On the opening of court, the first witness called was Percy Dewar, living on the 12th concession of London town-ship, who saw Gerald Sifton at his (witness) home on Friday night, June 29. The next morning he saw Gerald urday to inspect the locus quo again of Sifton and Walter Herbert at Gerald's home. Asked what happened there, witness

"Mr. Joseph Sifton," answered wit-ess. "Gerald said he was going to help him this time.' Witness saw Mrs. Gerald Sifton and Mrs. Hulda McFarlane at the house, but they were not speaking to him.

JOHN J. SIFTON. John J. Sifton, brother of the deceased Joseph Sifton, was the next witness called. He had been told by Joseph Sifton about his will. On the night of the funeral Gerald asked witness for an order to get the will from

Edmund Meredith, K. C.

To Mr. Johnston witness said he did not ask Dr. McNeil to have an inquest. On the morning of the tragedy the hayrack was standing on the south side of the barn. One of the south doors was a little open. To Mr. Riddell witness said that

Joseph Sifton went to live on the farm on the Proof line in the previous spring, before which he had lived with Gerald. Witness did not know why Joseph Sifton left Gerald's. In reply to Mr. Johnston, witness said he was one of two parties to the suit brought against Edgar Morden, Mary McFarlane, et al., to have the will produced by the former as the will

To Mr. Reddell the witness said that he had heard Edgar Morden swear at the preliminary trial that he had warned Joseph Sitton and Mary McFarlane of Garald's intentions, that they had gone to his house and stayed there all night, and that the will was drawn up while they were there.

The estate of the late Joseph Sifton totalled $16,000 to $15,000.

JOHN WATERS. John Waters, county registrar, was called. Only one question was put to him and that was not answered. It concerned a mortgage effected by Gerald Sifton on his property. Mr. Johnston objected. Mr. Riddell said he proposed to show that Gerald Sifton being in financial difficulties, and being the sole beneficiary of his father's will, would benefit by his father ling would benefit by his father lying murdered before his remarriage, as it was a matter of common knowled be -the influence a second or third w exercises with a father with regard to a previous wife's children. The judge thought that the matter had better not be pressed.

Mr. Riddell remarked that this would shut out a quantity of evidence which he had proposed to put in. DAVID LACKEY. David Lackey identified the knife found by High Constable McLeod, Gray, the venerable editor of the Interior, a publication of the Presby-terian Church, died today at his home at Oak Park. Dr. Gray, who was in his 70th year, underwent a surgical operation just before he left Chicago for his summer vacation in the Wis-consin woods. When he returned a few weeks ago he was in a weakened condition, due not only to the opera-tion but to the growing infirmities of age. He grew gradually weaker, and for several days his friends had realized that there was no hope for his recovery.

Dr. Gray was one of the foremost Presbyterians of the west, and had been identified with the Interior for more than 30 years. His "Campfire Musings" and editorials were widely Another Reduction in Rates by the Railroads-Nearly 118,000 in Attendance on Railroad Day.

Buffalo, Sept. 30 .- Railway Day at the Pan-American on Saturday was a record-breaker, the attendance being Incidental to Railroad Day, a meeting of high official representatives of all the railroads running into this city was held in the New York State This meeting was called by President John G. Millburn, of the exposition. It had been pretty generally understood beforehand that following Railroad Day there would be a gen-eral reduction of fares on all lines entering Buffalo, for the balance of the exposition season, and a general and sweeping reduction was agreed upon at the conference on Saturday. During the coming week the rail-roads will put forth their extremely low rate offers, and these are to hold good from now until the close of the exposition.

What the railroads have promised to do in this respect is most gratifying to President Milburn, Director-General Buchanan and the other exposition officials, and through this move they hope to make the month of October a record-breaking one at the exposition.

MARRIED IN A LION'S DEN.

City Passenger Agent MacDonald, of the Grand Trunk Railway, is exceedingly proud of the big crowd his road brought in from Canada on Railroad Day. It was last night estimated that over 7,000 people came to the exposition by way of this road alone. Among the Grand Trunk officials and their families who were in the city for the day were Superintendent George C. Jones and wife, of Toronto; District Passenger Agent M. C. Dickson, of Toronto; George T. Bell, general passenger and ticket agent, of Montreal; Frank W. Morse, assistant general manager, and his secretary, Fantastic Dance a Feature of the Occasion-Royal Visitors Keenly Interested—Preparations for the Trip Through Ontario.

Calgary, N. W. T., Sept. 28.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York were entertained today by Indans, cowboys and mounted police, who pictured northwestern frontier life before them with all the dash and color, and they count the experience one of the most interesting of their Canadian tour.

Their special train arrived here shortly before 10 o'clock, and a delegation of city officials and citizens gave formal greeting to the royal party. The duchess was escorted to a coach and surrounded by a detachment of mounted police, was drawn through the crowded streets to Victoria Park. Mounts were provided for the duke and his staff, and attired in his uniform of the Royal Fusiliers, with the ribbon of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, they rode to the park. At the park three troops of mounted police were drawn up and the duke inspected and reviewed them. The police executed a series of maneuvers, which were splendidly

If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily strengthened by the regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each Two of these excellent tablets meal. taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs or other animal food in three or four hours, while the malt diastase also contained in Stuart's Tablets cause the perfect digestion of starchy foods, like potabread, etc., and no matter weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspep-sia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and diastase so necessary to per-fect digestion, and any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach will be overcome by their daily use. That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its complete digestion by the systematic use of a safe, harmless digestive medi-cine like Stuart's Dyspapsia Tablets, omposed of the natural digestive principles, peptones and diastase, which actually perform the work of digestion and give the abused stemach a chance to rest and to furnish the body and brain with the necessary nutriment. Cheap cathartic medicines masquerading under the name of dyspeppect their child is troubled with worms should administer Dr. Low's sia cures are useless for relief or cure adigestion, because they have solutely no effect upon the actual di-

Dyspepsia in all its forms is simply lure of the stomach to digest food and the sensible way to solve the rid-dle and cure the indigestion is to make daily use at meal time of a safe pre-paration which is indorsed by the medical profession and known to contain active digestive principles, and all this can truly be said of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

AN INDIAN ADDRESS. AN INDIAN ADDRESS.

It was signed by Chiefs White Pup, Running Rabbit and Iron Shield for the Blackfeet; Chiefs Crop Ear, Wolf and Day Chief for the Bloods; Chief Running Wolf for the Piagans; Chief Bullshead for the Sarceres; Chiefs Jacob Rear Paw, John Chetka and Jonas Big Story for the Stoneys, and Chiefs Joseph Samson and Mister Jim for the Crees.

Jim for the Crees. After the address Chiefs White Pup, Crop Ear, Running Wolf, Bullshead, Jonas Big Story and Joseph Samson spoke, renewing the old pledges of peace. Their speeches were interpreted to the duke.

FANTASTIC DANCE.

The children from the missions sang "God Save the King," and then in strange contrast there was a wild, fantastic dance. The mounted Indians dashed about the plain in an exhibition of wild and reckless riding, following a chief whose partially naked body was painted a bright yellow. The duke and duchess were greatly interested in the Indians, and, leaving the stand, spent ten minutes walking among them. Through the interpreters they conversed with several of them, shaking hands with the chiefs as they departed.

THE TORONTO LADIES' GIFT. Toronto, Sept. 28.—The women of Toronto have decided to give her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cornwall and York a writing set of Canadian gold, set with Lake Superior amethysts, and ornamented with the monogram of the duchess and the Canadian emblem, the beaver and maple wreath, the whole inclosed in a carved box of bird's-eye maple.

The set, as outlined hastily, is to comprise a writing portfolio, inkstand. pen and pen stand, paper knife, paper weight, while a candlestick and envelope holder have also been suggest-These would cost $1,200, and a carved maple box to contain the set would cost $150 more. It was later explained that each of the different articles comprising the set would have a large Lake Superior amethyst for the center of the panel, surrounded by pearls, which, while the only part not absolutely Canadian, would bring out the beauties of the ame-thyst. The smaller amethysts would be worked into the design of a beaver surrounded by maple leaves, which would be the characteristic feature of the set. The monogram of the duchess will also be worked into the design. Ontario gold will be used if it is possible to obtain it in time, but if not Klondike gold will be used, so as to have it the product of Canada. The ladies who attended the gathering having the presentation in view elected officers as follows: President, Mrs. MacMahon; secretary, Mrs. Hugh Langton, Rosedale; treasurer, Miss Ross. The following ladies were elected a committee to act with the officers in giving the order for the gift: Mesdames Mulock, Osler, Nordheimer, Ross, Cox, Moss, Vankougnet, with Mrs. MacMahon convener. ON THE G. T. R.

Montreal, Sept. 28.-It was announce ed at Grand Trunk headquarters that W. B. Tiffin, superintendent of the northern division of the Grand Trunk Railway, will take charge of the royal train at North Bay, and continue with the Duke and Duchess Cornwall and York until they join the Intercolonial system. Mr. Tiffin is one of the most affable and popular executive officers or the system. Mr. G. B. Reeve, second vice-president and Morse, third vice-president, will meet the royal party at Toronto, and although not accompanying them throughout the trip over the system, will be present at all important func-tions. The operating staff of the Canadian Pacific will be entirely replaced by Grand Trunk men at North Bay, but the commissariat department will be in the hands of the C. P. R. till the royal party leaves the train at Contracts have just been closed by H, R. Charlton, the energetic chief of the G. T. IN GOOD SHAPE!

Liberals Have Worked Faithfully and Diligently.

Good Advice in Reference to Political Organization and Discussion Given to the Liberal Associations by the Central Organization.

Toronto, Sept. 30 .- Ever since his return from Great Britain, Premier Ross has been in receipt of advices from all sections of the province assuring him of the splendid work accomplished on the revision of the voters' lists. Never before on behalf of the Liberals has so much attention been given to this important phase of an election contest. There are yet number of voters' lists courts to be held, and the works in the constituencies report that these also will receive the closest attention possible, while special regard will be paid the lists wherever the opposition urged "good work" to be done, as their instructions directed, by the "sound Conservative assessors" and the "clerks who are friendly."

This year the Liberals are fortunate in having attended to the lists in each step of the work, viz., (1) in supply ing names to the assessors, (2) in adding names at the municipal courts of revision, and (3) in appealing to the judge's court to add names improperly omitted, and striking off names wrongfully inserted. By lowing these steps the Liberals have made themselves reasonably sure of having all their own friends on and the names of unqualified persons struck off.

The organizations which the Liberal candidates and officers of the riding Liberal associations revived for the work of revision should not be allowed to lapse into inactivity. They should rather be inspired to press on with the work, with the view of having all the vote polled on election day, and thus insure the return of the Ross government by a handsome majority.

THE WORK OF ORGANIZATION. On this question of general organization Mr. Alexander Smith, secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association, has issued the following circular:

The time is very opportune for political discussion and organization. With reference to organization, good would result from meetings of the riding Liberal associations, the Liberal associations of the municipalities, and of Liberal clubs wherever they exist, and where the friends locally consider they should be continued, and also by the formation of new clubs. In any movement towards the formation of Liberal clubs it will be well to consult (1) the provincial Liberal candidate, (2) the Liberal candidate in the last Dominion election, (3) the chief officers of the riding Liberal association, (4) the officers of the Liberal associations in the municipalities where it is proposed to form Liberal clubs, and (5) other Liberals who will assume some responsibility in connection with the same.

If these steps are taken with reference to proposals for the formation of Liberal clubs, a better feeling will exist and more confidence will be reposed whatever clubs are formed. PRINTERS' INK VALUABLE.

For general public meetings of our friends, their associations or clubs, I will be pleased to do what I can towards securing speakers who will deal with the political topics of the day, and for all such gatherings care and system should be exercised in order to thoroughly advertise the same by notices in the public press, the issuing, distribution and posting up of large posters, and a general distribution of circular letters sent through the post. It frequently occurs that speakers are disappointed to find that a meeting has received but paltry advertisement, and the only way to insure good results is as above outlined, for then even those who do not attend the gatherings will have their interest aroused, and thus add to the general enthusiasm.

PRELIMINARY PREPARATION IS ESSENTIAL. Regular business meetings of associations and clubs will be held where only members are in attendance, and I would be pleased to attend these regular meetings and devote an hour or so to a talk on organization; for whatever else may be done in the way of fostering political sentiment, results will not be up to our anticipations unless our friends put into practice good methods of organization. cannot have too many of our best men skilled in a knowledge of organization. It is all very well for people to generalize and shout "Organize! Organize! Organize!" but a few quiet hours spent in preparing the organization for a riding is worth more than days of generalizing and shouting. I prepared, on behalf of our association, for the provincial campaign of 1894, Dominion of 1896, provincial of 1898, and Dominion of 1900, instructions on organization. These were issued by thousands, those for the Dominion being sent to all the provinces and the territories. In addition to these, books on the revision of the voters' lists and organization pertain-In addition to ing thereto have been freely sent out each year in our province. A study of these documents has been of great service to many of our best men, and the pity is that more of those who desired Liberal success did not take advantage of the opportunity to become more conversant with the details of organization and the qualification of voters.

VALUE OF SMALL COMMITTEES. In due time the organization comendium will be revised up to date or the approaching election, but in the meantime no occasion should be et slip to have organization matters discussed by a number of friends who have some knowledge and experience in matters of detail.

Clubs are good enough in their own sphere, but organization can best be accomplished through the polling subdivision committees, the associations for the municipalities, and the riding associations. These should get first and chief attention.

With reference to all the matters above mentioned, I would be pleased to hear from you, and if you decide to form Liberal clubs I shall be pleas ed to furnish you with copies of a draft constitution that may be useful to you; and I shall, moreover, be glad to attend any regular business meeting of your Liberal association or club in your constituency, met, not for general public discussion, but for a better understanding of the political conditions of the constituency and an appreciation of the principles of organization.

Principal Grant.

During the last week the Principal of Queen's University has been lying in the hospital at Kingston very ill; of Kingston and throughout the country sympathy has gone out towards the sick man bravely battling with a complicated disease. A few months ago the Principal lost the noble woman who had so long been his companion and help, and now he is himself brought very low. The circumstances of his present illness are both interesting and pathetic. He had just been to the Old Land for the sake to Ottawa to receive the honor of C. ings should not be wholly academic, M. G., but had to hurry home, and neither should the academic feature Principal does not think that his work is done; he faces his personal trouble with the courage and hope that he has displayed on so many fields. The loss of a strong noble man is always a matter for profound regret, but for Queen's University it looks as if the removal of the Principal at the present time would be a specially heavy loss. A forward movement has just been initiated, buildings to cost about a quarter of a million dollars are just beginning to rise in the grounds of the university, and everything conspires to make it an epoch in the life of an important institution. The work that Principal Grant has done will long remain, whatever happens; but we trust that he may yet be spared to complete in larger fashion a notable

The Difficulties of a Royal Tour.

We are told that it was an idea of the late revered Queen that the heir to the throne should make a tour of the Empire. In connection with the visit to Australia, there were, of course, special circumstances, growing out of the new Commonwealth, but the calls at other places have a lively interest in view of the imperialistic feeling that has been kindled by the jubilee, the war, and other events moving in the royal party will no doubt be received with enthusiasm, but it is not possible for them to go everywhere, or to stay long where they do go. A tour of the British Empire, although it can now be accomplished with so much more speed and comfort, is still a big thing. It requires much time and patience and energy. Those who have undertaken it will no doubt be glad when the Ophir sails safely into Portsmouth, and the whole business is successfully accomplished. The royal pair will have discharged a great duty, and will also no doubt have learned many things, and passed through many pleasant experiences. But after all, it is not possible for such an affair to be carried through without some disappointment and annovance. Those who manage it may make many blunders, but then it is pro bable that many of us in the same situation would make blunders. It is just as well to remember that our visitors tact, patience and courtesy, and a little of the same quality is required from us. It may be worth while to exercise a little self-restraint, so that the grace of the royal visit may not be tarnished.

Farmers' Institutes.

The Farmers' Institute, which had its beginning only a few years ago, has come to be a very important part of farm life. The institute affords the farmer the privilege of contact, first-hand, with the atmosphere that pervades our agricultural coflege halls. The influence of the institute will still increase as new and varying problems arise.

One of the chief problems in connection with the meetings is the maintenance of interest. When once an interest has been enlisted on the part of the farmer, he must benefit by the knowledge disseminated. More system should be sought in the presentation of subjects. Fragmentary talks on different subjects should be abandonnent value. An attempt should be made as far as possible to treat the various subjects in the order in which they belong, and as exhaustively and comprehensively as time and circumstances will permit. The institutes must be kept in as close relations as possible to other educational agencies of the Province. By keeping in close touch with the work of the agricultural college, both the college and the farmer will be benefited, for the efficiency of the college will be increased and the agriculturist must reap an advantage.

Then comes the question of conducting the institutes. To begin with, of health and for reasons of college the addresses should be so well prebusiness, and as he was returning pared as to do away with notes and caught a severe call. He attended essay papers. This means that the to pressing business when he arrived, speakers should be authoritative, each but was not able to obey the summons in his own particular line. The meetwas at once stricken down by the be omitted. The college and the farm sease which defies the should meet on common grounds. The men. The Galicians.

La Patrie quotes from L'Echo de Manitoba the statement that the Galicians have started a library and reading-room in the town of Edmonton, where, besides books in their own language, there will be newspapers, etc. in the English tongue. From this our contemporary draws the legitimate conclusion that the newcomers are not as black as they are painted; and points out that while they are displaying this educational activity, there are new colonies in Quebec that have no schools. and that the great city of Montreal will be glad to get a large sum for the establishment of a free library from Mr. Carnegie. The practical suggestion then comes that publishers would do well to send to Edmonton copies of French journals and books, thus showing a neighborly and patriotic spirit, and helping to spread the knowledge of French. This is the right spirit. We are not now concerned to discuss the immigration policy in general, but certainly this is the tone that one should adopt towards those who have come to us from strange lands. We find some taking a pessimistic view. They talk much of 'heredity." and think that nothing can be made of this new materal. They forget the wonderful power of adaptation possessed by human nature. Our theories may be all right, but life laughs at our theories if we hold them in an abstract, one-sided way. These people will no doubt retain for a long time the influences of their race and country, but in a new, freer atmosphere they will respond to new influences. and quickly have the old life modified by the new. If we shut ourselves from these people and isolate them, we help to produce the very conditions which we profess to fear and dread; but if a large, liberal, friendly spirit prevails those who are now foreign and crude will become patriotic Canadians.

Bureau of National History.

A Royal Commission on historical manuscripts in Scotland and Ireland are called upon to exercise very much is in existence in the mother land, and a few days ago made an interim report. It is said that important documents will shortly be made public.

> We think there should be something in the nature of a provincial office for the preservation of such documents among ourselves. Every year passing adds to the difficulty of finding and preserving such. Old United Empire Loyalist families, many of them, have old papers of value as historical documents, for which nobody has made inquiries.

A friend tells us that being in Philadelphia in 1876, at the "Centennial Exhibition," he saw, under a glass case, the original Field Notes of Mason and Dixon, when they ran the disputed line between Pennsylvania and Maryland and Virginia, more than 150 years ago. These had been bundled up, with lots of other old "rubbish," and brought to Nova Scotia by some United Empire Loyalist, about the time of the American Revolution. Our Holsteins 7 14

> London, Sept. 30 .- Within the last | "pertinacious Roman" who pointed few months the great scheme of improvement in the Strand, London, has moved with giant strides. Yet much remains to be done, and the work upon the great avenue which is to connect Holborne with its southern neighbor may be said to be still in the chrysalis stage. Time, however, passes quickly, and many of the still existing ties with the days that are gone will soon have vanished. Teeming with historic associations as is whole district affected by the scheme, no one corner is so rich in memories as Lincoln's Inn Fields, which is shortly to sacrifice some of its most prominent and interesting features upon the altar of "progress." In the reign of James I. a commission granted to Lord Chancellor Bacon, the earls of Worcester, Pembroke and Arundel and others authorized the improvement of the district.

In those days the fields were, indeed. nothing but a trackless waste, and they formed a happy hunting ground for gentry whose vocation it was to relieve the unwary of as much of his portable estate as possible. DANGER IN THE FIELDS.

Inigo Jones, as commanded by royal warrant, drew out a ground plan for the improvement of the fields. It has often been stated that he reduced them to the exact proportions of the great pyramid of Egypt, but this is contrary to fact, for, as modern writers have pointed out, the square only contains twelve acres, while the pyramid occupies thirteen and one-half acres. The square finished, Inigo turned his attention to the buildings which were to surround it, but, unfortunately, he only lived to carry out the west side. or, as it was at first called, the Arch row. The laying out of the fields into walks does not seem to have had the immediate result of reducing the number of vagabonds who haunted them, ceiving a petition setting forth that diverse persons have prepared very great store of bricks for erecting buildings on the said square," the ord protector ordered that there should be a stay of all further buildings on the threatened ground. For many years the square continued to be unsafe for solitary passengers, the 'mumpers" and plunderers pushing their trade with alarming persistency. CRIMES IN OLDEN DAYS. It was through Lincoln's Inn Fields that the notorious thief, Thomas Sadler, after robbing Lord Chancellor Finch of his mace and purse, went in mock state procession. One of his confederates marched before him with the bag of money. Sadler paid the penalty of his crime at Tyburn. Many notable executions took place within the fields, among these we may menand his thirteen associates, and the virtuous William Lord Russell. Here, too, was enacted a memorable scene in the Gordon riots drama. The object of the rioters' fury was the little chapel adjoining the archway, which formed the entrance to Duke street said to have been designed by Inigo Jones, and the house which it supports certainly bears many traces of the great master's hand. It is now reported that the arch's days are

It would be impossible to enumerate all the great men and women who from time to time have lived in Lincoln's Inn Fields. The famous Duchess of Marlborough, Cord Chancellor Cowper, Lord Chancellor Harcourt. William Pitt and the Earl of Lindsay are but a few. For Robert Bertie, Earl of Lindsay, who was general of James I.'s army, Inigo Jones designed the fine Ionic house in the center of Arch row. This may still be seen, altered but little from its original appearance; it is now known as No. 59 and 60. The house which adjoins it on the southern side is particularly dear to the heart of every lover of Dickens, for it was the scene of a memorable event in the novelist's life, and it also figures prominently in "Bleak House."

When the square was finally de-serted by its noble residents the big houses were divided into two and let out as lawyers' chambers. To No. 58, some 60 years ago, came John Forster-"my dear and trusty friend," as Dickens called him in his will-and to many other literary celebrities of his On one memorable occasion. when Dickens had just completed his "Chimes," he gave in these rooms the reading which led to his appearance

Controversy over the recent disasters to the torpedo boats Cobra and Viper promises to become endless. The theory of sunken rocks or of collision with a submerged derelict is hardly considered now more seriously than the suggestion that collision with a whaler was responsible for the collapse of the turbine steamers in deep

The only feasible suggestion, and one which the admiralty authorities themselves incline to accept in that the construction of these rapidly traveling boats was faulty. In order to obtain this breakneck speed of 40 miles an hour the vessels' plates were made scarcely thicker than an egg shell, while the machinery was abnormally heavy. The result has been that when the boats were caught prow and stern on the crest of two waves they broke amidships of their own weight. BUILDING BOATS TO DESTROY.

In connection with the admiralty, things are anything but roseate in Whitehall these days. The five new submarines in building are causing no end of differences of opinion between the old sea lords and the reform element, which lately began to make its voice heard.

The construction of these boats was delayed as long as possible. Even at the last it was conceded only as an experiment. The object of this experiment would seem incredible if mentioned in connection with any depart ment except the British admiralty Instead of trying to discover of what use submarines are likely to be in naval warfare, my lords make it no secret that their sole intent is to build these few boats in order to learn how they may be most easily destroyed.

WANTED-A SUICIDE CREW. How they are going to find this out is a puzzle, indeed. Volunteers for a trip under water, the success of which and a new terror in the shape of the is to be gauged according to the speed enterprising builder appears to have been imported. In Cromwell's time the building epidemic so seriously It is barely possible to conceive the enrollment of a suicide crew even to oblige the lords of the admiralty. On the other hand, if the boats are not destroyed, or are destroyed merely as forts are taken in sham fights, the experiment will hardly be worth the cost. The situation is more ridiculous than anything even Gilbert imagined possible when "H. M. S. Pinafore" was launched, but a sense of humor is not the prevailing feature at Whitehall.

BANISHMENT OF BOERS. Lawyers are bewildered by ques tions arising from the sequel to the technical end of the war, which was declared by Lord Roberts to be virtually over a year ago. The date hav-ing been settled by proclamation, it was necessary to make an example of the emblem of power over his shoul-der and a second followed him with been formally exiled from South Africa by the military court and forbidden ever to return to the British dominions there. The lawyers are asktion by way of contrast, Babington ing whether any military tribunal has the power to proclaim perpetual banishment from self-governing depen-dencies of the crown, whether a decree of this kind will remain valid after the substitution of civil for martial law. This penalty is imposed by military court without release of the (now Sardina street). The arch is prisoners from the ordinary fate of confinement under guard at St. Helena, Ceylon or Bermuda, until the close of the war, when they will pass under the ban of perpetual exile. is considered doubtful whether the decree of banishment can be enforced, except with legislative sanction or with adequate political authority.

RIGHT OF EXILES. The military argument is that guerilla leaders remaining ebstinately in the field will be certain to make trouble after the close of hostilities when the military prisons are opened, and chapels of the foreign ambassadors, the Boer prisoners are released, and consequently it is a wise safeguard to shut them out of South Africa altogether. These political exiles, how-ever, will have the right to an asylum burned, but were rebuilt after the in any foreign country, and they can-suppression of the riots. The country, however, seems content with what is going on. There is outspoken criticism of the appointments of commanders in three army corps; the charge that Gen. Buller ordered after Colenso the evacuation of Ladysmith under discreditable conditions is renewed by the Spectator, and the ministers are reproached for not allowing Lord Kitchener a free hand, and for neglecting to reinforce him with rough riders fit for the work of hunting down guerillas; but these murmurs of dissent make little im-

Apropos of the King's visit to Scotland, the announcement that his majesty will hold court at Holyrood after the coronation festivities next June means a good deal to Edinburgh. For, while the late Queen on several occasions visited the ancient palace, she never took up he residence there, nor have any royal functions been held within its walls since the visit George IV. to Scotland in 1822. A few months ago the royal apartments were in the hands of decorators and upholsterers For some years several noble Scotch families, including that of the Duke of Argyll and that of the Earl Breadalbane, have had the right to inhabit the palace, but the apartments allotted to them have been restored to the royal use, so that King Edward and his court will not be unduly hampered for room. THE HARVEST MOON

Observed in the Heavens.

Near the autumnal equinox the moon, at "full," rises shortly after sunset for several evenings in succession, giving rise to a series of brilliant moonlight nights, and, being above the horizon until late in the morning, presents a charming appearance, besides prolonging the light so beneficial to the husbandman at this season. The full moon that occurs nearest to Sept. 22 has long been known as the "harvest moon" in England, and its yearly return is always celebrated as a festival among the peasantry.

The beautiful appearance of the harvest moon has from time immemorial attracted the attention of the poets, and of it Henry Kirke, who died at 21, wrote:

'Moon of harvest, herald mild Of plenty, rustic labor's child Hail! O hail! I greet thy bea And gilds the straw-thatch'd hamlet wide.

Where innocence and peace reside;
'Tis thou that glad'st with joy the rustic throng, Promptest the tripping dance, th' exhil-

The circumstances mentioned have given the harvest moon an importance in the estimation of farmers, but it is not the less remarkable for its splendid beauty, as no other moon during the year can compare with it in brilliancy and magni-ficence. At rising it has a character peculiarly its own, and the more one is ccustomed to expect and observe it, the accustomed to expect and observe it, the more it strikes one with astonishment. The warmth and dryness of the earth, the clearness and balmy serenity of the atmosphere, the sounds of voices borne from distant fields, the freshness which comes from the evening, combine to make a twilight walk delightful; and scarcely has the sun departed in the west, when the moon in the east rises and sails up into the still and transparent sky in the into the still and transparent sky in the full magnificence of a world. It appears not as a flat disk on the face of the sky, but suspended in the crystal air in all its greatness and rotundity; we perceive the distance beyond it as sensibly as that before it; and its apparent size is surprising as it rises above the horizon.

The moon travels toward the east and The moon travels toward the east, and therefore comes to the meridian about 51 minutes later each succeeding night, and if the interval between her rising and her arriving to the south were always the same, she would rise 51 minutes later each evening, on the average. As the solar day lengthens fastest at spring. when the sun crosses the equator from south to north, so the time the moon is above the horizon lengthens most day by day when the moon is crossing equator from south to north, as she does moon in September, the singular spectacle of the moon rising not far from 6 o'clock in the evening, and the operations of harvesting in England can thus be continued throughout the entire night. A moon nearly full, afterwards quite full, and then for a day or two still nearly full, rising night after night at nearly the same hour, remaining also longer above the horizon each night, obviously serves for the time being in the most convenient way possible. The full moen that occurs in October, which exhibits the curious phenomena we have described, is sometimes called the "hunter's moon," and is about equally beautiful and attractive in its appearance.

The harvest moon is not generally understood, but the true cause, long known to astronomers, can be easily explained. The ecliptic, or the sun's apparent path, is variously inclined to the horizon at different seasons. The celestial equator is always at the same angle with the horizon, and hence equal portions come above the horizon in equal periods of Philadelphia, Pa.

time. If the moon moved in the celestial equator she would rise and set directly in the east and west points of the horizon respectively, and she would rise later each night by a nearly constant interval. But the moon moves in a path constantly inclined to the eclimic at an angle of inclined to the ecliptic at an angle of about 5 degrees, and as the ecliptic is inclined to the celestial equator at an angle of 23½ degrees, the moon in all parts of her orbit does not rise at equal intervals on each succeeding night. When the constellation Pisces is in the eastern horizon the ecliptic rises with the least the constellation Pisces is in the eastern horizon the ecliptic rises with the least Now, in September, at the autumnal equinox, the sun being in the constella-tion Virgo, the moon at her "full," when apposite to the sun, is in Pisces and rises th sunset. On the following night, though he moon has advanced in her orbit about l3 degrees, she will be but little below her position at the same time on the pre-ceding night. She rises, therefore, only a little later, and for several evenings appears in the east at nearly the same hour after sunset, claiming our admiration as the "harvest moon." In March the con-ditions are reversed, and the moon at her "full" rises on successive evenings later than at any time of the year. In our latitude the difference between the hours at which the full moon rises on successive evenings in September amounts, on the average, to rather more han 20 minutes, or about half an hour less than the mean interval, while in March the average difference is about in hour and 20 minutes, the least possible variation in the time of her rising being or ninutes, and the greatest 1 hour and 30 minutes. The phenomenon of the "harvest moon" is much more striking in Northern Europe and in Canada than in the United States; and in very high latitudes the moon, when it has its greatest possible declination, becomes circumpolar for a certain time each mouth.

remains visible without setting at all (like the "midnight sun") for a greater or less number of days, according to the latitude of the observer.

The moon reached her "full" on the evening of Sept. 27, at 11:36 o'clock, central standard time, and if all those interested will take pains to look into the east just at sunset, it will be noticed that the full round or hof the moon energy the full round orb of the moon appears above the horizon almost as soon as the sun sinks in the west; and for several evenings in succession the moon rise shortly after sunset with only a successful variation in time. The husbandmen of old believed that the so-called "harvest moon" was a divine interposition to promoon" was a divine interposition to promoon" was a divine interposition to promoon and thus aid them; but long the day and thus sid them; but science has shown that the phenomenon is simply the result of natural law. The name so devoutly given is, however, still lawingly charles and an is, however, still ovingly cherished, and as long as solar system preserves its present rela-tions, the return of the "harvest moon" will each year commemorate the simple faith of the first observers of this crowning beauty of our September nights.

BURRILL COMEDY COMPANY TO-NIGHT.

The Burrill Comedy Company arrived in the city this morning to open up a two weeks' engagement at the London Opera House tonight. A wel-come will be extended to them as being one of the best repertoire com-panies that ever visited London. Their repertoire is very strong, and includes many of the favorite plays now upon the American stage and which have never been seen in London at popular prices. Following are a few of them: "Felicia," "Octoroon," "Flag of Truce," "A Great Wrong Righted," Truce," "A Great Wrong Righted,"
"Rose Garland," "Rip Van Winkle,"
"Destiny," "Queen of Night," "Saved from the Sea," "Ten Nights in a Bar

HAS MANCHESTER SETTLED? The New York World correspondent earns that the composition fixed by the bankruptcy court on the Duke of Manchester's debts has been paid. The $35,000 necessary was provided, not by the duke's father-in-law, Eugene Zimmerman, but by the duke's mother, the Dowager Duchess of Manchester the transaction being carried through by Mr. Holland, now here, the partner of the dowager duchess' late brother, Ferdinand Yznaga. It was because of the hopelessness of trying to induce Mr. Zimmerman to advance the necessary money that the duke's mother went to the rescue in order that the agreement reached with the duke's creditors might be fulfilled. The duke, the duchess and the dowager duchess are staying at Downe Place, near Windsor, where a visit from the stork to the young duchess is expected early in October.

Witness was friendly with Joseph Sifton after these times, attributing his conduct to his well-known bad temper. HIGH CONSTABLE RECALLED. High Constable McLoud was recalled, identified the envelopes in which he had placed the chips taken from the ladder and delivered to Dr. Ferguson.

Cross-examined, witness said that he had been at the post-mortem. He was not given charge of the viscera, which were placed in a jar and given to Detective Northgraves.

NO POISON IN STOMACH. At this point Mr. Riddell made the important remark that the crown were not denying the removal of the stomfor examination, neither were they denying the further fact that no poison had been found in the stomach by Provincial Analyst Ellis.

DR. HADLEY WILLIAMS. Dr. Hadley Williams, who has practiced ten years in London, next took the stand. He deposed to performing the post-mortem on the body of Joseph Witness had heard the evidence of Dr. McNeil. Asked as to what opinion he had formed as to the cause of injuries, he answered: After studying the condition of the skull, scalp and head, I came to the conclusion that conditions existed in favor of both theories. It was practically impossible to decide in favor

Mr. Riddell objected to further questions along this line.

"If Dr. Ferguson has been retained by the crown to look after the medithe change is an improvement in that cal testimony in connection with the prosecution," said his lordship, "I think the question could be asked. building, giving a quiet, religious tone You can call Dr. Ferguson to contradiet Dr. Williams, if the latter says he made any overtures or if he conversed with this witness in relation to the case and prepounded his theories and wished him to adopt them. I think you should lay the foundation for it first."

On behalf of the crown, Mr. Riddell disclaimed any effort on the part of the crown to have the medical witnesses come to any improper agreement to give cut-and-dried evidence. The cross - examination being continued, witness said that assuming Herbert to be telling the truth, it would be one of the first four or five blows delivered which caused the fracture. The bloody matter found in the bladder was favorable to the theory of a fall, as it is a condition often induced by shock. To Mr. Riddell, Dr. Williams said it was the question of the severity of the blows which created the doubt in his mind as to the truth of Herbert's stery. Witness thought that if the skull was fractured by the first few blows, the body would have dropped down the trap instead of remaining on the ladder. The body, including the scalp, was i an advanced state of decomposition at

To Mr. Riddell, witness said there were no small wounds on the top of the head to allow of the ingress of ba-"When you were in the box the other day," said the judge, "had you the nection with the wound on the side, metter of the will in your mind?" the boggy moss would account largely for the separation. The skull was of the ordinary thickness.

To the judge, witness said that where blood-poisoning had set in, decomposition was greatly accelerated. DR. WAUGH.

Dr. Waugh, practicing in London for 29 years, was next called to the stand. The injuries were caused by some hard substance coming in contact with the skull at right angles.

If injuries were caused by a fall, the injured part would be the part to strike first. If caused by a blow, the fractures might be caused by one very severe blow, or by a gentler blow followed by others. Witness could not understand the body lying on the left side when found if it struck on the right side. There might be a slight convulsion of the body after striking, but not likely sufficient to turn the body over.

If the blows were given as described by Herbert, there would have been greater breaking of the skull and injury to the scalp.

To Mr. Johnston witness said that the injuries were compatible with either blows or a fall. With the body falling some time during the fall of 1898, and remained a week or ten days. Joseph Sifton complained that Gerald kicked him. He was in pain, the seat of trouble being the groin.

The judge suggested that had the pain The judge suggested that had the pain been higher up he might have called in Witness thought that the fluid in the tary of the Church Ext

Witness thought that the condition of the skull and the statement of Dr. McNeil did not bear out the truth of Herbert's story. Witness would have expected the whole top of the head to battered in.

DR. ROOME.

Dr. Wm. F. Roome, who has practiced in London for 34 years, next ascended the stand. The doctor had heard the evidence and considered the post-mortem. He thought the injuries might have been caused either by a solid substance coming in contact with the head or vice versa. In the former case, repeated blows would be necessary. Over one-quarter of an hour was consumed in argument as to whether the witness could be asked if the abrasions behind the ear were probably caused when the head was at the northwest corner of the trapdoor. Mr. Johnston contended that the evidence put in showed only that the body was in that corner. No evidence he submitted had been put in to show that the head was same corner with the body. Mr. Riddell contended that the head was necessarily in the same corner with the body.

His lordship favored Mr. Johnston's contention and the question was not pressed. Witness thought the injuries might have been caused by a succession of blows. A single fall might produce the fractures, but witness did not see how it could cause the cuts. If the fracture was produced by a fall, the body would be falling with the right side of the head down. Witness could not understand how the body could be found lying on its left side. Witness could not see how the abrasions could be caused by a fall.

Witness had heard Herbert's evidence and thought the injuries could have been sustained as described by him, Mr. Johnston, cross-examining, asked if a man should strike another ten or twelve blows on the head, trying to kill him, would the skull be found in the condition described in the mortem. Witness replied that it would depend on the force of the blows. Pressed for an answer based upon the strength of blows described by Herbert. the witness replied that it might and might not. Mr. Riddell objected to the further putting of the question, saying that the witness had answered it twice. Mr. Johnston again complained Mr. Riddell's interruption. It was not a horse trade case, he said, in which counsel should try to take petty advantages, but a trial for a man's life.

Mr. Riddell subsided with a remark that his learned friend was making a play to the jury. The question being put by the judge, the witness gave the same answer.

To half a dozen questions, witness gave the answer that "it might and it might not."

Witness had only four or five postmortems in his experience of 34 years. and never one in which there was a fracture of the skull. Witness could not tell which blow produced the fracture. With blows with half a dozen succeeding blows of equal severity, the top of the skull would be broken in.

Court adjourned at 1 p.m. for an hour.

The supply was be done with street cars that have infinitely greater than the demand. An Italian immigrant in San Francisco solved the problem. He had purchased a lot of land, but had no money left with which to build a dwelling. Observing several of the old cars in store, he bought one for $10 and had it transported to his land, where, at small cost, he built a small addition to it, and provided a very comfortable home for the family. This example was followed by others, and in various parts of San Francisco there may be found discarded street cars doing duty as dwellings, barns, wood and outhouses, that are not only substantial, but at the same time economical and highly picturesque. There is a little settlement just out-

ELSIE.

By this time Pauline was as anxious to know what Elsie had to tell as Elsie herself was to tell it. Miss Brackgirdle trembled very much all the time that she was mounting the great staircase. She found a fire laid in the pretty boudoir, or siting-room, that adjoined her sleeping chamber. Elsie at once applied a match to it; it crackled and blazed up brightly. Miss Bracegirdle threw her bonnet on the floor and then flung herself on the couch. She was still enveloped in her fur-lined cloak.

"Please to bring me my medicine chest," By this time Pauline was as anxious to

"Please to bring me my medicine chest," she said, "and let me take my drops; af-lerwards you shall tell me what you think you know."

When Pauline had taken her drops color came into her white face. She opened her blue eyes wide, bright, daring, on Elsie; a false courage braced her nerves; she looked beautiful with that bright pinkness on her cheeks; she smiled and showed her white, even bright pinkness on her cheeks; she smiled and showed her white, even teeth.

"Now I am all impatience and curiosity, Miss Carew. Please to speak up. Don't beat about the bush, which you have been doing for the last three-quarters of an hour."

"Tell me," she said, boldly, "what this wonderful tale is."

"You told the countess that I was flirting desperately with Lord Hammond; that you overheard him say to me on the night when I hid in the red drawing-room, 'Give me a kiss, my Elsie'; that I replied 'Twenty, if you like.' That I said 'What would the old dame say if she knew all this?' That I told him if he married me he would have a splendid forturie, as my father's partisans wergoing to buy me a fine estate as a wedding gift. You said all that, and also that Lord Hammond and I had plotted to have me left alone in the Gower, and that he would return for me in his trap."

"So he did," said Pauline, defiantly. All the while she was saying to herself, "That I diotic old woman, Lady Chase, has betrayed me after all. She promised not to name me, and she has; and I suppose she will tell him. Perdition! But I will be like Samson, when he pulled the palace about the ears of his enemies, if I have to leave this." I will punish the palace about the ears of his enemies, if I have to leave this. I will punish them all somehow."

"You know that you told the countess this, and you know that it is false."
"Now I must defy and deny to the very death!" said Miss Bracegirdle to herself.
"Well," she said, aloud, "since I am driven to it I must speak plainly—there is nothing like it. I did not think Lady Chase would mention my name, but since she has I cannot help myself. I happened to go into the red room through the private door, and while standing there in the utter darkness I overheard every word that passed between you and Lord Hammond."

Elsie looked straight at Pauline. She was simple enough, poor child, to fancy that as she had the truth, virtue and honor on her side, that this wicked Pauline must be brought to bay—must

"Miss Bracegirdle, you will be very much surprised to hear that I was really in the red room all the time that Lord Hammond was there; and I heard you come out from the curtains, and I heard every word that he said to you and that you said to him."
Elsie paused. Pauline's face crimsoned to the top of her flaxen fringe, then she grew so ghastly white that Elsie thought she would faint, and was rushing for her medicine-chest. Miss Bracegirdle stopped her with a gesture. "Don't!" she gasped. "I am ill. Suchsuch fearful untruths shock me! Oh, what a wicked, wicked girl you must be, Miss Carew! But your father is no better Miss Carew! But your father is no better than a felon! The countess must not let you sleep another night in this house!"

A masterful rap at the door.
"May I come in?" said a loud voice, and Arthur Lord Hammend strode into Miss Bracegirdle's boudoir. "My mother sent me," he said. "She has heard that you are taken ill. What oh earth is the matter?" He looked at Elsie Carew as he spoke—Elsie, who looked nearly as wrathful and quite as pale as Miss Bracegirdle. What is the row?" repeated the young lord. "One would think somebody young lord. "One would think somebody had committed murder!"

CHAPTER XV. "I fainted in the park about an hour or so ago-perhaps half an hour, I don't quite know. I am ill still." Pauline was indeed deathly white; a mortal dread that her mask was about to be displaced, and her true soul seen in all its ugliness pressed at her heart. Elsie of course would appeal to Lord Hammond; would ask him to clear her in his mother's eyes. And he, when he found out the meanness, duplicity, falsehood, and cruelty of Miss Bracegirdle, would be in a hurry to throw off the fetters that of love or affection, but the mesmeric chains of a mystic "influence," that power, in fact, of a strong will and strong character over a weak one. Well, those chains would very soon be snapped i As for the countess, Pauline felt she could never look in her face again if once this Irish girl were cleared righted, made to stand as in the halo of a saint, while Pauline herself would be up abroad and who did not English slang.

"It means an awful fright," said Lord Hammond. "She thinks you've had a fit or something—that you are going to die

New, Pauline was stung to the heart when she noticed the utter want of real concern for her case on Lord Hammond's concern for her case on Lord Hammon's shandsome pink face, with its healthful color, and clear, grand blue eyes. How like a spiendid animal he was to be sure! and yet how she loved him! Yes, Paullike a spiendid animal he was to be sure! and yet how she loved him! Yes, Pauline's heart, her ignoble soul—gave forth what they had of love and affection and even passionate regard to the handsome horsey lord. Never had Miss Bracegirdle cared a straw for any human being in this wide world until she met Lord Arthur. She considered him an idiot, but that only added to his charm in her eves. Ninety-nine women out of a hundred like to reverence a superior intellect, a master mind in their ideal of a lever and a husband; but Pauline was the hundredth mind in their ideal of a lever and a husband; but Pauline was the hundredth woman who preferred to be the master mind, the leading intelligence herself, and to have a husband physically splendid beautiful as a Greek god, strong as a fabled Hercules, lying at her feet and looking up to her for guidance—a husband whom she could lead the a golden thread whithersoever she sed.

Lerd Hammend would tust such a husband; he was beside: he would one day become, one of the richest noblemen in England. To win him Pauline would have done anything; but he did not love her—he did not seem to care one atom if she lived or died. He was a young man who possessed a large stock of spurious good nature and generosity, but his heart was a somewhat coid one. "I am not going to die vet I hope if they will send me some breakfast," said Pauline.

"Not a bit," said Elsie. "I've passed all my time with old aunts, doing wool work in the holidays, and during the terms I've been at school learning French grammer and so on."

"Well, it's time you learned," said Lord Hammond, "I want to teach you today."

"You would find me awkward, stupid and a coward," said Elsie. "I don't want to learn to ride, thank you."
"That's a cram," said slangy Hammond,

NEAR THE FINISH!

Baseball Season Winding Up---American League Got Through on Saturday --- Other Sporting Matters.

BASEBALL. On Saturday the American League closed a remarkably successful season. Even the staunchest supporters of the parent body are forced to admit that Ban Johnson has wen a signal victory over the erstwhile overbearing moguls of the National League. In every city in which the American League had a club the game was well patronized, and in the cities in which both leagues had teams, the American Leaguers outdrew their rivals almost two to one. Johnson may now be hailed as the conquer-ing hero. He met the enemy and they are his. The next in order on the baseball checker-board will be a move on the part of the magnates of the National League towards affecting a reconciliation. Johnson can afford to make peace now, for he has forced the big guns of the old organization to recognize the American League. It would be a wise move on both sides to have the war brought to an end, for both sides surely cannot continue the fight and Game Check (L. Reiff) won the Autumn breeders' foal plate of 1,000 sovereigns for 2-year-olds; distance, 5 furlongs.

The last race of the day, the New Barns plate, of 103 sovereigns, for 2-year-olds, distance 1 mile, was a clean sweep for the Americans. It was won by Richard Croker's Minnie Dee (J. Reiff); William C. Whitney's Delacy (L. Reiff) was second, and Frank Gardner's Sandpiper II. (Clem Jenkins) finished third.

Corrigan's Fancyman, ridden by Waldo, the American jockey, won the Prince Edward handicap of 2,009 sovereigns. Kilmarnock started a hot favorite at 3 to 1 against. The betting on Fancyman was 100 to 6 against, and on Royal George 100 to 8 against. W. Waldo landed the winner cleverly by a head. Three lengths separated second and third horses.

Loch Doon (J. Reiff) won the Palatine handicap of 300 sovereigns, for 3-year-olds and upwards; distance, 5 furlongs.

Van Stella (L. Reiff) won the Saturday selling handicap of 103 sovereigns, for 3-year-olds and upwards; distance, 6 furlongs.

CRICKET. THE INTERNATIONAL MATCH. Philadelphia, Sept. 28.-Play in the first test match between the English team and eleven local cricketers was resumed today at Haverford, near here. The local cricketers made a poor showing yesterday. When stumps were drawn last night the Englishmen had scored 198 in their first inning, while the local cricketers had scored 78 runs for five wickets. Wickets fell rapidly this morning, and with a total of 103 all of the Americans had been retired. When stumps were drawn this afternoon, the Quakers hal defeat staring them in the face. The contest will be concluded on Monday. There was but one fault to be found today, and that was with the wicket. The turf is new, and as a result it will London, sept. 28.—The Manchester September meeting opened auspiciously yesterday for the Americans.

As a spectacle, the contest was superb. From the time the two sky-scrapline, four and a half hours later, the result was in doubt, and the excitement aboard the excursion fleet increased until men became frenzied and women almost hysterical. So evenly matched were these two scientific rac-ing machines that never after they started were the rival skippers out of each other's hail, and more than threequarters of the time they were so close that Charlie Barr, who had the tiller aboard the American, could have tossed a biscuit to Capt. Sycamore on the Shamrock. For miles, as they beat their way to the outer mark, the black shadow of Shamrock's huge club topsail was painted on the big mainsail of the Columbia, and for an hour on the run home, with the two yachts flying like scared deer before the fol-lowing wind, they ran almost beam to

The office of the celebrated first race between the at the mark was as follows: Columbia and the Shamrock II., sailed off New York harbor in the first year of the new century.

As the result of the race, though faith in the Columbia still remains in the hearts of the patriots, all the experts admit that the British boat is the schooner America brought across the Atlantic fifty years ago, and that the superiority of American seamanship and American naval architecture, as represented by the defender, remains to be established. The quality of a saiking ship is measured by her ability to carve her way into an adverse wind, and in the fifteen-mile thresh to windward Saturday the golden challenger gained 39 seconds, d many friends, and justified the tgiven her. In the second race a tip was on Junita M., but alshe got away well she got away well she did. the Shamrock. It must be remem-bered, however, that the challenger had the weather gauge in the beat to windward, no mean advantage, and the nautical experts said after the race that during the outward journey she had been sailed to absolute perfection.

"LUCKY"

Is often the name given by careless and thoughtless people to those who are careful and thoughtful. "What a lucky woman," is said of one whose health and beauty proclaim her free from womanly diseases. The luck often consists in her having thoughtfully considered the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and proved its ability to cure the diseases peculiar to her sex.

"Pavorite Prescription" is a reliable medicine for the cure of womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"I had poor health for nine years," writes Mrs. Armintie Wathins, of Acme, Kanawha Co., W. Va. "Had female weakness, was very irregular and would suffer untold misery. Our family doctor did not do me any good and I concluded to write to you. When I wrote I had no idea that I would ever get well, but when your letter reached me I began to have hope. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicines as directed and began to improve in strength. I was soon able to do the work for my family of six. I took eight bottles, three of 'Pavorite Prescription' and five of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of 'Pellets."

She was jammed under the lee square feet of canvas in her sail area, of the challenger, a position not often the official record, under the rules, occupied by the old defender. The Columbia on the port tack tried to cross the bows of the Shamrock, but in vain. The challenger, having the right of way, forced her about. Instead of going under her rival's stern, the Coling racers crossed the starting line un-til they fied across the viewless finish umbia preferred the position under her lee bow so long as she could get the wind free. At 11:40 the Shamrock had a good lead of nearly 300 yards. BOTH PERFECTLY HANDLED. When the vessels were on the port tack they encountered a pretty hard head sea. While on the starboard tack the sea smote them abeam. The Shamrock appeared to splash more against the nose enders than the Col-umbia, but the splashing did not retard her speed in the least. Not tremor could be determined in the luffs of the sails of either racer. Both were handled to perfection and were given a good clean full, not the least quiver eing allowed to make itself manifest in a single cloth. By several sharp tacks the Columbia again tried to work herself out of the leeward posi-tion. All efforts, however, were futile. At 12:54 both boats on the port tack were heading for the outer mark. wind now was the freshest of the day.

The Shamrock in the beat to windward had thus gained 39 seconds. She had beaten Columbia boat for boat but had not overcome the handicap of ablest sloop ever sent to these waters der the rules of the New York Yacht to lift the 100-guinea cup, which the old Club she was compelled to concede. SPINNAKERS BROKEN OUT.

There was considerable delay in setting spinnakers, Shamrock waiting apparently for the Columbia, and luffing out in order to prevent a blanket Finally at 1:32 Columbia broke out her spinnaker and at the same time a tremendous balloon jib. Shamrock smarty followed suit. In the heavy roll o the sea, which was now on the port quarter of the two boats, the man booms trailed in the water as they lurched to leeward. These were tauted up clear of the sea, thereby spoiling somewhat the set of the mainsails. The stern chase is a long chase, but slowly the Columbia crawled up on the new Shamrock. At 2:10 she was abeam and a half a minute later was the leading boat. Slowly she still crept, and at 2:14 was all of half a length ahead. From that time on to the finish line she kept in the lead.

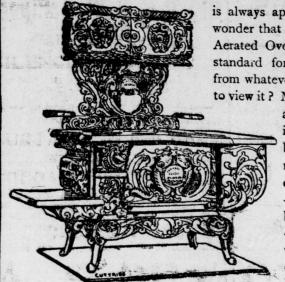

WIND FALLS. The wind was now dropping light, but in spite of her much larger sail plan Shamrock could not prevent the steady though slow gain of the Colum-

For nearly an hour the race continued without further event. Then at 3:15 the wind freshened slightly, filling out the immense sails of the Slowly she crept up and less ened the gap between her and the defender. Now she was only half a length behind. Now she was very nearly on even terms, and it became a matter of doubt as to which boat would first cross the finish line, less than a mile away. THE FINISH. It was the last of the many exciting moments in the contest, for very soon the Columbia getting her wind free again pulled out, and with surprising rapidity opened up on the challenger and pulled out a lead that left the result no longer in doubt. She crossed the line not only a winner on ime allowance, but boat for boat.

Following is the record in figures: Shamrock— Start. Out. M. Fin. El. T. Cor. T. 11:00:14 1:25:12 3:31:58 4:31:44 4:31:44 Columbia— Start. Out. M. Fin. El. T. Cor. T. 11:00:16 1:25:13 3:31:23 4:31:07 4:30:22 THE NEWS IN LONDON.

The London crowds began to watch the bulletin boards, colored bombs and variegated flashlights without much hope of the challenger winning, but when it was announced that Shamrock II. was ahead at the turn of the outer mark the immense assemblages at the Crystal and Alexandra palaces and on the Thmes embankment became sur-prisingly cheerful, and as the successive green illuminations showed the Shamrock was still leading after the turn, expectation of her winning rose to a certainty. Shortly after the turn, red fires and red rockets suddenly announced that Celumbia was ahead, and later, that she had won. Then the amazed multitude stood silent. Here and there there was a wild American screech and a few groans and hisses, and then the disgusted crowds slowly broke up.

HIS LORDSHIP IS PRINCIPAL.

At a meeting of the council of Huron College, held last week, his Lordship the Bishop of Huron was requested to act as principal and divinity professor of the college, pending the appointment of a new man to that position, and to obtain such assistance as he might deem necessary. The bishop consented to act, and has appointed the Rev. Canon Richardson, M.A., to act as vice-principal, and the Rev. G. B. Sage, B.A., B.D., as professor of divinity, pro tem. As the office of posed by A. S. Taylor, stroke; S. Culprincipal carries with it ex officio, at ver, 3rd; F. This was with the full concurrence of the vice-chancellor of the University, and will, with the other apopintments, give general satisfaction.

The services at St. James' Church, South London, yesterday, were of a sermon from the text, "But none saith Where is God my maker, who giveth songs in the night." The music, under the direction of Mr. George C. Phelps, was excellent. The morning offertory was sung most acceptably by Miss Hodgens, of Detroit. The opening of the evening service was Luther's grand "Ein 'Feste Burg," and chorale. vesper hymn, an arrangement by the organist from Wagner, was most pleas ing. The programme was: Venite (Hawes); Te Deum (Woodward, in D) Venite Benedictus (Woodward, in E flat); Of-fertory, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel" (Buck); Magnificat (Woodward, in E flat); Deus (Bunnett); Offertory, chorus, "But the Lord" (Mendelssohn).

AQUATIC SPORTS ON THE THAMES

London Rowing Club Hold a Successful Regatta.

Large Crowd Witnesses a Series of Well-Contested Races—Results of the Day's Outing.

The London Rowing Club's regatta, circumstances that they could not had been too long away from aquatic sports to permit of any great interest in the regatta. Fappily this fear was unfounded. Several hundred people went down the river on the cars, and in boats or canoes, and enjoyed one of the most successful series of races ever held on the river. Some years have passed since the beautiful course near the old Ward Hotel was used for the purposes of a regatta, and at none that have ever been held there has a larger or merrier crowd gathered than that of Saturday. For the most part the spectators lined the northern bank, crossing over the foot-bridge below the Springbank dam. An excellent view of the whole course could be had from either side. Except for the fours, a straight course was possible, but as they did not turn they had to round the bend near the County Club. The scenery about choicest programmes during the after-the lead at the finish. The club fours were rowed in heats. A. S. Taylor drew the bye. The crews in the first heat were respectively, E. Rechnitzer, stroke; W. H. Wilson, 3rd; J. S. Brown, 2nd, and W. Thomas, W. Obernesser, stroke; W. Bland, 3rd; Harry Hayne, 2nd, and W. Southam, 1st. The race was the first Capt. Rechnitzer was believed to have a very strong boat load, but Obernesser and his comrades showed remarkable steadiness and won easily by six seconds. In the finals, the Obernesser crew were op-Aust, 1st. The heat was more exciting, but stroke Obernesser went over the line two lengths ahead. The time was 3:201/2, or two seconds slower than in the first heat.

Stanley Culver entered in the single canoe race against Frank Taylor, but was defeated in 10:45. Taylor simply fulfilled expectations, being one of the best canoeists in the country.

In the club doubles, J. S. Brown, stroke, and Capt. Rechnitzer, bow, were considered a stronger combination than W. Bland, stroke, and W. Obernesser, bow. They probably were, but a mistake by the club captain gave the opposing pair a lead that was too great to be recovered. trouble was in the aim for the turning buoy. A wrong course was taken, necessitating some back paddling and practically a double turn, thus allowing Bland and Obernesser to win. Whit. Thomas and A. S.

ADVANCED PLANS FOR RECEPTION

Arrangements for Duke's Visit Taking Definite Shape.

Reports Regarding Expenditure, Decorations and Various Details Received by Executive Committee.

It is thought that the proposed grant of $2,000 will more than cover the ex penses of decorating the city for the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York on Saturday, Oct. 12. According to the reports of the various sub-comittees submitted on Saturday evening to the executive of the general committee, the estimated expense was placed at $1,720. Of this sum, the largafter several postponements, was held est part, $1,000, will be devoted for Saturday afternoon, and its success purposes of decoration. After the reception has taken place on the platform it was suggested that the members of the general committee secure cabs and be driven to Victoria Park, where they will again be able to receive the royal party. Some question arose as to whom should be invited to be present on the stand in Victoria Park. It was finally agreed that the Ministerial Association be asked to send the name of one representative from each denomination, who will receive Besides the members of the general reception committee, the members of the hospital trust, public library board, board of health, board of education, separate school board, water commissioners, Port Stanley board and Warden Campbell will be invited guests. Col. Dent, of the British army, who recently made an inspection of horses in Queen's Park, has placed the stables at the disposal of the committee. Suitable animals will be selected. and the secretary was instructed to acknowledge his kindness. It was suggested that Messrs. Adam Beck and Geo. Gibbons be appointed to make the proper selections. This was referred to the reception committee. Owing to the brevity of the duke's visit the committee found it inconvenient to concede to requests for the presentation of complimentary addresses or banquets from city organizations desirous of paying such tribute to the duke and duchess. A meeting of the general committee will be held on Wednesday evening when the work done by the executive on Saturday will be submitted.

HORSE IN HARD LUCK! Shawls.

Had to Live Forty-One Days in a Straw Stack Without Water.

Woodstock, Sept. 30 .- Five weeks ago a 4-year-old horse belonging to Albert King, whose farm is five or six miles from here, disappeared. King had just paid $130 for him. It was supposed that the animal had been stolen from the field. Friday afternoon the hired man at King's thought man), Messrs. M. J. Kent. W. A. he heard something inside of a huge straw stack in the barnyard. Upon investigation the long-lost horse was found in the stack. He was lying down, and very thin. He had eaten out a space in the straw twice the length of himself. There he had lived for nearly six weeks, without water. He was very thin and weak, and had to be pulled out. Water and food was given the poor animal in small quantities. It is supposed that he worked his way into the straw in a small opening at the side of the hog pen, and when he got in the straw fell down on him and held him prisoner.
