The Weirmens Union and the Fight for Fishermen's Rights

Desperate Efforts of a Foreign Combine to Control Charlotte County's Magnificent Fisheries.

Packers now Paying $39.00 per Hoghead for Western Fish in a Vain Endeavor to Disrupt the Union.

The struggle between the Weirmens Union and the combine of foreign packers still goes on. The outlook is decidedly favorable for the ultimate success of the Union in obtaining its demands. In fact it may be said that at no time during the eighteen months of its existence, have conditions pointed to more certain victory than now in the second season of its struggle for fair play and a living price for its members and for all others along the Charlotte County Shore who are engaged in the same occupation.

Perhaps here we cannot do better than give a brief sketch of conditions which existed at the time of the organization of the Weirmens Union, and which were in themselves responsible for that organization. The occupation is admittedly, from a financial point of view, an exceedingly speculative one. The initial preparation is heavy. Then the fisherman runs the risk of not catching fish. If he does make a catch, he may not find a sale. If he found a sale the price was often inadequate. Still under all these adverse conditions, taking one year with another, with the open market, the industry while not lucrative still as a general rule yielded a fair living to those engaged therein. The open market was however essential, for then the competition among the packing buyers was productive of a higher price in times of scarcity that tended to compensate for the lower price obtainable in times when fish were plenty.

This competition among the buyers and among the sellers prevented great hardship. Then a move to radically change and which did not really change these conditions was made by the packers. The formation of a combine with intent to eliminate all competition among the buyers, and to set arbitrary prices payable in times of scarcity, to get the best obtainable rates in times of plenty, and thus to reduce the cost of fish to a miserable fraction of what might be considered a fair price. Finding this new plan to work much to the satisfaction of their greed and arrogance, these foreign corporations decided upon still further reductions, which had been allowed to go into effect would have practically deprived themselves of their source of supply inasmuch as it would have rendered weir-fishing so unprofitable as to drive the workers from the business. To be thus deprived of their means of livelihood was productive of no great amount of pleasure in the minds of the fishermen and the union men, previously advanced in a tentative way to get the best obtainable rates in times of plenty, and thus to reduce the cost of fish to a miserable fraction of what might be considered a fair price.

refused to buy and the fishermen to sell. In the meantime the Union was perfecting its organization and adding to its membership, the combine doing its best to disrupt the Union. In the end a sliding scale was set by the Union and worked fairly satisfactorily for the balance of the season, and the combine was thus obliged to acknowledge and treat with the Union and to accept the Union's price.

In the meantime the Union had for the further protection of its members set a standard tub for measurement of the fish. For previously each boatman had carried his own tub and some of these were so deep that it is related that a porpoise fell into one and broke its neck. Daily the too deep tubs worked injustice to the weirmen and were productive of wrangling and disputing at the weirs. But the adoption of a standard has done away with this source of injustice and disagreement.

At the end of last season the Union controlled every view in Charlotte County and had been successful to an extent which is given to few organizations to boast of. And the members feel that in no small measure they are indebted for this success to the Canadian packers who throughout the season joined in giving consistent support to their fellow-countrymen.

With and before the beginning of a new season, the combine renewed its war upon the Union. As one of the hirings of the combine declared "The Union must be crushed and crushed this year. There will be no further trouble." No trouble for whom? Presumably the packers—the monopolistic combine. Again they would have their former power over the fishermen. Now that it be desirable that such an aggregation would with the knowledge of opposition crushed, be still more tyrannous and overbearing in their dealings. There would be "no trouble" for the fishermen.

It was not to be considered that the combine, after having had during all the years since the inception of the sardine industry over the prices a control which in the end they had made absolute, would with any grace begin immediately to pay the higher price which the Union set upon their product. That the higher price was reasonable, that it erred if at all upon the side of moderation, influenced them not at all. They saw their control slipping away, and announced their intention of never yielding to the "outrageous" demands of "ignorant fishermen." It would render their business unprofitable; they could not pay such a price, they said. But the fishermen knew that the cost of herring was the smallest item in the packing cost. They knew that oil had increased in price and that the packers had not threatened to hold up the oil producers and sellers. They knew that the packers were increasing the price of their output, an increase of now about 100 per cent or more, and were thus increasing their power to pay the weirmen a reasonable price. They knew that if some years ago the packers could be found tumbling over one another in their desire to contract weirs at $12 per hhd, they could surely pay $5 without the formality of a contract. They knew that if the combine could pay $5.75 they could pay $8. So for a time the combine stood up as follows: Good 18; Fair 21; Non-productive 22; Not built 16; Not known 23. 100 in all.

Thus it will be seen that the productive weirs which the blood-sucking syndicate has contracted number 39. Contrast this with the 183 productive weirs which the Union controls and we see that at the most the syndicate can be sure of only about 17 per cent of the supply. And very few of these weirs can compete with the Union weirs inasmuch as their season is over while that of the Union weirs is just beginning.

Having thus failed to get control of the source of supply available before the formation of the Union the Packing Combine has been endeavoring as it threatened before to do, to obtain its supply of fish from western waters. Here it may be of interest to many to know that a recent importation of Western fish cost one of the American packers at the rate of $39 per hhd. for packing fish. And even at this figure this supply is so small as to be negligible. The supply must come from Charlotte County waters and the Union controls 85 per cent of that supply.

The old source of supply having thus proved unavailable except at Union terms, and new ones not being great enough to form a factor of any importance in the situation the combine commenced an effort to put out of business its outside competitors to whom the Union Weirs were disposing of their catch—this in a round-about way to prevent the Union from selling. To do this they tried to cut off one competitor's supply of cans. It cost the combine in round numbers $200,000 to keep the can manufacturing companies so busy that they could not devote any time to the former competitor's wants. The competitor tried to and made his own cans while the syndicate has every inch of available space filled with cans which it can't use at all unless it uses them this summer, and which it can't fill unless it buys Union herring. And if they do not use the cans, the firms composing the syndicate stand to lose the best part of $200,000. This is as pretty a case of self-over-reaching as ever men were the victims of and proves that the redoubtable heads of the Big Foreign Combine cannot see any farther into a pine board than can anybody else.

At present their emissaries are engaged in circulating falsehoods with a view of creating dissatisfaction within the Union one being to the effect that they have asked several times for a conference with the executive of the Union and that their request was each time refused. Just a falsehood nothing less. Then again these hired agents of dissatisfaction, have been stating that the packers would pay the Union price if they were not afraid that they would be held up for greater prices later on in the season. They know that the Union's price has been fixed for the season. Any story coming from the syndicate or its sympathizers or hirelings can be taken with the proverbial grain of salt. The depth of syndicate truth and sincerity was proved before the Union existed.

In the meantime the combine is not as yet buying Union fish. But they soon must begin. Their idle plant, their empty cans, dissatisfaction with their officers, discontent among their shareholders, resentment from their employees, outside pressure—all these must soon have the effect of breaking the deadlock. It may come in a week or a month. Meantime the members of the Union must stand firm. They have not shown any indication of weakness. In fact their determination to win has lately been becoming more marked. They can remember conditions of two and three years ago, and before that. They want no return to those conditions. They know that they can when necessary let their herring go that it is better to handle one hundred hhd. at $6 per hhd. than 600 hhd. at $1 per hhd. It is easy to foresee the treatment that would be accorded the ex-members of an organization which the combine wishes so to break. They know that the combine must pack and can easily afford to. They know that a brief stand is all that is necessary to decide for years to come whether or not they shall be beaten down to satisfy the greed of the arrogant if not particularly brilliant packers of the combine. It is risky but little to accomplish much and will result in years of greater prosperity for themselves and their neighbors. They will no longer be subjects to contemptuous treatment but will be in a position of such independence as will enable them to demand their rights.

WEDDING BELLS

HANNINGTON--GARNETT A very pleasing ceremony took place in St. Stephen on Wednesday July 15th, when Rev. W. C. Goucher united in the bonds of matrimony Miss Mary Elizabeth Garnett of Milltown and Mr. Nelson Hannington of St. George. The bride looked cute and pretty in a dress of white silk muslin with picture hat to match. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Janie Purdy, who also wore white. The groom was supported by Mr. George Garnett, a brother of the bride. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride where a dainty supper was served, only the immediate relatives being present. After refreshments, the bride donned a handsome travelling suit of grey, with white silk waist and white hat with plumes, and the happy couple drove to the C. P. R. station where they took the train for a trip through the provinces. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Garnett formerly of St. George. Many beautiful presents testified to the esteem in which they were both held. The best wishes of all accompany them for a pleasant and prosperous journey through life.

C. E. Starr of Canning, N. S., arrived in the city yesterday and is a guest at the Dufferin. Mr. Starr is interested in fruit growing in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and is considered excellent authority on existing conditions as well as prospects for the present year in fruit growing. Mr. Starr is also manager of copper mines covering an area of 1,280 acres located at L'Etete, near St. George, Charlotte County, which according to statements made by mining experts, is destined to become the most valuable mining property in New Brunswick. "We have now several tons of ore mined," he told the reporter, "and according to certificates of analysis from state assayers in Massachusetts, the average showed by the vein was highly favorable. One assay showed 34.4 per cent, and another made by Clarence Hersey showed 34 per cent. We have not a smelter on the property yet, but expect to be in a condition to have one there by next year. The vein is about three feet wide on the surface and has gradually widened until now it is ten feet wide. The ore is chalcopryite, the best quality known, and from which about seventy-five per cent of the world's supply of copper is obtained."--Sun

Tercentenary Pageants

The Battle of the Plains of Abraham will be repeated in elaborate pageantry on the very ground where Wolfe wrestled from Montcalm the dominion of the great North. The anchorage of the tiny ships that sailed up the St. Lawrence in 1758, under the command of Samuel de Champlain, greatest of French navigators, will be occupied by towering war vessels of the twentieth century, one of them flying the flag that the gallant Montgomery tried in vain to plant upon the walls of the Quebec citadel. The knight errantry of the past will mingle at every stage of the celebration with the precise, and calculating and powerful civilization of today. Quebec is something more than the warden of the St. Lawrence. It stands as the most significant symbol of the Imperial career upon which England entered under the direction of the first Pitt. It was the pivot of the final struggle with France for the "few acres of snow" that Voltaire affected to despise and which has since expanded into a vast commonwealth of illimitable possibilities. The transfer of Quebec from France to England was of infinitely more consequence to human progress than was the capture of Aroost by Clive, which began the conquest of India eight years earlier.--Brooklyn Eagle

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more, positively, not one weak heart in a hundred, is, in itself, actually diseased. It is simply a nerve that is hidden away in the cardiac or Heart Nerve. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. It shows that the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress, Dr. Shoop's Restorative—the popular prescription—is also directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds, strengthens; it cures real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

The St. John Exhibition Full of Interesting Features

The entries for the Exhibition at St. John represent the material for a splendid show. The management confidently predicts that the Exposition will be the best ever held in St. John. They have the best of reasons for thinking so, for, with entries already made and those in sight, they will have exhibits of such interest and variety as to surpass any seen before in St. John. The mark of improvement is marked in every exhibit—the newest machines and the best work of the manufacturers—the most novel designs of those who aim to please the public will be seen at this show.

The automobile exhibit will of itself be wonderfully attractive. Those who cannot own those expensive articles are interested in their mechanism and beauty. The full effect of these will be displayed in the exhibits being prepared for St. John's big show.

Those who have seen the programme of the fire works say that for grand and spectacular effect the like has never been promised in the Maritime Provinces. The set pieces are wonderful in design, and will interest every one. When it is known that a full programme of fire works will be given four nights during the Exhibition, some idea can be had of the wish of the management to please the people.

The executive is considering how it can best show machinery in motion, and expect in a short time to make an announcement regarding this important feature of the Exhibition.

The interest of the agriculturists is already assured. The best products of the farm—the finest cattle and horses, sheep, swine, etc.—will soon be seen from September 12th to 19th at St. John. In addition to the choicest stock and products from New Brunswick, the best shown at other exhibitions, will be seen also in St. John, assuring beyond any doubt the success of the event that is now interesting every one.

Walking in Relation to Health

Few things, if any, are so effectual in building up and sustaining the physical organization as walking, if resolutely and judiciously followed. It is a perfect exercise, which taxes the entire system. When you walk properly, every member and muscle, every nerve and fibre, has something to do. Every sense is employed, every faculty alert. Progress under such conditions is the very eloquence of physical motion. What is the effect? The flesh is solidified; the lungs grow strong and sound; the chest enlarges; the limbs are rounded out; the tendons swell and toughen; the figure rises in height and dignity, and is clothed with grace and suppleness. Not merely the body, but the whole man is developed.

The Union Jack

The Edinburgh Scotsman of February 22nd describes a Children's Day, when fifteen hundred children representing the schools of the city, assembled in McEwen Hall to hear an address by Lord Roseberry and to receive at his hands national flags provided by the Edinburgh branch of the Victoria League. The object of this league, as stated by the chairman of the meeting, Sir Ludovic Grant, is to make the people of the United Kingdom and their brethren of the British colonies better acquainted, and to afford them opportunities of rendering each other reciprocal services. Lord Roseberry in a very interesting address, and one well calculated to awaken and hold the attention of all who heard him, undertook to enlighten his hearers as to the origin of the Union Jack, the manner of its growth, and what it symbolizes, not only to the British Empire, but to the nations of the earth. From the published report of the address the natural inference is that the order of its growth was as follows: 1st, the Scottish flag as recognized at the time of the union of Scotland and England under James VI, who became thereby James I. of England. This flag was a blue field with a white St. Andrew's cross; 2nd, the English flag—a red St. George cross on a white field, laid over Scottish blue flag with the white St. Andrew's cross; and 3rd on the union of Great Britain and Ireland, the Irish flag which consisted of a red St. Patrick's cross on a white field. "So then," added his Lordship, as if to clinch his statement, "you had to combine in one flag St. Andrew's white flag for Scotland, St. George's red cross for England, and St. Patrick's white cross for Ireland. The inconvenience of St. Patrick's red cross was that it was just the shape of St. Andrew's white cross, and so the only way in which they could fit the three crosses it was by putting the red St. Patrick's cross over the white St. Andrew's cross and leaving quite enough of the white St. Andrew's cross to show that it had not been extinguished by the red cross of St. Patrick."

But with all deference to Lord Roseberry, it may be asked was the Scottish flag the basic element of the Union Jack? with the English flag as an intermediate, and the Irish flag its culmination? History does not so teach the origin and growth of the Union Jack. For centuries from the time of the first crusades the English flag was a red cross on a white ground, ever since, its first and was known as the cross of St. George. Early in the fifteenth century, King Henry V. of England, after his victorious battles in France, in which he conquered the whole kingdoms north of the Loire, he was proclaimed heir to the French monarchy upon the death of the King, and to please his French subjects, and also to gratify his own ambition, adopted the French flag and combined, it with that of his own country. Now the French flag was a white cross on a blue field, and to combine and adapt the two flags as representative of the two nationalities it simply became necessary to cut down the white field of the English flag until it represented a red cross laid upon a larger white one, and plant this in the centre of the blue field of the French flag, which still retained its emblem intact with the superimposed red cross on its white field. And from early in the fifteenth century until early in the seventeenth century this combination was the national emblem of England's power.

Then came the union with Scotland under James I. and the adoption of the Scottish flag into that of England. And how simply this was accomplished hardly needs to be told, for a glimpse at any Union Jack will immediately reveal it, without reference to the records of the College of Heralds. All that was necessary to do was to lift the red cross of St. George and substitute therefore the white cross of St. Andrew taking care, however, to replace the red cross of St. George in its proper position, superimposed upon the layers beneath it.

In 1801, at the union with Ireland, very properly and very naturally the red cross of St. Patrick's on its white field was added to the triple combination then recognized as the natural emblem, and this was done, first by again lifting the red cross of St. George and thus laying to full view the original white cross of France on its blue field. Upon the latter, the red cross of St. Patrick, cut from its white field, but with a narrow white margin to retain its identity, was laid in such a manner as to give greater prominence to the St. Andrew's cross in the hoist quarters of the flag, as significant of precedence in the union, which was ably done by the same extra prominence being given to the red cross of St. Patrick in the fly quarters of the flag. This done, the old red cross of St. George was again superimposed and the combination was complete. That is the true story of the growth of the Union Jack, as any child with a few pieces of blank paper, a ruler, pencil and a box of paints can demonstrate for themselves, only observing certain proportions which have been established by the national authorities.

The Union Jack is the national flag, and every citizen has the right to carry it and use it for honor or defence. When placed on the upper hoist of a red ensign, it becomes the military national emblem; when so placed on a white or a blue ensign, it is the emblem of the naval arm of the service in its two fold character of the white and the blue. Its colors are emblematic of courage, purity and faith.

To construct a Union Jack properly observe the following conditions. The length of the flag is called the "fly," the width is called the "hoist." The fly is double the hoist. The "field" or ground work is blue. On this is laid diagonally a white cross, whose width is one-fifth of the hoist. On this is placed a red cross, one-fifteenth the width of the hoist. Thus half of the white cross is covered by the red cross and its white border. But as the white, or St. Andrew's cross, represents the senior member of the combined diagonal crosses, the white is uppermost in the first quarters of the flag next the mast, while on the fly the red cross with its white border is placed uppermost. Then upon these is placed a white upright cross, one-third the width of the flag. This is the old white cross of the original French flag, with its blue field which was amalgamated with the English flag by Henry V. after the battle of Agincourt, and upon it, completing the Union Jack, is placed the red cross of St. George, which is one-fifth the width of the hoist, and so shows a white border, simulating the original white field.

A Union Jack thirty feet fly and fifteen feet hoist would therefore show an upright red cross with its arms three feet wide, and a white border one foot wide; a diagonal cross three feet wide, of which eighteen inches are white and twelve inches red, the latter having also a white border six inches wide, the broad white stripe in the quarters nearest the mast, and the narrow on the quarters of the fly.

This is the People's Flag so called, although never, so far as the writer has been able to learn, officially adopted by the Dominion or Imperial authorities, but was placed on the market by an English business concern many years ago, is simply the English military red ensign, having, of course, the Union Jack in its upper hoist quarters, with the Dominion coat of arms emblazoned on the red field half the width of the flag from its outer or fly end.

Thomas A. Edison is the latest prominent man to come to the conclusion that nearly all the serious diseases of the stomach are the result of overloading the digestive organs. He, too, has practically eliminated meat from his diet, with noticeably good results.

There are only seven genuine United States citizens in Kingston entitled to the privileges of citizens of a foreign country in Canada. In all Ontario out of 5,000 or more persons of American birth, not more than 200 can register. The rest have lost their rights, as they vote in Canada and do business here. They must pay taxes, as they get Canadian protection and advantages. They had not taken the oath of allegiance, but through Canadian carelessness they vote on property qualification, some of them also voting in United States elections. In Kingston there are 550 Americans, but only seven are registered. It is said that the demands of citizenship will shut out many more living in Canada from service on United States vessels.

DISCUSSES "ALL-RED" ROUTE.

Will Benefit the Whole Empire, Says Hon. L. P. Broder.

"The question of the 'All-Red Route,'" said Hon. L. P. Broder, Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries, "is of the utmost importance to the British Empire. It is a subject upon which all politicians, irrespective of party, are unanimous. I notice that not a single opposition paper in Canada has adversely criticized Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposal. "It is not Canada alone, but the whole Empire, that will benefit by the All-Red Route. We are struggling in favor of the scheme, but it must not be thought that we are seeking it solely in order to benefit ourselves. Need I reiterate that the projected improved steamship service will bring the distant parts of the Empire nearer to the Mother Country.

"Commercially and strategically, the All-Red Route has advantages over the Suez Canal route, and it must prove of enormous advantage to the Empire. Canada, in a sense, prepared for the day when it will be an accomplished fact, and when she will be linked up more closely with New Zealand and Australia on the one hand and with the British Islands on the other. "We are building a second trans-continental railway—a Grand Trunk—which will have its terminal points probably Prince Rupert town on the west and Halifax on the east. According to the terms of the contract it must be completed by 1911, and by then we hope that the inter-empire route will have passed beyond the realm of probability.

"The question is a big one, and we in Canada do not expect that a scheme so far-reaching can be settled off-hand in a few weeks. I have heard nothing that would lead me to think that there was a tendency on the part of the British Government or a section of the Ministerialists to disavow the approval given by Lord Elgin at the Conference. I understand that a committee of the British Ministers is now at work considering the project, leaving the question of the subsidies to be considered at a later date by a conference composed of representatives of the Home and various Colonial Governments interested. I cannot for the moment believe that either Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman or any member of the Liberal party has an intention to oppose an undertaking which would be of such great value to the commercial prosperity of the British Empire."

NEW SHRINE DEDICATED.

Memorial to Jesuit Fathers Killed by Iroquois Indians.

At Waukenahe, on Sturgeon Bay, about 1,000 "pilgrims" from various parts of Canada and the United States witnessed the dedication of a shrine to the memory of the Jesuit fathers, Lallemand and Brebeuf, who were put to death by the Iroquois Indians in 1649. The little chapel was solemnly blessed and dedicated under the title "St. Ignace of the Martyrs" by Archbishop O'Connor, assisted by Fathers Barolo of Midland, Kidd of Penning, Birral of Peterborough, Hay of Brook, McEay of Breckton, and the Jesuit fathers in charge at Waukenahe, His Grace walking through the chapel sprinkling with holy water the seats, pictures and articles used in divine services, converting the place from an ordinary building to a house of God. After this all the priests united in chanting the litany of the saints. Solemn high mass was the next part of the service and then the sermon of the occasion by Rev. Father Moyné of Orillia. St. Ignace of the Martyrs is situated on what is known as Martyrs' Hill, called so on account of the belief that the summit of the hill was the exact spot on which the Indian carnage took place. It is of wood and is shaped somewhat after the fashion of a canopy in that way for the sanctuary, it is not enclosed by walls, the roof being supported by pillars. Standing among the vast assemblage were cripples, lame persons and halfraces of them had come a considerable distance to seek a cure for their deformities in the intercession of two martyrs who were being honored. No cures, however, are expected for a few days.

Lumber May Be Short.

New Brunswick lumbermen unite in the opinion that there will be not more than sixty or seventy-five per cent. of the lumber cut on the St. John River this coming winter that there was last season, and there have been few, if any, men sent to the woods yet to prepare for the opening of operations. Wages will not be as large this year as they were last year. It is expected that $30 will be paid. The stringency in the money market is one of the reasons for the present doubtful outlook of the lumbering business. Lumbermen find that they have to pay larger interest on loans. Then a presidential year in the United States as a rule is a poor year for lumbering, and lumbermen on this side will watch with interest the result of the elections. Then, again, the cut this year has been a heavy one, and the market is felt to be glutted, and will be more so at the end of the present sawing season.

Americans in Ontario.

There are only seven genuine United States citizens in Kingston entitled to the privileges of citizens of a foreign country in Canada. In all Ontario out of 5,000 or more persons of American birth, not more than 200 can register. The rest have lost their rights, as they vote in Canada and do business here. They must pay taxes, as they get Canadian protection and advantages. They had not taken the oath of allegiance, but through Canadian carelessness they vote on property qualification, some of them also voting in United States elections. In Kingston there are 550 Americans, but only seven are registered. It is said that the demands of citizenship will shut out many more living in Canada from service on United States vessels.

What Lunch Hour Means to New York's Finest District.

When one descends upon Wall street, either from the Broadway slope of Trinity church or from the Nassau street hill, at noon-time any week day the air is fraught with many conflicting odors of the kitchen. From over the roofs of the adjoining curb folk waft down in the valley of Broad street there arises from a score of cookeries and "handouts" a decided smell of the steppet blended with the ever glorious onion. From the eaves of the New York Stock Exchange come the more pretentious fragrance of spiced meats and strong coffee. From the basement and attic alike, from cloud tickler and antiquated frame house as well, come all sorts of fuming evidences that the men of affairs are eating. To realize what this luncheon hour means to the thousands of persons who are in that small district of the city at this particular part of the day. Hundreds of restaurants meet the rush with their doors flung wide, and their keepers have grown rich upon nicotia and dimes that fall into their tills like a mighty raptan during those brief hours of midday. Men have grown rich and retired to palatial mansions in the suburbs selling cup custards and "slinkers" to millionaires, stenographers, clerks and bankers alike during the busy hour of two at noon. Thousands of pounds of meat, countless oysters and clams, barrels of gravy, unaccountable quantities of coffee and tons of bread are consumed every day in a very brief period of time, and here, of all other places, the foreigner has found justification for his criticism of Americans for fast eating.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

TALES OF CITIES.

Atlanta is planning to issue bonds for a new courthouse and a city hall to cost $800,000. Fifty per cent of Missouri's total revenue and 35 per cent of the taxes on property of various kinds are paid by the city of St. Louis. Many persons in New York city evidently think that business done in their proper names is not so well, for there are in Broadway and Sixth avenue forty-seven signs that give fictitious names of proprietors of stores. Electric clocks, regulated from a central station, are being installed in various prominent positions throughout Vancouver. In most instances they are fixed on the tall electric light masts at the intersections of the principal streets. Each clock has four dials which have no figures for the hours, but instead black squares for the III, VI, IX and XII and black strokes for the intermediate hours.

GLEANINGS.

In 300 balloon ascents there is on an average one fatal accident. In some London hotels the waiters receive as much as $2,500 a year in tips. A Munce (Ind.) farmer, arrested on a charge of intoxication, was allowed by the magistrate to be his own judge. He fined himself $10 and paid it without taking an appeal. In accordance with an ancient custom dating from the time of Frederick the Great any officer in the German army who falls from his horse at a review is bound to offer a banquet to his brother officers in the regiment.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

The value of the world's railways is put at $27,775,000,000. Many trolley cars in Canada have entrances in the middle of the car. Of 403 accidents last year on the Washington traction lines 217 were the result of getting off moving cars backward, and 210 of the people thus injured were women. A short stretch of railroad belonging to the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad company is being laid in northern Wisconsin on which various methods of preserving ties by chemical treatment will be put to the test of practical use, with the co-operation of the United States forest service.

CROP NOTES.

This year's peanut crop is valued at $15,000,000. Noble county, Ind., has raised over half a million bushels of onions this year. Adams county stands at the head of the counties of Pennsylvania in the growing of apples and has become famous all over the country for its product. E. H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, estimates that the cotton crop this year will bring $200,000,000 into the south, or about 12 1/2 per cent more than any previous cotton crop has netted that section.

Political Pointers.

Some day perhaps all the voters will take the interest they should in primary elections.—Exchange. Between now and November, 1908, the proofreaders will have a lot of speeches to read.—New York Mail. Drawing the Line. "Have you got a good cook?" "Oh, yes, she's good enough, but her cooking isn't."—New York Life. A General Wall. Of all sad words that men can jar, The saddest are these: "The missing car."

THE PUBLIC GOOD (?)

Some months ago a paper published in Fredericton, backed up by one of a similar character in Halifax, tried to murder a man morally and politically and when the law would punish them for the attempt, they hid behind the questionable cloak of "the public good."

Russia has recently been murdering men by the wholesale and the plea is the same,—the public good. Count Leo Tolstoy arraigns the Czar and his government in most scathing terms, and this is what he thinks of this cowardly plea. "Everything," he says, now being done in Russia is done in the name of the public good.

And if this be so, then it is also all done for me, who live in Russia. For me, therefore, exists the destitution of the people, deprived of the first most natural right of man—the right to use the land on which he is born; for me the half million men torn away from wholesome peasant life and dressed in uniforms and taught to kill; for me that false, so-called priesthood, whose chief duty it is to pervert and conceal true Christianity; for me all these transportation of men from place to place; for me these hundreds of thousands of hungry workmen wandering about Russia; for me these hundreds of thousands of unfortunates dying of typhus and scurvy in the fortresses and prisons who do not suffice for such a multitude; for me the mothers, wives and fathers of the exiles, the prisoners and those who are hung, are suffering; for me are these spies and this bribery; for me the internment of these dozens and hundreds of men who have been shot; for me the horrible work goes on of these hangmen, at first enlisted with difficulty, but now no longer so loathing their work; for me exist these gallows, with well-soaped cords, from which hang women, children and peasants; for me exists this terrible embitterment of man against his fellow-man.

And being conscious of this, I can no longer endure it, but must free myself from this intolerable position. It is impossible to live so! I, at any rate, cannot and will not live so. That is why I write this and will circulate it by all means in my power, both in Russia and abroad; that one of two things may happen—either that these inhuman deeds may be stopped or that my connection with them may be snapped and I put in prison, where I may be clearly conscious that these horrors are not committed on my behalf; or, still better (so good that I dare not even dream of such happiness), they may put me, as on those twenty or twelve peasants, a shroud and a cap, and may push me also off a bench, so that by my own weight I may tighten the well-soaped noose around my old throat.

As we turn our attention to Quebec and the Terecentary, we cannot but think of what wonderful changes have taken place with the passing of time. The Plains of Abraham once the scene of bloody conflict between two nations, which ended in defeat to the French—now their descendants meeting as one in brilliant display. Together they acknowledge allegiance to the one head, and are loyal to the British flag and a French Premier today presides over the administration of Canada which his ancestors surrendered, commanding the respect if not the support of all parties and of all classes.

In order to play his political game a Tory paper of recent date—in big headlines, characterized the man whom the people today are delighting to honor as "The Master Corruptionist of the Continent." Shame! Shame! Let the party whose organ it declares itself to be, blush for it, as the paper, or they who manage it, know no shame. He is the one man above all others in political life whose personal honor is above reproach.

The people of Canada have at least ordinary intelligence and must resent being looked upon as either ignoramuses or fools, when they are neither. They are not to be deceived by red head-lines.

Parliament prorogued on the 20th with democratic simplicity after one hundred and seventy-two bills had received the Royal Assent, and a speech from the Throne which reviewed the work of the Session with favor, and congratulated the country on the promise of a continuance of plenty and prosperity. The Opposition called the speech a campaign document, but as there was no time for "Obstruction" they let it pass.

BY THE WAY

Picnic.

August 10th.

Remember the date.

Longboat, where was he?

It's an off day now when a J. P. is not appointed.

Latest news from the granite men: Maybe and maybe not.

One has to be an acrobat in order to negotiate Portage street safely.

Being in a pitiful minority the sardine packers must need assume the roll of calamity shriekers.

People who like to go to picnics may consider themselves engaged to go to St. George August 10th.

The situation between the granite manufacturers and their employes, we regret to say has not improved.

Business with the issuer of marriage licenses is extremely dull. We would suggest to the young men that they get busy and boom the matrimonial market.

Glorious weather at Lake Utopia. Free air, free fishing, free gunning, free everything "over the water and under the water" is yours while you're there.

The assortment of weather has made the farmer cheerful, hopeful and optimistic. Little as we may think of it the weather exerts a powerful influence on everything we do.

There are those who cherish a deep and abiding respect for the fishermen and the time will soon arrive when a certain element will realize that they have been laboring under a misapprehension of his merits.

The terms of the arrangement proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier for the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba will increase the area of the province to 252,211 square miles, which is 178,479 miles greater than its area at the present time.

We could wish nothing better for the county than a demonstration of real appreciation of the needs of the county, as a whole, by the members of the legislature, that would raise them above petty considerations and stir them to act for the good of all.

An Irishman was riding on the "L," the other day with a Protestant friend, and as he passed a Catholic church he lifted his hat, but no such deference was paid a Protestant church. "How is it that you take off your hat to a Catholic church," said his friend, and don't take any notice of a Protestant church?" "When you go away in the morning you kiss your wife good-bye, don't you?" replied the Irishman, "but you don't kiss the woman next door, do you?"

The residents of the town who use certain streets are unanimous in the belief that never before within their memory were these streets in such a deplorable condition, as they have been during this summer. The foolhardy efforts, the impracticable advice of the representatives of the Town Council, and the influences of rain seemed to have combined to the discomfiture of the traveling public, and resulted in profanity, loss of temper and utter disgust. There is no sense or logic in paying out money to support a purely ornamental street department and having things conducted as they are at the present time.

According to a writer in a contemporary magazine it is the fat men who get all the good things in life. They are conducted to the best tables at restaurants they get the corner seats in the theatre, and always seem to have enough money to get along without worrying. When a fat man enters a drawing room doesn't he always get the most comfortable chair? asks the writer. When his hat blows off on a windy day doesn't someone always run after it for him? No one expects him to get up in a bus or a train to give his seat to a lady—he would block the gang way if he did. Even his wife doesn't expect him to stoop to pick up things when she drops them. Everybody tells him their best stories because they like to hear him laugh.

The local merchant gives you credit when you want it, buys your produce and helps to pay the taxes. If you spend a dollar here you assist every person in town. If you send a dollar to a mail order house it goes to enrich a firm in a distant city.

If the recent strict enforcement of the emigration laws, was prompted by advice from here, it was a most contemptible piece of business, on the part of anyone who will employ means of this nature to bring about a settlement of labor troubles.

Anyone interested in farming should visit the farm of Mr. Daniel Matheson. The excellent buildings, improved farm machinery, stock, and the fine appearance of the crops all show proper and careful management.

The friends of this paper will please hand us in news items when they are fresh. We prefer not to publish a birth after the child is weaned, a marriage after the honeymoon is over, or the death of a man after his widow is married again.

The occupation of a merchant tailor is an important one in the makeup of a town's resources, as well made and well-fitting garments have become a necessity. Messrs. Hanson Bros. have a reputation for fine work that is more than local, and brings them trade from a distance.

"I am already a member of the Canadian Militia, being Honorary Colonel of the Royal Canadian Artillery and of the Queens Own Rifles of Toronto. I shall witness soon the parade of the Militia corps and I am sure I shall be as well pleased as I was with the conduct of the Canadian soldiers in South Africa." Lord Roberts at Quebec.

The provincial government in session last week, passed an order-in-council making some changes in the stampage rates on logs cut on crown land, the changes being in accordance with the recommendations of the surveyor general. The rates on fir, hemlock and hardwood logs were all placed at $1.25 per thousand feet the former rates being fir 80 cents, hemlock 40 cents and hardwood logs 80 cents. The stampage rate of railway ties was increased from 21-2 to 5 cents each and it was ordered that no white pine should be cut for use as railway ties.

The present depression in business does not prevent strangers with hard luck stories from soliciting money in town. The latest arrival was a young man, who told a plausible story of losing his hand in a saw mill. He was accompanied by a well known character from Calais who was evidently the banker of the concern, as all money was turned over to him as soon as collected. Reports from other places visited by the young man, would indicate that the funds were appropriated for supplies in the form of liquid nourishment rather than an artificial hand.

A cow moose came out of the woods last week and is now making its home with the cattle on Ira Porter's farm near Houlton. Crows have driven out to see the animal, which has apparently lost all of its wild instinct and stands quietly and unconcerned while the visitors pat its nose. The moose has been given the freedom of the place and seems contented to remain there.—Courier.

This may be the moose that made its headquarters at Wm. Fitzsimmons, Digbyquash, for sometime. During its sojourn there it frequently made trips abroad, but always returned, but its last trip has been prolonged somewhat longer than usual.

The body of an unknown man was found in the water at Beaver Harbor Wednesday, and was buried Thursday, under instructions from Dr. Alexander. It is thought the body was that of a man who lost his life some weeks ago from a pilot boat off Lepreau or of a man who was drowned a month ago in St. John harbor. There is no record of either body having been recovered.

The description of the body shows that the man was of stout build and about forty-five or fifty years of age. It was clothed in black serge pants, two thin flannel shirts, fine brown stockings, a heavy leather belt and strong elastic side boots with the words, "St. Vincent" on the straps. It is thought to have been in the water five or six weeks.

The body was picked up by Emory Paul and Albert Paul, following a report by Captain N. W. Ogilvie of the schooner Helen M., who saw it in the water at Beaver Harbor Lake on Wednesday morning.

When Ben Came Home

Vesta sunk wearily upon a shoe box and gazed forlornly about her. The last of the packing was accomplished. The last nail had been driven home into the shoe-box, which contained the books that were to be kept out for the new home. The rest of the beloved library remained in the cases, gaps showing where the selections had been made.

The corner of the lower shelf had been the resting place of the blue and silver Pilgrim's Progress ever since Vesta could remember, a book to be taken out Sunday afternoons and carried to the gentle mother, who patiently explained time after time the meaning of the fascinating word cuts.

There was a very large gap where the Encyclopedia had been. She had brought those with the eggs and butter money. As her eyes roamed over the partly filled cases she could fill every gap from memory.

And as it was with the books, so was it with the rest of the household belongings. Here and there a blank corner reminded her of some familiar object now stacked in the woodshed. Very little was to be shipped, for the way was far and freight rates were high. Tomorrow the neighbors would gather and John Perwin would hang out the red flag. By night-fall the house would be emptied and its contents scattered through the farm-houses for miles around.

Tears came unbidden to Vesta's eyes as she looked about. Her earliest memories were of the homely living room with its rag carpet and the comfortable rocking chairs on either side of the stove in winter or standing in front of the north windows in summer, when the double sashes were taken down and the wind blew through the house, softly scented by the blooms from the orchard on the other side of the well-kept fence.

It was the only home that Vesta had ever known. It seemed to the tired girl that she could never learn to love another half so well.

Until her mother's death, Vesta had been shielded from all troubles. After she had come back from the little burial ground on a hill, she had found occupation and forgetfulness overwrought imagination could conjure up the scenes of the past. She got his loss. She had even refused to marry Ben Folsom because she had considered it her duty to stay by her father and comfort him in his day. She could almost hear a voice left more than ever alone. Then her hands clutched the rough bark had come that terrible day, a year and a week after her mother's death, when her father had driven into the yard with Sadie Connors, who had been teaching school over at the corners, and had announced his marriage. Vesta tried to learn to love this gaunt, hustling woman, whose every trait was the antithesis of the woman whose place she took, but the new Mrs. Brewster had repulsed every advance. She hated young persons; she had married to be rid of them and she treated the stepdaughter with scant courtesy.

The ways of the household were amended to suit her radical tastes. The old rockers were sent to the attic as too old-fashioned, and two upholstered monstrosities had taken their places. The other memorials of Vesta's mother quickly followed the rockers to the garret, and the house was completely changed in appearance as were the occupants in their attitude toward each other.

And now even the old homestead was to be given up. The fertile farm was to be sold, and the household goods to be auctioned off. Mrs. Brewster had decided that the Northwest afforded greater opportunities for her husband, and they were to move to Manitoba and start afresh in the wheat belt.

Mrs. Brewster hustled into the room. "Come and eat some supper," she commanded. "Don't sit there looking as though you were too weak to walk. I've done twice as much as you have today and I got the supper too, but I don't look half as tired as you do. Stop mooning there in the dark and come out and have a cup of tea."

"You'll be hungry by and by," she said sharply. "There'll be some cold things in the pantry, but I'm not going to make any more tea."

She hustled out and left Vesta to herself. Wearily the girl rose from the box and left the house. She could hear her father laughing and joking with her stepmother, and the noise of mirth fell offensively upon her ears.

The dusk was deepening to dark and the air was chill, but Vesta did not feel the need of a shawl. She wandered down the road, past the white gate to the little bridge that spanned the creek.

Here she loved to lean upon the rail and watch the sunset over the fertile fields. The sun had long since dropped below the hills, but the girl's overwrought imagination could conjure up the scenes of the past. She got his loss. She had even refused to marry Ben Folsom because she had considered it her duty to stay by her father and comfort him in his day. She could almost hear a voice left more than ever alone. Then her hands clutched the rough bark had come that terrible day, a year and a week after her mother's death, when her father had driven into the

it her duty to remain with her father and console him for his loss. She thought of the sharp-faced woman who was sitting opposite him at the kitchen table, discussing their new home in the west, and then she thought of the gentle-faced woman who still lived in her daughter's heart, even if not in her husband's.

So lost was she in her thoughts that she never heard the quick tread of an approaching pedestrian, nor heeded his presence until a brown hand closed over her slender fingers. "Did I startle you?" demanded Ben, as she started back with a cry. I was on my way to your house. I got in this afternoon and heard the news. Do you want to go to Canada, Vesta?"

Slowly the girl shook her head. "I would rather die," she murmured passionately. "It is like a second burial to go away and leave mother up there on the hill all alone."

"And your father?" he asked gently. "Do you still feel that he needs you more than I do?"

"How much do you need me?" she demanded shyly.

"So much that I have come almost across the continent to ask you again if you will marry me," he declared. "I have done well out West; far better than I anticipated. I can buy the farm, perhaps we can arrange with your father to buy the furniture, too, and we will make a new home where the old one was. Are you willing, dear?"

"Not for the sake of a home," said Vesta, softly, "but because you want me, Ben and because I want you, too, dear."

The Bishop's Experiment

It was his sympathy with the masses and his desire to help solve a great problem that induced Bishop Potter to join the movement to establish the subway saloon some years ago. The subway was a real saloon. It sold real intoxicants at a real price. It differed from another saloon only in the fact that no inducements were held out to men to drink more than was good for them, nor were treating and loafing encouraged. The subway was a sociological experiment. It failed. Its failure, however, taught some minor lessons. One was that a saloon will draw patronage only from those classes to which it makes its appeal. The subway failed, because it asked for the trade of coal heavers on a reformed-spelling, no-profanity and strictly grammatical platform. He didn't feel at home in an atmosphere of such refinement and he soon dropped away. When he had dropped away sufficiently, the subway was closed. It is not to be supposed that the stevedore, coal heaver or roust-about quit drinking. He only moved on to another saloon where he could be more at home. This experience taught the sociologists that they must not talk down to the people they want to help. They have got to get down to the lower level and work up.—Minneapolis Journal.

How to Keep Juice in a Pie

Anyone who has ever had this juice from an apple, rhubarb or other pie run all out into the oven while baking knows just how annoying it is. I have overcome the difficulty by taking a strip of clean white cloth, about an inch wide and long enough to lap when put around the edge of the pie plate. When the pie is baked, take off this rim, and you will find the juice in the pie instead of in the oven.—From Woman's Home Companion for June.

Where Mother Is

Old fashioned flowers, with fragrance sweet,
Bloom where mother is.
Life's a psalm, a song replete
With joy where mother is.
There all woes and sorrows cease,
Naught but rest and heavenly peace
Dwells, where mother is.

The jostling crowd, the wearing din,
Are not, where mother is.
The flaunting rags of shame and sin
Reach not, where mother is.
Heart-sick, brain-tired, nerve-racked soul,
Before rhy tear-dimmed eyes a goal
Exists, where mother is.

All grief and doubt and unbelief
Flee, where mother is.
Hope and faith and sweet relief
Come, where mother is.
Mother, mother, name most sweet,
Heaven guide my weary feet
Home, where mother is.
—Maxwell's Talisman.

Arm in Arm With Father

Not long ago we saw a beautiful young lady walking arm in arm with her dear old father. They were loving chums, as interested in conversation as if they had been sweet-hearts, and the young lady showed by every act that she considered it a privilege and a benediction to be the companionship of the one who had given the best years of his labor and thought to provide her with the many accomplishments she possesses. Here was the beautiful dawn of a glorious day side by side with the gray shadows of sun disappearing—morning and evening hand in hand. The contrast was beautiful and inspiring. What thrills of love and pardonable pride this old man must have felt throbbing in his bosom when he realizes that his lovely daughter so loves him that she is only proud to have him for her companion anywhere, any time. He is glad that he has lived to be of use to his own, and now she loves and respects him, and is not ashamed that others should know it. His later years are filled with joy, and he bravely faces the sunset of life made sweet by the loving gratitude of his children.—South Florida Sentinel.

Infidelity is a moral Desert of Sahara: nothing grows in it but sand. What has it done? What light has it flashed into darkness? What hope has it given to the despairing? What pardon has it brought to guilt? What knowledge has it taught—what goodness shown? None. Nor can it. A negative has no positive force—an enunch might as well try to beget children. No; infidelity never raised a man or woman from sin. It never took a drunkard from the gutter, a gambler from his cards, or the fallen from a life of shame. It never found a man course or brutal in life and character, and made of him a kind husband and father. It never went into heathen lands among the morally deprived and lifted them out of their degradation to a high stage of civilization. It has never written down languages, translated literature or prepared text-books, or planted schools, or established seminaries and colleges. It has never founded hospitals for the sick or homes for the helpless. What discoveries has it made? Has it added anything to human happiness? Does it bring one ray of comfort to the chamber of death? The religion of Jesus has done this, and more, too. "The tree is known by its fruits."

A Kind Word

A kind word costs but little, but it may bless all day the one to whom it is spoken. Nay, have not kind words been spoken to you which have lived in your heart through years, and borne fruit of joy and hope? Let us speak kindly to one another. We have burdens and worries, but let us not, therefore, rasp and irritate those near us, those we love, those whom Christ would have us save. Speak kindly in the morning; it lightens the cares of the day, and makes the household and all its affairs move along smoothly. Speak kindly at night, for it may be before dawn some loved one may finish his or her space of life for this world, and it will be too late to ask forgiveness.

Closing Door Against Hindus

Ottawa, June 19.—With a view to restricting immigration from India to Canada, an order-in-council has been passed making it compulsory that every Indian immigrant 18 years of age, or over shall have in his possession at least two hundred dollars on landing in Canada. It is understood that the regulation is made with the consent of the British Government, although as a result of the regulations passed on the return of Mr. MacKenzie King from England and the action of the Indian authorities in discouraging any further immigration of Hindus to this country, the influx has practically stopped. The Government has found that there is still a loop hole or two by which Hindus, attracted by stories of high wages in British Columbia, might still get into Canada. In order to forestall any possible influx this summer the regulation has been passed.

The order-in-council does not specifically mention India as the country particularly affected by it, but it is couched in general language. India, however, is the only country to which it will apply.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Dixon's Wharf Repairs, North Head, N. ### Hints About Your Photograph

If you are not one of the people who always wear a smile, do not attempt to smile for the photograph. The result is likely to be unnatural and strained. For a full-length picture, throw your body from the waist upward. Don't wear your hat, unless your picture is to be just for the time. The style in hats changes rapidly, and what is correct now appears very odd a year later. Don't wear satin or silk. It comes out badly with its gloss and glimmer. Look at some of the old photographs in the big family album if you want to prove this. Velvet or wool is good wear for the photographer's point of view. You will look nice in white. Don't forget that gray reproduces as white, and yellow as a d like black. Lace is artistic and comes out splendidly. Do not arrange your hair too elaborately. If you are freckled, spot out the little "sun-kisses" with a little powder, and if your hair is really light, a touch with the powder puff will bring out its color in the photograph.

A peculiar catch was made near Canfield's mill yesterday, says the St. Augustine Record. The end of a hay binding wire carelessly dropped into the St. Augustine river caught and held a big trout for hours. A commotion in the vicinity of the wire was noticed, but the wire was not pulled up for several hours, and then the trout was discovered securely impaled on the end. All other fish yarns must take a back seat now, especially those printed by the editors of the Punta Gorda Herald and the St. Petersburg Independent.

Gilroy--Parsons is a liberal sort of fellow. He offered me a cigar just now. Butman--You didn't take it? "No." Then how do you know whether it was liberality or merely malice?

Severe Pains in The Groin

Trying Experience of a Well Known Citizen in St. John, N. B.

The case of Mr. Chas. F. Olive, for years foreman in the "Gazette" of St. John, N. B., is a striking evidence of the power of Ferrozone. No remedy has such a record for restoring sufferers from acute stomach and kidney trouble; it invariably does cure. "I have had kidney trouble and until quite recently I suffered orure. A few months ago my condition assumed a very serious form. I consulted several doctors, used different pills, but without the slightest benefit. I suffered from intense pain in the groin, and the increasing seriousness of my trouble prompted me to try Ferrozone. It gave me quick relief, and a half-dozen boxes cured Ferrozone I can recommend as a specific for disordered kidneys. Won't you try Ferrozone too, 50c. per box at all dealers in medicine."

The woman who reveals her inmost thoughts to her friend has no reason for complaint if that friend passes on her confidences to another. We cannot expect others to exert greater reticence than we do ourselves. There is responsibility in imparting our own secrets, as well as in keeping those of others. Many a broken friendship can be traced to nothing more than a repeated confidence, which should never have been bestowed in the first place.

Company Garb

To many of us seem to act on the principle that anything is good enough for those we associate with at home. They are "our folks" and it doesn't matter what we say or do, or how we say or do it, when no outsider is present. We have our every-day clothes and manners on then. When someone calls we put on our company garb, and are very different persons. We hardly know each other, so great is the transformation. We are polite to each other. We are a charming family, as our visitors probably think, because of the harmony that exists. But when the door is closed on our visitors we draw a breathe of relief and feel at liberty to relax in to our old ways again. We are so unused to company ways that we do not feel at home in them. But this is all wrong. We ought to consider home and all the members of the household as entitled to the first consideration in all things. What are those we meet in society to us first we should take such pains to be agreeable to them and neglect those who have the strongest claim upon us? It all comes about because we have got into a wrong way of thinking. We have put the home into the background when it should occupy the foremost place in our thoughts. We should strive to make ourselves such pleasant members of the household band that our absence is like the loss of the sunshine from a summer day. We can do it and we will do it if we enter into the right spirit--the spirit of home. The idea seems to exist among us that to be polite to each other in the family circle is foolish and like-putting on airs. We must rid ourselves of this notion and act on the principle that whatever helps to make our inter-course pleasanter outside the family circle should be brought into use there. We should avail ourselves of any and everything that can be used to advantage in our daily inter-course. It is no exhibition of airiness to say "thank you," or "if you please." These little courtesies are indications of refinement, and costing nothing, they help to make the wheels of life move more smoothly. It is not in elaboration's attempts at politeness that true genuine feelings of the heart which is interested in the welfare of others. Our company politeness is generally superficial because we care little or nothing for those we try to be polite to. It is assumed. But if we are interested in those at home and are anxious to make their lives pleasant, we will endeavor to give expression to that interest, and in doing a really polite thing for such feelings. The cultivation of this expression will be the best possible education in true politeness.

Hest prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to off-set the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually see the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by All Dealers.

Carleton Sentinel--The Hazen Government by its scheme of appointing vendors of school books has with a few exceptions deliberately taken away from every Liberal shopkeeper in the Province the privilege of selling school books.

The first thing we know Mr. Hazen and Mr. Flemming will be appointed Tory vendors of tea, sugar and molasses.

Not so very much fault might be found with the school book policy if this partisan vendor aspect were eliminated.

OLD CLOTHES AND NEW.

They were opening the box in the sitting room at West Holden when Alice Brent came in, breathless. She was a slender girl, with soft eyes. "How glad I am I got home in time," she said. "I was just in time to see you. It's a family-trait to be enjoyed together."

A Verse From Solomon's Tale of a Marriage Engagement. When she left her home to the small town to come to New York to take up a special course of study her pet sister was just the one to make a proper introduction.
