

TALK OF THE THEATRE.

THE presentation of the Crust of Society gave theatre goers in this city who have not been used to seeing the best acting with all the complete accompaniments of excellent stage management, an opportunity to enjoy a treat in this particular line.

A gentleman connected with the management of the opera house thought it was rather unfair of PROGRESS to ask last week whether in the light of the advance notices, gentlemen would take their lady friends to see the "Crust of Society."

"It is a play that deals very plainly with the shady life of very shady people." "It is not such a play as a young girl would care to take her grandmother to see."

"It tells a story of unbridled and doubtful morals, of the masques and mummeries of men and women whose day begins when the angelus of evening is ringing. It breathes a light upon abnormal lives, upon the feverish chases of gluttony and folly."

Signora Duse, the famous Italian actress, has taken London by storm. She is small, puny, thin, flat figured, somewhat hoarse-voiced and allow complexioned, but with two eyes which could only belong to a woman of genius.

of her power. It is human nature at work in its most natural and intense form. And she has accomplished all this conquest over her metropolitan audiences in a foreign tongue, which few of the spectators follow perhaps with ease or comfort, and that, too, in pieces which are almost stale upon the stage.

Moncton's Prominent Citizens Speak Words of Praise. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," the proof of the virtues of "Groder's Syrup," as a cure for dyspepsia, in all its forms, is the unanimity with which it is endorsed by prominent citizens throughout the country.

Moncton, the hub of the Intercolonial Railroad, has a score of leading citizens who bless Groder's Dyspepsia Cure every day of their lives for the strength, vigor and happiness it has given them.

Among the number is Mr. A. Busby, one of the most widely known railway men in Canada. A year ago he had to ask for superannuation because of failing health.

During all this time he was under treatment for heart trouble, and instead of improving was losing strength. He sank lower and lower, and to use his own words "received no relief until he commenced to use "Groder's Syrup."

When our representative called upon Mr. Busby, on July 3, he found him watering the flowers in his garden. He looked quite well and hearty, for a man who had just recovered from such a succession of dangerous attacks.

He was profuse in his praise of "Groder's Syrup," and said that he had only taken three bottles of it altogether, and felt almost entirely well. He was then about to commence the fourth bottle, and was sanguine that he would be as well as ever in his life before it was empty.

Alderman Givan, who has served his city for ten years, is surely a well-known man. His experience with "Groder's" reads almost as a fairy tale. Dyspepsia held him in its chains. Those chains are broken now. The liberator is again the popular family favorite, "Groder's Syrup." His statement in full will appear later.

The Church School for Girls at Edgehill., WINDSOR, NOVA SCOTIA.

Church School for Girls, Edgehill, Windsor, N. S., May 23, 1893.

THE Church School for Girls at Windsor has just closed the second full year of its establishment under the auspices of the Synods of the Dioceses of Nova Scotia and Fredericton. The remarkable success of this Institution leads to an inquiry as to its clientele. Considering the patronage of the two Synods of the Anglican church in the Maritime Provinces, to whom this Institution owes its inception, it is to be supposed that it numbers among those who entrust their children to its training, well known and it may be distinguished names. We gather the information sought from the beautifully illustrated "Calendar of the Church School for Girls," just issued, and, indeed, presented to the parents of pupils on the day of closing the second full academic year, namely, on the 20th June, 1893. The Calendar too, contains the names of the prize winners, to whom we shall presently refer. An examination of the Register which we subjoin, shows that 46 pupils came from Nova Scotia; 23 from New Brunswick; 6 from Quebec, 3 from New York, U. S.; 2 from Prince Edward Island, and 1 from Ontario, making 81 pupils in all.

Physical Training.

We learn from the Calendar that the Trustees are desirous that special attention be given to Physical Culture, chiefly on the ground that a good serviceable mental education is inseparable from bodily health and systematic training. Apart from these considerations, ease and grace in movement and bearing is a most desirable acquisition, and a gift or a refinement which often produces beneficial influence. Every encouragement is therefore given to Calisthenics and out-door exercises. The instruction comprehends: 1. Arena Drill or Figure Marching. 2. Physical Drill. 3. Indian Club Exercises. 4. Dumb Bell Exercises. 5. Bar Bell Exercises. 6. Wand Exercises. 7. Fencing.

The Staff.

The Staff includes the Lady Principal, Miss Machin, assisted by seven resident Governesses and four non-resident teachers. The religious instruction is supervised by the Rector of Windsor. The Lady Principal is also assisted in household duties by a competent Housekeeper. Including domestics, daily provision has to be made for eighty individuals, apart from the day and occasional pupils attending the school. The branches of education taught in the Church School for Girls, comprehend all that is required for the training and instruction of young ladies. The Calendar enumerates seventeen English branches in the English course. It also informs us that during the past year, there were 72 pupils who took French, 15 Latin, 6 German, 65 Pianoforte, 15 Voice Culture, 36 Class Singing, 19 Drawing, 4 China Painting, 21 Painting, 67 Calisthenics, 11 Needlework, 33 Dancing, and 2 Violin. "Dressmaking" was introduced last Michaelmas term with satisfactory results.

The School Buildings.

In order to accommodate and provide for the comfort and maintenance of eighty constant residents, commodious buildings are required. The illustration at the head of this notice, shows a part only of the handsome building which has been erected in the midst of the beautiful grounds at Edgehill at a cost of $80,000. But if the exterior is attractive, and leads to anticipations of what the interior may be, critical scrutiny throughout the building from roof to basement, will show that the designers have been careful in those details which parents seek, when entrusting their children to Institutions far removed from home. Healthy sleeping apartments, well warmed and well lighted, are now required. All the rooms in the new building at Edgehill are twelve feet high; all are heated with hot water and lighted with electric incandescent lamps. There are open fire places in the large corridors for ventilation and comfort. In the large Dormitories every pupil has a cubicle embracing 60 square feet, which is her own little room. In the numerous lesser dormitories three and four girls, according to the dimensions of the room, are accommodated, and in all cases each girl has her own iron bedstead, wardrobe, washstand and bureau. The illustration, from a photograph, shows the disposition of the Radiator and electric light in the bedrooms. Each Radiator is provided with a valve so that the temperature can be regulated at will, and ventilation is secured by means of adjustable transoms. Every pupil is responsible for the neatness of her household belongings as long as she remains at the School—all being treated alike in regard to these temporary belongings; daily inspection is a gradual, but most efficient training towards habits of order, neatness and cleanliness.

The Class Rooms.

Besides the large School-Room, there are seven capacious Class-rooms, in which the different classes assemble during School hours for their special work. Some of the Class-rooms are provided with "Students' Chairs," others with ordinary chairs, and with desks, according to the requirements of the studies engaged in. But something more than School-rooms and Class-rooms are required for the comfort of a large number of young ladies and children. In-doors they have a capacious Gymnasium, and a pleasant Library and Reading-room. Out of doors they have extensive pleasure grounds, covering about four acres, in which are two Lawn Tennis grounds, one 250 feet long by 100 feet broad, the other 250 feet long by 61 feet broad. They are level as a floor and covered with a uniform sward of grass.

in area, has been constructed in the School Field adjoining the Recreation Grounds. For growing children a plentiful supply of pure milk is a desideratum. To meet the School requirements in this important particular, special attention is given to the Dairy. The Dairy has yielded upwards of 12,000 quarts of milk during the last School year, the whole of which has been consumed in the establishment, comprising 80 individuals. A capacious Laundry has been erected on the School Grounds. It is provided with modern apparatus and drying rooms, in which all the Laundry work for the entire establishment is efficiently and speedily performed, and upwards of one hundred dozen articles are received from the School and returned to it with the utmost regularity every week during term.

Physical Training, May 23, 1893.

Instantaneous Photography comes to our aid in describing the Course of Physical Training at Edgehill. The illustration speaks for itself. The Gymnasium is used in Winter and in wet or damp weather. But on fine days in Summer the Exercises take place on the lawn. It is especially worth noticing that the place and surroundings where the Pupils go through their Summer open air Exercise is of no mean Historic Interest and import. In the centre of the illustration may be recognized the Library of King's College, which contains a large number of very valuable Books. Among these are the Breviaries and Missals of the Acadian Priests, who served in the Parish of the Assumption before Halifax was founded or Windsor thought of. The whole of the country about Windsor on the South side of the Avon River formed the Acadian Parish of the Assumption, one hundred and sixty years ago, and all the country round was thickly settled by the Acadians before their deportation in 1755, and is full of interest in its bearings upon the history of the Early occupation of Nova Scotia, then called Acadia. In addition to the Lawn Tennis Court, the grounds South and East of the building are chiefly in grass plots with terraced walks on the South and East sides, extend-

The Library. The comforts of both pupils and teachers are attended to in another way which is specially worthy of note. Within the walls of the establishment is a large and well supplied Reading room and Library. It is situated in the old building, and commands views of both the Lawn Tennis grounds. When the pupils are at their exercises or games the Library is a delightful outlook. A list of Prizes and Prize Winners will be found on Second Page.

PROGRESS. EDWARD S. CARTER, EDITOR. Progress is a sixteen page paper, published every Saturday, from the Masonic Building, 55 and 57 Germain street, St. John, N. B. Subscription price is Two Dollars per annum, in advance.

SIXTEEN PAGES. AVERAGE CIRCULATION 12,220. HALIFAX BRANCH OFFICE: KNOWLES BUILDING, GEORGE STREETS. ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, JULY 8.

SPECULATION FOR SALARY. The Dominion statistician, Mr. GEORGE JOHNSON, doubtless feels that he is bound to make as good a show as possible for the salary he receives, and it is his custom to elaborate his census bulletins with deductions of his own on the figures he manipulates.

These figures indicate—that, marriage has a more beneficial influence upon men than upon women—though upon both it diminishes the tendency to insanity—and that the loss of the life partner tells more seriously upon the woman than upon the man.

WHY THE GIRLS WIN. The Globe discussed the St. John grammar school question a day or two ago, and came to the conclusion that something more than a building is needed in order to secure better results from the pupils.

SHE IS NOT A MARTYR. Mrs. JANE STEVENS was recently acquitted on a trial of manslaughter, because there was no direct evidence that the orphan girl, MADEL HALLETT, died from the effects of the cruel treatment she was proven to have received.

to contend against the odds of wholly insufficient accommodation, and the more glaringly inadequate when compared with the quarters provided for the girls' high school. The board also took other things which they appear to have had no warrant in taking for the benefit of the girls.

of party politics, finds something to comment on in the fact that the municipality of Westmorland has been put to about four thousand dollars of expense in the matter, and thereupon remarks: The Stevens manslaughter case did not amount to much before the jury. But it comes to something before the municipal council, which has to provide for the payment of the bills.

But why should not the boys win the medals from the girls? For several reasons. It is within the bounds to say that many boys graded into the grammar school have not been up to the proper standard. This is the fault of the grading school, but the grammar school has to take the consequences.

When all this is considered there may be less talk of the alleged inferiority of the boys as compared with the girls, and less surprise that the latter succeed in carrying off the honors. Considering all the circumstances, it would be surprising if the results were otherwise, whoever might be in charge of the grammar school.

A SCOTT ACT FAILURE. In a recent number of the London "Church Times," Rev. JAMES SIMPSON, priest incumbent of St. Peter's Cathedral, Charlottetown, corrects some misapprehensions which have been current to the liquor traffic in that city.

The regular quarterly meeting of McLeod-Moore Conclave, No. 13, of England and Wales, will be held on Monday evening next, when degrees will be conferred in form. Preparations are making for obtaining the paraphernalia necessary for the full elaboration at an early day of the impressive ritual of this ancient and select order.

Anybody who visited Charlottetown during the prevalence of the Scott act, will be very ready to accept this statement. The act was an acknowledged failure there, and groggeries of the worst kind flourished at all hours of the day and night.

Everybody Recognizes Them. Among the recent portraits executed by that well known firm of Messrs H. C. Martin & Co. are those of Mayor Beckwith of Fredericton, the late Thos. F. Raymond, former secretary of the General public Hospital, and the late Judge Botford of Moncton.

PELHAM'S PARAGRAPH. "The Sun, which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoicing as a strong man to run a race. His going forth is from the end of the Heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it. And there is nothing hid from the heat thereof."

It is a pleasure to feel that at last—thanks to the kind hearts and noble efforts of sundry ladies and gentlemen—we have established here a "boys' industrial home," where youthful offenders against the law may be properly looked after and taught the errors of their ways instead of being transformed into "convicts" at once.

They are Worth Much. It is seldom that any medicine company can get the well known people who are benefited by its use, to say a word to the people about it. PROGRESS has no second opinion of the value of what Mr. Busby, Mr. Pick, and Ald. Givan, of Moncton, say about Groder's Syrup, on the second page of this issue.

A Cute Kid. A well known captain, who sails out of St. John, returned home one day last week, after a year's absence. Picking up his favorite child, a bright little tot of five summers, he was surprised to find that her weight and stature had not increased as it should.

Everybody Knew Him. The sudden death of Mr. J. Louis McCoskey, on Thursday, caused a great deal of sad surprise, as until very recently he had enjoyed excellent health. "Lou" as everybody called him, was one of the best known young men in St. John for the past twenty years, dating from the time when he was a boy in Chubb's stationary store when Chubb's corner was in its glory as the centre of the business life of St. John.

Not Yet Done Fighting. A special to PROGRESS from Halifax states that in the case of the aldermanic assault case, referred to more fully on the ninth page of this issue, Magistrate Motton has dismissed the complaint, but Mr. McGowan proposes to continue the fight by an appeal to the county court.

The Trick Cyclist Coming. The St. John Cycle company has made arrangements for the coming of Maltby, the famous bicyclist trickster, about July 25. He will be worth seeing by every one interested in the wheel.

Found a Rich Gold Mine. LOWER JORDAN BAY, N. Y., July 3.—Mr. Samuel Locke, of this place, has just discovered a gold mine here that pans out 100 per cent of pure metal to the ton. It was a rich vein of sound health to which he was restored by the use of Dodd's kidney pills, and which he would not exchange for any other mine in America.

POEMS WRITTEN FOR "PROGRESS." In the Sun's Deep Bed. The war ship "Victoria" collided with the war ship "Camperdown" in the Mediterranean sea, June 22, 1893, and foundered, embarking 400 men including Admiral Tryon and many officers.

They are Worth Much. It is seldom that any medicine company can get the well known people who are benefited by its use, to say a word to the people about it. PROGRESS has no second opinion of the value of what Mr. Busby, Mr. Pick, and Ald. Givan, of Moncton, say about Groder's Syrup, on the second page of this issue.

Books and Reviews. The St. John readers of "Donahoe's Magazine" will be interested especially in the July number on account of one of the papers being by Rev. Thos. C. McGoldrick. He treats of St. John's Seminary at Brighton, near Boston, where students are educated for the priesthood, and his paper, which is fully illustrated is very readable indeed.

MAUGERVILLE. July 4.—Maugerville Division Sons of Temperance held a very successful "Basket Social" in their hall last Wednesday evening. Arthur Harrison, son of C. B. Harrison, M. P. P., left last Wednesday for Chicago, where he has accepted a position in a railroad office.

ST. GEORGE. July 4.—A very interesting event took place in the R. C. church on Thursday afternoon when the marriage of Mr. Tomon of Calais and Miss Fannie Murray was solemnized. The bride was very handsomely attired in white crepon and lace with white hat trimmed with feathers.

SHELBURNE. July 4.—Mr. and Mrs. H. Sorrett and Miss A. Jodrey of Bridgewater are spending the summer at Shelburne. Miss Pelton who has been spending a few weeks in town returned home on Tuesday.

HALIFAX NOTES.

Among the events of last week left unrecorded owing to Dominion Day taking precedence...

The very great novelty of an orange tea and reception given on the Academy stage at the close of the performance had a good deal to do with the large audience at the matinee last Saturday.

At today's matinee she will present her photo-graph to everyone as a farewell souvenir.

The band of the Liverpool regiment has begun its Saturday afternoon concerts in the public gardens, and curiously enough plays to an audience solely composed of mothers, children and nursesmaid.

The quantity of small picnics and out-door excursions of late have been enormous.

Mr. Montgomery Moore will arrive from England via Rimouski on Sunday next.

His Lordship the Bishop of Nova Scotia has returned from Toronto.

The Archbishop of Halifax and Father Murphy visited the French man of war, the "Magon" on Monday, and luncheon on board.

Rev. T. and Mrs. Duncan are making a visit to their daughter, Mrs. H. G. Beall.

Miss L. Wood, who is visiting relatives in the United States, has just returned to the city.

Invitations are out for two teas next week; one on Tuesday at the residence of Mrs. J. Y. Patten.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Jones gave a large garden party at Bloomingdale, N. W. Arm.

Among the more striking gowns was that worn by Mrs. Geoffrey Morrow, rather a complicated affair in black and pink, and very handsome.

The Misses Payton had with them Miss Richardson, who was much admired for her pretty green and white frock.

On Monday the Y. M. C. A., excursion to Tatamagouche was largely patronized, and all who went were delighted with the day's outing.

The only wedding that has graced the "month of roses," came of Wednesday afternoon in the Baptist church.

The opera itself was very pretty, and went smoothly and without a hitch from start to finish.

The Misses Churchill, of Hantsport, played a violin duet, More's "Fete Symphony," and gave as an encore an air from "Il Trovatore."

Dr. Allen returned home on Saturday from Ottawa, and also visited the Fair while gone.

Mr. Charles Fullerton, of Halifax, made a short visit home last week.

Mr. Weeks and family have gone to Tidnish to spend several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Rogers, Miss Cutler and Mrs. Ames Pardy, have gone on a short fishing trip to Simpson's Lake.

The Rev. Cuthbert Willis of Halifax, assisted Mr. Ruggles with the services at Christ church on Sunday, June 26th, and the Rev. Foster Alison of Trinity occupied the pulpit last Sunday in the morning, and the Rev. Lawrence Skey in the evening.

MONCTON.

(Progress is for sale in Moncton at the Moncton Book Store, Main street, A. H. Jones, and by J. E. McCool.)

JULY 5.—The Dominion Day celebration was in every way successful, the town was full of visitors, the weather perfect, and the procession, the sports at Outlook and Recreation Parks, and the display of fireworks in the evening of a character which would have been creditable to a much larger city than Moncton. It seemed as if Moncton reversed the Italian order of procedure, inasmuch as the carnival followed Lent, instead of Lent following the carnival, because we had barely time to spend the pasting guests of the ministerial persuasion, and shake off the solemn feeling of responsibility that the conference brought with it, before we were welcoming the carnival guests. A moment of the visitors were Mr. Arthur Boyd of St. John, formerly of the Bank of Montreal here, who spent Saturday and Sunday in town, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Peters, of Alma street. Mr. A. M. Borden of Amherst, also a former resident of Moncton, spent the holiday in town.

HIS PLAUSIBLE STORY.

A SWELL ENGLISHMAN WHO HAS BEEN VISITING HALIFAX.

Says He Is the Son of a Baronet and Has Had a Row with the Old Man—His Financial Methods—The Case of the Shoulder-Hitting Alderman.

HALIFAX, July 5.—Some Halifax people can be made to believe anything plausible a stranger may say if only he say, it with a decidedly military English accent of the officer type. An instance of this was the case of a well-dressed Englishman who recently obtained cash on bogus checks from Hon. D. C. Fraser, M. P., of New Glasgow, from the clerks of the Halifax and Queen Hotels, and from others. The Queen people had this adventurer sent to jail under a capias for ten dollars and he was kept there for a week or more when liberty was given him because the imprisonment had proved fruitless in drawing forth ducats. The day following his liberation from jail, the man, who travelled under a variety of noms de plume, nearly secured another victim, and to a certain extent he did.

His capture was no other than C. H. Cahán, M. P. P., leader of the provincial opposition and editor of the Halifax Herald, for he it was who this time ministered to the Englishman's necessities.

The enterprising young man had obtained his cash from Mr. Fraser and the hotels under the names of Buchanan and Bennett. To Mr. Cahán he gave yet another name representing himself to be an English officer on leave in Canada, unfortunately short of funds. He wanted Mr. Cahán to lend him $25 for a week or so, but the talented writer and ardent politician did not know the applicant was the bogus check-manipulator of the week before, and received him kindly. He was on the point of advancing the money and even had his hand on his pocket-book, but on second thoughts he took time to consider the donation. In the interval he found out something of what his chief had previously done, and when the seeker after funds again called for his twenty-five he was peremptorily asked to explain. The explanations were promptly forthcoming and were seemingly perfectly satisfactory to Mr. Cahán, but instead of handing over the cash, he placed the man at a hotel, doubtless rendering himself responsible to the landlord for the board-bill. The "explanations" were that his name was, after all, plain "Captain Borman" of the British Army; that he was the son of Sir John Innes, Bart.; that he had had a terrible row with Sir John and had therefore left the old man, his father, never to look upon his face again if he could help it, but that, at the same time he would accept remittances from the irate paternal relative. These statements of his aristocratic relationship were doubtless pure fictions. In fact, it is said that Mr. Cahán has now ascertained to be such, but he still holds to the opinion that his new-found friend, Borman, is at least well connected in England, so he keeps him at the hotel waiting for something to turn up. Perhaps C. H. C. is right, but if "Mr. Borman" goes to St. John, kindly disposed, and sensible people will do well to keep clear of a man about medium height, fair stout, rather good looking, with light moustache, and with a rather pleasing accent and address, but who will be found to be very "fond of a drop."

Chief O'Sullivan's campaign against the liquor sellers, who keep open after hours, continues with unabated vigor. He now has Water street law abiding and in terror. He made a raid into unexpected territory the other day, coming alarmingly close to the Halifax and Queen hotels and the handsome St. James billiard-room on Hollis street. The Chief sent Deputy Chief Nickerson into Chas. Woolnough's at ten o'clock at night. This is the well-known "Pictou house," and is patronized almost exclusively at night by those who leave the Academy of Music open acts "to see a man." From time to time Chas. Woolnough has gone along un molested, selling pretty much as he pleased as regards hours, etc. The saloon is a nice one, conveniently situated and well conducted, but the law says it must be closed at nine o'clock, and that is what Chief O'Sullivan says he will see shall be done. Now Mr. Woolnough will for the first time, pay a twenty dollar fine because he was open after hours when the police officer called, and the next time he is so open, he will pay again, for to save the appearance in court of witnesses who Nickerson found in the bar, "guiltily" will be the plea, and the fine will quietly be paid. Who'll be next?

The Alderman Hamilton—Truckman McGowan assault case came "quietly" up in the police court last week, but was adjourned till this week, when witnesses on both sides will be examined. The swelling on McGowan's face has largely disappeared. It is understood the alderman will plead in defence that he merely ejected the truckman out of his shop with some violence to the street, and did not strike him on the

AT THE DAVENPORT SCHOOL.

The Last Term Has Produced Very Satisfactory Results.

The presentation of prizes at the Davenport school for boys took place on Thursday of last week, and was attended by many friends of the school. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. Williams, Canon Brigstocke, Rev. P. Owen-Jones, head master and Hon. C. N. Skinner. The prizes were presented by His Honor Governor Tilley. The school has made very favorable progress since Rev. P. Owen-Jones became head master, and it will be seen by the following extracts from his address that he gives warm praise to the staff of teachers who have assisted in the work. Among other things he said:

It is out of my power to speak of the progress of the first year of the school's existence, but I can thankfully say that since last September there has been a steady increase in the number of pupils, an increase which we have every reason to believe will be much greater in the immediate future. Difficulties which at one time beset us, and even threatened our very existence have been one by one surmounted or removed, and in a variety of ways. The blessing of God, the determined friendship and faith for and in the school of its founders as shown by his noble generosity, the confidence of the public in him and the school which he founded before he left this city, the zeal and perseverance of all interested in its welfare, and last but not least the abilities and faithful work of the masters have each and all been factors in the steady progress of the school towards what I believe we all desire it to become, first class in every respect. The institution is too young to speak at any length of honours conferred upon it by those who have left our ranks, but still we do hear of good work being done by old boys.

The work which has been done by the boys during the past year speaks volumes for the ability and faithfulness of the staff as well as for the assiduity of the boys. We do not claim to have arrived at a state of perfection, but we do claim a very high standard both in our curriculum, and in the work which has been done. Without boastfulness I can say that in the highest form the examination just finished proves that we have now more than one boy who in many subjects could successfully compete with young men entering college. For instance if we take the fourth form in mathematics, which was an exceedingly hard examination, what boys would call stiff, the general average of the whole form combined was 73 percent, while if we exclude one, whose ability, run in the classics, the percentage runs up to 87 percent. And so in all the subjects taken as a whole throughout the school, the result has indeed surprised me. I am much prouder of the boys to-day than I was two weeks ago, and I confidently expect to be much prouder yet. I am glad to be able to say that among our number are several whose parents have signified their intention of sending their boys to college, and in the course of time, I know that we shall hear of them taking high rank among their competitors.

So far as health is concerned we are profoundly thankful to say that we have been very free from anything in the shape of sickness. One or two slight accidents, and one case of sickness during the year is all we have had. Our situation, our excellent accommodations, our sewerage, our water supply, the purity and wholesomeness of the food supplied, regular hours, and strict discipline, are all conducive to good health. At the same time it is as well to say that living as we do, just on the borders of the city, we have ready access at any time to the city, and can if we need assistance procure a physician or surgeon in a very few minutes. I look upon this as one of the very greatest advantages of a school in an isolated place outside of a city.

In our new year Calendar which is here for distribution you will find much information which will be of interest to them who have sons in the school and to them who are thinking of sending their sons.

The terminal reports give the number of marks obtained in each subject and the standing of the boys in these subjects as well as their rank in the forms.

Queer but True.

How could two persons be born at the same time and die at the same time at the end of fifty years, and yet one of them live one hundred days more than the other?

The answer turns upon the familiar fact that a person who goes round the world toward the west loses a day a year, while the person who travels in the opposite direction gains a day.

We will suppose, then, that the two men in question were born at the same instant in St. John, whence a trip round the world may easily be made once a year. One of them goes always toward the west, the other toward the east. One loses a day every year, the other gains a day every year. When the men die at fifty years of age one has seen one hundred days more than the other.

THE PRINCESS MARY OF TECK.

Described as a Domestic, Unaffected, Industrious Young Woman.

If the Princess Mary of Teck is possessed of one-half of the many virtues, charms of character, and graces of manner which are such a prolific subject of discussion in foreign papers, then England may well be proud of her future Queen. The descriptions of the quiet, simple, domestic life she has been leading at home are sweet pictures of industry, benevolence, and fresh, bright ways which seem to win for her many warm friends and the universal admiration of the public. She is ever active and industrious, devoting all her spare moments to some employment that will benefit those not so favored as herself, and never finds time for an idle moment. It is said that when visitors call at White Lodge she rises quietly during a pause in the conversation and says smilingly: "You will pardon me, I know, if I get my knitting and do some work while we talk. There is really so much to do it seems quite wrong to be idle." And often when alone with her home friends she wishes that half of the time which is wasted by many girls in doing nothing at all might be given to her as a present in addition to her own time. But she does not allow this simple needlework and knitting which she does for the "disinherited of the earth" to interfere with her interest in all intellectual things.

The Princess is talented, as well as sweetly good, and her cleverness shows itself in many lines. She plays the piano and the harp, and plays them well. Her voice has been well trained, and is sweet and sympathetic, although it is not powerful, and she speaks German and French as well as she does her native tongue. A short time ago she attended lectures on Elizabethan literature at Richmond in connection with the university extension movement thereby ranging herself with the extension students, and helping on showing the strongest determination to surmount their difficulties.

Among the large bundles of clothing sent by a generous public are some not exactly suitable, especially when it is borne in mind that the sufferers are all working men. Several white gait hats, a pair of velvet trousers with gilt stripes and bells at knee, numerous white vests and long yellow coolers do not appear to be in demand, though having a conspicuous place in the list of goods received. Imagine a man "dogging" logs on Babbitt's or Morrison's mill pond dressed in a white gait hat, velvet knee pants, and a six foot yellow cooler.

How would John Shark look loading slabs or carrying deals at the mills with a white vest on, his lower extremities sticking out two feet or more from a pair of bicycle pants while a red damask dressing gown with silk collar graces his weary shoulders?

The old saying that "the wife is the burnt hall," is apparently accepted by the traffickers.

Each alternate day the distribution of goods takes place, and then two ladies are conspicuous by their pugnacity. They make all give place to them and use elbows and tongues in a very efficient manner, worrying the committee to a great extent.

However the larger portion of the sufferers are well behaved and will come out of the fire heavy losers but determined to regain what they have lost.

more than the allowance. The generosity of one of the committee settled the matter at once. He called the destitute woman to one side and said: You get the order filled and I'll see that there is a stove at your house when you return.

He drove over to the city and bought and paid for a good stove and had it delivered. He did it very quietly but PROGRESS gets these things somehow and it may be said at once that Mr. Hubbard Nile was the committee man in question.

Mrs. A. comes in and addresses Mr. Simmons. "How much are you going to give me?" "Did you have any insurance?" is the query.

"Yes! We had a little, but you gave Mrs. B. an order and she had insurance."

"Mrs. B.'s insurance was taken by a mortgage and she had nothing left, while you have considerable. I cannot let you have an order to-day but may in a few days!"

"Mrs. A. with a spiteful toss of the head goes out and tells the first one she meets that old Simmons is feathering his own nest, he wouldn't give me an order but he lets Mrs. B. and such as her have all the money."

Another comes in. "Well, Mr. Simmons I've got rooms and if you can help me a little I'll get started all right. I heard you were giving a little help and a very little will do me and I will not have to go in debt."

"Did you lose anything?" "Yes, about all, but my husband is working and we will get along all right."

"How much do you want?" "Can you give me ten dollars?"

An order for ten dollars is given her and she departs well pleased. It invariably happens that those who were the heaviest losers take the matter the most philosophically and make the smallest demands while showing the strongest determination to surmount their difficulties.

one of the best educational movements of the time. In a sketch of Princess Mary's home one paper says: "Everything is pretty, from the entrance to the boudoirs. There is absolutely nothing of the chilling air of State departments about the house. It is simply a refined, beautiful English home."

An "Orange Wrapping."

Everybody knows that oranges come over to us wrapped neatly in tissue paper. Here is a description of the way I saw this done when in Florida some years ago.

Our party of tourists went to an "orange wrapping." A large warehouse was lighted up with candles placed along the walls, and all the help in the neighborhood was gathered.

In one corner of the room there were huge boxes filled with oranges. They were rigged with handles at each end, and it took two men to bring one of them in. On the opposite side of the room were long tables, behind which sat the "wrappers." The fruit was supplied to them by boys, who carried it in trays, putting a tray to every three men. Before each man was a package of tissue paper.

By a dexterous movement an orange was enveloped in a leaf of paper by one movement. As the fruit was wrapped it was dropped into another tray, which was carried to the "packers," who stood before a pile of empty crates.

Each orange was placed in the crate separately, being packed in those rows. A crate holds from 120 to 140 oranges.

The oranges are not brought direct from the grove to the packing-house, but rest a day or two in the drying-house. There they are spread over lattice shelves, where they go through a "sweating" process before they are ready for shipment.

WHY THEY TIRE OF LIFE.

QUAINT REVELATIONS FROM THE PARIS MORGUE RECORDS.

While Death Has All Seasons for Its Own, Suicides Are Most Common in the Spring—Old Reasons Given for Taking Leave of the World—Queer Letters Left.

It is a curious fact, but not more curious than true, as published statistics sufficiently show, that there are more dead bodies exposed at the Morgue in Paris during the months of April, May, and June than at any other time of the year says an English paper. For these three months there is now an average of eighty bodies a month; and it is a noticeable fact that the hotter the weather is in spring, the greater is the number of corpses laid out on the marble slabs of this far-famed mortuary. The cases of suicide predominate.

Since 1870 the deaths registered at the Morgue have increased to an alarming extent. During that year they numbered 675; fifteen years later, in 1885, the register showed 858 deaths; in 1889 there were 906 deaths; and last year there were 1,007 deaths; and this notwithstanding the fact that there has been little or no increase in the population of arrangements these last few years.

The Morgue has been considerably modernized, yet it appears that the refrigerating apparatus in use fails to meet the ever-increasing requirements. Previous to the adoption of this apparatus and other means of preservation, bodies were only allowed to remain exposed for seventy-two hours; but now they are retained so long as is required for the purpose of medical analysis, judicial inquiry, and identification.

There is a dissecting room at the Morgue, where the officials appoint surgeons and analysts examine every dead body before it is exposed for public inspection. It is in this room that an alleged assassin is confronted with his supposed victim. Should the examining magistrate fail to extract any confession of crime from the accused, the authorized surgeons or the analysts endeavor by anatomical research to "faire parler le cadavre"—"induce the corpse to speak." Forty years ago quite two-thirds of the corpses were not claimed or even identified, but this is no longer the case. A good many identifications are due to photos taken and affixed to the register in proximity to the entries relative to each subject taken to the Morgue, and also by the labelling and warehousing of the clothes and effects belonging to them. The two sexes have each their own register, which remains open and can be examined on any day and on Sundays—a great advantage to persons who cannot leave their work on other days.

Some quaint revelations have come to light from first to last, in connection with this mortuary. There is a story of a ring—an heirloom—which reappeared frequently at the Morgue on the finger of a successively he who inherited it. It was always recognized and duly claimed. Whoever wore it died a violent death. It was known by the officials as the fatal ring. Here is another story, vouched for on the authority of M. Macé. A young married couple were in the habit of visiting the Morgue every morning regularly at the same hour, for no better reason possibly than morbid curiosity. These visits extended over a period of two years, when the young wife suddenly disappeared. The husband continued his visits until the day when he saw his dear wife laid out on one of the marble slabs. Previously to drowning herself in the Seine, she had cut off all her hair and dressed herself in men's clothes, thinking thereby no doubt to disguise her identity.

Among the written statements which have been found in the pockets of persons who have committed suicide are some absolutely mystical. "Having seen too much of the 'known,'" says one, "I am going to seek the unknown." Another says, "Having had my fill of the miseries of this world, I should like to taste the delights of the other."

Here is a singular letter written by an unsuccessful inventor, who committed suicide so that the newspapers should write about him and his invention. The letter is addressed "To every one," and says: "My name is R. I am a native of Lyons, and I will kill myself voluntarily. I have never done harm to any one, and forgive those who have injured me. I have been 'on the spree'—fail la noce—up to the last hour of my life. As no valuables will be found on me it might be thought that I am the victim of foul play. Not a bit of it. I have made myself look as smart as possible and had my hair curled previous to taking my last big bath in the Seine. I am the champion of sensational advertising, and in the name of my own country take the shine out of every other country; for, never since the world was created has there been an inventor who killed himself in order that his invention might be known. An idea strikes me just as I am about to commit suicide. I am giving points to the Americans as an advertiser, for who ever heard of one of them killing himself for the purpose of 'booming his invention?'"

How numerous have been the persons of mark who, dying suddenly in the street or other public place, have been at once transferred and exposed at the Morgue! Magistrates have now been instructed to avoid pursuing that course as much as possible; while M. Guillot, Juge d'Instruction, has been insisting for some time past that it is advisable, in certain cases, that post-mortem examinations should take place at the residences of the dead, and he also strongly advocates the building of a separate hall for the purpose of these examinations in general, and bearing a name different from the sinister one, "The Morgue."

Magna Charta Explained.

Magna Charta comprehended most of those features which are now recognized as constituting the safeguards of civil liberty, together with several tending to the welfare of the community at large. It provided for the enjoyment of town charters, restricted the arbitrary exercise of power by the crown officers, in the matter of seizing supplies for the army; directed courts of justice to be held four times a year; forbade any man to be condemned save after a fair trial on the evidence of witnesses, declared that justice must be equal to all men, that no man should be outlawed by royal decree; that guardians must keep up the estates of their wards; that personal property must be taken for debt before real estate; that mechanics' tools and farmers' plows could not be taken for debt, and that weights and measures must be uniform. No "villain" or farmer was to be compelled to perform more service than his due; foreign merchants were to be allowed to trade with England; widows to remain such if they liked, and every man to be free to bequeath his personal property as he chose; though his realty must descend to his widow and children. Four clauses were added during the reign of Edward I. No taxes were to be levied without the consent of Parliament, no provisions to be taken for the King's army without the owner's consent; no duties to be levied on wool, and all liberties and customs up to that time enjoyed to remain in force.

IN THE QUARRIES OF PARIS.

Scenes that Recall Incidents in Modern Sensational Novels.

One of the most curious and deplorable sights in connection with pauperism during the winter in Paris is the influx of peripatetic beggars who invade at night the disused quarries of Argenteuil and Montmartre, where they huddle together, as close as they safely can, to the limekilns, in order to obtain a little warmth, says the Fall Mall Budget.

Along the suburban roads, in the direction of Paris, they can be seen in twos and threes bent double almost, and hungry, hurrying on, footsore, in hope of being in time to obtain a night's shelter in the sales in their long galleries—a whole army of de-nuit-night refugees—is not sufficient in those buildings to accommodate all applicants. Their hospitable doors are open only for a short time late at night, and when once they are closed all entreaties for admission are rigorously unheeded. In the disused quarries they can find plenty of room; a whole army of mendicants could easily obtain shelter in their long galleries—a warm corner to huddle-up in, and a convenient stone for a pillow. Moreover, there are no awkward questions asked as to the asiles de nuit, such as, "Who art thou? From whence comest thou? What is thy calling?" And so from all directions leading towards Paris they come in large numbers at night, with fatigue, and numbered by hundreds as they descend into the quarries where pressed pell-mell one against the other, they endeavor by contact to keep out the cold. The largest quarries are in the neighborhood of Argenteuil, and there it is that the police often made their raids when in search of some criminal who has escaped capture, and who, it is thought, may be hiding among the "maltrats."

The writer of these lines was present at one of these irregular expeditions. A few of these irregular rogues had broken into a house in the neighborhood of Argenteuil and had beaten the occupant, an elderly man, and compelled him to give them food and money. A decent fellow who thought it not unlikely that the police would be hiding there. Towards midnight a party of gendarmes, led by a foreman employed at the quarries, entered the galleries of the red of Argenteuil. By the light of the red glare of their flaming torches their shadows appeared giantlike on the sides of the galleries. At each one of these galleries a gendarme or a police agent stood sentry, revolver in hand, while the commissary walked through them accompanied by a party of agents and the foreman, to whom the regular habitues and most of the honerables are known. As they reach the first group of sleepers they wake them up somewhat roughly and throw into their eyes a ray of light from their bull's-eye lantern. "Do you know this man?" inquired the commissary, addressing the foreman. The answer is "yes" or "no," as the case may be; and possibly, while the first man of each group is permitted to turn on his side and go to sleep again, the second or third one has the handcuffs slipped on, and soon becomes the head of a chain of unsuspecting individuals, which will lengthen until there are some forty or more of them in the custody of the representatives of the law. Escorted by the gendarmes they are marched to a corner of the town, thrust into a cart, and separately interrogated. What revelations of sad histories are made! A disreputable priest, driven out of holy orders, tells the story of his iniquitous life with tears in his eyes; a fraudulent lawyer asks for pity at the hands of the interrogating magistrate; a broken-down artist speaks of blighted love. Then comes the turn of some sordid-looking ragged women, with the look of famished wolves in their eyes, who almost one and all beg as a mercy that they may be sent to prison, where, at all events, they will find food and shelter. From among this heterogeneous group of human beings in custody pending further inquiries, while the others are turned adrift, in spite of snow or rain, and told to make themselves scarce. For days and days they wander along the roads outside Paris, seeking the shelter of the quarries at night, where, in some instances, under the influence of stupefying trois-six (cheap brandy), taken on an empty stomach, they stagger too close to the furnaces, and are discovered in the morning actually roasted to death. These unfortunates are alluded to by their companions as veau roti.

The Dog Overheard It.

Mrs Reed of Benton owns an old shepherd dog that has quite a reputation for sagacity. He happened one day to be in a neighbor's barn where two or three men were talking, when one of them remarked: "There's Mr. Reed's sheep in my field." "He did not think of the dog when he spoke and made no advance movement himself, but no sooner were the words out of his mouth than Rover dashed out of the barn, away to the field and drove Mrs. Reed's sheep home.—Lewiston Journal.

A BRANTFORD MIRACLE.

MR. JOHN CONGDON TELLS OF HIS RECOVERY FROM TORTURE AND SUFFERING.

Almost Helpless and in Constant Agency for Eight Months—After Many Remedies Had Failed Health is Again Restored—What Prominent Druggists Have to Say.

Some two years ago a startling article appeared in the papers telling of the recovery of a Mr. Marshall, of Hamilton, who had been pronounced incurable by many doctors, and so hopeless was his case that he was paid the total disability claim of the Royal Templars. The potent agency in his recovery was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Since then the Pink Pills for Pale People have been the praises of whole country has rung with the praises of these marvelous Pink Pills. They have been prime health giving agents wherever conscientiously used and have done more good during the past two or three years than half the graduates of the medical colleges have accomplished in a life time. The citizens of Brantford who suffer from nervous diseases, and all the ills which they entail, have not been slow to seize upon the aid to health and happiness held out to them at such a small price, and the sale of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in this city and vicinity has been simply enormous, and the good done has more than kept pace with the demand.

Recently The Courier has had called to its attention a remarkable recovery—only one, it is stated, of many that have occurred in this city. Incredulous as one may be at a story when oft repeated, certainly calls for consideration and investigation, and a Courier representative determined to ascertain what measure of truth was in this oft repeated story. Mr. John Congdon, whose recovery was announced, lives in a neat cottage at 102 Queen street. When the newspaper man first called, Mr. Congdon was stated to be working on the Wellington street church. Thither the scribe repaired, but decided not to interview Mr. C. until a more convenient season, as he was then perched at a giddy height repairing the roof of the church. On a subsequent occasion Mr. Congdon was found at home, and in response to the reporter's enquiries told the following wonderful story. "I am a miller by trade, and a year ago was engaged a great deal in an open building in Guelph, where I was running a chopping mill. I think it was the result of this exposure that laid the foundation of the terrible illness that was to follow. At any rate I began to get severe pain in my left hip which bothered me a great deal. Shortly after this I removed to Stratford and here my symptoms became alarmingly worse. I consulted a doctor, who thought it rheumatism, but afterwards pronounced it suffering from sciatica. Up to this time I had been a robust man and hardly knew what sickness meant. But now my life was to be a misery to myself and those around me. I had to give up my trade and was glad to get a lighter job in a feed store. Getting worse and worse I had finally to lay up altogether. At this time I was taking a medicine of all descriptions. The doctor blistered me severally times and punctured around the nerve with a needle, but instead of improving I was going down grade steadily. The pain I suffered was simply excruciating, and in my easy position I could get all was by lying on the bare floor and stretching myself as best I could. In this position I took some exercise by walking I would, perhaps, fall to the ground, my left leg giving way under me. I was losing in flesh and the subject of commiseration on the part of my friends, and as I have a young family myself and wife, and as I was unable to eat but needy poor who frequent the galleries are known. As they reach the first group of sleepers they wake them up somewhat roughly and throw into their eyes a ray of light from their bull's-eye lantern. "Do you know this man?" inquired the commissary, addressing the foreman. The answer is "yes" or "no," as the case may be; and possibly, while the first man of each group is permitted to turn on his side and go to sleep again, the second or third one has the handcuffs slipped on, and soon becomes the head of a chain of unsuspecting individuals, which will lengthen until there are some forty or more of them in the custody of the representatives of the law. Escorted by the gendarmes they are marched to a corner of the town, thrust into a cart, and separately interrogated. What revelations of sad histories are made! A disreputable priest, driven out of holy orders, tells the story of his iniquitous life with tears in his eyes; a fraudulent lawyer asks for pity at the hands of the interrogating magistrate; a broken-down artist speaks of blighted love. Then comes the turn of some sordid-looking ragged women, with the look of famished wolves in their eyes, who almost one and all beg as a mercy that they may be sent to prison, where, at all events, they will find food and shelter. From among this heterogeneous group of human beings in custody pending further inquiries, while the others are turned adrift, in spite of snow or rain, and told to make themselves scarce. For days and days they wander along the roads outside Paris, seeking the shelter of the quarries at night, where, in some instances, under the influence of stupefying trois-six (cheap brandy), taken on an empty stomach, they stagger too close to the furnaces, and are discovered in the morning actually roasted to death. These unfortunates are alluded to by their companions as veau roti.

MR. JOHN CONGDON TELLS OF HIS RECOVERY FROM TORTURE AND SUFFERING.

Almost Helpless and in Constant Agency for Eight Months—After Many Remedies Had Failed Health is Again Restored—What Prominent Druggists Have to Say.

remedy, there can be no question about that, and that accounts for the enormous demand." Mr. Golding, of the opera house drug store, reported very large sales of the Pink Pills, and had no doubt of the great virtues contained in the ingredients. "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had the most remarkable sale of any medicine of late years. There can be no question about the wonderful good they are accomplishing." Mr. Frank Merrill, of McGregor and Merrill, said: "We sell more of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than any other medicine. That they are a power for good I have no doubt, whatever."

The newspaper man was very much impressed with Mr. Congdon's story, and what was said concerning Pink Pills by the druggists, and has come to the conclusion that they are the most valuable specific of the age. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N. Y., a firm of unquestioned reliability. It is not a medicine, but rather a prescriptive. An analysis of their properties show that these pills are an unailing specific from all diseases arising from an impoverished condition of the blood, or from an impairment of the nervous system, such as loss of appetite, depression of spirits, anaemia, chlorosis or green sickness, general muscular weakness, dizziness, loss of memory, locomotor ataxia, paralysis, sciatica, rheumatism, St. Vitus dance, the after effects of la grippe, all diseases depending upon a vitiated condition of the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for the troubles peculiar to the female system, correcting irregularities, suppressions and all forms of female weakness, building anew the blood and restoring the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of any nature. These pills are not a purgative medicine. They contain only life-giving properties, and nothing that could injure the most delicate system. They could directly on the assisting it to absorb giving out a great support of all organic life. In this way, the blood becoming "built up," and being supplied with its lacking constituents, becomes rich and red, nourishes the various organs, stimulating them to activity in the performance of their functions, and thus eliminates diseases from the system.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper (printed in red ink.) Bear in mind that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are never sold in any dealer who offers substitutes in this form is trying to defraud you, and should be avoided. The public are also cautioned against all other so-called blood builders and nerve tonics, put up in similar form intended to deceive. They are all imitations of the genuine, and of a very precarious nature. The reputation advanced by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Ask your dealer for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and refuse all imitations and substitutes.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company from either address, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

CHRISTIAN WOMAN'S PLUCK.

Miss Annie Taylor, an English Missionary, Explores Tibet.

When Rockhill and Capt. Bower returned to Shanghai, from their adventurous trips into Tibet everyone was amazed at the pluck, endurance, and resources they had shown; but a late despatch says that even the efforts of these famous travellers are cast in the shade by the adventures of Miss Annie Taylor, a member of the China Inland Mission, who has just reached here after over a year spent in the wilds of Tibet.

She is a woman of slight physique, but of great nervous energy and rare courage. Much of the secret of her influence over semi-savage people may be seen in her brilliant brown eyes, which light up her face when she speaks of missionary work in Tibet, in which she is greatly interested and to which she proposes to devote her life.

She faced perils in her journey that would have daunted most men, and she escaped dangers that were only evaded by the greatest self-control. Miss Taylor set out from the China side with only one Christian Tibetan, who came with her from Darjeeling and remained faithful throughout all her journeys.

In 1887 she tried to enter Tibet from India, but she could get no natives to serve her, and after spending ten months without sight of a European she abandoned the attempt. A little over a year ago, after spending about a twelvemonth on the Chinese frontier and making the acquaintance of many Tibetans, she set out on her journey, her objective point being Lhasa, the city which both Rockhill and Bower failed to reach.

She would have entered the holy city had it not been for the treachery of a Mohammedan Chinese servant, whom she engaged in Kansu. He claimed to know all about Tibet, and though he proved valuable as a guide and interpreter, she obtained positive proof that he warned the Lhasa authorities of her intended entrance to the city and thus compelled her to turn back when actually within sight of its walls.

Her introduction to Tibetan territory was not pleasant, as her convoy of servants and ten horses was stopped by brigands. These fellows killed four of her people, and would have probably cleaned out the expedition had not one of the robbers espied Miss Taylor. He called out, "They are women!" and instantly every robber's hand was stayed, for in Tibet it is esteemed a shameful thing to strike a woman.

and she is now in feeble health as a result of bad diet, exposure, and worry. Miss Taylor will return to England to raise funds for conducting mission work in Tibet. While she admits that the Tibetans are born liars and that they have very few virtues, she seems to be more determined to give them the benefits of Christianity. She thinks much can be hoped for a people whose vices are open and who do not add hypocrisy to their other evil habits.

TRINITY CHURCH NEW YORK.

Its Beautiful Bronze Doors and The Stories They Tell.

The South Door, by Mr. Niehaus, has six panels, dealing with historical subjects connected with New York and Trinity parish says Harper's Weekly. The lowest panels show the deck of the Half Moon. Henry Hudson is passing in 1609 along Manhattan Island under the Dutch flag; Dr. Barclay is preaching to the Indians in 1738. To fit the mission among the redskins more closely to this church, Mr. Niehaus has passed by the earlier efforts of Dutch dominions in the same field. The middle panels show Washington entering St. Paul's, the chapel of Trinity, after his inauguration in 1782; and the scene of a consecration of four bishops in the same chapel in 1832.

The North door, by Mr. Massey Rhind, is entirely different in connection and executed in quite another style. It also has six panels, but the subjects are from the Old and New Testaments and the legends of the church. The lowest panels give a scene of the passover in Egypt, with a Hebrew household anointing liddel and door-posts of his home with the blood of a lamb, that the Lord may pass over the house and spare the first-born. And the gateway of one of the three cities of refuge in the Promised Land, which were ordained for those who had slain a man without intention. The middle panels have the scene at the gate of the Temple when Saints Peter and John make the miraculous cure of a man lame from his birth; and the prison scene, in which Paul issues from their jail after the earthquake and console the jailer, whom the miracle has converted. The upper panels have a scene from Revelation; also a legend of St. Peter about to leave Rome for fear of persecution Christ appearing to him, he says "Lord, whither goest Thou?" and, to shame the saint for his timorousness, the vision answers that he goes to Rome, where there is need of him.

Perils of Missionary Life.

The two Umali Hospital sisters, belonging to the Bishop of Mashonaland's mission, Miss R. A. Blennerhassett and Miss Lucy Sleeman, have recently had a narrow escape, writes a correspondent from Umtali. Both sisters were most seriously ill with malarial fever, lying helpless in a hut, waited on by native boys, there being no native women available. On the night of April 16 they were so bad that Dr. Wilson decided on sitting up all night with them. In the middle of the night a strange sound as of an animal bounding on the roof of the hut, was heard; shortly afterwards the door of the hut, a cottage door, the upper half of which was partly open, rattled, and Miss Blennerhassett called out that there was "a great black thing" on the top of the door. The doctor looked up, went hastily to the door, and slammed the top rather violently. He easily persuaded the sisters that nothing was there, as Miss Sleeman was nearly insensible, and Miss Blennerhassett delirious. In point of fact, a large leopard had tried to get through the roof, and not succeeding, had sprung upon the open upper half of the door. The creature's head and claws were on the top of the door, and he was drawing himself up to drop into the hut when the doctor's presence of mind saved the situation. What would have happened had the sisters been alone and helpless, as they were for so many nights, it is dreadful to imagine. I hear that both are recovering.

Tracts that do Harm.

London is flooded with religious tracts, according to The Christian Worker. The most quantities are distributed by the 490 London city missionaries alone. Now, nearly all the tracts intended for gratuitous distribution amongst working-men, and some more pretentious periodicals meant for their reading, do so much harm as they do good, so feeble, commonplace and unsuitable are they. The managers of our large tract societies are no doubt godly, well-meaning gentlemen, but they do not know the enormous masses, many of whom, whatever we may think of them, deem themselves too intelligent to be deceived by the Christian, and are confirmed in this opinion by the feebleness of the only religious agencies which reach them. Broken English or shibboleth thinking, because it assumes that the reader is a dullard, disgusts him, and moves him to exclaim, "Tell that to old women!" The characters upon whom the narrative tracts are founded too often consist of the very young, the aged, the decrepit, the imbecile, and the like; or the tracts make much of the late conversion of the notorious profligate, and seem to the moral reader to make a virtue of debauchery.

The women of Scotland are evidently not going to submit tamely to the overthrow of their National Church. They are coming to the rescue under the banner of the "Scottish Women's Church Defence Union," a society recently founded through the plucky endeavors of a talented young Invernesshire lady, Miss Cecilia Mackenzie. The movement is extremely popular, and is spreading rapidly.

NEWS AND NOTABILIA.

At St. Paul's cathedral are still to be seen two books in chains. He wore a crown of thorns which he deserved, that we might wear the crown of glory which He merited.—Henry.

Use sin as it will use you; it is your murderer and the murderer of the whole world. Kill it when it kills you.—Baxter. A massive silver bracelet, of Indian workmanship and much value, was recently found on the collection plate of a congregation in the Scotch capital.

Queen Elizabeth's prayer book, which was printed in 1574, has been sold recently. It is bound in gold and enamelled, and was worn by the Queen, suspended from her girdle.

An unusual item appears among the expenses of St. Peter's, Wisbeach, England. It is for "driving the bats out of the church," 200 of them having ultimately been got rid of after annoying the congregation for the last year or two.

Chautauqua has a rival. It is the summer school of Mr. Moody, the evangelist, and is held at Northfield, Mass. It is particularly for Christian young women, and is to be for their mental, moral and physical upbuilding. Tennis, teaching, and theology is the Rule of Three at Northfield.

A committee of Convocation in England recently reported that the number of benefices with net incomes between £100 and £200 a year appears to be about 4,300. To raise them all to £200 a year would require, at an average of £50 a year for each, an income of £210,000 a year, or a capital sum of £7,000,000.

Holman Hunt painted his famous picture of Christ standing knocking at the door as a result of his conversion. The original was taken out of its frame lately, and these words were found on the margin in the artist's handwriting: "Nec me praetermittar, Domine" (not pass me by, O Lord.) No wonder the canvas preaches a powerful sermon.

Approps of territorial designations as a means of distinguishing between literary namesakes, a well known case in point in the musical world is mentioned. Dr. Bridge of Westminster Abbey and Dr. Bridge of Chester Cathedral, are habitually spoken of by their colleagues as "Westminster Bridge" and "Chester Bridge" respectively.

A rich and religious Princeton woman, who had given dormitories to the college, made it a condition that she might give as many tracts as she choose to the students living in her building. Accordingly every morning, the junior brings up special tracts in each of the dormitories. It is understood that the tracts are a permanent institution, and that endowment will be left to furnish them to the students in these buildings for all time to come.

Charles Hodge, D. D. says: As far back as I can remember I had the habit of thanking God for everything I wanted. If I lost a book or any one of my playthings I prayed that I might find it. I prayed while walking along the streets, in school and out of school whether playing or studying. I did not do this in obedience to any prescribed rule—it seemed natural. I thought of God as an everywhere present being, full of kindness and love, who would not offend if children talked to him.

A pax, such as Pistol, in "Henry V.," stole from a French church in a small village, on which is a representation of some Christian scene or symbol. Originally it was used at the celebration of mass in Roman Catholic churches, when the celebrant kissed it himself, and gave it to an acolyte, who offered it to be kissed by all the ecclesiastics within the sanctuary, and to some members of the congregation. Nowadays, however, it is used only at special masses. The tablet was of wood or metal. Pistol's booty was of silver, and he was put to death for the theft.

A congregation has lately been organized at Alberni, in the Presbytery of Vancouver. It is the most Western Presbyterian church in Canada. Seven years ago Alberni was a mission station, and on May 1st, 1892, a church was opened. Last fall the Rev. R. J. Adamson entered the field, a successful pastor of a Presbyterian church in England. He is still in charge. Not long ago Mr. Adamson received a call from the Congregational Church in the United States offering a salary of $3,000. This he refused and remains in one of the most secluded and remote parts of the earth on a salary of $700. For six months he toiled in his present field without receiving one cent to meet his current expenses.

The rubric in the Church of England prayer-book directs this etiquette—that the man shall stand on the right hand and the woman on the left hand; that the man on the right hand of the woman and the woman on the left hand of the man. The reason given is a very fanciful one—namely, because the rib out of which woman was formed was taken out of the left side of Adam. Another reason is that the place at the right hand is the more honorable. It is, therefore, both by the Latin and Greek and all Christian churches assigned to the man, as being head of the wife. The Jews act otherwise, placing the woman on the right hand of the husband, in harmony with that phrase in Psalm xix: "Upon thy right hand did stand the queen in gold of Ophir."

Prof. Campbell, of Toronto, whose recent sermon bids fair to add to the eses of heresy, was born in Edinburgh, is a son of the late James Campbell of Toronto, proprietor of one of the largest printing and publishing houses in Canada. His literary and clerical studies were continued in Knox College, Toronto, and in Edinburgh University, from which schools he obtained the degrees of B. A. and M. A. He was ordained on Nov. 3, 1868. In September, 1875, he married Miss Mary Helen Playfair of Toronto, and resided in this city as minister of the Charles-street Presbyterian Church from 1868 till 1873. In that year he was appointed to the position he now holds as Professor in the Montreal Presbyterian College. He is the author of "Sundays at Yoko," a complete history of the Hitrites and numerous articles in the reviews. He has spent many years in biblical and anti-quantarian research, especially with regard to the old testament, and is regarded as one of the most thorough Oriental scholars of this age.

Messages of Help for the Weak.

Sunday.—Psalm 87, 2: "The Lord loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob."

Monday.—Psalm 107, 8, 9: "Oh, that men would praise the Lord for his greatness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! For he satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness."

Tuesday.—James 5, 16: "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed."

Wednesday.—"The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. Elias prayed, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit."

Thursday.—Deuteronomy 22, 6: "If a bird's nest chance before thee in the way in any tree, or on the ground, whether they be young ones, or eggs, thou shalt not, take the dam with the young; that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days."

Friday.—Matthew 11, 28: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

Saturday.—Job 1, 6: "There was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them, and the Lord said unto Satan whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the Lord and said, from going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it."

HEART FAILURE, FAINTNESS, ACUTE DYSPEPSIA, Complete Nervous Prostration, Cured by Using HAWKER'S NERVE & STOMACH TONIC. A LADY'S EXPERIENCE.

Mr. Wm. Thompson of Musquah, N. B., says: "For 2 years past my wife has suffered with Acute Dyspepsia accompanied with complete nervous prostration, and a smothering sensation about the heart which frequently produced an attack of faintness. She became weak and nervous, lost all energy, and had a constant feeling of drowsiness. She suffered with intense pain in the stomach after eating, which was usually followed by the smothering sensation about the heart and fainting spells. She tried a great many remedies and was treated by the doctors for some time, but obtained no relief. She became so discouraged that she gave up all hope of ever getting better, when our pastor suggested that she try HAWKER'S NERVE AND STOMACH TONIC AND LIVER PILLS, which had produced remarkable cures in several cases he knew of. We did so and she obtained immediate relief from the disease after taking the second dose, and has continued to improve ever since until today she is as well as ever, and can enjoy her food without fear of suffering. I cannot speak too highly of these valuable medicines which have restored my wife to health and strength and saved much suffering and expense."

Rev. Henry M. Solke, Rector of Musquah, N. B., says: "I am personally acquainted with the above case, and am greatly pleased that the medicine which I recommended to her produced such remarkable results."

WOMAN and HER WORK.

I believe that a keen sense of humor or perhaps I should say, a keen sense of the ridiculous is at the same time the greatest blessing, and one of the greatest curses that ever fairly godmother conferred on her godchild, at the christening feast. It is a wonderful help over the rough places of life, and it has shed a ray of sunshine on many a dark day, and cheered many a lonely hour, but it is a dangerous weapon to place in injudicious hands and a most embarrassing gift to those who are continually beset by a sort of imp of laughter who persists in making them see the funny side of everything, from the solemn hypocrite who preaches one thing, with his eyes turned up towards the ceiling, and facts another, with the same orbs fixed on the main chance, when he thinks no one is looking, down to the dog hurrying suspiciously into a secluded nook to hide the half chewed bone, which no one but himself could possibly want, and publishing by his exaggerated anxiety for concealment the very fact he is so anxious to conceal—that he has something unusual on hand. But still, such a disposition is natural, and must be accepted with the same degree of resignation called for by red hair, or a bad temper, while if its owner be possessed of ordinary common sense she may pass through life without doing much mischief or making more than the average number of enemies poor humanity must expect to have, in this world. But there is a kind of spurious wit which I am sorry to say seems to be growing more common every day, and which is a veritable two edged sword in the hands of those who cultivate it. It is such cheap wit and often so cruel that I often wonder how any woman who aspires to the title of lady, can indulge in it; and yet it is amongst women that it is the most common, and the habit grows upon them so insensibly and so rapidly that I declare to you, girls, I have known women whose hearts were really no worse than those of their neighbours, and whose position in society should have taught them better, who would hold their dearest friend up to ridicule rather than spoil the effect of a bad pun, or an indifferent joke. They did not intend to be false, or treacherous, but they had simply acquired a reputation for saying smart things, for being clever, and they must keep it up at all risks. So by and by, the victims hear about Miss Blank's clever sayings, and much as they admire her and appreciate her wit when it is exercised for their benefit and at the expense of someone else, they fail to see the point when their own turn comes to unconsciously afford entertainment for a select circle in which they themselves are not included, and they begin to give that lady what is usually styled in nautical language a wide berth. One victim confides in another, and after a time Miss, or Mrs. Blank, as the case may be, finds her circle of friends growing smaller, until at last she is so universally dreaded she is universally shunned, and instead of being a very popular woman she awakes at last to the unpleasant fact that she is the very reverse, and is lost in amazement at the ingratitude of humanity in turning against a woman who has always exerted herself so unwearingly to amuse her friends. And she is quite sincere; it never strikes her for a moment that she was cruel, or unkind in any way, probably if anyone suggested such a thing to her she would save her conscience with the excuse that she had not the slightest doubt her friends did the same thing to her, when her back was turned, and she had not the least objection, as long as it amused them, and did not harm her; but I think if she could have heard them doing it once or twice she would have had a different story to tell since none of us like to be laughed at. Now there is no one who likes brightness and cleverness more than I do, I love a woman who can appreciate, and tell a good joke, or a good story, and who can enjoy the fun with which the world is filled, she is a boon to society and a blessing in her own home circle. But when it comes to the cruel speech which provokes a laugh at the expense of some absent friend or acquaintance and which we should not dare to make in his presence, or the witty remark which holds some personal peculiarity of his up to ridicule, then it is not wit, nor humor, but simply coarseness and cruelty combined, since no gentleman ever willingly inflicts pain. Don't do it girls! if you find you must be either witty and coarse, or kind hearted, and dull, choose the latter and better part, every time.

Two little Scotch immigrants in the shape of magazines which seek welcome recognition on Canadian shores this month, will have a special interest for Canadian women, since they afford more than a glimpse of the tastes and pursuits of two ladies upon whom Canadian eyes are eagerly fixed just now, the Countess of Aberdeen, and her daughter, Lady Marjorie Gordon; to whom we all hope to extend a royal welcome before long, when they come out to us, to assist in representing Her Majesty at Ottawa.

The larger of the two magazines is the organ of the "Onward and Upward, As-mother once lived in Quebec, which contains a better picture of Canadian life than is often found in English or Scotch papers, with clever sketches, by the writer's mamma, of tobogganing, and snow-shoeing in Quebec.

Both these magazines are published by G. Duncan, & Son, of Edinburgh, and S. W. Partridge & Co. of London.

These small specimens of the work done by the Countess and her daughter will serve to give Canadians some idea of the advantages we are likely to gain from their residence amongst us; but it would be hard indeed to picture the loss their departure for Canada, will mean for their own people.

The organdy muslins are lovely this summer, and their apparent cheapness is so alluring that unless you possess the wisdom which only comes through having invented in an organdy before, I say apparent cheapness, because by the time you have them made up, they really make a most expensive dress. In the first place they will not wash, that is with any certainty of satisfaction to the wearer, and in the second place to look well they must be lined with thin silk, any other foundation makes them look cheap, and destroys their beauty; the delicate pinks and heliotropes in which many of them come are very apt to fade, and when all these drawbacks are taken into consideration you will find that a really good China silk or bengaline, is a much cheaper dress. Indeed it will be cheaper at first cost. Any girl who has a taste for dressmaking and wants a cheap and pretty dress, which will look as if it cost three times its actual value, cannot do better than invest in one of the black cotton challies, imitate their their more expensive woollen sisters so perfectly, that unless they are touched it is almost impossible to tell the difference. Select a design in any color but white, which will be sure to soil soon, and look dingy, heliotrope, pale yellow or pink will be pretty. Then get a bit of China silk or bengaline matching the flower in the design as nearly as possible, make the yoke or vest of this, also a softly draped collar, folded belt and cuffs; by careful cutting, you should do this easily with a yard of silk, which will cost you 50 cents. If you wish to spend a little more, another yard will give you either full puffs for the top of the sleeves, or full bretelles. Trim the skirt with three bias flounces, set either close together, or as far apart as you like, in the hideous fashion we, none of us like, but which we shall doubtless all come to in time. Such a dress neatly made can never be distinguished from a challee, and when one remembers that good cotton challies range from fourteen to sixteen cents a yard, while the woollen ones are from 40 to 45, I think you will agree with me, and incline very much towards the cheaper dress. A dress such as I have described will not wash for the whole summer, indeed with care it should last well into the second summer, and after that it can be denuded of its finery and worn "for common."

The light challies are so lovely, that every girl should have one, if possible, and spend as much as she can afford on its adornment, and if she has a pretty one, and a black cotton challee, she will be tolerably well provided with best dresses for the summer.

The dress trimmings seem to grow more and more singular in design, and to run more than ever to ribbons, and bows. Imagine a dress of rose colored crepe, faintly shot with grey, and trimmed with one very narrow ruffle of black satin at the foot, and further decorated with a trimming of black satin ribbon put on in three perpendicular stripes down the front breadths! The first stripe is in the centre of the front, and the others are on each side; each stripe extends from beneath the belt to within a short distance of the foot, and terminates in a large bow, with drooping loops and ends. The bows are a little over twelve inches apart, but of course the stripes are much closer together at the waist. A square yoke of black guipure lace, over rose silk, and black satin sleeves in double puffs complete the costume.

Imagine the hideous lace fringe falling from the edge of the hat, coming in front! Terrible! but still it has made its appearance in some of the best fashion plates, and it looks like nothing so much as the shade of a piano lamp, which had been placed on the wearer's head in mistake for her hat.

Pink, and rose color, are very much worn, and as the latter is almost universally becoming, it is not to be wondered at! Rose color, veiled in either black or white lace is always charming, and to wear it effectively is only necessary that your complexion should not be too brilliant.

Lace is very effectively used in simulated zouaves, on the bodices of light dresses, and an odd and rather pretty fancy, is to draw them together with a sort of bow, of silk, or velvet, whichever the dress may be trimmed with; which is agreed in with the sleeves directly in front, gathered into soft folds, and fastened on the bust, with a rosette of the same. The effect, which is difficult to describe, is much like that of a butterfly bow, fastened just over the bust and reaching to the armpoles.

The deep lace, and muslin flounces so much worn, are frequently finished with a heading composed of a sort of wreath, so closely are they set together, of rosette-like rows; in either harmonizing or contrasting colors; and another favorite fancy, is for trimmings of lace insertion laid over brightly tinted silk. It is very effective on light dresses but rather too striking for dark ones.

Another new cotton material which might almost rival cotton challie, is cotton crepe, which washes beautifully, comes in lovely colors, and possesses the additional charm of being very inexpensive.

Do you wear russet leather shoes girls? Of course you do, and equally of course they make your feet look one third larger than they really are, if you but knew it, and they also lose their freshness faster a week's wear. But if you will persist in doing thus, let me give you a recipe for their restoration. Rub them well with olive oil applied with a sponge, and they will look like new. Vasoline will have almost the same effect.

Will a reader of PROGRESS accept my best thanks for so kindly and promptly responding to my request for more light on the subject of the game of "Cinch"? I am very grateful for the trouble taken, and have great pleasure in publishing her(?) letter.

Dear "Astra"—In looking over PROGRESS today I noticed a letter to you and signed Helena, and asking you some questions about the game of "Cinch," which I will gladly answer. Does the dealer always have the choice of refusing all bids, and making the highest bid that is offered, provided he himself does not bid higher. The person to the left of the dealer always bids first.

Cash each player bid only once, or can they bid all more are offered? Each player bids only once, and that in his turn around the board.

Are clubs trump, if the five of spades is counted as a trump and played as such? Yes; and the five of spades is counted as a trump because it is a corresponding Pedro to the 5 of clubs.

Also is a regular game, how many points are considered a game? Fourteen points. Say for instance, I bid 10 points on clubs; clubs of course is the trump card, and the Pedro are the 5 spot of club or red that is the trump, and the corresponding Pedro in that color you play as a trump, and counts you a bid.

Should be glad to answer questions to the best of my ability at any time, even to far away Brooklyn.

A GREAT LITERARY BARGAIN!

Cooper's Famous Romances of the American Forest!

An Entirely New Edition of

THE LEATHERSTOCKING TALES,

By JAMES FENIMORE COOPER.

The first and greatest of American novelists was James Fenimore Cooper. "His popularity," says a writer in the Century Magazine, "was cosmopolitan. He was almost as widely read in France, Germany, and in Italy as in Great Britain and the United States. Only one American book has ever since attained the international success of these Cooper's—'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' and only one American author, Poe, has since gained a name as all commensurate with Cooper's abroad."

The great author is dead, but his charming romances still live to delight new generations of readers. "The wind of the lakes and the prairie keeps its story," says the same writer above quoted. "Beautiful indeed are Cooper's stories of the red man and the pioneer, full of incident, intensely interesting, abounding in adventure, yet pure, elevating, manly, and entirely devoid of all the objectionable features of the modern Indian story. No reading could be more wholesome for young or old than Cooper's famous romances. An entirely new edition of the Leatherstocking Tales has just been published in one large and handsome volume of over three hundred large quarto pages, containing all of these famous romances, complete, unaltered and unexpurgated. It is:

THE DEERSLAYER, THE PATHFINDER, THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS, THE PIONEER, THE FRONTIERSMAN, THE LEATHERSTOCKING TALES.

This handsome edition of the Leatherstocking Tales is printed upon good paper from large type. It is a delightful book, and one which should have a place in every American home. It contains five of the most charming romances that the mind of man has ever conceived. A whole volume's reading is completed in it; mammoth volumes. All who have not read Cooper's stories will find in this edition of the Leatherstocking Tales a new and delightful edition of the tales of the frontier. Every member of the family circle will be delighted with the publisher of this excellent edition of the Leatherstocking Tales whereby we are enabled to offer this large and beautiful book almost as a free gift to our subscribers. Such an offer as we make would not have been possible a few years ago, but the lightning printing press, low price of paper and great competition in the book trade have done wonders for the reading public, and this is the most marvelous of all.

Read Our Great Premium Offer! We will send THE LEATHERSTOCKING TALES, complete, as above described, with PROGRESS for one year, upon receipt of only $2.25, which is an advance of but 25 cents over our regular subscription price, so that you practically get this fine edition of the famous Leatherstocking Tales for only 25 cents. Perfect satisfaction is guaranteed to all who take advantage of this great premium offer. Those whose subscriptions have not yet expired, who renew now will receive the Leatherstocking Tales at once, and their subscriptions will be extended one year from date of expiration. The Leatherstocking Tales will be given free to any subscriber sending us one new subscriber to our paper. Address all letters: EDWARD S. CARTER.

HOW TO DETECT DEATH.

IT IS NOT SO EASY A TASK AS SOME PEOPLE IMAGINE.

The Certain Signs is Sure Only When a Com-

From Blandford, Mass., there came a remarkable story the other day telling how a man after being placed in his coffin for dead, showed strange signs of life and how his relatives watched the body all night until there remained no doubt that he was dead. The man—his name was John Knox—had died of heart disease. As they were about to close the coffin it was noticed that the glass plate above his head was covered with a slight moisture. Upon removing this plate his face was found to be moist.

A physician immediately examined the body, but declared that life was extinct.

The coffin was about to be lowered into the grave, when the relatives pleaded that it be taken to the church and left there over night. Throughout that night there was never a moment when some eye did not rest upon the casket. There were no signs of dissolution, and at daybreak the face presented a singularly life-like appearance. The cheeks were red and seemed to belong to a man in the full bloom of health.

At noon, however, the signs of dissolution suddenly became marked and the body was buried with the full consent of the family.

This story, as it was published, did not tell what tests the physician used to determine whether life was extinct or not.

There are many people in the world who often allow their mind to dwell upon the fear or the horror of being buried alive.

It is not often that there arises a doubt as to whether life is extinct or not, but nevertheless physicians have given the matter considerable study, and, strange to say, they have not yet devised a single test which will immediately and surely prove that a person is alive or dead.

AN ART THAT IS DYING.

The Painting of Watch Dials When Done by Special Artists.

If the reader will kindly look at his watch for a moment he will undoubtedly be surprised and interested to learn that every hour, minute, figure, and even the tiny letters of the name upon the dial, are entirely produced by hand with an ordinary camel-hair brush. It is the belief of nine hundred and ninety-nine people out of every thousand that the figures are produced as easily as the letters upon the modest handbill.

This is a totally erroneous idea, as the dial is simply a thin piece of enamel, and the lead type of the printing machine would splinter it to atoms. Rubber type might be used; in fact, it is used in America for the commonest of work; but the figures are printed so coarse and ugly, that if used here for ordinary work, the West-end watch manufacturer's hair would turn grey with horror.

Enamel watch-dial painting might almost be ranked with the art of miniature painting. True, the anatomical knowledge required by the miniature portrait painter is not wanted by the dial painter; but, on the other hand, he requires a thorough knowledge of drawing, whilst his work has to be characterized by extraordinary exactitude and truth. The deviation of a minute but a hair's-breadth either way, or a minute but a hair's-breadth either way, or surprise the keenest eye, brings down the manufacturer's wrath upon the luckless painter's head. The brushes used for this delicate work are scarcely as large as those used by the "artist" who adorns the front of one's house. A very good idea of their size can be given by the fact that the common brass pin is a shade thicker than the dial painter's brushes.

Perhaps the most important qualification is an abnormally steady hand. To the dial

An adder was found alive in the centre of a block of marble thirty feet in diameter in June, 1772. It was folded nine times round in a spiral line; it was incapable of supporting air, and died a few minutes after. Upon examining the stone, not the smallest trace was to be found by which it could have glided in.

the midst of a mass of marble in the environs of the King's physician at dug at the back of his house, where he found the workmen that live frogs were found in beds of petrification. Suspecting some deceit, he descended into the pit, dug the bed of rock and petrifications, and drew out green frogs, which were alive and exactly similar to what we see every day.

THE MAN IN A DREAM.

In an eddy of the great stream which ebbs and flows along Broadway, I found myself one afternoon unexpectedly face to face with my very good friend, Dr. Adolph Mayer. As we stood there talking, suddenly the doctor stretched forth his hand and drew one from his breast out of the river of strangers. Thus I became acquainted with Mr. Clarence Hall, whom, presently, the current bore away again. Dr. Mayer had seized rather eagerly, I thought, the opportunity for this introduction, and so I was not surprised that he should ask me, when Hall had gone, what had been my impression of his friend? "He seemed preoccupied," I thought at first that he might be deaf, because I noticed that you pronounced the introductory form with unusual distinctness. "His hearing is all right."

"At this stage of the proceedings I was asked to look the young man over. I made his acquaintance and examined him at leisure. Well, he was insane, but I could not bring myself to say so. My report to Webster was such that all got into my money. "I should have said it would have cured him," said I. "Knowing that he is rich, why should he dream?" "It would have cured him, as you say," replied Dr. Mayer. "The trouble is that he doesn't know it."

"I don't know," said the boy, he'll follow me a lick me." "The view of the case appeared quite reasonable to Clarence. He looked at McGee and then at the boy, and quickly made his decision. "I'll go with you, said he. They passed through many dirty streets, and still the boy said that home was a long way off. "You can go alone now," said Clarence. "That fellow can't find you." For answer the boy pointed in the direction whence they had come. On the other side of the street a bulky figure stood in the shadow. "So he's after us," said Clarence. "He ain't after you," said the boy, grinning. "He's had all he wants of you. It's me he's after."

and life made so miserable by the ill-temper of those who are obliged to live together as in England. If we compare domestic life and manners in England with those countries where meat does not form such an integral article of diet, a notable improvement will be remarked. In less meat-eating France urbanity is the rule of the home. In Fish and Rice-eating Japan harsh words are unknown, and an exquisite politeness to one another prevails even among the children who play together in the streets. In Japan I never heard rude, angry words spoken by any but Englishmen. An strong opinion of the ill-temper of the English is caused in a great measure by a too abundant meat dietary combined with a sedentary life. The half-oxidized products of albumen circulating in the blood produce both mental and moral disturbances. Brain workers should live sparingly if they would work well and live long. These forces are required for mental exertion, and should not be expended on the task of digestion, for they should remember that the digestion of heavy meals involves a great expenditure of energy. The beautiful thing to do is to lead an active and unselfish life, on a moderate diet, sufficient to maintain strength and not increase weight.

Queen Hotel, HALIFAX, N. S. We have much pleasure in calling the attention of Travellers and Tourists to the fact that the QUEEN has established a reputation for furnishing the best and cleanest rooms, and the best table and attention of any hotel in the maritime provinces, if not in all Canada. The QUEEN contains 100 rooms, and with all modern improvements, including bath-rooms and w. o. on every floor. The parlours attract a great deal of attention, as nothing superior to that line is to be seen in Canada. Rev. F. W. Alexander, of the first class, has kindly written his reputation. One visit will satisfy any one as to the superiority of this Hotel. A. B. SHEPARD, MANAGER.

A Cause For Bad Temper.

One deplorable result of excessive meat eating in England is the bad temper which is a chronic complaint among us. In no country, declares Mr. Ernest Hart in the Hospital, "is home rendered so unhappy
