THIRTEENTH YEAR.

A SLAYER OF POOR WOMEN.

DAMNING PROOF OF HELL'S ACTS OF MURDER.

He Gave His Capricious Pills to Girls of the Street, Who Went to Their Lodgings and Died—The Evidence of an Ottawa Man to Whom Nell Admitted Poisoning.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—This was the third day of the famous murder trial, and there was no diminution in the crowd in the court room. The case appears to have a peculiar fascination for the girls who belong to the class among which Nell found her victims, and many of them have been present each day.

The case was resumed to-day by the prosecution calling John Patrick Haynes, who testified that he became acquainted with Nell through his visiting the photographic establishment maintained by her at Westminster Bridge-road, of which firm Haynes was a member. Nell was very eccentric. A friendship sprang up between the two, and Haynes learned that Nell was very free with her money. By going out with Nell, Haynes learned that she was a doctor of medicine, and that she showed Haynes a notebook, in which were entered, among other things, the initials of the women who had been poisoned, and the date of their deaths. There were initials which he said referred to Ellen Dowdworth, Matilda Clover and Emma Shirvell, and there were also the initials "L. H.," which he said meant Louise Harvey. Haynes heard that Nell had murdered the girls, and he was very indignant. He went to Nell and told her that he had seen the notebook, and she was very angry. He said that he had seen the notebook, and she was very angry. He said that he had seen the notebook, and she was very angry.

What Nell Told McCullough.

John William McCullough, No. 374 Slater-street, Ottawa, stated that he was a traveler for Messrs. J. & C. Co., grocers, Toronto. At the end of February and the beginning of March of the present year he was staying at Blanchard's Hotel, Quebec.

While there he made the acquaintance of Nell Harvey, a young woman, who occupied rooms on the same floor. A day or two after McCullough reached the hotel he was told by Nell that she had a sample case for use in London. He saw several photographs in Nell's room, and he was told that they were photographs of Laura Sabatina, a young woman whom he was going to marry when he returned to London.

After some general conversation McCullough asked him if there was any reason why Nell should follow him. He said that he had been to the office of Nell's father, and he had seen a photograph of her. He said that he had seen a photograph of her, and he had seen a photograph of her.

McCullough asked, "What would it be?" Nell replied, "I would have had the money."

The next witness was Louise Harvey of Harris. She testified that she had been to the office of Nell's father, and she had seen a photograph of her. She said that she had seen a photograph of her, and she had seen a photograph of her.

Charles Harvey was next called. He said he was living with Louise Harris in Ottawa. He said that he had seen a photograph of her, and he had seen a photograph of her.

Rebellion in the Argentine Republic.

Buenos Ayres, Oct. 19.—A revolution has broken out at Santiago del Estero, the capital of the province of the same name, the central province of the Argentine Republic. There has already been some fighting and a few persons have been killed. The insurgents have captured the governor of the province.

IT WAS A GOODY COMPANY.

WOODBRIDGE'S GREAT AND GLORIOUS DAY.

Crowds Thronged Into the Little Town—The Lieutenant-Governor's Gracious Presence—All Went Merry as a Marriage Day—The Show and the Banquet—Congratulations Specified.

A merry crowd of what was estimated to be the two special trains to Woodbridge Fair yesterday. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Kirkpatrick went out by the 12.30 train and found a large number of Toronto hand waiting to welcome them. A prancing four-horse turnout, with Matthew Evans, J. J. Cogrove, Dr. McConnell, Mr. Woods, George Crookall, John Pearson and other members of the Woodbridge Club, all in white hats, was also on hand. When they caught sight of the Lieutenant-Governor they sang the "God Save the Queen." The procession marched down street to the residence of Mr. Clarke Wallace, M.P., who had the privilege of entertaining the Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Kirkpatrick during the day. In a short time the procession formed and made its way to the Fair grounds, where a stand had been especially erected for the Lieut.-Governor to witness the crowd.

The Lieut.-Governor's Address.

He said: "I am very glad indeed to be here to-day at this celebrated Woodbridge Fair, and to see so many people enjoying themselves. I am always pleased to attend the annual Fair, and to see the progress of the country. I believe that a great deal of good in the country. Agriculture has been in an oppressed condition owing to the operations of vast private and the consequent cost of producing wheat has been diminished. Farmers will have to turn their attention to dairying and stock raising. There is a great deal of profit in dairying if followed intelligently. The traveling dairies, the experiments of the Lieut. and Dominion Governments are all means of educating farmers as to the value of their land."

With regard to horses, I would remind you that the common horse has gone down in value, but a good carriage horse or first-class roadster will command a price never before heard of. Only last week a carriage horse, called "Blue Mass," was sold for $3000 in Toronto.

"It takes no ordinary man to be a farmer. He must be a veterinarian, a chemist, a machinist, and there is no branch of learning and skill that cannot be profitably employed on the farm. In fact, the time has passed when the wise method will bring up her clever son for a farmer and the dull one for a lawyer or doctor."

There were three hearty cheers for the Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, who spent the rest of the afternoon in attending the various exhibits in the main hall.

Mr. J. Brownridge was adjudged the best lady driver and Miss Maggie McCullough the best lady driver.

The Guests Entertained.

In the evening the directors of the society gave a banquet to about 200 guests, many of whom were from Toronto. The guests were entertained at the home of Mrs. W. A. Maclean, M.P. for East York, and Mrs. W. A. Maclean, M.P. for East York, and Mrs. W. A. Maclean, M.P. for East York.

Mr. Maclean, M.P. for East York; Mr. Cotsworth, M.P. for East York; Mr. Clark Wallace, M.P. for East York; and Mr. McCullough, M.P. for East York, were called on to respond to the toast of the "Local and Dominion Parliaments." The other distinguished guests were also called on to respond to the toast.

LE CARON THE SPY.

He Writes a Book Which His Former Friends Will Read with Interest.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The reminiscences of Dr. Le Caron, the spy for the British Government, who gained notoriety in 1889 by his disclosure in behalf of the Times before the Parliamt. Commission, have been made public.

He calls himself a fatalist, and says: "I never sought Fenianism; Fenianism rather came to me."

Writing to his father in regard to the projected Fenian invasion of Canada, he says he never supposed that one result of his father's important letters to the British Government would be that he would receive a commission as a British spy. He declares that when he and Gen. O'Neill were recruited at the White House at Washington by President Johnson the President told him that he was organizing the Fenians and was willing to do all in his power to assist the Fenian movement.

He says that he was recruited by President Johnson, and that he was recruited by President Johnson, and that he was recruited by President Johnson.

A GREAT DAY FOR CHICAGO.

CROWDS GATHERED FOR THE DEDICATORY FUNCTIONS.

The City a Great Hive of Humanity Gathered From All Parts of the Country—A Reception at the Auditorium—Roman Catholic Dignitaries Received With Honors.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—A city filled with people, brilliant with lights, alive with the impulse of an anniversary which none now living will see again, is Chicago tonight. The inauguration of the World's Columbian exhibition festivities was marked to-night by a brilliant reception and ball in the great hall of the Auditorium. On behalf of the other patrons and of the patronesses of the ball, Major-Gen. Miles, Mayor Washburn, H. K. Fairbank, George M. Fullam and Marshall Field had invited to a reception tendered to the President, Vice-President and ex-President of the United States, the representatives of foreign Governments, Governors of states and territories, and other distinguished guests. Thousands of electric lamps were reflected in the lake from the towering buildings, and the city was a sea of light. The content to stand closely packed for hours viewing the notables as they arrived to attend the reception.

The Auditorium building the great steel fire curtain of the stage had been lifted and the stage flooring had been extended over the entire orchestra pit. Behind the proscenium arch the lower tier of boxes had been extended in a circle around the rear of the stage. About the temporary circle of boxes at its centre were four other circles occupied by the orchestra, the band and the Spanish royalty was suspended directly over the centre of the stage. It had a cross in its middle and around the cross were the initials of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabel. On either side and immediately over the boxes were the initials of King and Queen of Spain in the time of Columbus. The panel in front of the organ and between the boxes and proscenium arch was decorated with a large United States shield surmounted by a stand of colors, the colors of the United States and the colors of the Spanish monarchy.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The train bearing the Cabinet officers, members of the Supreme Court and foreign diplomats, arrived shortly before noon, and the distinguished visitors were tendered a royal reception by the city, state officials and the general public. The city is already filled to overflowing, yet hundreds are arriving every hour. Every hotel, boarding house and lodging house is full. The sidewalks are almost impassable. The streets are lined with people, and the air is filled with the sound of music and the sight of flags.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The distinguished party, who arrived in this city this afternoon, were met at the station by a number of well-known gentlemen representing the World's Fair and the Columbian Exposition. The party included the President, Vice-President and ex-President of the United States, the representatives of foreign Governments, Governors of states and territories, and other distinguished guests.
