The Auto Shaved a Cow.

Ford cars have been credited with doing some tall stunts in the hands of expert drivers, and one day recently
one of Kemptonville's citizens who glories
in his Ford, tried a new one and came through with it. He was driving along a country road at a fast clip when he approached a herd of cattle on the road way, and the idea came to him he would try how close he could pass a cow without harm. He passed alright
but ran so close the fender of the car shaved the hair off one side of the animal as neatly as a barber could have done with his instruments. His companions in the car did not appreciate the feat, judging by what was afterwards said.—Advance.

Death of David Thompson.

*Mr. David Thompson, C.P.R. Storekeeper, who has been ailing for some time, passed away on Sunday, in his 47th year. The deceased was a son of the late Joseph Thompson, and spent most of his life in Carleton Place. He was of a quiet, reserved disposition, and much esteemed by all who knew him.
He is survived by his wife, formerly
Miss Brownlee, and four sons, Arthur, Harold, Ray and Roy. The funeral is fixed for Thursday afternoon, and will be under Masonic auspices.

Death of Miss Margaret Cameron.

Miss Margaret Edwina Cameron, who has been ailing more or less for some time with an affection of the heart,
passed away quite suddenly last Wednesday evening, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Andrew Neilson, George street. Miss Cameron was born in Bathurst, being a daughter of the late Peter Cameron, and was much esteemed by all who knew her. She is survived by two brothers, John and James Cameron, of Bathurst, and three sisters,
Mrs. P. P. Salter, of Ottawa, Mrs. Neil McEwen and Mrs. Neilson, town. The funeral, which was private by request,
took place on Friday morning, interment being made at Elmwood cemetery, Perth. The bereaved relatives have the deep sympathy of many friends in their hour of grief.

Died at Hartford, Conn.

The Watertown (N.Y.) Times of Sept.
7th says: "Peter W. Neelin, aged 42 years, a former resident of this city,
passed away Thursday evening at the City hospital in Hartford, Conn., following an illness of several months due to kidney trouble. He was brought to the hospital about a month ago and a week before he died an operation was performed upon him in hopes of saving his life. Mr. Neelin, however, grew rapidly worse until he passed away Thursday. Mr. Neelin was born in Smiths Falls, Can., Dec. 4, 1872, son of the late Wm. and Sarah Neelin. He came to this country 22 years ago,
taking up his residence in Watertown.
Nine years ago he removed to Hartford,
where he had since resided. He was a member of the English church, and attended the Trinity Episcopal church
during his residence here. He is survived by his wife, Hattie Woods Neelin,
city; and the following sisters, Mrs. J.
W. Leaver, Mrs. George Baird, Smiths
Falls; Mrs. R. P. Drynan, Carleton Place, Canada, and two brothers, James and William Neelin, of Massena and Watertown, respectively. The brothers and sisters attended the funeral services, which were held this morning at 10:30 from the Northam & Fox parlors, with Rev. Fred J. Davis, rector of the Church of Redeemer, officiating. Interment was made at North Watertown, cemetery.

Death at Cedar Hill.

Mrs. Wm. P. Reid, of Cedar Hill, was taken suddenly ill, and her physician advised taking her to the hospital for treatment. She was accordingly taken to the General hospital at Ottawa and on Tuesday night she was operated upon for obstruction of the bowels. First reports received by the friends were encouraging and hopeful, but adverse conditions developed, and on Wednesday Mrs. Reid succumbed to the inroads of the disease. The remains were brought to the home of which so recently she had been the light and comfort,
and the funeral will take place on Saturday at one o'clock (service a half-hour earlier) from her husband's residence to the eighth line cemetery in Ramsay. The late Mrs. Reid was born in Fitzroy 46 years ago, and was a daughter of Mr. Chas. Lawson, and was one of a large family, her death being the sixth.
There are still two sisters and two brothers living—Mrs. A. Cavanagh of Fitzroy, Mrs. J. Gilmour of Almonte,
Mr. Chas. W. Lawson at Cedar Hill, and
P. A. Lawson in Cass City, Mich. The deceased was married to Mr. Wm. P.
Reid about twelve years ago, and two children—a boy of eleven years and a girl of nine survive. The late Mrs. Reid was well known in Almonte, having lived in town for some time, and only a month ago was a visitor here, when she was enjoying the best of health. Not only in her home will she be missed, but in the community in which she lived.
She was an active worker in church
circles and in many other ways her life told for good. Much sympathy is felt for the friends in the sore bereavement that has so suddenly fallen upon their home.—Almonte Gazette.

Nine of One Family.

The Toronto Globe, in a recent issue,
contained a letter from a correspondent
signed "J.B.D." in which he stated that the record for service in the present war belongs to a family by the name of Furey, residing in the northern part of Ireland. No less than nine brothers enlisted. Five have already been killed while serving with the Connaught Rangers, two are still in the Irish Fusiliers, one is with the second battalion of the Royal Irish Rifles and the other is with the third battalion Inniskillin Fusiliers. Their mother, a widow, has received a letter from Lord Kitchener sympathizing with her. Their father was the youngest brother of Mrs.
Stack, mother of M. B. Stack, Lyn, Ont., and consequently first cousins.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries dedicated to tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

BE CAREFUL OF WHAT YOU SAY.
In speaking of a person's faults,
Remember those with homes of glass,
Should seldom throw a stone.
If you have nothing else to do
But talk of those who sin,
"Tis better we commence at home,
And from that point begin.
I'll tell you of a better plan,
And find it works full well,
To try my own defects to cure,
Before of others tell;
And though I sometimes hope to be
No worse than some I know,
My own short comings bid me let
The faults of others go.
Then let us all when we commence
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word will do
To those who little know.
Remember curses, sometimes, like
Our chicks, "roost at home."
Don't speak of others' faults until
We have none of our own.

The difference between good and bad mothers is so vast and so far-reaching that it is no exaggeration to say that the good mothers of this generation are building the homes of the next generation, and the bad mothers are building the prisons. Far out of families nations are made; and if the father be the head and the hands of a family, the mother is the heart. No office in the world is so honorable as hers, no priesthood so holy, no influence so sweet and strong and lasting.

The busy man must have some pleasure, some recreation, some relaxation. He ought not to have it on the street with gossiping chatters, or at the gambling table with the dissolution or wanton. He ought to find it at home. He ought to do something in which his family could have a part. It ought to be pure, elevating, stimulating. The man that is so considerate and equivoque, that will make this matter no secondary affair, but give it the best thought of his life, will make a better man, a moral citizen, more considerate husband, more loving father. He will find his children's ties strengthened, so that as his children grow to manhood and womanhood, no place will be so attractive to them as the fireside at home.

There are too many fathers who will tie up the dog at night and let the boy run loose.

This world is but the stepping stone of an immortal life. Every action of our life touches on some chord that will vibrate in eternity.

The woman who has a home and keeps it well, has no narrow sphere in life.

WITH THE 38TH IN BERMUDA.

The following letter from Frank Carr to his mother explains itself:—
Bermuda,
Prospect Barracks,
Aug. 13, 1915.

Dear Mother and all,
Just a few lines to let you know that I arrived safe and am in barracks here. We were eleven days in coming, leaving Ottawa about an hour after I left you and arrived here the following Thursday week. The trip, by rail also by water, both along the St. Lawrence and the Atlantic, was worth having. This is a fine place, but every warm. My side is not bothering me much at all. Guess the operation finished the appendicitis alright. I was sick one day on the boat coming down, but nothing to worry about.

There is some fine scenery down here, everything green, and fruit is very plentiful. You can buy any and all kinds of fruit from the colored people, who are 95% of the population.

We got a great reception on our arrival here, everybody apparently turning out to welcome us. It is comical to see the negro women carrying trays of fruit, bundles of washing, etc., on their heads. They do our washing here, which I must say, is very satisfactory. I am stationed at head quarters here, with Sergt. Major Price, who is a fine fellow. We are about 2 miles from Hamilton, the principal city in Bermuda.

We are getting new light uniforms and helmets to-day. We have fine barracks, cot beds, and large airy rooms, good food and all conveniences, so I think I will like it. I have met some nice people here one man especially, I took a great liking to. He is a jeweller and originally came from Ottawa. He has also some Canadian employees.

I will write every week as the mail goes out but once a week, and don't forget to write often, and send some Carleton papers. Remember me to everybody around the town and tell them I was asking for them. Must close for this time with love to all.
I am your loving son,
FRANK.

Conflicting Evidence.

"Why don't you go in?" asked one tramp to the other as they stood before the gate. "Dat dog's all right. Don't you see him waggin' his tail?"
"Sure I do," said the second tramp, "but he's a growlin', too, and I don't know which end to believe."—Advance.

life. In the home is the hope of the nation and the church.

We often see farmers who lose no chance of securing machinery for saving labor on the farm, but who don't think of anything about the machines that save labor in the house. That is out of their province and they don't seem to care enough about it to give the matter any attention whatever.

Home is a magic word, and we seldom try to analyze it. A little Polish girl in a public school was asked recently to write a definition of home. "A home," she wrote, "is where people live, and where a man or somebody comes home and finds people there, and then eats." To how many thousands of men that is the end and aim of coming home! To how many thousands of women the preparation of the food to be eaten is the chief business of home-making.

With the exercise of much patience, the model parent will gain the love and obedience of the child without harshness, or what some one has designated "physical persuasion," and instead of trying to beat goodness into children will make their natural tendencies and possibilities the subject of earnest study; then by kindness and gentleness, so train these as to secure harmonious development, physical, mental and moral, the normal activities will be directed into laudable channels and a desire created to do what is required.

Better appreciate your mother before your appreciation of her will be no kindness to her, and the post mortem regrets will be more and more of an agony as the years pass on. Big headstones of polished Aberdeen and the epitaphs which the family put together could compose and a garland of whitest roses from the conservatory are often the attempt to atone for the thanks we ought to have uttered in living ears and the kind words that would have done more good than all the calla lilies ever piled up on the silent mounds of the cemeteries.

Unkind words do as much harm as unkind deeds. Many a heart has been wounded beyond care, many a reputation has been stabbed to death by a few little words.

The past is fixed. No tears can wash away its facts. We should waste no regrets upon it; but, from the wisdom of its very sins have taught us, we should start afresh on the race.

LOCAL DRUGGIST MAKES MANY FRIENDS.

W. J. Hughes reports they are making many friends through the QUICK benefit which Carleton Place people receive from the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-ika. This remedy became famous by curing appendicitis and it is the most thorough bowel cleanser known, acting on BOTH the lower and upper bowel. Just ONE Dose of Adler-ika relieves constipation and gas on the stomach almost IMMEDIATELY.

An Apple "Stunt."

When you wish to mystify and amuse one of your friends, try the trick of cutting an apple into quarters without apparently breaking the skin. It is so old a trick that it will probably be quite new to many of the people you know.

Select a large red apple. Thread a long, slender darning needle with about a yard of strong white linen thread, and, beginning near the stem of the apple, take a shallow stitch, an inch or so in length, toward the blow end.

Draw about two-thirds of the thread through, and be careful to make the break in the skin as small as possible, and when you take the second stitch, set the needle exactly in the place out of which it came. Sew entirely round the apple to the opposite side of the stem from which you started.

Now, hold the apple firmly between your knees, and crossing the ends of the thread, take one in each hand and give a good strong, steady pull. The thread will cut its way through the fruit and come free in your hand. Repeat the process, beginning again at the stem, but going at right angles to the first cut.

When your friend peels the fruit she will find it neatly quartered. The small punctures that your needle makes in the skin will pass unnoticed, unless the apple is very closely examined.

Trade in War Time.

Soon after the war broke out, says the London Telegraph, a friend called on an English merchant, who did a large Continental business.

"This war must have hit you hard," he ventured.

"Very hard," said the merchant. "I've over $10,000 owing me in Germany, and it's touch-and-go whether I ever get a penny of it. Still, we've got to put up with something for the country."

"I'm glad you take it so cheerfully," said the friend.

"Well, of course there's profit and loss in war time. I owe $18,000 in Germany."

A Meatless Diet.

Often for dietary reasons as well as expense the meat allowance must be cut down.

Substitutes which lend variety and possess the same energy producing qualities are the following: Whole wheat flour, dried beans, peas, lentils, peanuts, walnuts, pecans, peanut butter, oatmeal, cracked wheat, whole wheat, cheese, eggs, butter, cream, olive oil, milk, macaroni and rice. These are a few of the many foods which, singly or in combination, make a wholesome diet.

Dried fruits and nuts are valuable foods as well as the fresh fruits, which are indispensable in a well balanced diet.

Whole wheat, if soaked overnight, then cooked long and slowly, makes, with thin cream or rich milk, a meal of itself. Beans, peas and lentils should be soaked, then cooked in water and softened by a pinch of soda.

Rice Croquettes With Grated Cheese.—Cook a cupful of rice in two and a half cupfuls of milk, with a teaspoonful of salt, until tender, adding more milk if needed. Season with two tablespoonsful of butter, a dash of paprika and mix with two beaten egg yolks, then chill. When cold add stiffened mold into cones, balls or cylinder forms, dip in crumbs, then in egg white and in crumbs again. Brown in hot fat and serve with grated cheese.

Cheese Sauce.—Take three tablespoonsful of butter, add four of flour when the butter is bubbling hot, mix well, add a half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of paprika, one and a half cupfuls of milk and a cupful of chopped cheese. Cook the sauce well before adding the cheese and serve as soon as it is melted.

Cheese Savory.—Prepare some thin slices of toast. Cover each slice with one-half inch pieces of good flavored cheese. Lay in a baking pan and place an egg carefully in the center of each piece. Bake in a hot oven until the eggs are set. Season with salt and a dash of paprika on each.

Parsnip Croquettes.—These are especially well liked by those who are fond of parsnips. Cut the parsnips in halves and cook until tender, remove the skins and any tough portion and mash until perfectly smooth, and butter, pepper, salt and set aside to cool. When cool enough to handle mold into balls, dip in crumbs and egg, then crumbs again and fry a deep brown. Use as a garnish for a roast.

Indian Loaf Cake.

Mix a teaspoonful of powdered white sugar with a quart of rich milk and cut up in the milk two ounces of butter, adding a saltspoonful of salt. Put this mixture into a covered pan or skillet and set it on the fire till it is scalding hot. Then take it off and scald with it as much yellow Indian meal (previously sifted) as will make it of the consistency of thick boiled mush. Beat the whole very hard for a quarter of an hour and then set it away to cool. While it is cooling beat three eggs very light and stir them gradually into the mixture when it is about as warm as new milk. Add a teaspoonful of good strong yeast or one compressed yeast cake dissolved in the liquid and beat the whole another quarter of an hour, for much of the goodness of this cake depends on its being long and well beaten. Then have ready a tin mold or pan with a pipe in the center. It must be well buttered, as Indian meal is apt to stick. Put in the mixture and set in a warm place to rise for about four hours. Then bake it two hours in a moderate oven. When done turn it out with the broad surface downward and send to the table hot and whole. Cut into slices and eat with butter.

Drop Hermits.

Cream one-half cupful of butter; add one and one-half cupfuls of brown sugar and cream; now add two eggs; beat in one at a time until very light; sift three and one-half cupfuls of bread flour with two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of soda (sifted several times); alternate with one and one-half cupfuls of milk to first mixture. Flour two cupfuls of raisins (the seedless are best). Beat all together five minutes and drop on flat buttered biscuit tins and bake in hot oven until a nice brown. If butter is lightly salted put in a pinch of salt.

Russian Sauce.

Yolks of two eggs mixed with one teaspoonful of dry mustard, same amount of sugar and salt and a dash of cayenne pepper. When this is thoroughly mixed add one-half cupful of olive oil and either lemon juice or vinegar to taste. To this may be added one teaspoonful of chopped pimento and two of chili sauce. In making rub the inside of bowl with garlic or onion before making the dressing.

Eggs Virginia.

Butter a deep baking dish. Break in as many eggs as needed, allowing two for each person to be served. Season lightly with salt, cover with a thick layer of coarse breadcrumbs, dot thickly with tiny squares of bacon, sprinkle with a little finely minced parsley, add a light layer of the breadcrumbs, season very lightly with salt, dot with more bacon and bake in a moderate oven for ten minutes.

Lesson XII.—Third Quarter, For Sept. 19, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, 1 Kings xx, 10-21. Memory Verses, 11, 12—Golden Text, Hos. iv, 11—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This is chosen as a lesson against intemperance because of the drunkenness of Ben-hadad and the thirty-two kings who are said to have helped him, all of whom were drinking themselves drunk in the pavilions (verses 12, 16), and were thus more easily overcome by the small army of Israel. In our own day railroad and other corporations are learning that men who are given to strong drink cannot be relied upon and that it is not the part of wisdom to employ them, no matter how efficient they may be. Not only does such sin and folly take away the heart or understanding, as in the golden text, but it is apt to become most filthy and beastly and has been known to affect even priests and prophets (Isa. xxviii, 7, 8). It is utterly selfish and sensual and turns the heart away from the Lord (Isa. v, 11, 12, 20-23). Neither drunkards nor any other unrighteous people can inherit the kingdom of God, but there is forgiveness and salvation for all sinners who truly turn to the Lord and honestly receive the Lord Jesus Christ (1 Cor. vi, 9-11). The contrast to being drunk with wine is to be filled with the Spirit (Eph. v, 18), and this is the privilege of all believers.

The insanity of drunkenness, with its insatiable selfishness and cruel appropriation of the prosperity of others, is seen in the demands of Ben-hadad upon Ahab for his silver and gold, wives and children and everything pleasant in his home and the homes of his servants (verses 1-6), and yet strong drink has done and is doing just that in numberless homes today. When the Lord is rejected and any other ruler installed it is always a matter of take, take, take all that one has (1 Sam. viii, 10-18). How great the contrast to God, who giveth life and health and all things, who gave His only begotten Son, and in Him life eternal and glory and all things freely (Acts viii, 25; John iii, 16; x, 28; xvii, 22; Rom. viii, 32). How desperately wicked and cruel the devil must be to blind people to the love of God, who giveth all things, that they may take all they have for time and eternity (1 Cor. iv, 3, 4).

There is something more and deeper and far-reaching in this lesson chapter than the story of drunken Ben-hadad, whom God had appointed to utter destruction (verse 42) because of his sins. Ahab, king of Israel, was about as bad as a man could be, under the influence of his wicked wife, Jezebel, and yet for Israel's sake, but chiefly for His own great name's sake, for Israel was His people, though in rebellion against Him, He gave Ahab victory over Ben-hadad and his associates twice, although Israel's forces were like two little flocks of kids, while the Syrians filled the country (verse 27). He did this that Ahab might know Him as the true God instead of Baal, whom he worshipped to please his wife (verses 13, 28). By this great goodness He would if possible lead Ahab to repentance, for He is not willing that any should perish (Rom. ii, 4; 11 Pet. iii, 9).

Three times in this lesson the Lord sent special messengers to Ahab, twice to encourage him and once to reprove him (verses 13, 28, 38). At the first victory Israel slew the Syrians with a great slaughter, but they came again, saying, "We were defeated because the gods of Israel are the gods of the hills; therefore we will fight against them in the plain and surely overcome them." Because they talked thus the Lord said by His second messenger that He would deliver this great multitude of Syrians into Ahab's hands, and so Israel slew 100,000 footmen of the Syrians in one day, and a wall fell upon 27,000 more and killed them, but Ben-hadad made his escape and hid in an inner chamber (verses 28-30).

The king of Syria's servants planned a scheme by which they might learn if Ahab was inclined to be merciful to him and spare him. Ahab called him "my brother" and said, "Go ye, bring him," so they met and made a covenant one with the other (verses 31-34). This led to the Lord's sending a third messenger with a reproof for Ahab because he had spared Ben-hadad, and "the king of Israel went to his house heavy and displeased (verse 43). We are reminded of Saul sparing Agag and also the best of the sheep and oxen, and also of the Lord's message by Samuel, "Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice" (1 Sam. xv, 9, 22).

In last week's lesson we saw Jezebel possessed by the devil, and now we see two men with the same trouble, Ben-hadad and Ahab, and yet the Lord would have used Ahab had he been willing, but he preferred a compromise with the king of Syria rather than faithfulness to the God of Israel who had given him two such wonderful victories. So it is still; the mighty God, the God of Jacob, is ready to hold strongly with all whose hearts are whole toward Him (11 Chron. xvi, 9, margin), but many professed servants of the Lord prefer to be friendly with some Ben-hadad rather than be faithful to God and rebuke their sin. "Busy here and there" (verse 40) with many things that are not of God describes the life of many a preacher, and rather compromising with certain wrong things because of the standing of the persons who do them than rebuke the wrong.

WHEN MEN WORE MUFFS.

Likewise Silk Stockings and Plaid Shawls and Capes.

In the good old days about which so many men so dreamily read and profess to reverence, and when men were believed to be more bold and dashing and daring than they are now, the muff was the thing of winter wear for men. It was a regular part of a gentleman's cold weather toilet.

Among Horace Walpole's Christmas gifts to his friend George Montagu, in 1770, were "Anecdotes of Painting," a pamphlet on "Libels," the "Castle of Otranto" and a muff. That was the period of the muff for men. It had been an article of men's apparel for many years before, and men retained the muff for long years afterward, it being cast off when men forsook colored silks and satins, rare laces and jeweled shoe buckles.

It was not so far back in American history that men wore silk stockings—not merely silk socks—and knee garters and fancy garter buckles, and many men walking the streets of Washington today remember when their sex wore brilliant plaid shawls and when the cloth cape, called a "talma," was the height of masculine fashion. Now and then one sees a gentleman of the old school walking along with a gold headed cane and wearing a somewhat moth-eaten, frayed or shiny "talma."—Washington Star.

An Earthquake.

The horror of experiencing an earthquake has been set down by F. S. Lyman, who was in the Hawaiian Islands some years ago, when there began a series of earthquakes on the southern flanks of a so called "quiet volcano."

"First the earth swayed to and fro from north to south, then from east to west, then round and round, up and down, and finally in every imaginable direction, for several minutes, everything crashing around and the trees thrashing as if torn by a hurricane, and there was a sound as of a mighty wind. It was impossible to stand. We had to sit on the ground, bracing with hands and feet to keep from being rolled over. The villages on the shore were swept away by the great wave that rushed upon the land immediately after the earthquake."—Exchange.

Getting On.

"How are you getting on with your photography?"

"Well," answered the young man with brown finger tips, "I'm doing better. The snapshot portrait I took of Mr. Curmudge must have been recognizable."

"You are sure of that?"

"Perfectly, for as soon as Curmudge saw it he said he could whip the man who made that picture."

Who Was the Joke on?

He was very fond of playing jokes on his wife, and this time he thought he had got a winner.

"My dear," he said, as they sat at supper, "I just heard such a sad story of a young girl to-day. They thought she was going blind, and so a surgeon operated on her, and found—"

"Yes!" gasped his wife, breathlessly. "That she'd got a young man in her eye!" ended the husband, with a chuckle.

For a moment there was silence. Then the lady remarked slowly:

"Well, it would depend on what sort of a man it was. Some of them she could have seen through easily enough."—Boston Post.

Rev. J. D. McEwen's Family When in Brazil.

Rev. J. D. McEwen, returned missionary from Brazil, has spoken in several of the churches in this locality. He was born in Glengarry, the home place of Ralph Connor, and went to the same log school-house as the noted author. After entering the ministry he held two pastorates in Canada, one in Nova Scotia and the other in Ontario; and while meeting with success in these pastorates, it only strengthened his resolve to minister to those in distant fields, who were acquainted but very little with the word of God, and fourteen years ago he obeyed the call to Brazil.

Mr. McEwen had at his disposal 1,000 acres of land in Brazil and the plan kept before himself and his helpers was to develop this and other lands into a basis of supply for the extensive mission he established. He was also desirous of educating the people of Brazil and giving them theoretical and practical instruction in agricultural pursuits; in fact, all means that would lead to a better mode of living by the people was his aim. Through all this progressive propaganda, evangelistic work was the guide post and it is sufficient to say Mr. McEwen has met with marked success during his ministrations for fourteen years in one of the world's largest mission fields. Many of the experiences through which he has passed are thrilling from the point of view of adventure, while others are equally humorous.

In the pioneer stages of his work he was set upon by men with knives and pistols when on lonely rides through dangerous forests, but in conversation he scarcely hints at these personal perils, which have been his experience. During his fourteen years of work in Brazil, Mr. McEwen had a valued helper in the person of his wife who conducted a school for ten years and was largely instrumental in educating the boys and girls of their large mission. To Mr. and Mrs. McEwen a family of five were born, three boys and two girls, and the accompanying picture of his family was taken in Brazil, the little boy "Danny" in the centre of the group, being with Mr. McEwen when he was here. While enjoying good health for upwards of ten years in Brazil, Mrs. McEwen was suddenly taken ill in May of 1912, and passed away, and her last resting place was among the scenes of her faithful work in the Brazil mission.

The report on superintendence of students presented by the convenor A. A. Scott. All the students, serving in the presbytery, requiring certification to one of the colleges, fulfilled the conditions required and the clerk was instructed to certify them accordingly.

The report on social service and evangelism was presented by Mr. Faulds, and arrangements made, or to be made for Mr. Shearer and others to hold a weeks campaign in certain centres of the presbytery.

On his return from South America Mr. McEwen visited England, where he addressed Andrew Bonar's congregation in London, and the London Stock Exchange on the many possibilities of South America, and Brazil in particular. Mr. McEwen is a dramatic speaker, and presents his text and sermon in an unusually interesting way. Brazil is a great country, and is ready for advancement.

He has issued a small book, a number of copies of which have been sold hereabouts, and he has another in course of preparation. One of the chapters will deal with the bread of Brazil, and is printed herewith:—

THE BREAD OF BRAZIL.

Mandioca is the bread of Brazil. This plant grows to about eight feet, but the edible portion is the root. Manioc is the English word for "Mandioca" which is the small tree of most service in Brazil.

It is propagated by cutting small bits of the branches and planting them about five feet apart. After a year's growth, it is ready for manufacture. The plant is pulled and a large root, somewhat like the parsnip and often a clump of roots come to view. The roots are put in a farinha house, some sort of covert from rain, while a whole household and sometimes a group of families, gather to help.

They scrape the rind off with knives or any old scraper thing, and then a woman, squatted, holds this "rinded root" near a fast turning pulley which has little iron points. The pulley is propelled by a large wheel joined to the pulley with a crank and often sing as they turn. I have heard them at night chanting a weird, quaint song that sounded like one long "Oh! Oh! Oh! Oh! Oh!" with a doleful cadence, the whole crowd taking up the chorus which seemed to me like the verse itself. Later, I learned they have quite a variety of songs for such occasions. One chorus is translated, thus:—

"If I only had the rum
I would drink it, drink well
I would drink it, drink it well
If I only had the rum."

The pulped material falls below the grater into the trough. When full, a press is put over the trough, and there is expressed a poisonous liquid. The pulp is then removed to a drying furnace, fire being under the cover of iron or clay on which cover the pulp is placed and stirred continuously for several hours with a long wooden hoe.

Can I ever forget that picture? A woman squatted near the pulley, diligently applying the root, its swish, as it encounters the grater, the crumbling pulp falling into the trough below, the noise of the wheel and roar of the men as they turn it and sing, their dark, perspiring bodies bare above the belt, the groups sitting around the baskets of mandioca, scraping away and chiming in the chorus, and last, but not least the man with the hoe.

The pulp is now farinha and ready for use. It is found on every Brazilian table, rich and poor alike. They eat it mixed with meat and gravy; they eat it alone. That is, the poor wayfaring man, and the Indian on his tramp whips it out of his little knapsack and with thumb and three fingers thrusts it into his mouth. So dainty will he do this that not a trace of "farinha" appears on his face, but let a foreigner try and his face would soon be a perfect valentine. They make "pirao" of it too, pouring hot water on a half bowlful and stir till thick as porridge. It is strong food and very nutritious, and when you learn to like it very palatable indeed. This farinha is sold at local markets for about ten cents for twenty quarts.

There is a sediment found at the bottom of the already referred to, pressed out poisonous liquid. From it tapioca, used on many a table in other lands, is made. It also makes excellent starch. The Brazilians dry this sediment and then it makes drinks for infants and invalids and all sorts of nice confectionery.

Another branch of the mandioca family is called "ipim." It looks exactly like the farinha producing tree except that the initiated note a difference in the leaf. Its root is pared and boiled like potatoes and is not unlike them in taste. I doubt if our dearly loved potato equals this root for palatable par excellence.

He was Not Missed.

"There is no one," remarked a politician who has been a candidate for Governor of Missouri, "who can take the wind out of a fellow's sails so effectively as an old-time, leisurely Missourian. For example:—

"After a twelve-years' absence, during which I had graduated at the university, got my name in the paper a few times and bought a new suit of clothes, I went back to the little old country town where I had been a 'poor but ambitious youth.'"

"I expected a reception committee to meet me, but it did not. However, seeing the grandeur of my new clothes and stiff hat, my old acquaintances came round and shook hands quite cordially—all except old Bill McLanahan, who kept the general store. Old Bill sat at the back of the stove, handy to the sawdust box. He never noticed me; didn't even glance my way."

"I was piqued—mad, in fact. I walked back to the stove and got right in front of my old friend, so that he had to look upon me in all my glory."

"Slowly, casually, he looked up from under the flap of his old white hat, and remarked:—

"'Arthur, you been away somewhere, haven't you?'"

Forty-one ships flying the Norwegian flag have been lost since the beginning of war in Europe, and 76 sailors have perished. Thirteen ships were destroyed by mines, 24 were sunk by torpedoes, three disappeared in the war zone, and one was crushed by a German warship, the report stated. Another ship was taken as a prize to Hamburg.

AN ICEBERG AT SEA.

One of the Most Awe Inspiring Spectacles in Nature.

There is nothing in nature so imposing and awe inspiring as the iceberg, writes Lacey Amy in the Wide World Magazine. It gives an overpowering sense of relentless force, of dignity and of brilliance.

Beneath the sun's vivid rays or the dark clouds of threatening storm, in the moon's cold beams or dimly through the shadows of moonless night, in calm and tempest—every one of them, from the tiny "growler" to the huge mass of spurs, rouses at first glimpse an awe undiminished by a growing appreciation of its beauty.

Always before one is the thought that but an eighth of the iceberg's bulk shows above the water, the remainder stretching down and down into the blue-green depths and out and out until captains breathe freely only when the horizon is clear of them. Far out in the ocean, with the largest steamers passing swiftly miles inside, they ground upon the bottom in tremendous depths and calmly await the relieving touch of sun and current.

In the wildest seas and strongest gales these frigid mountains float undisturbed. There could be no seasickness on an iceberg, for its foundations are fathoms below the wave disturbance.

CASTORIA

Time to Come Across.

One evening the young minister, who had seemed rather attracted by "Big Sister" Grace, was dining with the family. "Little Sister" was about to ask the blessing. Turning to the child he said in a tone of mild reproach: "Laura, I am going to ask grace."

"Well it's about time," answered "Little Sister" in an equally reproving tone. "We've been expecting you to do it for a year, and she has too."

Compensation.

A person was explaining the law of compensation to Patrick. Said he: "When a person is blind, his hearing is more acute."

"O' seeg," said Pat, "O' often noticed that if a man has one short leg the other is always longer."

A Tented Farm.

The largest tent in the world does not cover a circus or a menagerie. It is a flat-top tent, nine feet high, that covers a Connecticut tobacco field of 120 acres. It is of cloth, and the purpose of it is to intensify the heat, soften the light, and protect the growing crop from hailstorms. Connecticut has been growing tobacco for more than a century, but the plan of covering the fields with cheesecloth has brought about great and profitable changes in the industry. Last year, in a little belt along the Connecticut River, the growers raised 35,754,000 pounds of tobacco.

WAR AND THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC

The continuation of the war and the desperate consequences of the same is causing an awakening of the civilized world, especially in the direction of temperance, and radical reforms are taking place. Even in our own country changes are evident. In British Columbia the largest, most representative and most enthusiastic temperance convention ever held has recently closed its sessions. The convention passed a resolution asking that the Government should submit to the people the question of the abolition of the liquor traffic in British Columbia by a bill similar to that carried in Alberta on the 21st of July. Up to the present time British Columbia has not even had a local option law, but now it looks as if the public are going to have a voice as to whether or not the whole liquor traffic in the Province is to be wiped out, as the people of Alberta have decided to wipe it out, and as Saskatchewan did with the bars this summer and as Manitoba is going to vote on this winter.

Sir George Foster, speaking at Toronto, said: "I confess to you that every time I see the open bar and see the young soldiers of this country coming in and going out, every time I pass the open bar and see the unemployed, who perchance have got a day's employment, making a bee-line, I confess that my soul cries out for the closed bar in Canada."

And Mr. Rowell at the same meeting, said: "If we have in our midst today an institution which is demanding sums of money for its perpetuation and is giving no return in value, but is impairing the earning capacity of the men who patronize it, there is only one patriotic duty for every patriotic citizen; that to the extent of his ability this curse will be wiped out—the curse of the open bar. Let us have the courage in this supreme crisis to rise to the height necessary in order that this thing should be done and done promptly."

Canada's national debt increased during the last fiscal year by more than $113,000,000, now standing at $472,408,885.

RUSSIANS HOLD GROUND

They Are Driving the Austrians in Galician Sector.

Russian Survey of the Situation Indicates That the Enemy Are Vainly Seeking Now for a Weak Point at Which to Drive Through the Russian Line—Russia Gains by Delays.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—An exhaustive official statement issued Saturday night by the Russian War Office, covering practically every essential sector of the front in Galicia, Poland, and Russia proper, permits of but one conclusion—that the Czar's forces are no longer continuously retreating, but that they have made a determined stand virtually along the whole front, checking the onrush of the Austro-German armies almost everywhere and pushing a thus far successful offensive in Galicia.

Only at one point does the official Russia war bulletin admit success on the part of the Teutonic adversary, namely in the district east of Vilkomir, north-east of the captured fortress of Kovno, and not far from the Vilna-Dvinsk-Petrograd railroad. Here the Austro-Germans, with the aid of strong field and siege artillery, are advancing thus far without check, the statement declares.

As for the rest of the entire front, however, Petrograd, in summing up the situation, asserts the Austrians and Germans have been "dash[ing] from one part of the line to the other in an effort to strike a decisive blow."

This latter assertion is significant in that it recalls the consensus of allied military critics after the fall of Novo Georgievsk, the last stronghold of the Russian main line of defence, following the capture of 12 other fortresses since Warsaw. "What will the Germans do next?" was the question predominant in everyone's mind. And the reply of leading military observers, including even some in the Fatherland, who were at a loss to guess at any tangible possibility, was: "They do not know themselves; they will have to feel their way."

But even if the Teutonic allies had their minds upon certain principal objects, such as Riga, Petrograd, Moscow, Odessa, Vilna—the sudden turn of the Russians, reinforced and supported by apparently adequate communications, is bound to result in sweeping changes in the central powers' plans, and optimistic critics here predict the complete frustration of the main program, provided that the Russians will be able to make good their gains of the last few days.

That strip of Galicia which still is in Russian hands, continues to be the scene of most furious fighting, with the Slavs evidently retaining the upper hand as attackers. The Russian victory at Tarnopol several days ago, although contradicted by Berlin, can be no longer doubted, since the official Austrian War Office statement admitted it on Saturday.

VON PAPEN MUST LEAVE.

German Military Attache is Gravely Involved in Dumba Affair.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The departure from the United States of Captain Franz von Papen, military attache of the German Embassy, will probably be arranged for here in a few days. This was indicated here yesterday.

The situation involving Captain von Papen in the matter which brought about the request for the recall of Dr. Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, is recognized as most delicate. Nevertheless, the attitude of this Government is that Captain Papen has at the very least been guilty of an impropriety in attempting to transmit official reports to his Government by using an American citizen as despatch bearer, and that this alone makes his further presence in this country as an accredited representative of his Government quite undesirable. There is also reason to believe, officers say, that he was a party to Dr. Dumba's other offence in planning to conspire against American industry.

HILL URGES LOAN.

Railroad Magnate Says Money Must Be Found for Allies.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 13.—Jas. J. Hill will arrive in New York today to participate in the deal whereby a loan of $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 is expected to be made to European Governments.

Mr. Hill left hurriedly on Saturday night in company of M. R. Brown, his confidential secretary and director of the First National Bank. He will lay before the meeting data showing that, if the loan is not made, commerce will be paralyzed and our surplus crops useless.

Mr. Hill will insist that the loan be made to such nations as are trading with us and who are in a position to reasonably secure the loan with collateral.

Armenian Children Sold.

ROME, Sept. 13.—The Agenzia Nazionale has received a telegram from its Bucharest correspondent stating that 800,000 Armenian children from Asia Minor are now interned in Turkey. The women, the despatch says, have been placed in Turkish harems and the children sold at auction in Constantinople.

Accidentally Electrocuted.

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 13.—An Italian laborer named Antonio Montenegro, employed on section 3 of the Welland Ship Canal near Merritt, was electrocuted Saturday afternoon, when he grasped a live wire. Coroner Vanderburgh opened an inquest, which was adjourned until next week.

ENEMY STILL AHEAD

Teuton Has Superiority in Supplies, Says Lloyd George.

In Newest Appeal for Increased Activity Minister of Munitions Says With Resources of Britain, France, and Russia at Disposal of Allies the Teutonic Powers Still Have Overwhelming Advantage.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—That the central powers still have an overwhelming superiority in all the material and equipment of war and that the allies to win must put forth all their strength is the statement made by David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, in the preface of a book containing his speeches since the outbreak of the war, entitled: "Through Terror to Triumph."

"After 12 months of war," says Mr. Lloyd George, "my conviction is stronger than ever that this country could not have kept out of it without imperiling its security and its honor. We could not have looked on cynically with folded arms while a country we had given our word to protect was being ravaged, trodden on by one of our own co-trustees. If British women and children were being brutally destroyed on the high seas by German submarines, this nation would have insisted on calling the infanticide to a stern reckoning."

"Everything that has happened since the declaration of war has clearly demonstrated that a military system so regardless of good faith, honorable obligations, and the elementary impulses of humanity constitutes a menace to civilization of the most sinister character, and, despite the terrible cost of suppressing it, the well-being of humanity demands that such a system should be challenged and destroyed."

"Nor have the untoward incidents of the war weakened my faith in ultimate victory, always provided that the nations put forth the whole of their strength ere it is too late. Anything less must lead to defeat. The allied countries have an overwhelming preponderance in the raw material that goes to the making of the equipment of armies, whether in men, money, or accessible metal and machinery, but this material has to be mobilized and utilized."

"It would be idle to pretend that the first 12 months of the war have seen this task accomplished satisfactorily. Had the allies realized in time the full strength of their redoubtable and resourceful foes, nay, what is more, had they realized their own strength and resources and taken prompt action to organize them, to-day we would have witnessed the triumphant spectacle of their guns pouring out a stream of shot and shell which would have deluged the German trenches with fire and scorched the German legions back across their frontier."

"With the resources of Great Britain, France, and Russia, yes, of the whole industrial world at its disposal, if the allies, the central powers still have an overwhelming superiority in all the material and equipment of war. The result of this deplorable fact is exactly what might have been foreseen. The iron heel of Germany has sunk deeper than ever into Belgian and French soil. Poland is entirely German, and Lithuania is rapidly following. Russian territory is deemed impregnable are falling like sand castles before the ruthless tide of Teutonic invasion."

"When will that tide recede or be stemmed? As soon as the allies are supplied with an abundance of war material."

AUSTRIA WILL ACQUIESCE.

She Will Probably Agree to Remove Dumba From Washington.

ROME, Sept. 13.—It is learned from a Vatican source that Austria has decided to acquiesce in the American demand for Dr. Dumba's recall. It is believed that no successor will be appointed for some time, but that the charge d'affaires will be entrusted with the Austrian Embassy in Washington.

Germany Next in Line.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—It can be stated upon authority that if the German Government in the final analysis seeks to maintain a policy which the Arabic note and not the von Bernstorff assurances is truly representative, the American Government will break off diplomatic relations with Germany.

To Recruit Native Colonists.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—Deputy Pierre Masse has prepared for introduction in the Chamber a bill providing that natives of French colonies and protectorates be recruited for service in the army. It is estimated that this step would add 700,000 men to the forces in the field by next spring. The excellent service given by the large number of natives now at the front has resulted in the proposal that they be used on a much larger scale.

Norway Buys Submarines.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The Norwegian Government has awarded to the Electric Boat Company, of New York, builders of the Holland type of submarine, contracts for a special type of undersea boat, to be built from the company's design in a shipyard in Norway, according to an announcement made by the successful contractor yesterday.

Prince Decorates French Soldiers.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—British orders and decorations ranging from K.C.B. to D.C.M. distributed among the Russian and French armies during this war number nearly 400. The French recipients have been personally decorated by the Prince of Wales.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER'S TROUBLE.

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—The operation on Sir Wilfrid Laurier disclosed imbedded in the bone of the lower jaw a huge molar which had never emerged from the gum, but had turned sideways. Its presence has been a source of pain and worry for some time, and it is believed that its extraction will result in better health than Sir Wilfrid has enjoyed for many a day. The aggravation has completely disappeared, and the patient it is expected will be well and about again at an early date. The discharge from the decayed molar it is believed has for years caused poisoning in the system and intestinal trouble and pain. This has now been removed.

Hundreds of Privates of the First Canadian Division have been granted a week's leave to return to London.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

PERTH.

From the Expositor. Work is progressing nicely on the construction of the new filter house for the waterworks company on Leslie street.

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. James Shaw, Drummond Centre, on Sept. 1st, at twelve o'clock, noon, when their daughter, Marie Olive, became the wife of Dr. W. S. Perrigo, Antwerp, N.Y.

The new steel and concrete bridge over the Clyde river at Roberts will be opened on Friday morning. The bridge was built under the supervision of commissioner Watters and will be called "Watters' bridge."

Mr. William Meredith died at the home of Mr. A. C. Black, on Wednesday last, and the funeral took place on Friday afternoon to Elmwood. He was born in Bathurst, 3rd line, being 83 years of age. He lived his life in the State of Arkansas, where he taught school for years, returning to Perth a few years ago to live retired. A son and daughter survive. The late George and John Meredith, of Bathurst, were brothers, and the late Mrs. Shails, of Drummond, a sister.

From the Courier. An unusual number of mosquitoes have been the means of keeping the people "scratching" around town lately. The heavy rains are responsible for the increase in these pests.

Some of the Perth drovers lost money this week with their cattle in Montreal. Cattle went down in price. There are lots of cattle in the country and the market was flooded, the local buyers' shipments being even larger than usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Stone, of Toronto, are staying at the Revere House and are renewing old acquaintances in town. Mrs. Stone was formerly Miss Kilpatrick, whose parents kept store on Drummond street many years ago. This is her first visit to town since leaving forty-five years ago.

On Tuesday of last week there might have been a very serious accident happen on the Lanark road just at Stanley's Hill, when Mr. J. J. McCurdy, of Drummond, and his wife were driving home from Perth. Mr. McCurdy was driving a quiet horse and was in a new buggy at the above mentioned place; a man with a couple of ladies came along in a car at a thirty-mile-an-hour clip. Mr. McCurdy turned out and practically gave him the whole road, but the driver was not satisfied with this space; he caught the hind wheel of the buggy with his car and ripped it off, breaking it into kindling wood, throwing the occupants of the buggy out, along with their parcels. Fortunately no one was injured. The smallest part of the affair is that the man in the car called right through, never stopping to assist in any way, or offering to take them home. An example of such a driver should be made in court, and Mr. McCurdy would be quite justified in doing so, as it cost him between $20 and $25 to repair the damage to the buggy. It is thought that the motor man came from Darlington.

Tuesday afternoon last Robert Wright, eight-year-old son of Mr. B. H. Wright, was kicked in the forehead by a pony belonging to Mr. Geo. Jackman, and it required three stitches to sew up the wound.

Gordon Mitchell, employed with the Wampole, was riding a bicycle along the canal basin on Thursday of last week, when suddenly the front wheel made a quick turn and Gordon took a flying leap into the waters of the Tay, while the bicycle remained on terra firma. However, he didn't stay in the water long and with exception of being rather wet he was none the worse for his unexpected swim.

BOYD'S

Special to THE HERALD. Corn-cutting will now be the order of the day for a couple of weeks. The crop is an extra good one.

A goodly number from here intend going to Ottawa Fair this week.

Master Franklin Boyd spent a few days in Carleton Place over the week-end.

A most successful picnic, under the auspices of the I.O.O.F., was held on Labor Day at Mr. Sadler's grove.

From the Times. Mr. Thos. Coulter, of New Westminster, B.C., is renewing acquaintances around Clayton and Almonte.

Capt. J. M. Bell and the following recruits for the 73rd Regiment left for Montreal, on Tuesday—Frank Guthrie, Stanley Joss, Andrew Guthrie, John Guthrie, John Joss, Lorne Kennedy, Albert Moreau, James Scott, Clarence Black, Wm. Carahan, Morris Gilmour, Harry McIntosh, Harry Boyle, Frank Caldwell, Oswald James.

Sometime during Saturday night or the early hours of Sunday morning burglars entered the book and stationery store of Mr. O. E. Henderson and stole $20 in silver, made up in two cartridges of $10 each. The money was placed in an unlocked drawer, and there was no trouble in finding it. Entrance to the store was made at the rear, where the door was apparently opened with a chisel. No goods were taken, as far as known.

The numerous friends in town and elsewhere of Dr. Metcalfe will regret to learn that he is laid up with a severe attack of typhoid fever. He is in the R.M. hospital, where he is receiving the very best attention. Latest accounts state that he is progressing favorably.

An auspicious event took place on Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Coxford, when their only daughter, Ethel, was joined in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. Jas. B. Cram, a former resident of McNab township. Rev. S. G. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, tied the nuptial knot in the presence of a number of relatives and close friends of the families interested.

Returning from Perth last Saturday evening, Mr. Geo. Pepper found a fence rail placed across the road near the cheese factory, just outside the village. A number of ladies were in the car and were much alarmed. Fortunately, Mr. Pepper stopped the car in time to avoid an accident. There is a job breaking stones in leisure hours awaiting the man who tries to wreck cars in this manner.

Mayor A. Clyde Caldwell, R.C.E., is going to the front to fight for the Empire's cause. He has been raised to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and as such will be second in command of the battalion of engineers which is training at Ottawa. Lieut. Col. Caldwell, who is the eldest son of Mrs. W. C. Caldwell of this village, made his last public appearance as aide-de-camp to Lieutenant-Governor Hendrie at the military review held at the Toronto Exhibition on Thursday last.

CANNONADE CONTINUES.

Furious Artillery Battles Are Going on on Western Front.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—There appears to be no let up in the bombardment which both sides have conducted on the western front for the past two weeks. Neuville, in the region north of Arras, is the centre about which the most vigorous cannonading has centred in the past 24 hours, but artillery fighting of almost equal violence is reported from various points along the front, north of the Aisne, in Champagne, between the Moselle and the Bois de Mortmare, on the Lorraine front.

The infantry of both sides has seen action also in the fighting in the Neuville sector, where hand grenades were used, at Sapigneu, where another German attack has been repulsed, and to the south of Leintrey, where the French artillery and rifle fire stopped a German assault. Infantry patrols have engaged in the region of Roye and before Amiens.

Mine combats are the chief form of conflict between the Somme and the Oise, while in the Argonne the soldiers on both sides are using bombs and hand grenades in their frequent engagements.

German aeroplanes dropped bombs in Compiegne, and French aircraft bombarded the aeroplane sheds at Brayolle.

The attempts of the German Crown Prince, beginning a year ago and continued at intervals ever since, with an especially violent resumption of the attack recently, to break through the front line in the Argonne have resulted in constant failure, according to a note appended to yesterday's official communiqué. In these attempts the Crown Prince has lost more than 100,000 men, without making any appreciable gain from a strategic point of view.

SIR WM. VAN HORNE DEAD.

Great Railwayman Passes Away at Hospital in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Sept. 13.—Sir William Van Horne died at ten minutes after 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Sir William, who had been in failing health for some years, was stricken down with an abdominal abscess on August 22. He was rushed in the middle of the night to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where an operation was immediately performed. The patient rallied well after the operation, and a bulletin issued regarding his condition reported it as satisfactory. Continued improvement was recorded until Wednesday of the past week, when the patient manifested alarming symptoms.

Sir William's condition grew steadily worse. His temperature rose and his appetite failed. Yesterday morning it was announced that hope had practically been abandoned.

The remains will be interred in Joliet, Illinois, his birthplace. The funeral service will be held at Sir William's late residence in Sherbrooke street here on Tuesday, and the body will then be shipped to Joliet.

Hundreds of messages of sympathy and condolence have come to the family of the deceased railway magnate and financier. These include telegrams from the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Sir Robert Borden, and many members of the Premier's Cabinet; the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, Lady Strathcona, and Jas. J. Hill.

Sir William was born in 1843.

TWO FORTS DESTROYED.

French Mortars Have Shown Efficiency at the Dardanelles.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—An optimistic rumor is again afloat, probably due to the statement recently made by Lord Robert Cecil, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, that the allies are not far from a great success in the Dardanelles. According to the French official report the last five days have been very calm. "In the north zone the Turks on different occasions have opened a violent infantry and artillery fire, but without leaving their trenches. In the south zone there is nothing particular to report outside the efficiency of our trench mortars, which have destroyed two small forts and caused sensible losses to the enemy."

The alleged repulse by the Turkish coast batteries of two hostile destroyers which bombarded the defenders' left wing from the Narrows is chronicled in the statement issued yesterday by the Turkish War Office.

Would Tax Movie Films.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—German-American film companies are threatening to dismiss their English agents should the latter handle or recommend English films in this country, while the export of English or French films to the United States is forbidden. England is now taking 20 million feet of film per week from these companies, and an agitation has begun here to tax them half a penny per foot, which would yield an annual revenue of two million pounds.

Seven Men Missing.

BRANDON, Man., Sept. 13.—Seven men, four Galicians and three harvesters from Eastern Canada, whose names are unknown, are believed to have been burned to death in the destruction by fire last night of the barn in which they were sleeping on Alf. Magee's farm, near Brandon. The men were sleeping in the hay mow, and no trace of them has been found since the fire, which also cremated ten horses and a team of mules.

Timber Adrift.

SARNIA, Sept. 13.—Two million feet of timber was set adrift in St. Clair River this afternoon, when the upper boom of the Cleveland and Sarnia mills, which contained the logs, parted. Boats are being notified to keep a sharp lookout for the drifting timber, which may prove a considerable source of trouble.

Over two hundred interned aliens have been released by General Sir William Otter, but there is still a gradual increase in the total number in the internment camps in Canada, now about 7,000, due chiefly to the gathering in of men who broke their parole. A few of the men who have been released were Serbians and Roumanians, who were interned by mistake.

YUAN ISSUES MANIFESTO

President of China in Impressive Appeal for United Action Points to the Disasters Which Have Resulted from the Dishonesty and Inefficiency of Those in Office.

PRESIDENT YUAN SHI KAI
uttered at a recent Cabinet meeting an impressive plea
for united action in China,
which made a deep impression upon Chinese officials. Its publication in English a few days ago caused much discussion among foreigners. The Pekin Gazette characterizes the address as "couched in the usual language of over-emphasis,"
but makes no attempt to discount the seriousness of the dishonesty and inefficiency of Chinese officials, which the President denounced as a great menace to the Republic at a time
when outside pressure is threatening.
"Our suzerainty in southern Manchuria has gradually gone into the hands of foreigners," said the President. "The foreign aggressor has

PRESIDENT YUAN SHI KAI.

come to their doors, but our people
are still dallying in the midst of calamities. As I am advanced in age and have received the sacred and weighty trust from the Tsing dynasty,
how can I let the country go to ruin
when I am assuming the duties of Chief Executive of the Republic? By all means I must save the country. To avert the impending disaster is the sacred duty which lies upon the shoulders of every one of us."

President Yuan Shi Kai is less than sixty years of age and in the best of health, consequently his allusion to his old age is largely figurative.

President Yuan Shi Kai concluded
his appeal with this warning:
"Now the situation of our country
is comparable to a small boat wandering on a wild sea. It is not the time for us to pursue our pleasures
and let things drift into the course of destruction. Above all, do not forget the national disgrace of May 7.
Take off your easy garment and cast
away your habitual laziness and go ahead with all your effort to avert the fate of impending disaster so as to protect the people and save the country."

The mention of May 7th is a reference to the acceptance by China on May 7, 1915, of the Japanese ultimatum, under the terms of which Japan obtained extensive political and industrial concessions.

Japan to Surprise World.

What appears to be an intimation that Japan may co-operate in the campaign to force the Dardanelles is contained in an interview with Baron Hayashi, Japanese Ambassador to Italy, sent to The Petit Parisien by its Rome correspondent.

"I cannot say much about that,"
the Baron is quoted as saying in reply to a question regarding the Dardanelles, "for we must not allow our enemies to profit by information about the movement of troops."

Discussing the part Japan has played in the war, the Ambassador said:
"We have not ceased to collaborate with our allies to the extent assigned to us. The world will be astonished when it knows what we have done,
what we are doing, and what we are willing to do. The Russians are nearest to us, and we can be most useful to them. Rest assured it is the greatest desire of Japan to assist every day in the sacred cause of civilization."

Traveling Laboratories.

A new service has been installed in the French army, that of traveling laboratories. The new weapons with which the enemy is fighting, asphyxiating gas and poisons in other forms, caused the French authorities to make preparations for combating
them in the most effective way.
Much secrecy was observed about the arrangements under way. Two hundred and seventeen laboratories
at present are with the French armies.

Most of France's great chemists
have volunteered for this service, and several men of note in the science of bacteriology, organic, and inorganic chemistry are with the army.

WOULDN'T BE RUN OVER.

Samuel Carter, M.P.P., Called "Ontario's Scrappest Member."

Samuel Carter, M.P.P. for South
Wellington, a new member, has already established himself as one of the strongest, and at the same time
one of the most picturesque, men in the House. The dramatic material in his life and his career is recognized in an article by Don Hunt in the current number of The Canada Monthly, in which Mr. Carter is described as "Ontario's scrappest member of Parliament," and "the man who wouldn't be run over."

The story of Carter's radicalism, inherited from a line of radical ancestors, makes an absorbing tale.
"There are two main reasons," says
Mr. Hunt, "why Mr. Carter is a citizen of Ontario to-day, and not still living in the knitting districts of Nottingham. For one thing, he neither wanted to be run over himself, nor to see other people like him run over.
In the second place, he was a passionate temperance man. From these causes he came to America 35 years ago. For these causes he is still fighting to-day, and the two ambitions
merge, with him, into one compelling motive and driving force."

"In the Legislature to-day Carter stands first of all for the abolition of the bar and for the prohibition of the sale of all intoxicating liquors. At the same time, true to his traditions,
he is fighting for those men who, for various reasons, are in danger of being run down in the race of life.
His democracy and his radicalism are essentially of the fighting and practical type."

A new man in the Legislature, he has established, in his very first session, the reputation of sharing with Hon. Thomas McGarry the laurels of the heaviest "scrapping" in the House,
but whereas McGarry, with all his ability, rather gives the impression of fighting for the mere sake of fighting,
and not for any deep-down ideals,
Carter is simply ablaze with crusading zeal. At times when he speaks
he is deceptively quiet, but if you only wait for a moment or two you will be actually startled at the outburst of spontaneous zeal and enthusiasm, which has a queer magnetic effect.

"Samuel Carter," according to Mr.
Don Hunt's summing up, "is the sort of man to whom his opponents, if they are wise, will apply the motto:
'It is well to let sleeping dogs lie'—
only, in his public life, Carter has a severe attack of almost chronic insomnia."

Marooned in Forest.

Recently during the German drive
at Warsaw a scouting party of Uhlans sighted several huts in the depth of a forest, and upon investigation found them inhabited by about twenty half-clad and half-starved men. They proved to be Eduard Schorchofer, a well-to-do Austrian, and men who had been under his command in guarding the ammunition supply wagons of the 14th Austrian Army Corps.

In September, a year ago, these men had been surprised by a large force of Russians, who captured the ammunition wagons. In the engagement Schorchofer had two horses shot under him. To escape capture he and his men fled to the cover of a forest. They reached a village after some days' marching, where they were supplied with civilian clothes and food. Subsequently the Russians were reported to be nearing the village, and Schorchofer and his men did not dare remain. They returned to the forest, built huts, and lived on game. Their sufferings were intense.
On June 23 they sighted the coming of the Uhlans with the same joy that shipwrecked sailors see a craft on the horizon.

The men got leave to return to their homes and see their families,
after which they will again go to the front.

Devastations of the Huns.

In the first three months of the war
the damage done amounted to $212-000,000. This was up to the end of October, and by December at least another million pounds' worth of property had been destroyed. The Germans timed their invasion of Belgium
for the harvest period, and were thus able to rob the Belgians of $3,000-000 worth of food. In addition, they have levied taxes amounting altogether to $8,000,000, while the cost
in human life is estimated at $15-000,000. Altogether the cost of the war to Belgium for the first five months was $338,000,000. What is more terrible is that Germany has seized the whole of the Belgian food supply, and by harvest time this year
it is reckoned that in Belgium there will be over 2,000,000 destitute persons and the remaining 5,500,000
will be coming to the end of their resources.

As showing the determination of the Germans to do everything they possibly can to bring the direst
misery to the people of the country
they so shamefully invaded, it might be mentioned that, according to Sir Edward Grey, the German military authorities actually stole the food and money sent by philanthropists in America, the Colonies, and British Isles for the relief of starving Belgians.

Nearly Got the King.

The Tribuna states that the King
of Italy, who is an excellent soldier,
was present recently at the bombardment of an Austrian fort.

"Having noticed that the Austrians were firing from a house, the King advised the lieutenant in charge of the gun to fire at the building. The lieutenant aimed and fired, the house being shattered. The King congratulated the officer and went away."

Later he related the incident to a general, who asked the lieutenant's
name, which was told him.

The general paused and said: "The lieutenant and three soldiers were killed half an hour ago. If your majesty had stayed later— He was unable to finish the sentence."

fairs of the United States, Brit-

AMBASSADOR MORGEN-

tic interests of Italy, Russia, and Montenegro. These added

recently makes the United States diplo-

and Belgium, but they are in safe hands for a man of parts is sitting on the safety-valve, a man in whom the allied countries place the greatest confidence and who has won the confidence of the Turks to an unusual degree.

For Henry A. Morgenthau is first of all a Jew. He came to America an immigrant boy, poor, obscure, and not necessarily promising. Up through hardship and peril he came,
up through the East Side and Hell's Kitchen, up to the light of American education, ever pressing on with that eager, sensitive, acquisitive Semitic mind. Up through his High School and college course, through law school, through 20 years of practice,
into business, where, if anywhere, the Semitic mind excels with its keenness
and foresight.

It was not easy to induce Mr. Mor-genthau to accept the post, for he has big financial interests, and everyone knows how reluctantly such things are put aside by a Jew.

Among the Turks, the most suspicious of mortals, he is regarded with respect and confidence. In Turkey public officials are careful about all getting together at a single entertainment for fear of consequences.
They do not fear to accept en masse
invitations that Ambassador Morgenthau issues and the unanimity with which they accept cause other ambassadors to wonder. Jews have extensive interests under the crescent
and star; their ancient land of Palestine is under Turkish domination.
As a Jew Mr. Morgenthau has established friendly relations with his own people and carefully guards their rights.

There is only one other reason for his success; that is concentration.
He does but one thing at a time, but he does it with all the intensity and power of that keen mind. The thing
at hand is the only thing he knows.

Lighten all these qualities with idealism and you have the picture of the man in Turkey, the German-Jew immigrant boy who is conducting one of the most important embassies in the world at the present moment.

Lady Colonels.

Now that Princess Mary is officially of "full age" several regiments in the Army are anxious that her name should be identified with them and that there should be a "Princess Mary's Own." Among the claimants to this distinction are the 6th Dragoon Guards—the senior cavalry regiment without the name of some member of the Royal Family identified with it—the 6th Inniskilling Dragoons, the 13th Hussars, and the 20th Hussars. The Norfolk Regiment, too, claims that as her Royal Highness was born in that county
they should have the honor of bearing her name. To have a Royal name coupled with a regiment is an ambition throughout the Army, and particularly is this the case in the cavalry. Three of these regiments indeed now claim Royal ladies as their Colonels-in-Chief. These are the 7th Dragoon Guards (the Princess Royal), the 15th Hussars (the Queen), and the 19th Hussars (Queen Alexandra). These honors were bestowed by the King a short time ago.

VALUE OF BERRIES.

Berries are "good medicine" to tone up the system and every farm should have berries enough
of all kinds to supply the family
throughout the year—fresh fruit
in season, and canned fruit all
the balance of the year, until fresh fruit is harvested again.
Many town dwellers and subur-
banites can grow berries on small plots of ground, if they will. On a lot only 50 by 125 feet, with much of the plot devoted to lawn in front of the house, a suburbanite raises an assortment of flowers, roses,
gladioli, dahlias, many annuals
and perennials, and besides strawberries and raspberries in abundance. Decide now to plant strawberries and raspberries this autumn, so a crop of the former
will be ready next season and the latter the season following.

CORN CULTIVATION.

The Condition and Character of the Soil the Determining Factors.

The amount and kind of cultivation
for best results with corn depend upon the character and condition of the soil.

If the seed bed is firm below, mellow
at the surface, and free from weeds,
shallow early cultivation is all that is necessary, says A. C. Arny of the Minnesota experiment station. This kills weeds as they start and prevents the formation of a crust, thus keeping the moisture in the soil. Shallow, early cultivation may be given with a narrow shovelled cultivator or a light harrow, the teeth of which slant backward. If there are small loose sods or other material that may cover some of the hills, preventing the young corn plants from reaching the surface, the cultivator should be used instead of the harrow.

If the seed bed has not been thoroughly prepared, or if heavy rainfall
has packed the well prepared seed bed
after the corn has been planted, early cultivation is needed to loosen up the seed bed, giving the young plants a chance to grow, and to kill the weeds.
Medium depth cultivation, either before the corn is up, following the planter marks, or as soon as the corn can be seen, followed by deep and close cultivation each way at the time the corn is from four to six inches high, is also good practice under such conditions.

Later cultivation for the purpose of retaining moisture and killing weeds should be shallow. If the soil has been properly worked before planting time
or deep cultivation has been given
while the corn is small, later cultivation need not be more than two or three inches deep.

After corn is from eight to twelve inches high, deep or close cultivation becomes increasingly harmful, cutting
the roots near the surface and reducing the amount of water supplied to the plants.

Sufficient cultivation should be given
to keep the surface of the soil mellow and free from weeds. Cultivation beyond this is unnecessary and only increases the cost of production.

Hoop Weeder For Vegetables.

The cut illustrates better than words perhaps, a weeder very superior to many hand weeders now offered on the market. This is easily and quickly made from thin, soft steel, such as found in barrel or pall hoops, although we prefer the steels from used corsets,
as these are narrow, thin and very tough and springy. Cut pieces, a, 12 to 15 inches long, and punch or drill

a hole near each end large enough for an inch screw.

Make a handle, b, and fasten the steel to it at c. A file soon brings a sharp edge on this weeder blade and
each side or edge may be sharpened
and a weeder with a double cutting edge be secured.—Farm and Home.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Begin to think about bulbs for planting next fall.

Endive and Chinese cabbage may be sown for fall use.

Cut back Achilles as soon as it is through flowering and it will flower
again in the autumn.

Stake dahlias and do not leave more than one or two canes to grow. Too many shoots mean small flowers.

One of the earliest shrubs to flower is the Juneberry (Amelanchier). There are several varieties, but the one most commonly grown is Amelanchier Canadensis. It is sometimes called shad-bush. The fruit turns from green to red or purplish and is enjoyed by both birds and man.

Watch for currant worms. They may be killed by spraying with arsenate of lead. Paris green and lime may also be dusted over plants on which worms are working with good effect.

Dig out the tulip bulbs if the bed is wanted for other flowers and lay them
under a bush or tree, covering them with a box or board. They may be replanted in autumn and will give good flowers the next spring.

DANGER SIGNALS.

Red is Used Because It is the Most Effective Color.

Red is the color universally used as a danger signal because it can be seen farther than any other color. It is also the color that "attracts attention, excites curiosity and arouses to action,"
as William Churchill said in an address before the Illuminating Engineering society.

Green, the complementary of red, is seen almost as far as red, but green is
the color of which nature makes lavish use, and therefore a green signal is less easily recognized than a red, because the former may easily be taken for a part of the background, while the latter always contrasts vividly with the background. So green has been used for a clear or a cautionary signal.

At night especially red is used as a danger signal, red lanterns being placed on torn up streets and obstructions,
red tall lights being used for motor-cars, red lamps to indicate fire exits in theaters, factories and hotels and more recently to mark dangerous parts of machinery, high current wires and other danger spots.

In Mr. Churchill's address, as quoted by the Scientific American, he gave the effective range of the several colored lights recognized by the Railway Signal association under ordinary weather conditions, as follows: Red,
three to three and one-half miles; yellow, one to one and one-half miles;
green, two and one-half to three miles;
blue, one-half to three-quarters of a mile; purple, one-half to three-quarters of a mile; lunar white, two to two and one-half miles.

Red, no matter how distant, never ceases to look red. This is not true of any other color, though a good green,
fairly approximates it.

Yellow light is visible much farther
than the distance at which its color
can be distinguished and is easily mistaken for a "neighborhood light"—that is in a house, for instance.

Lunar white—a pale bluish white—

HYPNOTIZING ANIMALS.

Even the Deadly Cobra May Be Made Perfectly Passive.

Hypnotizing a hen is a trick known to most country boys. It is an old experiment, first described by the Jesuit father, Athanasius Kircher, who laid a hen on the table, held it firmly for a little while and drew a chalk line
in front of its eyes, with the result that it remained as if in a catalepsy.

In India it is known that a cobra caught by the neck and gently pressed will soon become stiff and remain so for a considerable time either coiled up or out straight.

A frog fastened to a board and turned suddenly upside down goes into a trance. Other animals are susceptible to this treatment, some more quickly than others.

If you pick up a crab and wave it in the air it becomes immobile, a female bending her legs over her abdomen, a male sticking them out almost straight.
The same is true of the fresh water
crayfish, only this resists for a much longer time than a crab.

Among the insects catalepsy—commonly known as "death feigning"—is common, and, according to Professor Ernst Mangold, the learned German naturalist, is often a means of saving
the life of the insect.

According to Mangold, the hypnotic
condition is induced in man by suggestion or physical inhibition, in animals by mechanical inhibition, but in both cases sensory stimuli may assist. These stimuli may be optic (fixing the gaze on some object), or tactile (stroking the skin), or otherwise. Sometimes an absence of wanted stimuli
may induce the state, as in the case of absolute silence.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Undiscovered Oceans of Truth.

tribute toward the general result."—

Gypsies.

The gypsies are nearer to the ani-

That Last Chapter

How a Detective Story Was Finished.

By F. A. MITCHEL

"Hello?"

"Well?"

"Are you Mr. MacKinnon?"

"Yes. What is it?"

"I'm Hayden, composing room. The last chapter of that detective story is missing."

"Missing?"

"Yes."

"Great Scott! What are we to do? Connelly read it, and I sent up the manuscript just as I received it from him. You say it is a detective story?"

"Yes. That's what the title indicates."

Here was a beautiful situation. A detective story with the last chapter missing! Connelly was the only person connected with the office who had read it, and he had gone away. I ordered a search made for the missing chapter without success. Nothing remained but the author. I called to the telephone operator, "Give me No. 2078 Penfield."

It seemed an hour, though it was but forty seconds, before I heard a click, and a woman's voice answered:

"Well?"

"Is this Miss Quigley?"

"This is Miss Quigley's home, but she's not here." She said this morning for Japan.

The groan I gave was doubtless audible to the woman on the other end of the wire, for she asked if anything was the matter. In reply I asked her if Miss Quigley had left any manuscripts or parts of manuscripts with her. The reply was that before leaving the authoress had burned every scrap of paper she had except a detective story in the hands of her publishers. I groaned again and hung up the receiver without even thanking the person for her information.

There was nothing for it but to read the story and write the last chapter myself. Just think—make an ending to a detective story, a detective story written by a woman famed for weaving plots that no human being but herself could unravel! I must first wade through a labyrinth of incidents intended to throw the reader off the track, my head at the same time being full of other matters. Connelly attended to such work, and I knew little or nothing about it. He had gone into hiding to escape a legal summons and no one but himself knew where. With the authoress in the middle of the biggest ocean on earth, there was no respite for me. I took up the telephone receiver again.

"Send me the manuscript of that detective story at once. There's been some confounded carelessness somewhere, and whoever is to blame will get his head taken off!"

The latter part of this message was superfluous. It was merely a blowing off of the mad that was in me. The manuscript came down, and, placing it on the desk at one side, the rest being covered with an infinite variety of matter, principally railway proofs, page proofs and everything else that can come from printers to distress an editor, I turned to the first chapter and began to skim, for I had altogether too much to occupy me to give the matter undivided attention. While reading the first chapter I gave orders concerning the making of pictures, the buying of supplies, the turning down of submitted manuscripts. I apologized for having offended suffragists, anti-suffragists, prohibitionists and winebibbers.

I have given this information respecting the interruptions attending my reading of the first chapter simply for a sample of the rest. When I finished all of the story I possessed I knew no more about the plan on which it was written than of the last chapter. But I had formed some idea of what might possibly be thrown in to worry the reader—it certainly worried me—and I went over it all again, this time to get a comprehensive view, and the result was more satisfactory. But as to who stole the watermelon—it was either a watermelon or a sapphire as big as a watermelon—I had not the faintest conception. However, since there must be a conclusion I selected from a number of intended misleaders one that I thought would be the easiest to make fit the conditions. This done, I looked my desk and went home to dinner.

At 9 o'clock I sat down to write the last chapter of "The Gem of Good Hope." My work consisted in fitting my denouement to the rest of the story, or, rather, in fitting the rest of the story to my denouement. Whoever has tried to work out one of those puzzles in which there is always one piece which cannot be made to fit in its proper place will understand the nerve racking task in which I was engaged. Just as I had come to believe that I was meeting with some success I smelled smoke and heard a commotion below.

Running downstairs, I found an incipient fire in the kitchen back of the range and set about putting it out. Some one had turned in an alarm, and in a few minutes the clanging fire engines were pulling up before the door. The house was filled with firemen, small boys, water and smoke. Fortunately the disturbance did not last long, but after it was all over and I returned to my literary labors I was obliged to listen to the sounds of the crowd attracted by the noisy firemen.

It was 2 o'clock in the morning before I finished writing the last chapter of "The Gem of Good Hope" and, throwing myself into bed, tried to sleep. But I was tortured by a fear that I had left something unconnected that would make the story ridiculous. However, I managed to get four hours' slumber and, after a hasty breakfast, went to the office with the manuscript.

After the typographical errors had been eliminated the proofs came to me for revision. They were a sight to behold. The proofreader had put one or more query marks in every paragraph, the sheets looking as if insects emerging from an inkwell had meandered over the paper. Most of these errors arose from fixing the body of the story to accord with my denouement. I might have turned them into good English, but every query mark let loose a million discrepancies. However, I did the best I could with them in the limited time and attention I was able to give them and passed the revised sheets on till the last chapter was reached, which I was pleased to see read very smoothly even if it deleted every intention of the author.

I wished that the book could be issued at once instead of in a couple of months. If the story came out immediately its glaring incongruities might be forgotten before the return of the authoress. I knew very well that she would make it hot for me, and if she returned when the story was issued it was quite likely there would be a veritable Tophet. If she returned later and my vision of her story was found not to be so bad as might have been expected she might let me down with comparative ease.

A perusal of the page proofs took away all hope. My ending of the story was not at all borne out by the circumstances. Every one of forty-nine of the fifty chapters bristled with reasons why my denouement could not have been possible. I, the author, the firm, would be ruined. Nevertheless the issue must go as it was. The story had been advertised for issue on a certain date and must be in the hands of the dealers at that time.

When I took up the first criticism on the story I trembled. It happened to be one of those that to us who know mean that the writer had not time to read the book. It spoke of Miss Quigley's marvelous ingenuity, etc. I groaned. Marvelous ingenuity! Just wait till some fifteen dollar a week understrapper has read the book attentively.

The next criticism I read was more definite. It spoke of the story as the most subtle of all Miss Quigley's wonderful plans. The critic was reminded of the stories of eminent detective story writers who left purposely a shadow of doubt in the reader's mind just what was intended. The story of "The Lady and the Tiger," the denouement of which was left to the reader, was cited as a most successful effort in this line of work.

An idea popped into my brain. Turning to my stenographer, I dictated the following item, which I sent to a trade paper devoted to book news:

The "Gem of Good Hope," by Alice Quigley, is a new departure in detective story writing. After ably leading the reader through a number of incidents, such calculated to suggest a theory, the writer with consummate skill brings the story to an end upon a theory not at all in harmony with the facts laid down, leaving the reader to form any theory that he can fit to the narrative.

Having secured the publication of this item in one paper, I took measures to have it copied by others. It was not long before many of those who read the book had heard that it was intended for a puzzle to be worked out by the reader. The consequence was that every reader perused the pages with the utmost attention in order that he might be the better able to form the correct theory.

As soon as this view of the case was spread abroad the sales of "The Gem of Good Hope" rapidly increased. I seriously meditated offering a prize for the person who should give the correct interpretation to the story. I would surely have done so, but since it would be impossible to name anything that would conform to the facts as laid down I did not see how any one could win the prize. This, of course, would reflect on the integrity of the publishers.

Fortunately before Miss Quigley returned from her trip her book had had an enormous sale. I saw a notice in a newspaper of her arrival and fortified myself with a number of checks with which to make a defense when she visited me. She came in with eyes aflame and so choked with indignation for me that she could not utter them. I took advantage of the delay to hand her a $5,000 check. She took it without looking at it and, having found her voice, fired a volley. To this I replied with a $10,000 check. This check she glanced at, and it produced an effect. She was beginning again when I fired a big gun at her loaded with $15,000 shrapnel. This staggered her, and she looked at all the checks I had given her.

"What does this mean?" she asked.

"It means," I said, "that your last and greatest work has had a phenomenal sale. No such literary financial success has been attained in years. Sit down, Miss Quigley, and I will tell you how it came about."

And I did. I gave her the story much as I have told it here. When I had finished it required some time for her to satisfy herself that she had met with a piece of good fortune instead of the barbarous treatment she had supposed.

Her next story she drew with the intention of leaving the reader to guess the outcome. It proved a failure.

SCOTLAND'S PALLADIUM.

A Famous Piece of Artillery Is Ancient Mons Meg.

In the most honorable location in the Argyll battery of Edinburgh castle is a huge piece of ancient artillery which is known as Mons Meg. This old fashioned piece of ordnance is held in the highest esteem by the Scottish people; in fact, it holds a position in their hearts similar to our feelings toward our own Liberty bell.

Mons Meg was made at Mons, Belgium, about the year 1503, by order of James IV., and was named Meg in honor of his wife, Margaret Tudor, the daughter of Henry VII. Its great bulk and weight rendered it almost worthless in those days of hand to hand combat. However, it was used on special occasions to help celebrate national events. In the reports of the financial transactions of the times may be found charges for "grease for Meg's mouth" (this was used to increase the loudness of the report), ribbons to deck her carriage and pipes to be played before her when accompanying the Scottish army on an expedition. After the union in 1707 the people feared that the "odious sunderer of national independence" would be consumed by the removal of Mons Meg to England. In 1757 the piece was removed to Woodhouse, but it was restored to Scotland in 1858, "to quiet the people."

Although only a mere mass of rusty iron, it is revered by the people today and is always decorated with thistle and other flowers on anniversary days. In processions it has always had the place of honor, but recently it was decided that it was dangerous to submit it to the shock of cartage, and now it looks down from its resting place over the great Scot city.—Chicago Herald.

AN EASY GOING SENTINEL.

Such a Little Thing as the Password Didn't Bother Him.

An interesting picture of the confusion that attended the anti-Austrian demonstrations in Milan in 1848 is given in "Memories of Youth," by Signor Giovanni Visconti Venosta.

Very early in the morning, says the author, after several hours of heavy sleep in a hammock in an anteroom of Garibaldi college I descended into the street and ran into some people who, with tricolored shawls across their shoulders, were giving orders in the name of the committee of defense. They were trying to discipline the revolution. Falling into their hands, I was stationed as a sentinel at a useless barricade that shut off Via Durini from the Verziere. The commander, having inspected my pistols and perhaps having found them not murderous enough, placed in my hands a fencing foil. Then he gave me the countersign, "Papa Pio."

A little while afterward another chief came along, who re-enforced the post and gave me as a companion a good old man who was armed with an antique lance. I told him the countersign, and we soon became friends.

A patrol appeared. "Halt!" cried the old man. "The countersign?"

"Concordia, coraggio," replied the captain of the patrol.

"Truly," replied my companion, "the countersign is something else. However, we are all Italians, so pass on."

The anvil Date Back of History.

The anvil was known in the earliest times, being spoken of in the Bible, the prophet Isaiah saying (chapter 47, verse 7): "So the carpenter encouraged the goldsmith, and he that smiteth with the hammer, him that smiteth the anvil." It is not known who first used it, but of course the anvil of antiquity was unlike that of today as perfected by modern workmanship. The anvil still used in the orient, however, is a boot shaped piece of metal inserted in a section of oak or walnut log. Larger or smaller it is used by tinsmiths, shoemakers, silversmiths and blacksmiths. The anvils used in this country are commonly made of cast iron faced with steel and are of paralleloiped form, with a steel cone or beak at one end and a "handy hole" for inserting chisel or other tools at the other end.—Boston Globe.

The Crimean War.

The Crimean war was in 1853-56 between Russia on one side and Turkey, France, Great Britain and Sardinia, as allies, on the other side. It was called the Crimean war because it was mainly fought in the Crimean peninsula. It arose through the demand of Russia for a protectorate over the Greek subjects of the sultan and was closed and its issues decided by the treaty of Paris March 30, 1856. By this treaty Sebastopol, which had been captured, was restored to Russia, Russia abandoned her claim as to Christians in Turkey and the Black sea was neutralized.

Lost It.

"There is a good deal of talk about the English being slow to appreciate a joke," said Marshall P. Wilder once. "I have not found that to be the case at all, although one Englishman did come to me for an explanation after I had made the remark that 'I dreamed one night that I was dead, but it was so hot that I woke up.'"

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Wilder," he said, "but it must be deuced hot in your country."

Hard to Choose.

"Why can't she make a choice between her suitors?"

"Well, one of them is a press agent. His language is very attractive. But the other is a traveling salesman, and he treats her as if she were a big buyer."—Kansas City Journal.

Let us do what honor demands.—Racine.

DIGGING A POST HOLE.

He Worked Faithfully and Cheerfully, but Lacked One Essential.

He was a vigorous worker, and he was digging a post hole in the bed of a river. A post was to be placed in it as part of the extension of a wharf.

He worked hard and got rapidly deeper and deeper.

He struck stones, but he reached down and pried them up.

He got thoroughly soaked, but he grinned cheerfully.

He sang at his task and was an inspiration to all the other workmen.

Five o'clock came, but he faithfully finished his post hole, though it took him ten minutes longer. He was no time server.

Then he climbed, dripping, out on the bank and walked home, nappy in the consciousness of good work accomplished.

But he did not put a post into the post hole, and when he came back the next morning he found the hole filled again with mud and completely obliterated.

However, he cheerfully went to work again, singing as he labored, and dug the hole once more.

And the company paid the bill.

Moral.—Cheerfulness is good, zeal is better, but a bit of brain is best of all.—Christian Endeavor World.

SECRET OF SUCCESS.

Be Efficient and Do Things That Other People Do Not Do.

A man has a weary time awaiting to rise in the world by force of sympathy, by getting somebody else to pull him along. You see such people standing around expecting compassion and a lift from some who have succeeded.

But this is not the way success is attained. That comes by working for it, by being worthy of it by doing one's best. If it comes at all. The world is full of failures because a man hangs back and depends upon others.

Efficiency is the greatest word in the language. There is no real progress without it. And what does efficiency consist of? Of sobriety, honesty, diligence, patience, happiness, unselfishness, good habits and putting in full time.

Of course a man can get rich by not caring for these. He can gamble, steal, defraud, pad payrolls and expense bills, borrow money and never pay. But such riches don't last. They drop a man pretty hard finally.

The only way is to start out in the world and do one's best without waiting to see what others do. As Steinmetz, the master electrician, said, "To earn $100,000 a year do things other people don't do."—Ohio State Journal.

Volcanoes and Disease.

Many strange and exaggerated accounts have been given of terrible diseases in human beings, lower animals and plants as a result of volcanic activity. In a prize essay by Dr. H. J. Johnston-Lavis it is shown that there is no direct connection with disease, but that volcanic outbursts may indirectly cause or increase epidemic disease in several ways. The poisonous fumes may have irritating and depressing effects on the eyes and throat. The disturbance of water courses may bring about the infection of wells and surface supplies with sewage, and interference with ventilation of houses may result from the accumulation of ejected materials. The moral depression from fear, with hunger from the cutting off of food supplies, may have the effect by lessening the resistance of the organization to infection.—Exchange.

When Lord Wellington was commander of an army in India a certain rich man offered him $500,000 for some secret information on a very important question. Wellington looked thoughtful a few moments, as if he were weighing the temptation. At length he said:

"Certainly," said the man, feeling sure that he had gained his point.

"So can I," said Wellington. Good morning, sir. And the man went away with a crestfallen air.

CARLETON PLACE COUNCIL.

The regular monthly meeting of the Carleton Place Council was held last night, all members being present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A letter was read from Capt. John A. Hope, representing the 50th Battalion, Barfield, asking for financial assistance, and the need of machine guns or a travelling field kitchen, the financial aid to be used for purchasing comforts for the men both travelling and in the field.

A petition signed by 81 merchants and business men was presented asking for the continuance of the night mail service.

A number of accounts were read and referred to committee.

The clerk reported a number of delinquents who had neglected to pay ground rent for boat houses at the park. He had billed them, but no attention had been paid, and some were two and three years behind. Mr. Hughes said that he had heard some parties say that they hadn't paid, and wouldn't pay as long as Mr. Pattie did not.

In reply Mr. Pattie said that his boat house was not on the street, because he had bought the land and paid for it when he got his property, but had always left it open for the convenience of the town people to go to the river.

Moved by Mr. Dolan, seconded by Mr. McNeely, that the clerk notify the owners of boat houses on the town property to settle all arrears of rent at once or else action will be taken.—Carried.

Mr. R. J. Robertson asked for the free use of the town hall for Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 for the County Teachers Convention. Moved by Mr. Hughes, seconded by Mr. Nichols, that the request be granted.—Carried.

Mr. Nichols reported that the good roads men working on the streets would need their money and that the town would have to finance the scheme until it was completed. It would therefore be necessary to make some arrangements whereby the pay cheques would be honored.

Moved by Mr. Pattie, seconded by Mr. Dummert, that the following accounts be paid and that the Mayor grant the necessary orders on the Treasurer:

Cameron Bros., relief supplies.....	7 14
W. A. Nichols, cedar for bridge.....	453 59
McGregor Bros., blacksmithing.....	11 25
Carleton Place Machine Co., work on road roller.....	6 00
Geo. Henman, spring for water wagon.....	4 50
John Ashfield, work on road roller.....	2 52

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.

There has been perhaps no way in which the Red Cross has mitigated the horrors of war so much as through its services in the exchange of prisoners. Strong passions are kindled by war and the prisoners in some countries have to suffer a great deal of malevolence and animosity. The Red Cross acts as a sort of Consul for prisoners and inspector of prisoners. In addition it uses its influence to secure the exchange of prisoners whose detention serves no military purpose. The largest number of prisoners during the war have been in the engagements between the Austro-German and Russian armies. So that the recent arrangement to exchange invalid prisoners through the Swedish Red Cross is of great importance. Trellenberg in Germany and Haparanda in Russia are the depots and starting points of the exchange system now under way. Special ferry boats will take the prisoners from each side across the Baltic to Sweden. The scheme is receiving support from other neutral countries manifest a keen sympathy with these repatriated victims of war. The reason for this sympathy is that it is only cripples and those who are permanently physically disabled who are exchanged.

The $4,000,000 estate left by the late Mr. E. Chandler Walker, of Walkerville, who died in Washington recently is giving the Canadian Surrogate Courts some work. It is said that Ontario gains $500,000 in succession dues on the estate. Law stamps on the filling of the various papers and official records in connection with the estate cost $2,100. The will is said to be the bulkiest alike in volume of contents and in value ever offered for probate in the province.
