated not to despise labor, for, after all, it is only by hard work that we achieve any success worthy of the name.

Dutch Care for Linens. During a morning walk a merchant who was detained by business in Amsterdam came to a group of men who were standing round a well, into which a strongly built man had just been let down. A pipe, whose mouth was at the top of the well, had been opened and a stream of water from it was flowing down into the well and beginning gradually to fill it. The fellow below had quite enough to do, if he did not want to be drowned, to keep the water out by means of a pump which was at the bottom of the well. The merchant, pitying the man, asked for an explanation of what seemed a heartless, cruel joke. "Sir," replied the old man standing near, "that man is healthy and strong; I have myself offered him work twenty times, nevertheless he always asks for laziness to get the better of him; and he will make any excuse to beg his bread from door to door, though he might easily earn it himself by work if he liked. We are now trying to make him feel that he can work. If he uses the strength which is in his arms he will be saved, if he lets them hang idle he will be drowned. But look," continued the old Dutchman, as he went to the edge of the well, "the fellow finds out that he has got muscles; in an hour we shall let him out with better resolutions for the future." Such was the case, and the cure was effectual.—Christian at Work.

Girls Who Use Slang. If young ladies who have the association with young men whose limited education and poverty of ideas compel the use of slang in lieu of correct expressions comprehended the meaning of many of the terms thus put in their innocent mouths; they would be shocked at the vulgarity of their companions. Almost without exception words and phrases popularly denominated "slang" are drawn from the slums; they are the invention of the most depraved elements of human society, and should be avoided by all persons with any pretensions to refinement and gentility.

A Word to Fathers. Said a gentleman the other day, "Oh, yes; I let my boys go to other places of amusement when they beg to, but I go with them. They seem to like me pretty well for a companion. That man had discovered a grand rule for any parent to practise. Such sympathy and good-fellowship between father and sons is delightful. Mothers are usually inclined to indulge their children sufficiently if they will only take time to weigh carefully their desires and requests. What wise, loving parent can hesitate for a moment in choosing how it would be desirable for children to recall in time to come their youthful days; whether as a time of repression and repeated disappointments, or as a bright, joyous season, free from unnecessary requirements or restrictions.—Exchange.

A Considerate Man. Some people who are constantly talking of that rare virtue, consideration for the feelings of others, have themselves no consideration whatever. Barnes, after returning home one night, remarked to a wife that Vance was the most considerate man he had ever seen. "How so?" his wife asked. "Why, he sat for three hours and let me do all the talking."—Arkansas Traveller.

A Harsh Measure. Harry to Kate, who has just finished writing a letter—It makes quite a difference since she changed the law so that you can send an ounce for three cents. Kate—a great deal of difference. One has to use so much more paper than before, not to speak of the extra time lost in writing to fill it, that I think the change from half an ounce was a most inopportune, a real imposition.—Boston Transcript.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Made to Look New. Old clothing may be made to look nearly as good as new by purchasing the following plan, says the Philadelphia Record:— Take, for instance, a shiny, old coat, or vest of broadcloth, cashmere or diagonal. The scourer makes a strong, warm suds and plunges the garment into it, soaks it up and down, rubs the dirty places; if necessary, puts it through a second suds, then rinses it through several waters and hangs it to dry on the line. When nearly dry he takes it in, rolls it up or an hour or two and then presses it. An old sordid cloth is laid on the outside of the coat and the iron passed over that until the wrinkles are out; but the iron is removed before the steam ceases to rise from the goods, else they would be shiny. Wrinkles that are obstinate are removed by laying a wet cloth over them and passing the iron over that. If any shiny places are seen they are treated as the wrinkles are; the iron is lifted, while the full cloud of steam rises and brings the nap with it. Good clothes will bear many washings and look better every time because of them.

To Clean Laces. A method sometimes used to clean and whiten very delicate lace is to baste the lace smoothly on a linen cloth, then to fold the lace inside, and to put the cloth in a bowl and cover it with the best olive oil, letting it soak for ten hours. It should then be boiled for a quarter of an hour in water having in solution a small quantity of pure, fine soap. Rinse in cold water, put through very fine starch water, and dry. Do not at any step of the process wring or rub the lace, but squeeze and press it gently. When dry, many the best and medium qualities may be put into shape by passing them through various sizes of a bodkin through them. A firm lace may, after careful basting upon cloth, be cleaned by a gentle scrubbing with a fine brush dipped in a strong solution of castile soap. To clean thoroughly it must be brushed on both sides. After rinsing in soft water containing a very little powdered alum, dip a soft cloth in starch water and slightly moisten the lace on the wrong side, then lay a thin cloth over it and press on the same side, the best and medium qualities. Point lace that is very much soiled may be cleaned in this way.

Towels. The best thing of which to make roller towels is Russian crash. I am told it is woven by hand by Russian peasants. At any rate, the best and medium qualities are more satisfactory for roller towels than any other crash I know, and are least objectionable when new. Just here comes in a word as to when to begin using new towels. Let it be in the summer time, when skins are not chapped or sensitive, and when laundry work is so much easier that the conscience feels less compunction at putting slightly soiled towels into the wash for frequent laundering. One who has ever supplied towels for a group of growing boys and girls will never forget the value of this advice. Does some one suggest that this is not a clean way to do? Then use more soap, water and boiling when you wash your roller towels, and it will be.

Always have towels of linen. Do not be tempted into trying the cheaper cotton, which is very soft, but lacks strength, and which leaves a disagreeable lint behind it, in gentle protest. Once I was beguiled into it, and the experience now serves to put greater warmth into my advice. One word about "company" towels and I am done. Have them better than the family towels, if you please; but be sure to let the family take the "new" off. This may be hard on the family, but the wiping guest will love you more, and behind a blessing instead of a reproach.

Domestic Recipes. Breakfast Cake.—Two cups of sour milk, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, flour enough to roll. Cut in narrow strips and fry in hot lard. Ginger Beer.—To two gallons of water add two ounces bruised ginger and two pounds of sugar. Boil half an hour, skim, and pour into a jar or tub with sliced lemon and half ounce cream of tartar. When nearly cold add a cupful of yeast. Let it work for two days. Then strain, bottle, and cork. A preference is given to stone bottles.

Lemon Cheesecake.—Line patty pan with good paste; then put into an enameled pan the following mixture: The grated rind of 1 lemon and the juice, 1/2 pound sugar, 1/2 pound butter, 3 eggs well beaten, and half a teaspoonful of cream. Stir all over the fire till the mixture begins to thicken. With this fill the pans full and bake in a quick oven till the paste is ready.

Canary Pudding.—Three eggs, their weight in sugar and butter, and the weight of two in flour; one teaspoonful lemon juice. Warm a basin a little, put the butter in and stir till it is melted, but it must not boil; then add the sugar; then stir the flour in very gradually, and then stir the egg well and add them; pour into a mould, greased with butter and decorated, and cover with paper or steam for two hours; serve with sweet sauce.

Bachelor's Pudding.—1/2 pound grated bread, 1/2 pound currants, 1/2 pound apples, 2 ounces sugar, a little nutmeg, 3 eggs, a little essence of lemon. Put the bread in a basin, peel and chop the apples, wash and dry the currants, and stir both in; add the sugar, nutmeg and lemon. Mix well. Beat up the eggs very well, stir them in. Pour into a well-buttered mould, and cover with a buttered paper, and steam two hours.

Cream.—1/2 ounce gelatine, 2 yolks eggs, 1 pint milk, a little essence of vanilla, 2 ounces fine sugar, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1/2 pint double cream. Soak the gelatine in a little of the milk, then boil the remainder of it, and pour it over the yolks and sugar mixed; return all to the fire; stir till hot, but not boiling, and put aside; then dissolve the gelatine, and put it aside; next whip the cream up till thick; add the gelatine gradually, the oatmeal, the vanilla, and last of all the lemon juice; mix thoroughly and put in a shape till cold.

Norwich Cake.—Two eggs, 1/2 pound flour, 1/2 pound soft sugar, 1/2 pound raisins, 1/2 pound currants, 1/2 pound butter, 1/2 teaspoon baking soda, 1/2 teaspoonful ginger, 1/2 teaspoonful allspice, 1 small tea-cup of milk, 1 half skin orange peel. Put flour into a basin, and add to it the sugar, fruit—all nicely prepared—the soda and the spices. Melt the butter and pour the milk among it, and stir it in. Then beat up the eggs and stiffen them in. Give it all a good mixing, put in a greased cake tin and bake about one hour.

RELIGIOUS NOTES. Worldly Symptoms. Worldly symptoms in the pulpit are shown in ignoring or condoning the worldliness in the church, shown by special sympathy and a striving for the fashionable, the influential, and the rich; a deference to social position, with special efforts to attract and please the class. Worldly symptoms in the pulpit are seen in the manner and make-up of the sermon, its artistic treatment, its literary worldliness, most of the fine preaching in worldly. The failing to have a large ingredient of the "reprove, rebuke and exhort" in a sermon gives it a worldly flavor. The failing to be instant, as Paul directs—that is, leaving out the pressing, personal element; for instance, means to come in upon them—the failing to do this in season and out of season, gives a smack of worldliness to the sermon. The toning down truth to suit the tastes of the congregation is a worldly symptom of a worldly minister. The failure to rebuke worldliness in the pew is an arraigning and convicting form to be worldly. If the pulpit has any ally of self, any desire for reputation, any desire for money, popularity or praise, it is to that degree worldly; for these are unmistakable symptoms of worldliness.—St. Louis Advocate.

Glim Religions. The religion of Jesus has in it no elements to render its possessor morose, sullen, unattractive, gloomy. It is essentially cheery, pleasant, joyous. It removes all that terrifies and darkens, and substitutes whatever tends to lighten, beautify, sweeten and make the heart leap for joy. The curse of sin is removed because it has been borne by Christ, the wrath of God toward the sinner has been quenched in the blood that cleanses from all sin, the sin that separated the soul from God has been removed, the peace of God that passeth all understanding keeps the mind and heart, the spirit of love takes possession of the hills and valleys, the mountains and the hills break forth before him into singing and all the trees of the field clap their hands. "There is now no condemnation to him," "Christ dwells in his heart by faith," "is formed in him the hope of glory," "all things are his because he is Christ's," he has the promise of God for everything that he needs on earth, safe conduct through the vale of death and an eternal home with God and all blessed ones beyond. What a falsifier of the Saviour, what a caricaturist of his Master, what a stumbling-block to others in the way to heaven, and what an offence to "the little ones" in Christ's fold is the professor who has nothing to exhibit but a glum religion.—The Treasury.

A box of Ayer's Pills has saved many a fit of sickness. When a remedy does not happen to be within reach, people are liable to neglect slight ailments and, of course, if serious illness follows they have to suffer the consequences. "A stitch in time saves nine."

Me Took a Walk. Fourteen years ago a Connecticut husband named Davis left the house one afternoon saying he guessed he'd take a little walk. Two weeks ago he returned, having never written a word to his wife in all the years. And the first thing she did was to break his head with the broomstick, and the next to inform him that she had been married for twelve years.—Detroit Free Press.
