CHAPTER XXVI.
A PITIFUL LETTER.

"Yes, Kenneth, that was my dream—a strange one, was it not, since I loved you throughout its brief duration? You will answer, 'Such a dream would be impossible, inconceivable, to one who truly loved.' Well, I thank God that my love for you was too great to permit me to be guilty of such an awful crime against you as this, and so I hope that I have chosen the better way. Certainly it is the only one for me if I would escape a future of shame, misery, and degradation—a life which I have endured callously in the past, but which you, Kenneth, have made impossible for me.

"Now for the rest—because the least atonement that I can make is to help you and others to do justice where it should be done.

"Redman, Montagu, and Ashley are all members of the Sherrell gang, and so I need not tell you that the wife of Rayman Sherrell has also been their accomplice. They were mainly responsible—and fraudulently responsible—for your father's West Australian group of companies; and I—yes, Kenneth—I helped them, but I cannot bring myself to tell you how I have made what amends I could by sending ample proof of their guilt to Detective Burnett.

"I have had another reason for doing this. Arthur Ashley, as you know, had, of course by utterly false representations, persuaded Mr. Vandereen to consent to his engagement to his daughter. I have saved her from a fate which might have been something like mine.

"I have one more sin against you to confess. Mercia Reynolds loves you, and, before I came to poison your heart, you loved her. Some day your old, pure love will come back. When it does, ask her to try and forgive me. Good-by, Kenneth. LILLIAS."

CHAPTER XXVII.
AFTER THREE YEARS.

Messrs. Ashley, Redman, and Montagu had served nearly three years of the sentence of fifteen years' penal servitude, which they had so thoroughly earned, when one morning, at his chambers, Kenneth, now an eminent lawyer, and far on the way to fame and fortune, found the following note among his letters:

"My Dearest Ken: Now that your work for the term is over, I think that a fortnight at Scarborough would do you a great deal of good. Jack has got us a very nice house on the cliff, and Mercia is spending a week or two with us. We shall expect you in two days, at the least. Your loving sister, KATE."

Kenneth reread this sisterly misadvice, folded it carefully, and put it in an inside pocket. He smiled as he did so, for he was not by any means impervious to the subtle hint conveyed in the words: "Mercia is spending a week or two with us." He knew that his dear sister, whose loyal friendship for Mercia Reynolds had grown with the passing of time, had never ceased to plot and plan—secretly, of course, and with true feminine tact and zeal in such delicate matters—for the fulfillment of that hope. This latest message from Kate was only another proof of her interest and a sign to her brother that neither her own hope nor his, if he still cherished one, was abandoned or forlorn.

"Dear Kate; she is a torchbearer in the darkness," Kenneth said to himself, as he turned to glance over his numerous others letters. He opened two or three and read them with that quick, mental grasp of details which was one of his strongest characteristics; but when he put them aside, intending to give them to Mr. Crudge to answer, his thoughts again turned to Kate and to her letter. "A torchbearer in the darkness," he repeated, pursuing his metaphor; "and doubtless her beacon shines for some good purpose, to light my pathway out of this gloom. My pathway? Truly, it has been beset with thorns, from the time when my feet first left the main highroad to follow a false phantom along the way. Kate always said I should find 'the right one' among the green byways and hedges, and now she offers me another chance to win her.

"But Mercia?" he questioned his hopeful soul. "Will she forgive me? Will she not tell me that since I left her side, drawn away from her by the magic of a siren's call, she has learned to love another?—some one more worthy of her devotion. There is that possibility to face, and I— But, no, something tells me that Kate wouldn't have written 'Mercia is spending a week or two with us,' if she hadn't intended to encourage me in resuming my quest! By Jove! I'd be a fool if I didn't obey the summons, especially as it's an opportunity which I really long for now, at least!—really and truly desire with all my heart!"

In the eagerness of this new-born resolve, he sprang from his chair, glancing quickly at his watch. He then pressed an electric button in the wall beside his desk, pressed it so excitedly and so rapidly that Mr. Crudge himself, wondering what could be the cause of such unwonted disturbance of the silence in that yet busy office, came running Kenneth's sanctum.

"I—I believe you rang for me, sir," he gasped, heedless of the absurdity of his remark. "I thought something might be—"

"No, nothing's the matter with me, Crudge, except that I'm in a great hurry. Is there a time-table in the office? No? Well, then, please send Tom out to get me off. Wait! Better telephone the station and find out when the next train leaves for Scarborough."

"Very well, sir. Are you going there this morning, Mr. Markham?"

"Yes, if there's a train. Likely as not there'll not be one before this evening. Our British railway systems seem to be run even less for the convenience of the public than they are in America!—which is saying a great deal! Witness our insular British Sundays—no trains at all! Well, I'm going to Scarborough to-day, if the powers that be will permit me. Is there any case that will prevent?"

"No, sir. Sprague versus Redwell comes on early next week. I'm working on the brief for that case now, sir."

"That's not important. I mean the case itself, Crudge, not your excellent brief. You know, I'm thinking of letting Burton and Hobbs take that case. They'll be glad of such an edible crumb from our table; neither Sprague nor Redwell will object, under the conditions which I've already explained to them; and, besides, it's my private opinion that you, Crudge, need a holiday as much as I do. What do you say?"

The sea washes the world—Pears' Soap washes its inhabitants!

For over a century, Pears' has been making its way round the world. Ask for it in your local store; it is there! From the Cape to Cairo, in the bazaars of India, throughout Australia, Canada, the U.S., and South America Pears' has made its way with civilization,—on merits!

Pears' Soap is transparent because it is pure; it is the most economical soap because "it wears but does not waste." It cleanses and purifies the skin and freshens up body and mind.

CHAPTER I.

AFTER FORTY YEARS.

"Passion is fierce and bends to no control. It robs the reason and usurps the soul."

As the summer sun sank like a dying king in the mass of crimson clouds that lay at the back of the village of Dale, two laborers, bent with toil beneath the self-same sun, under whose beams they had labored for three-score years, trudged wearily across the fields and along the lane that led from the Dale House to the little village that lay at the foot of the hill.

They had finished their day's work and, with their hoes across their shoulders, stopped to wipe their brows and look back.

"It's a fine even," said one. "We'll have some rain, maybe, though, 'fore the morn."

"That's like enough," said the other; "an' 'ull do no harm, neither."

"Ain't thee a-nigh done that three-acre yet, Will?"

"Ay," replied Will, "a'most. What are they goin' on to-morrow?"

"I dunno," said the other. "I may go up to the Dale an' see."

"I don't envy thee," remarked Will, with a short laugh.

"I dunno why thee shouldst," retorted John. "I would rather face the old un than come across Maester Darrell."

"Hum!" said the other. "Didst see him to-day?"

"I did," replied John, "as ill luck'd have it."

"Why didn't 'ee ask him then?"

"Ask him?" echoed John. "It 'ud 'a been more'n my head were worth. I was a-diggin' the acre when he come oop, black as thunder, swearin' like mad, an' 'thwackin' the old mare as if he meant to kill un."

"What ailed him, man?"

"How do I know?" retorted John, with a shake of his old gray head.

"An' what's more, 'tain't like as do any one else. He war in one of his tant-rums, I s'pose. He's a brute, he be."

"Thee'd better tell him so," remarked his companion, with a grin. "I believe he'd kill 'ee."

"It's most like," answered the other, wearily. "Not as I think o' tryin'. Has thee seen Maester Hugh to-day, Will?"

"Yees," replied Will. "I seed him a-comin' from the hoose. He were as black as thunder, too."

"Ah, ay," said the old man, John. "They 'a been a-tiffin' again there. Poor Maester Hugh! I do pity him. Will, I'm thinkin' these rich folks ain't got so easy a life on it as some o' we poor folk do think, look 'ee. But where will 'ee find a handsomer hoose an' a grander than the Dale? An' where's the squire in the country as 'as got such a sight o' money as the maester? Where, too, will 'ee find a uprighter lad than Maester Hugh? He's one o' the good sort, mark 'ee; yet I'm thinkin' the poor lad ain't more happier than old soft Tom, down village. He's got his fill o' meat an' drink, an' his hosses an' dawgs, but— Hist! what's that, man?"

The old laborer's lecture on human happiness was brought to a sudden close by a rustling of the leaves and the sudden apparition of a handsome, stalwart form that, with a bound, followed close by a pair of splendid greyhounds, cleared the hedge and alighted at the startled laborers' feet.

The athlete—for no other than an athlete could have so cleanly cleared the hedge—was a tall, strongly built youth, with a handsome, well-cut face that struck one more by its expression of stern nobility than by any regularity of features and by a certain air of proud earnestness that spoke out plainly in the dark-brown eyes and well-formed lips.

A RENT STRIKE.

NEW YORK, April 20. An attempt will be made on May first by Socialist agitators to bring about a general strike of tenants in New York and the Brownsville section of Brooklyn as a part of the May Day celebration, it is predicted by Arthur N. Whilly, chairman of Mayor Hylan's committee on rent profiteering.

SUFFRAGETTE CAMPAIGN.

CLEVELAND, April 20. Forty-eight Republican women, one from each State in the Union, are going to invade Connecticut on May 1st, to participate in a ten day's campaign in the interests of suffrage ratification by the Connecticut Legislature.

INNOCENT VICTIMS.

DETROIT, Mich., April 20. The Ford Motor Company announced today that a shortage of raw material due to the railroad strike would cause the lay-off of approximately twenty thousand of its employees.

SPANISH QUEEN ATTACKED.

SEVILLE, April 20. Bandits attacked a train last night on which Queen Victoria and her brother, the Marquis of Carisbrooke, were travelling from Madrid to Seville. Robbers made an unsuccessful attempt to carry off the Royal plate, which the Queen was taking with her. The robbers who were armed, opened a regular fusillade when discovered, wounding two of the railway men, one of them probably mortally. The bandits escaped in a two-horse carriage, leaving no clue to their identity.

JAPANESE CASUALTIES.

LONDON, April 20. Japanese casualties in the fighting in Siberia, which resulted in their capturing Nicksok and Habarovsk from the Russians, totalled two thousand, according to reports received in official quarters. Some of the Russians escaped to the hills and others were captured and disarmed, advised state.

BRITAIN WANTS TO KNOW.

LONDON, April 20. The British Government has sent a second communication to Russia asking what the Soviet Government intends to do with adherents of General Denekine in the Crimea and pointing out again that Great Britain would view with disfavour any attempt to pursue the remnants of his defeated army. Although a wireless despatch from Moscow says Russia is ready to acquiesce in Great Britain's request for amnesty for the Denekine force in question if her proposals are agreed to by the British, the official view here is that the promise is too vague to be considered binding.

SETBACK TO STRIKERS.

CHICAGO, April 20. The strike fever among the railroad employees suffered a setback today when 30,000 railway clerks and 8,000 freight handlers in the Chicago district announced their decision to permit the hearing of their wage demands by the railroad labor board at Washington. An unauthorized attempt to enforce the granting of increased wages was voted down last night, after an appeal was received from James J. Forrester, head of the Brotherhood members of the Labor Board.

THE FINANCIAL CONFERENCE.

LONDON, April 20. Canada is among the countries which have been invited to send representatives to the world financial conference, which will meet at Brussels soon, having been called by the Council of the League of Nations. The note containing the invitation, states that the Council fully realizes the difficulty of the problem to be discussed, and that the delegates will be asked to conduct the debate on a higher plan than the mere consideration of special problems and the interests of each state.

BIG PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCTS.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 20. Farmers throughout Canada will continue to get good prices for their products during the next two years, according to the opinion of Dr. J. W. Robertson, who addressed the Parliamentary Committee on Agriculture Colonization today. "So let us go to it and produce every bushel of grain and every pound of produce we can," said Dr. Robertson. It would take at least two big crops to catch up to anything like normal supplies on breadstuffs, and ten years to attain pre-war status on milk products and four to five years for beef products.

QUIET IN LONDON DERRY.

LONDON DERRY, April 20. Quiet prevailed here last night despite expectations that the rioting of Saturday and Sunday evenings would be renewed, the night passing without the semblance of a disturbance. The prevalence of peaceful conditions was brought about by an agreement between the authorities and Roman Catholic Priests, by which the police were removed from the neighborhood of the recent rioting, two priests taking the place of the officers and remaining on patrol all night; the clergy using their influence with the people and urging them to go home and go to bed. The plan worked admirably, the priests having the streets virtually to themselves all night.

ALFRED H. EMERSON, owner of big stock farm, who says Tanlac built him right up after having a bad case of Flu, which left him in awful bad shape. Says Tanlac is only medicine that helped him.

"I have taken only one bottle of Tanlac, but it has done me more good than all the other medicines I have taken put together," said A. H. Emerson when he called at Guppy's Drug Store, Portland, Me., the other day. Mr. Emerson lives near West Scarborough, Me., where he owns and operates one of the largest stock farms in that section of the country. "After I got up from the flu last winter I was in mighty bad shape," he continued. "I was not only in a weakened, debilitated condition, but I also suffered awfully with indigestion. My stomach was so weak I could hardly digest anything and could hardly bear the sight of food, much less eat anything. As I was not able to eat any nourishing food I kept getting worse and worse and I was badly discouraged over my condition as it looked like I would never get my strength back again. My nerves were all upset and my sleep was broken and irregular. I felt tired and worn-out from morning until night and could hardly drag one foot after the other."

"I took many different kinds of medicine but nothing did me a particle of good until I began taking Tanlac. As I said before, I have taken only one bottle, but it has made such a remarkable change in my condition I feel like a different person altogether. My appetite is splendid now and I can eat anything I want and as much as I want without the slightest touch of indigestion. My strength and energy have returned, I sleep sound and get up in the mornings feeling ready for a big day's work. Tanlac has put me back on my feet and everybody certainly ought to know about this medicine." Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town--adv't.

Fishermen (?) the Jobs.

Not so long ago the appointment of the four gentlemen, whose names are given prominence in the Advocate yesterday, to seats in the Legislative Council, would have received far different treatment from that paper, but the times have changed. No longer does that once powerful organ of the Fishermen in the outports demand fair outport representation and men of practical experience of the fisheries to perform the duties of Upper Chamber legislature. That is all done with now, and there is only commendation for the gentlemen who have been but recently gazetted as local senators. They are: Hon. John Browning, biscuit manufacturer; Hon. Frank Steer, dry goods merchant; Hon. George Shea, steamship agent, and Hon. Alexander Campbell, Doctor of medicine. These vacancies in the Upper House, were created by the demise of Hon. John Harvey, Geo. Skelton and A. F. Goodridge, all belonging to the Anglican denomination. Out of the four appointments, but one Anglican has been made, thus disturbing the denominational ratio, and lessening the Church of England representation out of all proportion. The resignation of Hon. R. A. Squires has been made equal, denominationally, by Hon. Frank Steer being given the succession.

Toned Down.

The most salient points of the reply of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. W. F. Coaker, to the delegation which waited upon him at the office of the department over which he presides, yesterday morning, were given in the press report, but even these were toned down to suit party exigencies, at the request of the honorable gentleman himself. Of course it must be understood by the public that a Minister of the Crown who lolls back in his chair, stretches his arms over his head, yawns and talks nineteen to the dozen, must on such an occasion, make statements that need correction. The deputations was accordingly surprised to find Mr. Coaker so off-handed in some of his statements, and naturally put it down to a superabundant ebullency of high spirits over the fact that the Prime Minister had gotten himself in a hole, out of which only the loyalty of his colleagues could extricate him. Mr. Coaker was reported to have said (deleted from the actual copy) that no reliance could be placed in a report of a Committee of the Legislature if such had been appointed to investigate the Woodford accusations against the Prime Minister.

Now just what did Mr. Coaker mean by that expression? Was it that sufficient confidence could not be placed in the intelligence of both branches of the Legislature to have a Committee composed of members from each House for the purpose of investigating the Woodford charges, made under oath, to return a finding entirely consonant and consistent with the evidence adduced? If such was the purport of the expression or statement, then the Minister of Marine and Fisheries must possess but very little confidence in the integrity and honor of his colleagues, and has offered a gratuitous insult to them all, including his own F.P.U. following in the Assembly. This discounting of the mental powers of his associates on the Government side of the House is far from complimentary to their intelligence and their ability to distinguish right from wrong, but it is quite characteristic of the Minister who expressed such an opinion, and of course his fellows will not take umbrage, knowing that their positions depend upon their absolute subservience to their chief.

Mr. Coaker also informed the delegation that Mr. Squires "says there is nothing to be ashamed of" (only Mr. Squires would say this) "and that he has no fear of giving evidence under oath." Perhaps not—but hearken to the significance of the amplification of Mr. Coaker's pronouncement on the position of the Prime Minister: "If the allegations prove true," said the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, "Mr. Squires would have to resign." These are his exact words. The supervised press report states, at Mr. Coaker's instance, and correction "that Mr. Squires would be embarrassed." The public can take its choice of the change of verbiage. If Mr. Coaker is sincere in his desire for clean politics, his opportunity to purify the Augean stables of the Prime Minister is now at hand.

Election of Speaker.

Congratulations to His Honor W. M. Penney, M.H.A. for Carbonear, who was yesterday elected by the Government members as Speaker of the House, thereby entitling him to the distinction of being the first commoner in the land. It must be noted by the public that the members of the Opposition in the House, did not participate in the election, having withdrawn in a body from the chamber after returning from the Upper House. The new Speaker therefore is not the unanimous choice of the House.

Proceedings yesterday afternoon were of the usual routine order. At three o'clock the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod appeared at the Bar of the House, with a message requesting the attendance of the members at the Legislative Council Chamber. On arrival there the Clerk of the Council read the Commission of Hon. R. K. Bishop, J. D. Ryan and M. G. Winter. The Hon. Mr. Bishop then addressed the members of both branches of the Legislature, and informed them that it was not expedient to declare the reasons for summoning the Legislature until the members of the House of Assembly had first elected a Speaker. Accordingly they would repair to their place of meeting and choose from amongst themselves a fit and proper person as Speaker and present him at the Bar of the Legislative Council at three o'clock to-day for His Excellency's approval.

Veterans Combine for Business.

KEATS AND DAY FORM NEW MATRESS MAKING CONCERN.
Messrs. Hubert Keats and Leo Day are the latest Veterans of the Great War to join hands in establishing a firm, and starting business for themselves. Both are members of the "Blue Puttees" the first of our gallant lot to go overseas, and prior to enlistment they had been working with Mr. J. J. Henley and Callahan, Glass & Co., with whom they learned their trade. They have now taken over a premises on Balsam Street and started matress making, repairing and cutting, on their own account. As they have studied the work and relearned their previous knowledge they hope to give satisfaction to the general public. Keats and Day are already in receipt of several large orders and their output indicates their industry and reliability. We wish the new firm every success.

To-day Capt. Levi Diamond celebrates the 86th anniversary of his birthday. Though attaining such a ripe age, Capt. Boyd, of Dorset, England, will take place shortly. They will make their future home in China, where Mr. Boyd holds a position in the Chinese Maritime Customs.

Boy Stabbed, Assailant Arrested.

While playing near the East End Fire Hall yesterday evening at about 6.15, George Hynes, aged 13 years became the victim of a serious stabbing affray. The assailant was a chum named Shannon Caines, son of fireman Caines, of the East End Fire Hall. After being wounded the boy walked to his home at the Battery, and reported the occurrence to his parents. Dr. Macpherson was called and after an examination found that the wound was inflicted in the back and that one of the lungs had been penetrated. As there was danger of death resulting the police were notified. The Inspector General, with Mr. J. McCarthy, J.P., Head Constable Byrne and Caines, who was found at his home and placed under arrest, drove to the injured boy's residence, and in the presence of the prisoner, a statement was taken from the injured one. Caines was later taken to the police station.

Scamp Attacks Young Lady.

On Monday evening a young lady of one of our city banks was badly scared by a scamp who came behind her and caught her around the waist but her scream made him desist, fearing being caught he ran away. The attack was made between the head of George's Street and Brazil's Square. The young lady had to go into a nearby house to regain her strength before proceeding home. As a good description of the molester can be given it is hoped he will be rounded up.

Young-Adams Co.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"—An Amazing Drama.
To-night the Young-Adams Company appear in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a compelling drama adapted from the famous novel by Robert Louis Stevenson, the play of which was made famous by Richard Mansfield. Dr. Henry Jekyll is a generous, kind-hearted physician, handsome and well built, with the belief that every man is possessed of two selves, and that he is tempted to yield to it. He is shortly afterwards successful in producing a mixture which will separate the good and evil in men and provide two separate bodies which are independent of each other. He proceeds to drink the liquid and becomes Mr. Hyde, a hideous looking creature, but by drinking an additional dose he changes to the good and handsome Dr. Jekyll. Mr. H. Wilnot Young plays the dual role and will be seen in quick transformation. All the squalor and vice of the underworld, all the beauty and love of the upper—mirrored in the struggling depths of a human soul, and set forth in a production of surpassing realism. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" as portrayed by Mr. Young will long be remembered by those who witness it. The remainder of the company are particularly well cast which go to make this a masterpiece.

K. O. C. Party.

The Knight's of Columbus are having another Card Party and Dance in their rooms to-night for the members and their lady friends. As this is the last party for the season the House Committee, wish all the members and their friends to show up in goodly numbers. A treat is in store for all who attend.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, April 21.
We are pleased to be able to announce that we have now received practically all our Seeds from Messrs. Sutton, Reading, for whose famous seeds we are agents. These will be open and on sale in a few days. Meanwhile we are busy putting the finishing touches to our Seed Catalogue which we hope to have out in a few days. Your name on a post card brings you one of these. One thing we note. Peas have been quite scarce during the last season or two, but this year we have succeeded in obtaining sufficient for our probable requirements. We do not need to say much in this place about Sutton's Seed—they and their value is known to most Telegram readers. But we would say—send your orders along at once. Then you'll stand the best chance of having it filled completely.

A Broad-Minded Suggestion.

We understand that it will be submitted to His Excellency the Governor that the Royal Commission to be appointed to investigate the charges against the Prime Minister and Hon. M. P. Gibbs, arising out of the Woodford affidavit, should, in justice, to all parties concerned, be either the three Judges of the Supreme Court, or as an alternative, The Right Hon. Sir R. Bond, Messrs. H. L. Knight, B.L. and J. P. Blackwood. A Commission of such personnel would have the implied confidence of the public, as there would be no active politician identified or associated with it.

Charged With Attempted Murder.

BAIL GRANTED.
The young lad, Caines, who seriously wounded a chum yesterday, was before court this morning charged with attempted murder. The Deputy Minister of Justice asked for a remand. Mr. Higgins, for the accused, pleaded for bail. Considering the boy's age and other circumstances, the Deputy Minister did not strongly object, and bail was granted in the sum of $20,000 for the father and two sureties of $5,000 each. Meanwhile if the injured boy dies the bail will be withdrawn.

Obituary.

CHARLES E. MEEHAN.
A highly-esteemed citizen, in the person of Mr. Charles E. Meehan, passed away at his residence, Monkstown Road, yesterday morning, after a rather lengthy illness. Deceased was a man of estimable qualities, courteous, genial and generous, and was held in highest regard by a host of friends. In early life he was an official of the Union Bank and later of the Municipal Council. For fifteen years he was accountant of the Royal Bank of Canada, from which position he retired a few years ago. Two sons, Augustus and Hubert, who enlisted in Canada at the outbreak of the war, fell in action in 1916 and 1917, respectively, and their passing was a severe blow to the loving father. Left to mourn are a widow, one daughter, Miss Nellie, and three sons, John, Principal of the firm of Meehan & Co., and William and Charles, of the Royal Stationery Co., to whom the Telegram extends sympathy.

L. S. P. U. and the Mails.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—My attention has been called to an item in one of the daily papers, wherein it is stated that under the new regulations adopted by the Longshoremen's Protective Union there will be a delay in the delivery of the mails until the next morning should a mail steamer arrive after 6 p.m. For the information of the public I wish to state that such is not the case. It makes no difference what hour a mail boat arrives, the Longshoremen will land His Majesty's mails. An instance of this occurred on Sunday when members of the L.S.P.U. went up to the Reid Co.'s docks and put the mails on board the S.S. Kyle. Every mail boat arriving in port, or leaving, while the present arrangement is in force regarding no night work, and no work on Sunday, will have the mails handled whenever needed by the members of our Union.
Yours truly,
JAMES FLAVIN,
Vice-Pres. L.S.P.U.

(By WARWICK SMITH.)
ARTICLE VIII.

St. John's has so often been called a "rum-hole," that the case quoted in my last article "An Informer's Fate," might be cited as instancing only the attitude of the Capital of the country. Now what are the facts as regards the administration of the law in the outports? Putting aside for the moment, the large amount of drugs and patent medicines consumed outside St. John's, which has largely increased since Prohibition, let us confine ourselves to a consideration of the smuggling and "moonshine" making.

Ask any decent, respectable outport man what is his opinion on Prohibition, and he will answer in terms like these: "I voted for Prohibition—but not for this." Now that may be taken in two ways. He may have voted for Prohibition thinking it would make Newfoundland a bone-dry country. He knows it has not. Or he may have voted for Prohibition thinking he would, as usual, be able to get his jar full when he came to St. John's in the Fall of the year. It cannot be denied that this argument was extensively used by the advocates of Prohibition in order to catch votes, or, perhaps, because they believed it themselves. At any rate there is plenty of evidence that men came to town in 1917 with their jars and were disappointed when told that only those who were sick could get any liquor and then only eight ounces.

A clergyman informed me that he has information from most reliable sources that smuggling and drunkenness are on the increase along the whole Southern Coast from St. John's to Cape Ray, and that Customs Officials are powerless to do anything to stop it, because whole settlements are on the watch to aid the smuggling of liquor. I am not saying this on official information, because the officials know, or pretend to know, nothing about it. At headquarters nothing is, I believe, known about it. Persons whose word I cannot doubt have assured me that smuggling goes on to an alarming extent; but they, naturally, refuse to give me the names of persons and places, because it would then be my duty as a Customs official to bring it to the attention of my superiors.

As for "moonshining," no person who meets outport people can have any doubt about it. Another clergyman informed me that many of his parishioners are making "moonshine" for lack of the imported article. A writer in the Trade Review of April 10th, states:

"The women and even the children drink the stuff in nearly every northern outport, and every second man you meet is blinking his eyes from soaking himself with the poison. They drink it instead of water and it leaves bad effects. It was made from apricots, raisins, etc., last fall, but they use now only molasses and it is much cheaper." I have also been assured by dozens of respectable people that they have seen, with their own eyes, the manufacture of "moonshine." Further, the police avoid going into houses on brewing days, which are as well known as baking and washing days. Can anyone blame them after the trouble at Flat Islands last year? A man-of-war arrested the Flat Island "moonshiners," but none of them was ever called before the Court since.

Why are these things so? Because public opinion is against total Prohibition. Whatever good has been done by Prohibition is counter-balanced by the introduction of a great evil into this country. That evil is contempt for the Law, and that is one of the first steps in the direction of Bolshevism.

Harbor Grace Notes.

(Special Correspondence.)

Mr. James Shelgrove, a well known and respected resident of Water Street East, who went to St. John's by Saturday week's early train to enter the General Hospital there, died on the following Wednesday, at the age of 64 years. Shortly after the examination at the institution, which showed that he was suffering from an incurable internal complaint, the end came. The remains were conveyed by Thursday's afternoon train to this town, when the funeral took place from the station. Interment was at the Methodist Cemetery, where the remains were laid to rest in mother earth. It is believed that his son, William, who is employed at Sydney, will come here shortly to dispose of the large property in the East End. His wife predeceased him by some 13 months.

Mr. E. Simmons has recently purchased from Messrs. J. & J. Yetman, of the South Side, the schr. Pandora, 55 tons. She is to be used in general coasting business.

The schr. Snowbird, R. Parsons, master, came off dock on Wednesday last and sailed for Carbonear on the following day.

Mr. E. Simmons' schr. Dorothy, J. Pike, master, sailed for St. John's Tuesday last with general cargo for her owner.

The many friends of Mr. E. D. Freeman will be pleased to learn that he is recovering from his recent painful accident. He fell through an open hatch and badly sprained his left arm while performing his daily duties at Strapp's Pharmacy, of which he is manager. His friends trust that he will soon be completely recovered and able again to use the limb freely.

Miss Mollie McKay is now recovering from an attack of influenza.

Mr. Geo. Stewart arrived from Bell Island Saturday evening in his motor boat, the G. L. Stewart, bringing a few passengers and a little freight. Mr. H. Tilley also arrived about the same time from the Island with a large number of passengers but no freight.

The many friends of Mr. Eli Stowe will be pleased to learn that he is now able to get about town again. Mr. Stowe has been ailing for some two years past and at one time during that period it was feared the end to his long life had come. Even doctors expressed their belief that he was not going to live much longer; but the critical point has passed and he is still on deck with a fair prospect of regaining part of his lost strength, if not all of it.

Potatoes are at present very scarce in Harbor Grace, and in no wise cheap. It is stated that they can be obtained on the South Side at $7.50 the barrel. At that figure—and that is even cheaper than it was expected they would be—many people here will have to let their cultivated land go to weeds this year owing to inability to procure the article at even a smaller figure than the above for seed purposes.

Now that there is so much talk of world famine, and so much said as to how people should economize, would it not pay the Government to distribute to those who may require them, potatoes sufficient to set out their ground, accepting as a return say two barrels to one in the fall of the year? Otherwise many people will not set their ground out this season, and that will mean a harder tug on the other foodstuffs, such as flour, etc.

The Government should not have to be reminded of this way of helping the people, whose money, and not theirs, they handle. If a world wide famine is to be prevented, then why—and when there is an avenue of escape—should an article such as the potato, an all-around saver on the poor man's purse, be refused those who have land and are unable to get sufficient for setting purposes, either through their scarcity or the inability on the part of the people to purchase them. It is time to start something now and not when it is too late, if the Government is to help the people.

A popular young tailoress while on her way home the other night received quite a shock. Living in a far end of the town, and hearing so much talk of the "dress-up," she became a little nervous after leaving the centre of the town. However, all went well until she reached some distance beyond a popular street, when a loose piece of fencing began to rattle with the wind. With the exclamation "Oh, my!" she made a bee-line for the opposite side of the street, only to meet her shadow on a stone wall. Hence the young lady's firm resolution to cultivate the acquaintance of some worthy "gallant," and if good looks and all that sort of thing count for much, the road to her destination assumes a rosy hue.

But not alone does the "dress-up" hold terror to this young lady. Another young tailoress, very popular, was also the victim of a shock some few nights ago. When she was about to indulge in her beauty sleep, she happened to glance toward the window. Pressed close to the glass was the face of a "dress-up." Whoever the individual assuming the "dress-up" role is, he is very easily frightened. The young lady shortly got rid of him by the aid of another. There must be a "button" loose somewhere.

WHY A. J. MACLEDO PRAISES DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Nova Scotia Man Gives the Reason Why He Advises Sufferers from Kidney Trouble to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

River Dennis, N.S., April 20.—(Special.)—"Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me wonderfully. My back is better and as I haven't taken any other medicine since starting to take them, they must have done me a lot of good."

In these words, Alexander J. MacLeod, a well-known resident here, gives his reason why he praises Dodd's Kidney Pills and why he says, "I would advise anybody who has kidney trouble to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills are popular all over Canada is that people have tried them and found them good. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for more than thirty years. They have been used by thousands of people suffering from various forms of kidney trouble, such as rheumatism, dropsy, sore back, weakness, diabetes and Bright's disease. Ask any one of these thousands to give you his opinion of Dodd's Kidney Pills. It is on the relief afforded sufferers from kidney trouble that Dodd's Kidney Pills have built their reputation as the sovereign remedy for sick kidneys.

"FIVE THOUSAND."

Five Thousand more bottles of "Brick's Tasteless" Cod Liver Oil will arrive in a few days. The two thousand which arrived about two weeks ago is practically all sold. The only fault is it makes you eat, and Tasteless is a most palatable preparation containing the active principles of the purest Cod Liver Oil with all its unequalled tonic alterative reconstructive properties—combined with Phosphorous in the form of the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites containing 1-100 gr. strychnine to each tablespoonful also, with the nutritious liquid extract of malt and the bronchial tonic and sedative fluid extract of wild cherry bark. Price $1.20 bottle; postage 20c. extra. For sale by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, Wholesale & Retail Druggists, St. John's, Newfoundland. Sole agents for Newfoundland. Write us for wholesale price.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

IT CAN BE DONE.

"Where was it?" I asked. "Right in the little apartment where I used to live, in the center of New York," she said.

Forty Dollars for Extras. And then she went on to explain. The doctor had told her she ought to go to a sanitarium for her nerves which, through overwork and worry, were in a bad condition. Her little daughter at the same time had developed a heart murmur. Her husband had gone away on a three months' business trip, and the doctor suggested that she go to a sanitarium and send the child to relatives. She was not willing to leave the child, to whom she is passionately devoted, besides which she could not possibly afford to go to a sanitarium. She had only the money for three months' living expenses which her husband had left her, and about $40 she herself had saved up from her own work.

The Avoided Fatigue.

"So we just made up our minds," she said, "that we would go to a sanitarium right at home. The doctor told us just what they did in sanitariums and we tried to do the same, as nearly as possible. Of course I had to do the housework, but it wasn't hard and I went at it very slowly and always stopped before I got tired, the way they do in the sanitariums. We had the top apartment and had a little porch, and we pulled our coats out there and slept out every night though it was winter. "We took almost no medicine, but I used most of my precious $40 for extra nourishment in the form of eggs and cream, the same as they do in the sanitarium. "We laid down for a few minutes after every meal, because the doctor said that we weren't assimilating our food and that that was one of the best ways to cure that. "Every day we took a walk down to Van Courtland Park. If we were afraid we might get tired, we took the car back for—you mustn't get tired. "Every night we went to bed very early and often, if I was the least bit tired in the afternoon, I took off my clothes and lay down for the whole afternoon. "We didn't try to do one other thing in the world but remember that we were living in a sanitarium. We gave up our friends and amusements, and I gave up my hair work, just as if we had gone to a real rest cure.

The Most Important Thing.

"And, most important thing of all, I stopped worrying. The doctor said that all the trouble with me was overwork and worry, and that I had to give them both up—and I did. "When we went to the sanitarium, I was losing weight steadily and couldn't sleep. After I had been in it three months I had gained a pound a week and could sleep all right, so I asked the doctor if I might take up some of my work again, and he said I might try. I began slowly and found that if I didn't get tired I was all right. And I've never had a doctor from that day to this, and that was four years ago."

To the thousands of people who, if they could afford it, would go to a sanitarium for a few months, I commend this little story. It's not exciting, as I said before but don't you think it has a wealth of suggestion in it?

STILL HIGHER.

It keeps us all deploring, lamenting, and the like; for prices still are soaring, each day they take a hike; I view the situation that now disturbs the nation, and in my agitation I breathe the name of Mike.

A suit of wool, not shoddy, of handsome color tone, once clothed my shapely body, and cost me thirty bones; and it would hang together in every kind of weather, as trusty as the leather the village saddler owns. But now a suit of shoddy my timeworn system feels; and it is punk and gaudy, and costs me eighty wheels; it shrinks when rain is reigning, and so I am complaining and raising fringed spleen. My shoes are made of paper, bedizened bright and smart, and when I waltz or caper the blamed thing comes apart; to wear them is exhausting, and oh, the price they're costing would put a layer of frosting upon the warmest heart. If things were worth the money, the prices we might greet with smiles serene and sunny, and not with frozen feet; but goods are made by pikers and prices set by hikers, and so I join the strikers and breathe the name of Pete.

Just Folks

THE FISHERMAN.

Observe the quiet fisherman, go watch him by the brook. And note his code of honor with rod and line and hook; There are no eyes upon him, no tongues to praise or blame, Yet if he be a fisherman he truly truly plays the game.

He does not fish for fishes, he serves a nobler creed. He does not fish for numbers or more than he may need; He glories in the struggle where sun and waters dance. But in the fight he's waging he gives the fish a chance!

And now he feels a nibble, and now his line grows taut! And soon another victim unto his creed is brought. But oh, the catch is tiny! He takes him from the hook And gives him back his freedom, and gives him to the brook.

Oh, fisherman in numbers along the streams of life. Why should we not in honor observe the rules of strife? Should we not scorn to injure the undersized and weak, And hold our love of justice above the goals we seek?

Fads and Fashions.

White tulle is used for some wedding gowns. Redingote influence appears in gowns of taffeta.

Separate skirts are having a vernal vogue. Poplin top-coats are trimmed with white pique.

Many foreign-looking flowers are used on millinery. Taffeta frocks have full skirts and tight bodices.

Bright, contrasting heels are seen on evening slippers. Some of the Spring frocks are a wider silhouette.

Fillet lace blouses can be worn with tailored suits.

SOME CARPENTIER DEFEATS.

Until recently the defeats Georges Carpentier suffered at the hands of the American middleweights, Billy Papke and Frank Klaus, back in 1912, have been pointed out as evidence that the French idol does not measure up well, according to American standards. But of late the fact that the young Frenchman was not fully developed at the time has caused ring critics to view these two battles in a different light.

Although Carpentier failed to last the full twenty rounds with either Papke or Klaus, the eighteen-year-old Frenchman demonstrated that from a scientific standpoint he was superior to either of his opponents. He was beaten on both occasions only because his undeveloped body was not sturdy enough to withstand the punishment that the more experienced and rugged Americans handed out. Carpentier is thoroughly game was amply demonstrated in both contests.

Carpentier and Klaus met at Dieppe, June 24, 1912. At that time Carpentier was the middleweight champion of France. He had but recently defeated Willie Lewis, the man who had been his early model. In Paris they thought Lewis was the greatest fighter in the world, barring Georges, of course, so when Carpentier succeeded in beating his old teacher he thought that his troubles were over and that he would have clear sailing in the future. It never occurred to the young Frenchman that Klaus classed with the much admired Lewis, and he expected an easy victory.

Klaus Was Rough.

Klaus was a rip tearing body puncher with tremendous strength and an iron jaw. Carpentier met his rushes with jarring jabs and accurately placed straight rights, but Klaus would not be denied. He shook off the punishment he was forced to take at long range, and when he got in close beat tattoo on the body.

This was something new for the Frenchman and he did not like it at all. The English boxers he had met had stood straight and boxed according to the book. None of them had ever fought like this raging demon, who paid no attention to the blows he received, but smashed away at the body without ever letting up for a moment's rest.

For a round or two Carpentier had the better of the bout on points, but in the fifth Klaus put a hard right to the body and a left to the jaw, sending Carpentier down for a count of four. Carpentier stalled desperately, and by using all the generalship at his command managed to stick it out until the bell came to his rescue.

In round after round Klaus pounded the body and the young Frenchman grew weaker and weaker. In the seventeenth Carpentier rallied desperately and jarred his sturdy opponent with hard rights to the jaw. That effort took Carpentier's last ounce of strength and he became a mere punching bag.

In the nineteenth Klaus tore in to finish matters. He missed a wild swing and Carpentier seized him around the neck and hung on blindly. Klaus was very rough in trying to disengage himself, and Manager Descamps jumped into the ring shouting that Klaus was fouling with his elbows.

Hopelessly beaten though he was, Carpentier protested vigorously against his manager's interference. He struggled to free himself from the grasp of the excitable Descamps, who had caught him around the body. The claim of foul was not allowed and Carpentier was disqualified by the referee.

Stopped Trip to America.

Carpentier took his defeat very much to heart. He sat in his corner sobbing aloud and refused to be comforted.

The youngster's defeat was a blow to American promoters. Billy Gibson had made all arrangements to have him go to New York to meet Mike Gibbons, who was then at the top of his form.

"There goes a $40,000 house," sighed Gibson when he heard the news.

The bout with Papke at Paris, October 23, 1912, was almost a duplicate of the contest with Klaus. The weight for the match was set at 160 pounds at 3 o'clock. Each side posted $1000 forfeit money. Papke trained hard to make the notch required, but he was one pound over the mark, so Carpentier claimed his forfeit. Descamps, his manager, then caused it to be announced that as Papke was overweight no title would be at stake.

When Carpentier got on the scales he failed to move the beam. He claimed to be several pounds under the mark and looked it. He was drawn and thin, his ribs showed prominently under the skin. He had all the appearance of an overtrained athlete.

Made Good Start.

During the early rounds he looked like an easy victory for the young Frenchman and the crowd cheered his every move, delighted by the way he handled his flashing straight left and jarring right. Papke was outclassed at long range. Carpentier circled the stolid American on nimble toes, throwing in whole volleys of lefts and rights.

For a time it looked like a slaughter. One of Carpentier's jolting right handers landed on Papke's left eye and that organ closed up tight. In the fourth round the American was reeling and holding at every opportunity to escape a knockout. In the fifth Papke changed his tactics. He gave up the hopeless attempt to box his nimble opponent at long range and stayed in close, pounding the body with half jolts.

At once the tide began to turn in favor of the more rugged man. The overtrained Carpentier could not stand the body pounding and he slowed to a walk. From the tenth to the fourteenth round Carpentier rallied and by using his footwork succeeded in outboxing his opponent. Then he grew too tired to use his legs and from that point on Papke punished him cruelly.

Keeping in close Papke worked left and right to the body, varying the attack by an occasional overhand right to the head. Carpentier was a sight. Streaming blood from the nose and mouth and with both eyes almost closed he was battered from one side of the ring to the other. In the seventeenth round he signed to the referee that he was through.

FOR FINISH BOUT.

Mexicali, Lower California, April

5.—Fred Dato, brother-in-law of Governor Estaban Cantu, announced today that Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion now here, had signed with a syndicate represented by Dato to put on a finish bout here within 90 days.

Dato will try to get either Fred Fulton or Carl Morris to box Johnson.

KID LEWIS AFTER AN ENGLISH TITLE.

New York, April 5.—Kid Lewis, former welterweight champion of the world, who has been knocking English welters about with great regularity for some months past, now aims at the middleweight championship of England. Lewis recently knocked out an English middleweight named Johnny Bee in four rounds and followed that by stopping Gus Platts, the Sheffield Blade, in 18 rounds. Lewis's desire for a match for the middleweight belt is opposed by the authorities on the ground that he is only in England again on a temporary visit, and that he intends, and always has intended to return to the States, where he has made his home with his own and his wife's family, this weighing very heavily against Lewis's chance of winning another belt and taking it straightward out of the country. The middleweight situation is complicated by the fact that Pat O'Keefe, holder of the Lonsdale belt, who retired a few years ago, now announces he still is the champion and will defend the honors against any one. On top of the O'Keefe edict comes the announcement that Jim Sullivan, the former middleweight belt holder, and Tom Gummer are to meet at the National sporting Club in a contest announced as being for the middleweight championship and belt. Thus it can be seen that the middleweight situation in England is in a muddled situation, with the chances of the winner of the Sullivan-Gummer contest being declared the holder.

YANKEE SOLDIER WANTS BOUT WITH CARPENTIER.

New York, April 5.—Following the lead of Charlie Weinert, Gene Tabney, A.E.F., light-heavyweight champion, stepped out with an offer to box Georges Carpentier, although by now it ought to be pretty generally known that Carpentier cannot accept any challenger to box anybody.

Both Weinert and Tunney will appear in the all-heavyweight boxing show, which the Newark Sportsman's Club is holding next Monday night in the First Regiment Armory, Newark. Weinert will oppose Ole Anderson, the new Pacific Coast star, while Tunney will clash with Mike O'Dowd. In another bout Willie Meahan, "Dempsy's Jinx," will meet Al Roberts, the Staten Island heavyweight. Tunney who went "over there" with the Marine Corps, was entered in the Inter-Allied boxing tournament. He probably would have met Carpentier in this if the latter had not been suffering from an injured thumb which prevented him from competing. Tunney suggests that the deferred match be held here as a test for Carpentier.

The radiant charm of lovely colour can be imparted in exactly three minutes to the woollen sweater, the dainty blouse, or the discarded garment.

Unfailing success attends the use of Majic Soap Flakes: A few minutes, a tablespoonful of Majic Soap Flakes, two glasses of hot water and your cast-off things emerge transformed exquisitely coloured without stain or spot.

No Uncertainty about this Milk —its Quality or its Delivery

It comes from Canada's finest dairy sections. It is pure "whole" milk. But is delivered in a safer, more convenient way. It is sealed. If you wish, you can keep a week's supply—or a month's—on your pantry shelves. Then you have fresh, rich milk every time you open a can. When you run short, you simply phone the grocer for more.

That is how Milk comes from the spotless Carnation Condenseries.

Gathered every morning from Ontario farms, Carnation Milk must first pass rigid tests and inspections. Part of the water is evaporated from it. Then, rich and creamy, it goes fresh into new clean containers and is sealed. It is sterilized to insure its purity.

No sugar or anything else added.

Carnation Milk is "whole" milk—nothing more. Richer, of course, because it contains only half as much water. Safe because it is Sterilized. Kept pure because it is sealed.

Add Water to Carnation Milk

Water has been taken out. Carnation comes to you rich and creamy—just right for coffee, tea, fruits or cereals. But you may have it as rich as you wish. Add an equal part of water and Carnation has the natural richness of whole milk. Most people add even more water. Double the quantity of water makes a nourishing drink for kiddies—safe and usually superior in quality to ordinary milk.

Carnation is milk of unusual quality—without the bother or uncertainty of daily deliveries.

Carnation waits your convenience.

Ready—fresh—the moment you want it.

"All Aboard" for the Moon

(By CHARLES NEVERS HOLMES.) In Lloyd's Magazine.

Many of us have travelled around our world, a distance approximating twenty-five thousand miles. Shall we ever be able to travel from our world to the moon, a distance of about two hundred and thirty-nine thousand miles?

To-day, of course, we cannot do so; but it is not impossible that some day men may travel from our earth to the moon, and back again. No one at all familiar with the progress of modern science and invention will deny that such a journey is a future possibility. Indeed, it may be that to-morrow some stupendous discovery will revolutionize aerial navigation, and if this should occur, a journey to the moon would soon be occupying the minds and energies of terrestrial inventors and scientists.

Even with the assistance of remarkable discoveries, however, there will remain great difficulties in the way of travelling from the earth to the moon. The first of these is the force that binds us to our world's surface. This force, which we call gravity, pulls us towards the centre of the earth, away from the moon, and it is so powerful that at present we know of no means by which to counteract it.

To break its chain, so that we can fly away from our planet home, would require a velocity of not less than thirty-seven thousand feet per second. Since the best modern guns can throw a shell with a speed of about three thousand feet per second, it is evident that we should have to be projected from our terrestrial surface about twelve times as fast in order to reach the surface of the moon.

Furthermore, because both earth and moon are in motion, we should have to make careful mathematical calculations in order to hit the mark. Otherwise, in case our sky-craft should miss the moon, we might go on travelling through space indefinitely, unless some planet, like Jupiter, were to capture us.

Moreover, there are other difficulties and dangers in making a trip to the moon. Our sky-craft would have to be strongly constructed—very strongly indeed—to stand such a journey. Leaving out of consideration the friction and pressure upon it in passing through our atmosphere at such tremendous speed, there would be a great outward pressure from within it after we reached the vacuum-like environment of the ether.

In order to remain alive, we should have to be surrounded by practically the same conditions inside our craft as they were when we left the terrestrial surface. We should have to breathe, and to have about the same atmospheric pressure upon our bodies as at the surface of our earth. Therefore—unless some unpredictable scientific discovery should assist us—the walls of the craft would have to be exceedingly strong to resist the tendency to expand outwardly into the ether, thus causing some opening which might suddenly or slowly destroy us.

Again, the walls of our sky-craft would have to be very strong to resist possible collisions with aerolites—the small or large rock fragments popularly known as "shooting stars." When we remember that these bodies are travelling with a velocity of ten to forty miles per second not far from the earth's surface, and that our craft would be speeding some seven miles per second, it is evident that a head-on collision would not be a gentle one.

When our sky-craft reaches the moon, its landing is not likely to be at all a soft one, since the moon possesses no known atmosphere to retard our speed, and the lunar surface is believed to be wholly rocky and hard.

Doubtless, were we able to hurl our sky-craft free from terrestrial gravity, we could to-day build a craft that would weather an ethereal voyage from the earth to the moon. Doubtless it could be constructed to stand the powerful attacks of pressure and of aerolites, as well as the sudden and terrific bump at the end of the route. Our astronomers of this twentieth century could certainly aim such a craft so that it would reach its destination, and it is probable that the crew would not have much to do.

But the power required to hurl a sky-craft, weighing perhaps ten tons or more, with a velocity of about seven miles per second, from the terrestrial surface and through the atmosphere into the ether, would be nothing less than terrific. It seems an almost impossible thing to do, but future discoveries and inventions may put it in a different light.

We can calculate, at least approximately, how long such a voyage would take. Leaving out of consideration the acceleration of the sky-craft owing to the attraction of the moon, the average time would be about nine hours and a half. In other words, we could embark in England at 8 p.m. and disembark upon the moon before six o'clock the next morning.

But now another problem arises. After we have reached the moon, how are we to get home? That is a difficult question to answer, although, if we had the necessary mechanism to propel our craft, it would be easier to return to the earth than to go to the moon. Upon the lunar surface, owing to the smaller mass of the moon, the force of gravity is only about one-sixth that of our terrestrial gravity, and it would therefore require a velocity of only a little more than six thousand feet per second to overcome it. However, the voyage would be long—about fifty-six hours. Thus the whole trip to the moon and back, if there were no delay, would take almost three days.

Would you rather have a good appetite than a bad one? If you do, take Brick's Tasteless.

The straight-line silhouette persists.
