THE PANGS OF REMORSE — OR — A COMPLICATED TANGLE.

CHAPTER XXII.

"That I might also conjecture," said Clarence, slowly; "but I will not. If he be whom I suspect, then this tangle will want further unraveling. If it be he, we have to fight against as dark and diabolical a villain as earth holds."

His face darkened and his hand clinched fiercely.

Sir Ralph sighed confusedly, then he murmured:

"The motive can be found only in one person's grasp, and that is Lady Melville," and his eyes flashed.

Clarence's face paled.

"She," Sir Ralph continued, "is the person, no doubt, who holds River-shall. A scheming, wicked woman, whom I will punish, if the law has not lost all power! A wicked, vile woman!"

"Who saved my life," thought Clarence, with a deep sigh, which caused Lillian to turn her grand, sympathetic eyes upon him.

"And now what course are we to pursue?" asked Sir Ralph, sternly, but looking very relyantly upon the grave, young face of his willom tutor.

"Have you formed any plan?" Clarence asked.

"No," said Sir Ralph. "I—well, let me confess that I have relied on you. Such is gratitude, Mr. Clifford; it looks for favors to come. I am so overwhelmed by the service you have done me that I place myself in your hands, sensible of your courage, your magnanimous-forgiveness, and your honor."

Clarence inclined his head, much moved at the speech, which, though characteristically grandiloquent, meant more than it expressed.

"I am grateful, sir," he said, "and I will do my best to work this matter out. My life is at your service, and—Miss Melville's."

Lillian, with tears in her eyes, turned a look of such loving gratitude upon him that he was fain to stroke his mustache and turn his eyes aside, lest they should become so eloquent as to annoy Sir Ralph, who, he was fully realizing, would never consent to marry his daughter to a nameless adventurer, though that adventurer had probably saved her life.

"What I propose is this," he said, after a pause; "that you and Miss Melville should, under some assumed name, take up your abode in some quiet hotel, while I play the spy and turn the tables upon those who have worked this villainy. But if you prefer it, I will go off this instant and lay the matter before the police and leave it in their hands."

"No, no; anything but the latter course. Could I endure to have the Melville name—her name—and he glanced at Lillian—"dragged through the columns of the newspapers for every sweep to roll trippingly off his tongue? No, no; redress must be obtained without publicity—at least, until we are back at the Hall and can face it from their vantage ground. The police! Great Heaven! to think that the old name should come in contact with them!"

"Well," said Clarence, sorry that he had mentioned them, "then we must take the first course. You to your hotel, I to my spy."

"But," said Sir Ralph, looking round the room, "why should we go to an hotel? This is very comfortable, and we are out of the world here—eh, Lillian?"

"I thought," said Clarence, simply, "that this would have been too mean a place for you. At an hotel you would get more comfort and luxury. This—"

"You live here," said Lillian, looking at him eloquently; "it was not too poor for you—"

"I," he said, with a smile. "I am—"

"A hero," said Sir Ralph, warming up for the moment, much to Lillian's delight; "the more I think of the way you have been treated and all that you have done, I am filled with astonishment at your nobleness. Sir, you must have true blood in your veins, and a good heart to act so."

Clarence rose with a suppressed sigh and a glance at Lillian that said plainly: "You give me credit for too much indiscreteness. If you would seek my motive, turn and find it—here!"

But Sir Ralph either did not or would not see, and Clarence, taking up his hat, said:

"Then it is settled that you remain here. I will go and tell the woman of the house and commence my work; then, adding that he should return shortly, he left the room."

After arranging with the landlady, and giving her some commands to insure Sir Ralph's comfort, he went out, and Lillian watched him walk quickly down the street, his brow knitted and heavy with thought."

CHAPTER XXIII.

An hour afterwards Sir Ralph heard a knock at the door, and, Lillian opening it, found the landlady outside.

"If you please, miss, a person wants to see the gentleman."

"My father, do you mean?" said Lillian, half frightened, but determined, let what might happen, that she would not leave the house or allow Sir Ralph to be carried away even by force.

"Yes, miss."

"Is he a gentleman?" asked Lillian, going outside the door that her father might not hear.

"Oh, law, no, miss! a country fellow; looks like a ploughman."

"Send him up, then," said Lillian, thinking it might be some messenger from Clarence. And the landlady, calling over the banisters: "You may come up," a pair of heavy feet, with heavy boots, came tramping up.

Lillian had re-entered the room, and looked with surprise and suspicion at the apparition of a country clown with tight corduroy, trousers, leggings, heavy boots, rufcund face and a shock of red hair.

"You wished to see me?" said Sir Ralph, gravely.

"Ees, I do," said the man, with a grin that stretched his mouth, that was not a bad-looking one. "Ees, I do, I wants to see 'ee about a matter o' bizniss, yer honor."

"Well? What business?" asked Sir Ralph. "Where do you come from? What's your name?"

"I coom from Yarkshire, and me name be Timothy Sporks."

"And your business?" he asked.

"Is over," said the countryman, in quite another voice, and, pulling on his red wig as he spoke, he revealed the features of Clarence Clifford.

Sir Ralph fell back a step or two and clutched the chair.

Lillian uttered a slight cry and sprang forward.

"Oh, how could you? Well, well, I never!—all blushes, smiles and her hand pressed against her fluttering bosom.

Clarence smiled through his red paint rather sadly.

"I wanted to test my disguise, and I could think of no better plan than this. It has deceived three of you—the landlady, Sir Ralph and you."

He laid a slight stress on the last "you" that meant: "if it can deceive you, it should deceive anyone."

Lillian, with an expressive, downcast expression of the eyes, understood him.

Sir Ralph nodded his head like a mandarin with approval and astonishment.

"Admirable!" he said. "My dear Clifford, how did you in so short a time conceive and don such a complete disguise? It is mastery!"

"Ay," said Clarence, gravely. "I have had some experience, Sir Ralph. I learned the art of seeing to be what I am not from a master in the art. That master I have now to deceive; judge, then, if a disguise must not be perfect!"

"What is this?" said Lillian, touching the wig—which Clarence had thrown upon the table—with one finger and thumb, daintily. "What a horrible thing, and how real it looks. Oh, dear, this is like a play at the theatre!"

"Yes, a tragedy," thought Clarence, but, nevertheless, smiled encouragingly at her, and speaking to Sir Ralph said: "I have half a dozen disguises such as this, one of a commercial traveller, another of a sea captain, and so on. Protected by those, I am going down to Riverhall. I shall not return till I have hit upon the track, and when I do I may not be able to leave it for a while, but to guard against all deceptions and traps, believe no messenger purporting to come from me unless he brings this as proof of his genuineness."

And he held out a plain gold ring. Lillian took it and examined it.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling and Ancient Stationery

Lord Balfour, Sir James Barris, and Mr. Rudyard Kipling have been enrolled as Honorary Freemen of the Stationers' Company. All three made delightful speeches, but Mr. Kipling, dealing with literature in general, spoke in happy vein. The Times report states Mr. Kipling said:—

"You have referred with great indulgence to an author of my name. An hour ago I admit I was that author; but, thanks to the high honour which you have done me, I am now a Stationer, duly entered and obligated."

"This is a heavy responsibility; for one cannot deny that the world might have been happier if stationery had never been invented. Yet it must have been a brother of our mystery—an original Hieratic Stationer—who first discovered that if you soak the leaves of the papyrus plant in the muddy waters of the Nile, and beat upon them with a mallet, the beastly stuff sticks together and makes what looks like paper."

"So we called it paper, and we supplied it as stationery, and men began to write upon it with reed pens. And when, in the course of time, we had rooted every green thing out of the Valley of the Nile; when we had killed the fatted calf, and the unfatted calf, and the calf unborn, to make vellum, we tore the very rags off the backs of beggars, and we ground them and we pulped them to make more and more stationery."

"Why did we do that? Because some desperate soul, impatient of the slow, beautiful handicraft of the past, had invented an apparatus called the printing press. But a printing press without paper being an innocuous as an unloaded gun, we instantly charged it with stationery—the magnificent paper of Caxton's time—and we improved the machine itself; and we devised special inks for it; and we created the business for publishing and distribution, and among us we launched the Eleventh Plague on suffering humanity."

"Since that dreadful date there has not been a crime in the Decalogue, from anonymous letter-writing to the spread of idealism, which we have not fostered, facilitated, and democratized. Incidentally, too, we have turned life into the nightmare of a never-empty waste-paper basket."

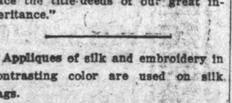

"Man is always at war with, or wondering over, himself or his neighbours, or his roods; and he must needs tell all three what he thinks about them. Through the ages the net output of his dreams and imaginations has come to be known as Literature. Nevertheless, many men have given their integrity also."

"Their individual names and fortunes concern the world as little as the share of a single coral-insect in building up the Great Barrier Reef of Australia, which withstands the tide of the Pacific. But they gave themselves to the one human creation which withstands time. And in no land has there been more wasteful or more superb giving than in England."

"Their work may at the last be found imperishable, or shown to be mere detritus of ancient thought fashioned and refashioned by the generations as they passel. That has been for the world—not for us—to judge. Our Records of Stationers' Hall pronounce no opinion. Impartial as the Recording Angel, they have entered and preserved for our race the title-deeds of our great inheritance."

Appliques of silk and embroidery in contrasting color are used on silk bags.

Sleep Secrets

What is probably a world record for continued wakefulness was established recently by two experimenters who remained awake for five days and four nights—115 hours in order to study the effects of long sleep on the human body. Two assistants attended the subjects of the test to keep the awake

(says a writer in "Popular Science") Both of the experimenters were tested periodically while they remained awake and after they had begun to make up their lost sleep. Blood pressure, respiration, the reflexes, and temperature were some of the things tested, and the results of these observations have been summarized by Dr. Kleitman as follows:—

Sleep comes as a result of complete muscular relaxation. You can help to bring on sleep by relaxing the muscles; you can ward it off by muscular contraction. But after you reach your limit of fatigue your muscles will relax automatically, and sleep will come whether you wish it or not. Nervous fatigue produces muscular contractions that prevent sleep. Complete "thoughtless" relaxation, then, is the goal to be sought by those who suffer from nervous insomnia.

Nova Scotia Coal Strike Over

Work to Resume on Monday--Conference of Shipping Magnates Opened Yesterday at Montreal--Canadian Trade With United Kingdom Shows Improvement.

ESCO ACCEPTS RHODES PROPOSALS.

HALIFAX, Aug. 6. The British Empire Steel Corporation advised Premier Rhodes by wire today that they had accepted the Government's proposals for a settlement of the Nova Scotia coal strike. With the acceptance yesterday of the proposition by the miners, this brings an end to the five months old tie up. A six months contract, pending an investigation of the industry, will be signed at wage rates eight to eight per cent. below those of 1924.

LATEST NEWS OF STRIKE SETTLEMENT.

HALIFAX, Aug. 6. The signing of a six months interim contract, withdrawal from the mining areas of the military, commencement of work on Monday, and the appointment of a commission to investigate the entire coal industry, these are the developments which are expected to happen in rapid succession as the result of the agreement of both the British Empire Steel Corporation and their miner employees to accept the Government's proposals for a return to work. The appointing of the Commission will probably take longer than the other developments, but Premier Rhodes said today it would be done as speedily as possible. Work on the contract will start to-morrow. When the District Board of the miners meets the corporation officials in St. John's today. It is not anticipated that there will be any appreciable difficulty inasmuch as the Government's terms provided that the contract should have 1922 wages rates and the 1924 working agreement. With the contract out of the way this week, Vice-President J. E. McLaughlin anticipates that work could be commenced in the mines on Monday. Withdrawal of some one thousand troops which were sent from Ontario, Quebec and Halifax the middle of June following the New Waterford riot is looked for very soon, and is understood to have been already discussed by the Government. To-day the tie up of the Province's coal industry lasted just five months, having started on March 6th. Previous to that negotiations had been going on to agree on a contract both prior to and after the 1924 contract expired on January 15th.

FRANCE AND HER DEBTS.

PARIS, Aug. 6. It is now virtually settled that the French mission which is to go to the United States to arrange a settlement of France's war debt will leave for Washington during the first fortnight of September. The French Government has decided to treat the debt settlement with Great Britain and the United States as two distinct and separate undertakings, and that whatever might be the stage of the negotiations opened ten days ago in London between France and England, early in September the French mission will proceed to the United States.

GERMANY DEPORTING POLES.

BERLIN, Aug. 6. Foreign Minister Stresemann announced today that the Polish residents in Germany, who chose to retain their Polish citizenship, following the plebiscites of 1920-21 in East and West Prussia and Upper Silesia, have been ordered to leave Germany within 48 hours under pain of compulsory deportation.

SHIPPING MAGNATES MEET.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6. The North Atlantic Shipping Conference began its first session in Montreal this morning to discuss the problem of shipping rates on the Atlantic from Canadian and American ports to British and European ports. Reports that W. T. R. Preston who levelled charges against Steamship Companies in connection with freight rates, al-legating a combine, would arrive in Montreal on Saturday with further evidence to renew his campaign did not disturb the equanimity of the meeting. Mr. Preston is a dead issue, was the comment of a member of the conference prior to the formal opening of the session. The sessions will be held in camera and will conclude some time to-morrow it was stated.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH BRITAIN.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6. Canadian trade with the United Kingdom is showing an improvement in both exports and imports. Exports to the United Kingdom during the 12 months ending April, were $333,704,698 or sixteen millions more than the previous year. Imports from the United Kingdom were $150,456,610, three millions more than the previous year.

LONGSHOREMEN'S CONVENTION.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6. The International officers of the International Longshoremen's Association are meeting here to-day, as an International Audit Committee in preparation for the annual convention of the organization which begins in Montreal on next Monday. There will be in attendance about 125 delegates, representing 60,000 longshoremen distributed over the North and South American continents. The session is expected to last a week or ten days.

Colinet's Need

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—(If ever) a letter is sent to the public press from this little "remote part of the island." But I think its time for somebody to wake up ere it's too late. Lives have been so much endangered and even lost to no telegraph or telephone connection. Now, "who is responsible?" Only a few days ago we had a gentleman here who almost bled to death before we got medical aid. It was late in the evening and by the time we sent a man to Salmonier, the Telegraph Office telephones were not in response. Now, if we had even a telephone and a right system on both lines there would be no cause to worry. Again, if we had a line to Whitehouse to connect with the Anglo Office we could get help day or night.

Now Messrs. Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott it is up to you. You've promised time and again and even went as far as to say that it didn't matter what party was returned, the telephone would certainly come to "Colinet." Surely the matter has gone far enough, and for the sake of humanity get busy and let us have our rights. Don't wait for the motor road to be finished to Placentias and then have it done for the sake of tourists, etc., that would come, but have it done right now for the sake of the poor individuals who has settled here.

Yours sincerely, CITIZEN. Colinet, Aug. 3rd, 1925.

A Strange Duel

Probably the strangest duel that ever took place was one fought in Paris in 1808. It is peculiarly French and could hardly have occurred under any but French society. Two gentlemen of France quarrelled over the lady of their mutual love. Tempers rose, and in the heat of the moment they agreed to fight a duel to settle their respective claims.

In order that the heat of angry passion should not interfere with the polished elegance of the proceedings they agreed to postpone the duel for a month. The fight was to be from balloons, the survivor to claim the hand of the lady in marriage. A day and place of meeting were arranged, and on the appointed day the duellists met. The gentlemen were name Grandpre and Le Pique.

The ascent took place in the garden of the Tuileries amidst a vast concourse of spectators. The gentlemen were to fire, not at each other, but at the balloons. The resultant escape of gas would bring the balloon down, and in all probability would mean the death of the occupant.

The balloons having been cast off and having ascended, at a given signal the duellists opened fire. Le Pique missed, but his opponent was successful in sending a bullet through Le Pique's balloon. The latter crashed to the earth and was smashed to pieces. His conqueror still made his ascent and landed triumphantly seven miles out of Paris.

So ended what must be considered the strangest of all duels.

Bishop Welldon Mobbed

ESCAPE FROM RIVER DUCKING.

Bishop Welldon, Dean of Durham, who is 71, was mobbed by miners at a big Socialist demonstration at Durham on Saturday and narrowly escaped being hustled into the River Wear.

Apparently he was mistaken for the Bishop of Durham, Dr. Henson, to whose recent statements in the Press on the coal dispute speakers had called attention. He approached one of the platforms from which he was to address a temperance gathering when the other speeches were over. The anger of the crowds had been increased by a banner carried through-out streets bearing the words "To Hell with Bishops and Deans. We want a living wage."

"Here's the Bishop!" shouted the crowd. Dr. Welldon was seen elbowing his way good-naturedly through the seething mass.

Booing and hissing preceded a further cry from men and women: "To the river! Chuck him in!"

Mr. James Robson, president of the Durham miners, appealed for order, but his voice was drowned in the uproar. An ugly scene followed, a Daily Mail reporter saw crowds of young men and women jostle the Dean, who was "kicked" and struck. Someone knocked off his silk hat and others tore his umbrellas from him.

Pitmen to the Rescue. The crowd was pushing him across the racecourse to the river, 100 yards away. When he was on the edge of the water a crowd of sturdily-built pitmen, realizing the position, tried to stem the advance.

The police succeeded in obtaining the services of a motor launch, which was drawn near enough to the bank for the Dean to be helped on board. He was landed a mile own stream, covered with dust.

"Nobody can accuse me of any ill-feeling towards the miners, with whose struggles for improved conditions I have always shown the greatest sympathy," said Dr. Welldon, discussing the incident with a Daily Mail reporter.—Daily Mail, July 27.

Mount Cashel drawing will take place on Monday next, 10th inst. All stubs to be in on that date. Tickets will be on sale at J. P. Cash's Store up to 6 p.m. Monday.—aug. 6.

Water-Drop Wonders

Interesting pictures of the myriad forms of life that exist in a single drop of water were shown in a recent film. A pond covered with green slime and apparently still is in reality a teeming mass of life. A drop of water is taken up in the eye of a needle and magnified eleven million times reveals a swarm of wriggling creatures that appear to be ruled by a great potent monster that looks like a sea serpent, but whose actual length is less than three-sixteenths of an inch.

The rotifer, an inhabitant of stagnant ponds, has a "water-wheel" entrance to his internal system and catches his victims by means of suction.

Little Jack Rabbit

by David Cory

Well, sir, Dear Uncle Lucky on hearing the voice shout "Stop" in the last story, put on the brakes and halted the Luckymobile as quick as a wink. The next minute out from behind a big tree jumped Danny Fox, that sly old robber who is always bothering rabbits and chickens. "Ha, I fooled you this time," he snarled as he slowly crept toward the two little bunnies and Daddy Longlegs.

"Get out your pop-gun," whispered the old gentleman rabbit, in the bunny boy's ear. "Quick!"

But, Oh dear me, it's no easy matter to slip off a knapsack and open it when a fox is coming towards one. No, indeed. The little rabbit's paw trembled so that he could scarcely undo the buckles, and before he could get out his pop-gun Danny Fox was grinning at them over the wind-shield.

"Here's a lollypop," gasped the bunny boy, pulling one from his pocket. "Does Bushytail like candy?"

"He certainly does," answered Danny Fox. "So does Slyboot."

"Here's one for him, too," and the frightened little rabbit dropped another lollypop into the old fox's outstretched paw.

"Well, the boys will be happy when I get home," grinned Danny Fox. "As for Mrs. Fox, she'll be happy, too, when I bring two rabbits home for a stew, and he licked his lips with his long red tongue.

"I guess we are goners this time," thought poor Uncle Lucky.

"Now, don't make a fuss," went on Danny Fox, alighting an empty sunny sack off his right shoulder. "Be nice and quiet while I slip you in," and he smiled another horrible grin.

Just then something hit him squarely on the end of his nose, Crackerino! It was one of Daddy Longlegs' shoes. The next minute's another shoe hit the old fox on his right ear, and then a third shoe on the left, and before he could dodge, a fourth shoe hit his right eye. "Ha, ha!" chuckled Daddy Longlegs and quicker than I can tell it, that brave old insect threw four more shoes at it, knocking the old fox head over heels.

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Hints You May Find Useful

When a basin is cracked it can often be given a longer lease of life if treated in this way: Paint over the crack with white enamel. This will prevent the bowl from breaking.

Patent leather which has been scratched should be treated with a mixture of olive oil and jet-black ink. Paint over the scratches with a fine brush, repeating the process two or three times if necessary.

When laying linoleum do not nail it down immediately, as it will probably stretch after being walked on. If it is allowed to lie on the floor for three or four days before being nailed down it will not bulge at the seams or by the walls.

White fur can be cleaned at home by rubbing it with equal quantities of whitening and powdered lump ammonia well mixed together. Leave the powder in for a day, and after shaking it out rub the fur with hot bran and shake again.

When cleaning copper jugs first fill them with boiling water, so that they will polish quickly. Other copper articles may be cleaned in the same way.

Waste Not Want Not!

If you knew that by paying one cent more, and buying the best soap, you would save a dress, a shirt, or any article of clothing, you would always buy the best soap, that is "Sunlight" Soap.

It is not possible to say that this or that extra cent spent in buying "Sunlight" Soap will save you a dress or a shirt, but it is beyond doubt that the constant use of "Sunlight" will save you many an article of clothing during the year. Your clothes will, in addition, always look their best.

Supreme Court

TUESDAY, July 14.
MORNING SESSION.
MR. EMERSON. (Continued)—Now then, my Lord, the other plan is that if the oral agreement was made it is superseded and replaced by the August minute agreement. Now, of course, that is not correct. If the oral agreement is substantiated, then the commission agreement is not a substitution of a new agreement in regard to specific transactions which were then being discussed, because, of course, the oral agreement is an agreement in general terms which contemplates the agency of the Trust as a general agent for the Reids in regard to all its properties, whereas the August minute only deals with the Gander, the Humber and the Exploration Company while the Reids had all the various assets which we were entitled to deal with which are mentioned in Mr. Thomson's letter of November 6th, 1919. The only thing that the August minute does is to make in perhaps more exact language, in clearer language than has already been expressed, and in language about which there can be absolutely no doubt, the oral agreement as it applies to the specific assets that were then under consideration.

The next point, my Lord, is this: It has been suggested, though again I do not think it was argued, that the oral agreement was not made because, or rather, that Mr. Thomson's evidence in regard to these discussions on or before December 23rd, is incorrect on the ground that he states there that Mr. R. G. Reid's going to England would settle some of the points, which would in dispute and that it was not decided to send Mr. Reid to England until a couple of days before he left. Now, my Lord, that statement that it was only decided to send Mr. Reid a couple of days before he left is untrue, it was decided to send Mr. R. G. Reid to England at least on January 9th, in fact, I am not sure it is not January 7th.
MR. HOWLEY—January 9th—MR. EMERSON—And he left on the 15th or 16th, it is not clear which.
MR. HOWLEY—It is quite clear that he left on the 15th to get a boat from New York on the 18th.
MR. EMERSON—It is a bit doubtful whether he left Montreal on the 15th or 18th; but, as a matter of fact, to show that it was decided that he should go some time before it was intended that he should leave, and on the ninth it was not intended that he should go on the fifteenth, because on that day they talked about his arrival in England in early February, and consequently whatever the date on which the determination of sending him to England arose, it was a determination to send him to England some weeks later and not some days later. It may be that his going to England was expedited; he may have left sooner than he intended, but at the time the decision was arrived at it was not a decision to send Mr. Reid over within a few days; it was a decision to send him over within a few weeks, and it becomes a question as to whether the memory of the Reid brothers on this point is much better than it was on some others as to whom the decision was arrived at for him to go to England. There is no evidence that it was decided actually on January 9th; we know that it had been decided by January 9th, but that it had not been decided before January 9th, and, as a matter of actual fact, is not attempted to be proved.
Then, my learned friend, both in his examination of the witness and in his argument, made a great ado about the report of the Directors to the meeting of the shareholders, the statutory meeting in December, 1919, and the fact that in that report there is no statement that Greenwood was going to negotiate, or Thomson and Greenwood were going to negotiate, a commission agreement with H. D. Reid.

MR. HUNT—There is no definite statement that they were going to see further about options.
MR. EMERSON—Well, I would like to see the report. However, my point is this: This was the statutory meeting of a company that was just formed, and looking generally at what happens at a statutory meeting the surprise to me is that there was any report there at all to the shareholders, it is not compulsory under the law, either under our law or under the English law, and it seems to me to be simply an unnecessary document put to the shareholders, drawn loosely, and, in any event, it would be highly improper for them to put in anything about an agreement such as this, which at that time they had no certainty of being able to negotiate. There is nothing based upon the report; it is not a document for publication to shareholders for the purpose of getting money; it is simply a report made to a formal meeting called, for all practical purposes, simply to issue shares to those from whom applications had been received and to elect directors, and so forth.

MR. HOWLEY—I do not wish to interrupt my learned friend, but I do not think that he is entitled to make statements which are not only misrepresentations, but are contradictory of the position. The election of Directors is set forth in the Articles of Association and does not—
MR. EMERSON—I had forgotten that. My point is that it is a merely formal meeting to comply with the statutory requirement. The fact that there is a report there at all is a surprise to me.
MR. HOWLEY—I rather fancy it is.
MR. EMERSON—And I would be surprised to find that in any company my learned friend has ever incorporated there was a report, even though he was their himself.
MR. HOWLEY—The question is not whether or not there was a report, but the question is what is in the report that was there.
MR. EMERSON—Now the next point made by my learned friend was that the Minutes No. 111—
MR. HUNT—My learned friend will excuse me—"Following our letter, Mr. Greenwood has proceeded to Newfoundland, where he is now engaged on behalf of the Trust and with Mr. Reid's assistance in making investigation into various properties, titles, etc., and negotiating details of options on terms which will ensure their being probably turned to account by the Trust. Mr. Thompson also went to Canada with the same objects in view."
MR. EMERSON—It does not make the slightest difference to what I said, but I agree with you, I had forgotten what was there. In No. 111 we have Minutes of the Plaintiff Company of the first of September, 1920, and Mr. Howley has pointed out that in No. 6 of the questions which Major MacDonald reported to have taken up with Mr. H. D. Reid is mentioned "the payment to the Trust in commission or otherwise for services in connection with the development and sale of these properties." Well, so it was taken up with Mr. Reid, of course it was, but it does not mean that the question of remuneration or commission was discussed with Mr.

Reid for the first time with a view to settling what was not settled prior to this date, but it was discussed with Mr. Reid, and as I have already pointed out, it was mentioned to him simply as confirmation of the oral agreement which already existed.
Now, finally, I think the only other point I have not dealt with in connection with it is this: My learned friend claims that the £250 and £400 a month paid to MacDonald and Greenwood and the £175 per quarter paid to the Trust should all be placed to the credit of the Reid Company in connection with this claim by the Trust for remuneration for services. Now the £250 a month, it is claimed, went towards the management expenses of the Trust; but there is no contract—even assuming that it was a payment to the Trust and must be treated as a payment to the Trust—there is no contract under which it is to be deducted from any commissions which the Trust earns in the course of its work for the Reids, no undertaking of any kind, no stipulation by the Reids to that effect, and nothing implied in law.
MR. HOWLEY—It is not set up as such. It is set up on the claim for a quantum meruit.
MR. EMERSON—But even on the claim for a quantum meruit, I do not see that that makes any difference. The amount which has been paid here is only recoverable or can only go to the credit of the Reids if there was a contract that it should be so placed; if this was an absolute contract with the Trust without regard to its repayment, then it is not to be taken into consideration as a credit at all, because a credit is a repayment.

KENT, J.—As I understand Mr. Howley's position, it is this, that so far as the work that the Trust was doing, only in the event of success would the question of remuneration by payment of commission arise; that under the special arrangements that were made between Reids and the Trust no question of a quantum meruit would arise at all.
MR. HOWLEY—It is not put exactly in the same words, my Lord, but that is my position.
MR. EMERSON—I must submit that that comes as a complete surprise to me. That shall make a note of it and deal with it later. It is a novel construction to me.
Then, as to the £400, that was obviously a payment to the Directors personally. It is so expressed in the document there. I mean, even my learned friend does not contend that that was a payment towards the Trust or towards management expenses; it is absolutely a payment to these two men, MacDonald and Greenwood; then the same thing applies to the £175 a quarter paid under the agreement made in February, 1921, by H. D. Reid. That £175 a quarter was a payment towards the rent and salaries of the office there, a specific allocation for a particular purpose. There is no remuneration in that; that £175 goes towards the expenses of running the office. The Trust does not get any remuneration in that way.
KENT, J.—They undertook more expensive offices.
MR. EMERSON—Yes, on account of that.
These are the only points in connection with the oral agreement which I left untouched yesterday. I thought it would be well to deal with those before I go on to the Humber.
Recess was then taken until 2.30.

to the Trust by Mr. Conroy. It is dependent upon the history which attached to the whole transaction from the very beginning. Your Lordship will remember that the very first objection of any member of the Trust or of the Trust itself with the Humber is contained in what we may call the $25,000 letter which was written to Mr. Thomson by H. D. Reid in the very earliest stages of their association in April 2d, 1919. In that letter Reid makes two statements which have a material bearing upon the results of the Reid Company's subsequent conduct and also the conduct of the Trust. This is H.B.T. 11, No. 3 in the volume. In that letter he says: "Relative to your letter of even date, We appreciate your interest in this matter and it is understood that if a satisfactory investment of capital is secured and paid in that you are able to receive as your return (1) 25 per cent. of cash received and (2) 25 per cent. of the common stock received, issued in connection with the new investment of capital proposed."
The letter of even date in No. 7 H.B.T. 10, also from Reid to Thomson: "This Company controls the Newfoundland Products Corporation, Ltd., which company in turn holds the following assets: (1) The Humber Valley area—water powers, (2) The Corner Brook area, the whole as more specifically defined in the plan herewith. Our purpose is to develop the assets of the Newfoundland Products Corporation, Ltd., and you represent that you will be able to interest the requisite capital for such purpose."

"We will be very glad to receive from you definite proposals as to investment of capital, it being understood that the proposition will only be introduced to well defined interests and that we will receive definite reports as to the progress of the Company which will be prevented."
In a general way we should receive $250,000 cash representing the amount of money we have expended in surveys, engineering and exploratory work, etc."
Now, my Lord, the point I wish to make just as this point is this: that at this time Reid was demanding in connection with the Humber a repayment of his expenditure; and he was prepared to give to the man who obtained a repayment of that expenditure, plus other considerations, a commission of 25 per cent. on his expenditure, as well as upon the other considerations. Now this has a very important bearing upon the amount to which we are entitled in connection with the $500,000 which has been paid to the Reid Company by the Power and Paper Company with the assistance of a loan from the Armstrong Company; because the Reid Company claims that the $500,000 which was received was received from the Armstrong Company as lenders of money to the Power and Paper Company, and that this money was money paid in connection with their expenditure, which the Reids had made on the property itself.
Now, at the very start of the whole of the Humber enterprise, in so far as the Trust, or its members—its important members, are concerned, we find that Reid is prepared to pay a commission on the amount of money which has been expended by him on the Humber. In other words, the commission is not only on the net purchase price, but upon the amount which Reid received as repayment for his expenditure on the Humber, which was to be looked upon as improving the property. Now if you look at it from that point of view, I think the thing becomes comparatively simple, because we look upon the Humber as a partially improved property.
HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—Where do you get that 25 per cent on expenditure?
MR. EMERSON—In H.B.T. 10, Mr. Reid says: "In a general way we

I had a girl working for me a whole year before I was able to do my washing and ironing. Through a friend I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it. I gave birth to a baby boy the 4th day of September, 1922. I am still doing my own work and washing. Of course, I don't feel well every day because I don't get my rest as the baby is so cross. But when I get my rest I feel fine. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and am going to keep on with it until cured. My nerves are a lot better since taking it. should receive $250,000. The amount of the commission was explained in surveys, and explanatory work, and the parties acquired from the Government in the railroad construction. Therefore, on the number Reid should receive.
HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—You say that you were 25 per cent of the cash received.
MR. EMERSON—Yes, my Lord, I refer to that. In the letter of even date, Mr. Reid says that he is prepared to give to the man who obtained a repayment of that expenditure, plus other considerations, a commission of 25 per cent. on his expenditure, as well as upon the other considerations. Now this has a very important bearing upon the amount to which we are entitled in connection with the $500,000 which has been paid to the Reid Company by the Power and Paper Company with the assistance of a loan from the Armstrong Company; because the Reid Company claims that the $500,000 which was received was received from the Armstrong Company as lenders of money to the Power and Paper Company, and that this money was money paid in connection with their expenditure, which the Reids had made on the property itself.

 should receive $250,000 cash representing the amount of money we have expended in surveys, engineering and exploratory work, etc., on the properties acquired from the Newfoundland Government in payment to us for the railroad construction and operations." Therefore, on the sale of the Humber, Reid should receive $250,000 cash.
MR. JUSTICE KENT—And you say that you were to receive 25 per cent of the cash received.
MR. EMERSON—Yes, the next letter refers to that. In the next letter he says that he is prepared to pay Thomson 25 per cent of the cash received.
MR. JUSTICE KENT—And what you say refers to the previous letter?
MR. EMERSON—Well, he says "I refer to your letter of even date." He says all he fixes the price at $250,000 plus a percentage of bonds and stock; and then in a subsequent letter he says, referring to those figures, "I am prepared to pay you 25 per cent of the cash and stock, and whenever the word 'purchase' comes into the consideration of the sale of the Humber, from the point of view of commission, of the agency, we cannot be understood as meaning that the agents were to be paid for their services in connection with the purchase of the Humber. It is a fact that the agents were always that in fixing the purchase price, and that the agents were to be paid as part of the purchase price. The agents should get 25 per cent of the cash, as well as the stocks or bonds."
MR. HUNT—My learned friend is not basing that on this letter.
MR. EMERSON—On 10 and 11. H. B.T. 10 and 11.
MR. HUNT—You will admit that it only continued until June 30th, 1919?
MR. EMERSON—Yes, that agreement with Thomson only lasted for a very short period, and was not in existence as an agreement at the time when Thomson put the Humber as a proposition before the Trust; but there is no doubt that when the Trust did take over the Humber it took it over with the knowledge that Reid was prepared to pay a commission on any money and of any shares that he received in connection with the sale, even though part of the money which he received would be put in his hands only as representing what he had expended in cash upon the property.
 I might put the position this way—He has received $500,000 in cash as a specific payment which they have made referable to their surveys, engineering, and exploratory work. Suppose, for example, that they had received $750,000 instead of $500,000 and that they had stipulated that that $750,000 was to represent what they had expended on the property they would undoubtedly on the receipt of that $750,000 have repaid $500,000 which their claim was expended on that property but $250,000 of it at least would be profit to them—would be purchase price. In fact, if it came down to a consideration as to what they received as purchase price, the whole $750,000 would have to be so repaid.
MR. HOWLEY—Even though the Power and Paper Company pays it back to us.
MR. EMERSON—Well, the Armistice pay it for the Power and Paper Company, but the Reid gets the money. If the consideration for the sale of the Humber had been $750,000 cash and a percentage of bonds and stock, the Reid in fact would have received that expenditure; but there would have been no differentiation in the Minutes, because that is the only place where we find it, of their own company—there had been no such reference to the surveys, plans and engineering work and so forth, that we would not be entitled to 25 per cent of that $750,000 and that would not have been in existence; but these letters have existed and have been in the hands of the Trust at the time when we were handling the property.
MR. HOWLEY—What evidence is there of that?
MR. EMERSON—Of Major MacDonald that he saw those letters. If he saw those letters, that is sufficient, is it not? That means that they were in his hands before the 20th of June, 1919; and the Trust did not come into existence until the 1st of October, 1919. It does not follow that when Reid was prepared to pay Thomson he was prepared to pay the Trust.
HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—It coloured their future relations?
MR. EMERSON—It coloured their future relations—it coloured the whole of the negotiations. Afterwards, socially as we have no indication of Reid afterwards as to what he is going to consider as the purchase price. Even if the Trust knew that Reid had made certain expenditures, these letters would lead them to expect that if the payment of that expenditure was included in the purchase price, that they would get commission on that.

 Now, as a matter of fact the $500,000 which the Reid received is far in excess of their expenditure—very far in excess of it. As a matter of fact, even in the padded condition of their accounts the total expenditure on the 30th June, is $287,000 and of that $287,000, $70,000 consists of payments to the Trust and its directors, which are claimed in this action as being amounts to which the Reid Company is entitled, and for which, for all practical purposes they want payment again. So that the very maximum of expenditure on the Humber property is $200,000; and they have received $500,000; and they have endeavoured to bolster up their claim in this regard by saying that there were no charges for overhead expenses, no salaries to Mr. Reid, Mr. Conroy, Mr. Powell, etc. Well, my Lord, may I point out that the whole of the share capital of this Products Corporation was owned by the Reid Company—every single cent of it. Its existence as a separate Company is a purely legal fiction. It is a Reid asset. It is true that they had transferred to the Products Corporation 540,000 acres of land and certain water powers, but all of the shares of the Products Corporation were held by the Reid Company, and it was quite proper that the Reid Company should do all the work in connection with it. If the legal fiction of the new Products Corporation had not been created by the Reid, would H. D. Reid have got a greater salary by having retained these assets with the legal title in the Reid Company; would Mr. Conroy have got a bigger salary, would Mr. Powell have got a greater salary. Would they not have had to give their time and services to the development of these assets without extra charge. Why should there be overhead expenses in connection with this simply because the legal entity had changed, when for all practical purposes the ownership remained in the Reid Company?
 Now then, if the assets had remained in the Reid Company would there have been any distinction in the purchase price for money paid for surveying, plans, and preliminary work. Take the Gander. Is there any suggestion that the commission of the Trust on the sale of the Gander, if there had been a sale, should be reduced, because H. D. Reid's salary had been paid for all the years that he had been president, and the Reid Company had owned the Gander—or that Mr. Conroy's salary had been paid, or that Mr. Powell's salary had been paid. Is there any suggestion that because they may have sent out cruising parties to see what the Gander looked like that that expenditure should be charged up against the property for the purpose of reducing the commission to the Trust on its sale? There is no such suggestion. Then why should they suggest when similar work is done on the Humber—why should it be suggested that because they sent out expensive cruising parties, with Powell and Palmer and Hatch, and all the rest of them, that that ought to be deducted from the purchase price for the purpose of arriving at the ten per cent commission that is to be paid to us, when we have made no contract with them which justifies the deduction of expenditure before they arrive at our commission.
 Not only is there no suggestion in connection with the Gander such as that in connection with the Humber, but we find when we come to consider your personal commission shall be on the net purchase price after deducting all necessary expenditure, and I say that when your Lordship comes to consider the question of the quantum of the 10 per cent and what it is to be taxed upon the five hundred thousand dollars which the Reid have received for their expenditures upon the property, must be considered as being added to the purchase price.

 Now, I have dealt with that at this stage because of the very strong inference that one can draw in connection with that particular sum of money from the letters H.B.T. 10 and 11, Nos. 7 and 8, in connection with the purchase price as fixed in these letters.
 I think I ought to explain just one minor point in connection with that matter and its really late appearance in the statement of claim, and I think that my clients are entitled to my saying that we had no knowledge whatever of this until after the production of the Minutes of the Power and Paper Co. in London, almost immediately before my return to Newfoundland, and it was then we made the claim. The Products Corporation were not bound by the discovery of documents, and it was only through the courtesy of Mr. Conroy that we were in a position to deal with this matter even then because he produced for us a duplicate original of the Products Corporation Minutes.
 Now the $500,000 is really only an incident to the whole story, although it is a very important incident. Even the Reid Company seems to object to parting with $500,000 and we would like to receive it.
 So far as the main history of the case is concerned, we start with No. 6 in the volume, and in that letter Reid encloses to Thomson "copy of reports on all blocks that we have any information on in regard to timber" of the Products Company. "There are no reports on certain lots but there is more or less timber for pulp on all of these."
 The next is No. 7 to which I have just referred, in which Reid says, "This Company controls the Newfoundland Products Corporation, Ltd." I would ask your Lordship to make particular note of that opening sentence there for this reason, that I shall have to tender to your Lordship an argument on the liability of the Power and Paper Company in this case. My learned friend, Mr. Winter, has made a defence which is a direct contradiction of the admissions as to agency and control which are contained in the defence of the Reid Company. They deny the power of the Reid Company to make contracts or agreements on behalf of the Products Corporation, whereas the Reid Company in its defence has admitted that it was the agent of the Products Corporation and that at all material times they controlled the shares of that Company. Then, of course, as I have already told your Lordship, H.B.T. 11, is a very important letter, as having colored our minds as to what was going to happen in the future.

 Now, this property was originally placed in the hands of Mr. Thomson. My learned friend, Mr. Howley, had, I think, been a trifle unfair to Mr. Thomson in regard to a statement in H.B.T. 10, No. 7, where Reid says: "Our purpose is to develop Assets of the Newfoundland Products Corporation, Ltd., and you represent that that you will be able to interest the requisite capital for such purposes." Mr. Reid gave no evidence at all that Mr. Thomson represented that he was able to interest the requisite capital. I find nothing in his evidence which supports that statement in his letter and in the absence of evidence on the point, your Lordship will not take the fact as having been proved.

 Now the matter, as I say, was placed in the hands of Mr. Thomson, and he hid it until June—the end of June, when his option, as Mr. R. G. Reid would call it, that is his right to earn a commission on the sale of the property, lapsed. After that, there seems to have been some talk between Thomson, Greenwood and MacDonald during the summer and fall of 1919, which resulted in an examination of the project. Probably there was not very much work done, because, of course, we were then all quite new to the work that was before us, and we had to make points which would affect these properties. However, the various questions, including the Railway, were considered during the summer and fall of 1919; and this was one of the projects which the promoters had in mind when they formed the company in 1919—when they formed the Trust on October 1st, 1919.
 The Humber project started by being a project which primarily involved the fixation of nitrogen from the air, I think, I am afraid I have not learned very much more about that matter since the case started—but we will call it the fixation of nitrogen—and even in the early stages it contemplated a small pulp operation, otherwise it would be hard to understand why the Products Corporation was invested with something over 640,000 acres of timber lands. So I take it that the original scheme, from 1919 to the receipt of Reid's cable in June of 1920, was that this should be a fixation of nitrogen scheme with pulp as a subsidiary industry; and it was with that in view that Mr. Thomson took the matter up with Stewart and McHarg, and discussed it with Greenwood when Greenwood had made the acquaintance of Professor McLellan on the way over, and it was still upon this principle that Thomson who was the first, Greenwood who was the second, and MacDonald, who was the third discussed it with Professor Harker when he came upon the scene; and they were all seeking some means whereby the Humber could be floated as a nitrogen project and up to the time that Blakstad came in March 1920 it was still one of the important aspects of the case—that the fixation of nitrogen should be one of the important, if not the important, phase of the situation.

 Then in Nos. 53 and 54 in the volume, your Lordship will find that pulp becomes the more important of the two projects. In 53, which is J. A. McD. 238 Reid writes to the Trust on the 6th, February 1920.
 "Consider best policy you proceed nitrogen and Humber pulp proposition combined stop Burleigh concern anticipates enlisting support on return stop letter follow."
 And then in No. 58 we see as usual accept these instructions from our principals and say:
 "We are formulating our proposal to deal with the Humber pulp properties as you suggest, and hope to have something of a definite nature to report before long. In this connection we have written to Mr. Powell asking him for certain facts, figures and suggestions concerning the combined operation of the two industries."
 I think I am entitled to point out there that as usual we apparently only needed the hint from Reid as to what he wished to comply with his suggestions; and that is noticeable throughout the whole correspondence.
 Then on March 10th, we apparently wire to Blakstad asking him if he will meet us with a view of discussing the Humber project; and here we have my learned friend Mr. Howley suggesting that there is some sinister significance in the fact that we do not disclose in the volume, and apparently in our evidence, as to how we first came to know Blakstad, what was our association with him; how would he know who the Home and Overseas Trading Trust was. I think, if your Lordship will bear in mind Major MacDonald told us that he had met Blakstad during the War; and then I did not think it necessary to ask him the history of his association with Blakstad; and consequently I did not ask him how Blakstad would know who the Home and Overseas Trading Trust was, nor did my learned friend. It is possible, quite possible, that Blakstad, being the partner of Percy Tarbutt and Son, might have asked them to find out who the Home and Overseas Trading Trust was; as they were both in London, and probably the Banks, or whoever in London corresponds to R. G. Dun and Co. here, might be able to tell him, and give him the address. However, I do not think the point is important. The next letter to which I think reference should be made is No. 67, W.H.G. 15, on the 26th, May 1920 from Greenwood to H. D. Reid, and in that letter Greenwood says: "As soon as possible we would like to have in our possession definite figures from you upon which we can base a purchase price for your interests in the Humber Valley. Over and above the usual percentage for the Trust, we would like you state what amount in excess of the price you desire to obtain for the properties the Trust may expect to be able to devote to the remuneration of persons who will be instrumental in getting the project into shape so as to make it presentable to the financial public. There will be a variety of interests to be approached and a vast amount of preliminary work to be undertaken before so big a project is ripe for public approval. All this will take time and money, but all should be borne in the final analysis by the project itself, and to our mind should be provided for at the beginning."

 The letter clearly indicates that Greenwood at this time—that neither the Reid nor the Trust had decided whether the Humber Valley project should be sold as a whole for a fixed purchase price, or floated as a company on a promotion basis. In either event, the Trust was to get the usual commission—the usual percentage, but, as in the case of the exploration Company, which is referred to in the minute of August 1920, a few months later, certain promotion expenses must be looked for and provided for at the beginning—expenses of underwriters and brokers, advertisement expenses, the expenses of the prospectus—in fact the usual promotion (Continued on 8th page.)

 assets of the Newfoundland Corporation, Ltd., and that you will be able to provide the requisite capital for the project.
 I am very glad to receive your proposals as to the use of the capital, it being understood that the proposition will be discussed to well defined terms and that we will receive your proposals as to the progress, and any general offering of shares will be prevented. In any way we should represent the money we have expended on engineering and exploratory work.
 At this point I wish to say that the Reid was demanding in the Humber a return on his expenditure; and he gave to the man who had the management of that expenditure, a 25 per cent, on his expenditure as upon the other property. Now this has a very important bearing upon the amount of money which has been paid to the Reid Company by the Power and Paper Company with the assistance of the Armstrongs because the Reid Company has received $500,000 which was repaid from the Armstrongs as lenders of money to the Power Company, and the money was paid over to their expenditure, and he had made on the property start of the whole enterprise, in so far as the Reid members—the Armstrongs are concerned, we feel prepared to pay a percentage of the amount of money expended by him on the property. In other words, the Reid is not only on the net upon the amount repaid as repayment for the Humber, which is upon as improving the property, but if you look at it from another view, I think the Reid is comparatively simple upon the Humber as improved property.
MR. JUSTICE KENT—Where is the 25 per cent on expenditure?
 In H.B.T. 10, Mr. Reid says in a general way we will pay you 25 per cent on expenditure.

The Suez Canal

The Suez Canal, in which the British Government has a heavy investment in shares, has just reported the figures for 1924 which show that 25,109,882 tons passed through the canal in that year, a tonnage three times as large as for 1895, 25 per cent. above that for 1913 and over 10 per cent. above the tonnage for 1923.

The largest trade was that with British India. Next comes trade with China and Japan, and then with the Strait Settlements and Australia and New Zealand.

Just fifty years ago, Disraeli displayed great foresight and keen business ability by purchasing from the extravagant Khedive of Egypt, Ismail, his shares in the Suez Canal.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

August 6th.—Lay long and given little time for my breakfast, being that I needs must make haste to reach the office in time and have a long journey over the road. Indeed, if the country be a pleasant place in the evening, 'tis the most possible in the morning since I must rise much earlier than is my wont. Do learn this day how the Imperial Parliamentary delegation will leave soon for Quebec and will not arrive in St. John's before the opening of the Corner Brook mills. Among other things this day the best news is of the Cape Breton coal strike, being that a settlement is arranged, and will be the best possible hearing for Conception Bay, seeing how so many men of that district will again find employment in Sydney as they did in other years. More cheerful news, too, this day, of the fisheries, and seems how in all there is like to be a fine voyage, which is a thing to be thankful for. To the country this night and do sup, among other things, of some good strawberries, which I did not expect to have so late in the season.

Aluminum Manufacture Projected

It is reported that a project to manufacture aluminum at a point on the West Coast in proximity to the paper mills is now under negotiation. A large quantity of surplus power from the Humber Development, available at a very low rate, makes it possible to establish an industry of the above nature on a profitable basis, it is said. Should the project materialize the plant will give permanent employment to about five hundred people.

Rod and Gun

In addition to a full quota of unusually interesting stories and articles the August number of "Rod and Gun in Canada," the Canadian sportsman's magazine, contains a wealth of information for the outdoorsman, the fisherman and the gun crank in the regular articles and full synopsis of the hunting and fishing seasons and laws for the provinces of Canada and Newfoundland. It also includes the announcement of the annual amateur photographic contest in which $700 in prizes is being awarded.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT HELD NO ALTERNATIVE IN COAL DISPUTE.

LONDON, Aug. 6. By a vote of 351 to 16 the House of Commons to-night approved of the Government's supplementary estimate of £10,000,000 as a subvention to the coal mining industry. So great a triumph in its endeavor to settle the dispute which seemed a short while ago likely to culminate in a nationwide coal strike had not been expected by the Government, and although victory had seemed assured the debate in the House was less exciting than had been anticipated. Its outstanding feature was the fact that all the adverse critics of the subvention method of settling the dispute between the miners and the mine owners were fain to admit that under the unusual circumstances the Government had no alternative.

AN EXCITING WALRUS HUNT.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 6. A fight with a herd of walrus was described by Commander MacMillan, of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition, in a message received to-night by the National Geographic Society. Collins, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, related that in a walrus hunt yesterday three members of the party, crew in the Bowdoin boat, were attacked by an infuriated herd of at least 100 walrus. The kayak of the Eskimos in the hunt was capsize, but was rescued. The explorer reported weather still unsettled with visibility poor and a heavy overcast sky.

Great Sums Earned by Newspapers

With Britain in the throes of a general trade depression there is one business that holds up firmly, and that is the publication of some newspapers. The financial success of many of these publications—and these not among what we would call 'outstanding newspapers'—is sufficient to make one's head swim. For instance, take the Rothermere group from the standpoint of earnings—and this is all that matters, for the Journals themselves are such as one cannot commend from any other standpoint.

According to the last annual statement Lord Rothermere's group earned as follows: The Associated Newspapers, Ltd., £917,000; "Daily Mirror," £289,000; "Sunday Pictorial," £244,000, or a grand total of upward of seven million dollars as the earnings for one year.

At one time Lord Rothermere had under his ownership or control eight morning and evening newspapers with a circulation of half a million daily and six Sunday papers with an aggregate sale of five and one-half millions weekly. Latterly he disposed of or "killed" a number of these journals, contenting himself with the big money makers.

Unquestionably the wholesale ownership of newspapers—even those of the lower order such as Lord Rothermere possesses—is a public menace. Governments fear them, and rightly. When an individual can talk day after day to millions of people, the impress upon the public mind, and particularly the class of minds that would waste their money on Rothermere journals, is such that the owner might turn a country upside down and inside out.

Youth Confesses Double Murder

Tells Detectives of Incidents Leading to Killing Women—Killed Benefactors—Lad of fifteen named as party to Shocking Crime. Boston, Mass., Aug. 7.—A 21-year-old youth stood last night in the kitchen of the home where Helen and Georgianna Gillis, aged 80 and 77 respectively, had lived for 25 years, and with his terror-stricken voice hardly raised above a whisper, confessed that he and his 15-year-old brother-in-law had murdered the two sisters who had been like mothers to them. Acts of kindness and the promise to the younger boy that when they died they would leave their little estate to him, brought death to the elderly sisters on July 22nd.

Last night's confession, made within a few feet of the places where the bodies were found a week ago, told how the sisters had hired the boys to bring a supply of wood and how they piled the wood behind the stove, and then how each had seized a stick and clubbed their aged benefactors to death. The confession came from Louis Labomard, of Merrimack, and involved Charles Lafevre, chore boy for the sisters, on whom they lavished their affection and what money they could spare from their meagre purses.

For three and half hours during the afternoon Labomard told the police the story of the crime. He took the officers into a field and showed them where he had disposed of the weapons.

Clever Insurance Swindler at Large

Chicago and Toledo police are looking for a man who is said to have swindled insurance companies and public utilities corporations in a number of American cities. This man has enjoyed himself with a pummeling machine which inflicts bruises upon his body whenever and wherever needed. These bruises have been produced as evidence and have enabled the swindler to collect damages in many cases where he has posed as a victim. While in Toledo, it is said, he collected damages from an accident insurance concern, and both he and his wife were paid money in a settlement by the Community Traction Company. The man is alleged to have heard of a street car accident on Ashland Ave., to have hurried to the scene in a taxicab mingled with the crowd and acted the part of an injured man.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors March, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present.

After confirmation of Minutes of the last meeting, the following business was disposed of.

The Deputy Colonial Secretary intimated that no decision had as yet been arrived at by the Government with regard to the Council's request for increased road grants. He also stated in the matter of the communication recently forwarded regarding roads leading to various places of interest to tourists visiting the city, that they would be glad to have a list of all such places. This information has already been supplied.

Messrs. Blackwood, Emerson & Water, on behalf of the Newfoundland Hotel Facilities, Limited, asked that some concessions be given them in regard to the water supplied for building purposes. They are to be informed, a minimum charge will be made.

Mr. W. Stanott applied for position as Inspector of Electric Wiring. Same to be placed on file.

Colonel Cloud of the Salvation Army called attention to the need of a concrete curb and gutter being placed near the Grace Maternity Hospital. He stated that certain improvements were now being made there, and it would add greatly to the appearance of the place in question if the Council in answer to this request, it was decided that the Engineer be asked to submit an estimate of cost for next meeting.

With regard to the claim of Mr. H. Hutchings for damages to his premises through overflow of water, the City Engineer stated no blame could be attached to the Waterworks Department. In view of the circumstances the City Solicitor reported no liability on the part of the Council. Messrs. Cassin & Company, Ltd., complained of the dangerous condition of retaining wall rear of Bowen's premises, Southside. This will be enquired into by the Engineer.

The request of W. Colford for attention to drains, etc., Summer Street, was referred to the Road Inspector.

It was ordered that extension be made to the sewer, Southside, as also the main sewer leading to property known as the Municipal Basin.

Plans.
The following plans were passed, subject to the approval of the City Engineer, at whose office the necessary Building Permits may be obtained on application.
Dwellings—H. Butler, Pennwell Road; J. J. Barrett, Mundy Pond Road, provided he pays proportion of cost for water and sewer extension.
Garages—H. Butler, Pennwell Road; W. D. Edwards, Circular Road, provided ventilators are installed.
The reports of the City Engineer, Plumbing Inspector, etc., were tabled and accounts presented ordered paid. The meeting then adjourned.

Circus Continues to Attract Large Crowds

BANNERMAN ROAD IS BRILLIANT SPECTACLE AT NIGHT.
Rogers Circus and Carnival Shows operating on Bannerman Road is continuing to attract large crowds to that brilliant scene of amusement and fun. On Monday and Tuesday nights huge numbers assembled and the various attractions were well patronized.

The big attraction seems to be the Merry-Go-Round which is going continuously with a full accommodation each trip. The grown-ups as well as children partake in this fascinating amusement. The Kiddie Aero Swing is also a big attraction; but this device is solely for the use of the young folks. The Fat Man (Baby Jack) is never looser for he has many callers and in his jovial way entertains them in conversation regarding himself. He certainly is "some baby." The Alligators do not get much time to themselves for they have quite a number of spectators during the day. The numerous mechanical devices are also well patronized and many come away with valuable prizes of blankets, Kewpie Dolls and household utensils.
On Wednesday the show did not commence until 5.30 p.m. and the management very kindly made way for the lakeside attractions, our annual Regatta.

Small Collection at Regatta

We understand that the proceeds from the collection boxes at the Regatta on Wednesday, in aid of improvements at the Lakeside, amounted to the small sum of $296.28. This is considered a very poor response judging by the large number of people that were in attendance. If the public realize in sympathy with the improvements, the collection would have amounted to at least $1500.00 to come up to the expectations of the Publicity Committee.

HINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SPRAINS

Obituary

MRS. ANASTATIA WALSH.

By the death of Mrs. Anastatia Walsh, one of the oldest and most respected inhabitants of St. John's, a truly good woman has been removed from amongst us. Having attained the age of 85 years she passed peacefully and prayerfully away on Wednesday, fortified by the rites of Holy Church of which she was a most practical and consistent member.

The deceased lady was born on Carter's Hill, daughter of the late James Finn, one of those sturdy and independent fishermen of St. John's, who made success out of our great industry in the days of long ago. Mrs. Walsh had a host of friends, and was a woman of sterling character, and worthy of the high regard in which she was held. A commendable trait in her character was her love for her home and family, and holy religion, for they were always first in her thoughts.

The deceased venerable lady leaves to mourn one son, John Walsh, of the St. John's Pilots, two daughters, Mrs. J. T. Malone of Boston, and Mrs. Pierce Foley, wife of Mr. Pierce Foley of the Gas and Fire Station. Requiescat in Pace.

NOTICE—Dr. G. N. Murphy's Office will be closed from Aug. 9th, to Aug. 23rd.—July 30, 1925.

Repairs Needed

The attention of the Municipal Council is directed to the dilapidated condition of the wooden steps in McGregor's Lane. Unless repairs are effected quickly, an accident is bound to occur there and the city will have to foot a bill for damages. The lane, east of the Telegram Office, also needs attention. Due to the overflowing of the drain on Duckworth Street, after every shower of rain, silt is washed down this thoroughfare and on to Water Street. Rarely is it ever cleared off the sidewalk.

Hindu Mind Reader at Crescent Theatre

APPEARS IN COSTLY NATIVE COSTUME GIVING STARTLING DISCLOSURES.

"Mysteria," the famous international illusionist and Mind Reader treated the large audience at the Crescent last night to an extraordinary entertainment. He appeared in the costly native costume as worn by the oriental mystics. This is the costume which Mr. De La Ferre brought from India at the cost of over $600.00. Mysteria is without doubt the most astonishing mind interpreter ever seen in St. John's. Numerous questions were sent in by patrons and the answers received from this marvellous Yogi of the East were startlingly correct, as he answered the questions in a manner that baffled and amazed his audience.

An additional attraction is Dancing Babe De La Ferre who received a wonderful ovation by her novel dancing speciality. This clever little girl is already an accomplished artist and last night's audience was not slow to show its appreciation. To-night the same programme will be rendered. This is truly a rare vaudeville treat which all should see.

A Picture True to Its Name

You'll have to do what you're told if you go to the Nickel Theatre to-night. "Hold Your Breath" is a full of brisk action and thrilling situations that it takes your breath away. A particularly apt title—that Jimmie Adams certainly deserves the lot he won from Al Christie for thinking of it.

"Hold Your Breath" is an Al Christie feature done in the same tempo as the short Christie comedies. Unlike most feature comedies, it has a good story as a basis for the humor. It is a tale of a girl who sets out to hold down her brother's repertorial job and does—although she rouses the whole town and almost breaks her neck before she succeeds.

The cast is comprised of a grand array of well known players. Dorothy Devors, the irrepressible little star of a multitude of "Christie" comedies, is the girl. Jovial Walter Hiers plays her well-meaning fiancé and Tully Marshall is seen as the Eccentric Collector. Jimmie Adams, Jimmie Harrison, Frankie Bonner, Lincoln Pinner, Rosa Gore, Jay Belasco, George Pierce, Victor Rodman, Budd Fine, Eddie Baker and Douglas Carter comprise the remainder of the large and very capable cast.

If you want a good time or are itching for excitement go to the Nickel Theatre and "hold your breath."

Majestic Patrons Pleased With Features

Again the magnetic Johnnie Walker has scored a hit in his latest F. B. O. picture, "Fashionable Fakers," which is now at the Majestic Theatre. Mr. Walker himself, undoubtedly does a bit of work in this latest vehicle which will be received enthusiastically the country over. As a naive, trusting, small town character, this popular star has been well cast, and the adventures of Thaddeus Plummer which he enacts should have wide appeal.

With Mr. Walker is the piquant Mildred June, recently blossomed out into heavier drama. Mildred is a lovable little wisp of girlhood, and as Clara Hildre in "Fashionable Fakers," she uses her charm with powerful effect, both on the unsuspecting hero and the enlaved audience.

George Cowl, playing Creel, the quiet, suave malefactor of the piece, casts his deadly glances and performs his underhanded operations with impressive ease, and really portrays an extremely ominous villain, as he should. J. Farrell MacDonald, in the role of an Irish Mac, and excessively difficult piece of comic characterization, mixes his nationalities amusingly, thus accomplishing the seemingly impossible task of joining East and West.

Robert Bolder, does masterful work as the old curio collector, and Lillian Lawrence, as an aristocratic society woman, casts around her such an undeniably frigid air that it can almost be felt from the film. As the Turkish brothers, dealers in rugs, George Rigas does a perfect dual role. The wrestling bout between Joe Statcher and Carl Caddock won the approval of the sporting element as did also the comedy. To-night the same program is repeated.

Pretty Voile Smocks,

expenses which have to be provided for, and, as Greenwood says, should be borne by the project itself, whether as part of the sale price or part of the flotation price. I think it is rather important to see the relation between that letter and the August minute, and if your Lordship will look at the August minute, you will find in No. 6 that:

"It was voted to offer for sale through the Trust to an Exploration Company to be formed the Messrs. Reids' options on Little Bay Mine and Tilt Cove mine, in conjunction with the ungranted mineral rights over the the Reid Newfoundland Co.'s lands, the capitalization of such exploration company and the terms of this development operation to be settled later. It was tentatively suggested that the capital be £1,800,000 of which the Vendors should receive in cash and shares seven hundred thousand pounds, six hundred thousand pounds to be retained for working capital, and the remaining five hundred thousand pounds to be used for promotion expenses."

Then at the end, when dealing with the remuneration of the Trust:

"It was voted that the Trust ought to receive a commission or profit of at least ten per cent. of the amount coming to the Vendors under the projected sale to the Exploration Company and that if their profit on the promotion of this Company does not amount to ten per cent. of the price received by the Vendors, the Vendors will make up the difference."

Now if your Lordship will refer back you will find that it was voted to offer for sale through the Trust to an Exploration Company, that the Company was to have a capitalization of £1,800,000, of which Reids were to receive £700,000, and £600,000 was to be retained for working capital, and the Trust was to receive £500,000 for promotion expenses; and if that £500,000 after payment of the actual out of pocket expenses did not amount to ten per cent. of the purchase price, the Reids would make up the difference; and that is what is meant in the letter No. 67, when Greenwood says:

"Over and above the usual percentage for the Trust, we would like you to state what amount in excess of the price you desire to obtain for the properties the Trust may expect to be able to devote to the remuneration of persons who will be instrumental in getting the project into 'shape' so as to make it presentable to the financial public."

In other words, they wanted to know, if they floated this property, and let us suppose that this was somewhat along the lines of the exploration Company, they wanted to know from Reids how many thousands they wanted for themselves. They say, "You must take into consideration the commission to the Trust, and then you must allow us a certain amount of money for expenses, promotion expenses." So that at this time it was apparently still in an embryonic state in the minds of the Trust and of the Reids as to what method was to be employed in the flotation of the Humber project, and this even though they had been in touch with Blakstad for apparently two months. One thing, however, I think your Lordship can accept as being proved beyond all possibility of doubt, and that is that the Trust was not considering taking an option on this property, and neither were the Reids contemplating giving them an option. Yesterday I referred to 70, 73, 77 and 99, and I do not wish to waste your Lordship's time by referring to them again. They take us up to the 17th July, when Major MacDonald was leaving for Newfoundland, and they take us from this stage here of the 2nd of May, and it is quite clear that at no time was it considered by anybody that the Trust was going to have an option on this property. Apparently they considered that they were going to get the usual commission, and we find no denial of this position from the Reids; in fact, it bears out my contention in regard to the August minute, that it was simply a confirmation of the oral agreement.

In connection with the oral agreement, Mr. Conroy, I think, said that he only heard of the oral agreement when he went over to London this year, and my learned friend has made it apparent as far as possible that the oral agreement is an amendment to the pleadings. It is not. There are some changes in the manner in which it is alleged, and also there has been an allegation that H. D. Reid was duly authorized to make the agreement. That was due to the fact that it was said that Mr. Reid did make the agreement on behalf of the Reid Co., and it was questioned whether that plea meant that his authority was questioned, and that is why the amendment was made; but the oral agreement, qua oral agreement, was pleaded in the original statement of claim; and if Mr. Conroy says that he first heard of the oral agreement when he went over to London in 1925, he is incorrect, because he heard of it when he saw the original statement of claim.

Now at this time—I am dealing still with No. 67, which is dated 31st May, 1926—my learned friend Mr. Howley made a great deal to do about the lack of information that was being transmitted to Newfoundland, and he endeavoured to make it appear that we were either doing something in secret, or else we were being neglectful of our principals in not reporting the progress of the Blakstad negotiations. There is one letter in which we say that he has been establishing these reports for some weeks, and there is no letter from us to the Reids for some weeks prior to that, and from this my learned friend deduces that we are either being dishonest or neglectful.

As this time R. G. Reid was in London—the Vice President of the Reid Co. is in London, and is living in our offices. He knows all about what is going on, and he has knowledge of what the Trust is doing, and if there has been any neglect, it has been that of one of the chief executive officers of the Reid Company to inform the Directors of the Reid Company as to what he is doing in the Blakstad negotiations with our assistance. Whatever neglect there has been at this stage was due entirely to R. G. Reid and not to us.

Now, my Lord, from this stage right up to the time when Major MacDonald left for Newfoundland, the negotiations with Blakstad go on the basis that we are going to sell the property to him, and ultimately it would appear that we had a good prospect of selling to him for £1,000,000, and it is not quite clear, I will admit, from the cables as to whether the whole was to be in cash, or a portion in cash and a portion in bonds. At any rate the price was fixed at £1,000,000, and a very large proportion of it, over half apparently, is to be paid in cash, and it was not to fix the remuneration of the Trust that Major MacDonald came to Newfoundland. Major MacDonald was the only member of the management of the Trust who had never been in Newfoundland. He knew nothing about conditions here, and when Mr. R. G. Reid was in London in January, from January on—he was satisfied that a visit of Major MacDonald to Newfoundland to study local conditions, and get to know Mr. Reid and Mr. Conroy and Mr. Powell and the other principals in the Reid organization, and generally to make himself familiar with the assets with which he was dealing, would be advisable; and it was with those objects that Major MacDonald came to Newfoundland; and the fact that a meeting of the Board of the Reid Company was held while he was here, and that the remuneration of the Trust was discussed, and these resolutions passed, is purely an accident. It has, however, happened and the resolutions were forwarded to the Trust, and the Trust has acknowledged them, and admitted them as being a proper statement of the situation, and the Trust has in this action pleaded them as a binding agreement.

Now, as I told your Lordship when dealing with the Minute of August 1926 in connection with the Gander, our main contention is that the moral agreement is established, and the August minute, in so far as it is of any value is simply a confirmation of that oral agreement; but we must face the position that there is just a faint possibility that your Lordship may not hold with us on that point, and in that event we are thrown back on the August minute as forming an agreement. Might I suggest my Lord that if the August minute is to be looked upon as a new agreement in regard to the remuneration of the Trust, and its powers over the properties, it only deals with these three points. Why did it not deal with the chrome and the iron, and the coal, the oilshales, and the magnetite and all the rest of the various properties of the Reid Company, which they had handed over to us. We certainly did not have any options. Even the Reid brothers, who have the controlling interests in the Reid Company knew that when it came down to dealing with the Fish Company we were not satisfied with Thomson's letter of November 5th. It was never for one minute thought that we could sell the fish Company on the basis of that letter, and we deliberately obtained from the Reids, and the Reids as deliberately gave to us a formal option, in the signed, sealed-and-delivered, most approved manner. Now, if that was necessary in order to give us an option on the fish company, surely it was just as important to give a formal option in regard to all the other assets, and if it was important and necessary to have an option in connection with the other assets, then we did not have options on them; and we were not working under options, and the Reids knew it.

Now this August minute is quite immaterial to our case on the Humber—whether your Lordship gives us judgment on the oral agreement, the August minute, or the November letter. But if we take this August minute, as I suggested this morning, there is absolutely no connection between the resolution authorizing the sale of the Humber on certain terms upon which the property will be sold—there is no connection between that resolution and the one that was passed in the afternoon dealing with the remuneration; and in support of that contention, I suggest to your Lordship that even if we were not at this time in negotiation with Mr. Blakstad over the Humber, or if we were not contemplating any negotiations with Lord Rothermere over the Gander, the resolution in regard to our remuneration would be just as complete, and in exactly the same position as it is now. If we were not dealing with anybody, the Reid Company might easily in settling our rights should we make a sale to anyone—the Reid Company might quite properly pass the resolution that was passed in the afternoon, and say that:

"It was voted that the Trust be paid 'out of the purchase price of the Gander valley property by instalments proportioned to the instalment received and payable at the same time a commission of 10 per cent. on the entire purchase price. It was voted that a similar commission of ten per cent. be paid to the Trust out of the purchase price of the Humber Valley property."

It was decided to pay as a commission of ten per cent. on the net purchase price, and there was no necessity to have that as part of the original resolution that was passed in the morning—there was no more necessity for that than if the resolution that was passed in the morning was never even contemplated. At that time, the Reid Company might have decided not to sell this property, but they might have passed a resolution granting us this remuneration. I might ask your Lordship to bear that in mind—the word is net purchase price, and it has a very strong bearing on the argument that I made to your Lordship in the early stages, in connection with the letter H. B. T. 11, No. 8.

Now my Lord, that brings me to ask your Lordship the most important question in this case. The question is this, in connection with the Humber as in connection with the Gander; what were we employed to do? Because, after all, if we have carried out our contract of employment, we are entitled to be paid, and it is quite immaterial how the Reid Company has acted, or why they have taken it out of our hands. If we are settled in our minds that a certain condition of affairs existed—that a certain contract existed as to what we were to do, and we have performed all that work, then we have earned our commission on the principle of the case which I quoted to your Lordship this morning.

Nether the August Minute nor the oral agreement is particularly explicit on the point. It is true that the letter of November 18th, 1919 upon which the oral agreement is based speaks about a ten per cent. commission on sales. We have pleaded that as being a commission of ten per cent. on sales or other disposition where the Reid company received monies, shares or other securities, and I think that that is the true construction of the position. Then we find that in the August Minute that it was voted to proceed with the proposed sale of the Humber Valley Property, and that the commission to be paid to the Trust was to be a commission of ten per cent. on the net purchase price, and from that we can take it that at this time the Reids and the Trust hoped that there would be an outright sale; but even at the risk of taking a leap from here to February 1921, I would ask your Lordship to bear in mind that the sale which was to all intents and pur-

as effected in February 1921 under the February draft of the Blakstad agreement, it was a sale under which the Reid Company was to get a very substantial portion of the purchase price in shares in a company that was to be formed by Blakstad; and that subsequently when the agreement with Blakstad was signed the change which took place was a change that took place on the suggestion of Mr. Conroy that certain legal difficulties stood in the way of making a sale of concessions from the Products Corporation, because there was no provision in the contract with the government which made these concessions assignable, and this suggestion that the Products Corporation ought to be retained and that Reids should get a percentage of the shares in the Products Corporation was followed.

It is true that the Company, instead of being the Blakstad Company, or whatever it was going to be called, was still the Products Corporation Ltd., but he gets the same proportion in that as he would have got in the other, the same proportion of the capital of the Co., and the Company will have the same assets for the purposes of bonding, and he gets the same proportion of bonds in that Co. that he would have got in the Blakstad Co., and he gets a certain amount of cash, and he gets the same amount of cash under one that he gets under the other; anyhow, for all practical purposes the original arrangement made with Blakstad in 1920 and with the Armtrongs in 1922, are essentially the same.

However, at this time in August 1926, the Reid Co. contemplated, and so did the Trust, that there would be a sale of the Reid assets on the Humber Valley.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

AND ALSO MUCH BETTER.
Blood is thicker than water, it is also very much hotter than water.
Which is by way of being a comment on the extraordinary number of grudges relatives seem to have against each other.
And I do not mean by that relatives who do not love each other, brothers and sisters or parents and children who are frankly on bad terms with each other, but relatives who are really at bottom very fond of each other—or at least think they are. And yet if they get a chance at a confidential ear what a lot of criticism they can get rid of, what a mass of grudges they can find to air!
Brothers And Sisters the Worst.
Sisters and brothers, I think, are the most apt to have a lot of grudges and jealousies, especially if they are grown up and married. One is likely to be better off than the rest and that is the worst breeder of jealousies and criticisms. Death doesn't love a shining mark any more dearly than criticism does. Anything we can find to criticize about those better off than ourselves is a sop to our vanity. Then there is the matter of children and homes and in-laws, and the relation to the old folks—the most prolific iron ore breeder. John ought to do more for the older people! And the way Louise talked poverty when you suggested darning together and painting the old homestead, but came out with a fur coat the next winter; and how Rachel thinks the rest have nothing to do but run out and see mother, and if she had two children instead of a nice easy job in the store she would understand and . . . but I don't need to tell you any more. You know. You've heard it, of course—and perhaps said it.
But After Marriage It's Not So Easy.
The very tenderest relationship in the world, it seems to me, is the one between mother and daughter. Here, if ever, it seems as if you would find no sense of grudge or criticism or jealousy. And so long as the daughter remains unmarried there seems to be more of sweetness and less of strain in this relationship than in any other. But after marriage is takes a very devoted daughter and a very tactful mother to keep the relationship the same.
I have had visit me at different times a mother and a married daughter whom I had previously thought to be the most mutually devoted pair in the world. Yet I discovered during those visits that each one was full of grievances and grudges against the other.
As I stop to think of it, I realize that it is women more than men who seem to have these grudges.
Is this because men are more patient or less selfish than women? No, I think it's probably because the relationship between men and their blood relatives is never so close as between women and theirs; and while closeness breeds tenderness it also breeds friction.
Men Aren't Rubbed Together So Much.
Men don't have so much to do with their relatives and consequently find less to criticize and be annoyed over.

Friction comes from rubbing two substances together. Relatives got rubbed together by circumstances. Of course the love makes up for a lot of the irritation. As for the rest of it I think perhaps we can reduce it somewhat by remembering Stevenson's discovery (I quote from memory and under correction). "One person I have to make good, myself. My duty to my brother is much more nearly expressed by saying, I have to make him happy if I can."

THE OLD OPTIMIST.

How popular the ancient gent who views the modern doings without a sign of discontent, and with no vain beshrewings. He is no man to cry, "Alas!" no prophet of dejection; the merchant-princes, as they pass, regard him with affection; the children gather round his knees to hear the old man twitter, the housewives list, while shelling peas, to this sunny critic. Too many men, when they grow old, are filled with indignation; they shake their hoary heads and scold the rising generation. All things are going to the dogs, true worth is disappearing, the poor old world is slipping cogs, and stripping all its gearing. The boys are headed for the dump, where modern customs send them, and any delegate's a chump who stands up to defend them. The girls are vain, the dotard rants, they're cheap things enquire them; they're so unlike their sainted aunts it's folly to compare them. All virtue died some years ago, all merit drooped and withered; so often has this tale of woe by sad old men been blithered! So when a man of wintry years gives modern things approval, we greet his blithe remarks with cheers, and weep at his removal. If you are old and if you catch yourself thus sourly yipping, 'twere best to seek the booby hatch—your mental works are slipping.

collected his letters and cheques for about £600 that were waiting for him there.
The family then drove to their hotel, and after taking the motor car back to the firm in Leicester-square, from whom it had been hired, Miss Collins and her father had a meal in Piccadilly. Then they took an omnibus from Shaftesbury-avenue to Guilford-street. Instead of going to the hotel with his daughter Mr. Collins remained in the omnibus to travel to King's Cross to ascertain whether the railway company had reserved for him a sleeping berth in the midnight train to Edinburgh, where he was to attend a teacher's conference.
That was the last his daughter saw of him. The description of Mr. Collins is as follows:—
Age 65, 5ft. 7in., complexion fair, hair dark grey, blue eyes, long straight nose and long face, medium build; dressed in dark grey suit with a grey stripe, black knitted tie, wing linen collar, blue and white shirt, brown shoes, and carrying a dark grey overcoat.
With the object of identifying the conductor of the omnibus upon which her father travelled from Guilford-street, Miss Collins and two detectives were seen in Southampton-row after ten o'clock last night. They scanned every omnibus that drew up at the stopping-place, and Miss Collins finally identified the conductor after which detectives boarded the omnibus and spoke to him.

In addition to the cheques to the value of £600, Mr. Collins carried about £30 in notes.
Inquiries made by the police established the fact that Mr. Collins never went to King's Cross. He disappeared between Guilford-street and King's Cross, a distance of about half a mile.

RASCALS.
Was ever parent so with mischief bent Or so affronted to his own delight? Was ever man so happily distressed? So pleasantly defrauded of his right? Beset by rascals, fearless, noisy, bold, I'd rather have them pilage than my gold.
Rascals, I've learned, grim visaged are and coars.
Who live in stern defiance of the law And dare to take men's property by force, If that be so, I'll swear earth never saw A lovelier pair of rascals than are they Who do me wrong and laugh my wrath away.
I, who am robbed of sleep and needed rest, Should prosecute the thieves who take my bed
But I can find no hatred in my breast And hug the rascals tenderly instead.
I smile upon the villains and I gloat To feel their fingers pressing at my throat.
Here is a paradox; that one should be So very fond of those who do him wrong.
And in their deeds of mischief always see The happiness that he has wished for long.
And stranger, too, peace would this home forsake If God should stop the noise those rascals make.
"Hell, Hull and Halifax"
However strong one's desire to be rid of an obnoxious person; the angry command to such to "Go to Hell!" has always been held to overstep the bounds of propriety. A common euphemism, perhaps less often heard today than formerly takes the form of "Go to Halifax!" Probably most of its users are unaware that there is an actual historical reason for the selection of this Yorkshire town, not the Nova Scotian city, as a desirable destination for their betes noids. An old petition, known as "The Beggars' Litany," is thus referred to by John Taylor, the "Water Poet" of Jacobean times:
There is a Proverb and a Prayer withall, That we may not in three strange places fall, From Hull, from Halifax, from Hell, 'tis thus, From all these three, Good Lord deliver us.
And he adds the reason for the inclusion of Halifax:
At Halifax the Law so sharpe doth deal, That who more than thirteen pence doth steal, They have a Thynge that, wondrous quicke and well, Sends thieves all headlesse into Heav'n or Hell.
The "Thynge" referred to was "Halifax Gibbet," a sort of gallotie maintained under a local custom from very early times. It was a privilege of Halifax, together with certain neighbouring townships, to try offenders taken "handshand, backbernd or confessand" with "cloth or other

LAST NIGHT'S FOOTBALL.

Juniors Defeat Seniors.
Despite the unfavorable weather last night, the football game, as arranged between picked teams from the Junior and Senior Leagues, took place at St. George's Field, before a fair attendance of spectators, and to the surprise of many, the Juniors defeated the "big guns," by a one to nothing score. In the first half both teams put up a good exhibition, with honors pretty evenly divided, and despite the determined efforts of the opposing forwards, nothing happened in the scoring line. The second half was practically a repetition of the first, the Juniors, if anything, having the edge of the play. Just at the time when the game looked good to be a draw, Nikosey, for the Juniors, made a pretty dash with the ball inside the opposing backs, and sent a shot to Lush, which was saved. The leather was only partly cleared, however, and R. Power, who was on the spot, availed of a good opportunity and scored what proved to be the winning goal. The full time whistle sounded about five minutes later.
The Junior League team played splendidly throughout and well deserved the victory.

ST. JOSEPH'S REGATTA ON WEDNESDAY NEXT.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the St. Joseph's Regatta Committee was held last night in St. Joseph's Hall, with Hon. W. J. Higgins in the chair. After the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed, the Secretary announced that crews from the C.L.B. and C.C.C. will row in the Old Comrades' Race, while there was every assurance that the Methodist Guards and Highlanders would be represented as well. The President announced that Mr. H. D. Reid had promised special prizes for the Championship race. The programme was then dealt with, and decided on as follows:—
1—Amateur.
2—Fishermen.
3—Old Comrades.
4—Mercantile and Contracting firms.

INTERVAL

5—Junior Football.
6—Championship.
The first race will take place at 3 o'clock. The programme will be continued until after the fourth race, when an interval will be taken for tea. The prizes for the races will be as follows:—Amateur, gold and silver medals; Fishermen, gold and silver medals; Old Comrades, "Churchill" gold medals and silver medals; Junior Football, gold and silver medals; Championship, H. D. Reid special prizes. Mr. E. Churchill, who has donated a cup to this regatta in past years, will by request give gold medals instead this year, and they are to be awarded for the Old Comrades' race, at the decision of the Committee. In the Fishermen's race, Torbay and Outer Cove will again row, and it is very probable that Blackhead will enter as well as the Battery, so that a splendid race can be expected.
The Senior Football race was eliminated from the programme, and this has been replaced by a Mercantile and Contracting Firms race. The Championship race will be between the truckmen who won the Governor's Cup for the quickest time in Wednesday's Regatta and any other three crews who desire to enter against them, and here a thrilling contest is predicted. All crews will enter on Monday evening at 9 o'clock, at which time all stakes and buoys will be drawn. The bathhouses are now at the disposal of crews for practice, and it is expected that the participating crews will again be the attraction for hundreds of people during the next few days.

TO-NIGHT'S FOOTBALL GAME.

C.C.C. Band Will Supply Music.
The regular schedule of the Senior Football League will be continued tonight, when the contesting teams will be the B.L.S. and Guards. A good game is assured as both teams are in the running for the championship. As an added attraction the C.C.C. Band will be in attendance to render a programme of musical airs.

GAME STARTS 7.15 SHARP.

"BATTling SIKI" STABBED.

Boxer in Gang Fight.
NEW YORK—"Battling" Siki, the Senegalese boxer, has been found lying unconscious in the street stabbed in the neck in the quarter of the city known as "Hell's Kitchen."

He was taken to hospital, where his condition was found to be serious. It is believed that Siki had taken part in a gang fight.—Reuter.

KNOCKED OUT CARPENTIER.

Battling Siki, who is 27, started boxing in 1912, but it was not until 1920 that he became famous. It was in September 1922, however, that Siki made boxing history by knocking out the French idol, Georges Carpentier, at the Velodrome Bucaux in Paris, in a contest for the heavy-weight championship of the world. The fight lasted six rounds. Carpentier at the start appeared to treat the affair as a jest. Siki was obviously nervous, and it seemed that the Frenchman could finish the contest now and whenever he chose. He let the opportunity go by, however, and was said he was posing for the film and Siki, fighting ferociously, soon had Carpentier in trouble.

AMERICAN GIRL WILL TRY CHANNEL SWIM.

BOULOGNE, Aug. 6.

WILLS OFFERED BOUT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.
An offer for a fifteen round match between Harry Wills and Gene Tunney, leading heavyweight title contenders, at the Polo Grounds, September 23 or 25, was taken under advisement today by Paddy Mullins, Manager of Wills.

CHANNEL SWIM TO-DAY.

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 6.—A combined attack upon the turbulent waters of the English Channel will be made to-morrow night when woman champions from North and South America, Gertrude Ederle of New York, and Lillian Harrison, of Buenos Aires, start stroking from Cape Gris Nez, for the English shore at Dover. The two swimmers will enter the water at 10.30 o'clock.

BOXING.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Reports are current here that Young Bob Fitzsimmons, son of the former champion, and himself holder of a string of 12 straight knockouts, will be the next opponent of the United States lightweight champion, Gene Tunney, in a bout to be fought in San Francisco in September. Fitzsimmons knocked out the Chilean, Quintin Romero, in the third round of a bout at Newark a week ago.

WHAT IS FOUL IN BOXING.

Robert Edgren, the fistie authority, writing on the question, "What is Foul in Boxing" says:
"Under all rules of boxing it is a foul to hold with one hand and hit with the other. Yet many of our star boxers do this little thing and get away with it. Harry Greb nearly always manages to grab his man around the neck with the left and paste him with the right at frequent intervals. He did it with Walker, also pulled a number of other prohibited stunts in fighting Walker—and was cautioned a few times but not disqualified.
"Harry Wills habitually fouls by holding and hitting. He has a habit of grabbing with one hand and hitting with the other—pulling his man into the punch. Often, Wills slips in this foul punch and then spreads his arms wide to show that he did not mean to do it. That fools the crowd, but the damage has been done—and in a few seconds, Wills does it again.
Referee Charlie White threw two prominent fighters out of the ring in the first round because they both fouled by holding and hitting and refused to stop fouling at his order. There was almost a riot and White refereed no more fights. But things have changed. A Charlie White would be welcomed by New York fight fans today."

No Change in Dutch Strike Situation

A late report to Manager Russell of the Government Railway, states there is still no change in the strike situation in Holland and it is still uncertain when the S. S. Caribou will be able to leave for home. Messages from Capt. Stevenson and the crew express the hope that they will be able to get away shortly as the existing conditions are very trying, they being confined to the ship practically all the time, in order to guard against depredations by the strikers, whilst they are among a people with whom they cannot converse, having no knowledge of their language.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR RHEUMATISM.

Ontario's Luxury Tax

OTTAWA, Ont., July 28th. (Can. Press)—At the last session of the Ontario Legislature an Act was passed to supplement the revenue of the Crown in the Province of Ontario, and known as "The Luxury Tax Act of 1925." The object of the tax was to secure a revenue on the sale of beverages, which includes beer, ale, porter and any malt liquor, wines and other drinks prepared or manufactured from grapes or any other fruit, or from any plant or vegetable, also "soft" drinks of various descriptions, and other compounded or mixed drinks; mineral waters and aerated or carbonized waters, and drinks of every description. The Act specifically states that the purchaser shall mean any person purchasing a beverage as set out above for his own use, and the purchaser shall pay the tax at the rate of five cents per gallon on all beverages known as soft drinks, which are specified above. Any purchaser of any beverage containing more than two and one-half per cent. of alcohol shall pay a tax at the rate of ten cents per gallon. Every purchaser of wine of any kind containing more than two and one-half per cent. of alcohol shall pay a tax at the rate of 60 cents per gallon.

This new Act has been giving the retail confectioners and grocers and the vendors of soft drinks all over Ontario a great deal of trouble and worry. A special committee of retail confectioners in the City of Ottawa recently consulted with E. M. Town, Dominion executive director and secretary of The Retail Trade Bureau of Canada; a newly formed Dominion-wide organization with headquarters at Ottawa. Mr. Town, after careful consideration of the act, advises that he finds the position to be as follows:

The purchaser of a beverage of any sort as set out above is required by the Act to pay the tax when he purchases the same from the retail merchant or vendor, and the retail merchant is required to collect the same as a trustee for the government. In the case of soft drinks of any sort, whether from a bottle or from a soda fountain, at the rate of taxation as set out in the Act, it would mean that the purchaser or the customer is required to pay a tax of three and one-eighth mills on every glass, and one-quarter of one cent on every bottle of soft drink purchased. In other words, the Ontario Government has passed an Act specifying that the purchaser must pay the tax and the retail merchant must collect it, but they have made no provision whereby the purchaser can obtain the necessary three and one-eighth mills or one-quarter of a cent in currency in order to pay the retail merchant the same. If a merchant charges the customer one cent for the tax he is overcharging the customers six and seven-eighth mills on the glass, and three-quarters of a cent on the bottle; if the customer offers a cent in order to pay the tax the merchant, as tax collector for the Government, is overcharging the customer if he does not give him the proper change.

"The Government has issued stamps of small denominations, to be purchased by the retail merchant in advance, to be palced on soft drinks in bottles and who, in turn, is supposed to collect the amount of the stamp from the customer. We advise that retail merchants endeavor to collect the tax from their customers by the sale of stamps, and where this is found impossible we do not consider the retail merchant legally bound to pay the tax to the government."

Killed by Bandits

Mexico City, Aug. 3.—Paulino Madrazo, Dean of the Spanish colony in Toronto, was killed Saturday by six armed bandits while on his way to his ranch in San Diego with money to meet the payroll.
The bandits stopped the carriage in which Madrazo was driving with a servant. The servant was bound and gagged while Madrazo was carried a few miles and killed.

Record Breaking Crowds

Storm the Barriers of London Stations on Week-End Trips—Crowds Fill Empty Train, and their Commands are Obeyed.

London, Aug. 3.—Part of the huge crowd bent on celebrating at the sea shore the August bank holiday, which gives Londoners a vacation from Saturday to Tuesday, gathered at Victoria Station here Saturday, spied an empty train and proceeded to fill every seat in it.
"That train does not go anywhere," protested the railway officials.
"Yes, it does," shouted the spokesman of the crowd. "It goes to Margate."

And they refused to budge until the station master told the engineer to "go to Margate." And so he did to that favorite seaside resort amid the rousing cheers of the crowd.
This was only one of the exciting incidents while the record-breaking London week-end crowd poured into the stations yesterday, storming the barriers in eagerness to reach the trains. Seventeen trains left for Scotland alone Saturday night between 7.30 and 10 o'clock.

At Euston Station, which serves many favorite holiday resorts, hundreds were lined up all night in order to find places on the early trains yesterday morning.

Outposts of the Past

Many visitors to England are familiar with the round Martello towers, which are to be found in the southeast coast.

They were originally built by the Government during the Napoleonic wars to serve as a defense against invasion. A deep ditch surrounds each tower, and it is interesting to learn that these and other fortifications undertaken at the same period cost the country a million sterling. Their military value was, however, never put to the test.

The name Martello was borrowed from a famous tower of similar structure in Corsica, which really proved of immense use during an invasion of the island in 1794. But to-day, when a gun of Calais could drop a shell into London, the Martello towers are valueless except as relics.

M. Poincare's Warning

HOW IT IS BEING FULFILLED.
(Daily Mail.)

We reprint below certain of the most important passages from the famous article which M. Poincare, the French ex-President and former Prime Minister, contributed to "The Daily Mail" a year ago to-day, before the Dawes Scheme came into force. The public will remark that the forecast of the great French statesman is now being fulfilled, almost to the letter.

M. Poincare wrote:
"Justice did not impose on Germany the necessity of making good the damage she has wrought the self-interest of nations would be sufficient to render such reparation necessary. To allow the German Reich not to pay, or only to pay reduced sums, would be, in effect, to ensure for it the most formidable industrial and commercial hegemony at the expense of the whole world, and particularly of the British Empire."

In the Dawes Report the experts remark:
"Ever since 1919 Germany has been improving her plant and equipment; expense has not been spared in improving the German railway system; telephone and telegraph communications have been assured with the help of the most modern appliances; harbours and canals have likewise been developed; the industrialists have been enabled further to increase their extremely modern plant which is adapted in many industries to produce a greater output than before the war."

"Germany is therefore well equipped with resources; she possesses the means for exploiting them on a large scale; when the present credit shortage has been overcome she will be able to resume a favourable position in the activity of the world."

Great Britain's Danger.
All those who have visited the Ruhr since the Franco-Belgian occupation have come back marvelling at the spectacle offered by that opulent region; inexhaustible mines, gigantic factories, magnificent miners' villages, colossal constructions of all kinds. But what is going on behind that splendid facade is even more extraordinary.

In 1912 the production for the Ruhr amounted to 102,817,959 tons of coal and 20,020,588 tons of coke. It will soon reach 112,000,000 tons of coal, and 24,000,000 tons of coke.

Thus Germany has at her disposal coal at a very cheap rate, and, while she hands over to her own industries 117 per cent. of the tonnage which she consumed in 1919, she has available to export wherever she pleases the already enormous quantity of 51,000,000 tons.

Underselling Britain.
The Franco-Belgian occupation imposes on the German fuel industry a certain number of charges, and yet the price of coal and coke in the Ruhr means 5 per cent. lower than the world price.

It is easy to foresee what will happen to these prices as soon as the conditions of the experts have been put into operation.

A reduction of price will fatally ensue and will doubtless attain the figure of 10 per cent., thus giving the German industrialists the control of the World Market.

French and Belgian engineers believe that before very long, if she is allowed to do so, Germany will drive British coal from the Atlantic and the Mediterranean seaboard.

Germany's World Market.
All Germany's principal industries, and especially that of steel, have developed on parallel lines with her mining industry.

German foundries have had free scope to develop on the same scale as German mines, and are in a position to establish prices which will soon defy competition.

All other nations have suffered. Germany has enriched herself, and has put herself in a position to enrich herself still more.

Before long Germany will produce 120 per cent. of the quantity of steel which she produced before the war. If the price of German pig iron is still higher than it is in other countries, steel, on the other hand, is much cheaper.

If the Allies refuse either to see or to listen, great will be their disillusionment when they come back to realities. They will find the economic condition of the world utterly changed. German metal products, which are gradually finding their way into many different countries, will have invaded all the world markets; they will have ousted in part British products from the Dominions, and they will even have begun their conquest of the Home Country.

There is no other remedy, I repeat, but the loyal and conscientious enforcement of the experts' report. The best condition which they lay down, and which is, moreover, but the application of the Treaty of Versailles, is that "the German people should be placed under a burden of taxation at least as heavy as that borne by the peoples of the Allied countries." The experts add that, "No single person in Germany, whether speaking as an individual or representing any section of the nation, has failed to accept that principle when it has been squarely put to him."

But, alas, there is a considerable difference between this purely theoretical consent and its acceptance as a fact.

If Germany, who has no public debt, who can rapidly restore her finances, and who has inexhaustible sources of wealth, is allowed free scope to develop us for her profit, we British and French shall soon have nothing left to do but to wrap over our ruins in the face of an opulent debtor who will laugh at our misery.

Veterans' Unite, Haig's Last Words

MESSAGES ASKS THEM TO SHOW THE OLD GOOD FELLOWSHIP.

Regrets He Cannot Go East to Meet His Comrades There.

A last call to Canadian veterans to unite in the old army spirit of good fellowship and reciprocal trust, is made in Field Marshal Haig's farewell message to the ex-servicemen in Canada, which His Lordship gave out. The message reads as follows:

"To the Ex-Servicemen of all ranks in Canada:

"In a few days my visit among you will be concluded, and I shall be returning to England. I therefore take this opportunity to thank you for the kindly manner in which you have received me and my wife and those who accompanied me through Canada. It is most difficult to express adequately in words my full thoughts to you, and I can only say that my visit among you has renewed and strengthened the bonds of friendship and comradeship which united us in the field during the great war.

Urges United Body.

"The object of my mission to you is well known. It has been to urge you to weld yourselves into one united body, to bury whatever differences have sprung up amongst you since the war, and to link hands again, as you did in the field, in that magnificent spirit of good fellowship and trust in one another, which above all things, carried us through to our ultimate triumph. All the Dominions except Canada have one ex-service men's organization. In each Dominion they operate under different names and different charters, but each speaks with full voice and full authority for all of the returned men in each of the Dominions. It is my heartfelt hope that not only from my visit—but from a sincere desire on your part—there may be created in Canada one body of returned men of all ranks and representing all, incorporating in its charter all that is best in the various bodies now existing, but having as its basic and guiding principle, education to the interests and welfare of all ex-service men and their dependents, not only in Canada, but in the British Empire. I hope that you will link hands again with the men of the other Dominions within the Empire, so that through the returned men, the bonds of Empire may be knit more strongly than ever before.

"Help Each Other."

"I also appeal most sincerely to those ex-service officers and men of Canada who at present belong to no organization of veterans, to exert themselves and help their fellow-comrades in this effort which can accomplish so much for the men who served in the war with them, and for the Empire as a whole. Your proud boast during the Great War was that you never failed to reach the objective which was set for you. I ask you to assist me in bringing about this objective which has as its aim the betterment of the condition and circumstances of ex-service men in all the peoples within the Empire and the tightening of those bonds which unite us under one flag.

"I take advantage of this opportunity, also, to express to my comrades in the Maritime provinces, the deep regret which I feel because lack of time prevented me from visiting them. It was my hope that I would be able to see you all, but circumstances over which I have no control have ordained otherwise. I send to the ex-service men of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island and to the families of those who gave their lives in the Great War, my sincere thanks for the loyal service they have rendered to the Empire and wish them all that is best in life.

"It is my hope that I may be able to visit Canada again at no distant date and see those of you whom I have been unable to meet on this occasion."

MISSOURI, KANSAS & TEXAS EARNINGS RUNNING HIGH.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The strength in Missouri, Kansas & Texas common stock is due to the splendid earnings this company is making. For the first six months of the current year the surplus after charges, including interest payments on the adjustment bonds, amounted to $2,321,639, compared with $1,166,384 in the same period of 1924, an increase of $1,155,255, or 99 per cent. If this same percentage of increase should continue throughout the rest of this year (which it is not likely to do) Missouri, Kansas & Texas would earn a balance available for dividends of about $10,450,000. After deducting the full 7 per cent. dividend on the $24,265,900 preferred stock, which at the present time is receiving $5, there would be a balance equal to rising $10 a share on the 808,755 shares of no par common. Missouri, Kansas & Texas has outstanding $55,809,664 adjustment 5's which are convertible into preferred stock in the ratio of 10 shares of preferred for each $1000 bond. Should the preferred stock be put on a 7 basis, which is by no means unlikely, most of these bonds would undoubtedly be converted, which would of course reduce the per share balance on the common stock by a matter of about $1,116,000 a year, or something over $7 a share on the common. Even were these bonds converted, however, Missouri, Kansas & Texas would still show over $9 a share on its junior issue. Of course the out about this argument, is that it is extremely unlikely that Missouri, Kansas & Texas earnings will continue at the same rate of increase over last year, during the next six months, as they have during the first six months of the year. The probabilities are, however, that the road will show a larger surplus available for dividends this year than it did last. In 1924 the balance on the common was $4.72 a share.

AMERICAN HIDE & LEATHER CO.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Vice-Chancellor Bentley in New Jersey Court of Chancery issued an order vacating the temporary restraint against American Hide & Leather Co. in suit brought by General Investment Co., Jacob B. Joel and others. On vacating of the order the company filed the office of secretary of state of New Jersey a certificate embodying full changes and amendments made in capitalization adopted by shareholders at a meeting March 4.

Litigation over proposed changes started in December and had been in Chancery Court and Court of Errors since. The company is now free of restraint against proceeding with the consummation of the plan. Clarence H. Venner, of General Investment Co. was a leader in the litigation.

Hide & Leather has outstanding $13,000,000 cumulative preferred, on which there is a dividend accumulation of 140 per cent. There are also outstanding 600,000 shares of common. Plan adopted by stockholders contemplated purchase and retirement of 30,000 shares of preferred at a price not to exceed $70.

Of this 30,000 shares, 15,000 shares have already been acquired through contract with Chase Securities Corporation. It is proposed to acquire the other 15,000 shares of preferred pro rata from stockholders, willing to sell to the company at $70 a share. The plan also contemplated creation of $3,500,000 prior preference stock to be used only for the purchase for retirement of at least an equal amount of old preferred stock on which dividends are in arrears.

General Manager Forecasts Railway's Future

"It is interesting to forecast the lines which future railway construction is likely to follow. The era of new trunk lines is at an end; even branch line construction has seen its best days. Colliery railways or industrial branches will still call as intervals for the services of the Parliamentary Bar, but for the most part the industries of the country are now fully developed, and the construction of branch lines is not a high road to wealth," writes Sir Ralph L. Wedgwood, chief general manager of the L. & N. E. Railway, in the Yorkshire Post.

"Most branch lines, and particularly those which serve purely agricultural districts, are already unremunerative, and they are likely to become more so. The motor bus and motor lorry now meet all requirements in areas where at one time new branch lines or light railways had been projected.

"On the other hand, the problem of dealing with the intensified traffic over the main lines will call for heavy expenditure on straightening the road, on improving gradients, on widening tunnels, on the provision of new stations, and new yards, and on the installation of intensive signalling; works, in short, calculated to expedite the handling of high-speed traffic in large volume.

"Works of this character constitute, it is true, mere improvements in the deal of the existing railway network, but they are expensive items, more expensive, perhaps, than any other class of work, and they will call for an ample supply of capital. Will this be forthcoming?

"I do not believe that railways will, in the long run, be less popular with the investing public than they have been in the past, so long as they are given a reasonable chance of managing their own affairs. Railways are passing through bad times, but there is no ground for supposing that they will be left permanently weaker for this temporary adversity; on the contrary, they will be all the stronger for the drastic economies upon which they are now embarking. There is ample traffic to ensure the prosperity both of the railways and of the motor-carrying industry.

"For the rest, the margin which divides prosperity from adversity is a narrow one. With the trade recovery which we all look for, it should not be difficult to realize the modest increase in railway receipts, which is all that is required to re-establish the position of the railways as sound and prosperous undertakings."

Ellis Island Will Be "Scrapped" Soon

Ellis Island, the great American immigration station at which complaints have been hurled by immigrants from every country in Europe, is soon to be "scrapped." Hon. W. W. Hubbard, Second Assistant Secretary of Labor, at Washington, who was in Montreal attending an immigration conference predicted. Mr. Hubbard was formerly commissioner-general of immigration. He is at present in charge of all American immigration. The new American system of examining would-be immigrants in their own country has materially reduced the number of persons being handled through New York's famous immigration station. The station, which cost $10,000,000 and which was built to accommodate 5,000 immigrants a day, is handling less than one-tenth that number daily at present.

The check-up system which the United States authorities have introduced in European lands has been the means of cutting to a minimum the number of immigrants of the undesirable class who were formerly taken as far as Ellis Island before they were examined.

Although New York will continue to be the main portal through which Europeans will enter the republic, to the south, Mr. Hubbard declared, some suitable station other than Ellis Island will be established.

Mr. Hubbard defended Ellis Island against attacks from England and other overseas countries, declaring the station to be the best in the world. He explained that the detention of intending immigrants had caused all the dissatisfaction and complaints. This, however, could not be avoided, he said.

The amount of money expended annually at Ellis Island is enormous. The American Government pays more to detain a man on Ellis Island one day than would be required to keep him at New York's most exclusive

It was pointed out. British settlers who travel third class, no longer go through the station, and few of other nationalities are routed that way.

The new check-up system in vogue has proved so successful, that 30 per cent. of the Europeans who are given papers by American immigration officials overseas are admitted to the United States without any further trouble.

INQUEST TO BE HELD ON BONES RECOVERED FROM BURNED BARN.

SHELburne, Ont., August 1.—(C. P.)—That Nellie Dunsath was murdered by a fork and hoe, believed to be in the hands of Frank Dunsath, her husband's elder brother, on the afternoon of Monday, July 27, was the verdict brought in by a jury here yesterday afternoon at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Edgar Dunsath, who was slain on a farm in Mulmur Township. The victim's eight-year-old daughter gave sensational evidence, pointing to her Uncle Frank as the murderer. She saw her uncle leave the house, go to the garden, where her mother was, and saw him hammering with a big stick, but could not see her mother, although she heard screams and yells. The fork, thought to have been the instrument used by the murderer, had a small tuft of light colored hair clinging to it. This was identified by Edgar as being that of his wife.

The second inquest is on the human bones found in the burned barn which are believed to be those of Frank Dunsath. Dunsath had no upper teeth and few lower ones. Evidence of neighbors will be taken on this point, and medical testimony will be taken on the bones uncovered from the ruins of the barn. The barn was mysteriously burned about the time of the murder.

LAWS THAT CAN'T BE ENFORCED.

As a publican water at discretion he sells if he displays in his notice, "All spirits sold in this establishment are diluted." The Court recently held that this inhibition does not necessarily protect the dealer; a blow at one of the blurring notices.

Prosecutors will be prosecuted" is a threat. Sometimes the threat is in a more terrifying form, as in the case displayed near Saddleworth, Lancashire: "The Law comes with a heavy penalty on any person who trespasses on this land."

Keeping intruders at bay. A well-known judge exposed this in a warning scattered all over the grounds of his country residence. "It can be done," "cannot be done," unless they pursue game or damage. But reasonable measures, and will be used to remove trespassers, and they are liable to an action at law."

The perfectly legal intimation was effective in keeping off intruders. The ordinary notice would have been thought to be too weak to deter themselves to heavy penalties if trespassers on the judge's land, consequently they gave it a wide berth.

It is not always easy to show that a trespasser has done willful damage. A trespasser was prosecuted because he had, in addition to trespassing, done willful damage. "To a trespasser intended for the foot of man, it is no offence to take a dog to wit." But the magistrates were because there was no record of the man had eaten grass since the case of Nebuchadnezzar—dismissed the case.

"Beware of the Dog." Sometimes additions are made to the trespassing notice, cautioning people that they will expose themselves to heavy penalties by gathering water or other wild growths. Bluff notices are no offence to take mushrooms, primroses, and the like, and no one dare commit a person for gathering ferns growing wild in a wood, unless it can be shown—and this is very difficult—that the land was damaged by digging up the roots.

To the same class belong notices intended to frighten anglers, who are warned against fishing in some waters on pain of having their tackle seized and being prosecuted. In certain circumstances tackle may be seized, but when this is done the offender is exempted from the payment of any penalty or damages. The landowner cannot have it both ways.

That again, of the portentous notice, "Beware of the dog." If a ferocious dog is kept in the open approach of a house, and it bites any person passing there lawfully, the owner is liable, warning or no warning.

Frightening Timid Travellers. Just as worthless are some of the notices on bridges. An action was brought a few weeks ago to prevent certain buses from passing over one of these structures, on the ground that it was intended to carry only the ordinary traffic of the district. But the court held that the owners of the bridge had no power to restrain buses from using it.

"Passengers" railway companies were not allowed to train a ticket without a ticket. This frightens timid people, but it is an illegal assumption of authority. So, too, is the notice that if a passenger fails to produce a ticket after alighting from a train he will be required to pay the fare from the station from which the train started. Some of the notices on railway tickets may be safely disregarded.

Cold Light
The production of cold light is a subject which continues to attract the energies of investigators. Among the latest workers in this field is Professor Bleser, of Paris, who has been trying to emulate the performance of the glow-worm, which gives out light without appreciable heat.

It is stated that he has succeeded in making a large tube which, it is claimed, yields a light of 15,000 candle power for the expenditure of two and half kilowatts of electricity. His tubes are filled with atmospheric air at reduced pressure, and are excited by high-frequency currents. After the current has been cut off from them, his treated tubes continue to glow, though with diminishing brightness, for a period said to be equal to that for which they have been excited.

Some tubes that he has exhibited in London are 8mm. in internal diameter, and require for their excitation a current of one-tenth of a milliampere at a pressure of 6,000 volts, and of frequency in the neighbourhood of 1,000,000—and they are twisted into forms suitable for adaptation as illuminated advertising signs or letters.

It may be mentioned that the term "cold light" is, strictly speaking, a misnomer, as a certain amount of heat must be generated.

CHRYSLER SIX

WHY CHRYSLER SIX OWNERS Find Greater Enjoyment in Motoring

On every hand you will hear Chrysler owners, many of whom have owned or now own cars far higher in price, declare there is no possible substitute for the dashing brilliancy of the Chrysler Six.
 Women of taste—both those who seek restful riding and those who enjoy zestful driving—find that Chrysler ease of handling, roadability and smoothness give a new pleasure to motoring.
 The reason, of course, is that the Chrysler Six in its steadiness, safety and security, strips away every element of nervous strain. Instead of sluggishness, it charms with an eager swiftness. It offers compact roominess in place of cumbersome heaviness. Balloon tires, Chrysler-designed spring suspension and Watson stabilizers which eliminate all the shock of road inequalities, replace the usual wearing tension with the luxury of perfect comfort.
 Seven bearing crankshaft and camshaft combine with perfect balance to give the Chrysler Six a soothing smoothness of operation. Such engineering advances as Purolator, which filters the crankcase oil as the motor runs; the air-cleaner, which keeps all dust and road dirt out of carburetor and motor; Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes, which add the final factor of safety, give to Chrysler motoring a new and unequalled delight.
 Low to the ground, lithe and graceful, every line and contour is restful to the eye. Here is a new style and beauty—distinctively Chrysler—which fittingly expresses the inherent fineness, high quality and superior craftsmanship which make Chrysler value unapproachable.
 Your nearest Chrysler dealer is eager to have you experience the revelations and thrills of the Chrysler Six type of motoring. Jy27.61.m.w.f
