He stood for a few minutes leaning against the wall, his arms folded, his eyes downcast. The table had been put on its legs again, play had been resumed as if nothing had happened. Isaacs came back presently.

"He's quite gone, sare!" he said, stretching out his hands apologetically. "I'm sorry! I keep a respectable house, as you know, sare—"

Talbot Denby waved his apologies aside and left the place. As he emerged into the cool air of the June morning, he drew a long breath through his closed teeth and shrugged his shoulders.

"The cursed luck!" he muttered. "I shall have to go to the Court after all!"

It was characteristic of him that he had forgotten the thief, the struggle, the man's threat—everything but his ill-luck. In short, Mr. Talbot Denby, the "coming man," the rising politician, the heir to the Earldom of Lynborough, was a born gambler of the worst and most vicious type.

CHAPTER V.

"Are there any more letters?" asked Veronica.

She was seated at the bureau in the window of the library, the earl lying back in his big chair beside the fire. Veronica managed his correspondence as well as ran the vast place, and it was her custom to come to him in the library every morning and answer his letters for him.

"Thanks; there is nothing else, I think," he replied. "Ah, yes, there is this note from Talbot! He is coming down to-morrow—that is, if you care to have him."

Veronica raised her brows slightly. "Why not?" she said. "It is a long while since Mr. Denby has been here." It was noticeable that she called him "Mr. Denby" instead of "Talbot." Though she was a niece of Lord Lynborough's and Talbot Denby's cousin, her pride never allowed her to forget that she was a dependent, living on the caprice of the great earl and liable at any moment to be dismissed at his pleasure.

"Yes," he assented, drily. "Talbot rarely comes here except on business. I find no difficulty in guessing at his business on this occasion. Write and tell him he may come."

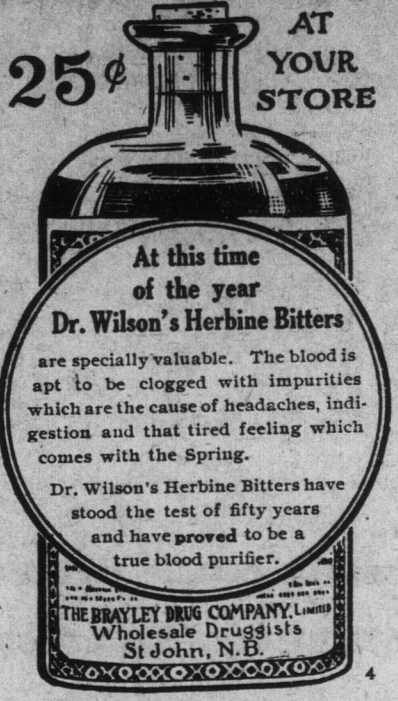

Veronica rapidly wrote a line or two saying that Lord Lynborough would be glad to see his nephew; then she said:

"If you are sure that is all, I think I will go out; it is the loveliest of mornings. Do you wish to me to go anywhere, do anything for you, Lord Lynborough?"

"If you are walking, you might go down to Burchett's and tell him that he may engage that young fellow. It seems that there was a difficulty; the man's character, testimonials, were rather vague, and Burchett referred the matter to me. Under ordinary circumstances, I should have sent the fellow packing; but you appeared to take an interest in him the other day, and I departed from my usual course; which, by the way, is the proper one; for it is not wise to have a man about the place of whom you do not know anything, good or bad. I hope your protegee will turn out well."

A faint color rose to Veronica's face. "He is scarcely a protegee of mine, Lord Lynborough," she said. "He behaved very well the other day and risked his life to save a dog, and a small one at that."

"My dear Veronica," he retorted, with his cynical smile, "that kind of courage is of the commonest, and is possessed by nine out of ten scoundrels."

"He did not look like a scoundrel," said Veronica.

"Nine out of ten don't," retorted the earl. "Tell Burchett the man may stay until he detects him stealing the game or planning a burglary up at the house."

Veronica laughed softly at this characteristic speech, and soon afterwards left the house. As she had said, it was a lovely morning, and the young blood in her veins was thrilling in harmony with the joyous song of the birds and the soft, warm sun of an English June. She went down to the keeper's hut but found no one there, and she passed through the spinney and across the meadows to the river Erne, which ran through the valley, now in placid reaches, and now broken by boulders and shallows. It was a famous trout stream; but it was rarely fished, excepting by chance visitors to the Court; for Talbot, though he sat a park hack with grace and ease, was not a sportsman; your gambler rarely is.

CHAPTER IV.

One of the men he had displaced, the man on the right, gave a kind of snarl and muttered an oath as he looked up and sullenly shifted his chair. He was an evil-looking fellow—but so were they all—with shifty eyes and a cunning, cruel mouth which writhed as he blinked at the dancing ball on the roulette board. Talbot Denby scarcely glanced at him; and, taking his seat, at once fell into the attitude of the rest, as he placed some gold on the table and pushed a sovereign into a black square of the design painted in circular form on the table. The ball fell to the corresponding colour, and he raked in his winnings with a curved white hand. As the play proceeded and he won or lost his stakes grew heavier, and some of the notes had taken their place beside the gold. There were many such piles in front of the players: it was astonishing that such a crew should be possessed of such wealth.

For a time Talbot Denby's luck swung backwards from good to bad; but presently the bad set in firmly and one after another of the notes disappeared; but he played on, apparently unmoved, though his fellow-gamblers might have seen, if they had not been too engrossed to notice, that his lips were growing tighter and more bloodless, that his nostrils were becoming white and strained, and that the black eyes were glowing like points of fire under the half-lowered lids.

There were but few of the notes left, and he was placing one of them on a red square, when suddenly his lips parted with a snarl like that of a dog, his elbow crushed down upon the hand of the man beside him and he turned on him with the fury of a wild beast: he had caught the man in the act of stealing one of the notes.

The sudden low, repressed cry, all the more startling for its repression, shook the other players from their absorption. Snatching up their money, they sprang to their feet as one man, leaning forward and staring breathlessly at Talbot Denby, who had clutched the thief by the throat with an expression so savage, so primeval in its malignant ferocity that it was, in its incongruity with the refined face and graceful form, simply appalling.

The detected man struggled in the grasp of the long, lean fingers which held him as if in a vice and threatened to choke him, the two men were swiftly locked in a fierce embrace and, swaying to and fro, overthrew the table. There were no shouts; indeed, not a loud word was spoken, as if, even in that moment of intense strain and excitement, all were aware that they dared not make any noise.

Isaacs rushed towards them, waving and wringing his fat, dirty hands, and in a hoarse whisper imploring them to be quiet.

"Shentlemen, shentlemen!" he hissed, hoarsely. "What ish the matter? Oh, Moses! The policesh—they'll hear you! What ish the matter?"

Talbot Denby moistened his lips and turned his dry tongue in his mouth ere he could speak.

"This scoundrel has stolen a note from me!" he said in a low voice.

"It's a lie!" retorted the man, pawing at his throat and glaring at the white face above him with the air of a cur bawled of a bone.

"He has it in his hand now," said Talbot.

As he spoke he bent towards a side-table and, snatching up a spirit decanter, struck the man's fist a terrible blow. The man's hand opened and the crumpled note fell on the floor.

He made a rush for his assailant, but before he could reach him, the Jew had flung his arms round him, and, aided by some of the other men, had dragged him to the floor.

In springing back, the soft felt hat, which had partly concealed Talbot Denby's face fell off, and he stood, the centre of the excited group, a strange contrast to the rest. He caught up the hat and put it on. The thief had got to his feet, but was still held by Isaacs and a couple of men.

"Out you go!" said Isaacs. "You're a cheat, a low cheat! We don't want your kindsh here. Thish ish a respectable place—" As they pushed the man towards the door, he turned and looked over his shoulder and waved his bleeding hand at Talbot Denby.

"See thish!" he cried, hoarsely, as if he were still choking. "I'll make you pay for thish some day. I'll make you sorry for it, as well as you are! I'll wait on you! It may be for months, it may be for years, but it may be to-morrow! I'll be even with you!"

Talbot Denby, calm and cold again, regarded the man's working face and blood-shot eyes with haughty indifference, and turned away contemptuously.

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Logansport, Ind.—"My baby was over a year old and I bloated till I was a burden to myself. I suffered from female trouble so I could not stand on my feet and I felt like millions of needles were pricking me all over. At last my doctor told me that all that would save me was an operation, but this I refused. I told my husband to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I would try it before I would submit to any operation. He did so and I improved right along. I am now doing all my work and feeling fine.

"I hope other suffering women will try your Compound. I will recommend it to all I know."—Mrs. DANIEL D. B. DAVIS, 110 Franklin St., Logansport, Ind.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

C. E. I. the Victors.

Of Last Evening's Football Match—After a Hard Fought Contest Between the C. E. I. and St. Bon's, the Former Won out by Three Goals to Two.—The Evening was an ideal one for Football and a Goodly Gathering of Spectators Assembled Around the Arena to Witness the Game.

THE MATCH.

At the outset the C. E. I. showed up well and it looked as if they were going to have an easy victory. The Institute boys displayed good combination, made several runs and ere long Hunt scored the first goal.

C. E. I.—1. Resuming the aggressive the Institute forwards kept the ball in their opponents' quarters. The College boys seemed to have fallen to pieces, though Higgins and Power put up a rattling defence. St. John saved some hard shots but on this occasion while endeavouring to clear the ball went over the line and a corner was awarded the C. E. I.; Churchill placed the ball which was neatly headed into the net by Bob Stick.

C. E. I.—2. Encouraged by their success and before the Bon's had time to realize what happened, Churchill captured the leather, went down the right wing like a cyclone, passed to Bartlett who was on the spot and succeeded in beating St. John.

C. E. I.—3. For the balance of the half the College boys put vim into their play and did good work but no further scoring was done.

SECOND HALF.

The C. E. I. again started well and spectators thought the score would be as they thought the score would be increased. Suddenly the College boys struck out and bombarded the Institute goal with the result that Callahan after a clever bit of play landed the ball in the net.

ST. BON'S—1. This encouraged the College boys and their supporters, besides it put new interest into the game. Some of the C. E. I. players got the tired feeling which the St. Bon's took every advantage of and gave a lively exhibition. Callahan again took possession of the ball and from the left wing dropped the ball under the cross bar and into the twines.

ST. BON'S—2. Great excitement and enthusiasm then prevailed. The equalizing goal was expected because the College boys were putting forward their best efforts and had the best of the game, notwithstanding that they were a weaker team than their opponents. W. Callahan, who was a valuable asset to his team again captured the ball, made a splendid run and shot for the corner of the goal. Everyone thought for sure the ball had entered the net, but Marshall being a sprinter of repute saved the situation, barely in the nick of time. A scrimmage followed near the C. E. I. goal but the ball was driven back. A minute later the game ended, giving the C. E. I. the victory.

The players were:—C. E. I.—Marshall, goal; Hussey, Barnes, backs; L. Stick, Drover, Jupp, halves; Bartlett, Hunt, Auchinleck, Churchill, R. Stick, forwards.

ST. BON'S—St. John goal; Power, Higgins, backs; Ryan, Cleary, Crawford, halves; W. Callahan, Jackman (2), R. Callahan, J. Gear, forwards.

"Good-Bye Boys"

SUNG BY VOCALIST AT THE CRESCENT CENT.

To-night is Sidney Earnshaw's farewell appearance at the Crescent Picture Palace and perhaps the last time he will appear before a St. John's audience. During his engagement he has won many friends for this popular theatre and seldom has a singer scored as many successes as Mr. Earnshaw. His many friends will be pleased to know that he has received a very flattering offer on the Keith Circuit, beginning at St. John, N.B. As an entertainer he is perhaps the best we have ever seen and it is to be hoped that before many years he will find his way back to the Crescent again. Mr. Earnshaw is negotiating for another vocalist for a similar engagement and in course of time we shall have much pleasure in announcing his coming. Miss Louise Arkady, the talented soloist and vocalist will render some new songs that will sure please the Crescent patrons. On Monday she will make her first appearance. The three real special, Andrew Lang's Fairy Tale "Beauty and the Beast" is the feature for the opening bill next week, and another up to date subject will be presented during the same performance.

SENT HOME INCURABLE.—Yesterday afternoon a young woman named Kelly, of Trinity Bay, who was a patient at the General Hospital for some time past, was removed from there as incurable and put on board a schooner to be brought home.

The Brides.

I see the blushing brides go by, all sweet and blooming, to the church; and nothing fairer greets the eyes, however far a man may search. As nearer to the church they draw, the bliss they feel is all unfeigned, for they obey a holy law, and lead the life that God ordained. The old maids stand around outside, and think upon the yester-year; each had a chance to be a bride, and passed it up for some career. Each was ambitious to be known as lawyer, doctor or the like, and dismally each stands alone, and sees the brides go up the pike.

From 'neath the churches' spires and domes the brides go forth to normal lives, to make and manage happy homes and join the ranks of gracious wives. The old maids leave the wedding scene, with hearts that feel as though they'd burst; they fill their stores with gasoline, and cook their meals of winter-wurst. They choose the dress and veil the gold, their lives are but a dreary blank; they have no men around to scold, no kids to cuddle or to spank. Their eyes are full of tears unshed, their hearts of griefs that ever gnaw; their hair is gray, their noses red, their temper like a cross cut saw. Imagine, then, how though they feel, as by the churchyard gate they stray, and hear the wedding music peal, and see the brides in brave array!

Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works and I found 20.5 per cent of NITROGEN, Sulphate of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manure.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Hannes Kolehmainen.

Red McGehee says: The doc says Kolehmainen's heart might stop if he should try to start another marathon. So in a prospect, that, for any guy to have hung out before his eye to feast its gaze upon. But Hannes hears the doc's an' smiles. Preparin' for his next fast miles he's home among the Finns. He's gonna summer over there. His trainin' camp's an easy chair. He sits an' rests his shins.

If Hannes don't throw any fits about his heart agoin' on the fritz or any future race, what right has poor ol' me an' you to worry, weep or fret or stew? We'd best just close our face. If Hannes never ran again he'd still rank high with runnin' men—his rep's already made. The Finn can glory in his past, there won't be any questions ast nor any spleen displayed.

Last month the New York Mail's big race saw Hannes finish in first place. A thousand men he beat. One hour nine minutes—Thirteen miles! At' runnin' on those hard brick tiles right out there in the street! He pulled the same stunt last year, too. For distance runs I guess he'll do, without a shade o' doubt. One thing about this Finn gets me. He runs for Irish A. A. C. That don't just figure out.

Take Warring.

As a guard against accidents boys attending football matches have been warned repeatedly to keep at a reasonable distance from the field of play like the adult spectators and to carry out this law a police officer does duty on St. George's Field every evening there is a match. Despite all warnings and cautions, boys persist in dipping as they please, it seems, with the result that last evening a boy received a kick in a vital part but luckily was not seriously hurt. This ought to be a lesson to the lads referred to and who can now see the error of their ways.

Nickel's Fine Bill

IS MOST ATTRACTIVE.

The Nickel Theatre was crowded last night with regular patrons who were delighted with the programme. The Nickel shows are always good but last night's was specially attractive. "A Child of the Sea," a two reel feature by the Selig Co. in which that well known and charming actress Kathlyn Williams is seen to advantage, was viewed with the greatest interest by every person in the audience. The balance of the programme was: "A Pathe Weekly," "The Great Arabian Prayer," "John Burns of Gettysburg," "The City of Rouen" and "A Jockey for Love," all delightful films. This evening the programme will be repeated and those who have not seen it should attend. Monday night there will be the all star Vitagraph cast in "His Life for the Emperor."

Drowning Accident on Gander River.

Two young lads, named Crowell and Bath, who with three companions were fishing from a canoe on the Gander River last evening, were drowned by the upsetting of their boat. The others escaped. The accident happened about 7.30 o'clock. The five lads set out in the boat to have a while salmon fishing, and as they had reached a swollen part of the river where a strong current was running, the little craft upset and the five occupants were thrown into the water. Three of them managed to escape but Crowell and Bath were carried rapidly down by the stream and were drowned. The agent at Gander informs the Reid Nfd. Co. that the river is very high at present, and that a strong current is running so that it is expected it will be difficult to recover the bodies.

MAKING UP.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The other day I met a young matron whom I used to know some years ago when she was a girl of eighteen or twenty.

My recollections of her were very pleasant, but the renewal of acquaintance was disappointing. In her girlhood she had been distinguished by an unusually sweet and charming manner. She had had a certain modesty, a certain self-effacing friendliness, an eagerness to serve and please that won many hearts, especially those of older people. All this was gone.

Of course, one expects more assurance in a matron than in a young girl, but the change was wider and more radical than that inevitable change which comes when the brook and river meet. One felt that the touching desire to serve and please had gone. Outwardly there was as great a change—I suppose for the better. As a girl she had been in very straitened circumstances, but her marriage had been financially successful and everything that pretty clothes, good taste, good living and careful grooming could do for a rather plain girl (and they can do a great deal) had been done. She was a distinctly good-looking matron, although I missed her old charm of expression.

I was discussing her later with Molly, the little stenographer lady. "What's happened to Gertrude to change her so?" I asked. "You noticed she was different?" "Yes," said Molly thoughtfully. "I'll tell you what I think. It's because she doesn't have to make up any more."

"Make up?" inquiringly. "Why, yes," said Molly, "you know she used to be rather plain, and she couldn't have nice clothes, and if she wanted people to notice her and like her she just had to make up for her plainness and shabby clothes by being extra sweet and nice. Now she is so nice looking, and has such lovely clothes and a lovely home, she doesn't have anything to make up for. So I think she has kind of lost the habit of putting herself out to be nice."

I suspect Molly's analysis of the case is a very good one.

And I suspect it hits a good many other cases besides.

Why do pretty girls have the reputation of being less agreeable and intelligent than their plainer sisters? Personally I think it's partly because the plain girls, who are jealous, give them that reputation. But partly because they have justly earned it. Pretty girls can attract without effort by their prettiness. They don't have to be intelligent and sympathetic, and jolly and sweet tempered. At least they think they don't have to until they come into competition with some plain girl who has "made up" by cultivating all these charms.

Again, you remember what my letter friend said about rick folks. "Perhaps one of the reasons why it is so hard for the rich to enter the Kingdom of Heaven is the fact that they get so much applause for what costs them little or nothing, and fail to cultivate the graces because it is so easy for them to make gifts."

Perhaps we poor folks who have to "make up" for our inability to make gifts of money by our gifts of self and service are more blessed after all.

So in many ways the sometimes irksome necessity of "making up" may be a blessing in disguise.

Ruth Cameron

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office—its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and up-to-date equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this well-known firm in Newfoundland and is at 171 St.

Man Has Horse Stolen.

A Broad Cove man named Tucker called at the police station last night and informed the Guard that some unknown person or persons had taken his horse and waggon from Long's hill while he was at the Methodist College last evening. Before reporting the matter to the police he had made a diligent search all over the town without success, and was naturally much annoyed. It is expected that this is the work of some thoughtless boys who took the animal for a joy ride. However, the practice is one that should be promptly stopped.

Workman Seriously Injured.

As J. Quinn, one of the workmen, employed at Franklin's premises discharging coal from the S. S. Nascopie, was walking along the dock last evening he fell into the hold, a distance of fifteen feet, breaking his knee cap. Mr. Pritchard was summoned to the injured man, and after temporarily dressing the limb ordered the man to the hospital where he was taken in the ambulance.

Accidents at Football Field.

While the football match was in progress on St. George's Field, last evening, two boys got injured. The first was Samuel Morris, aged 8, who came limping over to Supt. Grimes on the Grand Stand. He told the Superintendent that he had been pushed off the railing surrounding the field by another unknown boy. He said his right arm was paining him very much. The member showed a peculiar shape near the elbow and Mr. W. Reeves, first aid expert, was called and on examination found the elbow to be dislocated and probably fractured as well. The little boy's arm was splinted, after which he was driven to his home on Stephen Street and attended by a doctor.

Another boy named James, was also hurt in a dangerous place, but fortunately, not seriously. The youth was lying on the grass inside the fence near the "touch line" when a player was about to kick. The ball was missed and the youngster was kicked instead in the stomach. The mishap could not be avoided as the player was running so fast. The game was discontinued but after a few minutes the boy was o.k. again.

Crawford, of the St. Bon's team, also got knocked out but only temporarily. He and an opponent were playing the ball at the same time when he received a kick in the head. He was able to continue the game.

Blockaded Again.

A message received by the Hoid Co. from the Captain of the S. S. Home, last evening, stated that Green Bay is again filled with ice, and that the ship was unable to reach Exploits, because of the blockade, and had to proceed to Shoe Cove. Large quantities of loose ice are to be seen driving towards the land.

AN OMISSION.—In giving the names of the patrons of the St. John's Harriers' Club, referred to in yesterday's issue, the name of Mr. W. J. Higgins was inadvertently omitted.

The Premier's Failure

TO FLOAT THE DEBENTURES.

In the interview with the Daily News, published this morning after giving quotations of apparently Colonial Four Per Cents including those of Newfoundland, the Premier goes on to say:

"I recognize that in view of this it may appear extraordinary that I have returned without placing the loan on the market but the fact is simply that our financial agent advised me against offering a 3 1/2 per cent. loan; not that we would not obtain the money, but that the tendency in England to-day, owing to the stringency in the world's money markets, is all for 4 per cent. loans, they being more attractive to the investor, and therefore easier for the financial agents to float. Moreover, the placing of a 3 1/2 per cent. loan, in view of the fact that other countries were offering 4 per cent. issues, might be misconstrued. I therefore decided, after full consideration of the whole question with them, to adopt their advice that at the next session of the Legislature I would recommend the raising of the rate of interest to 4 per cent."

Yesterday we charged the Premier with going blindly into this matter, and in face of ample warnings. We are justified in making the charge, for we gave ample warning to the Premier to watch his ways and study the signs of the times, both in the columns of the Evening Telegram, and from our place in the House of Assembly.

At the opening of the Session, we commented on the need of the Premier going to the market to float debentures and the unfavourable outlook to float Three and a Half Per Cents, and pointed out that the market was adverse to all Colonial Governments. Part of our remarks in this connection were as follows:

"The position to-day is that no Colonial Government, no matter how strong, is able to go to the market and float stock at 3 1/2 per cent; but my friend took the risks of the market; and, sir, it was a profitable undertaking for the rally Contractor, but not profitable for this country. No Colonial government to-day can float a loan at 3 1/2 per cent. It is only a few days ago that it was recorded in the public press that the new loan sought by the New South Wales was by no means successful. That was a four per cent. loan; but the public took only ten per cent. of it and ninety per cent. was left on the hands of the underwriters. Again, let us take the case of the great Dominion to the west of us with all its resources and strength. The Dominion floated a four per cent. loan at 97 and the public took 17 per cent. only while 83 per cent. was left with the underwriters. That is the history of every colonial loan during the past twelve months. So much so that not long ago the underwriters protested against further loans until the loans on their hands were put out and the tension relieved. The position, therefore, that the Rt. Hon. gentleman is in is that the market is adverse not against Newfoundland loans in particular but against every colonial loan no matter how large or small the colony may be that he must raise money to be able to go on with the contract with the Reid Newfoundland Company or else break it and to add to his difficulties he has to go to the folks from whom he wishes to borrow and tell them that he has blundered badly with the finances of the colony and that consequently he has to increase taxation."

A month or so later when the Loan Bill was before the Legislature we asked why the government had determined on a Three and a Half Per Cent. Loan in view of the fact, that no Colonial Government was venturing upon such a course. Here is part of what we said:

"So far as I have been able to discover, and I have followed the matter pretty closely, no Colonial Government has attempted during the past 12 or 14 months to put a 3 1/2 p.c. loan upon the market. Surely that is a matter that has occupied the attention of the Government. It is perfectly true that the financial stringency that existed almost the whole of last year, has somewhat abated, but it is by no means over, and not long since the Dominion of Canada got a black eye in asking for a 4 p.c. loan. Now under these circumstances with these matters that are naturally matters of knowledge to the Government as men who are bound to watch the markets when anything unusual occurs, why has nothing been told us as to the reasons that prompted the Government to take this extraordinary course?"

The Premier has now had the mortification of a trip to London, extending about three months, to be told that he should have known before the session of the Legislature opened, and what we told him in the House.

Newfoundlanders Abroad.

Amongst the many Newfoundlanders who have done well and who have made the land of the Star Spangled Banner their home, is Mr. John Caines, Jr. Jack, as he was familiarly called, left St. John's some 30 years ago and went to Toronto where he resided for five years. His health not being good he then went to Chelsea, Mass., where he has lived for the past twenty-five years, during that time he has held the responsible position of Foreman Pattern Maker with the Bay State Railroad Company, which operates the largest number of cars and miles of street rails in the United States. He served his apprenticeship with the late Mr. Thomas Cole, cabinet maker, who owned a store on Gower Street, just east of King's Road, some 35 years ago. He also worked with the Newfoundland Furniture and Moulding Co., and Mr. Thomas Burns (father of Mr. Wm. Burns, grocer, of this city). His hospitality is well known in Chelsea, and his beautiful home in Everett is always open to any Newfoundlanders who may come there. He is a son of the late John Caines, senior, an old-time fisherman and one of our most respected citizens. Jack, with a number of other Newfoundlanders, will give a visit to their native land and will participate in the Old Home Week festivities. No doubt his many boyhood companions will be delighted to see him.

Bitten by Dog.

Yesterday afternoon a little boy named Cotter, son of Mr. John Cotter, of Duckworth Street, was bitten by a dog near his home. The boy, who had been playing on the sidewalk, tripped and fell across the dog which had been asleep; suddenly the canine jumped at the youth seized him by the arm and drove its teeth through the flesh. The victim was brought to a doctor for treatment.

We know who he will buy it for? But who will he buy it from? Hundreds of Engagements and Weddings are sealed yearly in Newfoundland with Trappell's Solid Gold Rings, hundreds of friendships and tokens of affection to sweetheart, wife, mother, sister and friend are embodied in lasting embrace with Trappell's Rings, the popularity of which is based upon their quality, finish and variety and beauty of design. Rings for men, women, baby and miss for every occasion. Gem Rings, Chased Rings, Signet Rings, Birthday Rings. Should you have a desire to get a ring of such design as you may create yourself, or that you had seen somebody else wear, just take your design to Trappell; there is nothing impossible along these lines for his talented workmen. A splendid assortment of unset stones can be seen if your design calls for a Gem Ring. Ask to be shown the new White Sapphires. They are hard and brilliant like diamonds, so much so that they puzzle experts. —ap20.1f

A Fast Train.

While experts continue to discuss the practicability of M. Bachelet's aerially suspended railway, J. Esson, a Birmingham manufacturer, announces that he has invented a train which will travel 500 miles an hour, 200 miles an hour faster than the Bachelet train. This latest invention is of the monorail type, but has one of the Bachelet features, inasmuch as it will fly after attaining a certain speed. It does not rely for levitation on magnetic repulsion, but on the principles of aviation. It will be a hybrid of a street car and aeroplane, with an overhead trolley and propellers. The inventor claims that it can attain a speed of 500 miles an hour with ease and safety, and he expects to give a demonstration soon with a working model.

Marine Disasters' Fund.

LETTER FROM THE GOVERNOR.
Government House,
St. John's, Nfld.,
8th June, 1914.

The Hon. John Harris,
Chairman Marine Disasters Fund.
LONDON CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE FUND.

Sir,—
I have the honour to annex a series of extracts from The (London) Times, containing a record of the donations given in London to the Newfoundland Marine Disasters Fund.
The Fund in London was opened as the result of an appeal made in the columns of The Times by the Prime Minister and myself on behalf of the sufferers from the disasters to the "Newfoundland" and the "Southern Cross." The columns of The Times were unreservedly thrown open to our appeal and for the publication of the subscriptions, for which act of sympathy and generosity the Colony is under a debt of gratitude to the initiative of Lord Northcliffe. The English press generally supported The Times and displayed the most kindly spirit towards our Colony in its misfortunes. Messrs. Glyn Mills Currie & Co., Bankers to the Government of Newfoundland, received and acknowledged subscriptions and rendered the readiest service, for which remuneration was courteously refused. As the result of all this willing help, the Fund was burdened by no expenses and the total sum collected has been remitted to your Treasurer free of any deduction.

The subscriptions appear in fourteen lists dating from April 9th to May 9th, the day on which I left England. The total receipts at that date amounted to £9,288.3.1. It was arranged that the Fund should remain open until May 31st when it should be closed and the balance remitted to the officer administering the Government for transfer to your committee. The remittances made by Messrs. Glyn Mills Currie & Co. as acknowledged in the lists published by your Hon. Treasurer are

- (1) On April 30, $24,333.33 (the equivalent of £5,000).
- (2) On June 5, $20,468.36 (about £4,200).

The contribution of £1,000 by the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company which was inserted in the first London list (of April 9th) was remitted direct to the Fund in Newfoundland and appears in your Hon. Treasurer's list of April 13th as a contribution of $5,000. With this item included the London Fund finally reached a total of approximately £10,200 or $49,668.35.

In addition to the London Fund, the sympathisers with Newfoundland in Liverpool and Glasgow, opened separate funds to which large contributions were made. Remittances have been made from these sources direct to your Committee in St. John's. When I was asked what sum would be adequate to meet the distress occasioned by these terrible disasters to our people, I replied that £40,000 (or $200,000) would suffice. I note with the keenest satisfaction that the Fund stands on June 5th at the high figure of $231,122.91; that the aid rendered from Canada and the United States has been magnificent in its generosity; and that in Newfoundland itself the response has been splendid from every part of the Colony.

As soon as the Committee is in a position to prepare a statement of the numbers of those who have to be relieved and of the methods in which the Fund is to be allocated, I should be glad to have an opportunity of placing the report before the English subscribers. Our friends in England would also be much interested in reading a narrative of the manner in which the emergency caused by the arrival of the steamer "Bellaventure" with its tragic burden, was met. I learn from many sources that the arrangements for the reverent treatment of the dead and for the care of the disabled survivors was without a flaw. We have well wishers throughout the world who would be gratified to read the details of the reception of the dead and the treatment of the injured and of the persistent even though fruitless efforts to trace the ill-fated "Southern Cross."

I would suggest for the consideration of your Committee that, if it should be possible to spare some portion of the large sum now in your hands for the immediate needs of the sufferers from this calamity, it would be wise to form a Fund in aid of those who are left destitute through the toll levied on our seamen and fishermen by the inexorable sea.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(sd.) W. H. DAVIDSON.

Divorced Life

Marian's Theatrical Debut

Marian awoke on Monday morning with a nervous headache. It was the day of the opening of "The Climbers," and of Marian's debut as a professional player. She ordered her breakfast sent to her room. Her head swim as she nibbled at her toast and sipped her breakfast tea. She read the brief announcement of the opening that night of the season of stock with much the same sensation that she would have read a notice of her execution.

A brisk walk, an hour later, vitalized and strengthened her. It was a mild spring day. The flood of sunshine washed her soul like a healing, scorching medicine. It filled her with pride that she had achieved this opportunity to become an actress.

At seven that night, she set out with her suit case, and half an hour later she slipped into the stage door of the theatre. Belated carpenters' hammers were pounding. Marian was sent to the general dressing room for women, where some of the cast were already daubing their faces and getting into their togs. With trembling hands she began making ready for the ordeal. The heavily rouged ingenue was seated before a mirror at her side.

"Good Lord, girl, don't be afraid to smear it on," burst out the ingenue, as Marian began touching her face daintily with the rouge. "Get it on, dear. You'll look pale as a ghost back of the footlights if you don't do better than that. Look at me. Wait a second, I'll help you."

Marian shrank from her reflected image in the mirror when the other had administered the make-up. Then the energetic ingenue helped her new-found companion with her hooks and buttons, chatting amiably and encouragingly as she rendered her services. "Nervous?" she asked. "We all are, more or less. It's all part of the game. It's this tension that keeps us from getting sloppy in our work. It's good for us."

Later, with strange calmness, Marian stood in the wings, awaiting her cue to go on. The lines preceding her cue seemed endless. At last the fateful words sounded. She pulled herself together and went on. The garish glare of the footlights almost blinded her for a moment, fascinating her like a flame does moths. Before she knew it she was reciting her lines and engaging in her "business." It was strangely easy. But she dare not gaze across the fiery wall of the footlights into the faces that crowded the theatre. Never once did she look beyond the stage. Now and then one of her lines provoked a laugh. At a spinning moment it occurred to her that the audience was laughing at her. She grew hot with shame. Vaguely she heard her cue to exit.

Wiltree, the star, was standing by her hand warmly. "Bully work, Miss Wintrop. You're all right," he said. "You pulled some fine laughs." He patted her on the shoulder. Her lips trembled with gratitude. "Behave wait around here," he added. "You go on again in a moment."

Monday—Reflections.

"Bully work," exclaimed Wiltree, the star, as he wrung Marian's hand warmly.

Her second entrance was a pleasure. The spirit of her work had laid hold of her. She talked and acted with conscious vivacity. A ripple of applause greeted one of her lines. Her second cue to exit, and this time her stunt was done. She proceeded to her dressing room, sorry that her part of the performance was over.

A messenger boy, lugging a big, long, pasteboard box was directed to her. "For me?" she demanded in amazement, seeing her name on the tag. The box contained some elegant and stenciled chrysanthemums and Ratzenhauer's card. It was the first time in over a year that she had received any flowers. She was astounded at Ratzenhauer's gift. "There's something sweet about him, after all," she mused.

Marvelous Balsamic Essences Cure Catarrh

No Drugs To Take—A Direct Breathing Cure

Statistics Prove Ninety-Seven Per Cent of Canada's Population is Infested With the Germs of Catarrh.

This disease is most dangerous owing to its tendency to extend to the Bronchial tubes and lungs, where it causes Consumption. Unfortunately the people have had faith in sprays, ointments and snuffs, which can't possibly cure, and in consequence catarrhal disease has become a national cure. Science is advancing every day, and fortunately a remedy has been discovered that not only cures but prevents Catarrh. This new treatment "Catarrhose" has sufficient power to kill the germs of Bronchitis, Catarrh and Asthma. It contains pure pine essences and healing balsams that go to the remotest part of ATHENS, June 12. A warning to Turkey, which fell little short of a formal declaration of hostility, was uttered to-day by Premier Venizelos of Greece, in the Chamber of Deputies during the presentation of reports on the treatment of Greek subjects in Turkey. The Premier's attitude showed that the tension between Greece and Turkey was near breaking point, and that the danger of war was imminent. Cheers throughout the Chamber, greeted the statement of the Premier, who added that thousands of Greek refugees had reached the homeland, already, from Turkey, while thousands more were awaiting transportation facilities in order to escape from their persecutors. Such a situation, he concluded, could not be borne much longer.

NEW YORK, June 12. Lord Mersey, who will preside over the Board of Inquiry that is to investigate the facts surrounding the Empress of Ireland disaster, arrived on the s.s. Mauritanian to-day, and will take train to-night for Ottawa, where he will consult with Premier Borden and other members of the Government. On Monday he will go to Quebec, where the enquiry will be conducted. He said he hoped to be back in England again by August 1st, but his Titanic enquiry experiences may extend almost indefinitely. He said they would get at the truth regarding the Empress of Ireland disaster before very long. He thought the proceedings would likely be extended to include investigation into the navigation of the St. Lawrence River. Lord Mersey is accompanied by two assessors, or marine experts, Commander Eborn and Prof. J. Welch.

LONDON, June 12. A determined attempt was made by the wild women to burn the church of St. Margaret's, at Chipping, 14 miles S.E. of London. Three distinct fires were set by them.

Cure Children's Colds By External Treatment

Mothers Will Find Nothing so Speedily and Reliable as Old-Time "Nerviline."

It's really a shame to upset a young child's stomach by internal dosing when external treatment will so promptly break up a cold.

When your boy comes in after play with his feet soaking wet, his throat hoarse and sore, his little chest tight and congested, just apply Nerviline. Give him a vigorous rubbing over his throat, and put lots of Nerviline on his chest and rub it right in. To make Nerviline penetrate more quickly cover his chest and throat with a hot flannel bandage. This treatment WONT fail. Your boy will be feeling better in half an hour, and you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have ward off perhaps a cold, or gripe, or illness that might have laid him up.

Nerviline is mighty good for preventing colds and for breaking up a bad one, too. For general family use it cures all sorts of external aches and pains—your simply can't beat it. Try it for earache, toothache, neuralgia, sciatica, lame back, rheumatism, or lumbago. Wherever there is congestion, inflammation or pain in the joints or muscles. Nerviline will cure mighty quick. The large 50c. family size bottle is so economical, so useful, it should be in every home. There is also a small 25c. size. Dealers anywhere sell Nerviline.

A SHORTAGE.—A young man employed by a local company, was dismissed a short time ago on account of a shortage in the accounts when the books were examined. The shortage is said to be about $500.

Mrs. Rice, wife of the Rev. J. M. Rice, B.A., Pastor of the Methodist Church at Summerside, P.E.I., accompanied by her four children, arrived by yesterday's express on a visit to her parents the Hon. H. J. B. and Mrs. Woods, of this city.

VISIT OF DR. MOTT.—A preliminary meeting in connection with the reception of Dr. J. R. Mott was held yesterday. There are two local committees, the Clerical, whose Chairman is the Bishop of Newfoundland, and the Laymen's, with Mr. H. W. LeMessurier as Chairman, and Dr. Macpherson as Secretary. Dr. Mott is expected to spend July 2nd, 4th and 5th here.

He Said He Told His Neighbors.

AND THEY TOLD HIM TO TRY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mike Rudy, Young Manitoba Farmer, Sick for Two Years, Tells how He Got a New Lease of Life.

Campville, Man., June 12. (Special.)—Cured of Kidney and Heart Disease of two years standing, Mr. Mike Rudy, a well known young farmer living near here, is telling his neighbors that he owes his new lease of life to Dodd's Kidney Pills. "For two years," Mr. Rudy states, "I suffered with a terrible pain in the small of my back and shoulders. I took many different medicines, and was under the doctor's care, but nothing seemed to do me any lasting good. Finally heart disease was added to my troubles.

"Hearing Dodd's Kidney Pills well spoken of by my neighbors, I decided to try them. To my surprise and relief one box cured me completely." Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Rudy because his troubles all came from sick kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills are a kidney remedy, pure and simple. If you have pain in the back, rheumatism, lumbago, gravel or diabetes, your kidneys are wrong. You need Dodd's Kidney Pills.

They and each of them stands charged with feloniously stealing a silver watch and gold chain, valued at $40, and $49 in cash, the property of William Garland. From information gathered it appears that Garland, who came here on a schooner from an out-harbour, was celebrating. He met the six lads on an uptown wharf. They gave him a good game of talk, after which Garland invited them to a drink, showing a bottle of rum that he was unable to move as he lay on the ground. The youthful vagabonds then started to go through the man. They rifled his pockets, out of which they got the watch, seized a canvas bag, containing $49, that was hanging around his neck, and then fled. When the victim came to himself properly he was badly bruised and beaten as he was discovered that his "dough" and "cigars" had disappeared and likewise his assailants. Without delay he went to the police station and related his story, giving a description as best he could of the youthful delinquents. Detective Byrne and Const. O'Neill, who were detailed on the case, first visited Duff's Bowling Alley on Water St., where the lads were enjoying themselves to their heart's delight, having cigars and cigarettes, salors. When Byrne entered the building three lads made good their escape. The remaining three were captured and they immediately showed fight, serving Byrne badly. O'Neill then jumped into the ring and with the assistance of Byrne and a civilian named Parrell handcuffed the three lads. Parrell received a bad sunning. Shortly after midnight the rest of the bunch were arrested. This forenoon Inspector General Sullivan was not ready to go ahead with the prosecution and this afternoon the youthful thieves will be arraigned before Judge Knight.

LONDON, To-day. Redmond declared war on the Provisional Committee of the Nationalist volunteers, the majority of whom he asserts are not supporters of the Irish party, although the Provisional Committee at a meeting held in Dublin on June tenth, verbally welcomed Redmond's co-operation in the Irish volunteer movement. It followed this up with a call to volunteers in each country to elect a representative to serve on the committee. This action of the Irish leader followed the refusal of the committee to accept his proposal, made on June ninth, that twenty five representatives of the Irish party should be added to the committee in control. A meeting of the Irish Nationalists discussed the matter yesterday, and subsequently Redmond issued the letter, declaring that the action of the committee amount to a refusal to accept my offer of co-operation; pointing out that the committee originally was a self-constituted body. Redmond proceeds, "I am informed on good authority that the majority of them are not supporters of the Irish party, who of the rank and file of the Irish Volunteers support the party and its policy. This is a condition of things which plainly cannot continue. He concludes, "I must appeal to all supporters of the Irish party in the volunteers to at once organize country committee, quite independent of the Dublin Provisional committee and to maintain an independent country government of volunteer movement, until it is possible to elect a governing body which shall have the full confidence of the country."

OUR SATURDAY EVENING HOME PAGE.

The Thoughts of Theobald On Our Civic Problems.

Very soon the appointment of our Commissioners will have to be made and doubtless will be one of the first duties of the Government when the Premier returns. There is a matter in the selection of them which should be taken into consideration and that is, not to appoint all Commission from the ranks of the Citizens' Committee. Whilst it is perfectly true that these men have shown themselves sufficiently interested to attend many meetings and have endeavoured to arouse the apathy of the ordinary man, yet there is a class of taxpayer that is not represented on the Citizens' Committee which is perhaps more keenly affected by civic conditions than those now attending it, and which did not come forward at the meetings because they felt that their influence would be of a negative quantity in comparison with the better off men who (with credit to themselves) have taken the burden of making the City better. This must be taken as reflecting in no way upon the Citizens' Committee. But what is needed on the Commission to be appointed is a sprinkling of taxpayers who feel the burden of taking say only one dollar from a none too-well-filled purse every year and who feel keenly the wants of the City. It is from these people that ideas spring. Their necessity urges them, and it is thus that from the ranks of say, the middle class, that all reformers come, and this fact alone, that certain radical-minded ideas come from men in the ordinary walks of life, is in too many instances the cause of their cool reception. An original idea coming from a belted earl or a millionaire is heralded throughout the world as a wonderful event and they are commended in columns of matter for the "bravery" ideas.

But let an ordinary workman suggest a way to solve a labour problem from a city, he is listened to in silence and even murmurs of "uprightness and these labourers" will come.

But in the last analysis this City is to be run for the benefit first of the back streets and overcrowded thoroughfares. To begin housecleaning you first must get the dirt out, and to begin city-cleaning you must do the same. Therefore to know what to clean you must have someone on the Commission who knows where the dirt is and you must have some one who will be ready to speak when instead of keeping at the dirt there are some who will, so to speak, want to clean the outside of the cap before the inside is clean.

It is not altogether a blessing that the Commission should be in perfect agreement each with the other. It is not necessary that there should be

THE BURT SHOE

Never bear more than one kind of trouble at a time. Some people bear three—all they have now, all they ever had, and all they expect to have.

CONCERNING ART.

The Art that will win for itself a niche in the temple of fame will be of a quiet sort. The province of Art is to express emotion—to impart a feeling. And the art of exaggeration, rant, bombast and fustian is gone for ever.

It is very possible that the ponderous eloquence of Daniel Webster, with its rolling thunder, would only excite pity or invite cabbages in a Boston audience of to-day.

Certain it is that the Buffalo lawyer who went down to the Appellate Court at Rochester with the bursts of impassioned eloquence found himself speedily and coldly brought back to earth. The famous "Monday Lectures" of Joseph Cook, with their heated explanations and fine quips and quillots about nothing, would never do now. The needless realism of John Rogers in sculpture is not to our taste, and all those pretty groups that once filled the mantels of the American home are consigned to Limbo.

This change from the loud and strident and the plush-covered to the quiet and simple in manners, house-keeping, and art, is owing more to the influence of a man named William Morris than to any other man of the century.

Morris said: "We need fewer things and want them better. All your belongings should mean something to you. Every act of life should signify something."

And the world, little knowing or

Prayer.

(By Benjamin De Casseres.)

All rational pleasure is prayer; all sincere, work and effort are prayers; all exaltation in the presence of beauty is prayer; all aspiration is prayer.

Prayer is an uplifting, a rising of the soul toward the object of its desire, an elevation of instinct.

All sincere thought is prayer. The doubts of skeptics are prayers, though they themselves would repudiate the term.

All strength that tends to elevate and glorify man is a prayer.

There are other modes of praying than with the lips. Galileo prayed with a telescope. Columbus prayed with a ship. Franklin prayed with a lightning-rod.

Knee-praying seems a puny thing when once we feel that the forests are the eternal faces of nature; or when we stand on a mountain top, that everlasting natural altar; or when we bathe in sunlight, that incalculably aged center.

Amid these natural objects awe, admiration, a sense of infinite life, of a duration that is eternal, sweep through us in waves, leaving us humiliated with the sense of our own nothingness at the same time that it brings something of intellectual pride that we are part of that Hidden God.

All sublime emotion is prayer. A poem, a painting, a great essay, a beautiful face, the wreathing of a vine around a window, all exalt, generating wonder, amazement, and thankfulness.

Meanness, lying, cowardice, double-dealing, these are all blasphemies; they offend the dignity of the soul, and debase you in your own eyes. The blasphemies of the mouth are laughed away in the winds. They mean nothing. But the blasphemies of vile actions set in motion forces that must be combated through all time.

Man prays when he least knows it. The normal evolution of prayer is from the lip to the deed, from bare utterance to strong action.

Self-Suggestion.

(Professor Marcus Hartog in the Manchester Guardian.)

The method I myself adopt for self-suggestion is, when comfortably settled in bed, to count each full breath, inspiration plus expiration, and after every "five" or "ten" to make the verbal suggestion—each word formulated in thought, as if in silently repeating a lesson—that I wish to be accomplished. The formulation should be by rote without thought of the sense.

Thus my first suggestion was that I should sleep by the completion of 150. I found that this worked very well; but that I was apt to wake up suddenly after a short time, too sleepy to suggest and too wakeful to sleep. The next thing was to put in the "tens." "My sleep shall be continuous," alternating with the other suggestion at the odd "fives," and this succeeded. Another difficulty was that in counting I got into a state in which again I could neither count nor rest. This difficulty was overcome by altering the "tens" suggestion. "My sleep shall be sudden and continuous."

Self-Discipline.

To Charles the Twelfth of Sweden I owe much of what has stood me in best stead all my life. It was nearly thirty years ago, when but a boy, that I bought his life for a penny in the "New Cut." I took it home and devoured it. It made a great impression on me. Not his wars, but the Spartan heroism of his character. He inspired me with the idea of triumphing over physical weakness, weariness and pain. To inure his body to bear all manner of hardships indifferently, to bathe in ice or face the torrid rays of the sun, to discipline his physical powers by gymnastics, to despise the niceties of food and drink, to make his body an instrument as of tempered steel, and at the same time to have that body absolutely at the disposition of the mind, that seemed to me conduct worthy of a hero. And so, boy-like, I tried to imitate him, and succeeded at least so far as to be happily indifferent to the circumstances of my personal environment.—Rt. Hon. John Burns.

Environment.

Economics changes man's activities. As you change a man's activities you change his way of living, and as you change his environment you change his state of mind. Precept and injunction do not perceptibly affect men; but food, water, air, clothing, shelter, pictures, books, music, will and do.

POEMS.

THE BURIAL OF MOSES.

(Mrs. C. P. Alexander.)

By Nebo's lonely mountain,
On this side Jordan's wave,
In a vale in the land of Moab,
There lies a lonely grave;
And no man knows that sepulchre,
And no man saw it e'er,
For the angels of God upturned the sod,
And laid the dead man there.

That was the grandest funeral
That ever passed on earth;
But no man heard the tramping,
Or saw the train go forth—
Noiselessly as the daylight
Comes back when night is done,
And the crimson streak on ocean's cheek
Grows into the great sun.

Shall break again, oh, wondrous thought!
Before the Judgment Day,
And stand with glory wrapped around
On the hill he never trod,
And speak of the strife that won our life
With the Incarnate Son of God.

O lonely grave in Moab's land!
O dark Beth-Peg's hill!
Speak to these lonely hearts of ours
And teach them to be still.
God hath His mysteries of grace,
Ways that we cannot tell;
He hides them deep, like the hidden sleep
Of him He loved so well.

TIME FOR THE OPEN ROAD.

(By Emma A. Lente.)

Now is the time for the open road, and the meadows with daisies blowing,
For the ferny nooks, and the babbling brooks, and the world of green things growing;
Now is the time to leave the roofs, and to choose the sky for a cover,
To journey forth with an eager heart,
for summer welcomes a lover.

She will show you her darlings fine and sweet; she will offer her choicest treasures,
And bid you welcome to each and all of her many and healthful pleasures;
You will slip from under the yoke of care, and your tired eyes will see clearer;
Your pretty worries will fade away,
and all dear things grow dearer.

The sod will comfort your weary feet;
the glow of the sun will fill you;
The wind will greet you in friendly wise, and the jubilant bird-songs thrill you;
O, it is time for the open road, the plain, the shore, and the mountain;
To feast with joy on the luscious fruits, and drink at the flowing fountain.

—"C. E. World."

POSSESSION.

("Standard," U. S. A.)

Some one gave me a picture—
A little glimpse of the sea,
Cliff and surf and gull a-wing—
I smell the salt and I feel the swing:
How it comes back to me!
Rhythm of wave and gleam of sand,
And a white sail rounding the point of land.

Some one gave me a picture—
A bit of country lane,
Tangle of flower and fern and vines,
Under the shade of the purple plums:
Oh, to be there again!
There, where the ground-thrush hides
her nest,
And the wild red strawberries ripen best.

So pain-bound and helpless,
I lie and dream all day:
God is good, and the world is wide,
Sun and sea and the dancing tide,
And a fair ship in the bay!
These are mine, and the skies of June,
Sing, my heart, to the thrush's tune!
—Meribah Abbott.

Which is the Irish Flag?

Probably nine Irishmen out of ten if asked what the national flag of Ireland is, would reply without hesitation, "The harp without the crown," meaning the golden Celtic harp on a green ground, which is flown very generally by Irishmen. Most of them believe that this has always been Ireland's flag, but the fact is that, as flags go, it is comparatively new.

It first made its appearance in 1798, when it was adopted by the United Irishmen, and it is said they chose green because it is a blend of orange and blue to typify the union of north and south.

In point of antiquity the real Irish flag is the "spear and serpent," which appears in the arms of the O'Sullivans. It is said to commemorate the incident of Gaodhal Glas, the ancestor of Milesius, who tradition says, was cured of a snake bite by the rod of Moses. Next to that comes the flag of Fionn MacCumbhail's militia, the golden sunset on a blue ground, and the weight of opinion seems to favor this as the true national flag. Blue, indeed, was always Ireland's national color until 1798.

There are a number of other flags which have figured in Irish history, and all have their enthusiastic supporters. One of the most popular is the three golden crowns on a blue ground, which figures now in the arms of the province of Munster. This was accepted after the Norman invasion in 1170 as the flag of Ireland, the three crowns typifying the kingdoms of Desmond, Ormond and Thomond. It was retained until 1647, when Henry VIII. abolished it and substituted the harp.

Coming down to more recent times, we find that Grattan's Parliament did not recognize green, although it did accept the harp. Its flag was a golden harp on a blue ground.

A new flag was evolved at the time of the Union, apparently for the express purpose of incorporating in it what is now known as the Union Jack, but it does not seem to have caught the popular fancy any more than the Act of Union. "This was the red saltire on a white ground, which was christened "St. Patrick's Cross." Apparently it was "lifted" from the arms of Trinity College, Dublin, though how Dublin came by it it is equally a mystery.

The tri-color of green, white and orange—"The Orange and the Green, with the stripe of peace between"—is the recognized flag of Irish Nationalists whose aim is complete independence.

Immortality.

A sunbeam had danced across the abyss, and, as she neared the earth, cried—"I must die." But at the moment of contact she buried herself in a warm cloud and kissed a tiny seed into renewed life.

And the little seed that held the sunbeam began creeping toward the light, and grew and grew until it pushed itself above the surface into the air, bursting finally into a flower at its stem top.

"Alas!" she cried, "I must die. The world is so large and I so insignificant! I shall die and be forgotten!" But ere she fell back to the ground a pale face was made brighter by her beauty and fragrance, and down in a human heart grew the flower. "What a beautiful place this is. Where are we?" exclaimed the flower.

"Why," answered the dancing sunbeam, "this is a human heart."

"Then," answered the flower with a smile, "we shall live forever."

If I can put some touches of rosy sunset into the life of any man or woman, then I feel that I have wrought with God.—Geo. Macdonald.
