HOLIDAY.

The earth is nothing but flowers and grass;
The sky is a light, and the wave its glass;
I will make a part of the shadowless whole,
And be a body without a soul.

I leave the troublesome creature bound
By hopes and fears that hedge it round;
So may I look, for a single day,
To live untroubled the life of May;

To spring into bloom from the clover root;
To feel the sap in the young leaf shoot;
To live my honey, to spread my wing;
To work or idle with any thing;

To slide with the fly on the water's face,
And swim with the fish that follows chase;
To feel myself once more at one
With all the life that is under the sun!

But what is sighing about the spot?
What sound of wind where wind is not?
Poor wretch! pursued by all thy cares,
Hast stolen away my unaware?

Go, get thee back, kind soul, I pray!
Sud or merry another day,
I ask for only these few short hours
To grow in the light like grass and flowers.

But still the poor soul, all undone,
Sighs and shivers beneath the sun;
I can not bear that piteous pain—
The homeless creature must come again.

Alas! the time when I could lie
As free from thought as the open sky
Is never for me, henceforth, I trow;
Soul, we must comfort each other now!

Harpers Magazine.

THE ALDINE for July is a capital number, both as regards its Art and its Literature. It opens with a full-page illustration, printed in tints, and entitled "Catch Him!" It represents two children, the elder of whom, a girl, is holding her little brother up to a rosebush, on which a butterfly is about to alight. This is one of Mr. John S. Davis's studies of child life, and a very excellent one, too. "Moonlight on the Shenandoah" is the title of the first of a series of five illustrations drawn by Mr. J. D. Woodward, whose themes are the scenery of the Old Dominion, which is chiefly selected in this instance from the region around Harper's Ferry and the Shenandoah. They are picturesque and beautiful. Mrs. Eliza Gratiot transports us back to Old New York, in her spirited sketch of "Hill Gate Ferry," which is one of the most characteristic local drawings ever contributed to THE ALDINE. "A Dainty Bit," after Otto Meyer, is delicious enough to provoke an appetite and a lover of figure-pieces are the "Morning Bath," by H. Werner, and "You Naughty Children!" by A. Gohl. There is a noble portrait of "The Countess Potocki," a fine architectural view of "The Frauenkirche, Nuremberg," a woodland scene entitled "The Onset," by C. Kroner, and a winter picture of a bittern, as we suppose, standing alone in a desolate marsh upon which the moon is just rising. This, which is after Dahl, is a most poetic and impressive realization of "Solitude." The Literature of THE ALDINE is always as excellent as, and generally more varied than the literature of any other American magazine. There are in the present number four good stories: "Sugaring Off," a study of New England life, by Mrs. H. G. Rowe, whose name is new to us; "Return in Peace," a study of old home life in the State of New York, by Lucy Ellen Giersey; "The Com't," by Hermann Chaffin; and "The Turkish Slipper," by Martmann. The more solid articles are a readable editorial on "The Old Dominion," apropos to Mr. Woodward's illustrations; another on "The Frauenkirche, Nuremberg," and "A Life's Romance," a brief memoir of the Countess Potocki. The poems are "The Song in the Dark," by Mary E. Bradley; and "Sepastiano at Supper," by Margaret J. Preston. Music, Art, and Literature are intelligently and independently discussed. Subscription price $5 00, including Chromos "Village Belle" and "Crossing the Moor." James Sutton & Co., Publishers, 58 Maiden Lane, N. Y.

A Second-Clad Passage.

AN UNFINISHED SKETCH BY CHAS. DICKENS.

The following extract from the second volume of Forster's Life of Charles Dickens, just published in England, is taken from a hitherto unpublished sketch in which the famous Mrs. Gamp is the principal speaker. The piece was written in support of the theatrical guild of literature and art, but remained unpublished because Dickens, Mr. Forster tells us, was disappointed in the illustrations. Mrs. Gamp is supposed to be on her way to Manchester with the perruquier to the company.

The number of the cab had a seven in it, I think, and I ought to know—and if this should meet his eye (which it was a black one, new done, that he saw with; the other was tied up), I give him warning that he'd better take that umbrella and patten to the Hackney-coach Office before he repents it. He was a young man in the week with sleeves to it and strings behind, and needn't flatter himself with a supposition of escape, as I gave this description of him to the police the moment I found he had drove off with my property; and if he thinks there ain't laws enough he's much mistaken—I tell him that.

I do assure you, Mrs. Harris, when I stood in the railway office that morning, with my bundle on my arm and one patten in my hand, you might have knocked me down with a feather, far less portmanteaus which was lumping against me, continual and severe all round. I drove about like a brute animal and almost worried into fits, when a gentleman (George Crikshank) with a large shirt-collar and a book nose, and an eye like one of Mr. Sweddelpipe's hawks, and long locks of hair, and whiskers that I wouldn't like no lady as I was engaged to meet suddenly turning round a corner, for any sum of money you could offer me, says, laughing, "Hallo, Mrs. Gamp, what are you up to?" I didn't know him from a man (except by his clothes); but I say faintly, "If you're a Christian man, show me where to get a second-clad ticket for Manchester, and have me put in a carriage, or I shall drop!" Which he kindly did, in a cheerful kind of a way, skipping about in the strangest manner as ever I see, making all kinds of actions, and looking and winking at me from under the brim of his hat (which was a good deal turned up) to that extent, that I should have thought he meant something but for being so flurried as not to have no thoughts at all until I was put in a carriage along with a middle-aged (Mr. Wilson, the landresser)—the politest as ever I see—in a shepherd's plaid suit with a long gold watch-chain hanging round his neck, and his hands trembling through nervousness worse than a spasm leaf.

"I'm werry appy ma'am," he says—the politest voice as ever I heard—"to go down with a lady belonging to our party."

"Our party, sir?"

"Yes, ma'am," he says, "I'm Mr. Wilson. I'm going down with the wigs."

Mrs. Harris, when he said he was a going down with the wigs, such was my state of confusion and worry that I thought he must be connected with the Government in some way or another, but directly moment he explains himself, he says: "There's not a theatre in London worth mentioning that I don't attend punctually. There's five-and-twenty wigs in these boxes, ma'am," he says, pointing towards a heap of luggage, 'as was worn at the Queen's fancy ball. There's a black wig, ma'am," he says, 'as was worn by Garrick; there's a red one, ma'am," he says, 'as was worn at the Queen's fancy ball. There's a black wig, ma'am," he says, 'as was worn by Kean; there's a brown one, ma'am," he says, 'as was worn by Kemble; there's a yellow one, ma'am," he says, 'as was made for Cooke; there's a gray one, ma'am," he says, 'as I measured Mr. Young for myself; and there's a white one, ma'am," that Mr. Macready went mad in. There's a flaxen one as was got up expressly for Jenny Lind the night she came out at the Italian Opera. It was very much applauded was that wig, ma'am, through the evening. It was a great reception. The audience broke the moment they see it."

"Are you in Mr. Sweddelpipe's line, sir?"

"Which is that, ma'am?" he says—the softest and gentlest voice I ever heard, I do declare!

"Hairdressing," I says.

"Yes, ma'am," he replies, "I have that honor. Do you see this, ma'am?" he says, holding up his right hand.

"I never see such a trembling," I says to him. And I never did!

"All along of Her Majesty's costume ball, ma'am," he says. "The excitement did it. Two hundred and fifty-seven ladies of the first rank and fashions had their heads got up on that occasions by this hand, and my other one. I was at it eight and forty hours on my feet, ma'am, without rest. It was a powder piece at Liverpool. Have I not the pleasure, he says, looking at me curious, 'of addressing Mrs. Gamp?"

"Gamp I am, sir," I replies, 'both by name and nature'.

Would you like to see your beograffer's (C.D.'s) moustache and whiskers, ma'am? he says. I've got 'em in this box.

"Drat my beograffer, sir!" I says; he has given me no region to wish to know anything about him.

"Oh, Missus Gamp, I ask your pardon,—I never see such a polite man, Mrs. Harris. Praps, he says, if you're not of the party you don't know who assisted you into this carriage?"

No sir, I says; I don't indeed.

Why, ma'am, he says, whispering, that was George (the great George) ma'am.

What George, sir? I don't know no George, says I.

The great George, ma'am, says he; the Crook-shanks.

If you believe me, Mrs. Harris, I turns my head, and see the very man a making pictures of me on his thumb nail, at the window! While another of 'em—a tall, thin, melancholly gent. (John Leech) with dark hair and a bage vice—looks over his shoulder, with his head o' one side as if he understood the subject, and cooly says, 'I've draw'd her several times—in Punch,' he says too. The wretched wretch!

Which I never touches, Mr. Wilson, I remark out loud—I couldn't have helped it, Mrs. Harris, if you had took my life for it! which I never touches, Mr. Wilson, on account of the lemon!

Ha! says Mr. Wilson. There he is!

I only see a fat gentleman (Mark Lemon) with curly black hair and a merry face, a standing on the platform rubbing his two hands over one another, as if he was washing of 'em, and shaking his head and shoulders very much; and I was a wondering what Mr. Wilson meant, when he says, 'There's Douglage, Mrs. Gamp,' he says, 'There's him as wrote the life of Mrs. Caudle!'

Mrs. Harris, won't I see that little willian (Douglage) boldly before me, it give me such a turn that I was all in a tremble. If I hadn't lost my umbrella in a cab, I must have done him an injury with it. Oh, the braggin little traitor! right among the ladies, Mrs. Harris; looking his wickedest, and deefulest of eyes while he was a talking to 'em; laughing at his own jokes as loud as you please; holding his hat in one hand to cool himself, and tossing back his iron-gray mop of the head of hair with the other, as if it was so much shavings—there, Mrs. Harris, I see him, getting encouragement from the pretty deluded creatures, which never know'd that sweet saint Mr. C., as I did, and being treated with as much confidence as if he'd never violated none of the domestic ties, and never showed up nothing!

Oh, the aggravation of that Douglage! Mrs. Harris, if I hadn't apologized to Mr. Wilson, and put a little bottle to my lips which was in my pocket for the journey, and which it is very indeed I have about me, I could not have a baref sight of him—there, Mrs. Harris! I could not! I must have tore him, or have give way and fainted.

While the bell was a ringing, and the luggage o' the hamperions in great confusion—all a tittering indeed—was landed up, Mr. Wilson deems hisself polite to ever. That, he says, Mrs. Gamp, a pointing to a officer looking gentleman (Dudley Costello), that a lady with a little basket was taking care on, is another of our party. He's a author too—continually going up the wally of the Muses, Mrs. Gamp. There, he says, alluding to a fine looking, portly gentleman (Frank Stone) with a face like a amiable full moon, and a short bald spot, with a pleasant smile, is two more of our artists, Mrs. G., well knowned at the Royal Academy, as sure as stones is stones, and eggs is eggs. This resolute gent. (Augustus Egg) he says, a coming along here as is apparently going to take the railways by storm—him with his tight legs [J. F.] and his wicket very much buttoned, and his mouth very much shut, and his coat a flying open, and his heels a giving it to the platform, is a cricket and beograffer, and our principal tragedian. But who, says I, when the bell had left off, and the train had begun to move, who, Mr. Wilson, is the wild gent in the perspiration, that's been a tearing up and down all his arm [C.D.] a talking to everybody very indistinct, and exciting of himself dreadful? Why? says Mr. Wilson, with a smile. Because, sir, I says, he's being left behind. Good God! cried Mr. Wilson, turning pale, and putting out his head, it is your beograffer—the Manager—and he has got the money Mrs. Gamp. However, some one chucked him into the train and we went off. At the first shriek o' the whistle, Mrs. Harris, I turned white, 'er I had took notice of some of them dear crees-turs as was the cause of my being in company, and I know'd the danger that—but Mr. Wilson, which is a married man, put his hands on mine, and says, Mrs. Gamp, calm yourself; it's only the fogin'.

Wit Made Easy.

By particular request we again publish the following dialogue:—

A. Here comes B., the liveliest yet most tiresome of word catchers. I wonder whether he'll have wit enough to hear good news of his mistress. Well B., my dear fellow, I hope I see you well.

B. I hope you do, my dear A., otherwise you have lost your eye-sight.

A. Good! well, how do you do?

B. How? Why, as other people do you would not have me eccentric, would you?

A. Nonsense. I mean how do you find yourself?

B. Find myself. Where's the necessity of finding myself? I have not been lost.

A. Incongruous dog! Come, now, to be serious.

(B. comes closer to A. and looks very seri- u.)

A. Well, what now?

B. I am come to be serious.

A. Come, now, non enve, if; leave off this. (Laying his hand on his arm)

B. (Looking down at his arm) I can't leave off this. It would look very absurd to go without a sleeve.

A. Ah, ah! You make me laugh in spite of myself. How's Jackson?

B. The deuce! How's Jackson? Well, I never should have thought that. How can I have Jackson? "Sarnane and arms."

A. Suppose, of some rich uncle? I have seen him gazzetted.

A. Good by.

B. (Detaining him) 'Good by!' What a sudden enthusiasm in favour of some virtuous man of the name of By! Good by! To think of Ashton standing at the corner of the street, doting aloud on the integrity of a Mr. By!

A. Ludicrous enough. I can't help laughing, I confess. But laughing does not always imply merriment. You do not delight us, Jack, with these sort of jokes, but tickle us; and tickling may give pain.

B. Don't see it. It is a You need not take everything that is given you.

A. You'll want a straightforward answer some day, and then—

B. You'd describe a circle about me, before you give it. Well, that's your affair, not mine. You'll astonish the natives, that's all.

A. It's great nonsense, you must allow.

B. I can't see why it is greater nonsense than any other pronoun.

A. (In despair) Well, it's no use, I see.

B. Excuse me; it is of the very greatest use. I don't know a part of speech more useful. It performs all the greatest offices of nature, and contains, in fact, the whole agency and mystery of the world. It rains. It is fine weather. It freezes. It thaws. It (which is a very odd) is one o'clock. It has been a very frequent observation. It goes. Here it goes. How goes it?—(which, by the way, is a translation from the Latin &c. is it: For I go; is that good? it, he, or it go. In short—

A. In short, if I wanted a dissertation on it, now's the time for it. But I don't; a good by (Going)—I saw Miss M.—last night.

B. The—you did! Where was it?

A. (To himself) Now I have him, and will revenge myself. Where was it, eh? Oh, you must know a great deal more about it than I do.

B. Nay, my dear fellow, do tell me, I'm on thorns.

A. On thorns! very odd thorns. I never saw a thorn look so like a pavement.

B. Come, now, to be serious.

A. (Comes close to B., and looks tragic)

B. He, he! very fair, egad. But to tell me where was she. How did she look? Who was with her?

A. Oh, oh! How was with her, was he? Well, I wanted to know his name, I could not tell who the devil he was—but I say, Jack, who's Hoo?

B. Good! He, he!—fair but now, my dear Will, for—sake, you know how interested I am.

A. The duc you are! I always took you for a disinterested fellow. I always said of Jack B. Jack's apt to overdo his credit for wit; but a more honest, disinterested fellow, I never met with.

B. Now, my dear Will, consider, I needn't wedge I have been tressure, if conf-as it is a bad habit, this word catching; but consider my love.

A. (Falls into an attitude of musing)

B. Well.

A. Don't interrupt me. I am considering your love.

B. I repeat; I am truly sorry. What shall I do. (Laying his hand on his heart) I'll give up this cursed habit.

A. You will? Upon honour?

B. Upon my honour.

A. On the spot?

B. Now, this instant. Now end for ever?

A. Strip away, then.

B. Strip! For what?

A. You said you'd give up that cursed habit.

B. Now, say dear A., for the love of everything that is sacred, for the love of your love.

A. Well, you promise me sincerely?

B. Heart and soul!

A. Come B., I now see you can give up a jest, and are really in love; and your mistress, I will undertake to say, will not be sorry to be convinced of both. Women like to begin with merriment well enough, but they think ill of a man who cannot come to a grave conclusion—Wishing Cap Papers," by Leigh Hunt.

Milk as a Remedy.

Considerable has been lately said in medical journals concerning the value of milk as a remedial agent in certain diseases. An interesting article upon this subject lately appeared in the London Milk Journal, in which it is stated on the authority of Dr. Benja. Clark, that in the East India warm milk is used to a great extent as a specific for diarrhoea. A pint every four hours will check the most violent diarrhoea, stomach ache, incipient cholera and dysentery. The milk should never be boiled, but only heated sufficiently to be agreeably warm, but not too hot to drink. Milk which has been boiled is unfit for use. This writer gives several instances in arresting this disease, among which is the following:

The writer says, "It has never failed in curing from six to twelve hours, and I have tried it, I should think fifty times, and I have given it to a dying man who has been subjected to dysentery eight months, latterly accompanied by one continual diarrhoea, and it acted on him like charm. In two days his diarrhoea was gone, in three weeks he became a hale, fat man, and now nothing that may hereafter occur will ever shake his faith in hot milk."

A writer also communicates to the Medical Times and Gazette, a statement of the value of milk in twenty six cases of typhoid fever, in every one of which its great value was apparent. It checks diarrhoea, and nourishes and cools the body. People suffering from disease, require food quite as much as those in health, and much more so in certain diseases where there is rapid waste of the system.

Frequently all ordinary food in certain diseases is rejected by the stomach, and even loathed by the patient; but nature, ever beneficent, has furnished a food that in all diseases is beneficial—in some directly curative. Such is food is milk.

The writer in the journal last quoted, Dr. Alexander Yule, after giving particular observations upon the points above mentioned, viz. its action in checking diarrhoea, its nourishing properties, and its action in cooling the body, says, "We believe that milk nourishes in fever, promotes sleep, wards off delirium, soothes the hysterics, and in fine, is the sine qua non in typhoid." We have also lately tested the value of milk in scarlet fever, and learnt that it is now recommended by the medical faculty in all cases of this often very distressing children's disease. Give all the milk the patient will take, even during the period of greatest fever; it keeps up the strength of the patient, acts well upon the stomach, and is every way a blessed thing in this sickness.

Parents remember it, and do not fear to give it if your dear ones are afflicted with this disease.

JOSEPH BRIDGES says:—The duck is a foul. They are built something like a hen, and are an up and down flat footed job.

They don't kackle like a hen, nor koo like a rooster, nor holler like a pekok, nor skream like a goose, nor tawk like the turkey; but they quack like a root doktor, and their bill resembles a veterinary surgeon's.

They have a woveenful, and kan flete on water as natural as a soap bubble.

Wild duck are very good shooting, and are good to miss also, unless you understand the biz.

You should aim about three foot ahead of them, and let them fly up to the shot.

I have shot at them all day, and got nothing but a tail feather now and then, but this satisfied me, for I am krazy for all kinds of sport, you know.

There are some kinds of Cox that are hard to kill, even if you do hit them. I shot one whole afternoon, some three years ago, at some decry dux, and never got none of them. I have never told of this before, and I hope no one will repeat it—this is confidential.

A lad arrested for theft, when taken before the magistrate and asked what his occupation was, frankly answered, "Stealing."—"Your candor astonishes me," said the judge—"I thought it would, repeated the lad, seeing how many big bags there are in the same business as is ashamed to own it?"

McAdam, N. B., June 27.
A fire was discovered in the west end of the freight house this morning at fifteen minutes past nine, the inside being all in flames. The fire must have originated from a spark from a passing train on the N. B. & C. Railroad. The thanks of the E. & N. A. Railway are due to the employees of the company and inhabitants for their extraordinary exertions made in subduing the flames. A wind blew directly on the Station and Junction House, and the freight house being attached to station house, had all burned there would have been serious individual loss, as well as loss to the Railway company. There was no loss of freight. The freight house was partly destroyed. The amount of loss has not been ascertained.

PRECAUTIONARY.

An important report upon the subject of cholera is that of Dr. John Senior, recently issued in England by the Lords of the Privy Council. He strongly urges that attention should be paid to diet in taking precautions against cholera. The dangers of diet he says appear to lie as follows:—Firstly, (in) those more excesses of diet which (especially) under circumstances of fatigue) occasion sickness to the stomach, or an increased labor of digestion; secondly, in taking food, solid or fluid, which is midway in some process of chemical transition—half fermented beer, and wine, water containing organic impurities, meat and game not cooked, fish and shell fish in any state but the most perfect freshness fruit or vegetables long gathered or badly kept, and the like; thirdly, in the excessive or unseasonable use of refrigerant drinks or ice; fourthly, in partaking largely of those articles of diet which habitually, or by reason of imperfect cooking, pass unchanged through the intestinal canal; and fifthly, in the indiscreet use of purgative medicines, or in taking any article of diet which is likely to produce the same effect. These words of warning should receive the attention they deserve during the hot term.

Valuable Suggestions.

The following extract from a letter of Lord Langford to the London Times is at least worthy of some consideration here, especially in view of the hurried manner in which a number of most important measures connected not only with our internal legislation, but with our national constitution, are too often passed through the House of Commons. He says:—"Public business would be really facilitated and legislation more soundly conducted if the rules of Parliament were that bills should not pass both houses in the same session. Money bills and certain bills of urgency, amendment bills to remedy blunders of hasty legislation under the present system would be necessary exceptions. The advantage to Parliament would be a more equal distribution of business, time to examine the structure and language of measures brought forward for consideration, time to consolidate with new Acts all material provisions of existing statutes, time to reject or repeal all superfluous and obsolete matter. The advantage to the public would be intelligible laws, and in course of time a statute-book upon which the bar could advocate and the Bench decide, without uncertainty, and without the temptation to express doubts of the wisdom of the different estates of the realm."

THE PANTHAYS.—The Panthays are a Mohammedan people, living between China and Burmah.—They have fought long and valiantly for independence, against the overwhelming forces of the Chinese Empire. Last year the Sultan of this people sent an Embassy to England, with the hope of securing English interference on behalf of his suffering country. The British Government saw no way of helping Sultan Soeliman. It now appears that the Chinese have conquered.—Takefo, the capital of the Panthays, has been captured. Sultan Soeliman took poison and killed himself, and the Chinese massacred the whole population of the city—30,000—including women and children.—Those who remained their religion and ate pork were spared, but they were very few. There is another city in the territory which is besieged, and is sure to fall; and its fall will as usual be followed by wholesale massacre. Thus, in a few months at most, we may expect to hear the last of the Panthays who have struggled for independence against the Chinese for a century. When peace is restored on the south western frontier of China the British authorities in British Burmah will put forth every exertion to open up railway communication with China. In a few years we may expect China to be in communication with the railway system of India.

PRESENT FROM THE QUEEN TO AUSTRALIA.—Her Majesty made a highly interesting present to Queensland of six splendid red deer, selected from the herd in Windsor Great Park, consisting of two bucks and four hinds. Sheltered in wooden houses, the deer were sent off to the East India Docks, London, whence they will be forwarded in the clipper ship Queensland to the Marquis of Normandy, Governor General of Australia, at Brisbane, Queensland. For their sustenance during the voyage four tons of food and feed have been provided. It is expected they will arrive at Brisbane about the end of August.

The School Question in Prince Edward Island.

The sectarian school question which, it is thought, comes to the front presently in Prince Edward Island. For many years, the people of that Colony have had in operation among them a Non-sectarian Free School system, which, though not moulded in the best possible form, nor yet worked as effectively as it might be, has yet conferred great benefits upon the Island population, and it is capable of being rendered much more efficient than it is without any change in its essential principles. But there is a party in the Island clamorous for Separate Schools. That party has accomplished nothing as yet in furtherance of its purposes, but, noting the action of the House of Commons in adopting the Costigan resolution, it apparently hopes that after the Island becomes a Province of the Dominion, the Dominion Parliament will in some way exert its power to force the Islanders to accept or establish a Separate School system. The organ of this party, a short time ago, spoke out pretty plainly on the subject in the terms following:

"Our Local Legislature refuse to abate the injustice caused by the school law, the friends of religious education will not forget the action of the Ottawa Commons with respect to New Brunswick. At all events this much is certain, that Prince Edward Island will continue to be very much in the nature of a thorn in the side of Canada as long as the school-law remains as it is."

This is rather a pointed style of remark, we think, under the circumstances.

THE ESCENIA was celebrated at the University, Fredericton, on the 26th June. The Orator delivered by Professor Harrison, was a practical production, and we learn from our Fredericton exchanges, was principally devoted to arguments showing the advantages to be derived from a study of English literature, the Department over which the Professor presides. It is probable that the Orator will be published, as others have been.

Mr. Gannoe read his essay on "Natural History" for which he received the Douglas Gold Medal.

Mr. E. S. Fenety, was awarded the Alumni Medal for his Latin essay. The graduates were then placed in their respective order of merit and the degree of A. B. was conferred on them in the order mentioned:

FIRST DIVISION.
Messrs. Kierstead, Everett, Parsons, Gannoe, and Smith.

SECOND DIVISION.
Messrs. Kelley, Freeze, Donald, Ketchum, Wilson, Grover and Robertson.

THIRD DIVISION.
Messrs. Nason, Hogan, Steeves and Wade.

The following gentlemen, after a creditable examination, received the degree of M. A.

Messrs. McAlpine, W. Vanwart, and Chas. Sils.

The Honorary Degree of Doctor of Philosophy was conferred on Prof. L. W. Bailey.

Dr. Spurden, of the Board of Examiners, remarked that although the proficiency attained by the students was very creditable, the standard was not equal to that of former years, in the Classical course especially, which might be accounted for by the death of the late lamented Prof. Campbell, and the delay and difficulty attendant upon filling the Chair held by him.

MARINE HOSPITAL.—The matron of the Marine Hospital, Mrs. Day, having resigned the charge of that institution for the purpose of changing her name, as may be seen under the Marriage head, the Medical Superintendent presented her with the following acknowledgment of her services:

MARINE HOSPITAL,
St. Andrews, June 30, 1873.

MADAM.—I cannot allow you to leave the charge of the Marine Hospital without acknowledging the satisfaction you have always given, in the discharge of your duties as Matron and Keeper, for so many years, and with your uniform kindness to the seamen.

On behalf then of the Department of Marine & Fisheries, I beg leave to express the regret felt at your resignation. At the same time I wish you every success and happiness through life, and am confident you will, as formerly, be always ready at the call of suffering humanity.

I am, Madam, yours truly,
S. T. GOVE,
Medical Sup't.,
Marine Hospital.

To MRS. DAY.

We are indebted to our friend Capt. Street for late Manitoba papers. From them we learn that the country is rapidly increasing in population.

The Hon. Dr. Tupper left here for St. John on Monday last. The Hon. Mr. Tilley left by train yesterday for Montreal, and would meet Dr. Tupper at McAdam Junction. It is probable that both the Ministers will proceed at once to Montreal to attend the Pacific Railway investigation, and defend the Ministry, from the unjust charges preferred against them by the Opposition. Some of our contemporaries will have it that the Doctor was indisposed while here. We can assure them that he had recovered from the attack of illness, before leaving Ottawa, and that he drove into town every day.

BISHOP SWEENEY and the Rev. Mr. Doyle arrived here on Tuesday evening. This morning the Bishop celebrated Mass, and addressed the congregation in the chapel. Owing to pressing business, the Bishop left by train for St. John at 9.30. We learn that a Priest will shortly be appointed to this Parish.

THE CRICKET MATCH at St. John yesterday between the St. Stephen and St. John Clubs, resulted in a victory for the St. John Club. The score as telegraphed to this office, stood—St. John 124, St. Stephen 35. This did not surprise us, as the fact of the Frontier's beating one Club formed of two thirds green hands was no evidence of superior playing, besides we had seen the St. John and Fredericton Cricketers play, and knew what they could do.

Alex. I. Light, Esq., C. E., and Mrs. Light, were on a visit here last week. Mr. Light's many friends were pleased to see him. We understand that Mrs. Light and some of her Canadian friends have obtained quarters here, to spend a few weeks.

We are happy to learn that letters from England contain the pleasing intelligence that Z. Chipman, Esq., is recovering from his long illness, and that though the passage was a rough one, he enjoyed the sea air. His son Mr. John Chipman accompanied him.

ST. ANDREWS has now a number of visitors, who have taken up their residence in town for a few weeks, to enjoy the blessings of its bracing air and sea bathing. There are several families who are desirous to come here provided they can obtain cottages or lodgings.

The Hon. Dr. Tupper has purchased a piece of land adjoining his property, which secures him an entrance in a favorable and pretty locality.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. Geo. Moore, tinsmith, while adjusting some pipes at the Hon. Dr. Tupper's residence, "Highland Hill," on Thursday last, fell a distance of about six feet, and broke his right leg, about four inches above the ankle; although the fracture is compound, under the skillful treatment of Dr. Gove, the patient is getting along as well as can be expected. It gives pleasure to add that Dr. Tupper was unremitting in attention to Mr. Moore.

DEATH during the past few days has taken from the Province two gentlemen who held prominent positions. On Saturday last, the Hon. CHARLES CONNELL died at Woodstock. He represented Carleton Co., in the Legislature and Government for several years, and at the time of his death was a member of the Canadian House of Commons. He was a native of Woodstock.

On Sunday last, Major W. B. Robinson, who had been ill for some weeks, died at his residence in St. John from congestion of the brain. He was several years in the Army, and retired while Major 3rd West India Regiment. Major Robinson was a native of York County.

EXCELLENT BEEF.—The Messrs. O'Neill last, at such was the demand for the superior beef, that it was with difficulty the inhabitants of the town could obtain cuts. Mr. Clarke, of the Railroad Hotel, purchased one quarter which weighed 435 lbs. The remainder was purchased by persons at St. George, St. Stephen, and Eastport, and some choice cuts went to St. John. The Messrs. O'Neill will be prepared shortly to offer for sale some choice lamb and mutton, which for quality and weight cannot be surpassed. Their enterprise and energy as visionaries is already well known. They kindly remembered the Press, by sending a splendid roast of the mammoth ox; the beef was tender and of the best quality.

THE CIRCUS will be here on Saturday next, and give performances. Particulars are given in the advertisement in another column.

Dominion Day passed off quietly; flags were flying from several buildings, and the Band turned out in the morning and played some choice selections.

The refreshing rain of yesterday, and the warm sunshine of to-day, have pushed forward vegetation.

GIVEN AWAY.—A beautiful Picture—An exquisitely tinted paper, suitable for framing—is presented free to every purchaser of a copy of Dexter Smith's Paper, which contains twelve pages of most popular sheet music—which would cost over three dollars in any other form—including new songs, ballads, Strauss waltzes, in addition to stories, poems, fashions, household receipts, base ball news, etc., etc. Every newsdealer in the United States and Canada sells Dexter Smith's Paper for only fifteen cents per copy.—Published by Dexter Smith, Editor & proprietor, Boston.

The Fourth Atlantic Cable.

The "Great Eastern" has completed her voyage across the Atlantic, accompanied by two consort, engaged in laying the fourth cable which has been placed and worked in the bed of the ocean. Counting from the first cable laid in 1858, this is the fifth of the Atlantic cables, but as that one only worked for a few weeks and has since remained neglected and silent, it does not count. It was originally intended to lay this fourth cable from Port Harcourt on the Cornish coast, direct to Halifax, and thence to New York. But owing to the desirability of reducing the risk of laying by adhering to the system of short lengths, and to other reasons of a commercial nature, it was determined to fall back upon the routes of the other cables viz., from Valentia to Heart's Content, Newfoundland. The course of the fourth cable which will be known as the cable of 1873, is to be north of that of 1865, and unless at the shore ends, the two will not approach nearer than 30 miles.

The squadron of which the "Great Eastern" started at the head comprised also the "Hibernia," the "Edinburgh," and the "Robert Lowe," the latter being a small vessel of 700 tons, and the former being 3,000 and 2,300 tons respectively. The laying of the shore end at Valentia was done by the "Robert Lowe," after which vessel returned to the Thames. The Sydney Cable is to be laid by the three smaller vessels after the completion of the present one, and after that job is complete the "Hibernia" will join the "Great Eastern" a Heart's Content, whence the two will proceed to the point of rupture of the cable of 1865, which is 568 miles from Valentia, where it will be grappled for, and, as is expected, found and repaired.

The length of the Cable of 1865, whose recovery is thus to be attempted, is 1,894 miles; the Cable of 1863 is 1,864 miles; the French cable from Brest to St. Pierre is 3,557 miles, and the line about to be laid will be nearly the same length as that of 1865. To give an idea of the expense of these cable undertakings, it may be noted that the Cable squadron, as it left Portland Roads on the present expedition, represented a moving mass worth two-and-a-half millions sterling.

A FLOATING CANNON BALL.—In the pavilion of the Ministry of Agriculture, at Ottawa, a floating cannon ball may be seen. Although weighing 50 lbs. it lies like a down feather on a silvery mass, consisting of pure quicksilver from the celebrated mines of Idria; 150 cwt. of this metal is exhibited in a large iron cauldron, offering a sight seldom to be met with, and on it rests the solid iron ball. It was interesting to observe the emptying of the quicksilver into its receptacle. The metal is very cleverly stowed away in bags of white sheep leather, specially prepared for the purpose, each containing 50 lbs. of the mass, the bags being tightly bound round the top, and then put into small wooden barrels, carefully bunged up. Formerly, this liquid metal, which penetrates easily all porous substances, was transmitted in wrought iron bottles of very expensive make.

A New Telegraph Instrument.

Mr. G. M. Phelps, of the Western Union Telegraph Company has recently completed a printing instrument, for the use of the Gold and Stock Telegraph Company, which is really remarkable for its ingenuity and compactness. This instrument works on one line wire, without local batteries, has two type wheels, one for letters and the other for numerals, with a device for shifting the impression instantaneously from one to the other, and is capable of working continually at the rate of forty words per minute. The whole affair is, perhaps, eight inches in diameter, and of about the same height. Mr. Phelps may well take an honest pride in this creation of his mechanical genius, as it is, probably, the most elegant printing instrument ever yet produced. It is probable that this machine will, in time, be exclusively used by the Gold and Stock Telegraph Company for their work, as its speed of transmission is nearly or quite five times as great as the one now in use by them.

RAILWAYS OF MASSACHUSETTS.—Massachusetts has to-day invested in railroads one hundred and forty million dollars, of which eighty-one million is stock and fifty-nine million bonds, and there is one mile of road to each four and three fourth square miles of territory. This is a greater development than in any other portion of United States, and equals the average of any country in Europe. The average cost per mile is $61,550, and, adding equipment, $68,125. The gross earnings last year were over $30,000,000, and the cost of operating 72 1/2 per cent. The average dividend on stock of paying roads was 8 per cent.

DOWN BY THE BROOK.
Down by the brook went Effie and I,
When the air with the breath of flowers was sweet,
And the long grass swayed in the summer breeze.
The brooklet danced in the sunbeams bright,
And murmured its own sweet song of glee,
While over our heads the merry birds
Were filling the air with melody.

Ah me? I wonder if ever now
Her thoughts go back to that dear old time,
When under the trees alone we sat,
Hearing the ripples' dreamy rhyme?
And dipping her hand in the waters bright,
How lazily she with the ripples played!
And the dimples hid in her soft, fair cheek
As I watched her there 'neath the old trees' shade.

Alas for the vows we plighted then!
Her heart was fickle, and mine was strong:
The love she gave on that summer day
Lasted only the summer long!
Down by the brook, 'neath the grand old trees,
Effie and I no more may go,
And only the birds in their leafy nests
Shall hark to the ripples' dreamy flow.

Why the Valve Jar is Superior to all Others for Preserving Fruit.

1. Because it is the only one in which the contents can be securely fastened, and cooked while thus fastened, without risk of an explosion.
2. It is the only one that is automatically Sealed, therefore, the only Seal-Sealing Jar in the market.
3. It is so simple that no skill is required to use it successfully.
4. It is securely fastened when placed in the kettle, and being immersed, the fragrance of the contents is confined in the Jar, a more perfect vacuum produced and the hardening of the Lo Jars completely avoided.
5. It is well known that fruit Jars which are closed with rigid fastenings burst by fermentation, and the effect upon the closet and surrounding is well understood by many housekeepers.
The cover of the Valve Jar being a perfect safe ty valve makes an explosion impossible, and entirely obviates every difficulty that exists in other fastenings. For sale by Valuable Farm for Sale.

THE Subscriber offers for sale his Property at Bocabe, which commands a splendid view of Passamaquoddy Bay, the Islands and surrounding country. The place is pleasantly situated, bounded by the shore of the Bay, the Saint John Road runs thro gh it, rendering it a most desirable country residence and farm, in a pleasant neighborhood, within 22 miles of the town of St. Andrews. The farm contains 100 Acres, forty of which are under cultivation; cuts 55 tons of hay, has good pasturage, is well watered and thoroughly fenced; on the premises are a comfortable Dwelling House, with two large Barns and outhouses.

The property will be sold with or without the crop. For further particulars, apply at the STANDARD OFFICE, or to

JAMES ORR, JR.,

on the premises.
