An Opportunity for Household Economy

The great advance in price of cream of tartar—which is derived from grapes—due to inability to care for and market the grape crop in the European countries now at war, can be made advantageous to housewives.

Housekeepers will find it more economical and much more satisfactory to use Royal Baking Powder, which is made from highly refined, pure cream of tartar. First, because the price of Royal has not been changed and it will do perfect work; second, because food made with Royal Baking Powder will be finer and more palatable finally, because it insures the absence of all danger from alum or similar unwholesome products.

The old-fashioned custom of buying cream of tartar and mixing it with soda, or using sour milk, may be discarded with profit. The high cost and scarcity of cream of tartar furnishes a temptation to unscrupulous dealers to substitute an adulterated product which may be either lime phosphates or alum, that will change the baking strength and may spoil the food.

Three Months of The War

(“British Weekly” Special.)

Three months have passed, as we write on Tuesday, since that memorable evening of August 4, when Great Britain declared war on Germany. The moment seems opportune for a brief review of the campaign, with a glance at its surprises and lessons. Let us state at the outset that the enemy has surprised us in two ways. We know he was well prepared, but we had to learn of his slow and secret machinations against the peace of Europe, his gigantic system of espionage, and his absolute unscrupulousness of method. For years he has been plotting against us in Turkey, South Africa, China, and in the innermost heart of Britain. Philanthropists like Sir Walter Runciman, who deprecates in Monday's Daily Chronicle the new strictness with which the police are rounding up non-naturalized aliens, are unwittingly doing their country a great disservice. Let them consult France and Belgium as to the treacherous work of Germans who lived as peaceful citizens at Antwerp, Maastricht and elsewhere. The German spy-system encircles the globe like a monstrous serpent. By land, sea and air our foe uses the methods of the secret murderer. Platforms are built, mines are laid, bombs are hung by night on defenceless citizens. The first great surprise for the world has been the discovery that Germany is an assassin-Power.

The other surprise has been the pitiful breakdown of Prussian “Kultur” in actual warfare. The names of Louvain, Aerschot, Termonde, Rheims and many a peaceful village now reduced to ashes will be branded forever, as Mr. Asquith said, on the brow of German culture. The savagery of Attila and his Huns has been equalled and surpassed in three months of strife. The Hun glory in their work of destruction, as is evident from General von Disfurth's article quoted in the Daily Telegraph of Monday. This officer, writing in Der Tag, of Berlin, says, among other things:—

“Even though all the monuments, all the works of art, all the masterpieces of architecture which happen to come between our guns, and those of the enemy are blown to the devil, it will be all the same to us; we may sweep over their loss, perhaps, at a more distant date and in calmer times, but at present there is not a word of regret to be expressed. Here is the lord of the hour, not Apollo. Let them have all that ing of the cathedral of Rheims and of all the churches and all the chateaux which have shared its fate; we don't want to hear any more of it. For from Rheims we hear of a second occupation, a second triumphant and victorious entry into the town of our glorious troops! What does anything else matter?”

THE WAR ON LAND.

The salient fact of the first three months is that the plans of the War Lord have miscarried. There are likely to be no Winter quarters for him in Paris or Warsaw. His armies are hung back in the west to the Belgian frontier, his brave soldiers dying by thousands among the guns as they strive to force a way towards Calais. In the east the pick of the German troops are in full flight from the Vistula to the Silesian frontier. The Allies have, indeed, abundant cause for confidence, though the strife still rages and the issue is undecided. There have been four factors on which the Kaiser did not count at the beginning of the war.

First in time as in immortal glory came the heroic resistance of the Belgian people. Thomas Fuller, in his “Worthies of England,” makes this comment on the defeat of the Spanish Armada: “When God will have a design defeated, amidst the plenty, yea, superfluity of all imaginable necessities, some unsuspected one shall be wanting to frustrate all the rest.”

The unsuspected “necessary” for the swift success of German arms was the meek submission of the Belgian people. The defence of Liege upset the War Lord's calculations, and gave the Allies time to draw their power together. In the later campaign the Belgian Army has amazed the world by its valour and tenacity. A little time for rest was allowed even to heroes in the old battles of chivalry.

“Fight on, my men,” Sir Andrew says, “A little I'm hurt, but not yet slain, I'll hit his down and rest awhile, And then I'll rise and fight again.”

The decisive factor in the western campaign. Full honor to its work has been paid by the statesmen and people of France.

Thirdly, the Kaiser has encountered in General Joffre a strategist well able to outwit the enemy's generals. We like that saying of the French leader quoted by Mr. George Curzon in last Thursday's Daily Mail, “Let me alone, I am nibbling at them.”

Fourthly, the Russian campaign has developed with a speed and efficiency which have amazed the experts. General Samsonoff, who hung his life away in East Prussia in a premature offensive for the sake of the general cause, will rank with the foremost heroes of the war. His valiant spirit will one day lead the Tsar's conquering hosts to Berlin.

The rized of the hour at home if for “Men, men, men!”

THE WAR ON SEA.

In order to appreciate the work of our Navy let us glance back to the newspapers at the opening of the war. One writer foresaw our resort to a system of barter, owing to the expected scarcity of money. A second prepares the public for an early distribution of daily rations by the Government, rich and poor receiving an exact proportion of necessary supplies. A third warns us to look out for the enemy's air-ships in every quarter of the sky. A fourth predicts immediate and all but universal unemployment. After three months the life of our people is proceeding very much on its accustomed lines. It has not been necessary to “guard every drop of milk for the children,” or to give up eggs and bacon, or confine the dinner menu to haricot beans. Thanks to the Navy's ceaseless vigilance in keeping open the seas, British commerce has been little disturbed by the war, while German trade has been crippled in every region of the globe.

The course of the war so far has justified Sir Percy Scott's prediction of the growing importance of the submarine. The phrase “A fleet in being” is much heard in Berlin at present, and the German people are content that their Dreadnoughts and battle-cruisers should hide in canals and harbors, while their submarines, bold and cleverly handled, sail forth on errands of mischief. British submarines, which far outnumber those of the enemy, have had some successes.

THE WEEK'S WAR NEWS

German Submarine Rammed by a British Patrol Vessel—Slight Advantages Gained by Allies.

LONDON, Nov. 23, 11.23 p.m.—The Secretary of the Admiralty announces that the German submarine boat U-18 which was reported off the North coast of Scotland this morning, was rammed by a British patrolling vessel, and foundered.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—According to an official statement French artillery succeeded last night in getting the range of a Chateau, south of Dixmude, where the German general staff was installed. The French shells compelled twenty officers to run from the building in night attire, during a blizzard. A semi-official statement giving some of the particulars of the fighting at the front in Belgium and France from November 15 to 21, was issued here to-night. It says:

“These last few days, except on certain points, have been characterized by a perceptible slackening of the German actions. On the other hand, our artillery and infantry have gained on the enemy noticeable advantages in the regular siege war necessitated by the configuration of the country and the positions of the two fronts.

“From the sea to the Lys, our artillery, thanks to the information supplied by our aeroplanes, was able to rectify its fire, and succeeded many times in silencing the German artillery.

“On November 17, in the region of Ypres, we destroyed several German guns, and on the 19th and 20th obtained the same result at Nieuport. It was due to our artillery spiritedly returning the fire of the enemy, that on the 19th we silenced the German batteries which were shelling the Ypres station and the road from Bopringhe to Ypres.

WAR BRIEFS

Arthur Lauf, an immigration department interpreter in Halifax was arrested in Halifax last week for espionage. He had naturalization papers, but a complete wireless outfit was found in his room. He is now held as a prisoner of war.

Four deaf and dumb men called at the Cardiff recruiting office and asked to be enlisted.

More than 2000 Swiss families have offered to adopt Belgian orphans.

A German ship with nitrates from Chile was towed in Queenstown as a prize of war. The Captain said he had not heard of the war.

Sir Percy Scott has rejoined the Admiralty. He is an expert in gunnery, and a believer in submarines rather than dreadnoughts.

A servant in the employ of Rev. John Robbins, of London, formerly of Truro, was arrested as a spy. Bombs and charts, were found hidden in her room.

In Detroit there are about 80,000 Germans in a mass meeting of sympathisers with Germany met and raised about $1,000. In Berlin, Ont. where there are about 18,000 people, of whom 12,000 are of German descent, nearly $100,000 were raised to aid Great Britain.

Parliament grants Premier Asquith's request for a further grant of $1,250,000,000 for war purposes.

Correspondents report that the Germans after having taken Dixmude, were repulsed at the point of the bayonet, with a loss of eighty percent of the force which took the town.

25,000 troops left Australia in 23 cruisers, supposed to be bound for Egypt.

Five hundred thousand men sent to the fighting line now, will be worth a million sent in eight months is the opinion of a correspondent whose word has great value. He favors asking the Japanese to send over the 500,000, and believes they would turn the scale at the present juncture.

Rev. G. L. Pagan, Minister of one of the historic Churches of Scotland has, of his own choice, joined the army as a simple private.

A million of men are now training in Great Britain. “One who knows” says, a million more would volunteer if they but knew that their families would be as well-cared for in their absence as they now are.

A Motor-buss returned to England from the war had scratched on a glass shield, “If you meet Marguerite, tell her how I love her.”

Practically all the swords in the British army were made in Germany, but they were tested in Sheffield.

The Kaiser is spoken of as the Admiral of the Kiel Canal!

A soldier writes home, “Our men would not leave a man anywhere. I have seen dozens of them with wounded soldiers on their backs. They will even give their last drop of water to the wounded.

Probably the oddest gift offered for the benefit of the war has been that of 5000 goats by the Kavirondo Chiefs of South Africa. They were gladly accepted, and will be very useful among the Indian troops.

A cablegram from the Russian Minister of Commerce to the Governor General thanks the Canadian Government for the gift of the ice-breaker, Earl Grey. The vessel is now at Archangel.

A riot in Constantinople and a revolt in Adrianople against the Germans serve to show that the people of Turkey do not favor the war.

The Kaiser is reported to have shorn off the spikes of his moustache, because they pointed him out as a good mark to the snipers.

A competent authority says that the Southern States will lose at least five hundred million on the cotton crop this year as a result of war. Many of the negro and poor white people feel the loss of market very keenly.

Capt. Samuel Purdy Heard From

A letter has been received by relatives in Bridgetown, from Captain Samuel Purdy, of Yarmouth, of the steamship “Condor,” owned by W. H. Chase & Co., of London, which was captured on October 11, on the trip to South America. The Condor sighted two steamers in 2°-4' s. 34' west, and Captain Purdy signalled, “have you seen my war ship?” The answer came back, “No.” And the stranger ran up the British ensign. But as the ships drew nearer the flag was lowered and the German ensign was hoisted instead. The two boats proved to be German scout ships in disguise as merchantmen. One of them had a wireless and a call was sent to the “Karlsruhe” which was thirty miles away. In an hour she came up and ordered the “Condor” to stop. At 4 p. m. a German officer came aboard and took possession of the ship. Captain Purdy was given half an hour to get ready and leave his ship with his crew. The officer was very particular in going over the ship's papers and getting information about the cargo. He decided that as the cargo was neutral it would not be safe to sink her. Captain Purdy was allowed to take his books and instruments and half of the “slop chest.” And with his crew was put on board one of the scout boats, the “Creffield.” All that the Captain saved was stolen from him the first night, making his personal loss over $500. The scout ships were British merchantmen that had been captured and remained. These with 12 other steamers and crews of 420 men had been taken in four weeks. For two days and nights the Germans hung around the “Condor” with the captured crews working day and night discharging the cargo into the war ship and scout boats. Afterward the “Creffield” was ordered to take her load of passengers to Tenerife. Captain Purdy learned that most of the captured ships had been sunk, although 5 had been retained as scouts. These were stationed 100 miles apart and in communication with the fast cruiser that went back and forth for 600 miles and formed a drag net across the Atlantic from Cape St. Boque. Few ships could escape. Captain Purdy writes that for eleven days while on the “Creffield,” it was a scramble to get anything to eat. They were short of water and what they had was not fit to drink. Fortunately Captain Purdy had left his wife in New York this trip, but there were two other wives of Captains whose ships had been sunk, with them, one commander having his wife on their honeymoon trip. The whispered talk among the passengers to Tenerife was, “Oh, where is our British fleet.” Captain Purdy arrived in New York on the 14th inst.

Home Guard for Bridgetown

All citizens are requested to attend a public meeting to be held in the Council Chamber on Friday evening, next, the 27th inst., at 7.30 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing the advisability of forming a Home Guard and to arrange details, thus following the good example set by a number of other towns in the Province. Every citizen is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

By the request of His Worship, Mayor Freeman.

HARRY RUGGLES, Clerk.

Dated Nov. 24, 1914.

One of the most popular organizations in the Lord Mayor's parade at London on the 9th inst., consisted of several battalions of Canadian troops.

Letter from Mack Selig

Salisbury Plain, November 5th.

My Dear Mother: Just a line to let you know I received your letter yesterday and was very, very pleased to get it. I was away for three days on leave.

I went to London. I had a dandy time taking in the sights. I went to a number of places of interest: the King's palace, Westminster Abbey, the Tower (I was all through the Tower), Hyde Park, Zoo museum, Leicester Square, Piccadilly, Strand, St. Paul's Cathedral, and other places too numerous to mention. We were reviewed by the King and Queen and a lot of the big generals. I was not more than three feet away from the King and Queen when they walked through the lines. I have a fierce old cold. We have had terrible wet weather ever since we landed. Herb Layte is well. He is orderly for Capt. Harris from Round Hill. We fellows that came from Middleton are all together. Will MacLeod was over to see me last night. He has been sick with a cold but is better now. Gus Spurr is coming home. He is from Round Hill. He is to be recruiting Sergeant down there. I like it fine and hope to get a chance to see some of the real things.

Will MacLeod wishes to be remembered to you all.

Give my love to all that inquire about me.

MACK.

Rev. W. J. Smith's Lecture on Canada's Waste.

Rev. W. J. Smith, Field Secretary, of the Temperance and Moral Reform Department of the Methodist Church delivered a very strong address in the Providence Methodist Church on Friday evening last. The main idea of the address was Waste, the waste especially of human life, and energy by ignorance or disregard of the laws of God regarding these matters, which are as unalterable as the law of gravitation. Mr. Smith had evidently been making enquiries about the morals of our town, and indicated a state of things which ought to receive the careful attention of every citizen, and especially that of the civic authorities. “Eternal vigilance is the price of Liberty.” Evils should be nipped in the bud. Otherwise, they are likely to grow and “become strong and in many cases taint and weaken the whole moral sentiment of the community, to the injury of both old and young.” “An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.” Mr. Smith reminded us that the department which he represents shares with that of the Presbyterian Church in the Home for Girls, recently established in Truro. The work of the two churches referred to deserves the sympathy and support of every lover of his fellow creatures.

Several of the young people from here attended the play given by Price Webber & Company, at Kingston, on Wednesday last.

Our enterprising plumber, Mr. W. H. Martin is getting all the work in his line he can attend to, driving wells, etc., for in spite of the small returns for apples, people must have water.

Mrs. Whitman Plumb, of Granville Ferry, recently visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Pierce, of Melverton. Mr. Pierce, who has been ill for a long time is gradually growing weaker each day.

Miss Georgie Brown, of Lawrence town High School, spent the Sabbath at her home here, accompanied by her friend Miss Julia Fair. During the service Miss Fair sang a very sweet solo.

Mr. Duncan Smith returned to Boston, last week, after spending several weeks at his home on Pleasant St. Mrs. Smith is still very ill, under the care of a trained nurse, Mrs. Kinyon, of Boston.

"The Colonel's Maid"
Nov. 23rd.

The Lawrencetown Amateur Dramatic Club, which has made a considerable reputation for itself in the past, won fresh laurels Tuesday evening, November 17th, when the players presented the delightful comedy "The Colonel's Maid" in Phinney's Hall, Lawrencetown, for the benefit of the Tennis Club.

Despite the bad roads, a large attendance greeted the players and words of appreciation were heard on every side.

The story of "The Colonel's Maid" proved to be very interesting and there were a number of very funny situations, but needless to say at the end everything came out to the entire satisfaction of all concerned.

Much credit is due to the young people for the careful way in which this comedy was prepared and especially to Principal B. S. Banks, who acted as instructor.

The cast was as follows:—
Col. Robert Rudi Wilfred Prince
Col. Richard Byrd Victor Whitman
Robert Rudi, Jr. H. T. Bishop

More Than Million Dollars' Worth Arrives in New York on the American Steamer Matanzas From Rotterdam.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—More than a million dollars' worth of dyestuffs from Germany were brought into port on Monday by the American Steamer Matanzas. The cargo was taken from Germany by rail to Rotterdam, where it was received by the Matanzas. The arrival of the material will result in a renewal of activity in branches of the textile industry, it is said, and the consequent employment of a large number of operatives who have been idle. The Matanzas, owned by the New York and Porto Rico Line, sailed from New York, October 7, under charter of a committee headed by Herman A. Metz and Adolph Kuttroff, to bring over the dye-stuffs, with the assurance of the British Government that she would not be molested. The steamer was brought through the English Channel and the North Sea by an English pilot familiar with the location of the mines in these waters.

Torture of Sciatica cured Quick!

"Nerviline" a Success Every Time

STOPS THE PAIN QUICK—ACTS LIKE MAGIC—IS HARMLESS AND PLEASANT.

Sciatica is the most severe pain man can suffer. The great sciatic nerve is deeply placed, and you can reach it only by a pain remedy, as penetrating and powerful as NERVILINE.

The glory of Nerviline is in its strength—in its marvelous power of penetrating deeply. In severe pains, such as sciatica and neuralgia, NERVILINE demonstrates its superiority over every other remedy.

Extraordinary pains, such as rheumatic or sciatic, can be overcome only by a remedy as extraordinary as Nerviline. In many lands it has shown itself to be the best for little pains, best for big pains, and best for all pains.

When one has acute rheumatic pains, stiff joints or a stiff neck, don't experiment—seek a remedy that cures. Life lightning in rapidity, as sure as fate in its certainty of relief, Nerviline can never be surpassed for the removal of pain, no matter what advance science may make. It is perfection in its line.

Do not trifle with ordinary or oily liniments, use Nerviline. Prove its efficacy—its the one liniment that runs right into the core of the pain.

A large 50 cent bottle will cure the aches and pains of the whole family. Trial size, 25 cents. Sold by all dealers everywhere or the Carruthers Co., Kingstons, Canada.

Back to the Land
(The Busy East.)

There is a strong "back to the land" movement in Western Canada. Many of the cities have been somewhat overdone and the profitableness of farming is now appealing to many. A Winnipeg exchange says, "There are not a few men of wealth in Winnipeg who for years have been playing at farming. They are now all going at farming in earnest. They are having Fall plowing done and are making arrangements for having more of their land under crop next year than ever before. They are making their farming a matter of serious business."

"As a matter of fact, it is to no restricted class that the plain certainty that farming is going to be unprecedently profitable for a considerable number of years to come is making a strong and effectual appeal. From all parts of the West come reports of great accessions to the number of agriculturists, as well as of extraordinary activity on the part of all who have heretofore been engaged in that industry and those who are now entering upon it, which indicates an increased acreage under crop next year. The good work should go on. Next Summer should see breaking on a record-making scale.

Among those who in large numbers are realizing the possibilities of the situation are men who have been working as small contractors, with some capital, with experience and ability in handling men, and with horses. Many of these men have come from farms, and they are now deciding that they will now take to farming, and carry on their farming operations as they have carried on their contracting.

More money will be made on the land in the coming years than was made in the city in the past few years.

New Glasgow Man's Good Work in London
(Eastern Chronicle.)

Around Mr. Herbert Nunn's return to New Glasgow from a trip to the Motherland, there weaves a story of interest to Canadians. Some weeks ago when Mr. Nunn left his object was a visit to his parents in Shields, England, and he took with him his son, while Mrs. Nunn, during his absence, visited her people in Rochester, N. Y.

Soon after Mr. Nunn arrived in England he was advised by his Canadian employer the Canadian Laboratories, Limited, not to prolong the trip, as on them devolved the inspection of the shells being manufactured in Canada for the British Government. Mr. Nunn felt that it would be a most opportune time for him to secure first hand information respecting the details of the manufacture of shells and for this purpose he saw Canada's Minister of Militia, General Sam Hughes, who was then in London, and he also appreciated the opportunity and immediately connected Mr. Nunn with the War Office. There he was splendidly received by the General and staff in charge of the Ordnance Department and given free entry to Woolwich Arsenal, where the ammunition for the British forces is manufactured. Everything possible was done to enable Mr. Nunn to become familiar with the work of making the shells. An automobile and chauffeur were placed at his disposal by the War Office, so that he might move from place to place with the least possible delay, and every effort made by the Chiefs of staffs to assist him in acquiring all the information he could in the short time at his disposal. At the mammoth Arsenal he was thoroughly introduced to the work of inspection from the initial process to the finished product, with the result that Mr. Nunn returned with a master knowledge of the business that is likely to be of inestimable benefit to the manufacturers in Canada. It so turned out that what he proposed should be a pleasant holiday among his relatives and in his boyhood haunts, really was one of the busiest months he ever had, and a profitable one in many ways, not only for his employers and himself, but also for the nation at large.

Beyond the fact that London is in darkness at night there is very little difference noticeable on account of the war, said Mr. Nunn. It is richly discussed and the papers contain none of the scare head lines so featured in Canada and the United States. In fact, it is almost impossible to get Canadian or American papers in England. At the Canadian office, the Nova Scotia office, or at the Associated Press office they were not in receipt of any American papers for a month. Owing to their sensationalism they are apparently being held back in the mails. The people realize that, as yet, the work of organization of the British Army is going on and they are perfectly calm, having not the least fear of the final outcome of the struggle.

Going across, Mr. Nunn sailed from New York on the Mauretania, but made the return trip on another boat also landing at New York.

Nova Scotia as the Standard

In an editorial in the New York Post, November 9th, entitled, "Waking up to our Duty," an earnest appeal is made to the American nation for contributions to the Belgian relief fund. The amount raised so far in the United States is only $400,000. The Post states that if the United States gave in proportion to its population and wealth as much as the little Province of Nova Scotia, that their contribution would amount to at least $20,000,000.

The Great Cities of the World

Time after time little Belgium has been the battle fields where the greater nations of Europe have engaged in deadly conflict. And, of course, while it was very convenient for other countries to wage war on territory other than their own, it was extremely disastrous for Belgium. Then the great nations declared it neutral territory, and it at once began to prosper. The standing army was reduced and the blue blouse of the Belgian workman was to be seen in the fields rather than in military quarters.

We hear a great deal about intensive farming here in Canada, but it is in Belgium that they know the true meaning of the words. Their method of farming is the direct antipodes of that which is followed in Western Canada, where hundreds of acres of ground are broken by steam ploughs and sown with grain year after year, and fertilization of the soil is unthought of. The Belgian farmer may own five acres, or it may be only two or three. He digs it with a spade; if it be sandy and barren, he uses a fertilizer scientifically until it is suited to whatever he wishes to grow, utilizing every square inch of space to the best advantage. Leaving up weeds and corn. Viewing a stretch of country neatly divided into tiny fields by means of trim hedges, you might be tempted to say that these people are only playing at farming; but that is far from being the case. The Belgian can make as comfortable a living on this few acres as an Ontario farmer does on a hundred.

But after many years passed in security, with prosperity attending upon the industrious habits of the people, Belgium has once more had to take up arms against an invader. An army disregarding the agreement that related to her neutrality, planned to march through the little island kingdom in order to attack France. Germany succeeded in her plan, but not without resistance on the part of the Belgians, who rallied around their flag and fought with wonderful bravery, though they were not able to keep the enemy from entering Brussels.

The capital city, which is also the intellectual and educational centre of the country, has two distinct divisions, the Upper Town and the Lower Town. The former is the fashionable quarter, where the aristocracy lives. It is distinguished by magnificent buildings, broad and elegant boulevards, richly sculptured fountains and other forms of statuary. Here are to be found the Government offices and the royal palace.

The Lower Town is the Brussels of olden times. It is inhabited by citizens of the middle and lower classes and commerce is in its very atmosphere. This part of the city is greatly subject to fogs owing to its intersection by the canals and the Seine River. French is spoken in the upper division, but in the lower Flemish is prevalent, and in one quarter the Walloon dialect is spoken. The English language, owing to the large number of English who reside here for economy, is also very common.

The walls which formerly surrounded Brussels have been removed, and their place is now occupied by pleasant boulevards, extending all around the old town and shaded by rows of lime trees.

The Palais de Justice, built at a cost of ten million dollars, is one of the most magnificent buildings in Europe. The Palace of Fine Arts contains the finest specimens of the Flemish School of Painting, a valuable museum and a public library with 234,000 volumes.

The Bourse is a magnificent building, devoted to trade and finance, corresponding to what would be called in America the Stock place, especially on Wednesdays, when much business is transacted. The carving on the facade represents Belgium surrounded by commerce and manufacture. Symbolic designs, especially those relating to civic matters, are freely used in Brussels and elsewhere in the country. The buildings are highly characteristic of the people—burghers, with their indomitable wills, who are legislators and rulers as well as traders.

In addition to the advantage it enjoys from being the seat of government, Brussels is the seat of many prosperous industries, among which may be mentioned the manufacture of lace, carpets, curtains, furniture and carriages.

One of the finest buildings in Brussels is the Hotel de Ville, or City Hall, as we would call it. The front of this beautiful structure has fifty windows, and between each is a niche designed to receive statues of the sovereigns and celebrated men of Brabant. The roof is slated and pierced with about eighty small windows, which have pointed tops or coverings and gilded ornaments. The tower is 264 feet high. Its summit is crowned with a gilded statue of St. Michael trampling the dragon under his feet. The statue itself is 17 feet high, and as it turns with the wind serves the purpose of a weathercock. A certain writer, in describing the Hotel de Ville, says: "What marvellous edifice, that looks as though it ought to be preserved in a velvet-lined case, so delicate and elaborate are its multitudinous sculptures. Like the exquisite tracery of

Mexico Still Fighting

For a short time after Carranza obtained power in the city of Mexico by the successes of his armies, and particularly by that of the one working under General Villa, it seemed as if all prophecies would be proved untrue, and the wolf would lie down with the lion. Both Villa and Carranza made professions of unselfish desire to serve their country, even to the extent of their own self-extinction. After a few small frictions had been got over, the conference at Aguas Calientes was arranged, and all the generals of note met to elect a temporary president who would take office until a general election could be held. During the weeks that the conference lasted, the relations between Villa and Carranza became more strained, and the territory over which each had a predominant influence better defined. Aguas Calientes was in the territory of Villa, and so as the conference sat there, he and those friendly to him exerted an undue influence on its proceedings. The conference found that it could not come to any suitable decision while sitting in Aguas Calientes, and so adjourned to meet later in the City of Mexico. This leaves Carranza still in power, and has strained to the breaking point the relations between him and his former chief general.

The upshot of it is that Villa is again on the warpath, and marching south of Mexico with an army said to number fifteen thousand. Carranza lost faith in a number of his generals through their action during the conference, and has dismissed nearly all of them from their commands, substituting new men, who will be more beholden to him. His chief army is in the vicinity of Queretaro city, and consists of forty thousand troops under the command of General Pablo Gonzales. Queretaro is about a hundred and fifty miles north-west of Mexico City, and commands all the railway routes which connect the north with the south. It however leaves two-thirds of Mexico at Villa's disposal. While General Villa and his forces are attacking from the north, Zapata and his band of irreconcilables are attacking from the south, and fighting of a severe character is going on in the very suburbs of the City of Mexico. It is said that the Carranza forces have been victorious so far in the suburban fighting. The federal forces are working under the disadvantage, according to report, of finding that shells to them are occasionally loaded with sawdust.

Herr Bebel on Socialism and War

(London (Ont.) "Advertiser.")

While many have lost hope that the defeat of the German Emperor will come from the people over whom he rules, there are observers to be found who are still waiting for the moment when Socialism will declare itself over Kaiserism. It has been shown definitely through the suspension of the "Vorwaerts," the German Socialist official organ, that there is a strong anti-war section in Germany, and as most of the voters who form the Socialist majority are to be found in the Kaiser's army, there remains a possibility that the stage is setting for a sudden eruption of Teutonic sanity. The flowing well of wisdom has been corked by the War Lord, but the internal force may be gathering. A properly-arranged explosion would blow Wilhelm to St. Helena and Kruppium would be hurled so high it would never come down.

Surely today there are men left in Germany of the type of Ferdinand August Bebel, probably the foremost Socialist Democrat of his time. He was prominent for years in the labor movement and entered the North German Diet in 1867 and the Reichstag in 1871. In 1902 he led 82 Socialists in the Reichstag. Several times he was imprisoned, once in 1903, for high treason, and he has frequently felt the force of the Mailed Fist in other ways. His voice was never silenced and his following has numbered in the millions. Always against war and German aggression by the rule of "blood and iron" he foresaw that sooner or later the Kaiser would plunge his country into mad attempt for world supremacy. He also recognized that Socialists would be forced into fighting against their will. This and the rest of his prophecy follows:

"When Germany goes to war there will be whole armies of our adherents in the fighting ranks. As long as all goes well and victory crowns our banners they can do little but let themselves be swept along on the triumphant flood. But once let the impression take root that Hohenollerz prestige has lost its magic—once let the War Lord's pride be greatly humbled by a genuine disaster to his arms—then prepare for a miracle!

Believes in Alfalfa

Joseph E. Wing, of Ohio, who has 160 acres of alfalfa, and who is one of the best known authorities on this crop in the United States, says:

"Alfalfa is a perennial enduring on well drained soil from five to fifty years with one sowing. It may be cut from three to five times a year, and will yield in the region of the corn belt from three to six tons of hay per acre. The composition of alfalfa hay is such that it has almost the same nutritive value as wheat bran, and may be substituted for what bran in the feed ration with good results. As a feed for all classes of live stock it is unequalled. Every animal upon the farm loves alfalfa and thrives upon it. As a pasture plant for hogs it has no equal in the amount which animals will gain from an acre of it, as much as 600 pounds of pork per acre being frequently reported where hogs have grazed it. It is also the best horse pasture known, and it sometimes is used as a pasture for sheep and cows, although one must observe due care in pasturing it with these animals, since they may bloat."

A Neighbor Told Him To Take Gin Pills

FOR THE KIDNEYS

If you want to know what Gin Pills will do for you, just drop a line to Mr. D. A. York, at Bellrock, Ont. He will tell you what Gin Pills did for him, after he had suffered with Kidney trouble for 15 years. Here is his letter:

"I suffered for about 15 years with my kidneys. I could get nothing to help me. The pain went all through my back and shoulders and down the calves of my legs. When I would sit down for a while, I could not straighten up again until I would walk a rod or more, the pain was so great. A neighbor advised me to take GIN PILLS. I did so and six boxes GIN PILLS. It is about two and a half years since I quit taking them. My back is all right; no pain and no more backache. I thank GIN PILLS for it all—they are worth their weight in gold."

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Sold in the U.S. under the name "GINO" Pills. Trial treatment if you write National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto

To Canada

Greece in Time's ancient portraiture death show A brood of chasteness rare, while Rome is seen Besides a spoil-heaped chariot, serene; Assyria's sinewy arms discharge a bow; Phoenicia's sails to alien moorings go; Egypt against a pyramid doth lean And dream; while Palestine—her face aglow With light supernal—among them sitteth queen.

And Canada, how shall thy visage look Far hence beside all these? Shall soulful eyes Thy brow adorn? And blameless hands the Book Of books hold fast? And high wrought mind despise Mere Power and Pelf?—Then in this ample West The human family may reach its best.

A Large Factor

(Montreal Witness.)

There are two features that are well worth noting in connection with the election on the third of November, which establishes prohibition in the four states of Washington, Oregon, Colorado and Arizona. In each case it was achieved as an after-effect of popular government. The people of those States had first secured the power to force their legislatures by petition to place before the people for adoption or rejection any law which a sufficient number of people should take the trouble to petition for. This is, however, perhaps not the most notable feature of this election. Every one of these four states is a woman's suffrage state. Colorado secured woman suffrage in 1893, Washington secured woman suffrage in 1910, Virginia and Arizona both secured woman suffrage in 1912. It has often been mentioned as an argument against woman suffrage that while there were nine woman suffrage states in the American Union, only one of these states, Kansas, was a prohibition state, and that state had carried prohibition long before it thought of woman suffrage. This reproach no longer holds good. Now, of the nine woman suffrage states, no less than five are prohibition. It may now be said, therefore, that a majority of the states which have woman suffrage have prohibition, while it cannot be said that a majority of the states having manhood suffrage have prohibition. It will, consequently, be natural to hear a good deal made of this as a proof that giving the suffrage to women makes moral legislation.

TOO MANY CHILDREN

are under-size, under-weight with pinched faces and poor blood; they do not complain but appetite lags, they have no ambition and do not progress.

Such children need the rich medicinal nourishment in Scott's Emulsion above everything else; its pure cod liver oil contains nature's own blood-forming, flesh-building fats which quickly show in rosy cheeks, better appetite, firm flesh and sturdy frames.

If your children are languid, tired when rising catch cold easily or find their studies difficult, give them Scott's Emulsion; it supplies the very food elements that their systems lack.

Scott's Emulsion contains no harmful drugs and is so good for growing children it's a pity to keep it from them.

We call attention to a timely article on another page, taken from "The British Weekly," entitled, "Three Months of War, by Land, Sea and Air." The same paper has frequently dwelt upon various aspects of the war from a moral and religious point of view. In a recent number, the Editor admits that we might have had peace instead of war. We might have imitated Germany by regarding our treaty obligations with Belgium and France as a mere scrap of paper. We might have endeavored to excuse our conduct by saying with Dr. Dornberg that European treaties are not to be taken too seriously. But, what kind of a peace, under such circumstances would it have been? It would not have been a peace in righteousness. Peace, at the price of broken national promises, would have made us the scorn of all right-thinking people, and deprived us of their confidence and friendship. That kind of peace in its effect upon the national character would have been far worse than war. The watching for news from the scenes of the conflict is distressing, especially to persons whose husbands, fathers, sons and brothers are with the guns, but much more wretched would we all have felt, if we had remained silent onlookers, while, in despite of treaties the German invaders were trampling down Belgium and France, in their determination to dominate the world with their militarism. And, such a peace would have been short-lived. No sooner had the countries referred to been crushed under the feet of the conquerors than they would have claimed Great Britain as their lawful prey, and have gained further vantage ground in their determination to secure the sovereignty of the world. "Imagine-if you can imagine-Britain, France, Russia, India, Canada, Australia, Japan, all the subdued and obedient vassals of the German conqueror. Would that make an end of war? Does any one believe that such a triumph would be more than the triumph of an hour? Only by the wholesale murder of all free men could such a settlement be made permanent. Such an end would be no end. So long as any Briton could lift an arm, there would be conspiracies first and battles next, and soon the flames would be burning over the whole earth."

Such being the case the duty of the Empire is, with her brave allies, to continue the struggle until the spirit of military despotism is broken. Much as we hate war and desire peace, we must as a nation be willing, though with tears and heart-throbs, and much self-denial and suffering to give our men, our means, our prayers, to a cause founded on righteousness. "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but, sin is a reproach to any people." And, when ambassadors of professedly Christian nations meet in solemn convales, discuss their international relations, and in the name and by the authority of their rulers, set their hands and seals to the results of their deliberations, for any of these nations willfully, purposefully, for their own supposed advantage, and after long underhanded preparation, espionage and guile, to violate its pledges, that is surely sin.

Yes, for a scrap of paper we will fight till our last breath, and God defend the right. A scrap of paper where a name is set, is strong as duty's pledge and honor's debt.

The young ladies auxiliary of the Baptist Church will give a supper on Thursday evening, Dec. 17th. Full particulars later.

Ten thousand barrels of sugar, worth about $170,000, were shipped from the Woodside Refinery, Halifax, to England recently for the British Government.

We learn from our correspondent in Beef River that the enterprising firm of Clarke Bros. have recently installed the machinery in their mill at Lake Jolly, for the manufacture of clothes pins.

The excellent fit and shape-keeping qualities of the Ladies' Northway Coats and Suits at J. W. Beckwith's give them a distinction over all others. Ask your neighbor about the satisfaction they are giving.

At the annual banquet of the Acadia football team at Wolfville on Monday evening, our town's boy, Mr. Laurence Harlow, was elected captain of the football team. Laurence is also captain of Acadia's track team.

A few of the citizens of Middleton met together last week to consider the organization of a "Home Guard" or the formation of a civilian rifle club. The more general opinion was that the latter would afford the more effective form of organization.

The Clergy of the Rural Deanery of Annapolis will hold their annual close of the year meeting in Bridgetown, Monday to Wednesday of next week. Besides routine business, the Clergy will be occupied in the discussion of three "papers" especially prepared for this meeting.

The monthly union service of intercession on behalf of honorable and lasting peace among the nations will be held in the Baptist Church on Sunday evening immediately at the close of the regular services of the churches. The choir will render Kipling's Recessional, with musical setting by DeKoven.

It is getting pretty near home when it is learned that our Chief of Police, Mr. Gill, has six nephews in the present war. Our young man 21 years of age was on the "Hogtie," two others are in Egypt, while three are in the big battle at the front. One nephew took part in the charge of the Ninth Lancers at Mons, being one of 72 that remained of 400 who went back to roll call.

The patriotic programme given at the home of Mayor Freeman by a number of small children under the direction of Miss Hazel Freeman was a most successful and enjoyable affair. All of the little ones performed their parts in a creditable manner. A feature of the programme was the rendering of that popular song, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," by little Miss Aileen Freeman. The sum of $10.11 was realized.

The Celebrated Scarborough War Atlas advertised in the Monitor is one of the finest of its kind ever issued. You cannot get it except through the Monitor as we have exclusive control for the County of Annapolis. Those who have received it say it is a great found of information. We have decided to allow our subscribers to purchase it from our office for the small sum of twenty-five cents.

H. Price Webber and his wife, Edwin Grey supported by the Boston Comedy Company played to the audiences in the Primrose Theatre 6 Saturday and Monday night, and as in past years were enthusiastically received. On Saturday evening "The Governor's Wife" was presented for the first time in a creditable performance, and on Monday evening the old favorite "Kathleen Mavourneen" was played. A pleasing feature of the performance each evening was the rendering of two patriotic songs by Mr. Frank Oliver, which took the house by storm. One of the songs was Mr. Oliver's own composition.

While the members of the local branch of the Red Cross Society were busy at work during their last meeting they were favored by a call from one of the small tots of the town in the person of Master Hector MacLean, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph MacLean. Hector wished to know if "this is the place where they make clothes for the soldiers." Upon being assured that it was the place he was looking for he produced a five-cent piece and handed it to one of the members, saying: "here is five cents I earned carrying in wood. It is all I have, but you can have it for the soldiers."

We would direct our readers' attention to a public service to be held in St. James' Church next Monday evening in connection with the meeting of the clergy of the Annapolis Rural Deanery which assembles here on that day. The preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. Wm. Driffield, Rector of Digby, who, in view of the prevailing war, was chosen for his subject: "God Judging among the Nations." Mr. Driffield is regarded as a very thoughtful speaker and the subject on which he will speak is occupying the mind of all thinking people. The service will commence at 8 o'clock and the public are cordially invited.

Windsor Tribune: The news of the resignation of Canon Powell from the Presidency of King's College, comes to the citizens of Windsor with surprise and regret. At a meeting of the Board of Governors held at Halifax yesterday, Canon Powell tendered his resignation. He explained that the clear imperative call of the Divine Voice which none should disobey had sounded in his soul and bade him lay down his work in the University of King's College and once more resume the humble duties of the Parish Priest. He said that when he came here it was with the intention of remaining for five years, that time would expire next May. We understand that the resignation is final and that Canon Powell has accepted a Parish in Ontario.

A Moncton despatch says: Beginning Dec. 15, thirty train loads of troops and military stores will pass through Moncton en route to Halifax, the mobilization base of the second contingent. Trains will follow each other eastward at intervals of four or five hours. It will be the largest military movement ever seen by the people in this part of Canada.

At the last meeting of the Board of Governors of Acadia University it was decided to name the college men's residence "Willett House" in memory of Mrs. Ann Tedford, of Yarmouth, whose generous bequest made the building possible. Mrs. Tedford's maiden name was Willett.

Canada's Great Opportunity

Many Inquiries for Products Heretofore Imported.

(The Busy East.)

The department of trade and commerce is daily receiving many inquiries from tradesmen in all parts of Canada as to where goods formerly supplied by Austria and Germany can be procured. There is evidently ample opportunity for Canadian manufacturers to enter into many lines of economic production in Canada which should be manufactured as well in this country as in Germany or Austria. Sir George Foster has been having an inquiry made into the character and extent of German and Austrian imported goods and the result has shown some surprising failures of the Canadian manufacturers to realize the opportunities of the home market. One prompt effect of the war, he believes, will be the permanent replacing with Canadian goods of many lines of manufactured goods which have hitherto been purchased outside of Canada.

BETTER THAN SOUTH AMERICAN OPENING.

Developments along this line is expected to be much greater than along the line of picking up a share of the trade in South America dropped by Germany or Austria. At the present time there is a great scarcity of ready money in the Southern Republics, and Canadian manufacturers seeking new business must under existing conditions keep in mind the necessity of quick returns on investment. For South American trade they might have to wait a year from the time goods were ordered in Canada before receiving payment.

BRITAIN GIVES US PREFERENCE

There are also accumulating evidences of the fact that the war is stimulating the demand for Canadian goods in Great Britain, and Canada's ready response to the call of the Motherland for assistance is having its effect in the preference given in the United Kingdom for Canadian foodstuffs and all other lines of Canadian export. Sir George Foster said that in all orders placed by the British Government for food supplies etc., preference was given to the overseas Dominions, and the total of orders already placed in Canada amounted to millions of dollars.

The guns of the Cadet Corps have had for the last few years have been recalled on account of a shortage of rifles for the troops that are drilling.

The boys of Oakdene were delighted to see Ross McCormick, who was home for a few days from Halifax, where he is doing duty as a soldier of the King.

Oakdene Cadet Corps is well represented among the volunteers. William Jones is with the First Contingent in England; Ross McCormick, Paul Nichols and Thomas Handcock are in Halifax and are all making good.

The solicitors for the Patriotic Fund are now calling upon the Digby County residents and we bespeak for them a generous response. Many of our volunteers have left remunerative positions to fight in defence of our Empire where they will receive the ordinary pay of the soldier; and all are sacrificing personal ends and aims for the general good. Let us who remain at home see to it, that those who are left behind do not need; for in this way we will strengthen the hands of those who go and make it easier for others to volunteer. Our Empire needs in this hour of trial all who can go to the firing line.

Business As Usual

WE COMMEND to our readers the courage, patriotism, and far sightedness of those advertisers whose announcements appear elsewhere in our paper. To their co-operation we are indebted for the fact that we have been able to carry on business on usual lines. We must lean on each other in this hour of trial. If we get panic and close up our pockets, the mania for economy is likely to throttle all enterprise, and will most surely recoil on the heads of those who practice it.

The printer who says "I'll give up eating meats these hard times" will likely get a letter from the Cash Market saying "We don't want any more printing these hard times."

So one might go on through the whole range of trades till we had economized each other out of our jobs. Such an attitude means stagnation, and stagnation is the next step to annihilation.

Is there any need for such unpatriotic economy? "No man liveth for himself." We must keep the banner flying—"BUSINESS AS USUAL." The trade routes are open, thanks to the British Navy. We must adapt ourselves to the new conditions. Britons are proud of the fact that they can never be conquered there is always a way out.

Why allow our knowledge of events to paralyse trade? The armies of the Allies are doing their duty. Let us do ours: Our duty is to keep the homes of our Province going. Let us give up sitting with folded hands waiting for the latest news from the battle front.

Be Optimistic. Be the Right Sort of a Patriot.
Advertise as Usual. Our Motto is "BUSINESS AS USUAL"

MIRACULOUS CURE OF ASTHMA

Suffered Terribly for 15 Years Until He Tried "Fruit-a-lives"

D. A. WHITE, Esq. 21 WALLACE AVE. TORONTO, Ont. 22nd, 1913.

Having been a great sufferer from Asthma for a period of fifteen years (sometimes having to sit up at night for weeks at a time) I began the use of "Fruit-a-lives". These wonderful tablets relieved me of indigestion, and through the continued use of same, I am no longer distressed with that terrible disease, Asthma, thanks to "Fruit-a-lives" which are worth their weight in gold to anyone suffering as I did. I would heartily recommend them to all sufferers from Asthma, which I believe is caused or aggravated by indigestion.

Canada's Duty

(By Rev. Charles W. Gordon, D. D., (Ralph Connor), Past President, Winnipeg Canadian Club.)

CANADA'S WORD

O Canada! A voice calls through the night and day. Across the wide, wet salty leagues of foam. For a voice whose voice thus penetrates thy peace? Whose? Thy Mother's, Canada, Thy Mother's voice.

O Canada! A drum beats through the night and day. Unresting, eager, strident, summoning. To arms. Whose drums thus throbb persistent? Whose? Old England's, Canada, Old England's drum.

O Canada! A sword gleams leaping swift to strike. At those that press and leap to kill brave men. Whose sword thus gleams fierce death? Whose? 'Tis Britain's, Canada, Great Britain's sword.

O Canada! A prayer beats hard at Heaven's gate. Tearing the heart wide open to God's eye. For righteousness. Whose prayer thus pierces Heaven? Whose? 'Tis God's prayer, Canada, Thy Kingdom come.

O Canada! What answer make to calling voice and beating drum. To sword-gleam and to pleading prayer of God. For right? What answer makes my soul? "Mother, to thee! God, to Thy help! Quick! My sword!"

Dr. Gordon has offered his services to the Government as Chaplain to the troops.

Canada's Shipping

Canadian shipping, sea-going and coastal, in 1913, was the greatest in its history. Doubled in ten years. Total vessels, arrived and departed, 1913, 276,273; tonnage, 131,494,496. Canada has 42,490 men and boys employed on vessels. Canada has moved from tenth to ninth place among maritime nations. Registered vessels, 8,380, of 836,278 tons, employing 42,490 men and boys; 420 vessels added to list in 1913. Canada's total traffic, 1913 was the highest on record, viz., 52,053,913 tons of freight, as against 47,587,245 in 1912.

A TALK TO MOTHERS

Mothers, do you know that every time a member of your family sustains a cut, scratch, burn, or bruise, no matter how slight, you take a grave risk in neglecting the injury? The wound may start to fester, and develop into a running sore, or blood poison may set in, resulting in the loss of a limb, or even of life.

SALLY VISITS CAPE ISLAND

(Written for the Monitor)

"Come right in Mahulda; it seems a month of Sundays, since I set eyes on you. Sit right down in that three-rocker chair, just drive that old cat out of it. Now I am glad you have got your knitting work, we will have a cozy afternoon together."

"Amanda has gone to a quilting party up along at Jakes, and Jediah has gone over to Churchill's mill, so I was all stark alone and my tongue was getting kinder stiff keeping still. I tried to make a mite of talk with old Tom there, but he went to sleep. Well, Mahulda since I see you, I have been to Yarmouth Fair and down to Cape Island."

"How did I ever get away from there?" "Well now just let me tell you, it is a surprise to myself that I have travelled that long distance; some of the neighbors has never been as far as Yarmouth yet. Yes! as you say I should be very thankful but I had to do some knivening to get started. Last August I got a letter from Uncle Bob and Aunt Polly, inviting me down to make a little visit. That letter just set me crazy, and morning, noon and night, found me trying to figure out a way to make Jediah see the need of me taking that trip. Whenever he tried to talk about the things around the farm, I could not get interested enough to answer, but kept running over in my mind what dress or what bonnet I could wear on the journey; until at last he didn't know what to make of me and began to think I was losing my mind. I overheard him say as much to Amanda one day. I fetched a little cold on foggy morning, running after the calf, that got into the garden and it ended in a sort of cough. I won't deny but what I made it out worse than it really was when I see Jediah looking anxiously at me. But, when our good minister came in one day and said to Jediah that I ought to go off for a spell, I was so tickled that I had to go in the battery to hide my feelings."

"Now Jediah is not so bad as he looks, and the sum and substance of it was that he gave his consent for me to go down to Uncle Bob's for a few days where I could get good table board and not cost me a cent. I said I would take our old horse Pete and drive down the post road myself, catch me going on the South Shore cars for I do not if they once got me on that train they would take me clear to Halifax to the insane asylum for I have heard say there has been people think I was sort of crazy on temperance but I guess, Mahulda, most of people would be, if they had seen the hurt of it as much as you and me have in our life time."

"So one fine day last September, with Sam, our neighbor's boy to drive, who had blacked up his boots and liled his hair nicely, Jediah seemed to think it would be safer for me to take him along; in case of being held up by robbers. They wouldn't have got much for I had only seventy-five cents in my pocket. We started bright and early, I was like a child and could not eat much breakfast, and when it came to say good-bye to Jediah and the other farm animals I just plumb forgot and rid off without saying a word; I have regretted it ever since for it was not treating my old home just right."

"Howsomever, I got back again and I made it all right with Jediah by telling him I had seen homier men than he was down there, and after this I would appreciate my husband and my home the better for my visit. I tell the men around here that it wouldn't hurt to send their poor, hard working wives, who seldom gets outside the yard from one year's end to another, off for a mite of a vacation. They will be richer in the end, if they do have to shell out a dollar from their back pocket."

"It was not quite six o'clock when we drove over the hill, now I ain't much on describing the beauties of early mornin', I'll leave that for our poet Vickery, but I'll say for all who want to know anything about it to get out of that feather bed and see for themselves."

"It was great fun for us to see folks all along the road, starting their fires, doing their mornin' chores, bringing in their buckets of milk, hanging out clothes, and driving cattle to pasture; and me and Sam to have nothing to do but set in the old wagon and say once in a while, "Golon! Pete."

NO ALUM

"The second night I got a big scare. I had just closed my eyes when what should I hear but three knockings right over my head, then three more; that's spiritual rappings, says I to myself. I had heard tell that down shore they have 'em. I began to tremble, my false teeth to chatter and thought perhaps the cow had kicked Jediah, and he was in—land in—where. Perhaps he wanted to give me his last message about looking after the farm, and not to get married agin. I jumped out of bed and looked out the window, there I saw the ghost all in white, making her hands go up and down; seems it wasn't Jediah agin I jumped in bed and covered up my head so heard no more knocking."

"Next morning Aunt Polly said she was out in the night, in her night dress to scare away three woodpeckers that were pounding on the house."

"Uncle Bob is a great talker. He told me about the three old ladies that had only one tooth between them, and about lots of funny happenings. I laughed so much and grew so fat that when I got home and told Jediah about it, that he wants to go next time."

"Law sakes! if that isn't him driving up to the barn, I must put the tea kettle on."

"When we came to the first fire, it was only a few yards from the road, we ventured on with fear and trembling that we might get between the two fires and see no way out. But our time had not come, for the other fire was not so near."

"It is called the nine mile wood but Sam said more like forty-nine, and there was no woods about it, only an endless stretch of low bushes, not a sign of berry or foyer could be seen; now and then a large rock would loom up and we would say, 'There is a house at last,' but we were doomed to disappointment. The roads were rough, the horse could only walk, the sun beat down so hot that it faded my calico dress, and made the water run off the end of our noses."

"Oh, for the sight of a human! At last our eyes were delighted by a glimpse of two injuns at a distance and we made such frantic gestures for joy that they disappeared suddenly. Then came another long elastic mile and we were at last to Oak Park."

"Meeting two women before we entered the village, I asked one of them if it was thickly settled? 'Oh yes,' she replied, 'There is as many as ten or eleven houses.' And we had not found it stretched very much. Then after passing through some woods we came to Barrington."

"It is an awful rocky region about there, all the folks could have a granite monument at their graves and some left over. We did enjoy our drive to the passage for along the way were nice looking houses painted and fixed up fine."

"We had listened to that polite young man."

"When we came to the first fire, it was only a few yards from the road, we ventured on with fear and trembling that we might get between the two fires and see no way out. But our time had not come, for the other fire was not so near."

"It is an awful rocky region about there, all the folks could have a granite monument at their graves and some left over. We did enjoy our drive to the passage for along the way were nice looking houses painted and fixed up fine."

"We arrived at the wharf, quarter to five o'clock, but then we had to wait for the ferry over an hour to come from the island, but we fell in with a man that could talk farming; and I enjied myself. We got started on the ferry but I was a little distracted when I see our old horse flouncing around pretty nervous when he hear the whistle; but we got all over safe, not a bone broken."

"It was getting dark and the women were milking their cows in the yards, I wanted to have a good look around cause I didn't expect to sit down there agin, but as far as I could see the island is shaped something like the letter S. I can't say that it is a very pretty place, there are so many rocks and barren places. But Sam said, 'It ought to be a gold darn good place for black ducks.'"

"What they call the creek at Newellton is rather pretty, and they have it painted on some chinny plates, but there is some nice places down by the shores, where children and grown up people too, can wade and wash their feet."

"I was considerable tired out when I crawled in bed that night. I woke up once, the room was full of smoke but I felt I could not get up if the house was afire; but I did open one eye to see the blaze, but I decided it was the smoke from the fires we had passed in the nine-mile woods."

"Next day I had a good look around Clark's Harbor which rather disappointed me as it didn't look as well as Yarmouth; their seawall was in the middle of the road. It is not because they haven't the money down there, but the men is so taken up with their boats that they don't spend much on their places; but the women kind make their houses look fine inside. My land—ain't they clean and such good cooks, I don't believe there can be a cranky man on the island. For the winnin' get up such tasty eatables. I could not help think of the wives and mothers that have stood on that shore, with hand shading their eyes looking anxiously for a sail, and the many suppers that have been untasted, because a boat did not appear in sight."

"It seems to me," said the customer to his barber, "that you ought to lower your price for a shave in these hard times." The barber shook his head sadly, and said: "Can't be done. Nowadays everybody wears such a long face that we have a great deal more surface to shave over."

"Your husband will be all right now, said a doctor to a woman whose husband was dangerously ill. "What do you mean?" demanded the wife. "You told me couldn't live a fortnight."

"Well, I'm going to cure him after all," said the doctor. "Surely you are glad!" The woman wrinkled her brows. "Puts me in a bit of an 'ole" she said. "I've bin an' sold all 'is clothes to play for 'is funeral."

True to her principles of terrorism Germany has threatened us with an invasion of aircraft, and precautions against Zeppelin raids have been taken by the Government. SHIPPING NOTES

Freight rates have advanced very much during the last three months for steamers. Now there seems to be a better inquiry for sailing vessels. The Dominion Coal Company which will commence sending their steamers to Portland, Me., from Cape Breton ports shortly after the first of December, will double their Boston service this winter, sending eight steamers a month in place of the four they have usually had on the route.

The expected boom in the United States and Canada in the near future will no doubt be a good thing for vessels of all kinds. Indeed it is predicted that after the end of the year there will be an advance in all freight rates for sailing vessels as well as steamers.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—The British steel screw steamer Hendon Hall, consigned to Furness, Withy and Company, went ashore today at Trinity Bay, just off Point d'Amour. Captain Trott and crew were taken off in safety. The vessel was on her way to Montreal from Cardiff after grain. It is believed she will be a total wreck.

SHERBROOKE, N. S., Nov. 23.—The schooner Lighthouse, of Souris, P. E. Island, struck on the Castor Ledges, three miles off this port, and is a complete loss. The crew of six men landed safely, after spending the night in their boat. They are absolutely destitute, having saved nothing except what they stood in. The schooner was found from St. Pierre, St. Sours.

Steamer Norhida, commanded by Capt. Stephen Cook, of Ohio, Yarmouth, has been chartered by the committee of the relief fund of Montreal to carry supplies to the Belvidere in the various yards in rians at $14,500. There are 49 cars Montreal, besides a dozen more in the warehouses used by the committee. The cost of the steamer's charter will be deducted from the amount subscribed for the purpose.

ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, Nov. 23.—Word has been received here of the wreck of the schooner "Chestie", of Farnborough, lumber laden from Paspago to Havana in a storm on the 20th. The Cuban gunboat Hathey went to the rescue and saved all the crew, but the vessel and her cargo will be a total loss. The schooner Emma E. Potter, Captain Walker, was disabled during the heavy gale of last week and is at Clementsport.

for repairs. The vessel is reported not badly damaged.

The crew of the wrecked Schooner Lady of Avon, which sailed from Annapolis Royal with a load of lumber for Cienfuegos and ran on a reef near Turk's Island on Oct. 22nd, becoming a total wreck, arrived at Halifax on the 17th inst., on the S. S. Stephens. The crew were as follows: Capt. Steel James Aft; mate Luke Crosby, Arthur Rose, James Miller, seaman; Harris Roberts, steward. They were nineteen days on Turk's Island and were taken off by the Clyde Line Steamer Algonquin and landed in New York. The men lost all their effects in the wreck, arriving in Halifax without money and were sent to their homes by the government. One of the crew died on the island.

Yarmouth Telegram: The fine new schooner Douglas B. Conrad was successfully launched at Shelburne yesterday from the Joseph McGill shipyard. She was built for Joseph E. Conrad and Wallace Conrad, of La Have, and is for the salt bank fisheries. Her principal dimensions are: 106 ft. over all, 23 ft. beam, 9 ft. 9 ins. hold, registered tonnage, 96. She is of the popular semi-knock-about type, and is thoroughly up-to-date in every particular. This is the fifth new vessel completed in this well-known shipyard this season. The master builder is Mr. Amos Pentz. He has had a long experience as designer and builder, and the Douglas B. Conrad is the seventy-sixth vessel built under his supervision since he became foreman of the McGill yard some thirteen years ago. The list includes nearly every style of wooden craft, from small fishing schooners to large freight and passenger steamers.
