London's Narrow Escape. It appears that London had a pretty nar-row escape from a conflagration of the Bos-20th inst. ton type at just about the time when Boston itself was blazing away. As it was, a three or four line cable telegram simply announced that the London City Flour Mills had been destroyed, involving a loss of £500,000, or $2,500,000. This establishment was of an extraordinary size, situated tol, in which the so-called "Capitol on a very narrow street in an almost inaccessful locality for any other means of fire extinction than such as could be brought to bear upon the front, which luckily faced the river Themes, or upon one side, where ran a creek. The fire and evidently there was good ground for lear. The fire and evidently there was good ground for lear. The fire and evidently there was good ground for lear. The fire evidence is summoned by telegraph until thirty engines and two hundred firenen under the four floating engines fielonging to the fire brigade. These latter arrived in time to de good services. Water was in abundant supply, the men worked with a will, the apparatus was all in good services ble condition, and yer, in spite of all, the vast fire continued to burn until all above the third floor was left a shell, and below was so weighted with debris as to be at any moment in danger of falling in. The flames burned fiercely for a couple of days although, after the first twelve hours the danger of the spreading had been checked. It seems clear that gothing but almost superhuman exertions estated by unexceptionably servicable apparatus and a favorable proximity to water, availed to save London from rivalling, perhaps excelling, Chicago or Boston in the line of a first-class conflagration.

Spader Killers.

By general observation, spiders are considered by entomologists to have a specific office, viz: to keep down the dangerous multiplication of winged insects. They occasionally seize a worm or stray caterpilar if they happen to encroach upon their webbed territory. But entrapping flies is their forte. Insignificant and solitary as they are, we could not dispense with their quiet services. Let spiders strike and for a single month in summer refuse to set their beaps, we could hardly defend ourselves against armies of noxious insects that would take possession of our dwellings. Spider Killers.

that would take possession of our dwellings.

But useful they are, unobtrusive and vigilant, as sentinels, in cellars, under the floor, in the hiding places of straying bugs, moths and creeping things, they have their enemies and are subjected to the rigorous demands of the same law under which they sold, otherwise there would be too many spiders in the world—especially in Van Diemans Land.

Just in the busy season of spider activity, when they are slaughtering their thousands like Cincinnati butchers, a peculiar fly is let loose by nature to limit their multiplication. It is about the size of a wasp. In fair weather they may be seen constructing cells of mud against walls and sunny dry places. They are really prison dungeons. In company or alone, they hunt whatever spiders are found, seizing them advitiy, and away they fly with their prisoners, which are forced into the cells, sometimes three or four in one. When secure, they drop in an egg and then plaster over the top securely. When the egg hatches, the young worm has an ample supply of food all ready for consumption.

OUR course of study is comprehensive, and adapted not only to such as have enjoyed the best educational advantages, but also to those whose education is deficient, from want or neglect of early opportunities or other causes. These who desire to engage in Mercantile pursuits will rebeive that which is invaluable to them in the safety and despatch with which they will be able to conduct their own business or that of others. It gives the Mechanic an opportunity to take a front rank, by reason of superior ability to transact with correctness the business of his calling. To those engaging in Agricultural life it gives a practical knowledge and experience in business, which will enable them to meet the shrewd business man with confidence. And to that large class who are uncertain what course to pursue, it is not only the best stepping stone to lucrative and per manent business of their own, but also a ready means of commanding regular empleyment.
