LIEUT.-GOVERNOR
OPENS EXHIBITION

Fredericton's Big Show
Is Now Running in Full Swing

Opening Ceremony Was Carried Out This Afternoon and Was Most Successful—Big Crowds Present—Fair Promises to Be the Largest Fredericton Has Ever Held.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Sept. 21.—(Special.)—What is by long odds the biggest and best exhibition ever held in Fredericton was formally opened at three o'clock this afternoon by the Lt.-Governor. Ideal autumn weather prevailed, and the attendance of visitors was surprisingly large for the opening day. The ceremony took place in the Amusement Hall, and was of brief duration. His Honor was accompanied by Premier Tweedie, Hon. Mr. Harris and Hon. Mr. Jones, Col. Chapman and the officers of the seventy-first, and Major McNally and members of the city council. The party were met at the entrance to the main building by President Campbell and members of the executive, and escorted to the Amusement Hall, where a large crowd had assembled. President Campbell on behalf of the Agricultural Society presented the Lt.-Governor with an address which, among other things, warmly commended the agricultural policy of the local government. The governor replied in appropriate terms, and complimented the society on the excellence of the exhibition. He concluded by declaring the exhibition formally open. After the opening ceremony His Honor and party were shown about the buildings and grounds by members of the executive. The York County Teachers' Institute opened here this morning with a large enrollment of teachers. Chief Superintendent Inch addressed the gathering at noon, and was listened to with great attention. A body of the late Wm. Sewell, who was in Quebec on Tuesday, arrived here on the train today, and was taken to his former home at Lincoln for interment. All the exhibits have been installed with the exception of the live stock from the Halifax exhibition, which cannot be here before noon to-morrow. All departments are well filled and the display is a highly creditable one. The collection of vegetables, roots and general farm products is pronounced by experts to be the best ever shown in New Brunswick. On account of the heavy rain being delayed at the Halifax exhibition, the three days' race meeting will commence Saturday, instead of Friday. Mary Elizabeth, the thirteen year old child of Sterling Lawrence, died last night from consumption. This is the fifth child in the Lawrence family since June. Coroner McNally will hold an inquest on the body of George Jewett, the victim of yesterday's accident at the Gibson mill.

MANY HUNTERS AFTER MONARCH OF THE FOREST

Rush of Sportsmen to New Brunswick Woods All Eager to Bag a Moose—Great Number of Hunting Licenses Issued.

MONCTON, Sept. 20.—Some idea of the rush to the woods in search of big game sportsmen from this section may be had from the fact that already about as many licenses have been issued by Game Warden Keith, of this city, as were issued during the whole of last season. Up to the present eighty hunters have taken out licenses. An Englishman, named T. P. Miller, of Merivale, Grange-Ober-Sands, left here today for the Canadian woods in charge of Guide Dunstan, of Salisbury. Mr. Miller desires to secure a specimen of the New Brunswick woods for the Manchester, England, museum in connection with the University of Manchester. Surveyor General Sweeney says that more hunting licenses have been issued in this vicinity than ever before. The raising of the license fee from $20 to $30 for out-landers, he thinks, is a good thing. It means that the province will get more money out of the license and at the same time prevent the deer and moose from being exterminated. Last year the amount from licenses was $15,000, and the present indications are that this amount will be exceeded this year. Cedric Steves, an employe of the I. C. R. shops, got quick returns for the money paid for his hunting license last evening. He took out a license yesterday and after knocking off work at six o'clock he went out to the woods just west of the north track and shot a fine specimen of deer. The Chatham Commercial gives this week a list of 25 game licenses, issued by Game Warden Wye since Sept. 15th. The Newcastle Advocate says—"Capt. L. McDonald recently saw a very large bull moose on the shore near the ferry slip on the south side. Several moose have been seen lately. C. G. Dudley and E. K. Swift, of Whitesville, Mass., passed through Fredericton last week to Chatham, P. E. I. and E. C. Hoadley, of Dayton, Ohio, and J. R. Kink, of Indianapolis, have gone to Rocky Brook on a big game hunting expedition. Mr. Kink enjoyed a successful hunt in the same district three years ago. H. H. Pratt, of Chatham, who drove to Bay du Vin from Chatham on Thursday with his guide, has already secured a fine bull moose and another having a spread of 56 inches. Y. J. Bullock and J. S. Draper, of Newport, R. I., have gone into the woods at Blackville for two weeks' hunting. Both of these gentlemen were here two years ago, and each got a moose."

MAY HIRE GIRL PRINTERS

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—The experiments in the shops of the Chicago Typographic Union printers strike began a new era in industry for girl promissaries. The typewriter keyboard & that of big repeating machines the employers say is only a short remove. So successful have the young women proved as operators in the large printing shops that the proprietors are seeking for more time to become "typists." The typewriter strike decided to advertise for a hundred girls for machine work to take the place of striking men.

JOHN HUGHES GASHED
HIS THROAT WITH A
RAZOR AND MAY DIE

While Despondent, as the Result of Long Illness, North End
Man Made Desperate Attempt at Suicide This Morning
--Is Now in the Hospital in Critical Condition.

While suffering from despondency this morning, as the result of a prolonged illness, John Hughes, a caulker, 50 years of age, residing at 11 Hilyard street, made a desperate attempt to end his life by gashing his throat with a razor. He is now at the General Public Hospital and his injuries are so serious that it is feared he will not recover. In a pool of his own blood the unfortunate man was found in his bedroom at five o'clock this morning by his son John Hughes, Jr. Mr. Hughes, who has been ill for eight months, has been greatly despondent of late, and it was feared by members of his family that he would some day commit such a rash act. At five o'clock this morning the tragedy occurred. Mrs. Hughes, whose room is near her husband's, heard some commotion, a body falling, and at once went to the room where Mr. Hughes was supposed to be asleep. The door was closed, and she being somewhat timid, did not venture to open it. She, however, called to her husband three times but received no answer. The family was then awakened and Mr. Hughes' son, John, entered the room. A terrible scene met his eyes, for there, stretched on the floor, lay his father, covered with blood, caused by an ugly wound in the throat. A razor was beside him. John lost his time in procuring medical aid, and Mrs. Hughes and her two sons, who came with the father, were soon at the house. Mr. Hughes' daughters ran across the street and awakened Mr. Walsh, a neighbor of the family, and two sons, who came with the father, were soon at the house. Mr. Walsh had called Mr. Hughes to the bed where the tragedy occurred. At first it was thought that Mr. Hughes was dying. Chloroform was administered and his wound in the throat sewed up. A number of stitches being put in it. It was thought advisable not to move Mr. Hughes until the effects of the chloroform had worn off, so until ten o'clock he was allowed to sleep. Shortly after ten o'clock the ambulance arrived and the unfortunate man was placed in it and taken to the hospital. There is a mystery about the affair, as it is unknown where Mr. Hughes procured the razor with which he attempted to destroy himself. The family fearing that the father, being so despondent, would do some harm to himself, hid every razor in the house and also every drug or poison. Mr. Hughes has been ill with pleurisy since February last, and for the last few days has been in a very weak condition, and it can hardly be supposed that he got up from his bed and hunted through the house for a razor. The family is not sure that he had not a razor concealed in his room. Last evening Mr. Hughes showed signs of despondency and his talk and manner made the family feel uneasy. He had always been a good father and a hard worker, and he felt his illness keenly. The Hughes family is a sad one today, one of the daughters being on the verge of a nervous collapse. Dr. Pratt, when seen by a Times reporter this morning, would say little on the subject. The wound is a bad one, though, and in Mr. Hughes' weak condition will probably prove fatal. Dr. Sheffield was also seen, but would say nothing. Mr. Hughes has four children residing in this city, two sons and two daughters, and one son, Leonard, of Toronto. The sons living here are John, a caulker, and Henry, a laborer. At 11:30 Mr. Hughes' condition was unchanged.

FRANK OLIVER ON THE YUKON

CALGARY, Alberta, Sept. 21.—(Special.)—Frank Oliver, wife and daughter, returning from the Yukon, passed through here for Edmonton where Mr. Oliver will spend a few days before going east. Mr. Oliver spoke enthusiastically of the Yukon, although the output will not reach to the amount of years past, due to the fact that mining is a big harder now than in days gone by and partly because the population in the district is not what it was. However, Mr. Oliver said that the gold in the Yukon was not as plentiful as it was in the days of the Klondike. In speaking of the Klondike matter, Mr. Oliver said that he did not understand the shape that was being taken by the action taken. Manitoba could not say that Ken- tucky was over, in fact, it was not a claim. Nor could the province say it was deprived of anything by the Klondike. Leaving the district has been generally an agricultural lands and its resources are not considerable, while the other hand the cost of administering the district would be considerable.

FUNERALS

The funeral of the late William F. T. Harrison took place this afternoon from the residence of Jeremiah Harrison, Wellington street. A large concourse of friends followed the body to the last resting place. At 2:30 a private service was conducted at the home by Rev. Canon Richardson. At 2:45 the funeral left for Trinity church, where a public service was held, after which the body was taken to Fernhill cemetery. The large number of beautiful floral tributes sent show the high esteem in which Mr. Harrison was held. Among the flowers sent were: A large number of white lilies and roses, asters, autumn, smilax, and asparagus, from the Island Revenue department; a basket of white lilies, roses, and phlox, asters, smilax and asparagus, with F. B. and C. on the top in purple letters, from the Central Maritime, I. O. E.; a wreath of asparagus, fern and autumn, from Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Cowan, of Toronto; a casket of cream roses from I. O. E. No. 5; a cross, white roses from W. A. Cutters and friends; and a casket of pink and white roses, smilax and ferns from Miss J. Gleason. Relatives of deceased acted as pall-bearers.

THE TIMES IN CARLETON

In order that its Carleton patrons may be better served, the Times has opened a branch office on Winslow street, at the west side for the sale and distribution of papers. The Times north end branch has proved a great convenience, and that in Carleton will no doubt prove equally beneficial to the paper and its patrons.

THE APPEALS COMMITTEE WILL MEET

The appeals committee will meet this afternoon to hear complaints of taxpayers.

SHOT MR. SKILLIN'S DODO

QUAQUO, Sept. 21.—(Special.)—It is current report here that the mayor's clerk of St. John, who is spending the shooting season at Ward Hall, has shot a dodo, and that he intends to present it to the Natural History Society at St. John. If the rumor is verified, and he attempts to remove the bird, an application will immediately be made for an injunction. Mr. W. F. Skillin states that this dodo was one of only two now in existence, the species having been extinct everywhere except in Quaco for a thousand years. Mr. Skillin had believed that he alone knew of the whereabouts of the dodo, and when the last of the dodo brooded over the last glories of his tribe, but the argus-eye of the mayor's clerk is said to have pierced the solitude, and now but one remains.

LATE LOCALS

There will be a good supply of fish in the fish market tomorrow. Cod and haddock, being sold at 8 cents per pound; mackerel, 10 cents. There will be the usual supply of smoking and salt fish. Mackerel is very scarce at present. For the past three weeks some have been caught, but the fish dealers expect some of the very near future. Small are coming in from the coast.

Policeman Thomas Sullivan, while on a pleasure and business trip up north, visited Dorchester penitentiary, and was there for some time. He was with the warden, while there he saw Fred Gooden and Frank Higgins, who are both serving long terms of imprisonment. Mr. Sullivan was very much interested in the warden's statement that both boys were to resume their studies at the end of their term. It will be up next spring.

A snowplow of the track at Vancouver this morning delayed the Atlantic express thirty minutes. It is rather unusual for a snowplow to cause a delay in September, but this was the case today. The plow was being taken to a siding in order to clear the track of brush and other material when it broke down, blocking the main line.

Roy and Annie Smith, children of J. Willard Smith, Master of the Dominion of Post Office Inspector Colter, and Master Belyea, son of Collector of Inland Revenue, went to Sydney today to resume their studies at Mount Allison.

The east side ferry boats will probably be taken out for repairs on Monday next. It is expected that there will be a better opportunity to do the work next week as the spring tides will be an assistance.

S. H. Berry, deputy grand chief conductor for Canada of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, will arrive in the city tomorrow and will address the members of the union at 2:30 at Oddfellows' Hall at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The water and sewerage board meeting which was called for yesterday has been postponed until tomorrow.

Good crowds continue to greet the vaudeville at the York theatre. The people are very well pleased with the performance of the individual teams and of the show collectively.

PRINCE LOUIS
PAYS VISITS

HALIFAX, Sept. 21.—(Special.)—At noon today His Excellency Prince Louis of Wales, accompanied by his wife, the Duchess of Albany, and General Sir Charles Pearson, being received with guards of honor and bands at both places. At 10:30 a reception to the prince was held at the city hall where a great deal of business was transacted. The prince and princess were then taken to the city in a launch and transferred to the hotel. This afternoon the prince will leave for St. John, where he will stay at the fair grounds and will afterwards take in some more business.

TWO SMOOTH
YOUNG MEN

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Sept. 21.—(Special.)—George Leeder and Michael Leeder, two young men who had made a fortnight's tour of the island driving motor cars and wagons and selling and repairing them, were today committed to the supreme court on five charges which include, stealing a horse, two wagons, wraps and cushions, breaking into a store and stealing clothing, and so forth. The prince and princess were then taken to the city in a launch and transferred to the hotel. This afternoon the prince will leave for St. John, where he will stay at the fair grounds and will afterwards take in some more business.

OUTRAGEOUS,
SAYS ROGERS

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21.—(Special.)—Hon. Robert Rogers, minister of public works, has returned from his trip east. Regarding the feeling of the east on the detachment of Keewatin from control of Manitoba and re-annexing the district to the Northwest Territories, he said: "Everywhere and on all sides I have found, that the universal opinion prevails, that the province of Manitoba had been most outrageously and ungenerously treated by the Dominion government."

Continuing, Mr. Rogers stated that he had hesitation in referring to yesterday's Fredericton Herald: "The province of Manitoba had been most outrageously and ungenerously treated by the Dominion government."

REACHING OUT FOR TRADE

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 21.—(Special.)—It is understood that Canada will make an exhibit at the International exhibition in New Zealand next year.

It is announced that Oscar Silvestre, the King street tobacconist merchant, has suspended payment. Rumor first stated that an assignment had been made to Abraham Isaac, clear manufacturer and the chief creditor. Mr. Isaac, however, denies this. It is stated that Mr. Silvestre's venture at Seattle, Park, where he erected a store, is said to have cost him an 8000 loss, and been the chief cause of his failure. In all probability an arrangement will be made for Mr. Silvestre to continue his business.

HORRIBLE OMISSION.

The St. John War Office is much agitated over the following paragraph in yesterday's Fredericton Herald:—"It is not creditable to the military spirit of Fredericton that there will be no sign of honor to receive the Lt.-Governor at the opening of the exhibition tomorrow."

Had the War Office known about it they would have sent up enough Colonel to set off the governor's uniform in fine style. The Fredericton people should have known this. Who is to blame?

I. C. R. STATIONS
TO BE CLOSED
Greenville, N.S., Has Already
Been Closed and Station at Malagash May Follow —
Moncton News.

MONCTON, Sept. 21.—(Special.)—One of the methods employed by the I. C. R. management to reduce the deficit is to close up certain stations along the line, and thereby save the salary of an agent, etc. The station at Greenville, N. S., has been closed, and there is talk that Malagash station, a short distance farther down, is also to be closed. Henry Le Blanc, of this city, and a graduate of St. Joseph's University, left this morning for Halifax, to enter the service of the Sacred Heart to pursue his ecclesiastical studies. The city has purchased a new team of horses to be used exclusively on the client fire engine station in No. 1 station on Mechanic street. This is in line with the general policy of the city with the St. John insurance underwriters in reference to certain improvements to be effected in the fire service provided a ten per cent increase in insurance rates was taken off. Fred Lockhart, son of W. J. Lockhart, I. C. R. trackmaster, who has been spending two weeks at his home here, left tonight on his return to New Mexico, where he holds the position of train dispatcher on the Santa Fe railway. Mr. Lockhart, former Moncton boy, who served his time in the local W. U. Telegraph office, under W. H. Grant, local manager, is home on a holiday trip. Mr. Chambers is in the employ of the Western Union in Boston, holding the position of general traffic chief.

THE CARNIVAL

The committee on Carnival Week is meeting with generous support in their efforts to boom the affair. Now that the entertainment is an assured fact, the citizens are awakening to a realization that all must assist to make it a great success. Through the scheme has been worked out in a hurry, many good attractions are already assured and the cooperation of railway and steamship lines will do a great deal to boom it.

Chairman P. R. Macaulay has received a wire from J. M. Lyons to the effect that the I. C. R. will carry passengers at one first class fare, Oct. 10th to 16th, inclusive, good to return till Oct. 23rd, and, on a special day to be named at due second class fare. This applies to all points on the line in New Brunswick. For Nova Scotia and the I. C. R. had no time to sell, first class fare on Oct. 16th, good until Oct. 23rd. It is expected that Prince Henry and the warships will come here during carnival week.

SIR GILBERT PARKER ON CHAMBERLAIN IDEA

It is the Most Important Question in British Politics
Today and Will Not be Settled Before Ten Years—A Big Problem.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—In discussing the political conditions prevailing in Great Britain, Sir Gilbert Parker, M. P., who is now in this city, said last night that the most important question is Joseph Chamberlain's policy of preferential tariff. "We have taken a small leaf out of the book of the United States to free trade in ten years, so I don't anticipate it will be possible to convert Great Britain to the policy of imperial reciprocity and of tariff reform in that short space of time. An important part of the policy of the Conservative party to which I belong is tariff reform, and the most important part of tariff reform is colonial preference. Preference especially must be given to Canadian wheat. Twenty years from now I believe that America will export no wheat. She will need it all for herself. In the meantime we must build up a trade with Canada by artificial means."

"This will not affect the relations between America and England. Any preference we may give to Canada will be recognized by all good Americans as perfectly legitimate. Americans have a great respect for people who, like themselves, are able to do good business for themselves. In actual fact, the moment that England adopts a defensive tariff the beginning of international reciprocity will be at hand and not until then. Business is a bloodless war, if you will, but it is a war, and peace can only be attained when one nation is strong enough to compete with another by the use of equivalent weapons."

"There never was a time in the history of the two countries when the reciprocity feeling was so strong as it is at present in England. It is a great and absolute admiration for American energy, power and intellect. The day of jealousy on the part of England has gone for ever."

Sir Gilbert declared annexation is a dead issue in Canada.

A NEW I. C. R. PAYMASTER

MONCTON, N. B., Sept. 21.—(Special.)—It has been announced that the death of Mr. Trice by the different travelling auditors. Other changes are expected to be announced shortly.

The rumor is revived that W. F. Taylor, of Hillsboro, is to be appointed general storekeeper. Palmer is to be appointed inspector of stationery for two or three years. His appointment as paymaster is somewhat of a surprise to those who have been a long time in the office and who were in the line of promotion for the position. The duties of the office have been attended to since the death of Mr. Trice by the different travelling auditors. Other changes are expected to be announced shortly.

THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1906.

MEMOIRS OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

THE ADVENTURE OF THE RED HEADED LEAGUE

"Well, Watson," said Holmes, when our visitor had left us, "what do you make of it all?"

"I make nothing of it," I answered faintly. "It is a most mysterious business."

"As a rule," said Holmes, "the more bizarre a thing is the less mysterious it proves to be. It is your commonplace, featureless crimes which are really puzzling, just as a commonplace face is the most difficult to identify. But I must be prompt over this matter."

"What are you going to do, then?" I asked.

"To smoke," he answered. "It is quite a three-pipe problem, and I beg that you won't speak to me for fifty minutes." He curled himself up in his chair, with his thin knees drawn up to his jaw-line, and there he sat with his eyes closed and his black clay pipe thrusting out like the bill of some strange bird. I had come to the conclusion that he had dropped asleep, and indeed was nodding myself, when he suddenly sprang out of his chair with the gesture of a man who has made up his mind, and put his pipe down upon the mantelpiece.

"Baronet plays at the St. James's Hall this afternoon," he remarked. "What do you think, Watson? Could your patients spare you for a few hours?"

"I have nothing to do today. My practice is never very absorbing."

"Then put on your hat and come. I am going through the city first, and we can have some lunch on the way. I observe that there is a good deal of German music on the programme, which is rather more to my taste than Italian or French. It is introspective, and I want to introspect, come along!"

We travelled by the Underground as far as Aldersgate, and a short walk took us to Saxe-Coburg Square, the scene of the singular story which we had listened to in the morning. It was a poky, little shabby-gentled place, where four lines of dingy two-story brick houses looked out into a small railroad enclosure, where a lawn of weedy grass and a few clumps of faded laurel bushes made a hard fight against a smoke-laden and ungenial atmosphere. Three gilt balls and a brown board with "James Wilson" in white letters, upon a corner house, announced the place where our red-headed client carried on his business. Sherlock Holmes stopped in front of it with his head on one

Piles

To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of Hemorrhoids, itching and protruding piles, the manufacturer has guaranteed it. See testimonials in this daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. For a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, Dr. Chase's Ointment side, and looked it all over, with his eyes shining brightly between puckered lids. Then he walked slowly up the street, and then down again to the corner, still looking keenly at the houses. Finally he returned to the pawnbroker's and, having thumped vigorously upon the pavement with his stick two or three times, he went up to the door and knocked. It was instantly opened by a bright-looking, clean-shaven young fellow, who asked him to step in.

"Thank you," said Holmes, "I only wished to ask you how you would go from here to the Strand."

"Third right, fourth left," answered the assistant promptly, closing the door.

"Smart fellow, that," observed Holmes, as we walked away. "He is, in my judgment, the fourth smartest man in London, and for daring I am not sure that he has not a claim to be third. I have known something of him before."

"Evidently," said I, "Mr. Wilson's assistant counts for a good deal in this mystery of the Red-headed League. I am sure that you inquired your way merely in order that you might see him."

"Not him?"

"What then?"

"The keeper of his treasure."

"And what did you see?"

"What I expected to see."

"Why did you beat the pavement?"

"My dear doctor, this is a time for observation, not for talk. We are spies in an enemy's country. We know something of Saxe-Coburg Square. Let us now explore the parts which lie behind it."

The road in which we found ourselves as we turned round the corner from the retired Saxe-Coburg square presented as great a contrast to it as the front of a picture does to the back. It was one of the main arteries which convey the traffic of the city to the north and west. The roadway was blocked with the immense streams of commerce flowing in a double tide inward and outward, while the footpaths were black with the hurrying masses of pedestrians. It was difficult to realize as we looked at the line of fine shops and stately business premises that they really shrouded on the other side upon the faded and stagnant square which we had just quitted.

"Let me see," said Holmes, standing at the corner, and glancing along the line. "I should like just to remember the order of the houses here. It is a hobby of mine to have an exact knowledge of London. There is Mortimer's, the tobacconist, the little Bank, the Vegetarian Restaurant, and McFarlane's carriage-building depot. That carries us right on to the other block. And now, doctor, we've done our work so it's time we had some play. A sandwich and a cup of coffee, and then off to violin-land, where all is sweetness and melody and harmony, and there are no red-headed clients to vex us with their conundrums."

My friend was an enthusiastic musician, being himself not only a very capable performer, but a composer of no ordinary merit. All the afternoon he sat in the stalls wrapped in the most perfect happiness, gently waving his long thin fingers in time to the music, while his gently smiling face and his languid, dreamy eyes were as unlike those of Holmes, the sleuth-hound, Holmes the relentless, keen-witted, ready-handed criminal agent, as it was possible to conceive. In his singular character the dual nature alternately asserted itself, and his extreme exactness and astuteness represented, as I have often thought, the reaction against the poetic and contemplative mood which occasionally predominated in him. The swing of his nature took him from extreme languor to devouring energy; and as I knew well, he was never so truly formidable as when, for days on end, he had been lounging in his arm-chair amid his improvisations and his black-letter editions. Then it was that the last of the chase would suddenly come upon him, and that his brilliant reasoning power would rise to the level of intuition, until those who were unacquainted with his methods would look askance at him as on a man whose knowledge was not that of other mortals. When I saw him that afternoon so unwrapped in the music at St. James's Hall I felt that an evil time might be coming upon those whom he had set himself to hunt down.

"You want to go home, no doubt, doctor," he remarked, as we emerged.

"Yes, it would be as well."

"And I have some business to do which will take some hours. This business at Saxe-Coburg square is serious."

"Why serious?"

"A considerable crime is in contemplation. I have every reason to believe that we shall be in time to stop it. But to-day being Saturday rather complicates matters. I shall want your help tonight."

"Ten will be early enough."

"I shall be at Baker street at ten."

"Try well. And I say, doctor, there may be some little danger, so kindly put your army revolver in your pocket." He waved his hand, turned on his heel, and disappeared in an instant among the crowd.

I trust that I am not more dense than my neighbors, but I was always oppressed with a sense of my own stupidity in my dealings with Sherlock Holmes. Here I had heard what he had heard, I had seen what he had seen, and yet from his words it was evident that he saw clearly not only what had happened, but what was about to happen, while to me the whole business was still confused and grotesque. As I drove home to house in Kensington I thought over it all, from the extraordinary story of the red-headed officer of the "Encyclopaedia" down to the view of Saxe-Coburg Square, and the ominous words with which he had parted from me. What was this nocturnal expedition, and why should I go armed? Where were we going, and what were we to do? I had the hint from Holmes that this smooth-faced pawnbroker's assistant was a formidable man, a man who might play deep game. I tried to puzzle it out, but gave it up in despair, and got the matter aside until night should bring its explanation.

It was a quarter past nine when I started from home and made my way across the Park, and so through Oxford street to Baker street. Two hansom men were standing at the door, and, as I entered the house, I heard the sound of voices from above. On entering his room I found Holmes in animated conversation with Peter Jones, the official police agent, while the other was a long, thin, sad-faced man with a very shiny hat and oppressively respectable frock-coat.

"Hal our party is complete," said Holmes, buttoning up his pocket, and taking his heavy hunting crop from the rack. "Watson, I think you know Mr. Jones, of Scotland Yard? Let me introduce you to Mr. Merryweather, who is to be our companion in tonight's adventure."

"We're hunting in couples, gain, doctor, you see," said Jones, in his consequential way. "Our friend here is a wonderful man for starting a chase. All he wants is an old dog to help him to do the running down."

"I hope a wild goose may not prove to be the end of our chase," observed Mr. Merryweather gloomily.

"You may place considerable confidence in Mr. Holmes, sir," said the police agent loftily. "He has his own little methods, which are, if he won't mind my saying so, just a little too theoretical and fantastic, but he has the makings of a detective in him. It is not too much to say that once or twice, as in that business of the Chitto murder and the Agra treasure, he has been more nearly correct than the official force."

"Oh, if you say so, Mr. Jones, it is all right," said the stranger with deference.

"Still, I confess that I miss my rubber. It is the first Saturday night for seven-and-twenty years that I have not had my rubber."

"I think you will find," said Sherlock Holmes, "that you will play for a higher stake tonight than you have ever done yet, and that the play will be more exciting. For you, Mr. Merryweather, the stake will be some £20,000; and for you, Jones, it will be the man upon whom you wish to lay your hands."

"John Clay, the murderer, thief, smash-er and forger. He's a young man, Mr. Merryweather, but he's at the head of his profession, and I would rather have my rubber on him than on any criminal in London. He's a remarkable man, is young John Clay. His grandfather was a royal duke, and he himself has been to Eton and Oxford. His brain is as cunning as his fingers, and though we meet where to find the man himself. He'll crack a crib in Scotland one week, and be raising money to build an orphanage in Cornwall the next. I've been on his track for years, and have never set eyes on him yet."

"I hope that I may have the pleasure of introducing you tonight. I've had one or two little turns also with Mr. John Clay, and I agree with you that he is at the head of his profession. It is past ten, however, and quite time that we started. If you two will take the first hansom, Watson and I will follow in the second."

Sherlock Holmes was not very communicative during the long drive, and lay back in the cab humming the tunes which he had heard in the afternoon. We rattled through an endless labyrinth of gaslit streets until we emerged into Farringdon street.

"We are close there now," my friend remarked. "This fellow Merryweather is a bank director, and personally interested in the matter. I thought it as well to have Jones with us also. He is not a bad fellow, though an absolute imbecile in his profession. He has one positive virtue. He is as brave as a bull-dog, and as tenacious as a lobster if he gets his claws upon any one. Here we are, and they are waiting."

We had reached the same crowded thoroughfare in which we had found ourselves in the morning. Our cabs were dismissed, and, following the guidance of Mr. Merryweather, we passed down a narrow passage and through a side door, which he opened for us. Within there was a small corridor, which ended in a very massive iron gate. This also was opened, and led down a light of winding stone steps, which terminated at another formidable gate. Mr. Merryweather stopped to light a lantern, and then conducted us down a dark, earth-smelling passage, and so, after opening a third door, into a huge vault or cellar, which was filled all round with crates and massive boxes.

"You are not very vulnerable from above," Holmes remarked, as he held up the lantern and gazed about him.

"Nor from below," said Mr. Merryweather, striking his stick upon the flag which lined the floor. "Why, dear me, it sounds quite hollow!" he remarked, looking up in surprise.

"I must really ask you to be a little more quiet," said Holmes severely. "You are already imperiling the whole success of our expedition. Might I beg that you would have the goodness to sit down upon one of those boxes and not to interfere?"

The solemn Mr. Merryweather perched himself upon a crate, with a very injured expression upon his face, while Holmes fell upon his knees upon the floor, and, with the lantern and a magnifying lens, began to examine minutely the cracks between the stones. A few seconds sufficed to satisfy him, for he sprang to his feet again, and put his glass in his pocket.

"We have at least an hour before us," he remarked; "for they can hardly take any steps until the good pawnbroker is safely in bed. Then they will not lose a minute, for the sooner they do their work the longer time they will have for their escape. We are at present, doctor—as no doubt you have divined—in the cellar of the side branch of one of the principal London banks. Mr. Merryweather is the chairman of directors, and he will explain to you that there are several why the more daring criminals of London should take a considerable interest in this cellar at present."

"It is off French gold, whispered the director. "We have had several warnings that an attempt might be made upon it."

"Your French gold?"

BUDDHISM IN GERMANY

It is Beginning to Permeate
Large Sections of the Population.

In a leading article which is attracting considerable attention here, the "Vossische Zeitung," says a Berlin despatch, dwells on the continuous spread of Buddhism in Germany, not as a definite organized creed or church, but as a potent influence, beginning to permeate large sections of the population. The leading Liberal journal draws attention to the decay of interest throughout the country in missionary and bible societies, and to the decrease of the incomes of these societies as one of the surest evidence of this. Men nowadays, says the article, are more than ever interested in their religion problems, more than ever religious; but it is religion no longer militant, but marked by that toleration which is more characteristic of Buddhism than of Christianity. The "Vossische Zeitung" reminds its readers that not long ago the Grand Duke of Hesse-Darmstadt gave a commission to the eminent sculptor, Prof. Habicht, to erect a huge statue of the Buddha in Syenite under the trees of his garden at Wolfgarten. This act was not a mere satisfaction of some aesthetic impulse, but significant of the profound alteration of public sentiment in matters of faith and dogma.

INSURANCE REPORT

Amendment to Present Act Has Become an Absolute Necessity—Fire Companies Took in Premiums Last Year of Over $13,000,000, and Paid Out Losses of Over $14,000,000—Life Insurance Figures.

OTTAWA, Sept. 20.—The superintendent of insurance for Canada, in his report for 1904, has issued, says:

"In last year's report the desirability of an amendment to the insurance act in certain respects was suggested. The necessity for an amendment became more apparent as the business of insurance in Canada rapidly expanded and developed. The present act was not contemplated by the present act and have arisen and are likely to arise, and it is necessary to provide therefor. Portions of the existing statute have become obsolete and should be repealed. It is hoped and expected that, at the next meeting of Parliament, a revision of the act will take place and that several important alterations will be made therein."

Fire Insurance

During the year the fire insurance companies took in premiums to the amount of $13,000,000, and paid out losses aggregating $14,000,000. The premium income showed an increase of $1,250,000, but the fire losses were greater by $1,250,000 than they had been the previous year. There were thirty-eight fire insurance companies carrying on business in 1904, of whom ten were Canadian, fifteen British and two American. The ratio of losses and premiums was as follows:

	Losses	Premiums
Canadian Co.'s	$2,621,475	$2,881,275
British Co.'s	$2,172,289	$2,851,695
American Co.'s	$2,365,149	$2,444,951
Total	$7,158,913	$8,177,921

Two of the British companies retired from the Canadian field. One new Canadian company began business and one more American company took over a Canadian license.

The records of the insurance department show that the rate of loss for 1904 was abnormally high. The business for the last thirty-six years is summarized as follows:

	Premiums	Losses
Canadian Co.'s	$4,472,338	$1,304,403
British Co.'s	$12,885,731	$2,605,286
American Co.'s	$2,717,099	$1,440,949
Total	$19,875,168	$5,350,638

The gross amount of fire insurance policies new and renewed, taken during the year was $1,000,360, which is $69,031.31 greater than in 1903. The rate of premiums (1.37) is higher than that of 1903 (1.60).

Increased Life Insurance

The business of life insurance was transacted by forty active companies, of which twenty-one are Canadian, seven British and twelve American. The gross amount of life policies in Canada taken during 1904 was $69,000,000, and $67,000,000 were taken in 1903. The Canadian companies effected insurance of $69,000,000, an increase of $1,000,000 over 1903. The British companies effected $1,000,000, a decrease of $1,000,000, and the American companies $1,000,000, an increase of $1,000,000.

A FINE SHOWING

C. P. R. Earnings are Over a Million a Week—A Comparison.

Canadian Pacific this week showed the second biggest increase of the year—$112,000. The gross figures still keep over the million dollar mark, and from now on will probably be much larger, as the wheat crop will soon be moving in volume. The weekly statement for the fiscal year is as follows:

	1905	1904
July 1 to July 31	$1,100,000	$1,112,000
Aug. 1 to Aug. 31	$1,121,000	$1,100,000
Sept. 1 to Sept. 31	$1,100,000	$1,100,000
Oct. 1 to Oct. 31	$1,100,000	$1,100,000
Nov. 1 to Nov. 31	$1,100,000	$1,100,000
Dec. 1 to Dec. 31	$1,100,000	$1,100,000
Total	$6,600,000	$6,600,000

THE WESTERN HARVEST

The Western harvest this year has been earlier than usual and the increase in the receipts of grain to far exceeded, over those of last year are large. Receipts for the first two weeks of September this year totaled 1,340,000 bushels, as against 1,000,000 bushels last year. By the 14th of the month last year's shipments had amounted to 28 cars, while this year's shipments have totaled 360 cars. A report from Portage la Prairie says between four and five thousand bushels are being marketed there daily, and the total daily shipments passing through that centre amount to about 10,000 bushels. The quality of the grain continues very high. Of last year's receipts, 86 per cent. grading No. 1, hard, No. 1 and No. 2 Northern, very little of the last grade.

HUMORS OF HISTORY—150

Acquittal of the Seven Bishops—June 29, 1688

Charles II. was succeeded by his brother James, Duke of York—a zealous Roman Catholic. He caused a Declaration of Indulgence to be issued removing all disabilities from Catholics, and commanded it to be read by ministers from his pulpit on two successive Sundays. The London clergy refused, and the Prime, Somers, with six bishops, drew up a petition against the Declaration. The seven bishops were committed to the Tower. They were tried for libel and after an all-night sitting the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. That night London was illuminated. In less than five months afterwards William of Orange landed at Torbay, and James fled to sea.

The station staff dispersed like one man, and the assistant station master sought refuge in the office, barricaded the door, and wired as follows to the station master: "Tigers on platform eating station master. ## THE CARNIVAL

Excellent progress is being made by the Carnival committee, and there is every indication of a programme that will give the greatest satisfaction to all.

The Times suggested a couple of days ago that there ought to be a good chance of securing the attendance of a number of warships. When it seemed certain that Prince Henry of Battenberg and a portion of the fleet would visit St. John the Times it was announced that only one warship would come, there seemed less encouragement, but the enthusiasm with which the Carnival idea has been received proves that even without the warships a splendid programme of four or five day's entertainment can be provided.

But why should the Prince and the fleet not be here at Carnival time?

Their American programme has been changed, and there does not seem to be anything to prevent a cruise from Halifax to St. John. The King would doubtless approve of such an act of courtesy to this important maritime city.

The committee and other leading citizens will lose no time in making representations in the proper quarter and it will not doubt be found that there will be no difficulty in securing the presence of a number of warships, and perhaps of Prince Henry himself.

Judging from what the chairman of the general committee said to the Times this morning, there will be a fine list of attractions, and, with the hearty support which the citizens generally will give, the fall Carnival will be a complete success.

TALKS TO ADVERTISERS

The wide-awake advertiser, before taking space in a newspaper, makes enquiry regarding the number of people who are possible customers that he is likely to reach by that medium. It is a business proposition. He is paying out a certain amount of money in the expectation of a return. He takes pains to change his surroundings, and make them as attractive as possible. If they are placed in a paper that is not widely read, he does not get as good value for his money as if he selected a more widely popular medium. It is a simple and obvious truth that the chance of attracting custom is greater if his advertisements are read in ten homes than if they were only read in five.

In a city like St. John there is no large exclusive class that can only be reached by one particular medium. The newspaper in its field is the best medium for advertising. In the afternoon field in St. John the Times is that paper. It has achieved this result in less than a year. Possibly some advertisers have been so absorbed in their own business affairs that they have not taken note of the fact, or thought it possible that so much could be accomplished by a newspaper in this field in so short a time. If they will look into the question with the seriousness their business interests as advertisers would suggest, they will be convinced that the Times, as an advertising medium can be of great service to them.

In the three weeks ending today the Times has looked more than three hundred and sixty new subscribers. It would like to add to the list of its advertising patrons also before it celebrates its first anniversary.

TARIFF TALK

Canadian papers which incline toward free trade are criticising the remarks of President George before the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, on the subject of tariff changes. The following statement by Mr. George does not appear to us to be open to very serious attack:

"Our position is briefly this: We desire to make in Canada everything which we can advantageously produce, and to buy our surplus requirements as far as possible from British sources. What could be more simple? The tariff Commission has been appointed to revise the tariff. It is not probable that there will be another revision for some years, so I cannot impress upon you too strongly the importance of laying your requests before the commission. And, further, let me say to you that your requests should be common sense and the reasons you advance should be conclusive. I am hopeful that the new tariff will not only properly protect our industries, but will be an incentive to the establishment of many new ones."

We have passed the stage where anyone could hope to be taken seriously who would advocate a policy that would subject Canadian industries to ruinous competition. The importance of our manufacturing industries is fully recognized, and it is no longer an effective method of political campaigning to denounce the manufacturers. The man who argues in favor of a tariff that will increase the number of industries is expressing the feelings of the majority of the people. If it can be shown that in revising the tariff this aim can be accomplished without actual hardship to consumers, the government will no doubt be found ready to make such changes as are necessary. Naturally, the manufacturers may want more protection than is deemed actually necessary, and they may be counted on to present their case with ability and force; but against that will be other people who, with equal self-interest, will advocate reductions which would injure only effective industrial enterprises. There is no more reason to condemn, for example, the manufacturer of agricultural implements, employing much skilled labor, who wants protection, than there is to condemn the farmer who would be willing to sacrifice that industry for the sake of getting his implements at export or slaughter prices from an overstocked American factory. Canada needs more factories, and if the tariff is not increased in any direction there is very little likelihood of a reduction. There is certainly no desire to give American manufacturers any more advantage than they now have in the Canadian market.

SOUND DOCTRINE

The National Association of Life Underwriters, in session in Hartford, Conn., yesterday, had a very lively debate over a resolution denouncing irregularities in life insurance management. An amendment was moved, to the effect that such a resolution should not be considered. So warm was the discussion that it went over until today. And yet there does not seem to be anything in the original resolution to which the convention could not subscribe. It was moved by a St. Louis delegate, and was as follows:

"Whereas, the public press, official committees, life insurance departments and executive inquiries have disclosed methods and practices in the management of some life insurance companies which, if not criminal in their nature, appear to be grossly irregular and in violation of the principles of the trust involved, and that "Whereas, these disclosures threaten to create, in the minds of the uninformed, suspicions regarding the integrity of management of all life insurance companies, and to bring the business into general disrepute, be it

"Resolved by the National Association of Life Underwriters in convention, that we, the members of this association, who have been chiefly instrumental in inspiring confidence in the minds of policy holders and in building up the magnificent structure of life insurance, owe it to ourselves and to those who have reposed confidence in us to oppose those influences which would tear it down. To demand that, if crimes have been committed, the criminals shall be punished, and that those who have violated their trust shall be deprived of their trust. We urge and insist that we are not willing to support misconduct in the home office. We oppose concealment or evasion, and demand such publicity as will lead to a correction of abuses wherever they may be found."

Whatever may be said of Sir Charles Tupper's political predictions, no one will begrudge the veteran statesman the satisfaction expressed in the following remarks made by him in Winnipeg this week:—"The predictions that I ventured to make in the parliament of Canada as to the agricultural capabilities of Manitoba and the Northwest, and which were greatly ridiculed then, will, I think, be admitted to have been surpassed by the actual results. It is very satisfactory to me, and it must be to every Canadian, to see the immense prosperity that the country is enjoying, and the great development, which I think will in future transcend anything the most sanguine of us have ever anticipated."

The Boston Transcript thus heralds an important discovery:—"The Blandford cattle show, purely agricultural, has come to an end, and what is more, it has been a financial success. Yet we were told by those who only faked, mountebanks and ground and lily tumbler would draw the crowd to fairs."

It has been observed that the number of classified advertisements in a newspaper is a good index of its popularity. The Times, judged by this standard, invites inspection and comparison.

FREDERICKTON SOCIETY

(Gleaner, Wednesday.) Mrs. Kingston entertained at luncheon yesterday. The affair was most pleasant and highly enjoyable, the guests including Misses Moody, of Nova Scotia; Ellie Stoddard, Rachel Balford, Daisy Montgomery, Jane Bainford, Grace Winslow, Ruby Lindsey and Hazel Allen. Mrs. J. J. Fraser gave an art at home at the Fallline place yesterday. It was a largely attended event and greatly enjoyed. Hanson's orchestra furnished the music. Mrs. Fraser was assisted in her duties as hostess by Miss Fisher, as well as Miss Laureline Bailey, Miss Lenore Allen, Miss Violet Marsh and others. Among the guests were His Lordship the Bishop and Mrs. Kingston, Chancellor Harrison of the University, the Misses Randolph, Mrs. McCarthy of Ottawa, Mrs. Clarke of Halifax, Miss Holden of St. John, Miss Moody of Halifax and many others. This afternoon the Misses O'Dell are entertaining a number of friends at their charming home above the city. Invitations have also been issued by Mrs. Robert Fitz Randolph for an art at home tomorrow afternoon at her residence in honor of Mrs. Clarke of Halifax and Mrs. McCarthy of Ottawa, who have been her guests for the past few days.

LATEST MARINE NOTES

Battle line steamship Tanagra arrived at Montevideo yesterday from New York. Battle line people have added another vessel to their fleet, the steamship Radian has been purchased in England; her name will be changed to Atoka. She is now in port and is now in command of Captain Grant. The steamer Argos cleared at Montreal Tuesday for Mexico and Cuba via Halifax. The schooner O. M. Balcom, Capt. MacFarlane, nine days from Port Mulgrave, was towed to Trepansey, Nfld., last Thursday evening by the Hunter, from Cape Pine. The weather foggy and calm, and the cattle being two days without water, and after three heads had perished, the captain did the wise thing to pay thirty dollars to get towed in to save the rest. The whaler had one fish back in tow. The Balcom's cargo is 68 cattle, 38 sheep, 3 horses, potatoes, butter, tallow, stone, and condensed milk.—St. John's Nfld., Telegram.

HOW IT FEELS TO STARVE

It is during the first two days of hunger that the sufferings of a strong and healthy man are most acute. He feels an insatiable, unquenched craving at the stomach night and day. On the third and fourth days this insatiable craving gives place to a sinking and weakness of the stomach, accompanied by nausea.

Should he manage to obtain a morsel of food he swallows it with woe and anxiety, but five minutes afterward his sufferings are more intense than ever. He feels as if he had swallowed a living lobster, which is clawing and feeding upon the very foundation of his existence. On the fifth day his cheeks suddenly appear hollow and sunken, his body attenuated, his color is ashy pale and his eyes wild, glassy and cannibalistic. The different parts of the system now war with each other. The stomach calls upon the legs to go with it in quest of food; the legs, from weakness, refuse.

The sixth day brings with it increased suffering, although the pangs of hunger are lost in an overpowering languor and sickness. The head becomes dizzy, the ghosts of well-remembered dinners pass in hideous procession through the mind. The seventh day comes, bringing increased lassitude and further prostration of strength. The arms hang listlessly, the legs drag heavily. The miserable remnant of life which still hangs to the sufferer is a burden almost too grievous to be borne, yet his inherent love of existence induces a desire still to preserve it if it can be saved without a tax on bodily exertion. The mind wanders. At one moment he thinks his weary limbs cannot sustain him a mile, the next he is endowed with unnatural strength, and if there be a faint ray of relief before him dashes bravely and strongly forward, wondering whence proceeds his new and sudden impulse.

NEW KINGS PROFESSOR

(Hants Journal.) At a meeting of the Governors of King's College, recently held, it was announced that C. A. Brodie Brockwell, B. A., Oxford, had been appointed to the Alexandria Professorship of Divinity. Mr. Brockwell is an extremely brilliant scholar in Hebrew and Aramaic, and is most enthusiastic in his raising the standard of divinity education at King's. He has recently been elected Curate of Chesham, the picturesque old town in which Temple Bar was re-erected after its removal from London. He was there interviewed by Dr. Hannah, on whom he made an excellent impression. P. H. Green returned last evening from Woodstock (N.B.).

REV. G. E. LLOYD OF LLOYDMINSTER

The Colony Is Prospering-- Interesting Account of Their Struggles.

(Ottawa Journal, Monday.) The story of the British colony in Saskatchewan, commonly known as the Barr colony, furnished the subject for two interesting addresses by Rev. George E. Lloyd, chaplain of the colony, in St. George's church yesterday.

Mr. Lloyd, in an interesting and vivid manner, told of how the idea of settling a British colony in the Northwest originated, of the voyage across the ocean and over the C. P. R. to their western home, of the early hardships that had to be faced, and of the present successful condition of the colony.

In 1902, said Mr. Lloyd, a friend wrote to him from Canada pointing out that hundreds of foreigners were taking up the land in the Canadian Northwest, which would make excellent homes for the overcrowded population of British cities. Mr. Lloyd was much interested in the matter and inserted a letter in the London Times urging Britishers to settle in Canada and offering to give any assistance in his power to prospective immigrants.

Letters began to pour in and so numerous did they become that he handed them over to other gentlemen engaged in forming the colony. Later, Mr. Lloyd was requested to take the position as chaplain of the colony, which he did after much consideration, and in March, 1903, he accompanied the 2,300 emigrants to their new home over the Atlantic. The voyage across the ocean, the journey by C. P. R. to Saskatoon and the hardships experienced in travelling two hundred miles by trail from Saskatoon to Lloydminster, were all vividly described by the reverend gentleman.

LEWIS MORRISON COMING

In Lewis Morrison's elaborate presentation of his new "Faust" much difficulty is experienced on one-night stands in placing the scenery, which is of an unusually elaborate and intricate kind. It is therefore customary for the advance agent to question the local managers as to the exact measurement of the stage, height of the walls, etc. He then notices the stage carpenter back with the company who provides accordingly. Another necessity is a number of trap doors from which flames leap in the Broken scene and Satan's imp disappear into the flames of the lower inferno at his command. In one western city, some seasons ago, after the usual inquiries as to measurements, which seemed to annoy the local manager for some unexplained reason (possibly because he "was a dairy man"), the agent asked, "How many traps have you?" "Your folks needn't worry about their clothes," said the manager. "We don't need no traps here, there ain't been a rat or a mouse seen in the house since we had these traps set." This was the unexpected reply. Lewis Morrison himself will appear as Mephisto at the Opera House on Friday night in a splendid new production of "Faust."

The chief mourners were H. Ryland Low, Warwick H. Low, E. G. Low, nephew of deceased; Philip de V. Low, and the Rev. Archdeacon Kaubach, brother-in-law.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NOTES

Rev. E. J. Bannan, pastor of the Right-brother Catholic church for over twenty years, will shortly remove to Barnaby River. Rev. J. J. McLaughlin will succeed him. Rev. Father McManus, Sheet Harbor, N. S., has gone on a vacation trip to Prince Edward Island. Rev. Father Kennedy, formerly parish priest of Windsor, has resigned his rectorship of St. Mary's College, Halifax, and has been appointed to the parish of Truro. It is thought, save the Newcastle Advocate, that the front of the Roman Catholic cathedral, now being built, already testifies to the extreme love in which the deceased was held. On theasket were placed a beautiful cross, anchor and heart signifying faith, hope and charity, in each of which her life abounded.

TRADE IN GESE

S. H. Jones shipped a carload of about 2,000 geese by steamship Northumberland Monday morning from Summerside. This is Mr. Jones' first shipment of geese this season. The Charlottetown Patriot says:—"On Monday one hundred geese or half-bred wild and tame geese were shipped by one man from Tignish to S. H. Jones, Summerside, and sixty more were shipped by another breeder at Alberton. These birds net their owners $1.40 each. When the fact was mentioned to a citizen this morning, his reply was that at that rate we should turn the whole island into a goose ranch. For tame geese alone, $1.50 per pair is being paid at Summerside."

THE HALIFAX EXHIBITION

J. N. Harvey Tells of Some of the Features of Nova Scotia's
"Show—Excellent Display in Departments of Mines, Manufactures and Transportation—Good Horticultural Show.

J. N. Harvey, who returned recently from Halifax, where he visited the exhibition, speaks very enthusiastically of the big fair and is immensely pleased with his trip. Talking with a Times reporter, Mr. Harvey said: "I should say that the Halifax exhibition is a success this year as far as a show of the products and resources of Nova Scotia is concerned, and I believe this is to be the main object of the fair; and why should it not be, as we have a deficit each year but to be met by the people of the province and the city of Halifax. This exhibition is used as a means of showing what Nova Scotia produces from her mines, her farms and her factories, rather than what her merchants offer for sale."

"In the manufacturers' building, for instance, twenty-one Nova Scotia factories were represented, and eighteen from outside; and every effort is being made to induce the people of the province to patronize home industry as far as possible. In fact one of the commissioners, who is himself a prominent manufacturer, in the course of an address, delivered at the opening of the woman's building, made a strong appeal to the ladies to use their influence along this line."

Mr. Harvey referred to W. J. Clayton and quoted from his address. Mr. Clayton said that his subject, delivered at the opening of the woman's building, made a strong appeal to the ladies to use their influence along this line. Mr. Clayton said that his subject, delivered at the opening of the woman's building, made a strong appeal to the ladies to use their influence along this line.

"The people of the west do not take any of our products. They do consume some of our coal and a little of our fish, but not much else. The trend of business is to the west. While our own merchants may be to blame to some extent, the people could themselves largely effect a change. We do not assert ourselves enough. The Atlantic steamship service to Halifax has deteriorated since Confederation, so that now one must leave here for England direct in freight boats. If other means of ocean travel are required they must be sought by our people in Montreal or New York."

"The retail trade of Nova Scotia, as well as the wholesale, was going west in a large measure. Well printed catalogues are doing the work, taking the money west that should be spent at home, and which could be spent at home with great advantage to the buyer and with equal advantage to the country. It is to be regretted that the fact that very little trade came from the west to the east. The people of Nova Scotia ought to patronize local merchants; they should read the local newspapers; they should patronize the interests and industries of their own province. If the supplies required by the 100,000 families of Nova Scotia, which could be purchased here, were so purchased, our prosperity would be vastly enhanced."

Mr. Clayton concluded his stirring appeal on behalf of Nova Scotia for Nova Scotians by stating his position in the following terms: "I advocate the principle of each district supporting its local merchants, and the fullest development of reciprocal trade within the province. If the supplies for the 100,000 families in Nova Scotia were purchased of the local merchants, and they in turn would support the importers and manufacturers within the province, greater prosperity would come, and our young people would find remunerative employment at home. Millions of dollars of Nova Scotia money are sent every year to western cities, where there is practically no reciprocal trade, and largely for imported goods, which could be purchased more cheaply at home if trade were kept in its proper channels."

"In brief," said Mr. Harvey, "Mr. Clayton's motto is—buy at home, patronize our own Nova Scotia merchants, and thus be more prosperous."

"Two new buildings have been added this year, one of which is devoted entirely to the products of the mines, in which Nova Scotia always makes a good exhibit, the other is known as the woman's building, and is in charge of a committee of ladies; the upper story being used as an art gallery, while on the lower floor as to be found a kitchen, a tea-room, a rest room and an industrial room in which you see the spinning and weaving of flax and samples of cooking, needlework, etc.—but most attractive of all, an antique room well filled."

"In the morning and evening they give demonstrations in domestic science. Taken all-in-all the woman's building is one of the most interesting on the fair grounds. There are not so many houses shown as in previous years, the agricultural exhibit not so good as was our own last year, but the horticultural show is excellent. There is a good showing of cattle, but I should say a poor exhibit of sheep and swine."

"The transportation exhibit is the best that I have yet seen at a Halifax exhibition. I must not forget the 'Midway'—as they call it over there—it is the largest that I have ever seen at a provincial exhibition, and appears to attract as large a number as usual. Those in quest of fun can get their share and if it feel overburdened with cash have no trouble in unloading themselves on the 'Midway.'"

"Some of the largest exhibitions of previous years are conspicuous by their absence, and their places have been taken by others. I did not have the privilege of seeing the vaudeville show, or fire-works, but believe they are good."

"Taken as a whole, I think the exhibition, as yet, is fairly up to the standard."

Kennebecasis Bay
The southeastern boundary of St. Paul's churchyard at White Head is washed by the waters of Kennebecasis Bay, and if its occupants were susceptible to external influences, their dreams would be constant and pleasant, for nothing could be more soothing than the rippling of the waves on the beach, or the monotonous murmur of the waves. Even in winter, when its surface is black and hard, the Bay is not silent. "Are you awake?" it cries to the sleepers by St. Paul's, but the sleepers heed not its query. They sleep on just as the fathers of the infant world have slept on, and will continue to sleep on through the ages. St. Paul's is an ancient churchyard—almost as ancient as the old burial ground in St. John. But a majority of the oldest graves in St. Paul's are unmarked and rest recognition by the living, for the pioneers of Kennebecasis Bay were not overburdened with wealth, and had they been, they would have been buried in the city of St. John by canoe (their only means of transportation) would have been a hazardous undertaking. But does it matter? No stone at a dead man's feet ever stood for any injury to which he had been subjected while living. Charles Deane has very beautifully and truthfully said that "If we oppress and grind our fellow creatures, we burden but one thing on the dark evidences of human error, which like dense and heavy clouds are rising, slowly, it is true, but not less surely, to Heaven, to pour their revengeance on our heads; if we heard but one instant, in imagination, the deep testimony of dead men's voices, which no power can stifle, and no pride shut out, where would be the injury and insult, the suffering, misery, cruelty and wrong that each day's life brings with it?"

As has been said before, few of the early settlers on this western shore of Kennebecasis Bay are represented by their present occupants. Their descendants have gone west, east, south; have been swallowed up in cities or have disappeared in the country from which none ever return. I know of but one or two houses between Henderson's Cove and Moss Glen from which a funeral procession has never passed, and they are comparatively new ones, and the houses that have not witnessed a birth are quite as few as those that have not witnessed a death. "All is of God!" "Angels of life and death alike are his; Without his love they pass no threshold; Who, then, would wish, or dare, believing this, Against his messenger to shut the door."

White Head, Kings county, Sept. 19.

A few years ago he married for his second wife a lady of 45 years, and they have now a three-year-old baby.
