

GOVT. PURCHASING BIG TRACT BETWEEN ST. THOMAS AND UNION FOR A HUGE TRAINING CAMP

Options Held on 5,000 Acres in Elgin County to Which Carling Heights Camp and Wolseley Barracks Are To Be Transferred, It Is Said—Move Is Made To Provide for Cavalry and Artillery Evolutions.

CITY MAY BE GIVEN HALF OF THE BARRACKS PROPERTY

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—Purchase of 5,000 acres of land between St. Thomas and Union has solved the training camp problem for Western Ontario, according to information that leaked out at militia circles here this morning. Options on the property are to be taken up immediately, and the camp prepared for 1914. The transfer of camp grounds involve the sale of the London barracks and their transfer to the new camp.

It has been an open secret in London that something "big" was doing in military circles for some time. Just what the "big thing" was, however, has been only guessed at. Securing a suitable camp ground has been a problem before the militia department for years, and one that has attracted more than casual local attention.

Go To Elgin County. That London would be "passed" up was expected, as endeavors to secure suitable property here have proved unsuccessful. The selection of the tract in Elgin came somewhat as a surprise, but it is claimed that a prominent city official was involved in the securing of options. Some were taken here in London on property near Carling's Heights, but the announcement that an Elgin tract had been selected comes after the majority of these options have been allowed to lapse.

Officials Silent. Local military authorities and those who are on the inside track of Government affairs admitted that the report from Ottawa was apparently an authentic announcement of the Government plans, so far as London was concerned. The majority, however, took the stand that plans were yet immature, to a certain extent, and for that reason refused to allow their names to be mentioned in connection with the story.

Present Grounds Too Small. Respective merits of Carling's Heights and Goderich camp have been argued and urged by the respective municipalities of London and Goderich. Goderich has ground enough for tactical purposes, but transportation facilities are inadequate. London has the transportation facilities, but the camp grounds are woefully small for not only actual camp purposes but for the tactical manoeuvres that are now part and parcel of the annual training of the Canadian citizen soldiers.

Options Secured. Options were secured some time ago on the tract in Elgin County, which according to the military officials who surveyed the property and those who have since inspected it, is ideally situated for the proper training of troops in brigades. There is room enough for cavalry, engineering, artillery and actual tactical manoeuvres as well as infantry evolutions to which the London camp has practically been confined because of lack of space.

Little London Girl Bitten by Mad Dog?

Aila Haley Was Playing on Street in Detroit When Attacked by Canine Whose Bite It Is Thought Caused Death of Boy From Hydrophobia

Five-year-old Aila Haley, of 69 Maple street, this city, is believed to have been bitten by the same dog affected with rabies that bit Perry Fuller, son of Henry Fuller, 352 Brush street, Detroit, who died there of hydrophobia on Thursday. Mary Fuller, sister of the boy that died, and Laura Kerner, of 116 Columbia street east, who were nipped by the same yellow mongrel, have been sent to the Pasteur Institute at Ann Arbor, Mich. Mrs. Haley, mother of the little Haley girl, who, while visiting her aunt in Detroit, at 63 Adams avenue east, was bitten in the left arm, is reluctant to believe that the same dog bit her child, and the three Detroit children. The children were playing on different streets about the same time, but as all the places are within short distance of one another, the natural supposition is that the animal was one and the same.

Bitten on Hand. A slight pink mark in the palm of her left hand shows where little Aila was bitten by the vicious animal. She was staying with her grandmother and her aunt, Miss Alice Ottwell. The latter at once applied peroxide, and hurried to a physician. This was about four weeks ago. When she returned home about three weeks ago the wound had healed. The three Detroit children at the same time were pronounced out of danger, but the little Fuller boy was taken ill a week ago.

Died in Agony. Little Aila Haley, on returning home told her mother of the dog biting her, but nothing was thought of it until Thursday night when her sister, Miss Nora Haley, who is now visiting in Detroit, called up her mother by telephone and immediately inquired if Aila was all right. Mrs. Haley was at first very frightened, but today she said that she did not feel any ill effects from the wound. Six physicians are said to have examined Perry Fuller, and declared that they could do nothing for him. He died apparently in great agony.

AILA HALEY, thought to have been bitten by dog with rabies.

TEMPERANCE IS SPREADING, SAYS LEADING DOCTOR

Sir Thomas Barlow Tells of Rapidly Changing Conditions in England.

Officers in the Navy Are Setting Good Example to Their Men.

[Canadian Press.] London, Aug. 8.—The very remarkable spread of temperance in the British Isles in every rank of society was recorded by Sir Thomas Barlow, president of the International Medical Congress, in a speech delivered to several hundred doctors of various nationalities at a breakfast given today in their honor by the National Temperance League in the Grafton Galleries.

A Good Example. Sir Thomas said that a great improvement in this respect had taken place in the army and the navy, where the young officers were setting a good example to their men. There had also been an enormous change among the commercial classes, while the use of alcohol in hospitals and by the men generally had greatly decreased.

Discusses Beri-Beri. Dr. Shrivayama, of Tokio, at the meeting of the section devoted to tropical medicine, asserted that students of the disease of beri-beri had been unable to discover the cause of the malady.

He had come to the conclusion that if the disease was caused by deficiency of a certain kind of nutrient, there was no reason why it should not occur among other peoples than those of the Far East.

Dr. W. L. Braddon, of England, declared that beri-beri was due to the use of rice which had been deprived of its surface layer of cells containing aliozine.

Four Killed and 5 More Will Die

[Canadian Press.]

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Speeding forty miles an hour, a motor hand-car, laden with track laborers, crashed into a freight train on the Central of New England Railroad, a subsidiary of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, near Pleasant Valley, today. Four were killed outright and five were mortally injured.

BISHOP FALLON FOR THE WEST SAYS A WINNIPEG DISPATCH

Reported That He Is To Head New and Great Arch-Diocese.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 8.—That a Catholic bishopric will be established in Brandon in the near future is the opinion that is gaining ground steadily in Catholic circles in Manitoba, and this opinion has been much strengthened by the recent consecration of Father Bellevue as bishop coadjutor to Archbishop Langford, of St. Boniface.

By some the opinion is held that Mgr. Bellevue will have a new see, with Brandon as his cathedral city, but others hold that recent changes tend to show that the new bishop will be an English-speaking man. The latter opinion is borne out to a great extent by the change that has been made at the monastery here within the past ten days, when English-speaking fathers of the Province of Baltimore took charge of the parish in place of the French priests of the Canadian province. Some predict that Brandon will be made an archdiocese with Bishop Fallon, of London, Ont., as the archbishop, with jurisdiction over all the English-speaking Catholic congregations in the west.

Bishop Fallon is at present abroad on a pilgrimage to Rome. Inquiries made of local Catholic Church authorities failed to elicit any information on the matter. Nothing was known of any such plan as mentioned in the dispatch from Winnipeg.

Wireless System To Circle Globe

[Canadian Press.] London, Aug. 8.—The House of Commons, by a vote of 210 to 138, today approved the Government agreement giving to the Marconi Company a contract for the creation of an imperial chain of wireless telegraph stations circling the world.

Senator Johnson Dies of Pneumonia

[Canadian Press.] Washington, Aug. 8.—Senator Jos. Johnson, of Birmingham, Ala., died at his apartment here today. He had been confined to his apartment about a week, but his trouble was not recognized as pneumonia until a few days ago.

Senator Johnson, who was 70 years of age, had served through the war between the States, in the Confederate army; was governor of Alabama for two terms, and had been a member of the Senate since 1907. He was unanimously elected to succeed the late Senator Pettus. He was re-elected in 1909.

Sureties Arranged For Carrie Liley

Miss Carrie Liley, the Dorchester girl who is charged with causing the death of her infant child by neglect, is still confined at the county jail, but her release on bail is expected shortly, probably today. It is understood that two sureties in the amount of $500 each have been arranged for.

TILLSONBURG PICNICKERS HAD TO STAY ALL NIGHT

Fifteen Big Coaches Were Stalled at Port as a Result of Accident on the Pere Marquette—Tired Party Left For Home Today.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Port Stanley, Aug. 8.—Fifteen carloads of picnickers from Tillsonburg, who spent yesterday at the lakeside, were still here this morning, as a result of the wreck on the Pere Marquette, two miles north of Port Stanley, yesterday afternoon.

Most of the picnickers spent the entire night walking about. Many would have tried to secure accommodation in the hotels or houses had they not expected that the line would be opened at any time, and that special train allowed to go on its way.

Many women and little children slept as best they could in the coaches, but the entire party was pretty well fagged out when the line was finally opened today, and they started for home.

REAL ESTATE MEN APPROVE PLAN TO FORM AN EXCHANGE

Proposal Was Unanimously Indorsed by Large and Representative Meeting.

Object Is to Improve Conditions of Doing Business Between Members and Public.

A representative meeting of real estate men of the city was held in the board of trade rooms yesterday afternoon. It discussed the advisability of forming a local real estate exchange to improve conditions of doing business, as between members and with the public, and to engage in any mutual undertaking for the good of all. Mr. Frank Bernhardt occupied the chair, and after discussion the meeting unanimously indorsed the proposal to form a London Real Estate Exchange. It appointed Messrs. J. C. Spence, D. Woods and Bernhardt a committee to draft suitable constitution and bylaws to be submitted to the meeting to be called at an early date.

Plan Explained. Industrial Commissioner G. Philip, who was present at the meeting, was asked by the chairman to explain the objects and advantages of the London Industrial Bureau, now being formed. He pointed out that in every case where organized effort had been made for civic development the real estate agents have taken a prominent part, and that it was hoped that London would be no exception to the general rule. The formation of an industrial bureau met with the approval of those present, and a resolution, heartily and unanimously indorsing the formation of the bureau was passed. The real estate agents individually and collectively pledged themselves to support such an organization.

Many Attend. It was pointed out that the inaugural meeting of the London Real Estate Exchange was attended by a larger number of real estate agents than that which formed the original Winnipeg exchange, which now finds it necessary to restrict its membership, and is regarded as one of the live real estate bodies of the continent.

TAKE VACATION IN BUGGY ADVISE OF CITY CLERK

Mr. Baker Tried It, and Says It's Best of All Ways to Holiday.

City Clerk Samuel Baker has returned to duty. He is browner, healthier and heavier than when he shut up his desk and departed on his 1913 vacation, for the clerk town he had the "simple life" during his holidays. The vacation has been spent with a horse and a buggy, and London's city clerk has been a visitor in nearly every farmhouse within a day's drive of Dutton.

According to his own statement he never enjoyed a holiday more than the one spent in touring Western Ontario with a good horse and outfit. According to the evidence that is presented by the clerk's appearance on his return every iota of his verbal statement is confirmed. Country air, country fare, and the simple life agreed with the city clerk, who declares that the quiet countryside has every other type of holiday spot "backed off the board" and "gassing for breath."

Talbot Guilty in Assault Case

[Canadian Press.] Percy Talbot, the Dorchester man charged with indecent assault against Mrs. Ann Levitt, a married woman, of the same village, was found guilty this morning and remanded for a week by Judge Talbot Macbeth. Sentence will be imposed when the man is brought before Judge Macbeth again.

British Trade Is Steadily Growing

[Canadian Press.] London, Aug. 8.—The July statement of the board of trade shows increases of $17,436,500 in imports and $25,880,000 in exports. The imports of foodstuffs increased $3,575,000 and raw materials about $5,000,000. The principal gain in the exports was in manufactured goods, which showed $2,000,000 more than a year ago, including $5,000,000 in cotton textiles.

Young Woman Left Her Husband and Was to Wed Another Man, But Meeting First After Three Years, Was Reconciled.

BLACKMAILER EASILY CAUGHT

Threatened To Blow Up a Farmer's Barns Unless He Got $5,000

CAPTURED BY A RUSE

[Canadian Press.] Hamilton, Aug. 8.—George Draper, 20 years old, who says he resides on Rebecca street, Hamilton, is under arrest at Dundas, charged with attempting to extort money.

Draper went to Robert Bennett, a wealthy farmer, near Carlisle, yesterday, and handed him a letter, which said that if he did not give the bearer $5,000 his barn would be blown up with dynamite. Draper said he had been sent there by another man.

Bennett, when he got over his scare, made an excuse to go and get the money. Instead, he loaded a rifle and forced Draper to throw up his hands. Then he called a county constable and took the man to Dundas. Draper, when searched, had in his possession another letter, in different handwriting, which gave the police a clue to the other man.

The prisoner, according to Bennett, said that a lot of other wealthy farmers would have to pay over large sums or their barns would be dynamited.

HAZEL WORTH MAY BE WARD

Children's Aid Society Urged To Take Her From Her Aunt.

MAY TAKE FORD GIRL

Little Hazel Worth, sister of Little Worth, the child who was so unmercifully whipped by Mrs. Hattie Tait, now serving one month's sentence in jail for her cruelty, may become a ward of the Children's Aid Society and be removed from the care of Mrs. Tait before the latter's liberation. The two little Worth girls are children of Mrs. Tait's deceased step-sister, Lillie, who is now being cared for by the Children's Aid Society, and following the publicity given the action of Mrs. Tait in inflicting the inhuman punishment, to which she confessed, many citizens have expressed the opinion to Magistrate Graydon and others that Hazel should be also removed from Mrs. Tait's care. Mrs. Tait has one child of her own, a little boy.

May Take Ford Girl. Inspector Sanders has not yet been officially notified that the little Ford girl, found in the Marie Ha Ha snake show at Asylum, would be turned over to the London Children's Aid Society, but is expecting to receive her from the St. Thomas society very shortly.

Inspector Sanders has had an unusually large number of little ones to befriend lately. At the present time he is interesting himself in the behalf of some little colored children in the north end of the city, whom he has been alleged as being ill-treated by their parents. Mr. Sanders has not yet secured sufficient and conclusive evidence to warrant a court action, but is still working on the case.

Does Not Approve of Women Voting

[Canadian Press.] London, Aug. 8.—Premier Asquith gave cold comfort to Mrs. Millicent Fawcett today, the president of the National Council of Women's Suffrage Society, and her non-militant colleagues, when they interviewed him in his official residence in Downing street and urged him to bring in a Government measure bestowing the franchise on women.

The Premier complimented his visitors on their constitutional methods, which, he said, were "such a welcome contrast to the criminal proceedings" of the militant suffragettes. He, however, frankly declared that he had undergone no change of heart in the matter, and that there could be no question of the Government undertaking the desired measure during the present Parliament.

Lady Sackville To Get Over $3,000,000

[Canadian Press.] London, Aug. 8.—The will of Sir John Scott, over which a great fight occurred recently in the courts in an attempt to nullify a bequest of $750,000, and a valuable art collection, to Lady Sackville, was admitted to probate yesterday.

It was stated in court that the testator had left property valued at $5,900,000, but that the executors put its value at $3,642,000. The difference is believed to be due to the exclusion of many works of art which, in death duties have not been paid.

The death duties paid on the estate, amount to $300,000. Lady Sackville gets in addition $500,000 and works of art, which are worth $2,000,000. Under a codicil Malcolm Scott, who led the fight against the will, has his share reduced to an annuity of $1,000.

Reports of Bridges On the L. & P.S. Road

Two of the Overhead Structures Examined by Elgin County Engineer Declared Unsafe, and Only Remedy Is To Rebuild.

Another phase of the expiration of the lease of the London and Port Stanley Road to the Pere Marquette this year, is the report submitted by County Engineer Bell, of Elgin Township, to the members of the Westminster Township council. The Elgin engineer was retained by the Westminster council to report on two overhead bridges across the Pere Marquette tracks, in the township, and he condemned them both. He declared that nothing short of rebuilding would put these structures in a safe condition. They have been in bad shape for some time.

Who Is Responsible?

Just who is going to be responsible for replacing these bridges is the problem that the engineer's report has started. It is claimed that the responsibility lies with the lessees of the road. However, if the Pere Marquette repeats the bridges so they will last out the road's tenancy of the Port Stanley line, it hardly seems likely that they would be rebuilt. The company has only a few more months as renters of the city's road, and the heavy cost of constructing new overhead bridges is one that would hardly be made for a few months' occupancy only.

LONDON, FRIDAY, AUG. 8.

THE TIDE OR NEW-COMERS.

The tide of immigration flowing to this country has been growing higher and higher since the off-year of 1907-08. The following are the figures:

1907-1908	262,469
1908-1909	146,908
1909-1910	208,794
1910-1911	311,854
1911-1912	354,237
1912-1913	402,432

This year probably half a million will come, unless something is done to check the stream.

It must be confessed that while this country will soon be able to absorb half a million settlers a year, it cannot possibly do this at the present time. The Government statistics make it clear that the great majority of the immigrants have been heading for the industrial places, and the rush in the last three years to Ontario is very marked. In 1912-1913 actually a majority of the settlers remained east of Lake of the Woods.

Of course, there are no hard times in the country, and no excuse for a calamity cry. But owing to the peculiar financial stringency that has got hold of Canada, as well as other countries, it is not at all unlikely that even without added immigration there may be a good many out of work in the cities east and west in the course of the coming winter. Everything is essentially sound, but a period of financial readjustment is in progress.

It would be better if the immigration department would at least suspend its activities for six months or a year, or even positively discourage Britons and foreigners, excepting farm laborers and domestic servants, from coming, until the country has got by the stringency and digested the arrivals of 1913. In the depression of 1907-08, the Government promptly took steps to check the influx with the success which the figures above for 1908-09 show.

Thus the unemployment evil was minimized. At the same time the Government's action in requiring each immigrant to be in possession of $50 did not discourage any who were fully prepared for their adventure, and soon the tide rose again, with renewed prosperity, higher than ever. Some step taken at once by the Government to check immigration, particularly of urban people, for the rest of this year, may prevent much dissatisfaction and hardship.

OUR BRITISH VISITORS.

The British parliamentary party have left Canadian shores with a graceful farewell from the official spokesman, Lord Emmott. As they passed through the country on their tour of observation they were banquetted and feasted with true Canadian hospitality. And they made speeches in reply. But those speeches were far from satisfactory to a certain section of their entertainers. On some questions they declined to express any opinion; and when they did say anything they did not say what some people wanted them to say.

For example, they said they believed the great mass of Canadians were loyal subjects and desirous of assisting the Empire in its naval defence; that while there was a difference of opinion as to the mode of rendering that assistance, it was Canada's business alone, and Canadians must settle it themselves; and, finally, whatever conclusion Canada reached in the matter, they believed it would be quite agreeable to England. But there are quite a respectable number of our people—respectable in numbers, we mean—who are not at all satisfied with this. Our late visitors said Canadians were loyal, but these people say that a large section is disloyal and separatist. They said that it was for the Canadians to decide whether they should contribute money or build their own navy. But Mr. Borden and his supporters will not give the Canadians a chance to say what they want. In fact, he tells us we will have to accept what the Conservative-Nationalist alliance decides upon, even if we have to wait until enough Liberal senators are dead, and enough safe men appointed, who will vote as they are told. And, finally, while our visitors said that whatever decision we reached would be acceptable to the motherland, the Government supporters know better; they know that the only plan that will satisfy the admiralty and the English people is Mr. Borden's plan, and that the Liberal plan will only be a cause of grief and shame. No; the way our friends from across the water talked was very unsatisfactory to some Canadians, though we are sure it will meet the approval of the majority.

Our visitors seemed to be typical Britons. There are boasters and busybodies in the old land as well as in the new, but their number is not great. The typical Briton minds his own business, and expects other people to mind theirs. He does not brag about himself or his country. He is not all the time waving the Union Jack and shouting about his loyalty. He may be perfectly satisfied with himself and his country, and his institutions. He may think his own way of doing things is the proper way, and he may have a certain half-concealed pity for others not as fortunately situated as himself. But he is not talking about it all the time. He goes calmly on his way, and does what he thinks is right, leaving other people to attend to their own affairs without his interference. Perhaps if we had a little of the same temperament, and showed more of the British characteristics, it might be all the better for us.

WAR OR PEACE?

The Mexican crisis awaits the arrival in Mexico of John Lind, the personal envoy of President Wilson.

The situation is dangerously delicate. President Huerta has intimated that Lind will be non persona grata. The Mexican acting minister of foreign affairs bluntly says that Lind will not be received unless he brings a formal recognition of the Huerta Administration.

If Lind calls on Huerta and is refused an interview, the insult to the United States will be severely resented by the American people and will bring the two countries to the edge of war. It is surmised that Lind will run no such risk. He goes as a spectator of events on behalf of President Wilson, without diplomatic office or authority. No official status could be conferred on him without the Senate's consent. Evidently he has instructions to report to the President the evidence of his own eyes and ears, and to check the statements of retiring Ambassador Wilson, the partisan of Huerta. A formal call on Huerta may, therefore, not be an essential part of his mission.

It is probable that unless trouble is precipitated by either Lind or Huerta, President Wilson will take no action until Lind makes a report. It may be that the recognition of Huerta will follow, as the only solution of a difficulty which cannot be prolonged without inviting war.

Mr. Lind's mission carries great responsibilities. The eyes of his countrymen are upon him. A false step, an ungoverned word, may wreck the machinery of peaceful diplomacy.

Perhaps some day the level crossing will go the way of its victims.

There are hard times in Italy and the proletariat is in revolt. It is the aftermath of war, with its waste of capital. A nation cannot have its cake and eat it, too.

Nearly all of Russell Sage's $80,000,000 is to be spent on schemes of social betterment. This is good, but a reconstruction of social conditions which would prevent one man from grabbing $80,000,000 would be better.

The airship has taken revenge upon the Anglo-American Cody at last. He was among the first and most daring pilots of the air, and performed a great service for this branch of the British army. He had been flying in all sorts of machines for years, and seemed to bear a charmed life.

The Minister of Labor says Canadian workmen are not capable of laying the foundations of large buildings. Consequently he has allowed Americans to come in and do this work at Ottawa. But Canadian workmen were useful on election day to vote for the candidates who told them they would lose their jobs if reciprocity carried, and cried: "No truck or trade with the Yankees."

FASHION HINT.

Our inclination is to make no further allusions to the funny kind of clothes the women wear, but we feel it necessary to observe that the present modes are not adapted to the kitchen, nursery or the polls.

HER CHOICE.

[Judge.]
Edna—What do you think of these couple, wedding?
Edith—I'd rather marry one of those rich old fellows with only one lung.

NURSERY CHAUVINISTS.

Canadians who trample the American flag in the dust in an ineffectual patriotism are not extremely irritating. They are merely juvenile and lack judgment, but their lack is not so conspicuous in their case as it is in the case of the citizens of the United States who in Canada make an offensive parade of the flag. They invite the affront which generally is respectful compared to what would be the response of American juveniles to a similar provocation on this side of the line.

The nursery Chauvinists here and in the Dominion ought to be spanked, given a bowl of bread and milk, and sent to bed.

CHEAPER THAN WAR.

[New York Evening Post.]
No one can deny that it would be much cheaper to buy out every American investor in Mexico than go to war in his behalf.

A THOUGHTFUL SON.

[Cleveland Plaindealer.]
Father and son were sitting on the porch step with the lawn mower a few feet away. They looked at each other. Then they looked at the mower.
"Dad," said the youngster, "you're getting too stout."
"Am I?"
"Sure, it's a pity, too. Jack Perkins told me yesterday that his dad had reduced his waist measure four inches."
"How?"
"Pushing the lawn mower."

GETTING USED TO IT.

It was a courteous act on the part of the commanding officer of the United States fleet to accept an invitation to send a contingent of warships to Victoria during the celebration. There is not a remote possibility that some day we may be in a position to return the compliment.

TOOK 826 BUSHELS OF WHEAT

OFF 20 ACRES AT STRATHROY

Crops All Through the District Are Away Above the Average, Oats Especially Being a Record Yield.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Strathroy, Aug. 8.—The crops in the district surrounding Strathroy are the best in years. The hay, while fairly heavy, was the lightest of all field crops.

Wheat is an excellent sample, yielding from 30 to 40 bushels per acre on an average. Russell Parker, two miles west of Strathroy, threshed 826 bushels off 20 acres. All the yields were bountiful.

Oats are a banner crop, and many of the pioneer farmers of the district say that they never saw as good a crop standing. They are estimating a yield of from 50 to 70 bushels per acre, which is far above the average.

Money in Peas.

The pea crop, of which most was sown for canning purposes, is turning out beyond expectations. Johnston Bros., of Kerwood, realized $196 from three acres of the canning factory variety.

Barley promises a good yield, as well as corn, the latter being late from being sown by June frosts. Potatoes are far above the average, but a little late, nevertheless.

Crop Competitions.

The Strathroy Agricultural Society holds standing field crop competitions

COL. GWATKIN MAY KNOW TOO MUCH FOR THE PRIME MINISTER

London Truth Says "Colonel" Borden Is Ignorant on Military Matters and Correspondingly Touchy.

London, Aug. 8.—Apropos of Colonel Gwatkin's appointment as Canadian chief of staff, Truth this week says: "The only doubt is not whether Colonel Gwatkin knows enough, but whether he is not too knowledgeable for 'Colonel' Borden, who is lamentably ignorant about all matters military, and correspondingly touchy when his ignorance is pointed out to him. If 'Colonel' Borden could not hit it off with General Mackenzie, I don't think he will with Colonel Gwatkin, who is not more likely than his predecessor to suffer a fool gladly, especially when he is his official chief."

CANADIAN BISLEY TEAM IS BACK IN MONTREAL

Major Birdwhistle Says That for Unpracticed Aggregation Men Did Wonders.

[Canadian Press.]
Montreal, Aug. 8.—The Canadian Bisley team arrived here today on the Virginian.

Major Birdwhistle, Ottawa, manager of the team, said that for a weak aggregation, and one which had had no practice before starting at Bisley, the men did remarkably well, all of them winning money.

He said the capture of the King's prize by Private Hawkins was unexpected, as he was shooting at Bisley for the first time. There was nothing of the fluke about the victory, however, as Hawkins shot steadily all through the competition, leading up to the final shoot. Several of the shots were marked on the apparent waning of interest in England in shooting and pointed out that the number of men in the first stage of the King's prize this year was only 1,100 as against 2,000 a few years ago.

SAYS SHE WAS ARRESTED WITHOUT DUE CAUSE

Anyway Tells the Magistrate She Has Been a Good Deal Drunker.

Mrs. Eda Robinson never was in court before, and Police Magistrate Graydon agreed with her that if P. C. William Middaugh arrested her without due cause that an investigation ought to be made into the matter. She pleaded with the officer, for her baby's sake, so she said, to let her go home. She was not drunk; in any case, she told the magistrate that she had often been a good deal drunker. At this assurance from Mrs. Robinson, Magistrate Graydon expressed sincere regret.

A SONG FOR AUGUST.

[Thomas A. Daly, in Canada Monthly.]
Here's the year on the wane.
There are signs in the sky,
In the woods, on the plain,
That its noon has gone by.
But the harvest's to gain
And the cool nights are nigh,
When the year's on the wane.

Here's the year on the wane.
There's a hawk in the blue;
In the wheat a red stain
Where the poppy peeps through
But there's bread in the grain
And there's warmth of love, too,
When the year's on the wane.

Here's the year on the wane.
[From the night-shrouded hill
Comes the katydid's strain,
And the wind's whistle shrill,
But two hearts may contain
All the spring's music still
When the year's on the wane.

"DOIN'S IN BRUIN TOWN"

Copyright, 1913, by Newspaper Enterprise Association.

"And the great white, silent creature, with no eyes in his head and no teeth in his mouth, and no flesh on his bones, crept CLOSER and CLOSER."

No wonder every little bear in Bruin Town hugged up tightly to a grown-up Bruin! No wonder teeth of big boy-bears chattered. No wonder the moon stared straight down from her home in the clouds!

No wonder the hair of the oldest, bravest father Bruin stood straight up like bristles! I say, no wonder everyone was shaking, for, don't you see, it is story-telling night at Bruin Town.

Great Uncle Owl, although he has forgotten his spectacles, is reading a GHOST STORY to the bears.

They have just reached the point where the ghost gently pushes open the door in the haunted house and creeps toward them!

Oh-o-o, can't you just see Teddy Bruin hiding his face behind his mamma bear? He is holding onto her as tightly as he can, too.

Don't you see grandma bear out at the side of the big owl? She is too scared to breathe.

And do look at Katie and Traddles cuddled up close to big Father Bear. They are sitting right in front of Great Uncle Owl, where they can hear every word!

Little Traddles is wearing a hat today, but he is shaking so it may fall off any minute. But look at Katie. She just loves ghost stories, and she isn't scared at all, so long as Father Bear has his arm around her.

Oh, yes, do you see the wandering brother over there on the edge of the circle? He is wearing his funny hat, as usual. He is just as interested as the littlest bear there.

Great Uncle Owl has all his nephews and nieces with him. The youngest ones have almost tumbled off that tree bough they are sitting on, once or twice, since the story commenced. That is the reason Great Uncle Owl has spread his wings around them.

Do you see Artist Verbeck anywhere, boys and girls?

He is there, because he drew this picture. Next week he is going to draw another one!

He always finds something new for us. Wonder what is next.

DELAYED WIRE AIDS ELOPERS

Message Was Delivered Long After Their Train Had Left Tunnel.

THE HUSBAND IS IRATE

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Sarnia, Aug. 7.—Rush telegrams to the local police and immigration office today failed to deter Mrs. Frank Burgess and Roy Franklin from making their escape from Frank Burgess, an irate Toronto husband.

Burgess telegraphed the police and immigration officials here that his wife, Maude Burgess, was eloping with Franklin, and that they would arrive in Port Huron at 9:30 this morning and asked that they be detained. The message was not received until an hour after their train had departed. In the meantime the couple had been questioned by the immigration officials and both proved they were citizens of the United States. Their destination is unknown.

Took Husband's $675 And Lands in Jail

Woman's Defence Is That Wife Cannot Steal From Husband.

[Canadian Press.]
Montreal, Aug. 8.—Whether or not it is possible, legally speaking, for a wife to steal from her husband, is the point raised before Judge Leet in the case of Mrs. William Rabinovitch, wife of a farmer of St. Constant, who had her arrested, but released somewhat, and furnished bail after she had spent a night in the cells with her daughter.

While willing to secure his wife her liberty pending the outcome of the case, the plaintiff's eagerness to secure $675, which, it is alleged, she stole from a trunk, has not been abated, and he will carry the matter to a finish.

On behalf of the wife it is argued that the question should be dealt with by the civil courts. It was quite impossible to accuse the woman of theft as all the goods in the possession of the couple are held by them jointly.

As Rabinovitch is to take action before the civil courts to recover the money, Judge Leet adjourned the case.

JANIE

Good-Time Summer Girl, in the Country, Offers Her Tom Plums—Not On a China Plate—But With Her Fingers! Another Picture and a Story From the Fascinating Pen of Alice Goddard.

(BY ALICE GODDARD.)

It makes no difference if Tom is a worker in the fields or in the shop—if his Janie wears a sunbonnet or a creation! For plums offered to any "Tom" by any "Janie" taste the same!

This Tom, in fact, who lives all year in the country, thinks he has a shade the best of it over the Toms-of-the-city, for the city Janies offer their plums on china plates and it is the feel of Janie's cool fingers on his cheek that makes these plums a nectar fit for the gods to Tom.

The heat of the hay fields is forgotten when he sees the sun shining through the golden tendrils of Janie's hair, and watches the shadows through the flickering leaves make fascinating little arabesques on her face.

It is full summertime now and wherever there is youth, life turns to the purple and gold of love! And love is always the same, although each Janie and Tom think theirs only is like "the light that never shone on land or sea."

"Dear heart," says this Tom to his Janie, under the plum tree, "I am glad you are so simple and sweet and that your cheeks have grown pink with the kiss of the sun. I could not love you, dear, if you were otherwise than nature's own Hebe, who lifts to my lips the cup that holds the very joy of living."

"When you look at me and smile, I know how this dull old earth feels when the sun peeps over the crest of the hill in the morning and turns the night mists that have filled his eyes to a glory of crimson and gold."

"It's summertime, dear, and summertime and God's great out-of-doors belong to you and to me!"

The Poets' Corner

IF I WERE KING.

If I were king—ah, love, if I were king!
What tributary nations would I bring
To stoop before your scepter and to swear
Allegiance to your lips and eyes and hair.
Beneath your feet what treasures I would fling:
The stars should be your pearls upon a string.
The world a ruby for your finger ring,
And you should have the sun and moon to wear.
If I were king,
Let these wild dreams and milder words take wing,
Deep in the woods I hear a shepherd sing
A simple ballad to a sylvan air,
Of love that ever finds your face more fair,
I could not give you any goodlier thing
If I were king.
—Juston McCarty.

New Ways To Make Sandwiches

Neapolitan Sandwiches.—Neapolitan sandwiches are among the prettiest made. On a slice of white bread spread with cream butter, flavored with horseradish or mustard, a thin layer of cream or cottage cheese. Then put a thin layer of brown bread spread with anchovy or sardine paste, and a thin layer of meat, then a layer of cheese, and top the pile with a piece of cream buttered bread. Cut these sandwiches in triangles like cuts of layer cake.

Egg and Olive Sandwiches.—Chop hard-boiled egg and mix in about equal proportions with chopped pimientos or olives. Season with salt and pepper and moisten with melted butter. Spread between white bread and butter.

Raisin Sandwiches.—Raisin sandwiches come under the head of sweet sandwiches. To make them, chop one cup of seeded raisins fine and add one cup of finely chopped walnut meats. Mix these to a paste with whipped cream or beaten egg-white, and add a dash of salt. Spread between either white or brown bread.

Pecan and Dry Fruit Sandwiches.—Mix equal parts of chopped pecan nuts and pitted dates, freed from all fibre, to a paste with either sherry or cream and spread on very lightly buttered bread.

Sponge Cake Sandwiches.—Cut sponge cake in slices a quarter of an inch thick and spread lightly with chopped candied cherries moistened with orange juice. Make into sandwiches and cut in small shapes.

FASHIONS AND A LECTURE.

It is pleasant to hear of these founced dresses arranged in three and four tiers and are very smart. Side by side with lace there is finely embroidered tulle and painted gauze, the latter said to have been brought to special perfection this summer. We all know what beautiful effects are obtained from the use of painted gauzes, but alas, they are not for the woman of limited means, who must content herself in seeing others arrayed in such lovely perishable fabrics, and be generous enough too, to enjoy seeing these costly fabrics on others without envy. Half the joy of life is spoilt for many women by their foolish desire for things out of all keeping with their means. This is a pity, for it is a great bound to happen, colors may riot for a day, but the taste of women will always lead them back to quieter tones and colors, and there is nothing in dress so capable of distinction as a combination of black and white, for fairly moderate prices, and one judiciously and tastefully mingled. Lace of all kinds is in demand too dressed for very little. And after all and for afternoon gowns Chantilly is the favorite. A black Chantilly next season what one wore last? gown worn with a large picture hat. Nevertheless it is all vanity and vex, an scarf of pastel tinted chiffon next of spirit to be eternally envious is an outfit very charming to read of what one can't afford. It is a habit about. Lace is more and more worn—and therefore curable by the applique and wide lace flounces are very fashionable of common sense.

PROBLEMS OF THE FAIR SEX SOLVED BY CYNTHIA GREY

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letters can be answered privately.]

Is an Old Correspondent.

Dear Miss Grey: Please answer me the following questions:

1. How many miles by train is it from Quebec to Montreal, and from Quebec to Ottawa?

2. What will be the prevailing colors for street wear this coming fall and winter?

3. Is a girl of 18 years old enough to have a beau?

4. How long would it take to train for a kindergarten teacher? Also, where could one train?

5. For what reasons is toilet water used? How much does it cost?

6. What can I do to the water in which I wash to make it soft?

Thanking you sincerely,
AN OLD CORRESPONDENT.

A.—1. Approximately the distances are 180 and 115 miles respectively.

2. Navy, blue, prune and black will be the leaders, according to advance style notices.

3. Yes.

4. For all information write to Inspector Edwards, London.

5. If you once used toilet water in your bath you would not ask the question. It gives a delightful elusive fragrance to the water that is extremely pleasant, especially in warm weather.

6. Add a little powdered borax, say, a tablespoonful to each pailful.

Kohl-Rabi and Swiss Chard.

Dear Miss Grey: Will you please tell me through your helpful column in The Advertiser a recipe for cooking "kohl-rabi" and one for "Swiss chard."

Thanking you in advance, yours truly,

A.—1. Kohl-rabi or kale-turnip, as it is sometimes called, is cooked the same as turnips. Wash and part the root, cut in slices, cover with boiling water, and boil until tender, about 30 minutes. Drain into a colander, press lightly and mash fine, adding butter, pepper and salt to taste. Or if you prefer, cut in dice and add cream sauce when cooked.

2. In Swiss chard or asparagus beet both leaves and stems are used, the mode of cooking being exactly the same as for spinach, or any other variety of "greens."

Re the Ram's Horn.
I have been informed that the above publication, about which "Sister No. 1" was inquiring recently, was merged several years ago into a paper called the Home Peri, published in Chicago, Ill.

Answer to Lambeth.
Lambeth.—1. The gentleman will doubtless expect to pay the expenses you mention, and when you go out together it is correct to allow him to do so.

2. It is customary now for the bride's family to provide sufficient carriages for the bridesmaids, etc., and for any guests who may be forming a house party at the time of the ceremony. The other guests provide their own conveyances.

Daily Menu

SATURDAY.

BREAKFAST.

Peaches and Cream. Hominy Corn Pone. Coffee.

DINNER.

Vegetable Soup. Steak With Mushroom Sauce. Sliced Tomatoes, Rice, Bread. Boiled Potatoes. String Beans. Radishes. Raspberry Dumplings. Coffee.

SUPPER.

Veal Croquettes. Creamed Potatoes. Sliced Tomatoes. Rice. Bread. Tea.

Corn Pone.—Into 2 cups cornmeal mix 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon sugar; scald with 2 cups boiling water, and let stand till it swells and cools lukewarm; then add ½ oz. cake of compressed yeast dissolved in a little cold water; if too stiff reduce it with warm water to a consistency sufficient to retain its form; then put it in the baking-pan, let rise 4 or 5 hours, and bake in a moderate oven till thoroughly done. Pone should be eaten fresh and warm, or may be toasted after it is a day old.

Raspberry Dumplings.—Make dough of a quart of flour sifted with a half teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two tablespoonfuls of butter chopped into bits, and a pint of milk. Roll this dough out and cut into pieces about five inches square. In the middle of each of these squares put a heaping tablespoonful of black raspberries, sprinkle liberally with sugar and turn over upon them the four corners of the dough square, pinching them together in the middle. Put in the oven and bake for half an hour.

SOME FACTS ABOUT BUTTER

Delivered Daily in France, Just Like Milk—Butter as an Appetizer.

The full value of butter, both as an appetizer, as a nourishing article of diet, as a seasoning and as a garnishing, is realized by the use of the most valuable foods in the larder. It is not merely to spread chunkily on bread—although it is good enough there; it should be made an interesting part of the meals at which it is served.

In middle-class French families the real value of butter is better understood than it is here. Every morning the butter is left at the door, just as the milk is, and the most part always fresh instead of salt. The butter is then chilled and shaved into water-like strips for breakfast, to be eaten with the rolls that form the body of this meal. At luncheon butter is frequently served—always daintily—with bread and radishes, or some other side dish, as an appetizer. Then, eaten slowly, its goodness can be appreciated.

If the making of butter pats or molds is a burden, try making them only once in three days. Keep them in a bowl of ice water in the refrigerator, and they will retain their shape even in the warmest weather. It does sometimes seem

New Fall Fashions in Togs and Dogs

The up-to-date young girl this fall will wear a loose-belted coat that is VERY loose. She will wear a separate skirt, which will blend with the coat, but will not be of the same color or material. Her hat of plain felt will match her coat, and her shoes will have the low English heels.

The costume pictured shows a skirt of blue and white check, with a plain blue coat. This kind of a costume would be particularly sensible for the girl who works in a business office, as well as the girl who is going away to school.

Fashion, for once, says you may look healthy, comfortable and wholesome.

over broiled steak or fish. To make it, cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, an eighth of a teaspoonful of white pepper, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and the same amount of minced parsley.

Parsley butter can be used with vegetables. To make it, cream three tablespoonfuls of butter and add a tablespoonful of lemon juice, the same amount of minced parsley and half a teaspoonful of salt.

Sardine butter is delicious for sandwiches. Lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers, cream or chicken can all be used with it in sandwiches. To make it, pound a sardine to a pulp, add three tablespoonfuls of butter and two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice, and cream it thoroughly with half a teaspoonful of salt.

Green butter is for use with fish. To make it boil and drain an eighth of a peck of spinach and press it through a sieve and then through a cheesecloth. Beat a quarter of a pound of butter to a cream, add the spinach, two tablespoonfuls of minced parsley and two teaspoonfuls of minced capers.

EMBROIDERY ALL THE RAGE IN NERO'S TIME.

Ladies Who Delight in Dress and Home Decoration Should Read This.

Today anything which looks like real embroidery is snapped up quickly. If a dealer, with the purpose to sell again, if a wearer to triumph over her less alert sisters. As a matter of fact, embroidery has played a most important part in the history of the social world, from king to peasant, and the belles of the fashionable element of society from Nero's time to the present day have invoked embroidery in all its phases to enhance their personal charms.

At all times embroidery has been classed in the luxurious and expensive class, but The Advertiser has identified itself with a proposition that will bring it to the humblest door as well as to the mansion at a cost representing about one-sixteenth what has been the regular rate. In addition to this a free booklet of instruction and also a hoop on which to operate will be supplied, by which assistance any school girl can produce results that will defy the best work of a life-long expert.

Watch The Advertiser for future announcements and particulars concerning this great special offer.

The Top and the Ball

AS TOLD BY AUNT GERTIE.

CHAPTER I.

Once, years ago, there lived in a strange old house, in a town down by the deep, rolling sea, a little boy who had many playthings!

Now our story today is not so much about the boy as about two of his toys!

For boys and girls, though it may seem very strange to you, this little fellow had the kind of toys that fall in love!

Now isn't that too queer-sounding for any use? But, anyway, that was the case.

The two particular toys you are to learn of were MISS BOUNCING BALL and MR. TWIRLING TOP!

Miss Ball was made of real morocco leather and believed herself to be a very fashionable girl.

Mr. Twirling Top was not very stylish-looking until one day his little master painted him bright red and yellow. Then he felt very gay and very happy.

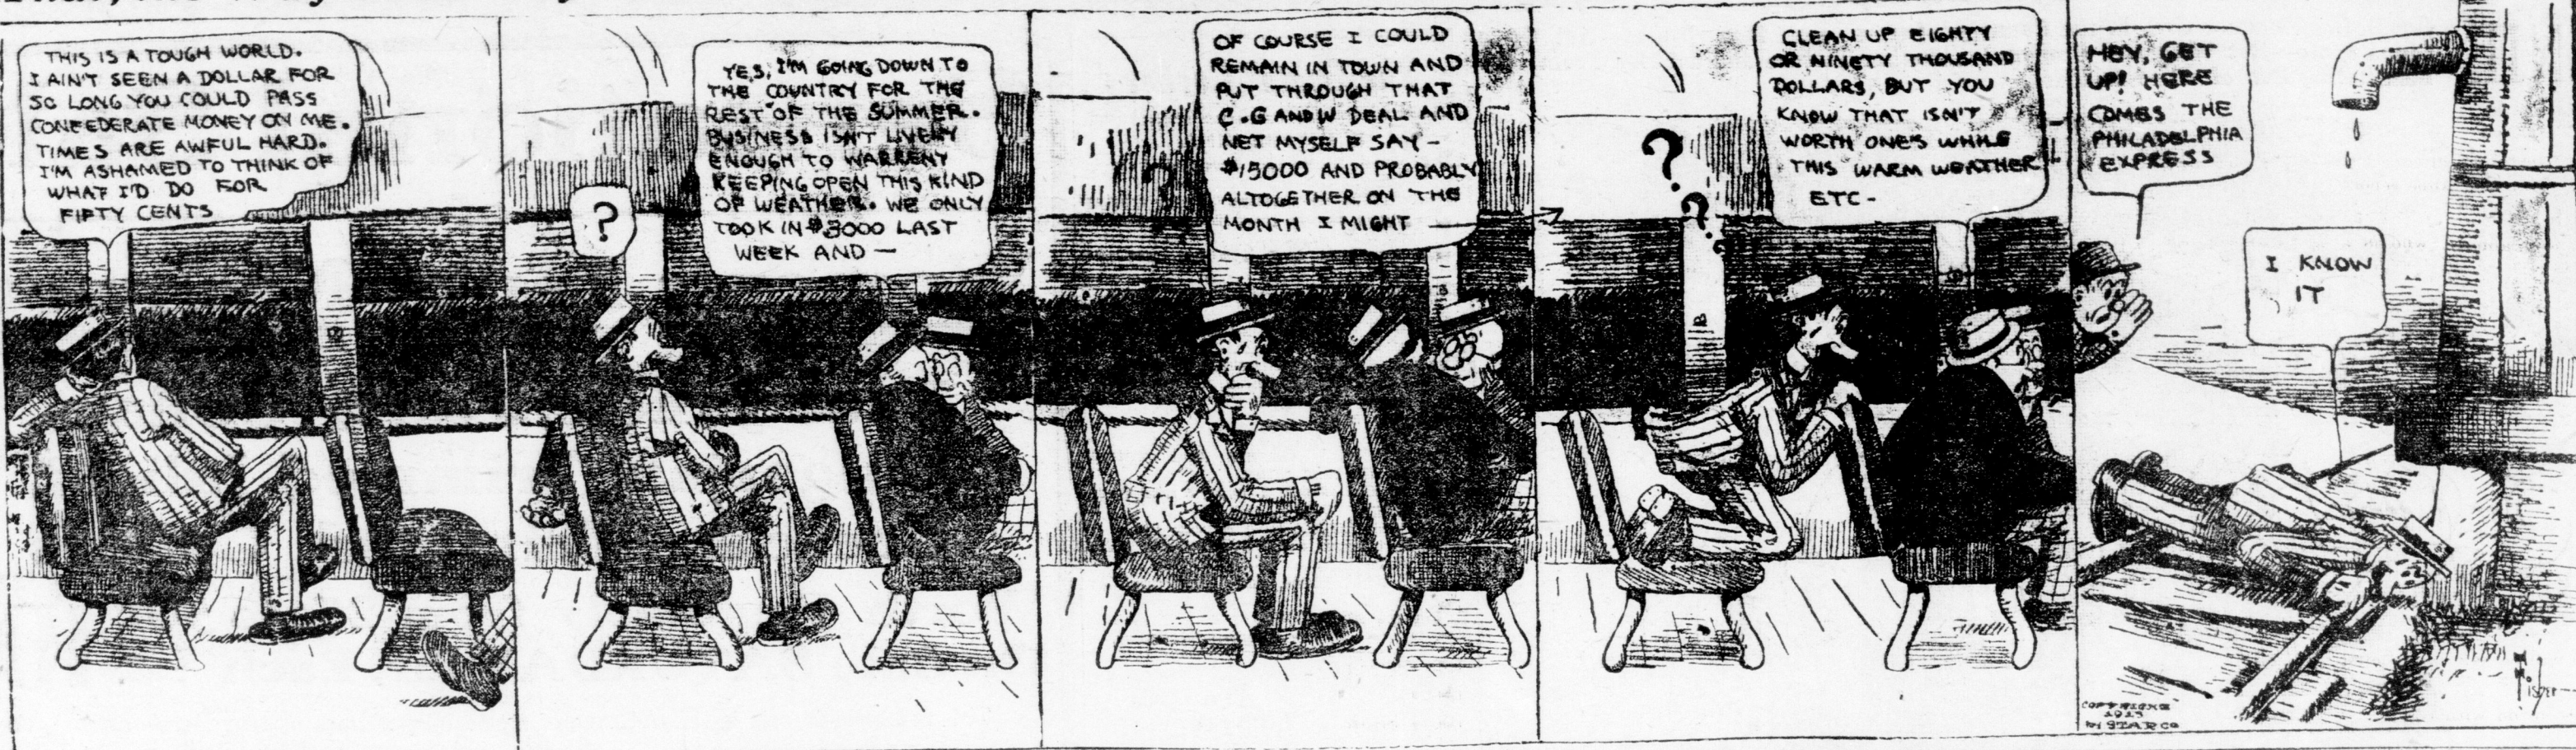

"Look at me. Look at me," said Mr. Top to Miss Ball when his new paint had dried. "I hope you like me, Miss Ball. I don't see why we shouldn't show so high that she never came get married. We live in the same desk drawer in our master's play room."

"We usually are called upon to where she is," sighed the lonely Mr. work for the little master every day. Top, in the same garden. We both have

No Other Way

BY GORDON HOLMES.

Author of "A Mysterious Disappearance,"
"The House of Silence," Etc.

"My word, sir," he said, when his deft hands were busy with sponge and towel, "your illness did take it out of you, an' no mistake."

"Why, don't you think I am as fit as I was?"

"You must have lost pounds and pounds, sir. Your muscles show up a bit better, for all that. I shouldn't be surprised, sir, if you ain't a better man when your arm gets right. Effect of proper diet an' nursing, sir."

"Now, Rice, be candid. It's the effect of less rum, isn't it?"

"Well, Mr. Claude, if you put it like that—"

"Steady, there! My ribs won't bear pressing. Thanks, I'll rub my breast myself. Look here, sir, you fellows generally hear all the news below stairs. Why didn't you tell me Mrs. Waverton had gone to Narragansett?"

"You don't mean to say, sir—"

"So you didn't know? Moreover, she is in this very hotel, with Mrs. Daunt—and the hotel."

"Miss Kathleen, sir?"

"Yes, I have just fished Miss Kathleen out of the Atlantic. She fell in from the end of the rocks."

The valet did then forget himself, and emitted a short, sharp whistle between his teeth.

"I guessed that would make you blow off steam," laughed Waverton. "If Mrs. Delamar were to show up now I should run out of the hotel, call the first cab and tell the man to drive in a bee-line for the next five days."

"I wish you'd never seen that lady, Mr. Claude," said Waverton, with unusual earnestness. "I'll tell you honestly, I don't like her. When you were brought in for dinner to spend the evening, would not let me to near your room—no, not for days. I don't want to speak uncharitably of anybody, but I couldn't help thinking of the money you had won at Mr. Schwartz's place, sir. It was in everybody's mouth next day. A maid showed it to me in the 'Evening Standard' newspaper. Never was I so glad of anything as when you sent for me and said we was off to the hotel."

"Do you find a great change in me, Rice?"

"Change, Mr. Claude? Why, it's a miracle, that's what it is!"

The man was conscious instantly that he had said a little too much, but Waverton passed the slip without comment—or, rather, he appeared to misunderstand its underlying cause.

"I came rather near eternity that night, Rice," he said quietly. "And those five days I was forced to remain in bed and live on slops gave me time for thought. Mrs. Delamar was not exactly my good angel, but she was kinder than while I was ill. Anyhow, we don't want her any more, now, Narragansett. No, I'll not dress for dinner. A blue serge, please. I'm going out again, and I don't wish to be mobbed as a hero as I stroll along the front. I shall avoid the beach, of course. You need not sort out all those things now. We leave early on Monday."

Rice was taken by surprise to be dried, when he met Celestine, the nurse, whom he had not set eyes on during many months. She was smiling at him, and had sufficient English to recite the afternoon's occurrences. A little later she sent a page to bring him a note from the corridor, and then informed him that Mrs. Waverton wished to see him.

Now, Rice was his former mistress greatly, and had always regarded Waverton as the biggest fool in Christendom in respect to his treatment of a valet—a valet, indeed, Rice himself was on the lookout for another situation at the time of the accident in Florida, and he was puzzled to account with his employer since the latter's illness. Three days later, Rice was told to put his stand, he would have testified unhesitatingly in Mrs. Waverton's behalf; but, for some reason, which he would have failed completely to explain, he was now half inclined to believe that, bad as "Mr. Claude" had been, and ungrateful as his wife might have used more tact with him, and not have shunned him during the last year, as if he were a leper.

These things were running through his head as he passed along the corridor with Celestine, and was admitted to a sitting-room in which he found Mrs. Waverton and her sister. Kneeling in the depths of a big sofa, and wholly engrossed by the pink eyes of a faddy beauty, was the golden-haired child who had been snatched from death little more than an hour ago.

Rice bowed solemnly at a loss for words, he now congratulated Mrs. Waverton on Miss Kathleen's escape.

"I understand that Mr. Waverton arrived here only this morning," began Davis rather nervously.

"Mr. Claude didn't even wait to see his own suite, ma'am. He just stood in the hall for a minute, told me to put his things tidy, and walked out. From what I have heard since, ma'am, he must have gone straight along the shore as he was brought there by Providence, I do believe."

"So Rice and the hotel manager evidently thought that supernatural attention was being devoted to Narragansett that day. Mrs. Waverton, the second-best in the hotel, as she figured on the hotel register—was pale enough now, and her eyes were downcast. She did not check the valet's enthusiasm, but her utterance was still halting when she explained why she had sent for him.

"You are the only person in the hotel, Rice, whom I can take into my confidence," she said. "I shall be quite outspoken. Do you think Mr. Waverton would come and see me if I sent him a note? Mrs. Daunt and I have been discussing matters, and I feel that I ought to thank him for saving Kathleen's life."

Mrs. Daunt, some three years older than her sister, was so happily married to a New York banker that she was already crystallizing into sedate matronhood, shook her head.

"Of course, we are profoundly grateful for Claude's action, and we cannot help admiring his gallantry; but my own view is that it would be best to say these things in a letter," she declared.

The valet, a veritable Solomon in settling disputes below stairs, was conscious of a problem that called for careful handling. Like most men of his class, he was in-cessantly loyal, even to a bad master, and Waverton, though vicious and dissolute, had never been ungrateful. Then, he was sorry for Mrs. Waverton, and would be glad and proud if the unhappy couple were reunited. Finally, there was Mrs. Davis rather nervously.

The township engineer was instructed to survey and prepare plans, and specifications for a sidewalk on West Worthy road from the city limits to Southwestern Railway.

Checks were issued to the amount of $26,71.

Next meeting of council is to be held on Sept. 1, 1913.

The township engineer reported that he had examined the two bridges over the Port, Stoney Railway and had found them in a very dangerous condition, and advised the council to notify the company re the same.

Before concluding I earnestly hope that Mayor Graham and his council will consider this matter of giving service on the Springfield line, and by so doing help the greater number of the common populace of the city of London.

If these visiting geologists who have just pointed out where there is more coal to be found in Nova Scotia will discover a coal mine or two in Northern Ontario this province will rise up and call them blessed.

Let the over-ferent devotees of the Lord's Day Alliance raise their hands in horror at the idea of Sunday cars, but are they not the very ones who can afford to motor out on Sunday to places of a refreshing nature, away from the dust and sweeter of the city?

But the poor man who has not the wherewithal to motor must sit in the house and fill his lungs with city air. The street car is the poor man's means of conveyance, and so should not be denied him. Think what a pleasure, sea a boon, to the laborers of London if on Sunday they could take their wives and little ones for a healthful ride out to Springbank with so little expense. Then, moreover, it would furnish labor for a few men on the cars, who, when extra two or three dollars comes very welcome in the stress of the winter months when living is so high. As an example of this you need only look to Ottawa. There is Britannia Park, located similarly to Springbank in relation to the two cities. On Sunday afternoon thousands of poor people avail themselves of an inexpensive outing which does them good in many ways. Wherein lies the evil there?

FIRE AN TWEED

Chapelle's Hotel and Barn Were Completely Destroyed.

[Canadian Press.]

Tweed, Ont., Aug. 8.—Fire, which started at two o'clock this morning, destroyed Chapelle's Hotel and the barns, with five horses, and also all the contents of the hotel and barns. A report, not confirmed, says one man was burned to death while sleeping in the barns. The buildings and their contents were partly insured. The cause of the fire is unknown.

FARMERS INDIGNANT AT COMBINE STORY; A FOOLISH CHARGE

No Foundation to Report That They Fix Prices to Suit Themselves.

Show Very Clearly So-Called Collusion Is Unnecessary and Impossible.

There is no foundation for the report that farmers who sell on the local market have a combine and fix the prices to suit themselves. They claim that the thing is ridiculous on the face of it. It will easily be seen that it is next to impossible for farmers living many miles apart to get together and fix the price which they will get for their produce when they arrive in London, the market being governed entirely by local conditions. If a farmer has not been in for several days, it is only natural for them to inquire of the others what prices are and if the demand is good. That is the only extent to which the so-called collusion regarding prices goes.

No Collusion. All the farmers and market gardeners in this vicinity are well informed about market conditions here, and since the advent of the telephone and the daily newspaper, which nearly all of them get, it is no trouble for them to size up the various factors that govern prices and fix them accordingly. A factor that makes it impossible for them to agree on a price for their goods, is the number of wholesale houses which handle their lines, and the ease of handling their business without any combine. It is only reasonable that they should want to get the highest market price for their produce, and be unwilling to sell lower than one another, although sometimes when they want to get away early they do.

As for the passing slips of paper around with the prices on them, the market clerk and other officials of the market declare that in all their experience in London they have never seen anything like it. It would indicate that such was the case. Middlesex farmers are among the shrewdest businessmen in Canada, and are quite capable of handling their business without any combine. It is only reasonable that they should want to get the highest market price for their produce, and be unwilling to sell lower than one another, although sometimes when they want to get away early they do.

FARMERS' BANK WINS IN PRIVY COUNCIL APPEALS

Highest Courts Awards Liquidator Judgment For Sums Claimed Against Wishart.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—Three important appeals have just been decided by the Privy Council.

In the appeal of Clarkson vs. Wishart, Mr. G. T. Clarkson, liquidator of the Farmers' Bank, has obtained a judgment for sums of $53,522.22 and $8,837.37. A writ for these amounts was issued on Sept. 19, 1911. The Mining Recorder refused to uphold the appeal with costs. The question at issue was whether an unpatented mining claim could be sold under execution. Previous judgments given here held that it could not, but the present action of the Privy Council holds an opposite view.

Decision is also given in the case of W. E. Stavert vs. Donald McMillan et al. This was an appeal from a judgment of the court of appeal of Ontario, dated 13th of April, 1911, whereby the judgment of the trial judge was reversed and the respondent was awarded judgment against the appellants for $137,794. The action concerned promissory notes held by the plaintiff. The Privy Council allowed the claims.

The third case was James H. Kennedy vs. David Kennedy et al. This action was brought for a declaration of the construction of the will of the late David Kennedy and for administration of his estate. The case was tried before Mr. Justice Teetzel in March, 1912. The trial judge declared that the devise of the residue was void as a perpetuity, but did not order administration. The appellant appealed to the court of appeal, which dismissed the appeal, but on a cross-appeal by the respondent, David Kennedy, ordered administration. The Privy Council has now dismissed the appeal with costs.

Found Gas While Searching for Oil

[Special to The Advertiser.] Wyoming, Aug. 8.—The thing which was the last contracted for, resulted in an ample supply of gas being found. The search for oil was abandoned as it was found that there was no oil, but a large quantity of gas was found. It is expected that another attempt to secure oil will be made at a later date.

Eagle Flew Away With Little Child

[Canadian Press.] Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 8.—An enormous eagle today carried off the 4-year-old child of a woodcutter while he was playing near him when he was working in the forest in the vicinity of the village of Ander, not far from Champ. A large body of hunters accompanied by dogs set off to rescue the child, but were unable to find any trace of the eagle or its prey.

Saved $10 Bill, But Nearly Lost Life

[Canadian Press.] Montreal, Aug. 8.—Returning into her burning home, 45 LaGauchette street, to get a ten-dollar bill, Miss Radler would have lost her life today had it not been for the plucky action of J. N. Brouseur, who dashed into the building and saved the girl and the money. The fire burned out half a dozen houses in the Chinese section and was got under control and rendered several score of Celestials homeless.

FRUIT EXCHANGE PLANS TO LOWER COST OF LIVING

Buyers From All Over Western Ontario to Purchase in Toronto.

Co-operative Companies and Individual Growers Will Supply the Market.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, Aug. 8.—To reduce the cost of fruit and vegetables to the retailers, and through them to the consumers, is the object of the Fruit Exchange, a new organization, which has obtained quarters at 11 Church street, Toronto, and is introducing an innovation in this city in the form of an extensive auction market, where apples, plums, pears, peaches, grapes, potatoes, onions, cranberries, oranges, and every other fruit or vegetable in season, will be sold to the highest bidder, whether he comes from Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, Montreal, Oshawa, Guelph, London, Brantford, Owen Sound or any other town or city in the country.

It is intended by this auction market to bring the fruit grower and retailer closer together, doing what is fair and right to both. Co-operative companies and individual growers of fruit will ship the product in car lots to be sold in the open market to him who will give most for it. Upon this plan and principle will be laid the foundation of what the general manager, Mr. James Vair, of Barrie, hopes will become a great and extensive fruit exchange.

The sales will be conducted at an hour to suit the majority of the merchants, 9:00 or 9:30 a.m., and will be for spot cash, the work being done at the minimum of cost.

May Examine Goods. Every purchaser will have ample opportunity to examine the goods. "All the several companies and growers," said Mr. Vair, "are contributing to the success of the exchange, and will ship their product in car lots to be sold, and in many instances their representatives will be present to see the sales carried on."

The retail merchants of Toronto and throughout Ontario have been looking for such a market in Toronto. The growers in the Niagara district have been contemplating adopting this plan of selling. The work has only to be carried on properly to insure success.

Competitive Prices. It will be observed that the auction market method of selling fruit and vegetables means that the price will be largely determined by the fruit merchants themselves, who will do the bidding. This cannot be said of present methods.

While it is expected that the merchants patronizing the auction market will get their fruit and vegetables at less cost than under existing purchasing conditions, it is also expected by Mr. Vair that the grower will not be a loser, for if his goods are sold by auction he will be saved much expense over present methods. If his fruit is consigned to the new market, he will be charged a commission of not more than 10 per cent on the sale price, and in some cases only 5 per cent. This charge, Mr. Vair believes, will be sufficient to carry on and equip an up-to-date market. It is expected that the opening sale will be on or about Aug. 19.

ALL ROADS WILL LEAD TO AMBITIOUS CITY

Hamilton Centennial Celebration and Exhibition Opens Next Week.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Hamilton, Aug. 8.—All roads will lead to Hamilton next week, when the centennial celebration and industrial exposition will be held. Hamilton old boys from all parts of the continent will be present, and London will be well represented, as there are 300 or more former Hamiltonians living there. The city will be gaily decorated for the occasion, and the electrical illuminations will be magnificent. The fun will start on Sunday, with the arrival of the old boys from Western Canada and from Detroit, and from that time until the last bag of confetti is thrown on Saturday night, there promises to be one continual round of pleasure.

The Seventh Fusiliers of London, accompanied by their band, will take part in the big military review and tattoo to be held on Thursday. Tom Allen, the head of the Hamilton Old Boys in London, has already arrived, and is preparing for his comrades who will be here on Sunday or Monday.

The struggle downtown will be given over to the carnival attractions, but there will be entertainment in all parts of the city and the numerous visiting bands are carded to give concerts, morning, afternoon and night. On Tuesday, the Detroit American League team will play an exhibition game with a team to be selected from the Ottawa and Hamilton Canadian League teams. Ty Cobb and all of the stars on the team will be in the game. A number of other high class sporting attractions have been arranged, and it is likely that the London Rowing Club will be represented in the big regatta of the Interprovincial Rowing Association to be held here on Saturday, Aug. 16.

The local Hamilton Old Boys' Association will hold their final meeting tonight at the board of trade rooms, when the final arrangements for the visit to the Ambitious City will be made. Mr. Tom Allen is at present absent in Hamilton completing arrangements for the visit. He may return to the city in time to be present at tonight's meeting. There are some 300 hundred or more Hamilton Old Boys in the city, and as a good number of them have signified their intention of accompanying the local contingent, London should be well represented at the big centennial celebration.

No Fear of a Duck Famine—John Chinaman's Raising Them by the Million

A CHINESE DUCK FARM—FEEDING THE FLOCK.
[BY EDWIN J. DINGLE.]
score on the river banks. One farmer builds a few water pens merely by sticking a bamboo fence in the water, and here he gets his living, merely feeding them twice a day and haggling about once a month with the travelling dealer as to the price.

The birds are fed chiefly on rice, and they reach a size that makes the Chinese duck probably the largest in the world, if not the most tender. A curious story is told by the Chinese as to the reason they hold the duck sacred among birds. On the sixteenth day after the death of a wealthy individual a number of plates of incense and customary offerings are made, and on the table they place a wash-bowl half full of water. On the water they put half of the shell of a duck's egg, which is left to float on the surface. A likeness of a duck, made of bamboo splits covered with paper, and painted, is brought forward. A paper image made in imitation of the human figure is placed on the duck, and the bird is caused to stand in the water in the washbasin. The paper image, of course, imperceptibly—long rows of perhaps a hundred roasted ducks on the casual street stall.

You can go now through Hupeh or by which he gets over to the "other Human and find duck farms by the side."

ROAD SYSTEM OF FRANCE THE BEST FOR ONTARIO

If Adopted Here Could Make an Asset of Highways of the Province

Toronto, Aug. 8.—France gets the palm for good roads, according to Mr. W. A. Maclean, provincial engineer of highways. Mr. Maclean, who is also vice-chairman of the recently-appointed good roads commission, has just returned from a trip through Great Britain and Europe, examining the various methods of road construction and maintenance.

When interviewed yesterday Mr. Maclean said: "One deduction can be clearly made, that the splendid construction of the roads in France is evidently due to their centralized administration. The French roads are superior to the roads in any other country in the world so far as I can ascertain from personal observation and careful inquiry. They have been built. The English roads have simply grown up. The consequence is that the roads of England are narrow, badly located, and in many cases almost totally devoid of drainage."

French Roads Best.
"Would they not be suitable to our conditions here?" Mr. Maclean was asked. "The English roads as I saw them would not stand in this climate," he replied, "whereas the roads of France would. In some instances in provincial England two automobiles could scarcely pass each other."

Mr. Maclean's observations carried him through England, where he was shown the road system by the county engineers. Then five days were spent in Scotland, motoring over one hundred miles a day. He was taken over the French roads by a car kindly provided by a Canadian firm with an office in Paris. In Switzerland the chief engineer of the canton of Baud conducted a party along a road system skirting the shores of Lake Geneva. This road, said Mr. Maclean, was evidently built by the Romans, and although reconstructed since, still uses the same foundation, and is in splendid condition. Roads around Frankfurt, Cologne, and Brussels were also inspected. In London Mr. Maclean was Ontario's representative at the international good roads conference.

Roads as Asset.
Speaking of highway travel Mr. Maclean pointed out the value with which tourist traffic was being regarded in the old country. Villages that formerly were remote and little known were now made popular by good roads and automobiles. In France the Government was spending a large sum of money building roads in the Pyrenees to induce tourist traffic there. "I have travelled this Province pretty well over," said the engineer, "and from what I have seen I am satisfied that Ontario has a great asset in her varied and wonderful scenery, and under proper development should promote a large and remunerative tourist traffic."

The most popular form of road in England and France, Mr. Maclean said, was the asphalt and tar macadam. The cost of labor was much higher in America than in Europe, although it would be difficult to give a comparison of the cost of road construction in the two countries.

Older Ontario used much limestone for road building, but a satisfactory result was to be secured, a harder class of stone, like granite or trap rock, would have to be secured. He also advocated the handling of all road material by machinery wherever possible to lessen the cost of construction.

Maclean expects to have a meeting of the road commission next week, when organization will be completed and the investigation started. It is the intention to visit a number of places in the United States, but not in Great Britain or Europe.

The Best Hotel in the World

"The best hotel in the world is an emblem of nothing except riotous extravagance, selfishness and the mad welter of commotion in which people try to escape from the grim and eternal verities surrounding them," says Mr. Filson Young, and London is threatened with another monument of luxury at Hyde Park Corner. "All good Londoners have been interested by the news that an hotel is to be built on the site of St. George's Hospital, and many of them may have busied themselves with drawing fancy pictures of what would be a perfect hotel for an unquestionably perfect site," says the Spectator. Mr. Malabry-Deeley, the Unionist member for Harrow, who has bought the site and proposes to build the hotel at the cost of a million pounds or more, has made known his ideas in a statement to the Daily Express. He said that about one and three-quarter acres would be available, and that he hoped to build the most beautiful hotel in the world. "Mind you," he said, "I don't know a scrap about the hotel business. I do not profess to do so, and am not a bit ashamed to confess my ignorance." He added that he was "in this deal quite alone," and that if he could achieve his ambition, he should not care if he did not make a single shilling out of it.

"To begin with, the grandest hotels of today draw their visitors into a vortex of fuss, hurry, and va-et-vient which is no necessary part of hotel life as it ought to be. An hotel which aims at being a centre of attraction must needs provide dazzling halls for banquets, dances, and concerts, but there is no reason why a visitor who enters the house, which is for the time being his home, should feel himself being swept along like a straw upon a furious tide. The designer of a perfect hotel should regard his problem from two points of view which are absolutely distinct—the point of view of the visitor who hires a bedroom, and that of the casual visitor who comes to a dinner or a dance in one of the public rooms. The visitor who returns tired at the end of a long day, anxious for nothing so much as to vanish quietly to his bedroom, should be able to do so by an entrance that does not lead through the hurly-burly. "All the splendor of Sardanapalus in the public rooms, arranged though they be with the 'attentive ears' of one skilled in procuring the best that is thought and done in the world of hotels, will not compensate the visitor whose private wants are not correspondingly provided for. Every bedroom should have its bathroom and lavatory. Already some hotels nearly reach this ideal. But the rule should be absolute—'one bed, one bath.' "Much more attention than is customary might be paid to the furniture and pictures of the hotel. Why not have really good pictures, and not many of them? It should be the aim of the ideal caravanserai of London to be also a private palace—but a palace of peace and quiet, not of glaring splendor or ostentatious luxury."

VERY HUMAN.

[Guelph Mercury.]

A game of baseball is a pretty fair index of human nature. When the home team is winning, they are wondrous; when they are losing they are boneheads. It's simply human nature asserting itself. It is just the same in all spheres—baseball, the singer, the preacher, the writer, the politician, or any one of hundreds of cases that readers will readily recall. When you're on top you're a marvel, when the tide breaks against you you're down and out.

"I told that woman I would make any sacrifice for her if she would only make her home with me." "Did you love her so?" "Love her? Of course, I didn't. She was the good, cool, we wanted."—Baltimore American.

How To Get About In Dear Old London; Helpful Suggestions By London (Ont.) Man

(Written Specially for The Advertiser.)

When I say London, I mean ordinary, everyday, impetuous London, and what I write is for the benefit of the tourist, or rather, for him who some day hopes to be one.

It seems to me that some enterprising person might do a tidy business by opening a short course school to teach strangers just how and when to get to the most essential places. True, guide books aim at this, but even the simplest one, Long's Penny Guide—not a bad guide either—needs a little preliminary knowledge to be quite available.

First, I should say: Get four maps at least, also a penny street directory and Bacon's penny vest-pocket map of London.

The four maps I speak of are: (a) Motor bus map (gratis), (b) underground electric or tube map (gratis), (c) electric tram map (gratis), and (d) river boat map (gratis), or, by spending two-pence, you may get a useful combination of tube map with street maps and directory.

These four maps should be studied—mastered. You will see that the way in which the Londoner gets about from his home in the suburb, if one can call continuous rows of houses suburbs, to his working place is either above ground or underground, and the local worker soon learns his best route.

But the tourist has a greater problem. He wants to go to many places, and first to know exactly where those places are, and secondly, the best method of reaching them. And at first probably the very facilities will confuse him by their number.

Perhaps the shortest cut to a knowledge of the main regions of London would be to take the river as a guide, and the bridges as pointers to the sections of interest, which lie north of the river from east to west; he notices that the Tower Bridge, Southwark, and London Bridges are the avenues to the city proper, the place of the banks and business, and further back of Bunhill fields, John Wesley's house and chapel, etc., and he will observe that the Bank is a mighty terminal, or rather, centre, for nearly all means of transit. Of course, the Bank is the Bank of England. The next bridge, Blackfriars, will take him near St. Paul's Cathedral, and here the retail houses are largely business supply shops, with breathing places in "cozy little" Paternoster Row, Amen Corner, and the like, where a bibliophile (and squire) may pass an agreeable half-hour. Waterloo Bridge will place him nearly at the foot of Kingsway, between Waterloo and Blackfriars, the Courts and Inns of Law and Chancery and Chancery Lane abide, with many mighty memories. The next bridge is an ugly railway exit, but foot passengers find it a short-cut to Charing Cross, the Strand and Trafalgar Square, and between it and Westminster Bridge is the region of the Army and Navy Offices and Whitehall, with its matchless Rubens ceiling and the approaches to the Processional Way and St. James' Park, Green Park and Hyde Park.

As to Westminster Bridge, everyone has heard of the Abbey, and the Hall, and the Houses of Parliament. Lambeth Bridge points to the Victoria station, and so down to Vauxhall, Chelsea, Battersea, and many more bridges leading to less known places.

On the north side of the river then the tourist finds the slum section, the church section, the law section, the Government section, the Parliament section, and beside these, the parks, the palaces, the clubs, the theatres, and other regions for exploration.

He will soon recognize that the two grand avenues east and west are the southern one, and nearest one to the river, called the Strand, Fleet street and Ludgate, as it approaches to St. Paul's, and the longer and more northerly one called Newgate, Holborn, and Oxford street, running west from St. Paul's, and the latter may be called distinctively the avenue of London. Two avenues run easterly from St. Paul's; they are Connor street and Cheapside street.

Long's Penny Guide will tell you more about these places than you can remember or see, but my present desire is, very sketchily, I fear, to indicate how one gets there or anywhere else in London.

Now by means of the tube map (the twopenny one is best for obscure places), you will easily see that by entering the nearest tube station (ignoring the bookstalls and slot machines), going straight to the wicket (Anglican booking office), and paying two-pence, or whatever the fare may be, you will be sent down by a lift, take a short walk through bright, well-lit passages to a platform, board a cheerful cane-seated car, and pass several stations to your destination, if you read the conspicuous directions you can hardly miss your way. If you need to transfer to a second line, you will find the station for changing, get out, follow the signs, and take car needed. In this way you go miles quickly, and can even escape from a British shower.

But you want to go above ground. Then if you have studied your map, you know the number of your motor bus; if doubtful, ask a policeman where the bus stops, and if any other number will do. Get on the bus—if you are young and it is not raining—on top. You will notice the driver or chauffeur is not so speechless as a swell taxi driver, but is able and keen witted, and if you can solve the conductor's curd Cockneyisms you will observe that he wears a hairy-used suit of blue—talks somewhat in imitation of a motor honk—passes an active, not to say gymnastic, life up and down stairs. You notice he has a punch and a tray of tickets, and these tickets are trodden under foot of men unless an inspector boards the car. When entering or leaving, hold the hand-rail at the top; one pull on the bell rope is "stop," and if the bus begins to slacken speed to let you down, let it stop at the curb or you may jump into the track of a taxi or a butcher's boy (which would be worse I don't know). But you are going further some miles south, say to Dulwich. The tram map will tell you the number of your car and fare, and will implore you to take a return fare. There are certain places the cars stop, notably the "Embankment" between Waterloo and Westminster Bridges. You will not be thrown about so much as in the bus, and if it is not the hour when you are seeking the suburbs you will have plenty of room. You will find in accordance with the laws of human nature, that though all men are not civil, and that though press of business makes men "short," yet civility is instinctively the rule, and the tram is a much more pleasant institution—English people are pretty shrewd, and do not often speak well of this method of service as seen through the medium of "rates," and the impression seems to be that the buses are better managed and taking away business from the trams—probably the tourist will not observe it. The London County Council have given up the river service, and your correspondent averreth that said service is not as good as it was six years ago—even if it now pays. But I believe it is certain that the council did not make it pay.

If you are, as is most likely, a human being, you will sympathize with those keen-witted and kindly men who do all in their power to get you about the vast metropolis. You will remember that many of them are hard put to it to make ends meet, at home, and that Sir Thomas Lipton sells large quantities of margarine as well as his famous tea.

Those who know what's what as to methods of London transportation will kindly overlook this rather feeble effort to describe them. RECULVER.

An Old London Street Arab

Scene: Victoria Embankment, July, 1913.

Well! I have seen them. What? The very worst pair of trousers that this world contains.

They were worn by a small person some seven years a sojourner on earth. One leg had given way completely and flung out a ragged yard of unwholesome tweed to an astonished universe. The other leg retained some remnant of coherence. The wearer possessed neither shoe nor hat, but his close-cropped head was inconsiderately happy, and despite of all the slings and arrows of outrageous sanitation, he was objectionably healthy.

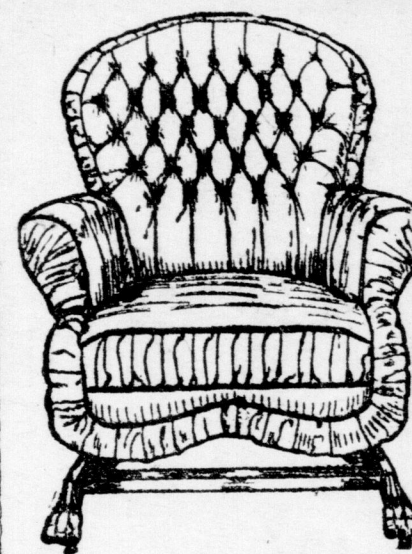

He was certainly taking exercise. Dodging about in a bewildering ruck of motor busses, trams and taxis, with a riotous sense of the joy of living. Pretty nearly naked and wholly unashamed.

I almost felt like bursting into verse, but I know how carefully The Advertiser guards its confiding public from this affliction.

It is evident that the fussy and noisy socialists and the much committed minor and major benevolences have

Greatest Living Actor Leaves "Hamlet" as Heritage on Eve of Retirement From Stage

FORBES ROBERTSON APPEARS IN FAMOUS SHAKESPEAREAN ROLE BEFORE CAMERA MACHINE.

FORBES ROBERTSON, OFF THE STAGE AND AS HE APPEARED IN PHOTOPLAY OF "HAMLET," JUST COMPLETED IN ENGLAND.

Sir Johnstone Forbes Robertson, the foremost living actor, recently knighted by the King of England, has just completed his famous interpretation of "Hamlet" before a CAMERA MACHINE!

This achievement of the Gaumont Company is the most interesting event in the cinematograph industry to date!

It means that millions of people, otherwise debarred of the privilege, will have the opportunity to see a Shakespearean masterpiece presented by a master.

It means that, upon the eve of his retirement from the stage, Forbes Robertson has taken the moving picture medium as a method of preserving to posterity a memento of his day and his work in the world!

Preparations for the production of "Hamlet" as a photoplay took months! A special castle was erected on the cliffs of Lulworth cove, on the Dorsetshire coast of England. And all the traditional touches necessary to a faithful rendering of the production were remembered.

The completed work is the largest British film ever made and is said to be—

THREE MILES LONG!

It may be interesting to know, in connection with the coming exhibition of the "Hamlet" moving picture, that the eminent English actor first played the role of "Hamlet" when he was a boy of ten.

For his initial production, given with his sisters and brothers and a few friends in his father's drawing-room, he made the footlights himself. He cut them out of tin and stuck candles in them!

After this amateur performance of the great Shakespearean play and part, Forbes Robertson studied it for years before he attempted it as a professional. Finally Sir Henry Irving induced him to play the role, and since then his "Hamlet" has been called by many critics the greatest ever given!

You will remember when you see the photoplay with Forbes Robertson in the leading part, that you are watching a man who has been one of the world's leading actors for a good deal more than thirty years.

The presentation of "Hamlet" on the screen will be a "last night" performance to the great public that has known and loved him as a star of the speaking stage, and a "first night" for the much greater public that has never yet had a chance to see him.

MANY SCHOOLS NOT IN TOUCH WITH HOMES

Should Supplement All the Training Work That Is Being Done There.

Practical Papers at Rural Educational Conference at Guelph by Experts.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Guelph, Aug. 7.—Most of today's session of the Rural Educational Conference and Teachers' Short Course at the Ontario Agricultural College was consumed with a consideration of the possibilities of the diverse branches of agriculture in Ontario, and of the school as a social centre.

In the afternoon representatives from different institutions more or less of an agricultural nature gave addresses. A reception was given to the attending inspectors by the summer school at Macdonald Hall in the evening.

Neglected Chances. "The school of the past has largely neglected its opportunities," said A. C. Monahan, in speaking upon "The School as a Social Centre," the feature of today's addresses. "The school is in a certain measure out of touch with the home. It is out of touch with other institutions that are a part of our life. The school should supplement the work that is being done in the home and do the work that is neglected there."

He touched upon the various movements that are going forward in some of the states of the Union to enhance the educational value of common occupations.

Should Keep Record. Taking the milking of a cow as an illustration, he pointed out that the learning to milk was educational, because it made the pupil use his brains, but as soon as he learned the knack of it, as soon as it became automatic with him, it ceased to be educational value, but if the pupil were required to keep a record of the cow's yield of milk the milking would continue to possess value as education.

Passing on to the methods used by the different states to better the condition of the rural schools, Mr. Monahan described the work of the state organizer, who endeavors to bring the country into a united front for the improvement. The schools in some of the districts are brought into the social life of the community by being used as a social centre, as a place where meetings of all sorts are held.

Open Evenings. In Rochester, N. Y., the schools are thrown open in the evening to meetings of many kinds. The speaker described with thorough detail and great interest the advantages being gained in the United States in transforming the school into a great social centre.

Professor W. R. Graham gave a splendid address on Ontario's poultry problems and possibilities, giving suggestions on various important phases of poultry-raising and pointing out the magnificent opportunities that still lie open to those in this industry. This address was followed by another excellent one by Professor J. W. Crow, who spoke on fruit-growing in Ontario. The beekeeping industry of Ontario was discussed in an address by M. Pettit, provincial apiarist of the department of agriculture at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Sent For Trial On Bigamy Charge

[Special to The Advertiser.] Walkerton, Aug. 7.—J. Bester took little notice yesterday of the summons for bigamy served on him by Chief Ferguson, that he did not appear at the trial.

The magistrate took the evidence of his present wife, who stated she married Bester in Harrison four years ago. Mrs. Cogle, a daughter of his first wife, testified that Bester's first wife is still alive and lives in Michigan. The magistrate sent him for trial and issued a warrant for his arrest.

Lad Set Fire to Girl's Clothing

[Special to The Advertiser.] St. Thomas, Aug. 7.—The 5-year-old son of Robert H. Kay set fire to the clothing of a girl, 3 years of age, the daughter of John Duncan, while playing with matches today. The screams of the victim attracted the notice of the little girl's mother and neighbor, Mrs. Tiffin, who burned her hands severely while fighting the flames. The little girl is in a serious condition at the hospital.

EXPECT TO TAKE HOME THE AMERICAN CUP

London, Aug. 8.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the British golf champions, sailed on the Celtic yesterday to play in the American championships. Vardon said before leaving: "I have played Americans before, and I don't think they are very strong. After this shot on the seashore of British sport by the loss of the Davis cup, we are going to bring home, at least, is really the Englishman's game."

ONTARIO TOOK BIGGEST SHARE OF IMMIGRANTS

Forty Per Cent. of the New-comers Are From British Isles.

Chinese Have Paid Nearly Nine Million Dollars in Poll Tax.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—A statistical report issued by the immigration department gives some interesting figures as to the nationality and distribution of the 2,521,144 immigrants who have come to Canada during the thirteen fiscal years, ending with March 31 last.

It is worthy of note that Eastern Canada got nearly half, or 1,110,461, of these new citizens, as compared with 1,410,833, who went to the prairie provinces and to British Columbia.

The Big Share. Ontario took the lion's share, the total reported as settling in this Province being 926,924. The three Maritime Provinces got 108,230, Quebec 374,257, Manitoba 396,913, British Columbia 298,374, and Alberta and Saskatchewan between them 702,182.

During the last fiscal year, out of a total of 402,432 immigrants, Ontario got 122,798, the Maritime Provinces 19,806, Quebec 61,835, Manitoba 49,813, Saskatchewan 45,147, Alberta 48,073, and British Columbia 57,960. It will be noted that last year over half the total number of immigrants arriving were destined to the eastern provinces.

Many Britishers. Of the two and one-half million immigrants who have arrived since 1900 nearly 1,000,000, or 873,739, have been from the British Isles. The influx from the United States has totalled 891,123, while from non-English-speaking countries the arrivals have totalled 656,285. The latter include 161,327 Austro-Hungarians, 88,098 Italians, 61,384 Hebrews, 67,378 Roumanians, 30,762 Germans, 25,016 Chinese, 24,229 Swedish, 21,085 French, 24,995 Polish, 17,555 Russian, 17,130 Newfoundlanders, 17,322 Norwegians, 14,617 Japanese, 12,010 Belgians, 12,395 Bulgarians, 6,080 Greeks, 5,605 Syrians, 5,208 Hindus, 3,558 Turkish, and 4,925 Icelanders. Negra immigrants for the period totalled 732, and 211 of these came in last year.

Chinese Taxed. The 19,000 Chinese who have come to Canada during the past three years have contributed to the public revenue, via the $500 poll tax entry, no less a sum than $8,861,020, or almost half the total estimated cost of the Hudson Bay Railway. Practically half of this total has gone to the treasury of British Columbia. Deportations of immigrants for various causes during the thirteen years have totalled 6,907, the number for the last fiscal year being 1,281. They were deported last year 334 for criminality, 220 for insanity, 392 for being public charges and 107 for vagrancy.

ONTARIO FRUIT TOOK PRIZES

Carried Off the Cup Against All Comers at Cleveland.

NOT FULLY MATURED

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, Aug. 8.—Ontario apples won a notable victory at the International Apple Show and Exposition, which in progress this week at Cleveland, carrying off the cup for the best exhibit at the show, after winning their group.

Word to this effect was received yesterday by the department of agriculture, from W. F. Kidd and E. F. Cameron, who were sent down in charge of the exhibit.

The Ontario apples were grouped with those of Nova Scotia and the New England States. There were upwards of 30 varieties of commercial apples, some of which, particularly the later varieties, were not fully matured. They were placed in the competition, however, subject to an allowance for this fact.

The cup won represents a sort of sweepstakes for the whole show, and is presented by the president of the fruit association, Mr. Edward Loomis. Apples from all over the continent were exhibited, and Ontario's share was comparatively small.

The cup was won by Ontario apples three years ago, but on that occasion they were exhibited by the federal department of agriculture.

SMITH AND FLYNN ARE IN FINE CONDITION

Pueblo Man Favorite and Expects a Knockout in Five Round.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Aug. 8.—"Gumbo" Smith, of California, and Jim Flynn, of Colorado, both held themselves to be in condition today for the ten-round bout in which they were scheduled to engage at Madison Square Garden tonight. The Pueblo man is reported to be a favorite, and Flynn himself has made a public statement that he expects to score a knockout inside of five rounds. The Californian, however, is ten years younger than Flynn, three inches taller and nearly ten pounds heavier, and is known as a heavy hitter, and if clean breaks in the clinches are made, Flynn may be at a disadvantage. He wrote to me and said that he had beaten all comers, with the exception of Jim Barry, who defeated him in nine rounds three years ago.

That Hundred Thousand Dollar Infield of the Athletics Almost Certain to Cut Its Third World's Championship Melon

The word of Connie Mack, leader of the Athletics, has been given that the wonderful infield of his pennant-winning team, which is valued at $100,000 by baseball men, did not cost him a nickel.

Such financial genius should awaken for Mack the profound admiration of John D. Rockefeller or Andy Carnegie, the best-known investors.

In Frank Baker at third base, Jack Barry at shortstop, Eddie Collins at second base, and "Stuffy" McInnis at first base, the Athletics have the greatest infield combination now in baseball and probably the best that ever played the game.

Although valued at $100,000, this sum would not buy them. They are worth more than that to the owners of the Athletics, for they win pennants and world's championships and produce dividends, the size of which only the men of the American League know.

Unless something breaks before the last days of September, these boys will be disputing with some National League club for the title of world's champions, for the third time in four years. Twice they have won the honor. Last year, induced by success in 1910 and 1911, the team dissipated and loafed until Boston won the honor, but this summer, after a winter spent in Cuba, they have performed like the Athletics of old and appear to be unbeatable.

HORSEMEN AT GUELPH PLAN HALF-MILE TRACK

Said They Will Have Work Started Shortly on Track in North End.

Galt, Aug. 8.—There is some talk amongst local horsemen here of building a half-mile track on the Manchester survey at the north end of the town. The site is a perfect one, and it is likely that work will be commenced immediately on the track. It is hoped that matinee races can be held here this fall, and in the spring stables and a stand will likely be built.

BOUGHT THE PECK

Reid Wrecking Company Secured the Steamer at Auction Sale.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Sarnia, Aug. 8.—The steamer Peck, purchased at a public auction by the Reid Wrecking Company, of Sarnia, is expected to arrive here shortly. Just recently the hull of the Peck blew up at the Soo, badly damaging the vessel. She was put up for auction at Racine, Wis., and was bid in by a representative of the Reids, who will make her into a tow barge.

LORD BALLYROT

IN LAGLAND

A dark, murky morning, old chap, significant of rain, caught me out unawares without either rainproof garment or umbrella. I decided to invest in both articles, and the first shop-keeper I visited spoke as follows:

"I see, mister, you want to splurge in a yaller slicker and a mush. Say, I can fit you out with a douse-proof outfit which will keep you as dry as a fisherman's throat whenever the sky tips over. Let me show you a new rainproof fender that will put the jody on snow, rain, lightning, dogs, cats, and breakbats. Go to it, kid!"

Board of Works.—Ald. Glass presided at a minority meeting of the board of works Thursday night. The survey plans were referred to City Engineer Ashplant for his approval or disapproval. The new survey is on Spruce street, just outside the city. W. E. Fuller, a painter, who tripped over a bad sidewalk on St. James street, near Adelaide, called the city to recompense for two weeks' loss of work through a bruised kneecap, and a gallon of paint which he spilled. A new cement sidewalk will probably be initiated on this street. Accounts were passed.

Young King Manuel, of Portugal, Can't Live on His Allowance.

Will Have Lots of Money When He Marries in a Few Weeks.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Aug. 8.—Pawnbrokers in the neighborhood of Richmond, the historic little town on the Thames where Manuel, former King of Portugal, is now making his home, with his mother, Queen Amalia, have been in temporary possession for the last few months of many very beautiful pieces of jewelry and some very valuable un- gems.

One diamond cross with a huge sapphire in the centre, which now lies in the safe of a certain pawnbroker in Richmond, is said to be one of the most valuable and gorgeous decorations worn by Manuel's father.

Considerable wonder is expressed that the young man who once occupied the Portuguese throne should be in such hard straits, for King George allows him $200,000 a year, and constantly extravagant, however, and his mother is understood not to be very practical. When Manuel marries in a few weeks his fortunes will be recouped, as his future bride is quite wealthy.

Heart-To-Heart Talk.

King Alfonso, during his recent visit to London, had a heart-to-heart talk with the young man. He told Manuel that if the royalist party ever succeeded in putting him back in power in Portugal, it would be his duty to play the man and regain the confidence of his people by demonstrating that he was all a king and no longer a boy, swayed by whims and theatrical stars, such as Gaby Deslys, and constantly in terror of his life. Alfonso added with characteristic interdict: "A king must not rule his people, but must make them feel he is willing to lead them and share their troubles and their dangers. We kings are instruments in the hands of fate and must serve our destiny in the best and most manly fashion we can, no matter what fate is in store for us."

Kaiser Puzzled.

Continental monarchs do not approve in the public introduction in England of the former Portuguese royal family as "King Manuel and Queen Amalia." The German Emperor, in particular, has been very much puzzled lately as to how to treat the approaching marriage of the royal exile with a German princess. He does not want to antagonize the present Portuguese Government, and at the same time there is no reason why he should not maintain friendly relations with Manuel, who is related to more than one of the royal families of Europe, and whose chance of one day reascending the Portuguese throne is by no means poor.

The Kaiser has solved the difficulty by saying that Prince Eitel Friedrich may attend the wedding as a specially invited guest, but not as the official representative of the reigning Hohenzollern family, thus straddling the fence in the most approved diplomatic fashion, for the presence of the German prince will give the necessary recognition after all.

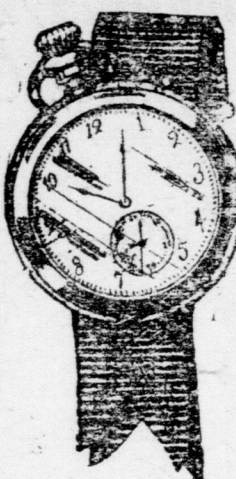

SUIT OVER TRADEMARK

Cook, Fitzgerald & Co. Enter Motion at Osgoode Hall for Injunction.

Mr. C. H. Ivey, acting for Messrs. Cook, Fitzgerald & Co. of this city, has entered a motion at Osgoode Hall for an injunction against Messrs. Bachrack Bros. of Toronto, forbidding them to make use of the trade mark "Liberty" on the brand of shoe manufactured by them. The case was charged until Sept. 17. An injunction previously secured will be continued in the meantime. The case, which has attracted a great deal of interest among shoe manufacturers, arose over an alleged infringement of the "Liberty" brand, which is a registered trademark of Messrs. Bachrack Bros. of Toronto, who are also shoe manufacturers, have infringed their "Liberty" brand. They seek a restraining injunction, and will probably also sue for heavy damages. Similar cases have been rather frequent in the United States courts of late.

Change of Ownership.

The meat department of F. L. Ross & Sons, corner Hamilton road and William streets, has been sold to Messrs. Duckworth & Brown, who will continue it as a separate store, and who solicit the patronage of all former customers, also new ones. Messrs. F. L. Ross & Sons will continue the grocery store as formerly, and take this opportunity of expressing their thanks for the patronage the public have given them.

GRACKLE FAMILY

ARE HERE IN FORCE

Many Thousands of the "Blackbirds" Are Summering in Forest City.

VERY NOISY AT NIGHT

Destructive of Corn, But Destroy Vast

Numbers of the Dangerous

Cutworms.

The "Personal Mention" columns of the newspapers are filled these days with the names of visitors who have come to the Forest City to spend their summer holidays. The lists each day are long, but not all of our visitors have been announced—not by twenty thousand or so. It might therefore be in order, to announce that Mr. and Mrs. Bronzed Grackle, with their family and relations, numbering thousands have arrived (uninvited), and are renewing acquaintances in the southeastern sections of the city. When at home, Mr. and Mrs. Grackle go by the more prosaic name of Blackbird, and are residents of the Middle States. Canada is their summer resort, and they seem to have picked London this year as being especially suited to their requirements. Possibly the name "Forest City" has something to do with their decision, but at any rate, they are here in numbers that are astonishing. Every evening about 7 o'clock, anyone passing along the streets may see them flying in flocks that seem to darken the sky, from the northwest towards the southeast. Their appearance is like that of a great army. They fly in long columns (a military man would doubtless be tempted to call them "flying columns"), a leader going in front and directing the course, and the others following in closely-packed flocks. Although seemingly only an inch of two separates each of the myriad fluttering wings, there is never a collision and rarely a change of position. The dime of the leader seems to be obeyed implicitly, and with an alacrity that is truly astonishing. Should he deem it wise to swoop low, the whole flock immediately swoops like lightning, and when he spies an obstruction which he deems it wise to circumvent, he turns abruptly, and instantly the whole flock is brought up standing, with a whirl of wings that can be distinctly heard, even above the noise of the street. In rapid flight the wings make a whistling, sibilant sound, that is hard to compare with any other.

So Hearty Eaters.

But, as in the best-regulated armies, there will always be a few stragglers, little groups of belated grackles will often be seen making the best of their way after the main body. They are difficultly seen, quite apparent in their labored flight—they are suffering from an overloaded crop.

This brings up the subject of their diet. At this season of the year, grackles live on the fat of the land, for these are the days of the ripening grain, and when it is cut and shocked in the fields it is inevitable that a few of the ripened heads will shed their plump kernels on the ground, and Mr. Grackle and his companions are fully alive to this fact. They settle in the fields, and if there is no one to disturb them, they begin staking about with both bright eyes wide open, and what they miss in the way of scattered grains isn't worth mentioning. While it is true that their depredations in this respect do not occasion much actual loss to the farmer, they undoubtedly do great damage in the spring, sprouting corn being their special article of diet. To counteract this somewhat large board bill, they are the chief agents in destroying the deadly cutworms. A nice, juicy cutworm they consider a great delicacy, and in stalking up and down a field a single grackle will dig up and devour scores of the pests in a day. And a wily farmer can insure the safety of his corn by giving it a coat of tar before planting. It doesn't hurt the corn any as regards sprouting quality, but it causes the black marauders to lose all interest in it and devote their time to the cutworms and other insects.

Noisy Nuisance.

But no such good office does the blackbird perform for the citizen in whose yard he takes up his residence during the time of his stay in these parts. Almost invariably the blackbirds choose some avenue of beautiful maple trees, as a resting place at night, and they roost there in great numbers, the same trees to roost, and their presence is an unqualified nuisance. They roost so thick in the trees that their weight bends the branches, and a more noisy and restless colony can scarcely be found. Their motto seems to be "We never sleep," and all night some restless members of the flock keep up an incessant quarrelling and chattering, which is maddening to a person trying to get a bit of sleep. And at the first peep of day, long before the milkman appears, they are all astir, flying to and fro and making an indescribable din. Cement sidewalks and lawns beneath trees where they have their congregating places are rendered filthy by their presence. Altogether they are the most unwelcome visitors from the forest citizen's point of view, and it is hoped they will soon see fit to withdraw themselves, as no effective means of destroying them has yet been hit upon.

HEAVY TRAFFIC

Tourists Are Crowding Every Lake Steamer For Weeks.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Sarnia, Aug. 8.—Passenger traffic on the Northern Navigation line is so heavy that no reservations can be secured on the Hamonic, Huronic, and Sarnonic for the next two weeks, every berth having been taken in advance and the boats crowded to capacity.

Over 75 people were turned away from the Huronic last week, it being impossible to secure reservations. The White Star Line, operating between Port Huron, Sarnia and Detroit, is also doing a big excursion business, hundreds of people being carried every day, both to and from Detroit, and waypoints along the river.
