Comments on the Cartoons.

EXTREMES MEET.—When Mr. N. F. Davin wrote his able and learned work, "The Irishman in Canada," he overlooked one striking feature of his countryman which might have formed the subject of an interesting chapter, we mean the unanimity with which the Canadian Irishman, Catholic and Protestant, has supported Sir John A. Macdonald. There are Irishmen of both varieties, of course, who are Grits, but they merely form the exception which proves the rule. The "Irish vote" of the Dominion, a mass of ballots of mingled orange and green, has gone pretty solidly for "John A." ever since that clever political manipulator assumed the leadership of his party.

But this fellowship on election day has by no means brought about a harmonious blending of the Irish colors on the other three hundred and sixty-four days of the year. The old feud has gone on, and the transatlantic hatred has lived in full force. It has been the exalted business of the eminent statesman above named, not to overcome this rancour and bitterness in the interests of the country, but to work it to the advantage of his party, and in this he has unquestionably succeeded. While the rival sons of the North and South have had their heads together in battering-ram fashion he has managed to plant upon their mutual shoulders the soft chair of office, and therein seated, to enjoy for the better part of forty years the loaves and fishes of the treasury.

NEXT IN ORDER.—The rapid growth of public opinion in Great Britain on the Land Question is one of the most interesting political phenomena of the day. The thinking that is going on from John o' Groats to Land's End seems to be tending more and more in the direction of the taxation of ground rent as the natural and sufficient source of all public revenue. As the recognized exponent of the single tax system, Mr. Henry George received a warm welcome to the Old Country in April, and his lecturing tour in England, Scotland and Wales since then has been a continuous ovation, almost as hearty as Gladstone himself could command. It is noteworthy that at all the principal centres Mr. George has spoken under the auspices of the Liberal Associations, and prominent members of that party have appeared and spoken upon his platform. A very few years ago few of these gentlemen would have consented to touch the prophet of San Francisco with the traditional "ten-foot pole." Perhaps most significant of all, however, is the fact that the Liverpool Financial Reform Association, the recognized medium of the English Free Traders, has come out squarely for the single tax on land values. The question has become a living issue in Imperial politics, and careful observers are confident that as soon as the Irish question can be got out of the way Landlordism will be sternly called upon to prove its proposition that God is the Father of the 300,000 land owners of the kingdom, and the step-father of the 30,000,000 dwellers therein.

E direct the attention of our readers to the announcements which they will find on the dead walls of the city, setting forth that on Saturday of this week the "Reform Party" intend holding a grand picnic and talking match at the Exhibition grounds. We have not been specially requested to insert this notice, but do so pro bono publico, as we feel it our duty to encourage this young and struggling party, whose principles are said to be worthy of some consideration. What those principles are is not as yet generally known, but no doubt on this occasion some of the aspiring young men who are at the head of the affair will make it their business to explain. We advise those of our readers who are curiously disposed to be on hand.

A GREAT outcry is being made because the Ottawa Government have brought an action against the G. N. W. Tel. Co.'s District Messenger Service to restrain them from carrying on their business which, it is now alleged, competes against the business of the P. O. Department. Even enthusiastic N.P. men are joining in the general shout of protest. The action on the part of the P. M. General is certainly a high-handed outrage, but why should Protectionists object to it? It is in strict accordance with the "principles" of protectionism that legitimate and useful businesses should be crippled and destroyed either to serve the supposed ends of public revenue, or more generally, to put extra profits into the pockets of favored private concerns. The whole system from top to bottom is a detestable fraud and a shame to civilization.

IT OUGHT to be kept in mind that the only constitutional course for those of the people of Canada who disapprove of the Government's action in the Jesuits' Estates matter, is to turn out that Government at the next election. To defeat every man in the House who voted against the O'Brien resolution, excepting the gentlemen on the Treasury benches, would be little to the purpose. The Government alone is known to the law, and the only punishment for a Government is expulsion from office. If, therefore, Sir John A. Macdonald remains in power after the next election, all his acts are endorsed. The fact of the equal guilt of the Opposition in this particular matter has "nothing to do with the case," though it furnishes a good chance for the machine politicians of the Conservative party to becloud the issue amongst those who do not think clearly for themselves.

PROMPT and vigorous action must be taken by Acting-Mayor McMillan and the City Council to head off that unexampled grabber, the C.P.R. The conference with the Railway Committee of the Privy Council at Ottawa made manifest the little game which the Syndicate is trying to work, and which they will succeed in working if energy, industry and money will enable them to do so. As nearly as we can guess, they now appear to want the city of Toronto, and the plain business before our civic guardians is to let them know, with all necessary emphasis, that they can't have it. The C.P.R. should not be allowed to become the owner of a solitary foot of land in this city. Give them whatever accommodation they may require along our Esplanade as tenants at a fair rental. But in the name of all that is involved in our future progress, don't let this grasping and merciless autocrat become our landlord!

FOR a reply to his query, "What's in a name?" Mr. Shakespeare's spook is respectfully referred to the Toronto Board of Works. At a recent meeting the following changes in the names of streets were adopted:—

- Lennox avenue to be called Marion street west.
- Duncan street to be called Wright avenue.
- Montague street to be called Starr avenue.
- Clark street to be called Cunningham avenue.
- Frederick street (St. Alban's) to be called Saunders avenue.
- Lorne street (St. Alban's) to be called Guelph avenue.
- Rose avenue (St. Alban's) to be called Thistle avenue.
- Coatsworth avenue to be called Trenton Terrace.
- Mitchell avenue to be called Grafton avenue.
- Prospect street to be called Vivian avenue.

If any member of the Board can tell us what particle of sense there is in these changes, and what purpose they serve beyond the muddling and mystifying the brains of the citizen, we would feel obliged for the information.

A CLIMAX.

Composed in sweetest vein,

With haughtiness rejects!

"GRIP'S" CRONY CLUB.

SECOND NIGHT.

THE palatial banqueting hall was more resplendent than ever on the occasion of the second meeting of the Crony Club, and every chair was occupied by a guest more or less distinguished in literature, science or art. Pleasurable anticipation marked all faces as Mr. GRIP rose to announce the Star of the evening: "I am glad to say that Fortune has guided the blank ballot this evening to the hand of the greatest of living Canadians. I'm sure you will all be delighted to hear from

MR. R. W. PHIPPS."

Mr. Phipps rose with the deliberation of a man who is in no hurry, as he is aware that the world must wait until he gets ready, and, letting his head fall easily back and calmly closing his eyes, he said:—Chairman, gentlemen. Don't know what I'll do, now I'm up. Haven't sung for ages, but can sing—(do anything you like, in fact)—but prefer just now to recite. Never learned any songs—all trash; not worth learning. Fellows can't write songs now-a-days. I'll write one some of these times when I feel like it, but just now doesn't matter. Will make up a recitation for you—parody—as I go along." Then in a not unpleasant sing-song delivery, he extemporized as follows:—

Who was it, as a little child,
With rapture drove his parents wild,
For Genius on the cradle smiled?
'Twas I.

Who was it, ere he learned to walk,
And ere he donned his primal smock,
Charmed people with his learned talk?
'Twas I.

Who was it, as a lad at school
(Tho' oft mistaken for a fool),
The first in every form did rule?
'Twas I.

Who was it that, at man's estate,
Was facile princeps in debate,
And stood the greatest of the great?
'Twas I.

Who was it that, with fertile brain
Gave forth ideas, a brilliant train,
Yet never felt the slightest vain?
'Twas I.

Who was it that, for country's sake,
Allowed such folks as Edward Blake
His precious thoughts to freely take?
'Twas I.

Who was it made the great N.P.,
That marvel of sagacity,
When old John A. was up a tree?
'Twas I.

Who was it able pamphlets wrote
Which captured the bucolic vote
On which to power Sir John did float?
'Twas I.

Who was it after that did go
And ask for a portfolio—
But whom the Tories "didn't know?"
'Twas I.

Who was it subsequently joined
The other camp, where they're not blind
To men of merit and of mind?
'Twas I.

Who now writes Forestry reports,
Crammed full of wisdom of all sorts,
In style to stir poetic hearts?
'Tis I.

Who talks for Mowat and Reform,
And seeks to save 'em from all harm
By quieting the Jesuit storm?
'Tis I.

Who is the very greatest man
That's flourished since the world began,
Drum-major in the race's van?
'Tis—hard to say.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

DEPUTATION FROM ANGLICAN SYNOD—"We object to this Public School Temperance text-book, Mr. Ross. It is too extreme in its views of wine-bibbing, and doesn't even provide for the customary two bottles a day for the clergy."

HON. MR. ROSS—"But then, gentlemen, you must remember that I have refused to make it a compulsory study, and very few of the books are in use in the schools."

W.C.T.U.—"Yes; and that is where you have fooled us. But we haven't given up the battle yet."

PARABLES OF ENGLISH HISTORY.

I. MRS. BRITANNIA'S BOARDING-HOUSE.

MRS. BRITANNIA is a greedy, covetous old dame, who keeps a large boarding-house. Her establishment is patronized by all sorts of people—shopkeepers, sailors, mechanics and plough-boys, as well as some who have pretensions to gentility. It is remarkable that so many come to board with her, for she is not at all the kind of person one would fancy as a landlady. She has a violent temper, and is always brawling with some of her boarders or servants, so that a meal is seldom eaten in peace. She does not hesitate, when angry, to fling the pots and pans about in the most savage manner, and with great destruction of victuals, for though penurious in general, she does not care how much she wastes when in one of her tantrums. Moreover, she is partial, especially to those whom she considers the better class, giving them the choicest viands, yet charging them no more than others who fare but poorly. But her most unfair partiality is shown to a host of poor relations, who sponge on her, and who always receive the best of the cheer and the finest rooms in the house. Now, this might seem a pardonable weakness, or praiseworthy family affection, were it not for the way she takes to recoup herself for her outlay in supporting this swarm of beggars. This is to charge all the extra expense to the account of the hard-working and poorly-fed mechanics and laborers.

One would think that her boarders would be apt to leave her after such treatment, and seek some other boarding-place, but Mrs. B. has long enjoyed a monopoly of the business, there being no similar establishment in the neighborhood. So the poor workmen are compelled to swallow their indignation along with their coarse fare, as best they may. Of course, every now and then there is a row. Once, a long time ago, a big blacksmith named Watty, on being presented with a particularly tough drumstick, so far forgot himself as to take his hammer and smash a lot of dishes, but he was quickly hustled into the street by a swarm of those poor relations, who, though they would die rather than do any honest work, like nothing better than a scrimmage.

I have said that Mrs. B. is partial to some of her boarders. She is also capable of harboring special spite against others. One of the boarders is a poor old man named Pat, who earns his living as a day-laborer. He is not, it must be owned, very steady in his habits; likes a glass or two, with now and then a row, to while away the time. However, he is, in the main, a friendly, honest fellow. But Mrs. B. hates him like poison, and gives him nothing but potatoes to eat. And when her poor fare drives him to the public house, to get liquor and become quarrelsome, instead of taking him in like a Christian, and trying what good victuals would do in the way of reforming his morals, she always sets the police after him and has him clapped in jail. This conduct is all the more reprehensible on her part, because poor Pat was at one time possessed of considerable property, which Mrs. B. managed, by some crooked dealing, to strip from him, and add to her own estates. Might and right have always been synonymous in Mrs. B.'s vocabulary.

Now, Mrs. B., you may be sure, has made a very good thing out of her boarding-house, with all this sharp practice, and has a nice little sum laid by for a rainy day. But her greed knows no bounds, and, like some other old people who are rich enough, the insanity of her dotage has taken the form of fearing poverty in her declining years. So, cunning and crafty as ever, she has hit upon a plan of increasing her revenues, and likewise insuring herself from future losses. And this is to change her boarding establishment into a co-operative concern. She proposes to form with her boarders a joint stock company. But she expects, of course, the biggest slice of the profits, in the shape of a fat salary as general manager, and also that all her poor relations will be sumptuously supported free of charge. There will be an army of contractors to settle with, watchmen and servants of all sorts to hire, gas and fuel bills pouring in, and also frequent lawsuits, arising from the quarrelsome and over-reaching temper of Mrs. B. What with these liabilities, and that huge company of haughty deadbeats staring them in the face, is it possible that the boarders will be silly enough to seriously consider such a proposal? Time will tell.

CHARMS AND ADVANTAGES OF THE AGRICULTURAL PROFESSION.

(From the Mail, June 3, 1894.)

IT will be remembered that this journal, about five years ago, published the account of an agricultural meeting at which Prof. Mills said farmers should not disparage their occupation. The Queen had her herds and flocks, he pointed out, and a time was coming, he declared, "when retired professional men would turn to farming on account of the social position it would give them." Doubtless, at the time, many people smiled at the worthy Professor's prognostication. But now we find that it is being singularly and strikingly verified. Agriculture has actually claimed for its own many of our most distinguished professional men; and that it has in a marked degree elevated socially and ennobled generally numbers of such as have embraced it as a substitute for other learned vocations, is attested everywhere around us.

CHRISTIAN VANQUISHING APOLLYON.

Take, for example, our most eminent statesman and public character, the Rt. Hon. Sir John Macdonald. Look at him physically since he has abandoned politics and assumed proprietorship of the Mimico Dairy. Seated on the collecting wagon, and driving with firm and unerring skill the pair of faithful old greys he recently bought from Hon. Oliver Mowat (who, as we all know, has embarked to advantage in the horse-breeding industry), would any one recognize, in the homespun suit and battered straw dummy—the wearer the very picture of rotund jollity—an ex-Premier of Canada, who left the arena of public affairs veritably with one foot in the grave? Then, as the old yeoman springs from his seat and gives Hon. Edward Blake, manager of the People's Cheese Factory, a hand off with the well-filled cans of his surplus milk, what a picture of unstudied beauty and business combined do the pair make! "Glad to know the cheese market is up a cent, Ned," briskly remarks Sir John, as he extends a begrimed hand. "We need it, Mac," responds Mr. Blake. "Another drop now would knock the eye out of this season's make. I've sold at the advance."

Passing from these eminent men to others, we find Mr. J. J. Hawkins quitting politics and travelling around buying hogs for the British market. And this fact recalls a joke we heard at the expense of the late member for Bothwell. Hon. David Mills, himself now working as a ploughman at the Model Farm, observed, when he was told of Mr. Hawkins' new departure, "Well, John Joseph has the nucleus of a shipment in his own person."

There is Mr. D'Alton McCarthy busily engaged as a market gardener up near Barrie. If one were to go out from Toronto four miles into the north country he would likely find Mr. J. D. Edgar calmly at work slicing up turnips for his short-horns. Col. Denison, M.P., has a fine poultry run out near Newmarket, and fairly crowds this town with elegant eggs. Rev. Dr. Potts has left the pulpit and buried his military ambition in order to cultivate a new brand of guano. Hon. A. S. Hardy has an extensive duckery on the Indian Reserve, near Brantford. He does not go in for even a "Little Thunder" just now, because thunder, it is ascertained as a scientific fact, kills young ducks.

Numerous other instances might be enumerated of the attractions which farming has for illustrious Canadian men. But we shall let our news columns and the farm journals speak for themselves. As to the social elevation gained by the occupation, one has only to look in at any fashionable assembly and try to count the number of guests arrayed in flannel shirts and top boots. To see a farmer exquisite like Sir A. Caron, with blue jean trousers tucked in cowhides, and carrying a big ox-whip in his hand, conversing affably with Lady Macdonald, in a crowded reception at the Capital, may seem strange when we look at the style of five years ago. But, as it was predicted, the man now must woo the soil who would rise to social eminence, and so we find this picture. The air at fashionable assemblies is necessarily now more pronounced than formerly. But, being healthful, it is not at all objected to on account of strength.

May the noble profession go on and draw from the ranks of the so-called genteel vocations. T. T.

THE SYMPATHETIC NERVE.

OUR AMATEUR TENOR—"Doctor, can you tell me how to prevent my eyes filling with water when I am singing high notes?"

THE DOCTOR—"Er—I don't know; but if you could manage to steel your heart against the sufferings of the audience it might —" (Exit tenor abruptly.)

OUR AMBASSADORS ABROAD.

(SCENE—Hotel Metropole, London. His Worship the Mayor discovered in secluded corner of private parlor, smoking morning cigar. Enter COADY, with mail matter in hand.)

COADY—"Morning, Worship. Haven't seen the latest Toronto papers, have you?"

THE MAYOR (interested)—"No; let's have them. What's going on at 'home, sweet home.' Nothing unpleasant, I hope?"

COADY—"Don't know about that. I saw some tall headlines in the Mail about a big anti-Jesuit convention in the opera house."

THE MAYOR (snatching paper and opening it)—"Gee whillikins! two solid pages! But pshaw! it won't amount to a row of shucks, Dicky, my boy!"

COADY—"Looks as if it would amount to a good deal more."

THE MAYOR—"You don't understand the temper of the people as well as I do, Dick. I got my schooling from Sir John. This is merely a strong land breeze, speaking nautically. It was caused by the Mail—a paper which the Conservative party blacklisted for its treachery, and which the Grit party don't want. Having outlived its usefulness as an organ, it had to resort to some extraordinary means to keep alive, and the Jesuit question gave it that opportunity. But this breeze will subside. The disturbing wave will recede and break upon the rocks."

COADY—"What rocks?"

THE MAYOR—"Of expediency, my boy. You don't understand politics, I see. The sympathetic public will feel satisfied and secure, now that the convention has been held; and then each party will have its own back again."

COADY—"The reports don't read that way."

THE MAYOR—"Why should they? What was the convention held for? When the constitutionality of the Act is tested, the Government will be sustained. Sir John will then go to the country and say, 'Didn't I say so? My Government was powerless in a matter of this kind; we could not interfere with a constitutional measure without seriously interfering with Provincial rights, and the autonomy of Provincial government.' You can't catch the old man. He's prepared for every emergency, and knows how to make the most of it. He can't afford to lose the support of the Church of Rome, you know, and of course the Jesuits are an important element in it. I don't know what the people are squealing about. They tried to drag me into the discussion last March, in the hope of supporting the movement. But I'm not built that way, Dick; besides, I had received my instructions from headquarters before. Sir John, in his note to me, said, 'Mum's the word; your time is coming; in the meantime, remember that you are a representative of a great political party.' I acted on the right line. I said that I was a member of a great political party, and sat down, and see the praise I got from the Globe and other papers for my moral courage! You see, that's the result of being taught by the chief of a great political party."

COADY—"Well, Ned, if you had been in Toronto now, you'd been asked to speak again."

THE MAYOR—"Don't I know it, and isn't that why I'm here? To float your city bonds? Well, that's good enough for those who don't want to know any better. I wired Sir John in cipher, 'What will I do?' Answer, 'Better contrive to get out of the way—out of the country, if you can—until this business blows over.' That settled it. I got my friends in the Council to propose me as one of the deputation to London; well, when the matter came up and was practically settled, I found myself in such company as that of Ald. Gillespie and McMillan. The first is a pragmatical crank, the second is a strict T. T., with no fun in him for a city like this, although a very decent fellow. The matter was reconsidered, of course, and Gillespie and McMillan knocked out. Then you and I only were left, and I guess we've made things rather pleasant for ourselves ever since, eh, Dick? I was called a 'messenger' merely. That relieved me of any direct responsibility—what I wanted. The city, I guess, can stand me this little trip all the same. As a balm to Mac, I made him Mayor in my absence."

COADY—"You've got a great head, Ned."

THE MAYOR—"Well, now, I don't care about going out this morning. I've got all I can read until lunch. If any one asks for me, say that I'm holding an important conference with the High Commissioner. No, better say that I'm doing the town with the Prince of Wales; that'll fetch 'em better. Well, ta-ta until next feed."

THE WEST ENDERS.

It is with pleasure that GRIP records the inaugural concert of the West End Musical Association, which came off on the evening of Thursday, June 6th. This organization is based upon new lines, being made up of singers selected from the choirs of the western congregations, and proposing to give performances of

SUSPICIOUS SILENCE.

NEWSBOY—"Here you are, sir! All the leading Irish-American papers! Not a word about the Cronin murder!"

oratorio selections at popular prices in the churches of that section. To Mr. K. W. Barton, the conductor, and Mr. Robt. Marshall, president and leader of orchestra, are due the credit of having discovered the only field for a new society which remained unoccupied in Toronto's musical territory. There are positively no more vacant lots, that we can think of. Considering a first appearance, the West Enders may be congratulated upon their performance. The failure of some of the soloists to "get there," made some changes in the programme necessary; and there were, of course, passages in the instrumentation which betokened a want of thorough practice, but, as a whole, the affair was manifestly considered a success by the large audience. When the hot weather is over, and the new association gets down to work in earnest—this first concert was only a trial trip, you understand—we may look for a rise in musical values in the West End to correspond with the rise in land values there. Mr. Barton is a young gentleman of vigor and enthusiasm, to judge by his occasionally terrific gesticulations with the baton, and in Mr. Marshall he has a "first fiddle" who may be depended upon for solid service both on and off the platform. As a novelty on the occasion, Mr. Dimmock, the rising tenor, sang a setting of Burns' "Ode to Mary in Heaven," composed by Mr. Barton, to which that gentleman played a violin obligato. The singing of this was better than the music, though we have heard that Mr. B. can write real well when he is feeling that way. On a future occasion, therefore, we may be able to say something nicer. Meanwhile, we wish good luck and long life to him and those who own the sway of his baton.

WHY WE DON'T PUBLISH THEM,

A SERIES of resolutions, "passed by a unanimous standing vote," at a meeting of the West Peterboro' County L.O.L., and ordered to be sent to GRIP for publication, have come duly to hand, but out of respect for the brethren of the West Peterboro' County L.O.L. we refrain from putting them into type. Those who are particularly anxious to read the burning words of the wrathful brethren against the traitors of the Grand Lodge, will find the resolutions in the Globe and Mail of the 20th. These papers, having no regard for the finer feelings of the Orangemen of Peterboro', printed the resolutions without hesitation. But, when the next general election comes round, and these now indignant Loyalists, once more clothed and in their right Conservative mind, are on their way to the polls to cast a solid vote for Sir John and his French allies, we don't want to have it in the power of any scoffer to confront them with a copy of GRIP containing resolutions in which they denounce Sir John for truckling to the Jesuits and betraying the sacred cause of civil and religious liberty. Nor do we want to have Sir John himself, who is one of our most regular and esteemed readers, tell his friends around Ottawa that the resolutions are the funniest things he has ever seen in GRIP—for this would be to unkindly reflect on the contributions of our regular writers. We hope the Orangemen of Peterboro' will give us credit for these motives, which as we have said are inspired by respect for themselves. In case they see fit to get angry with us for what they may be pleased to regard as a want of courtesy, we trust they will display the sincerity of their displeasure by falsifying our forecast and voting against the Government next time they go to the polls.

PROHIBITION NEEDED.

(Littlejohn on entering Demijohn's office unexpectedly finds him taking an appetizer.)

LITTLEJOHN—"Hello, chappie, what brand is that?"

DEMIJOHN—"D."

LITTLEJOHN—"D' brand. I have never heard of that."

DEMIJOHN—"I don't suppose you have; but you have heard of brand-dee, haven't you?"

(It took all that was left in the bottle to resuscitate the victim.)

CASTING PEARLS, ETC.

ANGELINA (who is romantic)—"Have you ever experienced an undefinable longing for something, you know not what—a soul-craving, a sense of emptiness—?"

EDWIN (breaking in)—"Oh, yes, often—just before dinner."

IN AN AWFUL PICKLE.

RISING POLITICIAN—"Now, where in the Dickens did I put that 'Platform of Principles of the Reform Party?' I've engaged to speak at the big picnic this afternoon, and I'm dished if I can find the document, and I don't remember what the principles are!"

WORKING THE JOINT-STOCK RACKET.

"GOOD mornin', sorr," said Judy Moriarty, the apple-woman, to Mr. Boodelfaker, the able manager of the Anglo-Canadian Usury and Land Grab Association, as she entered the company's palatial office on Toronto street.

"Nothing to day," replied Boodelfaker, gruffly.

"Sure thin, Mishter Boodelfaker, it wasn't about apples I kem this mornin'. Might I sphake wid yez on business, av ye plase."

"Oh, certainly; sit down madam. (Might as well be polite to the old woman—she may have a pile of money hoarded up in old stockings or somewhere, that we can perhaps get hold of.)" So said Boodelfaker to himself.

"It's gettin' ould I am," continued Judy, "an' sure peddlin' apples round the offices is hard work."

"I should think it must be," said the manager. "But what can I do for you?"

"You're in wid thim English capitalists, I'm tould," continued the old lady. "An' it's lots of money they has. Fwhisper! Cuden't yez git up a shindy-cate an' buy out me business?"

"Why—why—really—I'm afraid—"

"Och, why not, thin? Sure, didn't they shindy-cate Bob Davies and give him millions av goold dollars for the brewery beyant? An' fwhy wudn't a jint-stock company be as good fur apples as fur beer, I dunno? Fwhisper! I'll stand in wid ye, moind. Charge thim English shalpeens like the divil, an' thin you an' me whack up."

Some men would have got mad. Not so Boodelfaker. He looked at Mrs. Moriarty with vastly increased respect, wondering where she could have gained so accurate a knowledge of the principles of modern finance.

"Yis," continued Judy. "How wud thim capitalists know anyway if the business was worth tin thousand dollars or not? Sure, there's the shtock-in-thrade more nor a bushel of bewtiful apples and a couple av dozen oranges, an', more betoken, I bought a couple av new baskets lasht week—an' there's the good will av the consarn. Give me a thousand fur it, anyway; an'—fwhisper—yez can sell it to the capitalists fur as much more as ye can git. Pwhat's the matter wid that for a shindy-cate skame, I'd like to know?"

"Hum—ah—there may really be something in it after all," mused Boodelfaker. "The old woman evidently knows a thing or two. Suppose we call it 'The Toronto Fruit Supply Co.' It might go. Call around next week, Mrs. Moriarty, and I'll think it over and see what I can do."

"Av coorse I wud expect to be kept on as manager av the business at a good salary," said Judy, as she retired. "Good mornin', Mr. Boodelfaker, an' moind ye ax thim English capitalists enough. Sure, fwhat's tin or twinty thousand to the likes of thim, anyway?"

"Good morning, Mrs. Moriarty. Remarkable woman! Extraordinary head for finance."

And he turned to his desk and was soon in the middle of a draft prospectus of "The Toronto Fruit Supply Company—Limited—Capital £500,000," detailing the immense advantages secured by the purchase of the long established and extensive business of Mrs. Juditha Moriarty.

MR. PAUL PRY:

"Not at all curious, but then he'd like to know, you know?"

WHETHER the C.P.R. sees anything else around Toronto that it would like?

Whether Ald. E. A. Macdonald imagines he can really teach the Board of Works "good manners" by obstruction, or anything else?

Whether the motives of the Consumers' Gas Company are of a purely philanthropic kind in the scheme they have on hand to get control of the electric light business?

Why the members of that organization do not act on the hint to form a separate company, with separate books, if they are so very anxious to obtain the consent of the Council to their project?

Whether it has ever occurred to Mr. J. L. Hughes that, in the event of Mr. Mowat's "removal," it is just possible he might be called upon to undertake the onerous duties of Minister of Education in the new Cabinet?

What Mr. Clark Wallace thinks of those resolutions of the Orangemen of West Peterborough, in which the officers of the Grand Lodge of B.N.A. are pleasantly alluded to as traitors to the Order?

If we are to understand that a Presbyterian who attains unto perfection, thereby disqualifies himself for membership in that branch of the Church?

A LETTER FROM A MANAGER TO A DRAMATIST.

DEAR SIR—I have some daisy costumes left over from my last season with a spectacular show. They are Chinese and Indian dresses. I also have a dandy scene, painted two years ago, but still as good as new. It represents the Pyramids of Egypt. You may also remember the scenery I used in "The Blonde Brigand" when it was done in your town three years ago. The first act represented a castle on the Rhine, and the second the interior of a sleeping-car. Now, I have engaged for next season the greatest emotional actress in America, and I want to hire a smart man, or boy to write a play for her. Miss Hysteria Wheeler, which is her stage name, has been divorced twice under the most sensational circumstances, and she is the second cousin to the great-aunt of a former President. If she is not a winner, nothing will be. I write to ask you if you can't get up an emotional society drama for Miss Wheeler. I would like to have the first act play in the Pyramids, the second in a castle on the Rhine, and the third in the sleeping-car. The characters should all be swell society people, and should dress in Chinese and Indian costumes, as I must use those dresses sure. Don't you think you could make an adaptation of "Robert Elsmere," introducing my scenes and costumes. There seems to be a good deal of free advertising given to Bob Elsmere these days. As Miss Wheeler has a bad cough, it would be well to have the leading female part a consumptive. Let me hear from you by return mail. Could you have the play finished by next week? Yours hustling,
WILLIAM HANDBILL, Manager.

DRS. R. & E. W. HUNTER (of Chicago and New York), the well-known specialists in throat and lung diseases, have opened a branch office for Canada at 73 Bay St., Toronto. Dr. Robert Hunter is here in person, and during his stay can be consulted on consumption, catarrh, bronchitis and asthma. Their treatment is by medicated air applied directly to the tubes and cells of the lungs. A pamphlet, giving all particulars, will be sent on application.

"My dear, I have been reading up within the past week, and I think I have a name for our baby," said Mrs. Greening, as her liege emerged from his bath this morning.

"You have, eh! What is it?"

"I read that Phœbus, the god of day, comes up bright and beautiful in the morning; that he lights the world; that without him—"

"Now, look here, madam; let's have no foolishness here. You can't call that child by any such name. Did Phœbus of history yell from 11 P.M. to 3 A.M., and intermittently from 3 to 7? I myself am doing the god-of-day business in the matter of getting up, and I'm not dividing honors. If you want a mythological cognomen for that destroyer of rest, I have it."

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Greening, with considerable asperity.

"Aurora!" brutally yelled Elisha. Then he left the house.—Exchange.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. 25c. a bottle.

MRS. CAHOKIA—"Alfred, I have been reading about the hot air treatment for weak lungs, and I think I should like to try it."

MR. CAHOKIA (struck by a happy thought)—"All right, Esmeralda. This is May. Next month is June. We'll spend the whole month right here in St. Louis."—Chicago Tribune.

TO THE DEAF.—A person cured of Deafness and noises in the head of 23 years' standing by a simple remedy, will send a description of it free to any person who applies to Nicholson, 177 McDougal Street, New York.

"How did you come out, Johnny, with your game with the Hustlers?"

JOHNNY (captain of a boys' ball club)—"They beat us, pa—19 to 0."

"Umph! You haven't won a game this season, have you?"

"No, and I just want to club myself, too."

"Don't get discouraged, my boy. Why, if you keep on this way the first thing you know you will be as big a man as Anson."—Chicago Herald.

THE PREMIUM PLATE.—A very large number of old subscribers are sending for the "Horse Fair." This picture, as is universally the case with premiums, was intended to stimulate new subscriptions. We have, however, arranged to accommodate present subscribers by giving the picture to all who pay to the end of 1889, and enclose 25 cents for expenses. This will give to all the average footing of new subscribers. But many send the 25 cents and forget the other part of the condition. Be kind enough to read our offer at the foot of the advertisement.

"I'm afraid that George is trifling with your affections, my dear," said her mother. "He has been calling here nearly a year and hasn't proposed yet."

"You shouldn't blame him for that, ma," replied Gracie, "for you stay in the room so long every evening that he hasn't a chance to say anything private to me."

MANY a sufferer from Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, General Debility, etc., will be glad to find that Dyer's Quinine and Iron Wine is strongly recommended for such cases. It is easily assimilated, prepared with great care, and is an admirable tonic. W. A. Dyer & Co., Montreal.

BIMBERLY.—"Doddly, you are married and ought to be able to tell me what I want to know. Are these gags about a woman's pocket being so hard to get at founded on facts or not?"

DODDLY (who married a rich widow).—"You bet they are. By the way, Bimberly, have you got a couple of dollars you could lend me till Saturday?"

"Oh, the Frenchman was very harshly treated. They threw him off the balcony into the street."

"They did? Well, was he hurt much? Anything broken?"

"Nothing but his English."

"Indeed," she said.

"Yes, indeed, pretty hard pressed."

"I don't remember," she said with a shy look, "of ever having been hard pressed." She was a moment after.—Boston Courier.

A PENNSYLVANIA man recently wrote to his somewhat illiterate son, who had married and settled in the West, asking: "How is your son and heir?" A week or two later he received the gratifying reply "that the boy is doing splendidly, but I am losing my hair."

"Public School Temperance."

The attention of teachers is respectfully called to this new work, designed for use in the Public Schools. It is placed on the programme of studies under the new regulations and is authorized by the Minister. It will be used in three forms. The object of the book is to impart to our youth information concerning the properties and effects of alcohol, with a view to impressing them with the danger and the needlessness of its use.

The author of the work is the celebrated Dr. Richardson, of England; and, this book, though somewhat less bulky, being printed in smaller type, contains the whole of the matter of the English edition, slightly rearranged, as to some of the chapters to suit the requirements of our Public School work. It is, however, but half the price of the English edition.

The subject is treated in a strictly scientific manner, the celebrated author, than whom there is no better authority on this subject, using the researches of a lifetime in setting forth the facts of which the book discourses. At the same time the style is exceedingly simple; the lessons are short and accompanied by appropriate questions, and the language is adapted to the comprehension of all who may be required to use the book. Price 25 cents, at all bookstores.

To ask for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, if you are in need of a Blood-purifier—the only certain and reliable remedy for pimples, blotches, and all other eruptions of the skin. As an alterative, after a trial of nearly half a century, is universally conceded to be the best ever discovered. It is agreeable to the taste, and, being highly concentrated, only small doses are needed.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

An old lady of eighty, Mrs. Mary C. Ames, of Rockport, Me., after forty years of suffering from a humor in the blood, manifesting itself in Erysipelas and other distressing eruptions on the skin, at last began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking ten bottles, she is now, she says, "as smooth and fair as ever."

Leander S. McDonald, of Soley st., Charlestown, Mass., suffered greatly from Boils and Carbuncles, and for nearly two months was unable to work. A druggist advised him to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, after using two bottles of which he was entirely cured. He has remained in good health ever since.

THE HIGH SCHOOL*Drawing Course.

Authorized by the Minister of Education.

The course is now complete:—

No. 1—Freehand.

No. 2—Practical Geometry.

No. 3—Linear Perspective.

No. 4—Object Drawing.

No. 5—Industrial Design.

These books are all uniform in size and style, and constitute a complete uniform series. The same plan is followed through them all—the Text, the Problems, and opposite the Problems, in each case, the Exercises based upon them. The illustration is upon the same page with its own matter, and with the exercise, in every case, is a space for the student's work. Each copy, therefore, is a complete Text-book on its subject, and a Drawing Book as well, the paper on which the books are printed being first-class drawing paper. The student using these books, therefore, is not obliged to purchase and take care of a drawing book also. Moreover, Nos. 1, 4 and 5 are the only books on their subjects authorized by the Department. Therefore, if the student buys the full series, he will have a uniform, and not a mixed series covering the whole subjects of the examinations, and edited by Mr. Arthur J. Reading, one of the best authorities in these subjects in this country, and recently Master in the School of Art.

The approaching Examinations will be based on these authorized books.
