SIR CHARLES AND THE GRAND TRUNK.

The warmest admirer of Sir Charles Tupper cannot congratulate him on the petty personal warfare he has been carrying on against the officials of the Grand Trunk railway. Sir Charles' conduct from first to last has been ill-tempered and undignified. Whether Sir Charles tried to bribe the Grand Trunk previous to the election of the Grand Trunk tried to bribe Sir Charles is not in view of the past record of Sir Charles, a matter of grave importance. Nobody will question that Sir Charles is a master of all the "resources of civilization" as applied to Canadian politics. But what should be a matter of concern to Canadians is that his high commissioner in England, who represents the dignity of Canada at the seat of government of the British empire, should be making of himself a common soldier in the interests of a certain party in Canadian politics. Sir Charles is as much a servant of the people as the humblest official in the land. He should not prostitute the office which he holds for the aggrandizement of any party in Canada. Least of all should he exhibit all the spleen and venom of his nature because the Grand Trunk railway, unlike the other great monopolies and corporations of the Dominion, did not choose to support the conservative party in the late dominion election.

If it was meet and proper that Mr. Van Horn and the entire power of the R. from ocean to ocean should be thrown against the liberals in the struggle, on what principle can the Grand Trunk corporation be condemned for exercising its influence in the direction of its interest alone?

It cannot, perhaps, be successfully disputed that any company or corporation has the right in political matters to protect its own interests. That such corporations, when they have attained the magnitude of the C. P. R. or the great manufacturing companies of Canada, constitute a menace to our representative institutions, is an incident of our civilization which can only be remedied, if at all, by the legislation of the future. But it is clear that if one corporation possesses this right other corporations possess it equally, and are equally competent to exercise it.

An interesting feature of the unseemly squabble between these knightly men, Tupper and Tyler, is the complaint of Sir Charles that many seats in Ontario were lost by the conservatives through the undue influence of the Grand Trunk railway. It will hardly be denied that the Canadian Pacific railway is a far more influential corporation throughout the Dominion than its great rival the Grand Trunk. How many seats were lost by the liberals through the "undue influence" of the C. P. R. has not, as far as the Montreal Times, the Gleaner, the Chatham World and the Woodstock Press, are bright and shining lights. The sole object of existence of the amiable gentlemen who edit these worthy sheets appears to be opposition to the local government—their stock-in-trade, should it be so called. Everything that Mr. Blair does is "iniquitous," "scandalous," "infamous," "corrupt," and "selfish." Everything that any friend of Mr. Blair does is charged to Mr. Blair. Everything that any friend of Mr. Blair is suspected of intending to do is charged to Mr. Blair as though it were established beyond a doubt to be his handiwork.

A BOHEMIAN SCHOOL OF CRITICS.

It is apparent to the casual observer that there has sprung into being within the past twelve months in this province, what may with much propriety be termed a Bohemian school of literature. In that precious galaxy the Sun, the Montreal Times, the Gleaner, the Chatham World and the Woodstock Press, are bright and shining lights. The sole object of existence of the amiable gentlemen who edit these worthy sheets appears to be opposition to the local government—their stock-in-trade, should it be so called. Everything that Mr. Blair does is "iniquitous," "scandalous," "infamous," "corrupt," and "selfish." Everything that any friend of Mr. Blair does is charged to Mr. Blair. Everything that any friend of Mr. Blair is suspected of intending to do is charged to Mr. Blair as though it were established beyond a doubt to be his handiwork.

IF THE MEMBERS OF THE LUNATIC ASYLUM COMMISSION RECEIVE THE INDEMNITY THAT HAS AT ALL TIMES BEEN PAID TO THE MEMBERS OF THAT BODY, THEY ARE SPOKEN OF AS "PILFERERS."

If a member of the legislative council goes back upon his pledges he is inspired to do so by Mr. Blair. If the speaker makes a certain ruling the reasons for that ruling are not referred to nor indeed does any allusion attach to Mr. Speaker, it is another attempt on the part of Mr. Blair to "stifle full discussion" or to "bulldoze" the house. If a general subsidy bill is introduced, which every member of the opposition votes for, it is an attempt on the part of Mr. Blair to "debauch the electorate." If Mr. Hall presents a bill for stationery which seems to some to be excessive, the Bohemian editor of the World hastens to call it "petty larceny," the Sun and Times term it "steal," and it is forthwith chalked down to the credit of Mr. Blair.

Such abuse is not argument. It is the ranker kind of injustice to hold the leader of the government, or the government as a whole, responsible for everything that is said or done, or supposed to have been said or done, by every supporter, official, or contractor of the government. It is the meanest kind of political warfare to invent that which is false, perversely that which is true, attribute motives that do not exist and suppress all explanation that is given. By this means the press becomes the disseminator of falsehood and ceases to be the exponent of truth and morality. A partisan press is, perhaps, inevitable in a country where the people rule. In the past the press of Canada, on both sides of politics, has been unpartisan or unimpartial. It is time that a new rule should prevail. It is time that truth and decency should be observed and above all that in the strife of politics those principles of "fair play" that are inherent in the English speaking race should obtain, rather than falsehood and deception.

IT MAY BE, AS DR. OWENS OF DETROIT DECLARES, THAT BACON MURDERED SHAKESPEARE. NO ONE WILL DENY THAT HE HAS BEEN MURDERED BY A GOOD MANY PEOPLE SINCE BACON'S TIME.

THEORY AND PRACTICE.

A most delightful theorist is Mr. Bellamy and a most delightful book for people of an enterprising turn of mind is Mr. Bellamy's "Looking Backward." Mr. Bellamy probably did not succeed in convincing himself of the soundness of his views of the future of the race, but that did not matter provided he could only convince, or at least interest others, and thus sell his book. But there were some who were convinced by Mr. Bellamy to whom it mattered seriously as to whether Mr. Bellamy's views were sound. It appears that in October, 1885, two enterprising apostles of Bellamy, Barnett G. Haskell and James J. Martin, established the Kaweah Colony, in Tulare (?), California, ostensibly to carry out nationalistic ideas. Haskell & Martin established a joint stock company, and the former started a magazine, claiming that the Kaweah Colony owned 4000 acres of timber lands and 1000 acres of grazing land. The most glowing descriptions were given of the delights of living in the colony, which was being run on the Bellamy plan. Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of people during a period of over three years have been duped into the scheme, many persons spending their all to get to Kaweah, and working for a long time, living meanwhile on cheap fare. The workers were not paid in money, but in time checks, a system devised by Haskell. Thousands of these worthless bits of paper have been issued and many persons have nothing else to show for their three years' labor, as the lands belonged to the government which had never acknowledged the entries of the flock. The arrangements for entering were for the applicant to pay $500, $100 being cash, the balance in sums of $5. By getting new recruits through the influence of the magazine it is estimated that the revenue of Haskell & Martin, who received all these moneys, was $3,000 per month. Some persons were permitted by the alleged board of directors to come to the colony and work out their $400 balance for membership. These schemers got the people to come and finish building the road for their board and clothes. The scheme has now been exposed by the arrest and conviction of the trustees and leaders on charges of cutting timber on government lands. A Mrs. V. Goodwin, late of New Hampshire, in a letter to the press, describes the condition of the colonists of Kaweah as horrible, she having been one of them, and she says all who have been able to leave the colony have done so.

A TIME OF MOURNING.

Sadness and sorrow have come to many homes in Fredericton during the past week. Over many other homes the dark shadows have been resting and are not yet lifted. It is little that the newspapers can do to alleviate personal affliction that is caused by the ravages of death. But the people of our city, in whose midst all this trouble and grief exist, can do much. They can be helpful and sympathetic by the bedside of the suffering and in the homes of the sorrowing. To the poor they can extend material aid. Those who do not need material aid they can comfort by their words and services. Christians need nothing if it does not mean brotherhood. And the only brotherhood that has any value in times like the present is the brotherhood which manifests itself amid affliction and adversity.

DISCOURAGING.

The Fredericton Gleaner is discouraged. It affirms that with the exception of the bills relating to the legislative council, and railways, "no measure of first rate importance has been passed" and it declares that "these measures do not reflect credit on either the government or the legislature." How different was the tone of the little paper when it was singing the praises of Mr. Blair a few years ago! Then the legislation was brilliant, progressive and beneficial. Now, with the record of Mr. Blair's reign as a precedent for the government before it, and the failure of Mr. Gregory's attempt to abolish Mr. Fellows, the political outlook from the Gleaner windows is indeed discouraging. It is about four years since it undertook the contract of annihilating Blair and setting up another in his place. Poor little Gleaner!

ISLAND POLITICS.

The recent by-elections in Prince Edward Island have rendered it impossible for the government to remain in power, a liberal administration has been formed of which Frederic Peters is to be attorney general, J. R. Meunier, minister of public works, and A. McMillan, minister of crown lands. The retiring government requested the lieutenant governor to dissolve the house, but this he declined to do. In both branches of the legislature the liberals have a slight majority. The house met on Thursday and after electing B. O. McLeelan, of Prince county, speaker, adjourned until the middle of June to allow of the election of the portfolio members of the new executive.

PARENTAL SOLICITUDE.

The expulsion of the young man, Luigi Testa, from the Normal school for exhibiting an objectionable drawing to the students of the institution, has called forth many expressions of dissent from the press. If, as stated on good authority, the drawing was taken to the school by one of the young men, the school authorities, and the mother and the father, the punishment was unjust. Charles Hemming's presentation of the case in the Sun was a forcible one and worthy of attention. Mr. Creed's anxiety lest his own offspring should be contaminated, is not in the highest degree flattering to the school authorities. His action, however, can hardly affect his popularity; he enjoys the rare felicity of having passed that stage.

ELECTION PETITIONS ARE A CROP THAT NEVER FAILS IN CANADA.

Fourteen Liberal and 20 Conservative petitions were presented in most cases this protest business is supported by neither equity nor sense. There is no sense in protesting elections where there is no reasonable prospect of changing the result, and there is no equity in such a course where the petitioner has availed himself of the same improper practices as those which he alleges against his opponent. The petitioner should possess not only clean hands but a clear head.

AMERICAN CITIES.

Some wonderful facts are given by the Census Bureau at Washington as to the growth of American cities during the past ten years. In 1881 New York was the only city in the United States with more than a million of inhabitants. To-day there are three: New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia. There were 20 of over 100,000; now there are 28. Chicago has grown by half a million, while Denver, Minneapolis, Omaha, St. Paul and Kansas city have each, in round figures, increased from 30,000 or 40,000 to about 150,000.

It is thought that Canadian cities, when the present census is completed will show equally rapid growth. Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, and Vancouver have grown enormously and many other cities have made very substantial progress. As the advantages of Canada become better known and its resources more thoroughly developed the tide of immigration cannot fail to set more strongly higher. Unrestricted reciprocity with the United States would in the opinion of THE HERALD, double the population of Canada in ten, or at most in fifteen, years.

FROM AROOSTOOK TO BANGOR.

The various townships of Aroostook county have voted with a practically unanimous voice to grant $500,000 in aid of the construction of a short line of railway to connect with the Maine Central railway at Bangor. Hitherto all the freight and passenger traffic of that prosperous and fertile region has passed over the New Brunswick railway, now a part of the C. P. R. system. At present it is admitted that the C. P. R. gives Aroostook county the best service it ever possessed, but the people over the border appear to want a line of their own. By the generous aid they offer they show that they possess the courage of their convictions. The amount subscribed is not sufficient to build and equip the road, however, and as the State of Maine grants no subsidies to railroads a large investment of private capital will be necessary. The attitude of the Maine Central and C. P. R. corporations towards the enterprise is yet uncertain; at present the prospects for the line being built do not seem, despite the action of the Aroostook people, particularly bright.

BALLOT REFORM.

The following named states have adopted the Australian system of voting in all its essential particulars: Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Washington, Oregon, California, Missouri, Arkansas. Twenty-four in all. It is also to be noted that in Michigan, New Jersey and Connecticut modified applications of the Australian system of voting a great advance in the way of ballot reform is being made. Canada has had the Australian system for many years, but it has not proved to be a dazzling success as far as reforming corruption is concerned.

AN INGENUOUS BOSTONIAN.

There is a man in Boston, the Post says, to whom the West End Railway Company is a great convenience, outside of the advantages he derives from the organization in the way of transportation. This worthy citizen resides in Roxbury district and almost directly in front of his dwelling is one of the large iron guy posts which supports the trolley wire. Now, it is a well known fact that the overhead system of the West End Company is so constructed that a large amount of electricity generated at the different stations is lost, before it reaches the point where it performs its work, by reason of defective insulation. This is caused by leakage of the current down the wet poles whenever there is rain, or indeed to a large extent when there is moisture in the atmosphere. It is estimated that over 50 per cent. of the current generated goes to waste, and what is more, the company has tried in vain to remedy the trouble.

Now, the ingenious citizen above referred to was one day handling the water pipe which ran into his house, and was surprised at receiving quite a shock. This led him to investigate, and he discovered that the water pipe entered the building very near the guy post of the electric railway. Here was an opportunity not to be lost. He purchased some storage batteries, and after making a few experiments, which he was enabled to do by a limited knowledge of electrical science, he proceeded to equip his house with wires, lamps and other contrivances. He then connected his storage battery with the electrified water pipe, and he soon had his battery fully charged. From the battery he lights his home from top to bottom and in the morning, before going down town to business, he simply turns on the water-pipe connection, and when night comes the battery is ready for his evening work. He has been so lighting his dwelling for some time, at no inconvenience or expense, and in addition he operates an electric fan, a system of call bells and a burglar alarm.

The West End people are by no means ignorant of the fact, but as the electricity thus used would otherwise be wasted, and as the company is in no way affected by the draught upon its dynamo, the clever scheme is not interfered with. There is at least one man in Boston who considers the overhead electric system a grand good thing.

REMARKABLE BEAR CAPTURE.

One of the most singular occurrences happened the other day on Renous river. It appears that whilst some of the river drivers were at work on the bank, they discovered what appeared to be a man swimming in the ice-cold water, which was in itself wonderful at this time of year, but seeing that others were in company with the supposed man, the party proceeded to investigate and to their surprise found the swimmers to be three bears. Having rescued the two ropes and a canoe the men proceeded to the capture which turned out to be a difficult matter as Madam Bruin was exceedingly warlike.

After a great deal of difficulty the two half grown cubs were secured by running a rope around the neck of the mother, the mother was headed for the nearest shore. Before reaching the shore they took the precaution of passing a small chain around the old bear's body, which was a wise move as the cub proved, for before the canoe reached shallow water the old bear attempted to charge into the frail craft to rescue the youngsters. John Connolly, one of the most daring of the men, succeeded in drawing the "paw" or rope of the canoe under the chain around the body of the old bear and he was enabled to pull the canoe to the shore with the old bear half in and half out of the canoe.

Meanwhile the young bears were making efforts to escape and all three were kept up an animated conversation in their own language, the mother appearing to be the mother and the names of the cubs being almost human in their expression. The struggle was so fierce that three of the party of captors now mourn the loss of sundry parts of their shirts and pants, while one man, Richard Fraser, received a severe laceration of the forehead which will prevent his using his peevy for some time. The capture of the cubs was at last made secure by tying them to the nearest log on reaching the shore, but while so doing the old bear managed to get back into the water, and being tied to the canoe she had actually tumbled the craft out on the river some distance before being discovered. Some of the men immediately got on logs and poled after the runaway, and, having boarded the canoe, they again brought it to land where Madam Bruin was forced to bear the captivity of the young ones.

The bears are now in charge of Mr. Connolly and will be offered for sale, either in Chatham or Newcastle as soon as the river-driving is over. Any naturalist who wants to see more good animals should not miss this chance.

PRESENTATION TO A PRIEST.

On the occasion of his removal from Woodstock, Rev. John Murray, Catholic priest, was the recipient of a very flattering address from the leading prelates of the town, together with a silver water pitcher and goblets, handsomely engraved. In his reply, Rev. Mr. Murray speaks out in this manner:— "I have always made it a rule to respect the honest convictions of those who differ from me as to their religious convictions. While we differ in this matter, I have always been of the opinion that in other matters we can agree. In how many ways can we be of service to each other? How many occasions in which we can be charitable and friendly! While, therefore, we agree to disagree as to our religious belief, let us not forget the thousand and one ways in which we can agree without any violation of principle. We can be good citizens, kind neighbors speaking and thinking kindly of each other, and rendering each other help and assistance when occasion requires it."

FISHING FOR GUDGEONS.

One morning when Spring was in her teens
A morn to a poet's wishing—
All trotted in a dainty green and greens,
Miss Bessie and I went fishing.
I in my rough and humble clothes,
With my face at the sun's shining mercy;
She in a dainty green and greens,
And her nose tipped vice versa.

I had my rod, my reel and my hooks,
And a hamper for luncheon recess;
And she had her bait of comely looks,
And the seine of her golden tresses.
We sat in the shade of the Nashwalk dyke,
Where the white pond lilies teeter,
And I went fishing like quaint old Ike,
And she like Simon Peter.

All day I lay in the light of her eyes,
And dreamily waited and waited;
But the fish were cunning and wouldn't rise
And the baiter alone was baited.

So when the time for departure came
My lug was as flat as a flounder;
But Bessie had neatly hooked her game—
A hundred and eighty pounder.

The British Parliament is considering a bill for disciplining clergymen who are guilty of grave offenses against society and morals. The fact that such a law is necessary may be taken as another evidence that clergymen are human.

Fanny Hobbs, an old maid, who lives with her brother and sister, a mile from Ancaster village, Ont., committed suicide by hanging on Sunday. She was found hanging in the barn by her sister. No cause is assigned for the fatal act.

The winner of the match, says the Biddeford Times, will be justly entitled to recognition among all other Mainers.

The first marriage with Moslem rites ever known to have taken place in England has just been recorded. The bride is the daughter of the late Judge Fitch, of Liverpool, and the groom is a barrister, practising in London, who is a full-fledged Mohammedan. As a concession to the religious prejudices of the bride, who is a Christian, the marriage service of the established church was first performed.

An exciting scene was witnessed on Saturday at a football match in Belfast. The spectators became angered at an apparently unfair ruling of the referee, and broke up the game. About 2,000 men threw stones and missiles and poured into the field. The members of a visiting club were singled out for attack, and a free fight with clubs and stones ensued. The 50 policemen present were unable to cope with the rioters, and the battle went on until the arrival of reinforcements. A dozen people were badly hurt before order was restored. His tears at the funeral were likely genuine.

A peculiar and unusual scene was witnessed on Friday at the Home Office. The new factory bill restricts the hours of employment for women and children, and if passed will interfere greatly with the work of the city laundries. The laundresses have got very much excited on the subject, and a deputation of them visited the Home Office on Friday to protest against the bill. They nearly mobbed Home Secretary Matthews. The women were well dressed, and some of them very pretty, and the Home Secretary blushed and showed more nervousness than when he received a deputation of constables asking for more pay. The women protested that any further interference with hours of labor by the House of Commons would break up the laundries and throw them out of work altogether. The Home Secretary promised to do what he could in their behalf.

DISEASE PREVALENT.—The doctors and undertakers are reaping a harvest now-a-days. Never has there been so much sickness in Fredericton. One physician alone states that he has attended during the past month 150 cases of grip.

A NICE SPECIMEN.—Miss L. C. Irvine, of this city, has received from her brother, Edward Irvine of Arizona, a stuffed alligator about a foot and a half long. It is very life-like in appearance, and its dermis must have been a lively creature.

MARCH OUT.—The L. S. corps, headed by their band, had a march out last Wednesday in summer uniform, and presented a neat appearance. The band, although somewhat weakened by the loss of several of its performers, played some excellent marches.

ON THE DRIVE.—On Monday next, William Richards' drives commences operations on the southwest Miramichi. There is an excellent height of water at present, and with the large crew employed, Mr. Richards hopes to make a quick run to the boats.

THE BRIDGE APPROACH.—Travelers, especially those from the country, will be pleased to know that the city officials have taken in hand the matter of the defective approach to the Fredericton and St. Mary's bridge, with a view of having it remedied.

INDICATIONS OF SPRING.—One of the many indications of spring seen this week, was the editor of the little up-town daily forgetting that J. D. Leary still resides in New York.

BUT WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH THE SUN?—The "Leary editor" asleep or only "tired"? Later.—The Sun on Saturday copies the item from the Gleaner. The "Leary editor" is still alive and kicking.

MARYSVILLE NOTES.—The saw mill has closed down on account of the high water. It will probably not start again for some time.

RECENT APPOINTMENTS.—Thomas H. Colter, M. P. P., Arthur Ross and Richardson Boone have been appointed justices of the peace for York county. John Fugh has been appointed a justice of the peace and commissioner for the parish of Douglas civil court.

TONGUE VALLEY R. R.—Operations on the Tongue Valley rail road are being pushed along with all possible speed, but the snow being on the ground in many places makes the work rather slow. Contractor Kitchen has removed from Fredericton to Andover.

AT GIBSON.—The approaches of the C. P. R. track to the bridge are now very inconvenient, owing to the trains being backed up to the Y to the Canada Eastern depot. This is to be remedied by the construction of an independent track which will bring the train to the bridge without delay.

NO MIXED TRAINS.—General Manager Timmerman, of the Canadian Pacific railroad, has decided not to run any mixed trains after the next time table goes into effect—some time the last of May or first of June. This is a change for the better that the traveling public will appreciate.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICE.—To-morrow being educational Sunday in the Methodist church, there will be special services in the church here and at Marysville. Rev. Ralph Brecken of St. Sackville will preach at Marysville at the morning and at the Methodist church here in the evening.

OVER THE ROCKIES.—Arrangements are actively in progress for the proposed excursion of members of the provincial legislature over the C. P. R. to the Pacific coast.

AMATEUR TENNIS.—While a horse belonging to Alonzo Kelly of Nashwaakias, was standing in front of Neil's hardware store on Friday, it became frightened and dashed up Queen street at a two minute clip. It was stopped, however, in front of Wiley's drug store, before any damage was done, by Andrew Lindsay.

NEW CROSSING.—After much solicitation on the part of the people of Wellington ward, crossings have been laid down at the head of King and Brunswick streets. There is also much need of a crossing opposite the lower gate of the Normal school, where the students now have to wade through the mud to get to the school.

SPRING FRESH.—When the ice ran out so quietly it was generally supposed that there would be no fresh this spring. This has not, however, turned out to be the case, as during this week the water has been rising at the rate of about ten inches daily and is still rising, with every probability of reaching the usual height.

On the River.

The steamer Florensville, which arrived last week from her winter berth at Swan Creek, left on Tuesday morning on her first trip to Woodstock, carrying with her a large quantity of freight. She has been re-painted and re-fitted and presents a fine appearance.

The first schooner that arrived in port this season was the Mary George, D. P. George's fine vessel, Wilson master, which arrived from Boston Wednesday evening with a general cargo. She will probably take away a load of sleepers or shingles.

The schooner Mary Purdie will arrive here from St. John to-day (Saturday) and will load a general cargo of lumber from R. A. Estey's mill.

The steamer David Weston arrived here from St. John this (Saturday) evening with quite a quantity of freight. The company were disappointed in not getting her on the route earlier. Not expecting the ice to run out as soon as it did, the boats were not prepared for the service.

The social last Monday night under the auspices of the Star Council, R. T. of T., was a great success. Invitations were issued to all of the city and several of the county lodges, among those represented being, Fenian council, Star council, Gibson council, Loyal Orange temperance lodge and the L. O. G. T.

The following program was rendered, after which ice cream and cake, etc., were partaken of.

Selection—71st batt. band. Opening address—N. W. Brown. Comic song—Chas. Hemming. Duett—Messrs. Winter and Haviland.

Selection—71st batt. band. Duett—Messrs. Todd and Clarke. Solo—Wm. Crowdon.

Selection—71st batt. band. Reading—Thos. Thompson. Coming song—Chas. Hemming. Selection—71st batt. band.

The music of the band was much admired by all, and was certainly excellent for the length of time they have been organized.

The comic song of Chas. Hemming brought down the house, and he was obliged to respond to vociferous cheers.

Death of Mrs. Girvan. From Washington Friday came the sad news that Mrs. Samuel Girvan, of St. John, daughter of John Richards of this city, had passed away. Mrs. Girvan, some weeks ago, accompanied by her mother, went south in the hope of benefitting her health.

All the skill and kindness lavished upon her could not, however, stay the ravages of the dread malady, consumption, and she declined visibly as the days went by. She was being conveyed towards her home by the steamer Dominion, when on reaching Washington, further progress was found impracticable, and in that city she died. It is needless to say that Mrs. Girvan's death will be mourned by many in this province.

Her kindness of heart had endeared her to all who knew her. Socially her friends were legion, and as a talented vocalist, she will long be remembered in Fredericton, where she was born and where her earlier years were spent, and in St. John, which since her marriage has been her home. Mrs. Girvan was thirty-two years of age and had been married ten years. To Mr. Girvan and his young family, and to Mr. and Mrs. Richards and others, to whom Mrs. Girvan was near and dear, THE HERALD extends its deep sympathy. The remains of the deceased lady will be brought to St. John for burial.

A Soft Snag. A well-known city sport is hugging himself over the ease with which he won a $5 bill. On hearing that Hon. Mr. Blair had gone to New York he offered to wager that amount that either the Sun or Gleaner would indicate that he had gone to see Mr. Leary. Another sport whose bump of sagacity is evidently in need of repairs, promptly accepted the bet. For two days the speculators remained in suspense. On Thursday evening, however, sport No. 1 was seen waving the Gleaner triumphantly about his head. Sure enough, he had scooped the pool, for there it was in black and white.

Mr. Blair and Mr. Pugsley left for New York yesterday morning on some secret mission, the nature of which has not transpired. In this connection it must not be forgotten that J. D. Leary still resides in New York.

But what is the matter with the Sun? The "Leary editor" asleep or only "tired"? Later.—The Sun on Saturday copies the item from the Gleaner. The "Leary editor" is still alive and kicking.

Marysville Notes. The saw mill has closed down on account of the high water. It will probably not start again for some time.

Sale of the Government Horses.

A great number of horsemen from all parts of the province attended the sale of the government horses at the stable on Wednesday afternoon last. Among those present were: Hon. Messrs. Mitchell and McLellan; Messrs. W. Gilden, J. Carr, and G. R. Ketchum, M. P. P., of Woodstock; Messrs. T. P. Mott, and J. M. Johnston, of St. John; Messrs. H. McLaughlin and G. Beer, of Sussex; Wm. Graham, of St. Stephen; J. Peters, of Moncton; Charles Sergeant, of Newcastle; John McConnell, of Marysville; Messrs. F. P. Thompson, D. J. Stockford, R. A. Estey, G. H. Thomas, I. Peabody, John A. Edwards, and W. P. Flewelling, of this city.

All of the horses were sold, the purchasers and the figures realized being as follows: SIBIE.

Sweep—$425, to W. F. Glidden, Woodstock. Mirfield Draughtsman—$280, to Charles Sergeant, Newcastle.

Gunboat—$180, to J. M. Johnston, St. John. CLEVELAND BAY.

Balougie Prince—$345, to J. M. Johnston, St. John. Angus Chief—$145, to Warren Bull, Grand, Carleton Place.

Simon Beattie—$255, to St. Croix agricultural society. CLEVELAND BAY.

Lord Stansfield—$385, to Harvey Wilson, Moncton. Duke of Cleveland—$240, to George D. Grimmer, St. Stephen.

COACH. Earle—$230, to J. B. Porter, River de Chute. PFERCHION.

Arion—$335, to J. W. Johnson, St. John. After the sale of the government horses, Uncle Sam was put up by auctioneer Wetmore, but was withdrawn.

Police Penitencing. On Thursday morning, two drunks made deposits of ten and five dollars respectively.

Charles Russell, his son Harry, and Martin Nowlin, who were convicted last week of stealing geese, etc., were arraigned before the police magistrate on Monday last, and sentenced to four months in the county jail.

Four Maryville lads arrested on the charge of destroying property belonging to Alex. Gibson at Maryville, were convicted and fined five dollars each, which was, however, allowed to stand over on condition of good behavior in future.

The prisoners, Martell, Austin and Quinn, who were arraigned before the police magistrate this week on a charge of stealing money from John Welton, St. Mary's, came before Judge Stewart on Friday, under the speedy trials act, but were discharged, there being no evidence against them.

On Thursday morning last, James Barnett laid information against Chas. Burns, charging him with carrying a shotgun on him with intent to do bodily harm. Both of the parties are from Douglas, and the quarrel is the outcome of a suit for trespass which Burns had brought against Barnett. The arrest was made at Maryville by deputy sheriff Hawthorn and policeman Phillips, just as Burns was boarding the train to go stream driving.

At eleven o'clock he was arraigned before police magistrate Martell, and remanded all the same hour Friday morning. The case is now proceeding before the police magistrate, Wm. Wilson appearing for the plaintiff and Wesley Yanwart for the defendant, and is attracting considerable interest.

Horse Notes. Prince Regent, a horse for which C. J. Hamlin, the Buffalo horseman, refused $80,000, died the other day of pneumonia.

John McConnell, of Marysville, has purchased from James Gibson of the same place, for St. Stephen parties, the trotting stallion, six years old, formerly of Truro.

W. B. Mitchell, of the Western Union telegraph office in this city, is the possessor of a fine Sir Charles colt, of which he feels justly proud. Although not yet two years old, he already shows signs of speed beyond the ordinary.

Two of the most promising colts in the city are Allie Morris by Allice Clay, dam the well-known mare Phantom, and The Premier, a Standard bred stallion by Harry Wilkes, out of the same mare, both owned by S. H. McKee.

The plucky little pacer Bruce, which helped to make things lively on the Marsh road last winter, when driven by John Moore, and which afterwards fell into the hands of E. Le Roy Willis, is now owned by James Gibson of Marysville.

Timothy Murphy has purchased from R. A. Estey a four-year-old gelding, by Keasage, dam by Duke of Cambridge, to replace the late lamented Bonangler. The wind will be whistling through Timothy's whiskers before the snow flies again.

Atkinson and Cook's Minstrels. This famous company, formerly under the management of Mr. Baird, is to appear at the city hall on Friday evening, May 1st. The Winsted (Comedian) citizen says of the troupe:

The minstrels, Atkinson and Cooks, at the opera house, Saturday night were "in it." They played to a large house, and they gave one of the best, breeziest, and most laughable minstrel entertainments that has come to Winsted in a long time. Their jokes were new, sparkling and not offensive in any sense, and barring one or two jokes, for which the editor can be forgiven, there was nothing of the mosty chestnut about the witlings. The result was that the large audience was in a state of uproarious laughter from 8.15 to about 11 p. m., and retired from the opera house with a satisfied feeling that the full money's worth had been given. We believe this is the first appearance of this troupe in Winsted, but hope it will not be the last. The members of this minstrel company are thoroughly good, even to the white bull dog, who closed the last act amid the plaudits of the assemblage, in a death grip upon the seat of the pants of a "Rocky Mountain Dick."

Base Ball Notes. There will likely be a game between the L. S. C. and the Lone Stars on the 24th of May.

John O'Brien of last year's Shamrocks has signed with the Portlands of the New England League.

In a practice game the other day, with no runs for the Boston, Lake hit the ball safely, bringing in two runs for his team. Messrs. Lake and Jim Sullivan, of last year's Moncton and Shamrocks, respectively, are playing on the Boston league team.

The Potato Peelers have re-organized this season with a strong team and would like to get on a match for the 24th of May. H. McKee, captain; Fred. Hatt, secretary.

Fredericton will act as last two good amateur teams in the field this season, the Infantry School Nine and the Lone Stars. What the cranks want, however, is to see an amateur nine formed of the best material in the city, which will be able to face the amateur clubs of St. John, Moncton and St. Andrews.

At the Booms. The tugs of the Fredericton boom company have been busy for several days past and the various booms are nearly all in position now for the season's operations. It is thought that not over 105,000,000 feet will be handled at the boom this year, which is close upon the usual figures. Last year about 165,000,000 feet were handled, but in this was included about 50,000,000 feet hung up on the headwaters of the St. John, chiefly on the Aroostook, the year before. The rafts are also being dropped into Spring Hill daily and the surveyors have commenced their season's work.

Opportunity. Master of human destinies am I, Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait.

Cities and fields I walk. I penetrate Deserts and seas remote. And passing by Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late I knock unbidden once at every gate.

If sleeping wake; if fasting rise before I turn away; it is the hour of fate. And those who follow me reach every state. Mortals desire, and conquer every foe. Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate.

Consented to failure, penury and woe, Seek me in vain, and ceaselessly implore; I answer not, and I return no more.

But fall not in this respect; Seize every opportunity to travel Over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway.—SIN.

Salvation Treat. No. 2 company minister, under the command of staff-captain Bolton, of the Prison Gate house, and consisting of a wonderful troupe of instrumentalists, will visit Fredericton, Monday, May 24th.

Their programme is as follows: Esplanade Colts, trombone; Capt. Maloney, euphonium; Lieut. Pennington, cornet; Lieut. Angus, E flat bass; Lieut. Street, cornet; candidate Esplan, pianist; and sergt. Greenman, guitar. A big list is expected.

The Fredericton Market. The supply at the market this week has not been hardly up to the demand. Prices continue about the same as last week. We quote:

Beef, 6 to 7 cts; mutton, 5 to 6 cts; veal, 5 to 6 cts; ham, 9 to 10 cts; butter, 14 to 15 cts; eggs, 14 to 15 cts; chickens, per pair, 45 to 50 cts; ducks, per pair, 50 to 60 cts; potatoes, $1.00 to $1.75; hay, $9 to $11; straw, $5 to $5.50; oats, per bushel, 55 to 60 cts; buckwheat, per cwt., $1.50 to $1.75.

A VERSATILE WRITER.—One of the most graceful and clever writers among the brilliant contributors to Progress, Miss Grace Campbell of Moncton, paid a visit to Fredericton this week. While in the city she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Risteen. Miss Campbell has a provincial reputation in the role of "Astra." Geoffrey Cutburt Stimpert and other pseudonyms. Most interesting of the able pliaters of the day, and his subjects are interesting to everyone.

In the list of places where Dr. McElynn is to speak Fredericton is not included. This should be looked after at once. Fredericton is the intellectual centre of the maritime provinces and is capable of appreciating Dr. McElynn.

NEEDED IMPROVEMENT.—The wharves are receiving a much-needed renovation. For some years most of the wharves have been almost useless for traffic purposes, and as giving to steamers a most intolerable impression of the enterprise of our city. The change comes none too soon. Now, if some of our citizens who figure well up in the assessors list would only paint their houses Fredericton would be quite presentable.

A SAD ACCIDENT.—While returning from a dance at Carleton early on Friday morning, a boat-full of young men and girls was swept by the tide against the bow of the steamer Dominion, in St. John harbor, and opened from the opera house. The girls, Edith Allen and Lizzie King, were drowned. The young men in the boat acted in a most cowardly manner and made little effort to save their companions.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—Despatches from Montana state that a few days ago George H. Sewell, formerly of Lincoln, Sunbury Co., now a first lieutenant in the west, was fired at and severely wounded by J. T. McCormick, whom he had recently discharged from his employ. The wound through a painful one did not prove fatal and at last accounts Mr. Sewell was slowly recovering.

YELLOW TEA.—The yellow tea on Thursday evening under the auspices of the Epworth church in connection with the Methodist church was well attended and a good time was enjoyed by everybody. The music of the F. O. M. W. orchestra was much appreciated. After the tea, the remnants of the cake, etc., were auctioned off, Wm. Lemont acting as auctioneer.

A SAD CONCIERGE.—It is very seldom that a funeral is seen going from one house to the cemetery for two hours are required. This, however, happened on Tuesday last, when Misses Eleanor and Louisa Wright, two sisters, were borne to their last resting place at Forest Hill cemetery. Their brother, Thomas Wright, is also very low and is not expected to recover.

HOSE STATION.—The lease of the lot on which No. 5 hose station stands on Brunswick street, having expired and Mr. Howie, the owner of the land, not caring to again lease it for that purpose, the city council have obtained a piece of land on Shore street from Peter Haining, and will remove the hose station there immediately.

NEW RESIDENCE.—Mr. R. D. Wilmo's new residence at Belmont is nearly completed and will be ready for occupation by the first of May. It is a handsome two-story brick structure and reflects great credit upon the contractor, Joshua Limerick of this city. A walk through the building will well repay the visitor for his trouble.

The Roll Call.

On Thursday morning last, Mrs. Margaret Collins, widow of the late John Collins, was found dead in her bed at her residence on George street. She had been ailing for some time, but her condition was not considered dangerous.

The death of M. S. Ryan on Wednesday last, removed from our midst a respected resident of the city. Mr. Ryan came from Millville a few years ago, where for many years he had carried on a successful trading business. The circumstances of his death were peculiarly sad.

The many friends of W. E. Clowes will hear with much regret of the death of his wife, Cora G., a daughter of the late Thos. O. Miles, Esq., of Marguerville, Sunbury county, which occurred at Deer Lodge, Montana, on Thursday, 9th inst., of consumption.

The death, at Upper Sheffield, on Monday last, of Nathan P. Day, caused deep regret throughout all parts of Sunbury county. Mr. Day left behind him a wife and eight children. He was a brother of Dr. Day, the liberal standard bearer in the recent dominion contest. He had filled various offices in the Baptist church at Marguerville for nearly thirty years, and was widely known and respected.

Two deaths occurred at the Victoria hospital Friday morning—Mrs. John Thompson and Thomas Wright, both of whom died from the effects of la grippe. Mr. Wright was the father of the Misses Wright who died on Saturday last, making three deaths in one family in a week. Mrs. Thompson was the daughter of the late Mrs. Armon, who it will be remembered died at her residence a short time ago. Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Thompson then Miss Agatha Armon, wrote several novels, by which she acquired quite a reputation in the Maritime provinces.

MADE THEMSELVES AT HOME.—On Wednesday evening last a party of young people to the number of about fifty, visited the house of George Taylor on Brunswick street. Although Mr. Taylor's family was taken completely by surprise, they were not to the occasion, and a very enjoyable evening was spent, dancing being kept up to a very late hour.

A GOOD COMPANY.—The Boston ideal comedy company have been playing to good houses at the opera house all this week. They are without a doubt, as fine a company of artists in their way as have ever been in the city. The banjo and mandolin playing of Tommy Gillin was particularly fine, and proved him to be a musician of no mean order.

PROMOTED.—Readers of THE HERALD will be glad to know that Robert Atherton, of the St. John customs service, for so many years a resident of Fredericton, has been promoted to the responsible and lucrative position of collector of inland revenue for that port. Mr. Atherton has been a faithful and conscientious officer and well deserves his advancement.

BRIDGE AT WOODSTOCK.—The little town up-river is soon to have a bridge which will rival the structure of which Fredericton is so proud. Hon. P. G. Ryan, the chief commissioner, has been examining the various sites offered and listening to the rival claimants. The bridge will cost it is thought over $50,000. The site has not yet been selected.

When once used, you will like others, call for Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, and nothing else.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.—In the Sun-Steelman case before the supreme court, argument was closed on Saturday. Judgment was reserved.

Walter S. Fisher has been gazetted 2nd lieutenant in 1st batt. in place of lieutenant Miller, resigned.

SELECT STORY.

YOUTH WINS.

"To think we all knew him when he was out at elbows," exclaimed old Mrs. Ward.

"Well, at all events, he had not a decent evening suit, as we all know," put in Miss Jones.

"And he occupied a little cabinet au troisieime," continued Mrs. Ward, "and never drank anything but the vin comique of the table."

"Yet nothing is more sure than that Mr. Bernard is now Lord Merivale," said Mrs. Vivian.

"Then it's to be hoped he will pay madam's account," cried Miss Jones.

"I have settled madam's account, since that interests you," said a cold, quiet voice from behind.

"If I shall had burst in our midst we could scarcely have been more struck with consternation."

"I have settled madam's account, since that interests you," said a cold, quiet voice from behind.

"I have settled madam's account, since that interests you," said a cold, quiet voice from behind.

"I have settled madam's account, since that interests you," said a cold, quiet voice from behind.

As she stood outside my door she whispered, "Then you will go with us to the Louvre to-morrow morning?"

"Yes, I will go," I replied. And then with another good night she disappeared down the gallery, and I returned to my seat by the fire to meditate on what I had heard.

"The comfort—at the price," replied Mrs. Ward, briefly, with a smiling smile at the simplicity of my question.

"Mrs. Vivian," she said, "is, I fancy, the only person who is coming here now. All of us noticed his kindness to her when Mr. Vivian died—not but what he was kind to any one he saw in trouble."

"He may also have the consideration not to forget the friends he had in the days of his poverty. He may not have come here to see any one specially," I ventured to remark.

"My dear, you may be a writer, but you don't know the world yet," was the withering rejoinder. "There are kindnesses and unkindnesses, and when a young man is very kind to a pretty woman, well it can have but one meaning."

"Then you think Lord Merivale has come awooing?" I inquired. "Yes; and so does Miss Jones, or she wouldn't have gone to the theatre to-night. It must have cost her something, for her remarks being overheard, to accept a courtesy from her lordship."

"You think, then, that she went so as to give Mrs. Vivian an opportunity of going?" I asked. "Not a bit of it," affirmed Mrs. Ward stoutly. "Miss Jones went out of pure contumacity. She felt sure those two would have preferred to be alone, so she went."

"But I exclaimed, "Mrs. Vivian surely would not have gone alone with Lord Merivale to the theatre."

"There you betray your want of knowledge of the world," said Mrs. Ward scornfully. "Mrs. Vivian would go anywhere with any one if she had enough to gain."

"Well, if she is that sort of a woman it is perhaps a mercy she has no child," I assented with some vehemence.

"But she has a child—a little girl that her husband's mother is bringing up in England. She makes a moan about this child every now and then, and says how cruel it was of her husband to express a dying wish that their child should remain with his mother. He bound his mother in one way, nevertheless, for she stated in his will that Olive (she calls her Puss) should not marry under age without her mother's consent, in which case she won't marry under age; but her mother has too much horror of becoming a grandmother."

"How old is little Olive?" I inquired. "Well, my dear, she used to be 11, then she became 10—now she is 8. She will probably become a baby again in time."

"I very much wanted to ask some more questions," said Mrs. Ward, "but I must go to bed. I got out my proofs, and went on correcting them till Lord Merivale appeared with Mrs. Vivian and Miss Jones. Then Alphonse, our small page boy, brought a little supper tray. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt had surprised herself it seemed, as Theodora that night, and both his lordship and Mrs. Vivian she has had a proposal for Puss, my suitable in every way."

"A proposal for your little daughter?" I cried with an incredulous laugh. "Impossible. Why it savors of India. Your little girl is only 9 years old, isn't she?"

"She must be more than that," admitted Mrs. Vivian, reflectively. "To tell the truth I have quite lost the count. I was married when I was young, and they took away my grandmother, and I thought me too much of a child myself to care for a baby properly, I suppose. Here the pretty widow sighed. "I can't help wishing," she went on, "with a sudden outbreak of confidence, "that it might be all settled between Lord Merivale and me before I am called upon to discuss this affair of Puss's with my mother-in-law. If the person who wants to marry Puss were only like Lord Merivale I would give my consent at once, for such a man would make her happy."

"I fear we are keeping Lord Merivale waiting," I suggested, for I really felt I had nothing to say about Puss's affair. "Of that morning's visit to the Louvre I shall only record what has a bearing on after events."

"I was in that gallery containing the Collection La Case, and were admiring the dresses in one of Watteau's pictures, when Lord Merivale observed: "When I look at these exquisite blues and pinks I always think it a great pity for women to wear black."

"And I am doomed to wear it!" sighed the widow. "Not doomed," rejoined Lord Merivale, "and I venture to predict that an occasion shall arise when you shall demand the putting aside of this diabolical garb."

"I was a few days away by this time looking at a Rembrandt portrait, but I distinctly heard all this said."

"I suppose I must give up this dress some day—for Puss's sake," Mrs. Vivian murmured.

"As I glanced toward them I observed a glad light spread itself over Lord Merivale's features."

"Yes, I was sure of it," broke in the young man excitedly. "They give me nothing to add to your child's happiness."

"Anything," replied the widow fervently. "Bless you for those words," said his lordship fervently. "They give me the courage to ask you to grant me a few moments alone with you this evening. I have a request to make to you—and your answer will render me either the happiest or the most wretched of men."

"On the way home Mrs. Vivian whispered to me, "It is coming, dear Miss Delaney—to-night."

At Mme. Laroche's we lunched at 2 o'clock. It wanted a quarter to that hour when I came down to the saloon after my walking dress. I was not a little surprised to find madam there with two strangers.

"I was about to withdraw when madam's shrill voice cried, "You would not have expected Mrs. Vivian, Sr., to be, but could this tall, graceful young woman be Puss?"

"I now observed the ladies in a bewildered fashion. The prim old lady in the stiff black silk was only what one might have expected Mrs. Vivian, Sr., to be, but could this tall, graceful young woman be Puss?"

"That pretty mother entered, before I had got over my astonishment, and appeared to be struck dumb for a moment. But speedily recovering herself, she embraced her daughter rapturously, exclaiming: "You are my naughty, neglectful darling come at last to her mother?"

"Then turning to the old lady, she exclaimed: "You are my naughty, neglectful darling come at last to her mother?"

"Then turning to the old lady, she exclaimed: "You are my naughty, neglectful darling come at last to her mother?"

"Then turning to the old lady, she exclaimed: "You are my naughty, neglectful darling come at last to her mother?"

"Then turning to the old lady, she exclaimed: "You are my naughty, neglectful darling come at last to her mother?"

"Then turning to the old lady, she exclaimed: "You are my naughty, neglectful darling come at last to her mother?"

tended both her hands—only one of which the grandmother took—and cried in her joyous trouble: "And you, dear Puss's grandmother, are you not come to scold poor, silly little me, are you?"

"You know what I am come about," answered the old lady severely, "and I trust you will be sensible about it."

The widow turned again toward her daughter and one of her winning smiles said: "And does my Puss think her little mother could refuse her anything, with her child's pretty eyes looking at her?"

"There was no answer to this appeal, for Lord Merivale came in just then, followed by Mrs. Jones and almost at once by old Mrs. Ward."

Lord Merivale stood apart, turning the leaves of a journal which lay on a table near the door. He was very pale I noticed; and I thought I could guess the cause. He, too, had been deceived by Mrs. Vivian about this daughter, and his whole faith in his future bride was shaken.

It was the elder Mrs. Vivian who spoke, and there seemed to be in her face and voice the holding-up of years. Before she uttered a word, I knew, I felt, that she would say before us all what she had intended for her daughter-in-law's ear alone. And so she did.

"So, Adelaide, you are unchanged, I perceive," she cried with withering scorn. "You still cling to your vanity, and hold on to a vanquished youth at the cost of all a woman should hold dear. Do not think your words to your child—yes; your child whose first appealing cries stirred no maternal response from you. Do not think those words devoid of any more than the false bloom on your cheeks—the false light in your eyes."

Here Lord Merivale stepped forward, saying deprecatingly: "My dear madam, I beg of you—"

He was not allowed to go on. The irate old dame meant to have her say, and went on, with a dignified wave of her hand toward Lord Merivale and Mme. Laroche, who was also about to interrupt.

"So, Adelaide, you will refuse your child nothing, now you say—well then, we will go, Olive—your mother consents to your marriage with Lord Merivale."

Mrs. Vivian uttered a scream and fell back—into the arms of little Dr. Hauser, who had just come in to look for Mr. Frost. To see that that respectable old gentleman was staggered is literally true, for, in addition to the mental shock of such an event as a lady falling unexpectedly into his embrace, the feeble old man felt his physical strength very unequal to the holding-up of years.

"Let us go, Olive," cried her grandmother. "First let me kiss my mother," Olive said in a trembling voice.

"No, I won't let you," her mother fairly screamed from the shoulder of Dr. Hauser, where her blonde head now rested, "and you, Lord Merivale, never let me see your child doing anything but what I command you to do."

"I think, Lord Merivale, that you have behaved very badly indeed to Mrs. Vivian," old Mrs. Ward observed with asperity. "We thought you were paying your address to her?"

Lord Merivale looked from one to another in a bewildered way. Then he asked me if I had shared in this delusion. I frankly admitted that I had.

"It is a great pity," a great pity," his lordship rejoined slowly. "You see I wanted to win the mother's consent to let me marry her daughter. I must have bungled sadly, but I never dreamt of anything like this. I thought of Mrs. Vivian as Olive's mother; that was all."

Yes, that was all. Lord Merivale had been staying at a friend's country house when they took their grandmothers, and were also guests, and he had fallen in love with the bright young girl and she with him. Then the grandmother had told him that, according to her son's will, the consent of Olive's mother must be obtained before she could be betrothed, and the old lady had added, "It is too much afraid of having her own age guessed at if she has a married daughter."

YOUR SMILE-WRINKLES.

"The lady love may deceive thee by the brightness of her eyes, her glossy hair, her white teeth, or her damask cheek, but look you and count the smile-wrinkles at her temples. Count ten years for every long and one for every short furrow," runs the Spanish proverb.

How frequently you find an old woman who is proud to claim a bit of the "old sod" as her birthplace with cheeks as smooth and round as a child's and the color of a ruddy apple. Sometimes you will be able to find hardly a line about the widely opened, childlike eyes.

Wrinkles are entirely unnecessary.
