TWO HUNDRED MINERS ENTOMBED IN VIRGINIA

Chicago Water Diversion Plan Appears Sure of Defeat

200 MINERS TRAPPED IN W. VIRGINIA MINE SHAFT

Terrific Explosion Occurs Few Minutes After Men Enter Mine.

RESCUE HINDERED

Volunteer Crews Are Driven Back by Clouds of Smoke Issuing From Entry.

Associated Press Despatch.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 28.—This afternoon two men were found at the foot of the air shaft, but died before they could be brought to the surface. Two bodies, badly charred, were found in a mine motor 2,300 feet from the entry, bringing the number of known dead to four. The rescue crew of the United States Bureau of Mines made a hasty inspection of the workings as soon as they reached Benwood from Pittsburg. They expressed the oipnion that few, if any, of the minres would be brought out alive.

Associated Press Despatch.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 28.—A few minutes after two hundred miners went to work in the Benwood mine of the Wheeling Steel Corporation, near here, this morning a terrific explosion occurred in the workings. The fate of the men was unknown. The blast, according to reports from Benwood, took place about three miles back in the mine. Benwood firemen, summoned to the scene, reported the mine was on fire.

Clouds of smoke drifted from the main entry of the mine, and volunteer rescuers were driven back. A short time after the explosion occurred [illegible] single rescue worker had been able to enter the mine.

Experts of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, stationed at Pittsburg, have been ordered to Benwood. They are expected to make the run in less than two hours.

Entries to the mine were blocked by falling rock and debris, further hindering the work of rescue. Deadly fumes are seeping through the blocked entries. More than 200 toilers from nearby mines rushed to Benwood when word of the disaster spread. Their first task was to clear the entries so that rescuers could go in. The rock and debris, blocking the way, was attacked with picks and dynamite.

Among those trapped under ground was George Holliday, the fire boss, who went in this morning to see that all was safe.

A slope fronting the mine mouth soon was crowded with men, women and children. They were unmindful of a drizzling rain, for most of them awaited word from loved ones trapped in the mine.

REPORT 107 MEN IN MINE.

Associated Press Despatch.

Charlestown, W. Va., April 28.—A report to the state department of mines from Benwood mine of the Wheeling Steel Corporation said that Wheeling Steel Corporation said there were only 107 men in the mine at the time it was wrecked by an explosion this morning.

CHICAGO WATER PLAN DEFEATED

Opponents of Measure Say Bill Ordering Diversion of Water Cannot Pass.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, April 28.—The proposed diversion of water from Lake Michigan for the Chicago sanitary district, which would lower the water level of the Great Lakes and cause serious damage to several Canadian lake ports, is now practically defeated, according to opponents of the measure, who were in Washington for a further hearing before the rivers and harbors committee of the house today. They expressed confidence that the bill authorizing the water diversion cannot be passed in this congress.

BANK TRIAL POSTPONED UNTIL FALL ASSIZES

Officials of Home Bank Are Remanded by Mr. Justice Lennox.

Mr. Justice Wright Directs the Crown To Explain Indictment.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, April 28.—Directors and officials of the Home Bank of Canada appeared before Mr. Justice Lennox in the criminal assizes today, being remanded to the autumn assizes, and bail was renewed. The proceedings were brief. D. L. McCarthy, K.C., special crown prosecutor, following a conference with provincial legal authorities, intimated last night that the defendants would not be tried at the spring assizes.

Mr. Justice Wright today gave judgment directing the crown to give the directors of the Home Bank particulars of the first count of the indictment against them. These particulars are to be furnished at least three weeks before the opening of the sittings, at which the case is to be tried. If the accused deem the particulars furnished to be inadequate, his lordship remarks that they may then move for better particulars.

"The crown," remarks Mr. Justice Wright, "has informally furnished to counsel for the accused certain particulars, but as these particulars have not been furnished under order of the court, it is doubtful if the crown would, upon the trial, be restricted in their evidence to these particulars or bound in any way by them. I think, however, that the particulars so furnished should form the basis upon which the order should be made, and I shall so treat them. The order will, therefore, be made that the particulars already furnished shall form part of the particulars of the charges in the indictment.

His lordship further directs additional and more specific particulars as to dates, names, shares, etc., mentioned in fourteen of the clauses of the informal particulars already given.

The grass fires were on Vauxhall and Francis street, the former being on Saturday afternoon, while the Francis street fire occurred Sunday morning.

FATHER BOASTS YOUTH PEER AMONG DRIVERS

Court Warns Chas. Rolston and Fines Him $5—Son Is Under Sixteen.

Charles Rolston told Magistrate Graydon with some pride this morning that his son, although under 16 years of age, was one of the best automobile drivers in the city of London. He admitted the boy had been driving a car for some time, and had asked for a driving permit for him, but was refused.

"That simply aggravates the case," declared Mr. Graydon.

"I know you just come here and pay your fine," said Mr. Rolston warmly, "but at the same time—"

"You are liable to be committed for contempt of court," said Mr. Graydon. "This act is for your own protection. If you had an accident with this boy driving and a civil court action ensued, you would have great difficulty in escaping financial responsibility. I will make the fine $5."

BR. MINISTRY THREATENED WITH CRISIS ON BUDGET

Premier MacDoanld Cancels Speaking Engagements To Preside Over Cabinet.

TO PRESENT BUDGET

Britain's Labor Government Realizes Difficulty of Presentation of First Budget.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, April 28.—Premier MacDonald has cancelled some of his engagement to speak in Wales in order to preside at a meeting of the cabinet on the subject of the budget tomorrow morning.

Differences apparently have arisen among the ministers on the proposed abolition of the McKenna duties, and in some quarters it is predicted that a crisis may arise over the question.

This week will be an important one in the Labor government's career, for immediately upon the reassembly of Parliament Tuesday it presents its first budget, under circumstances involving uncertainty as to its reception. Some political commentators go so far as to say that the position is a critical one for the administration, and that its life depends upon how it handles the financial problems on this occasion.

If the government were held in power by a self-contained majority, it would not need to fear anxiety being transferred to those who fear Socialistic theories in framing the country's fiscal program, but as things stand the government must go warily to insure a majority in the Commons.

The crucial point, in the view of all the political writers, is the question of the retention or abandonment of the McKenna duties on motor cars, bicycles, musical instruments, clocks and films. The chancellor of the exchequer, Philip Snowden, is known to favor abolishing the duties, and can rely upon a majority of the Laborites and Liberals to support him, but there is a section of the Liberals and even some of the Laborites who wish the duties retained in the interest of the workers in certain industries, notably the manufacture of motor cars. These workers fear loss of occupation if the protection afforded by the duties is withdrawn.

The entire Conservative party also favors retention of the duties, which will automatically expire on May 1, unless renewed.

ONE-THIRD OVERSEAS FORCE HAS LEFT CANADA FOR U. S.

Dominion Secretary of the G.W.V.A. Reveals Startling Figures in Speech.

EXCEED IMMIGRATION

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, April 28.—Nearly one-third of the overseas strength of the Canadian expeditionary force has migrated to the United States in search of its bread and butter, declared C. Grant MacNeil, Dominion secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association, in discussing the immigration situation in Canada before members of Flanders Lodge, L. O. L., on the anniversary services of the formation of that lodge at St. Elci, France, among the Canadian forces.

"The investigation of Canadian veteran migration had led to an investigation of the great problem, and," said Mr. MacNeil, "we discovered that for the last two decades the migration from the United States had been far in excess of our total immigration from all quarters."

To solve the immigration problem, veterans were proposing the following preliminary steps:

A determination to colonize Canada, first with Canadians, and then with British stock.

Honest co-operation between the immigration department and the employment service of Canada to prevent further displacement of the present population. Extension of farm settlement and small holdings settlement among Canadians.

Acceptance of the empire settlement scheme under which the British government will advance £300 to new settlers, provided the Canadian government advances a similar amount.

Assisting selected immigrants from Nordic races in Europe for settlement and to clear and cultivate crown lands.

Emphasize settlement activities instead of immigration until a proper balance is struck.

Constable Still Believes Blood Reveals Murder And Search Is Under Way

A. J. Wharton and George Tustin Drag River This Afternoon.

"QUEER" HAPPENINGS

Shouting and Screaming Heard by Residents at Different Times.

Still holding to the belief that a body was hurled from the Adelaide street bridge into the north branch of the Thames River sometime during Wednesday night, High Constable A. J. Wharton and George Tustin of the Humane Society will drag the river in the vicinity of the bridge this afternoon.

Large clots of blood on the bridge flooring and girders were found by the high constable Friday night, when he was first notified of the matter. Examination of the spot led the constable to believe that there had been foul play, and he is not satisfied to let the case drop.

An analysis of the blood to determinte whether it is human or that of an animal will cost $100 and will not be ordered by the authorities, it was stated at the court house this morning.

According to reports received by officers of the law, there have been some "queer" happenings in the neighborhood of the bridge for some time past. The high constable had a busy week-end and was not able to carry on investigations either Saturday afternoon or Sunday, he stated. There have been numerous "parties" in the neighborhood, it is said, and much shouting and screaming have been heard by residents at different times.

BALL FANS CRASH THROUGH A ROOF

Fractured Leg, Ankle and Head Injuries Are Result of Over-Enthusiasm.

Associated Press Despatch.

Newark, N. J., April 29.—Three persons, two of them young boys—who were sitting in the dugout reserved for Newark players, were injured yesterday afternoon at Meadowbrook oval when fans leaped to the flimsy roof of the dugout in their enthusiasm over a last-minute two-base hit by Frank ("Sugar") Kane that netted the Bears a 6-to-5 victory over Buffalo in the International League.

The three crushed beneath the fallen roof timbers were imprisoned for nearly half an hour and without medical attention as the crowd of thousands surged across the field, intent on reaching Kane and parading him around the field.

Isadore Blackman, 21, sustained a fractured leg; John Gregg, 10, a fractured ankle and George Treiris, 11, head injuries.

MIDDLESEX FARMERS FINISHING SEEDING

Work Will End This Week in County If the Weather Continues Fine.

Middlesex County farmers are busy completing seeding which will be finished at the end of the week, providing the weather remains fine, it was stated at the office of the department of agriculture this morning.

In some of the townships where light soil is found, the farmers have finished putting in their grain and are almost through with the planting of early potatoes.

On the other hand, farmers south of the city on heavier land are just nicely started and are making every effort to get their oats drilled into the land. Seeding has been a little late in most localities this year owing to backward weather conditions.

"What's the occasion today?" he was asked.

"This is Monday," explained the mayor. "Tomorrow will be Tuesday, and so forth."

BANDITS GET $150,000 DIAMONDS FROM SHOP

Three Men Enter New York Manufacturing Plant Early Today.

BOUND AND GAGGED

Charles Kresney and a Charwoman Are Thrown Into Corridor.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, April 28.—Three bandits early today attacked, bound and gagged Charles Kresney in his office and jewelry manufacturing plant in Nassau street and escaped with diamonds and platinum mountings valued at $150,000.

The robbery occurred between 7 and 7:30 o'clock. It was discovered by a foreman in the plant who found Kresney and Josephine Sefrafino, a charwoman bound and gagged, Kresney, who was semi-conscious, was taken to a hospital.

One wallet of diamonds which was stolen, it was stated, contained stones worth $75,000. Platinum mountings, pieces of jewelry and 100 ounces of platinum valued at $108 an ounce also were taken.

The robbery occurred on the seventh floor of an office building in the crowded downtown business section.

Kresney, it was stated, was in the habit of going to theplant early in the morning and opening three safes, one in the office of the Fulton Jewelry Company, and two in his own office.

When the charwoman arrived at the Kresney officees shortly after 7 o'clock, she told the police, she met three short, swarthy young men who ordered her to put up her hands and then bound and gagged her. Kresney had been beaten by the bandits and thrown into a corridor as they hastily gathered up the valuables, she said.

CHIEF AITKEN FAVORS UNION FOR FIREMEN

Would Not Interfere as Long as Demands Are Reasonable.

John Aitken, chief of the fire department, approves of the firemens union and does not think that the men should be prevented from membership in their organization.

But their actions must be reasonable he maintains; otherwise he holds nothing against the union or its members. In fact, he points out that "unity is strength," and intimated that just as long as the men kept within the bounds of reason they would encounter no disfavor from him.

The Brittain report, now under the consideration of the finance committee, recommends that the officers of department, be not members of the union.

Mayor Wenige has disagreed with this policy voicing the opinion that even the chief should be allowed affiliation should he so elect.

MIDDLESEX FARMERS PLAN CUT-RATE MILK WAR

ALDERMAN DRAKE REPORTS PLANS BEING DISCUSSED

East Middlesex Farmers Would Form Own Distributing Depot.

PROPERTY SIGHTED

A cut-rate milk war in London has been proposed by several East Middlesex producers, Ald. Gordon Drake reports, and tentative arrangements call for a community milk depot in East London, where milk, under the "cash and carry" system would be served for 7 cents a quart and, perhaps 8 cents per quart, if delivered. The current price is ten cents.

Ald. Drake relates that several farmers have discussed the proposal with him, and from present indications the plan will be consummated. Suitable property for the purpose has been sighted, and Ald. Drake expects early developments.

The farmers claim that they are not receiving adequate returns for milk. They propose, if the scheme is carried out, to have nothing to do with pasteurized milk, but to sell only milk from government tested cows.

It would not be imperative for them to put in their own ice plant until next year. A large wagon would be used with two men. One farmer would be able to bring in the milk for perhaps five or six of his associates, thus relieving them to an appreciable degree.

The dairy farmers claim that there is too great a jump between the producer and the consumer; six and even seven cents, Ald. Drake explains.

BELGIUM HEADS MEET PREMIER POINCARE

Morning Conference at Paris Closes With No Announcements Made.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, April 28.—Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Hymans, of Belgium, entered into conference with Premier Poincare at 10 o'clock this morning regarding the methods to be followed in connection with the report of the reparations committee.

The meeting lasted until just after mid-day, when the conferees went to luncheon. It was planned to continue the conference during the afternoon. The Belgian statesmen were expected to leave for Brussels early in the evening.

Premier Theunis, on coming out of the morning conference, had nothing to say as to the trend of the discussion.

"We have a simple private conference with M. Poincare, at which neither secretaries nor stenographers were present," he said. He added he must go to Brussels this evening because he was due to defend his finance minister's budget before the Belgian senate tomorrow.

The conversation was continued during the luncheon at the foreign office at which Premier Poincare was the host, and it was resumed in the French Premier's office immediately afterward.

UNEMPLOYED INSURANCE SOLVING STRIKE PROBLEM

Co-operation of Employers and Employees Proving of Mutual Benefit.

MANY ARE AFFECTED

Idle Workers Will Receive Up To Forty Per Cent of Pay.

By F. J. OPPENHEIMER.
Special to The Advertiser.
Copyright.

Chicago, April 28.—On May 1, usually a day of strikes and lockouts in the labor world, unemployment insurance benefits up to 40 per cent of their regular weekly wages will be paid out in cash to as many of the 35,000 clothing workers constituting the Chicago locals of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, as will then be thrown out of work. Many of these men and women who face idleness for five weeks, the slack season, will receive as much as $20 each week for this period of industrial depression from the Unemployment Insurance Fund established one year ago by a legal agreement made by the Chicago manufacturers and the employees.

Although it is estimated that at least 2,500 tailors will either be totally or partially unemployed May 1 in Chicago, there is absolutely no taint of charity attached to the fact that they will make applications for unemployment benefits up to $20,000 a week, according to an official estimate, for this insurance money is not derived, as are the British unemployment doles, from the government, but is a natural result of the economic device worked out by the clothing industry itself.

No Government Aid.

This constructive measure, the first of its kind in the world, is industrial and not governmental, and was adopted voluntarily by both employers and employees, without either state aid or interference. That an industry has become competent enough to look after its own unemployed, that it even acknowledges the responsibility for them, is declared to mark a new epoch in industrial history, promising something like industrial stabilization and offering a hope that it will soon be freed from strikes and lockouts.

When the agreement establishing the unemployment insurance was signed, cynics commenting on its provisions prophesied that labor and capital would tire of their novel experiment before the year was out. Instead, their mutual co-operation in solving the unemployment problem has not only strengthened the local clothing market, for Chicago now leads New York as a manufacturing center, but together they have created another, a new million dollar insurance industry, a baby of which the Chicago parents are proud.

Treasurer's Statement.

The statement made by the treasurer, B. M. Squires, on April 1, showed receipts amounting to $948,951.36, an increase over March 1 of $83,-105.78.

Of this amount Hart Schaffner & Marx, with their workers, contributed over $200,000; B. Kuppenheimer & Co., with their employees, over $100,000; the Clothiers' and Tailors' Fund, over $300,000; Independents, over $50,000, and Tailors and Contractors, over $90,000.

After deducting administrative expenses, approximating up to date about $30,000, and adding the interest—the money is invested in government bonds exclusively, according to the agreement—the unemployment fund will easily show a balance on the right side of a million dollars.

BECK MAY ENDEAVOR TO AID WORKMAN'S CASE

Jack Heaman, Injured With Telegraph Company, Is Seeking Compensation.

The case of Jack Heaman, local workman, whose fight for relief through the workmen's compensation act has occupied the attention of labor circles in this city for some time, may be taken up by Sir Adam Beck, according to announcement made by his attorney today.

Mr. Heaman's case is one of the most novel that has come before the compensation board in many a year. He was injured some years ago while working for the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company and was disabled to such an extent that he is unfit to take up any other line of work. The fight has been a long drawn-out affair and each time it has been brought before the board there has occurred some little hitch in the proceedings that prevented any aid being given.

The local Trades and Labor Council was also interested in the case.

LONE BRITISH PLANE OUTSTR IPS AMERICANS IN FIRST LAP.

The relative position of the British and American planes on Saturday in the round-the-world air race is shown in the above map. The four American planes left Santa Monica, near Los Angeles, on March 17, under command of Major Frederick L. Martin, flying the flag-plane Seattle. The flight commander made a forced descent for repairs at Kanatak, Alaska, and his four colleagues, in the Boston, Chicago and New Orleans, are awaiting him at Dutch Harbor, Unalaska. They had planned to leave this island on April 8, and accordingly they are now over two weeks behind schedule. Although the British plane, under Major Stuart MacLaren, was over a week later in starting, having left Calshot aerodrome on Southampton Water only on March 25, it has far outdistanced its American rivals. This record was made despite a fortnight's delay at the Island of Corfu, where it was necessary to await the arrival of spare part replacements from England. On leaving Corfu, the plane was fourteen days behind schedule, but MacLaren expects to catch up with his original time-table before he arrives in Japan. At present his machine is at Karachi, India, being overhauled. He has now completed the first lap of his flight, having covered about 4,890 miles, or roughly one-fifth of the total proposed globe circuit.

MATERIALISM IS DENOUNCED BY REV. FR. POWELL

Exhorts Congregation of St. Mary's Church To Strengthen Faith.

GLORIOUS HERITAGE

A denouncement of the present materialistic age as one of the most widespread hindrances to the power of Christianity was the keynote of a forceful sermon by Rev. Fr. Francis Powell at St. ary's Church Sunday morning.

Father Powell drew a vivid picture of the great harm many of the so-called modern theories have wrought on the world in general, exhorting the members of the congregation to strengthen their faith, quoting the words of Christ to Thomas after the apostle had been convinced that our Lord had risen from the dead, "Because thou hast seen me, Thomas, thou hast believed; blessed are they that have not seen and have believed."

Relating how the risen Christ had appeared to the apostles within a week after His resurrection and had said to them, "Peace be to you. As the Father hath sent Me, I also send you." The speaker pointed out that it was on that day that the apostles were organized with the living church and were commissioner to guard the deposit of faith and the doctrines He had imparted to them.

"Christ told them to g forth into the world andto carry the doctrine of Christianity to the uttermost parts of the earth," Fr. Powell said. "Mark that Christ told them to teach what He had commanded them, not what they thought. Thus, at the very beginning we have a church commissioned by our blessed Lord to spread His doctrines to the bounds of the earth. From that day to this the church has taught the doctrines of Christ, no more no less.

No Age Without a Heresy.

Continuing, Fr. Powell declared that no age is without a heresy. He called attention to the fact that nothing of a positive or constructive nature has ever been associated with a heresy. It invariably is a denial of some teaching of the Catholic Church, he asserted, and the only heretics are outside the Catholic church. They deny but do not teach.

"In our day the Protestant churches no longer teach the fundamental doctrines of religion," he said. "Ministers deny the divinity of Christ, the doctrine of the original sin, the virginity of the Blessed Virgin. Everything is a denial. Nothing is constructive. The general lack of faith is deplorable.

"We are living in a materialistic age. Scientists say that unless we can feel it, hear it or see it, it is not so. Many are the doubting Thomases in the world today. Remember how Christ told him to feel the wounds in His hands and His side, and then rebuked him for his lack of faith, saying, "Because thou hast seen Me, Thomas, thou hast believed. Blessed are they that have not seen and have believed."

"What a glorious heritage it is to belong to the Catholic church. The faithful have access to every means of salvation and if we follow her teachings, as sure as the day follows night, we will be transported from this vale of tears into the beautiful valley of heaven."

RESIDENTS NOW SURE THAT SPRING IS HERE

Richard Watson Appears On Veranda For First Time This Year.

While opinions vary as to when the first day of spring actually arrives, but to the residents of London South, Richard Watson, who lives at 88 Wellington road, is as accurate a harbinger in this part of the country, for when Mr. Watson appears on his veranda after hibernating through the long dreary months of winter, the people of this district are firmly convinced spring is here.

And it was not until Friday afternoon that Mr. Watson, who is a man well up in the nineties, stepped forth to inhale the sweet oalmy spring air. He enjoys remarkable health for his advanced age, and Friday afternoon he made his opening debut rather lengthy, remaining out for something like two hours.

POINTS TO WORD OF CONDEMNATION

J. Kumpf Addresses Members of Bible Students' Association on Sunday.

"The Divine message for the present generation is one of condemnation, as well as conveying good tidings of great joy," declared J. Kumpf yesterday, when speaking on the subject "All Nations Marching to Armageddon," at Hyman Hall.

The basis of the discourse was part of Revelations, Chapter 16, which was shown to refer to Christ's second presence, with regard to which he says, "Behold, I come as a thief."

"For more than forty years," the speaker said, "The International Bible Students' Association has proclaimed Christ's second presence, which signifies also the approach of that vortex of calamity, named in the scriptures, 'Armageddon.' The scriptures have led us to expect a disintegration among the nations in the period from 1914 to 1925. It is expected that the climax will be reached by that time.

"The result will be that mankind will be prepared to drop their own schemes for self-government and be ready to look to Jehovah for his ways and plans. We look for the complete dissolution of the old civilization, which men are endeavoring to patch up. God has arranged that some may escape the severity of that time as shown in Zephaniah 2. The conditions are meekness and humility and a desire for righteousness. This would lead such to become Bible students. Not members of an organization necessarily, but humbly seeking to be taught God's will for them by carefully studying His word. Of such a class of people we can confidently say, in spite of world conditions today, millions now living will never die."

METHODISTS WILL USE RADIO FOR FIRST TIME

Summaries of the Quadrennial Conference at Springfield To Be Broadcasted.

Radio will have its place in international Methodism for the first time this year. Local radio fans, and particularly those among them who are members of the Methodist denomination, are interested in the announcement from the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States, that brief summaries of the activities at the quadrennial conference which takes place in Springfield, Mass., will be broadcasted each day from the Springfield station, WBZ.

Londoners who heard Dr. Samuel Chadwick, official representative of British Wesleyan Methodism to the conference, in Dundas Center Church last Friday, will be able to hear at first-hand of Dr. Chadwick's reception at the conference. Many important matters are to be dealt with by the Methodist Church of the United States, at its conference, a number of which will be of interest to Canadian Methodists.

Among these will be the attitude of the Methodist Episcopal Church to cards and dancing. Reports indicate that some of the more frivolous followers of the Methodist Church were anxious for some slight relief in the ban, but the general impression is that the Methodist frown will continue aimed at these pursuits. Delegates on several occasions have sought to effect a lifting of the ban, but the matter has not so far succeeded in getting the floor of the house.

EXPECT FEW CHANGES.

The new C. P. R. timetable will be ready by May 18, according to announcement made today by officials of this division. It is not likely that the changes will affect any trains in this division.

REVIVAL OF TRADE SEEN AS WARMER WEATHER COMES

Wholesale Quotations in Canada Steady, According to Dun's Review.

REACTIONS IN U. S.

While numerous price reactions in the United States during the past week indicate that business is slowing down, conditions in Canada show excellent prospects for a trade revival the latter part of the spring and during the summer. Easter business was good in most centers, and retailers anticipate an active demand for seasonable commodities with the advent of warm weather.

According to Dun's weekly review, twice as many reductions in wholesale quotations were registered in the United States last week than the one preceding. On the other hand quotations in Canada have remained steady, and all markets have been characterized by an optimistic tone.

Buying in wholesale lines is still marked by noticeable conservatism, but numerous small orders contribute to a satisfactory turnover. Sentiment among merchants, as a rule, is cheerful, being based upon the encouraging outlook in numerous important industrial departments, an easy monetary situation and some improvement in collections.

Advices from the principal wholesale and jobbing centers of the west state that buyers generally are keeping their commitments down closely to current requirements. However, prospects are thought to be gradually improving, and a substantial increase in the movement of seasonable commodities is expected to appear within the next few weeks.

Since the budget speech retailers have noted a slight improvement in general conditions, the new sales tax and tariff announcements having, apparently, created a new feeling of confidence, which is having a steadying influence on Canadian markets.

THISTLES WIN JUNIOR SOCCER OPENING 4 TO 2

Defeat W. O. R. in Sparkling Game At Carling Heights Saturday.

The junior soccer season was opened Saturday when the Thistles beat the W. O. R. 4—2 juniors at Carling Heights. The opening exchanges were evenly contested until Beasley had a try which went wide. The Thistles were now having the pull and McKinley had hard luck when his shot struck the inside of both uprights and rebounded into play. Davies had a shot which struck the cross-bar. The W. O. R. then broke away and Edwards forced a corner which resulted in the opening goal, Hollworth being the scorer. From the kick-off Thistles went right up and from a nice pass from the right McKinley equalized. Half-time: Thistles 1; W. O. R. 1.

The second half started off at a fast pace and though playing against the wind, Thistles were doing most of the attacking and were rewarded when McKinley scored a second goal. The "Jags" were setting a fast pace this half and before long Dave Smith added another goal. The same player added number four. In the dying moments W. O. R. broke away and W. Harper scored.

The teams:

Thistles—McCauley, goal; Dilion and Bruce, backs; Graham, Hopper and Fisher, halves; Tumes, Beasley, McKinley, Smith and Davies, forwards.

W. O. R.—Bates, goal; Hayes and Dennis, backs; Worton, Horolin and Cameron, halves; Edwards, Taylor, W. Harver, Hollworth and H. Harper, forwards.

Referee: Baudsman Carr.

The terms were not made public. Mr. Kedick held the explorer had made a contract with him to lecture after his return from Wrangel Island in 1918. BANQUET PLANNED FOR GRADUATES

Western University Seniors Prepare To Honor Members of Graduating Class.

In addition to the many other events crowding convocation week for the local university this year, the Seniors are planning a banquet for members of the graduating class some time during the week.

At a recent meeting of Arts '24 to map out the program for the convocation week, the date for the banquet was set for the same night as the convocation, May 30th. Later, however, this was changed, and a committee appointed to find a more suitable evening, because, it was pointed out, the length of the ceremony, depending upon the convocation speaker, might make such a banquet, after the ceremony inadvisable, because of the lateness of the hour.

Besides the convocation dance the juniors have been considering giving a banquet for the entire university, so that, with the play on Wednesday night, the 27th of May, and other attractions, the entrance of such a signal year as Arts '24 in the thorny path of life may be feted fittingly.

CITIZENS URGED TO SEE HOSPITALS ON NATIONAL D

Doors of Five Institutions City Will Be Thrown Open May 12.

SCHOOLS CO-OPERATE

When the doors of all five hospitals in London and vicinity are thrown open to the public on the afternoon of Monday, May 12, between the hours of three and five, it is hoped by officials in charge of Hospital Day that thousands of citizens will avail themselves of the opportunity to learn about these institutions, so essential to the life of any community.

Hospital Day will be making its initial bow to Londoners on this occasion, although it has become a national day throughout the United States, and in some cities of Canada. Those in charge are sparing neither time nor energy and arranging plans whereby all hospitals will feature one important branch in connection with hospital service.

The representatives of the following hospitals, Victoria, St. Joseph's, Bethesda, Queen Alexandra, Sanatorium and Westminster, headed by Dr. Clegg, superintendent of Victoria, have been busily engaged for the past few weeks making final arrangements. So far everything done in connection with the coming event gives promise of Hospital Day in London meeting with the success that will warrant it becoming an annual event.

On that day the history of all five institutions since they were founded, the work which they are doing and the vast improvements made in all branches of hospital work will be outlined in the papers, accompanied by various illustrations. London, in the opinion of medical men, is the best equipped city for its size in Canada in regard to efficient hospitals.

A week previous addresses will be given in the secondary schools, dealing with the nursing profession, while slides will be shown on the screen of the local theatres.

MANOR PARK MEMORIAL TO FALLEN IS UNVEILED

PARK RESIDENTS UNVEIL TRIBUTE TO WAR HEROES

Gen. King Officiates at an Impressive Ceremony in Manor Park Yesterday.

TELLS OF STRUGGLE

With the words, "In memory of the men who fell, I now unveil this memorial," Col. Hill of the R. C. R. pulled the rope holding the draped flag in place, and revealed to the large crowd gathered at the Church of the Epiphany, Manor Park, yesterday morning, the beautiful and impressive memorial erected in memory of the men from the district who fell in battle overseas during the great war.

After the regular morning church service, at which the edifice was crowded to the doors, the ceremony of unveiling took place. There then ensued a solemn minute's silence, a splendid tribute to the men who sleep in France and Belgium. The buglers of the R. C. R. sounded the "reveille," and then came the roll of the drums, rising to a thunderous crescendo, and dying away to nothingness. Three times the roll of the drums was repeated, and the large audience was thrilled.

Rev. W. M. Shore, pastor of the church, introduced Brig.-Gen. King, G. O. C., Military District No. 1, who addressed the assemblage, prefacing his remarks by expressing his pleasure at being called upon to take part in any ceremony of this nature that served to recall to mind the gallant deeds of the Canadians overseas.

Calais Threatened.

"All military men unanimously agree that had not the Canadians stepped into the breach of Ypres on the fateful morning nine years ago, nothing in the world could have saved Calais from falling into the hands of the Huns," he said. "There were but four British divisions in the salients, and the breach made by the enemy was six miles long. To give you an idea of just what the salient was like, imagine that these two streets, running parallel east and west, and this block running north and south were the sides of the salient, with the Canucks on the inside, and subject to enfilade fire from all sides. But with the courage of heroes in the face of a devastating fire, and innumerable machine guns, and most deadly of all, the poison gas, the Canadians hung on, and again and again repulsed the savage Hun attacks. The gallant stand of the splendid First Canadian Division will go down in history as one of the outstanding episodes of the many actions in which the Canadians were engaged.

"I myself know fear for maybe the first time during those fateful days. Not fear of life, but fear of what might happen should a line held by the Canadians be pierced. But with the courage born of desperation, they hung on in the face of overwhelming odds, and saved the day and the channel ports." General King read parts of a tribute paid by Marshal Foch to the Canadians for their part in the Battle of Ypres, and also Vimy, Somme, Passchendale, Amiens, and others.

Mayor Gives Talk.

Mayor Wenige opened his address by remarking how proud he was to know that the residents of Highland and Manor Parks were progressive, as shown by the lovely memorial, which was constructed entirely by the returned men and residents of the district.

"Some time this district will be part of the city of London, and much credit is due the pioneers who have built this district up to its present state of perfection," the mayor said. "It is indeed a splendid record that 60 per cent of the male residents of these parks served their king and country during the great war. Such a record is enviable, and the memory of the men who did not return will be kept forever fresh by this Cross of Sacrifice."

The names of the men from the district who gave their lives overseas are as follows: J. McColl, J. Mitchell, John W. Mitchell, Fred Perkins, Archie Perkins, William Woods, Thomas Hayes, Thomas Fleming, J. V. Sullivan.

The memorial is in the form of a stone cairn, surmounted by the Cross of Sacrifice, and is a beautiful piece of workmanship.

The service came to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

EXPECT BRITISH MINISTERS TO TAKE PART IN MAY DAY

Several Millions Will Celebrate This European "Labor Day" in Britain.

GREAT PROCESSIONS

All Efforts To Have the Day Observed Boisterously Are Overruled.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, April 28.—The English Labor party's part in the international observance of this May Day, although it will not be the affair that the more ruddy members of the party would have it, will be bigger and better than ever. It is expected that several million persons will celebrate this European "labor day" by taking part in the big celebrations, mass meetings and processions which will be held throughout the country.

Efforts of a large section of the party to have the day observed more boisterously were overcome by another group, which included several government ministers, who believe this is the chance to get in some propaganda by way of speeches and the enactment of resolutions by the rank and file of the socialists.

It is expected that Premier MacDonald, John Robert Clynes, deputy leader in the House of Commons, Lord Parmoor, and other Labor star performers will be among the speakers on the platforms at Hyde Park and other London parks.

The parade of labor adherents which gathers annually on the Victoria Embankment and marches through the West End to Hyde Park is expected this year to number 100,000, which is going to present a knotty problem to London's police chiefs.

BIG DOG SHOW IS PLANNED FOR MAY

Already Many American Champions Have Been Entered in Classic.

Quite the biggest exhibition of aristocratic dogs ever held in London, and probably one of the biggest ever held in Canada, will be staged here May 7 and 8, the dates of the London Canine Association's two one-day shows. Already entries are pouring in from all parts of Canada and the U. S., and it is expected that between 300 and 400 dogs will compete.

The show, originally scheduled for the Arena, is to be held in the building formerly occupied by Dickinson-Nicholson, on Richmond street. There are three large floors in the Richmond street building which will give ample room.

Alva Rosenberg and Charles Hopton of New York are the judges. That the entries promise to be the greatest in history, is indictated by the fact that the first five dogs entered for the show were all American champions and New York winners. Entries are being taken up to April 30, and it will be a day or two after that before a complete list of the breeds entered can be issued.

There are several classes in which the local dogs will have a chance to compete, and a big local entry in addition to the out-of-town entry is expected. Many valuable prizes are up for competition in all breeds.

ELK COMING TO ZOO FROM WEST RESERVE

Commissioner McFarland Arranges For Addition to the Springbank Reserve.

Commissioner T. W. McFarland of the public utilities commission has arranged for the addition of a pair of elk to the Springbank Park zoo. Through the co-operation of Frank White, M.P., and the game warden of the Wainwright reserve, it has been agreed that the elk shall come to London and make their homes in Springbank. It is expected they will get here in a few weeks, so that they can come before the hot weather arrives.

If it is impossible to get them here before the middle of May, then they will not come until the autumn, as they do not travel well or safely in mid-summer weather. The addition from time to time, as opportunity affords, of various animals to the growing collection at Springbank is in conformity with the plans of the commission in providing an attractive and interesting park for the city.

ST. THOMAS CITIZEN ASKS COST SERVICE AT CAFETERIA

A resident of St. Thomas, who does not disclose his identity, has written a lengthy letter to Mayor Wenige, explaining that he agrees with his claim that "Sir Adam Beck is not running the L. & P. S. to suit him."

As an added attraction for Port Stanley, the writer would have the city install a "service at cost," or even below cost, at the cafeteria on the board walk.

The mayor is silent upon the advisability or possibility of the proposal.

CITY DRUGGISTS APPROVE MOVE TO QUASH FAKER

New Act Provides $2,000 Fine For Infractions of Liquor Regulations.

INSTRUCTIONS ARRIVE

London druggists approve the measure passed by the Legislature last week, which provides for a fine of $2,000 on conviction of pharmacists who do not live up to the liquor regulations concerning drug stores. The bill, they said, is directed at "mushroom" shops that sell alcohol illegally under a pharmaceutical guise.

According to city pharmacists there are no drug stores here that are not legitimate, and the measure will, therefore, have no effect so far as London is concerned. It obviates the possibility, however, of drug concerns starting in business and selling drugs as a blind to obscure their alcohol vending activities.

This morning all local druggists received a copy of the new pharmacy act. This specifies that failure to take out a license from the Ontario license board before storing, handling or selling alcohol will involve a fine of $2,000. The penalty is much more severe than formerly. However, no local chemists have yet been apprehended for infraction of the act since the O. T. A. became operative in 1916.

A representative of Anderson & Nelles, London druggists, stated the bill was designed to catch the numerous "mushroom" drug stores in Toronto. The business done by these in drugs amounted to practically nothing, their big profit coming from illegal selling of alcohol.

"I am sure the new act will be satisfactory to London druggists," Mr. Nelles said. "It is time the drug business was removed from the stigma attached to it by the operations of men who are nothing less than bootleggers."

BOARD WILL ACCEPT RAILWAY WEIGHTS

Special Committee Draws Up New Contracts For Supply of Coal.

In drawing up the new form of contract to be used in the purchase of coal by the school board, the special committee, consisting of Trustees Mrs. J. I. A. Hunt and Fred Lawrason, the school inspector and the secretary of the board, it was decided to accept the railway weights for the cars of coal, and that the only coal that should pass over the city weigh scales should be that delivered direct from the dealer's yards. This is in contrast to last year's contract, which stated that all coal must pass the city weigh scales, and which in its fulfillment led to some discussion amongst the trustees as to the necessity for this action.

The new contract calls for the replacement of one grade of coal by another in cases where there is some objection to the coal being used and supplied. This is to obviate the compulsory use of coal in schools that is found not to be satisfactory in certain ways either by the engineer or the clerk of works.

Roughly, 3,000 tons of coal are burned by the London schools each year, and the matter of its supply and purchase is often one of some complexity to the board, of interest to the various coal dealers in the city and usually of comment and criticism among citizens generally.

HARRY WRAY PLEASED WITH VETERANS' TURNOUT

Harry Wray, president of the G. W. V. A., on behalf of that association, wishes to thank all who so willingly responded by lending their presence to make yesterday's parade in commemoration of the battle of Ypres such a wonderful success.

Mr. Wray feels that it was the largest parade of its kind ever held in London, and that the glory of the Canadian soldiers on this memorable occasion will live forever in the hearts of London people.

HOME BANK PROBE BY COMMISSION GOES ON TUESDAY

Federal House Will Not Consider Failure Until Next Week.

NO MEETING YET

Banking and Commerce Committee Has Still To Discuss the Question.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, April 28.—Consideration of the Home Bank failure and the banking problem by the House of Commons is not now likely to be taken up until next week. Some time before the Easter recess the house referred the whole question to the banking and commerce committee, but no meeting of this body has been held, and none is expected to be called for the present week, which is to be given up chiefly, as far as committees go, to the church union question.

In the meantime, the evidence taken before the royal commission on the Home Bank is being printed from day to day for the use of the members of parliament. This evidence may be considered in committee under the reference made by the house, but it is designed to be used for finding a remedy for weaknesses in the bank act and not for the purpose of coming to a conclusion upon the question of government responsibility for the bank failure, which has been submitted to the royal commission.

The commission continues its investigation tomorrow.

The practical suggestion for amendment of the bank act which stands first before the committee is the creation of an insurance fund for savings deposits. This proposal was brought before the house by L. J. Ladner (Conservative, South Vancouver), and was referred by that body to the banking committee. Another suggestion which is likely to be presented during the inquiry is the establishment of a system of government inspection of the banks.

Besides the church union question, which comes prominently to the front in the private bills committee on Wednesday, another issue of much importance to engage a committee is the Canadian National branch lines program. This will come up tomorrow in the railway committee, to which the various bills on this subject have been referred.

REV. R. MESS HAS PLAN FOR FLYING OF FLAG

School Trustee Would Restrict School Ceremony to Certain Days of the Year.

Rev. R. D. Mess, a school trustee, has a motion before the board of education to arrange a schedule of days on which the Union Jack shall be flown by the London schools. His plan is that certain important days in the year shall be set apart, and that the flag shall only be flown on these days. The purpose of the flying would be explained by the teachers to the children, and explained to the general public through the press. In this way he believes that the things for which the flag stands and the reasons of its use will be brought home to both children and grownups in London more carefully than has been done in the past.

Mr. Mess holds the opinion that to fly the Union Jack every day of the year is to lose its message and dull its meaning by familiarity, and that to restrict its use to certain days, is a more acceptable method and one more likely of attaining the desired results.

WHISPERINGS SAY "BLUE BOYS" PLAN ANNUAL POW WOW

Several of the Rank and File Reported To Be Getting a Trifle Nervous.

NO SUPERFLUOUS PEP

More than a year has elapsed since the members of the local Conservative Association have held their annual session and some of the "boys" of the rank and file are beginning to get a trifle nervous, according to reports.

It was rumored late last week that J. Cameron Wilson, president, was about to call the annual stampede with frills, election of officers 'neverything but nothing transpired it is learnt.

In fact an insurgent member of the "inner ring" at headquarters reported today that "President" Wilson actually contemplated no annual session until next fall and possibly not then, unless there is reasonable assurance that a federal election is in the offing.

There is no superfluous "pep" at the party citadel, it is explained and it seems that but few of the veterans are clamoring for action.

The tumultuous applause following the advent of the Ferguson government to power has lapsed dismally and if reports are well founded, the "Blue Boys" are indeed blue, at least the "wet" or so-called "moderate" wing who expected that the O. T. A. referendum would have been announced ere this.

CHILDREN'S LAUGHTER RETURNS TO SCHOOLS

All Centers Report Full Houses Today, Following Easter Vacation.

Full houses are reported at all the centers of education in London following the Easter holidays. High schools, public schools and the Technical all have the same report to make—everyone back in their seats and the work of the term already under way. As the Easter examinations are held at the conclusion of the winter term, the holidays are more than welcome to teaching staffs and students, and the new term is welcomed in with youthful energy and enthusiasm. Athletic and various student activities take on a more vitalized form, and with the coming sunshine, the vigor of the schools, whether in debating societies or in gymnasiums, increases until the midsummer heat cries a stop to soaring ambition in all lines of training.

In the meantime the school rooms have resumed their busy lives, books and blackboards, and lectures reign once more, and the younger generation prepares to burn the midnight oil in search of the El Dorado of future success and happiness.

Mrs. Caissie has all her husband's war medals, and she hopes that they will help in bringing him back to her. She can advance no reason for having been deserted, stating Mr. Caissie was always kind and considerate before he left her in Moncton, N.B., in April, 1923.

ANGLICAN CHURCH EXTENSION WILL BE DISCUSSED

New Committee To Talk Plans at East Middlesex Deanery Sessions.

JUBILEE PLANNED

Needs of the Anglican Church in London with regard to church extension are expected to come nearer to solution tomorrow evening as the result of action to be taken at the semi-annual meeting of the Rural Deanery of East Middlesex in St. Matthew's Church. A canon of the church automatically provides for the formation of a church extension committee of a certain size, but until the present, London has been without a committee. Recently, however, the bishop authorized the appointment of representatives from the various local parties, and with Rev. G. Q. Warner of Cronyn Memorial Church as chairman, the committee will be convened tomorrow night.

It will immediately proceed to devise ways and means of securing greater accommodation for districts where the need is pressing. Outstanding among these are Ealing, Manor Park and Knollwood Park, where the present accommodation is taxed to the limit.

A second important matter to be brought before the deanery will be the Huron College Jubilee. In this matter, there is a difference of opinion with regard to the more suitable location for the new buildings. The opinion is held by some that a new college could be conveniently erected on the present site, utilizing the old buildings, while others favor the erection of a college near the new university building and forming one of their group. The discussion on this issue will be led by the Dean of Huron.

The Wednesday morning session will be given over to the semi-annual meeting of the W. A. On Wednesday afternoon the college jubilee question will be brought up following an address by Rev. W. N. Trivett of Honan, China, and the session will conclude with an address on the plans regarding the Diocesan Summer School by Rev. A. G. L. Clarke.

Rev. Principal Waller will speak on Wednesday evening on "How Can We Increase Efficient Training in Our Sunday School?" and Miss L. Gladstone will speak on summer schools.

Buffalo Calf Arrives at Zoo

Little Fellow Basks in the Sun, While Visitors Gaze.

A buffalo calf arrived at the Springbank zoo on Saturday, the son of the pair of buffalo in the zoo. He is a reddish-brown colored little chap who spends most of his time basking in the sun.

On Saturday afternoon he was a source of interest to all visitors, but seemed no whit embarrassed by their curious stares. His mother stood close by and made sure that he slept undisturbed. He is an exceedingly healthy specimen and it is hoped that he will grow up in the park and become an adornment to the attractions of the zoo.

COURT CHARGES $10 FOR FAST AUTO TRIP

Constables Testify Wilfred Navin Was Driving Very Recklessly.

Wilfred Navin was assessed $10 and costs in police court today on a charge of driving a motor car in a reckless manner. Constables McDonald and Shaw stated Navin drove west on Dundas street at a rate of at least 25 miles an hour, and swerved to the right at Wellington street to avoid hitting a car slowing up to make the turn. Later Constable Fuller declared Navin had shot ahead of a car at the Market Lane and almost scraped the mud guards when he cut in ahead of the motorist. The offence took place at 6:10 p.m. Wednesday last, the officers stated.

Navin had three witnesses testify that he was not at the spot at the times mentioned, but the court decided that the time did not make much difference, and imposed the penalty.

HAMILTON'S VOTE ON CHURCH UNION REVEALS CHANGE

Figures Regarded by Presbyterian Church Association as Victory.

DIFFERENT FEELING

Figures obtained from Hamilton by the local branch of the Presbyterian Church Association are of interest to the hundreds of people to whom church union is one of the leading issues of the day. The local anti-unionists regard them as strong evidence that their opposition to the consummation of organic union with the Methodist and Congregational churches is finding considerable support in the city of Hamilton. The figures are the result of a recent vote taken by the Hamilton branch of the Presbyterian Church Association, and are verified by the secretary, J. J. Morrison, and taken to indicate that there is a decidedly different feeling among Hamilton Presbyterians in regard to corporate union than in 1915. The following schedule shows the congregations and the votes in 1915 and in 1924:

GREER'S MOTION CLAIMED TO BE OUT OF ORDER

Civic Officials Point to Consolidated Municipal Act as Authority.

CAN ONLY SUSPEND

Ald. John Greer's motion to limit the suspension powers of the mayor is, to all intents and purpose, out of order, leading municipal authorities gave as their opinion today.

A survey of the consolidated municipal act (provincial statutes) gives the chief magistrate of any city ample authority to direct the prosecution and punishment of any city official or employee, under the supervision of the city council, who, in his opinion, is worthy thereof.

The municipal procedure bylaw, presumably constituted to conform generally with the provisions of the provincial municipal act, and which the chairman of the board of works proposes to amend, sets forth how the mayor may proceed.

City officials consulted today were quite emphatic in their reasoning that Mayor Wenige, or any other mayor, for that matter, may, under the present provincial act, suspend any city employee he sees fit; the employ in question retaining, through the provisions of the same clause in the act, the right of appeal to the committee or board having jurisdiction in his instance.

Can Only Suspend.

Without the existence of a municipal procedure bylaw at all (which is merely a creation of the city council, and must not counteract the provincial rulings) the mayor would have every right to suspend, but he cannot suspend and punish as well. He can prosecute and recommend, but with the committee rests the power to deal—reinstate or finally dismiss.

In view of this reminder from the city authorities, it would appear as though Ald. Greer's motion is superfluous and practically out of order. Mayor Wenige observes, intimating to date that he will rule to that effect at the next session of the council when the question is introduced, in pursuant with Ald. Greer's notice of motion at the last session.

The general impression is, however, that the mayor will permit discussion, in order to "clear the air," and let the proposal go to a vote of council. Ald. Greer's measure demands the support of nine members in all—the necessary two-thirds vote to amend or rescind an established bylaw.

Approval of Chairman.

Ald. Greer has proposed that no mayor shall be permitted to suspend any city employee without first having the approval of the chairman of the committee having jurisdiction over the employee in question, or in the case of a disagreement, the members of the committee.

Under the provisions of the consolidated municipal act of the province, which takes precedence over the municipal procedure act, proposed for amendment, the chairman and members of the committee have the right to disagree with the mayor in the case of a suspension and reinstate the employee or official at a special session 24 hours later.

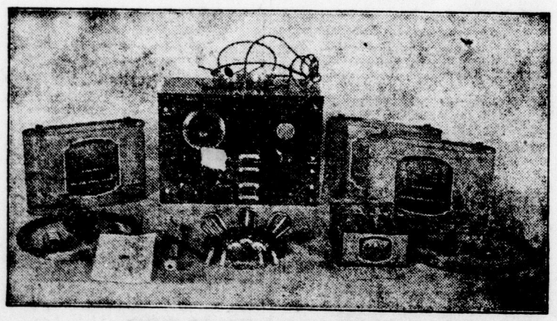
SEABROOK COMPANY AWARDED JUDGMENT

A. H. Brener Must Pay Firm $68.75, County Judge Judd Rules.

Judgment in favor of the plaintiffs for $68.75 was handed down today by County Judge J. C. Judd in the first division court action of E. R. Seabrook and Co. against A. H. Brener.

The action was to recover $173, balance due for roofing material supplied to the defendant who refused to pay, claiming he had received a bulk tender which included the price of putting on the roofing material. The plaintiff denied this part of the agreement.

The finding of his honor was that the plaintiff did not tender for the putting on of the material and was entitled to recover for the material supplied. Judgment was given for $68.75, the defendant to return 5 1-2 squares of shingles valued at $60.50 within ten days, otherwise judgment to be increased $60.50.



FIRST PRIZE IN ESSAY CONTEST.

This splendid radio set is the first prize, to be awarded to the boy or girl winning the essay competition recently announced by The Advertiser in connection with "Save the Forest Week." There are also seven cash prizes and a grand prize of a larger radio set for the best essay received from all Canada.

ROTARY DELEGATES TELL OF DISTRICT MEETING IN U. S.

Many American Rotarians Are Expected in City For Boys' Hobby Fair.

FLAG IS PRESENTED

The delegation from London Rotary Club, which visited the recent district convention in Grand Rapids was not especially large in number, but it was furnished with an abundance of enthusiasm which lasted until the noon meeting today, and was furnished in large measure to the entire membership by means of brief reports.

The London Rotary Club figured well in the convention program. The delegates were placed in charge of a model luncheon, and the address on this occasion was given by Rotarian Roy Cunningham, director of the Rotary Hobby Fair, who spoke on this highly successful annual institution, which had its origin with the London Rotarians. Clubs belonging to cities across the line displayed the greatest interest in the Hobby Fair, and in addition to scores of questions asked, many American Rotarians are expected in London this year to see the fair for themselves.

Represented by Rotarian William Yendall, the London club also presented the Canadian flag to the Grand Rapids club, and during the convention, it was hung with the Stars and Stripes, a symbol of the internationalism of Rotary.

Reports today were given by Rotarians William Martin, George Wesley, William Jarmain, Roy Cunningham, William Yendall, and the secretary, C. R. May. All were enthused over Sir George Foster's address on the League of Nations, which formed one of the principal features of the two-day program. Rotarian Yendall's report on the speech was that it gave both Canadians and Americans a broader conception than any previously held concerning the work which the league has managed to accomplish. One of the features on which Sir George Foster dwelt particularly was the fact that all decisions of the council must be unanimous and his explanation was of equal interest, that representatives to the league were men of such exceptional ability that, furnished with all the facts and information in each case, they were each one able to come to the same decision.

COMMENDS STAND OF PREMIER KING

Manchester Guardian Says the Tariff Charges Should Be Given Fair Trial.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, April 28.—On the question of the Canadian tariff, the Manchester Guardian, which perhaps is the strongest free trade organ in Great Britain, says the reductions made in the budget recently brought down by the Dominion parliament by Hon. James A. Robb, acting minister of finance, were not sensational, but they raised a cry from the "well-nursed manufacturing interests of Eastern Canada."

The Guardian says: "Yet the tariff clauses will go through, and there is no reason why Premier Mackenzie King should go to the country until there has been time to see whether the tariff changes will have the effect to which their advocates look of infusing fresh life into Canada's basic industry of agriculture, an effect from which the whole Dominion, east as well as west, cannot fail to benefit.

"The premier (Mackenzie King) has in this made the most definite stand in his political life, and he is not to be numbered henceforth among these Liberals who will make their peace with the high protectionists."

IMMEDIATE COLLAPSE MINERS' UNION FEARED

Nova Scotia District Said To Be in Danger—To Consider Circular Letter.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Sydney Mines, N. S., April 28.—District No. 26, United Mine Workers of America, is in danger of immediate collapse, according to predictions made in labor circles here. Much, it is stated, depends on the outcome of a joint meeting of the locals, to be held probably next week, to consider a circular letter issued by the provisional board, defining the policy of the international union, particularly in respect to the indebtedness of this district.

During the "strike" last January, a relief fund amounding to about $150,000 was distributed among the miners in grocery orders to the merchants. President Lewis, of the international union, it is stated, disclaims any responsibility for this expenditure, inasmuch as the strike was not officially declared. It has been proposed to the men of the district that the $150,000 be made up by a levy of 50c a week for the next four months on every man in the district. Many miners are reported to be indignant over the proposal and declare not to submit to any such arrangement.

American-Born Speaker Scored

Albert M. P. Charged by the Montreal Gazette.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, April 28.—"The American-born speaker of the Alberta Legislature demonstrates his one hundred per cent Americanism, his Jeffersonian democracy, and his inherent boorishness and crudity by picking and choosing among the phrases of his official prayer in order to exclude the royal family."

This is the retort made editorially by the Montreal Gazette this morning to a communication from the sergeant-at-arms of the Alberta Assembly wherein that official takes the newspaper to task for a jesting reference to the mace, the parliamentary symbol of authority.

COMMUNIST HECKLERS DISTURB PARIS MEETING

M. Tardieu, Speaker, Is Badly Bruised As He Is Dragged Off Platform.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, April 28.—Communist hecklers broke up a political meeting addressed by Deputy Andre Tardieu in a Paris suburb last night, after repeatedly dragging him off the platform.

M. Tardieu was badly bruised in the scuffling and a sleeve was torn from his coat. This is the second experience of the kind he has had within a week since beginning his election campaign.

In the scuffle with his antagonists, M. Tardieu showed himself no mean fighter, coming back at the attacking hecklers with right and left swings and more than once succeeding in regaining the platform. He finally succumbed to superior numbers, but fought back along every inch of his retreat. The deputy was not deterred by the violence encountered at this meeting from announcing his intention to attend three political meetings this evening, one of which will be in the communist stronghold of Argenteuil.

SUPPLY TENDERS KNOTTY PROBLEM FOR WORKS BOARD

Engineering Dept. Matter Is Awaiting Further Consideration of Committeemen.

MAY BE RESTRICTED

Whether supply tenders for the city engineering department are to be restricted to city bidders only is one of several intricate questions confronting members of the board of works at their next regular session Wednesday.

Referred back from the city council, the tenders for the 1924 supply of iron castings await further consideration of Chairman John Greer and his associates.

Two alternatives were advanced in the city council when two proposals were defeated, the first to give the tender to the Wells Motor Company of the city and the other to give the work to the Canada Iron Foundries of St. Thomas.

The board of works may call for new tenders and may still decide to give the tender to the lowest local bidder, which in either case would mean that either of the former recommendations would have to be brought back to the council, the St. Thomas firm or the Wells Company.

Or the committee could rule that the latter tender was not legitimate in view of the established fact that it was received at the city hall about 24 hours later than the others, and presumably after they had been open. In any case a knotty problem awaits the board of works.

The original tenders were:

Canada Iron Foundries, St. Thomas	$3.14
General Supply Co., Ottawa	3.50
Wells Motor, London	3.50
Vulcan Company, London	3.70
George White's, London	3.80
Huron Casting Co., Clinton	4.50
Standard Foundry, Walkerville	4.72

The Canada Iron Foundries Company of St. Thomas received the work last year.

KELLY WAS TELLING LANDLORD SOMETHING

However, Court Decides He Should Pay $10 For Sunday Address.

Walter Kelly claimed he wasn't acting in a disorderly manner in Oxford Park Sunday afternoon; he was just talking in a loud voice.

High Constable Wharton, however, who was called to the scene of the disturbance, declared Mr. Kelly was not only talking in a loud voice, but was exercising his voice through the medium of curses.

"I wasn't doing any harm," pleaded Kelly.

"I've got your record here," informed the court. "You have been here ten times since January, 1923."

"I just told the landlord—" commenced Kelly.

"Yes, you just told the whole neighborhood interrupted the magistrate. "I'll let you off with a $10 fine. You are lucky you are not going to jail."

THREE "WHISKEYTEERS" DONATE USUAL TEN

State They Have Jobs and the Magistrate Imposes Fine.

Three drunks stood at attention in police court this morning and pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication. One man pleaded he had a job to go to if the magistrate would only impose a fine.

"That's what you said the last time," declared the court. "You are with the same man that you were with before."

Drunk Number Two opined that he was working right along, and would like a chance.

"Why don't you stop this thing?" asked the magistrate. "Why don't you stop squandering your money. You have a wife and family to support. There was a man here this morning, who said he had a job for you, I don't want to take your money from you, but you won't help yourself. Ten dollars and costs for each of you."

COL. C. M. GRAHAM ADDRESSES BIG UNIONIST PARLEY

One of Leaders of Presbyterian Forces in London Takes Part in Discussion.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, April 28.—Col. C. M. R. Graham, one of the leaders in the Presbyterian unionists forces of London, was among those who addressed a mass meeting of unionist l in the Pantages Theatre here yesterday. With other leading laymen of the province, Col. Graham spoke prior to the unanimous passing of a resolution censoring the private bills committee of the Ontario legislature for its action with regard to the passing of the church union bill. Others who spoke were: Elmer Davis of Eastern Ontario; St. James Wood, Thomas Bradshaw, J. H. Gundy, A. O. Hogg, Dr. A. H. Perfect, and Mayor Hiltz of Toronto.

Resolutions passed after much emphatic denunciation of the committee's action were as follows:

To Private Bills.

"To the private bills committee of the Ontario legislature:

"Whereas the private bills committee of the legislature of Ontario adopted a resolution in regard to the church union bill which destroyed its central principle and necessitated its withdrawal;

"Whereas this resolution infringed the constitutional understanding in Canada by which the state shall not undertake to establish any church whatsoever, nor make itself the source of any ecclesiastical powers, nor encroach upon the spiritual government of the church;

"This meeting of Canadian citzens, resident in the province of Ontario, while recognizing the authority of parliament in matters of civil rights, most respectfully protest against this unwarranted interference with the independent and exclusive jurisdiction of the churches in matters of doctrine, worship and discipline and government and believes that should this action go unchallenged a fatal blow would be struck at the principle of representative government, upon which free institutions are founded."

To Ottawa.

"To the Ottawa parliament:

"This mass meeting of Canadian citizens residing in the province of Ontario would most humbly petition the House of Commons to enact a bill for the incorporation of the United Church of Canada during the present session of the parliament of Canada on the following grounds:

"First, that every step taken in the consummation of said union by each of the negotiating churches has been in complete formity with its constitutional procedure.

"Second, that only in this way can faith be kept with 3,000 and more congregations that have already gone into various forms of union, most of them on the pledged word and under the guidance of the parent churches, who assured them that organic union would be consummated as soon as possible.

"Third, that only by passing the church union bill without essential change as to its central principle can parliament prevent the injection of the question of the rights of the church versus the rights of the state into the political life of Canada, a controversy which would inevitably provoke cleavage and disunion among the people. It is this contingency which we earnestly desire to avoid, for it is as contrary to the very spirit of church union as it is contrary to that spirit of goodwill towards the churches which all parliaments of Canada have invariably shown."

CONFIDENT AGREEMENT WILL SOON BE REACHED

Thomas Kelley Returns From Conference of Trainmen in United States.

Thomas Kelley, general secretary of the general committee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen in Canada, stated today that he was confident that the agreement between the railroads regarding the increase asked by all train and yardmen both on the C. P. R. and C. N. R. would be reached within a few days.

Thousands of men will be affected by this increase and the proceedings are being watched with much interest by men on the London division. Mr. Kelley returned from the United States on Saturday, where at a special meeting of all trainmen on the former G. T. R. lines, negotiations were signed granting the men the same increase as that asked by the Canadian employees. He is at present waiting word from Montreal where the demands asked by the Canadian employees will be discussed.

He expects that negotiations will be completed some time this week.

Girls In South Are Prettiest

This Is the Claim of Fire Chief Aitken.

Which city ward can boast of the prettiest girls?

This sounds like a difficult question to answer offhand, but not for Fire Chief John Aitken, who sets forth the bold claim that Ward One (South London), wins with comparative ease in this respect.

The chief's duties carry him into every section of the city, and he has unusual opportunities for judgment. His conclusion is that South London comes first.

Just in passing, the fact may be worth recording that the chief is also a resident of that section.

YPRES' PARADE IS WITNESSED BY THOUSANDS

Inspiring Address Delivered by Dean Tucker At St. Paul's Cathedral.

VETERANS PRESENT

One of the greatest parades that London has ever seen was witnessed yesterday afternoon by thousands of citizens who thronged the line of march, when seventeen military units marched from the armories to St. Paul's Cathedral to attend a service in commemoration of the second battle of Ypres in loving memory of comrades who paid the supreme sacrifice.

Although the time for the procession was set for 3:30 o'clock, the crowds began to gather at the armories shortly after 1 o'clock, and by 3 traffic policemen were striving to prevent congestion as the throngs gathered around on Dundas street in a solid phlanx from the city hall to the armories.

Every branch of military service was represented in the crowd that filled the streets, and added a brilliant touch of color to the bright spring day, as soldiers and civilians recalled the stirring days of war.

Old Soldiers Assemble.

Most impressive was the scene before the city hall, where the veterans assembled. Here were gathered men who had fought for the flag in many campaigns and countries, among them veterans of the Crimea, the Northwest rebellion and the South African war. With these old warriors mingled sailors and air force men of the last war and Boy Scouts with mothers who wore the decorations of sons who had not returned.

The oldest veteran was M. S. Forrester, who proudly wears two medals for service, one bearing the word "Sebastopol" and the other "Crimea, 1855." With him stood Walter Smith, who fought under Roberts in Afganistan in the campaigns of 1878-9 and 1880.

At 3:30 o'clock the procession, headed by Brig.-Gen. W. B. King, C.M.G., D.S.O., G.O.C., M.D. No. 1, and headquarters staff moved off, to the music of the G.W.V.A. band, followed by officials of the city, Mayor Wenige, and Aldermen Anderson, Hayden, Drake, Bottrell and Towe, Sir Adam Beck and Frank White, M.P. Col. Smith of the 7th Battalion and Fire Chief Aiken.

Next in line were the old campaigners of the Crimea, Afganistan, the Northwest Rebellion, the Fenian Raid and the South African War. Among those of the Northwest Rebellion of 1855 were Col. A. M. Smith, Col. Gartshore, C. H. Gould, James Smith and Robert Coughlin. The Fenian Raid veterans, headed by E. T. Essery, K.C., included W. Webb, R. W. Kidner, William Kidner, John Hislop, R. Garner, William Short and T. C. Doherty.

Great War Veterans.

Then came the veterans of the great war, some 3,000 strong, with Col. W. G. Coles, O.C., Harry Wray and other officials of the G. W. V. A. Here were represented men of all branches of the service who had fought throughout the great world war and again stepped out to the material airs of their own band. Some wore the old service uniform of Vimy and the "Cambrai show." Others marched in plain mufti, livened by a touch of color in a ribbon or decoration.

The order of march was:

The 1st Hussars and band commanded by Col. Taylor, followed by the headquarters 7th Brigade C.F.A. and the 12th Battery C.F.A. in command of Col. Kenneth Ingram; No. 1 signal company, commanded by Major Anderson and No. 1 cyclist Company; corps of guides with Major Ross; Royal Canadian Regiment, band and drums; the headquarters 1st Infantry brigade and the Western Ontario Regiment and band; 2nd Battalion Canadian Machine Gun Corps; No. 1 Company 1st Division Train Canadian Army Service Corps; No. 10 Stationary Hospital C.A.M.C.; No. 15 Field Ambulance and the Boy Scouts.

The route of the procession was north on Wellington to the southeast entrance to Victoria Park, around the park and south past the saluting base before the soldiers' monument, then to Dufferin avenue and Richmond street to the cathedral.

Crowds thronged the entire route and filled the park, half encircled by the marching men, who as they marched, could hear above the stirring music of the bands the sweet chimes of St. Paul's, blending with bells of neighboring churches.

Civilians and soldiers had gathered at the cathedral to pay homage to God in the name of those who had died that others might live.

Cathedral Service.

While crowds pressed forward the forces entered the cathedral and took their allotted places, after which the remaining pews were filled by as many of the eager crowd that could be accommodated, while many stoods in the rear aisles and doorways to be present at the service.

"One of the most outstanding features of the great war was the readiness and the celerity with which the Canadians flew to the standards of the King." These were the words of the Very Rev. Dean Tucker, who preached the sermon at the service in commemoration of the second battle of Ypres at the Cathedral.

Dean Tucker declared that it was a pleasure and an honor to recall the memory of the noble boys who so gloriously fought and so gloriously died, and that this, the ninth anniversary held in the church to the memory of the Battle of Ypres, was a commemoration of one incident in the great war, the first of many engagements in which Canada took part.

In tracing some of the great engagements of the war, Paschendale, Vimy Ridge, Amiens, Cambrai and others the minister pointed out that the cycle of events of the war demonstrated that it was the spirit, valor and courage of men, and not machine guns and high explosives that won the fight.

Spirit of the Men.

The speaker then drew attention to the spirit of the men of Canada who had heard the cry of the right and the cry of the helpless and had joined in ranks 500,000 strong, and those in Flanders with valor and courage in the tranches and in the midst of hailstones of shrapnell, never once failed.

The phenomenal deeds of Canadians, the minister pointed out, were deeds of men who had known no wars even in dreams, coming as they did from a land that had known peace for a hundred years, and who suddenly found themselves side by side with the veteran troops of Europe.

Coming from a democratic country these men brought a feeling of brotherhood and fraternity, and with it order and an obedience that was voluntary. Men whose officers ruled by influence rather than authority. Such splendid discipline with so little effort, the minister declared, resulted from the spirit of the men, spirit that will stand for all time to the honor and glory of Canada.

"From whence did this spirit spring?" questioned Dean Tucker. "How can we best catch it and pass it on to our children?" He claimed that the future generations are one of Canada's greatest problems, saying: "Canada can only become great through the Holy Spirit of God, whose words are ever good and Who sends His perfect gifts from above."

"The spirit of God works through means always," said the speaker, touching on the parts played by heredity and environment in giving to Canadians their courage and spirit. The minister pointed out that heredity played a much smaller part than circumstances and influences surrounding men's lives. Going back 50 years, Dean Tucker pictured the serious view of life taken by people at that time, emphasizing that the home was a serious institution where men were not afraid to raise large families and trained them to open the Bible and read the Word. Men were not afraid to give up pleasure and cease work on the Sabbath to bring the family to church where the minister stood one hand raised to God and the other to His people. In those days the church was the power house of the community from which radiated the highest ideals of the land, and the Bible was not left alone on a shelf, but was a lamp to their feet and a light t othe past.

Build Character.

The minister then described the public schools as great character building institutions, community centers that inspired the people to high ideals. "It was from those schools that great teachers and great men came, and in them was the spirit that dominated our men when they went forward to do and die for Canada. "The best monument we can erect to the boys is to imbue ourselves with their spirit and pass it on to our children and look on the church as the house of God and the gateway to heaven," concluded the speaker.

The service opened with the processional hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," R. Westby taking the solo part of the anthem. Pipers of the Cameron Highlanders, Western Ontario Regiment, played "Lord Lovat's Lament," as Dean Tucker received wreaths from The Great War Veterans' Association, The Western Ontario Regiemnt and the Overseas Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire.

The "Last Post" was then sounded, "The Drums" by the Royal Canadian Regiment, followed by "Reveille" and the benediction.

After the service the pipers stood before the cathedral and played the "Farewell of the 79th at Gibralter."

YOUTH OF SARNIA NOW CONFESSES TO C. OF C. THEFT

Roland C. Jamieson Clears Up Chamber of Commerce Theft.

SECOND MAN SOUGHT

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, April 27.—In less than a week the mysterious robbery of the chamber of commerce safe, when $1,942 in money paid in for automobile licenses was taken, has been solved. Saturday evening after long questioning by Chief of Police W. J. Lannin in his private office, Roland C. Jamieson, 20-year-old assistant at the chamber of commerce, confessed that he and a second man, who has now left the city, robbed the safe and made an even split of the money. Conducting police to the basement of his father's home on Chrisdna street, Jamieson produced his share of the spoils, $990, and his father has offered to make good the balance, if his son's accomplice is not arrested and the money recovered.

Jamieson is in the county jail and will be brought up for a preliminary hearing Monday morning.

Meanwhile police are working on a story concerning the second man who Jamieson endeavored to shield. He related a story of how the two lunched together Monday afternoon and planned robbery. The combination of the safe was left open in the afternoon and late at night two men disguised entered the building through the basement.

Jamieson waited on the stairway while unnamed accomplice burst open the door and took the money. He was supposed to wreck the safe mechanism, but didn't do so. On the stairway the two split the money and went their respective ways. The second man is believed to have gone to the United States. During the week Jamieson was constantly questioned by Chief Lannin and officials of the chamber of commerce, and told stories which did not altogether coincide. Suspicion was directed to him and Saturday night, after the police had proven a discrepancy in his story concerning clothes he wore and had hidden, he was taxed with complicity in the robbery and made a clear confession.

Unwilling to return to his home he denied any chances of bail and was taken to the county jail. Jamieson belongs to a highly-respected family in the city, annd the confession has created something of a sensation.

LITTLE GIRL HURT IN MOTOR SMASH

Patricia Smith of Glencoe in Victoria Hospital in Serious Condition.

Patricia Smith, the 4-year-old daughter of Mr. annd Mrs. E. Smith of Glencoe is lying in Victoria Hospital in a serious condition as the result of several bad cuts about the face which she suffered in a collision between the touring car driven by her father and that of Robert Bedggwood, 4 Eastmount avenue, on the Lambeth highway, about 4:15 yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Smith and his family were returning home after a visit with the former's mother, living at 326 Burwell street.

They had gone about four miles outside the city limits when Mr. Smith, in trying to pass the car ahead of him, swerved out on the other side of the road without noticing that the auto driven by Mr. Bedggood was approaching from the other direction.

The cars hit head-on and Patricia was hurled through the windshield, suffering a very severe cut on the right temple and several others about the face. It is feared as a result of this unfortunate accident that the child will be scarred for life. The other occupants of the cars were not hurt, but were given a bad jolt.

First "Straw" Blooms Sunday

Courageously strutting down Richmond street yesterday morning, the first straw hat of the season made its debut midst chuckles and laughter, and as the owner, a well-groomed man, passed along, he was the target of many hushed sayings.

Apparently the wearer of the well-known piece of headgear was as unconcerned as a fish in water, for he paid little attention to the groups that stood in awe as he ambled smartly along.

NOTED COMPANY TO STAGE 'KEMPY' AT GRAND TODAY

Season of Stock Will Open At Opera House in May.

PLAY ALL SUMMER

Garry McGarry and his noted company, who are to play "Kempy" at the Grand Theatre this evening, with a double performance tomorrow, arrived in London yesterday. Mr. McGarry has just completed a successful run at Buffalo and Niagara Falls in stock productions, and announced last night through his manager, Norman Wendell, that his company would play stock at the Grand during the summer season. It is expected their first play will be presented either on the 19th or 26th of May.

This announcement will be welcomed by the theatre-going public. Never before has a cast of such excellence been secured for stock productions here, and patrons will have an opportunity of seeing some of the biggest stage hits of the past decade in May, June and July.

Among these will be included "Little Old New York," "The Gold Diggers," "The Bat," "The Man Who Came Back" and many other classics that have enjoyed a phenomenal reception all over the continent.

An indication of the merit of the McGarry company will be seen in "Kempy" which the Grand offers for the first time in London this evening. Norman Wendell and Edith Harcourt, who take the star character roles in "Kempy" will return to London after the present engagement to be featured in the stock productions beginning in May, Mr. Wendell, who is one of the best known theatrical men in the country, will direct all plays during the stock season.

Character Play.

"Kempy" is a character play. Its success in New York and other large centers is ample testimony to its quality. Brimming with humor and homely incident, it is regarded as the foremost "domestic" play on the road.

Norman Wendell, who will be recalled by many as an associate of Tom Shea, the great tragedian, takes the part of "Pa Bence," while Miss Harcourt is seen to perfection as "Ma Bence." Both actors will be featured every week when the stock productions commence.

Mr. Wendell stated that when the full company of fourteen come to London for the summer months arrangements will be made to produce everything connected with the performance right in the city. Very little stage material will be imported.

In Niagara Falls the Garry McGarry players scored immediately in their stock presentations, and a repetition of that triumph is anticipated in London. "Kempy," the play billed for the Grand this evening, tomorrow afternoon and evening, promises much in the way of entertainment, and will provide citizens with a sample of the first-class stock productions they may expect during the summer months.

Those taking part in "Kempy" are Roger Pryor, Edith Harcourt, Evelyn Watson, Roberta Clark, Jessica Paige, Stanley Andrews, Hamilton Christy, and Norman Wendell.

CHILDREN SHOULD BE MADE TO EARN THEIR ALLOWANCE

"Don't Throw Money at Your Children," Warns Julia Hoyt. "At Least Make It Appear to Them That They Are Earning What They Get."

TEACH CHILD THAT MONEY REPRESENTS WORK

By JULIA HOYT.

Among a number of letters which I have received lately from readers was the following from a western mother:

"I wish you would give me your ideas on the allowance problem. How much should a fairly well-to-do family give a young girl for spending money, and should a boy of nine have an allowance? My children are of various ages—from seven to seventeen. We live comfortably, and I want them to have every advantage. Particularly, do you think that three dollars a week is too much for a girl in high school?"

My answer to that letter is very easily given: any "allowance" is too much if it is merely given as an allowance from the parents. I think the children of today, more than any growing generation in our history, need to learn the value of money—and giving it to them will never teach that. In some way, children and especially young boys and girls of high school age, should earn their "allowance."

May Seem Commercial.

This may seem hard and commercial-minded to some parents, but I think that a little analysis will show the wisdom of it. We live, as everyone is always telling us, in a materialistic age. There never was so much money before; and it is circulating rather rapidly and widely, jokes to the contrary notwithstanding. The vast majority of the people today are enjoying luxuries which only a few could enjoy fifty years ago. The emphasis of life is heavily upon things, and things of luxury. Only a while ago statistics were announced which revealed that in the state of New Jersey there is one automobile to every eight or ten persons—persons, not families.

Little wonder, then, that many mothers are worried by the allowance problem; young people today see more luxury around them than their parents did when young, and their tastes naturally grow more extravagant. It is hard for a young girl not to yearn for expensive teaparties, silk underwear, matinees, continual movie excursions, and a dozen other things, when she sees companions with fat allowances from mother and father spending as their fancy chooses.

Teach the Child.

I think a child should be taught early that money represents work—or at least, that it does with almost everybody. A boy of nine should have an allowance—yes; but don't call it by any such patronizing name. Call his quarter or fifty cents a week "earnings." Give him some regular duties, even if it be only mailing your letters every few days, or going to the store for you. Let him understand that his money is pay for services rendered, and you will be doing him a lot of good.

Gradually, as a child grows older, the responsibilities can be increased and further defined. And the pay should be increased. I think three dollars a week not too much for the average 16-year-old girl in high school, provided she perform some duties at home and realizes that failure to perform will mean loss of money to her. I would also expect of this girl that she buy some of her own little knick-knacks out of this money, especially any gifts she desires to give. Holiday and birthday gifts should always entail a realization of some personal sacrifice on the part of the giver.

I believe this course is best for the child; that is why I say: "Don't throw money at your children. Make them earn it, or at least make it appear to them that they are earning what you give them."

HUNGARY SETS GOOD EXAMPLE.

Hungary lost over 85 per cent of its forest land area by the Treaty of Versailles. The seriousness of the situation has been appreciated by the Hungarian government, however, and its minister o fagriculture has revived interest in a comprehensive reforestation program, the initial work of which was commenced in 1914. This plan provides for the reforestation of the Hungarian plain.

The reforestation program provides for private reforestation, with state assistance, of lands unsuitable for agricultural cultivation—particularly quicksands, inundated areas, etc. There appears to be compulsory regulation covering forest plantations in connection with farm lands.

TRIO OF FAIRY PLAYS PRESENTED SATURDAY

Members of Players' Workshop Give Charming Program at Ryerson.

A picturesque affair of Saturday afternoon was the fairy recital given at Ryerson School by the members of the Players' Workshop under the direction of Miss Topley Thomas. The stage was a veritable fairyland hung with many blossoms and butterflies. And the characters were chiefly taken by little folk, who made their first appearance.

"Seven Little Poems Lost," written by Margaret Clarke Russell was the first of the trio presented, and in this group the youngest of the players appeared. The story was a delightful fairy tale and the young people taking part were: Barbara Peters, Marian Anderson, Barbara Gibberd, Elsie Gordon, Margaret Wilson, Peter Cronyn, Alexander Grange, Iona Kirkwood, Amy Walden and Marjorie Davenport.

A number of the older players of the workshop took part in the Dream Lady by Netta Syrette. The main character in this charming number was taken by Miss Topley Thomas herself, as the king. The other members of the cast were: Iona Kirkwood, Ruth Tanner, Barbara Peters, Margaret Griffith, Barbara Gibberd, Jean Robinson and Master Peter Cronyn.

A wistful bit of fairy love, written by Norah Holland was the last of the group. "Princess Irene," which told a happy fairly story introducing goblins and gnomes, was most enjoyable. Those taking part in this little play were: Marjorie Davenport, Margaret Wilson, Jack Holmes, Robert Morrow, Maurice Kingston, George Thirsk, Granville Sinclair, Bernard Cottle, Franklin Welsh, Kathleen England, Barbara Gibberd, Dorothy Peters, Betty Holmes, Dorothy Ellis, Elsie Gordon, Ann Walden, Barbara Peters, Peter Cronyn, Alexander Grange, Sammy Grange, Margaret Griffits, Billy Bennet, Bobby Graves and Billy Rhodes. Incidental music was furnished under the direction of Miss Mary Adams.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Truth.

"I rather think I've something to say about that!" began Leonard Swift.

"Wait, wait," Wise interrupted. "The question that concerns us now is the death of Mr. Howland, and of poor Conrad. Now, I should like to put forth a bit of evidence which may lead to—confession."

From his pocket the detective took a small parcel and unwrapped it to show a glove—a man's kid glove.

"I knew from the bits of glass," Wise began quietly, "that the murderer had crushed the thin, tiny tube under the nose of his victim. I tried to learn if anyone had shown a cut finger or thumb later, but could trace nothing of the sort. Yet the breaking glass must have pierced the skin.

"And then it occurred to me that of course such a clever villain would wear gloves. So I had the maid get me the gloves of certain members of the household, and on this one," he held it up, "you may see tiny scratches on the thumb and forefinger."

Edith Mills' eyes were wide with horror.

"That's Leonard Swift's glove," she cried, as if forced to speak by some power outside herself. "He killed Mr. Howland—I see it all now! I heard him come downstairs that night after everyone else was in bed, and I heard him come up again."

"And you came down yourself later," Wise said, "and you saw Mr. Howland dead."

"Yes, I did. I came for that red book—and when I saw Mr. Howland I also saw Conrad, and I ran back upstairs as fast as I could. I thought Conrad killed him."

"No, but Conrad saw the deed, and that's why Conrad, too, had to be put out of the way."

"Going to confess, Swift?" asked Magee, quietly.

"Confess yourself!" Swift turned on him a look of fury. "Helmstadter says you bought the bulbs of him——"

"And you paid Helmstadter to tell that lie," Wise stated. "The game is up, Mr. Swift. Have you anything to say—the police are outside waiting."

"Yes, I have this to say: I did kill Ralph Howland, becaus this place meant more to me than it ever could to him." His eyes were wild now, they gleamed with a maniacal light ,and he glared from one to another as he spoke. "I was clever, diabolically clever, and I could have pulled it off if Wise hadn't come here. Here's where you get your comeuppance—all of you!"

And raising his hand above his head he snapped in their faces one of his deadly little tubes of poison gas.

Anticipating this, Wise grabbed Zizi and pulled her to the nearest window, which he flung open. Magee, as quickly, pulled Edith Mills to the open air, and as Nurse Lane and Ida were near the door to the next room, the quick-witted woman clapped her handkerchief to the girl's nose, held her own breath, and in an instant they were through the door and Lane slammed it shut.

So the instrument of death killed only the murderer himself, and, though he thus cheated the gallows, no one was regretful for that.

Magee and Angela together left the house and walked toward the orchard. "Forget all the dark spots and remember only our joy," he said softly.

"I am Angela," she said, turning to face him and smiling through her tears, "mother's Angela."

"You are, my blessing, and you are somebody else's Angela. Whose?"

"You made me Angela," she answered, smiling into his eyes, "so I must be yours!"

Big Buster Bear Orders Little Jimmy Skunk Away From Sugar House

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Isn't it queer how often people who are very big or very strong appear to think that they can do just as they please? They do. Yes, sir, they do. They take what they want because they know they can and no one can stop them. Of course it is one form of selfishness.

Now, Buster Bear is very big. Also he is very strong. He has great claws. He can do just about as he pleases, and usually he does. Flathorns the Moose is about the only one in the Green Forest whom Buster Bear would fear to fight. So Buster has the habit of doing just about as he pleases among the other people of the Green Forest.

There are just two of the smaller people for whom Buster has respect, and who in turn are not afraid of Buster. One is Jimmy Skunk. This is the reason that Buster was so uncertain as he sat in the moonlight in the clearing where Farmer Brown's sugar house was. Jimmy Skunk was there too, and Jimmy was right in front of the door of the sugar house. Buster was sure that he could break into that sugar house if he really tried. Indeed it was for this purpose that he had come over there. He knew that neither Farmer Brown's Boy nor Farmer Brown were there. His tongue fairly dripped with longing for some of the sweets he knew had been made inside that sugar house. So Buster was much upset when he discovered Jimmy Skunk.

Now, Jimmy Skunk was so small compared with Buster Bear that Buster could have flattened him right out with one blow of a big paw. He knew it. Yet Buster didn't dare go near enough to try it. He walked back and forth at a respectful distance, or sat up and stared long and hard at the sugar house. All the time he grew angrier and angrier. He knew, he just knew he could get into that sugar house if he tried. There wasn't a thing to prevent him excepting the presence of that little fellow in black and white just in front of the door.

He ordered Jimmy Skunk to clear out.

Buster growled and grumbled and muttered to hmiself. He walked around behind the sugar house. There was no way of getting in from that side. He returned once more to the front, hoping that Jimmy Skunk might have disappeared. But Jimmy was still there.

Buster growled his very deepest, most ugly sounding growl. He drew back his lips and showed his big, strong teeth. He ordered Jimmy Skunk to clear out. He told him that he certainly would be killed if he didn't. At first Jimmy made no reply at all. It tickled him to see great, big Buster Bear working himself into such a rage, yet taking care not to come a step nearer.

But after a while Jimmy Skunk became annoyed. He was tired of having this big, blustering fellow about. Then in his turn he became angry. He stamped with his front feet, a way he has of doing when he is angry. Then he took a few steps toward Buster Bear, and his big, plumey tail was raised. That tail is Jimmy's danger signal. Buster Bear had his eyes on it. He backed away somewhat hastily, all the time growling and making dreadful threats. Jimmy didn't hurry, but he kept straight on. Buster tried to get courage enough to stand his ground, but the thought of that little scent gun of Jimmy's was too much for him. He backed away as fast as Jimmy approached. At last he turned and shuffled off into the Green Forest. Jimmy Skunk chuckled and returned to the sugar house.

There's Nothing to Equal Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup For Coughs and Colds.

Mrs. David Thompson, West River street, Paris, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

"For myself and children I use nothing else.

"My little girl, 5 years old, has had bronchial trouble ever since she had the "flu" a few years ago, and now whenever she gets a slight cold she develops a very nasty cough, but all I have to do is give her a few doses of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

"Also for myself and the other children I can find nothing to equal it. In fact, it was only a short time ago that I gave it to my 10-months-old baby, and could immediately see the difference it made in her. Now, I always keep Norway Pine Syrup in the house, as I feel there is nothing to equal it."

What Every Woman Wants to Know — Dorothy Dix — Is Going To Talk About Charm

The Riddle the Sphinx Has Brooded Over For Centuries Without Solving — Stress Your Femininity If You Have N harm.

Over and over again girls ask me these questions:
What is charm?
What is the secret of the attraction that some women have for men?

What is the "come-hither" look in the eye that some women have that makes every man who beholds it get up and follow them?

Why do some girls always have hosts of beaux flocking about them, while other girls just as good-looking, just as clever, just as good dancers, just as anxious to please, never have a date or a single sweetheart to bless themselves with?

And to all of these questions I have to answer, sadly and disconsolately, that I do not know. I have to give up the conundrum, which is perhaps the riddle that the Sphinx, who is also a woman, has brooded over through the centuries in her desert solitude, without ever being able to solve it.

In Barrie's delightful play, "What Every Woman Knows," Maggie's brothers, discussing her with the brutal frankness with which brothers approach the subject of a sister agreed that she wasn't young, nor brilliant, and that she was homely, yet all the men were after her. Finally one of the brothers said: "But she's got that damned charm." And that was that.

When a woman has that damned charm she can snap her fingers in the face of flappers and living pictures, and marry as early and as often as she pleases, as is witnessed by the many fat, pie-faced women we all know who have had two, and three, or more, husbands apiece, and who still have a waiting list in case anything untoward and fatal should happen to the gentleman to whom they are at present united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

But what is this charm; what is this rabbit's foot that some lucky women carry, and others do not? To say that it is personality is to attempt to explain one mystery by another mystery, for we do not know in what personal magnetism consists, or by what power one individual draws us, while another repulses us.

We know that it isn't beauty, because the best lookers among girls are seldom the most popular, and men who profess to worship beauty are generally content to adore it from a safe distance, and show no disposition to marry it. It is notorious that beauties seldom make good matches. Nor does charm consist of intelligence. Being a highbrow booms no woman's stock, socially or matrimonially, while a witty woman cuts her throat with her own tongue.

To be a spellbinder is for a girl's fairy godmother to have wished a curse instead of a blessing upon her, for no woman is more anathema to men than the human phonograph. Even dancing, chief of accomplishments in these jazzy days when it is of more profit for a woman to have her brains in her heels than in her head, is but a passing attraction, while amiability and a sweet nature, woman's traditional one best bet, are like a sticking plaster, potent to hold a man after marriage, but of small value in luring him into it.

Undoubtedly, charm in its perfection is a gift of the gods, but happily, in these days, when nature proves a cruel stepmother who is so mean and stingy that she does not give us all that is coming to us, we have learned to circumvent the lady.

No woman need be as ugly as God made her, nor as unattractive as she was born. Drug-store complexions can put the inherited ones to the blush, and any girl who is willing to take the trouble can acquire a line of lures and graces that will make any bona fide siren tremble for her job.

To the girl, then, who wishes to acquire charm, and who especially wishes to attract men, I would say, first, stress your femininity.

I don't mean be namby-pamby and weepy and dishraggy, without any backbone. That type of woman has gone out of fashion as completely as bustles and hoopskirts. No man now would be bored with the sort of perfect lady his grandmother was.

But the eternal feminine remains still the eternal attraction for men, and the more womanly a woman is, the gentler, the tenderer, the sweeter the more she appeals to men. If you will notice when a man speaks of the woman he loves, he invariably calls her "little," no matter if she is six feet high and weighs 200 pounds. What he means is that she gives him the reaction of depending upon him, of looking up to him, and that in some subtle way she flatters his vanity by giving him the sense of masculine superiority.

You never see an aggressive, double-fisted woman who fights her way like a man, get anywhere. And in his soul every man adores frills and furbelows, and likes to see women dolled up. That is why girls make such a terrible mistake when they ape mannish ways, and wear mannish clothes. When a girl puts on knickerbockers she throws her trump card into the discard.

To the girl who wishes to acquire charm I would also whisper this secret: Make of yourself a mirror in which other people look upon themselves. Especially let me see a flattering reflection of themselves in your eyes. Can your own personal vanity. Listen with bated breath while other people tell you of their exploits, but never mention your own.

Enthuse over their cars, their dogs. Marvel at their adventures. Sympathize with their disappointments. Give the glad hand to their successes, and you will be universally regarded as a woman of perfect taste, wonderful insight, profound judgment, a brilliant.... talker and a companion of whom one could never weary.

It is the tireless listeners, and not the endless talkers, whom men take out to dinner.

Furthermore—but that is another story we will discuss tomorrow.

GROUPS WILL PAY HONOR TO MOTHERS

Attractive Program Arranged For Mothers and Daughters Week.

The annual girls' rally service being held at Talbot Street Baptist Church Sunday afternoon, May 4th, will open the week of tribute paid to the mothers of London. The week of May 4th to 11th, is dedicated to the mothers, and to the London girls' cabinet is due the honor of arranging this week, which will be concluded on Mothers' Day, when special services will be held in the majority of the city churches.

Each group will entertain the mothers during the week at some special entertainment, but in addition to this it has been suggested that the girls carry out the tribute to the mothers in the homes by helping them in some special way, and making it a holiday week for mother.

In several of the churches the entertainments will include the presentation of the pageants prepared by the group for the London Girls' Work Board competition, on Friday and Saturday of this week. Pennants are being given for the best pageant and the best essay in the senior and intermediate classes in each of the three districts, into which the city has been divided.

Judges for the central and north district are: Mrs. W. J. Knox, Mrs. Herbert Childs and Miss M. Morton; for the south, Mrs. J. M. McEvoy, Mrs. H. A. Sabine and Miss Beatrice Brown. The judges for the eastern section have not been chosen as yet. The Knox Church girls will present their pageant, Wednesday evening of this week; St. James Anglican, Askin Street and Talbot Street Baptist, Tuesday evening; King Street Presbyterian Thursday, and St. Andrew's Pathfinders, Wednesday afternoon.

Oliver October

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark" and Other Novels.

INSTALLMENT 1.

CHAPTER I.

Oliver, Born in October.

Oliver October Baxter, Jun., was born in the town of Rumley on a vile October day in 1890. Rumley people were divided in their excitement over this event, and the arrival of a band of gypsies, camped on the edge of the swamp below the Baxter house.

Oliver's parents were prominent in the commercial, social and spiritual life of the town. His father was the proprietor of the hardware store, a prominent member of the Presbyterian Church, and a leader in the local lodge of Oddfellows. His mother, Mary Baxter, a comely, capable young woman, was beloved by all. No finer "young-un" than Oliver October had ever been born, according to Mrs. Serepta Grimes, and Serepta was an authority on babies. It was she who took command of Oliver, his mother and his father, the house itself, and all that therein was.

As the story of Oliver October really begins at 7 o'clock in the evening of his birthday, we will open the narrative with Mr. Joseph Sikes, Mr. Baxter's old and trusted friend, hovering in solitary gloom over the base-burner in the sitting-room of Baxter's house. He was interrupted in his gloomy meditations by the slamming of the kitchen door. His brow grew dark. This was no time to be slamming doors.

Rushing to open the door, he was confronted by a pair of total strangers—a tall man with short black whiskers and a frail little woman with red, wind-smitten cheeks.

"I am Oliver Baxter's sister," announced the woman, "and this is my husband, Mr. Gooch. We drove all the way over here from Hopkinsville to take charge of things for my brother."

"Well, I guess if you are his sister you'd better come into the sitting-room and take your things off," said Mr. Sikes, leading the way.

Mrs. Gooch, having divested herself of coat, scarf, bonnet and overshoes, straightened her hair before the looking-glass, while her husband surveyed the room and its contents with the disdainful air of one used to much better things.

Gooch typified prosperity of the meaner kind. Over in Hopkinsville he was considered the richest and the stingiest man in town. He was what is commonly called a "tax shark," deriving a lucrative and obnoxious income through his practice of buying up real estate at tax sales and holding it until it was redeemed by the hard-pressed owner, or, as it happened in many instances, acquiring the property under a provision of the state law then in operation, whereby after a prescribed lapse of time he was enabled to secure a tax deed in his own name. No one, not even his fellow church members, had ever been known to get the better of him.

"I shall take charge here," Mrs. Gooch announced to Mr. Sikes. "Is this the way upstairs?"

Mr. Sikes nodded. "But if I was you," he said, "I'd ask Serepty Grimes before I took charge here."

"I will soon get rid of Mrs. Grimes," said she, tossing her head.

As she started to leave the room, a loud knocking at the front door rose above the howl of the wind. Sikes, resuming his office as master of ceremonies, pushed his way past Mrs. Gooch and opened the door to admit a woman and two men. The first to enter the sitting-room was a tall man wearing a thin black overcoat and a high silk hat. This was the Rev. Herbert Sage, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Rumley. The lady was his wife.

The other member of the trio, a fat, red-faced, jolly looking man of indeterminate age, was Silas Link, the undertaker, upholsterer and liveryman of Rumley.

The "Reverend" Sage was a good-looking young man of 30, threadbare and a trifle wan, with kindly brown eyes set deep under a broad, intelligent brow. His wife was, surprisingly enough, a handsome, dashing young woman. She was tall, willowy and startling. She wore a sealskin coat—at least it looked like seal—with sleeves that ballooned grandly at the shoulders; rather stunning coral ear-rings made up of graduated globes and a slinky satin skirt of black.

"Good evening, Mr. Sikes," she drawled, as she scuffled past him into the sitting-room. "Nice balmy weather to be born in, isn't it?"

Mr. Sikes, taken unawares, forgot himself so far as to wink at the parson, and then, in some confusion, stammered: "St-step right in, Mrs. Sage, and have a chair. Let me make you acquainted with Oliver's sister, from Hopkinsville. Reverend Sage, Mrs. Gooch. Mr. Link, Mrs. Gooch. And this is Oliver's brother-in-law, her husband, also of Hopkinsville."

Everybody bowed.

"How is your dear brother, Mrs. Gooch?" inquired Mr. Sage.

"I didn't know there was anything the matter with Oliver."

"There isn't anything the matter with him," said Mrs. Sage, "that a good, stiff drink of whiskey won't cure."

"Ahem!" coughed her husband. He had the worried manner of one who never knows what is coming next.

His wife looked up into his face and smiled—a lovely, good-humored smile, that was slowly transformed into a mischievous grimace.

"I'm always making breaks, am I not, Herby dear? It's a terrible strain, Mr. Gooch, being a parson's wife."

"Umph!" grunted Mr. Gooch.

CHAPTER II

Visitors in the Night.

At this juncture the sitting-room door was opened and the proud father, followed by Serepta Grimes, entered the room. Beaming, he surveyed the assembled gathering.

"He's got the finest head you ever saw," he announced. "Got a head like a statesman."

The Rev. Sage had moved over to one of the windows while the other occupants of the room surrounded Baxter, and was gazing out between the curtains across the gale-swept porch into the blackness beyond. He shivered a little, poor chap, at the thought of going out again into the bitter, unbelievable night—at the thought of his cold little home at the farther end of the village.

He was thinking, too, of his wife and the mile walk she would have to take with him into the very teeth of the buffeting gale when this visit was over. She had come to this wretched little town from a great city, where houses and flats were warm and snug. He thought of the warm little room on the third floor of the boarding house where he had lived and studied for two full years. It was in this house that he had met Josephine Judge. She was the daughter of the kindly widow who conducted the boarding house—a tall, slim girl who used slang and was gay and blithesome, and had ambitions! Ambitions? She wanted to become an actress. She was stage-struck.

He was not a theatre-going youth. He had been brought up with an abhorrence for the stage and all its iniquities. So he devoted himself, heart and soul, to the saving of the misguided maiden, with astonishing results. They fell in love with each other and were married.

He pressed his face against the cold pane, striving to rid his mind of the doubts and worries that beset it.

Suddenly he drew back with an exclamation. The light fell full upon a face close to the window pane, a face so startling and so vivid that it did not appear to be real. A pair of dark, gleaming eyes met his for a few seconds; then swiftly the face was withdrawn. He leaned forward and peered intently. Two indistinct figures took shape in the unrelieved darkness at the corner of the porch—two women, he made out.

"Joseph," he called, "there are two strange women on the porch. Perhaps you—"

"Go see who it is, Joe," commanded Mrs. Grimes crisply.

Sikes hastened to obey, and returned presently in great excitement.

"Say, Ollie," he burst out, "there's a couple of women out here from that gypsy camp. They claim to be fortune-tellers. One of 'em wants to tell the baby's fortune. She says she knowed a couple of weeks ago that he was going to be born today, that's what she says."

"Well, I'm not going to allow any gypsy woman to go nigh that infant," cried Mrs. Grimes.

"She says it ain't necessary to even see the baby. She says the only reliable and genuine way to tell a baby's fortune is by reading its father's hand."

Mr. Baxter arose. "Bring her in, Joe. Now, don't kick, Serepta. My mind's made up. I'm going to know my son's future."

CHAPTER III.

What the Gypsy Told.

Mr. Sikes rushed from the room. A moment later he returned, followed by two shivering women who stopped just inside the door.

The host, with a nervous sort of geniality, beckoned to the strangers. "Better come down to the fire, Queen," he said.

The elder woman fixed a curious look upon Mr. Baxter.

"I am the queen of the gypsies, Mister, but how came you to know it?" she asked in a hoarse, not unmusical voice.

"Always best to be on the safe side," said Baxter. But look here. Do you mean to say, Queen, that you can look at my hand and tell what's ahead of my boy upstairs?"

"First, you must cross my palm with silver."

The company drew their chairs closer as Baxter dropped some coins into the gypsy's palm. Silence pervaded the room. Every eye was on the dark, impassive face of the fortune-teller as she seized Ollie's hand and began:

"I see a wonderful child. He is strong and sturdy. I can see this son of yours, Mister, as a leader of men. Great honor is in store for him, and great wealth. I see men in uniform following your son—many men, Mister, and all of them armed. I see him as a successful man, as the head of great undertakings. He has been out of college but a few years."

"That will please his mother," said Baxter, sniffling.

"Sh!" put in Mr. Sikes testily.

"I see him," continued the fortune-teller, "as he is nearing 30. Rich, respected and admired. He will have many affairs of the heart. I see two dark women and—one, two—yes, three fair women."

"That would seem to show that he's going to be a purty good-looking sort of a feller, wouldn't it?" said Baxter, proudly.

"He will grow up to be the image of his father, Mister."

The gypsy leaned back in her chair, spreading her hands in a gesture of finality.

"I see no more," she said.

"Is that all?" Mr. Baxter sniffed.

"Well, Queen, I guess you took us all in purty neatly."

Outraged royalty turned on him.

"You scoff at me. For that you shall have the truth. All that I have told you will come true. But I did not tell you of the end that I saw for him. Hark ye! This son of yours will go to the gallows. He will swing from the end of a rope, for a crime of which he is not guilty." She was now speaking in a high shrill voice; her hearers sat open-mouthed, as if under a spell that could not be shaken off. It is all as plain as the noonday sun. He will never reach the age of 30. That is all. That is the end. I have spoken the truth. You forced me to do so. I go."

London Advertiser

The London Advertiser was established in 1863, and is published four times daily by London Advertiser Company, Limited. The subscription rates are: London, 15 cents weekly. By mail: In Canada, $5.00 yearly; in the United States, $6.00 yearly.

The Advertiser is represented in Toronto at 95 King street east and in Montreal at 1013-1014 Transportation Building, by J. B. Rathbone; in New York at Park Lexington Building; in Chicago at Wrigley Building; and in Boston at Old South Building, by C. H. Eddy Company.

MONDAY, APRIL 28, 1924.

That Forest Free Press Machine.

The Forest Free Press in its last issue sought to put The Advertiser in its proper place for daring to suggest that Forest people could probably attend to their waterworks just as well—or even quite a lot better—without the action of the provincial authorities in clamping on a fine of $100 a day.

The Free Press charges there has been a campaign in Forest of "falsehood and libellous misrepresentation" to defeat waterworks. Rather a rough charge for a paper to make against its own people. The Forest paper adds that it is "expecting too much to expect The Advertiser to say a good word for the present government."

Now the typesetting machine used in The Forest Free Press, like its brothers elsewhere, is an intelligent piece of mechanism. So when it came to this last statement the thing balked, and stuttered like this:

"Or, perhaps it is expecting too much to expect The Advertiser to say a good on by a few citizens actuated by personal enmity."

That machine knew the editor was wrong when he wrote deliberately that this paper had not a good word to say for the government. It is a human-like thing, is the linotype. It hums and clicks, sorts out the letters, and puts them back where they belong, while all the time grinding out the lines that go to make the printed page.

So that machine in Forest, it shuddered; it did its best to try and show that it was all out of sympathy with what its owner was trying to make it do. It knew The Advertiser would give credit to any government where credit was due, and that its own paper was getting out in the tall grass when it charged Forest people with carrying on a campaign of "falsehood and libellous misrepresentation."

So its mute protest stands in the jumbled sentence quoted above. An intelligent machine, we should say, worthy of a place in the sanctum.

Libelling the Legitimate Druggist.

A reporter from the Toronto Star made the rounds of a number of bootleg drug stores in Toronto. He had no trouble in securing as many drinks as he wanted. He even brought back a bottle of alcohol mixed with water which tested 87.93 per cent proof spirits at the government laboratories.

One thing is very certain, viz., that the respectable drug business will welcome, along with the rest of the law-abiding citizens, any move to put these bootleggers where they belong. They are using the calling of a legitimate druggist for a purpose that the trade would not countenance at all.

One of the difficulties is that evidence is hard to secure. Proof of sale must be obtained in such a way that it will stand in a court of law. The person getting evidence must be searched before going into the suspected place; marked money must be used, and the liquor brought out must immediately be taken from the investigator. The element of chance and doubt seems to be on the side of the party carrying on the trade.

In many cases the bootleg business gets along and makes money because those engaged in it know what the law demands in the way of evidence to convict. Full advantage is taken of this condition.

Two Views In Hamilton.

Senator George Lynch-Staunton, K.C., speaking to Conservatives in Hamilton, made a bitter attack on the King government. When the word "bitter" is used in connection with a Lynch-Staunton political speech there are no reservations. The word stands.

The present Canadian tariff "was striking Canada's banner province into the dust. But it was a case of 'us for us and the devil take the hindermost.'"

Senator Staunton said "Hamilton's lifeblood is taken from it by free trade and given to it by protection."

All this is reported in the Hamilton news of a Toronto paper. In the some column is a statement from Industrial Commissioner C. W. Kirkpatrick of Hamilton, who stated that "present prospects for new factories locating in Hamilton were never so bright for several years."

Nor is the industrial commissioner speaking in a general way, for he mentions the names of several of these firms and also of an existing plant that is putting on an addition to take care of increasing trade.

Hamilton's doleful Senator apparently lives his life apart from the activities of the industrial commissioner. He enters the meeting of Conservatives, to whom he tells the things they want to hear.

The industrial commissioner, out on the firing lines where things are happening, spoils the Senator's speech. He speaks in terms of new factories and new business. It certainly takes the bang from the Senator's thunder.

There Should Be No Difference.

Premier Ferguson states that there is a shortage of at least $9,000 in the provincial secretary's department. Auditors have gone over the records, and such is the report they have made.

When there was loose work discovered in the provincitl treasurer's department, the public accounts committee was empowered to go ahead, call in witnesses, examine and cross-examine them, and make arrests where necessary.

If that procedure were thought necessary for the finance department probe, why was it not applied to the provincial sceretary's department?

Why was not the same publicity, full and unhindered, given to the case where an announcement is now made of a $9,000 shortage?

The difference in method and treatment is so marked and so open to suspicion of motives that the wonder is the premier would dare follow such a course.

The public accounts committee is the place where this whole business should have been cleaned up. The public will be satisfied with nothing less.

The Seat Belongs To Him.

E. B. Ryckman, Conservative member for East Toronto, has joined the ranks of those who wish to resign if he can't prove there has been no reduction in debt and no national surplus.

Likewise he would resign all over again were Hon. W. S. Fielding to say that he indorsed the budget placed before Commons by Hon. Mr. Robb.

How does Mr. Ryckman suppose the statement in regard to finances was arrived at? By a couple of men figuring on the back of an envelope?

What better proof does he want than that the government estimate that they will take millions less from the people in the way of taxation?

Mr. Ryckman had better keep his seat. The people of his riding elected him for that purpose.

Nothing To Be Alarmed About

A despatch from Chicago says that a large number of mushroom wealthy have been wiped out because Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company stock broke from a high of $114 to $48.50. It figures out that the loss on the 600,000 shares was $40,500,000.

That looks alarming, but things do not work out on that basis. Much of this stock was bought in the first place at $50, the par value. It went up, and it came down, and to those who kept on holding the stock there has been no actual loss. Their loss has been that they did not sell out at the highest point and buy in again at the lowest.

Stocks are sensitive; they have more nerves than they should. This last tumble in Yellow Cab is blamed by a writer from Chicago to a Wall street raid. Investigation might show that it resulted from something altogether different. Raids and manipulations are not easy to accomplish. In recent years there have been three or four outstanding attempts, but the lease of life has been short and disastrous.

The reason is not hard to see. When a man or a combination of men start to buy a given stock, a demand is created that causes the price to rise, in most cases heading them off. If, on the other hand, they seek to unload it causes a falling market. The number of men who can work successfully between these forces is comparatively small.

There have been stocks receding as far as the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company without any charge of manipulation. Sugar stocks are low in the market, after being well up for a long time. They are down close to the 40 mark. There may have been a dozen things affecting Yellow Cab to make it drop. The idea of a raid on the market being responsible for the drop is too picturesque to be true. A man can't grab a club and batter prices down like he would a bramble bush. If such a thing were possible there wouldn't be a price left inside of a week.

Dealing With Children.

A boy from England, said to be 16, but more like a boy of 12, was put on a farm near Dorchester. He wouldn't stay, probably was homesick, and that's a bad enough disease for any boy of that age.

So he was brought back to the immigration office in London. He had decided not to eat—he'd rather starve and be done with it.

So he made the rounds, and finally Inspector Kelly of the Children's Aid Society got him. He was still on his young hunger strike.

Leaving the police court, where he had a glimpse of law, Inspector Kelly started a new method of breaking the hunger strike. He put his hand in his pocket and pulled out—not a warrant or any official papers—but some candy.

As they drove off in the inspector's car the hunger strike was broken.

If W. E. Kelly of the Children's Aid Society can't get the boy to take his nourishment and behave, he might as well be sent back to England. Mr. Kelly is an expert at his work, and few would care to tackle a case he pronounces hopeless.

Note and Comment

Some people get left alone because they make it so hot for any who dare to bother them.

Folks in Peterborough are all puffed up with pride because the king went and opened the British Empire Exhibition on the very day Peterborough started its motor show.

Arbitration costs in Toronto's street railway case are formidable figures compared to the London situation. It cost Toronto more to find out the purchase price than London would pay for the local system.

Two boys were taken out of a local picture house at 9 o'clock on Saturday night because they had been there since 2:30 in the afternoon. The Saturday night bath spoiled what would have otherwise been a great day's fun.

Toronto police commission will issue no licenses to jitneys operating in opposition to the street railway. That may sound like a monopoly, but that is just what it is and should be. Why should Toronto invite competition with its own railway?

CARTOONING.

I have seen men castigated,
Thrown out into the street;
I have seen them, as I stated,
Heaved a distance of six feet.
But they never make their exit
When they're thrown out, I swear,
As the smart cartoonists paint 'em,
With their feet up in the air.

I have seen my fellow-mortals
Dive into the bounding drink,
Take a header in the seafoam,
Do a Kellerman and sink;
I have seen them gasp and sputter
Like cartoons—but here's the rub,
When they struggled to the surface
They did not remark "Glub, glub!"

British aviators have formed a union. Probably they will refuse to go up unless their pay does too.

Mr. Burbank has bred dumb hens that can't disturb neighbors, but hasn't got a name for them yet. Why not the few clucks clan?

We know one young lady who will make a thrifty wife. When her beau calls she always extinguishes the lights and insists on two people occupying one chair.

It must cost the telephone company a great deal to supply all those wrong numbers.

Some men buy their new straw hats. Others, who are not so well bred, get theirs in restaurants.

A Chicago girl got a divorce because she claimed her husband never creased his trousers. Illustrating again the power of the press.

BABY'S VALUE.

Little lady three months old,
You are worth your weight in gold.
When you laugh and when you talk;
When you half pretend to walk;

When you're in the house or out,
Making fun with merry shout;
Every one just worships you,
Fuzzy head and eyes of blue;

All of them, including I,
Rate you, babe, exceeding high.
Briefly, when awake, as told,
You are worth your weight in gold.

But asleep—and this is flat—
You're worth twice as much as that.

A Detroit woman claims women have the right to dress as they please. But few of them have the nerve.

If the United States really wants prohibition, Ontario has a lot that isn't being used.

It looks as if the most fahionable clothes in Hollywood will continue to be divorce suits.

We know a man who never takes his wife on a trip because the doctor told him never to take anything that disagreed with him.

Very Much Alike

We set two speckled hens this spring, they seem to like the job all right, for in the salt barrel by the house they're workin' at it day and night.

And then the third one she chimed in and wanted for to try her luck, she ruffled up her feathrs too and said that she was goin' to cluck.

But good land sakes, we ain't got room for chickens roamin' round in flocks, the house they own is mighty small, just fashioned from piano box.

So we just left old No. 3 to do whatever she thought best, so now she's got a china egg and door knob tucked close to her chest.

An there she sets, and if you go a-poking round her hay, she seems to think you've come to steal and take her fancy eggs away.

Some folks they tell me hens is wise, that they can think like me and you, but I can't figure out at all what No. 3 is comin' to.

For she's been setting there ten days a-hatchin' door knobs for the spring, and cluckin' at a china egg, expectin' for to nurse the thing.

She may know more than folks like me, so she stays sittin' in that box, a-scornin' all our jokes and grins, and blinkin' at our scoffs and knocks.

Perhaps she's heard about some men who sink their coin in mining shares, or go and buy gold bricks and things, or play shell games at country fairs.

These men they reckoned that the gold would be shipped to 'em in a keg, they did the same as No. 3 what's sittin' on a china egg.—ARK.

The Power To Ignore

IT IS going to be difficult to write this article and not be misunderstood. But then, when you come to think of it, only the thing most liable to misuse is of any use, nothing does much good except what may do much harm, and the only creature capable of going to heaven is the one capable of going to hell. So there you are.

The captious and tangental mind will say at once, looking up from this page, "Good Lord! here's a man advocating ignorance! He must belong to the Dark Ages. Does he not understand that this is the day of enlightenment, that knowledge is power, and that the sovereign cure-all for ills bodily, ills social, ills economic, political and religious, is information. Would he have us shut up our public schools, libraries and correspondence courses and lapse into barbarism? Pish! Also tush and bah!"

Still, nevertheless and notwithstanding, I am here to contend that what ails most of us is that we know too much, see too much, hear too much, smell too much and are altogether "careful and troubled about too many things," whereas but one thing is needful, or at most two or six things.

WHAT every reader of this wants, what every human being wants, is to work out a practical every day way to be efficient and to be happy. We want joy, for without joy life is not worth while. And we want it right along, in the kitchen, in the bedroom and in the parlor, on the street and in the office, at work and at play. Confound your philosophical theories! We want to feel good!

And the point here to be made is that one of the great secrets of enjoying twenty-four hours a day consists in cultivating the art of ignoring things.

"What you don't know don't hurt you," it is said; but the truth can be stated not negatively, but positively: "Your happiness depends upon your power to ignore."

Why, first of all, your efficiency is measured by your power to exclude, not by your power to include. You develop capacity to do some one thing well by the adroitness with which you avoid doing, trying to do or thinking about, all other things.

No man can be a student who cannot concentrate on his book and close the door of his mind to all distractions. The cook is of no account unless she can be wholly shut up in cooking; if she is interested in what is going on in the parlor, and anxious to see the procession going by with a band in the street, and to know what her neighbors in the flat across the way are up to, she is very liable to burn the roast.

A person's power to do a thing well is just in proportion to his power to bar out all other things. This is the day of specialists.

For Amputation Cases.

Trying To Get Support For Cases That Made Big Sacrifice During the World War.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—We are approaching you in an endeavor to obtain your support and the support of your valuable publication in our campaign to make the bonus on the pensions permanent.

By the pension act of 1919 a totally disabled case was granted a pension permanently of $600 a year, with lesser amounts for those who are proportionately disabled, that is, a 60 per cent disability would get 60 per cent of that amount, and war widows were granted a permanent pension of $40 per month. This was found to be insufficient, and bonuses were added to the pensions, increasing the amount in 1920 to $900 per annum for total disability cases and $720 per annum for the war widows. This bonus was extended from year to year, and is due to lapse on September 1, 1924, unless the government takes action during the present session of the House of Commons.

We are an organization of men and women who have given a limb or limbs, or complete eyesight for service to Canada during the great war, and as we are the only dominion organization of permanently war-disabled men, we regard ourselves as the trustees of the rights of the 43,000 war pensioners and the 19,000 war widows, all of whom will be affected should the bonus on the pension lapse next September. Further, I might say that the pay and allowances of all ex-service patients in hospitals would also be affected, because their pay and allowances are based on the amount paid to the total disability pensioners.

Therefore, we wish to emphasize the fact that we are asking this, not only in the name of necessity as war amputations, but also on behalf of all war pensioners and the war widows, and unless the government takes action the total disability pension will be reduced by $300 and the pensions of the war widows by $240 per annum.

What we are asking will not cost the country one dollar more, and we feel that the time has come when the government of Canada should enunciate a permanent policy of pensioning, such as has Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand. There are some 3,800 amputation cases in Canada, of whom 112 receive a total disability pension, and the rest, pensions ranging from total disability to 40 per cent, which latter is the pension paid for the amputation of a foot.

We have conducted a campaign among the organizations throughout the country, and have received the active support of a number of municipalities, such organizations as the Kiwanis, Rotarian, Lions, and Gyro Clubs, the Trades and Labor Council, the Boards of Trade, and what is very potent, the women's organizations, such as the Daughters of the Empire, the Women's Catholic League, and certain bodies of the Local Council of Women. We have been promised the active support of 50 members of parliament and a number of the senate, and the sympathetic consideration of the cabinet itself. Indeed, we have the assurance of the Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, minister of the D.S.C.R., that he will do his best to see to it that the bonus on the pension is made permanent. But he is only one, and parliament is supreme, but we feel that if parliament realizes that public opinion is strongly in favor of our request that they will lose no time in giving effect to the necessary legislation. Yours Faithfully,

A. SUTCLIFFE,
Dominion Secretary-Treasurer.

BEATTY'S MEN WIN AND LOSE IN FINAL THREE RIVERS GAMES

Mernab and Licht Released Before Squad Leaves Camp.

CHICK HITS HOMER

Special to The Advertiser.

Three Rivers, Mich., April 27.—Manager Jack Beatty's London Indian's lost to the Three Rivers team here today in a fast ten-inning mix, 4 to 3. They looked as good in defeat as the winners did in their victory. Joe Delman did mound duty for Beatty, and there need be no worry as to his fitness to hurl winning ball for London this year. He had one bad inning, the third, when the locals got on to his delivery for three runs out of three solid blows.

London scored in the first when Sandquist hit one for a round trip. In the fourth they again scored when Beatty walked and Germain singled, Beatty going to third. Beatty came home when Fredette's throw went low to Ward in trying to catch Germain in a double steal. In the sixth they garnered another when Naleway doubled to left and came in when Stimpson dumped one in the same place for two sacks.

Lose Game in Tenth.

The tenth beat the leaguers. Blume singled through the pitchers' box, nearly tearing off Delman's hand. Lacroix came in, and passed Baxter, forcing Blume to second. Murphy singled for the third time, and drove home the first sacker with the winning run.

It was a close game, except in the eighth, when Three Rivers scored on errors by Sandquist and Beatty, and two blows caused the run which tied and in the end beat London.

Today saw the last cut in the squad. Two high-class men were released, Nick Mernat and Licht. Nick took the sad news in the proper spirit, and told Jack that should anything happen to any of his hurlers he would be willing to help him out.

Germain Going Strong.

The passing of Licht was not so much of a surprise. He is very fast, and a good natural hitter, but the way Germain was going he had no chance to stick. Bob Schafely is to report at London some time in early May, and will get a chance to oust one man from the infield.

The players leave tonight for Northville, and thence to Monroe, where they play exhibition games. They play Saginaw Wednesday, and are in shape to do the necessary.

The box-score:

London—	A.B.	R.	H.	O.	A.	E.
Sandquist, 3b.	5	1	1	1	3	2
Naleway, 2b.	5	1	1	4	2	0

TECS WIN, 5—1.

The Tecumsehs won a 5 to 1 verdict over Three Rivers in a fast, well-played game here yesterday. Pete Harris was on the mound for the Tecs, and during the time he was in the Three Rivers batsmen didn't get any place, except in the first, when Baxter singled and went to second when Ward was out. He scored when Blume doubled to center. That ended the scoring for the rest of the game. Lefty nearly got in bad in the second, when he was temporarily affected with wildness. He passed three in succession, and then tightened up, and got out with no tallies counted against him.

In the first the Indians got one when Naleway hit a home run over the left field fence. In the second Barbelon was hit on the arm. Delman ran for him. Elffert singled through third base, and Joe brought in a run a moment later when Sandquist lifted a tall sacrifice to center. The sixth was the lucky one, and before all hands were out three counters were over.

Philadelphia, April 27.—In the Pennsylvania relays carnival, a gigantic athletic spectacle, which brought together 4,000 athletes, which was witnessed by 40,000 spectators, and which saw the breaking of one world's record, one United States record and six carnival records, Canadian and British competitiors went down to defeat Saturday afternoon. Huntington School of oston, which turned back the invasion of Hamilton Collegiate Institute on Friday in the interscholastic medley relay championship, again defeated the Canadians by winning the two-mile interscholastic event in the U. S. record time of 8:17 1-5. Hamilton finished last of a field of seven in its other bid for honors, the one-mile high school championship, which was won by Brooklyn Tech.

PREPARING TO OPEN UP MANUFACTURERS' LOOP

Four Teams Ready To Start Schedule, With Possibility of More.

Indications are that four teams at least will start off in the race for the Manufactures' League baseball title this season. There may be more if the league is thrown open and no limit placed upon the number of outside players used.

A rumor early in the season that the Queen's Park diamond would not be available this year has been blamed for the lack of preparation on rounding teams out. However enthusiasm, even though a bit belated, is beginning to make itself felt.

The program will be as follows:

6:40—½-mile boys' bicycle.

TERRIER NINE TRIMS TIGERS IN EXHIBITION

Baseball Season of 1924 Unofficially Opened At Galt.

Special to The Advertiser.

Galt, April 27.—The 1924 baseball season here was unofficially opened on Saturday when the Terriers engaged the Tigers of the Hamilton City League in a practice game in which the champions won 4 to 3. About 1,500 fans turned out for the game, which was devoid of features and long-drawn-out.

From a local standpoint the outstanding feature was the work of Harold Doherty, the youthful southpaw, formerly of Woodstock, who made a decided hit by his performance in the three innings he worked. He did not allow a hit and struck out eight men. The run that was scored on him was due to errors of team-mates. "Friendly" Graham pitched the first four frames, and showed exceptionally good form for so early in the season. Kinsman and J. Watts were tried out at first, which position has not been permanently located yet. Harold Lynch, also formerly of Woodstock, the other newcomer on the team, showed great promise at third. The score:

Henning Retains Middleweight Title by Technical K. O. of Beaubien.

JOHNSTON WINS

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, April 27.—Five Montreal and three Ontario boxers divided the eight Canadian amateur boxing titles competed for in the two-day Dominion amateur boxing championship tournament which ended here Saturday night. They are:

112 pounds — Sammy Rennie, Grenadier Guards, Montreal.
118 pounds—Jackie Johnston, Riverside Club, Toronto.
126 pounds — Mickey McGowan, M.A.A.A., Montreal.
135 pounds — J. A. Hotte, St. Brigids, Montreal.
147 pounds—Charles Sabo, Canadian Grenadier Guards, Montreal.
160 pounds—H. Henning, Toronto.
175 pounds—L. Cousineau, unattached, Montreal.
Heavyweight — Charles Pook, St. Thomas, Ont.

Rennie, Johnston, McGowan and Pook are also provincial champions of their respective provinces. Henning retains his Dominion title won in 1923.

Jackie Johnston stood out as the pick of the contestants. His final bout with Gagne, provincial champion, showed him as a shifty, hard-hitting fighter with speed and a punch. A right cross to the head early in the second round floored Gagne, and from then to the end the Montrealer fought on sheer grit.

Mickey McGowan and Ernie Christensen of Toronto were more evenly matched. McGowan had the better of the first round, but Christensen opened up an attack in the second that left mattrs nearly even. The Toronto man by aggressiveness and strength pitted against more scientific boxing, forced an extra round by his showing in the third. Christenson nearly had this round, but McGowan evaded most of his rushes and won by a shade.

Henning scored a technical knocking over Andrew Beaubien, Montreal. Heavy body punchment in the first round told on the latter, and he became groggy. His seconds tossed in the sponge to save their man in the second round.

Fate was all against Charlie Pook in the 175-pound contest. He accidentally hit Cousineau low, and the bout was immediately awarded to the Montrealer.

In the heavyewight contest Pook was himself hit low by Ferley of Montreal in the second round. He was given the decision at once.

Results:

Semi-Finals.

112 pounds—S. Rennie, Guards, awarded decision over to D. Spunt, University Settlement.

126 pounds — Mickey McGowan, M.A.A.A., awarded decision over G. Moren, Nationals; E. Christensen, Toronto, knocked out G. Sidders, Guards, in second round.

147 pounds—A. Heathfield, Guards, awarded decision over H. Holsberg, Verdun Athletic Club.

Finals.

112 pounds—S. Rennie, Guards, awarded over A. Grieoux, Nationals.

118 pounds—J. Johnston, Toronto, awarded decision over A. Grieoux, Nationals.

126 pounds—Mickey McGowan, M.A.A.A., awarded decision over H. Christensen, Toronto.

135 pounds — J. A. Hotte, St. Brigids, awarded decison over Frank Shackell, Outremont.

147 pounds—Charles Sabo, Guards, awarded decison over A. Heathfield, guards.

160 pounds—H. Henning, Toronto, scored technical knockout over Andrew Beaubien, Outremont.

175 pounds—L. Cousineau, unattached, defeated Charles Pook, St. Thomas, Ont., on foul in first round.

Newcastle United Blanks Villa To Take English Association Cup

OLD COUNTRY SOCCER CLASSIC WON IN LAST FOUR MINUTES

Work of Harris and Seymour Wins Struggle For Newcastle.

BRILLIANT CONTEST

Associated Press Despatch.

Wembley Stadium, London, April 26.—Newcastle United today won the classic English football association cup here from Aston Villa by a score of 2 to 0.

Both Newcastle's scores were made in the second half. Harris scored the first goal and Seymour netted the second, three minutes from the end of the match.

The first incident of note was the fine dash through by Harris, who tricked Milne nicely. Harris was fouled, and a free kick resulted. This, however, was easily cleared by Smart. The Newcastle forwards were thrice placed offside by Mort in the first few minutes of play. Walker went through the Newcastle defence and passed to Dorrell, who had a good opening. He centered weakly, and a good opportunity to score passed.

Cowan and Harris then troubled the Villa defence, Seymour finally shooting right across the goal mouth with nobody home. Seymour tested Jackson with a terrific low shot. Then followed a splendid passing run between Walker and Dorrell, ended by Kirton, who headed over the bar.

Walker started another offensive, when he deceived Mooney, and, going on, shot hard. It was a low ball, and bounced off the goalkeeper's chest. In the next minute, after a run, Low passed to Cowan, and the latter centered to Seymour, who headed the ball just wide of the post. The struggle until the end of the first half was a brilliant affair, both goals having narrow escapes on several occasions.

After the resumption the Villa made a bold bid for victory, and staged a vigorous attack. Mooney charged Capewell off the ball as the center forward was in the act of shooting. Next Kirton sent in a beautiful low shot, which Bradley saved. Bradley then dealt in fine style with an awkward effort from the Villa left winger. A free kick taken by Hudspeth caused some excitement in the vicinity of the Villa goal mouth, and Harris, beating Smart in a dash through, kicked forward for Cowan to head into Jackson's arms. Newcastle continued to press, but the Villa halfbacks prevented Jackson from being seriously troubled from these attacks.

Game Livens Up.

The game at this stage developed into a very strenuous display, both sides putting up a brilliant exhibition. As the defence divisions seemed sound, everything pointed to a draw as the end approached. With four minutes to play, Newcastle tried desperately for a goal. After some fine work by the forwards, the ball got well into Villa territory. It came, across to Seymour, and from the left winger's pass Cowan shot at Jackson. The Villa goalie pulled the ball down, and Harris dashed in and scored at close quarters. A minute later Seymour went through the disorganized Villa defence, and beat Jackson with a line left-foot shot.

The teams:

Newcastle — Bradley, Hampson, Sudspeth, Gibson, Spencer, Mooney, Low, Cowan, Harris, McDonald and Seymour.

Aston Villa—Jackson, Smart, Morton, Moss, O'Neill, Blackburn, York, Kirton, Copewell, Walker, Dorrell.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HOLD INITIAL PRACTICE

Interclub Outfit Looks Strong in Every Department This Season.

Saturday afternoon the Knights of Columbus Interclub League team got away to its first workout of the season at Sunshine Park, and judging from the pre-schedule form shown by the various candidates on their initial coming-out, the knights should go a long way in the intermediate O. B. A. A. this year.

Leo Flynn, a youngster who was much in evidence on the Woodstock senior lineup last season, showed up well, and had the other outfielders patrolling the far outer reaches when it came his turn to slap out flies. Bill Moisse, who topped the batters in the Holy Name League last summer, was out with his trusty bludgeon again and between swinging a bat and chasing flies he managed to reduce to the middleweight division.

The Knights look strong in every department this year, with Remi Durand, former Assumption hurler, Peeny Nopper and Crawford Lewis available for mound duty, Barney Clark at first, Paul Mascari at short, and Jimmie Sandford, Johnnie Sancone, Charlie Cooney and Tom Kilgallin on hand to round out the infield, and Tom Christopher, Mike Sansone, Leo Flynn and Dick Christopher from which to select an outfield.

Handsome tokens, suitably engraved, have arrived, and presentations will take place on Tuesday evening.

Golf

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

How much of the putting swing should be in the wrists and how much in the arms?

Answered by
BOB CRUICKSHANK,
Runner-up in National Open championship, 1923, and the man who, in 1921, defeated Hutchison, Sarazen, and Barnes in an invitation tournament at St. Joseph, Mo. Runner-up in Pittsburg tournament for professional golfers, 1922, being defeated only by Sarazen.

* * *

In the short putts I would not advocate any "arm" movement. In a putt, say of 2 to 8 feet, the clubhead should not travel very far back from the ball. Such a putt needs only a little movement of the wrists and hands. However, in the longer putts of 15 to 50 feet, the arm should move from the elbows in conjunction with the wrists and the hands. The clubhead should only be taken far enough back so as not to disturb the body or head in any way. The most important factor in putting, to my mind, is a perfectly steady head and body, which insures an even and well-balanced swing.

ONE OF THE RARITIES.

Arthur Reynolds, bespectacled boxman of the Toronto club. There are few athletes in baseball sporting spectacles. Meadows of Pittsburg is the only twirder in the big leagues who wears glasses. Torporcer of the St. Louis Nationals, an infielder, is probably the only other player who uses "specs."

The race in the Mint sizes up like a close one. All the clubs have been losing consistently to the lesser minors.

Such, however, is the inconsistency of baseball, that a month from now, even the Mint tail-enders could spot these teams a lot of runs and win.

The Hams were beaten 14 to 1 by the Battle Creek Postums yesterday. But Eddie Reis was pitching part of the time for the Cereal crew and Allen Webb, a young Ohio southpaw, did the rest.

The first direct word emitted by Dan O'Leary, manager of the Flint Vehics, about his infield has popped out. Dan, speaking over the long distance telephone, said that "Moore will do." The young man mentioned is Harry Moore, new third baseman. "He is great," O'Leary said. "I know he has been in camp only a week, but you should see him. He has hams for hands. He get's 'em all. He's fast as lightning. And he hits 'em a mile. Moore will be a real surprise package in the league this season, unless I'm way off my base. He looks like a seasoned boy now. What an arm! And how he can peg the ball across the diamond! He'll make the boys forget all about Stricker and Michaels, and, yes, even McNiff, who went back home. Moore was "found" by Grover Land, scout for the Pittsburg Nationals and who helped out the Vehics last summer by catching a few games. Land unearthed Moore in Phoenix, Ariz.

The London Views should cop the Inter-Club baseball honors this season. They have two members of Chief Birrell's verra finest on their line-up—P. C.'s Towle and McDonald.

They are going to stop all stealing bases. They'll do most of the "walking" for their team, and a good deal of the "baton" as well. It looks like a hard combination to "beat."

Stratford Bards will have five hurlers. Bill Youngs, Tommy Riggs, Bill Marks and Ed. Wnde are the right handers and Neil Sloane uses the fork arm method.

Hamilton Herald: Mickey Corcoran, former Hamilton M.-O. outfielder, now manager of the Quebec club of the Ontario, Quebec and Vermont League, dropped off for an hour's visit last night en route from Buffalo to Quebec.

He inquired of the writer as to the whereabouts of Johnny Carlin, Walter Malmquest and several other M.-O. performers whom he would like to sign up for his Quebec club. Evidently Michael has not been following up the good old summer game during the winter; otherwise he would know that Carlin has been sold to the Albany club of the Eastern League.

Corcoran has been in touch with Manager Wetzel, of the Hams, with a view to securing some of "Buzz's" excess material. And Wetzel has promised to supply him.

Hamilton fans will be pulling hard for Corcoran's success at Quebec.

CANADIAN OLYMPIC ATHLETES NAMED

Entry of Trapshooters' Union Confirmed by Committee.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, April 27.—Selection of a number of competitors to represent Canada in various branches of sport at Olmypic sports this summer and the appointment of P. J. Mulqueen as manager of the Canadian team in place of J. S. Crocker, Toronto, were the main features of the Canadian Olympic committee meeting here over the week-end.

John Cuthbert, Guelph, and Victor McAuley, Windsor, N.S., were selected for the Olympic marathon, provided their form on June 20 is satisfactory. Dave Johnson, former McGill track and field champion, now a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, was confirmed as a member of the team. Johnson will run the 440 yards for Canada and will do his training at Oxford, joining the team when it arrives in England in June. It was decided to confirm the entry of the Canadian Trap Shooters Union, provided the union finds the necessary traveling expenses. Similar arrangements will prevail for Canadian yachtsmen. Capt. Lebain of the M. A. A. A. was confirmed as a member of the team, the entrant for the revolver shooting paying his own expenses. Hilton Belyea of St. John, N.B., will represent Canada in the sculls.

It was decided that this Olympic committee transmit to all branches of the A. A. U. of C. and all allied bodies the fact that only the Olympic trials authorized by this committee shall be recognized; that all entries for Olympic games must be in accordance with the international Olympic committee regulations; and that this committee will recognize only men selected at authorized trials.

Dates for trials were set as follows:

Boxing trials at Toronto, June 20 and 21.

Wrestling finals at Montreal, June 17 and 18.

Rowing trials at St. Catharines on June 14.

Sailing trials at Montreal and St. John, N. B., with the finals on Lake St. Louis, June 16.

W. E. Findlay, president of the A. A. U. of C., reported that the Quebec government had donated $5,000 for the Olympic fund, and that it had been decided to ask the Dominion government for an additional $10,000 grant.

Wrestler's Fall Breaks Table

Wladek Zbyszcko Thrown From Ring in Montreal.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, April 27.—There were thrills galore at the international wrestling contest here Saturday night. Frank Judson, Harvard University instructor, staged a fine battle with Wladek Zybszcko of Poland. As if maddened by the terrific onslaughts of his opponent, Judson grappled Zbyszko by the head and somersaulted him out of the ring. He fell with a crash on the press table, smashing it to pieces and lay there in a semi-conscious condition until carried to his dressing-room. The referee awarded the bout to Judson, a decision which the fans received very unfavorably. Thereupon Judson refused the decision and offered to wrestle Zbyszcko later in the tournament.

In the other encounters, F. Brunowicz of Ukrainia, and Charles Lepannen of Finland wrestled to a draw.

Regis Siki, Abyssinia, defeated Chick Korainek, Lithuania. Sergeant Leavitt of the American Army and Carl Vogel, Germany, kicked and tumbled about the stage like acrobats, Leavitt getting the decision.

NEW PHARMACY LAW PROVIDES HEAVY FINES

Violation Will Mean Penalty of $2,000 With Possible Imprisonment.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, April 26.—Hon. W. H. Price, acting attorney-general for Ontario, stated today that Hon. W. F. Nickle, before leaving here yesterday, had given instructions that the digest of the new pharmacy act was to be printed and forwarded to all druggists in the province in preparation for the time when the new measure comes into force.

"The main provision of the new law is that it provides that all druggists must take out a license from the Ontario License Board before they can store, handle, or sell alcohol or liquor," said Col. Price.

Under the new legislation the penalties are very much heavier. Violation of the measure will subject the offender to a fine of $2,000, with or without imprisonment. In the case of incorporated companies the maximum penalty of $2,000 becomes the minimum, or may be made as much as possible at the discretion of the magistrate.

"PA' AND "MA" SMILE

Associated Press Despatch.

Norfolk, Va., April 27.—"Young" Stribling knocked out "Young" Rollo, champion light heavyweight of the navy, in the second round here last night. The bout was under the auspices of the American legion.

THREE DRAWN GAMES MARK SATURDAY'S SOCCER BILL

Rovers Held Leafs To Scoreless Tie As Surprise of Day.

SCOTS PLAY WELL

SOCCER RESULTS.
Maple Leafs 0, Rovers 0.
St. Andrews 1, C. N. R. 1.
Caleys 1, United Vets 1.

The biggest crowd of the season was on hand to see the game between Maple Leafs and St. Johns Rovers, the result of which was a drawn game. The game was a good one, Maple Leafs having the best of it and it was only the brilliant work of the Rover defence, especially the work of Harry Lathan and Tough in goal, that prevented the Leafs from winning. The Rovers were not at full strength, three of their best men being absent, so must take the credit for holding the strong Maple Leafs to a draw. Mair, who usually plays on the defence was at center forward, a position new to him, but nevertheless put up a good game. The game was fairly even in the first half, the Leafs put in several individual efforts, but without success as the Rover defence was very safe. Half time arrived with no score. In the second half it was seen that the Maple Leafs were out to score, but their efforts met with a stonewall defence. Tough in goal being very safe for the Rovers. The Rovers got away once in the second half and almost scored with Nudde out of goal. Croll, Ashton and Milne were playing a fine game for the Leafs. Towards the close the Maple Leafs made another determined effort to score and Dawson netted the ball, but the goal was not allowed for offside. A good game ending with no score. Referee Carr handled the game in fine style.

The teams were:

Maple Leafs—Nudds, Ashton and Croll, D. Smith, A. Smith, Milne, Taylor, Forrest, Dawson, Holt, Cunningham.

St. Johns Rovers—Tough, Latham, Banks, Robinson, Wise, W. Robinson, Paul, Young, Marr, Marchant and Senior.

CRUTCH ORDER CANCELLED.

Del Pratt, shown above, has come through well at second for Detroit this season, despite the fact that last fall many wise old birds said he wouldn't last another year.

SOCCER KICK-OFFS

By LINESMAN

Where are the goal getters? Three games on Saturday only netted four goals, and one of these from a penalty. Up to date only ten goals scored in the district. Evidently the forwards need practice, or is it the defense playing so well in each team.

* * *

Maple Leafs have a nice team, but they will have to combine better than they did in Saturday's game. Combination is what counts. One man cannot beat a team.

* * *

The Leafs are entered for the Connaught and Ontario Cups. Well, good luck to the boys.

* * *

We hear that St. Thomas would like to see some of their referees officiating at the different games. Jimmy Farr, please note. There will be lots to do when the cup games start.

* * *

Our old friend Barney Devlin refereed the St. Thomas game. Barney has the sympathy of all fans. Love of the game lured him to handle this game, although there was a bereavement in his family at the time. Barney is not having the best of luck these days, but he has a big heart. Better luck, Barney, we hope.

* * *

All clubs should try and get nets. It is far more satisfactory, as the incident in the Caley-Vets game demonstrated.

* * *

Watch Aylmer! Rumor has it that they have the goods. Already they have beaten St. Thomas Vets twice. Evidently getting in trim for the cup games.

* * *

Dave Wilson was in rare form for St. Andrews on Saturday. Good thing for the Saints that he was.

* * *

Rumor has it that we shall hear of two prominent players transferring to new quarters within the week. Which is the lucky club?

* * *

The Evergreens are as fresh as ever, Skidmore of Caleys and Banks of the Rovers are playing as good as any of the young 'uns.

* * *

What happened to the R. C. R.'s? We hear they have got a good team. Get the team out R. C. R.'s, and play the game. We need you.

TAYLOR-FORBES TEAM LOSES TO PAGE-HERSEY

Special to The Advertiser.

Guelph, April 27. — Page-Hersey sprang a surprise in the opening game of the Guelph soccer league Saturday when, before a crowd of 1,200 spectators, they defeated Taylor-Forbes, Ontario champions, by 2 to 1. Taylor-Forbes, strengthened by several new players, took an early lead, but fell, scoring early in the first half, but shortly before half time Collins drove one through, evening the count.

Page-Hersey showed improvement as the game progressed, and at 20 minutes in the second half scored the winning goal.

The teams:

Page-Hersey—Goal, Brough; backs, R. Fell and Bond; halfbacks, Penshall, Adair and Harvie; forwards, Schofield, Leach, Collins, Pritchard and Denver.

Taylor-Forbes—Goal, Hill; backs, Dunlop and McColl; halfbacks, Renton, Marsland and Muir; forwards, Halliwell, Mooney, A. Fell, Kerr and Hamilton.

Referee—W. Phil Evans.

ST. ANDREWS TIE C. N. R., 1-1.

St. Andrews were somewhat unlucky not to win the 1-1 tie with the C. N. R. on the latter's ground as the goal which the Railroaders equalized with was questionably offside. Considering that Walmesley, for the Saints, was practically a passenger the whole of the game and that the team was somewhat disorganized, they must be given credit for their showing. The game was a good one, with the defence showing up well for both teams. The C. N. R. had the edge at the start, but half way through the first half Perkins got away and must have scored had not Burgess nipped in. Woods, however, scored for the Saints a few minutes later. Half time arrived with the Saints leading, 1-0.

In the second half the C. N. R. tried hard to equalize, but they reckoned without Davie Wilson, who was in rare form, always being there when danger was imminent. Astler also played a fine game for the C. N. R. Moir, who had also been doing good work, decided to go up with the forwards and the result was a goal, Bearchill scoring after good work by Moir. The game was now very even, there being no further scoring the game ended with the score one all. Several decisions by Referee Noble on the offside question did not meet with everyone's approval.

Superintendant Messeroll of the C. N. R. kicked off for the opening of the C. N. R.'s first home game.

CALEYS - UNITED VETS DRAW

A splendid game between these two teams was played at the Athletic grounds before a record crowd. The Caleys were the first to attack, Peterson, their center, making an individual effort which almost resulted in a goal, so close was it that Referee Devlin consulted his linesman with the result that the Vets' goalie got the benefit of the doubt. The play was very even from now on, but the Vets were eventually awarded a penalty from which Davey scored. Half time, Vets 1, Caleys 0.

The second half was a ding-dong struggle, J. Baker playing a fine game for the Vets, while Martin and Brydes were in fine form for the Caleys, who kept pegging away, their efforts eventually meeting with success, Peterson scoring and tieing up the score.

The teams were:

Vets—Wright, Baker, Moyes, Kelly, J. Baker and Allen, Verrill, L. Davey, Hough, Denny and S. Davey.

Caleys—Pullen, Martin, Brydges, Rutter, Skidmore, Barrie, Branston, McLaughlin, Peterson, Smith, Arnold.

HAVERS BEATS SARAZEN IN 72-HOLE EXHIBITION

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, April 27.—Shooting almost par golf over the difficult Westchester-Biltmore course, still soft from recent spring rains, Arthur Havers, British open golf champion, defeated Gene Sarazen, professional champion, five up and four to play in an exhibition 72-hole match, the final 36 holes of which were played today. The first 36 holes played yesterday in Philadelphia, gave the champion a lead of three holes over his British opponent, but the Englishman, displaying brilliant direction and distance, especially in the approach shots, squared the match on the sixth green of the morning round today, and won it on the 32nd green of the afternoon round.

United States Steel was jammed down 3 points to 98. U. S. Steel subsequently rallied to 98¾ and a few other shares also made feeble recoveries.

Wheat was the most active grain, shipments amounting to over 12,000,000 bushels, while the release of space in the elevators gave opportunity for taking in a quantity of the wheat which has been lying in cars here, 1,500,000 bushels being unloaded.

COMMODITY NOTES

San Antonio, April 26.—The first of the South Texas grass-fattened steers have sold this week at 8c a pound, a record figure for recent years. This is taken as an indication of the basis on which livestock loans will be made in this state this year.

Portland, Ore., April 26. — The steamer Monticello of the United American Lines, is expected to load the largest lumber cargo ever taken from the Columbia River next week. If loading plans mature, she will carry more than 6,000,000 feet to New York.

Philadelphia, April 26.—Low production of many tanneries in this section is tending to keep the leather market steady. Sole leather is particularly quiet. Pennsylvania shoe factories are starting out their samples for the fall trade.

Fall River, Mass., April 26.—The cotton department of the American Printing Company will close next week, and will resume May 5 for one week. Beyond that time the future success just of this property, one of the largest cloth mills in the country, is uncertain. The printing department is running at capacity, but with orders for only three weeks.

Detroit, April 26.—The average output here of automobiles, exclusive of the Ford Company, is 60 per cent of the February peak. Reports of retail sales are very encouraging, however, one leading company reporting a gain of 27 per cent for the week ending April 19.

Atlanta, April 26.—Banks, supply men and merchants are offering aid to farmers in 50 South Georgia counties in building up bright leaf tobacco culture on lands devastated for cotton by boll weevil. The acreage planted this year will put the state well up in production.

DAYLIGHT SAVING ON STOCK MARKET

New Time on Toronto Exchange Does Not Increase Business Today.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, April 28.—The new course of trading, to conform with New York's daylight saving time, which commenced today, did not increase the volume of business transacted on the local stock exchange during this morning's session. Trade is almost at a standstill, and a block of 200 shares of Dominion Stores, at 27, was the only trade exclusive of the mining group in which sales reached three figures, while Brazilian, with a loss of ⅝ at 51⅛, was the only issue in which there was a variation from opening quotations. Dome Mines was weaker, losing 50 cents at 15.70.

MONTREAL STOCK MARKET IS QUIET

Prices Show Slightly Easier Tendency—Montreal Power Is Most Active.

Associated Press Despatch.

Montreal, April 28—The local stock market was extremely quiet and uninteresting this morning, prices showing a slightly easier tendency. Montreal power with a few hundred shares was the most active issue and was down a point to 156½. Spanish was down 5-8 at 99, Penmans 1 to 144, Steel of Canada to 73¼ and St. Maurice 1¾ to 89. U.S. FLAGSHIP SEAPLANE BATTLES TERRIFIC GALE

Major Martin Pilots Giant Air Cruiser Safely Into Chignik.

DELAYED TEN DAYS

Indians Assist Aviators To Push Giant Ship Out.

By EVAN J. DAVID
Special Correspondent of The Advertiser and North American Newspaper Alliance.

On board the U. S. coastguard cutter Algonquin, by wireless, via Chignik, Alaska, April 27. — The safe arrival at Chignik yesterday of the flagship plane Seattle, piloted by Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the American round-the-world flight, marks one of the most thrilling exploits in the history of aviation. In the teeth of a blinding snowstorm, with a 40-mile wind lashing the surface of the sea into breakers that drove against the nose of the fragile plane, many times threatening to swamp it, Major Martin and his mechanic, Alva Harvey, not only kept their ship afloat, but with its powerful motor racing at top speed managed to take the air in one of the most hazardous flights on record.

Major Martin got off the bay at Kanatak Saturday at 2:35, Pacific coast time, in one of the worst southeastern snowstorms of the Alaskan spring. After circling about the bay three times to gain altitude, he finally disappeared southward in a gale that had soon attained the proportions of a hurricane, driving the hard particles of snow into the eyes of the flyers. It was the most daring example of flying that I have ever seen in the 10 years that I have been following this perilous means of transportation, but at all times the plane seemed to be under control, the engine functioning perfectly and the heavy ship handling well.

Ice Delays Start.

The start Saturday was the culmination of a series of heart-breaking disappointments. First of all, ice had formed in the creek where the ship was anchored. It was several inches thick, and all of it had to be broken up by pick and shovel and floated down the stream before it was safe to start the plane with its delicate pontoons down the stream on the next tide, which usually is highest at 5 in the morning. Due to the strong winds that had prevailed for a week, it did not come within a foot of its normal height, with the result that there was not enough water in the creek to float the pontoons out into the bay without damaging the three-ply mahogany wood of which they are constructed on the gravel bottom of the steep, rocky shores.

Since the weather was fair at the time, and the winds shifting to the southwest, it was necessary for Major Martin to get his air cruiser out into the bay and off the water before noon, or the incoming tide and the rapidly-rising wind would have been too violent for him to hop off at all until the storm was over.

It is impossible for a seaplane to live in any kind of a storm on this exposed bay. Major Martin could not anchor the ship and wait, he had to hop off, so with the help of the inhabitants of Kanatak, all of whom turned out, even including the few white women in the colony, and also with the assistance of the whole crew of our ship, the Algonquin. A sled was constructed of heavy timbers with a log under the keel of each of the pontoons as a runner. Then the Standard Oil caterpillar tractor hitched onto the sled and literally pulled the raft down the bed of the shallow creek for half a mile to the edge of the water of the bay, where the tide was going out at places.

Most Difficult Passage.

The banks on the side of the creek were so narrow that the men had to shovel away the dirt of a high embankment to allow the wings to pass through the ravine without being rubbed to shreds. Indeed, this passage out of the channel presented one of the oddest spectacles ever witnessed. To see the huge world air cruiser being towed on a sled by a tractor out of the dry bed of the creek, with Major Martin standing on the wings and Mechanic Harvey on the front of the sled would have made an interesting movie had an operator been present. Surely, never before did an aeroplane go through such a ravine in such a strange way or on such a moment. To make things worse, the wind and the tide began to come up, accompanied by a blinding snowstorm. As there is no protection against high winds for a plane in a small harbor, it became a race with the men in sliding the pontoons, and the heavy plane off the sled, because the tractor could not drag the sled further than the edge of the tide and the pontoons could not be violently pushed off the sled without serious damage to the bottoms of the pontoons.

As the ship weighed more than three tons it could not be lifted off the sled, so that a means had to be devised to push the sled out into deep water until the airship floated on the bosom of the bay. At first our crew on the Algonquin dropped an anchor car out in the bay with a block and pulley attached, but when the tractor hitched onto one end of the line and started to pull the heavy sled out where it could float, the 50-pound anchor refused to hold in the sand of the bay.

There was nothing for it but to get long timbers, brace them low against the sled and let the tractor push it out into deep water till it floated. This was done, but the aid of the racing propeller was required to get the sled to sea. After an hour's pushing and pulling it finally got out deep enough for the pontoons to float, but by that time the bay was covered with white caps that drove straight into the nose of the air cruiser.

Taxied Right Into Wind.

As a consequence, Major Martin had to taxi right out into the forty-mile wind and driving snow that almost blinded the workers, and over the terrible surface of a powerful sea that was running into the ocean beyond where our ship, the Algonquin, was anchored. The major handled his ship masterfully and, after splashing and foundering, shipping water and rolling about, the wings finally lifted the three-ton airship off the water.

Even then it was many a hundred yards that she flew before she gained enough speed to make sure to the spectators that she would not settle back on the water. She disappeared in the fog of snow beyond the white figure of the Algonquin out in the bay and only the roar of the motor could be heard.

For some time, as the hum increased, the round the world air cruiser was discerned, like a ghost in the sky, making back to the beach, but at a considerably higher altitude. As the roaring sky dragon circled overhead, scaring the wild ducks and the seagulls, the major leaned over the fusilage and signalled to the crowd on the beach. His teeth were clearly visible, showing that his unfailing smile was still there.

Once again he banked and disappeared in the wind, snow and fog until only the faint droning of the motor was audible, and everybody thought the air cruiser had started on the long trip to Chignik. In a few minutes, however, the droning came more distinctly to the ears, and, no bigger than a gull, the plane appeared close to the summit of the deep-rigged and snow-covered mountains to the south.

Arrives Safe At Chignik.

Soon it was high overhead, and with a last wave the major and his mechanic banked around and disappeared to the south in the face of a growing hurricane. The silent watchers on the beach and the speechless Indians by their side listened until not the faintest echo was discernible, and then all turned and uttered a silent prayer that the courageous flyer and the good air cruiser Seattle would weather the gale and reach Chignik safely.

Major Martin and Sergeant Harvey had made so many friends during the short time that they were at Kanatak that everyone's heart was touched by the desperate chance the major had been compelled to take in order to get out of this land-locked cave, where he had been marooned since April 15.

As soon as they had gone Captain Gabbett ordered the anchors of the Algonquin hoisted, and the U. S. coastguard cutter immediately set out after the round-the-world flyers to render assistance in case the major and his mechanic had to go into a forced landing before they reached Chignik. The assistance was fortunately not required.

LEMIEUX MAY DELAY DECISION

Consultation of Authorities Delays Finding On Woodsworth Amendment.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, April 27.—The decision of Speaker Lemieux whether the Woodsworth amendment to the budget is in order or not is eagerly awaited in parliamentary circles. When the debate was adjourned on Friday it was intimated that the Speaker would hand down his decision tomorrow, but there is, it is understood, some possibility that he way postpone his ruling.

Consultation of precedents and authorities has involved a large amount of research work and this may not be complete by the time the House meets in the afternoon. The tangled skein of procedure has created an extraordinary situation. First there came the Labor amendment as proposed by J. S. Woodsworth of Winnipeg Center. Then there was the Woodsworth amendment as modified after consultation by Mr. Woodsworth with the Speaker and the authorities of the House. Then there came the Conservative amendment, moved by A. J. Doucet of Kent, N.B.

FORDS TO MAKE SYNTHETIC "GAS"

Distillation of Highly Essential Fuel From By-Products.

Special to The Advertiser

Windsor, April. 27.—Synthetic gasoline distilled from by-products is expected to be turned out at the new plant of the Ford Motor Company here as soon as some necessary alterations can be made in the machinery. Instead of being refined, gasoline is to be manufactured. An output of 4,800 gallons daily may eventually he reached.This information was obtained here yesterday, but official announcement from officials of the Ford Motor Company could be had regarding the matter.

Coal is now being distilled and many of its by-products recovered at the local plant, it is stated. The coal in raw state is fed in a continuous stream one half inch thick to the primary distillation of distilling oven.

Passage through the oven changes the coal to low temperature coke. The gas given off is condensed into a petroleum-like substance and its ammonia recovered through a continuous scrubbing operation with water, the gasoline remaining in volatile form is brought into contact with an absorbing oil which strips the gas of its burden of gasoline.

This absorbing oil is continuously subjected to distillation for the purpose of recovering the gasoline, the gas going from this point directly to gas holders and point of ultimate consumption.

POLICE UNABLE TO FIND BONDS

Peter Smith Opens Safety Deposit Box in Stratford.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, April 27.—Peter Smith, former provincial treasurer, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Province of Ontario in connection with the sale of succession duty free bonds, "dismissed" the police guard on his safety deposit at Stratford Saturday by unlocking the box and letting the officers of the law inspect the contents.

Provincial Inspectors Miller, Ward and Stringer were the police guard with instructions to do duty over the safety deposit box. The officers reached Stratford Friday armed with search warrants. It was at the Bank of Toronto that they found a box in the name of Peter Smith, and informed the manager of their mission. The bank manager said he had only the "preparatory" key and could not open the box without another key held by Mr. Smith.

Mr. Smith turned the key, which permitted of free inspection of the contents. Bonds, which might be needed as evidence in the coming trial of the former provincial treasurer, were sought, but as there were none in the box, the officers returned to Toronto.

While the three officers watched for the bonds in Stratford, Provincial Inspectors Boyd and Hammond did similar duty here. Likewise the search here did not uncover any bonds.

Our penal institutions are visited regularly by Salvation Army Officers who interest themselves in the problems of the men and women incarcerated there. Many a person has been re-claimed to decent citizenship by their unselfish efforts.

The Army takes care of the Unmarried Mothers
Of 700 girls and women who sought the shelter of the Army Rescue Homes last year, 500 of them were "unmarried mothers". Stories without a parallel in human interest could be written on this phase of the work, suffice it to say that it is done with Christlike unselfishness.

The Army appeals to you because this work is costly
This "Social" work is only a part of the service the Army is giving to the community, but it is one of the most important of its branches. To carry on requires money, and the Army looks to its friends through the Annual Self-Denial Appeal for the necessary funds.

PORT STANLEY CHURCH SECURES MINISTER

London Presbytery Meets Tomorrow at Woodstock For Session.

London Presbytery meets tomorrow in Woodstock for the synod of London and Hamilton which is being held there. The next regular meeting takes place at Port Stanley, for the induction of a new minister at St. John's Church. The difficulties of the Port Stanley congregation, which were thoroughly aired at the last session of the presbytery, have been settled to the extent that they have secured a minister and are undertaking the usual congregational responsibilities. The call was extended to Rev. Peter Jamieson of South Mountain, in the Brockville Presbytery. Mr. Jamieson accepted and he will be inducted on May 6. Rev. T. S. Symington, minister of Knox Church, London, whom the presbytery appointed as interim moderator of St. John's Church, will conduct the induction service. Rev. J. C. Halls of Belmont has been asked to preach. Rev. D. C. Soules of St. Thomas will address the minister, and Rev. James MacKay of New St. James' Church, London, the people.

RAILWAY WAGES WAR ON BOLD BAD 'TOURISTS'

Special Constables Will Be Commissioned To Watch "Side Door Pullmans."

Seeing the country at the expense of the C. N. R. might be profitable to some, but to the railway it is poor business, and according to an announcement made at the divisional headquarters today special constables are being placed on duty to take care of the large number of tourists travelling by the "side-door Pullman."

Officials are aware that a large number of youths are in the habit of mounting the so-called drags in the vicinity of the Wharncliffe road bridge and riding to the rural districts, where they playfully engage in a game of tag from car to car.

At this time of the year there is scarcely a train passes through London without a knight of the road tucked away in an obscure corner of the car.

It has been learned that during the past week one train moving westward carried no less than seventeen extra persons, whose presence was not discovered by the conductor until the train stopped at Strathroy.

POLICEMEN EXPERIENCE QUIET WEEK-END IN CITY

Police authorities experienced one of the quietest week-ends in several months Saturday and Sunday, a trio of drunks being the only unfortunates gathered in.

Although a record crowd was on the streets Saturday evening no accidents were reported.

Trust Is a Greater Power Than Fear Declares Pastor At the First Presbyterian

Dr. J. Lovell Murray Delivers Sermon At Both Services.

SPEAKS ON MISSIONS

Rev. D. R. Drummond Addresses Ned St. James' Congregation.

Dr. J. Lovell Murray of Toronto was the preacher in the First Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and evening. "The Law of the Harvest" was the subject of his morning address, in which he declared that the inexorable law of death before fuller life was the essential fact of the harvest, whether of grains or human lives.

Referring specifically to the foreign missions of the church, Dr. Murray said that what was really sown in these foreign fields was not so much the message of the Bible as the lives of Christian men. The good seeds are the Sons of the Kingdom. He mentioned Bishop Springer of the Yukon, Dr. Loftus of Thibet and Dr. Haas of China, all of whom he cited as examples of justification of a supreme faith in the fulfillment of the laws of God. These great men through all the difficulties of their wild border lives amongst the most trying conditions never lost faith in their Master and in the end were fully justified.

"In our own church today," he said, "we have any number of young men and women who are qualified and ready to go out on missionary work, but the tragedy of the situation is that our funds are growing less. This year for the first time the church had to send out strict orders to all its missionaries to curtail their activities and retrench in every possible way.

"The sacrificial principle of the law of the harvest must be operative in all of us. In the home as in the foreign field the Christian message and teaching must be more than merely a matter of so many words and so many theories of a beautiful existence."

Evening Service.

At the evening service, Dr. Murray gave as the two fundamental characteristics of St. Paul, his absolute and unwavering trust in the faithfulness of God, and his own equal and complete assurance that God trusted in his faithfulness to carry out His work. "These two beliefs are the chief principle of motive in all of us," said Dr. Murray. "In the case of children we are slowly coming to realize that trust is a greater power than fear, and that when our children shape their lives and guide their actions by the knowledge that their parents trust them to do what is right, we have attained a far stronger influence over them than if we used the whip and the fear of punishment.

Honor System.

"It is the same with the honor system in colleges and in penal institutions. Pedagogues are finding that they are getting better results by putting their pupils on their honor not to do certain things or to perform certain duties than they did under the old rule of fear. In Sing Sing prison, where Warden Thomas Osborne introduced the now world-famous honor system, the most extraordinary results were obtained. The men responded as finely as any class of men could to the appeal of the warden, and wherever the system is given a fair trial, and where it is made as an earnest attempt to substitute honor and self-respect for fear, the results have been the same, in spite of the vociferous howling of certain prison governors who look askance at all prison reform, and do all in their power to hinder its introduction. St. Paul was satisfied by his faith, and everyone who inherits the confidence of the apostle, and who puts his absolute trust in the power of the Lord will find that he his not leaned on a broken reed or put his faith in a God incapable of fulfilling his promises."

HAROLD GODARD,

who was sentenced in Toronto to 10 years in penitentiary for an attack on Miss Mary Duncan.

NEW ST. JAMES.

Rev. D. R. Drummond of St. Paul's Church, Hamilton, occupied the pulpit of New St. James' Presbyterian Church at both services yesterday. Preaching at the morning service Dr. Drummond took his text from Colossians, chapter 1, and verse 10, "That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God."

Dr. Drummond, after stating that the early church in Colossus was overflowing with talkers of the message rather than with doers of the message, emphasized the extreme necessity of acting the message and putting less importance on the mere talking of the Word of God. Only in this way was it possible for the Christian to become not only a believer but also to bear fruitfully of the message and to give life and force to the teachings of Christ.

More Blessed to Give.

"That it is really and in actual fact more blessed to give than to receive is hard to understand," he declared, "until you put it into practice. The mere statement, thought recognized as one of Christ' sayings, is given little credit in the world in general, but when once you have done it and felt the wonderful satisfaction and the glorious universal love it engenders, it seases to be only a Biblical platitude and takes its place as one of the supreme realities of life."

"It is the same with every injunction of Christ. Always when they are put in everyday use and interpreted in terms of modern life they become real and a vital part of human happiness. By giving anything we reach knowledge, and as we put the teachings of God into practice we grow in the knowledge of God himself. As we are merciful we appreciate the mercy of God. And as we are just we appreciate the justness of God and as we are patient we come to understand the patience of God. By living only do we reach understanding, and as long as we rely on words alone so long shall we remain entirely ignorant of the meaning of God or of the doctrine of Christ.

"As in Colossus, there is too much teaching of the Christian message today by mere rhetoric and too little living on the word. The path of understanding, knowledge and appreciation comes only by life and experience, and if we are in earnest about our Christian religion we shall follow out the essence of all Christian preaching and live as we preach."

DUNDAS CENTER.

In Dundas Center Methodist Church the church league anniversary was celebrated at both services, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse of St. Thomas preaching at the morning service and Rev. W. E. Millson, president of the London Conference, at the evening service.

Rev. A. E. Moorhouse dealt in the morning with the parallel between the life of Moses, the law giver, and the ideal life of the young man and woman of today. He outlined the formation of the character of Moses, stressing the various occasions when circumstances forced him to take certain definite steps in his own life and in his national policies.

Could Avoid Influence.

That the path the young person is destined to tread in life is a matter largely of his own determination was the postulation of the minister, who added that good and bad influences in a young man's life, no matter how insidious and slow their development and how unnoticed their strengthening hold, were none the less, capable of avoidance, provided there was sufficient determination in the character of the person involved. Moses was so able to direct his own life that he was fitted for his supreme life task of directing the destinies of the chosen people. And in the same way those young people, who showed a power to turn their steps on life's highway toward the throne of the Almighty, would become the lights of Christianity and the Christ message in this life, and demonstrate the fitness and beauty of the eternal laws of God.

ADELANDE STREET BAPTIST.

"Does It Pay To Be a Christian?" was the subject of an address in the Adelaide Street Baptist Church by Rev. Floyd Holland on Sunday morning, when he preached to a large congregation.

Taking the life of St. Paul as an analogy, he detailed the various incidents in the life of the great missionary to the Gentiles, instancing the innumerable sufferings through which he fought, never losing faith in his God, until finally, on the eve of death at the hands of the Romans, he was able to say with perfectassurance and absolute confidence "that he had lost all things and suffered all things for Christ's sake and that he pleasured in the sufferings because of his love for Christ, and his knowledge in Christ's love for him.

"Three times St. Paul was shipwrecked, many times he received stripes at the hands of the Jews and the Romans. He was put in prison in many cities in Asia Minor, and once spent a day and a night on the ocean. Added to this he was afflicted with opthalmia, and in spite of all, he retained under every hazzard his supreme and courageous optimism that made him the greatest of all missionaries and the most devoted of all Christian preachers."

St. Paul Succeeded.

"St. Paul succeeded in his task in life," said Mr. Holland, "because he had a fixed goal in sight. He never wavered from his objective, and he never flinched from the path of duty to his Lord. At the end of his life he could say with trues, 'I have run a good course,' and that it had been a hard course was evidenced in the history of his life. He was actually an ambassador of Christ, and paid in bodily sufferings for his enthusiasm for his Master.

"In Christ I can do all things said St. Paul, and in Christ we can do all things. That it pays to live a Christian life is the declaration of the apostle, and we shall find the same remuneration in the matter of consolation and faith and happiness if we pursue the same path in life. In death and in life it pays to follow the teaching of Christ. Has He not told us "Lo I am with you alway even unto the end," and if we love Him as St. Paul loved Him we shall have the constant companion of His spirit so that we shall never at any time or in any circumstance feel that we are alone or that we are betrayed by life."

Evening Service.

At the evening service he preached on the second coming of Christ, referring to the testimony of Christ and of numerous witnesses as to the promise of His return. He gave three reasons for the second coming of the Lord as follows: To translate the living, to fashion our bodies after His own glorious body, and to receive His people unto Himself. There was nothing of fear, said Mr. Holland, in this return of Christ, it was a visitation for the salvation of humanity and it must come in the visible person of Christ to follow the teaching of Scripture. Any other fashion would not conform to the story of the Bible.

The church was well filled at both services, there being no seats left in the building, morning or evening. A large number of conversions were made at the evening service.

CHURCH WILL CARRY ON IF UNION BILL PASSES

Tillsonburg Presbyterians Sign Petition Protesting Proposed Bill.

Special to The Advertiser.

Tillsonburg, April 27.—One hundred and twenty members, including a majority of the church officials, of Avondale Presbyterian Church, have signed a petition to be sent to the Senate and House of Commons, protesting in no uncertain tone against the passing of the proposed union bill.

The documents have been forwarded to F. H. Chrysler, K.C., Ottawa, who will look after the interests of the local congregation, who have absolutely no desire for union, as proposed, by coercion.

"Should the bill pass there will still be a Presbyterian Church in Tillsonburg with a larger membership than ever, because the majority of the church members in the smaller villages surrounding Tillsonburg have decided individually to attend the local church if their church is taken away from them," declared a prominent Presbyterian today.

"The board of managers have plans ready for a new banquet hall and Sunday school addition to cost in the neighborhood of $7,000, and are awaiting upon the action taken at Ottawa before proceeding. The church also has a fine endowment fund, which will revert to the relatives of the donor if the bill carries at Ottawa."

Mah-Jong Sets From China

It has swept the country like wildfire—this Ancient and Royal Game of Chance. Thousands of years ago, emperors began matching their wits over it, and it was not until many years later that the aristocrats allowed the commoner the privileges of the game.

Fascinating with its suggestion of mysterious walls, its personified winds and flowers, its fearsome dragons, and its clinking, slender little moneysticks, the forebears of our modern poker chips.

To-day I saw

When the high gods bestow Beauty upon a favored mortal, there is one stipulation which they always make. If the mortal wishes to retain their gift, she must cherish it. For if she neglects her Beauty it will vanish.

Fortunately most mortals have learned this truth—they know that intelligent and consistent care will preserve and enhance this gift of the gods. It will even develop hidden beauties which the gods have forgotten.

Did you ever realize how many alluring articles de toilette have been compounded for the express purpose of making lovely women lovelier still? Then just visit our Main Floor counters, where these articles are displayed.

Today I saw a delightful array of the beauty aids which, once used, become indispensable. Gone are the days when a tube of dentifrice and a box of talcum powder were the sum total of Fair Femininity's toilet requisites.

Now her dressing table contains an imposing array of jars and bottles, boxes and tubes, and vials. There are fragrant lotions, suave creams, clinging poudres and rouges, and perfumes which are always intriguing but never conspicuous.
