Municipal Council

The county council of the municipality of Charlotte met in annual session at the court house in St. Andrews on Friday 17th, the following representatives of the different parishes answering to their names: St. Andrews: G. K. Greenlaw, J. D. Grimmer. St. James: J. C. McLeod, W. H. McLaughlin. St. David: John Webber, H. E. Beach. St. Patrick: John W. Stevenson, Harry Acheson. St. Croix: David Johnson, C. B. Lawrence. St. George: I. E. Gillmor, Walter Maxwell. Pennfield: G. W. McKay, Gideon Justison. St. Stephen: John A. Grant, John A. Bell, W. D. Babcock. Dunbarton: C. D. Goodill, C. E. McCann. Clarendon: John Bryson, John W. Scott. Dufferin: Francis P. Hunter, Thos. T. Hannah. Lepreau: Wilson G. Mawhinney, R. Melvin Mawhinney. West Isles: Jas. H. Ward, R. A. McNeill. Campbell: Jas. A. Calder, Jas. R. Brown. Grand Manan: W. N. McLean, J. W. W. W. St. Andrews: Wm. Snodgrass. St. Milltown: Harrison McAlister. St. Stephen: A. A. Laffin. Town of St. George: Chas. Johnson. After the oath of allegiance had been administered, Councillor John Webber was elected warden.

R. E. Armstrong was appointed official reporter at the same salary as last year. Committees Appointed On the re-assembling of the council in the afternoon, the following committees were appointed: Finance—the whole council with Councillor Lawrence as chairman. County appointment and Assessment: Councillors, McLeod, McKay and Goodill. County Property—Councillors, Greenlaw, Acheson and Calder. Printing—Councillors Hunter, Johnson and Justison. Parish Accounts—The councillors for each parish. The warden announced that a meeting of the county board of trade would be held in the court house in the evening and invited the attendance of all members of the council. The remainder of the afternoon was occupied by the auditor in the presentation of his report and by the finance committee in its consideration. Petitions were presented from Back Bay and L'Etang asking for repeal of the cattle regulations. The county auditor reported a gross balance in contingent account of $2,386.59. Balance due the contingent fund from Scott Act $147.85, with $286.65 to be added this year. The Scott Act Inspector has filed his annual report. He has laid complaints in six cases, made five convictions, collected $150 in fines. One paid the penalty in jail, one left the country, and a warrant is now out for a third. The claims to be paid are $436.65, of which $300 are for Inspector's salary, $41.30 Inspector's personal expenses, and $95.35 in fees. The Finance Committee occupied the balance of the afternoon's session. There was considerable discussion over bills presented by assessors for assistance rendered the county valuator and in view of the fact that the valuator has not finished his work there was much speculation as to whether the assessors of 1908 would also have to be paid as well as 1907. A sub-committee, composed of Conna. Chas. Johnson, Webber, Snodgrass, Ward and Laffin was appointed to arrange a basis of payment for assessors. The deficit in Scott Act account also caused some debate. Inspector McCallum was heard in explanation of his accounts. He stated as a reason for not proceeding for third offences on the Campbell there is a warrant for a third offence and not a constable on the island will serve it. After hearing a delegation from the Board of Trade, and after a general and approving discussion of the Board's purposes, the sum of $50 was recommended by the Finance Committee to be appropriated to aid the board in advertising the county ports. It was resolved to pay the Scott Act deficit of $286.65 out of the contingent fund.

Boston Letter

The Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, pastor of Trinity Episcopal Church had rather a remarkable audience yesterday. The Dr. preached to the most wealthy and fashionable flock in Boston, but yesterday he had in addition to his aristocratic hearers about five hundred of the unemployed of Boston. They were not very well dressed and some of them had not taken a bath before they left home, but they were there and their presence had to be recognized with Mr. Morrison I. Smith is the leader of this new movement and when he entered the church he sent a note up to the pastor stating that he and his followers were without work and very hungry. They had called on the government of the state and received no encouragement and now they had come to his wealthy church and wished help. The clergyman was much perplexed. It was too big a proposition to deal with off handed. He might have taken a collection for one poor sinner but what could he do with five hundred and yet he feared to refuse. He did not wish to widen the gap already too wide between the church and the laboring man, so the minister announced that he would take this request under advisement, which seemed to satisfy the hungry for the present and they sat quietly and listened to what was no doubt a good sermon. If Mayor Hubbard keeps on cutting off the heads of city departments of work there will be more unemployed. It is surely true that if all the work of the city can be carried on with the present force then the late administration must have been entirely too extravagant. The new Mayor is saving hundreds of thousands of dollars to the city in removing a small army of high priced officials. Well taken. To-day is quite a day of interest among Boston Doctors. Dr. George N. Crile of Philadelphia is to lecture on the subject of transfusion of blood from the healthy person to the veins of another more feeble. Dr. Crile is the originator and apostle of this new method. This part of the country has had an epidemic of LaGrippe but people are improving now. W. J. STEWART.

Sullivan on the Wagon John L. Sullivan edited the sporting department of the Toronto News one day last week and here is one of the articles he turned in: "We hear a lot now-a-days about the man with the punch—the fellow that puts it over everybody else—the business man that has the wallop on his neighbors—the fighter that carries sleep producers in both hands. You know all about that, maybe, that the real knockout punch isn't carried in any fist, and never drops you so that you can rise up after the referee counts ten and collect your senses and your share of the gate receipts. "The real knockout punches in this life are the ones you never see, but only feel. For some fellows the punch is slipped to them in a glass of strong drink, and it has the right to the solar plexus beat a mile for effect. Old Easy life gets in under another 'lad's guard' and puts him down and out before he knows it's coming. No right swing ever took away senses so suddenly as a little touch of Easy Life, and you can get a lot to testify that. I fought the booze, but I wasn't the man with the punch. No man carries a swing or a hook or a cross on an uppercut that can make an impression on Old Red Eye. "They used to say that I won most of my fights by scaring my men into a fit before getting into the ring with them. But Old Red Eye never gave me a serious thought when I threw down the gauntlet to him. I was just as easy as any of the rest of them. You have heard before, I guess, that no man can beat the booze game. It's a fact established as early as the hills. "Perhaps in my time, and I do not mean to say this boastfully, I have turned more young men into a straighter path than any other man outside of 'those occupying temperance lecture platforms. You ask me how I do it, simply by being forcible. I used the argument that if a champion of the world and the man who really discovered the original knockout punch couldn't negotiate a victory over King Corn-jules, what chance had anybody else. Pretty strong talk; that, but absolutely right. "I see in my travels, and I am mighty glad to note it, too, that the age of successful drinkers has gone by. Employers don't want even the "man who can handle it" if there is such a thing. Lots of men flatter themselves by saying they can handle the stuff. Rot. It wasn't made to be handled."

A Fine for Spitting on the Sidewalk

Boston, January 14.—Six men, ranging in ages from 21 to 40 years, arraigned in the first session of the police court, charged with the violation of the new statute law of 1907, which forbids spitting on the sidewalks. The first two of the offenders were arrested last night and remained in a cell all night. The six men were all greatly surprised when arrested. Three at first thought it was a case of mistaken identity. James J. Murphy was arrested in front of 531 Washington street by Patrolman James J. Gallagher, who has been selected to watch for expectorators by Captain Conn. Young Murphy couldn't remember if he had spit on the sidewalk. He pleaded guilty, and was fined $5, which he paid. Henry Murphy, arrested on Hanover street, also pleaded guilty and paid $5 fine. William A. Jackson was arrested by special Policeman Moser for spitting several times on a Court street sidewalk. He pleaded guilty and paid $5. Richard L. F. Taylor spit on the sidewalk of Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay. He pleaded guilty and paid $5. Anthony P. Harris was taken at the Scollay Square subway entrance and went through a similar programme. William A. Cuffens spit twice in view of Patrolman Barry and paid $5 fine. The policemen said orders had been given for a continuous enforcement of the law against spitting on sidewalks, all over the city.

A Complete Success

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Canada's envoy to Japan, gave the result of his mission to the House today. After referring to the objects thereof he stated briefly the cause of the anti-Asiatic agitation existing in British Columbia, which culminated in riots at Vancouver. Dealing with Japanese emigration he pointed out that in 1900 the Japanese authorities gave instructions to prohibit entirely the emigration of Japanese laborers to Canada. This removed all cause of friction and irritation between Canada and Japan. All that was required was some assurance that this action would not be revoked. There was in this way tacit understanding that the flow of emigration from Japan would be so regulated by the Government of the several prefectures as not to exceed a reasonable figure. The existence of that understanding may be seen from the many communications exchanged between Consul General Noose and the Prime Minister. The fact, therefore, was that the Japanese so regulated emigration from Japan as to cause no feeling of alarm in British Columbia. It was only after Canada's adherence to the Treaty of 1894 between Great Britain and Japan that the question of Japanese immigration became acute. By clause 19 of the Treaty of 1894 it was made optional with Canada and other British Colonies to the treaty. It was not until 1905 that Canada became a part of that treaty. As the time of adhering to the treaty had expired it became necessary to conclude a special convention was signed at Tokio in February 1906 and the treaty came into effect after the exchange of ratification. During the session of 1907 it was sanctioned by Parliament. By article one (1) the Japanese were unequivocally given the same rights as any British subjects in Canada. It has been said that Canada should have accepted the suggestion of Mr. Chamberlain to adopt a policy based on the Natal act. That would mean excluding the Japanese from Canada. It was also said that Canada should have adopted the same arrangement as Queensland which reserves her rights regarding immigration of laborers and artisans. The Foreign Offices at Tokio emphatically declared that Queensland never availed herself of the above mentioned stipulation.

Liberals Win Again

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—The bye-elections today for the Dominion House in South Haron, Ontario, and Stanstead, Quebec, resulted in striking victory for the two Liberal candidates. South Haron which was carried at the general election by 111 for the Conservatives goes Liberal by 150, while Stanstead remains Liberal by an increased majority. The result of the bye-elections since the last general election makes a gain of one for the Laurier Administration. With a general election not very many months distant this is a most significant result, which cannot fail to inspire the party throughout the Dominion with confidence. Since the general election in 1904 there have been 44 bye-elections. Of these the Liberals have carried 35 and the Conservatives 9. London went Conservative and North Bruce, Liberal, Colchester, Conservative and St. John, N. B., Liberal. This left the parties as they stood at the general election, so the return of South Haron to the Liberals make a gain of one for the Government. Four weeks ago there were four bye-elections, Centre York, Ottawa, Nicolet and Labelle and all went Liberal. Today there were two more and the same thing happened. The election of today makes five MacLeans in the House of Commons. Three are newspaper men, two lawyers and one a doctor. Three are Liberals, one Conservative and the other is the leader of the third party. Mr. A. K. MacLean, of Lunenburg, and Mr. E. M. MacDermid, of Picton, rendered excellent services as speakers in both South Haron and Stanstead.

Do You Get Bilious?

This trouble arises from torpidity of the liver. Nothing acts so nicely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They stir up the liver, rid the system of bile, tone the stomach, give appetite and good digestion, you feel drowsy and had temper. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will help you at once.—taken at night you're well by morning. Don't be afraid of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, they are mild—don't gripe or massage. They just "cure"—that's all.

St. Croix Bridge Scheme Again to the Front

St. Stephen, N. B., Jan. 25.—An open meeting of the council of the board of trade was held last evening to consider the bill now before parliament to enable the New Brunswick Southern Railway to build a bridge across the St. Croix river at or near St. Stephen or Milltown, and so make connection with the Washington County railway in Canada. For nearly forty years the people of St. Stephen have successfully opposed the granting of an unrestricted charter for a railway bridge across the river, not because they were opposed to such a bridge, but because instead of its being placed wherever it was desired to build, they wanted it placed where it would do the least injury to the river and harbor. At last night's meeting a resolution was adopted advising the town council to send a representative to Ottawa in the interest of the town when the matter comes before the railway committee and ask for an amendment providing that the location of the bridge, if in the town of St. Stephen, shall be subject to the approval of the mayor and council and that the work of constructing shall begin within two years. A stevedore passenger named John Broderick on the Allan Line S. S. Coleson, from St. John to Liverpool via Halifax, died on the voyage around to Halifax, died in the town of St. Stephen in the west, and was on his way to his home in England.

PE-RU-NA PROMPTLY RELIEVES A Case of Dreadful Suffering Which Had Continued For Months.

An Account of a Remarkable Recovery Given by Mr. Alfred Wood, Teacher of a Private School at Lunenburg, Tasmania.

Mr. Alfred Wood, who has a private school at 22 Frederick street, Lunenburg, Tasmania (Australia), has been a teacher for 27 years under the Educational Department of Tasmania. He writes, concerning his wife's case, as follows: "My wife was suffering from gastro-enteritis, and was given up by her medical attendant. "By good fortune I was induced to try Peruna in her case, and I can truthfully state that from the first dose her dreadful suffering ceased; and after taking five bottles she is permanently cured."

HOW does Peruna make such extraordinary cures as above recited? By simply arousing the forces of Nature to throw off the diseased action. Peruna contains no magic and does not operate in any mysterious way, but it does help Nature to combat disease, and thus many times comes to the rescue of the patient in some important crisis. There is always a time in the course of any disease when a little help goes a great way. Just as the scales are beginning to descend, when one ounce more would determine the fate of the patient, a little PERUNA turns the scales in favor of the patient. Peruna is a handy medicine to have in the household. It helps many diseases by imparting a natural vigor to the whole system. As a tonic or cathartic remedy, its reputation is well established all over the world. As a remedy for stomach and bowel troubles, the name of Peruna is undoubtedly destined to become greater than that of any other medicine in the world. A great many cases like that above referred to have found Peruna of untold value when no other help seemed of any avail. Mr. Donald Robb, Jr., 18 Wrights Ave., Halifax, Nova Scotia, member Independent Order of Foresters, writes: "While on a visit to Boston, I must have eaten something that did not agree with my stomach, as a terrible case of indigestion followed. "Peruna was recommended to me and after using three bottles I was entirely cured. "I therefore recommend Peruna to any one suffering with stomach trouble." Mr. Chas. Brown, Rogersville, Tenn., writes: "A friend advised me to take Peruna for indigestion and it cured me in a short time."

A Giant Heap of Junk

Among the many queer and unusual industries which the San Francisco fire brought into being is what might be called the apotheosis of the junk trade, a business which involves half a million tons of iron debris and runs into millions of dollars, says the "San Francisco Chronicle."

It is estimated that 100,000 tons, in the form of bar iron, made from scrap, has already been utilized, and that probably twice as much more will be used in the same way. Although there is no method of reaching anything like an accurate estimate of the amount of scrap iron in San Francisco's ruins, half a million tons, the guess made by the largest operator in his class of salvage, is probably conservative rather than grandiose. This same operator estimated that only 25 per cent. has been taken away, leaving some 375,000 tons of iron still lying where it fell.

The manner in which this scrap iron is purchased by the dealers therein is varied, and, although a large amount of it is acquired through the agency of contractors and real estate dealers, a great deal is brought from individual owners as well. The prices paid vary even more. In some instances as high as $15 a ton is paid; in other cases the dealers receive payment for taking it away, owners being anxious to clear building sites, deeming the iron of no value. Between these two extremes all sorts of terms, prices and business arrangements prevail.

Cast iron is the most desirable grade of scrap iron. This is made into castings by the simple process of melting and re-moulding at a comparatively low temperature, and commands practically the same prices as new material, besides meeting a ready sale. Cast iron has a more or less uniform price of $15 a ton, "F. O. B. ruins," and brings much more than steel, wrought iron, or pipe, for the reason that it is softer, and therefore, easier to work over, much greater heat being necessary to fuse either of the other grades.

Iron pipe in comparatively good condition is next in order of value, and brings on an average about $10 a ton, although it can be had as low as $5.

Have You Stomach Trouble?

When you wake up with headache and bad taste in the mouth, something to settle the stomach is needed. That dull, heavy feeling must be lifted. And appetite must be created. Get a tumbler of water, some sugar, and then pour in a stiff dose of Nerviline. You'll feel tip top in a few minutes. Nerviline invigorates, braces, tones, puts vim and snap into your movements. You'll be fitted for a hard day's work by taking Nerviline--nothing better. Large bottle 25c. everywhere.

Francis Murphy's Cast

"The late Francis Murphy," said a Pittsburg man, "was perhaps the greatest temperance reformer our country has ever seen. Over ten million people thanks to his labors, took the pledge."

"Mr. Murphy, a plain sincere man, hated snobbishness hardly less than drunkenness. At a dinner here in Pittsburg I once heard him rebuke, with a anecdote, a snobbish millionaire."

"He said there was a rich and snobbish English woman living in the country. Her husband put himself up for a political place, and in order to help his campaign along the woman gave a garden party to which every voter for miles around was invited."

"Among the humble guests was a very independent grocer. The grocer made himself quite at home. No duke's manner could have been easier and freer. Indeed, the man's total lack of subservience angered his hostess extremely, so that in the end, thinking to take him down a peg, she said to him significantly"

"You know, Mr. Greens, in London, shopkeepers don't go into the best society."

"The grocer looked at her and nodded and smiled."

"They don't here, either, ma'am," he said. "Chicago Inter-Ocean."

The Spoken Word

Boys and girls, what is it you can never catch, though you chase after it as the wings of the wind? You can never catch the word that has once left your lips. Once spoken it is out of your reach; do your best you can never recall it. Therefore, take care what you say. Never speak an unkind word, an impure word or a profane word.

Old Folks

A homestead without a pair of old folks... Time's dotting chronicles... seated contentedly in the chimney corner, would hardly be a homestead at all. If they are in the picture, it is complete.

There you may find them, day in and day out, in all sorts of weather, steadfast to their places and to one another. When the leaves drip, in the middle of the winter forenoons, the old man, with head of silver abandons his post and newspaper to make the accustomed tour of the kitchen offices, the shed, or the barn, lingering by the way to throw down a handful of grain for the pinched poultry.

With what minuteness he is cautioned by grandmother not to go out insufficiently clad, and with what a single-hearted joy she welcomes him when he comes back to her again. He would hardly get a warmer reception if he was just returning from a genuine polar expedition with Walter Wellman.

As soon as he has nestled down snugly in his cushioned chair once more, he will launch out into such valuable details of the keen air outdoors, suggestive of Arctic reminiscences, which no listener could very well call in question--as will find the white-haired old couple topic of earnest talk till dinner is brought on the table. Fortunate is the home where grandfather and grandmother still occupy their old arm chairs.

Keep Straight Ahead

Pay no attention to slander or gossip-mongers. Keep straight on in your course, and let their backbitings die the death of neglect. What is the use of lying awake nights brooding over the remarks of some false friend that run through your brain like forked lightning? What's the use of getting into a worry and fret over gossip that has been set afloat to your disadvantage by some meddlesome busybody, who has more time than character. These things can't possibly injure you, unless indeed, you take notice of them and in combating them give them character and standing.

If what is said about you is true, set yourself right at once; if it is false let it go for what it will fetch. If a bee stings you, would you go to the hive and destroy it? Would not a thousand come upon you? It is wisdom to say little respecting the injuries you have received.

We are generally losers in the end if we stop to refute all the backbitings and gossipings we may hear by the way. They are annoying, it is true, but not dangerous so long as we do not stop to expostulate and scold. Our characters are formed and sustained by ourselves and by our own actions and purposes, and not by others. Let us always bear in mind that calumniators may usually be trusted to time and the slow but steady justice of public opinion.

Ideal Husbands and Wives

It may be truthfully said that less than one-fourth of the women who marry know what they are doing. They have no idea of what their duties are, much less their rights. About all they know that they are getting married. Is there any wonder that so many are disappointed and wish themselves out of it?

It is perfectly right that a woman should have an ideal husband, but more important that she should have a distinct notion of what constitutes an ideal wife. There's where the trouble lies. They all want ideal husbands, but never seem to think that men may want ideal wives.

Men imagine that a wife will make them happy, and women think that all they need to put an end to their trouble is to secure a husband. How sadly both are disappointed. The wife who expects her husband to make her happy is foredoomed to disappointment; so it is the man who expects the same from his wife. We make our own happiness, and in so doing, we make others happy.

Whenever young women begin trying to fit themselves for wives then a new social era will begin to dawn. There will be more happy homes, less poverty, fewer divorces, and a better moral atmosphere. There is a great deal of room for men to improve in the same line. Comparatively few men have definite ideas in regard to the home life they expect to live. If they do picture such a thing, they follow the outlines traced by some sentimental novelist. It is an impossible sort of place, in which he installs an angel. Nectar takes the place of coffee, and the bread plate is filled with lotus.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will strengthen the distorted limbs of chronic origin, nor turn any grovelling back to his spine. That is impossible, but I can show you the path and power of this dependable disease.

It is known as a Chronic in the City of St. Stephen. I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfect, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it fully cures all curable cases of this horrible and most dreaded disease. These and like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need--no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

"ALL DEALERS"

Miss Sophia Fisher, a half-breed Comanche girl whose father was taken captive by the Indians when a lad of nine years near Fort Belknap, Tex., will be a guest of Spyback, chief of the Shawnee tribe, during the last Indian powwow and celebration at Collinsville, I. T.

This young woman speaks English without accent, and is said to be the handsomest Indian woman in the Southwest. Her hair is long and silken and her eyes are blue and sparkling. She is said to be a singer of unusual ability. Her father owns 2200 acres of lands under cultivation, and is a breeder of blooded stock. Their home is about nine miles from Lawton, Okla., and is modern and richly furnished.

Miss Fisher plays several instruments, but prefers the piano. Besides being a musician she is passionately fond of horse-back riding, and her friends say she can rope a wild steer more easily than any of the men about the place.--Kansas City Star.

A Case of Poisoning

Not unfrequently by cheap acid corn silage. Be safe and use Putnam's Corn Extractor. Purely vegetable, harmless and always cures. Insist on "Putnam's."

In the Kitchen

Half a lemon dipped in salt is excellent for cleaning copper articles. Amalic acid, too, is equally successful both for copper and brass.

Vinegar and salt will remove the brown tea stains from china cups. Vinegar will also clean and brighten water bottles that have become dull.

Add a little soda to the water in which you are going to wash greasy dishes. This helps to remove the grease, and keeps the dishcloth in good condition.

Boat or shoe laces will never come undone if slightly waxed. If the tag has come off the lace, slightly wax the end, and it will go through the holes quite easily.

Ink stains can be removed from the hands by rubbing with ripe tomato juice, if applied at once. It is sometimes successful in removing ink stains from white fabrics.

To remove bad odors from a room, burn a piece of dried orange peel on a hot shovel or old tin. The odor will disappear, leaving a pleasant one in its place. Burned coffee is also effective.

Redly tarnished brass may be cleaned with ease if it is first rubbed with salt and vinegar or oxalic acid. Follow with a good washing of soap and water, then polish with any good cleaning preparation.

If you wish to remove a screw that is difficult to loosen, heat a poker red hot and hold it on the head of the screw for a short time, then, while it is still hot, apply the screw-driver, and it will come out easily.

To take out iron rust, dip the spot into a strong solution of tartaric acid and expose it to the sun. When it is dry, wet the article with warm soapuds; rub the stain with ripe tomato juice, expose it to the sun again, and when the stain is nearly dry wash it in more soapuds.

If you are leaving your house a few hours, and want the fire to keep in, instead of throwing a lot of coal on, it is much better and safer to put two or three pieces on, and then throw a handful of salt over them. If this is done, you will find a good fire at the end of four or five hours.

Carrots and onions are better for cooking if soaked in cold water for twelve hours before using, to draw out the strong flavor. Carrots should always be cut in slices instead of cubes, because the darker outside part is richer and better in flavor than the lighter centre. If served in cubes, some would not get the choicer parts.

UNION BLEND TEA PRIZE

I beg to thank my many friends for their support during the last year. Many thousands of boys and girls have been rewarded five dollars [$5.00] for collecting and returning the complete alphabet taken from Union Blend Tea packets.

The success which this mode of advertising has met with has decided me to continue the same method indefinitely, and I hope to distribute ten thousand dollars [$10,000] this way next year.

HELP IT ALONG.

The movement for the nationalization of the famous battlefields on the Plains of Abraham, has been launched, with Earl Grey as prime mover, and with the co-operation of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. R. L. Borden it should stop short of nothing less than the splendid success it deserves to be.

The immortal words of Howe are appropriate: "A wise nation preserves its records, gathers up its monuments, decorates the graves of its illustrious dead, repairs the great public structures and fastens national pride and love of country by perpetual remembrance of the sacrifices and glories of the past."

We believe that Canada will respond to the call in a manner worthy of itself and of the great event which gave birth to the Canadian nation.

WIRELESS TELEPHONY.

As may be noticed by those who have followed the scientific discussions of men who know, wireless telephony across the Atlantic is not only scientifically possible but commercially feasible.

This is a large proposition, much larger than wireless telegraphy, and wireless telegraph apply across the Atlantic, is as yet a long distance from a commercial success. Wireless telegraphy between ship and ship at sea, or between ships and the not too distant shore is of incalculable value, but it is not likely that it can, at least very soon, become so certain and manageable under all atmospheric conditions, as to become the messenger of commerce over such distances as the Atlantic. And the chance for wireless telephony can not be considered nearly as good as for wireless telegraphy.

Still wireless telephony over moderate distances must be considered both possible and vastly important. Poulsen, of Denmark, claims to have used it over a distance of two hundred miles and Prof. Fessenden makes a like claim over nearly the same distance, from Plymouth, Mass. to New York. What may we not expect?

BACK TO THE OLD FARM!

This ought to be the cry of many of our young men who have vacated the old farm because, as they thought, they could not make it pay.

Our Government is wisely offering inducements to a proportion of the immigrants coming to our shores, to take up lands or to settle on farms supposed to have been run out.

The Government is prepared to demonstrate to them that these farms can be brought back to their former fertility, and if strangers can be expected to work these neglected farms to advantage what may we not expect from our own young men who have the advantage of knowing the conditions as they here exist.

For the encouragement of these let us look for a little at the conditions which they obtain here, as compared with even twenty-five years ago.

Farming implements were then very dear. Mowers cost $100, now $45 to $50. Horse rakes $35, now $20 to $22, and smaller implements more than nearly double the present prices.

Fertilizers are now used more generally and at prices nearly half as compared with them. The market now readily absorbs all farm products at sight, where they used to be a drag. Prices are nearly double, while many important articles such as sugar, tea, molasses, are much lower. Farm life has been bereft of its drudgery and weary toll. The scythe, sickle, hand fork, hoe and hand rake have been replaced by the mowing machine, reaper, horse fork, cultivator and horse rake, while sowing grain and turning seed is a thing of the past.

Other parts of the drudgery work of the farm are greatly relieved by wind and steam. Who will say then that the farm, even of moderate fertility does not wear an aspect ten times more inviting than it did twenty-five years ago.

Many of our forsaken hill farms may be rocky and the soil not fit for raising hay, grain or vegetables, but they are the natural home of the sheep and this opens out a profitable enterprise in itself.

Yes! let our capable young men think of things as they now are in reference to our farms. If we feel sure many of our so called run out farms will be once more occupied with pleasure and profit to the one who is willing to "labor and to wait."

BY THE WAY

A sound argument is not one composed largely of noise.

The pure food law is all right, but a lot of people would prefer a sure food law.

Apparently the country is not much interested in a practical way, on the question whether senators should be elected or appointed.

Answer to correspondent: We have no remedy to suggest to stop nuisance you speak of. As near as we can learn these same conditions existed in other places in which the party resided.

Winter. Some more of the same. One rainy afternoon Aunt Sue explaining the meaning of various to her young nephew.

"Now, my dear, my dear, something that has been handed from father to son," she said.

"Well," replied the boy, though "that's a queer name for my pant

Joint agreement of organized presenting parties concerned, of ration by disinterested parties often bring about the settlement of disputes. No time should be lost in arranging conferences between employer and employee, and settlement which will prevent suspension of work with attendant ill-feeling at the from the old to the new, both sides, who have vital interests, will meet, with a spirit of peace, it will not be difficult to a satisfactory conclusion.

The Sovereign Bank of Canada a paid-up capital of four million. The Canadian Association has undertaken control of the bank, and liquidation is anticipated. There will be no tying up of funds. There is no indication of the withdrawal of money for private hoarding. The banking system of Canada is safe, and has the confidence of the people.—Boston Herald.

Do not tell your troubles this year, because the fewer people who know of them, the better it is for you. You will then be spared the influence of the unfortunate suggestions which your hard luck stories make upon other people's minds.

Then, again, every time you repeat the story of your misfortune, your troubles, your trials, your failures, you fetch the dark picture a little deeper in your own mind; make a little more real to you what you ought to erase forever. What cannot be cured should be erased forever. What cannot help us, what can only hinder, should be forgotten, discarded once for all.

Many people hang on to their old troubles; they cling to their old sorrows and misfortunes, and their failures, their past sufferings, until they become a terrible drag, a clog, a fearful handicap to their progress.

The only thing to do with a bad piece of work, with an unfortunate mistake, with a sad experience, is to let it go, wipe it out, get rid of it forever. Never allow the hideous image to come into your presence again to mar your happiness or sap your strength.

It is a good time to resolve that what ever has happened to you in the past, which has caused you unhappiness, which has disgraced you, which has made you think less of yourself, and made others think less of you, you will drop it, you will not drag it through the door of the new year; that you will lock it out with the old year; that you will clean house, that you will only take with you the things which can brighten, cheer, and help you.

No matter what slips you have made, no matter if you have made a fool of yourself this last year, forget it, blot it all out of your mind. Remember that every time you rehearse these unfortunate experiences you only revive the sad memories, and make them so much more real to you and so much harder to get rid of and to forget.

It is wonderful what a strange fascination one's mistakes, failures, and unfortunate experiences have for most people. I know people who seem to take a morbid delight in sitting for hours and thinking over the terrible things that have happened to them; rehearsing their old troubles, their misfortunes, their mistakes. A wound which is constantly proved never heals.—"Success Magazine."

Great bargains in footwear of all kinds. See our window. Call and price them. D. Bassen.

It is rumored that we are to have a new hotel, and building operations will soon be under way.

Mr. Bert Young is offering some good values in his well stocked store. It will pay to call on him.

A social dance will be held in the Bocabe hall Friday evening, Feb. 7th. The public are cordially invited to attend.

The new iron bridge is greatly appreciated by the citizens, and is the object of much favorable comment by everyone.

The Neighborhood Club had a pleasant time Wednesday evening. Music, dancing and cards were the principal amusement.

Nomination day has been fixed for Feb. 25, election Tuesday, March 3, except in Gloucester, where March 2 is the date.

It has been decided that the Whist Club will give a prize at the end of the season to the winner of the greatest number of points.

Wood choppers are waiting patiently for snow to get their wood out. The first good hauling will see much activity in the fuel business.

The coal merchants are finding it very hard to supply the demand for this very necessary article. Several car loads are due from St. John.

The building committee of St. Mark's church have received several offers for the little steamer, which they are offering at private sale.

Every branch of business seems to be quiet at present, and business men have plenty of time for stock taking, and making general preparations for spring trade.

Several robins made their appearance here last week. As there has been a decided change in the weather they have probably gone to more comfortable quarters.

Mr. Daniel Matheson, who is one of our most progressive citizens, will soon have a gasoline engine on his farm, which will be one more addition to his up-to-date methods of successful farming.

The alder business is good, and the demand is encouraging to those employed in the business. Many cords have been hauled to town and found ready sale. It is perhaps easier to cut them than to keep the stove at blood heat.

The Presbyterian congregation held a business meeting on the 22nd when much business of importance was transacted. Reports of the different officers showed the church to be in a very flourishing and satisfactory condition.

H. McGrattan & Sons delivery team, made a trip against time from the station to the post office on Tuesday. Several persons tried to "shoo" the horse to a more moderate gait, but were not very successful, as he was evidently out for a sprint and stepped when he got tired. No damage.

A stranger at the station on the arrival of the St. John train any evening last week, would be surprised at the number of young people that stoopt off here. They were not of the Sunday school variety, but a happy and noisy crowd of skaters returning from the lake. Conductor Greene very kindly allowed them to ride in from the watering tank.

J. J. Haslam's lumber crew, who are working on the Parlee Brook for Messrs. Jamieson and McFarlane, recently cut a black spruce tree which scaled 1,760 ft. The tree measured 82 ft. in length and was 48 inches across the butt, with a 12 inch top. In addition, a log from the top was destroyed which contained sufficient lumber to bring the total contents of the tree up to 2000 ft. This is one of the largest spruce trees of which there is a record in this province.—Record.

In the local option contests in Ontario this year, the Prohibitionists made great gains. They held all the townships but one that previously adopted prohibition, and carried local option in a large number of places that had previously had license. In 27 or more townships, over one half the vote was against license but not the three-fifths required to bring local option into effect. The license area in Ontario is being steadily diminished as the result of each year's elections.

It is reported that J. Sutton Clark, of St. George, N. B., will re-open his fish factory at New Edinburgh this spring, and that there is no doubt at all about him doing so if the fishermen of that locality will agree to supply him with fish. When running, the factory can employ all kinds of fish and gives employment to from 30 to 40 hands inside—an industry not to be despised in a small place like New Edinburgh, and it seems to us that the fishermen should have but one mind on the matter.—Weymouth Gazette.

The lecture by Rev. Dr. Raymond, Monday evening, was well attended despite the bad weather. "In the days of the pioneers" was a subject that was treated most interestingly. Very instructive and delivered with a vein of humor and delightful anecdote, the Rev. gentleman held the close attention of his audience during the whole of his lecture. Many people learned, for the first time, of the early settlement of the vicinity of St. George. It is to be hoped that Dr. Raymond will come again and deliver another lecture of such deep interest to everyone. Mooney's orchestra was present and played some choice selections.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—A test case to determine if druggists who sell patent medicines containing more than one-half per cent. of alcohol are committing breaches of the liquor law will come up before Magistrate Denison tomorrow or on Thursday, on complaint of Chief License Inspector Johnson. It is not the intention of the inspector to ask for any penalty but simply a decision on the point, a number of complaints having been received at the department. Hotel men, too, are anxious to have the matter decided because they claim to have been blamed for supplying liquor on Sundays, when intoxication has been due, they say, to the use of patent medicines. G. C. Nasmith, analyst, has analyzed a number of patent medicines bought at drug stores, and as a result of his report prosecutions have been instituted. The highest percentage of proof spirit contained in any of the samples is 39 per cent. Ordinary ale and beer are reported to contain 14 per cent. of alcohol.

Vengeance is Coming

By William Bell.

"Hear me ye Welsh sinner! The vengeance of God is coming! Soon this fair town of Llyslyn will be destroyed, and the water will flow over it even as it flows over the buried city. Remember Helig's warning. The flood is coming again unless ye repent, Dial yn Ddaw."

The speaker paused a moment and looked at the sky. Then bending forward to his hearers, his strident tones again echoed in the village street.

At this point a horseman rode up to the group and surveyed the scene with a supercilious air. The sight of him caused the preacher to inveigh once more against the people. The new comer, Sir James Davies, stopped and listened, and as he did so his face became dark with fereboding and malice, and he impatiently exclaimed:--

"Have done with all this nonsense! Man, you are mad, you--" The preacher raised his hand demanding silence, and on his features was pictured despairing hate as he shrieked:-- "I know you, Sir James Davies. Be assured that the vengeance of God is on you. Soon they will seek your body in the waters that will overwhelm Llyslyn, and then she who sleeps up there will be avenged. Dial yn Ddaw?" As the man pointed out across the hills, Davies shuddered, and his cheeks paled. The Mad Preacher had struck home.

"Hear me, people of Llyslyn. This magistrate of yours is a villain. He robbed me of my love; never mind how. Ask him if he can deny it. Look at his self-convincing face. He will die in the flood, and his body--" But the prophecy was cut short, for with a mighty throw Davies hurled his riding whip at the speaker. It was the signal for the commencement of violence.

As the men were amusing themselves with pushing the preacher into the water and throwing mud and stones at him a carriage came up. In it were two ladies. When the crowd became aware of the presence of Lady Williams and her beautiful daughter, Helen, they desisted from their sport, and Sir James Davies flushed, wishing himself away. Nell Williams alighted and addressed the nearest group. For shame to treat an old man thus! Are the people of Llyslyn cowards? And as Sir James drew near cap in hand, she turned: And you a magistrate permitting such an outrage! I am surprised! And in her voice there was an undercurrent of contempt that seared the heart of Davies as a red-hot needle. He tried to explain but Nell cut him short.

Nothing can justify this man upon a poor helpless man. Why, it is brutal. Let him go. You ought to be red with shame, every one of you."

Nell Williams sat in the drawing room of Ty Newydd with downcast eyes, which showed signs of recent weeping. She was thinking of one who was speeding from her. Captain Fairclough has been bitten to the war. Duty had called him away from the side of the girl he loved, and his going had created a void in the heart and life of Nell. He had asked her to wait, for he was sure he was not destined for a boer bullet, and she had promised.

While she was communing thus, an important interview was taking place in another room of the house.

Lady Williams rose from her chair and eyed her visitor. "Sir James Davies, I don't understand. What do you mean?"

"Well, your Ladyship, there are a few letters I have at home which you might like to see. They are in your Ladyship's handwriting, and they are addressed to--" I know to whom they are addressed she exclaimed, hurriedly, but the man went on undisturbed. "And Lord Williams might be interested in--" But you will not show them to him?" she inquired anxiously. "Well replied Davies, that depends." Depends on what? Is it anything I can do?" and the anxiety in her voice was more marked than before. "Yes in a way," was the affable response. "Then what is it?" was the impatient rejoinder. "To come to the point." His tones were domineering. "I love Nell and would marry her but I have reason to believe that she would refuse me; in fact she has already done so, not once, either."

Lady Williams was scornful. I would remind you, Sir James, that you are old enough to be Nell's father." Davies nodded. Yes quite so, but that does not alter the manner, I want your help, and if you can succeed in persuading her to take me, the letters are yours." And if not asked his companion? "Lord Williams would doubtless be delighted--" Enough of this," broke in the badgered woman. I cannot, I will not help you." Think Lady Williams Your love for his Lordship, despite these letters, is great, and if he saw them, it would mean--

The woman was near fainting. "You will consider it," said Davies, as he saw by her face that he had gained his point.

Ten months passed away. Lady Williams had not been able to convince her daughter that Sir James was a good match for her. The tales of his riches, of his personality, and of his position made no difference to Nell, she was obstinate.

Mother and girl were one day in the drawing room looking out to sea. It "Nell," Sir James Davies--" The girl's patience gave way.

"Mother, I do not wish to hear that hated name again. I--"

"Will you listen to me, not for long?" And then Lady Williams, her eyes streaming with tears, told the story of Sir James' conditions. As the recital wound itself, as the halting confession issued from her mother's lips, Nell's face became ghastly pale, and at last, when the story was ended, she essayed to speak. Her voice was dry and husky, and the words came hesitatingly.

"And you will be saved if I consent to--" I cannot say the word--" a flood of weeping overwhelmed her. Lady Williams nodded.

With streaming cheeks Nell murmured that she would consider the matter, and left the room.

The wedding morning was dull and heavy. It was one of those days in summer when one feels thunder in the air. The sky was sullen, and now and then a few drops of angry rain fell on the streets.

The village folk were airing their knowledge.

"I can't make it out," said one.

"Nor I. Lord Williams may be easy going as they say, but to permit this is awful."

A third joined in.

"What does it matter?" he asked. "If she is happy, why should we trouble? It is her own business."

There was one man, a stranger of military bearing, on whom all his conversation fell like the lashes of a whip. He was in the crowd but not of it. He listened eagerly to what was passing, but soon all talk was hushed, for the bride arrived. The military man, who was Capt. John Fairclough, returned from the Cape, eyed Nell with a look of sorrowful entreaty.

Their eyes met, and she passed into the church, great tears falling down her face and splashing on her silken dress. Fairclough noted that in her bosom were a few faded flowers, and he wondered. Was she still true? Had she been coerced? Was he in a nightmare? She torn with doubts and fears, he, too, entered the sanctuary, and seated himself next to that strange being, the Mad Preacher.

The service dragged on, and when the words came, "If you know of any impediment," the croaking tones of the Mad Preacher filled the edifice.

"Yes. I forbid this. It is a travesty of marriage. Ask that man," his long, lean finger pointed at Davies, "if he has not--"

But his voice was stayed. Men who had been in readiness placed their hands roughly over his mouth and hustled him out of the building. As he reached the porch he managed to wrench himself free and call out:--

"Remember the flood, Sir James! Dial yn Ddaw!"

As the Mad Preacher left the church precincts, Capt. John Fairclough followed him. Hearing footsteps, the preacher turned and confronted the young soldier.

Looking into his eyes, the wanderer said:-- "You are her betrothed, are you not?" "Yes I am; but how did you know?"

stammered Fairclough. "Never mind! Listen!--the speaker's face was as dark as the sky--" they have been married, yet before 10 tonight they will be parted for ever; I know it. Dial yn Ddaw; Sir James will die and--"

"What of her?" asked the soldier, impatiently.

"I may not tell. Yet I know, if you would know also keep with me. The wedding feast is fixed for 9 tonight; you raise your eyes; but it is a custom of the Williams family. While the banquet is at its height, the bride and bridegroom are to leave together, but they will not know it!"

Gathered in the spacious drawing-room of Ty Newydd was the cream of the neighborhood. After the manner of her ancestors, Helen Davies was the heroine of a great banquet. Her health and the health of her husband had been drunk in a bumper. Sir James rose to reply to the toast and was greeted with great shouts which drowned the howl of the storm and the moaning and hissing of the sea. As he commenced to speak the door suddenly opened and the wet, bedraggled figure of the Mad Preacher strode into the room. He was accompanied by a young man whom nobody knew save one, and his appearance caused her to gasp. Walking quickly up to the bridegroom, nobody coming forward to stay him, the Mad Preacher said deliberately:--

"Sir James, I told you to beware. Vengeance is coming. Dial yn Ddaw! Even now the flood is upon you. Plee for your life, else--"

Suddenly all was commotion. Men rushed to the window and saw that the sea was indeed invading the land. There was no time to be lost. The flood was hurrying making its way to Ty Newydd. Soon the place would be inundated. Confusion reigned, and in it the Mad Preacher and Capt. John Fairclough got Helen away. There was method in the Preacher's madness.

"This way! You were kind to me once, lady, and I will save your life and his," and he led them towards the sea. Captain John and Helen showed that they did not acquiesce in his directions.

"Not that way!" yelled the young man behind the noise of the storm. "It leads to and not from the water." The preacher turned to them.

"I know better than you! Follow me, and you are safe. See, the others are making their way inland. Never fear, I know Llyslyn, follow me!" His eyes and manner compelled obedience.

Through the yet shallow water they hastened, and then slowly climbed the cliff. Suddenly the Mad Preacher turned a corner and entered what seemed a cavern. "Come on!" he called, "this leads to the top of a hill. I doubt if any one knows of it but me. He was right, and after some two hours' steady climbing the trio reached the summit, which overlooked the sea, and Llyslyn, and which was called the Place of Wailing. When they arrived they could see nothing but blackness; the storm had almost spent itself, although the lightning showed far away on the horizon of the neighboring islands.

When the morning broke, a perfect dawn, the three took a look round and found they were on an island. Llyslyn was covered, the sea played over it as if it had had its wont; in a few hours the whole village had been obliterated and the coast line destroyed. Such a scene of desolation had never before been witnessed, there was water everywhere.

Nell, clad in her bridal robes, sat down and wept bitterly. She had lost her home and her parents in one full swoop. The Mad Preacher looked at her with tears in his wild eyes.

"My girl, weep not. The flood robbed you of one husband to give you another. Captain John is worth many men like--"

He stopped, for his keen eyes had noted a boat left on the strand of the cliffs by the fatal tide which had wiped Llyslyn out.

"There is your salvation," he cried, "I thought perhaps you had escaped the flood to die of starvation, for no help seems nigh, but in it you can peddle to safety."

In an hour they were by the side of the boat. It was frail, but capable of being navigated. The Mad Preacher took Nell by the arm and placed her in the stern. Capt. John stepped in next, but the Mad Preacher remained.

"Are you not coming?" asked the soldier.

"No, you are safe now, you ought to be in Barvon in a few hours, and there you will be cared for."

"But you must come!" cried Nell, and she jumped from the boat and went to the preacher to pull him in. He gently put her away.

"No, my dear," the voice was calm and loving as she had never heard it before, "I shall sink the boat. It will not hold three."

Again they entered the boat, and the Mad Preacher returned and pushed it in to the water.

"Think of me sometimes, won't you?" The girl in her bridal attire broke down. John Fairclough nodded.

"Good-by, brave heart! I will come back for you."

"You will not find me. I am going to join my brother, Sir James Davies."

Nell shuddered: the mystery of his identity was solved. She wondered which of the two had lived the better, the honored county magistrate or the wanderer man called the Mad Preacher. --Philadelphia Telegraph.

Trip on River Jordan

We have received twenty-two verses of this beautiful poem which we publish by special request. If any details of the voyage are omitted, the author asks kindly consideration as the events in connection with the voyage came too fast to be recorded properly in verse.

In Beaver Harbor lives a man
He always thinks of some new plan
The other night he thought it good
To go up the Jordan after wood.

So up the river we did go
We thought it best to take a tow.
Great danger then we had to face
In such a narrow crooked place.

The steward at the wheel did stand
Thus guided by the captain's hand,
When to our views the hills arose
As far as navigation goes.

At last the pile of wood we found,
We thought it best to turn around,
We swung her bow and held her stern,
Which made it easy work to turn.

The hills were high, the clouds dark,
Right up where Noah left the ark.
We've left our footprints in the mud,
The first that had been there since the flood.

About this place we did not know,
Three miles for water we did go.
We climbed the hills so very steep,
Where farmer Abel kept his sheep.

When on our left we chanced to find
The only dwelling of mankind,
Where righteous Abel, he was slain
By his own wicked brother Cain.

We thought it a good place to load
Where Jordan's banks were overflowed
But still it was not very good
Where Judson Jackson lost his wood.

We got our load upon the boat
And then we found she would not float
So we took off two cords or more
And piled it back upon the shore.

So after night this very man
Considered out a brand new plan.
And all the evening walked about,
And thus his plans he studied out.

Discharge his deck load if he could
Or do anything to save his wood.
So then we brought up to the craft
Four power boats and Harvey's raft.

We rushed the raft close to her side,
To take advantage of the tide
We handled wood at such a rate
'Twould puzzle Satan to keep it straight.

We put the deck load on the raft,
Took in our lines to start the craft,
We cast her off and let her go
All ready then to take the tow.

The power boats they towed with might
They took the Mabel out alright,
But as the point they turned around,
They got her on the middle ground.

And there she lays in graceful ease
As nice and happy as you please,
And there she rests her weary bones
A mile above the stepping stones.

The following day we got about
We thought that tide would let her out
We went about or mile or more,
Got in a worse scrape than before.

She listed down upon her side
And there she lays to wait for tide,
She's laying hard straining every joint
A hundred yards from Rocky Point.

We left the raft upon the sand,
Just down below on Hugh John's land
Our grub is getting rather slack
Just spring water and Paul's hard tack.

The power boats they took a strain
They put her to the raft again,
Tomorrow if it does not rain
We'll put our deck load on again.

Then we laid down to take a sleep
We thought a watch we need not keep.
The wind blew hard shook every spar,
And landed her on Tatton's Bar.

The following day it did not rain,
We had to shift our berth again.
Great hardships then we did endure
Until we got our craft secure.

Our deck load now is o'er the rail
For Blanchard's Wharf we now set sail,
But Jordan's streams may plead in vain
'Twill never get us there again.

Have You Bronchial Catarrh?

It is easily recognized by the dry cough and hoarseness. Not difficult to cure with Catarrhose as Mr. Xavier, habitant of River Capelin, Que., proved. "No one could suffer from Bronchitis more than I did. I had a hard hacking cough that caused me great pain. My throat was hoarse, and I had great distress in my chest. Catarrhose reached the sore spots and gave immediate relief. Since using it I have not had a single attack." Every physician who is asked about Catarrhose says it is a sure cure, -so will you if you try it. Sold everywhere, 25c. and $1.00.

Learn a Trade

The value of learning a trade becomes more and more apparent every day. Scarcely a week passes but some young man is asking us to point out a field of labor for him. With good attainments, perhaps, or an insatiable desire to be at work at something whereby a honest penny may be turned, he finds himself landed, as it were, at the first ebb of the tide. The slightest recession of the waters deposits him on the shore among the weeds of idleness and unwholesome vapors becloud his mind. There is scarcely a man in business but has an experience like our own; his young friends continually envying him the privilege of working in a well-defined field, and wishing that, like him, they had something to strike at.

These young men are generally afflicted with the disease of ambition. They want to be something more than common, and mistaking often desires for the ability to satisfy them, they flatter themselves that they are fit for something better than the common run of humanity! Their great fault is in trying to achieve manhood without serving an apprenticeship to it, and they find themselves, when they should be prepared for their lifework, wondering what it will be, and fretting because it does not declare itself, and in nine cases out of ten waiting in vain for such a call, go into politics, agencies, etc.

The great remedy for all this is a trade thoroughly learned. The time between school and twenty-one should be spent at the carpenter's bench, in a machine shop or at an anvil, so that when the young man commences his battle with life in any vocation he can, if worsted at his first attempt, turn to his trade with confidence that his skilled labor will at least procure him a living and perhaps a competence. Time frittered away in trying to discover desirable roads to success, foots up a considerable total on the loss side of the balance sheet.

Starting in Life

No young man who desires to succeed in business has any time to lose in shuffling about in experimental clerkship; and after finishing his school education the sooner he makes choice of his business for life, and sets himself at work to learn and become successfully established, the better. No young man can afford to make a mistake in his choice of occupation; the first choice should be the true one. For this reason would say to a young man in regard to routine clerkship, by no means accept a place of that kind, not even if the salary is large; it may seem large at first but there can be no compensation to a young man for the loss of time. Indeed, we are of the opinion that a young man, at the start, had better work for nothing, or even pay for the privilege of going into an establishment where he can learn a good business, than to take an ordinary clerkship at any price.

Trial Catarrh treatments are being mailed out free, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. These tests are proving to the people—without a penny's cost—the great value of this scientific prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. Sold by All Dealers.
