THE CASTLE SHAWL.

BY L. L. T.

"You sure I don't know what to do," said Sara Ellington.

She had been sitting at the window for some time, staring steadily at the falling drops of the April shower.

"About what?" said Miss Carleton, who, a teacher in the same school, was also waiting for the shower to subside a little before she dared to venture forth into the streets. The little ones were gone, the desks and benches all deserted, the slates and desks piled away, and the janitor evidently in a hurry to have the place to himself.

"Mrs. Copley has invited me to go to the Academy of Design with her, and I have nothing to wear but this old Scotch plaid shawl that's moth eaten and darned, and faded and everything else that it ought not to be," sighed Sara.

"Oh, yes, I remember," said Miss Carleton, with a knowing smile. "The Gerald Leigh's sister—the one that lives in the brown house on Madison avenue. Sadie, I'm very much afraid you'll have to stay at home."

"But I don't want to stay at home," pouted Sara. "I have so few chances to go out anywhere."

"Least of all with Mr. Leigh's aristocratic sister," said Miss Carleton, laughing. "But I'll tell you what you can do, Sadie—hire a shawl."

"Hire one?"

"Why, of course. I know plenty of ladies that do it. Go to Mademoiselle Felicie's on Upper Broadway; she'll charge you ten dollars for one afternoon's wear of an Indian shawl; but it's better than paying five hundred for it, and out."

"I never heard of such a thing," said Sara.

"Well, you see, you haven't heard all the world," said Miss Carleton, with an air of superiority. "It's often done. I hired a lace shawl myself the day we went to the picnic and a pretty taking I was in for fear I should tear it. But came's hair is a different thing you see. You've such pretty sloping shoulders you would look perfectly charming in one of those lovely sandal-wood-scented things."

"But—would it be acting a falsehood?"

"Oh, pshaw!" cried Miss Carleton. "Acting a falsehood, indeed! Is it any worse than hiring a carriage when you can't afford to keep one of your own?"

"I don't know," hesitated Sara.

And then she thought how rich the camels' hair shawl would look, and remembered that Gerald Leigh would probably be said of the party.

"Will you go with me?" said she, turning suddenly to Miss Carleton.

"To Mademoiselle Felicie's?"

"I don't care. It has stopped raining, and I may as well go there as anywhere."

Mademoiselle Felicie was a smooth-tongued, voluble Frenchwoman, who could talk a customer into any mood she pleased; and when Sara Ellington went away she carried in a complete parcel under her arm, the Indian shawl, whose deep, rich colors and artistic arrangement of patterns had captivated her fancy.

"It makes me feel just like the 'dew in borrowed plumage' of my childhood's fables," said she to herself; "but it's only for one afternoon, and I do so hate to have Gerald think me shabby."

Mrs. Ellington shook her head and looked very grave when Sara unfolded her shawl and claimed her mother's admiration for it.

"My dear," she said, "it is very beautiful, but—it is not yours."

"Mamma!"

"It reminds me of the old story of the china pot and iron pot swimming down a stream together, and do you remember what because of the china pot?"

"I don't see that that has anything to do with me, mamma."

"Don't you, my dear? Well, you are old enough, and ought to be wise enough, to decide these things for yourself," said Mrs. Ellington, gravely.

"But if you would take my advice, Sadie, you would send this grey shawl back, and either remain at home or wear your own wrap."

"But Sarah did not take her mother's unpalatable advice."

"How else you look, dear," said Mrs. Copley, as her pretty little chocolate-colored coupe stopped in front of the unpretending red brick house whose second story was rented by Mrs. Ellington and her mother. "And what a love of an Indian shawl! An heirloom, eh?"

Sara smiled and muttered some indistinct answer, as she stepped into the carriage with her superbly-dressed friend. And as she did so a sudden consciousness came upon her of how little her faded hair accorded with the rich shawl, and how frayed the flounces of her worn black silk dress were.

"Would not the old plaid Scotch shawl have been better, after all? But it was too late now, to weigh these considerations—and Sara derived a sort of pleasure from the soft feeling of the camels' hair folds, as they fell about her.

"Gerald will meet us at the academy," said Mrs. Copley as they rolled along.

"Gerald had another engagement, but of course he broke it when he heard that you were to be with me."

And Sara smiled and blushed, and looked quite pretty enough to justify Mr. Leigh in his infatuation.

It was a brilliant spring afternoon, and the academy of design was crowded with the fashionable world of New York. Gerald Leigh met his sister and her friend on the threshold of the water-color room, and as once gave Sarah his arm.

"I could not resist the opportunity of meeting you," said he, and Sara's heart gave a happy, tumultuous throbbing as he spoke.

How glad she was now that she had hired the Indian shawl! How shabby she would have felt in the old Scotch plaid with its darned places and the faded spots in the middle.

As she stood in front of a beautiful figure-piece, still leaning on Mr. Leigh's arm, a soft tap came on her other shoulder, and turning with a start she saw a man in police uniform.

"You must come with me," said he. "Quiet now," as Gerald Leigh made an indignant step forward. "Least said is soonest mended, and there ain't no use in making a fuss," demanded Leigh, still holding tight on Sara's arm.

"That there shawl's stolen," said the man. "Mrs. Richfield on Fifth avenue lost it three weeks ago. She's here to-day and recognized it at once. She's a-waitin' outside in her carriage, and we'd best go to the police station at once."

"I don't know Mrs. Richfield," gasped Sadie. "I never heard of her. I got this shawl from Mademoiselle Felicie on Upper Broadway. Oh, Mr. Leigh," with a conscious sob, "don't let them take me away."

Gerald Leigh considered a moment.

"It is as the man says," said he. "We had best go with him. But, of course, I will bail you out at once. There is evidently some glaring misapprehension here."

For Sara Ellington nearly fainted with mortification as she was led to the police station—and all for the miserable India shawl!

Under the searching cross-examination of the man in authority there, the truth soon came out. The shawl was Mrs. Richfield's, in very truth; but had been stolen from her by a maid, since dismissed who, in her turn, sold it to Mademoiselle Felicie for a mere trifle, that thrifty young woman considering it quite unnecessary to enquire too closely into the matter.

And so it came out—that Sara Ellington had hired the shawl, to make a brief display of what was not her own. Mr. Leigh's look of grave surprise, Mrs. Copley's ill-concealed contempt—oh! how they stung Sara! She went home in the latter's carriage, exasperated, it is true, from shame, but bitterly mortified, and seeing her own folly as she had never before seen it.

Mr. Leigh never called again, and Mrs. Copley, though very polite when they met, "dropped" her to all intents and purposes.

And that was all that Miss Ellington gained by hiring that India shawl from Mademoiselle Felicie.

Electric fans, that can be regulated so as to produce a light zephyr or a western cyclone at an expense of a cent an hour, are on exhibition. We are gradually nearing the point when life will be a perpetual joy.

—Mr. Wm. Boyd Hill, Cobourg, writes: "Having used Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for some years, I have much pleasure in testifying to its efficacy in relieving pains in the back and shoulders. I have also used it in cases of cramp in children, and have found it to be all that you claim it to be."

—Leading druggists on this continent testify to the large and constantly increasing sales of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and report its beneficial effects upon their customers troubled with liver complaints, constipation, dyspepsia, impurity of the blood, and other physical infirmities, and as a female medicine, it has accomplished remarkable cures.

"I was recommended here by a friend," said a sooty-looking man, as he entered a drug store, "who told me you did a very large business, and that any purchases that I might want to make could be made on reasonable terms." "Yes, sir; certainly, sir. We have built up a very large trade by faithful attention to business, and by honest efforts to please our numerous customers." "You may give me a two-cent postage stamp, if you please."

—Mr. Henry Marshall, reeve of Dunn, writes: "Some time ago I got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery from Mr. Harrison, and I consider it the very best medicine extant for dyspepsia." This medicine is making marvelous cures in liver complaint, dyspepsia, etc., in purifying the blood and restoring manhood to full vigor.

Here is a story of Mr. Lawrence Jerome, the great New York stock broker, and uncle of Lady Randolph Churchill. He was passing the shop of a funeral furnisher during a ramble in the east end, when he saw displayed this sign: "Every requisite for a funeral." Solely entering, Mr. Jerome observed, in a sepulchral tone: "I wish to procure a corpse!" "Whose corpse—what corpse?" stammered the attendant. "Any corpse will answer," retorted Larry, as he was called by his friends in Wall street. "You see, I wish to get up a funeral, and as your sign says 'Every requisite for a funeral furnished,' and as the first requisite is a corpse, I thought I would enquire."

A HOME DRUGGIST TESTIFIES.

Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal appreciation in its own native state, and country, and among all people, as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I was afflicted with Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress without help. I tried seven remedies without much if any relief, until I took Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have a large quantity of your Sarsaparilla, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public."

SALT RHEUM. GEORGE ANDREWS, Druggist, writes to the Lowell Carpet Corporation, Lowell, Mass.: "I was afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. It was cured by the use of more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883."

EPPS' COCOA
BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a deliciously flavored beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal ailment by guarding ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."

—Chief Medical Officer.
Made simply with boiling water or milk, sold in packets and tins only (4lb. and 1lb.) by Grocers, Licensed Dispensaries, and Druggists.

THE TORONTO WORLD.

THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 24, 1934.

DOMINION DASHES.

The Kates and Ben News Found in one Canadian Exchange. Ottawa is reveling in the luxury of a haughty house.

Mr. McTavish, Canadian Pacific railway commissioner, estimates that there will be 2,000,000 bushels of wheat for export in Manitoba this year.

There are about 200,000 bushels of wheat still in the hands of the farmers on account of the grain being in the place to manufacture the grain into flour.

Under the pretence of buying cattle a young man with a Petrol rig succeeded in stealing a silver hunting watch from the house of Joseph Hunte, 24 line, Plymouth, Monday afternoon.

James Chester, a young man of college age, who was pastor of the Methodist church, began on July 13, and has been assisted by Rev. T. E. Hunter and E. T. Crosby. The church is filled every night.

On Sunday morning D. M. St. John, a farmer living in what is known as the "Green Gables," found two cattle dead in the field and a valuable mare in great agony.

Robert Brooks, first line, Plymouth, found last week the skeleton of a man in a high, sandy soil. The bones which he measured twenty inches, and was a shape evidently that of a man.

The bones indicated a person of great stature. The teeth were sound, and the head was perfectly unscathed by any of the things which would have been done to a man.

Don't fail to go to the great Summer Clearing Sale at the Bon Marche, 7 and 9 King street east.

Local News PARAGRAPHED. A school from the London Fusiliers has arrived at the school of infantry for a three month course of instruction.

Gordon Mackay & Co. open today several cases of prints, wincies and worsted coatings. New goods arriving daily.

For extraordinary value in Embroidery, go to the Bon Marche.

Collegiate Institute at the University. The Toronto Collegiate Institute has been given prominence at the matriculation examinations of Toronto university.

For Real Lace go to the Bon Marche.

A QUARTER'S SUICIDE.

over 600 in the United States in March, April and May. The Insurance Chronicle, which makes a specialty of compiling statistics of suicides in the United States, publishes a table showing the number of suicides during March, April, and May. The whole number reported for this period was 423, of which 169 occurred in March, 125 in April, and 129 in May.

The greatest numbers of suicides were reported in the following order: 37 in Pennsylvania, 23 in Massachusetts, 22 in New York, 21 in Illinois, 20 in Michigan, 19 in Ohio, 18 in Wisconsin, 17 in Indiana, 16 in Missouri, 15 in Iowa, 14 in Minnesota, 13 in Kansas, 12 in Nebraska, 11 in Oklahoma, 10 in Texas, 9 in Arkansas, 8 in Louisiana, 7 in Mississippi, 6 in Alabama, 5 in Georgia, 4 in Florida, 3 in South Carolina, 2 in North Carolina, 1 in Virginia, 1 in West Virginia, 1 in Maryland, 1 in Delaware, 1 in Pennsylvania, 1 in New Jersey, 1 in New York, 1 in Connecticut, 1 in Rhode Island, 1 in Massachusetts, 1 in Vermont, 1 in New Hampshire, 1 in Maine, 1 in New Brunswick, 1 in Nova Scotia, 1 in Prince Edward Island, 1 in Newfoundland.

The Postoffice Inhabited. It is reported that some of the postoffice employees were down with typhoid fever, a World reporter waited on Postmaster Patterson, who, in answer to inquiries, admitted that one of the clerks was away sick with the fever. He says that the building is notoriously unhealthy and badly drained, the smells in some parts of it being quite as bad as any he can imagine.

The Criticism Was Vain. H. E. Hughes last night celebrated the opening of his criterion view restaurant and cafe, by entertaining his friends at supper. The spread was an elegant one and fully sustained his high reputation as a first-class caterer.

Rescued at Last. W. H. Crocker, druggist of Waterdown, says, "When all other remedies failed for Bowel Complaints, then Dr. Bowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry comes to the rescue."

More Horse-Car Conductors Wanted. Last night Coroner Duncan and his jury concluded the inquest at Hancock's hotel on the death of Samuel Hymen, aged 3, who was killed on July 12 by being run over in King street east by a bob-tail car.

A Marriage and a Present. Rev. Dr. Wild made another couple happy at his church Monday evening, Charles W. McVittie and Eva Jessie Boyd, daughter of John Boyd of this city, were married in the presence of a large number of friends.

"Doc" Gannon Acquitted. In Judge Boyd's court yesterday "Doc" Gannon, arrested by Detective Ruban on a charge of stealing $350 worth of jewelry from the room of Chief Clerk Kuhn in the Roscoe house, was acquitted after considerable evidence was heard.

To Pay Their Own Expenses. The city council on Monday evening having refused to vote funds to defray the expenses of the court-house committee to Buffalo to inspect the court-house and city hall of that city, Ald. Walker and a number of others will leave this afternoon at 3.50 of their own expense.

The Injured Fireman. Assistant Chief Graham, 45 Forman Villiers and Charlie Ardagh, injured at the Parliament street fire last week, are all nearly recovered. Mr. Villiers still suffers more than any of his comrades.

Summer Dry Goods at about half nothing at the re-summer clearing sale at the Bon Marche, 7 and 9 King street east. Farley & Co.

The Hibbery Commission and the Telegram. Editor World: Sir: The Telegram has been attempting to make very light of the Hibbery commission proceedings so far. "It has left nothing behind it," says the versatile writer, "but a bad smell." Just so. The Telegram has nothing to say regarding the significantly convenient absence just now of Hibbery, Big Bush, Shields, Simpson, etc., which serves to intensify and perpetuate said "bad smell."

For Me Only. I was climbing after a rosebud that grew a little too high. The ladder stood on its tip to reach it. When I heard him passing by. He held in his hand a bill: He dropped it and gave me. But I thought of the rosebud hanging high up in the trellis-tree. So I only took it in my hand. He hurried on and gave me. He inhaled on breath of the fragrance that lay in the air about him. Then I saw it: he had again, saying, "Wait for just such a plaything." To hold in his hand. He turned and went from me slowly. Like one who is lonely and glad. And all the time he was saying: "I was waiting with white lily-leaves."
