Without doubt the address which occasioned paramount interest was that of Rev. W. G. Brown of Red Deer, Alta., and his recommendations...

Critical Situation. In opening last night's session, Sir W. Mortimer Clark, K.C., chairman of the board of Knox College...

Out of All Reason. Speaking of "World-Reason Presbyterianism," Rev. T. J. MacGillivray, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., appreciated the sincerity of the opposing party in its belief...

Characteristics of members as the greatest question of the convention, the feature of the afternoon session was provided by Rev. W. G. Brown, of Red Deer, Alberta...

CHAS. ROGERSON SUICIDES. "I Shot Myself Because This World is Too Much for Me," He Wrote.

"I shot myself with my own hand, as the world is too much for me." Such was the text of the note, written in pencil, found in the home of Chas. Rogerson, 212 West Beaver street, who shot himself through the temple with a revolver about 5.30 yesterday afternoon.

PASS THRU CITY CANADIAN CASUALTIES

Sportsmen and Mississauga Will Leave Camp in Few Days.

PEELS AT THE RAVINA Will Winter There Instead of at the Exhibition Camp.

By a Staff Reporter. Camp Borden, Oct. 18.—As a result of a strong protest made by members of the 170th (Mississauga) Battalion against the unit being taken eastward without touching Toronto, Major-General Logie cancelled the arrangement...

At the conclusion Controller J. McKoen of Halifax announced his intention of refraining from giving until the agitation existing is at an end...

At noon today the 204th Beavers, Lt.-Col. W. H. E. Lennox, commander, left here tomorrow to take up quarters in the agricultural building, Exhibition park, Toronto.

At the end of the cold winter revels at Camp Borden will be sounded at 6.30 a.m. instead of at 6 a.m., and first drill at 8.30 a.m. instead of 8 a.m. The new rules go into effect tomorrow.

Official notice was given by headquarters today that the 12th (Quebec) Battalion will leave here Thursday at 9.30 a.m. to proceed via train to Galt, where it will establish winter quarters.

Authority is given to the employment of Hon. Lieut. A. G. Elson, A.M.C., as quartermaster of the Base Hospital, 118th (London) Battalion.

With the French armies in France, from a staff conference in Paris, Oct. 18.—Far from a rest, the 170th (Mississauga) Battalion and today expressed to the Association Press his opinion that the war would be decided on the western front.

Gen. Marchand long ago, as he himself puts it, had the honor of being "a little adversary of the late Earl Kitchener in Africa," but afterwards became one of Kitchener's greatest admirers.

At present Gen. Marchand has under his orders a division composed of some of the best troops in the world, the French army. Since he recovered from his wound he and his men have achieved a high distinction on various sections of the front.

Gen. Marchand says he has a difficult task to keep his men back, many of them having fought with him in Africa.

GENERAL ELECTION DEPENDS ON WAR

If End is in Sight, There May Be Appeal Next Fall, Says Hon. Robert Rogers.

Hon. Robert Rogers, Dominion minister of public works, spent yesterday in Toronto on departmental business, and returned last night to Ottawa.

"The matter has never been under consideration," he said. "Indeed, for the past two years the members of the government have paid absolutely no attention to party politics, but have devoted all their energies to the prosecution of the war."

"Parliament so far as I know, will be summoned as usual to meet in January," he said. "I will not say that the government will not call a general election next fall, but I will say that we do not waste our efforts and divide our energies by having a war-time election."

Mr. Rogers smilingly dismissed as "moonshine" the rumor of a coalition government based upon the fact that Sir Robert Borden had asked Sir Wilfrid Laurier to co-operate in naming a parliamentary committee to advise on the subject of a general election.

Referring to the resignation of Sir Thomas Tait, Mr. Rogers said that he thought the government quite justified in holding up the appointment of J. P. Murray as secretary of the national service commission, and in this connection referred to a recent editorial in Industrial Canada, said to have been written by Mr. Murray, in which he criticized the government's action in establishing the commission.

Mr. Rogers had little to say about the Boston case of the Saskatchewan and Alberta, but deprecated the idea of an election being held in either province while so many voters were away at the front.

YORK COUNTY AND SUBURBS

EARLS COURT ROSEDALE RESUME OF WORK ON BLOOR STREET VIADUCT

Experts Greatly Impressed by Workmanship at Don and Rosedale.

Toronto people generally have little conception of the magnitude of the work already accomplished on the Bloor street viaduct, unless they have seen it.

On this section of the great work, running from the corner of Bloor and Sherbourne streets to the "head of the viaduct" at the intersection of Bloor and Spadina, the amount of earth has been deposited all over the city, being it nearly up to the level of the ground.

The heavy walls and approaches at both ends of the viaduct are being completed, and the contractors expect that the work will be finished in about two weeks.

With the steel men working all winter the way will be cleared for the concrete, which consists of the girders and supports of the viaduct.

A stranger going up the Don or Rosedale valleys would be greatly impressed by the basic nature and excellent workmanship shown on these two undertakings.

The speakers were W. A. McLean, deputy minister of highways, and George S. Henry, M.L.A., and it was a good attendance that they drew to the meeting.

Branches of the Ontario Good Roads Association were formed and resolutions endorsing the Ontario highway scheme were adopted.

Mr. Rogers had little to say about the Boston case of the Saskatchewan and Alberta, but deprecated the idea of an election being held in either province while so many voters were away at the front.

Mr. Rogers had little to say about the Boston case of the Saskatchewan and Alberta, but deprecated the idea of an election being held in either province while so many voters were away at the front.

Referring to the resignation of Sir Thomas Tait, Mr. Rogers said that he thought the government quite justified in holding up the appointment of J. P. Murray as secretary of the national service commission, and in this connection referred to a recent editorial in Industrial Canada, said to have been written by Mr. Murray, in which he criticized the government's action in establishing the commission.

A SUCCESSFUL SERVICE

Telco Obtained 1279 New Contracts in September Telco Took 282 of These Contracts From Hydro

Telco's superior service and its modern equipment have resulted in a rapidly increasing list of patrons.

Telco furnishes direct current in a large area of the city south of Bloor Street and between Sherbourne Street and Spadina Avenue.

Direct current service backed by storage batteries gives a superlative lighting service and is especially suitable for power motors.

Hydro derived a profit in 1915 on street lighting and pumping of about $150,000 and a loss on business subject to Telco competition of about $147,000. If proper depreciation rate were employed it would make Hydro real loss on competitive business about $240,000 for 1915, which is deferred debt to be met later by taxpayers.

When you use Telco service you get more for your money without increasing your liability to pay increased taxes to make up Hydro deficits.

BREAKS OWN RECORD ON HER TYPEWRITER

Miss Owen, on Underwood Machine, Writes 137 Words a Minute for Hour.

FOR USE ON AN AEROPLANE

Device Exhibited in Which Electricity Turns the Paper and Operator Has Only to Touch Keys.

Miss Margaret B. Owen, operating an Underwood typewriter, won the world's championship again yesterday afternoon in the typewriting speed contest at the Thirteenth Annual Business Show in the 49th Regiment Armory, Lexington avenue and Twenty-fifth street.

The prize was a $1000 silver cup about three feet high. This will be retained by the Underwood Company during the coming year. There were two other contests, one for amateurs and one for novices, who had not used a typewriter previous to September of this year.

While the typewriter contest was the centre of interest between 5 and 6 o'clock, the 75 exhibition booths on the main floor of the armory attracted interested crowds all yesterday. Practically every sort of modern office appliance on the market was on view.

There were also business machines, duplicating machines, dictating phonographs, check protecting machines, practically every variety of typewriter, automatic telephone switchboards, and dozens of other appliances that save a few minutes apiece in the up-to-date office. Among the spectators were many women and young girls who showed expert knowledge of the instruments exhibited. There were also business men and office managers and one particularly interested and seemingly amazed group consisted of about a dozen Japanese. They kept demonstrators busy showing them how each machine worked.

The lightweight folding typewriter, much in vogue with war correspondents and others who don't have desks nearby at all times, attracted much attention. Nearby was the booth of a new noiseless typewriter, which has only recently been put on the market. This was among the machines entered in the speed contest and its operator typed an average of 113 words a minute.

One instrument which was called a "bookkeeping machine," made out the bills in the name of their recipient on one sheet of paper, kept record of them on another, and an automatic adding machine connected with the instrument kept the books of the total of all the bills made out on a third sheet.

Among the many typewriters shown was one designed for use on aeroplanes. On it the paper was turned by electricity, making it necessary for the operator only to touch the keys. The company representatives said that it would be easier for a military observer in an aeroplane to use this machine than to take pencilled notes.

BEAVER BATTALION REACHES TORONTO

Arrives at Exhibition Park and Quarters in the Government Building

NINE MEN ATTESTED

Great Crowd Says Farewell to Sportsmen at Bayside Park.

A large percentage of those who applied at the recruiting depot yesterday were rejected. Out of the 20 who were examined only nine passed the medical test and were attested. They were attached as follows: 28th B. I. R.C.D., 1; A.M.C., 2; Artillery, 1; A.S.C., 1.

The recruiting depot has issued 6010 "A R" buttons up to date. Men who have been rejected because of their eyesight may serve their country by joining the Canadian Army Service Corps. Pamphlets explaining the work of the C.A.S.C. have been sent by this department to such men. All who desire information in regard to this unit should telephone Adelaide 3733 and ask for Captain E. Allan or call at the office at 55 West Queen street and all necessary information will be given.

Beavers Are Back. Appearing to be in the pink of condition after a summer spent in Camp Borden, the 20th Beaver Battalion, 1050 strong, under the command of Lieut.-Col. W. H. Price, arrived in winter quarters at Exhibition Camp yesterday afternoon. The train arrived at Davenport station from Camp Borden at 4 o'clock, and the men were welcomed by Capt. Joe Lawson and his staff and a large crowd of friends and relatives. The men immediately formed in line of march and proceeded to their quarters by way of Roncesvalles avenue and Queen street. At Symington avenue the soldiers were greeted with the song of "O Canada," sung by the children of Perth Avenue School. Capt. Lawson with his staff and 12 recruits secured during the present week brought up the rear line of march. Many citizens of Parkdale gathered on the streets to welcome the popular representative of that riding, Col. Price, and his battalion. The men will be quartered in the government building at the camp.

Going Eastward. A draft of 250 men of the C.M.R. will leave Hamilton by the G. T. R. tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock and will proceed eastward to complete training. The draft is due to pass through the Union Station here at 6 p.m. Capt. F. A. Taylor will be in charge. Lieut. M. C. Purvis has assumed charge of the local recruiting depot for the C.M.R. at 49 West King street.

Yesterday noon a large crowd gathered at Temperance street to witness the elusive Houdini, who is performing at Shea's this week, free himself from the shackles placed on him by Capt. Joe Lawson of the 20th Battalion. Tightly bound with ropes and suspended head downward, he freed himself quickly and easily. The crowd was further entertained with recruiting speeches by Capt. Lawson, Capt. O. Hazlewood speaking for the 1st and 2nd Battalions, and Lieut. Ellis of the royal navy. Eight recruits were secured all—two for the navy, three for the 20th, the artillery two and one for the 216th Bantams. Canvasers for the Red Cross fund were busy among the crowd.

Sportsmen Say Farewell. The 180th Sportsmen completed their last leave and returned to Camp Borden yesterday morning, and Col. Groer and the officers and men of the battalion were given a hearty send-off. A large crowd assembled at the station long before the train was due to leave, and many were the affectionate scenes witnessed as mothers, fathers, wives, sisters and sweethearts parted with their loved ones. As the train moved away a hearty cheer came from the throats of the thousands present and cheered those remaining as well as those who went away. The battalion left by two trains, with Col. Groer in charge of the first section and Major O'Brien of the second.

Caucasian Troops Repulse Seven Big Attacks by Kurds

Special Cable to The Toronto World. London, Oct. 18.—The only event of importance announced from the front of the Caucasus is the repulse of large Kurdish forces by the Russians at Sudingad Mountain, about 40 miles southeast of Erzurum. The Kurds made seven attacks and they were repulsed by the Russian Caucasian regiments.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid argon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve an entirely ordinary liquid argon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

You can get liquid argon at any drug store. It is the only remedy of this kind that has never been known to fail.

Subscribe to the Red Cross

Today closes the great campaign for the British Red Cross Fund, and there should be a general effort on the part of everybody to make the most of the opportunity to get into the current of charity, which is to have the wounded of the war with its healing waters. Those who contribute nothing have lost one of the greatest of life, such as only becomes possible for those who live when the world is aflame with war. There may be excuses of all kinds for those who cannot take part in the actual fighting.

There may even be excuses for those who refuse to contribute to the expense of the war. But there is no excuse in Heaven above or on the earth beneath nor in the waters under the earth for those who refuse to help to relieve suffering according to their ability.

Even the widows' mite may help. But the rich man's cheque, the purse of the wealthy, the easy money of the man-about-town, the wages and salaries of workers and men of affairs should all be under contribution to the fund which gathers the wounded and dying off the field of battle and nurses them back into life. Even if one has given already on Monday or Tuesday or yesterday, it will develop a new thrill to give again today. "Inaction is a kind of mercy in action in a deadly sin."

Constantine's Divine Right

What the entente allies have all along accepted as a theory of action in relation to King Constantine of Greece has been fully demonstrated to be a prudent and justifiable view by the conduct of the Teutonized monarch. He has temporized with the entente allies and carried on a campaign behind their backs for his brother-in-law. While vowing he was acting only for the unity and welfare of Greece, he was storing arms and munitions at Larissa with the object of making war on the majority of his subjects. He has probably imbibed from his wife the German idea of the divine right of kings, and resolved that he will have his own way whatever his subjects may wish. This spirit is the testing principle as between the German nations and the more democratic allies of the entente.

The Greek premier despairingly remarked that Greece had become an autocracy. Constantine should not forget that the only divine right to reign which he possesses is thru his trusteeship of the throne of Greece by treaty under the authority of France, Russia and Great Britain, who placed his father on his throne as a substitute for a former king, who, like Constantine, failed to do as he was instructed. The manifest destiny of Greece, as of many other nations, and perhaps some of the Teutonic ones among them, is a republican form of government. This may be the way out of the present embroglio, and Constantine may regard himself as fortunate if he escapes with his life. His "divine right" is a terrestrial wrong.

A Diplomatic Problem

There is material for most diplomacy in the point raised by Lord Bessborough—incorrectly spoken of as Baron Charles Bessborough in the press despatches—with regard to the attitude of the United States towards warships of the entente allies, when German warships are received with well nigh official welcome. Earl Grey was exercised over the report that the United States destroyers got out on the way in order to let the U-53 get a good shot at the vessels to be torpedoed. Viscount Grey merely read a statement of the correspondence which passed between the United States and Britain when the British navy had been requested to cease hovering near United States ports. German submarines were almost encouraged to torpedo vessels engaged in

United States trade in the same areas. As a matter of friendliness Great Britain yielded the point and ceased to "hover." The reward of this complacency is the torpedoing of five or six vessels off the United States against which, so far, no protest has been lodged. It is in this sort of thing that encourages Germany in the belief that "rightfulness" pays.

The Oklahoma Idea

They seem to have found a way to run a public library in Oklahoma, if we are to be guided by a recent article contributed to The World's Work by R. C. Blackmer of Hobart, Okla. The authorities started out by assuming that the library was for the benefit of the people, that it should cater to their wants, and that it should not regard them either as trespassers or sneak thieves. The books most likely to be in demand were placed where readers could go and get them. Nearly all the red-tape rules that scare the majority of people away from the public libraries were snipped or cut to pieces by the librarian of Hobart.

Take the matter, for example, of having to have some ratpayer go ball for you, which is the principal reason that many young people never go near a library. They did away with that requirement and no loss followed. They went out after business, like a department store, and canvassed the young people in the public schools to patronize the library. Instead of telling them what they must read they put the books on the counter that the young people wanted.

Only the real book-lover goes to the ordinary library, which is as cold and uninviting as a fashionable church. The shabbily-dressed citizen feels often out of place, and receives the book, which is allowed to take away, as a dole. It is an intellectual bread line, if you please, but a bread line for all that, and while Mr. Carnegie's motives were of the best, he did not add to his popularity by giving the United States and Canada his millions in the shape of libraries. But Oklahoma is truly democratic. A state that by constitutional enactment forbids a hotelkeeper to give any guest a sheet less than nine feet long and six feet wide, is a commonwealth that looks after the comfort of its citizens.

More About Mexico

During the early days of the Wilson administration, and after the recall of Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, the United States Government for a long time was represented by Nelson O'Shaughnessy as charge d'affaires. The correspondent referred to him as "Charge O'Shaughnessy," and there was a general feeling that he was handling an awkward situation with patience and ability. He was recalled when war was declared on Huerta, and witnessed the occupation of Vera Cruz.

Perhaps Mr. O'Shaughnessy feels that he was not very well treated because just as this time his wife publishes a readable book entitled "A Diplomat's Wife in Mexico." While moderate in tone, the book condemns the Wilson policy, and declares that the past two years of riot, rapine and civil war in Mexico might have been averted by the recognition of Huerta. The book consists of letters written by Mrs. O'Shaughnessy to her mother from the City of Mexico between October 8, 1915, and April 23, 1916. They are supposed to be printed as written, and therefore to constitute an illuminating history of a critical period as it developed from day to day. We more than suspect, however, that the manuscript letters were "sandpapered" for literary finish before they went to the printer, and changes in substance may have been made not improperly.

But the letters are unmistakably genuine, and their publication at this time is no doubt intended to exercise some influence on the presidential election. Mrs. O'Shaughnessy finds that John Lind, the president's special envoy, blundered; that the embargo against arms and munitions never has been lifted, and Huerta is described as a man of force and ability. She thinks less of Carranza, who apparently runs to whiskers.

But one reading Mrs. O'Shaughnessy's book will find that the president had no easy task before him. Civil war was stirred up by rival companies who coveted Mexico's almost unlimited supply of oil. For the United States to intervene with an army of occupation would have meant a long, dreary struggle, from which little could have been reaped except the ill-will of all Latin-American. Annexation, for many reasons, would have been out of the question, and Mrs. O'Shaughnessy admits that it would have required a century to assimilate and Americanize the Mexican people.

Political Intelligence

The Ottawa correspondent of The Toronto Star telegraphed his paper on Tuesday that Conservative members of parliament were looking to Ottawa, that a hen of some kind was certainly on, and he figured out that the prime minister was thinking of calling a national Conservative convention. The Ottawa Citizen interpreted the activity in government circles in another way, and yesterday morning announced that there was to be an appeal to the country, and that the election would be held on December 4. Yesterday afternoon the Ottawa correspondent of The Toronto News branded The Citizen's election story as "absurd." He moreover stated, apparently with authority, that parliament would be summoned as usual in January. As to what will then happen we are told:

"Whether the session will be followed by an election depends on two things. First, if the war is over, there is no necessity for an extension of parliament, and the government will have to appeal to the country before the fall. Second, if the war is still in progress, and this is taken for granted, the government, following the British precedent, will introduce a bill to extend the life of parliament. An election then will depend entirely upon the attitude of the Liberals. They will have to take responsibility of a war-time election."

Also we are told that the government fears neither a session nor an election, it is a fair surmise that the Liberal will be called upon to declare their policy at the earliest possible date. The debate upon the address of immediate custom has precedence over all other business and must be disposed of before anything else can be taken up. The Liberals must easily prove their ability to move. Then the government may do what it did last year, namely, move the adoption of an address to the crown, and then proceed to the British North America Act as will prolong the life of the present parliament for still another year after October 7, 1917. The prime minister, in moving the address, will probably say, as he said a year ago, that if it is opposed by gentlemen opposite as usual, he will not be pressed, but that they will have to assume the responsibility of a war-time election.

A year ago Sir Wilfrid Laurier when the matter was thus put up to him at once supported the motion of the prime minister, and the address to the crown was carried without further debate or delay. At the coming session he is likely to say that the Liberals see no reason for a further extension of the parliamentary term. If he says this the adoption of the address is not likely to be pressed by the government, and it will then be up to the government to propose the move. A good many people think that the next move will be the dissolution of parliament and a Dominion election in March, 1917.

The London Free Press observes that Fred Pardee, M.P., the chief Liberal whip, has announced that there will be no extension of the parliamentary term, and Hon. George P. Graham is on record to the same effect.

The British Columbia Conservatives are going to hold a provincial convention. It looks a little like locking the stable after the horse is stolen, but it foreshadows a much-needed party reconstruction, which cannot be long delayed in view of the possibility of an early Dominion election.

The death of Mr. C. H. Lovell, the Liberal M.P. for Stanstead, Que., increases the number of vacancies in the house of commons to sixteen.

OVERCROWDING ON CARS

Request Ontario Railway Board to Enforce Law Relating to Congestion.

The board of control had comparatively little business yesterday. Some contentious matters which were expected to crop up were laid over.

The following motions of Mayor Church were passed with little discussion:

That the Hon. I. B. Lucas, attorney-general, be requested to investigate the high cost of living and the increased price of food products in war time.

That the attorney-general be requested to investigate whether any restraint of trade, or combines, exist with a view to getting some relief to the people of this city.

That the commissioner of works, forthwith, take views of the overcrowding on the Toronto Street Railway, with a view to having additional bills of indictment next week.

That the Ontario Railway Board be requested to carry out the provision of the Ontario Railway Act with regard to overcrowding on the street cars on Toronto streets.

That the attorney-general be requested to speed the hearing of the appeal now before the privy council regarding the bills of indictment against the company for overcrowding.

Controller Cameron introduced a motion calling on the Dominion Government to reimburse and pardon all those deserters who have returned to their battalions, and upon whom sentences have been imposed. Mayor Church agreed that it was a very proper resolution, and the resolution will be sent to the premier for his consideration.

The question of a double platform system for the fire brigades was laid over until after the war. "Able-bodied men are too scarce now," commented Controller Cameron.

Representatives of the Lesale Municipality Council waited on the board requesting a new roadway on Merton street, which leads directly into the town. The final decision of the board was that the company must pay half the cost if the roadway is to be constructed.

The board agreed to pay the Toronto-Hamilton Road Commission $12,000 interest due on the cost of construction.

CONFESSES TO MURDER
Robidoux, Caught on Train, Says He Killed and Robbed Peddler.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—Oscar Robidoux, aged 22, of St. Claude, Man., is held here on a charge of murdering a peddler at that place. He was taken from a C.P.R. train today by the Ottawa police, who, acting on a request from the Manitoba provincial police, searched the train and were able to identify Robidoux from the description furnished. When arrested Robidoux confessed that he was the man wanted, but a search of his belongings revealed the postcard picture with his name written on the address side. Later to the police he admitted that he had ambushed the peddler, shot him and secured $150 from the body. The police here are without the name of the murdered man.

SHOT FROM BEHIND.

Winnipeg, Oct. 18.—Two charges from a shotgun, either fatal, fired behind him as he ran, killed Henry Koch, a young Swine, traveling alone, whose body was found in the bushes four miles from St. Cloud, Man., yesterday. Two hundred dollars he was carrying is missing and supposedly furnishes the motive of the unidentified murderer.

BETWEEN THE ACTS

WITH LOU-TELLEGEN
Famous Romantic Actor is Forced to Talk About Himself.

PLAYED WITH BERNHARDT
Born in Denmark, Educated in Paris, of Grecian Decent—Now an American.

Picture a young Greek god leaning up against the doorway of a stage dressing-room, temporarily blowing smoke from a long cigarette, and all the while gazing steadily at the fascinated individual sitting in a low wicker chair.

Telegene Morano Tellegathos, or Lou-Tellegen, as he is more generally known to the English-speaking public, flopped the ashes from the mauve-handled weed held lightly between his fingers, and graciously consented to be interviewed.

"I have learned the English language just two years," declared the King of Nowhere, who stood aloof in the centre of the room. The lights from the "make-up" table cast strong reflections upon the features of this man, who has the air of a poet and the figure of a slender young giant. There was something unusual about the gaze—almost uncanny. "I think it is just the secret of this young artist's success," Lou-Tellegen, made a most wonderful and interesting speech. "Two years! And he speaks with perfect enunciation that few who have known English all their lives have mastered."

Little wonder that Lou-Tellegen has learned English in two years, he has done so many other astonishing things in his brief and amusing career. Six years ago his name had never been heard on this side of the Atlantic.

"I made my first appearance in America with Mme. Bernhardt. My first part was a 'heavy' in the Spanish play 'Maria Rosa.' And in it I had the pleasure of making my audiences realize with a murderer. You see, I made him a nice murderer." And that is just the secret of this young artist's success. Lou-Tellegen makes his audiences appreciate him. That magnetism in his personality which dispels the ghosts from King Henry's royal bedchamber, reaches far beyond the glamorous footlights and makes men and women champion the deeds of a villain and weep in sympathy with a guilty murderer.

But, after several seasons of such nud experiments, the newest favorite of the American stage is content in a role which breathes romance, and heralds him as a hero, boldly and without apologies. More amazing still, this newest role is that of a royal prince of Scotland, whose tongue, in the absence of his sword, is his most able weapon. But when the sword is proffered, how he makes that blue steel talk! Besides bringing to America the greatest romantic actor of the modern stage, Mme. Bernhardt brought the world's champion fencer, Lou-Tellegen. Altho born in Denmark, a Dutch mother and a Greek father, he of the strangely hyphenated name, was educated in Paris. It was during his school career in the French capital that he was introduced to a fencer, and of equal importance, fame as a student, when at the age of 19 his remarkable abilities were recognized by the award of Laureate of the Conservatoire, Paris, an honor coveted by all of his profession.

Those who have seen "A King of Nowhere" were thrilled with a demonstration of his fencing prowess when he made Lord Harry look like a rank amateur. Lou-Tellegen visited Toronto six years ago as a leading actor with the "Divine Sarah." On that occasion his splendid work won for him many local admirers. The interval of six years has rounded him into a more finished actor, as nightly creation have assuredly illustrated. Like many other leading stage favorites he was lured to the silent drama. Millions have seen the work on the screen, and no actor is more popular with motion picture patrons.

Some will say that the greatest stride in his meteoric career was taken about a year ago, when he wed the world-famed prima donna, Geraldine Farrar.

MEETING POSTPONED.

The meeting which had been arranged to take place tonight in connection with the returns of the Red Cross campaign is postponed until tomorrow evening. The place, too, is changed from Convocation Hall to Massey Hall. The reason for postponement is that returns will not be complete until Friday, when all returns from the city and province will be announced.

Appeal Against Reduction of Assessments on Big Hotels

Now that the court of revision has cancelled business assessments on all the big downtown hotels, the city is going to appeal from the verdict to the county court. City Solicitor Johnston stated yesterday that there was no doubt that the court was wrong in cancelling business assessments. The assessment was made, he says, before prohibition came in force. The assessor had no other option than to assess them for business tax.

At the time the city's appeal is before the court his honor will try appeals by "Tommy" Grant, a different man from the one who discovered the "Black Panther" in the vicinity of the Grand Opera house.

LINEMAN ELECTROCUTED WHILE WORKING ON POLE

Albert Moore Comes in Contact With Live Wire and Meets Instant Death.

Coming in contact with a live wire while working at the top of a telegraph pole at the junction of the G. T. R. tracks and East Queen street, about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Albert Moore, married, aged 42, of Argyle street, was electrocuted. The body was removed to the morgue by the police, and the chief coroner notified. An inquest will be held.

How the accident happened no one seems to know. The pole is about 25 feet high. Moore was first noticed by a pedestrian being taken down from the crossarm of the pole. His clothes were burning. The Hydro-Electric and fire departments were notified, but it was not until fifteen minutes later, when the wires were cut that the body was removed. Moore was terribly burned and almost naked.

Hotel and Warehouse Get Business Assessment Reduced

Business assessments were cancelled by the court of revision yesterday on the storage warehouse of Joseph M. Beagram & Sons and the Strand Hotel. In making for a reduction in the assessment of $1500 a foot, Mr. Sutton, representing the proprietors, said it was not until fifteen minutes later, when the wires were cut that the body was removed. Moore was terribly burned and almost naked.

White Sox Star Started With Portland When He Was Sixteen.

Altho Jacques Fournier, the White Sox first-baseman, has displayed this season a considerable falling off in his slugging propensities, he has plenty of time to "beat back" for he is only 24 years of age.

The big Frenchman was born in the Michigan Village of Au Sabie on Sept. 25, 1892. He was a high school student in Tacoma that Fournier first began to attract attention as a ball player, and he landed a professional job with Aberdeen in the final season of 1913.

He was in a Seattle uniform and was sold to the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League for the 1914 season. He finished 1914 behind the bat in those days. The 16-year-old wasn't quite fast enough for the Coast circuit, and he finished 1915 with the Portland Nor'westers. In 1916 Jacques was given another chance to show his stuff in the 1916 season.

Up to his arrival in Moose Jaw Jacques had always played behind the bat, with occasional outfield duty. In the Saskatchewan he was tried out on the initial bag, and got a chance to show his stuff. What was more important, he began to bat. He batted all over the lot, and hung in the lineup for the rest of the season. He batted 377, standing second in the league. Fournier's good hitting helped Moose Jaw to grab the gonfalon. The season's batting was drafted by the Red Sox. He reported to the team in Chicago, but was soon transferred from Moose Jaw to Chicago.

Accounts Are Missing

Montreal Star: In view of the increasing complications of the soccer situation in Canada, President Craig Campbell of the Dominion Football Association was asked for a statement and replied with the following, which brings to light a new mystery.

"I am a soccer president these days of war abroad and strife at home one must be of robust mind. The statement issued by Bailey Fisher of the Western Connaught Cur. 1915 semi-finals is more than likely to be augmented with 'thrills' as in response to E. J. Gillette's request for a Montreal and Toronto account of how expenses were disbursed, Secretary Spencer has held office for fourteen months, and this is the first time in the history of the D.F.A. business regarding Connaught Cup games is to make a statement at the annual meeting of the time it is not possible to render same. This year there has been an actual meeting of Connaught Cup games; consequently the D.F.A. president has informed Mr. Gillette that every endeavor will be made to see that the accounts are correct. The D.F.A. president has promised to make another search, and the previous secretary, Tom Robertson, has agreed to supply the accounts to be audited into his papers. Meanwhile, Mr. E. Bailey Fisher can work on the part of the old and present officers of the old union. Last season's accounts in Toronto and western Ontario played in this series, despite the many attempts to get eastern teams into the series, were not audited. It is thought they had a group formed, but it always fell thru.

Eastern Group for Ontario Rugby Union

PROTESTING PRESBYTERIANS

By DR. QUILL

Strange things happened when Andrew Robertson put his luggage upon the ocean liner and set sail for the Canadian coast, he no doubt, put in his stony castles a moderator's chair. At any rate it was not long before he had his ladder of fame perched amid the fortunes of that grand old syndicate known as Nova Scotia. Those were the Elyan days before the times of discord were sown in the productive fields of the east. None of them seem to have flowered his way, for he accepted the honor of being the great Presbyterian apostle to the dispersed tribes over the "island of the gulls." Eventually he moved from St. John's, Newfoundland, to higher responsibilities in the church. He came to St. James Square, Toronto, where moderators live and propagate an always feel at home. If he did not see it, others were not blind to the vision of a moderator's chair at the top of his Kirk-ladder. And here is the record of events. We see him this morning presiding not over a general assembly, but over the Canadian Militant Presbyterians.

And he took less than ten words—calm, terse Anglo-Saxon, to explain who he was. When he uttered them we were told, Field Marshal, General Andrew Robertson at the top of the sketch, for today. We are truly in war times. His speech was briefly—get ready for action.

There was no kettle drum or trumpet, but the battalions from Cape Breton and Pictou, the eastern township of Quebec and the upper Ottawa valley; Bruce and Huron, and the loyalists of the west, saluted and knew that the word was spoken which they were to pass to the four winds of Canada.

What has been the history of the opposition? At St. John, New Brunswick, a Dutch Calvinist took the platform to warn those who were advocating a policy of conference on denominational union, that Calvinism and Arminianism would not mix together. That was twelve years ago. Dr. Milligan, the moderator, and Dr. Warden, the agent of the church, rose on each side of him to ally his fears of a disunion in the Presbyterian church. The words were uttered which have become famous in the controversy. Dr. Warden explained that the assembly was not being committed to anything, that union of the denominations was far distant and that his particular church would not be bound to it, and that the practical unanimity of the people had been secured. The Dutchman, stubborn as he was, and full of zeal, we refer to the late Dr. Hutt of Ingersoll, left to the platform with a clap on his back from the moderator, for being a good boy to sit down. It was in that fashion that the leaders of the church began to nurse the obduracy which has since grown so eloquently as to put old friends into two hostile camps.

The first leader of the opposition was Principal MacKay, the minister of Crescent Street Church, Montreal. For years he led a few knights who were worthy of the best steel in argument but were far ahead of their numbers. But the vote always switched from their side many a time. He was a stout and a brave man, but who were plighted enough to allow the movement to proceed. Every year the thing became more perplexing, until in 1907 a truce was framed. But it was a fatal truce. While the opposition left their leader, they took the field again in earnest. Principal MacKay made an heroic sacrifice for peace, but has won only the name of being his own victim upon the cross. The dangers annually increased, but like a flame, the idea of union had burned so long that it eventually got beyond control of its authors. They were between two forces, its old and known opposers and its new and untold advocates. They yielded to the latter in the face of the pledge given at St. John and the danger of a breach.

The next stage in the course of events was when the opposition formed an association to continue the Presbyterian Church. This was a stumbling block to many of their friends and a bond of action to others. It is questionable whether this was the right thing to have been done at that stage. Many deeply regretted seeing a meeting advertised in every city where the assembly was held, whose object was to continue the Presbyterian Church, when no official act of the assembly had pointed to abolishing the same. It certainly confused the situation. This much the majority are accountable for. They gave more than one provocation. Would that the had halted both sides, when a halt was honorable and comparatively easy. But there was no surrender! And General Robertson is the logical result of the struggle. As has been said his opening words indicated that he had doffed the shovel-hat for a helmet, and many a humble son of the kirk has found himself compelled to get into active service.

That is rambling thru the records, and our pen was set to sketch things as they happen. So be it! We must hasten to state that it is no rebellion that is before our eyes. No riot either! It is the first general review, it is as orderly as a general assembly. But we guess again that it is the very thing the friends of union prayed to be delivered from. For men are here with feelings similar to those which filled the breasts of their ancestors at Bannockburn. They are the type of men who used to have their ears cropped for their pains. And women! Yes, there are not a few Marys who will break the alabaster box in love for the church of their fathers. Thus the heater will burn and the fiery crosses take to the roads. From henceforth, the general assembly and the general convention will make rather ugly bedfellows in the same tent.

It is Dr. Ephraim Scott, Montreal, editor of The Record, who is now speaking. What a different audience is looking up to him than he usually addressed in the general assembly! But he is an opponent to reckon with. You say at once, now, "I must play the game on the square, for he will." You rather fear the power of that winning voice and sunny countenance. He is never a materialist, but looks thru spiritual eyes. Nor is he easily ruffled and never rattled. As a newspaper man he has facts always at his elbow and has a style which never lets his hearers drop by the wayside. Strange, therefore, that he should be the best hated man of the opposition. No doubt he has personal feelings like other men. One of them is that he sticks to the thing like a fly to butter, and not a few times makes friend and foe restless with his tenacity. But he is now giving his blessing to the faithful. And at the same time telling those on the other hand what is likely to happen then.

A layman now goes up the stairs into the pulpit, Mr. F. W. Monteith, Edmonton. He has been sitting at a special table, where a special story of these proceedings will be told. The pen may be mightier than the sword, but has no fine edge on his tongue. And as he looks intently upon the fathers and brethren, dazzling in phrase and figure, one begins to see the aurora borealis of his sentimentality. He gave the invocation in a breezy time as an auto ride around the city. The five-minute speeches now following are racking like artillery. There is a first-class speaking army already in line.

A few episodes vary the program. One was when a young spare young man arose and faced the volleys of your name. When silence fell, he pointed to the bronze tablet on the left of the pulpit and said, "You'll find my father's name there." H. E. Macdonnell, a young lawyer from Ottawa, was indeed a son of St. Andrew's Church. And he did his bit, for the kirk, which he declared was good enough for his fathers, therefore good enough for him. It was this. He questioned the right any further of the union committee to use the name of the Presbyterian Church upon their deliberations. This will be a nice point for lawyers to discuss. Another brief period of rest, an impressive Captain (Rev.) A. H. MacGillivray, Hamilton, chaplain of the 178th Highland presents the greatest news picture of the century—the official film of the Imperial Government, taken to record the Battle of the Somme, July 1st, when the initiative was assumed by the British on the western front.

Hidden batteries were pounding the German trenches for five days before the attack of July 1st.

4.7-inch guns were giving the enemy no rest.

These pictures, while they show the grim realities of modern war, show more of heroism than horror. They are an object lesson both for those who stay home and for those who are training for the front. "See that these pictures reach everybody," said Mr. Lloyd George, and millions saw them in Great Britain. New records for attendance are being made this week in Toronto and Montreal.

See these wonderful pictures, as in no other way can you form a conception upon which to base adequate honor and glory of the living and the dead.

"Herald the deeds of our brave men to the ends of the earth," said Lloyd George. "This is your duty."

ers, explained that he dropped off, as his battalion was going overseas, to do his bit for the kirk. He made the significant statement that fact would be people voted in favor of union with a large majority as the members of the general assembly he would have moved to make it unanimous. But the church at large has not so indicated its mind.

Thus the second day passed. What did it effect? If speaking could revive Presbyterianism that fact would be assured. If applause meant sacrifice of money and time, of zeal and power, the delegates are going to do that it will be a terrible task to undertake, to continue the Presbyterian Church after the unionists carry away power into the new body. Much is said and hoped for by both sides from the indifferent multitudes who are claimed by both. But unless human nature makes an exception, human nature may be counted to go with the leaves and fishes. Thus the biggest side will get the big share of them. Hence it is felt, even when glowing speeches picture the fortunes of a purged Presbyterian Church, that there is a sad silence, and a sadder picture before each eye. Even the best that can be hoped from the convention would not be as good as a miracle whereby the church may be saved from disruption.

WILL NOT ABANDON ESPLANADE VIADUCT

H. H. Williams Says the City Can Force Railways to Construct.

There is absolutely no intention, declares H. H. Williams, of the railways abandoning for all time the Esplanade viaduct project. The city, he says, can insert as strong a clause as it likes into the new agreement forcing them ultimately to construct the viaduct. In the stress of war conditions, tho, they want to substitute for a time the three overhead bridges at Yonge, Bay and York streets.

Members of the city council appear divided as to whether the city should allow the railway to get out from under the Dominion Railway Board's order to build the Esplanade. Board's order to build the Esplanade. Board's order to build the Esplanade. Board's order to build the Esplanade.

Obedience to Proper Laws
Course for Good Citizenship

Following up the lecture of last week given by Rev. Father Meador, B.A., to the nurses and others in the assembly hall of St. Michael's Hospital, the speaker dealt yesterday afternoon with the conditions of society under these in authority. It had previously been shown that authority was from on high, and that authority has been rightly conferred, revolt of any description is unlawful. If government is providing unsatisfactory to the point of tyranny it is lawful to agitate to get the government changed, but obedience to rightly constituted authority is the only right course for good citizenship.

The people are the channel thru which authority is conferred, this power being in their hands thru the medium of the franchise. The evils under which society is suffering today and the means of combating such were touched upon and will be developed during this special course of weekly addresses on social service.

TO ALL GOOD MEN AND WOMEN--EVERYWHERE

Last night I saw moving pictures of "The Battle of the Somme." It was the most soul-stirring thing that I have ever seen. It made me feel proud, and sad, and finally lifted me to a height of patriotic emotion such as I have never known before. But the picture that stands out in my memory to-day is the marvellous work done by the Red Cross Society, following the opening stages of that battle. There, before my eyes, I saw Red Cross Workers going up into the firing line, bringing back the wounded and the dying. I saw them laboring as men never labored before, and for the noblest cause of all.

Friend and foe alike received help and comfort at their hands.
THEY WERE BRITISH RED CROSS WORKERS.

When I came out from the theatre I resolved at once that every penny I could give, every sacrifice I could make to help on their work, must be made. I cannot go to fight. (I wear an A. R. button). So the next best thing to do is, give all I can to help alleviate the sufferings of those who are fighting for me.

I could not for one moment have dreamed of the work that the British Red Cross Society is doing in this war had I not seen the evidence of those moving pictures. If, this minute, by some magic, that film could be suddenly run off before the eyes of every man and woman, youth and maiden, in the city of Toronto, I believe that a million dollars would flow into the funds of the British Red Cross Society to-day.

Give, my brothers and sisters. Give as you never gave before to the British Red Cross Fund. And give to-day.

COMMISSION HEARS OF FRUIT GROWING

Industry in Ontario Still Comparatively Small in Agricultural Pursuit.

THE RISKS ARE MANY

Experts Show That All is Not Profit—Vegetable Growing More Promising.

Fruit growing in Ontario was discussed before the Dominion's Royal Commission yesterday afternoon at the city hall by Prof. G. W. Crow of the Ontario Agricultural College, E. F. Palmer of the Experimental Station at Vineland and F. W. Hodgett, director of the department of agriculture.

Mr. Hodgett gave a paper showing that there was 333,340 acres of land in the province used for fruit growing, divided as follows: Acreage in orchard, 238,627; in vineyard, 10,850; small fruits, 23,863.

In a normal year the province produces 75 per cent. of the fruit grown in Canada including 60 per cent. of the pears, 70 per cent. of the apples, 80 per cent. of the small fruits, 90 per cent. of the grapes and 99 per cent. of the peaches.

Fruit growing in Ontario is still one of the smaller agricultural industries as was shown by the following figures: Annual value of field crops, $200,000,000; live stock, $38,000,000; dairying, $50,000,000; fruit, $30,000,000. The capital invested in fruit growing amounts to $80,000,000.

Mr. Hodgett stated that higher profit with less labor could be counted on by the experienced farmer engaged in fruit growing, but this is offset by the amount of both experience and capital needed before one can hope to succeed. The fruit growing industry is largely from within, few outsiders having made a success of it. Inexperienced men, attracted to the industry by higher profits, have lost heavily. The long periods required to secure returns from plantings of apples and peaches have also deterred newcomers from engaging in the business. The scarcity of labor has prevented heavy plantings of such small fruits as berries, from which the biggest returns are secured.

Under present conditions in the province there is not much chance of success for the man without capital and experience engaging in fruit growing as a sole occupation. The newcomer is advised by the department to engage with a fruit grower for a couple of seasons before investing, or if he has no money, to go to northern Ontario and engage in mixed farming.

Prof. G. W. Crow gave an interesting paper on the "tender" fruit growing. The total shipment of fruit from the Niagara belt in 1915 was 93,808 tons, valued at $5,688,000. The average profit for fruit growing was never any higher than in any other branch of horticulture or in agriculture. The possible profits were larger, said Prof. Crow, in proportion to the possibilities, and the average profits are not high. A grower who cleared $100 an acre net profit was well above the average.

Various kinds of fruit cultures were described, as well as the district in which different varieties of fruit are grown. In 1900 it was estimated that the apple crop was 15,500,000 bushels, but perhaps not more than 25 per cent. would be exported outside the province. In recent years apple shipments to the old country have been falling off, owing to the development of markets in Ontario and the prairie provinces.

The apple industry, stated Prof. Crow, was at present at low ebb, but interest in apple growing is due to revive in Ontario in about five years. The live problem in apple growing is whether or not the small orchard of less than ten acres pays in connection with a general farm.

Many fruit growers are also vegetable growers, and the two lines go very well together. With the way in which the vegetable markets are expanding, the advisability of entering the fruit business could be questioned. According to present progress, the vegetable growing will in a few years outdistance fruit growing in the matter of annual revenue in the province.

Mr. Palmer also gave a paper dealing with the industry. He stated that owing to a car shortage growers had suffered losses. This matter would, he thought, right itself in time. Deputy Minister Grigg and Fred Dane, the provincial loan commissioner, described the methods of home-steading and taking up land in the province. Opportunity and money obtainable from pulp and timber on the land was thoroughly dealt with, as well as the manner in which loans are made to settlers.

Mr. Justice Riddell and J. D. Falconbridge dealt with commercial law in its relationship to the empire. In some cases uniform law was both possible and desirable, while in others such as real estate law, Mr. Justice Riddell claimed, it was neither possible nor desirable. The subject was discussed in connection with negotiable instruments, sales of goods, partnerships, companies, transmission of land to shares at death and insolvency.

Mr. Justice Riddell urged a codified system of laws by means of which even a merchant could tell the meaning of the law. At present even a lawyer could not tell without consulting upwards of 50 decisions. The only thing that could be done would be for a commission to ascertain when uniform law was possible, and in such cases frame suitable law.

At present even a lawyer could not tell without consulting upwards of 50 decisions. The only thing that could be done would be for a commission to ascertain when uniform law was possible, and in such cases frame suitable law.

There is no more chance of getting that land wire across Canada than of getting to heaven without a pass from St. Peter," said J. Ross Robertson, president of the Canadian Associated Press, at the morning session of the commission.

He held that the all-red cable route was not possible, on the ground of expense. He suspected it was an effort by Australia to get better service from the antipodes at a cost partly borne by Canada.

Mr. Robertson condemned the plan of Fred Pearson of Halifax to establish an imperial wire service across Canada as too costly to contemplate. It would cost the Canadian papers $237,000 a year. He also opposed the idea of an imperial cable across the Atlantic. The C. A. P. was serving the Canada efficiently now, and it would cost three times as much to duplicate its service. He held that news at present transmitted was not Americanized or colored. He thought it was an effort to link up Canada in a cable service for the benefit of Australia.

His remarks were very emphatic and were presented by the Australian representative, Hon. J. H. Sinclair, who stated that Australia could bear her own burdens, and the various governments paid their own share of the cost of their cable service. C. O. Knowles, local manager of the Canadian Press, explained how the New York office edited the Associated Press news for the Canadian papers. The C. A. P. cable service gathered the news in England, and supplemented the Associated Press despatches. An imperial cable would, perhaps said Mr. Knowles, be desirable, but its cost was prohibitive. It was impossible for 100 papers in Canada to compete against the wealth of 200 papers in the States and backing the Associated Press. He thought there was no basis for the charge of Americanization of British news.

Secretary F. Morley of the board of trade said that in 1913 that body had passed a resolution favoring an empire trade mark for the purpose of indicating that goods bearing that label had been made or produced somewhere within the empire. W. B. Roadhouse, deputy minister of agriculture, was heard in regard to agriculture in the province, and told of the experimental work that had been done.

F. H. Fetherstonhaugh expressed the opinion that there should be a united British Empire. He preferred the British Empire of free to the American one. A patent should hold good throughout the empire.

IS HE CRAZY?

The owner of a large plantation in Mississippi, where the fine figs grow, is giving away a few five-acre tracts. The only condition is that figs be planted. The owner wants enough tracts to supply a co-operative cannery. You can secure five acres and an interest in the cannery factory by writing the Eubank Farms Company, 1190 Keystone, Pittsburg, Pa., U.S.A. They will plant and care for your trees for $6 per month. Some profit should be $1000 per year. Some think this man is crazy for giving away such valuable land, but there may be method in his madness.

GIVING SYSTEMATIC THRUOUT PROVINCE

Reports Received on Municipal Grants to Red Cross Fund Very Satisfactory.

OFFICIALS CONFIDENT

Believed Returns Will Show Substantial Increase Over Last Year's Total.

Notices of municipal and township grants to the British Red Cross Fund from all over the province to the office of the organization of resources committee at the parliament building, which is handling the campaign outside Toronto, indicate that giving is much more systematic this year than last, and while it would be unwise at present to make an estimate of the collection this year, the returns show that the amount will not be less than last year, and they would not be surprised if it were very materially greater. In many cases the grants from townships and counties are double what they were last year.

The returns show that in many of the townships and municipalities where there was a collection on Thanksgiving last year, the council has this year made a grant of a similar amount, and a collection will be taken as well. It is generally felt that while a grant is the most equitable method of assisting the patriotic liabilities of the people, yet the distribution of the grant is not absolutely fair and equal, and that an additional collection should be taken to give everybody an opportunity of fulfilling his or her obligations to the Red Cross.

A few illustrations are illuminating: Huron County, which last year took only a spasmodic collection, this year has made a county grant of $21,250; Oxford County has made a grant of $10,000, the it made no grant last year; Chatham, $3,900; Stratford, $1,000; Renfrew County, $10,000—these are instances where no grant was made last year, the collections were taken. In only one case is the grant less than it was last year, and in that case the local committee has set itself to collect an amount to make the total at least as large as that contributed last year.

SAMARITAN CLUB IS TOLD OF RUSSIA'S AWAKENING

Mrs. Morrill Hamlin Delivers Fine Lecture at Home of Mrs. J. W. Flavelle.

"The Awakening of Russia" was the subject of the first of a series of lectures to be delivered under the auspices of the Samaritan Club, which had their initiative last night at the residence of Mrs. J. W. Flavelle in Queen's Park. The speaker was Mrs. Morrill Hamlin, a well known and distinguished lecturer, and who lived fully up to her reputation. Russia was described as one who had the key of her house in her neighbor's pocket. She is hampered for want of coast line and by the severity of her climate. Like other nations, however, these are to be taken possession of. Constantinople and the Dardanelles in order to get an open road to the Mediterranean and the civilized world. Until the present alliance with Great Britain, with her power and prestige, had forbidden this, but now she is willing that her one-time foe should attain her end. Germany's great interests in Russia would have prevented this alliance had it not been for Austria's aggressions in the Balkans and the breaking of the treaty of 1907, by which she took Bosnia and Serbia.

Russia was described as richer in raw material than any other country in the world, her product of cotton, wheat, corn, iron and platinum all tending to make her so. During her last thirty years she has built 40,000 miles of railway, bringing in American engineers to teach her the things of which she has in ignorance. At the close of hostilities Russia will have 25,000,000 trained men, but there will be no revolution, as some have predicted, but rather an evolution will have been brought about.

GOLD STOCKS STRONG McINTYRE LEADING

Newray Gained Further Ground, Making New High—Liquida- tion in West Dome.

It begins to look as if the mining market at the Standard Stock Exchange had been thrown aroused from its lethargic state and was shaping up for the big upward swing which has been long awaited by traders.

That such a move is justified by the conditions at the different camps is unquestioned. All that was lacking was public support, and from appearances it would seem that this element were getting into the market at last. Trading was very active with the volume of shares dealt in running well over 150,000.

McIntyre and its companions, McIntyre Extension and Jupiter, were the centre of attraction, with McIntyre in the limelight. McIntyre continued to claim title to the leadership with a ten point advance. The stock opened at 150 and went up to 160, closing at 159 bid. Buying of the stock seemed to come in all day from inside sources, and it is reported that one of the biggest markets in its history is going to be made for it. It is also reported on good authority that the amount of stock bought by insiders on the previous day ran into the neighborhood of $165,000.

Jupiter in sympathy went up to 50 1/4. Reports from this property are said to be bullish, and Montreal shareholders are believed to be increasing their holdings. McIntyre Extension sold up to 46. Newray displayed renewed strength, making a new high at 75 with 74 bid on the close.

An outstanding exception to the general market trend was noted in West Dome Consolidated. A big block of this stock came on the market, and the price broke to 32 1/2, new low for some months. Conditions at the mine have never been better, according to an official of the company, and the recent depression of the stock would seem to be entirely unjustified. It is believed that a big short interest has been built up in West Dome, and the fact that several big blocks of stock have been sold on the street seem to bear out this belief. When this stock is called, as it will be shortly, a sharp recovery should occur.

In the silver stocks, Adanac displayed some activity at 20 1/2, with an odd lot going at 31. This property is working on a vein which is expected to show big values soon, and heavy trading may be expected. Lorrain was stronger, selling at 48. Timiskaming sold between 61 and 61 1/2, and Peterson Lake went up a little to 20 1/2. Vacuum Gas held firm at 49.

WEST DOME NEVER IN BETTER SHAPE

East and West Drifts Still in High Grade Ore—New Power System.

Despite the fact that West Dome Consolidated stock has been on the decline for the last few days, it is reported on the best of authority that the physical condition of the property was never in better shape than at the present time.

The thoro diamond drilling of the property is being continued. Up till the present over 10,000 feet of drill holes have been sunk, and it is expected that about 6000 feet more of this work will be done. The drills are disclosing a big tonnage of good ore.

In the underground work the east and west drifts on the vein at the 360-foot level are being pushed, and so far have reached an aggregate distance of over 200 feet. Both drifts are still in full face over seven feet in width, which assays from $12 to $14 per ton.

As soon as the new compressor is installed work on the sinking of the new shaft to the 300-foot level will be proceeded with. The new shaft is about 1400 feet away from the present shaft. The machinery for the installation of a new electric power system has been shipped and is ready to be taken into the property. Lumber for the erection of the necessary buildings is also ready to be taken in.

REMARKABLE ASSAYS OF DAVIDSON ORE

F. C. Sutherland & Co., in their weekly market letter say of Davidson mine:

"As sinking proceeds on the new south vein on this property, it is clear that the new lead will prove a very material asset to the company, as the indications point to the development of an extensive body of high grade ore at depth. An independent channel assay made on ore taken out at a depth of about 16 feet in sinking the shaft, gave $7 in gold to the ton. This week another consignment of ore from a depth of about 22 feet was sent to the Canadian Laboratories, Limited, Toronto, for an independent channel assay, and this ran $11.84 in gold to the ton. Two so unusually high figures illustrate plainly the remarkable richness of the new vein, and viewed in conjunction with the fact that the lead is at least 25 feet wide on the surface, go far to establish the certainty that the possibilities are little short of enormous.

"The contractor is working three shifts in the new shaft and rapid progress is being made. Sinking is to be continued to the 100 feet, but no further lateral work will be done, but it is probable that the shaft will be continued to a depth of 300 feet, and then connected with the main shaft on a slight incline, that is the management is following the vein, which is dipping slightly to one side. This plan of development has proved very successful in some of the well-known properties in the camp and will be more economical than vertical sinking."

STRONG NOTE OF OPTIMISM OBSERVED THROUGHOUT PORCUPINE

World Expert Pays Visit to Gold Camp—Greatly Im- pressed With Davidson and Newray.

No one can arrive at anything like a good working knowledge of the ore deposits of Porcupine without careful study, and it is a great advantage to examine the different properties from time to time over a period of years. The trip was not only interesting but very instructive. Everywhere there was a strong note of optimism, due to a few cases of amateur miners' success in buying inferior machinery or in employing managers who are incompetent and poorly paid. A shaft in the wrong place may involve a loss of $50,000 or more, and besides tends to discredit the property. An out-of-date compressor may consume enough extra wood to pay for a new one in six months or less.

Inspire Faith.
But on the whole there are many things to be seen in Porcupine which inspire one to believe in its future. The mines that are being sufficiently developed are growing bigger all the time, and notwithstanding the present depression it will be ten years before we will know how very big the camp really is. It is essentially a region of high grade ore, and this is the dominant feature of all the great gold camps of the world.

Among the surprises of the present day at Porcupine are the Newray and the Davidson. The shares of both companies have advanced so rapidly within the past six months, it is almost enough to create a boom.

The Newray is on the extension of the great shear zones which traverse the Hollinger Consolidated, and give to the McIntyre its unusually large ore bodies on the north side of Pearl Lake. These zones may not carry their maximum strength all the way to the Newray, but nevertheless there are on the latter a series of strong well defined veins striking northeasterly, containing a large quantity of high grade ore. The rock is soft and kindly, it is streaked with dark lines of tourmaline, and the whole layout is inviting, and highly favorable to the locus of important deposits of gold. The Newray has all the earmarks of a real mine.

Has Good Chance.
In the opinion of the writer the Davidson also has every chance of making good. It is about 2 1/2 miles north of South Porcupine, over a well graded road. Geologically, it is isolated, and the success of these two properties should lead to increased activity in the northern part of Tisdale Township, if not in other parts of Porcupine.

In the vicinity of the Davidson there are the Smith Vet, the Miller-Independence, the Tisdale Mining Co., and the Scottish Ontario. None of these are working at present, but with the rapid advance of the Davidson and Newray, some of them are pretty certain to resume operations in the near future.

Newray Again the Feature

Newray was again one of the features of yesterday's mining exchanges. The buying was keen at New York and Toronto and the price made a new record high at 75. Representative financial men from Buffalo, New York and Toronto, who have recently bought into the company, left for an inspection of the mine last night, and their return is expected to produce further heavy buying of the shares. The Newray has now been passed upon by several engineers and their opinions all agree that proper development will make the mine one of the important Porcupine producers. The company is substantially financed, and when underground work is recommenced in a few days the blocking out of ore for later milling is only a question of time. It takes time to make a Porcupine mine, and the Newray with a shaft down 425 feet, to say nothing of the large amount of drifting already done, now starts in with at least two years to its credit.

The mill now on the property turns out bricks when a continuous ore supply has been developed.

age and capital. The camp is undeniably a great ready-made, the second stage in its progress has now been reached, and its last stage is better than its first.

BRITAIN IS SURPRISED AT ATTITUDE OF U. S.

Viscount Grey's Disclosures Leave a Most Disagreeable Impression.

London, Oct. 18.—The statement by Viscount Grey, the foreign secretary, to the house of lords yesterday regarding the operations of belligerent warships off the coast of the United States, created a considerable stir, says the London correspondent of The Liverpool Post.

"It has thrown a most disagreeable light upon the attitude of the American Government in the early stages of the war," the correspondent comments. "Washington is shown in a querulous, captious mood, making demands which it admitted were not legally tenable."

"The incident referred to is now ancient history, and might well be forgotten, but in view of the extraordinary proceedings in connection with the inquiries of the United States against the behavior of the American Government. The stories mentioned by Baron Charles Beresford and Earl Grey seem to have some foundation, and if they are authentic the foreign secretary should be pressed to demand an explanation.

ADANAC CROSSCUTTING TO PICK UP VEINS

Effort Being Made to Get Under High-Grade Ore Bodies Developed Above.

The party of capitalists who have recently become interested in the Adanac mine, which went north last week, under the guidance of Mr. P. Singer, the local broker, has returned. They found the property in a very satisfactory condition. The raise from the 330-foot level to connect up with the main shaft was completed yesterday. The shaft will now be continued to the 425-foot level, at which point crosscuts will be run northward and southwest to pick up veins already developed on the 200 and 300-foot levels, where two high-grade ore bodies were encountered. The northwest crosscut will cut four veins within a distance of 150 feet, and the southeast crosscut will run into these veins within 50 feet. Drifting on these veins will commence as soon as they are reached, and driving will also be done north towards the Timiskaming line to pick up the extensions of their high-grade veins.

GEORGE WEIR,
New General Manager, London and Guarantee and Accident Co.

H. B. WILLS' LETTER.
Hamilton B. Wills in his weekly
market letter says:

Inspiration Gold Mines.
Among the recent new flotations that of Inspiration Gold Mines, directly adjoining the world-famous Hollinger Consolidated and Porcupine Crown, has been one of the most successful, and the demand by my friends and clients, during the past few days, convinces me the limited amount of offer, at the ridiculously low price of 15 cents per share, will soon be completely absorbed, and this should cause no surprise in view of the par excellence location of the 120 acres owned outright, without a penny's indebtedness, by this company making its initial bid for public favor. Judging by the activity with which this new issue is being taken up, it is my opinion at the price I, as the representative of the controlling syndicate, am able to procure this stock for my friends and clients, I do not know where a better speculative purchase can be had, and with the now assured success to the present limited stock offering, the company's treasury will soon be financed to a point sufficient to not only begin active development work, but continue same until the proven mine stage is reached or otherwise.

As the equality with the ideal location of this property is the fact, a directorate as strong as any in the camp, has been chosen to direct its course, composed of gentlemen whose success as mine operators in northern Ontario is well known and firmly established. This factor should at once instill implicit confidence and create an unwonted demand for Inspiration Gold, especially at the ground-floor price of 15 cents per share.

Arthur Ferland of Cobalt, president; Charles L. Sherrill of Buffalo, vice-president and general manager; Robert T. Shillington of Cobalt, treasurer; Charles Richardson, A. K. Shillington of Cobalt, Alexander Faskien of Toronto and George Taylor of New Liskeard.

As the books at the present offered price of 15 cents per share positively close on Saturday, October 28th, after which date a substantial advance will undoubtedly follow, I would urge all those who wish to become financially interested in Inspiration Gold to act at once and use the wires in sending your order for amount of stock wanted.

WHOLE MARKET STRONG.
Received over Heron & Co's private wire.
Heron & Co. had the following at the close: Montreal, Oct. 18.—The paper stocks came to the front again today, Wayagamac being the feature with an advance of nine points. Buying for control is generally credited as the cause of this advance. Spanish River common was in demand, while the preferred also advanced. There was some strength in the steel stocks and the declaration of the Brazil dividend was well received. The whole market seems decidedly strong, and we see nothing in sight to check advancing prices.

NEWRAY MINES

The Directors in this Company will meet in a few days at which definite arrangements will be completed for the carrying on of extensive mine development upon a much larger scale than ever. Following this meeting I am advised.

A VERY IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT WILL BE MADE, which will cause materially higher prices in the market of this security. My candid advice is,

BUY NEWRAY AND ACT QUICKLY. WIRE OR PHONE YOUR ORDER AT ONCE.

MARK HARRIS ON MINES AND MINING

The average business man knows little or nothing about the technical part of mining; consequently, he often judges a mining property by comparison, and although this is the usual rule in every line of business, it is misleading at times when applied to mining.

For instance, a layman would naturally think better of a mine that would show ore running $100 to $200 a ton than he would of one with ore averaging from $5 to $10 a ton, and still, in nine cases out of ten, the low-grade mine would prove the better investment.

High-grade ore, as a rule, peters out, while low-grade is found in large bodies; and this explains why all of our big gold mines earn their dividends from low-grade ore.

The Hollinger is, without doubt, the greatest gold mine in the world, and the average value of the ore is from $9 to $11 a ton.

The famous Treadwell Mine, which is one of the steady dividend-payers, makes a profit on ore that runs only $1.25 to $1.50 a ton. Of course they have a very large tonnage every day, as no mine could make money on such ore unless they did business on the wholesale plan.

What I have said about Hollinger and Treadwell applies to practically every big dividend-paying gold mine on the North American Continent; therefore you can see that comparison of values on gold ore is a misleading way of determining the true worth of a property.

Assays are another thing in mining that is often misleading, for it makes all the difference in the world where and how the assays are obtained.

I never pay much attention to assays unless I take the samples myself, or know they were taken by someone who understands sampling.

On nearly every vein it is possible to pick out some spot where a sample will assay very high, but this would not show the average value of the vein.

I told you some time ago that the 38 assays recently taken on the "big find" of the Newray were very important, and they were, because they represented true values.

These assays were taken across the entire "find," and included not only the vein matter, but the schist and country rock as well.

One important thing to remember about Newray is the fact that the company has already been fully financed, and as there is no more treasury stock the company has nothing to sell.

When a Company has no more stock for sale there is no incentive for exaggerated reports, and I always take this into consideration when the reports emanate direct from an officer of a company.

When you purchase shares in a company like Newray, you must secure them in the open market from some stockholder, as the company disposed of all its treasury stock before work was started.

When Manager Charlebois of the Newray took his assays he naturally took them so they would show the average value of the "find." Had he taken selected assays he would have been fooling himself, and you will never find a competent miner fooling himself intentionally.

When a man comes to my office with a new mining proposition I never pay much attention to his samples or his assays, and when the proposition looks good I immediately send a trusted agent out to the property to take independent assays.

As a rule, my agent's assays do not show the same values as the owner's; but this is only natural, as man, after all, is only human, and the old axiom says, "To err is human."

I am offered at least one new proposition every business day, and at times there are half-a-dozen in a single day.

The first thing I do when a man comes to me with a mining proposition that needs capital is to give him a paper which contains twenty pertinent questions, and I ask him to answer these before I go into the matter with him.

When he complies with my request I can gain a very fair idea of the property by looking at his answers; but ninety-nine times out of a hundred, the man is so anxious to interest me that he will exaggerate to a point that is apparent to anyone who has had the experience I possess.

When I find a man has falsely answered some of my questions I want nothing more to do with the man or his proposition; but when the answers are fair and straightforward, I immediately, at my own expense, make a thorough investigation.

I always pay more attention to a property that shows low values, as I know from experience that high values do not last. There are exceptions to this rule, such as the Croesus Mine, in Munro Township, which has paid for itself from the grass roots down; but where you will find one Croesus, you will find one hundred low-grade mines, and I prefer to stick to the conservative rather than take a chance with the sensational.

You would think from all the properties offered my firm that we would always have half-a-dozen or more that we could recommend; but the truth is that finding a good property that will pass the searching investigation that the "House of Harris" gives it is about as difficult as finding a needle in a haystack.

We have investigated scores of propositions this spring and summer, and, for that matter, we are still investigating, but up to date we have not found one that would stand the "acid test," and until we do find one we will not make a recommendation to our clients.

My personal advice—and this advice is from my heart—is to buy some Newray, as I consider this the best mining stock purchase under present or future conditions.

Tommy Burns Gold Mining Co.

The preferred stock of the Tommy Burns Gold Mining Company has been very active and strong on the New York, Boston and Toronto markets for the past few weeks, having advanced from around 56c per share to 80c. We believe this stock will steadily advance, as the public are beginning to appreciate the wonderful possibilities of these properties. Purchases made now we confidently expect will show handsome profits. We therefore unhesitatingly advise its immediate purchase.

Favorable Trade Conditions Largely Conduce to Advancing Market.

New York, Oct. 18.—Speculative interest was again uppermost in today's broad and active market, a large part of the trading being restricted to specialties of a volatile character and low-priced rails and industrials whose status remains more or less undisturbed. Chief among these were the paper, leather and fertilizer stocks, which were unusually active at gains of 2 to 6 points.

Other strong shares included United States Industrial Alcohol, which led to specialties at an extreme gain of 14 1/2 to 14 3/4; Cuban-American Sugar and South Porto Rico Sugar, which wrested supremacy from other shipping issues on its rise of 3 1/2 to 3 3/4, a new record.

Trade conditions are largely responsible for the higher levels in these issues.

Toronto Stock Market Irregular With Some Issues Reactionary on Profit-Taking.

With some irregularity the Toronto market continued its bullish trend yesterday, with evidences of an enlargement in speculative business. The declaration of the dividend on Brazilian strengthened the shares in the morning, but there was too much profit-taking, and the price fell away over a point. Maple Leaf made its daily new high with sales at 116, but reacted on scalping orders. This company is believed to be making considerable money again this year on grain purchases, and the Montreal Hating will give the shares a wider market. The steels were steady. Dominion Steel was steadily advanced as stock offered and closed strong. The engagement of an expert from the Bethlehem Steel Co. is considered by some to be extremely significant, and is thought to mean that what appears on the surface. MacKay was bought in expectation of an up move, and this will only come when the insiders release the pressure. There was some speculation in Spanish River following the movement in American Paper Co. stocks. McIntyre came to life in the curb trading, and Dominion Steel Foundry was given another whirl. The market has a buoyant disposition and will cater to further speculation.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

London, Oct. 18.—The stock market was dull and irregular today. Gift-edged securities dropped from lack of support, and Greek bonds and Roumanian shares were weak, while Brazilian fractions and rubber and mining shares were

Plummer & Co. Report

In the consideration of mining securities as investments there are always two fundamental factors to be looked to, which are the same as in the case of any other industrial investment issue, namely, the value of the property itself and the demand for and price of the product of the Company in question. There are, of course, other factors of primary importance to be taken into consideration, such as the management, finances, locality and so on, but the two points mentioned are of the very first to be taken up by the prospective investor who desires to see for himself the safety and the potential profit which lies in the security selected. The value of the property is, naturally, individual to each company, but the matter of the market for the product is, of necessity, germane to all of the securities of companies operating along any one line of endeavor. It is because of the fact that there is an absolutely unprecedented demand for the output of the mines that the basic condition of the market for mining securities is far stronger than it has been for a great many years past.

Insofar as gold is concerned there cannot be any change in the price of the metal, for the reason that the great trading nations of the world base all values upon the gold standard, which is at the rate of $20.00 per ounce. There are, at this time, being special inducements held out in various parts of the world to encourage more extensive gold mining and to bring about an increased production, but it is an acknowledged fact that, no matter what efforts be put forth, the production of gold during this current year must fall lamentably short of meeting the requirements of the world, and from the acceptance of this condition of affairs has sprung the discussion of the possible remonetization of silver.

As a matter of fact, the demonetization of silver was, and is, largely a matter of the higher finance, in that, though no nation stands actually committed to a bi-metallic policy, such policy does exist in effect, since silver constitutes the chief metallic currency of no less than forty-seven different countries, and no one in any of the countries ever thinks of questioning the value of a silver coin in the country where minted. Thus the remonetization of silver would not, so far as the general public is concerned, work any revolution in coinage, though it would, most assuredly, fix the price of silver at a figure far in excess of any prices recorded during recent years.

The argument for remonetization is, of course, based upon the scarcity of gold and the tremendously expanded currency of the belligerent nations, coupled with the overwhelming currency demand which must arise when the progress of European business is restored. In this connection it is to be noted that the interest on the war debts alone, payable in gold, will amount to a figure greatly in excess of the total available gold supply of all Europe. On July 31st, 1914, the national debt of the six principal warring powers amounted to twenty-six billion five hundred million dollars; whereas it has been shown in an analysis made by an authority that the national debt of the same six powers on July 31st, 1916, was in excess of seventy-two billion dollars. The war must last for some time yet, and the debts continue to increase tremendously, but on the seventy-two billion dollars the interest yearly exceeds three billion one hundred million dollars—a sum which certainly cannot be met out of the gold supply of Europe. In addition to this extraordinary call upon the precious metals, it must be borne in mind that the currency of some of the warring nations has been greatly inflated, and, in some cases, there are large issues of paper currency which are at present without any metallic security, and which must be so secured if a debasing of the currency in question is to be avoided.

Taking the situation all in all it is impossible to imagine that silver will not advance to, and maintain, prices at figures much higher than those extant at this time, and it is equally certain that the silver companies have entered upon an era of prosperity greater than they have known these many years past. A price for the metal of 50 cents per ounce is to be regarded as the danger point for the Cobalt producing companies and above that figure every cent per ounce adds, to an enormous extent, to the profits of the companies; silver at its current price of around 68 cents is piling up tremendous profits for the Cobalts, and it may be taken as a foregone conclusion that the advance in the price of the metal has yet a long way to go before even approaching its culmination. THE COBALT ISSUES OF INTRINSIC WORTH ARE SELLING AT FAR BELOW THEIR ACTUAL VALUES.

On the basis of a fundamentally sound and extraordinarily strong basic position, we advise the immediate purchase of certain silver stocks.
