Loss of the Steamship " Cana-(From the Quebec Chronicle, July 16.)

From the Quebec Chronicle, July 16.]

Appended to these remarks we publish the evidence taken before the Trinity Board, on The Charlest against Jean Leon Eoy, the pilot under whose charge the mail steamship Canadian was when she went sahore on the Avignon shoal, The eunciseness of the testimony, and the authentic manner in which it comes before us, will enable it to do more than perhaps any other state ment towards clearing up false ideas on the subject of the accident, which some have altempted to turn to the disadvantage of the St. Lawrence route. Now that the facts are fairly represented, the public will be enclied, by lits own unassisted sense, to discover that the whole blane lay with the pilot, and that it was some of the content of the con Lawrence oute. Now that the facts are fairly represented, the public will be enclosed, by its own unasisted sense, to discover that the whole blame lay with the pilot, and that it was neither from any defect in the vessel, any want of prodence or skillfalness in her officers, or any danger of the route that the accident occurred. The pilot seems to have blundered in a most unaccountable maner, and the Trinity Board, by prohibiting his exercise of the calling for which he has shown himself so unif, has properly penished his stupidity. Deprived of his branch, he will not longer endanger the safety of any vessel, and his diagrace will afford an example to others of longer and anger the safety of any vessel, and his diagrace will afford an example to others of Ocean Steamers should not suffer in reputation from this casualty, nor the St. Lawrence route be charged with a disaster attributable solely to the recapacity of one whose error is not likely to be repeated. The loss of the steamship was great; we should be the more sorry if we could but show, as we do now, that this was one of these sessualities which attend all human enterprises, and the recurrence of which cash the somewhat granched expinst, by different properties of the submergrable cannot be the more some of these sessualities which attend all human enterprises, and the recurrence of which each the submergises, and the recurrence of which each the submergist, and the body was found by graphing irons at about two o'chock of Saturday when the properties of auditions liques.

L. Mesers Story Rivinas & Co. Gentlemen,—Thave great pleasure in stating to you and the public at I am proud of my Mill. I believe that the Engine, Boiler and Machinery are as good as can be got up any where is Canada, and will cut a mich as any other mill. You are aware that she has been in full operation for eight months, and has not cost, for repairs, anything worth mentioning. I shall be hardy to recommend your Steam Saw Mills to any one withing to built such. Since the mill started we have not had to stop one hour from any fault of the Machinery. Yours respectfully, Sylvan, West Williams, 22nd January, 1857.

Mesers. Story, Rhynas & Co. Gentlemen,—You wish us to give an account of the capabilities of our Steam Saw Mill built by you, this we are most happy to do, so far as time has allowed us to judge. The large circular saw (5th diameter) was started one month ago, and has frequently been observed to cut four times through a twelve feet log, fourteen inches deep, in one minute, including girging back and setting. Any one acquainted with saw salted one month ago, and has frequently been observed to cut four times through a twelve feet log, fourteen inches deep, in one minute, including girging back and setting. Any one acquainted with saw smills will at once see its capabilities. The Muluy saw started a few days later, and is capable of cetting 5000 teet in 12 hours. The edging saw, futting off saw, boliting machine, lath mill, so far as we have used them. suita their purpose exceedingly well. Now, gentlumen, this is so far as few weeks in the middle of winter has enabled us to experience. At some future period we shall be meter happy to give you a full account of what our mills have done are capable of doing; meantime, we respect you as contractors, and your establishment as capable of fitting up good mechinery; and recommend those intending to build saw mills and such sanchingery, to give you a good mechinery; and recommend those intending to build saw mills and suc
