LONDON, WEDNESDAY, FEB. 22

THE MENDING THE LORDS.

The struggle against the House of Lords was won in the last general election by all the rules of the game. The bill introduced by Mr. Asquith yesterday should be merely a formal ratification of the fact, and so it will prove if the peers are reasonable and sensible. In the House of Commons the bill will of course be attacked by the Opposition through the dilatory tactics of the party system, but upon the present constitutional theory on the subject of the Crown's prerogative the King has no power to create new peers, nor to remove any from office, but it is highly probable that the present peers will not be able to resist a measure of this kind.

The bill is not an evolutionary act. It is a revolutionary act in the sense that it transfers to the people a large reserve of power. They may not touch it for years, but this is not a purpose that belongs to them. The bill is a measure of the Government party in the House of Commons. It is a measure of the people, and it will be the people who will determine its fate.

The House of Commons will be able to hold up any bill introduced during the last two years of parliament, until the country has decided between the parties at a general election. Unless popular government is to be a farce, no writer authority can be given to a second chamber, which is to be a permanent body, and always willing to checkmate that party. At the same time the second chamber, has not been reduced to a mere rubber stamp, and it is not a measure for two years to give public opinion time to crystallize. It challenges public attention and invites a thorough canvass of the question outside the walls of parliament.

The House of Commons will pass such a measure over the head of the House of Lords at its own risk. The House of Lords in the past has, however, taken no risk when it rejected a measure sent up by the House of Commons. The absolute veto made the second chamber the more powerful one, when it chose to put forth its power, which it did only when the Liberals were in office. It could force a dissolution of parliament at any time by rejecting a budget. Although it has not shown an alternative, it has not returned to power in January, 1910, it was not bound to accept other measures which it had rejected in the previous parliament, such as the education, land and income bills. Today the administration would be again at the mercy of the peers unless it were in a position to abolish their absolute veto. Those who are crying out against the Government's policy can not show an alternative, except with the sympathy of the House of Commons, and with majority rule.

ATTACKS UPON CANADA.

It is deplorable that Unionist press should offer reproaches to this country, even though these are nominally addressed to the Asquith Government. When Mr. Ballour says that the Taft-Flelding agreement is "a great imperial disaster," he puts a stigma upon Canada, which no party exigencies can excuse. Mr. Austen Chamberlain also makes a covert attack upon us when he says that under reciprocity "the vast resources which might have been saved for our people and for the mutual development of the different portions of the empire," would now "be to build up the influence and power of a foreign state." Even Mr. Joseph Chamberlain does us an injustice by saying that we are taking a pre-emptive step, and one by which the unity of the empire is threatened. Happily these utterances are those of a party thrice rejected by the British people. It is not at all probable that any Unionist statesman would speak of Canada in these terms if he were in the sobering presence of a cabinet minister. In the language used by Mr. Ballour and some of his colleagues, and in the criticism of Mr. Asquith in the House of Commons on Monday because his Government had not interfered between Washington and Ottawa, there is a suggestion not at all flattering to Canadian pride and notions of self-government. The inference is that this country has no right to seek its own interest and extend its markets wherever it can, without the permission of the mother country. This is the old colonial theory.

THE DRAWBACK.
Washington, Feb. 21.—"How are you getting on with your new motor car?"
"Very well, indeed," replied Mr. Smith. "I have had a lot of trouble with it, but it is worth the money."
"Is it?" asked the other.
"Indeed it is," replied Mr. Smith. "I have had a lot of trouble with it, but it is worth the money."

THE SCANDAL MONGERS.

The modern servant for abolition reasons, the press is almost impossible to keep from talking scandal. Scandal is a very bad servant. It is a very bad servant, and it is a very bad servant. It is a very bad servant, and it is a very bad servant.

but Canadians have no fear that it will ever be pressed upon them by any British administration. While of course Mr. Asquith and his colleagues are merely talking for a temporary party purpose, and with the irresponsibility of Opposition.

THE DAIRYMEN FOR RECIPROCITY.

Hon. William Peterson declared on the floor of the House a day or so ago that the dairymen of Eastern and Western Ontario had reached a reciprocity agreement to go into effect. He had read that when he was at Washington, he said. It so, he read incorrectly, for the Western Ontario dairymen, at their convention in Stratford, refused to discuss the subject at all as an association, when it was brought up after adjournment, one-third of those present voted against it—London Free Press.

It might be inferred from this that the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association refused to discuss reciprocity because of the weight of southern opposition. The president explained that the association had always excluded questions of party politics, but suggested that as so many delegates wanted to discuss reciprocity, a special meeting should be held for the purpose at the close of the regular proceedings. The proposal was unanimously approved. The afternoon meeting was held in favour of reciprocity by a vote of 120 to 20. It is proof that a large number of Conservative dairymen are not following their party leaders on the trade issue.

The Ontario Minister of Agriculture had the honor to make an annual reciprocity speech at a regular meeting of the association after the adjournment of the convention. It was only the first of a series of speeches which will be made in the coming week. The Minister of Agriculture has a long and interesting program of work for the coming week. He will be making a number of speeches in various parts of the province.

TRAINING FOR THE WORKERS

Important Subject Was Debated at Meeting of Historical Society.

TECHNICAL TRAINING Favored by the Speakers—Educational System is Criticized by a Teacher.

"Training for Industrial Life" was the subject of a thoughtful and comprehensive paper read before the London and Middlesex Historical Society last night in the Normal School by Mr. Clarkson W. James, secretary of the Department of Education, Toronto.

The purpose of manual training, said the speaker, is not to turn out skilled mechanics and artisans, but to give pupils such training as will make them useful and industrious men. Manual training should not detract from literature and science, of which it can never take the place.

The lecturer pointed out the value of school libraries, which he declared to be more important by far than public libraries. In small cities, the public library is located in the principal school building within easy access of the pupils.

Technical Education. "Technical education is the mother of practical education. The high state of development of German science, mechanics and manufactures has been made possible by the high standard of German technical education."

Industrial Class. At the close of his address, Mr. James stated that a bill would likely be introduced in the Legislature at an early date to provide for classes in the public schools to spend a part of their time each day or certain days in industrial establishments, where and when the necessary local arrangements can be effected.

If your meals don't fit comfortably or you feel bloated after eating, and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating; eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something to stop food fermentation and cure indigestion.

A case of Pape's Dispepsin will cost fifty cents at any pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking a single dose that its fermentation and acid stomach causing the misery of indigestion.

to the boy. He strongly indorsed the movement for trade schools.

Principal McQueen observed that our educational system had been framed for five per cent of the youths.

PECULIAR CASE.

Montreal, Feb. 21.—J. U. Cartier, proprietor of the Florence Cafe here, was fined $30 in the police court today for having poured whiskey from one bottle into another.

It was not charged that he had adulterated the liquor at all, but that in his bar many well-known brands of whiskey, brandy and gin had been poured from one bottle to another, contrary to the law.

Change Necessary. Prof. Dearness thought that a change in our educational system should follow the rapid change in our economic and industrial system.

Manual Training. Dean Davis favored some system of manual training in connection with the public schools.

Trade School. Mr. J. S. Black stated that Chatham is at present grappling with the necessity of establishing a trade school.

REV. MR. WHITING ON THE COMMITTING OF SIN

People of Today Are Unable to Profit by the Mistakes of Yesterday.

There was a large attendance last evening at the second of the series of evangelistic meetings being held in the First Methodist Church during this week and next.

Rev. Mr. Whiting chose his text from the forty-ninth psalm. "This their way is their folly, yet their posterity approve their sayings," and in introducing it he stated that it was a passage in the Bible which was very seldom chosen as a suitable text.

The Lesson of Today. Mr. Whiting then went on to explain how people either become better or worse, and that the experiences and happenings of yesterday should teach the lesson of today.

Blind to Sin. The speaker then stated that people were blind to sin because they thought that circumstances were not the same yesterday as they are today.

Man's Strength. "Our wills are flimsy to make them God's," continued Mr. Whiting, "and if we want to weaken them all we have to do is to commit sin, and pride ourselves on our strength."

THE MONTREAL BILL

Important Change Made Respecting Vested Rights. [Canadian Press.] Quebec, Feb. 21.—Members of the Montreal bill committee were made to the Montreal bill last night, during the committee stage preceding third reading. But, on the other hand, no objection was made whatever to the more important clause on the local improvement tax, which was passed by the council on the 15th inst. It confers on the city the right of making provision for the entire cost of pavements ordered by the city.

A Reasonable Plea For the Stomach

If Your Stomach is Lacking in Digestive Power, Why Not Help the Stomach Do Its Work—Especially When It Costs Nothing to Try?

Not with drugs, but with a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach. Scientific analysis shows that digestion requires certain microscopic ferments, and the secretion of hydrochloric acid. When your food fails to digest, it is proof positive that some of these agents are lacking in our digestive apparatus.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain nothing but those natural elements necessary to digestion, and when placed at work in the weak stomach and small intestine, supply what these organs need. They restore the general health, and gradually bring the digestive organs back to their normal condition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been subjected to critical chemical tests at home and abroad, and such tests confirm nothing but natural digestive.
