PUBLIC MEETING RE CEMETERY.

In Town Hall Monday Night. $300 More Needed to Purchase Site.

PRESENT CEMETERY FULL.

Urgent Need of New Burying Ground.—Citizens Should Subscribe for Balance of Stock at Once.

A public meeting, called by W. A. Hickson, chairman of the new cemetery association, convened in the Town Hall Monday night. It was ably attended.

Col. R. L. Maltby reported that some progress had been made with the sale of stock, but he regretted that not more were present at this meeting. $1180 was already subscribed by 25 shareholders, who had taken 59 shares at $20 each. $320 more was needed to buy the land.

Rev. S. J. McArthur spoke of St. James cemetery being already full; it was urgently necessary that a new cemetery be occupied.

Rev. H. C. Rice spoke along the same lines. The cemetery should be removed from the main portion of the town.

W. A. Hickson said it was very important to have the new cemetery secured and laid out before the winter sets in. A site has been selected at French Fort Cove. $320 more is needed before the company can be incorporated. Adjourned.

EDITOR'S MAIL.

A Complaint About The State of The Roads in Southesk, etc.

TO THE EDITOR OF UNION ADVOCATE.

Dear Sir:

I wish to call the attention of the public to the disgraceful state of the roads in the County of Northumberland, especially in the lower end of the Parish of Southesk, beginning at the so called Shion Brook Bridge. It was so full of holes all summer that you had to drive back and forward from one side to another to escape the holes. It is a little better now. The holes are covered over with boughs and sand. The next is Shellish Cove Hill at the west end of the bridge. Then comes the hill and bridge at Everett Goodfellow's. You have not drive over the centre of the bridge but at the ends if you want to save your team. Next comes the Stewart Cove Hill at the Fish Hatchery. No person ever saw those hills in such a condition. They are a disgrace to any civilized country. We heard a terrible howl in the last campaign from the now present Government about the roads and what friends they would be to the poor man. Well, there is one thing they have done, doubled the road tax on the poor man and our roads are worse than ever. We see in the North Shore Leader that the Hon. John Morrissey is travelling through Kent, Westmorland and Gloucester, looking after the roads. It would be more to his credit if he looked after his own County a little better. Mr. Editor can you tell me what has happened to the Editor of the Commercial? Is he dead or sick? Last year he kept continually reminding us of the bad state of the roads, one of the worst seasons for making roads in the last thirty years, and this season, one of the best, and still no improvement and not one word from him. I do not think he is dead, but very sick, thinking over the fake crowd he supported. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space in your valuable paper.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.—Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, who is suing Howard Gould for divorce has applied through counsel to Justice Giegerich for an order compelling Mr. Gould to pay her $120,000 a year alimony and $15,000 for her counsel fees. After a hearing the justice adjourned the argument until October 1, at the request of Cornelius Sullivan, counsel for Mr. Gould. Mr. Sullivan said he must have more time to examine the papers in the case. Immediately following the temporary disposition of this action, the case of Helen Kelly Gould against Frank J. Gould for absolute divorce was called before Justice Giegerich in the same court room. The proceedings in the case were brief, the court merely fixing October 29 as the date for a hearing on the motion.

AMERICANS WANT OUR PULP.

Their own Forests Becoming Rapidly Exhausted.

FAVOR TREATY.

Whereby Their Mills Would be able to Purchase Pulp in This Country.

On Thursday the Canadian Manufacturers' Association unanimously adopted a report by the pulp and paper section recommending that the government should be requested to preserve the forests and conserve the pulpwood of the country by prohibiting the exportation of pulpwood from Canada. Exported in that form it is only worth to Canada about a sixth of what it would be were it manufactured into paper in the country and restrictive legislation would thus directly benefit an important national industry. Every consideration makes for a policy that promotes the utilization of our national resources by our own people and besides the present position of the timber supply of the world renders it of the utmost importance that Canadian forests be not unduly depleted for the advantage of United States manufacturers.

Legislation along this line has a good precedent in the shape of the new British patent law. That act was expressly passed in the interests of British labor, since it compels all patented processes and articles to be operated and produced within the United Kingdom under penalty of forfeiture of the grants. There is no essential difference in point of principle between a measure of this nature and legislation encouraging the establishment of the manufacturing of Canadian raw material. And restrictive legislation is all the more necessary when the pulpwood of the United States is rapidly being exhausted, and when as a result in creating drains will be made on Canadian forests.

At Apolonia, Wisconsin, the other day before the congressional investigation committee, Mr. R. M. Jones of Bangor, Me., manager of Katuslin Pulp and Paper Co. at Lincoln, Me., said that unless we can get our material as cheaply as the Canadian mills do we would have to quit business for we could not compete with theirs. Later in his examination he said that in the middle west, especially in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, where most of the paper mills are located, the manufacturers will soon be obliged to procure their pulpwood from Canada. He favored the making of a treaty with Canada whereby the tariff on wood pulp would be cut off if the United States mills were allowed to purchase pulpwood in Canada at the same figures Canadian mills do. This evidence shows what a splendid opportunity is afforded for the encouragement of Canadian paper manufacture, and it also shows the danger to which the Dominion is exposed as regards the depletion of its pulpwood resources. Both on account of the impetus it will give to Canadian industry and the necessity of protecting Canadian forest resources it is advisable that the recommendation of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association should be accepted by the federal government.

INVESTIGATION TO BE HELD

Into Alleged Violation Of Game Laws By Millionaire Arthur Robinson.

GRIMMER TO PRESIDE.

Uncle Harry Braithwaite Said To Be The Chief Accuser.

An investigation will be held here, beginning on October 8th, into the alleged violation of the game laws by Arthur Robinson, the wealthy New York broker who spends so much time on the Miramichi.

Surveyor General Grimmer will conduct the investigation for the Crown Land Department and will enquire into charges which have been made by Harry Braithwaite, the veteran hunter's guide, that Mr. Robinson and his friends have frequently committed flagrant violations of the game laws of the province. The investigation will take up only the period between the close of the game season of 1907 (November 30th) and the opening of the present season and it is understood that one particular charge against Mr. Robinson which it will be endeavored to prove is the killing of two cow moose not far from his camp. The carcasses of those two animals, it is alleged, were found in the waters of a lake and it is also stated that Mr. Braithwaite followed the tracks from the shore up to the landing at Mr. Robinson's camp. The tracks are claimed to be those of Mr. Robinson and his wife.

A year or so ago Mr. Robinson was charged with other violations of the game laws; at that time he acknowledged having violated the law in the Chatham police court and paid fines and costs amounting to several hundred dollars. It was then alleged that there had been further violations of the law by Mr. Robinson and the New Brunswick Fish, Forest and Game Protective Association threatened to press charges against him.

Mr. Robinson has a most elaborate sporting plant at Holmes Lake on the L.S.W.M. and has spent thousands and thousands of dollars there. He cut upwards of one hundred thousand feet of logs with which to erect his camp buildings and has them insured for almost $50,000, which was not the whole amount of the risk that the insurance companies offered to take on the property. The camps are lit with acetylene gas and one of the conveniences is a motor boat which it took a large crew of men and horses three weeks to convey the fifty miles from the railway to the camp.

It's a pity when sick ones drag the stomach or stimulate the Heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong. A weak Stomach, means weak stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is promptly helping Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailments. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the "falling" inside nerves. Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

Had to be abandoned in the Mid Atlantic.

DONDON, Thursday.—Capt. Walter and the crew of the schooner Grenada, which was abandoned in Mid-Atlantic on August 26th, arrived yesterday from Rotterdam, where they were landed by the steamer Manchester Shipper, which rescued them.

The Grenada sailed from Campbellton, N.B., with a cargo of laths, bound for New York. She ran into a gale and was overcome by heavy seas setting so deep that the crew had to seek refuge on top of the deckhouse, where they spent four days without food or water and had to launch themselves to the vessel to prevent being washed away.

The Grenada was in command of Captain Watt.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is not a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain species of nerve sickness—nervousness.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and mellow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Solid or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

The Premier replied there was no legislation by which he could compel the reference of the dispute to arbitration, but he would forward a copy of the telegram to representatives of the interested parties and would take any action possible to aid in a settlement.

Carterhall, Nfld. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Dear Sirs.—While in the country, last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes, so badly that I thought I would be disgraced for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications completely curing the irritation, and preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.

Yours truly,

In the meantime any arrangement between the G. T. R. and White Star will be similar to that between the G. T. R. and the Dominion Line.

The Canadian manufacturers will appreciate that they must be safer and more prosperous under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who broadly considers all Canadian interests, than they would be under men courting antagonism by making every advance asked for.

If a man is highly educated, successful and popular, but neglects the church of God, and personal religion, what does he gain, or lose, as a result?

Verses 5-10—Is it commendable and profitable to worship God with the aid of a brass or string band?

What has been the result upon the moral and spiritual life of the community, of the band music of the Salvation Army?

Is cultured music a help to real soul worship?

Judging from actual experience, are our up-to-date and musically-splendid choirs, a help or hindrance to making converts to Christianity?

Verses 6-7—The Lord slew Uzzah after he put up his hand to steady the Ark; now in what did the sin of Uzzah consist to deserve a death penalty?

(This question must be answered in writing by the members of the club. Consult a commentary or some well-informed clergymen, if not able to answer to your own satisfaction.)

When a man wants to improve upon God's method of running the world, and is afraid that every thing is heading for destruction, what difference is there between his folly and that of Uzzah?

Verses 8-10—Sometimes with one single act a man contracts an incurable disease, and it results in his death; is there anything in such a circumstance to make a wise onlooker angry with God?

Did David act with wisdom or other wise in being displeased with God for his destruction of Uzzah?

When we see or hear of great natural calamities, such as earthquakes, tornadoes, fires, etc., with great destruction of life and property, what should our attitude be toward God?

Verses 11-12—Take a town rich in its manufactures, in its general trade, in its shipping advantages, with no churches, and a similar town with churches added. Compare the two in all that goes to make life worth living, and state the results of your comparison.

Does God invariably bless the home and the community in which are to be found "the Ark of the Lord"?

Verses 13-16—What is invariably the result of building a church, starting a Sunday School, or organizing a Bible class, where there are none?

Which is the better and more natural way to conduct public worship: with the old-time enthusiasm of shouting, with bodily motions to match, or with our present sedate silence and outward imperturbability?

Verses 17-19—Is God pleased with any public worship where the chief desire is for personal blessing, and with but little thought to help the poor and needy, and to save the lost shown by giving our money for that purpose?

Verses 20-24—Did you ever know any person to have spiritual gifts, who made fun of or despised religious enthusiasm in others?

Lesson for Sunday, Oct. 11th, 1908. God's Promise to David, 1 Chron. xvii.

THE BOY ON THE DELIVERY WAGON. (Canadian Grocer.)

The one who drives the delivery wagon may think that his work is not of very much importance to the business, but in this he is mistaken. While he may not realize it, or hear much said about it, he is of as much value to a business as almost any other employee, especially if it is a grocery business.

If he is kind to his team, sees that his harness and wagon are properly cared for, he is doing his employer a good service. If he is neat in his dress, courteous and polite to customers, handles his goods properly, he will make and retain friends for the business.

It is true that some people to whom goods are delivered seem to show very little appreciation of courtesy or kindness, and if allowed will impose on the deliveryman, but this class are not in the majority.

A dirty, careless, disrespectful delivery boy can do a business considerable injury. The leaving of gates unfastened and doors opened when they should have been shut; the entering a room with muddy feet; the careless handling of packages, are things that customers will not long put up with, and there will be either a change in delivery boys or a change of places to trade.

Some of the most successful business men got their start on the delivery wagon. It is a hard job, but it is a splendid educator. The knowledge obtained in this part of the work may be turned to a decided advantage when promoted to a clerkship in the store and taken off the delivery wagon entirely.

We have known of some young men starting in this way in order that they might become acquainted with their customers, and the most successful salesmen are those who know and understand the wants and needs of their trade.

In one certain Texas town a young man worked for several years on a delivery wagon, and as he was a thorough business man he made it a point to cultivate the acquaintance and good will of all his customers and especially the ladies. Promotion followed promotion until he became a head salesman, and during this time was growing older and wiser, and at a city election decided to offer himself as a candidate for city secretary.

His good will of the ladies stood him in good place in this, for they remembered how courteous and attentive he was when a delivery boy on a grocery wagon, and how he had maintained this same character all along, and they used their influence with their husbands, and the result was that he was elected by a good majority.

N. B. FIREMEN ROASTED.

By Bangor Commercial for Alleged Discourtesy to Calais Team.

VERY INDIGNANT.

At Moncton and Fredericton But Not at Chatham Amherst Also Scored.

(Bangor Commercial)

CALAIS, Me., Saturday—The Calais firemen who went to Chatham, N. B. Monday, Sept. 14th, for the purpose of competing in the firemen's tournament held there on the following day were handed out a big and juicy lemon on that had been maturing on the tree for their especial benefit ever since it became known of their intention to compete. The boys made the long and arduous trip across the province of New Brunswick at considerable expense on the guarantee of the secretary of the Chatham fire department that they would be allowed to compete without protest but when they reached the exhibition grounds where the tournament was held they found that the truck was under the control of two executive officers of the New Brunswick Firemen's Association and that the said officers were determined that no Amherst team could even get a look in on the sports. The officials mentioned not only ignored the Chatham firemen entirely but placed the latter in a most embarrassing position as a result of their decision not to allow Calais to compete in any of the events scheduled for the day, although the entries from this department were solicited and accepted by the committee in charge of the tournament. The claim of the officials was that the Calais team was not composed of regular firemen, but was organized solely for the purpose of contesting the events which had been arranged for the meet at Chatham, and they refused to even recognize the certificate of membership issued by Chief C. V. Gillis, of the Calais fire department, while accepting without question those submitted by deputies and chiefs from towns in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Chief Harry Rutter, of the Fredericton fire department was persistent in his efforts to disqualify the Calais men, and he was ably seconded by Chief Ackman of the Moncton fire department, secretary of the sports association. In justice to the members of the Chatham fire department it must be stated that the boys from the chief down, were extremely sorry that the Calais men were not allowed to compete and did everything possible to give the men from Maine a good time.

After team from Moncton, who were allowed to compete without question, towns having a department composed only of ten or a dozen men, sending to the tournament anywhere from fifteen to thirty five men who were allowed to compete in the sports and no protest raised.

Amherst kicked the hardest against Calais, next to the chiefs mentioned before, the fact of the team from this city having defeated them by nearly two seconds in the recent tournament held at St. Stephen, having rankled deeply in the breasts of the Nova Scotians. Fear of the money passing across the border seems to have been responsible alone for the turn down of the Calais men, and judging by the time made by the winning teams, there was good reason for the feeling aroused by the presence in the city of the Americans.

Regret was expressed by many of the citizens of Chatham and other towns over the discourteous treatment accorded the boys from this city, even Chief Ackman of Moncton, who was only too willing to accept the opinions of Chief Rutter of the Fredericton department during the early part of the day, making the statement that it was too bad the association took the stand it did with reference to the eligibility of the Calais fire department.

THE PHILIPPINES STORM SWEEPED. MANILA, Thursday—A typhoon of terrific velocity swept over the central portion of the Philippine group, disappearing in the China Sea. Wires are prostrated and available details of the damage done are meagre. It is evident that a series of disasters followed in the wake of the sudden storm.

A despatch received from Remblon says that the typhoon caused great loss of property and that undoubtedly many persons have been killed.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to look to the root cause, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CALIFORNIA WOODS BURNING.

EUREKA, Cal., Thursday—A great forest fire is raging near here, fanned by a fifty mile gale and already the plant of the Kelstrom Lumber Co. valued at $80,000 has been destroyed.

The million dollar plant of the Redwood Lumber Company is directly in the course of the flames. The train arrived at Samoa last night carrying refugees from Luffenholz and Fieldbrook, the former town having been destroyed by the flames.

The refugees were hemmed in by the flames and a daring trip through fire on a train was proposed. The dash was made with flames so close that the paint on the cars was blistered by the heat.

FINGERLESS TYPEWRITING. LONDON, Tuesday—Hans Knudson the Danish electrical engineer, today gave a practical demonstration of his ability to work a typewriter by wire less telegraph. Knudson claims that the typewriter composing machine can be operated in a similar fashion, and although today's demonstration was made with apparatus in a more or less experimental stage of construction the results were such as to open a wondrous vista of almost magical attainment.

Many people present at the demonstration, which was held at the Cecil Hotel, wrote on the wireless type writer in one room, and what they wrote was immediately printed by a receptive typewriter in a neighboring apartment in a precisely similar way.

Knudson claims that it will be possible to operate a linotype machine in the same way, news messages being sent off on a wireless keyboard at the central office of the news agency. The telegraphing of sketches and photos by wire less can also be accomplished by means of a special form of the same machine.

"THE NIGGER IN THE WOOD-PILE"

Thousands of people go through life feeling more or less miserable without ever knowing the reason. They suffer from headaches, indigestion, pains in the back, and at the slightest chill get rheumatism or neuralgia.

They try to cure these separate outbreaks, never suspecting that the root of the whole trouble is the failure of the bowels to move regularly, and in many cases the sluggish action of kidneys and skin. The result, of course, is that the whole system gets clogged with impurities, which soon turn to poison, and show their presence in various ways.

"Fruit-a-lives"—or fruit juice laxative—promptly stir up the sluggish liver, regulate the bowels, and stimulate the kidneys and skin to do their work properly. Thus they cure all these troubles by removing the cause, and make it possible to really enjoy life. 50c a box—6 boxes for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

ANOTHER GOVERNOR IN TROUBLE.

The mother of Lieutenant Governor Dunsinuir of British Columbia has, through her lawyers, filed a claim against his honor, the present owner and operator of the Wellington and Union Collieries on Vancouver Island. She seeks to compel her son to give an account of all the money received and spent by him since 1889. Thirty million dollars are at stake.

NOT DEPENDENT UPON QUEBEC.

That there is nothing in the off-repeated statements that Sir Wilfrid Laurier ruled by means of Quebec, is shown by the following table, which gives standing of parties in the House of Commons when Parliament was dissolved a few days ago:

	Lib-eral	Con-serv-ative	Lab-our
Ontario	38	47
Nova Scotia	17	1
New Brunswick	8	5
Manitoba	7	3
Saskatchewan	5	1
Alberta	2	2
British Columbia	7	0
P. E. I.	1	3
Yukon	0	1
Total	86	63
Quebec	53	11	1

Thus we see that Sir Wilfrid could have ruled the country if Quebec had been equally divided, for he had a majority of twenty-three outside of that province. The alleged domination of Quebec must have been rather a mild tyranny, for the English-speaking representatives could at any time have thrown it off.

NEW ENEMIES TO CONSERVATISM.

In boasting that they expect to sweep the Western provinces and make great gains in Ontario, the Conservatives do not appear to have taken into account the new political forces that are entering the field in Canada, especially in several of those provinces where the Conservative party has been relatively strongest.

BLOOD

We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor. There is nothing else to live on or by. When strength is full and spirits high we are being refreshed—bone, muscle and brain, in body and mind—with continual flow of rich blood. This is health.

When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

Back of the blood is food, to keep the blood rich. When it fails, take

SCOTT & BOWNE
120 Wellington Street W., TORONTO, ONT.

The Socialists, who already have three members in the local legislature, are contesting four of the seven British Columbia constituencies for the House of Commons, with fairly good prospect of electing one or more members in that province, every member from which in last House was a Conservative. In Alberta, where the last delegation to Parliament was equally divided between Conservatives and Liberals and a Socialist candidate had never been nominated, there are now five Socialists running. And candidates of the same party have been nominated in Winnipeg and Port Arthur.

In Ontario, another Conservative province, the Independent Labor Party, an organization socially inclined, are contesting several constituencies. Samuel L. Landers, of the International Garment Workers' Union and editor of the official organ of that body, is running for East Hamilton, a constituency lately captured from the Conservatives by Allan Studholme of the I. L. P. Mr. Landers' chances of finishing the job by carrying the constituency in the federal election are bright. The I. L. P. candidates in Toronto South and other places will cut into the Conservative ranks; as will also the Independent candidates that the C. P. R. workers purpose running in St. Thomas and other railway centres. It will be useless for the Conservatives to oppose Alphonse Verville, the Labor M. P. for the Maisonneuve division of Montreal.

FOSTER, FOWLER, POPE & CO.
(Toronto Globe.)

Mr. Foster has been nominated in North Toronto, Mr. Fowler in King's and Albert, Mr. Bennett in East Simcoe, Mr. Rufus Pope in Compton, and Mr. Lefurgey in Prince, P. E. I. They are nominated, and are out assisting Mr. Borden to bring about the reign of purity and the downfall of graft. Mr. Fowler got his nomination on Saturday last, and on accepting it made a speech defending himself against the charges laid at his door. He declared that all his proceedings in connection with the purchase of land from the Canadian Pacific Railway were straightforward business transactions. He explained:

"Some years ago I bought in the open market a large tract of land from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. I brought it in open trade, just as any man could have bought it, and acquired it with the intention to sell it at a profit if I could. Is there any crime in that? Do you say that your representatives in Parliament must not engage in fair and honest business? If that is the mandate you propose giving your representatives, then you will have to represent you in Parliament only middlemen and rake-off creatures."

In view of this explanation, added interest will be found in the letter written by Mr. Fowler to his co-laborer, Mr. Lefurgey, on Oct. 4, 1902:

"Dear Lefurgey,—We have succeeded beyond our wildest hopes. We wired D. M., and he met us at the train, Toronto, and took us to his office, and gave us the route so far as located; of course, under cover of the strictest secrecy, so keep it mum, except to Borden, Bennett and yourself. We expect to have a wealthy Englishman named Lister, and Col. Pellat, in the combine with us. We have increased the thing to 200,000 acres. On arriving here we interviewed Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, and have every reason to expect most generous treatment as to the terms and price. He said we should get the best that was going. We want to arrange a meeting there when the party returns to Montreal. Tell Messrs. Borden and Bennett about the meeting. It will be necessary for at least two of us to go this fall and locate, as it could not be done in the spring, and that is one of the things that must be arranged at the meeting."

Geo. W. Fowler.

The gentleman whom Mr. Fowler and Mr. Pope met at the train was Mr. D. D. Mann of the Canadian Northern Railway. The information he gave was as to the route of that railway through the lands of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Having got that information, they next went to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who appears to have been most gracious to them. Eventually a purchase was made of 200,000 acres of land along the line of the Canadian Northern, at $3.50 an acre. Messrs. Fowler and Pope do not appear to have put up more than $200 apiece: Messrs. Lefurgey and Bennett, who were in the syndicate, appear to have really put up a considerable sum of money. Mr. Bennett has stated that he put $11,000 into the transaction. Before it was possible to turn the deal over it was necessary to make another payment. In this emergency Messrs. Fowler and Pope were enabled to meet their obligation by a note signed by them and endorsed by Mackenzie & Mann.

Soon after this the speculators encountered Mr. Foster, with the trust fund millions of the Foresters at his back. He was manager of the Union Trust Company, controlling the funds of the Foresters. Did he, as manager of the trust company, deal directly with Messrs. Fowler and Pope? Ah, no; there would have been nothing for the boy in that process. It was necessary to create a toll-gate between these great personages of the world of high finance. A company called the Great West Company was literally created, its chief personages being Geo. E. Foster, McGillivray, and Wilson.

Messrs. Fowler and Pope sold to this Great West Company, or, in other words, to Foster & Co., at an advance on the price paid or promised the Canadian Pacific Railway of $1 an acre, so that on a capital of about $400 and a $40,000 note, these two eminent financiers cleared a considerable share of $200,000.

But Messrs. Fowler and Pope did better than that. They reserved the remainder of the area bought from the C. P. R., some 8,000 acres, holding it for themselves until prices went away up. In this their associates were not to share. There should be honor among statesmen.

Mr. Foster's transactions are too complicated and ingenious to be told to-day. They form a story by themselves. The main purport in narrating Mr. Fowler's connection with them is to get his view as to what is a straight business transaction. In the quotation from his speech given above he asks: Do you say that your representatives in Parliament must not engage in fair and honest business? He should have explained about buying a property at $170,000 and having the deed prepared as if he had paid $225,000 for it.

He also declared: "I sold my land to the Great West Land Company, and I am glad to state that I sold it at a profit, too! That's what I bought it for."

Mr. Fowler is a prominent member of a party which is pursuing with malignity two gentlemen who bought land and timber limits from the Government, and the chief proof of the alleged iniquity of these transactions is that they made money out of them. There is another aspect, Messrs. Fowler, Bennett and Lefurgey are members of Parliament. Mr. Pope desires to be. They received favors from the chiefs of two great railway companies which are constantly before Parliament in one capacity or another. How could these men act evenly and impartially between the public whom they represent and the railway men to whom they were under obligations for the opportunity to make $200,000? As a matter of fact, at the succeeding session of Parliament Fowler was the most blatant opponent of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. He heckled Mr. Hays in the Railway Committee in a way that was condemned by all decent men who heard it. Was he expressing his gratitude to the rival railways whose kindness had helped him to a share of $200,000 and 8,000 acres of land?

ADVICE TO SOUTH AFRICAN VETERANS.

They Should Beware of the Scrip Buyers and Prefer The Land.

To the Editor of The Times, Montreal, N. B.

Sir—With your permission I desire to express through the columns of your paper a few words of advice to South African veterans in respect to the Volunteers Bounty Act 1908.

I presume that all veterans are aware of the provisions of Act, by which they are entitled to receive a Bounty of scrip to the value of one hundred and sixty dollars or a land grant conditional upon homesteading an adjoining quarter section of one hundred and sixty acres which is also free.

I wish to impress upon all veterans that the Land Bounty is much more valuable than the scrip and being assignable will realize more money if offered for sale in Western Canada today. Consequently every veteran should prefer the Land Bounty and receive the free advantage of this valuable concession.

Scrip buyers would not pay more than $140 for $160 in scrip which deducting commission and other charges would mean not more than $125 to the veteran. On the other hand, after six years residence in Western Canada, I am confident that if the Land Bounty is accepted by the veteran he can without any trouble obtain at least double the above amount, upon his proper assignment of the same to the substitute, who desires to take the advantage of its privileges.

I am, Sir,
Yours truly,
GEORGE McMORRIS,

POLITICAL NOTES.

(Contributed.)

The Agricultural Society, No. 75, will hold its annual fair at Blackville on Wednesday, October 7th.

A party of twenty-five men left for the upper St. John River last week via the Gibson branch C. P. R. train to work in the lumber woods. The wages paid the men ran from $25 to $32 per month and in Maine wages are said to run up as high as $33 per month.

A large number of men with teams have left Blackville during the past few weeks to erect six tenement houses at the line near Cain's River. Fully twenty-five teams went last week from Blackville and many more will follow in the course of a few days.

Mann & Baxter have been awarded a contract to erect six tenement houses at the line near the Steven Lumber Co. They are also building a fine residence for Mr. A. Levine in Dalhousie parish, and another residence for Alex. Pratt at Matapedia. They have almost completed the roof of the new Maqonic Temple.

"A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" is a proverb the Hon. Donald Morrison might well ponder over at this juncture. It is reported that his reputation up the Renous was anything but cordial. It was a hot one or a cold one, whichever way he likes to take it. The treacherous way in which Mr. Robinson was ejected out of the nomination has caused a feeling of resentment up the river where Mr. Robinson is very popular. The writer heard three strong Conservatives say, the other day, that they would not vote for Mr. Morrison, and one of them was at the nominating convention. Things are looking rather blue for the Honorable gentlemen, and he no doubt knows it from his interviews with the people.

J. J. Hill, the great railway magnate said, in an interview with the Montreal Gazette: "New York has reached the climax of her financial supremacy. The cost of everything relating to trade and commerce has increased beyond the point of profit. Traffic cannot be drained up. It will seek an outlet somewhere, by going around the edges in making for itself entirely new channels. There are two outlets for the west possible of development besides New York and the adjacent ports. One is through Canada, and one down the Mississippi to New Orleans."

Mr. Borden and his followers lacked foresight; they lacked the genius necessary for government; they failed to grasp the possibilities of Canada when they opposed the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific. That railway will make certain that Canadian trade will be carried through Canadian ports.

Mr. Ames, M. P. for one of the Montreal constituencies, has been touring the west with a magic lantern exposing in his own inimitable way what he calls the "shady methods" of the Interior Department. It is safe to say that this suspicious Mr. Ames never once referred to the manner in which his own party administered the public domain lands and timber. When the party of which Mr. Ames is such a shining ornament came into power in 1878, the process of looting the public domains began in real earnest. And the raid on the timber continued until 1888, when a veritable scramble commenced. During that one year, 1888, the rapacious Tory politicians divided among themselves, free of cost, no less than 10,328 square miles of timber limits, covering 6,008,640 acres of land, the property of the people of Canada. This vast tract they secured absolutely free of cost. Not a cent was demanded or paid. These men in charge of the public affairs of Canada, put there by the electors of Canada, divided the property of the people among themselves at the rate of 22,500 acres a day for three hundred working days.

During the present contest, no doubt Mr. Morrison will recite a few homilies on political purity. We beg to draw his attention to these facts and they will furnish him with a text from which he can deliver a most inspiring and instructive address on the methods pursued by his party when in power.

We should like to ask Mr. Morrison what he thinks of the party who, while in office, disposed of 20,322 square miles of timber at an average of $1.13 per square mile? What does he think of a party who disposed of 23,000 square miles of timber without getting any compensation for the treasury? What does he think of men who divided among themselves, when in power, 10,328 square miles of timber in one year without paying a cent for it? And finally, which does he think the better policy, and in the interests of the whole people—the policy of his party in dividing among its political favorites and hangers-on these thousands of miles of timber, or the policy of the Liberal Government which have never sold a mile of timber since they came into power twelve years ago except to the highest bidder at public competition? The people of this country are anxious to know which policy Mr. Morrison favors.

The Tory party, when in power, sold the timber at an average of $4.13 a mile. The Liberals have sold it at the average price of $81.02 per square mile.

MONTREAL, Wednesday.—That he be taken hence to the common jail in this district and thence, on Friday, the 27th day of November next, to the common place of execution in this district; that he be then and there hanged by the neck until he be dead. May God have mercy on his soul!"

Without a quiver in his voice, Mr. Justice Tremblay uttered these words in the court of the King's bench yesterday afternoon as the one word "guilty" had been pronounced by the jury empaneled for the trial of Frank Smith, known as "Crooked-Necked" Smith, the slayer of Mike Malone, alias Jimmie Enright, who was shot and killed in an opium den at 111 West Lagache street on July 7th last.

SOUTH AFRICAN VETERANS

Their Land Grants Will Be Worth Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—A committee of the South African Veterans Association waited upon Mr. Corey, deputy minister of the interior, today, and ascertained that by living six months on each half section, a veteran can secure not only the 320 acres of a special land grant but also homestead and preemption of 320 acres additional.

The committee, as the result of the interview, will report to the association that it is advised that as the act now stands, enabling as it does a veteran, who immediately locates his grants, to hold his land until June 30 1911, without being obliged to perform settlement duties upon it, the value of a veteran's rights of 320 acres, can reasonably be computed at $8 an acre. The committee will likewise strongly recommend that any veteran, who can should, even at personal inconvenience to himself, locate his land this autumn.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF FORESTERS.

This is to certify that at a meeting of the High Standing Committee of the High Court of New Brunswick, I. O. F., held at the Royal Hotel, St. John, N. B., on Sept. 17th, 1908, the following resolution was adopted, and the undersigned directed to publish the same, namely:—

"Whereas, some apprehension has arisen as to the cause of the increase of rates in the Independent Order of Foresters, which it is necessary to correct. Therefore, be it resolved by this High Standing Committee of the High Court of the Province of New Brunswick, Independent Order of Foresters, that it is important in the interests of the Order to assert to the membership and the public that the sole cause of such increase in rates is due to the fact that the monthly assessments charged to the members joining the Order before 1890 were insufficient to pay for the insurance carried by them, and to no other causes.

Real Successes.

(Catholic Record.)

Thousands of young men in this country are tied down by iron circumstances, are not able to go to college or have a career, but are examples of self-sacrifice in sweetening the home, in brightening the life of an invalid mother or cripple sister, in giving up a home of their own for the sake of those depending upon them, in struggling to pay off a mortgage, in helping a brother or sister to go to college, in order that they may have a career which has been denied them. These are the real successes in life.

Troubles that never come.

(Catholic Record.)

How foolish to worry ourselves about dreadful things which the future may bring! A man once called his sons to him when he lay upon his deathbed and said: "My sons, I have had a great deal of trouble in this world, but the most of it never came." And as we look back upon the past the most of us will find that the things we most dreaded were not called upon to bear, so all our worry over them went for naught, and we get along with the unexpected just as well, perhaps better, than if we had all the chance in the world to worry about it.

It is many seasons since a new comic opera has been out, but we are to be blessed with not only a new one but a clever one, written by Charles Felton Pidgin, who also wrote this novel. To be clever, one must be talented and ingenious also, and Mr. Pidgin when he wrote 'Quincy Adams Sawyer,' showed the mettle of his originality and skill in devising plots and delineating character. This new book and opera, for which he has written twenty-six lyrics, proves his versatility, for the songs are extremely bright. The music is just as snappy and sparkling as the words and the whole opera is pleasing and melodious. 'The Jollities' are a happy company of singers, comedians and dancers and will give a clean wholesome presentation at the Opera House, on Oct. 3, 1908, for one night only. Fresh, new costumes and scenery add much to the general ensemble and 'The Jollities' carry original stage setting especially designed for 'The Toymakers.'

The main feature of this comic absurdity is an electric doll that is brought to life by its owner, an old toymaker, who has spent life and fortune in its construction and finally brings it to life, whereupon its drill performances cause the most ludicrous situations upon the stage and furnish great fun for the audience, who are kept in a happy mood by Miss Daisy Dane, the village belle, who, unknown to the inventor, takes the place of his beautiful doll. Those who can, should read the book, which makes delightful reading, before seeing the opera. It is published by The C. M. Clark Publishing Co., who also published 'Quincy Adams Sawyer' and 'Blennerhassett' by the same author.

'The Jollities' have met with great success in other towns and crowded houses have greeted their appearance every night.

UNITED BAPTISTS MEET.

Interesting And Successful Quarterly Convention Of The 10th District.

The quarterly meeting of the 10th District of the United Baptists met in Upper Blackville on Monday evening and Tuesday of last week.

The first session was well attended, and a deep interest in the work of the churches was evident from the very beginning.

After listening to a very able paper by Rev. J. G. A. Belyea of Doaktown, on "Christian Giving," Rev. Henry A. Brown of Newcastle delivered a sermon on "The Ideal Personality."

The music was very ably rendered by the choir of the Upper Blackville Baptist church.

On Tuesday morning reports were given of the state of our churches. This created a very profitable discussion, which will produce good results. The afternoon session was conducted by the ladies and addresses were delivered concerning the work of the Women's Missionary Aid Society, by Mrs. J. G. A. Belyea and Mrs. Frank Swin of Doaktown. At the close of this meeting a new society—The Upper Blackville Woman's Missionary Aid Society—was organized with the following officers:—

President.—Mrs. A. Duncan.
Vice President.—Mrs. Bert Donald.
Secretary.—Mrs. Chas. Donald.
Treasurer.—Mrs. Chas. Morehouse.
Literature Sec'y.—Miss Jennie Urquhart.

A very large congregation gathered for the evening service and listened attentively to an address on "The Lay Man's Missionary Movement," and a sermon on "The Soul Winner" by Rev. J. G. A. Belyea.

It was unanimously agreed to accept the invitation to meet next January with the Baptist church at Lower Derby.

A resolution of thanks was extended to the church for the very excellent provision made for the comfort of the delegates and visiting friends. Much of the success of these meetings was due to the untiring efforts of the pastor, Rev. F. T. Snell.

STUBBORN INDIGESTION

One Who Had Suffered for Years Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, while others loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. With others there is an intense pain and feeling of nausea after eating. Sometimes gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is another frequent and distressing symptom.

Mr. Alex. McKay, McLellan's, Moncton, N. B., says: "For years I was a great sufferer from indigestion, which was gradually growing worse and worse, and it would be impossible for me to tell how much suffering I endured. At different times I had treatment from three good doctors but it did not help me in the least. Then I began trying all sorts of advertised medicines and took ten packages of one medicine specially intended for dyspepsia, but with no better results. I had practically come to regard myself as incurable, and to feel that I would be a continuous sufferer, when one day I read in a newspaper of the cure of indigestion through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I made up my mind to give them a trial. I had used nearly five boxes before they began to help me, but I do not wonder at this as my case was so bad. I used in all a dozen boxes of the pills, and they cured me completely. I can now eat anything we raised on the farm for man to eat and have no longer the pains and discomfort I had endured for years. It is several years now since I was cured, and I have never felt a symptom of indigestion since. I am well known in this locality and you are quite at liberty to use what I say in the hope that it will benefit some other sufferer."

All medicine dealers sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A VOTE FOR LOGGIE MEANS PROGRESS FOR NORTHUMBERLAND

The Boy and His Chance.

How a Sickly Pampered Lad Was Saved From a too Indulgent Father.

(Catholic Record.)

No doubt the fact that he was a motherless boy had much to do with his father's treatment of him. In a fond and foolish way Hepburn Gray was trying to make up to the lad what he fancied he had lost by his mother's death. Not a wish that the boy could utter went ungratified. His father was a rich man, and his money brought him no greater pleasure than to give pleasure to the boy.

Franklin Gray grew up pale and spindling. His appetite was weak, his digestion poor. At seventeen he was a chronic sufferer from ennui.

And then one night Dr. Birdsall called up Hepburn Gray.

"Home for a half hour, Gray?"

"All right, I'm coming over."

In twenty minutes he was at the Gray door. Three minutes later he was smoking an excellent cigar before the cheerful blaze in the big fire-place in the Gray library.

"Stole an hour from my patients," he said. "Glad I found you home. This is a very good cigar."

He was a stout man with a thick gray beard and thick eyebrows.

"I seem to scent business in your studied case of manner," said Gray.

"What is it. Tip on the market?"

"Wrong," said the big doctor as he watched the smoke curl above his head.

"What sort of a man am I, Hepburn Gray?"

"Pretty straight shot, I fancy," said Gray.

"The fact that I have selected you as the guardian of the Gray health would seem to carry an impression of confidence."

"True," said the doctor. "Pretty frank, am I? Never hesitate to speak my mind, eh?"

"I have never noticed any reticence of that sort about you," Gray responded.

"What is it, Birdsall? My heart again?"

"The big doctor shook his head.

"No, you seem to be alright."

"Is—Is anything wrong with Franklin?"

The big doctor looked across at Gray.

"Nothing unusual," he answered.

"Nothing new, at least."

"Then it is about Franklin?"

Gray grimly smiled.

"It's no use, Birdsall. I can't deny the boy anything. He's motherless, you know. And I'm trying to be both mother and father to him."

The big doctor nodded.

"You're killing him with kindness, all right," he said. "That's easy to see."

He paused and flung the half-smoked cigar into the grate. "Listen to me, Gray. I like you. I liked the boy's mother. I like the boy, too, as far as he will let me. And I want to say to you right here that you are all wrong in your treatment of the lad. You have spoiled him—and you keep right on spoiling him more and still more. What's the consequence?"

"It's no use, John Birdsall," he said. "Your little lecture will be wasted. Now listen to me. I was a poor boy, as you know. I had no childhood. I did a man's work when I was fifteen. I slept in an attic where the snow sifted across my bed. I never knew what it was to play as other children played. I could not reason this out, but the fact was there and it made me bitter. I made up my mind to be rich when I grew up and if I had a son he should have it. I thought, I knew what it was to be poor. My boy should never know. I don't say that I have done right by the lad—but I've kept my promise."

He paused and stared at the cheery blaze.

"That's all very well," said the big doctor in his deep tones. "It has a flavor of sentiment that I like. But sentiment is an expensive luxury, even to man of millions. You are all wrong about the boy, Hepburn."

"He is growing up to a tame, spiritless creature. Physically he is spindly and enervated. A puff of wind would blow him out. Thin soled shoes on a damp day would mean a hurry up call for me. His grip on life, my friend, is anything but strong. Rich food distresses him—he cares for no other kind. He would be an ideal patient for me if he didn't keep me constantly worried. That's your only son and heir, Hepburn Gray."

The other man stirred uneasily.

"Professional exaggeration makes mountains out of mole hills, I fancy," he slowly said.

The big doctor let the slender hand slip from his broad grasp.

"You can't keep those finger tips warm, can you? But there, run along. You'll get no more tonight."

"Good-night, papa."

"Good-night, boy."

"Thank you, Dr. Birdsall." And he was gone.

"He's a fine mannered little chap," said the big doctor. "It's a pity he hasn't got a better casing for his good qualities. He looked at his watch. I must talk faster," he said. His voice grew softer. "Hepburn," he said, "you and I are friends. We've stood side by side during anxious hours. We've clasped hands in sorrow. I was here when your mother went away. I'm going to show you my friendship in a new light. I'm going to make a suggestion that will try the bonds that unite us. But you will not doubt my honesty. Wait. Is that the boy you hoped would grow up and take an interest in your affairs, and aid you, and perhaps in good time take the tiller from your hands and steer the ship alone? Is that the boy?"

"Yes."

"But you have little hope of it now?"

"Very little. The boy cares nothing for business."

"How do you know? What chance have you given him? How have you fitted him for this life you hoped would interest him? I tell you, man, there is still a chance. This boy must be given a better physique, he must be given health and strength. He isn't developed. Now listen to me, Hepburn. I want to take that boy away from you. I want to put him where he'll get the chance he needs. I know the place. I know what it should do for him. Give him to me for eighteen months. You can trust me. Let me try this experiment. But I must try it in my own way. You are not to trust me implicitly. You are not to know where the boy has gone. I will keep in communication with him and will tell you from time to time how he fares. What do you say? It means a chance for the boy. It may mean great happiness for you. Cut out the sentiment, Hepburn. Think only of the boy's future. Speak up, man."

He arose as he spoke and went to the other man and laid a broad hand gently on his shoulder.

The father of the boy straightened up. He put out his hand and gripped the doctor's.

"I'll think it over," he slowly said.

Hepburn Gray crossed himself times that he had let the doctor persuade him to give up his boy. It was only a wild experiment at the best. If the boy had his weak constitution from his mother there was little hope that it could be strengthened.

For a month Hepburn Gray would not call up the doctor. He was angry at him, angry at himself.

And then one night the doctor called him up.

"Just heard from the boy," he said.

"He arrived alright and thinks he is going to like the place. You may be glad to know that he was awfully hungry for his breakfast next morning. He sends you his love. I'll let you know when I hear anything further. Good-night."

After a while Hepburn grew more accustomed to his boy's absence, and his feeling toward the doctor underwent a change—although he could not quite forgive him. Nor would he ask any questions about the lad. All the doctor told him was volunteered information. That is until Hepburn fell ill.

It was a serious cold and pneumonia was threatened. The doctor looked anxious.

"Is Franklin close enough to be sent for if he should be wanted?" the sick man feebly murmured.

"He will not be wanted," the doctor sharply answered and his teeth clicked as he said it.

The boy wasn't wanted, but the doctor got a serious scare.

"See here," he said, "if you want that lad of yours with you while you are convalescing, I'll send for him."

Hepburn shook his head.

"No," he said, "I'm not selfish enough for that. A sick room is no place for the boy. Is—he is doing well, where is he?"

"I have good reports from him," said the doctor a little evasively.

"Then let him stay the time out. It's only six months longer to wait."

The doctor nodded and went away well pleased.

So the time wore along and presently the doctor came to Hepburn and asked him whether he preferred to have the boy come to him, or would he like to go after the lad and fetch him home.

Hepburn looked thoughtful.

"I'll go after him."

"Then here is the address," said the doctor and handed him a card and walked away. "Let me know the exact time you start," he called back.

Hepburn felt that there was little or nothing encouraging in the doctor's manner. He looked at the card. The place it named was a minor station on the Union Pacific east of Laramie.

And so with much anxiety and little hope Hepburn Gray began the long journey.

The second day after he boarded the Overland Limited, a boy, mounted on a stocky pony, came galloping across the prairie and drew up with a wild yell at the platform of the little station of Broadbent. The station master looked through the grimy window.

"It's that cub from the Gopher ranch," he chuckled. "What's he up to now?"

The boy drew the saddle and bridle from the pony and laid them on the porch. Then he turned the animal loose with a playful slap.

"You know what you'll get if you don't come when I whistle, Pete," he called after the pony. Then he pushed open the door of the station and went in.

"Hullo, Pikey," he said to the station agent, "how's things?"

"All right as far as I know," the agent responded. "What are you doing here?"

"Got a friend coming on the express. Hot minute at Cloud Burst. But she don't stop here."

"I know that she'll stop if you flag her, Pikey."

"Which I won't do."

"Don't get grumpy," chuckled the boy. "I guess my friend can induce 'em to stop if he wants to get off."

"Oh, can he? Mebbe he's the president of the road—and mebbe he ain't."

"Mebbe," laughed the boy. "And then again mebbe he's the new station agent that's coming to take your place some day."

The man was about to retort when the telegraph instrument on the table before him began to tick. He stared at the instrument, and his ruddy face paled.

"The express is ditched at Atkin's Forks," he hurriedly muttered. "They're calling up Laramie for a relief train."

"Do you mean the Overland?" cried the boy.

"Yes."

"Seven miles east. Just this side of Bingham's."

"I'm going there, Pikey."

"You can't get there unless you wait for the relief."

"I'll take your handcar," he was out of the door like a shot.

"Don't you touch that car," the agent yelled after him. "That's Company property."

"You go to blazes!" came back from the lad.

The agent ran to the door. The boy was dragging the car onto the track.

"That's the dumbest boy I ever saw," he muttered. Then he raised his voice. "Here you link," he shouted, "if you will steal the company's property take it along too. It may come handy."

And he shook a pocket flask at the boy. The latter ran forward. "I'd like to go along with you," the agent added.

"I need help at hand. Those who ain't nobody to take my place here. Look out for the grade. So long, kid."

A warning click drew the attention of the agent and the boy. The latter was speeding up the road.

He saw the effects of the disaster while he was still a half mile away—the overturned cars, the group of excited people—and then he hurried the handcar still faster. Presently he drew it from the track and ran forward.

There were a score or more of people hurt, and most of them were lying on blankets on the grass at the roadside waiting for the coming relief train.

There was no doctor on the train and no medical help at hand. Those who were unhurt had done what they could for the injured. Wounds had been bandaged and water brought.

The boy ran forward and looked for the man he sought. He had glanced about at the uninjured. The man was not there. Then he passed among the injured, and presently he found him.

He was lying on his back propped up on a roll of blankets. His arm had been cut and bruised. They had clipped away his coat sleeve and tried to stop the flow of blood, but had only made it worse.

The man had been struck on the head too, when the shock came. He was still dazed by the blow. He started up in a half panic as the boy dropped on his knees beside him and put the flash to his lips.

"He ought to have a surgeon as soon as possible," said a passenger. "He's losing too much blood."

The boy arose and darted to the handcar and pulled it into the track. Then he lifted the wounded man.

"Can you walk a little way?" he asked.

"Yes, yes," said the man. "That stuff has put some life into me."

Half leading, half carrying, the wounded man the boy got him on to the handcar and lifted him aboard.

"Hold fast," he ordered; it isn't far."

It was down grade all the way and the boy let the car go as fast as he dared. Twice he looked at the man. The cold air had revived him. He was standing the journey well. It was but a few minutes before the station came in sight, and almost instantly the agent ran forward.

"Got a man here who needs help right away, Pikey," said the boy.

Together they lifted the sufferer and carried him into the station and laid him on the couch. And the agent who was a jack of many trades, got out his handy surgical kit and bandaged and plastered the hurt and presently looked up with a nod of satisfaction. "That'll do nicely," he said. "It was just a simple cut, but it's lucky the boy got you here as quick as he did. Where is he?"

He stepped to the open door. "Yes, he's pulled the handcar from the track. There he is, catching his pony. No doubt he's going over to Sam Bringle's to borrow his buckboard. He'll want to carry you to the ranch, I reckon. That's the place for you. They'll give you the best of care. It's only four miles across the prairie."

The man looked up.

"What station is this?" he asked.

"This is Broadbent."

The man looked around.

"I thought there might be a boy here waiting for me," he murmured with a little catch in his voice.

"Eh! That's the only boy around here."

The man shook his head. "I mean here. That boy was at the wreck."

He put his hand to his head. He was still a little confused.

"That boy belongs here. He was in the station when I heard the news of the wreck going through. What does the kid do but yank out the handcar and go a-kidding up the road. And back he hikes with you. Come to think he said he was expecting somebody on the train. But of course you can't be the one."

A strange look came over the man's face.

"Tell me something about this boy," he whispered.

The man chuckled.

"He's a great kid alright. Fine as silk and hard as nails. And say, you should have seen him when he came here. Skinny and white, and looking as if a breath would blow him away. But Jim Temple's ranch was the place for him alright. In six months you wouldn't have known him. That kid ain't afraid of anything. There's nothing that goes on four legs that he can't ride. And he's full of business too. He's got quite a bunch of sheep of his own, and last summer he and Jim went off prospecting for a couple of months and Jim says they struck something rich and each of 'em staked off a claim and Jim says it's a sure thing. If the folks down east let the boy alone he'll be a rich man some day and make every dollar of it himself."

They say he's got a dad somewhere that's a millionaire and no doubt he'll be coming out here after a while to get the boy—but he'll have to fight to get him away from Jim Temple. Here's the lad now. Come in kid, I guess the stranger would like to speak to you."

The boy pulled off his soft hat and his eyes were shining, and the man's eyes were shining, too, as he looked up into the eager, boyish face.

Then the lad suddenly dropped on his knees by the couch and the man put his uninjured arm around his neck and drew the cny head against his breast.

"My boy!" he half sobbed.

And the station agent turned abruptly and went into the other room.

IN THE WORLD'S OPEN MARKET

(Morning Graphic.)

From the articles in some of the Conservative papers, especially those of the high protectionist wing, it may be supposed that the Laurier Government had entirely neglected the development of manufacturing in Canada, and that in effect Liberalism on its economic side was hostile to industrial development. This census statistics prove how absurd this suggestion is. There is, however, an even better standard of measurement and that is provided by the books of the Customs department, which show how the manufacturers of Canada can care for themselves against all comers in the world's open markets. The export statistics of manufactured products tell the story. The Conservatives were in power from 1878 till 1896. In 1878 Canada sent into the world's markets manufactured articles to the value of $4,127,000. Eighteen years later in 1896, the total was a trifle more than doubled—$9,365,000.

Then the terrible Grits came in, those who were to close the factories. In ten years the export of manufactured products had risen to $24,561,000, and the variety was much greater than in Conservative times. Take iron and steel and machinery, for example. We sent abroad $459,000 worth, including $166,000 of machinery, at the end of Conservative rule. In the fiscal year ending June 1908, which is taken because the date of ending the country's trade year was changed in 1907, we exported iron and steel or manufactures thereof to the value of $1,269,000. Here are some other items of manufactured goods exported:—

Cottons,	$ 809,000	$ 1,246,000
Paper,	3,593	1,971,000
Boots and shoes	75,000	123,000
Leather,	1,907,848	1,854,000
Agricultural Implements,	593,000	2,497,000
Musical Instruments,	342,000	281,600
Bacon and Hams,	4,381,000	12,086,000
Wood pulp	675,000	2,478,000
Whiskey	374,000	942,000
Copper in ore and pigs	194,000	7,148,000
Nickel	486,000	2,166,000
Silver and Silver Ore,	1,595,000	4,310,600
Pig Lead		113,000

These schedules show that, generally speaking the metal and mineral industries have greatly flourished under Liberal rule, and that the cotton trade has also done very well. In such lines as the manufacture of bacon, of agricultural implements, of machinery of paper and of other products in which Canadian workmen and capitalists are specially interested, there has been enormous expansion. The truth is that with the sole exception of the woolen trade all sections of the industries of Canada have done more business and made more money under the moderate fielding tariff than under the boasted National Policy. That is why the factory workers and factory owners will vote for Laurier and Tariff Stability.

Don't judge a man's ability by what he gets instead of by what he earns.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

(Morning Graphic.)

The people have in the new scheme of rural mail delivery of the post-office an excellent example of the superiority of public ownership in of its significant phases, namely, that public ownership ensures absolute freedom to the state or municipality to do whatever it likes whenever it likes with the utility concerned.

Where private ownership of a public utility prevails there is no such freedom. The state or municipality has signed away its freedom to a private company.

Let us illustrate:

The Canadian postal system is owned and controlled by the nation. Here are some statistics as brought out by Postmaster-General Lemieux in his speech at Niagara Falls: He showed that the surplus last year was $1,000,000; that there has been no deficit since 1903; that as reductions were made in the postal rates the service was improved and cheapened, and what is still more significant, that the earnings increased with reduced charges, and changed former deficits into surpluses.

He showed that the state had been able to effect the following improvements:

Postal Rates— Before 1896 Since 1896
Canadian letters	3c.	2c.
U. S. letters	3c.	2c.
British letters	5c.	2c.
Drop city letters	2c.	1c.
Papers from Britain (lb)
	8c.	1c.

All these things the postmaster general did off his own bat, under the law of parliament, whenever he thought the time opportune.

And now that he has a surplus secured the postmaster general announces that he will forthwith throw up the question of rural delivery and so still further increase the service to the public. He is absolutely free to do this. He does not need to consult any railway or express company, nor is he open to the charge of "interfering with vested interests" and "wrecking the widow and the orphan," whose savings are all in some private company doing a postal business. And so he goes on with the good work of improving the postal service at every turn, and following the lines of progress set by other nations. The only place today where the postmaster general of Canada is antagonized in his freedom to serve the people is in the case of parcel post and postal money orders where the express companies (rivalways) are constantly lobbying against cheaper express rates by the state in its parcel post and against cheaper postal orders as against theirs. And you can see this in the fact that though the postmaster general has power by law now to improve and cheapen the parcel post (like in Great Britain and Germany—he can only do it in the face of the threats and hostilities of the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific. In other words, if the express business and the transfer of mail amounts of money had been kept a state monopoly great improvements in these directions would have been made long ago.

FOREST FIRES DID GREAT DAMAGE.

In Northumberland County The Past Week, Until Rain Came Yesterday.

Forest fires raged several days at Wellville, about a mile below Chatham, and the outskirts of the town were in some danger. A resident of Black River said that the forest fires had reached an alarming condition in that vicinity. Since Tuesday farmers and residents have been out in the woods fighting the flames and endeavoring to stop the onward march of conflagration. They made little impression on the blaze, however, until Friday night when danger was averted. The flames had burned over a large section however and are liable to break out again unless rain comes. The dry spell has been exceptionally long and there was danger of as general conflagration. Saturday night a big forest fire broke out near Rogersville and Blackville, an increase amount of damage being done. As yet no farm houses seem to have been destroyed, but many are threatened. The rain of yesterday will have a good effect upon the fires.
